Johnson Sees Hope For NATO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson is convinced NATO will survive as a vigorous and effective defense arrangement despite French President Charles de Gaulle's intentions of withdrawing from military participation in the alliance.

This was reported today by administration officials after a series of strategy conferences on how to deal with De Gaulle's plans to force the treaty organization's headquarters, foreign bases and troops off French soil within the next year or two.

U. S. Ambassador to France Charles E. Bohlen was flying back to Paris this weekend after participating in White House talks on NATO problems.

PLATFORM

The United States and 13 other NATO nations, meanwhile, unveiled the platform from which they will argue that De Gaulle is courting to dismantle NATO's integrated military structure.

The 14 countries declared Friday their firm intention to continue with the "integrated and interdependent" military arrangements with or without France.

The United States planned to follow up with a message to France asking just how De Gaulle expected to retain "political membership" in NATO without making any military contribution or permitting use of his territory for allied defense arrangements.

"The North Atlantic Treaty and the organization established under it are both alike essential to the security of our countries," the joint declaration said.

Coastal Cities Gear For Annual Revelry

By THOMAS FORTUNE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

With the Orange Coast's annual rite of spring — Easter Week vacation — only two weeks off, police in three beach cities are busy today laying plans to handle the crowds of vacationers.

Police chiefs in Newport Beach, Laguna Beach and Huntington Beach will rely heavily on tried and true measures as they try to keep the lid on vacation revelry April 2 to 10.

One of the surest preparations,

HB Riptide Claims Life Of Teenager

A 19-year-old El Monte youth, Trinidad Yorba, drowned Friday afternoon at Bolsa Chica State Beach when he became caught in a riptide and sank into the waves from exhaustion.

A companion, Barry Buncie, was rescued.

21, of Azusa, told lifeguards he tried to assist Yorba but the youth evidently was inexperienced in ocean swimming.

The body was recovered by lifeguards from Huntington Beach after about an hour's search.

Guards said that Yorba and Buncie were body surfing at 1:30 p.m. They were caught in a strong cross current when they started swimming in from 300 feet offshore.

Buncie managed to reach the beach, but Yorba, after coming close, disappeared.

tions, they've found, is to increase manpower. In Newport Beach and Laguna Beach the entire force will be assigned to 12 hour shifts, with no days off.

RESERVES

Newport Police Chief B. James Glavas will commit 35 reserve officers to back up regular personnel. Laguna Chief of Police Harry Labrow will be able to count on eight off-duty sheriff's officers, and Huntington Beach Chief John H. Seltzer will deploy four additional men.

In addition, officers picked for their youthful looks will mingle with crowds on the beach. In the Artist Colony the beach detail will wear casual garb, but in Newport and Huntington Beach where plain clothes officers are known as the Mole Patrol and Seltzer's Sandmen they will be clad in swim trunks.

Each city is also prepared to crack down hard on teenagers who stay out past the bewitching hour. Newport, in particular, had good success in curbing Easter Week high jinks last year by strict enforcement of 10 p.m. curfew for juveniles.

Youths who sleep in cars or on beaches are likely to finish the night in jail.

MATCH

Laguna Beach Chief Labrow said his city would match Newport's enforcement efforts.

And Huntington Beach's Seltzer said his officers will be "right on top of vacationing youngsters the moment they arrive to let them know we mean business."

Historically, Newport Beach has been the most embattled

Campaign In Britain Heats Up

LONDON (UPI)—The British election campaign heated up today following Prime Minister Harold Wilson's announcement he was ready to negotiate the nation's entry into the European Common Market, but only on his terms.

In a speech at Bristol Friday night, Wilson charged the conservative government which he succeeded 18 months ago had entered Common Market talks "cap in hand."

He added, "We shall not proceed on the basis of an unconditional acceptance of whatever terms are offered us."

Conservative party leader Edward Heath, speaking in Cardiff, Wales, later termed the speech "poisonous" and said it contained "filthy insinuations."

"One really ought not to say these sort of lies and abuse even during an election campaign," Heath said of the Laborite prime minister's remarks.

France blackballed British entry into the European Economic Community three years ago at negotiations conducted by Heath for then Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

"Given a fair wind, we will negotiate our way into the common market, head held high, not crawling," said Wilson.

Fire Kills Man

SANTA ANA — Firemen pulled the charred body of a 55-year-old Santa Ana man from a flaming bedroom at his home at 8:30 p.m. Friday. The victim was identified as Harry B. Holden, a brick mason.

Recovery Of H-bomb Set Sunday

PALOMARES, Spain (UPI) — The United States hopes to recover by Sunday the unarmed H-bomb lost in the crash of two Air Force planes two months ago, informed sources said today.

Inclement weather could delay recovery operations, however.

The missing bomb was one of four carried by a B52 jet bomber that collided with a KC135 tanker during refueling operations over the southeastern coast of Spain Jan. 17. Three bombs were recovered quickly and the fourth has been object of a massive land and sea search.

The sources said it was "almost 100 per cent certain" the H-bomb finally was located about 2,500 feet below the Mediterranean surface, about five miles off this coastal village.

CABLE

Although there was no official announcement of the find, the sources said a cable was attached to the bomb by either the 22-foot submersible "Alvin" or the 51-foot "Aluminaut," both of which are capable of being fitted with a mechanical claw.

There have been no reports of contamination in the coastal waters as units of Task Force 65, the U.S. Navy armada assigned to the sea search, checked constantly for possible radioactivity.

Underwater photographs showed the casing of the weapon—said to be a 20-ton H-bomb—was still intact, suggesting more evidence against the possibility of contamination.

KEY UNITS

Among the key recovery units on alert in the area were the Navy salvage ship USS Hoist, equipped with a 20-ton hoisting device, and the fleet tug USS Luiseno, which has boom.

A 10-ton heavy duty lifting device was also on hand. Officials have emphasized there was no danger of a nuclear explosion because the bomb was unarmed. But they said there was need for caution because the bomb's TNT detonator could explode.

Meanwhile, a 46-year-old Spanish fisherman who helped American searchers to find the bomb shunned suggestions that he deserved compensation.

"I know I did something good for them (the Americans) and also for Spain," said fisherman Francisco Simo. "This is enough reward for me."

He got into the back seat with the woman and released the other child before leaving. The car headed west out of the city, making one stop when Baker ordered Keeler to tell police to stop following the car.

Baker told Keeler to drive back into Eugene at a high rate of speed, and told them he would shoot into the crowds of shoppers if the police did not stop following.

Seligman was standing with his fiancée on a corner waiting for a traffic light to change when the crowd heard sirens and then a shot.

Boy 'Busted' $2,000 Given Away

A 9-year-old Costa Mesa boy was the most popular student at Mesa Verde Elementary School Friday when he was handing out $100 bills to classmates.

The wave of prosperity was short lived, however; it ended as soon as the astonished assistant principal, Scott Paulsen, realized it wasn't play money.

He quickly retrieved more than $2,000 passed out by the good-hearted fourth grader, including better than 15 $100 bills. The rest was in smaller denominations of $50, $20 and $10.

Officials said they weren't sure all the money had been recovered.

And authorities were still uncertain today where the money came from. The generous lad first told classmates that he won it on a television program. He later said he found it in a sealed envelope stuck in some shrubbery at a home near the school.

Costa Mesa police are tight-lipped about the whole incident, but indicated the recovered cash is in a police locker for safe keeping.

Hinman Files Suit For False Arrest

LOS ANGELES — Charles W. Hinman, facing trial April 4 on a charge of soliciting the murder of Newport Beach attorney Murray Chotiner, filed suit here Friday asking $2 million for false arrest.

Hinman, 59, a wealthy Malibu real estate operator, also asked $3 million because he claims two sheriff's deputies beat him in county jail Dec. 20.

Hinman claimed he suffered broken ribs and internal injuries.

He was arrested Jan. 17, and charged with paying a $240 down payment to salesman Leonard Amabile to kill Chotiner. The district attorney claimed Hinman was angry with Chotiner because the attorney represented Mrs. Hinman in a divorce action.

Chotiner, who lives in the exclusive Bayshores tract in Newport Beach, is the former campaign manager for Richard M. Nixon.

'Moderate' Casualties Reported

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops inflicted "moderate" casualties on a U. S. Marine unit in heavy fighting near the Da Nang airbase, and a leatherneck engineer team took "heavy" losses in a mine blast two miles away, an American military spokesman reported today.

It was disclosed at the same time that U. S. Air Force and Navy planes flew 56 missions over Communist North Vietnam Friday, including a strike against a surface-to-air (SAM) missile site 28 miles north-northeast of coastal Thanh Hoa.

U. S. B52 jet bombers smashed suspected Communist positions near the overrun A Shau U. S. Special Forces camp 375 miles northeast of Saigon on the Laotian border. A spokesman said, however, it appeared the North Vietnamese regulars had withdrawn from the area after dismantling what was left of the outpost.

PRESSURES

On the political front, it was reported that U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge today was trying to ease anti-government pressures caused by the dismissal of a popular Buddhist general.

Informed sources said Lodge was meeting with scores of key figures, including militant Buddhists who have been demanding that an elected government replace the Saigon military regime and that Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi be reinstated as Vietnamese 1st Army Corps commander.

FIRE FIGHT

The military spokesman in Saigon said a company-sized unit of about 200 marines incurred moderate casualties Friday in a fierce fire fight with a company of Viet Cong eight miles south of Da Nang. The marines, from the 9th regiment, killed at least 10 of the heavily-armed Communist troops as part of a battalion-sized operation.

The engineer team, supporting an infantry platoon from the 3rd Marine Regiment, suffered heavy casualties Friday when a Viet Cong mine exploded while the marines were removing it from a road six miles southwest of Da Nang.

Navy pilots were unable to provide damage assessments in the attack on the North Vietnamese SAM rocket site

Riot Quelled

BOMBAY, India (UPI) — Police used tear gas and clubs Friday to control a mob of textile mill workers on strike at Scholapur, 300 miles from Bombay. The Communist-led strikers tried to disrupt life in the town by hurling stones and forcing shopkeepers to close their stores.

President Names
Protocol Chief

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has accepted the resignation of Lloyd Hand as U.S. chief of protocol and named James W. Symington, son of Sen. Stuart Symington, (-Mo.), to succeed him.

White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers announced Hand's resignation Friday, and said it was effective next Tuesday. Moyers said he could give no reason for the resignation, but Hand is expected to seek the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor or Governor of California. Formal announcement of his candidacy was expected Tuesday.

Symington, 38, is executive director of the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth in the Justice Department. His appointment to the protocol posts carries the rank of Ambassador.

24 Crewmen Rescued

SYDNEY, N.S. — All 24 crewmen of the 347-ton sailing ship, Erik A. Nielsen, were rescued Friday, minutes before the ship sank in the St. Lawrence River.

The crew was taken off the ship by the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Sir William Alexander. The Nielsen was en route to a seal hunt off the Labrador coast when she sank.

Ole A. Nilsen of Dartmouth, N.S., owner of the ship, said he had no idea what caused it to sink. It was the second ship he has lost in two years.

'Industrial Spy' Arrested

REDWOOD CITY — Tiny radio equipment, concealed in bushes outside a manufacturing firm, led to the arrest Friday of the president of a rival firm on charges of industrial spying.

Don Joseph Mattos, 33, president and major stockholder of the M. C. Corp. of Union City, Calif., was accused of conspiring to illegally record confidential communications.

Mattos' foreman, Robert Henderson, 31, was arrested Tuesday when he tried to remove a tiny microphone from the window sill of the office of Grant A. Wishell Sr., president of Botts' Line, Inc., in Redwood City.

Sex and Organized Crime?

QUEBEC CITY — Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner suggested Friday that the central figure in Canada's sex-and-security inquiry might have some connection with organized crime in the country.

Wagner said he would like to talk to Gerda Munsinger, the German beauty who allegedly kept company with several conservative cabinet ministers during the late 1950s and early 60s.

Wagner made his statement after Mrs. Munsinger said she would be willing to return to Canada for the inquiry into the scandal if the government would protect her against criminal elements.

Counterfeiting Ring Broken

CHICAGO — A Federal Grand Jury Friday indicted 22 persons accused of operating a counterfeiting ring believed responsible for most of the bogus money circulated in the nation in the past two years.

The 22 persons were accused of issuing $1 million of phony $10 and $20 bills. The government said all but six have been arrested.

Michael Torina, chief of the U.S. Secret Service of force here, said the Chicago-based ring issued notes of "deceptive quality—they were pretty good counterfeits."

ROTC to Expand

WASHINGTON — The Army announced Friday that it will add junior ROTC military training to 147 schools this summer.

Under the expansion, authorized in the ROTC Vitalization Act of 1964 the training will be given at 434 secondary schools. It is now given at 287.

The Army said it would consider applications from schools which want to establish junior ROTC units if the applications are received by appropriate Army commanders by April 1.

Other World Happenings

NEW YORK — The New York Civil Liberties Union objected Friday to a police crackdown on undesirables in Times Square and Greenwich Village. It said it is no crime to be a "degenerate, derelict or alcoholic."

WASHINGTON — The United States has changed its mind and decided it will sign a proposed cultural exchange agreement with Russia after all. . . . NEW YORK — R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., bowing to a presidential request Friday, rolled back a scheduled penny-a-pack increase on the price of its cigarettes. . . . WASHINGTON — White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said Friday that "pathological troublemakers" in the Washington press corps can blur the vision of someone in his position and cause over-reaction to criticism.

