

No gambling, please

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Attorney General John Van de Kamp has turned chips ... er, thumbs ... down on a plan to use a San Diego-based passenger ship for high seas gambling.

In a formal opinion, Van de Kamp said the proposal by Crown Cruise Lines would violate California laws that make it a misdemeanor to operate a "gambling ship," conduct various kinds of casino games or possess slot machines.

Crown Cruise Lines has been planning to offer daily "Cruises to Nowhere" starting next month on the Viking Princess, a 700-passenger liner that would include a casino for 200 patrons.

The plan called for the casino to open for business once the ship sails past the state's three-mile territorial limit. The casino would have 100 slot machines, a craps table, a wheel of fortune, two roulette tables and six blackjack tables.

The ship would make daily 9-to-11-hour excursions as far as 20 miles to sea, but Van de Kamp said that wouldn't matter.

He said that even though gambling would not take place until after the ship left California territory, it would still be illegal and the ship could be cited as soon as it returned to port.

Jury selection delays start of dentist's trial

Jury selection in Costa Mesa dentist Tony Protopappas' second-degree murder trial — moving along far slower than expected — will not be completed until sometime next week.

Attorneys in the case had hoped the jury selection process, complicated by the complexity of the charges and the publicity that has surrounded the high-profile case, would already be completed. However, the questioning of each prospective juror by both the defense and prosecution has taken longer than any of the lawyers predicted.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas Thursday recessed the trial until Monday.

Protopappas, 38, is charged with murder in the anesthesia-related deaths of three patients who died allegedly as a result of treatment at his high-volume Costa Mesa dental clinic.

The prosecution alleges the deaths were caused by the doctor's "wanton negligence" while Protapappas, through his attorneys, said the deaths were accidental.

Stabbed rapist found guilty

By STEVE MARBLE

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Ex-convict Steven Lee Burmood was found guilty Friday by a Superior Court jury of attempting to rape a Huntington Beach babysitter who had to stab the man with a 10-inch kitchen knife to escape his clutches.

Jurors also convicted Burmood on one count of burglary but reduced a third count of assault with a deadly weapon to a lesser charge of assault.

Burmood, a dark-haired 28-year-old who had testified that it was the 18-year-old girl who made sexual advances to him, could be sentenced to 12 years in state prison.

Burmood has been in custody since the Nov. 1 incident and was led away in handcuffs again Friday after jurors announced the decisions.

In a rare legal move, the West Orange Superior Court jury will be asked Monday to decide if Burmood has been convicted of rape before and whether he was on parole when the attack on the babysitter took place.

According to the state Department of Corrections, Burmood pleaded guilty to charges of rape and attempted rape in 1979 and was sentenced to prison. Records show he was accused of raping a 28-year-old housewife in front of her two young children and attacking a 16-year-old girl.

He was granted parole and released from Soledad State Prison on June 20, 1983, according to Phil Guthrie, a state corrections spokesman.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Maguire said he is unsure what Monday's hearing would reveal and called it "unique."

Burmood's attorney could not be reached for comment.

Newport cocaine bust gets bigger

Police find two more pounds in pair's car

A Solvang couple first arrested on suspicion of having a small amount of cocaine was eyed with new suspicion by Newport Beach police Friday when officers opened a suitcase in their car and allegedly found two more pounds of the drug.

Gordon Francis Goff, 34, and his pregnant wife Suzanne were arrested late Thursday after a Corona del Mar resident called to report that a car was parked in the middle of the street and its occupants were acting in a suspicious manner.

A Newport Beach patrolman found several ounces of cocaine, a .22-caliber handgun and a small amount of cash inside the car, according to police.

Goff was held on $50,000 bail at Newport Beach city jail on suspicion of possession of drugs for sale.

His wife, because she was 8 1/2 months pregnant, was taken to the UCI Medical Center jail ward.

"There was some concern that she was about to go into labor," reported police spokesman Officer Tom Little. On Friday, Newport police said they obtained a search warrant and popped open a suitcase in the trunk of the couple's car. Neatly wrapped and hidden beneath a wetsuit were two pounds of cocaine, according to narcotics officers.

The confiscated drugs have a street value of $60,000.

Street racing teens face murder trial

Judge refuses to reduce charges in crash that killed mother of 5

By STEVE MARBLE

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Huntington Beach High School students will stand trial for murder in the traffic death of a Fountain Valley mother of five, an Orange County Juvenile Court Judge ruled Friday.

Jeff Thomas and Randy Craft, both 17, entered pleas of not guilty to the murder charges after Judge Don McCartin rejected a plea to reduce the charges to a lesser manslaughter offense.

The two Huntington Beach youths will be allowed to remain free on the condition they don't drive. A trial date was set for June 25.

It will be the first time in Orange County that a juvenile faces second-degree murder charges as a result of a car accident. It also is the first time in the county that anyone faces trial for murder in a car accident that did not involve alcohol.

Thomas and Craft, both high school seniors, were arrested in December following a violent three-car accident in Huntington Beach which killed Gloria Chang, 48.

The teens allegedly were racing each other along busy Adams Avenue when they slammed — one after the other — into Chang's Datsun at Newland Street.

Police claimed Thomas and Craft were driving at speeds reaching 90 mph as they weaved in and out of traffic.

Chang died half an hour after the accident. Thomas, driving a Chevrolet Camaro, suffered a badly broken leg and a 15-year-old riding in his car sustained serious injuries.

Deputy District Attorney filed second-degree murder charges against Thomas and Craft, arguing they showed a "wanton disregard" for life by the way they were driving.

Hearing set on NB lawsuit to block airport parking

Orange County Superior Court Judge Bruce Sumner — who once before overturned the county's plans for the expansion of John Wayne Airport — will consider the city of Newport Beach's latest challenge to airport improvement plans during a hearing March 30.

Newport city officials formally filed legal papers Friday asking the court to issue a preliminary injunction that would bar the county from proceeding with plans to construct a $3 million parking lot north of John Wayne Airport.

The 1,800-car parking lot the county wants to build would be across the San Diego Freeway from the airport. Passengers parking in the new lot would ride shuttle buses to and from the airport terminal.

Newport Beach city officials contend the environmental impact report prepared for the project and unanimously approved by supervisors on Tuesday was faulty. City Attorney Robert Burnham has advised board members he believes the report was inadequate because it addresses expansion of airport facilities in "piecemeal fashion" rather than as a comprehensive whole, as Sumner ordered in 1981.

Newport Mayor Evelyn Hart and other city council members believe the parking lot is the first step toward increasing flights at John Wayne Airport from their present 41-flight lid to 55 flights per day.

However, supervisors contend the parking lot is needed to reduce existing over-crowded conditions at the airport, caused largely by the introduction of newer, quieter jets that carry far more passengers than their predecessors.

'Round and 'round they go — helping research funding grow

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

For five or six years now, the pupils of Jeanne Mulligan's sixth grade classes at Sowers School in Huntington Beach have struck up a special relationship with the old and often infirm patients at the nearby Garfield Care Convalescent Hospital.

At Halloween, the kids dress up in costumes and bring jack-o'-lanterns on their visits.

At Thanksgiving time, they put on their pilgrim outfits and serve pumpkin pies that they cook in the kitchen of their Huntington Beach middle school. They also make a big banner and each student writes why he or she is thankful. Each reads it aloud to the patients.

At Christmas, the youngsters decorate trees and sing carols.

But these are special occasions. The youngsters visit every month and they go from room to room, sometimes just holding hands with the patients.

"They're very empathetic," Mulligan said. "They are learning that there is a real world out there — that if you do something good it makes you feel good."

"They're also learning that even if people are that old, (the patients) ages range from 57 to 97) life has something to offer," she said.

About 50 of the youngsters were out at the convalescent home again Thursday, most on roller skates but some on skateboards.

They were doing laps around the parking lot, raising money through donations to fight Alzheimer's disease, a brain disorder resulting in loss of memory and deterioration of thought processes.

The kids hope to raise $200 or so. Their mothers also baked cookies and made punch which they donated to the fund-raising venture.

But it's not necessarily the money — it's the thought that counts most, according to Phyllis Wilcox, activities director of the convalescent hospital.

"All this activity and noise and kids remind them (the old patients) of the good old days," Wilcox said. "Each year it also seems that a prominent patient that the kids know dies and so the youngsters learn about deaths and aging."

Women in Business honor trio of child care advocates

By KAREN E. KLEIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

After a year of pushing for local and legislative responsibility for child care, Linda Farnell, Betty Shaffer and Wilma Presley say there is a lot more work to be done.

The three Orange Coast women who founded Child Care Advocates of America after 5-year-old Patrick Mason was accidentally shot by a Stanton police officer last year were honored Friday by the Orange County chapter of Women in Business.

The Women in Business group held a dinner at the Newporter Resort to honor the women and the legislators who have helped further child care both in Orange County and statewide.

Over the past year, Farnell said, a tax incentive for employers who provide child care has been introduced in the state Legislature and the Teamsters, a labor organization with 180,000 members in Southern California, has announced it will ask for child care benefits at the bargaining table.

The Child Care Advocates this month initiated the Adopt-A-Child child care program, designed to assist employed but needy parents with providing day-care scholarships.

Trinity Presbyterian Church in Santa Ana is operating the scholarship program.

Farnell emphasized that local solutions to the child care dilemma need to be found.

"Legislation is only a support measure, not the answer," she said.

A group of 16 concerned Laguna Beach citizens led by Farnell has organized to meet child care needs in that city through a network of local civic organizations and city support.

The Child Care Advocates recently expanded its board to include 25 members, some from other organizations with similar concerns, such as women's groups and social service agencies, Farnell said.

Shaffer said private-sector business involvement is crucial to the child care cause. "We are hoping that in the next year we will have major employers that provide child care facilities," she said. "As of now there has been no full-scale commitment by major corporations."

Fairview State Hospital in Costa Mesa and UC Irvine are the only major employers that maintain on-site child care centers for employees, she said.

A recent blow to the organization came with the state ruling against mandating that a woman be returned to her job after a maternity leave, Shaffer said.

"This will have a very severe impact on child care. Infant care is already the worst problem we have," she said. "Now, mothers will have to go back to work even sooner because they won't want to lose their jobs."

A 'record' dash that will leave her spinning

By KAREN E. KLEIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Stephanie Spradling doesn't even remember signing up for a contest at the Licorice Pizza record store in Costa Mesa a few months ago. It only took a second.

But the 29-year-old Newport Beach woman walked out the door with $166.30 worth of record albums from the Newport Boulevard store Wednesday morning because she did. And that only took a few seconds.

Spradling, a substitute teacher, won second place in a promotion sponsored by the 34 Licorice Pizza stores in Southern California and WEA Home Video, Finnair Airlines and Los Angeles jazz radio station KKKO.

Although the contest's two grand prize winners made off with round-trip plane fare to Helsinki, Finland, Spradling wasn't complaining about her prize: She won a chance to run through the store and grab as many records as she could in 105 seconds.

Why the odd amount of time? Station KKKO, you see, is number 105.6 on the dial.

Spradling used her 1 minute, 45 seconds to the maximum, picking up 19 albums by such artists as Culture Club, Devo, Michael Jackson, Bob Dylan, Billy Joel, the Beatles, the Thompson Twins, the Pretenders, Jackson Browne and Duran Duran.

George Briner, Licorice Pizza's

marketing coordinator, timed Spradling and explained the rules to her. She had to pick up each album individually and place it on the counter before going back for more.

The contest started with Briner's digital wristwatch at 0.

Spradling dashed to the record aisles, grabbed a record and ran it to the counter. Then she jogged back to the aisles.

About halfway through, she started to get winded. "I should have worked out before I came today," she said.

At the end of the 105 seconds, Spradling's grand total was 19. She was allowed to choose another to make an even 20.

Spradling carefully looked over her selection before the clock started ticking. She comes into the store often, she said, but usually to buy tapes, not records.

The albums will go to good use, she said, she just bought a stereo a week ago.

Spradling didn't bring along a cheering team Wednesday. In fact, she said, she kept word of the contest to herself and told all her friends she'd be in Mission Viejo that morning.

"You have no idea how they'd harass me if they knew I was doing this," she explained.

Briner, who joined Licorice Pizza three years ago as a clerk at the Costa Mesa store, said the company puts on a record run about four to six times a year.

STABBED RAPIST FOUND GUILTY...

From A1
how she had found Burmood sleeping on a couch in her employer's living room. She claimed he had a nylon stocking on his head and a large knife in one hand.

The woman testified that Burmood led her to a bedroom as her young charges — aged 2 and 3 — began crying. At one point, she said, she tried to wrestle the knife away from the man but was unsuccessful.

In the bedroom, she claimed Burmood stripped himself and then undressed her. The woman claimed she saw her chance moments later when she spotted the knife on the floor.

"I skimmed it up to the top of his leg and stabbed him," she testified.

Burmood, though, told the story differently. He claimed he was so drunk he had approached the house thinking it was his, fell through a window and then passed out on the couch.

When he awoke, the woman was coming at him with a knife, Burmood stated. He said the babysitter then took him to the bedroom, undressed him and stabbed him once they were in bed.

Police later found the blood-stained knife tucked under a pillow of the bed and found the woman's blue jeans, which the man said he put on in his haste to leave, at Burmood's house.

Burmood, according to testimony, drove to his parent's house and collapsed in an upstairs bedroom from the knife wound. When arrested, he told police he been attacked in a parking lot fight.

traffic deaths. Five such cases have been filed in Orange County though no one has yet been convicted in such a case.

James Egar and William Anagnostou filed a demurrer asking the judge to reject the second-degree murder charges. Both said if the demurrer was rejected they would take further legal steps to eliminate the charges.

Additionally, Thomas has filed a claim against the City of Huntington Beach and Orange County government, charging he is the subject of a careless and malicious investigation.

The claim does not seek a specified amount of damages.

Egar, in a conversation this week, said he believed the prosecutor was attempting to "stretch" the law to punish the teens.

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran said Friday that it will retaliate with chemical weapons if the Iraqis continue to use them. Iraq has denied repeated accusations that it has used mustard gas and nerve gas in the Persian Gulf War. Both sides reported heavy air and ground fighting in the marshlands east of Basra, where the Iraqis occupy Iraq's Majnoon Islands oilfield. Iran said the Iraqis, trying to recapture the islands, wounded 2,200 Iranian soldiers in the heavy fighting that raged in the Howizeh marshes during Iran's latest offensive.

Contaminated steel in Mexico

TIJUANA — Baja California's Coordinated Public Health Services have recommended destruction of any buildings erected with radioactive steel reinforcing rods. An estimated 25 tons of the rods, contaminated by radioactive cobalt, have been found at 350 construction sites in the border city of Mexicali. Rods at 80 of the sites were found to have contamination levels considered unsafe, authorities said Thursday.

Marine copter crashes in S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A U.S. Marine Corps helicopter carrying 18 Americans and 11 South Koreans slammed into a mountainside in bad weather early Saturday, and a U.S. military spokesman said all aboard are believed to have perished.

The helicopter, taking part in Team Spirit '84, a training exercise, was returning from a mission that was aborted because of bad weather at the time of the crash, the spokesman, Col. Rallin J. Aars, said.

The announcement by Aars, public affairs officer for U.S. Forces in Korea, said: "All 29 U.S. and ROK marines who were aboard a U.S. Marine CH-53D helicopter which crashed about 4 a.m. today, approximately 24 miles north of Pohang, are believed to have perished in the accident."

Rescue and investigating teams were reported on the scene about 200 miles southeast of Seoul. A military announcement said the U.S. Navy vessel Belleau Wood was standing by offshore "to provide assistance as required."

The Belleau Wood, an amphibious assault ship, is equipped with a surgical hospital.

