Giant Oil Slick Drifting South

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Anxious Orange County Harbor Department officials were scanning reports from Ventura County today and checking the southward drift of a giant oil slick.

Present indications are that the raw petroleum being spewed out by a leaking Union Oil Co. well would reach the county's offshore area in about "eight to 10 days," a spokesman said.

"But that's only if it maintained its present rate of progress," he added. "We're pretty sure and hoping that the mess may have been cleaned up by then."

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said early today that the huge patch of foul-smelling oil covered about a 200-square-mile area "at last light Friday" and was taking a "tremendous toll' of marine and bird life in the befouled area.

Shoals of blackened fish and oil-coated sea birds, writhing in their death agonies, were reported by investigators in the area. Authorities were deluged with requests from residents and observers asking what could be done for the scores of dying birds.

A number of people didn't bother using the telephone. They destroyed the dying birds themselves or, in some cases, tried to clean the cloying oil from their plumage.

About four miles of shoreline had been affected by the spreading oil late Friday and some 1,000 yards of popular Rincon Beach near Santa Barbara had been blackened.

Aircraft hired by the Union Oil Co. were dropping chemicals in the area in a bid to contain the spreading pollution and they planned to resume operations early today. "We've had some success but we'll have to keep at it," a pilot told his supervisors.

The aerial attack on the oil slick was

Woman Once Placed in Casket

By EVELYN SHERWOOD

As far as the residents of the small Nova Scotia town were concerned, 8-month-old Viona had died of meningitis on that day before World War I.

They made the traditional arrangements. Her grief-stricken family wept and the funeral plans were made.

However the funeral never came off. It still hasn't.

Viona Burdick Baker today is very much alive and quite well, thank you.

She retired last December after serving 17 years as a clerk for the City of Newport Beach General Services Department.

The bizarre tale about the little baby who died originated in Ferrona Junction, Nova Scotia, a tiny village where the only doctor lived 20 miles away.

It was there that little Viona was pronounced dead from spinal meningitis, then came back to life.

She tells it like this:

"I had red German measles," she explained, "but instead of breaking out, I became very ill."

"Dr. McDonald drove his horse-drawn sleigh through a snowstorm and over banks of snow three feet deep." She said that he diagnosed her illness as spinal meningitis and declared the crisis would come in about a week.

"My parents told me later that I lay motionless and rigid for three weeks, eating only a small amount of milk. My mother said I looked like a wax doll.

"At the end of that time my body was cold and there was no perceptible heartbeat.

"The doctor was called back and pronounced me dead.

"He's signed my death certificate, and my mother bathed me and put on my prettiest dress.

"My father went to the general store and bought a casket. They placed store in it and the storekeeper, who was also a photographer, took a picture of me."

Her body lay in state in the living

THANKS TO HEART SURGERY, THESE THREE CAN LOOK FORWARD TO NORMAL LIVES
Heart Queen Sharon Virtue, Princess Laura Carney, Prince Joel Allen

Mesa Coed Hearts Queen

A 15-year-old Costa Mesa High School sophomore was crowned Queen of Hearts Friday with the launching of Orange County Heart Association's 1969 campaign.

Enthroned by incoming association president Dr. Arnold O. Beckman of Fullerton was Sharon Virtue, selected by association officers from a list of heart patients compiled by county cardiologists.

Sharon was born with an arterial septal heart defect, a condition that was corrected by open heart surgery. She will represent the Heart Association at fund gathering events throughout the year.

Sharon's Princess of Hearts for a year in which the association hopes to raise a record $285,000 is three-year-old Laura Carney, 5771 Mangrum St., Huntington Beach. Laura, who refused to let leg braces prevent her from participating in the ceremonies, has undergone two heart operations, one of which led to a subsequent stroke.

Her physicians say she has made a "tremendous recovery" from that additional handicap and that she will undergo further heart surgery when she is about 13 or 14. It is predicted that the further operation will completely cure her heart defect.

Lining up with the two girls at the Santa Ana Elks Club event was six-year-old Joel Allen, the 1969 Prince of Hearts Joel, a first grader at a Santa Ana school, recently underwent open heart surgery and now leads a normal life.

Honored by the association at the inaugural event of the 1969 campaign were outgoing chairman David S. Robertson and Heart Fund chairman Bill Firetag. Beckman noted that Firetag raised $256,000 in his year of office, eclipsing

Unruh Calls Governor's Plan 'Fraud'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday night he will ask the legislature to grant state income taxpayers a 10 percent election year cut. Democrat Jess M. Unruh denounced the plan as a fraud.

The Republican governor announced the first major state tax cut in recent years in a brief filmed "report to the people" distributed to television stations.

Reagan credited state economies and and unexpected revenues — mainly due to inflation — with pushing state receipts $100 million above expectations. He said taxpayers should get a tax rebate when they file their income tax returns for calendar 1969 — due by April 15, 1970.

"Normally with this kind of money left over government finds a way to spend it," Reagan said. "And in so doing, it usually builds up the cost of government for years to come until eventually it has to ask for more revenues.

"We think we're doing something a little unprecedented but we believe you're entitled to a rebate," he added. "You should receive that $100 million back."

Former speaker Unruh — now Assembly Democratic leader — lambasted Reagan on grounds that the rebate wasn't high enough.

Suzie's Surgery 'Great Thing for County'

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

One of Suzie's surgeons laid aside his scalpel Friday to reveal to an eager audience how Orange County got into the heart surgery business in a big way in 1968.

However, Dr. John Somerndike, a member of the Childrens Hospital surgery team that successfully carried out open heart surgery on little Nguyen Thi Thanh Phuong last month, refused to comment on aspects of that surgery other than to say that Suzie is "doing just fine.

"Our publicity has been excellent if a little overwhelming at times," he said. "It's been a great thing for Orange County, though, in that it has helped people to realize just how much is being done here now in this field."

What was done in 1968, Dr. Somerndike recalled, were 44 open heart operations, 40 of them in children. Only two of those patients died, he said, "and with a fatality ratio of 5 percent I think we compare very favorably with other areas in which they type of surgery is being carried out."

Flanked by Drs. John M. Salyer and Stanley M. Kegel, both members of the "Suzie" team, Somerndike stressed how heart surgeons and physicians are now looking forward to making "dramatic inroads" into the incidence of heart disease in young children.

"One child out of every 6,000 born come into this world with some type of heart defect," he said. "And of that number about half do not survive beyond the first year of life."

And of those who die, Somerndike explained, "another half die within the first month of life. Most of them die from valvular septal defects, commonly known to us as 'hole in the heart' or 'blue baby' conditions."

Tremendous technological advances are making possible a whole new range of surgical techniques, Somerndike said, many of them palliative operations which will ensure continued life for the child until deeper surgery can be performed when the victim is older.

And the new booming technology that is being made available to the surgeon, Somerndike added, is not confined to the very young.

He described sophisticated new equipment, recently perfected, which will make its way into the operating room within a year and which will drastically cut the number of deaths attributed to angina, a painful heart condition mostly found among elderly heart patients.

"Many of our efforts in this field have been directed to speeding and amplifying the blood supply to the victim from the failing heart," he said. "This revolutionary new device will go the opposite track — decrease, through application to the nervous system, the heart's demand for blood."

And American surgeons will soon have the benefits of a heart valve grafting technique that has been perfected by British surgeons, Somerndike said — the raising of specially bred pigs with a view to the animal's heart valves being used for implantation to a human body.

"Another miracle," he said, "in a field of surgery that was seemingly remote a decade ago."

Viet Terrorists Wound General

SAIGON (UPI) — Terrorists riding motor scooters wounded a South Vietnamese general in a bombing attack near Saigon's presidential palace today. Communist gunners fired powerful rockets into the city of Hue, military spokesmen said.

Near the northern coastal city of Da Nang, South Vietnamese infantrymen aided by American aircraft and artillery killed 189 Communist troops in a two-day-battle, spokesmen said. And north of Saigon, an estimated 500 Red troops hurled two ground assaults against an American artillery base.

Four terrorists riding two motor scooters attacked a car carrying Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Kiem, South Vietnam's presidential military adviser, with a plastic bomb and a grenade less than four blocks from the presidential palace.

The explosion wounded Kiem and six other persons, and the terrorists dodged police bullets as they sped away. It was the second terrorist attack against a high government official in Saigon in a month. Education Minister Le Minh Tri was killed by a grenade thrown into his car Jan. 6.

Communist forces marked the first anniversary of the start of last year's fierce battle for the former imperial capital of Hue by firing five six-foot-long rockets into the center of the city today. The attack, the first on the northern city since he Nov. 1 bombing halt of North Vietnam, wounded seven civilians, spokesmen said.

About 20 miles south of Da Nang, a battalion of South Vietnamese infantry fought for the second day against a Communist force in flatlands near Vietnam's Highway 1. The government troops reported killing 59 Communist forces in the first round of fighting Friday. They said they killed another 130 today. Government casualties were described as "light."

An estimated 500 Communist troops early today attacked a U.S. artillery base 45 miles north of Saigon, but they were driven back after two small-scale probes, spokesmen said. The Reds pounded the camp with about 160 mortar rounds and shot down a U.S. helicopter.

"Ina, my 10-year-old sister tiptoed in to hold a doll mirror over my lips to test the grown-ups' statement that there would be no mist on it because I was dead.

"When the mirror clouded over, she ran screaming to my mother and told her what had happened. I was snatched out of the casket and my parents and neighbors worked through the day and night rubbing my stiff limbs.

"The next day they tore up the death certificate and father chopped the casket to bits and burned it.

"For three months I lay quietly until the use of my limbs was restored.

"Once I had recovered there were no ill effects and I had a healthy childhood."

She was presented a plaque by the City Council for dedicated public service at a luncheon held Wednesday and 150 employes gave her a replica of the microphone over which she called on "Station O".

Golf Club Tax Spat To Drive Off In Court

The next "tourney" in the possessory tax assessment case involving the Costa Mesa Golf and Country Club will be played in the courts.

John A. Griffin, attorney for Ronnie Reif, operator of the golf club for the city of Costa Mesa, said he would appeal the ruling of the Assessment Appeals Board handed down Jan. 17.

Under that ruling, the board backed Orange County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw's contention that Reif should pay approximately $58,000 in possessory interest taxes. Hinshaw assessed the golf course property at $577,750.

Griffin maintained in his arguments before the appeal board that Reif had no possessory interest, that he was merely acting as an employe of the city in operating the golf course.

He cited the fact that it is a public golf course and is required to both hire Fairview State Hospital patients for tasks they can do, as well as giving them free golf course use.

Deputy County Counsel Timothy Strader, acting as Hinshaw's attorney said in response to charges that the assessor's levy is exorbitant, confiscatory and prohibitive, that the law presumes otherwise.

"His approach is valid. Whether it is confiscatory is irrelevant," Strader said. "Maybe Mr. Reif should have had a lawyer look at this contract and tell him he didn't have such a good deal."

Reif has 18 years to go on a 20-year agreement with the city to run the 240-acre, 36-hole golf course, whose original operator, Novel James, went broke, testimony disclosed.

'Catch Me' Killer Draws 99 Years

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla (UPI) — Robert John Erler, 24, a policeman, was convicted Friday of killing a 12-year-old girl and then calling his fellow officers to beg them to "catch me."

Court of Records Judge E. Summers Sheffey sentenced Erler to 99 and a half years in prison for the slaying of Merilyn Clark of Atlanta Aug. 12.

The girl's body was found along a lonely road near the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. Her mother, gravely wounded, was discovered and was able to recall events leading up to the shootings. Several bullets are still lodged in her head and part of her face is paralyzed.

Going Down for Scorpion

Navy Plans Underwater Probe With Bathyscope

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is pinning its hopes for solving the mystery of the Scorpion submarine disaster on its deep-diving bathyscope Trieste II which will begin a new underwater search in the spring.

A court of inquiry report released in summary Friday said that despite 12,000 photographs of Atlantic floor debris, the Navy is still unable to say what happened to the nuclear sub last May.

The $40 million craft disappeared with a crew of 99 officers and men while enroute home after a Mediterranean training operation. After extensive search, her wreckage was located Oct. 29 some 10,000 feet deep and 460 miles southwest of the Azores.

After hearing 90 witnesses and piling up 1,334 pages of testimony during 11 weeks, the seven-man court of inquiry said:

"The certain cause of the loss of Scorpion cannot be ascertained from any evidence now available."

The court recommended a further effort be made to photograph the wreckage and the Navy said the Trieste II would go out into the Atlantic about April for on-the-spot observation and additional photographs of the Scorpion hull.

The court of inquiry ruled out two possible causes of the loss of the Scorpion, worst submarine disaster since the Thresher was crushed after a piping failure off New England in 1963. The Thresher carried 129 men to their deaths.

The Scorpion did not hit a seamount, or underwater ridge, "since there is none in the area where the submarine went to the bottom," the Navy reported.

The nuclear reactor plant also was dismissed as a possible cause of the loss.

The court also downgraded such potential causes as a collision with a foreign ship, sabotage by a crewman or faulty safety procedures.

There has been some speculation that there may have been an explosion in a torpedo tube. The Navy said the court probed this possibility even though photographs gave no indication such an explosion occurred.

The Scorpion fired torpedos on practice missions before her springtime assignment in the Mediterranean, and the Navy cited testimony that her torpedomen "were well trained" in handling ordnance in accordance with established safety precautions.

Navy spokesmen said the Trieste II will work with the floating dry dock White Sands and the tug Apache when winter sea conditions ease.

The Trieste II, a Navy-owned submersible which carries a two-man crew and an observer, is certified for operating at 12,000 feet although it was actually designed for 20,000 feet.

As a result of modifications, she will be able to retrieve objects weighing around 250 pounds but not major sections such as hull or sail components.

Equipped with powerful spotlights, the Trieste is expected to provide far better on-the-scene visual reports and clearer photographs than were taken earlier by towed underwater cameras of the submersible Mizar.

Nine of the Mizar's pictures were cleared for public distribution Friday.

They showed the Scorpion hull lying in two major portions, with the sail or conning tower separated and resting on its side. Debris which had settled on the gray, flat Atlantic floor was estimated to be a few hundred feet away.

The biggest chunk was the stern or rear section which was over 100 feet long.

Sections of the hull appear to be dented, but the Navy said these were little piles of sand or silt. The bow was partially sunk in the sand.

The Navy said the ship's nuclear reactor, which provided the power for its propulsion, was not photographed during last year's search operation.

The Navy said so far as it knows the Soviet Union has no means of retrieving the nuclear plant.

being aided, Coast Guard spokesmen said, by favorable winds and tides which were keeping the oil away from many beaches.

But those nullifying circumstances might well be canceled out if the present rate of discharge from the ruptured well is maintained, it was pointed out. Glum Union Oil officials admitted late Friday that there seemed little doubt that the well was still pumping 21,000 gallons of crude fuel a day into the Pacific Ocean.

"It's going to get worse before it gets better," a spokesman of the California Department of Fish and Game said. "Unless they plug up that well, and quickly, we are going to have a real problem on our hands."

Gov. Ronald Reagan, obviously angered by the deteriorating situation, demanded Friday that the federal government establish a fund to aid California and other states to fight oil pollution.

FULL RESPONSIBILITY

Union Oil Co. confirmed late Friday that it accepted "full responsibility" for the discharging well and the 200-mile area of pollution and that the company would ensure that "the mess was cleaned up."

But Coast Guard spokesmen forecast the imminent advent of state and federal agencies into the clean-up program and a subsequent stringent inquiry into the cause of the leak.

Specialists from the Interior Department and workers from a Texas fire fighting company were on the job Friday trying to force mud into the leaking offshore oil rig in a bid to slow down or finally halt the discharge.

Observers of the disaster area today were recalling the wreck of the super tanker Torrey Canyon off the English coast in March, 1967 and the subsequent dumping of more than 100,000 tons of oil on some of Southern England's loveliest beaches.

It took some 50,000 British troops more than two weeks to clean up the coastal area involved.

Germ-containing 'Baby Magic' Lotion Recalled

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The Mennen Company, major producers of baby products, Friday announced it is recalling thousands of bottles of Baby Magic lotion that were found to contain a bacteria that could cause serious infections.

A company spokesman said two separate lots of the bottles, all plastic, are involved.

One lot, manufactured before last March, has a number plus a letter stamped on the bottom. Bottles in the other lot, totaling 12,000 and manufactured later last year, have the numbers "219" stamped on the bottom but no letters.

The spokesman said the bottles are being recalled from store shelves around the nation, "and we are asking anyone who has it at home to please send it back and receive a refund from us."

The Mennen Company address is Hanover Avenue, Morristown.

'Candy' Too Sweet; Police Seize Film

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — About 40 customers waiting in the lobby of the Paramount Theater Friday to see the motion picture "Candy" watched police officers carry the film away instead.

Police halted the showing of the movie and arrested two theater employes in the city's second crackdown within three months on alleged obscene films.

SF State Staff, Teachers Payless For Strike Action

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The first semester ended Friday at San Francisco State College with paychecks being withheld from 277 members of the faculty and staff.

Richard L. Braden, chief of the division of disbursement in the state controller's office, said work records of the 277 had not been verified in time for the normal payroll.

It is belived that the bulk of the 277 are striking members of the American Federation of Teachers. Acting college president S. I. Hayakawa said they would not be paid for time spent on the picket lines since the AFT went on strike Jan. 6.

Dissident students struck the college Nov. 6.

Hayakawa also has invoked a state law providing for automatic resignation of faculty members who absent themselves from the classroom five days without a legitimate excuse. However, he wants each case treated individually before a determination is made.

Selection of an impartial grievance committee apparently is the major stumbling block to settlement of the teachers strike.

The union proposed the committee be comprised of three members — one appointed by the complaining teacher, another by the college president and the third mutually chosen by the teacher and president. Trustees of the state college system rejected the proposal and suggested the grievance committee be selected from the statewide Academic Senate comprised of faculty members.

Union leaders turned down that proposal because they said such a committee would be "under dictation" from higher state authorities.

Murder Twist

Defendant's Niece Confesses

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — An all-male jury which had deliberated for three days decided Friday that shapely brunette Sheilla Pappas was innocent of the murder of her husband Angelo.

The 31-year-old Long Island housewife, who had maintained a stoic calm through a three-week trial, burst into tears in the Nassau County courtroom when the verdict was announced.

The witness who caused the greatest sensation of the trial — Mrs. Pappas' 16-year-old niece, Maryann Freed — was not in court when the jury came in.

Maryann, who had been called by the state as a key witness, electrified the court when she testified Jan. 20 that it was she, alone and unaided, who slugged and shot her uncle on Nov. 26, 1967.

She said Pappas had made her pregnant, had forced her to perform unnatural sex acts and had threatened to kill her. So, she said, she beat him with a hammer and a wrench and then shot him with his own .38-caliber revolver.

Pappas died in a hospital a few hours later.

At the time, Maryann and Mrs. Pappas told police at first that he had been killed by an intruder and then that both of them had taken part in the murder.

Maryann was charged with juvenile delinquency, but the charge was dropped when a juvenile court judge ruled that she was "a person in need of supervision." No further action can be taken against her.

When Mrs. Pappas had regained her composure Friday, she made some calls from a courthouse telephone booth. She emerged smiling nervously.

"This is the first time I've smiled in 14 months (the period she spent in jail awaiting trial)," she told newsmen. "I just don't know how to smile any more."

Giant Oil Slick Drifting South

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Anxious Orange County Harbor Department officials were scanning reports from Ventura County today and checking the southward drift of a giant oil slick.

Present indications are that the raw petroleum being spewed out by a leaking Union Oil Co. well would reach the county's offshore area in about "eight to 10 days," a spokesman said.

"But that's only if it maintained its present rate of progress," he added. "We're pretty sure and hoping that the mess may have been cleaned up by then."

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said early today that the huge patch of foul-smelling oil covered about a 200-square-mile area "at last light Friday" and was taking a "tremendous toll' of marine and bird life in the befouled area.

Shoals of blackened fish and oil-coated sea birds, writhing in their death agonies, were reported by investigators in the area. Authorities were deluged with requests from residents and observers asking what could be done for the scores of dying birds.

A number of people didn't bother using the telephone. They destroyed the dying birds themselves or, in some cases, tried to clean the cloying oil from their plumage.

About four miles of shoreline had been affected by the spreading oil late Friday and some 1,000 yards of popular Rincon Beach near Santa Barbara had been blackened.

Aircraft hired by the Union Oil Co. were dropping chemicals in the area in a bid to contain the spreading pollution and they planned to resume operations early today. "We've had some success but we'll have to keep at it," a pilot told his supervisors.

Nixon, Security Council Meet Today on Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon meets with his National Security Council today on the Middle East situation which Nixon himself has called "a powder keg, very explosive." It may compel him to make his first major foreign policy decisions.

The most immediate problem before Nixon in respect to the Middle East is how to reply to a French proposal for a meeting of the U.N. representatives of the Big Four to try to lay the groundwork for a settlement.

The Johnson administration was reluctant to agree to such a session because it might look as if the four nations were trying to impose a settlement. The U.S. view until now has been that the Arabs and the Israelis must somehow be presuaded to negotiate — a view expressed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R-N.Y.) during a White House visit Friday.

The Johnson administration officials felt Israel would take a dim view of anything in which France played a role because of Charles de Gaulle's refusal to ship to Israel fighter planes already paid for, and the French president's decision to impose a total embargo on any sale of military equipment or spare parts.

Britain now has joined the Soviet Union and France, however, in pushing for a four-nation meeting. Nixon may find it necessary to agree to this, but with the stipulation the four are working strictly within the framework of the United Nations.

The Nixon administration also has to decide what stand to take on a Soviet proposal in January calling for Israel and the Arabs to make their "guarantees" to the United Nations because the Arabs refuse to talk with Israel. Israel has called the plan unacceptable because it appears to require them to withdraw from all occupied Arab territory without adequate guarantees of Israeli security.

The Johnson administration passed the issue on to Nixon by neither accepting nor rejecting the Soviet plan but asking a series of questions to which Moscow has not yet replied.

At his first news conference as president, Nixon said Monday "the next explosion in the Middle East. . .could involve very well a confrontation between the nuclear powers which we want to avoid."

Arab Paper Says Iraq's Hanging 'Badly Handled'

By United Press International

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today Iraq's public hanging of 14 persons was "certainly not a heartwarming sight" and the whole thing was badly handled. Israeli religious leaders said Jordan had sentenced to death two persons as spies.

Al Ahram, which usually reflects opinions of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government, was replying to Baghdad Radio charges that Arab nations had failed to take Iraq's side.

"The hanging of 14 people in public squares is certainly not a heartwarming sight nor is it the occasion for organizing a festival and issuing invitations," Al Ahram said in a front page editorial.

Al Ahram said Iraq had a sound case for convicting the 14 persons, including nine Jews, as spies. They were hanged Monday.

"But what makes us hesitate is the manner in which the whole thing was handled . . . and the timing was also inappropriate," Al Ahram said.

"The executions were carried out at a time when Israel was being censored by world opinion (for the Israeli commando attack on Beirut Airport Dec. 28)."

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Christian faith leaders said Jordan had condemned to death two persons from Israel on charges of spying.

In Rabat, the Moroccan news agency Maghreb Arabe Presse said the Baghdad hangings were "a lamentable spectacle and a monumental psychological error."

Santa Ana Police Nab Two Suspects In Station Heist

Two Santa Ana men were jailed by police in that city early today and charged with the armed robbery of a service station.

Arrested by officers shortly after a holdup at the Rocket service station, First and Raitt streets, were Robert Swann, 29, and Joseph Anthony, 26. Officers said they recovered $50 taken from a clerk at the gas outlet.

A gun resembling the weapon described by the attendant was found in the car driven by the two men, officers said.

Both men were being questioned about a second attempted holdup reported to police shortly before the arrest of Swann and Anthony.

That report took police to the Carriage Stop motel at Third and Ross streets where night manager David R. McNeely told officers that two men answering the descriptions of the arrested men held him up at gunpoint.

McNeely said he broke out of the motel office and ran across the street. Both men pursued him he said and fired a shot before he finally evaded them.

The clerk told police that no cash was taken from his office.

THANKS TO HEART SURGERY, THESE THREE CAN LOOK FORWARD TO NORMAL LIVES
Heart Queen Sharon Virtue, Princess Laura Carney, Prince Joel Allen

Mesa Coed Hearts Queen

A 15-year-old Costa Mesa High School sophomore was crowned Queen of Hearts Friday with the launching of Orange County Heart Association's 1969 campaign.

Enthroned by incoming association president Dr. Arnold O. Beckman of Fullerton was Sharon Virtue, selected by association officers from a list of heart patients compiled by county cardiologists.

Sharon was born with an arterial septal heart defect, a condition that was corrected by open heart surgery. She will represent the Heart Association at fund gathering events throughout the year.

Sharon's Princess of Hearts for a year in which the association hopes to raise a record $285,000 is three-year-old Laura Carney, 5771 Mangrum St., Huntington Beach. Laura, who refused to let leg braces prevent her from participating in the ceremonies, has undergone two heart operations, one of which led to a subsequent stroke.

Her physicians say she has made a "tremendous recovery" from that additional handicap and that she will undergo further heart surgery when she is about 13 or 14. It is predicted that the further operation will completely cure her heart defect.