Hard-luck
Astronauts
Back Home

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Gemini 8 astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott returned to their launch site today to give detailed reports which may help find the cause of their cosmic brush with disaster.

The hard-luck pilots, who weathered engine trouble in the air as well as a space-flight abort, landed here on a runway only three miles from the launch pad they left in a cloud of fire and smoke on Wednesday.

The first order of business for the travel-weary spacemen at the spaceport's plus astronaut quarters was a report on just what happened when their capsule whirled out of control while linked to an Agena satellite.

Resting on their debriefings and the careful analysis of telemetry reports being fed into the manned spacecraft center in Houston is the fate of the four remaining Gemini rendezvous and docking missions.

State Sued
By Owners
Of Building

SANTA ANA — The owners of several apartment buildings adjacent to the California State Department of Employment office here filed suit Friday against the state for $363,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal A. Davis, owners of apartments on South Baker and South Rosewood streets, also ask an injunction to force the state to provide more parking and keep the department's clients away from the apartments and $4,500 a month, money they charge is lost due to a high vacancy rate.

In the suit, the plaintiffs claim that the clients use a model apartment bathroom, litter the area, prevent tenants from using garages, lie on the lawns and cause traffic jams on the streets.

They also claim the department has refused to erect a wall clearly separating the two areas.

Because of this, the plaintiffs charge, the vacancy rate has climbed to 40 per cent since November, 1964, causing the apartments to lose $319,000 in its fair market value.

Hinshaw Opposed
Realtor Seeking
Assessor Position

SANTA ANA — Art Pilant, 42, a Tustin area realtor, took out papers Friday to oppose incumbent County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw, the county clerk's office reported.

Pilant, 13341 Prospect Ave., has lived in Orange County for 12 years and is a former president of the Santa Ana-Orange-Tustin Board of Realtors. He is married and has three children.

Hinshaw, 42, assessor since January, 1965, formerly served 15 years with the state Board of Equalization and for five years with the Los Angeles County assessor's office.

Others who obtained papers to run in the June 7 primary election were:

James J. Delaney (R), 2426 College Drive, Costa Mesa.
James E. Comer (R), Los Alamitos.

Trustee, Yorba Linda Library District

TARGETS
Other targets were highways, bridges, trucks and ferries in strikes in the peninsula ranging from the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel northward to Thanh Hoa. An Air Force mission also hit a railroad bridge 110 miles northwest of Hanoi.

It was announced meanwhile that a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk jet was lost Thursday during a raid over North Vietnam while on a reconnaissance mission near Vinh. Search and rescue efforts ended Friday and the cause of the loss and fate of the pilot were unknown.

The U.S. Embassy would neither confirm nor deny the reports of Lodge's intervention in the political dispute, which has touched off a week of general strikes in Da Nang, second largest city in South Vietnam. This was dismissed March 10 for allegedly ignoring many of the Saigon regime's orders and running his sector — the five northern provinces — like a fiefdom.

Prison Ordered
In Dope Death

SANTA ANA — A Stanton man was sentenced to state prison Friday immediately after he entered a plea of guilty in Superior Court to an amended complaint charging involuntary manslaughter. Originally charged with murder in the narcotics overdose death of another Stanton resident, Moses Gustavo Hernandez, 32, could spend up to 15 years in prison under the term prescribed by law. Hernandez was to have been tried for murder March 28.

Both Hernandez and a companion, John Michael Lipton, 22, of Anaheim were charged in the Oct. 30 death of Angel Serrato Montano, 31.

Police found Montano dead in a shed behind his home. The death was later blamed on a narcotics overdose.

Lipton changed his plea to guilty Thursday on an amended charge that he was an accessory to the crime.

March 19 is a significant day for swallows. Every spring for almost 200 years they sweep in from the ocean to the Mission at San Juan Capistrano to spend the summer. They arrive on St. Joseph's Day — and depart with their full-grown brood — on St. John's Day, Oct. 23.

The mission that the feathery little creatures select annually is a happy and holy one. It has always been called "The jewel of the Missions."

It is as beautiful a sacred relic as any in the world.

San Juan Capistrano Mission was the seventh to be founded in California by the brown-robed Franciscan friars. The cross, the sword and the hoe were symbols of the humble monks who moved across California carrying civilization with them.

Actual founding father of the mission was Junipera Serra who was president of the Franciscans in Baja California.

INDIAN UPRISING

The first attempt to build the mission took place in 1775. It was unsuccessful when there was news of an Indian uprising at the mission in San Diego.

A year later, Father Serra arrived at the spot that had been chosen and found the cross of the initial ceremony still standing. Digging up the bells that had been buried and repairing the rough huts, he officially opened the mission on Nov. 1, 1776.

It was not used as a monastery but as headquarters for the Indians of the area — they were taught to read and write and learn a simple trade. They also received religious instruction.

BRICK AND ADOBE

Mission buildings are constructed of warm, earth-tinted hand crafted brick and adobe. Graceful arches surround a patio constantly in the sun. In the buildings the air is cool, the light dim and the old furnishings worn to the color of wine with age.

The repaired mission is now much as it was in the days of the teaching fathers.

There are the store houses for wheat, barley and hides. The shops where soap, candles, blankets, hats, harnesses and shoes were made, retain a feeling of industry.

The church itself, the oldest in the state, has its original carved pilasters, capitals, doorways, arches and keystones. Its altar is rich with the golden, sacramental ornaments of the Catholic religion.

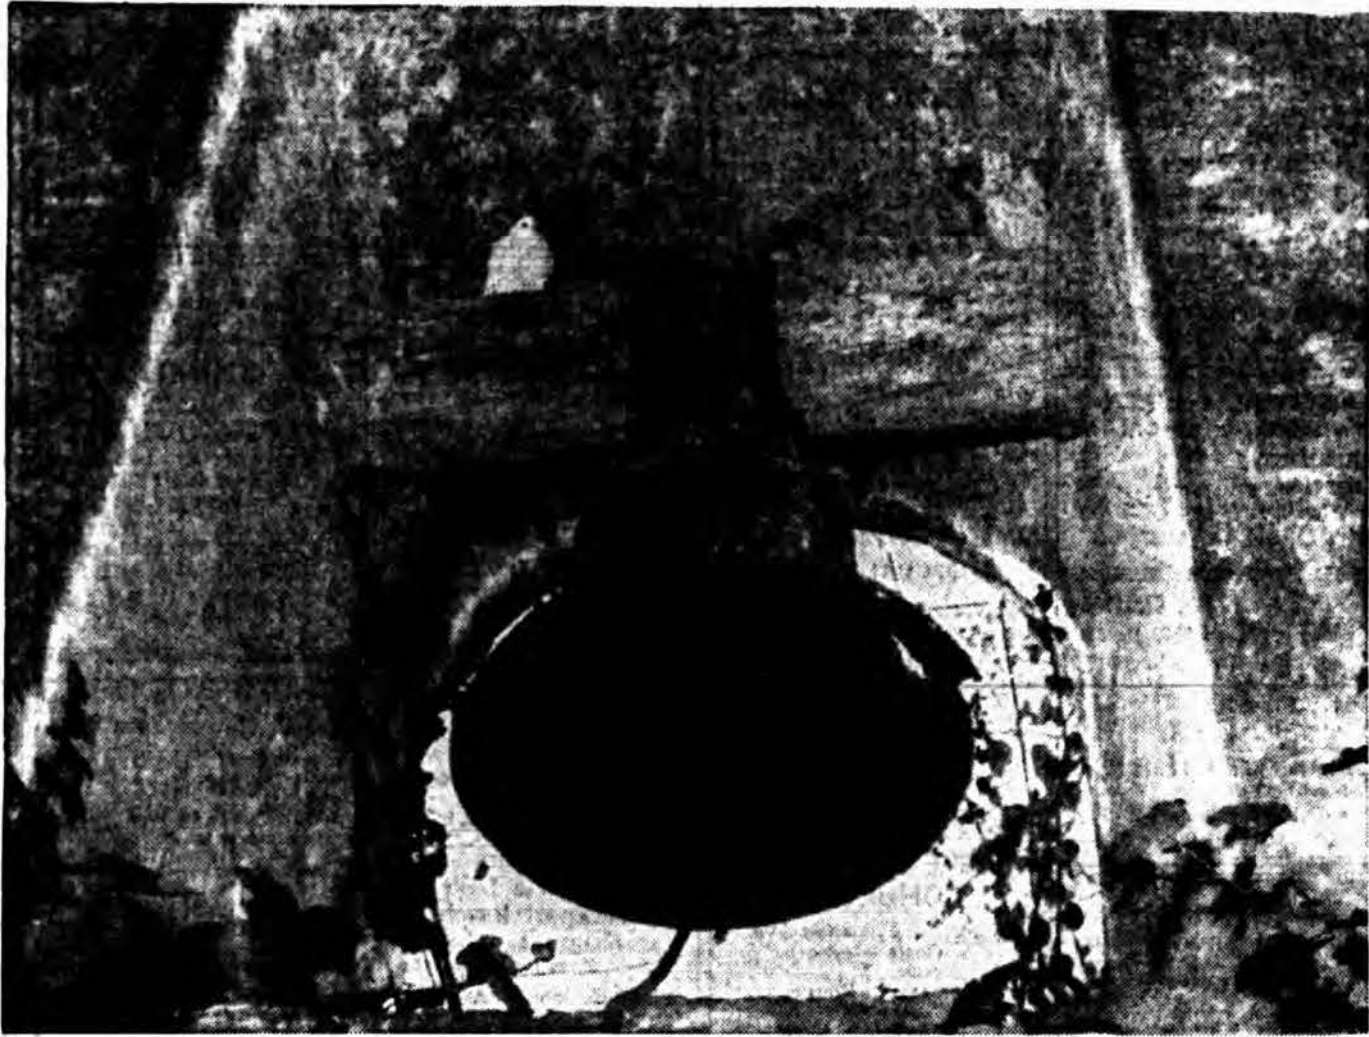

Courtyard fountains splash sunnily and perfume rises from the innumerable flowers blooming everywhere. There is a fresh green odor that comes from the dusky ivy climbing the walls and clustering under the coping of the ancient buildings.

The swallows are smart — there's no better place to spend a serene summer.

UNCLE LEN'S CORNER

Dear Boys and Girls:

Today is an exciting day for the little town of San Juan Capistrano, one of our nearby Orange County coastal communities. For today, St. Joseph's Day, the swallows will return to Capistrano.

I imagine most of you have visited the mission at San Juan Capistrano, for it is indeed famous, and an important part of California history. Long before there were any highways or televisions or Disneyland, Southern California was the home of Indians. And to bring religion to the Indians, the Catholic Church in Spain (yes, Spain — that country was very interested in what is now California) sent missionaries to build churches.

Starting in San Diego, the Franciscan fathers built their missions, and by the time they were through, they had established 21 of them.

San Juan Capistrano was the seventh one founded in a very famous year — 1776 — just about the time the 13 original colonies of United States were declaring that they didn't want to belong to England, and declared their independence.

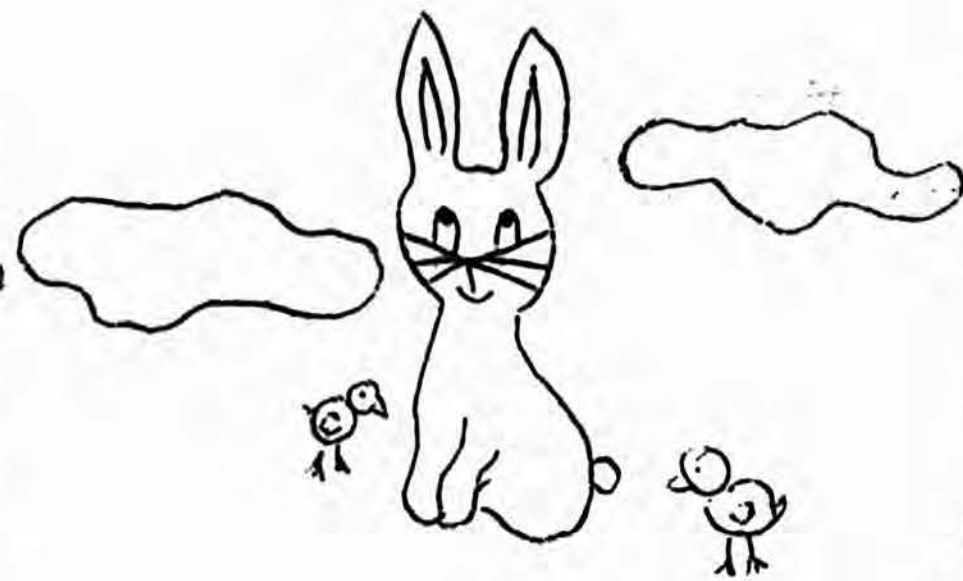

San Juan Capistrano Mission served as a headquarters for the Indians in the work of teaching them the white men's way, and instructing them in agriculture.

The mission was built of adobe, and a beautiful place it was.

But in 1812, an earthquake occurred and the old stone church crumbled. The ruins of that church can still be seen.

The mission today has been repaired and it's a pretty, interesting place to visit.

The little cliff swallows (the Spaniards called them "Las Golandrinis") come back year after year to build their mud nests in the ledges and arches of the old church. Today is the day of their traditional return, and by daybreak they were winging through the air to build their nests, raise their families, and stay on until early in September.