Officials said the helicopter was engaged in Team Spirit '84, an annual training maneuver involving thousands of U.S. and South Korean military personnel. The war games began Feb. 11 and will continue into April.

The report placed the crash site 24 miles north of Pohang, a port town on the southeast coast that has been a center of activity for the maneuvers.

"An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the accident. Identification of personnel involved will be withheld until next of kin have been notified," a military statement read.

The Marine helicopter is known as the "Sea Stallion" and can carry 38 combat-loaded infantrymen. It normally has a crew of three.

Wednesday night, the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk collided with a Soviet nuclear-powered submarine in the Sea of Japan 150 miles southeast of Pohang.

Rival factions turn Beirut streets into battleground

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fierce street battles raged Friday in mostly Moslem west Beirut as Druse fighters tried to dislodge rival Sunni Moslem militiamen from strongholds they had retaken overnight.

After nearly 11 hours of fighting, sources said the two sides had reached agreement on a cease-fire that was to take effect Friday night.

Police sources said at least 17 people were killed and 80 wounded in fighting between the Druse and the Libyan-backed Mourabitoun militias, and that more victims might be trapped in areas ambulances could not reach.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the Druse lost five dead and 20 wounded. They had no figure for Mourabitoun casualties.

Neighborhood residents, many of whom huddled in basements or stairwells, said the fighting began at midmorning when Mourabitoun gunmen regrouped. The Progressive Socialist Party militia of Druse leader Walid Jumblatt had overrun their positions on Thursday.

After nightfall, sources said, leaders of the various political groups met at the home of Grand Mufti Hassan Khaled, leader of the Sunni community, and agreed that all gunmen would leave the streets of west Beirut and turn over security to Lebanon's internal security forces.

Throughout the day, neighborhoods around the Corniche Mazraa shopping thoroughfare were rocked by automatic weapons fire and thunderous explosions.

The Druse fired 23mm anti-aircraft guns, recoilless rifles and heavy machine guns in support of fighters trying to root out the Sunni gunmen from apartment houses.

But by late afternoon, the Druse had advanced little against the Sunnis, who returned their fire from rooftops with equally potent weapons.

Meanwhile, Shiite Moslem militiamen from the Amal group traded rifle, mortar and grenade fire with Christian militiamen and the Lebanese army across the "green line" that divides Beirut into Christian and Moslem halves.

The French-controlled museum crossing point, the main link between the two sectors, remained closed for a second day.

The French government said in a communique issued by spokesman Michel Vauzelle that its troops will withdraw from Beirut within a few days. The 1,200 French soldiers are the last of the four-nation multinational force still in Beirut. The United States, Italy and Britain pulled their troops out earlier.

Vauzelle said Defense Minister Charles Hernu would give further details later today on the withdrawal. "It is a matter of days," the statement said.

A few cars with terrified civilians tried to escape the fighting and careened down the rain-slick streets. On the sidewalks, Druse fighters darted in and out of storefronts, trying to advance.

In one small alley, an old woman wailed as she tried to talk her militiaman son out of joining the fighting. Several other militiamen finally led her away.

Pair plead innocent in porn snuff case

From staff and wire reports

Two men, one a former Costa Mesa upholsterer, have pleaded innocent to charges they killed two teen-age girls after offering them $500 to appear in pornographic films, a court official disclosed Friday.

Fred Berre Douglas, 55, and Richard Hernandez, 38, entered the pleas Thursday at North Orange County Municipal Court during a hearing originally called to determine whether the media should be allowed to take pictures of the proceedings.

Douglas, a former Costa Mesa man, and Hernandez will return to court April 24 for a hearing to determine whether they should stand trial in the so-called "snuff film" slayings.

Both men are charged in the August 1982 slayings of Beth Jones, 19, and Margaret Krueger, 16.

The girl vanished after telling friends they were solicited for a pornographic movie, according to police. It is alleged the girl were taken to the desert where they were tortured and killed.

A man photographing wildflowers found their skeletal remains eight months later in the Anza-Borrego desert.

Dad of molested tots urges reform

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A father who says his girl and boy were sexually "brutalized" at a day care center is demanding closer state supervision of such schools lest this city become "the pedophile capital of the nation."

"We thought it was the best place for our children. It had been in the community almost 30 years; there was a six- to eight-month waiting list," the father said.

He spoke by phone with The Associated Press on Friday, hours after six teachers and the founder of the Virginia McMartin Preschool appeared in court on county grand jury indictments.

"This case is being characterized as landmark," he said, "but what it painfully demonstrates is there is a serious gap between what law enforcement and other social agencies to protect us do, and what the reality of what our society is."

The defendants delayed entering pleas Friday to give their attorneys time to study the inch-thick indictment.

But Virginia McMartin, the 76-year-old founder and owner of the school, strenuously denied the allegations before court convened.

"It's all a bunch of lies and I told the attorney that," she said.

The seven defendants face a total 115 counts of felony child molesting, rape, sodomy and other sexual abuse. They were held in lieu of bond ranging from $50,000 to $1 million.

The counts involve 18 children who allegedly were victimized over the past decade, but prosecutors say as many as 100 youngsters may be involved and that additional charges are probable as the investigation continues.

"We parents feel a great sense of frustration," the 39-year-old father of a young boy and girl said.

The government reported Friday that the Consumer Price Index, the main index of inflation, rose a modest 0.4 percent in February. This chart shows how that compares with other monthly figures over the past year.

Hart strives to recapture momentum

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart, striving to get his campaign back in the attack mode, admonished Walter F. Mondale on Friday "to rise above attacks on my campaign" and depicted the former vice president as a candidate who campaigns only where he thinks he can win.

Hart made his comments as aides said the campaign, looking ahead to Democratic presidential primaries in Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania, will begin running two new television commercials in the next several days attacking Mondale on foreign policy.

One likens the current situation in Central America to Vietnam and questions what lessons Mondale learned from that earlier war.

The other says the administration of President Carter and Mondale failed to fulfill a pledge in the 1976 party platform to move the U.S. Embassy in Israel to Jerusalem.

The commercials say Hart favors withdrawing American military personnel from Central America and that he would move the embassy from Tel Aviv, according to aide Kathy Bushkin.

Hart opened his day with a news conference in Connecticut, a state where Mondale is scheduled to spend only 90 minutes before next week's primary election.

"I think it's curious that the candidacy that was the front-runner for a year and a half... is now campaigning in selective states," Hart said.

"And my campaign, which was and still is a dark horse campaign, is running a genuine national campaign."

Mondale, who had scheduled only a 90-minute stop Friday in Connecticut, changed his plans, saying he would return to Connecticut on Monday. He said that his campaign was "picking up steam here."

Hart's aides believe the Colorado senator can defeat Mondale in Connecticut next Tuesday and win a majority of the state's 52 national convention delegates at stake in that election.

"I'm campaigning for delegates in every state of the union," Hart said, "including those where we've had very little chance of success."

In his native Kansas, where caucuses are scheduled today, Hart said he expected to win "my share of delegates," but his campaign won't be damaged by a loss to Mondale.

Being a look-alike is no 'Thriller'

By the Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 17-year-old budding entertainer looks so much like superstar Michael Jackson that he has to worry about young boys who have tried to set his hair afire, the look-alike's manager says.

With his lean physique, breathy speaking voice and glittery Jackson-esque costumes, Anthony Tyrone Dodson bears such a strong resemblance to the Grammy-winning star that young girls beseege him with calls and love letters, says his manager, Yvet M. Bailey.

Bailey says young boys who are "just jealous" have tried to set Dodson's hair on fire.

"They say they want him to look like Michael Jackson making a Pepsi commercial," Bailey said.

Dodson, who cannot sing, has been asked to make appearances at parties, skating rinks, fashion shows and on cable television, his manager said.

When he performs, he must have guards watch over him. "You would think that only teen-agers would be after him. But all age groups just go crazy when they see him," said Ms. Bailey. "He really needs security."

Dodson was banned from an Indianapolis shopping center because he attracted such large crowds. Now, Dodson, who is not attending school this semester, will only shop during a weekday when most high school-age youngsters are in school.

She's got no beef — but big bucks

CHICAGO (AP) — Clara Peller, the 82-year-old woman who became a celebrity peddling Wendy's hamburgers, has signed a beefy new contract with the restaurant chain that calls for her face appearing on T-shirts and coffee cups, her lawyer said Friday.

Mrs. Peller is the diminutive spokeswoman who has appeared in two Wendy's commercials, indignantly asking "Where's the beef?"

Joel Weisman, of Seigan and Weisman Ltd., said Mrs. Peller's one-year contract with Wendy's was for between $250,000 and $500,000, but would not be more specific.

The contract, Weisman said, provides for a third Wendy's spot and includes licensing for a number of products such as T-shirts, coffee cups, lunch boxes and stadium seats that will feature Mrs. Peller's likeness and the Wendy's slogan.

The contract also will allow Mrs. Peller to do other commercials and acting jobs.

Weisman said Mrs. Peller, who was a beauty shop manicurist before being discovered several years ago, was contemplating a number of offers. Those job offers include a series of commercials for radio stations, an MTV commercial and a television series.

"She has had dozens of commercial offers, dozens of appearance offers," Weisman said. "She picks and chooses."

She has also been invited to the White House to take part in a ceremony on aging, but has not decided whether she will attend, Weisman said.

"She's elated" about the contract, Weisman said. "She's a woman who's never had any substantial money or notoriety and lived a very tranquil life."

"She's always been very open and candid," he said, "and that personality comes through in the commercials."

Weisman said that Mrs. Peller, who still lives in a Chicago residential hotel, was not available to comment on the contract.

1,047 survive life without the tube

Grades, family fun increase as Eastern town goes cold turkey

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Byron McMichael thought he hit the jackpot when he retrieved an old TV set from a neighbor's trash, took it home and found that it worked. Then his mother stepped into the picture.

"I'm an advocate of turning off that tube," says Marcia McMichael.

Television has not been the same for her 14-year-old son and hundreds of other people since January, when many in this affluent Hartford suburb gave up watching TV for a month as part of a "TV-Turnoff" campaign sponsored by the local Library Council.

Farmington's experiment sparked letters from as far away as Japan and Australia and queries from other towns thinking of trying to break the tube habit. Now officials are trying to learn what impact the program may have in the long run.

Council President Nancy DeSalvo said this week that surveys showed 1,047 people "went cold turkey" in January — meaning they watched no TV for at least one week and reduced their viewing for the remaining three.

"A very conservative estimate is that over 4,000 people responded to our TV turnoff, either in reducing or eliminating television," said DeSalvo, a moving force behind the campaign. "That is one-fourth of the population of Farmington."

But a real measure of success is how many people will be more selective in their viewing and how many other communities follow Farmington's lead.

"We were quite curious about what the program was," said Howard Downey, public library director in Pocatello, Idaho. "They were kind enough to send us some materials" to guide Pocatello in a similar program tentatively scheduled for April 8-14.

To learn if habits changed locally, "we are tracking 10 families who went cold turkey in January," DeSalvo said. "If they survived the month, they should do very well" in the Library Council's "Beyond Turn-Off" program.

Richard and Ellen Babcock and their two children are among the 10 families logging their viewing habits from February through May.

"For us, it was 100 percent turnoff," Mrs. Babcock said. "We did not watch television from the first of January through the 31st. But we did allow our children to watch 'Good Morning America' when we were on."

The Babcocks, who were featured on the ABC news show in January, say the turnoff continues to affect their family's relationship with television.

"The children before would watch it as a baby sitter for me, especially during the dinner hour," Mrs. Babcock said. "They watched quite a bit of Saturday morning cartoons."

"Now the children do not watch television during the week at all," she said. "Weekends, it's kept to a minimum. Saturday mornings we keep them busy on activities that they initiated on their own."

The McMichael children read more, and play more games. For Carol Kolp's two sons, the turnoff campaign has meant higher grades in school and a lesson in responsibility.

"We came up with a contract which still stands," Mrs. Kolp said.

Prior to January, her children watched up to 30 hours a week — just shy of the national average of 35 1/4 hours.

Now Daniel Kolp, 14, may watch 14 hours of television during the week as long as he maintains his grades. Benjamin Kolp, 12, is not permitted any TV Monday through Thursday and can watch television on Friday through Sunday only if his homework is finished. They may increase their hours if their grades improve.

"It's individualized," Kolp said. "When we had the TV turnoff, Benjamin did have his math grades improve, and he attributed it to no TV watching. Occasionally he'd get an F, but he's now pulling a C or B."

James Singer, research associate at Yale University's Family Television Research program, said the Farmington turnoff is not likely to result in any significant new, long-term viewing habits unless "parents see the light."

"They need to observe and reward" positive behavior, Singer said.

Decreased television viewing can result in increased social and intellectual activity and less aggressive behavior, and adults "who watch TV take a more pessimistic view of the world," he said. "You soak that (violence) into your consciousness and begin to think that's the real world."

It's that kind of programming McMichael says her family no longer desires.

Her kitty companion kept at bay

By the Associated Press

Doctors' orders say 84-year-old Rose Zeidman needs Maya the cat to keep her healthy, but the landlady has a second opinion, so Maya moved out.

The black, green-eyed cat had kept Zeidman company since she showed up last summer on the front porch of the widow's West Hollywood apartment and plunked down on a chair cushion.

According to Zeidman, who said she is in ill health and rarely leaves her apartment, a dinner-bowl relationship blossomed into love.

"After all, I'm lonely and she's a very nice companion to me," she said.

Late last year, landlord Susan Oman Belsky told Zeidman that Maya must go, pointing out a clause in the eight-year-old lease forbidding pets.

"If I would let you have a cat, then someone else would want a dog. And somebody else would want an elephant," the landlady told Zeidman.

When the verbal request was ignored, a lawyer's letter followed.

So Zeidman's daughter, Sylvia Caris, took the cat to her home nearby.

The cat found its way back to Zeidman's apartment last Christmas, braving the traffic on Beverly Boulevard. But Belsky's lawyer set another cat-removal deadline, and Maya was once more banished to Caris' apartment.

Zeidman's physician went to bat for her, saying she is "suffering from situational distress."

He wrote a formal prescription order that read: "It would help her emotional condition very much if she were permitted to keep a pet (cat) in her apartment."

Belsky said she is in a "no-win" situation. She said Zeidman has repeatedly befriended cats, despite objections from other elderly tenants.

Zeidman visits her daughter occasionally. But she says it isn't like having Maya at home.

"What do you love about dogs? Who do you love about children? I can't express it. What do you love about anything you love? I love a cat."

Fishfurter plan going swimmingly

By MALCOLM RITTER

AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — He didn't set out to turn ground-up fish into hot dogs, but now Ernest Buck is swimming toward success with that brainstorm and trolling for other products.

"We see no reason why you can't go on to bologna and luncheon meats," said Buck, who has developed a fishfurter at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, where he is a food science professor.

Buck said his fish hot dog is more nutritious than the standard version, and uses a fish — red hake — that is unpopular for other uses. He plans to publish a paper on the product and lecture in June to the annual meeting of the Institute of Food Technologists in California.

For years, researchers in several places have investigated using fish — especially plentiful but unpopular species — as a substitute or extender in meat products. The Japanese use fish in some sausages, and a Florida researcher has produced a recipe to make a sausage from minced mullet.

But the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council says it knows of no all-fish frankfurter on the market, and several fish and hot dog companies have already shown interest in Buck's product.

Buck hit on the fishfurter by accident, after setting out to find a way to turn ground-up red hake into a food base for sale to Japan. He then noticed that the protein gel he produced, which contained no scales or bone, might pass as the innards of a hot dog if it were spiced and colored.

He tinted it with beet juice, added normal hot dog seasonings, stuffed it into a casing and tried it out on students.