Lining up with the two girls at the Santa Ana Elks Club event was six-year-old Joel Allen, the 1969 Prince of Hearts Joel, a first grader at a Santa Ana school, recently underwent open heart surgery and now leads a normal life.

Honored by the association at the inaugural event of the 1969 campaign were outgoing chairman David S. Robertson and Heart Fund chairman Bill Firetag. Beckman noted that Firetag raised $256,000 in his year of office, eclipsing

Back From Death

By EVELYN SHERWOOD
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

As far as the residents of the small Nova Scotia town were concerned, 8-month-old Viona had died of meningitis on that day before World War I.

They made the traditional arrangements. Her grief-stricken family wept and the funeral plans were made.

However the funeral never came off. It still hasn't.

Viona Burdick Baker today is very much alive and quite well, thank you.

She retired last December after serving 17 years as a clerk for the City of Newport Beach General Services Department.

The bizarre tale about the little baby who died originated in Ferrona Junction, Nova Scotia, a tiny village where the only doctor lived 20 miles away.

It was there that little Viona was pronounced dead from spinal meningitis, then came back to life.

She tells it like this:

"I had red German measles," she explained, "but instead of breaking out, I became very ill."

"Dr. McDonald drove his horse-drawn sleigh through a snowstorm and over banks of snow three feet deep." She said that he diagnosed her illness as spinal meningitis and declared the crisis would come in about a week.

"My parents told me later that I lay motionless and rigid for three weeks, eating only a small amount of milk. My mother said I looked like a wax doll.

"At the end of that time my body was cold and there was no perceptible heartbeat.

"The doctor was called back and pronounced me dead.

"He's signed my death certificate, and my mother bathed me and put on my prettiest dress.

"My father went to the general store and bought a casket. They placed store in it and the storekeeper, who was also a photographer, took a picture of me."

Her body lay in state in the living

Unruh Calls Governor's Plan 'Fraud'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday night he will ask the legislature to grant state income taxpayers a 10 percent election year cut. Democrat Jess M. Unruh denounced the plan as a fraud.

The Republican governor announced the first major state tax cut in recent years in a brief filmed "report to the people" distributed to television stations.

Reagan credited state economies and and unexpected revenues — mainly due to inflation — with pushing state receipts $100 million above expectations. He said taxpayers should get a tax rebate when they file their income tax returns for calendar 1969 — due by April 15, 1970.

"Normally with this kind of money left over government finds a way to spend it," Reagan said. "And in so doing, it usually builds up the cost of government for years to come until eventually it has to ask for more revenues.

"We think we're doing something a little unprecedented but we believe you're entitled to a rebate," he added. "You should receive that $100 million back."

Former speaker Unruh — now Assembly Democratic leader — lambasted Reagan on grounds that the rebate wasn't high enough.

He noted that the 1967 legislature — in Reagan's first year as governor — passed a $1 billion tax boost program that was four times higher than any tax increase in the state's history.

Unruh said that both Assemblyman John G. Veneman (R-Modesto), chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, and legislative analyst A. Alan Post had calculated the state's surplus next June at $200 million.

He also pressed again for a payroll withholding plan for state income tax that he said would yield an added $100 million from persons who do not evade their taxes.

"There is only one honest way to describe the governor's proposal," Unruh said. "It is a fraud upon the taxpayers of California — a calculated effort to deceive the people of this state."

Reinecke Eying Governor's Seat In 1974 Election

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke said Friday he would consider running for governor in 1974, if Gov. Reagan steps down, or for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Democrat Alan Cranston.

Reinecke, in office for 10 days, mentioned the "two alternatives" in answer to a question at a Sacramento Press Club luncheon.

"At such time in 1974, if the governor finds he is not running again, I would seriously consider following his footsteps into his chair," Reinecke said. Reagan has not announced whether he will seek re-election in 1970, but Reinecke has said he will run for the lieutenant governorship in two years.

Reinecke said he told Reagan about his possible plans when the governor offered him his current job. Reinecke called the U.S. Senate "a second option."

Cranston, former state controller, was elected to the Senate last year and his term ends in 1974.

Former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, whom Reinecke replaced, has said he would like to be a U.S. senator, but doesn't want to run against a fellow Republican, such as Sen. George Murphy, whose term ends in 1970.

In his noon speech, Reinecke echoed Reagan's Creative Society philosophy of private business and private individuals assuming responsibilities now held by government.

Woman Accused In Mate's Death Ordered to Trial

Pearlie Mae Holston charged with slaying her husband in Laguna Beach, pleaded innocent Friday and was ordered to face a Superior Court trial April 21.

The calm, quiet-spoken woman betrayed no emotion as Judge Robert Gardner made the ruling and confirmed her freedom on $10,000 bail. She returned to her Los Angeles home immediately after the hearing.

Mrs. Holston is accused of killing her husband, James Roy Holston, 56, in Laguna last Nov. 24 by plunging a 10-inch boning knife into his left side during a quarrel. Police said the bitter argument erupted as Mrs. Holston, 45, was walking with her spouse along Ocean Avenue.

Suzie's Surgery 'Great Thing for County'

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

One of Suzie's surgeons laid aside his scalpel Friday to reveal to an eager audience how Orange County got into the heart surgery business in a big way in 1968.

However, Dr. John Somerndike, a member of the Childrens Hospital surgery team that successfully carried out open heart surgery on little Nguyen Thi Thanh Phuong last month, refused to comment on aspects of that surgery other than to say that Suzie is "doing just fine.

"Our publicity has been excellent if a little overwhelming at times," he said. "It's been a great thing for Orange County, though, in that it has helped people to realise just how much is being done here now in this field."

What was done in 1968, Dr. Somerndike recalled, were 44 open heart operations, 40 of them in children. Only two of those patients died, he said, "and with a fatality ratio of 5 percent I think we compare very favorably with other areas in which they type of surgery is being carried out."

Flanked by Drs. John M. Salyer and Stanley M. Kegel, both members of the "Suzie" team, Somerndike stressed how heart surgeons and physicians are now looking forward to making "dramatic inroads" into the incidence of heart disease in young children.

"One child out of every 6,000 born come into this world with some type of heart defect," he said. "And of that number about half do not survive beyond the first year of life."

And of those who die, Somerndike explained, "another half die within the first month of life. Most of them die from valvular septal defects, commonly known to us as 'hole in the heart' or 'blue baby' conditions."

Tremendous technological advances are making possible a whole new range of surgical techniques, Somerndike said, many of them palliative operations which will ensure continued life for the child until deeper surgery can be performed when the victim is older.

And the new booming technology that is being made available to the surgeon, Somerndike added, is not confined to the very young.

He described sophisticated new equipment, recently perfected, which will make its way into the operating room within a year and which will drastically cut the number of deaths attributed to angina, a painful heart condition mostly found among elderly heart patients.

"Many of our efforts in this field have been directed to speeding and amplifying the blood supply to the victim from the failing heart," he said. "This revolutionary new device will go the opposite track — decrease, through application to the nervous system, the heart's demand for blood."

And American surgeons will soon have the benefits of a heart valve grafting technique that has been perfected by British surgeons, Somerndike said — the raising of specially bred pigs with a view to the animal's heart valves being used for implantation to a human body.

"Another miracle," he said, "in a field of surgery that was seemingly remote a decade ago."

Hue Shelled

Viet Terrorists Wound General

SAIGON (UPI) — Terrorists riding motor scooters wounded a South Vietnamese general in a bombing attack near Saigon's presidential palace today. Communist gunners fired powerful rockets into the city of Hue, military spokesmen said.

Near the northern coastal city of Da Nang, South Vietnamese infantrymen aided by American aircraft and artillery killed 189 Communist troops in a two-day-battle, spokesmen said. And north of Saigon, an estimated 500 Red troops hurled two ground assaults against an American artillery base.

Four terrorists riding two motor scooters attacked a car carrying Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Kiem, South Vietnam's presidential military adviser, with a plastic bomb and a grenade less than four blocks from the presidential palace.

The explosion wounded Kiem and six other persons, and the terrorists dodged police bullets as they sped away. It was the second terrorist attack against a high government official in Saigon in a month. Education Minister Le Minh Tri was killed by a grenade thrown into his car Jan. 6.

Communist forces marked the first anniversary of the start of last year's fierce battle for the former imperial capital of Hue by firing five six-foot-long rockets into the center of the city today. The attack, the first on the northern city since he Nov. 1 bombing halt of North Vietnam, wounded seven civilians, spokesmen said.

About 20 miles south of Da Nang, a battalion of South Vietnamese infantry fought for the second day against a Communist force in flatlands near Vietnam's Highway 1. The government troops reported killing 59 Communist forces in the first round of fighting Friday. They said they killed another 130 today. Government casualties were described as "light."

An estimated 500 Communist troops early today attacked a U.S. artillery base 45 miles north of Saigon, but they were driven back after two small-scale probes, spokesmen said. The Reds pounded the camp with about 160 mortar rounds and shot down a U.S. helicopter.

"For three months I lay quietly until the use of my limbs was restored.

Golf Club Tax Spat To Drive Off In Court

The next "tourney" in the possessory tax assessment case involving the Costa Mesa Golf and Country Club will be played in the courts.

John A. Griffin, attorney for Ronnie Reif, operator of the golf club for the city of Costa Mesa, said he would appeal the ruling of the Assessment Appeals Board handed down Jan. 17.

Under that ruling, the board backed Orange County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw's contention that Reif should pay approximately $58,000 in possessory interest taxes. Hinshaw assessed the golf course property at $577,750.

Griffin maintained in his arguments before the appeal board that Reif had no possessory interest, that he was merely acting as an employe of the city in operating the golf course.

He cited the fact that it is a public golf course and is required to both hire Fairview State Hospital patients for tasks they can do, as well as giving them free golf course use.

Deputy County Counsel Timothy Strader, acting as Hinshaw's attorney said in response to charges that the assessor's levy is exorbitant, confiscatory and prohibitive, that the law presumes otherwise.

"His approach is valid. Whether it is confiscatory is irrelevant," Strader said. "Maybe Mr. Reif should have had a lawyer look at this contract and tell him he didn't have such a good deal."

Reif has 18 years to go on a 20-year agreement with the city to run the 240-acre, 36-hole golf course, whose original operator, Novel James, went broke, testimony disclosed.

'Catch Me' Killer Draws 99 Years

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla (UPI) — Robert John Erler, 24, a policeman, was convicted Friday of killing a 12-year-old girl and then calling his fellow officers to beg them to "catch me."

Court of Records Judge E. Summers Sheffey sentenced Erler to 99 and a half years in prison for the slaying of Merilyn Clark of Atlanta Aug. 12.

The girl's body was found along a lonely road near the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. Her mother, gravely wounded, was discovered and was able to recall events leading up to the shootings. Several bullets are still lodged in her head and part of her face is paralyzed.

Going Down for Scorpion

Navy Plans Underwater Probe With Bathyscope

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is pinning its hopes for solving the mystery of the Scorpion submarine disaster on its deep-diving bathyscope Trieste II which will begin a new underwater search in the spring.

A court of inquiry report released in summary Friday said that despite 12,000 photographs of Atlantic floor debris, the Navy is still unable to say what happened to the nuclear sub last May.

The $40 million craft disappeared with a crew of 99 officers and men while enroute home after a Mediterranean training operation. After extensive search, her wreckage was located Oct. 29 some 10,000 feet deep and 460 miles southwest of the Azores.

After hearing 90 witnesses and piling up 1,334 pages of testimony during 11 weeks, the seven-man court of inquiry said:

"The certain cause of the loss of Scorpion cannot be ascertained from any evidence now available."

The court recommended a further effort be made to photograph the wreckage and the Navy said the Trieste II would go out into the Atlantic about April for on-the-spot observation and additional photographs of the Scorpion hull.

The court of inquiry ruled out two possible causes of the loss of the Scorpion, worst submarine disaster since the Thresher was crushed after a piping failure off New England in 1963. The Thresher carried 129 men to their deaths.

The Scorpion did not hit a seamount, or underwater ridge, "since there is none in the area where the submarine went to the bottom," the Navy reported.

The nuclear reactor plant also was dismissed as a possible cause of the loss.

The court also downgraded such potential causes as a collision with a foreign ship, sabotage by a crewman or faulty safety procedures.

There has been some speculation that there may have been an explosion in a torpedo tube. The Navy said the court probed this possibility even though photographs gave no indication such an explosion occurred.

The Scorpion fired torpedos on practice missions before her springtime assignment in the Mediterranean, and the Navy cited testimony that her torpedomen "were well trained" in handling ordnance in accordance with established safety precautions.

Navy spokesmen said the Trieste II will work with the floating dry dock White Sands and the tug Apache when winter sea conditions ease.

The Trieste II, a Navy-owned submersible which carries a two-man crew and an observer, is certified for operating at 12,000 feet although it was actually designed for 20,000 feet.

As a result of modifications, she will be able to retrieve objects weighing around 250 pounds but not major sections such as hull or sail components.

Equipped with powerful spotlights, the Trieste is expected to provide far better on-the-scene visual reports and clearer photographs than were taken earlier by towed underwater cameras of the submersible Mizar.

Nine of the Mizar's pictures were cleared for public distribution Friday.

They showed the Scorpion hull lying in two major portions, with the sail or conning tower separated and resting on its side. Debris which had settled on the gray, flat Atlantic floor was estimated to be a few hundred feet away.

The biggest chunk was the stern or rear section which was over 100 feet long.

Sections of the hull appear to be dented, but the Navy said these were little piles of sand or silt. The bow was partially sunk in the sand.

The Navy said the ship's nuclear reactor, which provided the power for its propulsion, was not photographed during last year's search operation.

The Navy said so far as it knows the Soviet Union has no means of retrieving the nuclear plant.

COAST OIL SLICK . . .

being aided, Coast Guard spokesmen said, by favorable winds and tides which were keeping the oil away from many beaches.

But those nullifying circumstances might well be canceled out if the present rate of discharge from the ruptured well is maintained, it was pointed out. Glum Union Oil officials admitted late Friday that there seemed little doubt that the well was still pumping 21,000 gallons of crude fuel a day into the Pacific Ocean.

"It's going to get worse before it gets better," a spokesman of the California Department of Fish and Game said. "Unless they plug up that well, and quickly, we are going to have a real problem on our hands."

Gov. Ronald Reagan, obviously angered by the deteriorating situation, demanded Friday that the federal government establish a fund to aid California and other states to fight oil pollution.

FULL RESPONSIBILITY

Union Oil Co. confirmed late Friday that it accepted "full responsibility" for the discharging well and the 200-mile area of pollution and that the company would ensure that "the mess was cleaned up."

But Coast Guard spokesmen forecast the imminent advent of state and federal agencies into the clean-up program and a subsequent stringent inquiry into the cause of the leak.

Specialists from the Interior Department and workers from a Texas fire fighting company were on the job Friday trying to force mud into the leaking offshore oil rig in a bid to slow down or finally halt the discharge.

Observers of the disaster area today were recalling the wreck of the super tanker Torrey Canyon off the English coast in March, 1967 and the subsequent dumping of more than 100,000 tons of oil on some of Southern England's loveliest beaches.

It took some 50,000 British troops more than two weeks to clean up the coastal area involved.

Germ-containing 'Baby Magic' Lotion Recalled

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The Mennen Company, major producers of baby products, Friday announced it is recalling thousands of bottles of Baby Magic lotion that were found to contain a bacteria that could cause serious infections.

A company spokesman said two separate lots of the bottles, all plastic, are involved.

One lot, manufactured before last March, has a number plus a letter stamped on the bottom. Bottles in the other lot, totaling 12,000 and manufactured later last year, have the numbers "219" stamped on the bottom but no letters.

The spokesman said the bottles are being recalled from store shelves around the nation, "and we are asking anyone who has it at home to please send it back and receive a refund from us."

The Mennen Company address is Hanover Avenue, Morristown.

'Candy' Too Sweet; Police Seize Film

SF State Staff, Teachers Payless For Strike Action

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The first semester ended Friday at San Francisco State College with paychecks being withheld from 277 members of the faculty and staff.

Richard L. Braden, chief of the division of disbursement in the state controller's office, said work records of the 277 had not been verified in time for the normal payroll.

It is belived that the bulk of the 277 are striking members of the American Federation of Teachers. Acting college president S. I. Hayakawa said they would not be paid for time spent on the picket lines since the AFT went on strike Jan. 6.

Dissident students struck the college Nov. 6.

Hayakawa also has invoked a state law providing for automatic resignation of faculty members who absent themselves from the classroom five days without a legitimate excuse. However, he wants each case treated individually before a determination is made.

Selection of an impartial grievance committee apparently is the major stumbling block to settlement of the teachers strike.

The union proposed the committee be comprised of three members — one appointed by the complaining teacher, another by the college president and the third mutually chosen by the teacher and president. Trustees of the state college system rejected the proposal and suggested the grievance committee be selected from the statewide Academic Senate comprised of faculty members.

Union leaders turned down that proposal because they said such a committee would be "under dictation" from higher state authorities.

Murder Twist

Defendant's Niece Confesses

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — An all-male jury which had deliberated for three days decided Friday that shapely brunette Sheilla Pappas was innocent of the murder of her husband Angelo.

The 31-year-old Long Island housewife, who had maintained a stoic calm through a three-week trial, burst into tears in the Nassau County courtroom when the verdict was announced.

The witness who caused the greatest sensation of the trial — Mrs. Pappas' 16-year-old niece, Maryann Freed — was not in court when the jury came in.

Maryann, who had been called by the state as a key witness, electrified the court when she testified Jan. 20 that it was she, alone and unaided, who slugged and shot her uncle on Nov. 26, 1967.

She said Pappas had made her pregnant, had forced her to perform unnatural sex acts and had threatened to kill her. So, she said, she beat him with a hammer and a wrench and then shot him with his own .38-caliber revolver.

Pappas died in a hospital a few hours later.

At the time, Maryann and Mrs. Pappas told police at first that he had been killed by an intruder and then that both of them had taken part in the murder.

Maryann was charged with juvenile delinquency, but the charge was dropped when a juvenile court judge ruled that she was "a person in need of supervision." No further action can be taken against her.

When Mrs. Pappas had regained her composure Friday, she made some calls from a courthouse telephone booth. She emerged smiling nervously.

"This is the first time I've smiled in 14 months (the period she spent in jail awaiting trial)," she told newsmen. "I just don't know how to smile any more."

Beaches Closed for Months

Newport, Huntington May Be Off Limits Through Easter

By JOHN VALTERZA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The quarantine caused by raw sewage pouring into waters off West Newport and Huntington Beach may extend into Easter vacation, Newport Beach officials said Friday.

Assistant City Manager Jim DeChaine said the city has not yet received official bacteria counts of the water between the Santa Ana River mouth and the municipal pier, but indications are the present quarantine will last for at least two or three months.

"That's how long Riverside needs to repair the damage to the city's main sewer trunk line and treatment plant," he said.

The sewage is contaminating water from the Newport pier to the northern limits of Huntington Beach State Park.

Its source is a broken main sewer trunk line in Riverside. The sewage is spilling into the Santa Ana River at a rate of thousands of gallons a day.

The effluent, coupled with mounting mounds of debris, are taxing city crews. DeChaine said the city is seeking additional equipment and men to help carry off the mounting junk.

"The amount of debris piling up on the beach is rising to a point where it gathers as quickly as we haul it away," he said.

Flood gates at Prado Dam near the Orange-Riverside County line have been opened, setting loose more water and high concentrations of material torn loose and gathered up by raging flood waters earlier this week.

To compound the problem, rattlesnakes are feared hiding in the debris. The snakes possibly were washed out of hibernation by the floods.

DeChaine said lifeguards are on constant patrol to watch for the snakes, and to warn swimmers and surfers who might not know about the quarantine.

Signs are being placed on the beach and roads near the shore today warning persons not to come in contact with the water. Under the quarantine persons must stay behind the high water mark.

County Health Officials Shut Doheny Park Beach

By JACK CHAPPELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

County health officials have quarantined a mile-long stretch of Doheny State Park Beach polluted by raw sewage from San Juan Capistrano.

The closing came after water roaring down the flood control channel in San Juan Creek ripped out two sewer lines allowing 100 percent of San Juan Capistrano's untreated sewage to wash unchecked to the sea.

The storm and receding flood water did an estimated $1 million to $1.5 million damage to San Juan Capistrano's public works, T. J. Meadows, director of public works, told the council this week.

A request by the council that the community be declared a disaster area has as yet gone unanswered, Ernest Thompson, city administrator, said Friday, noting however that state agencies are jammed with assistance requests in the aftermath of the storm.

END POLLUTION

Thompson could not say how long it would take to repair the sewer lines and end the beach pollution.

Approximately 1,200 feet of one sewer line was laid bare when flood waters ripped out the concrete siding on the flood control channel a half mile above the sewage treatment plant.

That 18-inch concrete line carried the entire city's sewage to the plant.

The other line washed out was a syphon that went across the creek from the west side of the city to the east by the golf course.

Thompson said it appeared that repair of the lines could not be undertaken until the water level in the channel went down and when contractors were available. He said it could be weeks until this happened.

HEADACHES

Looking back on the storm-related headaches to San Juan Capistrano, Thompson said little could have been done to prevent them.

Even now, he said, there is little the city can do to repair the sewage lines.

"All we can do is to exploit all avenues for getting assistance," he said.

Meanwhile, construction workers are working feverishly attempting to keep the city's watermain crossing the Trabuco Bridge from rupturing.

The bridge carrying traffic of Camino Capistrano has been undermined by the floor waters. As it slowly sinks, the 24-inch main is in danger of breaking.

The line carries all water from the Yorba Linda district plant into the city. Should it break, city reservoirs can supply needs for only about 10 days.

Court Decision May Clear Way for Upper Bay Trade

A court action that is seen by both parties involved in the controversial Back Bay land swap to be a test case that may well clear the way to consummation of the deal has been put off until April 28.

Superior Court Judge Claude Owens granted the delay after hearing a request by attorneys for the Irvine Company and the county for more time to prepare arguments.

At issue is the county's trading to the Irvine Company of 157 acres of tidelands for 450 acres of Irvine land. County supervisors supported the deal after rejecting protestations that the land swap was nothing more than device by Irvine to get heavily taxed land off the tax rolls.

The test case evolves around the refusal of county auditor V. A. Heim to pay a $14,000 Irvine Company bill. The charge represents Irvine's claim for engineering and soil testing in the Upper Bay area.

If Heim is ordered to pay the bill it will apparently clear the way for enactment of the land swap. But a final ruling on the validity of the deal, dependent upon further clarification of a recent state law which made such transactions possible, may be as much as two years away, spokesmen for both parties have said.

County plans for the land which would be surrendered to them in the exchange include the creation of parks and recreation areas throughout the choice acreage.

Meet the People

Aw, Shucks! His Ideas Baffle Board

By THOMAS FORTUNE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Do I make myself clear?" Newport-Mesa schoolman Les E. Shuck asked hopefully.

School board president James "Bill" Peyton, obviously puzzled, looked to fellow trustees for help.

They were silent, so Peyton quipped, "Who else is going to be foolish enough to ask a question?"

Shuck, 36, is the unified school district's resident egghead.

It's not that he doesn't speak plainly. The problem is he deals with ideas not easily understood by laymen.

Shuck had hung up Peyton, perhaps the rest of the board and the audience, talking about "closing a planning loop."

In an interview later, Shuck said he keeps board members apprised of what he's up to and thinks they usually understand what he's saying. But sometimes, he said, he gets the feeling they are thinking, "All right, Shuck. But make sure it works."

NEW IDEAS

Shuck's job is to think through new ideas. His title is assistant superintendent for research and development and he receives a yearly salary of $21,500.

Not long ago school board members increased his salary in a mid-year move to keep hin in the fold. Shuck's talent for cogitating was in demand.

Some projects keeping Schuck's mental wheels turning lately are:

— An assessment of what the public expects of schools.

— A plan for appraising how well teachers teach.

— Guidance that zeroes in on students who most need help.

— Weighing the worth of various hot ideas of teachers.

These are some of the projects new Supt. William Cunningham had in mind when he said he found the Newport-Mesa District better geared for keeping up with changing times than any other school district he knows.

UNIQUE INDIVIDUAL

Cunningham's predecessor, Dr. Leland Newcomer, with whom Shuck moved from the Las Vegas school system two and one-half years ago, made Shuck his favorite.

Newcomer used to call him "a kook," meaning it as a compliment.

"He used me as an example of how people should be themselves," Shuck said. "He built me up as some kind of unique individual."

Shuck avers he really isn't. He said he tries to be strong about saying what he thinks and some people think that is unusual. It sounds corny, he says, but his philosophy is that a school administrator shouldn't be too interested in his own skin or he'll make internal compromises that can hurt kids.

His concern for the welfare of students he traces to emotional "scars" he picked up early in his career as an educator. He remembers as an elementary schoolteacher he compromised with some parents and "the kids paid the price." Later, as a principal, he didn't fire a teacher when he first thought he should and "too many students got fouled up."

He said no one should play God, but all the same it hurt to know he had been right and hadn't acted.

ADVANCED QUICKLY

But Shuck usually is too busy looking ahead to look back. With his geared-to-the-future thinking he has advanced quickly since receiving his doctorate in educational administration from USC Not many assistant superintendents of school districts are only 36.

In Las Vegas, Shuck was a money man. He raised $2 million in two years through federal grants.