The many pigeons who make their home at San Juan Capistrano will again share the mission with the swallows until early fall. Try to plan a visit to this famous mission.

WHAT IS BLUE

Blue is the sky way up above.
Blue is the eye of a soft white dove.
Blue is the bluejay up in the tree.
Blue is the beautiful wide open sea.

Blue is the color of the ocean waves.
Blue is the color of sapphire in caves.
Blue is the color of shadows on snow.
Blue is a beautiful color you know.

FISH ARE FUN

—Dana La Compe, first grade, Fountain Valley.

PUSSYCATS

Kittens, too! Pussycats scamper. Their little ones behind. They jump around, play a bit. Then they chew on bacon rind.

Purr-purr-purr! Meow! Meow! Purr-purr-purr-purr! (We like bacon rind. Don't you?)

RIDDLES AND JOKES

★ Dear Carol: Sally: What did the carpenter say to the wall?
Joe: I don't know.
Sally: One more crack like that out of you and I'll plaster you.

★ A Kennedy half dollar goes to Steve Rhoads, 2750 Aralia, Newport Beach. See rules below.

Dear Carol: An Indian and a man were sitting in a waiting room. The man stared at the Indian. Finally he said, "Are you really a full-blooded Indian?" The Indian said, "No, I'm a pint short."

—Sidney Morgan, 7, 2027 Harding Way, Costa Mesa.

Dear Carol: A man was introduced to a circus sword swallower. Not having seen a sword swallower before, the man asked him to demonstrate his act, whereupon the fellow ate some pins and needles. "But," protested the man, "those aren't swords." "I know," was the reply. "I'm on a diet."

—Gail Reed, 11, 4107 Seashore Drive, Newport Beach.

Dear Carol: Hunter: I spotted a leopard. Wife: Don't be silly; they grow that way.

—Wayne Lewis Millett, 7, 3431 Adobe Avenue, Santa Ana.

Dear Carol: Why did the elephant sit on the marshmallow?
So he wouldn't fall into the cup of cocoa.

—Kathy Anne Robinson, 11, 1211 Park Street, Huntington Beach.

Honorable mentions this week go to Catherine McKnight, 6, 2031 Harding Way, Costa Mesa; Frances Larson, 10 1/2, 3211 Perchem Drive, Costa Mesa; and the youngster who sent in the joke about the duck, the frog and the skunk going to the circus. MR. CLOWN

Mr. Clown, Mr. Clown, your toe is out of your shoe.
And your eyes are very blue.
Your nose is bright red.
Just like the hair on your head.
Your mouth is smiling pink.
Your shoes are the color of black ink.
Oh, and your clothes are green and yellow.
I've never seen a funnier fellow.
In your hand there is a cane and a balloon in the other.
Say where is your mother?
I'd like to ask her how she made you stay.
And look and talk that funny way.

A Kennedy half-dollar goes to Kim Kay, 9, 1315 Warwick Lane, Newport Beach, for her winning entry in the poem contest. Mail your poem or story to Uncle Len, Box 1560, Costa Mesa, California.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Mighty Kentucky, sparked by Louie Dampier and courageous Larry Conley, burst past Duke, 83-79, Friday and into the finals of the NCAA basketball championships tonight against Texas Western.

The Miners from El Paso,

Tex., simply muscled their way past crippled Utah 85-78 despite a 38-point performance by the Utes' Jerry Chambers in the rough, ragged windup of the semifinal doubleheader.

OFTEN TIED
The score was tied six times between 61-61 and 71-71 before the ailing Conley flipped in two free throws on a one-and-one situation. Dampier, a little guard who looks like Gail Goodrich of last year's UCLA champions, fed Pat Riley on a fast break and moments later dropped in a layup to give Kentucky an unbeatable 77-71 margin.

The teams traded baskets regularly over the last 90 seconds, but Kentucky had its 27th victory well in hand. The Wildcats have lost one this season.

Utah, the only unranked team in the tourney, stayed within shooting distance until Texas Western sub Jerry Armstrong slowed Chambers down midway in the second half.

MINERS EXPLODE
Chambers, a lanky 6-4 senior, had just made a steal and dunked in two points to cut the Utah deficit to a single point at 54-53 when the Miners got started. With 5-6 Willie Worsley and 6-1 Orsten Artis bombing from the outside, the Miners quickly ripped out to a 66-57 lead and were never in trouble again.

The score was tied 11 times and the lead changed hands on three occasions before the deep, burly Miners pulled out to a 42-39 lead at the half.

They held the upper hand the rest of the way but it wasn't safe until Armstrong handcuffed Chambers.

Cherubs Crush Leo's Cubs, 10-1

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Home runs by 38-year-old Joe Adcock, 19-year-old Tom Egan and 23-year-old Rick Reichardt propelled the Angels to a 10-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday and the third decision for manager Bill Rigney over his former tutor, Leo Durocher, in as many Cactus League meetings.

In his first exhibition at-bat Adcock followed a first-inning single by Jose Cardenal with his 400-foot blast over the leftfield fence. Egan, a $100,000 bonus baby seeking a catching berth behind Bob Rodgers and Ed Bailey, hit a solo homer to lead off the WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio exploded for three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning and added two more in the eighth to hand Orange Coast a 6-2 loss in an Eastern Conference baseball tilt.

Vanderstock too Much for Pirate Spikers

By BILL DONER Sports Editor

Estancia, Lions Rip Golf Foes

Rick Lenger and Paul Brown fired five over par 76's to lead Estancia to its seventh straight golf victory, downing La Quinta by a 25-11 count at Willowick Country Club Wednesday afternoon.

In other Orange Coast area action, Westminster opened its season with a 28-8 victory over Santiago Wednesday at Huntington Beach Country Club.

Charley Post paced the Lion victory as he stroked his way to a six over par 78. Mike Nichols had a 79 for Westminster, followed by Roger Ball at 81, Carl Womack at 85, Tom Packard at 88 and Larry Bolat at 95.

Santiago's Al Rudow nabbed medalist honors, however, shooting a 77.

Five Eagle linksters shot 82 or better in Estancia's Irvine League victory. Besides Lenger and Brown at 76, Steve Houston shot 78, Kermit Christman and Norm Hankins were in at 82 and Don Hoskins had an 87.

Bruce Hall was the top shooter for the Aztecs with a 78.

Breaststroke Ace

Corona del Mar's Pat McClellan is favored to take the varsity 100-yard breaststroke this afternoon in the finals of the Moore League Invitational swim meet at Downey. McClellan, an All-American water polo player as well, was one of five Sea Kings who qualified first in Tuesday's prelims. Coach Ed Newland's Sea Kings are favored to capture the team title. Newport Harbor is also among the participants.

Monarchs Notch 8th Victory To Uphold Area's Prestige

Surging Mater Dei continued to make a shambles of baseball opposition as the Monarchs blanked St. Anthony, 7-0, Friday afternoon at Santa Ana's Memorial Park.

Jim Slagle paced the victory with four runs-batted-in, picking up three tallies with his triple in the third inning.

It was Mater Dei's eighth triumph in nine starts this season and it made the Monarchs the only Friday winners of the seven Orange Coast area nines that took the diamond.

In Orange League battle, Laguna fell out of a tie for first place as Foothill ripped the Artists, 9-2. Dan Mikels homered for the losers.

Prep Spike Stars At Oil City Today

By GLENN WHITE
Prep Sports Editor

Southern California track and field aficionados will converge on Huntington Beach High School this afternoon for the 45th annual Southern Counties Invitational meet.

The first finals are set for 1 p.m. when 2-milers take their marks. Also slated at that time is one of the featured attractions of the star-studded program — the shot put.

Competing are Dave Murphy of Sunny Hills and John Hubbell from Long Beach Poly.

Murphy, with a nifty effort of 65-10 last week, ranks as California's all-time best prep shot putter and he is a threat to the meet mark of 66-1 1/2 set in 1958 by North Phoenix whiz Dallas Long.

Hubbell, runnerup in the 1965 California State Meet, has a 64-5 1/2 to his credit and most observers expect him to be well over the 65-foot barrier before the season is over.

The 2-mile also figures to produce an outstanding time with Western's Ron Fister a shoo-in to batter the meet record of 9:31.9 set last year by Lido Albillar of Santiago.

Fister has covered the distance in 9:19.5, making him 17 seconds better than his nearest competitor.

The usual load of sprint stars will clash in the 100 with Muir's Tim Buchanan (9.7) and Oxnard's Isaiah Brown (9.7) are a tenth of a second behind the lead pair in the large schools division.

In the small schools section it's Dave Cooke of Brea (9.7) who is a tick of the stopwatch in front of a strong field.

The pole vault figures to be a dandy with Muir's Paul Heglar (15-6), Warren's Mike Flannery (14-9) and Loara's Dennis Walp (14-8) showing the best marks to date.

Mighty Muir's hurdle two some of Tony Caruthers and Jerry Procter figures to lead the Mustangs to their second straight large division team championship.

Caruthers has reeled off a 14.3 in the 120 high sticks while Procter has been clocked in 14.4.

Caruthers has the leading mark of the 180 lows at 19.1.

A snappy high jump group will vie, too, with Foothill's Parkey Kennedy (6-7 1/4) against Oxnard's Jerry Conway (6-7) and Compton's Bill Morris (6-8).

Muir is the class of the 880 relay quartets with a 1:27.7.

Laguna Tennismen Grab League Lead

The Laguna Beach high varsity tennis squad surged into first place in the Orange League by edging top ranked Foothill 13-12 Friday afternoon.

Foothill streaked to a 12-0 lead, but the Artists fought back to win all the other points, the deciding ones coming when Laguna's doubles combo of Richard Cannon and Robin Young won a grueling 12-10 set to end the contest.

NB-Balboa Savings Reports Good Year

Last year was a strong and healthy business year for Newport Balboa Savings and Loan Association, according to a report recently issued by Agnes Blomquist, president. "Our savings accounts showed a net increase of just under $1 million," stated Miss Blomquist. "Our gross receipts were in excess of $40 million. "Our total net growth was, in effect, over $9 million. We added $340,000 to our reserves bringing guaranteed stock reserve and surplus to over $8 million; about 11 per cent of savings. "Last year our loan volume came to a respectable total of $20.5 million dollars and our escrow departments showed a substantial increase in activity. "On Feb. 23 of 1965, we opened our new Corona del Mar office. The facility is servicing an ever increasing number of savers and continues to be warmly accepted by the Corona del Mar and surrounding communities. "We believe 1966 is going to be a good year with improvements anticipated in each of our several areas of activity. We project net increases in savings of 10 per cent over last year, and about the same percentage of increase in our net loan portfolio, with a like increase in earnings."

Recreation Complex Nearly Set

Nearing completion now is a complete recreation and social center for residents of University Park on Irvine Ranch. The new facility, offering swimming, tennis and other outdoor activities is situated within walking distance of homes in both the Village and Chancellor Homes, in the midst of the area's park-like greenbelts.

First time visitors to the area are invited to inspect the recently opened Irvine Ranch Information Center on Santa Ana Freeway at Myford Road. This is called the "front door" to America's largest planned region.

Living by Seashore Keynotes Shorecrest

Near-the-ocean living is the greatest bonus of living at Shorecrest, a development of Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc., reports Jack Scougall, vice president of marketing. "Shorecrest has been designed strictly to adhere to a near-the-sea environment," said Scougall. "Everything has been oriented to make Shorecrest residents the happiest of homebuyers."

Scougall said Shorecrest, designed for large families with homes up to six bedrooms, will be the neighbor of the Orange County-approved marina when it is completed. He said the models, called Sandpiper, Miramar, Capri, Mariner and Coral Reef, carry a seashore motif. The single-family dwellings, selling from $22,950, are built with the most modern facilities and appliances to give the family more time to enjoy the location near the beach. Shorecrest's patio kitchen, with a sliding glass window for serving the patio area, is one of the most popular incentives for the housewife. The kitchens are equipped with oven, range, ventilator hood, dishwasher and disposer. "Homebuyers also receive the option of luminous ceilings of light in the kitchens and cathedral or acoustical textured ceilings in the living rooms," Scougall related.

Nerve Center

Facility New Aid in Construction

The first of 80 regional construction industry "nerve centers" is nearing initial phase completion at an Anaheim location that will serve all of Southern California.

According to Managing Director John R. O'Dea, Building Information Center will house comprehensive manufacturers' files, complete library and research facilities and will ultimately provide over 85,000 square feet, under cover, of product display and new product development.

In an industry that has long realized the acute need for a time and effort-saving facility, architects, developers and contractors contacted in a recently concluded market survey have indicated intense interest and support for the program.

"The time we spend in locating new products, discussing them with manufacturers, and just trying to keep up to date with progress is roughly 20 per cent of our creative time spent on a job." This was a comment from a prominent architect who typified the feelings of his colleagues.

John O'Dea, a graying, restless executive with just a trace of the Irish brogue, has long been concerned with upgrading merchandising techniques. He points out that the construction industry's share of the gross national product has dwindled 19 per cent in the last two decades.

"This is primarily due to a lack of communication between the manufacturers and the ultimate buyers of the product," O'Dea points out. "In our Building Information Center, we will bring building professionals who represent over one billion dollars of gross purchasing power together with the product."

