If Albert Finney wins an Oscar for his performance in Under the Volcano, the first person he may have to thank is the late Richard Burton, who never took home the statuette despite seven bids. Why? Burton was the odds-on favorite to play the alcoholic ex-British consul living in Mexico. After all, he'd starred in Night of the Iguana for Volcano director John Huston 20 years ago. But Burton and Huston then went their own separate ways, and when financing finally surfaced for Volcano, Huston focused on Finney, who'd been his Daddy Warbucks in the 1981 musical Annie.

FINNEY: TOP OF THE VOLCANO

never knows what's going to happen on the set. If it rains, we're told, 'We'll have to go into page 75.' Actors who'd studied the whole script wouldn't gasp. 'Page 75?' I didn't even look at it."

finally realized that I'd never be perfect at any of them, so I relaxed a little. Selleca and her husband, Gil (Buck Rogers) Gerard, were introduced by a mutual friend on a plane flight four years ago, during which "I spilled Amaretto on him and he laughed it off. I liked that." Two months later the pair was secretly wed in Reno. "It was infatuation," says Selleca. "We had to learn to love each other; we did our courting after marriage. I discovered he wasn't Prince Charming, and he discovered I wasn't Cinderella. If we hadn't been married, the relationship probably would have ended. We've learned how to talk in our four years together." Their 2½-year-old son, Gib, has also learned to talk — and fast. "Gib is verbally advanced," says his proud mama. To prove her point, Selleca turns to her son and asks, "What do we say at work, Gib, honey?" Gib's eager response: "Background; roll 'em; quiet, please; speed; action!"

A tour of their spacious Manhattan co-op would yield no clue about the professions of Sandy and John Gabriel. She may be the star of the ABC soap All My Children and he the leading man on ABC's Ryan's Hope, but give them the simple life. "Welcome to Squaresville," greets John. "We're home six nights out of seven, rarely go to the theater, and for fun we watch movies with the kids on the VCR." Adds Sandy, "I guess we're dull." Recreation for Sandy seems to consist of buying and returning

If there ever was a body built for a bathing suit, it's the infuriatingly lissome form of super model Christie Brinkley. Only natural, then, for Christie to turn into a designing woman: She recently unveiled her line of Russ Togs swimwear and is full of advice about choosing the suit that best suits you. "I would not suggest suits with flounces for anyone with heavy thighs," she cautions. "A dark suit is best; the simpler the better. I really believe that if you don't want to draw attention to a particular part of your body, don't put an attention-getter, like a ruffle, on the spot." Certainly, ruffles and flounces didn't always make up a part of this lady's waterwear wardrobe. "My first bathing suit was my brother's underwear," recalls

Brinkley. "I can still remember how comfortable it felt." Will the Uptown Girl turn her hand to bridal wear next? She and longtime love Billy Joel have finally decided to make things official — with a very large diamond to seal the deal — but at this writing haven't made public the wedding date.

THE GABRIELS: THERE'S NO PEACE LIKE HOME

It is a moment that many a chagrined parent has suffered through. A young man has abruptly quit a secure, if mundane, job and has gallivanted off to seek his fortune in his own way. His employer denounces him as a "spoiled, unprincipled, conceited brat."

The youth's father hangs his head in agreement. "The fault is mine. I've been too indulgent with him."

The scene takes place in director Milos Forman's superb new film, Amadeus. The outraged employer is the Archbishop of Salzburg. The unhappy parent is Leopold Mozart, journeyman composer and violin teacher.

And the errant youth, of course, is one of the greatest and most precocious geniuses the world has ever seen: Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

Strikingly, this vignette has poignant relevance for all of those today who are concerned about nurturing and placing a proper value on our children's creativity — all the more so since the handling of gifted youngsters has become a widely debated educational and social issue.

Was Leopold Mozart right to accept the blame for spoiling his son? Was he, like so many parents of prodigies, a classic "stage father" who ruthlessly exploited Mozart's gifts but left him ill-equipped to deal with practicalities?

Yes and no. Certainly Leopold dropped everything to hover over every detail of little Wolfgang's musical development. By the time the boy was 6, Papa was trundling him around the courts of Europe, seeking favor by showing off his son's prowess as a composer, violinist and harpsichordist. On the other hand, Leopold broadened Wolfgang's education by teaching him reading, languages and arithmetic, and as the boy grew older, he strove to show him how to exercise diplomacy and advance himself in the world.

Few parents have a young Mozart to raise. But even those with much more modestly gifted children face similar challenges: how to do justice to the child's gift, neither forcing nor neglecting it; how to help the child come to terms with his or her specialness without succumbing to arrogance or alienation; how to help the child chart a balanced course between ambition and down-to-earth, human concerns.

We like to think we have become more enlightened about such matters since the 18th century, but the solutions still aren't easy. In Cradles of Eminence, a study of the childhoods of 20th-century high achievers, Victor Goertzel and Mildred George Goertzel recount one mother's dismay at the loneliness she and her husband felt in their struggle to do right by their brilliant child: "God Does Talent Have to Mean Terror?

By Christopher Porterfield sent us a gifted one, but He forgot to enclose a book of instructions."

One of the first difficulties may lie in simply recognizing the gift. A flair for music is the easiest to spot, partly because it almost always shows up early. If 4-year-old Jenny can identify the horn on the family car as an F-sharp, and after eavesdropping on her big brother's piano lessons can repeat his exercises by ear, Mom and Dad can be pretty sure they have a genuine talent on their hands.

Other gifts emerge more gradually. Einstein is the favorite example; he did not speak until he was 4 and did not read until he was 7. And Thomas Edison's parents were convinced at first that he was retarded.

The usual early signs of special ability, if they appear, include great curiosity, independence, a large vocabulary, an ability to reflect on observations, and a fondness for making up games and songs. But many gifted children may combine these traits with—or disguise them behind—a sort of "Amadeus syndrome" that expresses itself in various forms of brattiness.

"Gifted children don't act like other kids by definition," says James T. Webb, a clinical psychologist at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, and a co-author of the book Guiding the Gifted Child. "They are more inquisitive, quite active, they often need less sleep, they get into things, often they are seen as hyperactive, obnoxious, unruly, strong-willed, mischievous, unmanageable and rebellious."

The more imaginative and creative the child is, the more likely this is to be true. Those whose strong suit is sheer braininess (an IQ of 130 or higher is considered to be in the gifted range) may occasionally be a parent's dream. Future lawyers or economists, for example, can be organized, oriented toward mastery of assigned tasks, eager to please.

But in general, gifted children, especially the creative ones—the future artists or inventors (who may also have stratospheric IQs)—are likely to be trouble for their parents. The reason is perfectly natural. They themselves often feel troubled. They know they are different; they feel the envy of their playmates; and they are burdened by high expectations, including their own.

At least one expert, the noted psychologist and author Bruno Bettelheim, believes those children can work things out on their own. "I feel that the gifted child, despite the concern of many parents, is well able to take care of himself," says Bettelheim. "If he isn't, then he isn't gifted."

Others caution that without special guidance, sensitive, stress-ridden, gifted children may be prone to depression, drug abuse, underachievement or dropping out of society altogether. Pianist Lorin Hollander maintains from personal experience that "the creative child often feels he's damaged because early in childhood he saw things his peers didn't, and those things torment him until he learns to use them."

Webb and his co-authors, Elizabeth A. Meckstroth and Stephanie S. Tolan, suggest that parents try to instill a sense of humor, especially the kind of gentle self-mockery that can release tensions. In addition, they recommend that children be encouraged to share their stress by thinking aloud about it, and to practice "positive ignoring"—deliberately switching to less perplexing thoughts or activities.

Ruth Duskin Feldman, a former darling of the Quiz Kids radio show of the '40s, looked up 85 fellow alumni of the show and combined their reflections in a book called Whatever Happened to the Quiz Kids? Perils and Profits of Growing Up Gifted. Among her no-nonsense prescriptions: "Give praise and encouragement, but don't push too hard. And maintain discipline. Even a gifted child can take out the garbage."

Nearly everyone seems to agree nowadays that it is dangerous to subject gifted children to the glare of publicity and the pressures of public performing. Fiendishly accomplished tykes have largely disappeared from our musical platforms, and "prodigy" has turned into something of a dirty word within the past couple of decades.

This is partly because ex-prodigies have been so vocal about the traumas of the experience. Conductor Lorin Maazel, who caused a sensation in the '30s by leading symphony orchestras before he was out of short pants, recalls with bitterness that "I was dropped flat as soon as I lost my market value as a monstrosity."

Consider, by contrast, the way violin-

One mother's lament:
"God sent us a gifted one, but He forgot to enclose a book of

ist Isaac Stern took charge of his protégé Pinchas Zukerman in the '60s. After bringing Zukerman to the United States from Israel, where the 11-year-old had already performed widely, Stern arranged for him to study music at the Julliard School in New York and then cancelled all his engagements. "You need time to absorb and time to live," Stern told him. Zukerman resurfaced in concert halls a few years later and has enjoyed a resoundingly successful career ever since, both as a string virtuoso and a conductor.

Yet it is possible to miss the real moral of the Zukerman story. His mentor may have removed Zukerman from the pressures of performing, but at the same time he ensured that the boy would go full steam ahead with intensive training. In other words, Stern did nothing to play down Zukerman's gift, but may even have nourished it more fully.

Such nourishment is possible in conservatories and other special institutions, but it is much harder to come by in the school systems. Parents of gifted children may face their toughest challenge at the schoolroom door.

A number of special programs have been developed in recent years for students of outstanding ability. In most states there are support groups to help parents make the best use of the school's resources. Increasingly, colleges and universities offer special guidance and opportunities. But overall, educators have not been very imaginative in meeting the needs of the gifted.

By their nature, public school systems are geared to norms. They want students to do well but are flummoxed by those who do too well, or by those whose strengths lie so far outside the curriculum that they become bored or disruptive within it.

And in fact, our schools mirror our society. For all our talk of individualism, Americans tend to be suspicious of exceptional cases, of brilliant oddities. We like folks to be well-adjusted and well-rounded. Anything that smacks of elitism or favoritism ruffles our democratic pieties.

But those pieties begin to sound hollow when tested against the accomplishments of some of the high-achievers, troublemakers and oddballs who have enriched our national life — the Nobel scientists, the poets, the bridge builders, the philosophers. Just imagine what might happen if a latter-day Leopold Mozart ran head-on into the corridors of the Common Denominator in conference with a school counselor.

"Mr. Mozart, I'm afraid your son is not making a very good adjustment."

"What's the problem?"

"He doesn't relate to his peers. Acts bored, or makes up games and riddles they don't understand, some of them quite—well, unsuitable. He's clever, but he lords it over the others."

"I see."

"And his classwork is suffering. He's impertinent to his teachers, and spends too much time dreaming or scribbling at his scores."

"But music is his passion."

"All well and good in its place, but he's a bit, er, obsessive about it. Our task is to educate the whole child."

"What do you suggest?"

"Perhaps he should get away from his eternal keyboard and spend more time out of doors. And frankly, I think he'd do well to broaden his interests along more practical lines, so that someday if music doesn't work out, he'll have something to fall back on."

This is highly exaggerated, of course, but as long as there is a grain of truth in it, parents have cause for concern. Yes, a gifted child needs to be well-adjusted—to his own extraordinariness. He needs to be well-rounded, too—in the realization of his unique potential. When both these needs are satisfied, the long-range results may be practical even by society's standards.

As the Goertzel observes, "The child who is both intelligent and creative remains society's most valuable resource. When we learn to work with him instead of against him, his talents may reward us in ways beyond our ability to imagine."

So let's hear it for poor old Leopold. Despite his mistakes, his efforts can ultimately be counted a success. After all, he gave us Mozart. His guiding principle turns out to be one that, allowing for altered circumstances, still applies for parents today: Go with the gift. FW

STACEY KEACH

TV'S "MIKE HAMMER" SHOOTS THE BREEZE

For years, Stacey Keach was known as an "actor's actor" — well respected in his profession but not quite a superstar. Recently, however, he has snagged major parts in TV mini-series such as The Blue and the Gray and Princess Daisy, and he has just played the leading role in CBS's Mistral's Daughter. Keach is also the star of the successful series Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer.

His surging career was tinged with controversy when he was arrested last April at Heathrow Airport in London and charged with importing $7,500 worth of cocaine. He was released on a cash bail of $100,000.

When writer Digby Diehl caught up with Keach, the actor had just finished a strenuous workout. He relaxed in his sweatsuit and talked about a variety of subjects. Keach is not at liberty to discuss the charges against him, as the case is now pending in court.

Diehl: Did you read Spillane when you were growing up?

Keach: Yeah. My mother used to say: "What are you reading those filthy books for? Take those books out of your bedroom." You read them today and they are so tame considering what we've gone through in the last 20 or 30 years. But we have tried to maintain something of the spirit of the risqué, a little bit of that element, in the show. I think it's part of the genre.

Q: Is your Mike Hammer mellower than Spillane's?

Keach: I would say more vulnerable, because he is as tough as I think Hammer can get, but there is another side of him we've tried to explore that is softer. I think in television it's important for the hero to have some kind of vulnerability. And even more important than that is humor.

Q: I understand you're also quite a keyboard artist.

Keach: I've played the piano since I was about 13, and I've recently gotten into synthesizers. I hope as time goes on that I'll be able to share what musical talents I have with more people. I love to jam with friends. It's relaxing.

Q: I guess since you're happily married, you're not out running around with lady stars.

Keach: Right. The nicest thing is that [my wife] Jill is an actress, so she understands the insanity of this business. People ask her all the time, "How do you feel about your husband kissing all these beautiful dames?" [She replies,] "As long as he looks good, stays on the air, keeps the dough coming in so we can finish the house..." She makes me very happy because she really does understand. I love to travel with her. We've been all over the world together. She's a wonderful companion.

Q: You've said that if for some reason you couldn't be an actor you'd be in football.

Keach: At one point I wanted to be a professional football player. I started freshman ball, and that was very short-lived because I was at [the University of California at] Berkeley, and I was too small, too brittle — and my grades were on the edge — so I said that's the end of that. But at one point in my life that was my dream — to be a professional football player.

Q: You've been a character actor for a very long time. But now you're getting romantic leads.

Keach: I'm very lucky to be doing that. I was never motivated by being a movie star. I wanted to be a wonderful actor, be the best I could possibly be. But everybody has his own time and his own moment. FW

I can do all this from my home because I subscribe to Pronto — the computerized home-banking system of Chemical Bank in New York. But this system is not unique. If I lived in California, I could bank from home through HomeBanking from Bank of America. If I lived in one of certain New York City suburbs, I could soon use the HomeBase system of Citibank.

There aren't many of us yet who bank from home via computer — fewer than 30,000 in fact. But one year ago, there were no computerized home-banking systems in regular use. A year from now, there could be a dozen. Citibank will be offering its HomeBase system later this year, and systems are being tested at several other banks.

When you bank from home electronically, you can use your computer to check your account balance, and you can shift money from one account at the bank to another. You can see, displayed on your screen, all your recent banking transactions. You can exchange "electronic mail" with the bank and, in some systems, with other computer-banking customers.

Finally, you can pay bills electronically to the local and national merchants who join the system. You can tell the bank to schedule a payment for the next banking day, or for as far ahead as 90 days. You can even arrange a recurring payment, such as the mortgage.

And more features are coming. Chemical Bank offers a home budgeting service, and Bank of America plans to offer one soon. Chemical Bank just introduced a new information service, with up-to-date news about the economy, consumer matters, and taxes. Both banks soon expect to have you trading securities through your home computer.

My bank insists that I confirm every transaction by indicating on the screen that all my instructions are correct. I can review the instructions I give the bank, and I can make all the changes I want until 6 a.m. of the day the transaction is to be carried out. Each month I get a statement listing all transactions, so I can double-check that everything was done right.

The cost of banking at home runs high. HomeBanking's fee is $8 a month; Pronto's is $12. Yet you'll still have to visit your bank to make a deposit or to cash a check.

But there's a powerful incentive for banks to make their computerized systems irresistible to everyone. Banks want all the financial business you can give them. As they diversify, that can cover more and more ground, from stock brokerage to life insurance. The more they offer, the better customer you're likely to be.

In time, the cost of banking at home will come down. And to get more of us to sign up, banks will offer more and more services until we all become computerized banking customers. FW

DRUGS AND THE ELDERLY: KNOW THE RISKS

By Howard L. Rosenberg

At the admitting desk of a hospital in the Baltimore area, 80-year-old Matilda turned over the handful of prescription bottles she kept in her purse. During the next few days, the doctors treating her for heart problems prescribed new medications. On her way out of the hospital she picked up the drugs she had surrendered earlier.

Upon returning home, Matilda dutifully gulped down her usual clutch of pills and then swallowed the new capsules ordered by the hospital doctors. Within hours she was lethargic, confused and reeling with nausea. Frantic, her relatives called their family physician. He prescribed yet another medication to soothe her upset stomach.

Finally, one of Matilda's children thought to tell the doctor about all the drugs she was taking. The doctor quickly realized she was suffering the symptoms of "polymedication" — a syndrome in which several drugs interact to produce an adverse reaction — and ordered her to stop taking all the medications. She recovered almost immediately. Later, her doctor slowly re-introduced necessary drugs, carefully monitoring her body's response.

Millions of elderly Americans aren't as lucky. A recent study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association estimated that 31 percent of the elderly make clinically serious, sometimes life-threatening errors in the use of prescription drugs. Recent studies conclude conservatively that in the United States, 12 to 17 percent of elderly patients admitted to hospitals are suffering from drug-induced problems.

"Physicians assume that older people will take the drugs that are prescribed and take them as directed," explains Dr. Frank McGlone, past president of the American Geriatrics Society and executive director of Denver's Medical Care and Research Foundation. "In a high percentage of patients, that assumption is wrong. Elderly people may diagnose their illnesses themselves and decide to take more or less of their medications, depending on how they feel. The physician himself may fail to fully communicate the importance of following the treatment schedule."

Another difficulty in dealing with the problem of prescription drugs and the elderly, says Professor Peter Lamy, chairman of the Department of Pharmacy Practice at the University of Maryland in Baltimore and a leading expert in the field of drugs and the aged, "is that many of the symptoms people associate with the aging process are identical to those indicating an adverse drug reaction. Confusion, for example, may be age-related, it may be disease-related or it may be drug-related. So if the patient is confused, you really have to trace back what's causing it."

As people age, they become more sensitive to drugs and are more likely to have a reaction. The more drugs a person takes, the better chance there is Dodge makes history with America's only 5 year/50,000 mile warranty for trucks.

Announcing a major challenge to Ford and Chevy.

Think about this: A truck warranty just as tough, just as long lasting as the one you'll find on every passenger car Chrysler builds. Five long years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first. At no extra cost.

Nobody you'd figure would have the courage to put that kind of long-term guarantee behind a vehicle that takes the beating a truck does.

Nobody except Dodge. America's fastest growing truck manufacturer. Our light truck sales have increased a remarkable 127% comparing the first 9 months of the '84 model year to the comparable period in the '81 model year.

And for 1985 we're backing every truck we build with the same 5/50 warranty.

Every new 1985 full-sized Dodge pickup and Ramcharger, two- and four-wheel drive. Every van, wagon, even our revolutionary Dodge Mini Ram Vans and Caravans. No exceptions — right up to our dual rear wheel 10,100 lb. GVW Ram 350.