It bothered Shuck that others would equate the amount of good he was doing with the amount of money he raised. "The measure should be the difference it is making in the education of children," he says.

As an in-joke, in distaste for his reputation, he used to sign his last name, Shuck, with a dollar sign for the S.

Since coming to Newport-Mesa, his role has been different. He has obtained only one grant, for $144,000, from the federal government, and that he broke off in a dispute with federal reviewers after only one year. "I won't let the government get at our throat," he said.

The grant was for "Instructional Tasks Project," the assessment of what the public expects of the schools. About 1,000 persons were interviewed as to what skills and knowledge they think youngsters of various ages should have.

PRIORITIES

Desired abilities have been categorized, and parent conference sessions next fall will be used to assign priorities of those the schools should start working on.

Hottest Shuck project at the moment is appraising how well teachers teach. He has teachers at six pilot schools busily asking each other nasty questions like "Do you really know what is going on in your class? How do you know the youngsters aren't faking you out?"

From such inquiry he hopes to develop a plan for evaluating teacher performance which now is often measured by rather crude criteria.

Shuck also has prime responsibility for data processing. A computer was installed under his direction and is now providing student record and report card analysis to each school.

Another third of Shuck's time, he estimates, is spent acting as a "planning resource" to the seven top level administrators who make up the superintendent's cabinet.

That gives him plenty of different topics to think about so it is not surprising Rodin's "Thinker" is his favorite piece of statuary. "It symbolizes my trade," he said.

Flotsam & jetsam for the idle mind

Al Quincy said that flotsam is the trash in the sea that floats and jetsam is the trash that sinks.

I don't know who Al Quincy is, but that definition will be good enough for me until you come along with a better one.

Three men this week have told me that one of the best shoe stores in Orange County is right in the middle of a store at 3467 Via Lido in Newport Beach. Have you tried on any U.S. and Swiss Shoes there lately? From $11 to $42.

Some famous writer, whose name you would know instantly if I could remember it, once said, "He that is not handsome at 20, or strong at 30, or rich at 40, or wise at 50, will never be handsome, strong, rich or wise." How old did you say you were?

Actually, I don't mind if you're not as young as you used to be. I overheard one of my people here telling a customer, "Middle age is not necessarily a disease."

Do you think I fired him, or gave him a raise?

Are you as courteous to people who work in retail stores as you expect them to be to you? I dare say we're the courteousest store in Orange County.

There's a word for you. Try saying it real fast three times.

Snap at us; we smile back. Act pleasant; we become so sickeningly pleasant it will almost turn your stomach. We're wonderful.

One fingernail on the Statue of Liberty measures 13 inches by 10 inches, in case anybody should ask you unexpectedly.

When you see the letters "pc" on a prescription it doesn't mean what you think it means. It means "to be taken after meals."

By the way, what did you think it means?

Oh, and that reminds us of the cannibal who said to the missionary, ". . . if God didn't intend for us to eat people, why did He make people out of meat?"

I don't care where you bought it. If your suit has a little snag in it somewhere, or the buttons hang kind of loose, bring it to us. Try to get an appropriately sad look on your face and we'll mend the rip (it's got to be a tiny one, though), tighten the buttons, with our compliments, and send you back out into the world with a big fat smile.

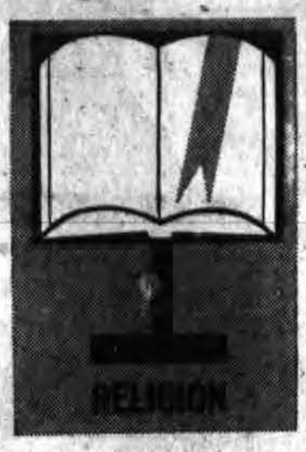

And now, we'd like to reveal our reasons for writing this. We'd much rather sell you a nice new suit of clothes than have you read an ad we worked so blasted hard to write and then go to Silverwood's, or Atkinson's, or Robinson's, or somewhere else for your suits.

Congress Religion Mixed

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — America's religious variety—and flexibility—shows up strongly in the new administration and Congress taking over the job of U.S. government.

As usual, like the nation, it's an ecumenical composite. But it reflects an added prominence of some small and previously unrepresented religious groups.

Its interdenominational mobility is particularly dramatized at the top, in President Nixon.

Like millions of people in modern times, he tends to migrate from one church to another for worship, according to circumstances, although he formally remains a Quaker.

His Cabinet includes three Roman Catholics, two Mormons and the others, mainline Protestants, mostly Presbyterians.

The new 91st Congress, a customary religious assortment, is made up to 399 Protestants, 111 Roman

Pope's Drive

Progress Made in 'Weed Out'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI is making gradual headway in his drive to weed out elderly bishops and replace them with younger men. It is a long and difficult process.

Some elderly bishops serve in Communist countries where restrictions on the church make it difficult to name replacements for them. Some serve in mission areas where there are few Catholics and thus few eligible men who could replace them.

About 120 of the world's 2,000 active residential Roman Catholic bishops are now over 75 years of age. There were more than 200 beyond this age when the Pope, now 71, recommended in August, 1966, that bishops offer their resignations at age 75.

The overwhelming number of bishops are now men born in this century, and many of them are still in their 40s — reflecting the Pope's desire to inject new vigor into church administration and bring bright young priests to the fore.

Of those over 75, nine are in Communist countries and about 13 in mission areas. But nearly half the total are concentrated in just three countries — Italy, the United States and Spain.

Thirty-one active Italians are beyond 75, going all the way up to Sorrento's 86-year-old archbishop, Msgr. Carlo Serena.

Vatican sources admit there has been "some resistance" among Italians to the Pope's recommendation.

At present Italy has 265 dioceses — more than any country — and the Pope has expressed his intention to reduce this figure to about 80. Some bishops are hanging on simply to avoid seeing their dioceses eliminated, Vatican sources said.

The large number of Italian dioceses is due to the fact many were created in ancient times when Catholic and world population was far different from today. Some Italian dioceses were once important cities but are now hardly more than villages.

"In the case of a diocese that goes back to the time of the apostles, it is very difficult to suppress it," Vatican sources said.

They indicated the Pope is taking the easiest, and slowest, way out of the dilemma — waiting for many elderly bishops to die and thus eliminating the dioceses by not replacing them.

About 13 American bishops are beyond 75 — representing nearly one-tenth the total number of 150. There seems to be no special reason for this relatively large number.

The Pope has replaced some elderly American bishops. But he reserves to himself the right to decide whether to accept a resignation and is believed to have asked some of the older American bishops to stay on.

Two of the Americans are controversial figures in their dioceses.

Cardinal James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles 82, has been at odds with some priests, nuns and laymen in his archdiocese who are critical of his conservative views.

He is one of 14 cardinals beyond 75 serving as residential archbishops. Six others have resigned since 1966.

The other controversial American is Archbishop Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio, Tex., who will be 78 on March 16. Twenty-one of his priests petitioned the Vatican last October demanding his removal because of various disputes. The Pope ignored them.

In Spain, nine active bishops are beyond 75. The Pope has been slow to accept resignations in that country because of friction in the government.

Other countries with relatively large numbers of bishops beyond 75 are Ireland with six, Mexico, five, Brazil and Argentina, four each and Colombia, three.

Eastern Orthodoxy, which had no members at all in Congress until two years ago despite its nearly five million adherents, added one more this time, to make it three, giving it a slightly more proportional place in politics.

But there are no Hindus, Moslems or Buddhists, although they number around a quarter million in this country, mainly Buddhists on the West Coat and in Hawaii.

The Author

Dr. Jack W. Peltason is chancellor of University of Illinois' Urbana-Champaign campus. Formerly he was vice chancelor at UC Irvine. He also is a respected political scientist, serving currently as vice president of the American Political Science Association. He returned recently to the UCI campus to give a talk on the durability of our governmental system to UCI Town and Gown. This is an excerpt from that speech.

A People in Transition

Chancellor Sees Hope, Trouble in American System

By JACK W. PELTASON

Political scientists have come to describe our system as a pluralist democracy: we use this term to differentiate it from the "civics teachers's" idealization of democracy. This is a view that autonomous, individual, public-spirited and fully-informed citizens, after careful, dispassionate analysis of all the facts come to a carefully reasoned decision as to which men and which parties would best serve the nation.

In making up their minds these citizens cast aside all thoughts or concerns about their own particular welfare and think only in terms of the general good. After the election, the citizens remain alert, informed and active.

Those elected to office put aside all thoughts of victory or defeat, turn a deaf ear to all special interests, and fearlessly and without favor enact and implement programs that are constant with the wishes of the people.

If such an idealistic notion is thought to be the proper standard, it quickly leads to disillusionment and cyicism when the obvious facts of our political life are brought forward. It causes some to conclude that democracy is a fraud.

WHAT WE HAVE — to oversimplify it — is a system in which large numbers of persons are uninformed and apathetic, most voters tend to vote by habit, and to see the issues through the haze of their own selective perception of events, in which groups compete for power in order to promote their own particular social, economic, and political goals, in which those who hold office have the normal human desire of not wanting to lose their jobs.

What saves the system and makes it work is that it does not require that men be angels, but so long as there is a genuine competition for power, significant numbers of the public who are attentive, and an understanding by the competing elites of the rules of the democratic game, then there is a very high probability the values in general the public supports will be reflected in what the government does.

Approminent characteristic of our governmental system is the deliberate diffusion of power among many differing governmental institutions. Our governmental structure in effect places nobody in charge, provides no single arena for decision-making, and gives us check and balance upon check and balance. As a result no group ever completely wins an election, no group ever completely loses one.

UNDER SUCH A system political defeat can be accepted with equanimity for no group is likely to find a defeat to be so threatening that it is unwilling to accept the verdict of the ballot box. Victory portends little significant change. Political opponents are not viewed as enemies to be conquered and destroyed.

Student Rights: Mostly Phony Issue

spiracy, that explains why the government sometimes appears to be floundering. I stress this point in view of what I think is the considerable nonsense that is now finding some support within the intellectual community.

Faced with an urban crisis, the long list of familiar ills: street crowded and dirty, poverty in the midst of economic plenty, pollution of air and water resources, racial discrimniation, a growing crime rate, and a governmental system that does not produce coherent, revolutionary, dramatic, solutions — the most glib explanation is to impute this floundering to some kind of conspiracy — a military industrial elite which for selfish reasons has made a conscious choice to withhold resources.

THE BLACK MILITANTS' argument is similar: the white power structure is operating behing the scenes. The John Birchers have the same kind of diagnosis — only they find that the hidden communist conspiracy in alignment with the liberal establishment is really in charge and causing all of our social ills.

The McCarthy supporters of 1968, much like the Goldwater supporters of 1964, were convinced that if the country was Defeat does not mean prison or death.

It is this system, and not some conpolicy may be tension reducing and less likely to create alienation than if one segment were able to impose its will on the others.

WE ARE IN A period of rising tensions, growing alienation, and polarization, a period in which visions of the future are in sharp conflict.

There are some Americans who feel so intensely that the war in Vietnam is of such a grave moral evil that it has become for them the overriding issue, an issue about which they are unwilling to compromise, and by which they judge all political leaders and political actions. Yet the divisions on Vietnam policies are not reinforced by religious, class, regional, racial, or political allegiances.

The significance of the Vietnam conflict, in my judgment, reconfirms what Korea taught: in a democracy, limited wars are political suicide for the party in power. It is impossible for a democracy to sustain the use of force for limited objectives without risking either demands for escalation or withdrawal.

A limited war is likely to become "domesticated," that is to ask young men to die and old men to pay taxes for limited political objectives is probably given a choice and not an echo it would clearly have opted for their choice. Now they warn that unless decisive action is taken soon, catastrophe awaits us.

But what if the difficulty stems from the fact that our political institutions do in fact reflect the conflicting wishes of the people? What if the leaders are not conspiring to mute the voice of the people but that here is no political majority waiting to be unleashed?

If this be the case, then the ability of these various conflicting minorities to participate in the policy process, in being a party to the bargaining, and compromising that leads to evolutionary rather than revolutionary alterations in asking too much. That communists have learned this lesson is likely to produce future problems for this nation in the international scene, but in a very real sense, the domestic side of the war has been resolved. We are going to get out, all that remains is to work out the face-saving formula.

VIETNAM, despite all the tension, conflict, and turmoil, has produced within our body politic not the kind of issue that is likely to alter the nature of our party system, or governmental institutions, or individual voting habits.

Again, I am highly skeptical that the so-called generation gap, the issue of student unrest, will have any sustained impact on our political system, governmental institutions, or party patterns.

The issue of student rights is phony in the sense that there does not appear to be any political movement that can be built that would have any sustained momentum around students versus non-students. Student hardly describes a class that has grievances so salient and overwhelming that it could support a political drive.

When we come to divisions of race, however, I find signs that we may be faced with an intractible issue, one in which the normal incremental pace of our democracy may not be sufficient, in which polarization is possible, alienation likely, and compromise difficult.

RACE IS the time-bomb, the issue that presents us with our most serious social tensions.

Yet having recognized this, I remain unpersuaded that a differing set of governmental institutions offers any more promise of effective solution to this or other conflict. Nor do I see any immediate signs that we are about to undergo significant alterations in our governmental system.

Our system does give advantages to those who favor the status quo, while it is characterized by diffusion of authority, and requires of various groups willingness to accept changes. But, I do not think this to be either in the long or short run a fatal flaw.

I hope I am right. I am not sure.

Dig Soul, Hate the Establishment

From UCLA's California Sun

By MAUREEN ORTH

Some people hate their mothers. Max Rafferty hates communists and Zsa Zsa Gabor hates wrinkles.

But chances are if you are young you hate the Establishment, whatever that is. The Establishment currently enjoys the status of the number one hate object at UCLA. To students the Establishment can be anything from the military-industrial complex to a boring professor.

To Jim Zan, a senior: "Those tautological straight-type people with closed minds. They think they have to help civilize the rest of the world."

To Ed Bewley, a graduate student: "It's the guys who give me parking tickets all the time. Parking tickets aren't necessary for national security. They encroach upon my freedom as an individual."

To Susan Arent, a junior: "Imagine the cops wearing baby blue helmets while mashing people's heads in Chicago."

STUDENTS should be careful. They are about to make antiestablishmentarianism a new national religion based upon revolutionary fervor and moral outrage.

This is serious because everyone knows the Constitution and the D. A. R. have always advocated a strict separation of church and state. Besides, it is impolite for students to offend the D. A. R.

But since soul is on the side of the students, soul will be used to turn on the faithful who dig it religiously:

To the orthodox: "Soul is feeling black whether you're black or white."

To the skeptic: "This campus doesn't have any soul so nothing's going to happen here."

To the fallen away: "It's a word I use when I take my tennis shoes to be repaired."

Being anti-Establishmentarian is based upon the ethic of Becoming a Beautiful Person. Beautiful Persons (Never say Beautiful People) do their own thing provided they know what that is.

Those not yet pure enough to be heavy will have to stay funky for a while. Being funky means the earthiness is not yet rubbed out of them. Like Janis Joplin is funky; Jacqueline Onassis is not.

But woe to ye of little hate. For all the cop-outs and sell-outs will become pigs, condemned to manipulating the system forever with Mayor Daley, Superpig.

Air and Ersatz Fill Ice Cream

From The National Observer

Most shoppers don't know it, but the bulk of the low-priced ice cream they pluck from food-store freezers contains as much air as it does ice cream. It's artificially flavored; it's laced with seaweeds, psyllium seed husks, cellulose, and laboratory-concocted salts made from antifreeze chemicals. And it comes as close to being completely synthetic as it legally can.

Ice-cream fanciers disdain it, and few who recall the flavor of ice creams at drug and confectionery stores declare much affection for the supermarket article. Still, factory-packed ice creams sold at food stores are dominating the market.

Of the 744,891,000 gallons of ice cream sold in 1967, 52 percent were sold in supermarkets. Dairy men now complain that the cheap variety is driving out quality ice cream. On the average, factory-packaged half gallons cost 30 to 50 cents less than "premium" or "quality" brands, which, as a rule, aren't sold in chain food stores.

"IN A FEW MORE years youngsters on this ersatz won't know what real ice creams taste like" says Lynn Paulson of the National Independent Dairies Association. Many manufacturers echo the lament.

Yet ice-cream makers aren't concerned solely about satisfying America's sweet tooth. Their remarks mask anger at complex competitive deals and retailer-pricing practices that keep them churning out admittedly inferior, low-profit ice creams when industry studies indicate Americans can and will pay for better, more profitable ones.

Top-grade ice cream contains cooked-syrups, heavy custards, salt, fresh eggs, fresh cream, sometimes gelatin. Flavorings include such things as vanilla beans, pure chocolate, and fresh fruits. It also contains air — a necessary ingredient that enters the mix when it's whipped.

Of course, pumping air into ice cream increases its volume. Two batches of mix weighing the same but containing different amounts of air take up different amounts of space. The batch with more air naturally appears greater in quantity. And since ice cream is sold by volume, it is possible to make a little mix fill a lot of half-gallon or gallon cartons.

BUT AIR does more than alter ice cream's size. It affects its taste. Each manufacturer has his own formula for the amount of air ("percentage of overrun" in trade jargon) that makes "the best" ice cream. Not one of more than a dozen ice-cream makers asked would say how much air he used. However, premium ice creams contain from 40 percent to 60 percent overrun.

Premium ice cream also harbors a relatively high percentage of butterfat. The percentages range from a high of 16 percent to 18 percent in so-called "Philadelphia" blends, the cynosure of commercial ice creams' to a low of 10 percent, which is the Federal minimum.

The minimum is set out in "Frozen Desserts: Definitions and Standards," a part of the code of Federal regulations established by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). It took full effect in 1966 after 24 years of Government-industry bickering.

Besides stipulating the amount of butterfat ice cream must contain, the standard puts a maximum on the amount of air it can contain. According to the Federal recipe, a gallon of ice cream must weigh at least 4½ pounds; it may have 100 percent overrun, meaning a manufacturer can inflate a gallon of mix into two gallons of ice cream. That's half again more air than experts say "premium" ice creams contain.

ALSO, the standard details the kind and amounts of ingredients that may be used in ice cream. It includes a generous list of such arcane natural products as agar-agar, algin, carrageenan (all seaweed products), gum acacia, guar seed gum, gum karaya, locust-bean gum, and oat gum (all from plants). It gives its blessing to such chemical additives as propylene glycol (the antifreeze constituent), glycerin, sodium carboxy methylcellulose (a cellulose), and it permits the use of monoglycerides, diglycerides, disodium phosphates tetrasodium pyrophosphate, polysorbate 80, and dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate.

Most of these additives are used as "stabilizers" and "emulsifiers." Stabilizers make ice cream smooth; emulsifiers make it stiff so it can retain air. Jiggered around with other synthetics and substitutes such as corn syrup (instead of sugar), dried eggs (instead of fresh), vanillin (instead of vanilla), these stabilizers and emulsifiers permit manufacturers to simulate qualities once obtained only by blending the freshest and richest ingredients.

They make it possible to create boysenberry ice cream without boysenberries and maple pecan without maple syrup and without pecans. Most importantly they make it possible to cut manufacturing costs.

Orange County Sends Out Its Man in Curls

By HERB CAEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Who says kids don't pay attention to their parents these days? California Assemblyman John Burton yesterday shaved off his Fu Manchu moustache in deference to the wishes of his father, Dr. Thomas Burton, who absolutely HATED the thing. . .Meanwhile, the talk of the Legislature, hirsutewise, is Assemblyman Ken Corey of Anaheim, whose hair is long enough for pin-curls. (Anaheim? Isn't that in uptight Orange County?)

FOUR-COLUMN headline in the Palo Alto Times: "Officials Will Get Agnew's Ear." Ole!

AND JOSH ROBISON of Berkeley is having this recurring dream wherein Wally Hickel is reincarnated as a redwood tree just in time to be chopped down by Ronald Reagan.

DOG LOVERS, get up on your hind legs and start yelping! The National Safety Council, asked by the Post Office Dept. for suggestions on how to keep its mailmen from being bitten, has now submitted its report, the first statement being: "A dog is basically a coward and a sneak, and is more apt to bite you when you aren't looking." Oh, where is Albert Payson Terhune now that we need him? As for Lassie — go home.

ROBERT FINCH has suffered his first setback in Washington. He tried valiantly to talk Pres. Nixon into appointing Shirley Temple Black as U.S. Chief of Protocol — she would have been the first woman in the job — but the plum went to Yachtsman Bus Mosbacher instead. However, Shirley WILL get a post somewhere inside the Govt., but, she says, "I just can't talk about it."

THE BALLET on Geary is advertising for "Topless dancers, must have 2 yrs. of college, prefer Eng. major or humanities" — and what's that all about? "Well," says Boss Konrad Monti, "it's a communications thing. The girls should be able to rap with the customers, you dig?" Dug. First to answer the ad was a Barnard girl who quit after the first night, explaining "By midnight, I began having second thoughts." Couldn't take the rap?

HARRIET MACLEAN, scanning the TV log, found this description of an old movie called "The Redhead from Wyoming": "A double dealing dance hall queen has difficult time choosing between law and order." Decisions, decisions!. . . .

SCREENSTAR Kim Novak has a new baby — a baby sea lion given to her as a present. Her steady gentleman friend, Restaurateur Joel Thomas, fashioned a "pool" for the beastie out of an old wine cask and installed it in the garden of her Carmel Highlands house. When the sea lion gets old enough to know the score (Lions 7, Abalone 0), they'll give it its freedom in the nearby ocean. The Pacific, I believe.

DR. JAMES PRITCHARD of Berkeley, the world-renowned archeologist, received a rare medal from Jordan's King Hussein — first American to receive it — in honor of the ancient treasures he unfolded on the Jordan-Israel border. You have to like a man like Dr. Pritchard, who describes himself as having "a career that lies in ruins."

ALEX MELTEFF wants to know if the next batch of graduates at S.F. State will be known as The Clash of '69, and I guess that's a joke.

"A GENERAL semanticist," says Dr. Richard P. Marsh, "is someone who, upon encountering a person with a beard, would say it was probably a man, but would hold open the possibility that it might be a bearded lady". . .I read that in the current issue of The Map, monthly newsletter of the S.F. Chapter of the Society for General Semantics, which, under "Chapterites In the News," reports: "Don Hayakawa, who became acting president of S.F. State after student rioting forced two predecessors out in less than a year, is drawing an unprecedented response." There's a conclusion you can't argue with, bearded or otherwise.

THE AMERICAN CANCER Society may want to retrieve the trophy it gave Don Sherwood for kicking the cigarette habit. At Bimbo's the other night, he was back on the puffers, but Ronnie Schell makes a lot of people nervous.

I DECIDED to take a pill to stop smoking but it didn't work; every time I tried to light it, I burned my nose (awright, who said that).

Find Your Way In 20-Inch Foot

From Petroleum Today Magazine

This page is 9½ noses high and 6 noses wide. Who says so? The editor says so. And whose nose is he using as a standard of measurement? His own, naturally. People have been doing it that way since an Egyptian pharaoh decreed that the cubit was the distance from his elbow to his fingertips.

But now, of course, the sheet is in your hands — and you're not within an arm's length of a pharaoh or of a nosy editor. So you can remeasure the page in your own terms: the length of your nose, the length of your longest eyelash, or the length of the miniskirt that just caught your attention.

THIS MORNING when you shut off the alarm, you were well aware that a standard, measured amount of time had passed. But your morning reveries probably didn't include the thought that the motor in your electric clock operates accurately only because the current coming into your house is not 50 cycles, not 70 cycles, but exactly 60 cycles per second.

Nodding over your second cup of coffee while the radio exuberated beside you, you probably were oblivious to the fact that the station was zeroing in exactly on 570 kilocycles or 1450 kilocycles or whatever—and thereby avoiding a cacophonous din of conflicting programs.

ON YOUR WAY to work, you may have been brought up short at the familiar sight of a yellow school bus and automatically put your foot on the brake. That shade of yellow would alert you anywhere because it is standard throughout the country.

Standards have been a part of your life all day. Your world is made to measure.

It hasn't always been that way. Over the long course of history, there's been much more confusion than consistency about standards of measurement.

That pharaoh who stretched out his arm and said "from here to here is a cubit" was not the first or the last to give measurement a personal touch. By using man as a measure, we have collected such standards as the foot, the hand, the palm, the digit (the width of a finger), the great span (the maximum spread between the thumb and the little finger), the little span (the distance between the outstretched forefinger and thumb), and the fathom the distance between a man's outstretched arms).

THE TROUBLE, of course, is that there are variations from man to man, and even from pharaoh to pharaoh. The ancient Egyptians tried to overcome this by introducing stone cubit bars as standards. They even went so far as to dole out death sentences ot subjects who failed to bring in their cubit bars for comparison with the Royal Master every full moon.

The Middle Ages had their moments, but they didn't do much for straightening our measurements. It was an era when "home rule" went wild, and every duchy (and sometimes every village) set up its own standards.

King Henry I of England was one of those who thought the whole situation was terribly medieval and tried to do something about it. Taking a cue from the pharaohs, he established the standard yard as the distance between the tip of his nose and the end of his thumb.