Building Information Center will derive revenue for its operation from manufacturers and material suppliers whose products and

Within the next few months, there will be an Industry Associations Meeting Room available to the various trade, union and professional associations in which to conduct their meetings as well as for entire industry use in sales meetings and seminars. "Studio" facilities will be provided for use by small groups or individuals in reviewing plans, setting financial arrangements and completing sales.

Of major interest will be Integrated Displays - eight model areas, (2) kitchens, (2) patios, bathroom, living room, family room and den - designed by local professionals, with "stimulation of industry and client desire" their main goal. Periodic, Center - provided awards will be presented to the most outstanding professionals in these design areas. Products used in these displays will consist of those entered in the Building Information Center Merchandising Display. Full library and research facilities embodying up-to-date written information will be available to building professionals in this centrally located complex. A portion of the library will be devoted to archives and historical documents that will preserve in photo-

Del Cerro Offers Pre-Sale

Buyers planning to move as late as mid-summer are urged to take advantage of the new pre-sale home plan at the Del Cerro homes off Bristol Avenue between Santa Ana and Costa Mesa where a wide range of occupancy dates are listed.

Buyers may select lot, plan, exterior, color and other details in late summer units and enjoy protection of the current low prices, the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons and Harvey A. Berger, pointed out.

The Del Cerro homes offer a selection of three and four-bedroom homes all with big, second-story "Bonus Room," landscaping, sprinklers, and block wall. The upstairs Bonus Room, the builders explained, has been popular with owners who use room for playroom, rumpus area, or as extra bedrooms.

Another Del Cerro feature is the indoor-outdoor swimming pool as highlighted in the appealing "Florida Room."

Buyers have a wide selection in terms of the choice location with prices starting at $26,500. FHA, Veteran, new "cold war" Veteran and conventional terms are available.

By Baycrest

14 Homes Finished

Baycrest developers, Ivan Wells & Sons Inc. have now completed 14 homes in their newest development in the Upper Newport Bay, where they recently acquired 69 view-sites in the north Dover Shores area and which also gives Baycrest residents access to their own private beach.

"Ever since the original eleven million dollar adjoining Baycrest development was sold out," Gene Wells stated, "we have had many requests to build more of these popular homes. Now it gives us added pleasure to be able to resume building. We intend to use all of our 40 years of experience in making this the ultimate in a quality residential development, and the most desirable place to live in California."

These homes situated in this unmatched location overlooking the upper bay, command a magnificent and forever-unobstructed view of the Pacific Ocean east to Saddleback Mountain and its surrounding foothills.

With nature adding this final touch of glamour, seldom has there been such an opportunity for the discriminating homebuyer... with more than half a hundred view-oriented architectural elevations to choose from and if desired custom-modified to suit personal or custom-built to buyer's plans. "We are able to extend this modification privilege to every Baycrest buyer without additional charge," the Wells brothers explained "because of our construction savings due to the company's big volume buying power. We also have complete facilities for original architectural designing and construction and will gladly cooperate with buyers desiring their own custom plans."

Designed in collaboration with several well-known California architects, these 14 homes are superlatively planned, with a dramatic flair bounded only by conservative elegance. Immediately successful, Baycrest prestige homes have been in ever-increasing demand with their proven reputation as Newport's most remarkable value in quality and custom-designed homes. Furnished models are located at 1831 Santiago Drive in North Dover Shores in Newport Beach.

Mobilhome Weekend In Desert

DESERT HOT SPRINGS — Many residents of Orange County coastal cities have become weekenders at Desert Crest Mobilhome Country Club, the complete own-your-own lot community on wheels in a genuine country club setting on the east edge of this city, Clifford E. Babin, developer reported today.

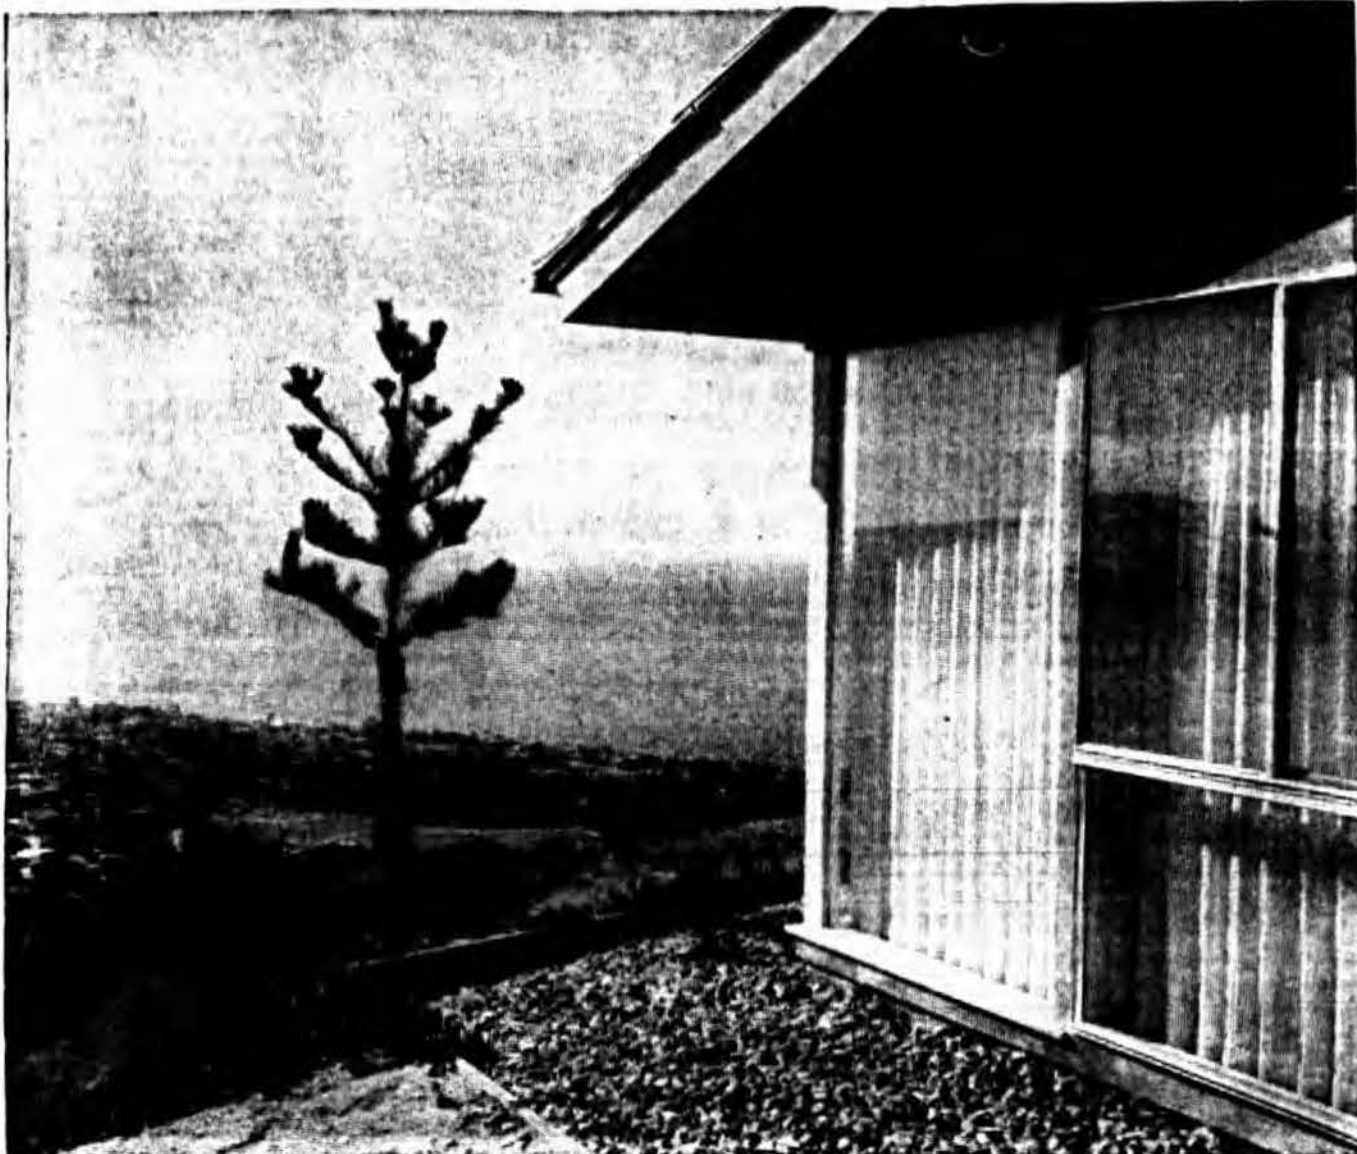

According to Babin, veteran desert builder and mobile home pioneer, "Some 30 percent of Desert Crest's weekenders are business and professional men, their wives and their teen-age children from Orange County coastal communities, who maintain mobile homes here as their second homes. Comes weekends, vacation or holiday time, and they head for their retreats here away from their workaday world."

"The new freeways now bring us just as close to the coastal cities as Los Angeles. Residents of these communities desiring a contrasting change of pace, scenery and climate often enjoy desert country club living. With the total cost of typical Desert Crest lots being just $3,300 or only $33 per month, this puts weekending here well within the means of working people in Southern California."

Babin states that these figures also include lot grading, all underground utilities in and paved streets maintained by the county. For an additional fee of $15 per month, plus a small green fee, residents have full privileges to all the country club facilities in the development. These include a 3-par, 1040-yard golf course; a fully-equipped clubhouse under 22,000 square feet of roof; natural hot swimming and bathing pools and shuffleboard courts.

Babin's master plans for the luxurious development calls for a total of 1,400 owner-own lots. It is meeting with such an enormous demand on the part of retirees and desert weekenders, that the first unit of 281 lots practically sold out completely within a few months after the development opened in 1964.

Second unit of 52 homes at Mystic Park is under way, owners Fred Pack and Dean Whitaker report. The development, perched high on the historic Thurston Ranch, overlooks downtown Laguna Beach and the ocean. First unit of 45 homes started in May, 1964, and were sold and occupied as fast as they could be built. Five floor plans ranging from 1,520 to more than 2,000 square feet are being continued in the second unit. The three and four-bedroom homes are located off Park Avenue on the east and Skyline Drive on the West. Models are open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Bluffs Occupancy Ready

Immediate occupancy in three and four-bedroom homes in the University Riviera section of the Bluffs community, Newport Beach, was promised this week by developers, George M. Holstein and Sons.

Priced from $29,600, buyers will have the choice of both one and two story units with views to green areas, or the new Eastbluff park that is rapidly nearing completion. The site is also within walking distance to two churches and Corona del Mar High School.

Bluff visitors were urged to act quickly for best selection as a holiday rush of sales has limited availability in both the University Riviera Section and the new, just opened Plaza homes. The Plaza homes are priced from $20,995 and are offering occupancy in early spring.

Both the University Riviera homes and the Plaza homes are in keeping with the Bluffs architectural motif with balconies, entry courts, and Spanish tile roofs. Richard Letich AIA of Newport Beach was the designer of both home developments.

First 'Chancellor Family' Greeted

The first family to become residents of the new university town adjacent to expanding UCI campus took possession of their Chancellor home last week and were officially greeted by Charles S. Thomas, president of The Irvine Company.

An important point in the rapid growth of Chancellor Homes in University Park on historic Irvine Ranch was reached when the first family to occupy one of the single-family residences moved into their four-bedroom home.

Don Stepnitz, Orange County educator, and his family were welcomed by Charles S. Thomas, Irvine president; officials of the Dick Dunn Development Company, who are building the Chancellor Homes community and other local dignitaries. Mr. Thomas presented the Stepnitz family with a colorful, gold-framed copy of the original claim of title to the Irvine Ranch.

At the same time R. H. Dunn announced the official opening of the second phase of Chancellor Homes and the opening of two new furnished model homes. Construction of the first homes is just being completed for occupancy, and choice lots just steps from both private parks surrounding the homes and from Town Center shopping are still available at introductory prices. Half the homes in Unit II were sold prior to grand opening. "Public response to this unique community has been overwhelming," Dunn stated.

"I am most pleased to welcome Mr. Stepnitz and his wonderful family to Chancellor Homes in University Park. His selection of this community with its educational, cultural and environmental advantages is very gratifying in that Don Stepnitz is himself an educator."

University Park, the country's newest university town, is fast becoming a reality. Chancellor Homes, single-family residences, are closest to the new campus of University of California, Irvine, and to the recreation-oriented Upper Newport Bay. The new area was master planned by members of the Irvine Company's engineering and planning departments. The concept evolved and adhered to by the developers insures the lasting quality and control of the nature of University Park.

Surrounding Chancellor Homes are 38 acres under development into landscaped green parks with trails, bicycle paths, swimming pools, tennis courts and other recreational facilities. A huge pavilion, accessible to all residents, is provided.

Available in from two to five bedroom plans and 13 different exterior elevations, Chancellor Homes offer purchasers residences ready to live in without additional expenditures included in the purchase are choice of 100 per cent nylon hi-lo or twist carpeting in many colors, custom-keyed draperies, all-electric kitchens with deluxe G. E. appliances built-in including automatic dishwasher and double wall ovens, front landscape designed by professional landscape architects, sprinklers, concrete walks and driveways and other amenities.

Plan 5 presents 2268 square feet of interior living space in two stories and 2½ baths, formal dining area and fireplace. Elevation B features 8½ foot high ceilings upstairs, all planked throughout with beams exposed to view. There are two baths and four bedrooms upstairs with the parents' master suite on the first floor.