"It competed quite nicely, particularly with a chicken hot dog," he said in an interview this week. Most people still preferred a beef-and-pork version, he said, but "we were quite pleased with the product we developed."

The fishfurter lacks a fishy taste because it uses very fresh fish and the washing process removes some chemicals responsible for the taste, he said. The spices cover any taste that might remain.

Fishfurters contain less than half of 1 percent fat, compared with 22 percent to 30 percent for regular hot dogs, Buck said. They also have 18 percent protein, compared with 11 percent or 12 percent for regular hot dogs, and they have less salt, he said.

"There's a market there for certain individuals who are nutrition-conscious," Buck said. "It would have a lot of interest for dieters and mothers who don't want to feed their kids a lot of saturated fats."

Marine base's beaches part of history?

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — The beaches where World War II Marine recruits underwent amphibious-landing training that enabled them to defeat the Japanese in the island-hopping campaign in the Pacific are being considered for designation as a National Historic Landmark.

Red Beach and White Beach, on the northern San Diego County coast, are being considered as a landmark by the National Park Service because then-revolutionary amphibious-landing techniques were developed there by the late Maj. Gen. H. M. "Howlin' Mad" Smith.

The recommendation will be considered in the fall by an advisory park to U.S. Interior Secretary William Clark, said park service historian Erwin Thompson of Denver.

San Diego County officials received a letter from the Park Service Tuesday, asking for a comment on Camp Pendleton's historic significance.

Thompson said other sites that are being considered for recognition because of their significance in World War II are the Port of Embarcation at Ft. Mason in San Francisco and 10 internment camps where Japanese citizens and Japanese-Americans were held during World War II.

Teens get bird's eye view of county future

Leadership talk draws scholars

By CHRIS CRAWFORD
Daily Pilot Correspondent

Sixty-three Orange County high school seniors got an earful about the county's future last weekend from a variety of civic leaders.

The occasion was the second annual Irvine Company Leadership Conference at Chapman College and selected seniors representing all high schools in the county participated.

The conference focused on bringing student leaders and recognized county leaders together "for an in-depth exchange of ideas and information," explained former Congressman James Roosevelt of Newport Beach, who served as chairman for the second year.

In addition, the conference sought to heighten the students' awareness of problems and issues facing the county and to stimulate thinking toward solutions and alternatives.

In his introductory remarks, Roosevelt told the students that "Leadership is a quality that allows you to make a contribution, hopefully an important contribution, within the limits of your own experience and your own desire." He also pointed out that "in our way of life, free country that we are, the opportunity for exercising leadership is tremendous...and is there for the asking."

Following Roosevelt, Kevin Consey, executive director of the Newport Harbor Art Museum, presented a look at the past, present and future of the visual arts in Orange County, including the prediction that within the next five or six years, the county will have "almost total cultural independence from Los Angeles."

He also addressed financing of the arts in America, noting this country spends an "appalling...53 cents per American per year" on the arts — far less than many other countries. He concluded that "if America wants to have a strong, vital visual and performing arts tradition, it simply must invest money...and support these particular attributes."

Virginia Donohugh, assistant director of Orange County Business Committee for the arts, presented a summary of recent cultural development and growth in the county, and how the business community has been very supportive of that growth, including an $11½ million contribution towards the Orange County Performing Arts Center. "Business dollars have often meant kick-off dollars for the arts," she said, adding that, "the growth of almost all Orange County arts organizations has come from business support."

Robert Thomas, chief administrative officer for the county, cited demographic contrasts of Orange County today versus 1967, when most of the students were born. In 1967, he said, the county had 1.2 million people, 97 percent white, living mostly in "bedroom communities in the northern part of the county with a large number of people commuting to Los Angeles to work." There were fewer jobs in the county than there were houses," he said.

Today, he said, Orange County is the sixth largest county in the country, in terms of population, and is even larger than 16 states' population. The county has "moved into the major leagues," he said, with more than 2 million people (20 percent of them representing minorities) living in a sophisticated metropolitan area where the median single-family home cost $190,000, and the median household income is $36,000.

In the year 2000, said Thomas, Orange County will be adding another 600,000 population, and of the challenges will be to provide increased services in the areas of housing, airport facilities, water facilities, landfills, jails, schools and jobs.

Thomas concluded: "We have the numbers, all we need is the drive and courage to do something about them."

In a look at "Orange County Under a Microscope," Brandy Birtcher, president of Birtcher-Pacific Co., shared yet more county demographics to illustrate the "tremendous growth boom" of the area. Looking to the future, Birtcher noted that 70 percent of the county's growth in the next two decades will be in the southern part of the county. This growth, he said, will include 38 to 40 million additional square feet of industrial and office space in the southern sector of the county, plus a 227 percent population growth. "During the next five years," Birtcher concluded, "You will be playing a key role in the future of Orange County. Your public opinion and civic involvement will help determine what kind of a place Orange County will be in the 21st century."

Al Hollinden, former Orange County Transportation Commission chairman, gave the students his pitch in favor of the one-cent sales tax to finance transportation improvements.

In reference to the San Diego Freeway, he said, "We are presently trying to transport our people on a system that was developed in 1970. It's not necessary; we can do something about it."

The last speaker was Stan Ofelie, director of Orange County Transit District, who also spoke in favor of the proposed sales tax. Noting that the Santa Ana Freeway was built with a 25-year projected life span, Ofelie said, "In 1980, it was functionally dead — and if you have driven on it, you know what I mean." The county's outdated freeway system, he said, has become "a barrier to transportation, rather than a means of transportation. We have to do something to address this problem."

Partial footage of the conference will be aired at 9 p.m. May 29, on KOCE, Channel 50.

The high school seniors who attended the conference are participants in the Irvine Company's scholarship awards program. Fifteen semi-finalists will be selected April 26, following interviews with panels of judges.

The semi-finalists will then be interviewed by a 15-member blue ribbon committee of civic, governmental and business leaders, with five winners to be announced at a May 16 banquet.

The five finalists will each receive a $3,000 scholarship, and the remaining 10 will receive $1,000 each.

Ex-candidate Crean blasts consultants

Unsuccessful politico says firm ruined him

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnnie R. Crean, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the 43rd District Congressional seat in 1982, said that an Orange County consulting firm he hired succeeded only in portraying him as "the bad guy in the black hat."

Crean, 34, was censured by the Orange County Republican Party's ethics committee for tactics used in winning the 1982 GOP primary. He lost the general election to a write-in candidate, GOP primary runnerup Ron Packard, who said he was upset at what he termed Crean's unscrupulous tactics.

Crean said he has paid $6,000 to Butcher-Forde Consulting of Newport Beach, but refuses to pay a balance of approximately $50,000 because, he said, "all they did was ruin my name."

"Their bill was for about $55,000, but that struck me as ridiculous," Crean said Tuesday. "I told them I thought their services were worth less than nothing, and since they dropped the bill ... I guess they basically agreed."

Crean's latest financial statement showed that Butcher-Forde had granted a "credit" for the debt.

William Butcher, a partner in the firm, said the debt settlement was "the subject of a lot of negotiation," but declined further comment.

During the 1982 primary campaign, Butcher-Forde sent out more than a dozen brochures on Crean's behalf, many containing misleading claims of endorsements.

Crean was censured for a mailing which alleged that the family and five friends of Bill McColl, a former pro football player who was one of the one of his opponents in the primary, had improperly registered to vote in Carlsbad. The brochure, mailed the weekend before the election, said, "McColl faces voter fraud, tax fraud, conspiracy and perjury charges!" In smaller print on an inside page, the brochure said the charges had been raised by Crean, not by any legal authority.

RELIGIOUS NOTES

Israeli art exhibition and auction scheduled

Congregation B'nai Tzedek, 9669 Talbert Ave., Fountain Valley, will hold an exhibition and auction of Israeli art on Saturday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m.

The event is being staged through the cooperation of the Israeli Artists Organization and Israel's Ministry of Commerce.

The exhibition, to be followed by an auction of artworks, is being brought to the Fountain Valley area by Baruch Kutany, representative of the IAO.

It is the largest art exhibit by Israeli artists ever brought to the United States. More than 700 pieces feature impressionist, abstract, expressionist, art nouveau, modern, art deco, sculptures, engravings and others.

The collection includes paintings and art objects not previously exhibited. Among the large collection are original works by Reuven Rubin, Marc Chagall, Agam, Tobiasse, Shmuel Katz and Liberman. Also many of the other international masters like Dali, Miro, Picasso, Vasserey and Boulanger.

Following the preview, the auction will begin at 8:30 p.m. Each buyer of over $100 of artworks will receive a free Chagall lithograph.

A door prize of one painting, valued at least $200, will be awarded during the evening.

Admission is free and the public is invited to view and bid on the artworks.

New Thought Christian Church, 610 W. 18th St., Costa Mesa, will begin its Sunday worship service with a Bible study class at 9:15 a.m., stressing the metaphorical interpretation of the Scriptures, taught by Dr. Don Sharer, associate pastor.

The Rev. Dr. Eleanor C. Jackson will present a message entitled "How to Release Your Inner Power" at the 10:30 a.m. service.

Members of the congregation are asked "to bring a bear if you care" for this Teddy Bear Sunday. All teddy bears will be donated to the children at Fairview Hospital as a part of the church's Community Outreach Program.

The Woman's Guild will hold a bake sale and coffee and refreshments will be served at the fellowship hour following the service.

St. Bonaventure Catholic Church, 16400 Springdale St., Huntington Beach, will welcome the Young Ladies Institute, Holy Eucharist

220, Westminster at a Quarterly Communion and Breakfast on Sunday.

Communion and Mass will be at 9 a.m. For direction and more information, call Mary Kurthy, president, at 840-6981.

Neighborhood Congregational Church, corner of St. Ann's and Gleneyre Streets, Laguna Beach, will hear the Rev. William J. Eilers preach the sermon at the 10 a.m. service Sunday.

The church choir will sing under the direction of John Thompson, with Michael Sanders at the organ console.

Bible Study Fellowship meets at 9 a.m. in the church library and Sunday School classes meet at 10 a.m. A nursery is available. The sign-language group meets at 11:15 a.m. in the upper room.

The North Star Circle will meet on Tuesday at the home of Florence Callaway with a special program to be presented by Gail Hales, program coordinator for "Islands of Safety," a crises intervention counseling service for youths and their families who are experiencing conflicts. Friends and interested persons are invited to attend. Call 494-6365 for directions.

Crystal Cathedral Congregation, 12141 Lewis St., Garden Grove, will welcome Rosemary Clooney to the Women's Ministries Annual Easter Breakfast on Saturday, March 31, at 8:30 a.m.

Clooney will detail the pressure of maintaining a public image of devoted wife and mother (five children in seven years) while trying to balance a hectic, demanding and "glamorous" career. A divorce from actor Jose Ferrer, re-marriage to Ferrer and then a final divorce led to increasing depression. Finally she experienced a mental breakdown and was hospitalized for a brief period. Her long road back has taught her much. The theme of the Easter Breakfast: "Celebrate! Renew Your Design" is an apt description of her journey.

Gratia Louisa, Miriam Tait and Sheila Carpenter are also featured. Louisa, wife of astronaut Col. Jack Louisa, commander of the Columbia Space Shuttle, will speak. Tait, master of drama, art and dance, will offer her interpretive choreography of "The Lord's Prayer," and Carpenter, track and field Olympics contender, will speak on the challenges she has encountered.

Reservations are $12 and include breakfast and the program. Deadline for reservations is March 27. Call 971-4087 for reservations and further information.

St. Joachim Catholic Church, 1964 Orange Ave., Costa Mesa, will celebrate a 12:10 p.m. Mass during Lent, in addition to its regular weekday Masses at 6:30 and 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

For more information, call 494-3651 or 494-4743.

Uni's student writers win OC press awards

Six members of the University High School newspaper staff in Irvine won awards in the Orange County Journalism Education Association's annual Writeoffs held at Katella High School earlier this month.

Sophomore Katie Marzolo captured first place in the feature writing category, juniors Jill Bauer and Anne Hill took seventh and eighth places, respectively, in features.

Senior John Gould, the editor of Univine, earned ninth place in sports, while junior Cara Brown captured tenth place in the news category.

In addition, staff artist Andy Mitchell, a junior, won third place in cartoon/illustration.

The competition consisted of high schools from throughout Orange County, with over 50 competitors in each category. Because of the students' efforts, University High finished behind Fullerton's Troy High School in second place, its highest finish ever.

These six students will go on to compete in the Southern California Journalism Education Association's Writeoffs to be held at University High April 7.

Catholic Diocese of Orange to get television channels

Cable customers flipping through channels in Santa Ana will come across a message on their television screens — "Diocese of Orange — Future Programming."

After almost two years of planning, the "future" is nearly at hand. The Roman Catholic Diocese of Orange is about to go on the air with its own two television channels, one containing Catholic programming, the other carrying educational materials being offered to all Catholic schools in the Diocese.

At first, the two channels will be available to a limited television audience: Group W customers in Santa Ana, and 17 schools which already have the equipment to receive the television signals from Modjeska Peak in the Saddleback Mountains.

Eventually, it is hoped that the diocesan Instructional Television Fixed Service (ITFS) will be carried on cable systems serving other communities, and that it will be received by Catholic schools throughout Orange County.

Initially, the diocesan system will be retransmitting programs currently aired on the ITFS system operated by the Archdiocese of Los Angeles. Equipment erected at Marywood Center will pick up the Los Angeles signals from Mount Wilson and send them to the diocesan transmitter on Modjeska Peak for dissemination throughout Orange County.

The religious channel will carry the two Catholic satellite networks, the Catholic Telecommunications Network of America, a project of the United States bishops; and Mother Angelica's Eternal Word Television Network. The education channel will carry videotaped programs on a variety of subjects for use in the classroom, as well as teacher-education material.

Seventeen schools in the diocese already have receiving-dishes which are capable of picking up the Los Angeles ITFS channels transmitted from Mount Wilson. These schools will be able to receive the diocesan transmissions as soon as they turn their dishes toward Modjeska Peak.

Father Henson spoke in January to a meeting of all school principals at Marywood Center to explain the opportunities and costs of the new ITFS system.

He said the cost to receive dishes and converters, which convert a signal for use on television has dropped sharply in recent months because of recent developments in the industry.

Father Henson will be approaching other cable franchises serving Orange County to request that they carry the diocesan service, as Group W is doing in Santa Ana.

"We are now entering the age of educating and communicating the faith through television," said His Excellency the Most Reverend William R. Johnson, Bishop of Orange, in a recent letter to the Catholic people of the diocese. "Currently limited to retransmitting educational programming to our parish schools, we are looking forward to the future, when we hope to bring Catholic programs into our homes through the various cable companies operating in Orange County."

The television project is financed by the Catholic people of the diocese through their support of the Unity and Growth Through Christian Education Program. Bishop Johnson has set a goal to raise almost $118,000 for educational television in 1984.

Long road back for few condemned by church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For renegade members of the Roman Catholic church, condemnation was once as quick as the sentence of an Inquisition court — or as final as being burned at the stake.

Even in cases where the church admits that it acted in error, restoring the standing of a select few outcasts, such as Galileo Galilei, Martin Luther and Joan of Arc, can take hundreds of years.

Galileo bedeviled church leaders by reducing the Earth's status in the heavens, insisting that the sun was the central body of the solar system with the planets revolving around it. Summoned to Rome and tried by an Inquisition court in 1633, the astronomer was forced to abjure his beliefs — and only this month did the church fully admit the errors of its condemnation.

Joan of Arc, who inspired French troops trying to expel the English, was tried for heresy and witchcraft by French clerics who supported the English, and who considered her claim of direct inspiration from God to undermine the church hierarchy. She was burned at the stake in 1431 — and not made a saint until nearly 500 years later.