THE KING had a lasting effect on seamstresses, since a woman who's buying cloth still often measures it from her nose out along her outstretched arm — a la Henry I. But this try for widely accepted standards was mostly a losing battle. The medievalists went on measuring an acre as the amount of land a man could plow in a day — and a rod as the combined length of the left feet of the first 16 men who came out of church on Sunday.

Some of the tales about the Middle Ages' attitude toward standards may be apocryphal, but in unvarnished truth the medieval foot did meander all the way from 10 inches to 20 inches, the pound varied from 6 to 18 ounces, and one of the common definitions of an inch was "the space occupied by three round, dry barleycorns lined up in a row."

But the days may be numbered for many of these souvenirs of the past. In the modern world, the trend seems to be irreversibly toward exact standards that are widely applicable.

Best Lawyers Are Of Irish Descent

By L. M. BOYD

WHO WOULD have thought that only 6 out of 100 people regard themselves as happy? Not I. But that's what the pollsters contend. . . IT WAS THAT PUNSTER Josephine Hemphill who referred to ghost writers as "spooksmen." . . . WRITES an Ohio lady: "I'm not too fat. It's just that I'm short for my weight. According to the tables, I should be 8 feet 9 inches tall." . . . IT'S CLAIMED BY a Manhattan judge that the best lawyers are those of Irish extraction . . . THE ACCOUNTANTS who pick up their bachelor's degrees this year will get an average starting salary of $737 a month.

WHAT FOLLOWS is the one concoction most often prescribed 100 years ago to cure the common cold: "1 teaspoon each of sugar, mineral oil, sulphur, ginger, plus the juice of 1 lemon, with 2 ounces of 100 proof whisky, topped off with boiling water to make an 8-ounce drink. Go to bed immediately. Rubber sheet on bed is good. Patient will sweat profusely. More than likely will cure cold. Double the sulphur, patient will quit smoking. Double the mineral oil, patient will be afraid to cough."

ANY FISHERMAN who thinks he can cast a line fairly far ought to consider the achievement of one O. L. Hawk. That gentleman made a name for himself by standing on the goal line of a football field and casting a plug over the goal posts at the opposite end . . . NOW A GIRL in Great Falls, Mont., insists I lost my wager that Somerset Maugham never wrote a short story called "Rain." Still insists he didn't. "Rain" was the play adapted from Mr. Maugham's story, "Miss Sadie Thompson," was it not? . . . OUR NAME GAME MAN contends it is a rare Elizabeth who remains unmarried. Believe that's right. Knew a city hall clerk once who daily checked the first names of the women on the marriage license lists. He said Elizabeths always predominated.

A BRITISH PHYSICIAN named Dr. P. R. Olivant blames the table fork for tooth decay. Wait, that's not quite right. What he actually blames is food that is piping hot. But he reasons the table fork allows you to put food in your mouth that would be too hot to pick up in your fingers. Eliminate the silverware, says he, and you will cut cavities in half. Last night at the dinner table when I suggested to the lady friend that we give serious consideration to the foregoing, she just looked at me kind of funny and dished up the spaghetti.

Ann Landers

Ill-mannered Lad Taught by His Dad

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 14-year-old son is a little on the smart aleck side. He and his father are forever arguing. I am beginning to wonder who is at fault.

Last night my husband walked over to the chair where Buford was sitting and jerked the pillow from under his head. Buford's head hit the back of the chair and he bit his tongue. He yelled so loud the neighbors in the next apartment began to knock on the wall with a broom.

An hour later my husband yanked the footstool from under Buford's feet. At that point I took my husband aside and told him he should have asked the boy politely for the pillow and the footstool. His answer was, "The kid is not polite to me and I'll be darned if I'll cater to him. I'm going to give him the same treatment he dishes out."

Then my husband accused me of being on the boy's side and reminded me of the column you wrote about kids who play one parent against the other. I need to know if I am right or wrong, Ann. — CAUGHT IN BETWEEN

DEAR CAUGHT: Parents who complain about smart-mouth kids would do well to listen to themselves talk to their children. Youngsters speak as they are spoken to.

Your husband's behavior is juvenile. He should be setting an example for his son, not playing tit for tat. And you can tell the big baby I said so.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our next-door neighbors are fine people and we love them dearly. The problem is their two dogs. They take them every place. They are well-behaved miniature poodles but they are still dogs.

Several evenings a week we get together at our house to discuss the events of the day. We always end up having coffee and a snack in our kitchen. I'm a good pastry cook and I always have a delicious cake or pie or some cookies on hand. Four nights out of five last week, these neighbors fed my pastries to their dogs right in front of me.

This really burns me up but I don't know if I should say anything. What do you say? — PASTRY CHEF FOR POODLES

DEAR CHEF: If it burns you up, say something. But be prepared for a dent in your relationship. People who behave that way think more of their dogs than they think of their friends and they'll let you know it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister lives on the Coast with a man to whom she is not married. To make matters worse, she has two lovely children, both teenagers.

I want to see my sister and the children, but I refuse to stay in that house unless the man moves out while I am there. Wouldn't you think she could ask her lover to stay somewhere else for a week? I suggested it and she said no.

Should I cancel my trip? I miss those kids like crazy. —AUNTIE MAME

DEAR MAME: Go. And stay in a nearby motel. I agree with you that your sister's living arrangement is disgraceful, but you have no right to impose your standards on her.

John Macnab, president of the John Macnab Realty Company, Inc., in Newport Beach, was named "Realtor of the Year" by the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors at its 38th Annual Awards Banquet at the Balboa Bay Club Friday evening.

This is the highest accolade the board can bestow on a member, according to J. Peter Barrett, 1969 president of the board and also a past recipient.

Macnab, a native of Scotland, was active in land development in Nassau, Bahamas from 1946 to 1954. He entered the real estate business in the Harbor area in 1954, and for many years was connected with the Macco Corporation. He was an officer and director of the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors and a director of the California Real Estate Association from 1963 to 1966 at which time he was elected president of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce.

Presently Macnab is chairman of the city's Newport Tomorrow project, chairman of the realty board's civic affairs committee, a member of Hoag Hospital directors, director of the Newport National Bank and Friends of UCI.

Lumber Shortage Warned

"It'll be up to the new administration to take action on the present shortage of lumber and rising prices of the material for new housing."

So declared David Young president of the Building Industry Association, after receipt of a "no action at this time" letter from the U.S. Department of Commerce signed by Rodney L. Borum, administrator.

The letter was in reply to a set of resolutions and suggested program to curb fast-rising lumber prices due to uncontrolled export to Japan. It was sent directly to President Lyndon Johnson, who answered via Administrator Borum.

"From other information sources, we understand the last time the control of softwood log export was considered by the government was a year and a half ago," Young said.

Since that time prices generally have risen 75 percent with 50 to 60 percent increase to home builders.

"In the light of this new evidence of heavy export of our lumber, there is a compelling need to reconsider the Export Control Act," the BIA president said.

Last year timber growers exported close to 2.4-billion board feet of lumber to Japan. This year the total may go to 3.5-billion board feet.

According to Young, the BIA recommends an immediate program to increase the allowable cut of all softwood timber by 10 percent; immediate export control and an immediate investigation by government, housing and forest industry groups under a special congressionally appointed cabinet committee.

The BIA president will urge the legislature and board of directors of NAHB's national convention at Houston, Texas this week.

Capo Plans Big Digging Operation

A San Juan Capistrano land grading project involving the initial transfer of three million yards of earth from the city's southern hills is scheduled to begin next month.

Cost for the first phase of the project has been pegged at about $900,000 for 150 acres of land above the San Juan Capistrano golf course.

Eventually, over 5.5 million yards will be moved, enough to make a yard-wide dirt belt across the United States.

The extensive grading was necessitated by geologic formations in the hills. About $100,000 has already been spent for geologic research.

Use of the property is to be determined by the market. The company would like to attract "the best" of industrial concerns to the area.

Otherwise, the land could be used for residential development.

The property is presently zoned U-1 (unclassified). City Planner Robert Johns said that the land would have to be rezoned for any development.

Foundation engineer for the project is Leroy Crandle, who handled Los Angeles' Music Center developments. Consulting geologist is Dr. James E. Slosson, a professor at Valley State College.

Homes Get Scarce

Land, Money Lack Inflating Prices

The growing number of potential homebuyers during the second quarter of 1968 discovered that a scarcity of money, construction manpower and land created a scarcity of homes, according to Homerica, Inc., the country's oldest national homefinding service.

These factors in turn combined to inflate home prices as much as 10 percent over the same period last year, observed Shirley de Lima, executive vice president of Homerica, in the firm's quarterly survey of the national home market. With new home construction lagging, this price picture is not likely to brighten in the coming months.

The second quarter of the year is annually a more active season for home sales because families try to buy during this time so that they will be settled when school begins in the fall. The second quarter of 1968 was no exception to this rule, but in addition, this period was on the average of 10 percent more active than the comparable period last year.

The high interest rates on home mortgages apparently did not deter the determined house hunter. Although interest rates, previously restricted by law to 6 percent in several key states such as New York and New Jersey, were increased to 7¼ and 7½ percent respectively, the number of buyers still increased over last year.

One explanation for the increased activity may be that while mortgage money is more costly to the home buyer than it was a year ago, it is also somewhat more easily available. In those states with the six percent restriction, mortgage sources had become scarce, but since the increase in rates the flow of funds began again. Generally, however, home mortgages are still difficult to obtain and as a result home owners who may have considered a new home purchase are reluctant to sell their present properties and refinance. This in turn has limited the turnover of homes in the resale market, further inflating prices.

Prices have also been influenced by labor shortages and high labor and material costs. In Michigan where a strike of tradesmen has halted new construction, home buyers are anticipating a further increase in prices when the strike is settled.

The lack of new construction and the slow turnover of resales has resulted in serious shortages in most population centers of the country, according to Mrs. de Lima. While demand and prices have increased, the supply of homes in the market has decreased or at best remained steady at a low level. The shortage of land in most metropolitan areas has limited construction to high price homes, with very little tract and speculative building taking place. The average number of housing starts during the first six months of the year was only two percent above the previous six months. However, the rate for June was the lowest since last December. Despite indications of an improved mortgage market, the coming six months are not likely to show any increase in the supply of single family homes. Building permits for this type home declined during June, foreshadowing continued shortages.

A particular scarcity of four and five bedroom houses was reported to Homerica, by member brokers in Rochester, N.Y.; the Lake Forest area near Chicago; Birmingham, Michigan; Oshkosh, Wisconsin; Toeldo, Ohio; and in the Westchester, Long Island and New Jersey suburbs of New York City. Also industrial activity continues to put pressure on the housing market in many communities including Louisville, Kentucky where the Ford Motor Company is building a new plant.

Within this generally bleak picture there are a number of areas which are not plagued by home shortages. One of these is the Washington, D.C. area, where the number of buyers has dropped off slightly in recent months, however, prices still remain high. This is apparently in anticipation of the forthcoming elections, because, according to Mrs. de Lima, area brokers report such a slowdown every four years.

The Pomona Valley area in eastern Los Angeles county of California also reports an adequate supply of homes, partly because the area has been overbuilt since 1964. In Florida, demand for homes in the retirement housing market in communities of Brevard County is offsetting a decline in Cape KeKnnedy employee requirements, according to the homefinding service's report.

Homerica, Inc., as specialists in finding homes for relocating executives since 1955, is in constant touch with the housing market in more than 4,000 communities coast-to-coast, Hawaii, Canada and Puerto Rico through its offices in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and New Canaan, Conn., and its network of more than 1,250 member real estate brokers.

Questions and Comment By Realtor Randall McCardle

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of columns from Randall R. McCardle dealing with the real estate situation in various European countries.

LIECHTENSTEIN. When I heard there was a miniature country here in Europe that was a modern, industrialized Utopia with no wars, revolts, or taxes; I thought I'd better investigate the investment possibilities.

Liechtenstein has no space program, no air force, no navy, no army and practically no crime. She has no strikes, no hippies, no protestors and no beggars. There are no cities, just villages; no night clubs, just cafes, no super markets or department stores.

For over 250 years Liechtenstein has gone her own way ignoring the problems of the world. She's just a lush, green land of peace and tranquility where life goes on without much confusion or frustration.

Politics? Not in Liechtenstein. The reigning prince is Franz Josef, who lives in his Disneyland like castle overlooking Vaduz, according to tradition receives no compensation of any kind from his people. Instead, the good Prince contributes annually to the public coffers, thereby eliminating most of the need for taxes.

This little country is highly industrialized; cotton cloth, machinery, canned goods and ceramics being the main manufactures. Liechtenstein does receive fees from foreign corporations based here, which is another reason for no taxes.

The country, a principality, is only 62 square miles. The capital of Liechtenstein is Vaduz with a population of nearly 5,000; there are almost 20,000 people in the entire country.

Not the best place to invest; definetly not the most exciting place to live, but if you ever get fed up and want to change your attitude, your latitude and your graditude—try Liechtenstein for size.

New Real Estate Firm Open in Newport Beach

Red Carpet Realty of Newport Beach, which opened an office this month at 2025 W. Balboa Blvd., is the 30th office of the firm now in operation and the first of more than 200 offices to be opened in Southern California.

Termed the fastest growing real estate organization in the state, Red Carpet is an association of realtors created to make possibly many and diversified services.

Red Carpet Realtors are strong in geographical exchange. If a person who lives in Southern California owns some property in another part of the state and wishes to sell or exchange it, it lists it with his local Red Carpet office and has the full power of the statewide organization working for him.

The broker at Newport's Red Carpet office is Richard C. Irwin, who comes to Orange County from Fremont where he operated four offices.

Recording Fees Jump For County in 1968

Documents recorded and fees collected for recording increased in 1968, Orange County Record J. Wylie Carlyle reports.

Recording fees totalled $675,546 and the new property transfer tax accounted for $1,383,666, a total collection of $2,058,213.

The recording fees figure compares with $627,276 collected in 1967. Average daily document recordings in 1968 were 1,110 per day against 1,045 per day in 1967.

The property tax transfer was enacted by the legislature in 1967 when the Federal Documentary tax was not re-enacted.

The funds collected are allocated to the county and cities. The county lets 100 percent of the tax on transactions in the unincorporated areas and in incorporated areas the fees are split 50-50 between the cities and county. The tax is based on $1.10 for each $1,000 of consderation.

Of the total collected in 1968, the county received $831,392 and the cities, $551,274.

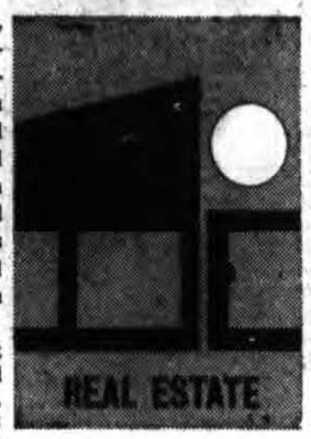

Carlyle said recordings indicated that building in the county was showing substantial gains over the slump of 1965-67. Subdivision recordings show that in 1968, 239 tracts totaling 13,289 lots were recorded. In 1967 there were 148 subdivisions with 10,794 lots.

New 'Town' Opening

Crown Valley Highlands Shows Models

Crown Valley Highlands, newest residential development within the master-planned New Town of Laguna Niguel will be officially opened this weekend following several preview showings for area residents and a special preview party for members of the press, and civic and business leaders of the South Coast communities.

Jack Godwin, vice president in charge of sales and marketing for Laguna Niguel, saids the preview showings were instituted because of the grat interest shown in the hillside project since the first announcement was made regarding construction of the planned 2,000-home community of garden homes.

During the initial grading and early work on model homes, and sales pavilion, Godwin said an ever increasing number of persons made their way to the site, many of the visitors making advance reservations for the purchase of a home immediately after viewing the project.

The first preview showing gave visitors an opportunity to inspect the models and sales pavilion, and also offered early buyers the final choice as to location and styling of their new homes, Godwin said. Early sales to date, he added, have set a record pace, with the result that work is already being expidited on the second increment, and the homes in the first section are being rushed to completion in order to provide occupancy at the earliest possible time.

Many reasons were cited by Godwin for the remarkable public interest shown in the new community, some of the most important being the unequalled location, careful overall planning and the modern concept of the project, and the excellent price range and financing.

The new hillside development has been engineered in such a fashion as to provide all homeowners with an unobstructed view of the surrounding country through an entirely new concept of community planning designated as the "streetcape" program by the Laguna Niguel planners.

The homesites were laid out in a series of terraces, engineered to preserve the natural beauty of the gently-rolling terrain and also insure optimum land use. A noteworthy factor in the program is that the homes front on level streets and all streets are on different levels, with the transitions from the higher and lower levels steep enough to provide unobstructed views from all homes.

Godwin said the development, when fully completed, will contain some 2,000 homes; a park, complete with a variety of recreational facilities; two churches, two schools and other community projects. The one-story homes will contain from two to four bedrooms and will be priced from $22,900 go $29,900.

They will be offered in a variety of stylings based on eight flexible floor plans. Godwin stresses the fact that the average price in the major communities of Laguna Niguel if $40,000, and that the homes in Crown Valley Highlands — enjoying the magnificent view location, together with the other amenities of the project — represent one of the biggest home bargains ever offered in the Southland.

Another planning feature is that homes are oriented on the lots, not only to take full advantage of the magnificent views but also to provide an unusual, three-sided garden-patio area around the home — thus combining the outdoors and the indoors into a large and attractive new "pattern of living."

This "garden home" concept of lot use, combined with the actual home plans, features only one side yard, much wider than the two normally narrow side yards in conventional planning. This attractive and spacious side garden-patio becomes a continuation of the front and rear gardens, and with access to the entire area from three sides of the house by way of sliding glass doors, true indoor-outdoor living is achieved.

As part of the "streetscape" program, which will impart a clean and uncluttered look to the community, all transitions from the various levels will be fully landscaped and front fences will be close to the street. Five-foot sidewalks and complete irrigation systems will also be provided.

Special eight-foot gates in the front fences will provide access to inside storage space for residents owning boats, trailers and campers, and the provision of this off-street parking for boats and trailers will also further enhance the overall appearance of the community.

In addition to its own recreation facilities and park, Crown Valley Highlands is within a few minutes of all the varied recreational facilities of Laguna Niguel, such as the private El Niguel and Monarch Bay clubs, the riding club, planned county park, and also the Orange County Regional Civic Center and the Town Center, actually within walking distance of the homes.

The model homes and sales information pavilion are located just off Niguel Road, and may be reached by driving north on Crown Valley Parkway from Pacific Coast Highway to Niguel Road and then west to the development.

New Tract Gets First Residents

An architect and the Orange County fire chief moved their families into Mission Ridge recently to become the first residents of the fifth — and most exclusive — neighborhood in Mission Viejo, the new town in southeastern Orange County.

The architect is Thomas A. Walker of Chrysler Realty Corp. He is responsible for design and construction of Chrysler-Plymouth and Dodge dealership facilities in the Western area.

The fire chief is Elmer Osterman, whose new home is "just down the block" from his newest facility, Mission Viejo's first fire station.

"We've been watching Mission Viejo's progress for two years," explained Walker. "Recently, we came down to see a home some friends bought here. We drove over to see the Mission Ridge models and became hooked on this house. We had wanted to move out of the smog in Claremont, where we had been living. And, we were really impressed with the attitude of everyone in Mission Viejo — they're so cheerful and friendly."

The Walkers, who have five children ranging from 5 to 14, selected the spacious four-bedroom, one-story Plan 14 model.

Osterman, who was born at adjoining El Toro and lived at nearby San Juan Capistrano is well acquainted with the area.

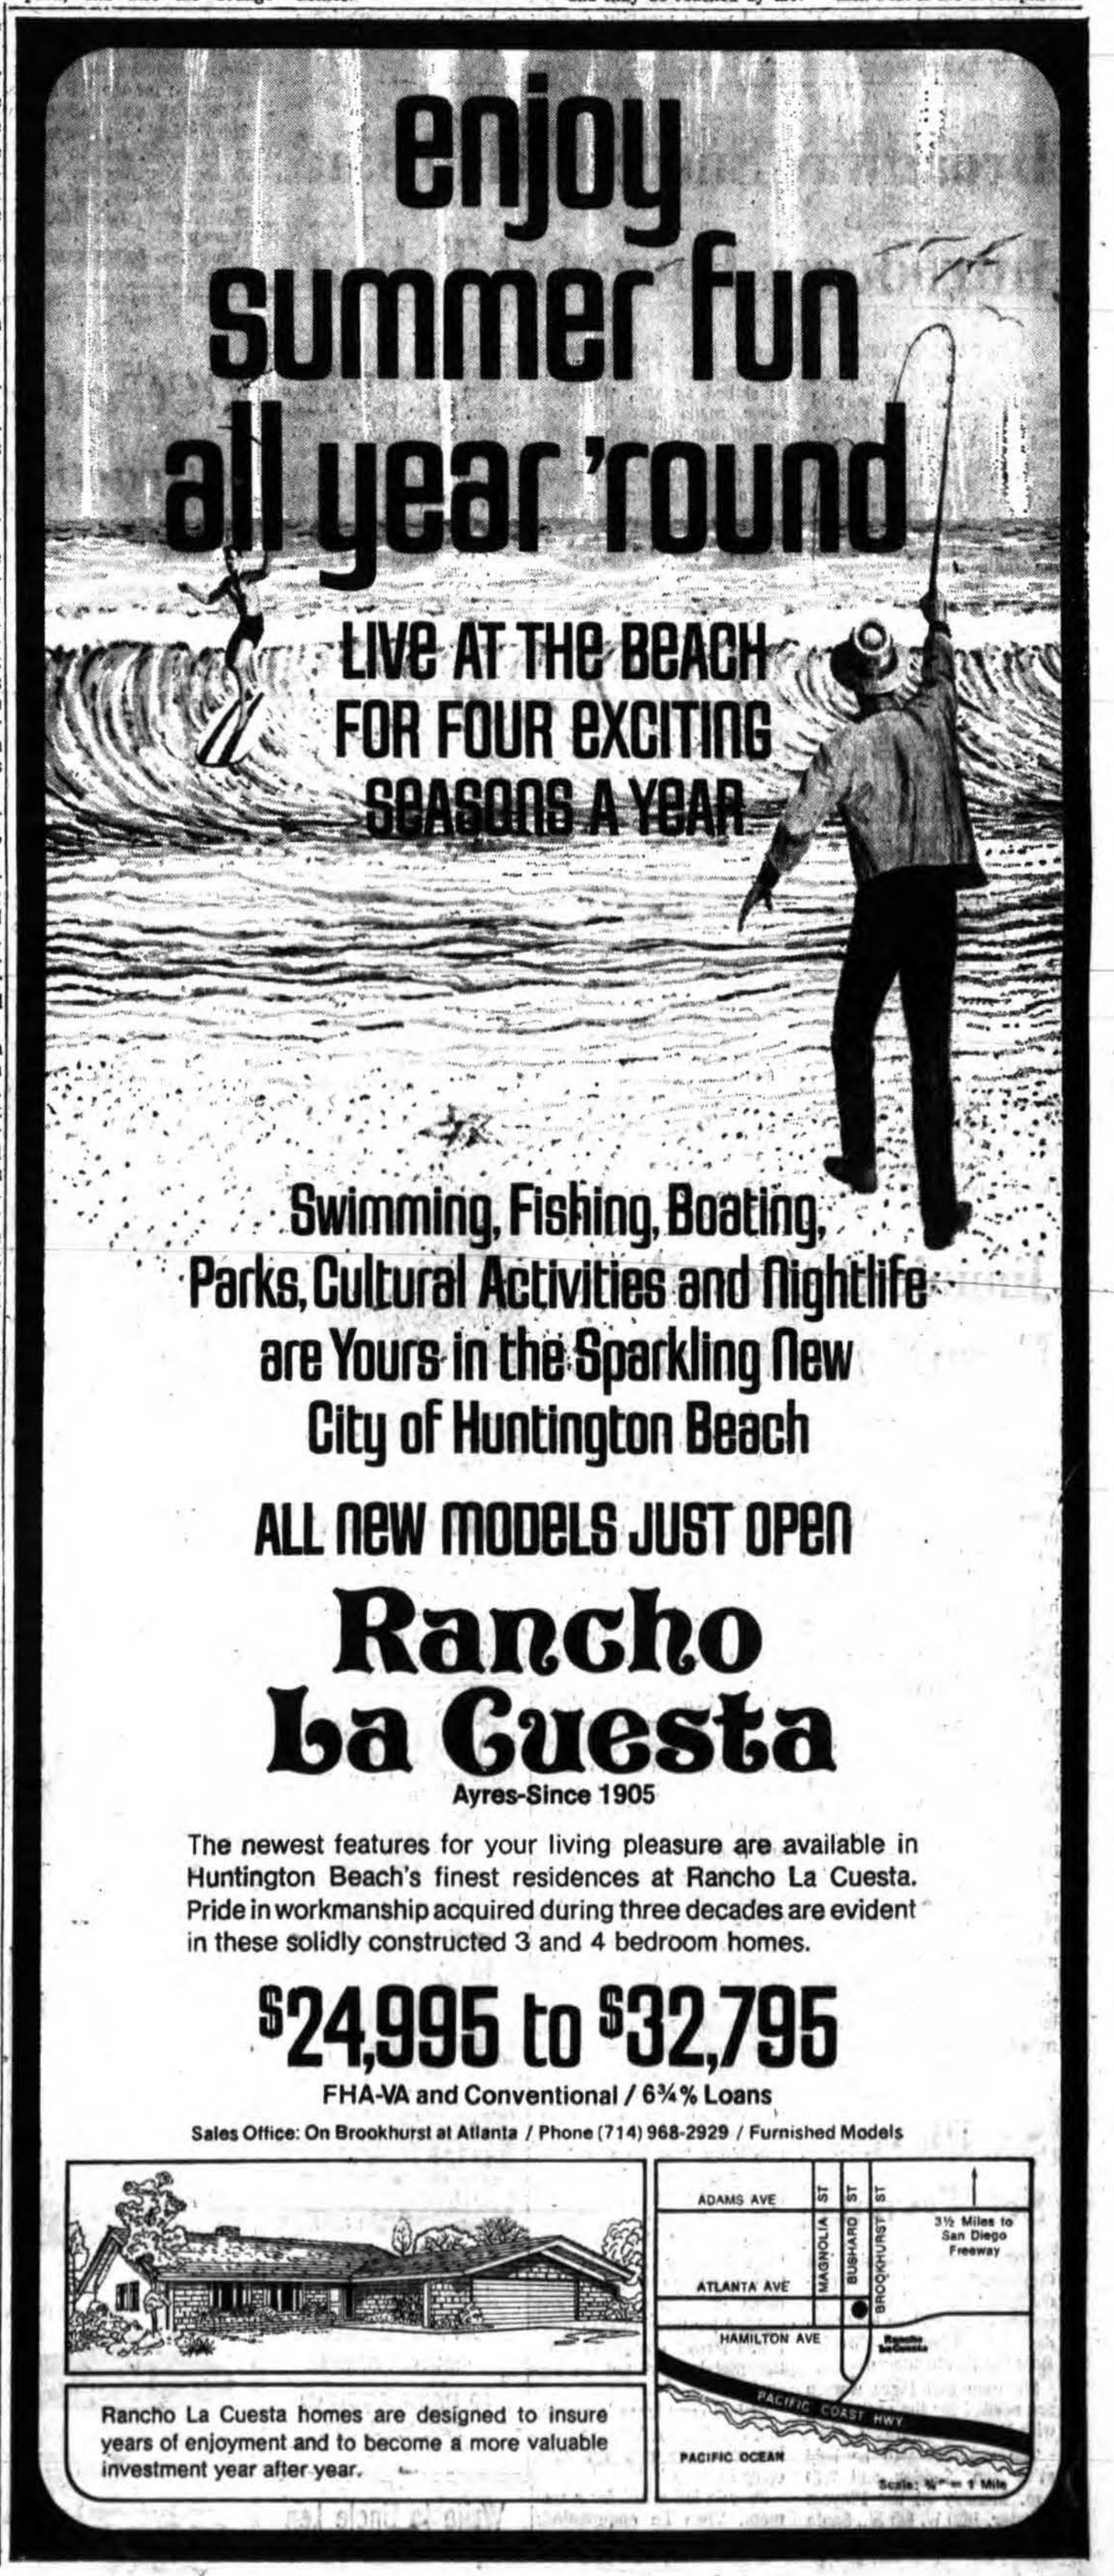

"My wife and I like to drive around and see what's going on in the county," the fire warden said. "When we saw the Mission Ridge models, we fell in love with this home, the golf course view, and the feeling of openness. We owned a very nice garden apartment with a private pool in Santa Ana, but we wanted to get out where we'd have more room."