We're giving America engine and powertrain coverage that's more than twice as long as our competition. And long-term outer body rust through protection they can't even come close to.

So, Dodge issues the ultimate challenge. All truck companies talk tough. Ford. Chevy. The Imports. But here's the difference.

At Dodge, we're not afraid to put our money where our mouth is.

If you're over forty, you'd be wise to read this.

If there's a history of cancer in your family, you'd be foolish not to.

Colorectal cancer is a serious disease that strikes the colon or rectum. Next to lung cancer, it's the leading cause of cancer-related deaths in this country. 130,000 new cases will be diagnosed this year, and nearly half of them (59,000) will prove fatal. It doesn't have to be that way. If detected early, the chances of surviving colorectal cancer are greatly improved.

Why Should I Worry? I've Never Been Sick a Day in My Life.

Wonderful, but unfortunately it's no guarantee that you won't get cancer of the colon or rectum. Colorectal cancer strikes men and women with equal frequency.

Age, however, is a factor, since the risk increases dramatically if you're over 40. If you're past that age, or if there is a history of cancer (especially colorectal cancer) in your family, you should know about the Hemoccult® Home Test, an easy examination for a sign of colorectal cancer that you can give yourself, in the privacy of your own home.

Detecting Hidden Warnings.

The name Hemoccult comes from bemo, meaning "blood," and occult, meaning "hidden." The test materials have been chemically treated to detect otherwise unnoticeable traces of blood in a person's stool—hidden blood that could be an early tip-off to the presence of cancer or other colorectal diseases.

Using the test is simple. Everything has been provided to make it fast, easy and painless (read and follow package directions carefully.) Within 60 seconds the results will be evident. If they reveal the presence of blood, see your doctor promptly.

Early Detection Could Save 3 out of 4 People.

In most cases, the Hemoccult Home Test results will simply bring you the relief and satisfaction of learning that blood, which may be a sign of cancer, is not evident. But even if hidden blood is detected, there is still no reason to panic. The presence of blood in the stool can be an indication of other conditions far less serious than colorectal cancer. And even if cancer is diagnosed, with early detection the survival rate is approximately 75%.

Early detection can save

What Can Be Done to Reduce the Risk of Colorectal Cancer in the First Place?

Obviously there are no guarantees, but evidence suggests that a proper diet may be the best defense. The basic rule of thumb is to increase the fiber in your diet and reduce fat. And of course, the need for a periodic doctor examination cannot be overstressed.

Over a Decade of Use in Hospitals

Hemoccult has been used by millions of patients in hospitals and doctors' offices for years. Now the Hemoccult Home Test is available wherever drugs are sold. Of course, the Hemoccult Home Test is no substitute for your doctor's regular physical examination, but between checkups it provides an added means of early detection.

Remember, the odds of your having colorectal cancer are small, but not small enough to ignore. The few minutes you take for the test will most likely help put your mind at ease. On the

of some sort of chemical conflict. Nothing — not even a vitamin — is innocuous. Almost any sort of chemical introduced into the body has the potential to conflict with something else. And the longer a person takes a particular drug, the more likely an adverse reaction becomes.

Another factor complicating the problem is the trend of switching prescription drugs to over-the-counter (OTC) status. Ibuprofen, a pain-reliever used by arthritis patients for years, recently became available as an OTC analgesic. Research indicates that as many as two-thirds of the elderly may purchase non-prescription drugs routinely, many of which could dangerously react to other medications prescribed by their physicians.

Moreover, pharmaceutical manufacturers don't often test drugs on older patients, preferring to use young, healthy volunteers. One reason is a fear of putting the aged at risk. Most elderly must be excluded as experimental subjects anyway because of a history of some disease, or because they regularly take some other drug that might skew test results.

For its part, the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has never issued appropriate guidelines governing drug testing in elderly populations. The FDA's Dr. Robert Temple has drafted a working set of directions for the drug industry, and the government hopes to issue more complete guidelines within the next year.

Washington is also backing several drug education campaigns aimed at the elderly. Last year the FDA sent out messages to 36 million Social Security recipients along with their benefit checks, urging them to consult doctors and pharmacists about their prescription medications. Millions of similar FDA brochures are distributed through supermarkets and drugstores free of charge.

Meanwhile Dr. Lamy advises elderly patients not to be passive about their health care and, when they suffer symptoms that could be a drug reaction, never to accept the diagnosis that "it's just old age."

Insists Lamy: "Sometimes it might be just a symptom of old age, but don't accept that. Be sure to ask questions and give your doctor information. When we interview patients who have had adverse reactions, they say, 'The doctor didn't tell me.' And the doctor always says, 'They didn't ask.'"

Lamy recommends that elderly people always visit physicians with two lists. One list should catalogue everything the patient needs to tell the doctor — all drugs the patient is taking (including OTC medications and vitamins), eating and sleeping habits and general state of health.

The other list should pose a series of critical questions. Do I need this drug? What is it? What will it do? How long can I expect to take it? How will I feel? How do I take it? With food? At bedtime? What does four times a day mean? Every six hours? Should I get up during the night to take it? Does this medication interfere or react with any other drug I'm taking? Can I expect side effects?

If medication is prescribed, patients should try to fill all their drug orders at the same pharmacy, so that the drug-gist can keep tabs on the medications the person is taking and monitor problems that might crop up. Many pharmacies keep computerized records of which drugs customers are using, and a trained pharmacist who's on the ball will spot a potential adverse reaction first.

"Pharmacists need to get involved with the patients," says Madeline Feinberg, a Silver Spring, Md., pharmacist and president-elect of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association. "They need to know when to ask questions, particularly when the patient starts a new medication, fails to refill a current prescription on time or chooses a non-prescription item that might cause problems. The pharmacist can't just throw the prescription over the counter and say goodbye."

"Pharmacists need to know when to ask questions," concludes Feinberg, "particularly when the patient starts a new medication or fails to refill a current prescription. I also tell all my patients to ask questions. You wouldn't buy a car or carpeting for your house without finding out everything you can about it first. You should treat medications the same way." FW three-car garage in his next new house.

America's houses are more varied than many people think. Despite national manufacturing of most building products, and despite the frequency with which Americans move from one place to another, our houses reflect strong regional differences.

In the suburbs of Washington, D.C., aluminum siding is the most commonly used material for the exteriors of new houses. In Denver, hardly anyone accepts aluminum siding. Coloradans want walls of a natural material — if not wood straight from the sawmill, then siding made of pressed wood fibers that manages to retain wood's appearance, sound and texture. Southern Californians choose stucco, and home buyers in St. Louis select brick.

For the roof, Southern Californians prefer tile, Oregonians want to see wood shingles, and Bostonians, like most Eastern and Midwestern home buyers, expect shingles made of asphalt.

These variations in materials — and ultimately in styles — are partly the result of differing climates and regional architectural traditions, two factors that also influence the way the house opens up to its surroundings.

A-patio or balcony attached to the master bedroom is a popular feature in Southern California, where outdoor privacy is provided by 6-foot-high walls that enclose the yard — the modern equivalent of the walled gardens and patios enjoyed two centuries ago by the Southwest's Spanish colonizers.

By contrast, master bedroom patios and balconies are far less prevalent in the St. Louis and Washington, D.C., areas, where tall privacy fences are considered unneighborly, and the weather more often forces people indoors.

Even within a single state, there are sometimes markedly different opinions on the most appropriate setting for a

A Hideaway for Book Lovers

On a shelf, desk, or dresser, our clever little BOOKSAFE looks exactly like an ordinary book—which it was, until we hollowed out an ingenious secret compartment. This 3 1/2" x 6" foam lined compartment is perfect for hiding money, jewelry, personal letters, or other tiny treasures. And, it's sure to go undetected because only you know which title it is. By the way, titles may vary which makes the BOOKSAFE even more undetectable.

And at $5.95, this has got to be the least expensive home or office "safe" available anywhere. Our BOOKSAFE makes a most unusual, practical and long-lasting gift. So order several and take advantage of our special money-saving quantity discounts.

SYNOMETRICS...an Olympic Champion's Discovery!

Introducing IKE BERGER Olympic Champion

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the "miracle" we call SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISO-METRIC + ISOTONIC)...the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping...to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim handsome body!

In addition to reshaping and toning your body, a FREE accompanying easy to follow diet plan will help speed up weight loss, if weight loss is one of your objectives, to speed away ugly, embarrassing fat & flab

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS "...the new EASY speed method for figure beauty What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is...a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now...build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS—the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER? Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery, no door-knobs needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.)—fits anywhere!

IRON CLAD 14 DAY MONEY BACK GUARANTEE In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results...or your money back promptly and without any question.

three-car garage in his next new house.

America's houses are more varied than many people think. Despite national manufacturing of most building products, and despite the frequency with which Americans move from one place to another, our houses reflect strong regional differences.

In the suburbs of Washington, D.C., aluminum siding is the most commonly used material for the exteriors of new houses. In Denver, hardly anyone accepts aluminum siding. Coloradans want walls of a natural material — if not wood straight from the sawmill, then siding made of pressed wood fibers that manages to retain wood's appearance, sound and texture. Southern Californians choose stucco, and home buyers in St. Louis select brick.

For the roof, Southern Californians prefer tile, Oregonians want to see wood shingles, and Bostonians, like most Eastern and Midwestern home buyers, expect shingles made of asphalt.

These variations in materials — and ultimately in styles — are partly the result of differing climates and regional architectural traditions, two factors that also influence the way the house opens up to its surroundings.

A patio or balcony attached to the master bedroom is a popular feature in Southern California, where outdoor privacy is provided by 6-foot-high walls that enclose the yard — the modern equivalent of the walled gardens and patios enjoyed two centuries ago by the Southwest's Spanish colonizers.

By contrast, master bedroom patios and balconies are far less prevalent in the St. Louis and Washington, D.C., areas, where tall privacy fences are considered unneighborly, and the weather more often forces people indoors.

Even within a single state, there are sometimes markedly different opinions on the most appropriate setting for a

UNFORBIDDEN SWEETS

If these desserts were available in a restaurant, you would order them. And if you could find them in your supermarket you would buy them. Because these are your favorite desserts—Chocolate Eclairs, Banana Cream Pie, Chocolate Mousse, Strawberry Shortcake, Boston Cream Pie, Fudgy Brownies, Black Forest Cake and more—except for one thing: You don't have to worry about calories.

Yes, most of these desserts weigh in at considerably less than 200 calories per serving. Many contain less than 100 calories per serving. And none reach the 260 calorie level you will often find in just one cup of fruit yogurt. How do they taste? Just like they ought to—sinfully delicious and rich—thanks to the pioneering efforts of award winning cookbook author Jean Anderson.

"Ms. Anderson is among those who are pioneering the use of a new product, aspartame," writes Irena Chalmers in The Cooks Magazine. "Aspartame is an innovative low-calorie sweetener and it has undergone thirteen years of careful testing and evaluation by the FDA before being brought to the attention of the American public. It is marketed in the United States under the name Equal®, and has two hundred times the sweetening capabilities of sugar without the bitter aftertaste of saccharin. Now we can all go on glorious binges with Fudgy Brownies, Boston Cream Pie and Down East Blueberry Bread Pudding, thanks to Jean Anderson's carefully crafted recipes." DISCOUNT GUIDE FOR TRAVELERS OVER 55

Once you've reached the age of 55, the travel industry treats you like a privileged person. Many hotels will give you a 10% to 50% discount. Airlines may fly you for less. And some automobile rental agencies will rent you a car at a 30% discount. In fact, trains, buses, museums, movie theaters — even bowling alleys — here and abroad may offer you price breaks that you couldn't get when you were a year younger. Why? Because the business world is waking up to the fact that people over 55 have the time to travel, and a lifetime of experience in bargain hunting.

So why pay more than you have to? The Discount Guide for Travelers Over 55 shows you where to find over 2,000 discounts ranging from 10% all the way up to 70%. Information is included on hotels and motels; car rentals; train plane and bus fares; sightseeing and cultural events. It covers bargains in all 50 states and the District of Columbia plus Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean and Europe.

Order today so you'll have plenty of time to plan ahead and take advantage of all the savings you'll find in The Discount Guide for Travelers Over 55.

home. Rik Alex of U.S. Home Corp. in Arizona notes that Phoenix residents use water from the Salt River to maintain extensive green lawns, while Tucson residents, dependent on water from underground wells, cover their yards with a red gravel interspersed with rocks and desert plants.

Features inside the house also vary widely from one region to another. Hardwood floors are demanded twice as often in the suburbs of the nation's capital as they are in Texas and Southern California.

Texans and Floridians, according to often distrust a house containing a mirrored wall. Marketing in such areas has to be conducted in a different spirit than it is elsewhere. In a booming, euphoric Sunbelt city, a house exterior possessing unusual flair can stimulate home sales, but in more sober sections of the North, the same design can turn potential home buyers away.

After the Arab oil embargo of 1973 jolted energy prices upward, many Northern houses were built with ceiling heights of 7½ feet instead of the standard 8 feet, notes Bill Devereaux, division manager of Berkus Group Ara survey by the trade journal Multi-Housing News, are bigger on buying trash compactors than are people in the Northeastern and North Central states. Californians want fireplaces despite plentiful warm weather; many Floridians don't.

People in the North Central states are more willing than people anywhere else to pay for ceramic tile walls and floors in the master bathroom. They, along with Californians, are also most easily sold on ceramic tile countertops in the kitchen.

Plush bathrooms with such features as bidets, double-sink vanities, oversized tubs, and separate shower compartments are being promoted throughout much of the nation. Sid Stephenson, who oversees U.S. Home's developments in much of the East and Midwest, finds that people in many Northern metropolitan areas with stagnant or declining economies are eager to visit model homes to inspect the luxurious new features, but rarely will they buy them.

"Every little twinge in the economy causes them to think that they may be able to afford it now, but if the economy declines, they may lose their jobs," says Stephenson. "A big bathtub with a Jacuzzi means 'let the good times roll.' It's incongruous. These buyers are looking for utility." If they do decide to invest additional money in a home, usually it's for something more practical and traditional, like a first-class kitchen.

Home buyers in economically unsteady areas are so wary that they will chitects for the Eastern United States. Cathedral ceilings — then slowly being adapted from designs popular in California — quickly lost favor.

Now, because many new houses have less square footage than their predecessors of a few years ago, there's a tendency to go back to 8-foot ceilings for a sense of spaciousness. Nonetheless, the "volume ceilings" so popular in the Sunbelt — sloping upward for dramatic effect — are used more sparingly in much of the North.

There's little reason to think that regional differences in housing will disappear. The strikingly different economic prospects of various parts of the country have helped produce a contrast in attitudes — cautious and basically utilitarian in the North (with some exceptions, such as New England), experimental and more leisure-minded in prosperous sections of the Sunbelt.

And now that energy from fossil fuels is too expensive to be squandered, climate is doing more to distinguish the houses of one region from those of another than at any time in the past 50 years. The idea of finding a single best solution to America's housing needs has been largely discarded.

The most thoughtful architects today see diversity as a virtue; houses that differ according to their locale can respond better to climate and to people's needs, and they can reinforce each region's distinctiveness. FW

Si puede, se debe," says Rene Enriquez, who plays Lt. Ray Calletano on Hill Street Blues. "If you can, you should." The message: Register and vote. Enriquez's public service announcement is one of several television and radio spots broadcast over the Spanish International Network urging Hispanic-Americans to go to the polls on Nov. 6. The ad campaign, called Destino '84, underscores an important new factor in American electoral politics.

Hispanic voters — there are 3.4 million Spanish-speaking households across the nation — comprise the fastest growing minority in the United States. Taken together, the five states with the largest Hispanic populations — California, Texas, New York, Florida and Illinois — account for more than half of the 270 electoral votes needed to elect a president. When New Jersey, New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado are included, Hispanics have a say in all but 77 electoral votes needed for victory.

It is not surprising, then, that Democratic and Republican presiden-

HOW CAN THIS CARD HOLD DOWN SO MANY BILLS?

It might look like just another I.D. card. But the Blue Shield of California card does more—a lot more—than just identify you. It also identifies and helps hold down your medical costs.

When you carry this card, you're backed by over 35,000 doctors across California who are Blue Shield Physician Members. They help you hold down your medical expenses because they accept Blue Shield's limitations on their payments. tial campaign planners regard the Hispanic vote, especially in the Sun Belt states, as a crucial factor in the outcome of the 1984 election.

The two highest ranking Hispanic officials in the Reagan and Mondale campaigns agree about the significance, if not the direction, of the Latino vote. Bob Estrada, a former top aide to Sen. John Tower (R-Texas), notes that Hispanics do not constitute a monolithic bloc vote. "If we do our job right in identifying Reagan with the moral values and social concerns of Hispanics, we'll win," he says.

"For the first time, the Hispanic community is being spoken of as important. We do count. We are needed in all aspects of public policy," says Ronnie Lopez, former executive assistant to Democratic Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona and now senior counselor to the Mondale campaign. He regards the huge increase in Hispanic registration this year as a "tremendous effort" that will pay off on election day.

That push for Hispanic registration is just part of an overall national surge in voter participation. There is a much greater focus this year than in the past on voter turnout, voter registration, and electoral demographics; both parties predict that the general election vote will jump to 100 million from a 1980 level of about 86 million. And because of the enormous growth of the Hispanic population in particular, that group has been showered with attention.

Witness these campaign snapshots:

- At a "Viva Reagan" rally in East Los Angeles, Vice President Bush shouted

"Otra vez!" — One more time! — as he pitched the theme of the president's commitment to "peace, freedom, family, faith, work and neighborhood."

- "There has never been a Hispanic Cabinet officer or member of the United States Supreme Court," said Walter Mondale on the campaign trail — whether in the barrios of South Texas or between bites of a taco in Grand Central Market in downtown Los Angeles.

- Mondale's son, Ted, was often seen stumping for his father in Hispanic neighborhoods, and even delivering speeches in Spanish.

- Katherine D. Ortega, a Hispanic and the United States Treasurer, appointed by Reagan, delivered the keynote address at the Republican National Convention in Dallas.

The new Hispanic strength was in evidence at both conventions this summer. The number of Latino Democratic delegates and alternates — 271 in 1976 — jumped to 341 in San Francisco. Four years ago, the Republicans could muster just 80 Hispanic convention participants. This year in Dallas the number more than doubled, with California alone producing 51 delegates and alternates.

California will be a key state in the quest for the Latino vote. In 1980, the state had 988,000 registered Hispanic voters; this year there may be 1.4 million. Mondale got 42 percent of the primary vote in a Los Angeles Times poll among Latinos (compared to Gary Hart's 36 percent and 17 percent for Jesse Jackson), but Republicans feel fairly secure about the November vote among California's Hispanics.