Martin Luther's 16th-century religious rebellion sparked armed battles between Protestants and Roman Catholics on the plains of Europe. A joint Catholic-Lutheran commission, strongly supported by Pope John Paul II, has been studying for two decades the teachings and protests of the German monk who led the Protestant Reformation, but he remains excommunicated.

The church's handling of Galileo, Joan of Arc and Luther shows the Vatican has no single way of revising its past views or "rehabilitating" those scorned in the past.

"There isn't any one process for the simple reason that no two cases are alike," says Monsignor William Purdy, an expert on Vatican history.

Purdy said in an interview that much of the current revisionism dates back to the Second Vatican Council, which in 1965 opened the church to a more tolerant view of divergent thoughts.

The church also has other reasons for accepting one-time outcasts. For example, the Vatican says reconciling the boastful, swaggering Galileo with the scientifically unenlightened prelates of his time will improve the church's historically strained relations with science.

Dominican friar Bernard Vinaty, one of the authors of a new Vatican-commissioned study exonerating Galileo, said, "The work will open horizons and discussions." He calls Galileo a "symbol of modern times."

Pope John Paul II said last year that the church erred in 1633 when it condemned Galileo as being "vehemently suspected of heresy." The Vatican put the final touches on the process March 1 when its newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, said, "The so-called heresy of Galileo seems to have no foundation."

Joan of Arc, the excommunicated Maid of Orleans, was burned at the stake on May 30, 1431. Twenty-five years and 115 witnesses later, the church realized the political motives behind her burning and officially rehabilitated the French national heroine who led several successful battles against the British. The pendulum had swung completely by May 1920 when the church canonized her.

Catholics continue their research on Luther.

James Cagney finds he's not really the retiring type

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The tough guy has planted himself in a soft chair. Small hands drape over the armrests. Feet, in house slippers, barely touch the floor. The famous jaw juts like a bulldog's.

James Cagney, how do you want to be remembered?

"I don't want to be remembered at all," Cagney shoots back.

He pauses. And winks. A big stage wink.

And then he smiles. James Francis Cagney Jr. is 84. He's just finished his 64th film. And he's still the tough little guy from the Manhattan's Yorkville section with the soft heart.

His body doesn't work so well anymore. But his head of silver hair is full, combed back and neatly parted. His eyes — as blue as Sinatra's — still twinkle. And his handshake is firm, very firm.

Cagney's career has spanned six decades, from vaudeville to legitimate theater to film. He retired from movies in 1961 before some of today's young celebrities were born, and emerged only once — in 1981 to play the police commissioner in "Ragtime."

Now he has his first role in a made-for-television film, starring as a retired ex-champion boxer in "Terrible Joe Moran," an ITT Theater special to be broadcast Tuesday on CBS, Channel 2.

Why is Cagney working again?

"Doctor's orders," Cagney said in a recent interview. "The doctor says keep the man busy. 'Put this man to work.'"

James Cagney

His doctors may call it therapy, but Cagney has another explanation. "I'm a ham," he said.

Diabetes has made his legs weak. He is beset by circulatory problems and the effects of a mild stroke in 1977. He has trouble hearing, and a muscle spasm in his throat often causes his speech to slur.

He jokes about his health, saying he spends all of his time "looking at the ceiling." He's been getting out of his wheelchair more often lately and his voice is improving, but being dependent on others frustrates him.

Cagney says he'd like to be known simply as "a song and dance man," like Fred Astaire or George M. Cohan. Cagney's portrayal of Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," in 1942, won him an Oscar.

Cagney spends most of his time with Willie, his wife of 62 years, on the 800-acre farm they own in New York's Dutchess County, 100 miles north of New York City. He raises oats and hay for his herd of beef cattle and Morgan horses. He likes to read books on Civil War history, paint and write poetry.

Tributes to Cagney are frequent these days. The Kennedy Center Honor for lifetime achievement. The National Film Society's Golden Screen Award.

President Reagan, Cagney's long-time friend, selected him to receive the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor. Cagney plans to make the trip to the White House Monday to accept it.

Cagney doesn't watch television or movies these days. But he noted that fake ammunition and stunt men were luxuries he didn't always have in the old days of filmmaking.

"In my time it was more dangerous," Cagney said. "When we started to punch some guy, we meant it. And I was the guy who had to take it."

The Cagney in "Terrible Joe Moran" is not the Cagney of "City of Conquest," one of several films in which he played fighters. But the role of a cantankerous old boxer seems perfectly suited to the Cagney of today.

It was his portrayal of pugnacious hoodlums in such classics as "Public Enemy" and "Angels with Dirty Faces" in the 1930s that earned him a spot in Hollywood history.

In perhaps his most famous scene, he shoved half a grapefruit into the face of Mae Clarke in "Public Enemy."

But the line most attributed to him — "You dirty rat" — he never said. That line came from professional impersonators who have long loved to imitate Cagney's staccato delivery and tough-guy shrug.

Ella Fitzgerald wins LA tribute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jazz vocalist Ella Fitzgerald, whose career spans 40 years and includes 11 Grammy awards, has become the first woman to receive the Whitney M. Young Jr. Award of the Los Angeles Urban League.

Fitzgerald, 65, was honored "for her outstanding contributions toward the improvement of racial equality" Wednesday night at the Century Plaza Hotel.

"Getting awards from me inspires me, makes me work harder. If I can make someone happy, I'll just keep on singing," she said before the ceremony.

About 1,600 guests, including many business leaders, attended the Urban League's dinner to raise about $225,000.

Los Angeles Urban League President John W. Mack said Fitzgerald "has removed numerous barriers through her great musical talent and her low-key crusade for justice."

He called her "a pioneer and a trailblazer in the very best tradition of the late Whitney M. Young Jr.," a former Urban League executive director who died in a 1971 boating accident.

Fitzgerald's 150 albums have sold more than 40 million copies and her concerts have drawn audiences of all races.

She said recent concerts have been especially popular with college students, who come to hear her sing country and western tunes, bossa novas and other popular material.

The award ceremony was the 12th since they were inaugurated in 1972. Previous winners of the Whitney M. Young Jr. Award include television producer Norman Lear, actor Sidney Poitier and former UCLA basketball coach John Wooden.

Trojans take over first place

University shells Costa Mesa;
Irvine, Newport, El Toro win

University High's Trojans have taken over undisputed first place in the Sea View League baseball race after two rounds, shelling visiting Corona del Mar, 16-4, behind a 10-hit attack.

Irvine and El Toro, meanwhile, made the most of their two runs to handle Costa Mesa and Saddleback, respectively, while Newport Harbor upped its record to 1-1 by handing Estancia its second straight league setback.

Here's how it went Friday:

University 16, Corona del Mar 4

The Trojans bounced back from a 3-0 deficit with four runs in the bottom of the first inning, added three more in the third, then cut loose with seven more in the fourth to put it away.

Jeff Stombaugh went five innings, allowing just one hit after surrendering four in the first inning to get the victory.

Roger Wilson swung one of the big bats for the winners, slugging a single, double and triple in five appearances, while Dave Huey doubled and scored a run.

Stombaugh added a bases-loaded double in the first frame.

Irvine 2, Costa Mesa 0

The Vaqueros struck for a marker in each of the first two innings, and pitchers Mike Henigan and Steve Lipton made it hold up.

In the first frame, Darren Wallentine singled and went to third on John Scott's double. Lipton's sacrifice fly eventually got the run across.

The Vags struck again in the second when Remy Rahmatulla slapped a one-out triple and scored on Jeff Bielman's double.

Mesa threatened in the seventh, loading the bases with the help of a hit-batter and two walks, but Lipton got the final out to preserve the victory.

Newport Harbor 6, Estancia 2

A five-run sixth inning snapped a 1-1 tie, with Erik Gasner's two-run homer the key blow.

Jerry Piaskowski went the distance, spacing out seven Estancia hits.

"He just got the big pitch when he needed it," said Newport Harbor Coach Wayne Heck.

Piaskowski added a run-scoring double in that five-run uprising.

Also tough at the plate for the winners was Joey James, who went 2-for-4 with an RBI and a run scored.

The Eagles' leading hitters were Jeff Graham and Scott Clements, each coming up with a pair of singles.

El Toro 2, Saddleback 1

Saddleback pitcher Leonard Damian struck out five, walked two and gave up just one single in lowering his ERA to 0.51, but infielder's errors in the third and fourth inning accounted for two El Toro runs and that was enough to beat him.

El Toro got its first run when a two-out pop fly was missed, and in the fourth inning Scott Shockey singled over second and an apparent routine grounder got through the infield to score Shockey.

VOLLEYBALL

Sailors sweep Irvine, Artists win

Harbor impressive,
now No. 2 to Eagles;
Estancia wins easily

Newport Harbor High's Sailors came up with their best win of the season Friday night — with a surprising sweep of highly regarded Irvine High to assume the No. 2 spot in Sea View League volleyball behind league-leader Estancia.

The Sailors of Coach Tim Wetzel recorded a 15-11, 15-13, 16-14 victory, keyed by the strong play of Shawn Droke, Andy Allison, Brent Bradley and Jon Bostwick.

Droke had a season-high 17 kills and Allison added 13 kills and solid defense. Bradley was credited with 13 kills, too.

"All three games we had pretty good sized leads," said Irvine Coach Mark McKenzie. "But they just had a couple of guys that served the ball extremely well and overtook us each time."

Senior Steve Bates stood out for Irvine in the back row, as well as setter Tim Muret. Newport Harbor is now 5-1 in league, Irvine drops to 4-2.

Also in the Sea View League: Estancia rolled to its ninth straight win without a loss, sixth in league play, toying with Costa Mesa, 15-5, 15-1, 15-2.

Dave Ross was credited with seven kills and was 7 for 10 at the net without an error, in addition to three service aces, while Adam Lockwood, in place of an injured Steve Conti as an outside hitter, had four digs.

Conti is not expected to play in today's Orange County Invitational because of a twisted ankle, but Lockwood provides Estancia, the No. 1 ranked team in Orange County (No. 3 in CIF 4-A) with ample replacement.

"I have that luxury," admits Estancia Coach Tom Pestolesi.

A major confrontation in the South Coast League found Laguna Beach taking over first place with its fifth straight win without a loss, dropping Mission Viejo, 15-11, 15-6, 15-5 to hand the visiting Diablos their first league loss in six starts.

Mike Stafford led the Artists with 10 kills, while Scott Fortune came up with six kills and six stuff blocks for Laguna Beach.

In Sunset League action: Edison, behind the play of middle blocker Grayson Dubose and outside hitter

Chris Carpenter, dealt Ocean View a 15-5, 15-2, 15-7 loss to remain unbeaten in league after four matches.

Fountain Valley was forced to go five sets to put La Quinta away after breezing through the first two games, 15-2, 15-4, 13-15, 14-16, 15-7.

"We put our second team in for the third game and then we had a hard time getting back into the flow," said Fountain Valley Coach Gregg Svalstad.

Scott McKeough led Fountain Valley with 17 kills and middle blocker Craig Stead had 90 percent efficiency at the net, according to Svalstad.

Pacing La Quinta were outside hitters Todd Bates and Jeff Rosenthal.

Huntington Beach rallied to stop host Westminster, 12-15, 12-15, 15-9, 15-12 behind the play of setters Joel Knapp and John Capocima.

On the community college level, Golden West College kept pace with Santa Barbara in the South Coast Conference with a 15-9, 15-13, 13-15, 15-11 win at Long Beach.

Dan Maxner, a freshman from Costa Mesa, and Los Altos High product Dwight Pfeffer led the Rustlers with 17 and 19 kills respectively. GWC shares the conference lead with Santa Barbara with a 6-1 record.

Costa Mesa's Dave Austin delivers in a Sea View League contest at Irvine Friday. Irvine squeezed out a 2-0 victory.

Moffet, Smith sparkle

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Moffet of Stanford University, a product of Newport Harbor High, swept to the NCAA championship in the 100-yard breaststroke Friday at the Division I men's swimming and diving championships.

Stanford's Pablo Morales and Moffet redeemed themselves for mistakes made earlier Friday by winning individual titles in the championship round.

Morales won the 100-yard butterfly with an American record time of 47.02 seconds, while Moffet won the 100-yard breast stroke in 54.38.

Stanford had set an American record in the preliminary heat of the 400-yard medley relay with a time of 3:12.59, but was disqualified because Morales misread Moffet's touch of the wall and jumped into the pool too quickly.

In the prelims earlier in the day, Moffet set the pace in 54.58 in the breaststroke. Stuart Smith of Texas, a product of Edison High, was second in 54.68, SMU's Chris Weissman third at 54.86. Stuart eventually finished third in the finals to qualify for an Olympic Trials berth in Indiana later this year.

Texas, which took the lead in the overall standings Friday night with 178.50 points — three points ahead of defending champion Florida — went on to win the relay in 3:13.35.

The Texas quartet of Rick Carey, Smith, Chris Flives and John Smith edged Southern Methodist by less than two-tenths of a second.

Meanwhile, Ricardo Prado, a former Mission Viejo High standout, became the first double winner in the meet.

Volleyball championship at FV tonight

The 1984 Orange County volleyball championships are scheduled for today with pool play at Fountain Valley High and La Quinta High, followed by the quarterfinals, semifinals and finals at Fountain Valley, beginning at 4 p.m.

The finals are expected to begin about 6 p.m.

Pool play begins at 9 a.m. with Estancia, Edison, Capistrano Valley, Laguna Hills and Westminster in Pool No. 1.

Laguna Beach, the defending champion, is the No. 1 seed in Pool No. 2 with Corona del Mar, Woodbridge, Marina and Huntington Beach. In Pool No. 3 are Mission Viejo, Fountain Valley, Newport Harbor, San Clemente and University.

Pool No. 4 is at La Quinta and includes Irvine, Dana Hills, El Toro, Mater Dei and the host Aztecs.

Charge is reduced, but appeal may keep Perez out of U.S.

From AP dispatches

SANTIAGO, Dominican Republic — Atlanta Braves pitcher Pascual Perez was convicted Friday on a reduced charge of cocaine possession, fined $1,000 and ordered released from prison.

However, an appeal of the criminal court decision was entered immediately by District Attorney Luis Coss and that may keep the 24-year-old right-hander jailed here well into the major league season that opens April 2.

Atlanta Braves representatives monitoring Friday's trial said Perez had already been issued a visa and was to leave for their Florida training camp on Tuesday. With the prosecution appeal pending, he will not be permitted to leave the Dominican Republic even if he should be released from prison.

It could not be learned immediately if the U.S. consul in Santiago would revoke the visa because of the conviction, the equivalent of a misdemeanor.

There was no immediate word on when the prosecution appeal would be heard.

A spokesman for baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said before the appeal was announced that Perez's eligibility to play in the majors still was under investigation.

"With the decision, we are now in position to complete our own investigation," the baseball spokesman said. "As to his reporting, we are currently evaluating that."

Hamilton claims fourth title

OTTAWA — Scott Hamilton, the U.S. Olympic champion, won his fourth straight world figure skating title Friday night with a medley of triple jumps, dizzying spins and lightning-quick footwork.

It wasn't the knockout program he had hoped to skate to redeem his sub-par performance at Sarajevo, but again, it was good enough for gold.

The last four-time world champion was American Hayes Alan Jenkins, who held the titles from 1953 through 1956.

Cobb found innocent in fix trial

NEW YORK — Former Boston College basketball star Ernie Cobb was found innocent Friday of participating in a scheme to fix games during the 1978-79 season.

A Brooklyn federal court jury apparently believed Cobb's statement that although he took $1,000 from a man later convicted in the plot, he had not been asked at that time to fix games, and that when he was asked later, he refused.