The home the Ostermans selected is the three-bedroom Plan 13. They have one grown daughter and one of the bedrooms is reserved for overnight guests — their three granddaughters.

Schifrin Hits Peak

'Mission' Composer Swamped With Jobs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From an office on South Beverly Drive, amid smart dress shops and talent agencies, Argentine-born Lalo Schifrin pours forth a seemingly endless supply of music, from rock to symphony.

Schifrin, an intense, dark-haired pipe smoker, is the hotttest new composer in films today. His album of themes for "Mission: Impossible" won him two Grammies from the recording academy and a gold record, having sold more than a quarter million copies. His score for "Cool Hand Luke" netted an Oscar nomination.

Among his other recent scores: "The Fox," "The Brotherhood," "Bullitt," "Hell in the Pacific," "Coogan's Bluff."

He is now working on the score for 20th Century-Fox's "Che." And that isn't all. Other projects: Original music for an MGM TV pilot, "U.M.C."; "Encounters," a jazz-and-symphony piece commissioned by the Los Angeles Philharmonic; a cantata for the Hollywood Bowl based on his music for the TV special "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich"; a string quartet to be performed in March at the Los Angeles County Museum; an original musical film based on "Captains Courageous."

How does he accomplish so much?

"Music is an idiom, like language," he explains. "When you learn grammar and can control syntax, you can write fast. The same is true in music, except that you use notes instead of words. If you want to say something in music and have the skill to say it, you can compose fast."

Except for a number of happenstances, Lalo Schifrin might now be practicing law in his native Buenos Aries. That was what his father, concert master of the Buenos Aires Philharmonic, planned for him. But young Lalo had other ideas. During his law studies, he discovered jazz. His musical ability won him a scholarship at the Paris Conservatory of Music, where he studied classics by day and played in jazz cellars by night.

Returning to Argentina, Lalo continued combining the two forms, composing serious music for films and TV and leading a jazz band as well.

"My whole life changed when Dizzy Gillespie came to Argentina on a State Department tour in 1956," he declared. "He liked my work, and I joined him as pianist-arranger-composer. Actually, I had been thinking of coming to the United States anyway. dizzy made it happen sooner."

After four years on the road, Schifrin, now 37, decided it was time to settle down; he has an Argentine wife, a son, 8, and now a 2-year-old daughter. His work with Gillespie, Stan Getz and Count Basie for MGM records brought him scoring assignments for such films as "Rhino" and "Joy House."

Then he served a year at Universal, scoring "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," "The Virginian" and other TV series to gain experience in a variety of mediums. His training paid off with "The Cincinnati Kid," his first important film score.

Schifrin continues to pour out an astonishing amount of music from his windowless, soundproof office ("I can't stand distractions").

"I want to keep doing what I'm doing," he says. "Sometime in a career you reach a moment of serenity when you're not reaching out for new things but you're trying to develop the tools you have. I'm at this point now."

Broadway Success 'Hadrian' Introduces Powerful Talent

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whatever else may be said about this Broadway season, and a lot of it isn't good, it must be admitted that it has had the fair fortune to bring us three unusual plays of merit in which there are astounding performances by the leading men.

First, there was "The Great White Hope" and James Earl Jones' remarkable bigger-than-life performance in a bigger-than-life drama.

Next was "The Man in the Glass Booth," with its astounding interpretation of a split-personality character by Donald Pleasence.

Lately arrived from England is "Hadrian VII" by newcomer Peter Luke, a fascinating, compelling drama in its own right, but made even more so by the performance of Alex McCowen in the title role.

Here is a characterization created mostly in low key with a subtlety, a polish, a dedication to minute detail that makes for pure theatrical delight.

McCowen is a veteran British player, who has seldom lacked for work at home and who has been here with visiting companies three times previously for short stays. He is one of those much-appreciated performers, as skilled as any, who has never made that one big splash that comes to a few such occasionally when fate links them with just the right play at the right time.

"Hadrian VII' is "it" for McCowen. It made him a really big man in the British theater, a status he will never lose, and now Americans at last will get to know him.

Luke's play is an odd one. It is the drama of the bitter frustration of the life of an eccentric, sometimes brilliant, anti-social British writer, Frederick William Rolfe, an actual personality at the turn of the century. He was enamoured of Catholicism, if not happy with the way the Church was being run at the time. Much of his bitterness stemmed from the fact that after years of study, he twice was rejected for the priesthood. He wrote a novel, "Hadrian VII," in which such a person suddenly is taken into the Church, accidentally elevated to Pope and sets about making drastic reforms.

Luke's play is basically the fantasy of this novel, but he ties it in with Rolfe's own mean existence in which he is hounded by debtors and th inevitability of his own tragic end. It is a subtle piece of play-making that is leanly written and is always on target. Peter Dews' directon is adept technically and emotionally.

There is a fine all-around cast, including Sydney Sturgess, Marie Paxton, William Needles, Gillie Fenwick, Gerard Parkes, Richard Nicholls, Christopher Hewett, Louis Zorich, Truman Gaige, and Neil Fitzgerald.

The play has been handsomely set and costumed by Robert Fletcher for Lester Oster Productions, Bill Freedman and Charles Kasher.

"Hadrian VII" is serios theater at its best, and you should go to the Helen Hayes Theater and see it as soon as possible.

Jimmie Rodgers Back From Brush With Death

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A year ago Jimmie Rodgers was not expected to live following a highway incident with police in which the singer was critcally injured.

Jimmie suffered massive head damage, brain injury and spent eight months in the hospital after the Nov. 31, 1967, ordeal.

He underwent brain surgery three times.

"Doctors were amazed I wasn't sitting in a chair staring at the wall," Jimmie said during lunch on the eve of opening his night club act at the Cocoanut Grove.

Rodgers shed some 40 pounds during the lost year of his life. But his sense of humor is intact, and his singing voice is unimpaired.

Long brown hair covers the scars from the operation, the last of which implanted a metal plate in his skull.

"I was discharged from the hospital five months ago," Jimmie said, "and a month and a half later I opened in a night club in Vancouver. I think that was in November.

"When I got on stage I didn't realize the mental strain would be so great. I had double vision for the whole time I performed up there, although at the end of two weeks I felt pretty well.

"Then I opened in San Francisco for another two weeks. On the last night I couldn't see a thing, and had to finish the act sitting on a stool. Fortunately the audience didn't know that I was having any trouble."

At the moment Jimmie is afraid audiences will turn out to see him from a sense of curiosity or in sympathy.

He wants to perform as he has for the past 10 years — as a singer of ballads, strumming his guitar and entertaining people.

During his months in the hospital Rodgers never allowed himself to become despondent or consider the possibility that he would be a cripple or mental vegetable the rest of his life.

"I wasn't sure I could ever come back," he admitted. "But I knew I would try. The worst part was going home the first time and waiting for three months until I was strong enough to have the metal plate put in my skull.

"I had confidence in myself and the doctors. Without that, I'm not sure how I'd have come through it."

Jimmie fell silent for a moment. Then he commented: "I guess I'm just stubborn."

UNCLE LEN'S CORNER

Hello, again, boys and girls, and welcome back to another Saturday morning in Uncle Len's Corner.

Uncle Len was real happy this week because he got a whole bushel of entries in the Ground Hog Day contest. It was hard to pick a winner, but the originality shown by Terilyn Kelly in tying Ground Hog Day to the recent spell of bad weather won out for her.

STARS

The stars in the ocean are alive with play,
As they dance around and play games all day.
You might think that you could catch a star,
But no you can't they like to play tricks on everyone.
When people say they have a star in a bucket,
Or glass it is a trick, They're fooling you.
It is just their image left behind as the day enters noon and starts to darken as they float up through the cool sky air like a stairway into heaven.
Then they gather together and you can see them showing off to one another trying to be brighter than their playmates.
Sometimes if they are bright enough you can see some of the sleepy ones who are left behind with their flickering light,
Showing themselves in the distant waves of the ocean.
But no one worries about them because it is known that they too come home to sleep when the cold misty air turns to night.

THE MEADOW

The grass in the meadow blows softly
In the warm winds from above,
The grass is green
And the cows love to graze in it;
I love the meadow, the soft, warm meadow,
Where the wind blows soft and warm.

RAIN

The rain is falling all around,
It falls on field and tree;
It rains on umbrellas here
And on the ships at sea.

Send your questions to Ask Andy, c/o Orange Coast Daily Pilot, Box 1560, Costa Mesa, Calif.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Rita Wermes, age 10, of Sioux City, Iowa, for her question:

How long could people live on the moon?

The Christmas astronauts reported that the moon looks grim and desolate — a lonely and uninviting place to live. The lunar landscape is pasty white blotched with shadows from its rugged rills and ridges. There is no sign of life, not even a hopeful tinge of green algae.

Man's survival on the moon depends entirely on his brains, upon the plans he makes and how well he prepares for his lunar landing. Suppose a person arrives there in just the everyday clothes he wears on earth. He would live only a few minutes — no longer than he can live without breathing. For the moon has no air. It has no water and no food of any sort to offer the uninvited earthling. It has nothing but a pale rugged landscape of lifeless desolation. Certainly the moon is not waiting to welcome earthlings with friendly greetings.

But this wil not stop us from going there We are a bold, adventurous breed, always ready to face and tackle a tough challenge. Mankind has made himself comfortable in many impossible places on his own world. He will do what he always does — take along the things he needs and arrange a lunar way of life to suit himself. Some space scientists suggest building a huge sealed dome. People inside could live in a lunar home away from home.

The lunar dome would seal in breathable air. It would seal out the blistering blaze of the lunar day and the frigid frost of the lunar night. Maybe our clever scientists will find a way to pry water from some of the moon's minerals. If so, soil could be prepared inside the dome and planted with greenery.

People who go outside the dome must carry enough breatheable oxygen to last until they return. They must wear space suits to seal out the scorching daytime heat, insulate them from the cold night and perhaps shield their bodies from dangerous rays from the sun. Nobody knows whether this lunar living is worth all the trouble, the expense and the daring courage. Most experts think it is. The moon may be rich in mineable minerals. Because of its light gravity, less fuel is needed to launch spacecraft. This will save money when our spaceships voyage forth to visit our sister planes.

EC Title Showdown in Tonight's Twin Bill

Fullerton, Anteaters Square Off

By EARL GUSTKEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

UCI's basketball team will be in search of the beginning for another winning streak tonight at 8 when it takes on Alex Omalev's Cal State (Fullerton) outfit in Crawford Hall.

Both teams, in fact, come into the game fresh from defeats by the same team. Dick Davis' Anteaters were pummeled at Fresno State Tuesday night, 83-66, and Fullerton lost to the Bulldogs by 92-80 last Saturday.

The improving Titans came closer to beating Fresno than UCI did, but most observers give UCI an edge tonight. Omalev's team was within three points of Fresno State with five minutes to play.

UCI was never in it in the second half. Its closest margins in the first half were 19-17 and 33-29. It never led.

With eight games left, Irvine, in quest of a second straight trip to the post-season NCAA college division regionals, is 12-6.

After Fullerton, the Anteaters embark on five straight road games, beginning Tuesday at UC San Diego.

Fullerton was 0-2 for its last weekend trip. Before losing at Fresno, the Titans dropped an 89-88 verdict at Cal Poly (San Luis Obispo).

The No. 1 challenge for Irvine tonight will be in the rebounding department where Fullerton's 6-10 Ron Hughes excels.

Davis counters with his talented senior center, Mike Heckman (6-6). Junior forward Jeff Cunningham is the club's leading scorer with a 20-point per game average.

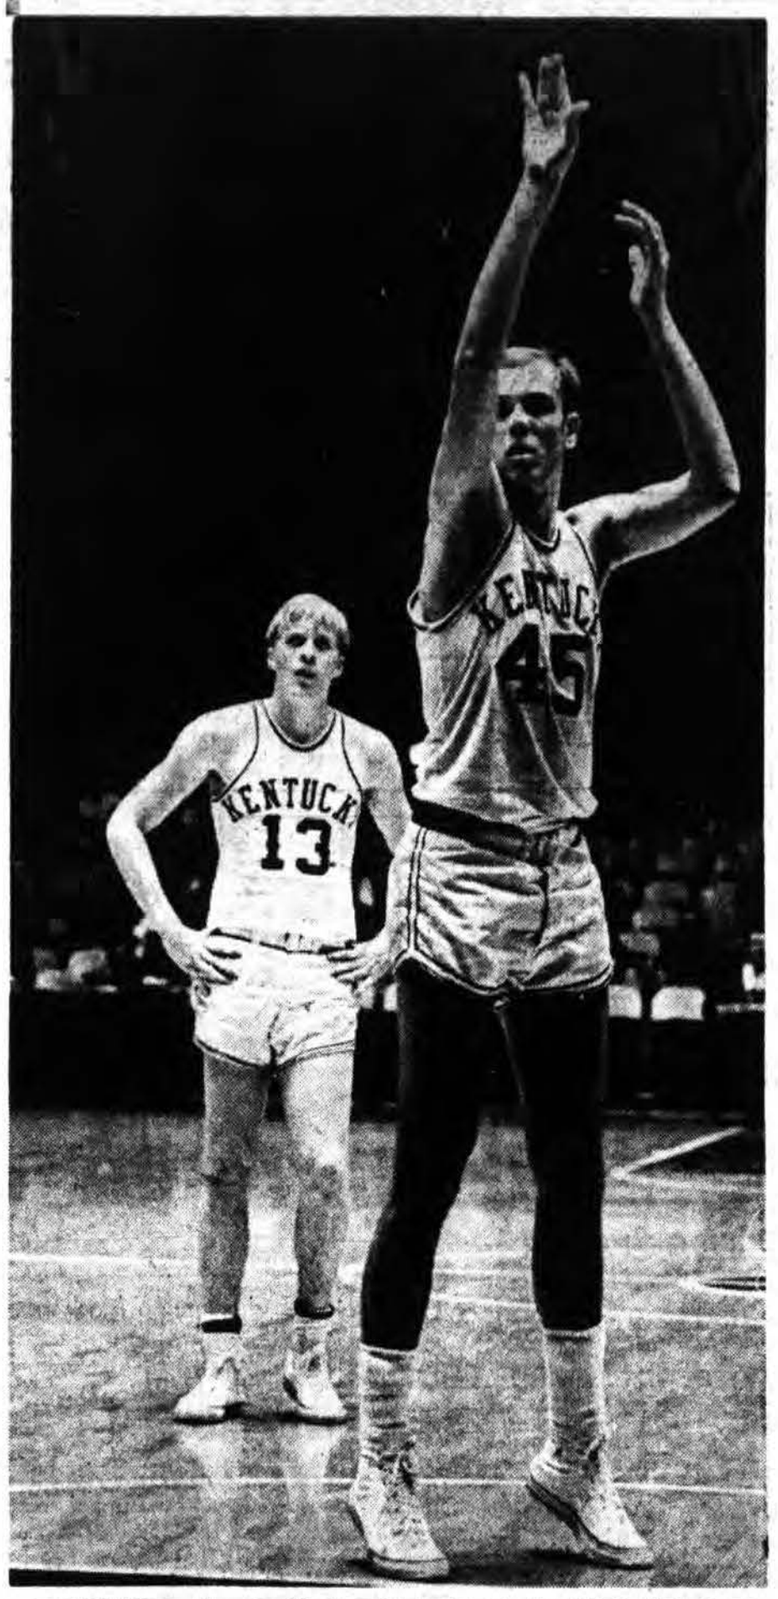

The loss to Fresno State snapped a four-game win streak for the Anteaters.

Tonight's match will be UCI's last home game until San Diego State comes to Irvine Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Ex-Marina Ace Faces Big Test

DEADEYE — Former Marina High School star Mark Soderberg, who's now starting for the University of Kentucky freshman, sinks a free throw in recent Wildcat game. Soderberg, who's averaging 14.5 points and 14 rebounds a game, faces a major test tonight when he's matched against Vanderbilt's 7-foot Steve Turner.

A TALL ORDER — Vanderbilt freshman Steve Turner goes up high for a rebound during Vanderbilt's annual frosh-varsity game. The seven-footer was one of the nation's top prep recruiting targets in Memphis, Tenn., last year. He plays against former Marina High star Mark Soderberg tonight in Lexington, Ky.

Rustlers Duel Tough Hornets In OCC Gym

By JOEL SCHWARZ
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

WALNUT — Three weeks and six games ago Mark Miller started growing a beard as a protest against Golden West College losing a basketball game and the Rustler guard has no intention of shaving it off after tonight's showdown game with the undefeated Fullerton Junior College Hornets.

Golden West set up tonight's big game by slipping past Mt. San Antonio College here Friday night by a whisker, 62-56.

That mean's the Rustlers trail Fullerton by two full games prior to tonight's tipoff at 8:15 in the Orange Coast gym. It will be preceded by a 6:30 contest between Mt. SAC and Orange Coast.

Miller started growing his beard the day after the Rustlers dropped a 78-67 decision to Santa Ana and were 1-2 in Eastern Conference play. Since then his whiskers and Golden West's basketball fortunes have flourished.

The Rustlers have reeled off six straight victories, the longest winning streak in the college's history, but it was nearly snapped by the Mounties.

For 27 minutes, Golden West couldn't do anything right. The Rustlers were down by nine at halftime, 38-29, bounced back to cut that margin to 42-38 only to see Mt. SAC rush ahead by 10 points, 48-38.

Seeing any hopes at the conference title slowly slipping away, coach Dick Stricklin resorted to his three-guard attack with 13½ minutes left.

With Miller, Ollie Martin and Mark Campbell along with forwards Brian Ambrozich and Paul Kordik scrambling and hustling all over the floor, the Rustler's reduced a poised Mt. SAC team to shambles.

Golden West's pressing defense forced the Mounties into a dozen turnovers and in little more than 12 minutes held them to just three points while pouring in 19.

Ambrozich tied it up with 8:31 to go on a free throw and seconds later Miller deflected an errant Mountie pass to Ambrozich for another layup that gave the Rustlers the lead, 52-50.

After that Golden West went into a modified stall, hoping to free a man under the basket, but couldn't lock up the contest until Ambrozich made a fantastic over-his-head rebound shot on a missed free throw. That made it 57-51 and the Rustlers were home free.

Wooden Wins 700th, 109-74; Trojans Beaten

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's top ranked Bruins, playing their run-and shoot game to perfection, coasted to an easy 109-74 Pacific-8 basketball victory over California Friday night.

It was coach John Wooden's 700th victory against 192 losses since he started coaching in the mid-1930s at South Bend, Ind., Central High School.

Don Griffin's 26 points and a deliberate style of basketball gave the Stanford Indians a 66-56 Pacific-8 victory from Southern California Friday night.

Stanford, leading by as many as 19 in the second half, slowed the ball to a crawl against a USC zone defense. Griffin hit mostly on 15-foot jump shots.

The Trojans played without center Ron Taylor, bitten by the flu.

The Bruins hit 61.5 per cent of their shots in the first half, led 52-37 at halftime and earned their 15th victory this season and 31st in a row. It was UCLA's 19th straight triumph over California.

Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-1½ center, scored 22 points in the first half and just after intermission scored his 2,000th point.

He wound up with 32 points and now has 2,009 in his college career. He also had 17 rebounds.

Cal's 6-10 center, Bob Presley, picked up four fouls in the first half, fouled out five minutes after half-time and only the shooting of sophomore Bill Duwe, who had 24, kept the Bears remotely close.

Soderberg Has Big Job Facing Vandy 7-footer

Mark Soderberg draws a tall assignment tonight.

The Marina High basketball star of last year is playing center this season for the University of Kentucky freshman team and the ex-Vike goes up against a seven-footer tonight.

The Wildcat frosh are playing the Vanderbilt yearlings this evening in Lexington, Ky., and Soderberg's opponent in the pivot will be Steve Turner, who is only one-and-a-quarter inches shorter than UCLA's Lew Alcindor.

Both players were big targets of college recruiters last year. Soderbeg, who stands 6-8½, had offers from 20 colleges before surprising everyone by matriculating to Kentucky.

He's the No. 2 scorer on a talent-laden Wildcat frosh outfit. At last report, he was averaging 14.5 points per game and 14 rebounds per contest. He leads his team in the latter category.

Turner was wanted by just about every major U.S. college basketball power last year. From Memphis, Tenn., Turner has proved to be something less than a sensation so far.

He's the No. 4 scorer on his team and the No. 2 rebounder. He's scoring at a 13.2 clip

For Soderberg, tonight's matchup with Turner will be the first of many to come.

There is a spirited basketball rivalry between the two schools and the two centers figure to meet at least a half-dozen more times during their varsity careers.

Chargers' Coach At OCC Campus

Orange Coast College moved a step closer to becoming the summer home of the San Diego Chargers Thursday.

Head coach and general manager Sid Gillman visited the campus for the first time and heartily endorsed the junior college's athletic facilities.

He indicated, however, that the team must locate living quarters within walking distance of OCC and that he was unable to locate any Thursday. Orange Coast has no dorms.

That, and the fact that OCC hasn't yet been given formal approval by the college board to the idea, are the lone hurdles yet to be cleared.

Should Coast become the Chargers summer training camp, the club would be working out at OCC daily from July until late August.

Sports in Brief

250 Miles of Suicide Captured by Virginian

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Steve Pieper of Alexandria, Va., won the Formula Vee world championship with a hair-breath victory over Harry Ingle of Charlotte, N.C., in a race punctuated by so many accidents some of the foreign drivers called it "250 miles of suicide."

Second place was changed by race officials twice before they decided three hours after the finish that Ingle was second.

The two Americans dueled through most of the 66 laps around the 3.81-mile course and often exchanged first place. Pieper roared off the last high bank on the outside and crossed the finish line about one-fourth length of his little car ahead of Ingle's.

UCI Falls, 100-69

UC Irvine's freshmen were snowed under by the undefeated USC yearling basketball team, 100-69, Friday night at the Sports Arena.

Gary Fox (16), Steve White (15) and Bill George (14) paced the losing Anteaters.