However, Mondale's top Latino strategist, Ronnie Lopez, refuses to concede the Golden State, which has not gone Democratic since Lyndon Johnson won it in 1964. Despite California being Reagan's home and having Republican George Deukmejian in the governor's mansion, Lopez is not discouraged. He points to the victories of two Latinos — Matthew Martinez and Esteban Torres — elected to the House of Representatives from Los Angeles County in 1982. The two joined Rep. Ed Roybal in backing Mondale in the primary, and they represent districts

Then there is the bitterly controversial Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill, which would strictly prohibit the employment of illegal aliens while giving legal status to aliens who have lived in the United States since Jan. 1 1980. The bill created deep splits in the Democratic Party itself, and it is frequently labeled by Hispanic leaders as the most "racist piece of legislation" since the Chinese Exclusion Acts of the 1890s. While Ronald Reagan maintained that the legislation, first triggered by Jimmy Carter in his 1977 message to Congress, was overdue because "the simple truth is, we've lost control of our borders," Walter Mondale did end up opposing Simpson-Mazzoli. But not until May 2, with many of his key Latino backers up in arms over his apparent vacillation, did the former vice president ask

Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to delay the bill until after the final round of primaries on June 5. Later that month the House did indeed back the bill.

Simpson-Mazolli may hurt the Democrats this year. Democratic Rep. Robert Garcia of New York, chairman of the House Hispanic Caucus, warned that Latinos might be discouraged from voting in November should the bill also pass the Senate.

While Hispanics register the second-highest disapproval rating (the highest is among blacks) for Reagan's policies on both domestic and foreign matters, according to most polls, surprisingly a joint survey conducted last year by the GOP's Houston-based pollster Lance Tarrance and another respected polling expert, Mondale's Peter Hart, found Hispanics overwhelmingly in favor of tougher immigration laws. So the net effect of the Simpson-Mazzoli action is a large question mark.

Another unknown in the presidential election equation is how a woman on the Democratic ticket will affect the Hispanic vote. Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio, Texas, hailing the selection of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York, an Italian-American, enthused: "We are all Latins." Other Hispanic leaders, however, caution that the comparison is about as valid as Spaniards claiming Christopher Columbus, an Italian sailing for the New World under the Spanish flag, as one of their own.

While generally viewing Ferraro as a plus for the ticket, Democrats acknowledge that there is a "gender gap." Polls have shown that while Hispanic women lean more to the Democrats, Hispanic men now support Reagan in even larger numbers.

The political battleground for Hispanics has not shifted completely from the courtrooms, picket lines and streets of the '60s. But the group's new sophisticated political presence prompts Hispanic leaders to agree with Mayor Cisneros' assessment that the battlegrounds of the '80s, as he says, may be found among "bank officers, corporate employment officers, and political leaders who determine the structure of education programs."

Arnold Torres, executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, believes full Hispanic clout is still one presidential election away. "People haven't understood how to vote yet," he says about first-time participants.

But, he adds, because of registration and voter efforts, "Chicanos are players now. In a close election Hispanics could be critical." FW

NEIGHBORS' RECIPE EXCHANGE

By Marilyn Hansen

If you have a recipe to share, write Marilyn Hansen, Neighbors' Recipe Exchange, FAMILY WEEKLY, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036. For each recipe published, FAMILY WEEKLY will pay $10. Recipes must be accompanied by your name, address, telephone number and the name of the newspaper in which you read FAMILY WEEKLY. Recipes with the earliest postmark will be used. We cannot answer letters or return recipes. All recipes become the property of FAMILY WEEKLY.

From a location with a historical name, Grants Pass, Ore., Merle Rood sends a recipe for, of all things, "Breakfast Cookies." Merle says: "These satisfying cookies are just the thing to eat on busy mornings. With some fresh fruit juice and milk, they make a really complete breakfast." Merle reads Family Weekly in the Medford Mail Tribune, Medford, Ore.

BREAKFAST COOKIES

- 1/2 cup unsalted butter or margarine
 - 1/4 cup honey
 - 2 eggs
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped cooked bacon
 - 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt, or to taste
 - 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
 - 2 cups Grape-Nuts flakes, wheat flakes or raisin bran flakes
1. In medium-sized bowl, beat butter until softened; add honey and mix until blended.
 2. Add eggs and beat until blended. Stir in bacon.
 3. On sheet of waxed paper, stir together flour, salt and baking soda. Add flour mixture to butter-honey mixture; mix well.
 4. Stir in cereal and then drop by heaping teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. Bake in preheated 375° oven for 13-15 minutes, or until lightly browned but still soft. Cool slightly before removing from baking sheets.
 5. Cool on rack completely and then place in an airtight tin to store.

Makes about 3 dozen cookies

From the town of Tupelo, Miss., Mrs. Frank Mendenhall sends a well-seasoned recipe for a vegetable quiche. The Mendenhalls read Family Weekly in the Journal, Tupelo, Miss.

TUPELO BROCCOLI QUICHE

- 4 cups chopped broccoli or other favorite vegetable such as zucchini, yellow squash or green beans
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

- 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt, or to taste
- 1/4 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano leaves
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 cup milk or half-and-half cream
- 2 cups Muenster or mozzarella cheese, shredded
- 1 (8-oz.) can crescent-style refrigerator dinner rolls
- 2 teaspoons mustard

1. Sauté broccoli and onion in butter, stirring constantly, for 8-10 minutes. Stir in parsley, salt, pepper, garlic salt, basil and oregano.
2. In large bowl, blend eggs, milk and cheese. Stir in vegetables.
3. Separate dough into 8 flat triangles. Arrange in an ungreased 11-inch quiche pan, 13x9-inch baking dish, or 10-inch pie pan. Press dough down and together and up sides of pan to form a crust. Spread dough with mustard. Pour in the vegetable-cheese mixture.
4. Bake in preheated 375° oven for 25-30 minutes. If crust browns too quickly, cover with foil. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting to firm up the filling. Cut into wedges or strips to serve. Makes 6 servings

From Orland, Calif., Laurene Hefty sends a really knockout chocolate cake recipe. Laurene guarantees that Kahlua Chocolate Cake is very moist and very, very good. The Hefty family reads Family Weekly in the Enterprise-Record, Chico, Calif.

KAHLUA CHOCOLATE CAKE

- 1 (18.5-oz.) pkg. devil's food cake mix
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 cup Kahlua or coffee-flavored liqueur
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 (6-oz.) pkg. semi-sweet chocolate chips

1. In large bowl, combine cake mix, eggs, sour cream, Kahlua and vegetable oil. Using electric mixer, beat at low speed to blend, then increase speed and beat for 3-5 minutes at medium-fast speed.
2. Stir in chocolate chips. Pour batter into greased and floured 10-inch Bundt or tube pan. Bake at 350° for 55-60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center of cake comes out clean.
3. Cool in pan on rack for 30 minutes. Loosen from pan and invert, removing pan. Cool completely on rack.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

BY MARION LONG

THE ART OF HEALING

Has it ever struck you that it's not only the instruments in hospitals that are sterile? The surroundings can be pretty antiseptic, too. John Feight, a former ad man, had the same thoughts while working as a volunteer at an Atlanta hospital.

The artist in him objected to the blandness of the surroundings, so he asked for and received permission to paint the walls. And Feight didn't simply settle for a brighter color. "I decided to paint whatever was on the other side of the wall," Feight says, "which was probably what the patients wished they could see."

Since that day nine years ago, Feight has painted over 1,700 murals in 62 hospitals. He is willing to travel to any hospital, anywhere. Once there, he enlists the help of the patients and staff. The hospital pays for supplies, travel, and whatever honorarium it can afford. But Feight has occasionally worked for free when the hospital could not afford to pay.

Feight told us that he was inspired by his grandfather, a country doctor who donated his services to destitute patients. Though Feight has painted and will continue to paint hospitals all around the world, he keeps his work in perspective. "Artists talk about the healing power of art," he says. "Art can't heal anybody — but it can divert them. If a patient passes by one of my paintings and likes it, maybe that's a minute in which he thought about the painting and not about his pain." Feight can be contacted at the Foundation of Hospital Art in Atlanta, Ga.; (404) 393-2931.

STRESS TABS

Some sage said that good things come in small packages. It seems, however, that it may be the little things in life that raise our blood pressure and set us on edge.

Richard S. Lazarus, of the University of California at Berkeley, has found that it is minor worries and the daily hassles, not major disappointments and disasters, that lead to poor mental and physical health. Further, after a year of studying life's stresses and how we react to them, he found that the little bits of good news, the "uplifts" that come along, do little to buffer the impact of negative events.

Lazarus found that the things that irritate people vary with profession and lifestyle, but that three anxiety-causers were common to everyone. They are: misplacing or losing objects, concern over physical appearance, and having too many things to do. (So relax. You look fine. Your pen and pencil set is under the couch. And you can take today off.)

SPEND THE NIGHT AT MICHAEL JACKSON'S

You can stay at Michael Jackson's. Just call ahead — for a reservation. Michael visits Walt Disney World in Florida so often that the Hotel Royal Plaza there has set aside a suite in his honor.

Michael has had the two bedrooms and the living room decorated in a dramatic combination of black and white and grey, with a laserdisc entertainment center, an art deco sofa, and Michael's signature on a gold plaque on the door. He has also added a few homey touches by tacking up his 37 gold and platinum records, his seven American Music Awards, and his eight Grammys.

All this ambience can be yours. And for a mere $420 a night, you can't beat it. Well, even if you can, a night there would be a guaranteed thriller.

MAMMOTH MISTAKE

We feel duty bound to inform our readers that the item "Mammoth Undertaking," which appeared in the June 24 edition of this column, contained some erroneous information. The item was based on a report in the prestigious Technology Review, published at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It turns out, however, that the scientific minds at the Review had entered a more irregular orbit than usual this past April: Their report on cloning a Woolly Mammoth was an April Fool's Day joke on their readers. In being taken in by the review's mammoth hoax, "What in the World" was in distinguished company — others who spread the Review's shaggy-mammoth story included The Chicago Tribune News Service, The Fort Worth Star-Telegram and The Cincinnati Enquirer. We apologize for the error.

BOOKMARKS

What is America reading before it shuts out the light and turns in for the night?

Casey Kasem, host of American Top 40.

"I recently finished Jerry Lewis's autobiography, In Person. An entertainer can only achieve something worthwhile for others through his popularity — Lewis is one person who has been able to do this. The book shows you why he's accomplished so much: He is unique, and has never been afraid to take chances."

John Dahl, Program Director, KWEB, Rochester, Minn.

"I've been reading in Tolkien's Lord of the Rings since about 1970, but this time I read from top to bottom. I'm in a different world for as long as I'm in one of his books. I also recently went to Las Vegas, so I read Fools Die by Mario Puzo. It's the best Vegas literature I've read — the most realistic about the power behind the casinos."

Second-Hand Smoke: The Myth and The Reality.

Many non-smokers are annoyed by cigarette smoke. This is a reality that's been with us for a long time.

Lately, however, many non-smokers have come to believe that cigarette smoke in the air can actually cause disease.

But, in fact, there is little evidence—and certainly nothing which proves scientifically—that cigarette smoke causes disease in non-smokers.

We know this statement may seem biased. But it is supported by findings and views of independent scientists—including some of the tobacco industry's biggest critics.

Lawrence Garfinkel of the American Cancer Society, for example. Mr. Garfinkel, who is the Society's chief statistician, published a study in 1981 covering over 175,000 people, and reported that "passive smoking" had "very little, if any" effect on lung cancer rates among non-smokers.

You may have seen reports stating that in the course of an evening, a non-smoker could breathe in an amount of smoke equivalent to several cigarettes or more.

But a scientific study by the Harvard School of Public Health, conducted in various public places, found that non-smokers might inhale anywhere from 1/1000th to 1/100th of one filter cigarette per hour. At that rate, it would take you at least 4 days to inhale the equivalent of a single cigarette.

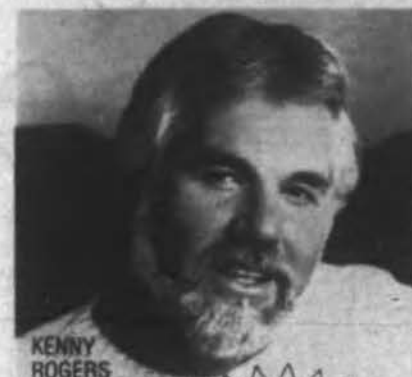

Often our own concerns about our health can take an unproven claim and magnify it out of all proportion; so, what begins as a misconception turns into a frightening myth.

Is "second-hand smoke" one of these myths? We hope the information we've offered will help you sort out some of the realities.

Payton's finding his place

By LORENZO CARCATERRA

In 1975, the Chicago Bears chose as their No. 1 draft choice a running back from Jackson State University. That summer, the rookie quietly boasted that one of his career goals was to break Jim Brown's all-time rushing record of 12,312 yards.

Now, as he enters his 10th season as a Bear, Walter Payton surely will break that record. He began the season 688 yards shy of Brown and going into today's game needs only 222. He has done it the way actor John Houseman would call "the old-fashioned way" — he's earned it.

Walter Payton is tough, loves his sport of football for its power hitting as much as for its graceful and almost poetic movements. His love of hitting (and, some say, for being hit) came early in life — at 7 he banged away on a set of drums given to him by his parents; at 14 he was thrown 30 feet by a moving motorcycle.

That didn't stop him. Neither did Jim Brown's shadow.

Payton has not had the luxury of having spent his career, as did his rival Fraco Harris, with a contending ball club. Nor did he have the extra advantage of an outstanding offensive line. All he has, all he has used, are the basic skills he was born with. Until now, they have been more than enough.

Certainly Payton lacks the color of Tony Dorsett of Dallas, the power rush of Billy Sims of Detroit or the bull-like tendencies of Houston's Earl Campbell. But they don't have the record and come next Sunday or the following Sunday or the Sunday after that, Payton will.

Radio exec trying video

County's Forman plugs contemporary music on new 'TVS'

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Just over a year ago, Dave Forman, a popular Orange County radio personality, reached a crossroads.

Forman had been program director and eventually vice president of KEZY, the Anaheim-based AM-FM station that has changed formats frequently in recent years. He had interviewed rock stars for the station and had introduced musical acts at the Irvine Meadows Amphitheater. He had even supervised KEZY-AM's short-lived transformation into an all-news station focusing on Orange County happenings.

But in early 1983, Forman sensed his radio days were numbered. He was ready to add a visual component to his work and decided to plug into the video music craze. On Aug. 1, 1983, he submitted his resignation to KEZY.

Today, Dave Forman is already producing and appearing in his second syndicated TV program, "TVS," which stands for The Video Show. Forman scored a major coup recently by getting "TVS" a 13-week run on one of the top stations in Los Angeles, KABC, Channel 7, is airing the show at 1 or 1:30 a.m. Fridays. (The time varies because of Thursday night football games carried by the station.)

A promotion booklet for the new show bears an opening clarification: "TVS is not a clips show." The statement is designed to alert programmers to the fact that TVS is not just another of numerous programs that simply string together the short films made to accompany most radio hits.

Forman prefers to describe "TVS" as a cross between MTV and "Entertainment Tonight." Though he lacks the resources of either, Forman, with the help of his wife Barbara and a few associates, has managed to produce a weekly magazine-type show composed of brief features focusing on the contemporary music scene.

The show doesn't play full-length videos, though it may show excerpts during an interview with a particular artist. It also offers behind-the-scenes glimpses of videos in production and interviews with the people who direct them.

In addition to KABC, an Albuquerque station and a large East Coast cable system have picked up Forman's new show. He hopes to sign up other stations later this year when stations begin revising their fall schedules.

The current version of TVS is actually Forman's second stab at syndicated TV programming. While still at KEZY in early 1983, he put together a show consisting mainly of music videos.

"When I put my first video show together, it was unique," he recalls. "There were not too many of them around. I'd seen MTV, and I'd realized it doesn't reach that many households."

Because MTV is limited to cable subscribers, Forman saw that a large number of non-cable viewers had no opportunity to see music videos. His first program, "The Video Show," was sold to about 30 stations nationwide.

Unfortunately, others had the same idea, and a glut of music video shows emerged. Even the networks jumped on the jukebox. Forman said he lost a sale to the NBC station in Washington, D.C., after the network unveiled "Friday Night Videos." More recently, "ABC Rocks" has joined in the competition.

As Forman's initial series was winding up his first year, he realized he'd have to offer something different. Reviewing the program, he decided its best moments occurred in the material used in between the music videos.

"The strength of our show was our interviews with the artists," he says. "It's not hard to stick just videos on for a half-hour. What's harder is giving the viewers something else to look at."

Forman says he broke even on the first video series. The current edition, "TVS," took more work — and a substantial investment of his own money. Forman wanted slick, network-quality animated opening credits, and he paid $10,000 for the 30-second opening. He completed the "TVS" pilot last spring and sent it to stations in Los Angeles and New York, intent on cracking a major market.

The first response came a day later from Walt Baker, general manager of KHI Channel 9. Forman said Baker was delighted with the program but said his fall schedule — and every other station's schedule — was already locked up. There was no room for "TVS."

But less than a week after the pilot tapes were sent, KABC expressed interest and gave the show its current late-night spot. According to Forman, the first episodes have produced respectable ratings, beating some of the movies aired on other stations. He says the show has also prompted a lot of complimentary calls to KABC.

The biggest challenge now is keeping the weekly shows coming. Forman writes and directs the show and does most of the interviews. He also has to sell advertising and oversee sales of the program to other stations.

Forman has used Jerry Mathers of "Leave it to Beaver" fame, James Lee Stanley and Jerry Holderman to conduct additional interviews. In finding subjects for his interviews, he's relied on friendships and contacts made during his radio days.

Forman is critical of the "narrowcasting" approach of MTV, which he says is geared to white, suburban teen-agers. Artists seen on "TVS" include Billy Preston, Pia Zadora, Jermaine Jackson, Rita Marley, Lindsey Buckingham, video director Mary Lambert, Chris DeBurgh and Tommy Shaw of Styx.

The show aims for an extremely fast pace, with most features lasting just two minutes or less.

Although Forman has grand ambitions for "TVS," he has no immediate plans for moving his offices away from the recording studio he owns in Garden Grove. Forman and his wife, with a baby on the way, have no plans to trade their comfortable Laguna Hills home for a residence in Tinseltown. But he admits his Orange County base makes for a lot of inconvenient travel to interview rock stars in Los Angeles.

"I just wish Hollywood would move closer to here," Forman says.

TV TIDBITS: "Attack on Fear" is the title of a new TV movie based on the story of married journalists Dave and Cathy Mitchell, who won a Pulitzer Prize for their small-town newspaper's expose of a Synanon community. The film, which will air Oct. 10 on CBS, stars Paul Michael Glaser, Linda Kelsey and Kevin Conway.

A second season of the "CBS Schoolbreak Specials" begins Oct. 16 with a show entitled "Hear Me Cry." Robert Macnaughton (of Irvine) and Lee Montgomery portray high school boys who share a secret despair and make a suicide pact.

Prime time not ready?

Survey of viewers indicates shrinking interest in the tube

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — The television industry handed out self-congratulatory Emmy awards and, amid great hoopla, officially started its new season last week.

But a public opinion poll, painting a more downbeat picture of TV, says only one of nine viewers can name a TV show that has improved his or her life.

In addition, when asked if viewers could only watch one type of programming, more respondents chose movies, news and sports than prime-time series, the staple of entertainment programming.

Those are some of the findings of a Media General-Associated Press poll conducted by a nationwide random phone sampling of 1,451 adults the first week in August.

In other survey results, respondents rated CBS' Dan Rather the most trusted news anchor by a wide margin over competitors Peter Jennings of ABC and Tom Brokaw of NBC, and CBS and ABC virtually tied as the first choice of viewers tuning in for immediate information about a major news event.