Pistons snap Lakers' streak

INGLEWOOD — Center Bill Laimbeer grabbed 19 rebounds and scored 21 points Friday night to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 121-118 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in a National Basketball Association game.

Detroit had not beaten Los Angeles in four years, losing 10 games in a row, and the Lakers were carrying a five-game winning streak, including the last three on the road. The Lakers fall to 46-23.

Forward Kelly Tripucka led Detroit with 24 points. John Long had 18, Isiah Thomas and Vinnie Johnson 17 apiece for the Pistons, 40-30.

Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 35 points, leaving him 163 shy of Wilt Chamberlain's all-time NBA record.

Quote of the day

Sherry Young, mother of Steve Young, on her excitement after the Brigham Young quarterback signed a $40 million deal with the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League: "It's even exciting answering the telephone. You never know who will be on the other end — maybe even Howard Cosell."

Angels rally in ninth to nip A's

PALM SPRINGS — Steve Lubrutch's two-run single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday gave the Angels a 6-5 victory over the Oakland A's in exhibition baseball.

After the A's had taken a 5-4 lead with two runs in the top of the ninth, Daryl Sconiers and Reggie Jackson led off the bottom of the inning with singles off Tim Stoddard, who retired the next two men while a wild pitch advanced the runners. Mike Brown drew an intentional walk before Lubrutch's single up the middle.

Sconiers, who had four hits, climaxed a three-run rally in the second inning with a two-run single off Oakland starter Steve McCatty. Bob Boone's run-scoring triple in the third made it 4-0.

Dodgers release eight players

VERO BEACH, Fla. — The Los Angeles Dodgers cut eight players from their major league roster Friday, including speedy outfielder R.J. Reynolds, but still remain four players above the regular season limit of 25.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers' scheduled game Friday against Boston was cancelled because of rain.

There were no surprises among the eight cuts — although Reynolds, outfielder Cecil Espy, first baseman Sid Bream, pitcher Larry White and catchers Gilberto Reyes and Dave Sax had been given limited playing opportunities with the Dodgers late in the 1983 season. Sax is a brother of Dodger second-baseman Steve Sax.

Others cut Friday were 19-year-old outfielder Jose Gonzales and 20-year-old pitcher Vance Lovelace.

Reynolds, a 23-year-old switch-hitter, drove in 11 runs in 24 late season games with Los Angeles last September, batting .236 but also stealing five bases in five tries. He had batted .337 with 18 homers and 89 RBI for San Antonio of the Texas League before being called up to the Dodgers.

Eastwood two shots in front

Bob Eastwood, in pursuit of his first title in a 13-year PGA Tour career, shot a 4-under-par 68 in gusty winds and opened up a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the USF&G Classic in New Orleans. Eastwood, 38, had a career-best finish last year as runner-up in the Tournament Players Championship. He reached the tournament halfway point with a 36-hole total of 134, 10 under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course. Bernhard Langer, a West German who last year switched to a cross-handed putting stroke and won five European tournaments, remained in close pursuit at 136, shooting a second-round 69. Paul Harney fired a two-under-par 69 to take a three-stroke lead after two rounds of the Vintage Invitational seniors tournament at Indian Wells. Harney stands at 137, six under par in the 72-hole event at The Vintage Club.

Farmer agrees to extension

LOS ANGELES — Larry Farmer, whose third year as coach was UCLA basketball's most dismal season since 1965-66, announced Friday he has agreed to a two-year extension of his contract.

UCLA Athletic Director Pete Dalis, who appeared at a news conference with Farmer, said the extension was offered "based on continuity and a good solid base." Dalis had given a vote of confidence to Farmer when the season ended two weeks ago, but Farmer reportedly asked for a guaranteed contract for three years.

Irish advance to NIT semis

Virginia Tech also heading for New York after 72-68 win

From AP dispatches

PITTSBURGH — Joe Howard hit a driving layup and added four key free throws as Notre Dame broke open a tight game in the final three minutes to defeat Pittsburgh, 72-64, in the National Invitation Tournament semifinals Friday.

The victory sends the Irish, 20-11, into a semifinal round game against Southwestern Louisiana on Monday in New York.

Tim Kempton scored on a short-range shot before Howard broke free for his layup with 2:41 remaining that lifted the Irish to a 60-56 lead. Clyde Vaughan netted two free throws with 2:28 remaining to cut Notre Dame's lead to two points.

But Scott Hicks then worked free for a backdoor layup, starting the Irish on an eight-point run that included Howard's four free throws and built Notre Dame's lead to 68-58 with a minute remaining.

In other NIT action Friday: Virginia Tech 72, Tennessee 68.

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Dell Curry scored 27 points to lead Virginia Tech.

The win improved Virginia Tech's record to 21-12 and sent the Hokies to New York, where they will meet Michigan Monday night in a semifinal game.

Rustler softball team now in first

Shutouts were the order of the day in area softball Friday, as Golden West College went nine innings to blank Cypress; Orange Coast was stifled by Santa Ana; and Saddleback won its first conference game by shutting out San Diego Mesa.

In high school action, University Jennifer Frei not only shut out Corona del Mar, she pitched a no-hitter in dispatching the Sea Kings, 18-0, while Estancia held off Newport Harbor, 2-0.

Golden West presented winning pitcher Karen Carlson with a one-hit 1-0 win with a run in the bottom of the ninth against Cypress when Lori Tschetter tripled in Vonna Rossilli who had singled.

Carlson had a no-hitter into the ninth before a triple broke up the bid.

OCC came up on the short end of a 2-0 verdict against Santa Ana, as Angie Anthonis yielded both runs in the third. Sam Arledge singled in the first run for Santa Ana, and Lisa Godfrey singled in the other run.

Saddleback handed San Diego Mesa its first Pacific Coast Conference setback, 1-0, behind Cindy Riviere's four-hitter. Riviere helped her own cause by singling in the only run of the game in the fifth inning.

In high school action, Frei struck out two and walked two in no-hitting CDM. Naomi McComb had a two-run homer and Julie Ardell a three-run blast during University's 15-run fifth inning.

University High's Chris Greer remained unbeaten in singles with a sweep at the Trojans' court, including a 6-4 victory over Scott Brownberger, but Corona del Mar walked away with team honors in what may have been the No. 1 Sea View League dual match of the year.

Corona del Mar captured a 17-11 verdict, keyed by a big margin in singles play where Corona chalked up an 11-5 edge.

Also in the Sea View: Jon Flagg and Greg Spicer teamed up in doubles to dominate Newport Harbor and teammate Ron Alrya sparkled in singles play as Estancia swept past Newport Harbor, 21-7.

In Sunset League action: Fountain Valley got past Ocean View, 23-5, with singles star Tuan Nguyen sweeping, while Edison was a 25-3 winner over Westminster, spiced by the play of Todd Holmes, who lost just one game in sweeping four singles foes.

Huntington Beach dispatched Marina, 20-8, as John Gabriel and Patrick Nordberg took all four sets in singles.

Burleson examined

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Angel shortstop Rick Burleson is suffering from a slight tear of the rotator cuff on his throwing arm, the American League team announced on Friday.

The injury was disclosed after an arthrogram was taken Friday at Centinela Hospital, a team spokesman said.

Anteater Run scheduled

Sixth annual 5, 10k events to benefit UC Irvine aquatics scholarship fund

UC Irvine will be the site of the sixth annual Anteater Run today.

The run is sponsored by the Ancient Mariner and Rusty Pelican restaurants and will feature 5 and 10k races. There are 12 divisions in the 5k race and 19 divisions in the 10k.

Pre-race registration begins at Crawford Hall at 6:30 a.m. on race day. The 5k run begins at 8 a.m. and the 10k at 9. Proceeds from the race will go to the UCI aquatics scholarship fund.

Cost of the Anteater Run is $9 with a T-shirt ($10 late fee) and $5 without a shirt ($6 late fee).

Overall winners (male and female) for both races will receive complimentary dinners for two at the Ancient Mariner or Rusty Pelican restaurants. Division first place winners will receive dinner for one.

The races will be run through the UCI campus.

Dick Beardsley, holder of the second-fastest U.S. marathon time and a member of the Boston-based New Balance Track Club, will not be able to compete for a place on the U.S. Olympic men's marathon team, due to a recurring heel injury.

Beardsley, 27, finished second to Alberto Salazar by two seconds in the 1982 Boston Marathon in a time of 2:08:53.

Beardsley, a native of Rush City, Minn., underwent surgery Feb. 23 to remove scar tissue from a nerve in his heel, a condition called Tarsal Tunnel Syndrome.

Beardsley first developed chronic Achilles tendonitis during the New York Marathon in October 1982, and underwent surgery to correct the condition in July 1983.

However, according to his coach, Bill Squires, Beardsley's leg did not heal as quickly as expected.

He's never been able to fully recover from that injury he suffered in '82, says Squires.

Squires added that he hopes Beardsley will be able to resume his racing career in the fall.

Beardsley entered the Los Angeles International Marathon Feb. 19, but was forced to drop out after seven miles.

Frank Shorter, meanwhile, who won medals in the 1972 and 1976 Olympic marathons, has said that he will forego the marathon in this year's Summer Games in Los Angeles and instead, try to qualify in the 10,000-meter event.

Shorter made his plans known at a press conference in New York recently, detailing a nationwide signature gathering campaign to show support for our Olympic athletes.

Torvill-Dean wowing 'em

Bullfight steals spotlight at figure skating finals

OTTAWA (AP) — Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean earned more perfect marks for bringing the aura of the bullring to the ice rink and Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert kept U.S. medal hopes alive in dance competition at the World Figure Skating Championships.

With one event left, Blumberg and Seibert were third behind Natalia Bestemianova and Andrei Bukin, the Soviet Olympic silver medalists.

The U.S. teams of Carol Jean Fox and Richard Dalley were eighth and Elisa Spitz and Scott Gregory were 10th.

The British Olympic gold medalists earned an unprecedented solid row of nine 6.0s for their dance to the Paso Doble — a Spanish rhythm — in the original set pattern event.

Their other set of marks — for composition — were all 5.9s.

By garnering the nine perfect scores, the magical couple broke their own record set at the 1983 World Championships when they earned seven 6.0s for their rock 'n' roll routine.

Dean credited the cheering, sellout crowd of 8,000 at the Civic Centre with helping the couple attain perfection.

"The audience here was fantastic. They were more appreciative and knowledgeable than they were in Sarajevo."

Said Betty Callaway, the couple's coach: "It was the best I have ever seen them skate. There was just that little extra something...not so much the skating, but the presentation. I never expected 6s across the board."

Torvill and Dean have collected 16 perfect marks here so far and now have 123 overall since 1978.

The three-time world champions earned seven of those 16 marks Thursday in compulsory dances.

Skating to Rimsky-Korsakov's "Capriccio Espanol," Dean, 26, took the ice with his partner draped over his right shoulder like a matador's cape.

To enhance the cape effect, Torvill, 25, wore a specially designed costume in billowy black and white.

Playing the part of a dominating matador, Dean circled the rink with his partner, twirling and pulling her in a series of spectacular moves that included a difficult flip over.

They were required to make three full tours of the rink and each time Dean expertly flipped Torvill over like a pancake just inches off the ice.

In Sarajevo, she touched the ice once while doing it. Here she was flawless.

SWIMMING

Caulkins wants it once more

At 21 some say she's all wet, but only time will tell the tale

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Tracy Caulkins is uncertain when she will decide that a swimsuit is for getting a tan, rather than something to be worn in the pursuit of medals, records and team points.

But after more than a decade of competition and intensive training, the 21-year-old from Nashville, Tenn., is looking ahead to one last big year and some Olympic gold.

There are those who say that Caulkins has peaked — that the thousands of time trials, workouts and races have taken their toll, and her best performances are behind her.

There is new motivation this year, however, for the University of Florida junior.

"I was disappointed about not being in the 1980 Olympics because of our boycott, but I'm lucky because I have another opportunity," Caulkins said. "There were others selected in 1980 who are now out of amateur athletics."

"Since I have the opportunity, I don't want to let it go to waste."

If the recent NCAA women's championships were any indication, Caulkins will make the most of that second chance.

Without being challenged most of the time, Caulkins claimed four individual championships, giving her 12 in three years. She set an American record for the 60th time in lowering her own standard in the 200-yard individual medley.

In the 400 IM, Caulkins cut more than four seconds off her old mark and was back in the water within 30 minutes to lower the NCAA record in the 100 breaststroke. In her fourth victory, Caulkins lowered the NCAA record set last year by Mary T. Meagher in the 200 butterfly.

In addition, the 5-9 broadcasting major with a 3.79 grade-point average started Florida relay teams toward American and United States open records in both the 200 and 400 freestyle relays at the Indiana University-Purdue University Natatorium.

"I thought this might be the last chance for some really fast short-course times," Caulkins said. "To be in this shape, to be in this fast pool, I'll probably never have this combination again."

That does not necessarily mean she is ready to retire from swimming anytime soon, Caulkins continued.

"It just depends on how I perform this summer and how I feel about my swimming," she said. "Whether I want to continue to compete and do, I don't think it will be on a real intense level."

"I've always had a good time and enjoyed it. It would be fun to play a little more."

NCAA Final Four hopeful of gold

SEATTLE (AP) — They've painted a yellow brick road to the doorsteps of the Kingdoms for the NCAA's Final Four.

For Seattle and the Kingdoms, though, it might be more accurate to call it the golden brick road. That's gold as in $$$.

The Final Four will attract an estimated 30,000 fans from out of town — along with 2,000 college basketball coaches and about 650 members of the national news media.

Bob Walsh, executive director of the Final Four host committee, estimates out-of-town visitors will spend a cool $30 million in the Seattle area.

"That's a lot of money that's going to benefit a lot of people," Walsh said. "But the residual effects are going to be enormous. This is really going to help put Seattle on the map."

Bob Bushman, executive vice president of the Seattle-King County Convention and Visitors Bureau, added, "It's the biggest thing that ever happened to Seattle."

"By hosting the Final Four, it means we can go after a lot of other big events that haven't even considered us in the past. There are some very, very large conventions which never realized our potential as a host city before."

Walsh, 43, who served as assistant general manager of the National Basketball Association Seattle SuperSonics under Bill Russell in the 1970s, says the host committee came up its $30 million figure by estimating that each one of the 30,000 out of town people coming into Seattle will spend $1,000.

"They're going to be here for four days," he said. "So that's a pretty accurate guess."

"But, more importantly, it's extremely important to Seattle and the state of Washington, because we're now trying to make this a tremendous tourist area. We want this event to kick off more events in the future. So this is a real key."

"People will go home after this and if they like it here they'll come back some time on vacation. They'll also go back and tell people how great the state of Washington is."

Drugs, baseball: No policy

Major leagues still jumbled in directions to solve problem

Two weeks before the start of a new season, major league baseball's approach to the problem of drug abuse appears to have changed little since 1983, a summer in which the rumors of use of cocaine and other narcotics among players proved to be all too true.

As in the past few years, spring training camps are a forum for speakers from the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Agency, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office and the players association, and occasionally for a former player to tell a quiet clubhouse of his own battles with drugs or booze.

But while some teams conduct seminars, some employ special drug consultants and some have established hotlines and counseling programs for troubled players, there remains no uniform policy to deal with the issue.

Officials are hopeful of some type of agreement on the matter by the time the season opens April 2.

Meanwhile, the absence of a handful of veterans is the most visible sign of the drug problem in the national pastime.

Steve Howe of the Los Angeles Dodgers, National League Rookie of the Year in 1980, has been banished from baseball for now because of repeated relapses into cocaine use and his refusal to accept mandatory drug testing.

Four members of the 1983 Kansas City Royals, two since traded and one released, were sent to jail and remain on suspension by Kuhn at least until May 15 after pleading guilty to attempting to possess cocaine.