Goldstein Leads

POMONA — Larry Goldstein of San Diego led opening day qualifiers in the Top fuel eliminator class of the Winternationals Friday.

Goldstein had the lowest elasped time of 6.980 seconds as the nation's top fuel dragsters competed for Sunday's 32-car finals. Goldstein's top speed was 214.34 miles an hour.

The day's fastest time was turned in by Carl Olson of Torrance and John Mulligan of Garden Grove.

Both clocked 225 miles per hour on the quarter-mile strip.

Lakers Win

The Los Angeles Lakers look to Sunday's game at the Forum against the San Francisco Warriors after disposing of the Milwaukee Bucks, 105-104, Friday night despite the absence of Jerry West — who was injured earlier in the week.

Nears Skating Title

SEATTLE — Fifteen-year-old Dawn Glab, skating despite a slight case of the flu, took a slender lead Friday in the senior ladies' event of the National Figure Skating Championships here.

The victor, who will be decided after tonight's free-skating finals, will succeed Olympic Gold medalist Peggy Fleming as the U.S. champion.

Miss Glab, whose home is Paramount, Calif., led Tina Noyes of Colorado Springs by only one ordinal and less than two points.

Miss Noyes was runner-up four times to Miss Fleming.

Eason Is Victor

SANTA BARBARA — UCI's swimming team entered today's wrapup day of competition in the Gold Coast Relays in third place behind the UC teams of San Diego and host Sonta Barbara.

Rich Eason was Irvine's only winner in Friday's competition. He won the 100-yard freestyle event and Steve Farren was third. Mike Martin finished sixth in the event.

Laver Plays in LA

The world's leading professional tennis players will convene at The Forum in March for the first annual Los Angeles Invitational tennis tournament.

A four night meet will be presented March 3-5-6-8 and will feature Wimbledon winners Rod Laver of Corona del Mar and Billie Jean King as well as Pancho Gonzales, the Southern California veteran who was the upset conqueror of Laver in the last Forum tennis event.

In addition to Laver, Gonzales and Mrs. King, Ken Rosewall, Andres Gimeno, Newport's Roy Emerson, Rosemary Casals and Fred Stolle of the National Tennis League will compete.

OCC Erupts To Slaughter Owls, 121-97

Orange Coast College opens a twin bill tonight when the Pirates go after their second straight Eastern Conference basketball win against Mt. SAC.

Game time is 6:30 in OCC's confines.

The Redcoats of coach Bob Wetzel ripped Citrus on the same hardwoods Friday night, 121-97, for their second 120-point-plus night of the year.

After holding only a four-point lead at the end of the first 20 minutes, the hosts crushed the Owls early in the second half with a full court press that produced a 13-1 tally in the first 2:27 of action and Wetzel's crew was home free.

Leading the vicious press were Jim Kindelon and Steve Jacobsen, who capitalized on several errant passes and turnovers to score at will under the Pirates' basket.

Jacobsen tallied 16 of his 24 points and Kindelon 15 of his total of 21 in the second half to lead the winners to 70 points in the final half.

Ziegler Takes San Diego Open Lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Little-known Larry Ziegler played the role of Jack the Giant Killer Friday and the giant — at least for one day — was Jack Nicklaus, the victim of a treacherous putter.

When the shooting was over in the second round of the $150,000 Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament, Ziegler had caught and passed the mighty Nicklaus with a three-under par 69 and a 36-hole score of 139.

Nicklaus, the leader going into the fracas, wound up with a 72 for 140 — thanks to a double bogey six when he four-putted the fourth hole.

Nicklaus played the back nine first at the Torrey Pines Golf Club, par 36-36-72, and was one under after a birdie deuce on the third hole and then things began to happen.

His approach to the green left him 35 feet from the cup. He putted up and the ball stopped five feet short. He putted again and left himself one foot away.

Then he knocked it six inches past.

"I wasn't careless with it. I studied the putt. It just jumped past those few inches," said Nicklaus with a wide grin later.

While all the excitement centered on Ziegler, a newcomer to prominence in his third year on the PGA tour, and Nicklaus, scores continued to be high on another bright and warm day.

The greens were still heavy, however, from a deluge of rains, and an overnight light shower didn't help.

Gene Littler, with a 72, was in third place at 142, and Dick Lotz, 71, and Bob Charles, 69, were tied at 143.

National Open champion Lee Trevino had his best round, a 69 for 144, and local favorite Billy Casper's 75 left him back at 147.

Dow Finsterwald, who had a sparkling 69 Thursday, went out in 40 and came back in 35 for 75 and 144, even par.

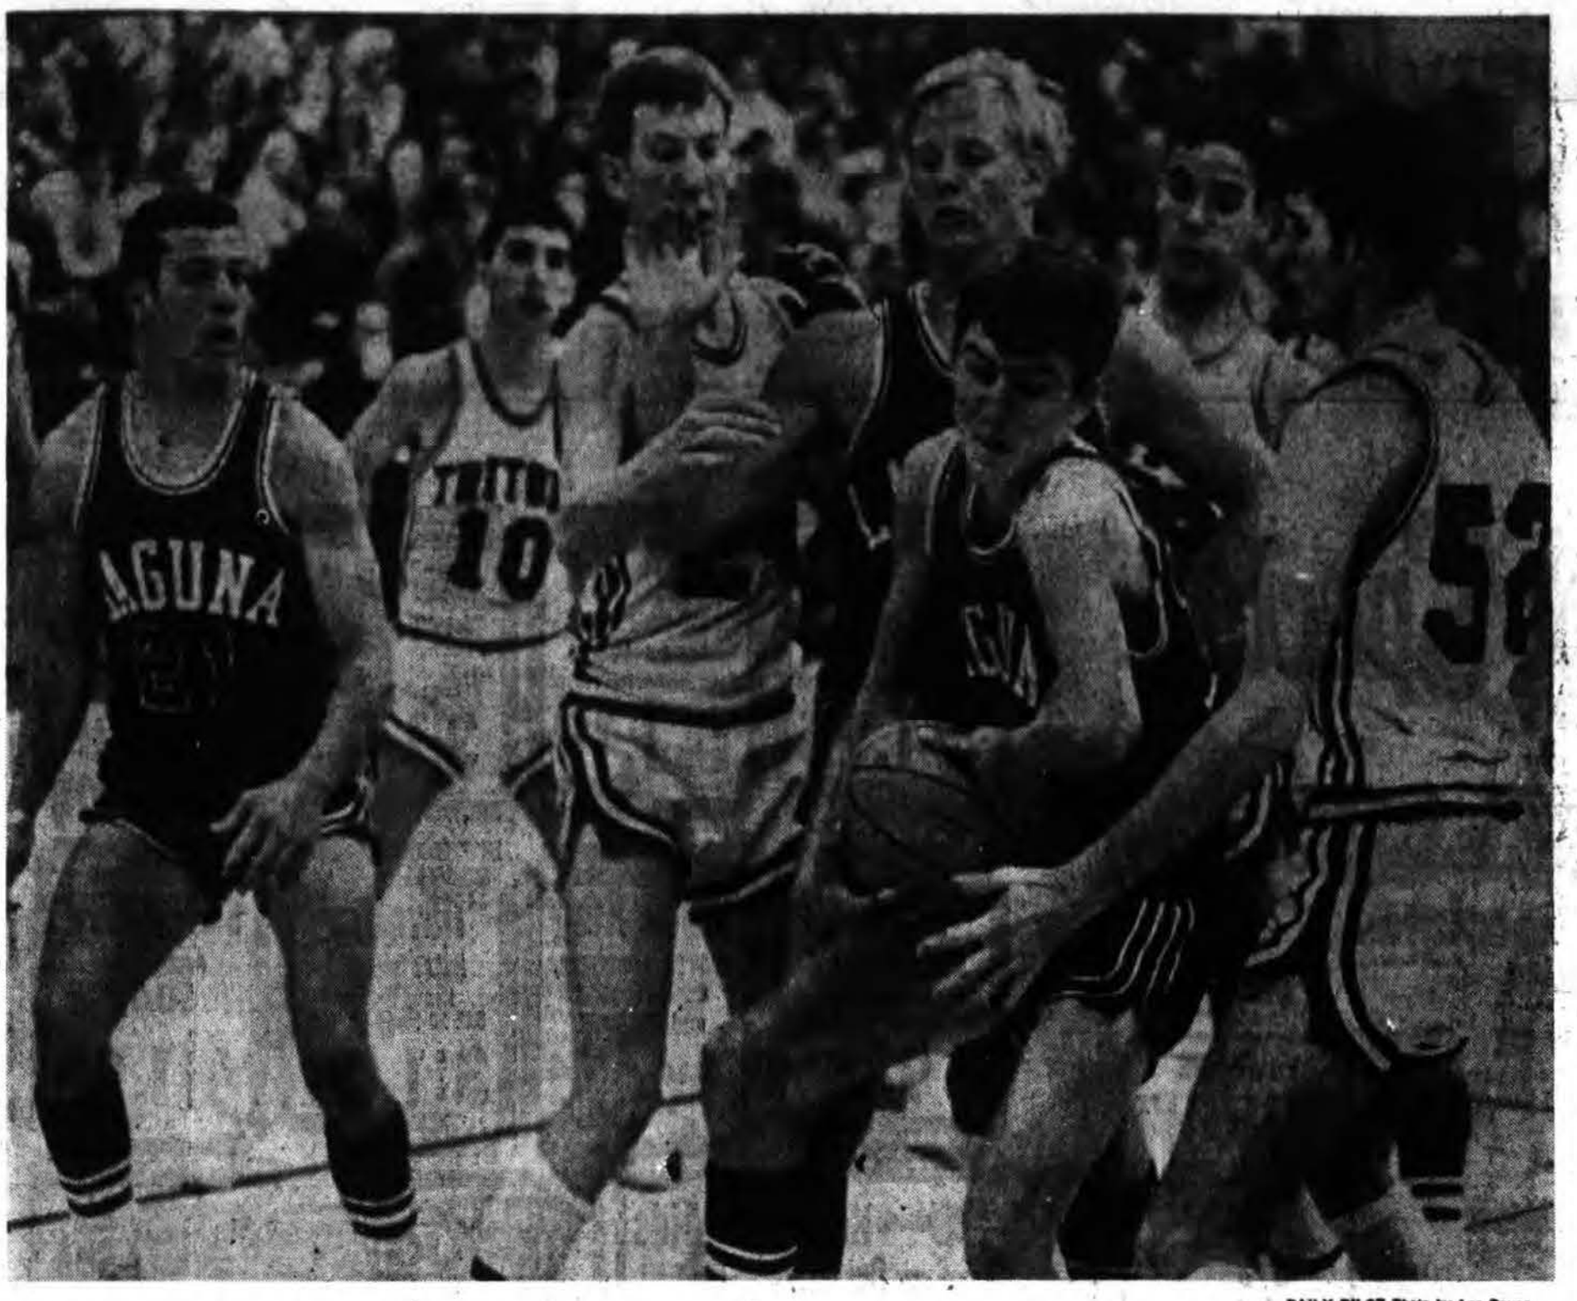

George Archer, the Bing Crosby winner, had a 74 for 147. The Los Angeles Open Winner, Charlie Sifford, had to withdraw because of illness. He had three successive nines of 39 before quitting.

Ziegler, at 29 the same age as Nicklaus, was an assistant teaching pro in St. Louis for several years before joining the tour.

He had five birdies and two bogeys. He credits former U.S. Open winner Ed Furgol and a club pro in St. Louis, Fred Wampler, for much of his schooling.

Nicklaus sandwiched his big six with birdies and completed the round in 37-35-72.

Asked if this is one of the few times he has four putted a green, Nicklaus said. "No, I've four putted quite a few times and I'll do it again."

Same Old Story— HB Rallies, 65-51

By EARL GUSTKEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It was the same old story for Huntington Beach and Westminster Friday night.

Two times previously this season Lion coach Ben Taylor had watched his team fade in the stretch after staying close to the Oilers for most of the game.

They faded by 14 points Friday evening, 65-51, as the visiting Oilers calmly registered their 35th consecutive league victory.

For two-and-a-half quarters Huntington Beach — Orange County's No. 2 rated prep basketball team — found itself in a close one. Until the breakaway, neither contingent could muster more than a six-point lead.

Oiler center Roy Miller provided the pivotal basket. He made it 40-38 for HB in the third period and Elmer Combs' team then outscored its foe by a 10-1 margin over the subsequent three minutes.

Westminster crept back to within 51-43 but three-point plays by Bond Nichols and Miller made it 57-45 with 2:20 left and there was no longer any question as to the outcome.

The Lions appeared to have a four-point lead salted away at halftime but late buckets by Miller and Bruce Wise — the latter just before the buzzer — evened it at 29-29.

Miller and Mike Contreras pummeled the Lions for a combined 34 points. It was one of Miller's more impressive outings — he slickered Westminster's inside men with several scoring moves under the bucket.

Contreras had a productive fourth quarter, scoring eight points, two of them on a great length-of-the-court drive and layup.

Tar Quickies Push Newport To 66-57 Win

By RON EVANS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lee Haven and Paul Holmes combined for eight quick points at the start of the final quarter to lead Newport Harbor out of the doldrums and on to a 66-57 victory over visiting Santa Ana Valley Friday night in Sunset League basketball play.

Dave Waxman's Tars didn't find the trail to victory to be easy as they were forced to overcome a horrendous third quarter in which they were outscored, 17-8, turning a six-point halftime lead into a third quarter deficit of three points.

Haven then opened the fourth quarter with a pair of buckets and was followed by another two by Holmes to put the Tars back in front, 53-48, with 5:46 remaining in the contest.

Valley's Steve Schaffer then converted a three-point play to narrow the gap to two points but Holmes came right back with a short jumper and Bo Griffith followed with a tip-in for a 57-51 lead with 2:25 left.

From that point on, Valley never again made a serious threat.

Through the first five minutes of the clash, there was nothing to chose between the two teams as the lead changed hands, or the score was tied, on twelve occasions before the hosts moved out to a five point lead at the end of the first period, 22-17.

Valley ran off eight straight points for a 25-22 advantage before the Tars connected for nine consecutive counters for a 31-25 lead. Newport managed to hold the lead through the remainder of the half.

Holmes shared high point honors with Valley's Sherman Thomas as each hit on seven shots from the field and four from the free throw line for 18 points.

Diablos Suffer Title Blow, Lose, 58-46

Mission Viejo was knocked out of a three-way tie for second place in the Crestview League basketball race when the Diablos fell to Villa Park High School, 58-46, Friday night at the winner's gym.

The Diablos are now 4-3 in loop action.

Coach Pat Roberts' Mission Viejo club was victimized early in the second half when it lost its rebounding strength and the Spartans slowly moved into a commanding lead.

The Diablos' only real threat in rebounding was Dan Kratz, and the 6-5 center picked up his fifth personal only eight seconds into the second half.

Steve Hazan, a 6-1 forward moved into Kratz's position and eventually fouled out midway through the final quarter.

Villa Park's Bill Krage (6-6) took command of the boards and the fast break offense combined to move the hosts into a 37-29 lead at the three-quarter mark after leading by only two at the half.

Tom Gardner led the scoring column for Mission Veijo with 23 while Rudy Holmes was chipping in with 11.

San Clemente Mauls Laguna Outfit, 50-35

Eric Christensen scored 21 points and Sal Lombardi added 18 to lead San Clemente High's Tritons to a ridiculously easy 50-35 victory over host Laguna Beach Friday night in a Crestview League basketball game.

Not until the final quarter did the Artists untrack themselves but by then it was far too late. San Clemente owned a 20-7 lead at the half and jacked it up to 37-14 at the three-quarter mark.

Steve Wiezbowski topped Laguna scoring with 13 points.

Christensen, a 5-10 guard, is Orange County's leading high school scorer with a 27.7 per game average.

San Clemente will try to do more of the same at Mission Viejo Tuesday night at 7 while Laguna hosts El Modena at 3:15.

The Tritons applied a full-court press on Laguna and that tactic produced a mountain of Artist turnovers in the first half, enabling San Clemente to pull away to an unreachable advantage.

The win gives San Clemente an 11-6 seasonal record while Laguna stands 3-13.

Sea Kings Near Title, Run by Eagles, 56-41

By GLENN WHITE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Defending Irvine League champion Corona del Mar took a major stride toward its second straight loop basketball title as the Sea Kings dumped host Estancia, 56-41, Friday night.

Victory, coupled with Magnolia's loss to Loara, gives coach Bill Bloom's forces a comfy bulge over the rest of the circuit with the league slate half completed.

To lose the crown, Corona del Mar would have to fall in two of its remaining five games. And since the Sea Kings have mashed 19 Irvine foes in succession over a two-year span, that prospect appears highly unlikely.

Estancia put up stiff resistance early in the going but fell under a deluge of free throws as the Sea Kings picked up 15 of their first 35 points from the gratis line.

Then the Eagles made a rush at the intruders in the third quarter after dropping behind, 38-20.

With nifty junior Skip Williams heading the assault the Eagles of coach Bill Wetzel trimmed the deficit to 38-28 with 1:12 to go in the third frame.

Williams had six of the eight straight points scored by the hosts and Bloom reflected the pre-game and halftime tension which had built up over the thought of meeting his bitter rivals.

However, Steve Leech popped in a 13-footer then Kim Wilbrecht connected from the top of the key and the Sea Kings were back in apparently safe position.

They carried a 42-29 bulge into the last eight minutes and both sides wound up sweeping their benches.

Williams led both sides in scoring with 26, 16 coming in the last half.

Leech and Chris Thompson shared scoring laurels for the winners, each banging in 16.

Corona del Mar never trailed, although the score was tied at 4-4 and 6-6 in the first four minutes with Corona getting a big assist from the friendly whistles of the officials.

Swordsmen Roll, 62-46

SANTA FE SPRINGS — Mater Dei's defensive lapses in the second quarter spelled defeat Friday night when St. Paul's Swordsmen raced away to a 62-46 Angelus League basketball win.

Despite the defeat, Mater Dei remains locked in a four-way tie for second place with St. Paul in the Angelus League, only a game away from leader St. Anthony's.

Mater Dei plays at Pius X Tuesday night.

The Monarchs trailed by only a point, 17-16, going into the second quarter Friday night but were outscored 17-7 in the decisive second period, allowing St. Paul to rack up a 34-23 halftime lead.

Anaheim Exploits Fouls, Outlasts Marina, 59-55

By STEVE ANDREWS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Anaheim High's Colonists, apparently looking to avert another upset like the one handed them Tuesday by Newport Harbor, stalled to a 59-55 win over the visiting Marina Vikings Friday in a Sunset League basketball encounter.

The Colonists entered the final quarter ahead, 47-42, made one bucket, and then preceeded to stall for seven of the remaining eight minutes.

Rick Mosier brought the Vikings to within two, 52-50, scoring two straight baskets with 2:31 on the clock, however Brant Cowser's Colony made Marina come out and foul the rest of the way.

And foul, was one thing the Vikes didn't want to do with their top stars Mosier, Kipp Baird, Dick Ivie and Vince Moll all in foul trouble.

Neither team held more than an eight-point lead and that tiny bit of breathing room was enjoyed by Anaheim, 47-39 with one minute left in the third quarter.

The Vikings were on top 31-30 at the half, despite not having the services of Ivie throughout the entire second quarter. The senior forward was only able to log 12 of the 32 minutes played in the game because of early fouls.

Baird, playing with four fouls most of the second half, lead Vikings scorers with 14 points and was trailed closely by Mosier with 13.

Racing Karts at OCIR; Globetrotters Are Coming

Over 300 racing karts of all shapes and sizes will converge upon Orange County International Raceway this weekend for a two-day racing program.

In addition to the 80 mph single-engine karts, twin-engined vehicles will also be on hand, reaching speeds of up to 130 mph.

The competition will be held on the 1.9 mile version of the track's two-and-a-half mile road racing layout.

The kart show replaces the regular Sunday drag racing events, due to the NHRA Winternationals being held at Pomona.

Gates open at 7 a.m. Saturday and Sunday with racing beginning at 8 and lasting throughout both days.

Globetrotter Tilt

Art Kim, who owned the Anaheim Amigos during the American Basketball Association's first season last year, appears again on the Orange County basketball scene Thursday night.

Kim's New York Nationals team takes on the Harlem Globetrotters at the Anaheim Convention Center.

Kim relinquished his interests in the Amigos last year when the franchise was purchased by Jim Kirst and moved to Los Angeles.

One of Kim's players is Jerry Klaas, former Chapman College star.

Gymnasts on Road

UCI's gymnastics team left today for the University of Nevada at Las Vegas for a rematch of a meet it lost last month.

Coach Larry Banner's team is 2-5 on the season with just three-quarters of a team. UCI has no high bar competitor and only one performer on the side horse.

On the team are John Potter, Paul Boulian, Ron Craig and Randy Strickley.

Mesan in Races

Bob Thompson is such a rabid fan of drag racing he once loaded his race car on a trailer and towed it 600 miles to a race — only to find out he was one week early.

The 25-year old Costa Mesa driver will have no such problem this weekend at the 9th annual Winternationals drag races at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona.

He'll be one of over 800 drivers from 30 states and Canada who will be racing Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, competing for $160,000 in prize money.

Barons Top Mustangs, 54-43

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fountain Valley High School's zone press took its toll the second half and the Barons went on to post a 54-43 Irvine League basketball victory Friday night over host Costa Mesa High.

The Barons, winners of two in a row, were hard pressed to sport a four-point lead at the half against the Mustangs.

But a second half defensive surge along with a well-balanced scoring attack slowly upped the margin until the high of 12 (49-37) was reached early in the fourth period.

The same trio that led coach John Kasser's five to victory Wednesday was primarily responsible again.

Gary Valbuena, Gary Redmond and Duane Diffie were all in double figures with Valbuena leading the pack with 15.

His jump shots from the corner and layups off good feeds from Redmond along with Redmond's shooting in the third quarter spelled the end for Mesa.

Mesa made one last chance at the winners, narrowing the margin to 50-43 with 4:07 to go.

Seven straight Mustang misses from the floor and a ball-control game by the Barons ended that menace in short order, however.

NO MATTER WHAT they're in the market for, our readers find the DAILY PILOT is the best place to put the bite on bargains. And they do it with the same gusto as the gourmet here showing how much he appreciates the wares of the famed Alkmaar Cheese Market in The Netherlands. You don't have to travel so far to find good things to eat, nice things to wear, new appliances at bargain prices, a real car buy—or even a chunk of cheese: Just shop the "armchair market," the one our advertisers deliver to your door every day.

THERAPY THROUGH TALK
How the Mentally Ill Are Helping Themselves

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. HOWARD A. RUSK, chairman, Institute of Physical Medicine, N. Y. University

Can muscles be transplanted?—D. M., Waco, Texas

● It is very difficult to rebuild muscles that have been useless for a long time. With a paralytic disease such as polio, they cannot be rebuilt at all. In such cases, a muscle transplant also is impossible.

FOR CAPT. VERONICA M. BULSHEFSKI, director, Navy Nurse Corps

How many women in the Navy Nursing Corps have attained the rank of Captain?—Russell H. Mentzer, Ephrata, Pa.

● At present, we have 14 women at the rank of Captain. They are assigned to positions as Chief of Nursing at Naval hospitals in the U.S. and overseas.

FOR J. H. D. MONTAIGNE, product manager, du Pont Company

Do "polyester" fabrics ever contain metal, glass, or wood?—Mrs. G. Hooker Young, Wellsboro, Pa.

● Polyester fibers are made from chemicals derived from petroleum. Fabrics made from these fibers very often are blends of polyester with wool, cotton, or rayon. Under certain circumstances, fabrics may be designed to incorporate fiberglass components or even metallic yarns, but we have not heard of any incorporating wood.

FOR GOV. TIM BABCOCK of Montana

Who erects and maintains the white iron crosses that denote traffic fatalities along your state's highways?—Mrs. E. J. Laine, Lewiston, Ohio

● The American Legion of Montana erects and maintains them. They serve as a warning to motorists to use caution not only at these marked sites of a fatality but on all roads.

FOR DIAHANN CARROLL of "Julia"

Are you now married? If so, do you have any children?—Lois Carrigan, Oswego, N. Y.

● No. I am divorced. I have one child, a girl, Suzanne, 7.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER director, FBI

Is the serious crime rate up since the death penalty has been abolished in many states?—Ellis E. Daniel, Prosperity, W. Va.

● Since 1960, serious crimes in the U.S. have risen nearly 90 percent or approximately nine times faster than our population growth. While the death penalty has not been abolished in most states, it has been less frequently invoked.

FOR EDWARD KRAUSE, director of athletics, University of Notre Dame

Do Notre Dame football receipts pay for all other university sports?—Mrs. George Moe, Milwaukee, Wis.

● Yes, for the most part. We are hopeful, however, that the university basketball program soon will become self-sustaining.

FOR EDITH HEAD, fashion designer

When do you consider it is suitable to wear a maxi skirt?—Joyce Miesner, Percy, Ill.

● I believe a maxi skirt is most suitable for afternoon and after-dark wear. In very cold weather, however, a maxi coat, if worn with boots, is very "in" this year.

FOR GORDON MacRAE

Please tell me what song do you most enjoy singing?—R. D., Lancaster, Pa.

● It's a toss-up between "Soliloquy" and "If I Loved You"—both from "Carousel." The lyrics to both were written by the late Oscar Hammerstein II.