Chancellor Homes are reached easily from either the Santa Ana Freeway or Pacific Coast Highway. To take the scenic route from Coast Highway, visitors may turn inland at MacArthur Blvd. in Corona del Mar, proceed to University Drive, turn right, pass UCI, to Culver Road, left pass San Joaquin golf course to Matthews and right to models. Or they may visit via the Santa Ana Freeway south to Culver Road exit (three miles east of Tustin) and right four miles.

'Atmosphere'

Casitas Capistrano Blends Old and New

Located in the pastoral San Juan Valley, Casitas Capistrano, a development of Town and Country Homes Inc., has blended revolutionary design with old world atmosphere, says Dick Kempa, president.

A co-venture with Transamerica Development Co., Kempa said Casitas Capistrano has won 15 architectural prizes for integrity and uniqueness of design. "Townhouse and hacienda have merged to form handcrafted villas replete with modern conveniences," he said.

"A typical example of antique charm and modern convenience is found in the treatment of the villa garages, which have handcrafted garage doors that open and close automatically.

"And modern dwellers at Casitas Capistrano don't have the old-fashioned problems of home maintenance. Professional maintenance covers the mowing of lawns, painting the exterior of houses and the trimming of shrubs. "Priced from $22,995, the one to four-bedroom villas feature stepdown living rooms in the true Spanish-Mediterranean style, modern kitchens with built-in ranges and ovens, disposals, hand-finished cabinets and garden patios," Kempa said.

Patterned in the image of an authentic Spanish village, which is reflected on its wide arches, heavy wooden beams, wrought iron and hacienda balconies, Casitas Capistrano has its own swimming pool, children's playground and party pavilion with a huge fireplace and kitchen built-ins for catered entertainment plus a planned Spanish shopping plaza.

Located near two championship golf courses, Doheny Beach State Park and Dana Point Marina, Casitas Capistrano is in one of the best recreation areas in Southern Calif.

Visitors to Casitas Capistrano may take the Santa Ana Freeway to the Junipero Serra off-ramp in the city limits of San Juan Capistrano.

Home Show Chairman Appointed

Planning for the 1966 Orange County Home Show has gone into high gear with the appointment of William Carroll of Yorba Linda as chairman for the event to be held April 13-17 at the fairgrounds in Costa Mesa.

Orbie Cleghorn, president of Orange County Builders Association which has sponsored the show since its inception, said Carroll has announced the show will be greatly expanded this year in keeping with the continued growth of the construction industry and allied fields in booming Orange County. Carroll, one of the county's leading custom home builders, will be working in "landlord" showing camp-

Carroll said interior decorating and remodeling will be stressed in displays and demonstrations this year.

In addition to the many indoor displays of home furnishings, appliances and building materials, an outdoor area will be devoted to a "Vacationland" showing campers and ideas for vacations, he added.

George Colours, producer, said arrangements are being made to distribute a record number of money-saving discount tickets which will be made available at locations throughout the county.

Other features of the show, the second oldest home show on the Pacific Coast, will include free professional entertainment and the awarding of many valuable prizes.

Colours said prime display space is still available and may be reserved by contacting the home show office on the fairgrounds.

Real Estate

Comment
and Questions

By Randall McCardle
Realtor

We are planning on selling our home. Really, why do we need the services of a realtor? It seems to me that there are a lot of you real estate people in the business, there must be a good reason for it. What do I get for the commission I spend?

Mr. and Mrs. N.H.S., Costa Mesa

This topic was recently covered in the Real Estate Newsletter published by Mission Savings and Loan Association. The article in the Newsletter reads as follows: "Advantages of a realtor service for the homeowner who is about to sell his property are many and varied. Listed below are seven reasons why property owners need realtors."

1. Selling real estate requires skill and experience. The real estate salesman is in a much better position to move a property at a fair price than is the average owner.

2. The real estate salesman knows the market and where the prospects are.

3. Acting as a middleman between owner and buyer, the real estate salesman is able to negotiate with a better chance of reaching an agreement than if the two interested parties sat face-to-face across the same table.

4. The average buyer is timid about talking frankly to the owner. He may shrink from bringing up criticisms that must be answered before a sale can be made, and he may be too proud to discuss financial resources or to ask for the terms he needs.

5. The owner is inclined to be sensitive. He resents criticism, and his interview with the prospect may end in a heated argument rather than a sale.

6. The realtor broker knows how to advertise properties to the best advantage.

7. The commission paid to the realtor is nominal for the advantages of having the sale in the hands of an expert.

In the long run, it costs the owner more to act as his own agent than it would to use the services of a good realtor.

I have heard the term "Standard Acceleration Clause." A friend advised me that it was a good thing to have in our second trust deed. Will you explain to me what this clause is and what the effect of it is?

M.M.C., Corona del Mar

What is normally called a "Standard Acceleration Clause" is an agreement incorporated into a trust deed that simply states that if the property on which the second trust deed is secured by is sold, or if title is in any way changed, that the total unpaid balance of the trust deed is then at that time due and payable.

The clause in some trust deeds reads as follows: "If the Trustor shall sell, convey, or alienate said property or any part thereof, or any interest therein or shall be divested of his title or any interest therein, in any manner or way, whether voluntary or involuntary, any indebtedness or obligation secured hereby, irrespective of the maturity date; evidencing the same at the option of the holder hereof and without demand of notice, shall immediately become due and payable."

The seller's thinking behind such an agreement is, "I'll carry back your second trust deed for you. I feel I know you and believe that you will make your payments to me. However, if you decide to make a change I don't want you transferring my trust deed on to someone else, unless I give my approval."

I am a veteran. I was just discharged recently. Can I qualify for some kind of government-type financing?

M.M. Edwards, Costa Mesa

Probably. But there are terms and conditions. Check with your favorite realtor or the Veterans Administration . . . they will take care of the details.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Would you like to know more about some phase of real estate? If you have any comments, suggestions or questions, write: Randall McCardle, DAILY PILOT, Box 1560, Costa Mesa.

Sunday

Cape Huntington Will Be Unveiled

Cape Huntington, the newest townhouse community in Huntington Beach, will be unveiled to the public Sunday, reports Dwayne Olson, general sales manager for builder-developer S. V. Hunsaker & Sons Inc.

"The new 81-unit condominium is located within minutes of the Pacific Ocean and ten public beaches," said Olson. It is the first of ten projects that will be launched this year by Hunsaker, a subsidiary of publicly-owned Occidental Petroleum Corporation (NYSE).

A nautical theme prevails in all four clubhouse models: the two-bedroom two-bath Seaspray, the two-bedroom three-bath Shores model which features a Jack'n Jill convertible bedroom-study, the two-bedroom and den Siesta and the three-bedroom-and-den Sandpiper.

With the accent on leisure and recreation, Cape Huntington features a Mariner's Clubhouse for entertaining guests, a heated swimming pool, a putting green and barbecue pits.

To accommodate more secluded entertaining, many models feature private patio terraces.

Priced from $19,995, the two-story clubhouses were designed under the direction of Irving Sarfaty, AIBD.

Additional features in some models include wall-to-wall nylon carpeting, built-in wet bars, and master suites with private sun decks.

"Magic Triangle" kitchens feature luminous ceilings, formica countertops, built-in appliances, automatic dishwasher, hand-rubbed walnut finish cabinets and pass-through service bars to patio area.

In addition to the nearby beaches, ten public golf courses are located in the greater Huntington Beach area, noted Olson. The Recreation and Parks Department maintains year-round supervised activities at 15 playgrounds.

"Within easy driving distance are Disneyland, California Angel's Stadium, Melodyland Theatre and Knott's Berry Farm."

Schools, shopping, medical facilities, places of worship and employment centers are all nearby.

Furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. They may be reached from the Santa Ana Freeway, Beach Boulevard (Highway 39) off-ramp south to Adams, east to Cannery Street, and south to Cape Huntington. The main sales office is located at 2028 Lantana Dr.

Now in its 34th anniversary year, the Hunsaker organization has built and sold more than 13,000 single family homes and 3,000 multi-units in more than a dozen California and Nevada cities.

Architects Selected

The architectural firm of Naegle and Malone of La Jolla has been chosen to design the 400 homes to be built in Harbor View Hills above Corona del Mar on the Irvine Ranch by John D. Lusk & Son.

Chosen for the acceptance of their home designs, Naegle and Malone will provide architectural leadership in a development geared to prestige ocean view living.

First model homes designed by the firm are expected to be completed by Lusk in late summer of this year.

Newport's New Park Now Open

Newport Beach's largest and newest park is open to the public this week following dedication by city officials, the Irvine Company and developers, George M. Holstein and Sons.

The 14 acres of park land at the entrance to the Bluffs development at Eastbluff and Vista del Oro in the beach city were dedicated by the Irvine Company. The money to develop the park was provided by the Holstein organization to insure immediate development of the facility. The loan will be paid back in five years at no interest by the city.

House-trading, an innovation in home buying new to Corona, is hiking the sales rate at the new 110-home golf course view development, Cresta Verde, here in Corona, according to Walter Kutscher, sales manager for Cresta Verde.

Kutscher reports that other factors responsible for the brisk sales of the one, two-story and tri-level homes are the relative proximity of conveniences such as colleges, high schools and shopping centers.

Each home at Cresta Verde is designed so that the home owner has a full, uninterrupted view of the 6,000 yard golf course, around which the development was built.

Cresta Verde may be reached by taking the Riverside Freeway to the Norco turnoff in Corona, then take Main Street to Parkridge and turn right to the models.

Sales at Cresta Verde are handled by the Farrow Realty Company of Garden Grove, the largest realty firm in Orange County, according to Kutscher.

Sea Views Boost Sales at Marina

"Boat rides are given free to prospective buyers at Huntington Marina, a Riviera-like development of channel-front villas at 16180 Pacific Coast Highway in Huntington Beach," says builder Cedric E. Sanders.

"Sea views and doorstep watersports have boosted sales in this boaters' paradise," he said. "Villa purchases include a private boat-slip and a grant deed giving owners an undivided interest in all the walks, streets, land and other facilities. The villas are further complemented by sea decks, terraces, patios and garages."

In an area where leasehold land homes are sold for more than $100,000, Huntington Marina villas sell from $43,500.

The two and three-bedroom villas actually are designed with two facades, one facing the quiet-water channel, the other facing the street. Styled in classic and contemporary architecture, the villas provide channel views from the 30 foot living room through sliding glass doors, balcony or terrace and dining area. Center-hall planning in the villas allows accessibility to every room without passing through any one of them, giving each family member complete privacy. Sliding glass walls from the master bedroom suites lead to private garden patios.

Modern trappings in the villa include kitchen built-ins, mirrored wardrobe walls with spacious storage room, mirror-lined dressing rooms and marble-topped pullmans.

The development stands in an area where the decreasing amount of land for waterfront residences and the engineering make such structures almost prohibitive in costs.

New Households

Estimates are that 6.6 million new households will be set up within the next decade. The highest rate of growth is expected in northern and central California.

New Homes Feature View

Families with children 18 or older were invited this week to inspect the furnished homes at Pacific Island Village, according to Walter Drouin, general manager for the 111 unit adult community atop Laguna Niguel.

"There are two high schools and three colleges nearby," Drouin noted, "and these panoramic view homes are available in four single story and one two-level plans with two to four bedrooms."

Recently opened for visitors to PIV is the furnished model called "Tahitian Sunset," featuring island decor in the Polynesian manner, Drouin said.

Specific advantage of ownership in the 35 acre adult community is extensive facilities for recreation. A clubhouse contains a lounge and cardroom. The outdoor recreation area includes dance pavilion, picnic area, olympic size pool with patio, and barbecues.

An architectural concept which provides for complete quiet and privacy with the added pleasure and convenience of large landscaped and open areas is carried out by construction of two - home structures connected only by roof and outer walls, according to the manager.

Exteriors are enhanced by architecturally designed landscaping and private patio for each home. There are no through streets and all utilities are underground. Some models feature garden atrium adjacent to bath or bedroom. Elevations are attractive and varied.

Nearby El Niguel Country Club and Monarch Bay Beach Club invite membership by villagers, while Crown Valley offers horseback riding and trails.

Monarch Bay Plaza, the shopping center serving all Laguna Niguel, offers all major retail outlets and services. Churches of all faiths and a hospital are minutes away.

Each of the homes is carpeted; features a deluxe master bedroom with large storage spaces, and there is path of light illumination throughout.

Included in the sale price is a completely equipped, all-electric kitchen, with built-in double oven, range, dishwasher and sink disposer. All homes are wired for 220 volts.

Maintenance, handled by a professional staff, includes repairs and painting of exterior walls and roof, care of recreation facilities, driveways, community landscaping, fire insurance and water bill for each home, plus gas, electricity and water for the recreation area and building and community green spaces.

Homes priced from $21,000 to $35,000 are available for immediate occupancy; models open daily from 10 a.m., until dusk.

To reach Pacific Island Village, take Santa Ana Freeway to Rancho Viejo turnoff; turn right; follow Crown Valley Parkway to Pacific Island Drive; or take Coast Highway south, turn left into Laguna Niguel entrance on Crown Valley Parkway, and follow signs to sales office, 31551 Flying Cloud Drive.

Oceana's New Clubhouse Busy

Oceana's $380,000 clubhouse is one of the most active recreation centers in Southern California, reports Armando Ortega, sales manager for the all-adult garden cottage and fairway villa development in the city of Oceanside.