Last year, 13 players who admitted to — or were caught — using or possessing drugs surfaced. Also, at various times during the 1983 season, players on several other teams were questioned by federal authorities about drug use.

Yet, when Kenneth Moffett, then executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, tried to take a more conciliatory stance last year with the owners, partly over the subject of mandatory spot-testing for drug use, the union fired him.

"I think something has to be done and if it means sacrificing some people, then you have to do it," said Joe Morgan, a 19-year veteran now with the Oakland A's, disagreeing with the union's stance. "The Players Association is trying to protect as many players as it can, but there has to be something done to let the players know that you can't just do this and get off easy."

John McHale, president of the Montreal Expos and a member of baseball's Drugs Study Committee, said the game is close to uniform educational and treatment procedures.

"By the end of spring training, we hope everyone will have approved a proposal for a drug program that we've presented" to the owners and the union, he said.

Drew Pearson awake, alert

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Drew Pearson was "awake and alert" after sustaining injuries in a traffic accident that killed his brother, a spokeswoman at Presbyterian Hospital said Friday.

Pearson, 33, was injured Thursday when his sports car slammed into the rear of a parked tractor-trailer about 1:30 a.m. Police said he apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Pearson underwent surgery later Thursday to repair a hemorrhaging liver and spent a restless night, according to a hospital spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified. He remained in serious, but stable condition Friday, the spokeswoman said.

Carey Mark Pearson, 27, was pronounced dead at the accident scene of multiple injuries. The truck driver escaped injury.

Pearson's blood alcohol level was well below the level for legal intoxication, but he had been drinking before the crash, police said. Police spokesman Donald Keith said Pearson's vehicle was traveling "at an excessive speed."

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry and other colleagues were optimistic about Pearson's recovery.

Fali Time featured at Anita Sunday

ARCADIA (AP) — Fali Time, leading money winner among 3-year-old thoroughbreds with $849,229, will face five other colts in Sunday's $132,700 San Felipe Handicap at Santa Anita.

Fali Time, with jockey Sandy Hawley, was assigned top weight of 122 pounds when entries were announced Friday. The colt previously won the $1 million Hollywood Futurity and Norfolk Stakes for 2-year-olds and the California Breeders' Champion Stakes this year.

The 1 1/16-mile San Felipe, with $86,450 to the winner, is considered a prep for the 1 1/4-mile $250,000-added Santa Anita Derby on April 8.

Fali Time will start from the fifth post position.

Other entries by weight impostes were French Legionaire, 120 pounds, ridden by Chris McCarron; Artichoke, 118, Bill Shoemaker; Gate Dancer, 117, Eddie Delahoussaye; Commemorate, 117, Rafael Meza; and Cardell, 114, Lafitte Pincay Jr.

Artichoke, winner of two stakes events, starts from the inside post position. In No. 2 will be Cardell, who has been lightly-raced because of injuries as a 2-year-old. French Legionaire is No. 3, Commemorate in No. 4, then Fali Time with Gate Dancer starting on the outside.

Happy winners

Dr. William Cowan (left) and Lyle Finley were the winners at the recent Gifford H. Teeble Memorial golf tourney at Irvine Coast CC with a best ball net 120.

Gold medalists honored

Sammy Lee, Bruce Furniss and Bob Webster, all of whom were winners of two Olympic gold medals, will be inducted into the Orange County Sports Hall of Fame Monday at the Anaheim Convention Center.

Lee, while competing for Korea, captured gold medals at the 1948 and '52 Olympic Games in 10-meter diving. He also served as U.S. Olympic diving coach at the 1960 Games and is a tutor and coach of current diving star Greg Louganis.

Webster, another of Lee's students, won 10-meter titles in the '60 and '64 Games. A former Santa Ana High and Santa Ana College student, he is currently diving coach at the University of Arkansas.

Furniss, out of Foothill High, won gold medals in the 200 freestyle and 800 free relay at the Montreal Games in 1976.

In addition, Jack Stovall will be the 1984 recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Information on tickets for the banquet is available by phoning 335-3091.

Aaron, Downing repeating act?

ATLANTA (AP) — On April 8, 1974, Hank Aaron stepped to the plate at Atlanta Fulton County Stadium and hit a home run off Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Al Downing.

On April 8, 1984, he'll try to do it again.

The Braves are planning a special promotion before their April 8 game against Montreal, re-enacting Aaron's 715th home run, which moved him past Babe Ruth as the all-time king.

Aaron, now director of player development for the Braves, will put on his old No. 44 uniform and step to the plate against Downing, who works these days in community relations for the Dodgers.

Also on hand will be former Braves pitcher Tom House, who caught the ball 10 years ago while standing in the Atlanta bullpen.

The Braves are doing everything in their power to make sure that their retired slugger still can slam one over the fence — including buying some supercharged baseballs.

"I've ordered jackrabbit balls," said Braves public relations director Wayne Minshew. "I just hope Downing can still get it over the plate."

Hagler hopes for quick KO

He promises fight against Roldan won't be left in the judges' hands

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler, who took a narrow decision over Roberto Duran his last time out, says his ninth defense of the undisputed middleweight title against Juan Domingo Roldan won't be left to the ringside judges.

Hagler has knocked out all of his opponents except Duran since taking the title and says he has no reason to believe the No. 1-ranked Roldan will be any different.

"I'd like to knock his block off if you really want to know the truth," Hagler said. "I'm coming in with a different attitude this time. I realize I can't leave it in the judge's hands."

Hagler, who faces Roldan Friday in a scheduled 15-round title bout, appeared cautious and somewhat tentative against Duran last November, but rallied in the late rounds to take a close decision.

The fight may have shattered the myth of invincibility Hagler built up in previous title defenses, but the 29-year-old champion says it's not his fault he couldn't take out Duran.

"The only thing Duran did different is he didn't fight to win — he fought to survive," said Hagler. "A fighter that wants to survive you can't hit. He'll run all 15 rounds."

Against Roldan, Hagler will be facing a heavy puncher, who demonstrated his power on the Hagler-Duran undercard with a sixth-round knockout of then top-ranked Frank "The Animal" Fletcher.

But the stocky Argentine is not exactly known for his ring skills.

"I don't think he could box if he tried to," said Goody Petronelli, Hagler's co-manager. "He's just a rough, tough fighter with a good chin."

The title defense against Roldan takes care of his mandatory World Boxing Association defense, and Hagler says he'll make the mandatory defense of his World Boxing Council half of the title against Mustafa Hamsho, probably in July.

But the champion, who made his long-awaited first big money against Duran (he earned about $4 million), makes no secret about his desire to capitalize on his title with a fight against Sugar Ray Leonard.

"Everyone wants to see that fight," Hagler said. "I feel as though what Leonard should do is fight me right away. Let's get the big money and make everybody happy."

Hagler, who also wants to fight Thomas Hearns, said he is concerned something will happen to Leonard if he fights too often before meeting him.

"If Leonard comes out and looks bad or gets dropped, that's money out of my pocket," he said. "It's the story of my life. If only I could get Leonard and Hearns in one year, I could say good bye to boxing."

Roldan is no stranger to the Hagler camp, having fought four times on the undercard of Hagler title fights, including his last three bouts. Hagler, though, says he has paid little attention to the challenger.

Aikens released by federal prison

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Willie Aikens' baseball future was in the hands of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn following his release Friday from a federal prison where he had been serving time on a misdemeanor cocaine conviction.

Aikens, a former first baseman with the Kansas City Royals, was freed after officials knocked nine days off his original three-month sentence on a conviction of attempting to purchase cocaine.

A federal magistrate also fined Aikens $5,000 when he handed down the sentence on Dec. 19.

Aikens has been suspended for the 1984 season by Kuhn, who says he may review the action by May 15.

Aikens was traded to the Toronto Blue Jays before going to jail.

He is scheduled to report to the Blue Jays' training camp March 30. If Kuhn lifts the suspension, Aikens could be available for duty with the Blue Jays when they return home from a 10-game road trip that opens the American League season, team officials said.

Aikens batted .302 with 23 homers and 72 RBI last season for the Royals.

Ginsburg, Burris pace OCC women

Orange Coast College's women's basketball team rolled to a 63-57 South Coast Conference victory over host Cypress Friday evening behind the scoring of Lisa Ginsburg (23) and Melinda Burris (16).

The victory ups the Pirates' overall record to 13-1 and conference mark to 5-1, setting up Wednesday evening's confrontation at Fullerton, which is 6-0 in conference play.

Saddleback College, meanwhile, was a 74-40 winner over visiting Palomar in Pacific Coast Conference play with Heather Estey (16 points, 7 assists and 3 steals), Lorita Hines (14 points and 15 rebounds) and Janet Gans (14 points) paving the way.

Saddleback is now 8-3 overall, 4-1 in conference play.

10 steps to a successful garage sale

1. Decide on dates.

Look at a calendar and set the dates and times of your sale. Weekends are usually good, but many successful sales have been held in the evening, just after work. Check the weather forecast in the paper, and watch for any other large event that may attract potential buyers away, such as fairs or community events. Have your sale run at least two days — some people may not be able to come on any single day.

2. What to sell.

Everything! That is, everything you haven't used in the last year. If an item has antique value, or is brand-new, or has unusual value, be sure to ask a healthy price for it. Get a pad of paper and search your whole house. Look everywhere, and list everything.

3. Write your ad.

Here is a suggested ad: Garage Sale — desks, Bentwood rocking chair, toys, infants' clothing, 1922 Victrola in original cabinet, many gadgets, lots of unusual items, rock collection, plants, Refreshments, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, 1234 South Anywhere, Yourtown. Just west of Main and 2nd. Use this sample ad as a guide. Be sure to list unusual items. Be as specific as possible. Give directions if needed. Don't use abbreviations — many people won't bother to decipher them. CAUTION: Don't advertise anything you don't really have. Every item in the ad must be on hand at the start of the sale.

4. Where to advertise.

Place your ad where it will be seen by people who live in the area — most people shop close to home. The Daily Pilot is read by 88,000 adults in Costa Mesa, Newport Beach, Laguna Beach, Irvine, Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley — guaranteeing you wide exposure. And with the Pilot, you're not paying for waste circulation in Los Angeles or Anaheim. Plan to run your ad 3 times or more, and start it a few days before the sale so bargain hunters can have plenty of notice.

5. Make a sign.

To help make your sale successful, make a few signs from cardboard and letter with a magic marker. A good sign size is 14" x 22".

6. Placing your sign.

The morning of the sale, but not before, place your signs. Be sure and add your address and any directional arrows. This should be done about a half hour before the sale starts. Place your sign where it can be seen from both sides of the street by passing cars and pedestrians. CAUTION: Some towns have laws that restrict the placement and duration of garage sale signs. Please check with your town's planning department or clerk.

7. Marking prices.

Mark prices where they can be seen clearly. Office supply stores have various sizes and colors of stickers that work well, or you can use masking tape. However you mark them, make prices low. Garage sales are for bargain hunters. Remember, whatever you can't sell you'll have to drag back in the house and store again for another year.

8. Serving refreshments.

This doesn't have to cost much, and creates a friendly atmosphere. It also encourages people to stay longer and perhaps buy more. You could even charge for expensive items like donuts or the kids could go in business for the day, with a lemonade stand.

9. Display.

Make sure everything can be seen. Have card tables or boards used as shelves between the chairs. Don't cause people to bend over unless you can't help it. Use one table as a desk where you can see everything and take money. Use only one cash box (tin cans or boxes work fine) and make sure someone is appointed cashier at all times. Arrange beforehand for a friend who can help answer questions, relief for lunch, etc.

10. Check your neighbors and friends.

See if any want to join your sale. This will give you someone to share expenses with and increase interest in your sale. If others join you, be sure to include them in your ad (example: three-family sale, neighborhood sale). Group sales are a lot more fun too.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Secondary Mortgage Market

Government National Mortgage Association

GNMA, or Ginnie Mae, was established as an arm of HUD in 1968 to provide support for government-related housing programs. In the past, GNMA has bought mortgages initiated through government subsidized programs. However, GNMA's chief operation is its mortgage-backed security (MBS), begun soon after the agency opened.

Under the MBS program, lenders package FHA/VA mortgages into pools of loans with the same interest rate and of the same type (203b loans in one pool, Section 245 GPMs in another). The lender then warrants to GNMA that the loans conform to GNMA's standards and agrees to make timely monthly payments to investors whether or not individual home owners make their monthly payments.

GNMA does not issue the security, nor does it buy or hold the mortgages. The lender issues the security and, along with a custodian, holds the mortgages. GNMA guarantees that the registered securities holders will receive the timely payment of monthly principal and interest as well as any early repayment of the loans. The GNMA guarantee carries the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. This successful market rate program has been a model for conventional mortgage-backed securities and produces an annual profit for GNMA.

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

FNMA (or Fannie Mae), the largest single investor in residential mortgages, was established by Congress in 1938 to buy FHA-insured loans where credit was scarce. FNMA became a private, for-profit corporation in 1968 and began buying conventional loans in 1970.

The functions FNMA had performed in support of government-subsidized housing programs were transferred to the newly formed GNMA under HUD jurisdiction. FNMA continues to buy FHA/VA loans.

In many ways, FNMA's operations resemble those of a gigantic savings and loan. FNMA buys mortgages from lenders and holds most of them in its portfolio. FNMA finances its purchases through its mortgage portfolio income and by issuing short-term discount notes and intermediate-term debentures. FNMA also has a $2.25 billion stand-by line of credit with the U.S. Treasury that has yet to be used.

As a portfolio holder of loans, FNMA has been caught in the same earnings squeeze that has afflicted savings and loans. The income from its older loans is lower than its cost of funds. In order to assure a closer match of its cost of funds over the long term with the income from new loans, FNMA has been very actively pursuing new types of mortgage loans.

In addition to conventional and FHA/VA fixed-rate loans, Fannie Mae will purchase adjustable mortgage loans, FHA/VA graduated payment mortgages, adjusted-rate GPMs, growing equity mortgages and loans on land lease properties, loans involving buy-downs or refinancing, loans on condominiums, loans on permanently sited mobile homes or manufactured housing, second mortgages and homeseller loans. A negotiated transactions desk will consider specially designed programs that do not fit into any of the standard programs.

In order to improve its earnings picture, FNMA has taken a number of steps, including the institution of fees and/or margins (markups) it charges for the many functions it performs. In addition, FNMA in October 1981 began a conventional mortgage-backed securities program that is in many ways patterned after the GNMA program. The program has been used widely by lenders to pool old low-interest loans and swap them at par for the more liquid securities. Lenders may also pool new originations and market the securities for cash.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN MORTGAGE CORPORATION

FHLMC (variously known as Freddie Mac and The Mortgage Corporation) was established in 1970 to provide a secondary market for conventional loans. All its stock is owned by the Federal Home Loan Bank system and much of its business is with savings and loans.

FHLMC buys whole loans or participations in loans and takes title to them. Unlike Fannie Mae, however, Freddie Mac does not hold the loans it buys. Rather, it immediately packages the loans in large pool and sells participation certificates to investors. Freddie Mac uses an auction system to match what investors are willing to buy with what lenders wish to sell. Participation certificates, known as PCs, are a form of mortgage backed security.

Freddie Mac also operates a mortgage swap program, called Guarantor Phase II, to help mortgage lenders increase their liquidity. The program permits mortgage lenders to convert low-yielding mortgages into more easily marketable participation certificates.

Freddie Mac will purchase conventional fixed-rate loans, certain adjustable rate mortgages, shared equity mortgages, loans on condominiums and manufactured housing, home improvement loans, loans involving land leases, and refinancing loans.

Freddie Mac has been and continues to be a profitable operation.