FOR LEW LOUDERBECK, writer

Do you seriously believe that everyone should be fat, as you stated in a recent article?—D. F., Jefferson City, Mo.

● Absolutely not, the only people who should be fat are those who've fought a losing battle against obesity most of their lives. Some 94 to 98 percent of those now on diets will regain every ounce of weight they lose within five years. Losing and gaining of weight is dangerous to a person's health. Overweight individuals would be better off if they simply changed their thinking, not their figures.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Those Happy Moonlighters There are 3,700,000 moonlighters (people who hold down a second job) in this country, according to the Census Bureau. At least 10 percent of all married men moonlight, and the California Teachers Association found its group hit 75 percent. It has less to do with earning too little than wanting to spend more—and devotees say it's a lot of fun, like a hobby.

Battling Grandpa NBC commentator Chet Huntley's book, "The Generous Years—Remembrances of a Frontier Boyhood," fondly recalls his parents and grandparents in still-untamed Montana some 50 years ago. Because of his prowess, Grandpa Bob Tatham was constantly being challenged to fights by local strongboys. Chet watched one barroom brawl from under a pool table—a bloody, epic struggle which Grandpa won. Afterward, worried Grandpa asked Chet what he would tell Grandma. "I'll tell her I had strawberry pop." Grandpa laughed—"Stick to that story, boy, and we'll have more strawberry pop."

Illness in Art Artists throughout the ages have depicted the various infirmities of mankind. One of the most famous may be the Mona Lisa, as here exhibited at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology in

Browless Mona Lisa

Chicago. Why has the smiling lady no eyebrows? Did da Vinci forget to paint them? Was she following a fad of the time by shaving them off? Some dermatology art buffs conjecture she had alopecia (a condition characterized by loss of hair).

Helping the Stutterer The young stutterer's goal should be not to stop, according to "Today's Education," but to stutter deliberately until he is relaxed enough to control it. You will help if you listen without supplying that unfinished word or betraying impatience, uneasiness, or pity, and if you calmly look him in the eye as he struggles. It's okay to indicate that it gets under your skin sometimes—if he knows you also admire him for keeping the problem out in the open where he can work on it. Stuttering is shaped by both those who do it—and listen.

Ruta's White Peacock Actress Ruta Lee, currently disc jockey for the Armed Forces Radio Network, has a Valencia orange ranch which needs a watchdog. The best she has ever had is her albino peacock, General Sarnoff. "He sleeps in a tree and screams like a diesel truck applying brakes when he hears a strange noise." Actually, the peacock thinks it is a watchdog—or a dog, anyhow. He dines on dog food with her two dogs, a Great Dane and a tiny Yorkie ("You don't have to feed a peacock—he forages for grain and bugs") and will come when Ruta's parents—but not Ruta—call it with clucking noises. He ignores "Here, Gen. Sarnoff."

The first issue of a revolutionary idea in family reading

MIND ALIVE

The magazine that grows into a new kind of encyclopedia

What does the modern family read?

This question was the basis for a comprehensive study recently undertaken by a panel of eminent British scholars. Their finding: the information a family learns from current newspapers, magazines and books does not measure up to the knowledge men, women and children need—and want—to advance themselves in life, in business and in school.

They decided a new publication was needed to cope with the challenge of modern life.

A publication that would give the family more basic knowledge to help them reach their goals.

A publication that would feed their appetite for intellectual achievement and give them a greater sense of personal satisfaction and fulfillment.

A publication that would be as easy and enjoyable to read as any other weekly or monthly magazine.

A publication that would have lasting value. That would build issue by issue into an authoritative reference library of encyclopedic knowledge.

The result was MIND ALIVE, a revolutionary new idea in reading for parents and children. An instant success in England, MIND ALIVE is now available for the first time in America.

MIND ALIVE
the new magazine of modern knowledge

MIND ALIVE is published for those modern Americans who want something more constructive and satisfying out of life than mini-skirts, pop culture and sensational sex and violence.

It's for people who want to broaden their education, further their careers. For people who want solid reading and reference material in their homes that will attract the serious interest of their teenagers. For people with a thirst for new knowledge.

MIND ALIVE is for you and your children

MIND ALIVE is an exciting, richly illustrated magazine without advertising. A magazine your whole family will look forward to reading week after interesting week. A magazine that organizes and makes sense of the modern "information explosion" to help you acquire new knowledge, retain it and use it. A magazine as entertaining and easy to read as your favorite weekly.

is a complete magazine in itself.

With a selection of up-to-date authoritative articles about the seven basic fields of knowledge:

Man and Medicine / Ideas / Geography
The Arts / Physical Science / Biology / History

At the same time, the information in each issue builds on that in the previous one to help you get a continuing story of man's knowledge.

In articles in "Man and Medicine" for example, the first issue tells you in clear, detailed text and pictures how the process of human life unfolds, starting with conception and birth. Succeeding weekly issues take you through adolescence, the body, disease and disabilities, problems of the mind and old age.

In "Physical Science" the clearly illustrated articles guide you through the fundamental new concepts of the important specific branches of science. They reveal the relationships between them, demonstrating how things work technically. The fundamentals and uses of modern mathematics, atomic energy, astronomy, lasers, x-ray and literally hundreds of other areas are made clear to add to your understanding of this fast changing modern world.

You remember what you read

This new, exciting approach to knowledge in MIND ALIVE helps you retain what you learn. The emphasis is on understanding rather than just information and facts. Beautiful, four-color illustrations, fascinating diagrams and plain language you like to read make learning easy.

Right from the reading of the first issue—which we will send you free—you'll find yourself drawing on new knowledge in conversations with business associates and friends. You'll be able to get to the root of the matter in political and social discussions. And with the help of a convenient Glossary of the more difficult terms, your children will have a head start in their science, history and art lessons.

You get exclusive Learning Program Games

With every fifth issue of MIND ALIVE you receive a separate, optional Learning Program Game. These booklets use the scientific principle of programmed instruction developed in recent years to fix in your mind the knowledge you have just read. They're fun to use. A kind of mental treasure hunt to test your new-found knowledge.

And there are tips inside every issue of MIND ALIVE on how to read faster, how to study, how to increase your memory.

How MIND ALIVE grows into a new kind of encyclopedia

MIND ALIVE comes to you every week. You read and enjoy it like any magazine. Each issue is complete in itself.

But you won't throw your copies of MIND ALIVE away, as you would most magazines with advertising.

For the magic of MIND ALIVE is that it grows into a valuable authoritative reference. A new kind of reference you and your family will keep and use for years.

You build your encyclopedia with these handsome binders

You preserve each issue of MIND ALIVE in handsome binders. They are made of durable, thick-padded vinyl, richly colored in gold and blue...a beautiful and impressive addition to your bookshelves.

Each binder holds 15 issues of MIND ALIVE. So you end up with a complete 3,840-page 8-volume set filled with thousands of handsome four color photographs and illustrations plus matching index, 9 volumes in all. MIND ALIVE is a valuable library of color plates you'd want for itself.

The 40,000-item cross-referenced index gives you a library of modern knowledge to help with school work, business or casual reference. And you and your family will have already read a good part of it! Something that isn't true when you buy conventional encyclopedias.

Always up-to-date

Because MIND ALIVE is written first as a weekly magazine, the editors can always keep you up-to-date. Each issue will have the very latest information and events available to them up to time of publication. With every issue of MIND ALIVE you collect, you know you're building the most current encyclopedia of knowledge available today.

And the cost is low

Some hundreds of dollars less than the cost of old-fashioned encyclopedias.

For only $2.95 a month, billed bi-monthly, MIND ALIVE is sent to you each week. And you get the eight binders, plus the 140-page index, plus 24 Learning Program Game booklets. Of course, you can cancel at any time.

The first thing to do is see for yourself how much MIND ALIVE can mean to your family...

Free Examination Certificate

MIND ALIVE
P. O. BOX 297

Please send me, entirely free and with no obligation, the first issue of MIND ALIVE plus the binder described above. If I decide not to continue I will notify you, keep the free copy and binder, and that will be the end of it.

Otherwise, I am entitled to receive each four weekly issues for the low introductory price of $2.95, billed bi-monthly.

I will also receive: 1) a free Master Table of Contents and Subject Guide; 2) a free 16-page Learning Program Game with every 5th issue; 3) a free gold-embossed binder with every fifteenth issue and 4) a free 40,000-entry cross-referenced index volume when my set is completed.

What Foreign Visitors Really

By FLORA RHETA SCHREIBER

A VISITOR FROM Germany recently insisted that his travel agent register him at a certain Chicago hotel because "that's where the gangsters stay." A visitor from Japan was deeply insulted when his American host offered him a car seat beside the driver.

A Soviet visitor could not understand why our liquor stores are closed on Sunday. An Indian girl, studying at New York University, said that she felt sorry "for American girls, who not only have to worry about school but also about finding a husband. In my country," she said, "we're so much better off. I'm going home to marry the man my mother chose. Never having seen him, I've had no trouble at all!"

As these incidents reveal, it is not easy for the foreign visitor to appreciate the meaning of what he sees or hears in America. Reared on "B" movies, the German came in quest of gangsters as though gangsters were the whole of America. Having grown up in a tradition totally different from ours, the Indian student could not grasp that her country's courtship and marriage customs were anathema to the very American girls she pitied.

"European visitors," reports the European Travel Commission, "arrive with erroneous impressions based on Hollywood images." The Department of Commerce's U.S. Travel Service notes: "It is true that a few visitors plan their trips around gangster haunts, but many do look for the palatial homes, the swimming pools, and other evidence of luxury which our films often present as 'the American way of life.'"

These visitors, thinking of us as "the new world," are more impressed, at least at first, with automobile factories in Detroit, skyscrapers in New York, and gadget-filled kitchens everywhere than with our more human values. The British, 192 years after we declared our independence, still are likely to think of us somewhat patronizingly—as one visiting British taxi driver put it, "the colonies." The French expect us to be a little "kookie" and criticize our customs, yet in the end they manage to love the things they criticize.

Ballerina Liudmilla Vlasova mixes history with travel on a visit to the Alamo.

Visitors from Latin America, Japan, Africa, and the Soviet Union also are likely to have "distorted views about us," says Dr. Bryant M. Wedge, Director of the Institute for the Study of National Behavior, Princeton, N.J. In "Visitors to the United States and How They See Us," based on joint research by the Department of State and the United States Information Service, Doctor Wedge puts the case squarely in focus. "Even face-to-face conversations with our foreign guests," he states, "often result in misunderstandings on both sides. The American doesn't know what is in the visitor's mind; the visitor cannot read the American's. Both parties bring a bagful of preconceptions to the conversation which makes communication all the more difficult."

To these visitors our way of life seems hopelessly permissive, exploitive of other countries, and, in some instances, actually immoral. They're critical of teen-age dating patterns and of parental indulgence. One Latin American visitor was amazed when he saw coins piled on a newsstand. "From what I heard about you Americans," he said, "I would have thought somebody would help himself."

The charge of permissiveness even extends to the Federal Government. "Isn't it dangerous to permit local school boards to determine what children will learn?" asked a group of educators from a former French colony in Africa. "Doesn't this lead to complete anarchy? Why doesn't the Federal Government impose standards on the schools? If it is so weak, how can people respect it?"

Recently, while spending a week in Texas with members of the Soviet Union's "Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet," I observed many of these attitudes firsthand.

"American young people seem more frivolous than Russian young people," says a ballerina beating the drum against our permissiveness. "There is no kissing in public in Russia as there is here. American youngsters behave this way because of your tv, which portrays their elders as lacking serious values. And because of your automobiles. The automobile breeds idleness among teenagers. I'm glad we Russians don't have access to cars. We never just go for a drive, doing nothing. Our teen-agers as well as adults are always occupied with something we consider useful."

Others showed dismay that our Federal Government does not exert complete control over all aspects of our life. "Each of your 50 states," one ballerina told me, "has its own laws. Isn't that inconvenient for the nation as a whole?"

Even more serious was the rigid noncomprehension by the Russians of the American concept of freedom. "What is freedom to you is not freedom to us," said Gennadi Ledlakh, the oldest member of the company on his last tour before retirement. "You have too much freedom." Ballerina Liudmilla Vlasova added, "You have riots and assassinations because you have too much freedom."

American movies had prepared these Russian guests for Texas cowboys and sprawling Texas ranches with cattle. Instead, on their first night in Texas, they found themselves at a black-tie midnight supper party given by Robert Lynn Batts Tobin, a Texas millionaire and patron of the arts. There were no cowboys and no cattle at Oakwell, the 585-acre Tobin ranch.

Oakwell, on a hillside overlooking a candle-lit river, was the epitome of sophistication. Tobin, the 30-year-old host, is president of Tobin Sur-

Members of the Bolshoi company engage Americans in a lively discussion of rock 'n' roll.

Think of Us

They expect gangsters, cowboys, and movie stars, but what they find is often a revelation to them—and to us

veys, Inc., a master firm of aerial photography. But more than that, he is a national force in the field of the arts. And for this party he proved an able, ingenious host, sparing no expense to make his Russian guests welcome.

Music was supplied by a Mexican band and a psychedelic rock group. Champagne flowed. Luscious foods filled silver trays, which were refilled as soon as they were emptied. Butlers and valets were everywhere, catering to every guest, epitomizing Texas hospitality.

"The journalists were impressed by all that lavishness," one male dancer said. "We Russians were not. Who would want all that land? Land is a nuisance." Whether the Russian dancers acted out of envy or simply mouthed Communist philosophy, they, like other foreign visitors, clearly separated themselves from our values.

Attempts are being made now to bring about better understanding of our way of life. One U.S. travel-service program called "Americans-At-Home," for instance, encourages direct contact between foreign tourists and American families. Volunteer hosts in 68 cities entertain these guests during evening hours. "You are the most hospitable people in the whole world," remarked one foreign visitor to a Grand Rapids, Mich., home. A South African, who traveled the country by bus, remarked, "If I had accepted every invitation I received, I could have stayed in America for the rest of my life."

And a Japanese businessman on his third visit to America noted: "The first time, America left me cold. This last time I met the people up close, and that changed everything. Even the buildings in New York, which the first time seemed utterly incredible, have become almost believable."

The "foreign leader" program of the State Department is designed to develop understanding between professional people and visiting foreign governmental leaders. Under the wing of escort-interpreters, these visitors are given the opportunity not only to visit American families but also to meet Americans in their own professions and to visit particular institutions in which they are especially interested.

An African school principal was astonished to discover that an American turkey farm she visited had not been a giant capitalist's enterprise from the first. When she realized that, as the owner put it, it had sprung from "determination, hard work, and a son educated at an American agricultural college," she returned to her own country with a new respect for our concepts of self-help and self-reliance. "I could understand that farm only because I had seen it," she said. "I'm going back home to teach the virtues of self-help in my own school."

The cultural exchange program, in which the Russian ballet stars participated, also achieved good results. The Russians returned home with a higher regard for America than they had when they arrived. Praising "America's strong family feeling," they also praised American fashions ("a democracy of fashion," as one male dancer put it), American music (particularly rock 'n' roll), and, with the exception of boxing and wrestling, which our Russian guests consider immoral, American sports. Even Maya Plisetskaya, the company's prima ballerina, loves to go to American soccer games.

Two Russian guests find Texas soft drinks refreshing after a day of touring.

The Russians also had good words for Texas cities. "The authors of 'Two Story America,'" remarked dancer Felix Pareplow, "were wrong in describing New York as a typical American city. San Antonio, for example, with its more leisurely pace, both at work and play, is much more typical." There was commendation, too, for the American people. Americans that these Russian dancers especially liked were described as "Russian souls." "A Russian soul," one ballerina explained, "is a Russian national saying for a person with a pure heart and an open soul."

When the Russians arrived in Texas, they had been contemptuous of cowboys. By the time they left, however, they were not only wearing cowboy hats but buying them for the folks back home. By this time, too, the dancers had realized their wish to see "an honest-to-goodness ranch with cattle." "The animals were longer than Russian cattle," said one male dancer during a visit to Helotes, a 10,000-acre cattle ranch northwest of San Antonio. The ranch foreman quickly explained that the cattle were actually bred longer—to provide more steak.

As the visitors were leaving, the foreman remarked: "This is the first time I have met any Russians. They're wonderful—not at all like the picture we have of them."

This statement epitomized what Doctor Wedge meant when he wrote: "People from different cultural backgrounds must come to understand each other. Our visitors must see us as we really are."

And, as in the case of the ranch foreman, we must do the same for them.

Foreign Visitors' Favorite American Tourist Spots

Most foreign travelers who come to America want to experience its excitement and see its technology in action. These guests also are familiar with our romantic past and come in search of both historic shrines and cowboys and Indians. There are those, too, who seek out our museums, theaters, and libraries, but preferences are, of course, individual.

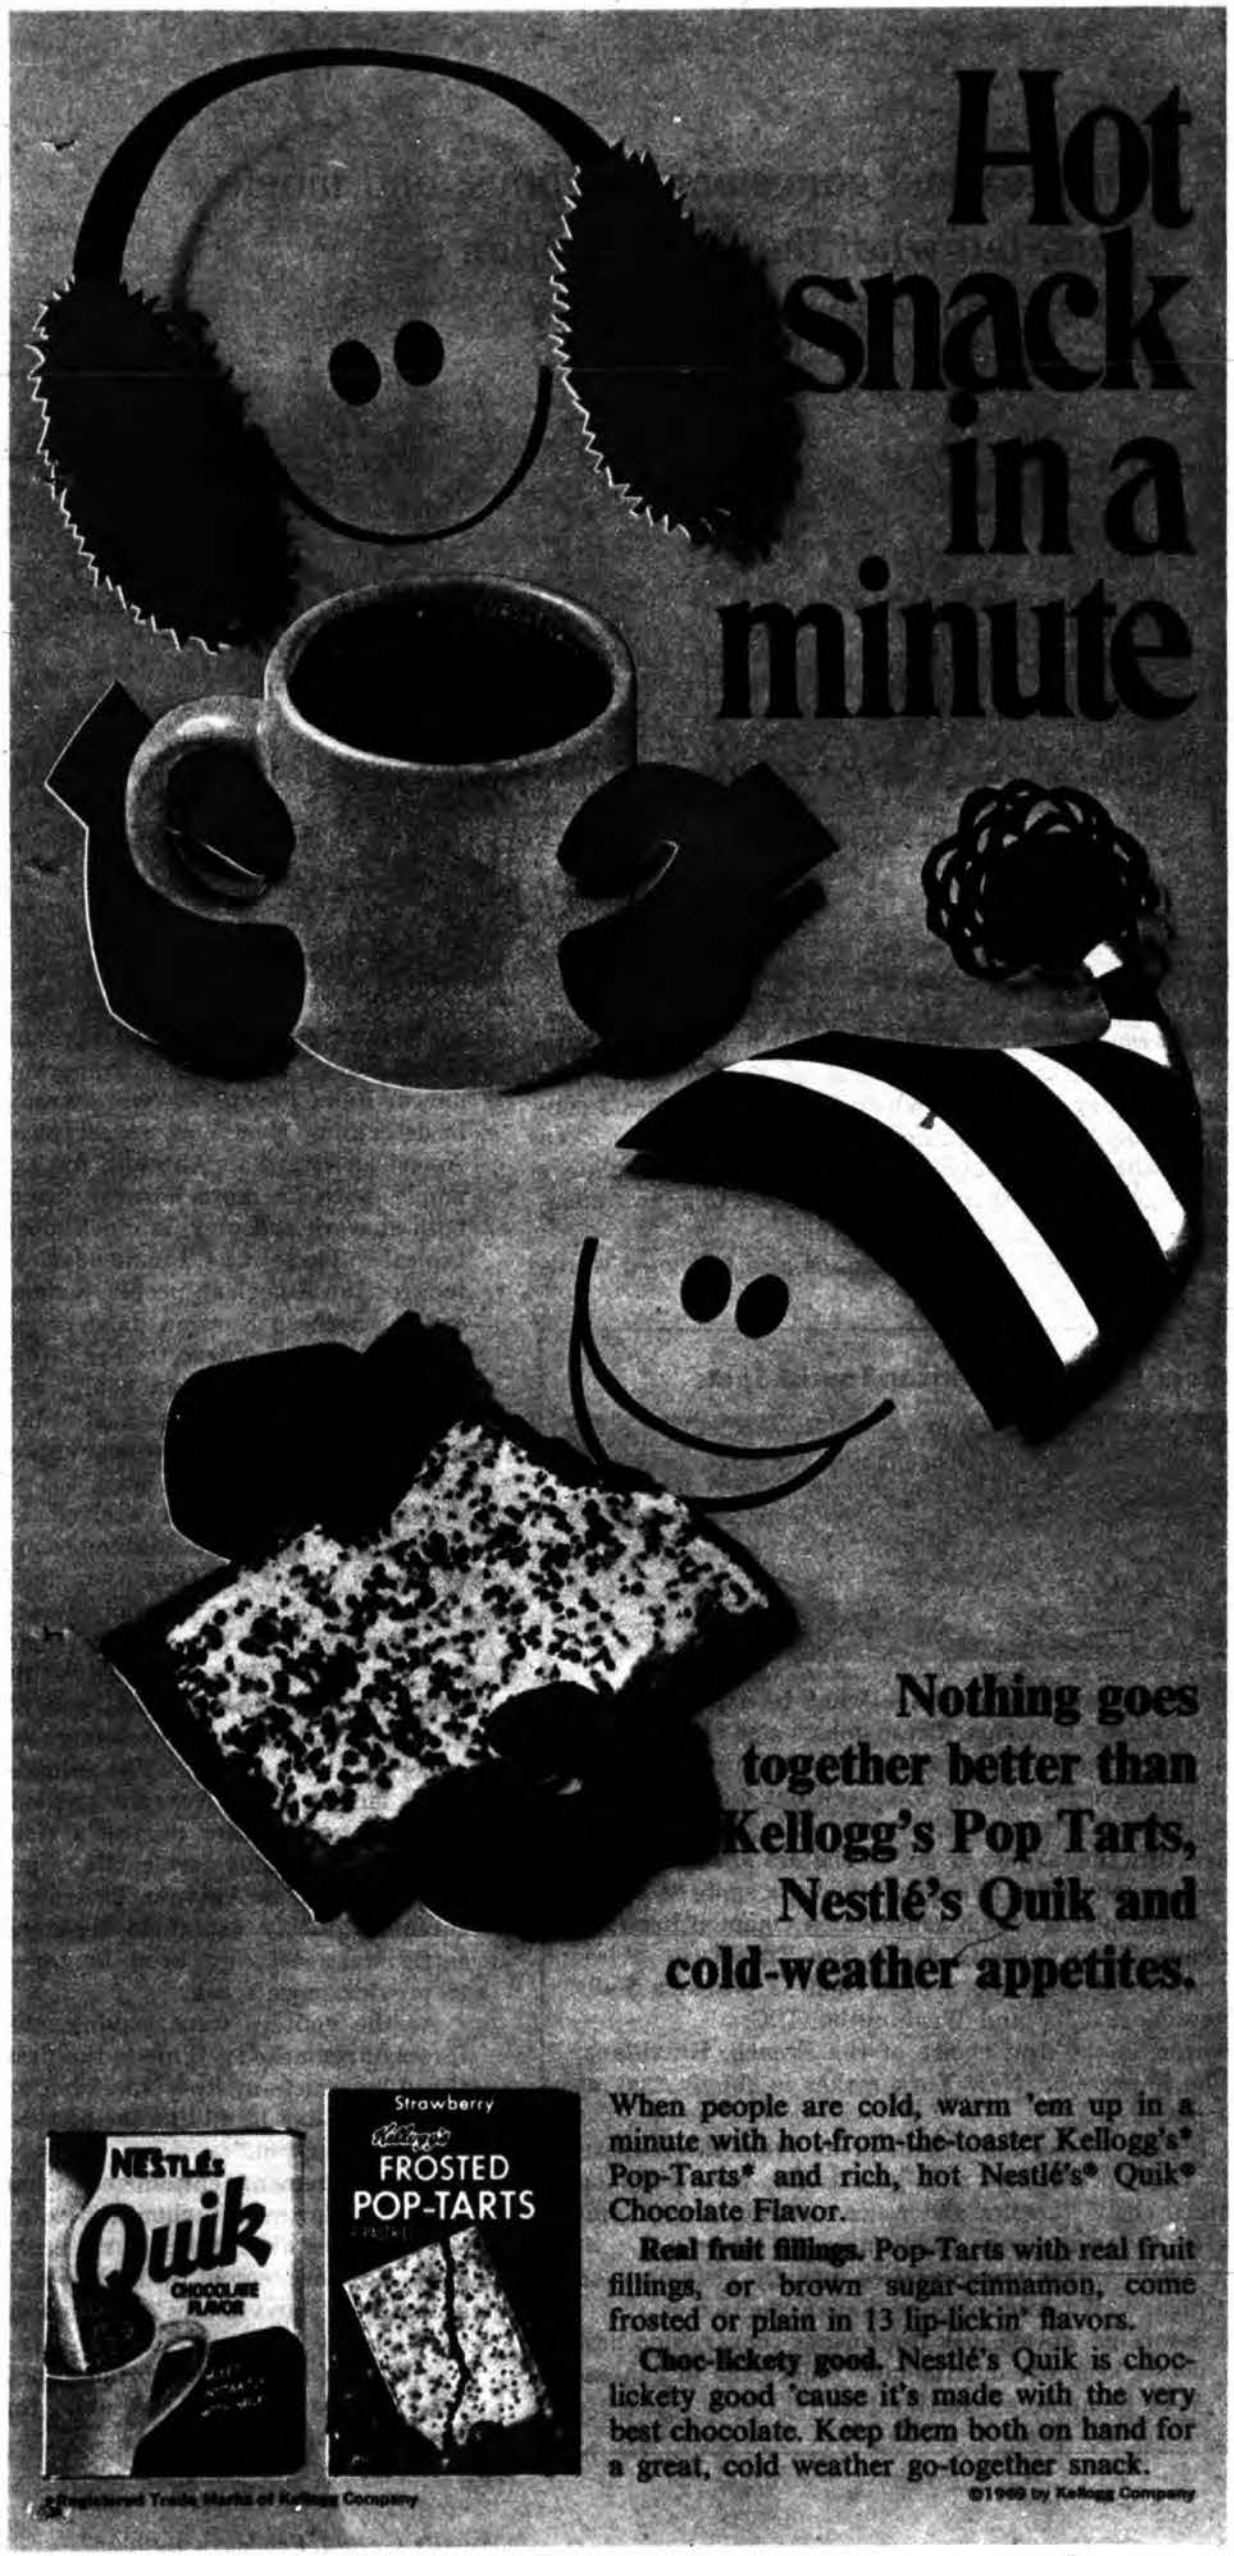

The British, who constitute the largest group of visitors and who spent $40 million here last year, usually want to see such historic spots as Plymouth Rock and Valley Forge, places which represent a common heritage they share with Americans. Their favorite city is San Francisco. Also the British prefer a traditional honeymoon spot such as Niagara Falls (pictured above) to New York City and Washington, D.C.