"M-A-S-H" was the most common choice for the all-time favorite situation comedy and "Hill Street Blues" the top pick for the all-time favorite dramatic series.

Asked if there were a particular TV series or program that had changed their lives for the better, 85 percent of the sample said no. Four percent said they didn't know. One percent cited TV evangelist Pat Robertson's "700 Club" and 1 percent said "60 Minutes." The remaining 9 percent cited a wide variety of other programs ranging from old comedy series and public television specials to docu-dramas and news documentaries.

College graduates watch less TV than viewers with less formal education, the survey said. Thirty-six percent of the college graduates sampled said they watched, on average, fewer than three hours of TV a day, while 9 percent said they watched eight or more hours a day.

On the other hand, 29 percent of the viewers who had not graduated from high school said they averaged eight or more hours of daily viewing, compared to 15 percent who said they watched fewer than three hours a day.

Respondents were also asked what type of programming they would watch if they could only watch one type, and 27 percent said movies and 23 percent said news. Nineteen percent said sports, 17 percent said prime-time entertainment, 6 percent said daytime shows and 3 percent said reruns. Five percent said they didn't know.

Movies were far and away the first choice of viewers from the ages of 18 to 54, but viewers 55 and older preferred news. Advertisers have already taken note of this, placing commercials for denture care and other health-related products that older viewers buy in the network news hours.

Rather, leader of the top-rated "CBS Evening News," was the most trusted anchor among 38 percent of the respondents. Peter Jennings of ABC's "World News Tonight" was picked by 25 percent and Tom Brokaw of the "NBC Nightly News" was favored by 17 percent. The rest were undecided.

Asked to choose which network they would turn to for news of a major event such as a war or a disaster, 30 percent of the respondents chose CBS, while 29 percent picked ABC, 18 percent took NBC and 7 percent chose the Cable News Network.

As to the respondents' all-time favorite comedy, 13 percent listed CBS' "M-A-S-H," the show about surgeons in the Korean War that went off the air in 1983 but is still frequently seen in syndicated reruns.

Seven percent listed ABC's "Three's Company," 4 percent said CBS' "All in the Family" or NBC's current hit "Cheers," while 3 percent said CBS' "The Jeffersons" and the old "I Love Lucy" show. The remaining responses were divided among dozens of other programs.

For all-time dramatic fare, 9 percent favored NBC's "Hill Street Blues," 7 percent said CBS' "Dallas," last season's top-rated series, and 6 percent said ABC's popular "Dynasty."

"M-A-S-H" and "Hill Street Blues" were most likely to be selected as the favorite show of so-called "yuppies" — young, well-educated, upper-income viewers.

Respondents in the poll, included a random, scientific sampling of 1,451 adults across the country Aug. 1-8. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Daytime Drama

New show, still a doctor

BY LYNDA HIRSCH

Last week Richard Van Vleet sang his "All My Children" swan song after a seven-year run as Dr. Chuck Tyler. In his exit speech, Chuck talked about becoming chief of staff at an out-of-town hospital. The very next day, Van Vleet was on the "Guiding Light" set, replacing Peter Simon as chief of staff Ed Bauer.

Simon decided to take leave on his own, causing major scrambling at GL. We hear literally hundreds of actors auditioned for the role of Ed Bauer. Van Vleet, aware that Ed has a college-age son, thought they'd be looking for a older type, so was surprised when he got the assignment. We also hear "Guiding Light" producer Gail Kobe was delighted when Van Vleet's first scene, an eight-page eulogy to half-sister Hilary, was done with nary a retake.

Aside from his acting ability, Van Vleet is an excellent artist. Whenever a castmate would leave AMC, Van Vleet would sketch the departing actor and give him the artwork. This time the gift-giving was returned, as the cast and crew chipped in and bought Van Vleet a watch he can use while piloting his own private plane.

WOULD YOU SAY the chances of being a soap star are about one in a million? Well, not if you come from Camp Springs, Tex. Then the odds are two in 36.

Brad Maule (Dr. Tony Jones, "General Hospital") and Dane Witherspoon (Joe in "Santa Barbara") hail from the same tiny community (population 36), went to the same high school and had the same acting mentor. Now they're against each other in the highly important 3 o'clock soap slot.

OVER ON "ONE Live to Live," Margaret Klenck continues on as Edwina. "I was all set to leave. I was told that my character was being written out, but was never told when. Then when Paul Rauch took over as producer, he told me I wasn't getting away so fast. I understand I'm about to have an exciting storyline."

Dorian Lopinto, who plays Samantha, will be leaving "One Life to Live" shortly. ... Look for Michael Zaslow back on "One Life" as David. His leave of absence for his Broadway-bound play was cut short since the musical only lasted eight days.

TV's 'Divorce Court' back,

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The old "Divorce Court" television show, which often peered in on adulteries and juicy domestic spats, was a racy program for the 1950s — an era in which the word "pregnant" was banned from "I Love Lucy."

But a new version of that TV classic could make the old show look like "Snow White." This time viewers will watch reenactments of actual cases involving impotency, lesbians and women who've turned into men.

"If you look at the old ones and you look at the new ones, they (the shows) are very similar in execution," said Phil Kent, vice president in charge of program development for Blair Entertainment, which is bringing back "Divorce Court."

"The difference is the subject matter. The old 'Divorce Court' basically reflected the suburban values of the '50s and mid-'60s," Blair said. "There were a lot of straight adultery cases, and it seemed like someone was always fooling around in the swimming pool."

"We'll be doing everything you can possibly imagine," casting director Michael Collins said. "In one episode, the husband turns out to have been a woman who had a sex-change operation, and his wife didn't know that he had a sex-change operation. He was impotent, and she turned out to be a lesbian."

The new show, which will be syndicated to independent stations nationwide beginning Sept. 24, will be presided over by former Superior Court Judge William Keene, who handled the real-life trials of Charles Manson and "Freeway Killer" William Bonin.

Star wars on music video?

MTV will have two competitors, plans a spinoff service

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — MTV, for three years the only 24-hour music video game in town, may find itself with two competitors by the start of 1985. It also is planning a spinoff service of its own.

MTV Networks Inc.'s second 24-hour video channel, which has not yet been named, will begin in January and will be aimed at 25 to 49-year-olds who may be turned off by the steady rock diet of MTV, which targets the 12-to-34 age group.

MTV spokeswoman Margaret Wade says the second service has been in the works for some time, but admits it is no coincidence that the plans were revealed only weeks after two other round-the-clock music video networks were announced.

"The competitive situation did have an affect on the timing of the announcement of the second service," Wade said in a telephone interview from New York.

Atlanta cable TV mogul Ted Turner in mid-August said he would launch an MTV competitor if he got commitments from enough cable operators to guarantee a total of 10 million subscribers. Unlike MTV, which is charging operators 10 to 15 cents per subscriber, Turner's service would be free of charge for five years.

The Turner station would attempt to appeal to a broad audience aged 18 to 49, said Turner Broadcasting System Inc. spokesman Arthur Sando in Atlanta.

"There will be rock, but it won't be exclusively rock," Sando says. As to MTV's second service, which will be free to operators who carry MTV, "We're not commenting on their announcement," Sando said.

Turner's was the second MTV alternative to hit cable operators this summer. Only a few weeks earlier, Financial News Network founders Karen Tyler and Glen Taylor had announced their plans for the Discovery Music Network.

"Everyone's copying our format," laments Discovery program director Dain Eric.

Like Turner's station, Santa Monica-based Discovery hopes to draw a broad audience by including black, country and pop clips in addition to rock, but there are differences. Turner's plans call for a no-frills, clips-only service; Discovery will have veejays, concerts and features, Eric said.

More importantly, Discovery will be available to UHF stations, meaning that in certain areas, people without cable TV will be able to get Discovery on their ultra-high frequency channels. MTV currently is wired into about 22 million households — only 20 percent of all U.S. homes with televisions.

Discovery was originally offered free of charge to the cable operators and UHF stations. But after Turner entered the ring, Discovery took the unusual step of offering to pay cable operators who use the channel.

"We are offering as a signup bonus five cents per subscriber," Eric said.

MTV's Wade declined to comment directly on the competition, saying only: "We know what we do in music television. We've worked on every aspect of it. We think we are in a strong position."

"We can do high quality service for a lot less capital outlay than anybody else can," Wade said. She said MTV expects to spend $7 million launching its second network, while Sando said TBS is projecting launching costs of $10 million for its music channel.

Discovery expects to spend $10 to $15 million getting off the ground, Eric said.

Ironically, only a few months ago some observers thought MTV had more or less precluded any head-to-head competition by signing a series of "exclusivity" agreements giving it first crack at many new videos by four record companies in exchange for cash payments.

Citing confidentiality clauses, MTV declined to name the firms. But industry sources and trade publications identified them as giant CBS Records, RCA, MCA and Geffen Records. Elektra-Asylum, which like MTV is a subsidiary of Warner Communications, has said it will sign a similar agreement shortly.

For the record companies, the contracts represented a long-awaited contribution toward the costs of producing videos, which now average about $45,000-$50,000 per clip.

Spokesmen at Discovery and Turner — and other video clip shows such as NBC's "Friday Night Videos" — say the MTV exclusivity pacts are bothersome but not fatal. For one thing, the agreements do not cover all major videos since many superstars such as Michael Jackson produce their own clips and retain all rights to them.

MTV is said to have initially sought agreements guaranteeing exclusivity for up to a year — which could have been a mortal blow to the many other video shows since virtually all pop records are oldies a year after release.

The 30-day exclusivity deals are "not a death threat," says Tom Lynch, producer of "Night Tracks," the WTBS video clip show that runs Friday and Saturday nights.

What's in a name on TV? Plenty

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Shakespeare tells us that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, but can you picture irascible Archie popping off as Wally Bunker?

The name Archie Bunker has become such an indelible part of the character that it would be difficult to imagine him with another name.

But when Norman Lear was first developing "All in the Family" more than a dozen years ago, the name was Wally Bunker. (In the original British series "Till Death Do Us Part," his name was Alf Garnett.)

"I'd always wanted to call him Archibald, but people kept telling me no one in Queens would be named Archibald," said Lear. "They said it sounded too English. We used Wally in the first script, but I didn't want that name."

Lear was saved by Kellam deForest, whose deForest Research Inc. checks out character names for most television series and movies to be certain that they are legally safe to use.

"We found there was actually a Wally Bunker living in Queens," said deForest. Thus, Archie Bunker entered television history.

Bunker was selected as his last name because of what Lear felt the name implied. "Our selection came out of the word 'bunk' and all that the word means. Archie was dishing out bunk."

Character names on television come from many sources, not the least of which are the friends of the writers and producers and from street names and geographical places.

DeForest said he discouraged the use of friends' names because it could backfire. He cites an incident from the 1940s when a writer named a movie villain after his best friend. By the time the movie came out writer and friend had become enemies and the former friend collected a sizable settlement.

"If it's a work of fiction we check the names in all the purviews that a name can fall in," said deForest. "The location of the story, the occupation of the character, and all the spelling variations."

DeForest said his staff uses telephone directories. Other sources, he said, are trade secrets.

Executive producer Barney Rosenzweig said when he first came up with the concept of CBS' "Cagney & Lacey" he wanted everyone to know that it was the first women's buddy movie.

"The original title was 'Newman & Redford,'" he said, in homage to the male buddy movies of Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

"We wanted to make it clear what we were doing, but the legal department said we couldn't use that title. So we came up with the name of 'Cagney & Lacey.' We picked Chris Cagney because it's a hard, tough-sounding name, which fits Chris' character. Mary Beth Lacey has a softer sound, which suits the softer nature of the character."

Rosenzweig said he also used names in the series that give a quick ethnic identification. "Al Samuels is a New York Jew," he said. "Paul LaGuardia is an Italian Catholic. Victor Isbecki is Polish."

Contrary to deForest's rule, Rosenzweig said he frequently used the name of a friend or a place when he's in a hurry to get a name cleared.

"We had a story about Cagney and Lacey investigating a pornography ring," Rosenzweig said. "They talked about some X-rated movies, although you didn't see the movies. I named one of the porno stars after my attorney. He got a kick out of being a sex symbol in an X-rated movie."

The names of lead characters have to have the right sound, especially when it's also the series title, like "Matt Houston" or "T.J. Hooker."

"Peter Gunn" was a title that sounded good and fit the idea of being a detective. The series ran from 1958-61.

"We found there were five Peter Gunns in the country," said deForest. "Fortunately, none of them were private detectives."

Jack Ryland, who's appeared on several soap operas ("One Life to Live," "Secret Storm," "Love of Life"), will be turning up soon on "Another World." We think his character just might be the man to tame flamboyant Felicia Gallant, played by the irrepressible Linda Dano.

Lauchlan remains free during appeal

Former Costa Mesa patrolman William Lauchlan, ordered to begin a 60-day jail sentence Friday, has been granted a stay after appealing his conviction on sexual molestation charges.

Lauchlan will not have to serve the jail time until his appeal efforts have been exhausted.

Prosecutor Carl Armbrust, critical of what he considered the light sentence handed down Sept. 13, said Lauchlan could "drag out" his appeal for a year, possibly two.

Superior Court Judge James Judge also sentenced Lauchlan to three years formal probation and ordered him to pay for his victim's ongoing therapy sessions.

Judge, in passing sentence, said Lauchlan had punished himself the worst through embarrassment and disgrace. Lauchlan was fired from the police department after his arrest last January.

Lauchlan was convicted of molesting a 22-year-old Santa Ana woman while he was on duty and in uniform. The former officer denies he committed any crime though he admits he used "poor judgment."

The ex-officer, who is separated from his wife, is working as a limousine driver.

Airport foes proclaim victory after Deukmejian vetoes bill

From staff and wire reports

Newport Beach city officials proclaimed victory Saturday after Gov. George Deukmejian vetoed a hard-fought bill to limit nuisance lawsuits by people who live near noisy airports.

Deukmejian said in his veto message Friday that the bill, which was vigorously opposed by most Newport Beach homeowners, didn't focus on the critical legal issues. "Rather, this bill is a response to a public dispute between homeowners' groups and airports," Deukmejian said of AB3804, introduced by Assemblyman Richard Robinson.

D-Santa Ana

Newport City Councilwoman Jackie Heather, who worked for the veto, said it came only after a "tough fight."

"It's exciting, but I'll admit I twisted arms like crazy. I have to compliment the homeowner activist groups for the way they worked on this," Heather said.

She said county officials, who pushed for the bill's approval, portrayed homeowners who live near airports as "rich malcontents" who would go to any lengths to thwart airports.

"Thank God the governor wasn't persuaded by their arguments," she said. "We're very fortunate that he was courageous enough to veto it a second time. We're fighting for our lives down here."

Robinson's bill was sponsored by airport operators and others who complain of being harassed and hurt financially by nuisance suits filed by residents who live near airports. Bill supporters said homeowner groups have repeatedly filed $1,500 small claims court suits — in some cases a separate suit for each instance an aircraft passes overhead.

No easy answers in teen's death

Friends, family say Robbie Burlingame died by accident, not by deliberation Investigating traffic accidents is a routine part of Bob Burlingame's job as regional manager for a large bus company in Los Angeles.

But it was a personal investigation that brought Burlingame to a Huntington Beach overpass, where his son had fallen — or jumped — to his death onto the San Diego Freeway just after midnight Aug. 26.

The bridge offered no answers for the man tormented by the question of whether 18-year-old Robert Francis Burlingame II killed himself or was the victim of an unlikely accident. The elder Burlingame found little to support his heartfelt belief that "Robbie" did not jump.

All he knows for sure is that "something happened" and Robbie Fountain Valley High School teacher Isabel James opens the Baron's 1984 school yearbook to page 72 and points to a color picture of a blond-haired lad with an All-American smile, a smile that could charm the wrinkles off a raisin.

That's the Robbie Burlingame that James remembers. That's the boy who came to her special education class as a sophomore with a drinking problem and graduated last June with a $200 scholarship to Orange Coast

College in Costa Mesa, awarded for his abilities as a student leader.

James never knew the "Robert Francis Burlingame" who newspapers said apparently jumped off the Edinger Avenue overpass, a bridge lined by a 3½-foot-high steel rail. She says Robbie never appeared to be suicidal. He just didn't fit the mold of someone who could be driven over the side of a bridge by mental anguish.

No, Robbie would never kill himself. Never.

They are two professionals, a traffic investigator who assesses the liability of his bus drivers and a teacher who has made a career out of working with problem students.

Their grief has led them into their own investigations of Robbie's death. And they have reached the same conclusion — that Robbie was the victim of an accident.

Lifeguards Riley Royce (aboard boat) and Robert Tolin collect personal possessions from grounded Night Train.

By KAREN E. KLEIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 50-foot sailboat carrying about two dozen passengers on a pleasure cruise ran aground on a sandbar Saturday about 25 yards off Bolsa Chica State Beach in Huntington Beach.

The passengers, most from Woodland Hills and Ventura County, were rescued from heavy surf by nine Huntington Beach State lifeguards and a boat from the Orange County Harbor Patrol. The sailboat got stuck south of Warner Avenue near lifeguard tower 32, an emergency dispatcher said.

One unidentified person suffered a "bump on the head," but there were no other injuries, said Robert Chambers, a dispatcher with the California Department of Parks and Recreation center at Bolsa Chica. Passenger counts ranged from 22 to 25 persons.

"Everybody is rescued and accounted for," Chambers said, adding that the sailboat, called the "Night Train" and registered in Coos Bay, Ore., became stuck shortly after 6 (Please see BOAT/A2)

Charges filed in shoplift scam

More arrests likely as police continue investigation of gang

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Eleven combined felony counts of burglary have been filed against three suspected ringleaders of the "Van Leuvan gang," a group of alleged shoplifters that is believed to have collected an estimated $750,000 during the past three years in refunds on stolen clothing.

And according to Fullerton Detective Jack Petruzzelli, more arrests may be made and additional charges added as police continue their investigation of the gang.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Oct. 5 at North Orange County Municipal Court in Fullerton for John Edward Van Leuvan, 37, and Susan Marie Adamson, 29, both of Torrance; as well as Vicki Diane Selby, 32, of Garden Grove.

The three, who remain in custody at Orange County Jail in lieu of (Please see CHARGES/A2)

Candidate says city's slow to provide council records

Travel expenditures for council members sought by FV hopeful

By ROBERT HYNDMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A candidate for the Fountain Valley City Council has accused the city of dragging its feet in providing past records concerning council members' travel expenditures.

The city manager, however, denies his claims.

James Petrikin, a chiropractor seeking his first council term, says he asked for the records three months ago and has only recently begun to receive the most recent spending reports.

"I think those records should be available," Petrikin said. "But when I checked into it, I was told they weren't all in one place."

Petrikin says he wants the records so he can study how much was spent to send Councilman Marvin Adler to League of Cities meetings held at various sites throughout the year.

Adler, a three-term councilman currently seeking his fourth term, is an officer of that association.

But Petrikin has asked for expenditure records on all five council members over the past four years.

Judy Kelsey, the Fountain Valley city manager, denies Petrikin's claims and says the city has readily provided all the records it has available. Delays were caused by Petrikin, she said, who was not specific about the type of information he wanted. (Please see RECORDS/A2)

OC jobless rate drops to 4.3 percent

August rate well below level for prior year, when unemployment stood at 6.4 percent

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange County dipped slightly between July and August, falling to 4.3 percent, according to state jobless figures.