It Can Be Done!

One of the ways homes are being bought and sold today is with

Second Mortgage

A second mortgage is a method of financing whereby the buyer is provided with an additional or second mortgage when there is not enough cash to assume the existing mortgage. A second mortgage can also be taken when the first mortgage and the down payment fall short of the sales price. A second mortgage can be provided by either the seller or a lending institution. Payments are made both to the seller or lender on the second mortgage and to the lender of the underlying mortgage.

Impact on buyer

- Down payment may be negotiated
- Enables purchase of home with existing mortgage requiring large down payment
- With assumption of existing mortgage, a favorable interest rate is possible

Impact on seller

- Smaller down payment attracts more potential buyers
- Additional profit with interest received on second mortgage
- Receives all funds if lending institution provides second mortgage

There are a number of situations in which the second mortgage can facilitate the purchase or sale of a property. Contact your real estate expert to assist you.

What's the Setting on Your Hot Water Heater?

It should be about 130°, unless your laundry includes diapers (they need hotter water). Higher temperatures produce water too hot to wash your hands comfortably.

Check your hot water heater. If the thermostat doesn't show degrees, set it on "medium." After a day or so, run a little water, then wash your hands. If the water is still too hot, turn the thermostat down a notch at a time until the water feels right on your hands.

Besides saving water and energy, you could also save lives. Hundreds of people, mostly children, are burned each year because hot water temperatures are too high.

For more energy-saving tips, ask a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® for a free booklet. There's a REALTOR® near you wherever you live.

NEW SUBJECTS FOR KING LEAR

Norman Lear, king of innovative programming — All in the Family, Maude, Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman — has returned to the small screen with a vengeance after a five-year absence. If a.k.a. Pablo, his new ABC sitcom with an all-Latin cast, gets a poor reception, he has another pilot waiting to take off: Good Evening, He Lied, a sitcom set in a TV newsroom. Lear, who will also produce an ABC-TV movie, Heart Sounds, says he came back to TV because "the world has turned 120 to 130 degrees in the last five years in terms of what there is to write about — including the emergence of a whole Latino culture. All of this is fresh."

Die-hard Cagney & Lacey fans were so affronted by its cancellation last fall that CBS gave the series a seven-episode reprieve. Sharon Glass, who shares star billing with Tyne Daly, is so confident the beat will go on that she's begun looking for a weekend beach house in Laguna (she already has a house in Studio City that's like a little cabin). But why the Orange County artists' colony rather than trendier Malibu? "Malibu is show business," explains Sharon. "I'm in show business, I work among show-biz people; I don't need to live among them. I have to fight for a table in town; do I want to fight for a table at my beach house, too?"

Were it not for the rearrangement of files at the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority and the subsequent resurfacing of some old material, no one would know that 30 years ago, Ronald Reagan made his debut as a performer in Gambling City. A spokesman reports that Reagan worked as a backup for an all-male singing, dancing and acting group, The Continentals. . . . Though she

Paul Newman, whose new film Harry and Son was released this month, wanted to undergo his angioplasty — a surgical procedure that cleans out cholesterol from the arteries — in secret. So Newman elected to check into the remote Sequoia Hospital in Redwood City, under the nom de hospital John Smith. John Smith? C'mon Paul, surely you can do better than that.

Maybe the problem is that former Attorney General John Mitchell just can't sit still. Although he repeatedly has been told that there is

I started out as a background singer and vocal arranger, working with people like David Bowie, Bette Midler and Quincy Jones. On one of my tours with Roberta Flack, when I was singing in the background, she suddenly said to me, "It's about time you got hooked up with a record company." She promised to introduce me to managers and lawyers to make the transition easier. But Roberta must have known it would take something more dramatic to loosen me from my comfortable background slot. # Does Your Pet Need Animal Psychotherapy?

BY PATRICIA LEIGH BROWN

Tuesday night in Metuchen, N.J. At the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. W., a tan, overweight 7-year-old male Yorkie named Sandy is undergoing treatment by one of the few types of doctors left who make house calls. "Our friends don't visit us anymore," the perturbed Mr. and Mrs. W. lament to Dr. Peter Borchelt, Ph.D., an animal behaviorist.

Lately, it seems, Sandy has taken to biting friends of the family, as well as their housekeeper; this night he has also decided to nip the loafer-clad toes of Dr. Borchelt, a wholesome-looking 39-year-old who appears as if he still consumes Skippy peanut butter (he does). Observing this behavior, which is triggered when nonfamily members have the unfortunate experience of coming too close to one of the W.'s, Dr. Borchelt concludes that Sandy is "fearful and aggressive toward strangers." Prescribing a series of "gradual exposure" techniques designed to lessen Sandy's fear, the doctor helps the W.'s guide their pet toward overcoming the behavior. People start visiting again, but one problem remains: "Our friends think we're nuts to invest in an animal psychiatrist."

Perhaps it was inevitable. In a nation that is highly therapy-oriented and in which half of all families own dogs or cats, the emergence of the pet psychologist should come as no surprise. At least one professional observer regards the growing legion of animal-behavior specialists as part of a new frontier. "People are realizing that animals have intrinsic value," contends Dr. Michael W. Fox, scientific director of the Humane Society of the United States in Washington. "Pets are more deeply connected to people now than they ever were before."

Admittedly, the image of the "animal shrink" conjures up strange visions of cats on couches and dogs free-associating about their relationships with their mothers ("She was a — a real... bitch"). In fact, the modus operandi of Peter Borchelt resembles Sherlock Holmes far more than it smacks of Sigmund Freud.

Floral Park, Queens, N.Y. Dr. Borchelt is pondering a case involving Brandy, a 4-year-old neutered-male short-hair cat. The problem, succinctly put by the owner, is that "Brandy goes 80 percent of the time on the living-room carpet." This situation has persisted for two years, necessitating costly cleaning bills and causing undue embarrassment to Brandy's "family."

The first thing Dr. Borchelt tries to determine is whether Brandy's predicament involves a preference for surface or for location (oddly enough, the cat urinates on the living-room carpet, but not on an identical bathroom rug). "We know there's a method to his madness," a pacing Borchelt explains to the owners, "so think of what we're doing as though it were a football game. We know some of the basic rules. What we don't know is at exactly what point we'll win."

Borchelt spends 45 minutes or so probing Brandy's behavior, asking questions related to his history: When did the problem begin? What methods were used to counteract it? What were the results? Later, combing the premises, the doctor happens to notice the texture of the more heavily-trafficked bathroom carpet. Matted down, it is a little less cushy than its living-room counterpart. "This might account for Brandy's preference," reasons the latter-day Holmes. He then devises an experiment in which litter boxes are positioned on two favorite living-room spots, and a swatch of living-room carpet is nailed to the desired bathroom litter box. Eventually, Brandy should learn to use the litter box in the bathroom. "He's just like Quincy," Brandy's family says of their animal behaviorist.

In a given week, the know-how of the peripatetic Dr. Borchelt has extended to an inter-male aggression case with two Dobermans, a separation problem of a Portuguese water dog in New Hardly dogmatic, Dr. Borchelt still manages to make use of the couch.

Jersey and somewhat destructive behavior (chewing and clawing) involving a miniature poodle. It has also encompassed more serious matters: bites, the most common reason for seeking the assistance of an animal behaviorist. Forty-five percent of all children between ages 4 and 18 are bitten by dogs, according to a 1982 University of Pennsylvania study.

Since the late 19th century, when Russian physiologist Ivan Pavlov discovered he could make dogs salivate on command, animal-behavior research has been applied to everything from training pigeons to deliver messages to teaching Flipper how to be a movie star. It wasn't until the 1970's, however, that behaviorists, relying on techniques developed for the modification of human-conduct problems, began turning their attention to pets. Though qualified behavior therapists like Dr. Borchelt are still relatively rare (he has a Ph.D. in comparative psychology with a specialty in animal behavior), the field is expanding: today there are at least four veterinary schools with staff animal behaviorists, and courses on animal behavior are slowly becoming a part of curriculums.

The acceptance of a Dr. Borchelt can be attributed to new scientific knowledge, public-health imperatives and changing relationships between people and pets. Sheer numbers tell some of the story. There are 55 million dogs and 52 million cats in this country, and according to Dr. Alan Beck, director of The Center for the Interaction of Animals and Society at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, one-quarter of the pets turned over to animal shelters every year are abandoned because they have behavioral difficulties. Of those animals, Beck estimates that 85 percent are eventually euthanized.

At the same time, though, there seems to be a countervailing trend afoot. Americans are beginning to come to grips with their attachment to pets, the "human companion animal bond," as it is known in veterinary circles. "We have individuated our relationship to our pets," observes University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist Dr. Aaron H. Katcher. Fewer children, increased familial instability and a lack of familiarity with animals are some of the reasons he feels pets are becoming more important in our culture. So the idea of pet therapy, in his view, is a logical outgrowth of the legitimization of the feelings people now hold toward their animals.

Peter Borchelt opted to treat animals because, he explains, "it's easier to find answers." He completed his doctorate in 1973 and joined the staff of New York City's Animal Medical Center in 1978. In 1980, still affiliated with the hospital, he started a private practice. His specialty was considered so obscure that the phone company refused to list "Animal Behavior" in the Yellow Pages.

Today he roams the streets and highways of the New York City area in his silver Volkswagen, license plate emblazoned: ANML BHVR. Along with some two dozen others who share his specialty nationwide (others include Dr. Benjamin Hart in Davis, Calif., Dr. Suzanne Arguello in Fort Collins, Colo., and Dr. Sharon Cromwell-Davis in Athens, Ga.), Borchelt is filling a long-existing void between obedience trainers and veterinarians. Some vets argue that good trainers work better than Ph.D.'s: Dr. Borchelt insists that potential clients consult a vet first. Typically, he'll spend two to four hours with a pet, usually at the client's home, at a cost between $100 and $200, depending on the severity of the case.

Unlike the proverbial Dr. Dolittle, who talked to the animals, Borchelt talks to their owners, focusing their attention on learning techniques or on altering the environment. Aggressive behavior, separation dilemmas, phobias and excessive grooming and feeding patterns all fall within this purview.

Close to you: The good doctor seems to have a way with animals.

Sometimes the solution is easy. Arriving at a household on the posh Upper East Side of Manhattan, where Dinwily Lhasa apso is, "My mother-in-law says I'm doing it all wrong; I should stick her nose in it and hit her with a newspaper."

In some cases, however, personal situations can affect pets. The so-called "jealousy response," for instance, is common when a divorcee living in her old apartment starts seeing someone new, or when a baby arrives. Under such circumstances, a dog may bite or howl, exercising its natural protective instincts while "misinterpreting affection on the part of humans as a threat." One of Dr. Borchelt's cases involved a situation in which a newly remarried woman, terrified of being kicked out of her second husband's apartment building due to her rambunctious boxer, came to him for advice. Using a gradual exposure technique in which she would repeatedly pretend to leave home, the woman managed to reduce the dog's fear of his new home — and also pacify the neighbors.

Not every case involves cats and dogs. Dr. Borchelt once made a "stable call" to see a horse deathly afraid of blacksmiths. To counteract this "blacksmith phobia," Borchelt "desensitized" the animal by having other stable workers don pieces of the blacksmith's clothing.

Peter Borchelt doesn't know whether animal behaviorists will become American institutions the way veterinarians and dog trainers have.

It does seem likely, though, that as pets continue to play an important role in our lives, so, too, will specialists like Peter Borchelt. "There's still so much we don't know," he stresses as he drives home contemplating the future of his field. But no doubt, Borchelt will pursue this, and other issues, with dogged determination. FW ny and Corky, two Dalmatians, were fighting, all Dr. Borchelt had to do was take one look to realize he had "a classic inter-male aggression problem." Unbeknownst to the owners, the dogs had not been neutered. "In this situation," he explained to them, "we know it is related to male hormones."

Sometimes success is elusive, however, as in the case of an 11-year-old male Yorkie afflicted with acute separation anxiety. For almost all its life, the little fellow would shake, pace and salivate whenever his owner left for work. Eventually, the owner contacted Dr. Borchelt, who attempted to treat the disorder behaviorally. "We couldn't fake that dog," he recalls now. "It was the equivalent of trying to get an American to unlearn English."

Many people assume that their pets' behavior troubles are their fault, but "the owner is just one of thousands of variables that influence behavior," says Borchelt. He points out that the bereft but typical response of the owner of a

INN-SIDE WEEKEND VACATIONS

By Janice Meehan

It may be only a brief escape, but a weekend away at an old inn or small resort can be just as relaxing as a longer vacation.

I'm a die-hard devotee of the weekend getaway and have found that it comes down to five basic rules.

Rule 1: Make reservations. Gone are the days when you could simply show up at the door of some charming inn and get a room for the night. It's not impossible, but why take the chance of being disappointed? A spokesman for the New England Vacation Center suggests that a good rule of thumb is to book at least a week or two in advance. It only takes a phone call and usually a deposit to insure that you'll get the weekend retreat you want. And bring the confirmation slip with you. If you haven't heard back from the hotel after sending the deposit, call again to make sure you are expected before you leave home.

If you are lucky enough to get a reservation on short notice, get the name of whomever you talk to on the phone — in case there's a mix-up later. "And if you're stuck somewhere at 10 P.M., give the innkeeper a ring to hold your room and maybe a small supper," suggests Jim McGovern, owner of Hermitage, an inn in Wilmington, Vt.

Rule 2: Do some research. Some surprises can be nice, but not ones that involve your pocketbook. Does the establishment take credit cards? Very small places and, shockingly, some quite expensive ones do not. Ask what meals are included in the room price. Generally, but not always, breakfast is; dinner may be part of the package, which is fine when you want to stay put. However, if you want to dine elsewhere, make sure you are not paying for two dinners in one evening. And do a little reading beforehand to learn what sites there are to see nearby.

Rule 3: Know where you are going. Sounds funny, huh? Well, it's no joke driving back roads at 4 A.M. looking for "that little lane that veers off near the big tree." Get explicit directions.

Rule 4: Pack a snack. Inns and most resorts have set — and usually early — dining hours. If you're leaving on a Friday after 5 P.M., you'll need something to help tide you over.

Rule 5: Most important of all: Be realistic. If you have been working all week, a seven-hour drive to get somewhere to relax is anything but relaxing. It might be easier to take a train or to price a spot closer to home.

Be realistic about your expectations, too. Brochures can spin some remarkable fairy tales, like the charming Colonial that is actually frosted with aluminum siding. If you find yourself in this sorry situation, use the disappointment as a reason to investigate other nearby places that may prove more hospitable for the next time. FW

TEI GORDON, 13, VERY DEFINITELY MEANS BUSINESS

By Steve Jennings

Everybody talks about the weather but nobody ever does anything about it — so goes the old saw. Well, Tei (pronounced "Tay") A. Gordon, a 13-year-old eighth grader from Corvallis, Ore., is doing something: He's making money from it via weekly newsletters that help building managers cut energy costs.

Known as The Energy Adviser, this young tycoon's research enterprise boasts 50 corporate clients, including Fortune 500 heavyweights like J.C. Penney and General Mills, who pay as little as $47 a year for Tei's service and, in the case of General Mills, save as much as $13 million in energy costs.

What precise service does Gordon provide that has attracted such an impressive client roster and so beefed up his bank balance in just over a year?

Every Monday morning, Tei rings the National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration (N.O.A.A.) in Washington, D.C., to gather information the agency collected the previous week. The data concern so-called "degree days," a measure of how much fuel is needed to keep a building comfortably warm or cool.

Such information is important to owners of large commercial buildings, particularly if they have buildings in several cities. Degree figures coupled with calculations on energy usage help landlords rate the efficiency of heating and/or cooling systems.