"We have everything from stage shows to fashion shows, community sings to parties in the clubhouse," he said. "Oceana's residents take full advantage of the clubhouse's complete facilities for entertainment."

Oceana, only three miles from the ocean, is built on plateau sites with full ocean view.

Garden cottage, selling from $11,995, have balconies, double carports and atriums. The cottages, many built with large solariums, have up to three bedrooms and two baths.

Located in the city limits of Oceanside, Ortega said Oceana residents receive the benefit of the various watersports, including swimming, boating and fishing on the waterfront and the city's municipal services such as bus lines, shopping centers.

Soaring Crime Rate: Who's to Blame

By ED CRAY
American Civil Liberties Union

Comes now Samuel Yorty, mayor of Los Angeles, with an outburst directed at court decisions which in his estimation hamper law enforcement. To support his contention, the mayor's office is distributing a brochure, originally printed at taxpayers' expense, entitled "California Crime Rate 1952-1964 Up 76% Why?"

This screed lays the blame squarely upon the judiciary—ignoring such social factors as poverty, unemployment, urban slums, broken homes, and all the other contributors which defy easy solution, but which inexorably send the crime rate up and up.

ACTUALLY, THE MAYOR is a Johnny-come-lately in the rough-and-tumble business of swatting the judiciary, which has collectively maintained its silence, refusing to debate the critics, all in keeping with the traditional reserve of the judiciary.

Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker has been stumping the country for years, bewailing court decisions as "the judicial takeover," or the "revolution" in criminal justice. In 1956, the chief told the California Peace Officers Association meeting in San Diego, "After full consideration of the various factors that might have contributed to the shocking increase in crime we are undergoing, the observer can only conclude that one single factor must bear the lion's share of the responsibility."

That factor was the Cahan decision which in 1955 banned the use of illegally seized evidence in California courts. From that time on, the police would no longer be able to ignore the requirements of state law dating back to 1879 in some cases, for the evidence gained in violations of those laws would be prohibited.

SUDDENLY THE CHIEF had found the "easy formula" which in 1952 he did not claim to know. Moreover, at that earlier date, he suggested that other factors might, just might, have some influence on crime rates: "Law enforcement officers are neither equipped nor authorized to deal with broad social problems. We do not control economic cycles; we are not equipped to deal with racial, religious, or political prejudice."

And just two months before the Cahan decision was announced, Chief

Parker observed, "As inaccurate as our statistics are, they leave little doubt that the crime rate has been on the increase for the past several decades . . . it is highly doubtful that our present crime rate is any lower than that which accompanied the brawling, lusty period of the nation's formation—years in which organized police protection scarcely existed . . . indeed our most accurate crime statistics indicate that crime rates rise and fall on the tides of economic, social, and political cycles with embarrassingly little attention to the most determined efforts of our police."

But scapegoats are more manageable than solutions.

The chief's about face reaches at least a minor climax with the most recent annual report of the Los Angeles

Police Department, which devotes two full pages to gratuitous nonsense about court decisions which "hand-cuff" the police, or "break the backbone of law enforcement" in California.

THIS SORT OF sloganeering conveniently reshapes history when the facts interfere, for the California crime rate has been increasing steadily since World War II, long before the court decisions which the mayor and chief find so frustrating.

It also stands in contradiction to logic: "Court rules do not cause crime. People do not commit crime because they know they cannot be questioned by police before presentment, or even because they feel they will not be convicted . . . in the long run, only the elimination of the causes of crime can make a significant and lasting difference in the incidence of crime," Ramsey Clark, deputy attorney general of the United States said in August, 1965.

Finally, these complaints ignore the warning of Justice Louis Brandeis who in 1928 wrote that the government, "for good or ill . . . teaches the whole people by its example. Crime is contagious. If the government becomes a lawbreaker, it breeds contempt for the law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy. To declare that in the administration of the criminal law the end justifies the means—to declare that—would bring terrible retribution."

MAYOR YORTY IMPLIES in his attacks on the courts that the judges are conjuring up the restrictive decisions out of thin air or "criminal-codding" desire, and urges a return to what he calls "truth seeking." He conveniently overlooks the Bill of Rights and its guarantees to Americans, quite as if the decisions were not firmly grounded on constitutional mandates that insure an arrestee his right to a fair trial, to an attorney, to secure bail, to remain silent, to be free from psychological or physical brutality.

Reversing these "soft-on-crime" decisions as the mayor wishes to do would open the way for lawless enforcement of the law and inevitably bring that "terrible retribution."

Yorty: Bound by Rulings

By SAMUEL YORTY
Mayor, Los Angeles

The names Dorado, Escobedo and Cahan mean little or nothing to most people. But to those who deal with the law and law enforcement . . . and to law breakers . . . these are the names of landmark decisions, momentous judgments handed down by the California Supreme Court which have vitally affected the lives of all the residents of the state.

The decisions involve complex, lengthy opinions in separate cases which are inter-related and have had a cumulative effect on law enforcement procedures and criminal trials.

In the specific cases, the high courts reversed previous convictions of the defendants (Dorado, Escobedo, Cahan) along somewhat parallel lines dealing basically with the conduct of the investigation of crime and the rights of accused persons.

Dorado signed a confession to the knife-slashing of a fellow prisoner in San Quentin, and was tried and convicted. The Supreme Court reversed the conviction principally because the suspect had not been advised of his rights to counsel and silence, thereby ruling the admission and confession inadmissible as evidence. Dorado escaped the mandatory death penalty and continued to serve his original life sentence.

SINCE THE DORADO decision, numerous reversals on technical grounds have been sought and obtained under this ruling, some of them resulting in the release of persons who had confessed the commission of crimes of the most vicious nature.

The concern of law enforcement officers is well justified. Wholesale reversals of convictions are being obtained, the courts being bound by rulings which force them to turn loose obviously guilty and dangerous persons.

To our free institutions and individual safety, the danger is exceptionally grave. The situation is clearly outlined in this comment from the Time Magazine essay entitled "The Revolution in Criminal Justice" (July 16, 1965):

"Many experts gravely doubt that law-enforcement agencies even now have either the legal or technical weapons needed to combat violence, theft and organized crime on today's intensified levels. At the heart of the controversy over the court lies the danger that the judicial pendulum may have swung too far toward the protection of the individual criminal, too far away from the protection of society."

The situation created by the courts through the Dorado and other related decisions is not only of great concern to law enforcement officials. It is also of the utmost importance in the lives of all citizens.

The danger is as real as the sledge-hammer slayings of two little girls aged 9 and 12 . . . or the death of a 10-year-old girl who was stabbed 41 times. The convictions of the accused killers were reversed by the Supreme Court on "technical grounds" in spite of the admissions and confessions by the accused. It is on "technical grounds" that many convicted criminals are being turned loose to prey upon us . . . we who can only depend on the law and law enforcement agencies for protection.

If we are to depend on the protection of law enforcement agencies, we must not hamstring them with court rulings which destroy their effectiveness in providing that protection. Though the courts reject any responsibility for the rising crime rate, their decisions effectively deny the investigating officers the cooperation and assistance of the person who knows most about the crime: the one who committed it.

IT IS IMPORTANT to note that according to data collected by the FBI, 225 police officers were killed by criminal action in the last five years. Of the 293 criminals responsible for these police murders, 78 per cent had previous records of arrest . . . over half had previously committed crimes of violence. Six of the officers were killed by previously convicted murderers. A third of the killers were on parole or probation at the time of the murders, and over 25 per cent had been paroled on two or more occasions after committing serious crimes.

The individual's right of fair trial is and will always remain as one of the foundation stones of our system. But the right of each individual to be protected from crime is equally basic and should be guarded with at least equal zeal. Unless it is, if the criminal offender is afforded more protection than those who obey the law, the meaning of all individual rights can disappear.

San Francisco: Many, Many Things

By HERB CAEN
Chronicle Features

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco is where: There are 10,000 friendly squirrels in Golden Gate Park — and not a single place within miles where you can buy a bag of peanuts to feed 'em . . . The only people up and about at dawn are the scavengers and the stockbrokers . . . Everybody talks about the great restaurants, but the biggest seller on the biggest street is — hot dogs . . . People are parking lots in parking lots; either there, or under "No Parking at Any Time" signs . . . The United Nations flag has been barred by the Trustees, in whose Opera House the UN charter was signed . . . A socialite is somebody who gets her picture taken with a cigarette in one hand and a drink in the other . . . The natives enjoy doing the same things that the tourists like to do (which may be the definition of a true World City) . . . The funny little hats aren't worn by women but by men (those narrow-brimmed high crowned jobs) . . . The reason the grass looks greener at night in front of the Fairmont is — green spotlights . . . When a native says "It's like a summer day," he means it's cold and foggy. And no wonder the visitors think it's always gloomy here. The sightseeing service is called The Gray Lines, isn't it?

OUT OF MY MIND: I'm tired of being "shush"ed in jazz joints for raising my voice slightly to order a drink. A saloon isn't an opera house, and most jazz musicians get more attention than they deserve anyway. Classical musicians rehearse carefully, show up on time and play their instruments well: too bad so many of their jazz counterparts don't do likewise (but of course the latter are "creative" — and sloppy) . . . Batman's Batmobile looks like what you'd get if you ordered ALL the optional extras . . . Ostracizer: an implement for chopping people into small pieces . . . Who needs Australian slang? . . . Add lookalikes: all the girls that Bing Crosby's sons marry. They all vaguely resemble a "Miss San Francisco" of some bygone season . . . I realize that tow trucks have only four hours in which to make a killing, but the way they race around the downtown streets, looking for cars to lynch, seems illegal in itself: they're more of a menace than the obstructions they remove . . . The Calif. Highway Patrol's official safety slogan is "Stop, Look and Miss'em," which seems to lack a certain dignity. I'm not even so sure the advice is helpful. Too many drivers stop for a look without signaling.

CAENDID CAMERA: Humorist Henry Morgan signing the guest book in Sausalito's Alta Mira and scribbling under "Comments": "New York still stinks!" A local character, shaking his hoary head over the new, dark-pinkish Herbert Hoover Memorial Stamp: "Ach, those Democrats. Now they've got him dead AND red!" . . . Peter Estes, the GM vice-pres. in charge of Chevrolet, at the Fairmont conferring with his zone chief, Jack King. "By the way," said Estes, "do you have an outside income?" No, whv. "Those cigarettes you're smoking." Eeeek—Galaxies! (A dealer saved the day, subbing a pack of Bel-Airs).

HANG ON, SCOOPY: Ken Kesey, the disappearing novelist, is indeed in Mexico, mixing tequila and Kapectate, but he'll be back . . . Basketballer Wilt the Stilt Chamberlain laid $100,000 on the line to buy a house here from Builder Mike Howell — one angle being that both these cats are under 30 (the kids are taking over!) . . . UC has landed two heavyweight speakers for its Charter Day banquet at the Palace March 25: U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg and John Gardner, Secy. of Health, Education and Welfare: Goldberg's presence, of course, guarantees an anti-war picket line outside.

Old Problem Returning

An old problem—illegal entry of farm workers from Mexico—has intensified this year. With the end of the Bracero program, California and other border states are getting a new influx of so-called "wetbacks." The following Associated Press story explores the situation.

For the Mexican peasant the land above the 2,013-mile border between Imperial Beach, Calif., and Boca Chica, Tex., represents a chance.

The boundary — from the rocky, dry California coast to the East Texas marshlands — divides more than two nations. It divides two economies.

North of the line is prosperity for many. South of the line is poverty for the multitude. This poverty is a driving force that brings thousands to the border in hopes of sharing the bountiful life.

OFTEN THESE MASSES are turned away by the strict immigration rules and regulations of the United States. These people seek other ways of entering — illegal ways.

The Mexicans call these line jumpers "espaldas mojadas" — wetbacks — because they often swim the Rio Grande. The name has become a part of American slang, but the U. S. Border Patrol considers the term degrading.

'Lousy Communist elevators...'

rogatory and the word is banned officially.

The patrol watches the border on a 24-hour basis, policing on foot, in jeeps, in sedans, on horseback, in boats and in airplanes.

BUT THE GUARDS must also pit their ingenuity against the alien's.

One Mexican strapped cow hooves to his feet and crossed a sandy stretch of New Mexican desert. The border patrol tracked him down after a lengthy pursuit of a two legged cow.

The patrol has traffic check points on principal highways and byroads. Transportation terminals are checked constantly. Trains and railroad yards are searched. Fishing vessels are stopped and searched.

ONCE THE ILLEGAL entrant has been captured, he is placed in a detention camp near the border, then deported. He has broken a U.S. law — an act which could bar him from ever legally immigrating.

If he is from the interior of Mexico, and 70 per cent are, he is transported to his home. The U.S. goes to this expense on the theory that the long trek back north — sometimes a 10-day walk — will discourage a second attempt.

THIS THEORY HOLDS sometimes — but not always.

The wetback is, for the most part, the most gentle, naive, lovable lawbreaker the government encounters. He is docile, stoic and fatalistic about his capture. But he is often persistent.

Last year 61,000 aliens were arrested for illegal entry and deported.

Those who succeed, at least temporarily, in working their way into the country get jobs as dishwashers, cooks, busboys, laborers, construction hands, factory workers, welders, mechanics, stone masons, carpenters and farm hands.