The number of Orange County residents seeking unemployment compensation fell from 59,800 in July to 55,100 in August, a three-tenths of a percentage point decrease over the previous month, the monthly unemployment report compiled by the state Employment Development Department shows.

"It usually is kind of level between July and August, then drops off in September," said Alta Yetter, a labor market analyst with the state agency.

"There weren't too many surprises this month."

The August figures were well below the levels recorded in August 1983, when the unemployment rate stood at 6.4 percent and 79,700 county residents reported they were unable to find work, Yetter added.

While the number of people seeking work declined last month, the number of new claims for unemployment benefits increased by 900, an increase which was more than offset by summer-only employees leaving the workforce.

Unexpected layoffs were recorded by local schools and colleges, which decreased employment by 4,100 jobs during the month, Yetter said. Also, expected seasonal layoffs in the agricultural industry accounted for the layoff of 1,900 workers.

Gains were reported in the construction industry, where 1,400 new jobs were created, and in the service industries, which (Please see JOBLESS/A2)

Crash hurts 2, both arrested

Two Huntington Beach residents were hospitalized in critical condition late Friday night after their cars collided at the intersection of Golden West Street and Heil Avenue.

Mariayn Visentin, 21, and Paul Teckley, 33, were both arrested on suspicion of drunken driving in connection with the accident, according to a police spokesman.

Sgt. Ed Deuel said the accident occurred at about 11:50 p.m. Friday when Visentin's car was struck by Teckley's. Both cars overturned after the impact of the collision, Deuel said.

The cars came to rest at the northwest corner of the intersection, with Visentin pinned under her car and Teckley trapped inside his car. Deuel said paramedics from Huntington Beach and Westminster responded to the scene to free the pair. Visentin was listed in critical condition Saturday at Fountain Valley Community Hospital. She suffered from cuts and bruises on her head, face and upper torso. Teckley was also in critical condition at the Fountain Valley hospital. An investigation into the incident is ongoing, Deuel said. It was unclear late Saturday which driver ran a red light at the intersection, he said.

RECORDS SOUGHT...

"Our policy is that if we have the records readily available, they are welcome to it," Kelsey said. "The real issue is that we have those records, but not in the format he wants them in."

While Petrikin wants a breakdown of each council member's travel spendings, Kelsey said the city tallies those expenditures by accounts, not individuals.

The city can provide the records, but when there are extra costs for a clerk to compile the information, the person seeking the data must agree to pay those costs, Kelsey said. "And we can't start on that until we have a specific request on what he wants," she said.

Kelsey says an agreement on what information Petrikin specifically wanted was only recently reached. Records from the past year have been provided to him with earlier records currently being compiled, she said.

SUICIDE OR ACCIDENT?...

their faith in the teen-ager, whom they described as enthusiastic and energetic.

Huntington Beach police, professionals not bound by the same emotional attachments, labeled the death a suicide after talking to witnesses who saw Robbie, wearing a white T-shirt and jeans, leaning on the rail.

No one saw him jump and there were no signs of foul play.

The Orange County Coroner's office is awaiting a toxicological report before officially classifying the incident.

But for Burlingame and James, the case is closed.

"Hey, I peeked under every rock in that kid's backyard. You spend so much time with a kid and you really get to know him," says James. She and high school supervisor Bill Ybarra retraced Robbie's last week by calling instructors at the college and talking to his friends. They found nothing that pointed to suicide.

"To use Robbie's favorite expression, 'no way,'" says James.

In a separate interview, Burlingame looks away from a reporter and stares at a wall in his living room, his mouth slightly open.

"He didn't even like pain," says the father.

"I've been to the bridge, taken a look around and tried to work it out in my head," says Burlingame, rising from a chair to answer a telephone call.

"Hello ... no, I'm sorry. He's no longer with us ... involved in an accident ... well, that's OK ..."

It's a conversation that has been replayed more than a few times over the last month. This time an insurance agent called to remind Robbie that the premium was due on the coverage for his white-and-mustard yellow van.

"You don't remember to (inform) everybody," says Burlingame, again staring at the wall. "It's not like Robbie to do anything like (suicide). If he had something bothering him, he would have talked about it."

Red lights flashed across the freeway, illuminating the traffic that had come to a crawl because of an accident. Overhead, people peered down from the overpass from which a teen-ager had apparently leaped into the oncoming traffic.

Dennis Hollingdrake, 18, and his friends passed the scene while driving in the opposite direction on the San Diego Freeway. They got off at the nearest exit and doubled back to get a better look.

Hollingdrake was already feeling a little edgy because of the abrupt way his friend, Robbie Burlingame, had left the group at a restaurant a few blocks down the street.

They had wanted to stay and eat; Robbie was bored and wanted to leave — so he did.

Hollingdrake shuddered as they drove by a body, covered from the waist up with a white blanket. Only the jean-clad legs could be seen.

"Something inside me told me it was Robbie," says Hollingdrake. He was later awakened by a telephone call that verified his premonition.

"Right when the detective identified himself, I knew what had happened."

Robert Francis Burlingame II

Edinger Avenue and Beach Boulevard and walk the four miles to his home in Fountain Valley.

The group had been drinking, but Hollingdrake remembers that Robbie was not drunk, nor was he acting erratic. He was just being the same old spur-of-the-moment guy that Hollingdrake had known for the past eight years.

The trip home would take Robbie onto the Edinger Avenue bridge overlooking the eight lanes of traffic on the San Diego Freeway.

Some 10 minutes later, police were retrieving the youth's body from the northbound lanes. In police jargon, the winner of the Orange Coast College leadership scholarship was now being referred to as a "jumper."

Hollingdrake, Burlingame and James — friend, father and teacher — they all knew him or thought they did. They've tried looking for a clue, something that Robbie might have said to betray a hidden despair or depression.

However, the fact remains that the future seemed bright for Robbie.

As a graduation present, his father and grandfather chipped in to rebuild the motor Robbie had destroyed by driving his van without oil and water.

He had just completed his first week at Orange Coast College, and had planned to work as a volunteer student counselor at the high school.

There was a time when Robbie sat on the other side of the counseling table. His parents divorced in 1982, about the same time Robbie developed a problem with alcohol at the age of 15.

He lived with his father and three sisters. Occasionally he had to babysit his two younger sisters while his father worked.

"He weathered so many storms. Now he was ready to fly," says James, sitting on one of the plastic blue and orange chairs in her small classroom.

She remembers Robbie as a pencil tapper, a restless student with a kind heart, but a sharp tongue.

"He was sensitive to kids' feelings, but he could be tough," says James, who cried for a week after another teacher informed her of his death.

"He was supposed to come back and be my aide, that's why we never said goodbye," she says.

Burlingame, whose eldest daughter was recently married, still has two 9- and 11-year-old girls to raise. Responsibility has a way of burying grief under the weight of day-to-day living.

Yet the pain and the questions are still there, like a dull throb.

"I had the most influence on his life as a parent figure. I was proud of him. He knew that," says Burlingame, a wistful look appearing on a face that has found it hard to smile these days.

Young Hollingdrake had more in common with Robbie than friendship. They were both born on the same day, Nov. 19, 1965.

The duo had planned a blowout party to celebrate their 19th birthdays with a bang.

"We were going to go all out," says Hollingdrake.

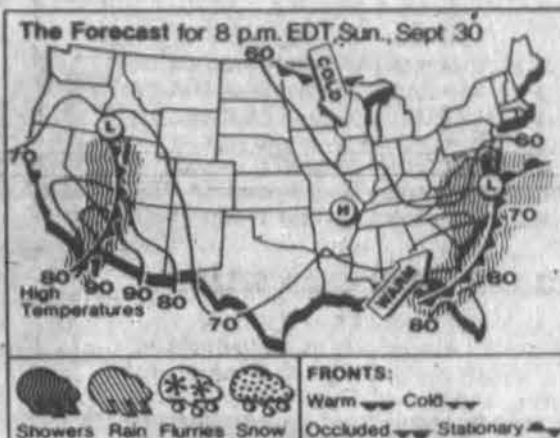

But the teen-ager, who once pulled Robbie's gym trunks down as they ran past some girls, didn't feel much like celebrating Saturday. He says it just wouldn't be much fun turning 19 alone.

JOBLESS RATE DIPS IN OC...

reported hiring 500 new employees.

Hiring by business service firms lumped in with the service industries group more than offset layoffs at area amusement parks, Yetter said. The amusement park layoffs were triggered by poor summer attendance at the parks as tourists avoided Southern California during the Los Angeles Olympics.

Additional employment gains also were recorded in the wholesale and retail trade industries, which increased employment by 700, the electronics industry, the finance industry and other industrial groups.

Yetter also pointed out that 8,500 new jobs in the long-troubled construction industry represent an annual gain of 25.7 percent over employment levels in August 1983.

However, while Orange County's unemployment rate hovers below 5 percent, Los Angeles County, the state and nation continue to record substantially higher rates of unemployment.

Los Angeles County's rate dropped from 9.5 percent in July to 8.7 percent last month. Statewide, the unemployment rate dropped from 8.2 percent to 7.6 percent between July and August while the U.S. rate remained steady at 7.5 percent.

Yetter said Orange County continually posts lower unemployment rates.

CHARGES FILED IN SCAM...

$25,000 bail apiece, pleaded not guilty Monday during arraignment proceedings.

Van Leuvan is charged with one count of burglary, Adamson with six and Selby with four, in connection with a sophisticated scam used to collect refunds from major department stores in Costa Mesa, Garden Grove and Fullerton.

Police believe the "Van Leuvan gang" is responsible for a rash of thefts and refunds from stores throughout Orange, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego counties since 1981.

The ring allegedly devised a complex scheme in which a high-priced garment is stolen and the computer-coded tag is forged to show a lower price. That tag is placed on an inexpensive item which is then purchased, resulting in a receipt that will list the stock number and name of the original item, but the price of the cheaper garment.

The receipt is changed back to the original price for the expensive item and taken back, along with the stolen clothing, for a cash refund.

The trio was arrested, along with Van Leuvan's 36-year-old brother, Ronald, in Costa Mesa Sept. 19 after they allegedly tried to collect a $182 refund from a J.C. Penney store.

Ronald Van Leuvan was later released because of insufficient evidence.

Deputy District Attorney Michial Nunn said the three suspects are being charged with felony burglary instead of petty theft because they have allegedly "made a profession" out of shoplifting using the sophisticated scam.

"We're still trying to put the case together. These guys are being investigated by virtually every police agency in Orange County," Nunn said.

Police have obtained a court-issued arrest warrant for another suspected member of the group on four counts of burglary, said Detective Petruzzelli, who is heading the Orange County investigation.

p.m. Saturday on the surf line.

A Harbor Patrol boat that went out to tow the Night Train from the surf ran over its own tow line and also became stuck for a short time, according to lifeguard Ron Schafer. He said four lifeguards swam out to the harbor boat and cut the lines to free it.

Late Saturday, the sailboat was being towed off the sandbar by a salvage team.

Schafer said the boat's spinnaker, a large triangular sail, became tangled about 4 p.m. and the crew was unable to free it. About 6 p.m., the boat ran out of gas; it ran aground about 6:15.

The passengers called to shore for help and were aided by the lifeguards, who had to assist some passengers who could not swim. The boat had headed out of Long Beach Harbor early Saturday for a cruise.

Paramedic crews from Huntington Beach responded to the boat but didn't have to treat anyone.

Bill assures life support for handicapped infants

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A child abuse bill including provisions to assure that severely handicapped infants are not denied life-support systems and other appropriate medical care is on its way to President Reagan. The measure, approved by the Senate on a unanimous consent vote late Friday, expands the definition of child abuse to include withholding of medically indicated treatment from so-called "Baby Does" or severely handicapped children. The same legislation was approved by the House on a voice vote last Wednesday.

Guards accused of inmate weapons sales

STARKE, Fla. — Three former guards at Florida's maximum-security prison face 40 new charges, including aiding escape attempts and selling contraband, for what officials allege was a "brokerage business of selling deadly weapons to inmates." The three — Byrdus McKenzie, 47, of Lawley, Brian Edwards, 31, of Ralston, and Roger G. Harvey, 31, of Keystone Heights — already face counts of bringing contraband into the Florida State Prison, officials said.

Ugly license plates spur enterprise

INDIANAPOLIS — A pair of would-be entrepreneurs are hoping to capitalize on Indiana's gaudy automobile license plates — and the resentment they have pawned — but say there's been little interest in their tag frames reading "These Plates Are Ugly." Marty Larch and Steve Bruhn, operating as Venture Enterprises, began marketing the frames by mail in August. So far, they have reached their break-even point of 200 of the black or white frames. The two Lafayette-area men objected to the license plate with its red, green and yellow stripes — the colors of traffic signal lights — and the slogan "Wander," which will adorn Hoosier cars through 1986.

Mondale: Gromyko talks wasted

ATLANTA — Walter F. Mondale, campaigning in a key Southern state with former President Carter and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, said Saturday that a weeks' meetings with top U.S. and Soviet leaders added up to nothing more than "photos and no progress" on arms control. The Democratic presidential candidate called on Reagan to report to the American people on his meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Civil rights forces win Senate victory

WASHINGTON — The Senate, in a victory for civil rights forces, voted 91-4 Saturday to crush a filibuster by conservatives against the major anti-discrimination bill before Congress this year. The action limits debate on the "Civil Rights Act of 1984" and will permit a vote this week on attaching the legislation to a vital money bill needed to keep the government solvent after the new fiscal year begins Monday. The civil rights proposal aims at overriding a Supreme Court ruling last Feb. 28 that a law banning sex discrimination at colleges receiving federal aid applied only to the specific program receiving assistance, and not the entire institution.

Toxic dump cleanup delayed again

LOS ANGELES — The owner of a country club next to the McColl waste dump in Fullerton succeeded in blocking cleanup of hazardous wastes at the site, winning favorable decisions in both federal and state court. The state Supreme Court on Friday temporarily barred state health officials from access to the Los Coyotes Country Club. The $17.8 million cleanup of McColl requires access through the club's golf course, part of which is atop the site. After learning of the Supreme Court action, U.S. District Judge David Kenyon also barred access to the club.

Slain worker's family awarded $940,000

SAN BERNARDINO — A jury award of $940,000 in damages to the family of a Southern Pacific railroad supervisor slain by a co-worker was called "outrageous" by a railroad attorney. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. attorney John Corrigan said he will file a motion for a new trial. The company was found 70 percent liable for the award and could have to pay at least $658,000, attorneys said Friday. Sandra Williams, 33, and her two daughters, ages 7 and 19, had sued Southern Pacific and Owen J. West, 56, for wrongful death in the slaying of Thomas Edward Williams.

Arson probed near Reagan ranch

SANTA BARBARA — Arson investigators were looking into the cause of three brush fires that broke out near President Reagan's ranch and burned more than 50 acres before being brought under control early Saturday. The fires, pushed by winds up to 30 mph, flared Friday night and burned until midnight about three miles from Reagan's Casa del Cielo ranch — just one-half mile from where three fires were intentionally set three months ago, county fire Chief Officer Richard Marshall said.

Parole of police-slayer criticized

LOS ANGELES — The parole of a convicted police-slayer who served less than nine years in prison was called a "pathetic commentary on the failure of our system" by the director of an Orange County anti-crime group. Raymond Louis George, 32, who was also convicted of attempting to murder a college student and two other policemen and assaulting two sheriff's deputies, was scheduled to be released today in southwest Los Angeles. "We have again been informed there is nothing the state can do to prevent the release of killers such as (Theodore) Strelski and George," said Howard Garber, director of the Citizen's Anti-Crime Taskforce. "This is a pathetic commentary on the failure of our system."

Flying Tigers announces layoffs

LOS ANGELES — Following wage and working rules concessions made by unions at Flying Tiger Line Inc., the company says it will lay off an undetermined number of its 3,000 non-union employees early next month. The Los Angeles-based air-cargo carrier — the world's largest — is reviewing the duties of non-union administrative employees, but the company doesn't know yet how many layoffs will be ordered, spokeswoman Joy Barrett said Friday. Flying Tiger is a subsidiary of Tiger International Inc., which suffered more than $375 million in losses from 1981 to 1983. But Tiger International Chairman-Chief Executive Wayne M. Hoffman has predicted the company will be profitable for all of 1984, despite a $6.3 million loss for the first half of the year.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — A guitar teacher in Japan who hunts comets as a hobby is the first amateur astronomer to photograph Halley's comet as it streaks toward the sun. A Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory official said Saturday. Tsutomu Seki of Kochi, Japan, twice last week reported photographing the brightest of the predictable comets, which revisits this solar system every 76 to 79 years, according to Brian Marsden, director of the observatory's Central Bureau for Astronomical Telegrams. Seki, who Marsden says is about 50, has discovered six comets, all of which bear his name.

Jet stowaway free to roam again

VICTORIA, British Columbia — A Canadian teen-ager whose beach wanderlust led him to escape from U.S. police, stow away on jetliners and hoodwink Australian immigration officials was free to roam again this weekend. Judge Michael Hubbard told the 17-year-old in juvenile court Thursday that "you have shown a considerable amount of initiative. It's not initiative that I commend you for. Nevertheless, it is initiative." Hubbard then dismissed the only pending charge against the youth — for breaking his probation on an earlier offense — and wished him good luck.

State of emergency lifted in Sudan

KHARTOUM, Sudan — President Gaafar Nimeiri on Saturday lifted the national state of emergency that he imposed in the face of growing social unrest over economic problems and government corruption five months ago. "We have evaluated our achievement in the past year, particularly in the field of prompt justice which effectively contributed to the curbing of corruption and freed society from destructive sins," Nimeiri told his ruling Sudanese Socialist Union party's fourth congress. "In view of this comprehensive evaluation, we have decided to lift the state of emergency as of today."

Support for Central America pledged

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Western European foreign ministers wound up a two-day conference with Latin American colleagues Saturday, pledging support for a Central American peace plan and agreeing there should be greater cooperation — but promising only a token increase in financial aid. The United States was not invited to the talks, but made its views known anyway in opposing aid to Nicaragua, run by the leftist Sandinista government.

Guerrillas occupy news offices

AP, UPI forced by revolutionaries to send communiques to headquarters

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Armed commandos of a new guerrilla organization occupied the offices of The Associated Press and United Press International in Lima on Saturday, and at gunpoint forced both news agencies to send a revolutionary communique.

No violence was reported in either of the incidents.

The commandos, identifying themselves as members of the Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement, painted their name on the walls of

The Associated Press office and left propaganda leaflets after the communique was sent on a circuit that goes to AP headquarters in New York.

The organization claimed responsibility Friday for a submachine gun attack on the U.S. Embassy in Lima, the blacking out of the resort city of Cuzco in the Andes highlands, and a bombing attack on a Sears store in suburban Lima. All three incidents occurred Friday.

The guerrilla group, armed with pistols, ordered two AP employees into a bathroom and at gunpoint forced a newsmen to transmit the communique in Spanish to New York.

The communique assailed the speech of President Fernando Belaunde Terry on Friday before the U.N. General Assembly in New York. It called the president's address "a smokescreen hiding the terrible drama in which the Peruvian people are living."

As an example, it charged that more than 42,000 tuberculosis patients were unattended due to lack of proper medical care.

The commandos left the AP office after about 20 minutes.