Tei receives these statistics through a telephone hookup, or "modem," that connects his father's office computer with N.O.A.A. The material appears on the computer screen and is then printed out for Tei's subscribers, who receive the reports by mail a few days later.

Though Tei has been the high-octane fuel behind The Energy Adviser, credit for the idea goes to a family friend, Arthur N. Orans.

A colleague of Tei's father (who is a mechanical and electrical engineer), Orans started the service in 1982 but soon turned it over to the teen-ager through a licensing agreement.

"The kid is a pretty good marketer," says Orans, who notes that Tei makes most of the decisions concerning advertising, promotion and client contacts for the newsletter. "He's got subscribers in North Carolina, Florida and Washington state — all over."

But few of those customers know that they're dealing with a 13-year-old, 5-foot-1 vendor.

"Thirteen, oh really? I'd like to buy stock in his company," was the reaction of E.R. Haduch, director of engineering for First Office Management in Chicago. He uses Tei's data to monitor energy in 18 buildings across the country.

"Thirteen?" echoed Ralph N. Bacon, an Oakland-based energy conservation consultant. "You're kidding."

But this kid is a pro. Until recently he worked only about half an hour a week and hired friends to help with tasks like envelope stuffing. "But since I started getting a little publicity and more subscribers, it's gone up to about an hour a week. I've made $3,000 to $4,000 in the last year, and this coming year I expect revenues between $6,000 to $7,000."

Even with that additional 30 minutes of work, Tei still has plenty of time to pursue his primary extracurricular activity: swimming. Not surprisingly, on dry land he spends a lot of time playing computer games and nurturing his plan to major in computer science at college, preferably Stanford.

There has, of course, been a bit of ribbing from classmates about his success. "But most of them are taking it pretty well," says Tei. "And I've made a lot of new friends." PW

You don't have to cross the Pacific to find these rich and colorful slices of Asian life. With increasing ease, you can find them right here in California. For major international and compact cars aren't the only things landing on these Western shores. People are, too, from the islands of Japan, Vietnam, the borders of China and from the tropics of Southeast Asia.

Asian (Pacific) Americans are the nation's fastest-growing ethnic group. Although they comprise just 1.6 percent of the total population — 3.5 million — fully one-third of them live in California. Today they make up 10 percent of the state's population by age, that share could triple.

In view of such numbers, it's a bit surprising that Asian-American stereotypes persist with such mind-numbing force. If someone told all European-Americans were dumb, they'd be laughed at. But even among the most highly educated, such cliché-ridden thinking often prevails. For instance, play this little game: Try to name the ethnic background of the late Bruce Lee, martial arts. # HOW TO SAVE A BUNDLE ON YOUR AUTO INSURANCE

Your Rates Can Easily Be Up To $70.00 Lower On Every Car You Insure

Right now, you could be paying too much for your auto insurance. And that's a shame. Because, if you take immediate action, you can get exactly the same coverage you have now — or better — and save up to $70.00 or more on every car you insure!

Five Reasons Why Nationwide's Rates Are Lower

1. Lower Basic Rates. With Nationwide, you buy your insurance direct, by mail or phone. That cuts our costs, and we pass our savings on to you.

2. Good Driver Reward. We only insure responsible drivers. Your driving record doesn't have to be perfect, just good. That lowers our claims costs...and your rates. In some states, if you don't qualify for our lowest rates, we can still help you get insurance at competitive rates through one of our affiliate companies: Nationwide Property and Casualty Insurance Co. or Colonial Insurance Co. of California.

3. "Multiple Car" Discount. We make it worth your while to insure all your cars with us...you get a generous discount on every car you normally use for business or pleasure! (In Texas as prescribed by the State Insurance Board.)

4. "Good Student" Discount. We've found that young drivers who maintain a B grade average or better are usually safe drivers, too. That's why good students get a good price break from Nationwide — except in Texas.

5. Senior Discount. We also offer a discount for senior drivers in many states — because this age group has proven itself to be among our safest drivers. Since you help us lower our risks, we lower your rates. (Not available in Texas.)

Just add up all the ways you may be able to save with Nationwide, and you'll see why we feel confident our rates are probably lower than the insurance you carry now.

Fast, Reliable Service for 57 Years Now
With Nationwide, you get the convenience of handling your claims by phone! Just call Nationwide's toll-free "Live Wire" Claims Service and get immediate help from one of our representatives. They're ready to assist you night and day, every working day. And most claims are paid within 48 hours after proof of loss! With Nationwide's 57 years of experience, you can always count on excellent customer service.

Jack Soo, a co-star of Barney Miller.

If you guessed Chinese, Japanese and Japanese, respectively (Soo took a Chinese name), you're unusually well-informed. All Asian-Americans may seem to have yellow skin and slanty eyes. But in fact, they comprise more than 20 nationalities, an astonishing array of peoples whose sole common denominator is geography — ancestral roots planted in the Pacific Rim.

These stereotypes not only rub against the cultural pride of Asian peoples, but they can also lead to tragedy: In 1982, a young Chinese-American named Vincent Chin was bludgeoned to death after his slayers — one of them an unemployed auto worker — mistook him for a "Jap" and extracted fatal revenge.

Perhaps part of the problem derives from the feeling, not always kept under wraps, that somehow Asian-Americans just aren't, well, Americans. For instance, Sumi Haru, a longtime TV producer and moderator in Los Angeles, was recently parking her car in Venice when a man drove up and informed her that she was pulling into his space. When the Filipino-American Haru protested that it was a public street, the man irately told her, "You must be a friend of Chan's. Why don't you people go back to your own country?"

This incident, related at a November hearing of the Los Angeles County Commission on Human Relations, vividly illustrates a persistent notion: that even second- or third-generation Asians aren't considered homegrown Americans but rather foreigners. Almost every Asian-American can recall times he or she has been asked, "Where did you learn to speak such good English?" or, "Where are you from?" Innocent as such questions are, their implication is disconcerting. The underlying notion that Asians aren't quite American, that they don't quite belong, leads to pathetic attempts to deny one's heritage or even to the anti-

Asian jingoism that has scarred California's history since the late 1800's.

The supposedly "complimentary" stereotypes are just as damaging. Consider the perception that Asian-Americans are better off than, well, maybe they should be. The 1980 U.S. Census showed that they had the highest family income of all racial groups. Koreans drive Cadillacs. Why? And aren't the Chinese buying out the L.A. suburb of Monterey Park?

Many Asians do have their own businesses and produce a profit, then take that profit and turn it over through other investments. What could be more American? Clearly, there is less here than meets the eye. Most of these concerns are run by family members who work for little or no pay and for longer than eight hours a day. When the U.S. Civil Rights Commission adjusted income levels for such cultural factors as family-member labor, it showed Asians earning less than Caucasians and barely more than blacks and Hispanics. More telling was Forbes magazine's 1983 survey of the 400 richest people in America: Only four Asians made the list — Yoko Ono, An Wang of Wang Laboratories, Kyupin Philip Hwang of Televideo Systems and Sirjang Lal Tandon of Tandon Corporation. And they were all born overseas. In other words, fewer Asians have "made it" any better than the rest of us Americans.

Even a superficially positive stereotype can have unpleasant side effects. On some college campuses, one of the cardinal rules is to avoid taking classes with too many Asians — they raise the grade curve. Indeed, University of California admissions and outreach director Ed Apodaca reports that Asian-Americans enter the University of California system with the highest grades of all ethnic groups (3.74). Now, there's nothing wrong with being considered smart if you are. But if you're not, you may buckle under the pressure of living up to a false ideal.

Mike Watanabe, director of the Los Angeles Asian-American Drug Abuse Program, sees the human fallout of this straight-A student stereotype. Every day he and his staff counsel young Asian adults who have turned to everything from grass to hard drugs as an escape from unrealistic expectations of success. "The connection is evident," Watanabe says. "Clients say that what they have to struggle with is their failure to succeed, to live up to the expectations imposed on them not only by family but by the majority culture."

Other kinds of stereotypes are hardly as flattering as this one. One gets the picture of the utterly passive Asian-American, failing to assert himself. They are not only Quiet Americans, a phrase immortalized by William Hosokawa, author of several books on Japanese-Americans; they are Passive Americans.

And they seem so technically-oriented: Calculators strapped to their belts, noses buried in a book. They speak in numbers and equations, bits and bytes — and then only when spoken to. They are reliable, diligent, the kind of people terrific at organizing parties but real losers at enlivening them.

Well, not so fast. True, Asian-Americans tend to concentrate in technical fields. Raised in a culture that stresses tacit communication over verbal fluency, many Asians have opted for fields like engineering and pharmacy because they are relatively wordless and certifiably open to Asians. As younger Asians become more acculturated and outspoken, however, they've begun to branch out. There are now four Asian-American members of Congress, the Asian rock band Hiroshima and network TV newsmen Ken Kashiwaha.

This passive label only confuses timidity with good manners. Asian-Americans are just as aggressive as anyone else, of course, but they tend not to show it so overtly to outside groups.

Given this misconception, it's not surprising that Asian-Americans, with their Koreatowns, Chinatowns and Little Tokyos, tend to have a reputation for sticking together. "Why don't you guys hang out with other people?" is a common complaint.

It's certainly true that Asian cultural norms place a higher value on the group than the individual. But much of the cliquishness is the perfectly normal reaction of new immigrants to strange surroundings, not unlike what other newcomers did before them. For Asians born here, the fact is that they do "hang out" with other people. U.C.L.A. professor of sociology and social welfare Harry Kitano says Japanese-Americans are even marrying outside their race — generally to Caucasians — at a rate of about 60 percent. The rate for Chinese is 40 percent; for Koreans, about 30 percent.

THE MYSTERIOUS EAST:

It may appear that the ancestors of Robert Ito, Connie Chung, Johnny Yune and Esther Hyen shared a homeland. But looks deceive. Ito, of TV's Quincy, is a Japanese-American. Newscaster Chung is Chinese. And comic Yune and model Hyen trace their roots to Korea.

ASIAN-AMERICANS

One reason for this may be that Asian women are considered to be very sexy. A 1975 campus survey at the University of Washington on "ethnicity and sexual attractiveness" found that Asian women are regarded as the most desirable of all ethnic groups — hardly surprising, considering their media portrayals. From the demure Geisha Girl to the sizzling Suzie Wong to today's plethora of Asian-American TV newswomen, society's image of these women has been updated, although not really changed. By and large, they are still seen as attractive, exceedingly feminine and above all, exotic. But can they type? Or run a board meeting? Of course — if given the chance. Flattering though the exotic image may seem, Asian women say it makes it harder to be taken seriously in the working world. Even in personal relationships, it is assumed that the Asian woman will "take care of her man" — meaning she cooks, cleans and does everything for him but rock him to sleep. It's an impossible expectation.

Also unrealistic is the stereotype that Asian-Americans are usually problem free. Asian-American social workers most clearly see the fallacy of this stereotype. Irene Chu of the L.A. Chinatown Service Center says that a shocking number of new immigrants — frustrated by their inability to cope — lash out at their families, take to the bottle, or both. Watanabe of the L.A. drug clinic says his clients are using harder drugs more frequently now than a decade ago. Asian communities also are falling prey to extortion, robbery and other crimes by local gangs — from the Japanese Yakuza to the Vietnamese Frogman and Thunder Tigers.

Both the police departments of San Francisco and Los Angeles have established special Asian gang task forces which have met with considerable success. According to San Francisco police inspector John McKenna, there were 55 gang-related murders from 1969-77, when five people were killed in a gang shooting at San Francisco Chinatown's popular Golden Dragon restaurant. Since the San Francisco Police Department formed its gang unit in 1977, gang-related homicides have plunged to four.

Yet the public commitment to combat these problems is relatively small. While the Ford Foundation generally allocates minority groups "at least" 25 percent of its $130 million in annual grant funds, it awards Asian-Americans less than 2 percent of that, according to spokesman Robert Tolles. Community workers also complain that other services, like providing bilingual interpreters, are perennially underfunded or even dropped. Perhaps all the stereotypes are getting in the way of a realistic understanding of today's Asian-American. FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

BY MARION LONG

Bob Camp

GOOD OLE BOYS?

Members of the Old Boy Network — businessmen who grew up or went to school together — have long been thought to have an advantage over those in business without such contacts.

But Prof. Stuart L. Meyer of the Kellogg Graduate School of Management at Northwestern University says that collaborating with old pals is fraught with peril: Friends often fail to demand the same standards from one another that they do of strangers. They can be reluctant to criticize their buddies and sometimes expect special concessions. And most dangerous, Meyer adds, is that "friends usually figure a handshake seals their deal."

How to avoid such pitfalls and put your contacts to work? Get everything on paper, for one thing. And if you know your "buddy" has a short temper or is unreliable, reconsider the deal.

CATCHY CLOTHES

The fashion world has tried to cope with the Walkman and its many clones by designing jackets with special pockets for the stereos. But now, for those of us who like the idea of portable music but whose sartorial sensibility is offended by foam-rubber earpieces, there's the Music Vest, clothing with an FM radio and speakers built right in.

Michael J. Waldron, creator of the vest, contends that his design is a public service as well as a fashion statement. Headphones — lack of aesthetic value aside — can be a safety hazard, blocking out the sound of, say, an oncoming car. His invention solves that problem by placing the speakers squarely on the shoulders of the music lover.

The vest may soon be available nationally, along with Waldron's other tuneful togs, the Music Jacket and the Music Jogger (a jogging suit).

HUNDRED-TO-ONE SHOTS

When I was 17," crooned Frank Sinatra, "it was a very good year." According to the song, Sinatra had a couple of other notable years. But how many banner years can the rest of us expect? According to Desmond Morris, author of the Book of Ages, any age can be exceptional.

Morris points out that great achievements have been made at all different points in people's lives. The compound microscope was invented by Zacharias Janssen in 1590, at age 10. Brigham Young fathered his 56th child at 69. And pianist Artur Schnabel filled recital halls through his 95th year.

Nor does Morris neglect the middle years. Charles Good-year came up with a new rubber process, Rudolf Diesel invented an engine, Edwin Land designed a revolutionary new camera, and Charles Townes brought the laser to light — all at age 38.

"The lesson these people teach us," says Morris, "is to never think it is too late."

THE TASTE OF SUCCESS

America's lean economic years may be over for a while. One indicator: In 1983, 1,803 new food products were introduced — more than any year in the last two decades. According to New Product News, unveilings of new edibles were up a fat 20 percent over 1982.

The debut of a veritable cornucopia of foods suggests that the industry expects a robust economy in 1984.

And it is tempting America's taste buds with offerings like curry-flavored ketchup, salami made from fish (Sea-lami) and ketchup-flavored potato chips (Ket-chips).

The largest helping of the new foods was baked goods, and close on the heels of breads came an assortment of low-calorie and low-sodium goodies. But the item that has America chomping at the bit is Guacamole Bubble Gum.

A MINOR INJUSTICE

It looks like Justice's blindfold may have slipped a bit, at least when it comes to crimes committed by female juveniles. Research by a Toronto lawyer shows that punishments meted out to girls are stiffer than those handed down to boys for similar offenses. Girls are also more likely to end up in court, and once there, are more often sent to reform schools.

Lawyer Sherrie Barnhorst contends that police and judges apply one set of standards to boys, another to girls.

For example, curfew violations are tolerated in young males as a sign of burgeoning independence, but are punished in females as self-destructive behavior. Further, the sexual indiscretions of young men are far more likely to be overlooked than are those of young women.

This discrimination may well be unconscious. But to eliminate it, Barnhorst suggests that training sessions be started for both police and judges and that misdemeanors be handled out of court, reserving the courtroom for more serious crimes.

Next week in FAMILY WEEKLY: A chat with Erma Bombeck — America's Premier Mom.