MOST HEAD FOR the cities to melt inconspicuously into the crowd. A language barrier often sends them into Spanish-speaking areas. But they are not always accepted by the Mexican-American.

"The native-born Mexicans resent us," one alien said. "They call us 'puercos' pigs and turn us in. I'm told they get a reward, so I don't guess you can blame them."

When the bracero program was in effect, U. S. farmers could hire Mexican nationals to do farm labor during peak seasons. Many Mexicans would come to the U. S. and work legally under this program, then return home.

BUT THE BRACERO program has been ended, shutting off this source of potential income. Republican Sen. George Murphy of California claims wetbacks are crossing the border in greater numbers since the end of this program, despite the high probability of being caught.

Who are these wetbacks?

Victor Alvarez, 25, drove a cattle truck for $2 a day in Guadalajara to support his wife, three children and his mother and father. He crossed the border at Mexicali and worked his way north to San Francisco where he obtained a job in a foundry for $400 a month.

HE SENT $300 HOME to his family, who could live on $40 and bank the rest. He managed to avoid arrest for 19 months, but was finally picked up.

"It is my second time here," he said in sketchy English. "Maybe I try again if my money isn't enough to buy a truck to haul for myself."

At the U. S. Embassy in Mexico City and at U. S. consulates in border towns, long lines of persons seeking to emigrate form early in the morning. The process is long, slow and restrictive, leading many to seek a quicker alternative.

THERE ARE HIDDEN dangers in illegal immigration. The aliens will work for sub-standard wages, pay no income tax and send most of their money out of the United States.

But the greatest danger is disease. Cases of leprosy, syphilis, typhus, dysentery, hepatitis and, most frequently, tuberculosis have been detected, often among food handlers.

Border patrolmen are required to take periodic chest X-rays because tuberculosis is so prevalent.

THE ECONOMIC deprivation of the Mexican peasant, on the one hand, and the danger of uncontrolled immigration, on the other, make the border patrolman face his job with ambivalence.

He has the task of weighing the plight of the destitute man he hunts against the threats to his country.

As one patrolman said:

"EVERY TIME I deport one of these people whose only crime is seeking work to feed his family, I say to myself, 'There but by the grace of God go I.'"

What's So Special About Mesa Verde?

Nothing! It's just the way any good community should be! Schools, churches and a library are all within Mesa Verde and shopping and commercial facilities are immediately adjacent.

There's a community association that schedules events and watchdogs property values. A community newsletter goes out once a month and the Mesa Verde Country Club is the social center of the area.

Mesa Verde still has room to grow: A second golf course is coming, a freeway will be convenient but not TOO close, a new park, a new school and a new shopping center are all on their way.

The future is fabulous. Join us! We have resale homes from $23,500.

We know a doctor who looked for a home without professional help.

He lost more patients that way.

Our doctor found himself running off to answer house-for-sale ads when he should have been making house calls of a different kind. So not only did he lose valuable time, he lost some understandably miffed patients. And it made him sick.

He could have spared himself many headaches if he'd simply gone to a Realtor® fast, fast. A Realtor is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Realtors. He offers you a combination of integrity, like a doctor's prescription. Look for a Realtor where you see this seal, which only he is qualified to display. You'll find he's just what the doctor ordered.

Let's Speak Out...

Is It Really Worth Mentioning?

From time to time a reader calls our attention to the fact that we omit the feature called Worth Mentioning. Others take us to task for presuming to recommend their viewing.

Well, a few months ago we changed the name of that feature from Best Bets to Worth Mentioning. The reason was simply that we thought it was a little presumptuous on our part. It's not our job to tell you what to watch.

Many television supplements make a farce out of similar features, such as a list of recommended viewing that might include Daktari, Dr. Kildare, F Troop or Petticoat Junction.

Although any of us might enjoy these programs, who's to say they are better than Combat, McHale's Navy, and the Tuesday Night Movie?

So we decided simply to point up some of the things that might be worth a special mention on a particular day. In short we hope to keep Worth Mentioning just that, and there are days when there's more to be ignored than mentioned.

If the trend continues it may come to pass that the little feature called Worth Mentioning might disappear altogether. And how many evenings nowadays is there really a "Highlight" or a "Best Bet" by anyone's standard?

Charlie Chaplin Film Festival

On Monday evening at 6 PM, KHJ-Channel 9 inaugurates a thirteen-week Charlie Chaplin Festival, a first Southern California television showing of 26 of his famous films.

Charlie Chaplin has never really been "away," so it would be presumptuous to say that his films are making a "comeback." But, it is accurate to say that not since the very peak of his popularity in the 1920's has there been such public awareness and interest in Chaplin as a comedian and film artist. During the last year, no less than three new books about him have been published, including Chaplin's controversial autobiography which generated great public interest.

The question of who was the screen's greatest comedian is certainly a moot point, and must always be answered in view of personal likes and dislikes. But, there has never been any question as to who was the greatest artist in filmdom . . . or who made the greatest impact on the industry.

Monday's opening show, which features "The Tramp," made in 1915, shows a classic of the Chaplin trademark of humor. The plot is a thin skein of material designed for one purpose—to give this comedian's comedian a framework in which to operate. If you've seen Chaplin, you'll look forward to another look—if you haven't, you've been missing the most impressive techniques ever put on film.

COVER CLOSE-UP

Using More Colors Now

The dream of every television actor we know is to break into the big-time, namely movies. Jim Garner and Steve McQueen are among the few who've gone from leads in television series into movie stardom.

Seaman First Class Morrow in 1946

Vic Morrow, star of ABC's Combat, will, we suspect, ultimately join that select list.

But unlike some whose names have become household words overnight as the result of a break in a popular series, Vic is not about to snarl at television for being an albatross around his professional neck. He enjoys it and expects he'll be doing a lot more.

"We've done 128 episodes of Combat in four years," Vic told TV WEEK recently when we visited him on the front lines in the wilds of the Hollywood Hills. "That's the equivalent of 60 features, which is a fantastic amount of work and, more important, experience."

We were having a prime rib lunch—a delight for gourmet and glutton alike—in Vic's mobile dressing room, which in reality is a motorhome. Comfortably appointed, it's complete with shower, refrigerator, stove, television, hi-fi, and sleeps six. "I'm physically tired now at the end of the season, but I'm not weary of television," the sergeant told us.

Remembering that some of Vic's colleagues, once struggling day players but now malcontent millionaires, weep bitter tears over the artistic limitations of television, we wondered what the four years in Combat had done for him as an actor.

"It's made me simpler. To improve you have to work. Before Combat I had been in nine movies and who knows how many TV shows. Each time you get a part, you study, you key yourself up and then it's all over. In a series you work hard and long, but you get over your tensions and anxieties and start doing things easier, simpler—and better, I think.

Littlejohn (Dick Peabody) and Lt. Hanley (Rick Jason) of the familiar Combat platoon.

Vic Morrow also directs several episodes a season.

"In other words, I use myself better. I use more emotional colors than I did. I was always a heavy before, but now I can show more warmth. Of course, they've never given me a love scene in Combat. I wonder what they think I am?" he mused to himself.

Although Vic Morrow stands out in television's gallery of consistently fine performers, his interests extend beyond acting. If you saw the recent two-part story, "Hills Are Made for Heroes," you recognize his talent as a director. Last season he directed "Cry in the Ruins" and "Losers Cry Deal," both memorable.

Vic Morrow co-produced, co-wrote and directed a feature film, "Deathwatch," based on the Genet play of the same name. It was shown non-competitively at the San Francisco Film Festival to wide acclaim and will open soon in Los Angeles at the Cinema Theater.

When Vic's five-year contract with Combat expires in 1967 he has plans for acting in two Japanese films he will co-produce, and he has a television pilot in the works.

So the foundation for the move into movies is being carefully laid, and, if things go well, he won't be lounging around the house waiting for calls from the major studios.

But what about being typed after five years or more as a rugged, often calloused Infantry sergeant?

"I don't think I'll be typed. But, of course, it would be a mistake for my first picture to be a war story and me a sergeant!"

Although there may be features in his future, don't bet that Vic Morrow won't stay with Combat if it lasts beyond five years. He likes it there.

As we left, the battle-hardened soldier started tidying up his kitchen and we remember thinking, "He's the only sergeant around still fighting World War II and the familiar Battle of Hollywood." We know he'll win the first; we suspect he'll win the second.

TV Program Reviews

COMBAT

"Hills Are Made for Heroes"

There is a gnawing sense of futility in writing a review of a program that aired a week or two ago. But when the memory remains warm long after the tubes have cooled, when the impact transcends the dimension of time, comment seems in order.

Such a rare experience was Combat's recent two-part story "Hills Are Made for Heroes," a starkly real, unembellished, simple story of one small but bloody battle.

It concerned Combat's familiar platoon's repeated attacks to take a bald little hill not unlike the undulations of Kansas. The difference, of course, was the presence of two German pillboxes, lightly armed.

The entire line had moved forward except for Lt. Hanley's platoon, and his failure to do so was delaying the attack and jeopardizing the flanks. Three times they tried, three times they were thrown back with tragic losses. Finally a single tank was sent in support but it was quickly knocked out.

A fifth time the bunkers were silenced.

The achievements of these two episodes that are deserving of Academy attention were several. Rick Jason, as Lt. Hanley, portrayed a burdened and morally exhausted leader with great sensitivity but without being maudlin, and it probably ranks as one of his finest performances.

Jack Hogan as Kirby delivered a tingling version of a battle-hardened soldier reaching the point of collapse.

The lack of John Wayne or Errol Flynn dramatic pyrotechnics allowed the story to be told in simple but emotionally powerful terms.

But perhaps the most memorable aspect of the episodes was some of the most spectacular film ever recorded of men at war. The series' star, Vic Morrow, directed "Hills Are Made for Heroes" and his touch was apparent. If every effort isn't totally successful he's at least not afraid to try something different.

Morrow's direction brought a new vision to combat footage. He saw the battle emotionally, but in a way that sharpened, rather than distorted, the reality. As usual the photography of Emmet Bergholz was superior, and when it is combined with Morrow's direction exciting television film emerges.

Under Morrow's peering eye the camera sweeps and caresses its subject; or it jumps and startles it; or it remains motionless and lets stillness speak with eloquence. But throughout there is an overpowering sense of reality without being self-consciously documentary.

His direction especially makes fluent uses of faces, the stark, staring, sculptured faces of men spiritually anesthetized with a wearying war and flagging will.

The lean script of Gene Coons accurately and meaningfully captured for the viewer the monotony and the repetition that is Infantry warfare.

Another achievement that deserves Academy attention is the special effects work of A. D. Flower, who came closer to bringing the shattering reality of warfare to the screen than I've ever seen before. The intimate look at Combat involved the viewer in the battle, where too often such sequences leave him outside watching a newsreel version.

Of course, the platoon stilled the bunkers and started up the hill. But they never reached the top. "Take a good look at every blade of grass, every gully," Lt. Hanley told his men as they walked down. "It'll come in handy the next time."

If "Hills Are Made for Heroes" were combined into a 90-minute feature, as it will be for overseas theater distribution and seen uninterrupted by commercials, it would be regarded by many critics as a cinematic triumph. The audience would remember it as an emotionally exhausting experience.

What's Chutzpah?

This Hebrew word becomes a song title for Carol Burnett and Lucille Ball in Miss Burnett's fifth special, Carol + 2, on CBS, Tuesday at 8:30 PM. Musical producer-writer Ken Welch, who has written for Miss Burnett since her first success with his song, "I Made a Fool of Myself Over John Foster Dulles," was given the assignment to create special song material for the two redheads who will work together for the first time. Welch searched for a word that would capture all the ebullient charms of the two comedy Roman candles, and came up with chutzpah. He says they both have it. You'll find out what chutzpah is when Carol and Lucy, as two hip, garrulous charwomen on their midnight rounds of a theatrical agency in Manhattan, sing the song that gives the answer. Broadway's incomparable Zero Mostel is the third member of the Carol + 2 comedy and music special.

The New Christy Minstrels, patterned after a famous company of pre-Civil War entertainers by vocalist Randy Sparks, will star on "Something Special," KTLA-5's new hour-long weekly entertainment series debuting Sunday, 7:00 PM, in color.

The New Christy Minstrels proved an instant success in night clubs, on the concert circuit and on television. Their record albums became best sellers in the U.S., and the group's multi-lingual versions of their songs are collectors' items in 121 countries throughout the world.

Co-starring with the popular singing group for the first program of this new series are the Righteous Brothers and Freddie and the New Generation.

Paul Newman and Geraldine Page appear in the starring roles in MGM's production "Sweet Bird of Youth," premiering in color on the Saturday Night Movie at 11:15 PM on KABC, Channel 7.

The full gamut of human relations from love, ambition and hatred to lust, cruelty and hypocrisy are savagely revealed in this Tennessee Williams play, which won an Academy Award for actor Ed Begley as Best Supporting Actor for his portrayal of "Boss" Finley.

"UNFAIR," SAYS PROFESSOR

TV WEEK: That was a — — unfair column on KCET, and there were two sides to the whole question. Should the educational tail wag the community TV dog? . . .

JOHN M. KITTROSS, Ph.D.
Editor
Journal of Broadcasting
University of Southern Calif.

We note the Professor's letter fails to shed any new light on the situation. We suggest he's concerned with a theoretical issue somewhat different from the one we reported on about KCET's personnel problems.