Police said the new group, named after an Inca emperor, has no known connections to Shining Path guerrillas who have been fighting Belaunde's government for the past four years.

The civil guard in Cuzco, tourist gateway to the Inca empire ruins at Machu Picchu, said two boys were wounded by dynamite the Tupac Amaru guerrillas used to blast a power pylon and cut off the city's electricity for 36 minutes. No injuries were reported in the Lima attacks.

The group also reportedly left a note at the U.S. Embassy saying its attack was the "political-military answer" to Belaunde's visit to the United States, and accused Belaunde of "going on bended knees" to a meeting at the White House on Thursday with President Reagan.

Reagan offers Soviets fair deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday he assured Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that the Soviet Union could get "a fair deal" in negotiations with Washington, but Gromyko left a meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz giving no public hint whether Moscow was interested.

"Nothing more," were Gromyko's only words when asked if anything had been achieved during the session at the State Department. It wasn't clear whether he was referring to a lack of results or to a desire not to answer any questions.

But a senior State Department official said there had been an extensive discussion of arms control issues with Gromyko — suggesting it was a turning point because Moscow had been unwilling to discuss the subject following the Soviet walkout from the Geneva negotiations last year.

Another administration official, arms control chief Kenneth Adelman, also said in a television interview that the meetings had moved both sides closer to a resumption of weapons talks. But he cautioned, "This is not something that happens quickly."

Shultz would only say after the two-hour, 15-minute meeting that they held "substantive discussions" and had agreed only to "keep in touch" through diplomatic channels. He also had met with Gromyko for three hours in New York on Wednesday.

Reagan, in his first public report on his 3½ hours of talks with Gromyko on Friday, said in his weekly radio address that those discussions were "useful" and there was no effort to "paper over" differences. He said he was frank in the possibilities for improved superpower relations.

"Now the Soviets will return home to ponder our exchanges," Reagan said. "And while they know they will not secure any advantages from inflexibility, they will get a fair deal if they seek the path of negotiations and peace."

Food for flood victims

Rice bags sent to South Korean flood victims by the North Koreans are removed from trucks by South Korean workers Saturday at Taesong-dong, about 400 meters south of the truce village of Panmunjom.

Devotees throw Doonesbury fete

MIAMI (AP) — About 500 "Doonesbury" devotees — some wearing Hawaiian shirts, love beads and football helmets in imitation of their favorite characters — ignored rain Saturday to celebrate the resumption of the Pulitzer Prize-winning comic strip after a 20-month recess.

The "National Welcome Back Doonesbury Party" honored today's return of the comic strip and its creator Garry B. Trudeau, who put down his pen in January 1983 to take a breather and let his college-age characters move from the attitudes of the 1960s to the 1980s.

"Doonesbury translates a lot of formal rigid rhetoric into language people can understand," said Seth

Gordon, co-chairman of the "National Welcome Back Doonesbury Party."

The return is the "most important event in the last 24 months in the country," Gordon said. "Politically, it's one of the few things that will make the presidential campaign real to a lot of people."

Trudeau, 36, wasn't at the party, but his comic characters Mike J. Doonesbury, Mark Slackmeyer, and Uncle Duke were represented by about a dozen people in jeans, love beads, well-worn T-shirts and Hawaiian print tops.

"I've always been a campus radical," joked Bill Dobson, 29, whose attire of jeans, a purple turtle-neck sweater, beads and a black arm band won him the Mark Slackmeyer look-alike contest. The Slackmeyer character was known as a campus rambler who paraded around with a sign to show his opposition to war and nuclear arms.

About 500 people turned out in the Coconut Grove section of Miami as the festivities got under way Saturday afternoon.

Entertainer John Sebastian, who played harmonica for the soundtrack of a Doonesbury film, performed for the crowd in the drizzle.

"Trudeau reminds us of what is going on in the country and he lets us laugh at ourselves," said Sebastian, a member of the group the Lovin' Spoonful, which headlined at the 1969 Woodstock music festival.

Prof who fled China to head Peking college

SANTA CLARA (AP) — A college professor who fled China during the communist takeover in 1949 has received a $100 million commitment to return and create the first Western-style university in the People's Republic of China, the University of Santa Clara announced.

Shu-Park Chan, 55, a professor of electrical engineering at the university, envisions the China Experimental University as a center of that country's emerging electronics industry, according to the statement issued last week.

"This will be the first Western-style university inside China since the People's Republic was founded in 1949," Chan said in the statement. "This, too, will be an act by the Chinese government to show it is opening to the outside world — not only for investment, but also for knowledge."

Chan, who left for China last week to begin planning the new school, first raised the idea during a meeting with Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping in 1982, said engineering school dean Kenneth E. Haughton.

The Chinese government has guaranteed $100 million to buy land and build a campus in the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone in Guangdong province, near Hong Kong.

"Apparently, this has been boiling in the bureaucracy for two years," Haughton said.

Chan was told during a visit to China this summer that they wanted him to be the new university's founding president, he said. "They also told him they'd like him to do it in two years. That kind of blows my mind. It took them that long just to decide to do it."

The new school, which will offer only graduate level courses, could open in September 1986 with 50 professors, at least half of them native Chinese, Chan said in his statement. Courses will include electrical, mechanical and civil engineering, architecture, science, computer science and business management.

It will differ from a typical Chinese college because Chan will have the autonomy to hire faculty and shape the curriculum, instead of having them imposed by the government. The range of subjects offered will also be greater.

'Meals on Wheels' customers get pet food, too

It's called Meals for Paws, and furry friends of shut-ins benefit

MARTINEZ (AP) — Spades and Poppycorn are two felines who think Meals on Wheels is a pretty good deal. The cats, aged 17 and 12, belong to 78-year-old Earl Requa. But they are fed by a program sponsored by Meals on Wheels, called Meals for Paws. The program was set up 1½ years ago to provide food for the pets of Meals on Wheels clients who had been sharing meals with their furry friends. Meals on Wheels delivers food to shut-ins, charging according to what the customer can pay. The pet food is free.

"If you have a pet, you're living alone and you don't have a way to get to the store for yourself, how can you get pet food, too?" said Ish Mendonsa of the Home Health and Counseling Center, where Meals on Wheels operates.

The program was begun in nearby Pittsburg and Antioch, where many Meals on Wheels customers have large dogs for companionship and protection. It is as expensive as it is difficult for pet owners to feed their animals.

Requa, one of 25 pet owners who get pet food from Meals on Wheels, has been a Meals customer for four years.

"It's certainly appreciated, the cat food those people bring over," said Requa, who is in a wheelchair.

Requa and his pets are not the only satisfied customers of the service, which distributes donated food. Program head Jean Cline says Meals for Paws has many eager eaters.

"They love it. We sent a questionnaire to every new customer. It asks if the person has a pet, if it eats dry or canned food and how much the pet eats. We fill the orders once every month."

"There was a lady who had a really old poodle," said Cline, already laughing. "She wrote ... that her poodle liked breakfast steaks or liver cut into one-inch squares and cooked in the oven for 20 minutes. She even specified the oven temperature."

Diabetes injection curing canines

New procedure could be used in future to assist two-legged sufferers of the malady

MIAMI (AP) — A doctor who cured dozens of diabetic dogs by injecting them with cells from healthy pancreases says that the procedure someday could be used to fight the disease in humans.

Dr. Daniel Mintz, scientific director of the Diabetes Research Institute at the University of Miami, said he and a team of 30 doctors discovered that pancreases containing a normal number of insulin-producing cells could be transplanted into the ill animals.

Mintz and the team worked for 10 years to perfect the technique, which reverses diabetes by isolating insulin cells in a canine donor pancreas. The cells, known as islets, were implanted into a diabetic dog, which had destroyed its own insulin-producing cells.

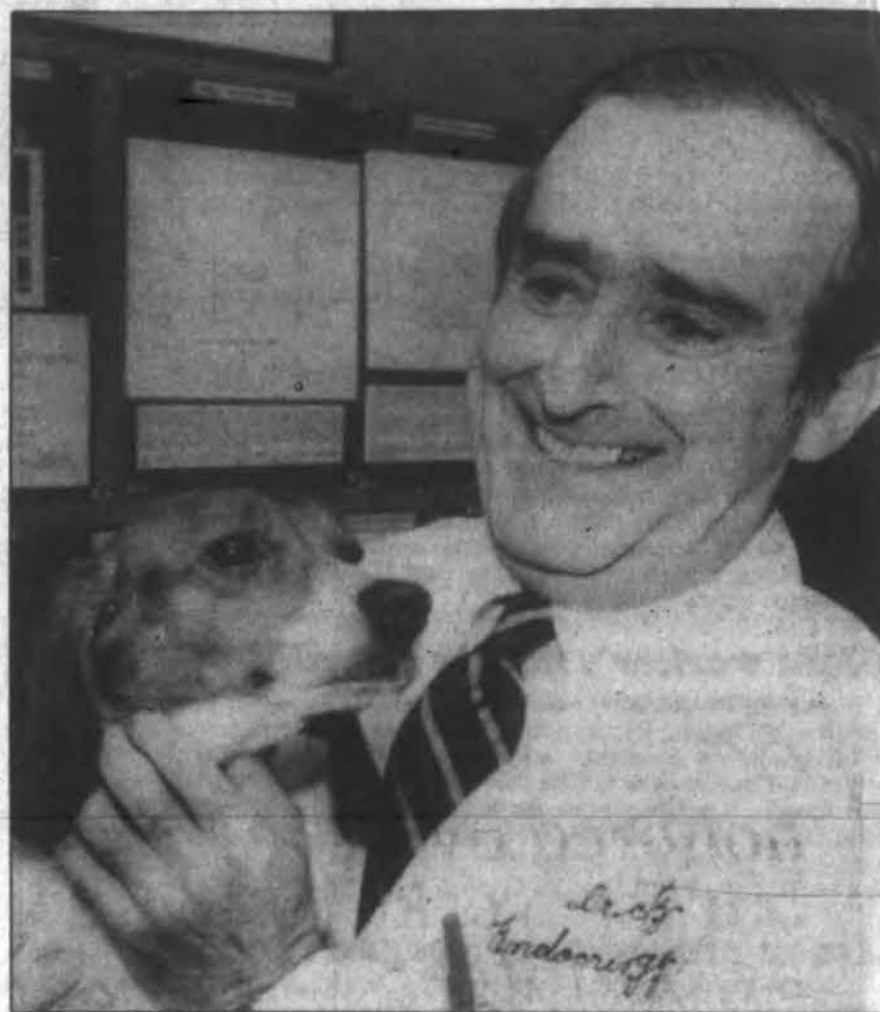

One pancreas contains thousands of the microscopic islets that constitute only 2 percent of the organ's bulk.

Mintz called the new process of isolating and purifying the islets "an important advance" that could lead to a cure for human sufferers.

"A patient with Type 1 diabetes (insulin-dependent) who has always had a sense of despondency about the disease should look upon this accomplishment as representing significant progress toward the successful transplantation of islets," Mintz said.

He said the study was especially significant because until now, such experiments only had been conducted in rodents. With the successful experiments on diabetic dogs, doctors are one step closer to the human biological system, Mintz said.

More than 30 dogs underwent the operation a year ago with no complications and still are healthy, Mintz said, adding that the success has led doctors to conclude there are no risks involved for humans.

Best Rx a little fuzzy critter

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Neither could talk. The elderly woman at the Tampa Health Care Center had a severe speech problem. Her companion was a friendly little ferret. Yet, for a few moments, silence said more than words.

Hilda De'Abreu, an 82-year-old nursing home patient, gently stroked and hugged the furry raccoon-like animal named Ollie.

Ollie cuddled up to the white-haired woman until they were cheek-to-cheek. The lines on Mrs. De'Abreu's face drew back into a broad smile as she rocked in her chair. Ollie's brief visit was part of a local Humane Society program called "pet therapy," which is designed to bring cast-off or homeless animals from the shelter to nursing homes.

"I am very much pro pet therapy," said nursing home administrator William McGuinness. "For the people here, it increases their quality of life. It helps ward off depression, keeps them mentally alert and oriented. And it brings in others from the community."

Margaret Mason, acting director of the Hillsborough County Humane Society, regularly visits at least 10 nursing homes in Tampa, packing along Ollie or Inky, a pet skunk; kittens and puppies that spend a few hours going from lap to lap among the elderly, the infirm, the lonely, and the convalescents.

"Most people had a pet at one time or another and this brings back warm memories, something to relate to," said Ms. Mason. "To see them smile, that's what it's all about."

THAT SNAKE'S A FAKE

HOUSTON (AP) — Thousands of visitors to the Houston Zoo believed they were viewing a real Texas coral snake peering out from beneath a log in an exhibit of the poisonous snakes of Harris County.

But curator in charge John Donaho acknowledged that the fearsome creature, on display for two years, is just a rubber replica. "We have had live snakes in the exhibit, but they don't do well — they tend to die," he said.

Donaho's comments came after a telephone caller said he had not seen the snake move in nine months.

"Rather than kill snakes, we put out a rubber one for people to be able to see what they look like," he said.

Donaho said the red, black and yellow striped, finger-thin snakes, which grow to 15-18 inches in the Houston area, are considered highly poisonous.

Authentic coral snakes are kept in "off-exhibit areas" and sometimes are used in teaching programs, he said.

But the snakes normally are nocturnal burrowing creatures and avoid lighted exhibits.

Other zookeepers agreed that the snakes are difficult to show.

At the San Diego Zoo, reptile keeper Robin Greenlee said that zoo uses pictures.

And at the Dallas Zoo, Ardell Mitchell, supervisor of the reptile department, said a photograph of the snake also is used there.

"We have a photograph, and apparently Houston has a dummy, so it's two different ways of attacking the same problem," Mitchell said.

Let's discuss cost without embarrassment.

At time of loss family feelings are difficult enough for you to cope with. There is no need to increase your discomfort by reluctance to fully discuss funeral costs. There is often the practical necessity to do so.

At Harbor Lawn the family's choice of a casket is the factor which most often determines funeral cost. For this reason, we have caskets available in all price ranges.

Pre-need funeral arrangements are encouraged by Harbor Lawn, because when there is no emotional stress costs are discussed in a more businesslike manner. But, prior to need or at time of loss, our understanding counselors will offer you every opportunity to know and control funeral costs. We care.

FV man receives Air Force medal

First Lt. Russell P. DeFusco, son of Ronald and Janet DeFusco of Fountain Valley, has been decorated with the Air Force Achievement Medal at Reese Air Force Base, Texas. DeFusco is a student with the 64th Student Squadron. He received a master's degree in 1983 from Colorado State University in Fort Collins.

Army PFC Michael T. Butcher Jr., son of Michael and Gerri Butcher of San Clemente, has arrived for duty in Hanau, West Germany. Butcher, a multiple-launch rocket system crew member with the 3rd Armored Division, was previously stationed at Fort Sill, Okla.

Second Lt. Timothy W. Strawther, son of Wendy D. Browner of Dana Point, has graduated from Air Force pilot training and has received silver wings at Reese Air Force Base, Texas.

Army Spec. 4 George L. Seipeh, son of Louis Seipeh of Costa Mesa and Yolanda Garcia of Fountain Valley, has arrived for duty at Fort Benning, Ga. Seipeh, an indirect-fire infantryman with the 197th Infantry Brigade, previously was stationed in Kitzingen, West Germany.

Robert B. Knapp, son of Helen A. Knapp of Newport Beach, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel in the Air Force. Knapp is a refueling aircraft pilot with the 917th Air Refueling Squadron at Dyess Air Force Base, Texas.

Airman John D. Carreras, son of John Carreras and Margaret Lima of Irvine, has graduated from the Air Force biomedical equipment maintenance course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

Randall J. Linares, son of Johnny and Barbara Linares of El Toro, has been promoted to airman first class in the Air Force. Linares is a munitions systems specialist with the 86th Equipment Maintenance Squadron at Ramstein Air Base, West Germany.

Air National Guard Airman Starr L. Thompson, daughter of Robert and Marie Hudgins of Huntington Beach, has graduated from basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Firewood permits offered

The Trabuco Ranger District of the Cleveland National Forest will offer 100 fuelwood permits to the public beginning this week and continuing until all permits are issued.

The permits authorize the removal of up to one cord of wood from National Forest areas within the boundaries of the Trabuco Ranger district. A cord is a tightly stacked pile of split wood measuring four feet by four feet by eight feet.

Permits will be available at the Corona Ranger Station, located at 1147 E. 86th St., Corona, Calif. 91719, on a first-come, first-served basis for $10 each.

Permits will be valid through Dec. 15, 1984. Because the valid period of the permits has been extended from 30 to 83 days, no further extensions will be given.

Access to the wooded areas is generally over rough dirt roads that are subject to periodic closure because of fire danger or weather conditions. The wood is mostly small-diameter dead brush with an occasional dead and down tree.

For more information, call the Trabuco Ranger headquarters at 736-1811.

Tricks of the eye at Laguna museum

A leather suitcase made of clay, a cardboard box fabricated with acrylic paint on canvas, a roll of toilet paper in Carrara marble and a full-sized Hyster forklift truck are just a few examples of works in the newest exhibit at the Laguna Beach Museum of Art.

Organized by the Boise Gallery of Art, the traveling exhibit is titled "Contemporary Trompe l'Oeil Painting and Sculpture" and will be on display in the Laguna Beach museum through Nov. 9, Tuesday through Sunday, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Literally translated from French as "trick of the eye," trompe l'oeil is a near exact image of something designed to deceive the viewer into thinking it is the actual object. The realistic style dates back as far as the 5th century B.C., a LBMA spokesman said.

Included in the exhibit are works by Duane Hanson, John De Andrea, Marilyn Levine, Richard Shaw and Paul Sarkisian, among others.

The exhibit is supported with funds from the National Endowment for the Arts and the participating institutions. Prior to its showing in Laguna Beach, the exhibit was in the Museum of Art at Washington State University, the Bellevue (Wash.) Art Museum and the Salt Lake City Art Center. Next it will be shown in the Queens Museum in Flushing, N.Y.

OC attorney honored by bar for work as volunteer

Orange County attorney Virginia Talmage has been honored by the California State Bar of California for her volunteer work in bringing legal service to the poor.

Talmage was one of nine lawyers in the state, and the only attorney in Orange County, to receive the bar's second annual President's Pro Bono Service Award.

She was cited for her work in family and property law matters as a volunteer with Orange County Legal Aid and also as counsel to the Victim-Witness Assistance Program in Orange County Superior Court.

Talmage was among the first volunteers to provide assistance at Interval House when it was opened in 1980 to provide emergency shelter for battered women. She also has paid, with her own money, for motel lodging for battered women when Interval House was at capacity.

An attorney in Orange, Talmage earned her law degree at Western State University.

Reading program helps close book on birth defects

Orange County children are invited to participate in a national reading program that will help the March of Dimes' crusade to close the book on birth defects.

Children in the "Reading Champions" program compete for Olympic-type medals by reading as many books as they can during a one-month period. The children also sign sponsors who will donate a certain amount to the March of Dimes for every book read.

According to program officials, more than 3 million books were read during the program that brought millions of dollars to the March of Dimes last year.

Children can sign up for this year's program through their local library, school, or by contacting the March of Dimes at 631-8700 or 553-0881.

OC gets $128,000 in trailer taxes

Orange County received more than $128,000 as its share of trailer coach license fees collected and apportioned by the state for August, according to the state Controller's officer.