New York City, however, is the first choice of the French, Brazilians, Italians, and Danes. The impression New York makes is chiefly that of a great ethnic melting pot.

Any large city gets higher marks than rural areas from the Australians. Spaniards divide their preference equally between New York on the one hand and Western cattle ranches and rodeos on the other. Typically, no city scores with Austrians, who most enjoy ski resorts.

Most Italian visitors prefer to see the big cities, usually visiting such places as New York, Chicago, Washington, and San Francisco.

Wherever they go, our foreign guests look for former countrymen now living in America and have a keen eye out for how Americans in general live and work in "the great Republic of the West."

Beating Him to the Drawer

He can't find his beautiful new shirt,
And here stands my spouse with empty hands,
Rumpled, worried, and deeply hurt.
So where have I hidden it? he demands.

I'm guilty, as he insinuates.
Who'd ever think I would plague my dear
By hiding that shirt with its laundered mates
There in the drawer of his chiffonier!

A multimillionaire wanted to give his daughter the ultimate in wedding receptions. So he decided that, after the ceremony, he would pile all his guests into three chartered jets and fly to Africa for a safari.

After landing and picking up their native guides, the safari, 300 strong, moved off into the wilds of the Congo.

Some four days later, now deep in the jungle, the safari suddenly came to a complete halt.

"What's wrong?" the rich man asked the head guide.

How the Mentally Ill Are Helping Themselves

Through talk-therapy sessions, former mental patients are discovering a faster road to emotional health

By THEODORE BERLAND
Author of "The Scientific Life"

"LET ME tell you what happened to me this morning," says a tall, thin, 50-year-old man named Lyle, a man who looks much older than he really is.

"I had trouble getting out of bed; I just didn't want to go to work. Anyway, I couldn't eat any breakfast, I just wasn't hungry. On the way to work, I had to stand on the train all the way, and I got terribly nauseous. I wanted to go back home. Then I told myself that anyone can get nauseous . . ."

He continues his story, including every detail of his day, no matter how trivial. Lyle is speaking before a group of men and women seated around a table in a Chicago park field house. In turn, they all tell of the daily crises in their lives, explaining how they cope with them.

The group is part of a nationwide association of former mental patients, known as Recovery, Inc., formed 30 years ago to help these people calm their individual daily emotional storms. It is now America's largest and oldest emotional self-help organization.

Recovery's appeal to these people is instantly apparent. It helps them to help themselves. It helps them to conquer life in small pieces, a triviality at a time. It was dramatically highlighted to me during one of the group meetings held every afternoon at Recovery's national headquarters in downtown Chicago.

The members had given their examples of daily victories. The group leader, a tall, warm woman named Agnes (Recovery members always use first names), introduced Jackie, a newcomer to the group. When Agnes asked her if she had any questions, Jackie broke down and sobbed. Then she stammered, "I just wonder if anyone else feels the same as I do. I could sleep 24 hours a day. I stay home all of the time and drink black coffee. I hate to leave the house, and if I do, I hate going back. Does anyone else feel like this?"

Agnes said softly, "Ask Faye."

Faye, an older woman, who happened to be sitting next to Jackie, said, "Yes. It's been a few years, thank goodness. But I felt just the way you do now."

Agnes interjected, "You see, Jackie, we all have experienced the symptoms you tell us about."

Recovery's hope is in its living successes, its members sitting around the table. Each member is a testimonial that "The Method" (as its members call it) actually works.

The strength of Recovery is in the help older members give to new members. Former patients such as Agnes and Faye can best appreciate the hour-by-hour torment which patients like Jackie go through. They can appreciate most profoundly how much an everyday victory means in overcoming worry, fears, anxieties, or fits of the blues.

Recovery is medically based. Members are expected to be under the care of a physician or psychiatrist. It does not try to diagnose or to treat emotional disorders. It leaves that strictly to the doctors.

Recovery's founder was the late Dr. Abraham A. Low, a Chicago psychiatrist. His initial Recovery group, composed of his own patients, began Nov. 7, 1937. In today's automated medical-care climate, some of Recovery's precepts seem old-fashioned and homespun. Even so, their medical soundness has been proved over the past three decades. All revolve around the major thesis that it takes individual effort to become and stay emotionally well.

Doctor Low's original goal for Recovery was to help discharged mental patients cope with the defeatism, restlessness, and preoccupation that they almost invariably suffered after returning home.

He taught them not to be alarmed when they couldn't sleep, since occasional insomnia is not harmful: even if they lay awake, they were resting. He also taught them that the overwhelming feeling of fatigue shouldn't immobilize them, that it was merely a symptom which could be overcome by action, or, as he expressed it, by moving the muscles.

Most important of all, Dr. Low taught the Recovery group to spot their symptoms so they could see them for what they were and deal with them accordingly.

Today 9,000 persons (6,000 of them members) attend nearly 600 Recovery groups. All are open to the public and are self-supporting. They are located in 36 states and in three provinces of Canada.

Addresses of Recovery groups are listed in local phone directories, and are available through private physicians or through Recovery headquarters, 116 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Those who come to Recovery are from many different levels of society and from all occupations and professions, from housewives, salesladies, and secretaries to truck drivers, dentists, and judges.

Most importantly, those who come to Recovery share a common goal—to help one another help themselves. ◆

Doctor Developes Home Treatment that

RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES

In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple medicated home-treatment that rinses away blackheads and whiteheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three teen-age boys. The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough, muddy complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers, both boys and girls, are now saying "this is one product that really works", for good, clear, clean, healthy skins . . . and why mothers of teen-agers have heartily endorsed its use. The Masque Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for healthy skins, but also for the confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, whiteheads, acne-pimples and rough, unsightly complexions give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Start Now to Improve Your Complexion

Now is the time for action. Don't take a back seat or be a wall-flower because of bad skin. If you want to get your full share of fun and parties . . . clear up your complexion and let Mint Julep Masque "Lead the Way"! You owe it to yourself to try a single fifteen minute home treatment to convince yourself that this new Queen Helene masque-cream can work wonders for you.

Attention! MOTHERS of Teen-Agers

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque is a MUST for you, too! It will help tighten sagging skin on face and throat, relax tired face muscles and stimulate a fresher, cleaner, more youthful complexion. Try a Medicated Mint Julep Masque Treatment YOURSELF. You'll be delighted with the skin-tightening experience and more alive feeling that comes with every home-treatment.

Queen Helene Mint Masque is only $3.00 for the six ounce jar, enough for over 3 months of daily home treatments. Buy it today! Start using it immediately! Prove to yourself at our risk, for one full month. Peter Graves: The Star Who Lives in Shadows

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

PETER GRAVES, star of "Mission: Impossible," is a one-of-a-kind actor. In his 20 years in Hollywood he has made no enemies, offended no one, lived in the shadow of his brother, "Gunsmoke's" James Arness—and became a highly paid star in the process.

In this era of success-at-any-cost stars, that's a minor miracle. At least you think so until you talk to Peter, one of the most likable and unassuming men in Hollywood, a person totally devoid of jealousy of another's success. Then you know he just had to make it. Yet he has had to overcome some big obstacles on his way to stardom, the biggest being his 6-foot, 4-inch brother, the star of one of tv's longest-running series.

Before his own great success in "Mission: Impossible"—he took over the lead after the show became a hit—Peter was better known as "James Arness' brother" than as an individual. True, he had made some movies, most notably as the heavy in "Stalag 17," and did star in a popular children's tv series, "Fury." Nevertheless, he was not widely known and seemed destined to remain a talented "costar."

"Honestly, it never really bothered me," Peter says. "Besides being brothers, Jim and I are the best of friends. I've always been proud of his success—as he is of mine. We came from a home that gave us love and encouragement. Oh sure, there was the normal brotherly friction and bickering (Jim is three years older), but nothing serious. Jim never dominated me as you might expect in an older-younger brother relationship. In fact, Jim tried hard to discourage me from going into acting in the first place.

"Some people interpreted that as jealousy, that Jim didn't want me in the same profession, but he really was trying to spare me the hardship. He had had a tough uphill fight to make it. The first thing he said to me when I came to Los Angeles in 1949 was, 'Get on the train and go back home!' "

Although both brothers are stars of television series which are more or less in competition, they remain close. Hollywood insiders note a marked difference in the two men, though, claiming Arness is sullen, unfriendly, even unhappy, while Peter is the exact opposite.

"That's not true," Peter says. "Jim has a lot of pressure on him. He has to carry that series every year. My show is more like a team effort."

Maybe so, but Peter is billed as the star—a star characteristically overshadowed by Martin Landau and Barbara Bain, both Emmy nominees. How does Peter feel about this? "I'm happy for them—they're great people. What's good for them is good for the show, and so, good for me. And, too, they were established in the show before I came along. Besides, I'm not publicity hungry."

Peter and Barbara Bain on a "Mission" set.

That's undoubtedly true. As a matter of fact, Peter can be classified with Greta Garbo as being publicity shy—that probably accounts for his playing second fiddle to his brother all these years and now to the other stars of "Mission."

"Basically, that's fine," says Peter. "I really don't want my family subjected to undue publicity. I want to keep my private life separate from my professional life. I think my wife Joan and my daughters (Kelly Jean, 18; Claudia, 14; Amanda, 9) are happier for it."

How about his family life? "It's just great," Peter says. "I have three daughters, and girls tend to be closer to their father. That's fine with me. They are getting older now, so when the talk gets too girlish, I take my dog and go for a walk in the woods or something like that."

The way things are breaking for him now, Peter may have trouble keeping his publicity-free, idyllic life intact. He is now establishing himself as the star of "Mission"—and finally emerging from behind the shadow of his big brother. ◆

Kids' Letters to the Astronauts

By L. B. TAYLOR, Jr.

SEVERAL WEEKS AGO, FAMILY WEEKLY published authentic letters from American youngsters to their No. 1 heroes—our astronauts.

Readers apparently enjoyed them as much as the astronauts themselves, so here is a second sampling of mail received at Houston and Cape Kennedy.

"I would like to be a space pilot, but I don't think I can pass the physical because I have fillings in my teeth."

"Please accept this letter as my official application for space flight. I am 10 years old and big for my age. I do not need permission from my mother if I get your permission. I have four references: Kenny, my best friend; Nicky, my next best friend; Miss DeStefano, my teacher; and Bob, the fireman."

"I eat a good diet every day, like chopped liver. Would this qualify me to go into orbit?"

"Why don't you put giant fans to one side of the launching pad? Then, when you shoot your missiles off, the smoke would be blown away so you could see what's going on."

"Why don't you launch your rockets from the top of Mount Everest? It would save you five miles and a lot of fuel, too."

"I wish you would stop shooting your rockets off at Cape Kennedy because I believe it's causing bad weather and keeping us from going to Little League."

"Will you please send me two little rockets for my belt so I don't have to walk to school any more? I enclose two cereal box tops as payment."

"If you need a little boy to go on one of your space flights, my brother should qualify. He has enough gas to prepare you for lift-off."

"I would like to wish the astronauts good luck on their way around Earth. I'll blink my flashlight on and off so as to say hello."

"The blast-off of your latest rocket was very good, but my dad says to tell you to send a woman when you are ready to go to the moon because, he says, a woman driver can hit anything." ◆

THE SWIM DRESS

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

WITH PEEK-A-BOO fashions such an evident part of the American landscape, who can blame a lady (sans starlet proportions) for wanting to cover up?

On the beach scene, the swim dress is the answer. That's the prediction of designers who are turning out the loose and lovely, but figure-skimming, styles as a major part of their new lines.

The latest swim attire is solid or patterned; pleated, ruffled, or smooth; belted high, low, or not at all.

Does that mean the bikini is dead? "No," declares one prognosticator, "but it's decidedly on the wane or being cleverly combined with a cage top that adds feminine allure."

Will girl watchers protest? "No" is again the consensus. After all, wasn't it a man who opined that a woman is really sexier when she's wearing more, not less? ◆

Luscious strawberry print on a sheer dotted fabric of Dacron and cotton makes up this two-piece cage swim dress from Dune Deck. $18.

Pirouetted against the Japanese teahouse at the Shibui Hotel in St. Thomas is Catalina's permanently pleated, quick-drying Dacron-cotton suit, belted with flair. $30.

The best of both worlds: a maillot suit with scalloped half skirt, dotted with daisies, in a Du Pont Antron nylon stretch knit. $30. Gottex of Israel.

Homer's blindness may have been a blessing. For the gods seem to have replaced his eyes with remarkable insight.

You can read his Odyssey and Iliad even today and learn why some men become heroes and others remain earthbound failures. Why some nations become great, while others fall apart.

These epic stories—which Homer first chanted 2,500 years ago along the shores of the Aegean—are the oldest known and perhaps the greatest writings of Western man.

Because Homer's timeless works so ideally represent the kind of books we offer our members, we'd like to send you The Iliad and The Odyssey, along with Sir Thomas More's Utopia.

You may have all three (regularly $11.67) for only $1, as your introduction to the Classics Club.

The Classics Club is quite unlike any other book club.

The Club does not offer best sellers that come and go. Instead, it offers its members a chance to stay young through great books that never grow old. Books such as Plato's Five Great Dialogues; The Complete Works of Shakespeare; Benjamin Franklin's Autobiography; Omar Khayyam's Rubaiyat; Walden, by Thoreau; and other fresh, spontaneous, even outspoken works that stretch your mind and sweep away the mental cobwebs that hold back most men.

You never have to buy any of these books. (To force you to buy a classic would be barbaric.) As a member, take only those books you really want to own. And, you may cancel your membership at any time, without penalty or hurt feelings.

The selections themselves are remarkable values. They are carefully printed on expensive paper stock. They are hard-bound in matched sand-colored buckram, worked and stamped in crimson, black, and genuine gold.

Through direct-to-the-public distribution, we are able to offer our members these deluxe editions for only $3.89 each, plus shipping. (This low price will soon be increased. But if you mail the coupon now, you will enjoy the present price as long as you remain a member.)

Interested? Simply mail the coupon, without money, and we will send you the first three selections—The Iliad, The Odyssey, and Utopia —all three for only $1, plus shipping.

Please enroll me as a trial member and send me the three beautiful Classics Club editions of THE ILIAD, THE ODYSSEY, and UTOPIA. I enclose no money in advance. Within a week of receiving them, I will either return them and owe nothing, or keep them and pay the introductory price of $1, plus shipping.

As a Classics Club member, I'll get word in advance of all future selections. For each volume I decide to keep, I will pay only $3.89 plus shipping. I may reject any volume before or after I receive it, and I may cancel my membership at any time. (Books shipped in U.S.A. only.)

CORRECTION AND APOLOGY

It is with deepest regret that we acknowledge and hasten to retract a serious error in a recent issue of TV WEEK. It was a human error—made with no malice nor intent to cause harm, therefore, it is hoped we will be forgiven.

We refer to the Cover Story on Rona Barrett in the January 16 issue of TV WEEK, in which a non-staff writer erroneously referred to Louella Parsons as deceased. Although the writer did conduct what was felt at the time to be a thorough check from knowledgeable sources to attain confirmation of the fact, we have learned that the information was incorrect. Miss Parsons is retired—but still very much alive.

Needless to say, the TV WEEK staff is terribly sorry that this error was not caught.

Therefore, we offer our most sincere apologies to all concerned.

Hallmark Drama: 'Teacher, Teacher'

A 13-year-old youth with no formal dramatic training has a major role, along with stars David McCallum. Ossie Davis and George Grizzard, in the Hallmark Hall of Fame original drama, "Teacher, Teacher," Wednesday at 7:30 PM.

David McCallum portrays the newly hired mentor of Billy Schulman.

Billy Schulman of Woodbury, Long Island, N.Y., portrays Freddie, a mentally retarded child, in the Allan Sloane script. The youngster was proposed for the role by officials of the National Association for Re- tarded Children who felt he could give dramatic testimony of the use- ful lives he and others are capable of living. Young Schulman attends special classes at the Harry B. Thompson Junior High School in Syosset, Long Island.

During production he was accom- panied by Dr. Jack Tobias, former executive director of the New York City Chapter of the association, who was also the show's technical con- sultant. An authority on mental re- tardation, he has published many books on the subject.

Dr. Tobias said he believes the ob- jective treatment of mental retarda- tion in "Teacher, Teacher" will help bring the viewing public to a much greater understanding of the prob- lems of six million retarded Americans, many of whom are children.

McCallum, the Scottish-born actor who rose to international prominence as Illya Kuryakin in NBC's Man From UNCLE series, portrays Hamilton Cade, a tutor who tries to rehabilitate the men- tally retarded youth.

David McCallum (left) and Ossie Davis come to the aid of a fallen mentally retarded youngster played by Billy Schulman.

Ossie Davis co-sars in the pivotal role of the handyman, Charles Carter. Davis is best known for his starring Broadway role in "Purlie Victorious," which he also wrote. The actor also performed in the motion picture version of the 1962 comedy that told of the Negro's new image in the South.

George Grizzard, the versatile Broadway actor, appears in the prominent role of the retarded boy's father. Grizzard is now ap- pearing on Broadway in the revue, "Noel Coward's Sweet Potato."

The 90-minute drama, produced by George Lefferts and directed by Fielder Cook, was written especially for the Hallmark series. Henry Jaffe is the executive producer of the production filmed in Glen Head, Long Island, and at Pathe sound stages in New York City.

two out of five

Let's Make a Deal, with Monty Hall as host (top), and What's It All About, World? with Dean Jones as host (below) are just two of five new entertainment programs ABC has slotted into mid-season primetime.

Let's Make a Deal (seen weekdays at 1:30 PM) debuts in primetime Friday at 9 PM, with Monty in the cashier's role, handing out cash and merchandise prizes to studio participants. The program is produced for ABC by Steve Hatos and Monty Hall in Los Angeles.

What's It All About, World? premieres Thursday at 9 PM. Produced by Saul Ilson and Ernest Chambers, World takes the shape of things as they are and puts them into satirical perspective. Additional conspirators besides host Dean Jones are regulars Gerri Granger (she's a new young pop singer with a lot of voice), the bright new comedy team of Dick Clair and Jenna McMahon, and comedian Scoey Mitchlll—that's right, three Ls. Scoey says he just got used to it that way after a somewhat illiterate sign painter repeatedly misspelled it.

The three other new programs are: Turn-On (Wednesday, 8:30 PM), billed as "an emotional experience via live, taped, animated and graphic images of contemporary life"; This Is Tom Jones (Friday, 7:30 PM), with the Welshman singing contemporary songs and playing host to major guest stars; Generation Gap (Friday, 8:30 PM), with Dennis Wholey as host. During the half hour, selected teenagers and adults (in their 30s & 40s) compete to see how much each group knows, or doesn't know about the other. Questions cover the range of fads, fashions, language usage, entertainment figures, shows, sports and politics.

STEVE AND EYDIE'S 'ALBUMUSICAL'

Records, in the usual sense of the word, are either set, broken, played, marked up, marked down, panned or praised.

A record in the unusual sense is Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme's "What It Was, Was Love." It's both a newly-released RCA album and the first disc in history to literally leap off the grooves onto television intact as a special for The Kraft Music Hall airing Wednesday on NBC at 9 PM.

"What It Was, Was Love" is an original story conceived and written by Gordon Jenkins expressly for Steve and Eydie. According to Jenkins, whose "Manhattan Towers" is still a musical legend, "What It Was, Was Love" is a "romance in musical form, the story of a marriage and a lyrical profile all in one." Both the album and the TV show are done without narration and include 12 songs.

And, both the album AND the TV show include two other ingredients—Steve and Eydie who, despite the frenzied emergence of rock groups, protest songs and socio-musical commentators, are still the unashamedly Establishment-oriented sweethearts of American popular music.

As Steve Lawrence himself points out, "We're so out that I think we're in. Eydie and I wash regularly; I don't wear my hair long; we dress neatly; we don't use four-letter words onstage and we don't even take our clothes off professionally."

As a neat parallel to "What It Was, Was Love," the two are currently starring in their own musical, "Golden Rainbow," now in its second year on Broadway. "Rainbow" is simply a story about a family that likes each other, and the show is an example of Steve's and Eydie's popularity.

As a parallel to both "What It Was, Was Love" and "Golden Rainbow," the personal lives of Steve and Eydie closely resemble the story lines of these two vehicles. They met on the old Steve Allen Show some 12 years ago where their romance grew into marriage and into parenthood. They have been husband and wife for 11 years and have carried the musical message of love across the bounds of local fads, top 40 radio and past the invisible stop signs of the "generation gap."

Eydie has an exciting, vibrant voice and a personality to match. She has a uniquely individual style and is one of the most distinctive song stylists on the musical scene today.

A native New Yorker, born in the Bronx as the youngest of three children. Eydie is today at the pinnacle of a rewarding career.

The high point of her successful recording career was perhaps reached early in 1967, when she received the Grammy Award, the coveted trophy of the recording industry, for the "Best Female Vocalist of the Year" for her rendition of "If He Walked Into My Life."

Eydie became a vocalist with the high school orchestra when she attended William Howard Taft High School. Upon graduation, Eydie, who speaks fluent Spanish, became an interpreter for a theatrical supply export company, while simultaneously attending night school at City College in New York and continuing her singing with weekend jobs.

She gave up the job to go on a national tour with the Tommy Tucker Orchestra, then became vocalist with Tex Beneke and his Orchestra.

In 1963 she was first signed to appear as a "regular" on the old Tonight Show, headed by Steve Allen, and she also managed to become a Copa "regular" by filling in (on short notice) for an ailing Billy Daniels. It was on the Tonight Show that she began doing duets with the young lad from Brooklyn named Steve Lawrence.

Steve is immeasurably talented, charming and a first-rate singer. He has been singing ever since he was a child and his first contact with recognition came when he won first prize on a number of radio and television talent programs, indicating that his talent would withstand the rigors of the world of the professional. His television appearances led to a recording contract with King Records and his first hit record, "Poinciana," brought him national recognition.

Approximately one year later he became a permanent member of the Tonight Show cast. In 1958 he served a two-year hitch in the army. He first made his debut in a "legitimate" show ("Pal Joey") in 1962, and went on to his first Broadway appearance in 1963-64 as the scrambling, deviously-motivated, grasping Sammy Glick in "What Makes Sammy Run?" This characterization assured him of a place of respect in the "show me" hierarchy of the legitimate theatre. He won the coveted New York Drama Critics Award for his performance. In 1965 he starred in his own CBS musical series.

The scope of his ability to "entertain" surmounts the usual borderlines of singing, for his quick way with a humorous line has also made him a most sought-after guest on many variety and discussion programs. One of Columbia's most prolific recording stars for years, he and Eydie now record for RCA Records.

The two, whose careers have taken them both separately and together to television, Broadway, personal appearances in night clubs and to recognition in the recording field, have stayed clear of The Gimmick, The Shortcut, Blue Gags and the like.

"This seems to be an era," says Eydie, "where there's tremendous pressure brought to bear on most entertainers to 'do your own thing'. In most cases, that means simply to do anything for a laugh or for a few lines in the papers. To us, our 'own thing' is to polish and perfect what we do best, and in the course of doing that, we've tried to do our part to keep pace with the kind of new sound the public demands of performers."

"What we've stayed clear of," says Steve, breaking in with husband-like politeness, "is that old bugaboo of desperately trying to change our identification at the first sign of a new trend. Most of them don't last. We prefer to do things and to grow our way."

And out of doing things their way springs an innovational special such as "What It Was, Was Love," which is really a misnomer. For Steve and Eydie, "what-it-is, IS love!"