A WORD FROM THE READER

TV WEEK: I think somebody should take a few minutes to analyze the propaganda put out by advertisers under the title
"A Word From the Sponsor."
There are too many claims in it that are not true. We admit that manufacturers have to let the public know about what they have to sell — and indeed the people want to know. But they don't want to have it constantly thrown in their faces. They don't want to be interrupted every ten minutes when they are trying to follow a story, listen to the latest news, or learn something interesting about the world they live in; and this is true even if the commercial is strictly honest and in good taste, which very few of them are. . . .

I think it would be better if my initials were used.

F.B.F.
Whittier

We've turned this letter, plus others like it, over to Michael Kirkpatrick, who writes the column "A Word From the Sponsor." In future columns he will discuss these and other specific complaints readers have registered. He feels, of course, that there are valid explanations. Not all of us do.

SO YOU WANT TO WRITE FOR TV?

TV WEEK: No, I don't doubt
David Kenyon's theory on why television's sunk to such a low level. I believe him.

I've gone through a recent experience with a Santa Ana production company that advertised in a local shopper. They wanted

general interest stories for TV pilots. I sent them a story in October. I phoned them about once a month after that. . . .
They changed office help several times. I was told Mr. H. liked my story very much and he had given it to the Producer to take to Hollywood. . . .

An Ambitious Writer,
LUCILLE LA BONO
Costa Mesa

TV WEEK: I have written a script for Metro Goldwyn Mayer's series, The Man From U.N.C.L.E. Could you please tell me where to mail the script for consideration . . . ?

JERRY JOHNSON
Fullerton

We frequently get letters along this line, so we called the producer of a major network program and asked him how new writers get started in Hollywood. He said, "The only answer is that they don't. They have to have credits from other media — magazines, radio and the like. We can't possibly consider scripts sent to us. We send them back unopened. Or if they are opened by mistake a form letter is included assuring them it was not read. No program will consider a script not presented by a recognized agent.
They have to have an agent, and that's next to impossible without credits. The only other way is to work in the industry. When you get to know producers or agents, you have a chance."

It's a sad story, but that's it.
And the top programs don't advertise for scripts or ideas.

WOW! IS SHE ANGRY!

TV WEEK: Brother! Am I ever mad! I'm a thirteen-year-old girl who is sick and tired of hearing the word Batman! I'm fed up with it all. No, it isn't silly or stupid. In fact it isn't anything! I think it's downright TRASH! That program is sure the biggest boo-boo 20th Century Fox ever made, in my book!

TV WEEK, I can't tell you how much I loathe Batman! . . .

FED UP WITH B AND R

Yes, you can. You just did.
You also gave us the idea you are rather fond of exclamation marks!

TV WEEK'S PROGRAM REVIEW CONTEST for High School Students

If TV WEEK's mail is any indication, high school students are among the nation's most avid television viewers. We receive dozens of letters a week from them. Some are interesting, perceptive and stimulating. Others are scarcely legible and extremely dull.

But it occurred to TV WEEK that perhaps some high school students would like to participate in a contest for reviewing some programs.

In order to have a workable basis for comparison, we have selected three new network programs for review, and invite students, 9th through 12th grades only, to write a review of up to 450 words on any one of them.

Winners Visit a Studio, Meet the Stars

There will be one winner in each community where TV WEEK appears who will receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. There will also be three Sweepstakes Winners, one for each of the three programs. Each Sweepstakes Winner, in addition to receiving a bond, will be invited, along with two guests, by the network concerned to have lunch at the studio where the program is filmed, visit the set to watch the shooting and to meet the stars.

The Programs

The three programs, any one of which you may review, are:

F Troop	ABC
The Wild, Wild West	CBS
I Spy	NBC

The review should concern the series as a whole, not an individual episode. It is suggested you select a program you have watched carefully at least three times.

The review must not exceed 450 words. Reader interest, clarity of expression, imagination, knowledge of the program, perception of its strengths and weaknesses, legibility, punctuation and neatness will all count.

A review of a television series can take many forms, but its purpose is to evaluate in an interesting fashion how well it is done and to what degree, and why it succeeds or fails in accomplishing what it apparently intended to do. A good review helps a casual reader gain new appreciation for the program's good and bad points and presumably helps sharpen his own critical judgments. Writing, acting, direction, production, film editing are some aspects that may be considered. Please omit any judgments of color quality, as the majority of homes do not yet have color sets.

Good criticism is not all negative—although often easier and more fun to write—and it should include ways in which the program might be improved.

Include This Information

At the conclusion of your review, you must include the following:

Your Name

Address

Town

Phone Number

Name of Newspaper in which you receive TV WEEK

Name of your High School and town located

Year in School (9th through 12th grades only)

Failure to include all of the above information will automatically disqualify the entry.

All entries must be sent to TV WEEK Review Contest, in care of your newspaper. Entries must be received by Friday, April 15.

Judges

The preliminary judging and selection of each community's winner will be done by the editorial staff of TV WEEK. Judges for the three final winners—one for each program—will be the Editor of TV WEEK; Dr. Don C. Smith, Associate Professor of Telecommunications at the University of Southern California; and an executive with the network or program concerned.

So grab your note pad and pencil, watch the program you prefer, sharpen up your critical instincts and send us some sparkling reviews that we can publish in TV WEEK.

WORTH MENTIONING

10:00 107 "EPICURE Ondel and Triump: A poignant study of the early creative years in the life of Ludwig Von Beethoven, a period in which his genius as a composer is threatened by the tragic hand of fate. But, "by taking fate by the throat," he emerged triumphant to compose his great and lasting masterpiece—the Third (or Eroica) Symphony. Faced by the worst personal tragedy that could possibly befall a musician—deafness—Beethoven's deep determination to overcome this obstacle instilled within him the courage to create music which has remained his legacy to Western civilization. David McCallum is the voice of Beethoven.

TV TALK

Comic Book Kick

The success of ABC's Batman has, as expected, sparked a rush for other comic book characters for television. Among those reported to be in the works are The Lone Ranger and a new version of Superman, both as cartoon series for Saturday.

William Dozier, producer of Batman, has sold The Green Hornet to ABC and is starting production now.

And there will be more. But perhaps a second thought or two is in order for all series, daytime or evening, that are hoping to ride Batman's wave to the bank. Batman's ratings are slipping fast for a program that started out so well. The latest report for the two weeks ending February 20 had it down to 20th (Wednesday) and 10th (Thursday) place. Although those are high rankings, the trend is significant.

Programs

Most of the news flowing out of Hollywood these days concerns the cancellations of the old shows and the announcements of new ones. But the cancellations and announcements change by the day and it's futile to report much at this stage. But at this writing ABC's Twelve O'Clock High, Gidget, Honey West, McHale's Navy, A Man Called Shenandoah are still in limbo, with odds for their continuation given as 50-50.

New York Strikes Back

New York City, once an important center for television and movie production, has seen most of it move to Hollywood. The actors have followed.

The root problem has been limited and geographically separated facilities, limited cooperation by the New York police for location work, and intractable union labor demands.

Now a $50 million complex known as Cinema Center has been announced. It would occupy the site of Madison Square Garden and feature film production studios and theaters.

The Favorites

This late in the season there are seldom significant changes in the rankings of programs as viewing habits apparently become set. Except for Batman's tumble from the heights, there are few surprises in the latest national estimates. Bonanza, Red Skelton and Gomer Pyle run one, two, three. The Man From U.N.C.L.E. has risen to seventh place. Peyton Place, last year's most talked about entry, rests in 36th, 37th and 40th places.

People

Pat Morrow has earned her citizenship papers in Peyton Place with a new four year contract. . . . David Janssen, star of The Fugitive, has been signed for a series of features for Paramount. . . . Rod Serling recently took a swipe at television with the comment that "it has ceased to be a stage and as an art form has become principally a display case for merchandise and a modus operandi for advertisers." How true! On the other hand Serling's contributions in recent years have been something less than cultural stimulants, like The Loner.

More Editorials

KNX Radio recently editorialized in support of Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles in the California Democratic primary election even before Yorty officially announced his intention to run. This is another step forward in the willingness of broadcasters to take positions on issues of community importance, even to the point of endorsing candidates.

TV a Closer Look...

By ERNIE KREILING

Editor, TV WEEK

May to September Not So Dreary This Year

For as long as most people can remember, television's summer diet has been one of leftovers, unwanted reminders of the bleak season just passed. But this year things are looking a little better.

Not that there will be fresh, imaginative, creative or experimental programming, you understand, but there will be fewer leftovers and an occasional freshly cooked meal.

There's no knowing what's inspired the networks to look beyond their film vaults for some summer programming. It may have been persistent nagging of columnists, but that's unlikely. It may have been a new awareness of the public's boredom seeping through the executive suites, but that's not likely. It was probably E. William Henry, Chairman of the FCC.

Last September, Mr. Henry spoke some words on the subject that had "vast wasteland" overtones. "How many viewers," he asked, "are satisfied with their summer diet of network television? How many are content with a steady stream of network repeats, reruns and rejects? . . . How many have developed tired blood without realizing that it's simply a long, long way from May to September?"

He went on to suggest that the networks turn their "summer siesta" into a summer workshop to develop "new sources, new directions, new concepts, new formats and new faces" that could provide a basis for new regular season programs.

This summer, things will fall a few million dollars and a heap of originality short of Mr. Henry's dream, but things will be a little better than before. Mostly variety is replacing variety and a few new faces, more or less, will dominate the proceedings.

Singer John Gary does a summer stint for Danny Kaye. Young singer John Davidson sits in for Andy Williams.

But the move that will delight more millions than any other will be NBC's reprise of Mitch Miller. But easy now, they are only reruns of some old programs, not new ones.

Dean Martin's turning his keys over to Rowan and Martin.

CBS is reported to have a new game show to replace Lucy and a variety format will replace Jackie Gleason. Ed Sullivan and What's My Line? will stay on "live," which is, of course, an overstatement in both cases.

Peyton Place continues to resolve its problems through the summer, but reverts to twice a week in September. And next month ABC is initiating two new filmed series that are scheduled to air into the summer. One is The Avengers, an English-produced action program. The other is Court Martial, also English-produced, but one that deserves a few words.

Court Martial, starring Bradford Dillman and Peter Graves, will be the highlight of the season for those who enjoy drama. I've seen the first episode and it's a compelling, shocking story, better than any I've seen for a season or two. It's powerful, meaningful, moving and exquisitely performed by the principals and guest Joan Hackett. Those who remember and liked the two-part Kraft Theater presentation 18 months ago, called "The Case Against Paul Ryker," will like this series. It's based on the same theme and done with equal skill. It premieres April 8.

And on April 21 NBC debuts a musical program that's a bit different. It's been described as the only program on television louder than the commercials and as a Hullabaloo for adults.

I've seen the first installment of this throbbing, toe-tapping smorgasbord of turn-of-the-century, ragtime, and Roaring Twenties Music called Micki Finn's.

It's based on and done on a set that's a replica of Micki Finn's night spot in San Diego. Beer-guzzling customers (root beer in the studio) enjoy a wild piano, an insane banjo, warbling waiters, leggy waitresses and a frenzied good time. It's garish, it's loud, it's different.

Don't get me wrong. There'll be an ample supply of reruns this year. But there will be more live variety and a couple of new dramatic series to ease the pain of warm-weather viewing. It's a first step in the right direction.

TV a word from the sponsor...

KNOCK THY BROTHER?

Have you noticed the trend toward mentioning competitive products within commercials? Some merely make comparisons, others go so far as to knock the other product, as in the case of "those money savers don't pay off" from a prominent insurance company. My personal opinion is that this is the lowest and most detrimental kind of commercial approach an advertiser can undertake. It is an insult to an honorable profession. The American Association of Advertising Agencies (four A's) has had a great deal to say about unfair competitive advertising. While believing in competitive advertising, the association doesn't believe in "advertising which untruthfully or unfairly depicts or disparages competitive products or services."

Another heavyweight in the broadcast field is the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB), which has announced that beginning next September its member stations will not accept ads that belittle the competition. The commercials must be either neutral or favorable.

An advertising agency should take a long look at itself if it falls into the trap of praising its own products by disparaging others. It obviously has nothing good left to say about its product, so it takes the easy way—slams the other guy. Many advertisers have shown this tendency, and discouraging it is a great step on the part of the Four A's and the NAB. These two national bodies have been joined by two others in the crusade, the National Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Federation of America.

The important thing for viewers to understand is that the advertising fraternity can see its shortcomings and is willing to do what it can to take corrective measures. This does not mean that these national organizations we've mentioned are going to step in and chastise one of their members because there is some discussion about whether or not he has a "bad" commercial. This is flatly a matter of opinion; however, using a competitor's trademark or image to disparage is not wholly a question of creativity, but rather one of morals and ethics.

It is a threat to all advertising if one advertiser is able to lead the viewer to believe that other commercials are all wet. With this kind of vindictive round-robin all of advertising could be submerged. As you ponder that thought amid the hurrahs and confetti, let me remind you of what we have often said: Don't stop letting people know your grievances and delights concerning television. "The Ad Man" and "Madison Avenue" and "The Brooks Bros. Boys" are real people, real places. They can generally be influenced by even a "wee small voice," if the message keeps them from jeopardizing their client and agency. A creative director must be aware that the outside world is more than mahogany and marble, so let him know about the white picket fences and the shade trees.

We in advertising are constantly on guard against its misuse. Help us keep it clear of those things that are inconsistent with the better values in our way of life.