The shares are apportioned each month by the state based on the amount of fees collected in the county in which the trailer coach owners reside.

County auditors, in turn, distribute the county apportionment twice a year.

Secret to longevity: Lots of laughs, faith in God

Two elderly women give their testimony before Senate panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brushing aside questions about good diet and sleeping habits, two women aged 97 and 102 told a Senate hearing last week that their prescription for longevity might be lots of interests, plenty of laughs and a strong faith in God.

A research scientist in biochemistry, Dr. Allan L. Goldstein, agreed that their positive outlook on life was important, but pointed to another factor shared by the two women.

"They had the good sense to choose parents and grandparents who had a long life," he said.

"I eat anything I want," Rosina Corrothers-Tucker of Washington, who will turn 103 in November, told the Senate Labor and Human Resources subcommittee on aging with an air of finality.

She said she sleeps six or seven hours a day and does not have a regular exercise routine, "but I take care of my house and make the beds, do the laundry and cook. That's exercise!"

Mrs. Corrothers-Tucker, who helped found the International Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters in the 1940s, said she has no answer to why she has lived so long, except that "my life is in God's hands and I will live till his purpose is over."

She also plays the piano, enjoys church and civic activities, has written a book about her life and is a public speaker.

Ruth Clark, 97, of Warwick, R.I., said, "We believe in plenty of laughs and many interests, the first of which for me was music."

Her interests also range oceanography to the Boston Red Sox. She told of hitchhiking through Vermont in her 70s, traveling to England and Spain at 81, and being the oldest student at a Rhode Island junior college.

"In my opinion, it is the continuing interest in the variety of subjects noted above that greatly enhance one's life, make living a joy and tend to smooth over the rough spots in life that everyone must learn to endure,"

Miss Clark said.

She eats three meals a day, most of them delivered by Meals on Wheels volunteers, "which is a big asset because the meals are so big" she can stretch one for two days. "Once in a while I get invited out — hooray!" she added.

Miss Clark did say her parents brought her up on a sensible diet, with lots of fruit and vegetables and few hot dogs and fried foods.

"The way you think about life can influence your lifespan and your health," said Goldstein, chairman of the department of biochemistry at George Washington University Medical Center.

But Goldstein, who co-discovered the family of hormones produced by the thymus gland, which controls the immune system, said there is a major genetic component in almost every disease.

Mrs. Corrothers-Tucker said most of her family lived until their middle to late 80s. Her grandparents lived into the mid-90s and a great-grandmother until 101.

Miss Clark said her mother lived to 70 and her father to 74. Her grandmothers died at 89 and 81 and her grandfathers at 78 and 75.

"The potential of using the body's own natural immunity to deal with disease on a rational basis may well become the most dramatic development that has occurred in medical science in this century," Goldstein said.

"We have the possibility to help improve the health and quality of life of the American public dramatically in our lifetime, and in particular the elderly whose immune systems are weakened," he said.

He deplored what he called "the tragic decline in federal support" for basic scientific research in recent years. "This lack of vision by government will come back to haunt us for sure," he said.

Food allergy linked to migraine headaches

British allergist cites milk, wheat, eggs as major culprits, prescribes diet, drug

LONDON (AP) — Allergy to food — mainly milk, wheat and eggs — is a major cause of migraine, and the debilitating headaches can be prevented in most cases with diet and a drug, a British expert believes.

"I have no doubt at all that most migraine sufferers will benefit by pursuing this treatment" of a controlled diet and a food allergy drug, said Dr. Jean Monro, consultant allergist at London's Nightingale Hospital.

The doctor and two colleagues established a link between food allergy and migraine among a group of patients at the National Hospital for Nervous Diseases in London. Their findings were published Friday by The Lancet, an authoritative British medical journal.

Some previous studies have shown food allergy is one of the contributing causes of migraine, intense headaches usually confined to one side of the head and often accompanied by nausea and visual problems. Other triggers of migraine include chemicals, stress, flickering lights, strong perfume, tobacco fumes and staring at zig-zag lines. The underlying cause of migraine is not known.

Mrs. Monro said her research confirmed earlier findings and identified "for the first time a particular drug (sodium cromoglycate) that is specifically effective in protecting against food-allergy migraine."

Sodium cromoglycate is commonly used in the treatment of food allergy but was not previously known to prevent headaches, she said.

The study involved nine sufferers of severe and frequent attacks of migraine who underwent treatment in 1983.

The patients, men and women between the ages of 30 and 64, were first put on a diet avoiding food coloring, additives, sugar, tea, coffee, alcohol and other substances known to bring on migraine attacks.

After showing no improvement, they were then put on diets avoiding, in sequence, milk and milk products; all grain cereals, including wheat, rye, barley, oats, corn, millet and rice; meats; and fruit seeds and nuts.

The headaches improved on the diets restricting milk products and grains. Next, the researchers began reintroducing individual foods to measure their effect. Eventually, a normal diet was resumed, all nine patients developed symptoms of migraine.

Tests confirmed food allergy, and the foods most commonly associated with migraine were milk, wheat and, to a lesser extent, eggs, the researchers said.

"These observations confirm that a food-allergic reaction is the cause of migraine in this group of patients," they wrote.

Once food allergy was established, the patients were given sodium cromoglycate in pill form or a placebo.

In five migraine was eliminated, and in three severity of attacks was reduced, the researchers said. A ninth patient had no headache after receiving the drug and also after taking a placebo.

Placebos — pills with no active ingredients — produce improvement in headache sufferers about a third of the time, other studies have shown.

Monro said about 7 percent of all people suffer from migraine at some time, and about 1 percent suffer from severe and frequent attacks.

Asked how many migraine sufferers would benefit from dietary controls, the doctor said: "Eighty percent would improve, that is my opinion."

She said sodium cromoglycate gives only partial protection from migraine and must be used in conjunction with a change in diet.

Anyone suffering from migraine should consult a doctor to determine whether it is related to food allergy or one of the many other possible causes, Monro said.

'Natural foods' identified as natural enemies of teeth

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Granola, bananas and raisins may be considered natural foods with generous amounts of nutrition, but researchers say they are also at the top of the list of snacks that can cause cavities.

Researchers at the Eastman Dental Center announced their findings after feeding rats snack foods for the past 2½ years, according to today's editions of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The study found what is common knowledge — that some snacks cause more tooth decay than others. But the surprises came when snacks were rated according to cavity-causing potential.

Granola, bananas and raisins placed high on the cavity-causing list, said John Featherstone, chairman of the oral biology department at the center. Corn chips, yogurt, gelatin and peanuts did less damage, and some contain fluoride and appear to actually help prevent cavities.

Featherstone and Sheila Mundorff, a research associate at the center, fed rats 17 different snack foods during the project, paid for by a $250,000 grant from the National Institute for Dental Research.

Tooth decay occurs when bacteria in the mouth digest carbohydrates. The process produces acid that eats away at the tooth surfaces. Saliva helps counteract decay by neutralizing the acid and by providing minerals that help rebuild the teeth.

During the study, rats were fed with automatic machines that ensured they took from 12 to 17 snacks a day. For the most part, the study confirmed information that researchers already knew about which foods cause more decay.

But Featherstone and Mundorff also conducted chemical analyses of each food.

"We were attempting to see if the fluoride in the snack would have the ability to prevent decay," Featherstone said. While he and Mundorff are still examining the results, they believe it does.

It was no surprise that peanuts, corn chips and bologna all cause much less decay, the researchers said. But the appearance of gelatin dessert on the low-decay list was of particular interest.

Gelatin is high in protein and contains fluoride. But fluoride isn't the only factor that may make a snack low in cavity potential.

"Some foods, like peanuts for example, cause a lot of mechanical cleansing by eating them," said Mundorff.

Raisins stick to the teeth, and they contain substances that help keep bacteria in the mouth. When it comes to causes of tooth decay, Featherstone said, "raisins came out pretty well at the top of the stack."

Bananas have the same properties as raisins. So do cupcakes and, to a lesser extent, doughnuts.

Featherstone suggested it's better to brush your teeth before breakfast if you use a fluoridated toothpaste. That helps get the saliva working and also leaves a fluoride film to counteract the food.

Cutting down on the frequency of snacks is of primary importance in cutting decay, because it gives the saliva time to counteract the effects of eating, he said.

State teachers scrambling for clout

Governor termed inaccessible by powerful union

BURLINGAME (AP) — Just after newly-elected Gov. George Deukmejian announced he might "play Scrooge" by cutting money for schools, the president of California's most powerful teachers union was hastily summoned to the governor's office.

"Oh boy!" I thought," Marilyn Russell Bittle recalled more than 18 months later. "I was finally getting a chance to see the governor. You know, we had absolutely no communication at all from him. Zero."

But Bittle, who had publicly described the governor's comment as a "stupid statement," was in for a surprise: The long-awaited meeting with the governor turned into an angry confrontation with one of his aides.

"I was called on the carpet by Doug Watts," she said, "and I was told I had better mend my ways or I could not meet with the governor. I was absolutely shocked...I couldn't believe it. I had said his (Deukmejian's) statement was stupid, not that he was stupid."

Watts, then Deukmejian's public relations adviser, has since left the administration to serve as advertising director of President Reagan's reelection effort in Washington, D.C.

But the aftershocks of that angry exchange between the president of the 150,000-member California Teachers Association and a top Deukmejian aide continue to this day, as teachers scramble for access and political clout in an administration they perceive as often hostile to teachers and labor.

Representatives of statewide teachers' unions say they have had no direct access to the governor since Deukmejian's election — despite the passage last year of the most significant educational reform measure in California in two decades. That legislation directly involved the state's 230,000 teachers, and this year's schools' funding totals more than a third of the state's $31.3 billion budget.

"Legislators (also) say Deukmejian is inaccessible," Bittle said. "It's important that we meet with the governor, that we just sit down and talk about the things we don't agree on."

Bittle, like the governor, is a Republican. And like the governor, she makes her permanent home in Long Beach. But her organization overwhelmingly supports Democratic candidates, much to the displeasure of the Deukmejian administration.

Between 1975 and 1982, CTA was the fifth biggest contributor to California election campaigns, dispensing nearly $1.2 million to legislative campaigns. The contributions put the teachers in the same political contributions league with the state's most powerful medical, real estate, public employee and business contributors.

In 1983, an off-election year, CTA contributed $104,000 to incumbent legislative candidates, while the smaller California Federation of Teachers contributed $3,100, reported Lynn Montgomery, spokeswoman for the Fair Political Practices Commission.

This year, CTA endorsed 112 candidates for state and federal offices. Bittle says that "an organization that helps lawmakers creates friends...and stands a somewhat better chance of seeing its goals enacted into law." But having friends in the Democrat-controlled Legislature has not translated into access to a Republican governor, despite the heavy contributing.

"I think there's no question but that their (the teachers') profile is lower now than in the previous administration," said William Cunningham, Deukmejian's top education adviser. "I understand they had ready access to Gov. (Jerry) Brown. By and large, their access is now through this office."

"I know people would rather meet with the governor than with me," he added. "But I work closely and thoroughly with the governor."

"I'm not sure how much he (Cunningham) has the governor's ear," said Mary Bergan, a lobbyist for the 30,000-member California Federation of Teachers. "I just think this governor has a particular problem with public employee unions in general."

Politically, teachers "have been on the wane for the past four or five years," said state Sen. Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara. "They didn't do that well in the 1982 elections — they supported (former state schools Superintendent Wilson) Riles and (Los Angeles Mayor Tom) Bradley — and they came up short."

Hart noted that the CTA backed his opponent in his 1982 race for the Senate, Republican Assemblyman Charles Imbrecht. That endorsement by the traditionally Democratic organization did not help the CTA's relationship with the powerful Hart, who chairs the Senate Education Committee and wields profound influence on school budgeting.

"Those wounds are beginning to heal," Bittle said.

But Hart and others acknowledge that California's teachers may be making a political comeback of sorts, as public concern over educational quality has forced through the Legislature and past the governor's desk numerous changes in California's 1,000-plus school districts. Many of those changes are intended to improve the teaching profession.

Hart also gives high marks to Bittle, who became CTA president late in 1982, shortly before Deukmejian was inaugurated. "She's one of the few Republicans in leadership positions who gets out on the line," he said.

Under the $2 billion, two-year school reform package co-authored by Hart, SB813, teachers' entry-level salaries were boosted to $18,000 over three years; math, language and science requirements were tightened; the school days were lengthened; and a "mentor teacher" program was established in which experienced instructors were given time to help train their colleagues.

"The governor didn't sign that bill until he got that lobbying effort from the CTA and calls from parents," said John Felicitas, acting executive director of the San Diego Teachers Association. His district includes more than 6,000 teachers and 110,000 students.

This summer, fiercely pressured by teachers and lawmakers, Deukmejian approved an additional $374 million for elementary and secondary schools, a move Bittle described as "an important first step toward reversing three years of funding neglect and deterioration."

Deukmejian has described education as his "highest priority," but educators around the state say the blessing is mixed.

"Yes, our district got $44.3 million more," Felicitas said, "but it's been more difficult to negotiate this year than before. There have been many, many more snags at the bargaining table because of the longer school day. The longer day means more student contact time, but they (the district officials) offered us very little...So where's the money going? We have been at an impasse since Aug. 16."

Felicitas added that "many other districts are having this problem."

Scientist Larry Rogers shows his compact wheat product that can stop a M-16 rifle bullet.

Wheat, rice waste can stop a bullet

SALINAS (AP) — A researcher here says he has developed a formula using bacteria and grain wastes such as wheat stalks and rice hulls that can be used to make a range of products from lightweight armor to pasta.

Larry Rogers says he and an associate accidentally stumbled on the formula nearly two years ago while trying to develop a mixture to dissolve explosive materials.

That experiment flopped, but the men say they came up with something better — bulletproof wheat. Rogers said Wednesday the compound, in liquid form, might also turn grain wastes into a tasty noodle — a development he said could double food production in developing nations.

"When I came up with the formula, at first, I didn't know what I had," he said in a telephone interview. "It took me a while to figure out what it was. I came up with something I had never seen."

Rogers and an associate, Terry Shield, sat in his laboratory nearly two years ago in Jacks Valley searching for a formula that would neutralize explosives. Rogers holds state and federal licenses for weapons systems.

Instead, they discovered a compound that could be poured into a mold to form a material resembling wood.

"You can cut it, stain it and put it up. We can pour a 40-foot beam with this formula," Rogers said. "A perfect beam of that size is almost impossible to find in real wood."

The fake wood ranges in density from balsa to oak, but remains relatively light, he said. Further, the "wood" does not have to be nailed — it can be glued to form a permanent bond.

Later, Rogers discovered that by varying the formula a bit, it could be made bulletproof.

The formula produces a bonding of proteins and carbons that makes the material a highly resistant substance, Rogers said.

"Any high velocity impact is rejected," he said. "The material distributes and absorbs the impact."

Among some of the uses for the bulletproof material is lightweight armor for military vehicles and Quonset huts, he said. The military is considering the compound for other projects, but Rogers said he couldn't discuss them.

The compound, however, may have a tastier use.

The latest phase in the formula, which is called micro-organic fuel, is being tested for food consumption, Rogers said.

"If grain wastes can be converted into a substance that can be digested, it could double the food production of Third World nations without having to produce more crops," he said.

Because digestive systems cannot handle many portions of a crop, nearly 75 percent of a crop is thrown away.

"This may be able to allow farmers to use more of their crop," Rogers said. "It could change the state of the world."

Pat Buchanan's jingoism treads on perilous ground

To the Editor:
History has shown that the reckless among us often wield important influence upon world leaders and at times goad these leaders into conflict and devastating wars. In October of 1962, for example, the joint chiefs of staff tried their utmost to goad President Kennedy into launching a sneak air strike against Cuba, which would then be followed by a U.S. Marine invasion. If he had followed this counsel, rather than the more moderate blockade, it's quite possible that none of us would be alive today.

Kennedy was later to remark that he realized why our founding fathers took pains to make sure the military would be kept under presidential restraint.

I make this point in reference to the Sept. 7th article in your Daily Pilot by syndicated columnist Pat Buchanan which was nothing short of a one-man declaration of war on the USSR on behalf of the rest of us. These bloodthirsty and jingoistic types usually try to mask their clamor call for nuclear war as a thinly disguised hope for peace, but Mr. Buchanan uses no such camouflage.

He was very direct when he stated quite plainly: "to alter Soviet behavior we must change the Soviet regime." Later in the quite incoherent column he again confirmed "detente will be realized when the Soviet empire is dissolved and the Soviet regime displaced." A short time ago this same writer spoke of the "myth of the 20,000,000 Soviet dead" suggesting that the bulk of the Russians killed in World War II were, not actually victims of Hitler's armies but of Stalin and the KGB.

A year ago, this selfsame Buchanan was raging and coaxing his readership to lobby for "immediate retaliation" for the shooting down of Korean Air Lines 007 as if to say that we finally had our excuse to start our launch on warning. Surely the Russian pilot and his immediate superiors are to be condemned for this terrible action, but the plane was off course and new speculations and unanswered questions still persist — do we start World War III before all the facts are in?

In the old days of conventional warfare, "retaliation" had a different meaning, but at the present moment the planet happens to be bristling with nuclear warheads — some 50,000 in all — about 31,000 manned by the U.S. and our allies and about 19,000 by the Soviets. How many Americans realize the fact that numerous Pat Buchanans exist in high and sensitive position in the government and Pentagon, and that more than quite a few have the president's ear? Just imagine the fate of the Earth if this mind-set ever prevailed.

It's all the Russians' fault, I can hear you say. Then how did we achieve such a cozy friendship with communist China, the country referred to by Mr. Reagan for over 20 years as a "dungeon"? After all, the Chinese have been guilty of much more heinous behavior in the past than the mere shooting down of a civilian airliner. They actually had the audacity, when we were innocently helping our democratic allies in Korea defend themselves against communist aggression, to invade that country en masse and fire upon American troops, killing, wounding, capturing and placing them in concentration camps where these American troops were then frozen, tortured and brainwashed to submission — plus killing and imprisoning our missionaries and embassy people with such cruelty that Gen. MacArthur demanded a full-scale invasion by the U.S. and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas was suggesting nothing less than a nuclear first strike.

The other night the Reagan-Bush '84 campaign committee dipped into its swollen coffers for a full half hour prime time commercial on all three major networks. A great portion of that clip was spent covering the Reagan trip to China. This same Red China I refer to in the previous column was positively gushed over by the president. Words couldn't describe the praise of these wonderful people and their government, and of the bright and endless future we both face as friends and trading partners. Imagine — this same President Reagan, who launched his career railing against the admission of Red China to the United Nations — was actually effervescent in his admiration for this regime.

Why then do some of us insist, in this nuclear age when we must find a way to co-exist, that the Soviets be relegated to the position of a permanent foe? The answer is that the Buchanans of the country are making that decision for us by way of the medium of these daily columns, and too few of us who do not accept their view are speaking out.

Reader rapps Berger editorial

To the Editor:
I was utterly dismayed to read the contents of your editorial of Sept. 24, 1984 in which you sought to present the "rest of the story" involving Dr. Paul Berger and his removal from the principalship at Marina High School. Your rationale for the editorial was ostensibly to provide voters of that district with "all of the facts" related to the Berger issue as they study the potential recall of school board members.

Your editorial stated that the "details" of the Abbott-Berger confrontation will tarnish Paul Berger's professional record, something he and Abbott were probably trying to avoid.

If indeed a confrontative situation existed between the two they both had a professional responsibility to handle the matter in an ethical and confidential manner. Evaluative materials regarding school administrators and teachers are confidential and are only subject to public scrutiny in appropriate forums, e.g. dismissal hearings, court appeals, etc.

By publishing the allegations regarding Dr. Berger you have not only succeeded in wounding him further, but additionally you have besmirched the fine professional reputation of Dr. Jake Abbott by intimating that the confidential information regarding the allegations came to you from him, e.g. "Abbott found Berger to be..."

As you state, Dr. Abbott is indeed a highly respected professional educator. Your editorial, I am sure, has caused him as much personal and professional anguish as it has Paul Berger.

As for the board members who are under fire, the threat of recall goes with the position; their defense does not justify the unethical and unprofessional release of confidential information regarding district personnel. Your editorial, far from clarifying the issue, has only succeeded in further complicating it.

Nation's press out to revive flagging Mondale campaign

News columns showing a decided tilt toward Democratic presidential ticket

WASHINGTON — "The power of the press in America is a primordial one. It sets the agenda of public discussion; and this sweeping political power is unrestrained by any law. It determines what people will talk about and think about — an authority that in other nations is reserved for tyrants, priests, parties and mandarins."

That widely quoted passage, from author-journalist-historian Theodore H. White, was drawn from the most perceptive chapter in White's fine book: "The Making of the President, 1972." In that chapter, "Power Struggle: President versus Press," Teddy White depicts the contest of 1972 as less a fight between Nixon and McGovern — the outcome of which was always certain — than a savage power struggle between Nixon's White House and the Establishment press, over who would determine America's agenda in the 1970s. The national press got sweet revenge for their humiliation that November, when they were part of the allied forces in on the kill, following the coup d'etat known as Watergate.

Reagan's confident retainers would do well to re-read White's chapter. For, led by The New York Times, the Establishment press this week began to mount a massive rescue effort on behalf of Walter Mondale's failed campaign.

Tuesday morning, the Times ran as top story of the day an interview from which Fritz Mondale suddenly began emerging as a tough leader, threatening Nicaragua with a "quarantine" and insisting he would have used military force to rescue American medical students on Grenada. The reporter who wrote the story painted Mondale as a statesman for the age.

"The interview was vintage Walter Mondale, at once an experienced figure who can display a command of foreign policy matters and a leading post-Vietnam Democratic liberal jostling with cross-cutting political pressures.

"In responding to almost all questions, he was the portrait of a man trying to appreciate world complexities, looking for a way to discern the limits of American power and the occasions to use it, and always seeming to try to balance the need for military strength with the need for negotiations."

Now, that is as close to a formal endorsement as one can get away with in a "news story." And, looking up on page one, one finds that the "reporter" who authored this "new story" was Les Gelb, coincidentally a ranking political appointee in the Carter-Mondale State Department.

(Tuesday night, Mondale was beneficiary of another indulgent interview, on CBS Evening News — definitely not an "adversary proceeding" — with Dan Rather serving up the gopher balls.)

Thursday morning, on the political pages of the Times there was an embarrassment of riches for Mondale-Ferraro no fewer than five major "news" stories. You can catch the flavor of the coverage from the headlines:

"Mondale's Campaign Picks Up Steam on Hot California Night"

"For First Time in History, Sierra Club Backs a Candidate: Mondale"

"Italian-Americans Proud of Ferraro"

"Chicago Feud Recedes for Ferraro Rally"

The copy that followed could scarcely be improved upon by the publicity arm of the Mondale campaign. And while five favorable stories in one day does seem excessive, we must remain aware — as the Times surely is — that closing a 20 to 30 point spread is going to require some overkill.

The same section of the Times, reporting the remarkable upset victory of Establishment liberal Elliott Richardson in the Massachusetts Republican Primary, described his victorious opponent Ray Shamie in the lead paragraph as "a millionaire conservative Republican." Friends, you will look long and hard before seeing Geraldine Ferraro described in these same pages as "a millionairess liberal Democrat."

As Teddy White noted in "1972," what makes the Times' coverage and the Times' political signals important is not simply the paper's national distribution, Times editorials, columns and "news stories" are syndicated in — as of '72 — 221 newspapers around the country. And, it is from the Times and The Washington Post, that ABC, NBC, CBS, Time and Newsweek take their cues. (Look for magazine cover stories in coming weeks, titled something like "Fritz Fighting Back.")

Let it be said directly. The Washington-based national press is deeply frustrated by, and resentful of, the tremendous success of Ronald Reagan in winning the nation to his agenda — rather than theirs. While they concede he is genial and engaging, they also believe him ill-formed, detached and possessed of a philosophy that is both simplistic and dangerous. And they desperately do not want a Reagan-Republican-Rightist landslide.

As ideological bulwark of the Democratic Party, polemical and publicity arm of American liberalism, the Big Media are the strategic reserve of the Mondale campaign, makes no mistakes, they are moving to the rescue.

Passing the buck in Beirut

Blame for bombing really belongs on president's head

WASHINGTON — There he goes again.

After three terrorist bombings of American installations in Lebanon, after repeated charges of ineptness and negligence and after being urged by many of his own supporters to discipline or fire somebody, President Reagan has finally done something. He's blamed Jimmy Carter.

There are a lot of things that could be said about Reagan's charge that intelligence lapses that allegedly contributed to the recent bombing in Beirut were the fault of the Carter administration. Walter Mondale said it was passing the buck. Intelligence specialists said it was just not true. Carter said it was an insult and demanded an apology and got it.

The fact is that Reagan's remark was all of those things — and something else as well. It exhibited the central Reagan paradox which is this: When it comes to both national defense and national security, money solves all problems; when it comes to almost anything else (particularly welfare programs), money is a diversion, a sop, a way of not thinking. You throw money at social problems; you fund the Defense Department.

When it comes to the Beirut bombing, the essence of the Reagan remark is that given enough money to hire enough spies, two Americans would not now be dead. But the assumption that a small, shadowy group of religious fanatics could be infiltrated is dubious at best. And anyway, lack of spies does not explain why a security gate was left lying on the ground and not installed. You don't have to be licensed to kill to put up a gate.

Ironically, Reagan would be the first to point out the limitations of money when it comes to other programs. He's often accused the Democrats of throwing money at social problems — and sometimes with justification. Moreover, he fastened on the occasional glitch to make it seem typical. Take welfare. Reagan has consistently denounced fraud and mismanagement in all sorts of welfare programs, never for a moment conceding that both are inevitable when billions of dollars are being spent on millions of people. To him, the exception is the rule.

When it comes to national security, the exception remains the exception. Both he and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger cringe at reports that the Pentagon has paid $92 for screws, $435 for hammers and $7,600 for coffee makers. These examples, they both maintain, are the exception and they are willing to forgive the Pentagon what they would never be willing to forgive the Department of Health and Human Services. Nevertheless, the Defense Department has so much money that the Mr. President has become Mr. Coffee, but Andrei Gromyko seems unimpressed.

It's obvious that the issue is not money — it's ideology. To the president, national security is something that can be bought and it's worth anything it costs. On the other hand, welfare programs are not worth anything at all. He is enamored with power, revolted by dependency and money is just one way of expressing those sentiments. But no amount of money can bring order out of the chaos that is Lebanon or stability to a notoriously unstable part of the world.

But money, at least the spending of it, can have a placebo effect. Spending money can be a way of not thinking. In the Beirut bombings, the president ignores the fact that two of them were predicted by intelligence agencies; indeed, the last was publicly threatened by the organization that claims to have carried it out.

You don't need a spy to read the papers. You don't need to be a national security expert to conclude that someone in Beirut simply forgot to shut the door. And you don't have to be an Einstein to figure that three exceptions in one place looks a lot like the rule.

No matter. After each bombing the president has exonerated the negligent, gone moony in the presence of the military and turned victims into heroes through the magic of the Tele-Prompter. Lack of money is not the issue. The willingness to question basic assumptions is. When it comes to national security, the president wants every buck but the one Harry Truman made famous. It's the one that stops in the Oval Office.

DOE officials treat truth like a drug addiction

WASHINGTON — When a government whistle blower is treated like a criminal, it's time to recall Adm. Hyman Rickover's wry advice to conscientious federal employees: "If you must sin, sin against God, not against the bureaucracy. God may forgive you, but the bureaucracy never will."

John Hnatio was a security specialist in the Energy Department. His big mistake was talking to an investigator for Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. He told the investigator last year that top Energy officials had lied to Congress about the security situation at government nuclear weapons plants and had done nothing to correct the problems. When word of Hnatio's honesty reached his bosses, they hit the ceiling. He was given an official reprimand and was threatened with the loss of his security clearance — which would have destroyed his career as a security specialist.

Dingell has noted the irony that an employee of the Oak Ridge, Tenn., weapons plant retained his security clearance for six months after his conviction for burglary, while Hnatio's clearance was in danger because he told the truth to a congressional investigator.

When his bosses began to persecute him, Hnatio asked for an investigation by the department's inspector general. The IG cleared him of any impropriety, and Hnatio got an apology from a top Energy official. That should have ended it.

But the bureaucrats weren't through with Hnatio. The latest weapon was a "warning letter" placed in Hnatio's personnel security file — and an incredible memo explaining what the warning letter was intended to convey to Hnatio. The letter was written by one superior Hnatio criticized: the memo was written by another. My associates John Dillon and Indy Badwar obtained a copy of the memo. Written by Robert Morgan, a deputy assistant Energy secretary, it states:

"The use of a 'warning letter' parallels the long-established policy of using a 'drug certification letter' that, in essence, warns the individual that continued use or involvement with illegal drugs could have an effect on his/her... clearance."

So while a burglar can keep his security clearance, an honest whistle blower is classed in the same category as a junkie and warned that his addiction to the truth could get his clearance revoked.

Hnatio's bureaucratic tormentors apparently were a little uncertain about the warning-letter ploy. So they asked the department's general counsel if it was OK to unleash the weapon on a targeted employee.

The counsel responded that while the warning letter didn't violate any statute or regulation, the Energy Department "has promulgated no regulatory guidelines for such practices."

The agency's lawyer then concluded that, to be fair, the bureaucrats would have to blaze a proper paper trail. "In our view," the counsel's memo stated, "if you decide to continue with this practice, the procedure should be set out in a department order or regulation."

What the general counsel failed to address — and what no one at the Energy Department seems to care about — is the fact that John Hnatio's bosses had no business warning him to stop telling the truth. The warning letter may make the lawyers feel better, but it won't solve the problem of bureaucratic vendettas against employees who try to do their jobs.

Footnote: Morgan, one of the officials Hnatio criticized for shoddy performance, received a $10,000 cash award from the department in 1983 for "outstanding accomplishments."

Early-season shocker: GWC stuns Taft

Rustlers nip No. 1-ranked team, 21-17 behind rugged defense, two fluke plays

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"It wasn't very pretty, but it sure was sweet."
So spoke Golden West College quarterback John Heinle after he and his teammates did the improbable Saturday afternoon — knocking off powerful Taft College, 21-17, before 4,000 fans at Orange Coast College in the PAC-9 Conference opener.

Taft College entered the game as the No. 1-ranked team in the country by one poll, and the clear-cut No. 1 team in the state, but it hardly mattered to the participants or the coaches.
"Any team Ray Shackleford coaches is always going to be tough," admitted Taft Coach Al Baldock, referring to the Rustlers' head coach. "They just wanted to win a little more than we did."

"We were so high for this game," added Golden West defensive back Bryan Burnside, whose interception with 43 seconds remaining sealed the Rustler victory. "The emotion was so intense."

The Rustlers, now 3-0, indeed, were intense, and they methodically took the advantage away from Taft — with the help of a few breaks — to hand the Cougars their first regular-season loss after 31 straight wins. For instance:

• Two of Golden West's touchdowns came when Rustler running backs fumbled into the end zone only to have a teammate pounce on the ball.

• Rustler defensive back John Pillivant downed a Golden West punt on the Taft 1-yard line to leave the Cougars in horrible field position one series prior to the Rustlers' winning drive in the fourth quarter.

• The Rustlers kept the equally intense Cougars' hands off the ball in the first quarter with a drive which ate 8:18 off the clock — with the help of a too many men on the field penalty against Taft on a punting situation.

• Several unsportsmanlike conduct penalties obliterated any kind of continuity in the Taft attack.

Still, the Cougars outgained the Rustlers, 406-373. For some reason, and the Golden West defense can take the credit, the Cougars could find the end zone only twice after outscoring their opponents, 111-13, in two pre-conference games.

"Our defense can't play any better. Two touchdowns in three games. That's awesome," said Shackleford afterward.

The Golden West coach, now in his 19th season, called the victory "the tops" in his career.

It was a bitter defeat for Taft's Baldock, who has been on the opposite side of the field against Shackleford for many years as Los Angeles CC coach when the two teams were members of the old Southern Cal Conference.

"Today, they (the Rustlers) deserved to beat us. They're an excellent football team," Baldock said. "You just don't hold the ball that long."

Golden West trailed 17-7 with 13:44 remaining in the third quarter only to battle back when wide receiver Gene Egan jumped on teammate Greg Applegate's fumble in the end zone with 9:27 left in the quarter. It was the second time such a play had worked for Golden West.

Barons fall, 16-15

Fountain Valley done in by Friars, three turnovers

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Barons of Fountain Valley High were going for the knockout punch in the third quarter — but the roll of the dice turned sour in the form of Jose Razo's interception and 17-yard return which set up Servite High up with a winning touchdown march Saturday night — ending the Barons' reign at the top of Orange County rankings.

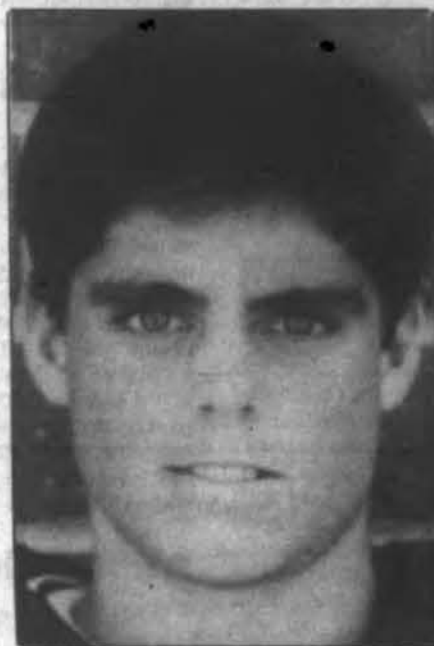

The Friars of Servite equalled the Barons' non-league record at 3-1 with a 16-15 decision before 4,300 at the Santa Ana Bowl as they combined the key theft with a pounding offensive thrust behind 215-pound Brian Booker to frustrate the Barons.

"Who knows?" said Fountain Valley Coach Mike Milner when asked if his crew could come back from the emotional verdict. "I'll be here Monday, I don't know about them."

The Barons were riddled with no less than six players hobbling off the field in the physical contest and Milner admitted he was surprised the Friars played as tough as they did.

"As usual we were inconsistent and had the ball driven on us defensive position," continued Milner. The Barons' coach said he was looking for four

'Automatic' Lee foots bill for Bruins

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — In pre-game comments, Colorado football Coach Bill McCartney called UCLA place-kicker John Lee "automatic" whenever the Bruins get in scoring position. Nothing Lee did on Saturday changed McCartney's assessment.

Lee was successful on all four of his field-goal attempts, keeping his season-long never-miss streak alive, and freshman Gaston Green rushed for 81 yards and two touchdowns to spark 17th-ranked UCLA to a 33-16 victory over Colorado.

"John Lee has kept this team afloat for four weeks," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue. "I've never seen anybody perform any better than he has."

Lee said a key for him is to "do the same things in a game I do in practice. If I take my time like I do in practice, I'll most often make it. That way I don't get nervous."

Donahue said Green is virtually an unknown to the Bruin coaching staff. "We don't know a whole lot about him. He's only been with us three or four weeks, and we've never even

Chargers rally with Angelovic's touchdown passes

By CHRIS MONAHAN
Daily Pilot Correspondent

Don't talk to Edison High football coach Bill Workman about quarterback controversies, he doesn't believe in them, and moreover, says, "I hate them."

So, it isn't a big deal to Workman that it was reserve junior quarterback Mike Angelovic that led Edison to two fourth-quarter touchdowns, including a diving catch by tight end Ken Griggs with 26 seconds left in the game, to lead the Chargers to a 24-20 non-league win over St. John Bosco Saturday night at Huntington Beach High.

Sometimes a guy on the sidelines, who has seen everything, can come in and do it," Workman said. "We needed a new face, a change. How many times have you seen it happen in the pros?"

Angelovic, the hero, was nearly Angelovic, the goat, when he threw an interception at the Brave 9-yard line with 1:13 left and Edison trailing, 20-17.

But thanks to a punishing hit by a trio of Edison defenders and an alert Greg Koperek, who recovered a Bosco fumble on the next play, Angelovic got another chance and made the most of it. On third down from the 12, Angelovic lofted a pass to the back of the end zone where Griggs, completely parallel with the ground, dove and hauled it in.

Angelovic had come in replacing starter Keith Jarrett to start the fourth quarter and led the Chargers on a 14-play, 65-yard drive that included two fourth-down conversions and took more than six minutes off the clock. Angelovic completed five of seven passes on the drive, including a 4-yarder to Mike Gray for the touchdown.

Edison had jumped on top early in the second quarter, scoring twice in a span of 1:32. Following a Tim Bontrager 47-yard field goal, linebacker Mike Smyser picked off a Brave pass on their first play from scrimmage and returned it to the Bosco 25.

A penalty moved the ball to the 13, but three plays netted only three yards and Bontrager's number was called again, but this time for a different

Southern California fans spoiled

Followers of Tigers and Cubs treating championships as something special

It is probably less painful to be a baseball watcher in Los Angeles or Orange County because sophistication has a way of diluting emotion and much of the aggravation is removed from losing.

I mean, if the Tigers and Cubs had found ways to blow the division championships, there would have resulted great civic anguish in Detroit and Chicago. As it is, those communities have received economic and spiritual uplifts for which every politician in the country will claim credit.

The Dodgers delivered their first losing season since 1979 but the three million who claim the team as their own hung no effigies; walked no picket lines and burned no symbols on the front lawn at Dodger Stadium. They simply laid the blame at the traditional feet and went on to other things.

You see, sophisticated baseball fandom is also simplified. When the local club wins, it is the expected function of the players who, after all, get paid an average salary which boggles the mind of organized labor. When the team loses, it is due to the bungling of the feeble minds of management. The fatheads did not have the right personnel.

The faithful shrugs and says any fool knows the Dodgers should not have let Steve Garvey and Ron Cey get away.

Small consideration is given to the fact it is not likely the Dodgers would have won the 1984 National League West with Garvey at first base and Cey at third. Certainly, no thought is squandered on the mortal cinch the Dodgers would not win the pennant with Garvey and Cey at the corners five years from now.

It is even less complicated for the baseball mind of Orange County:

Geez, any idiot knows the fault for the Angels kicking it away again

Titans open PCAA on a winning note

Allen's three TD passes lift Fullerton, 27-16

By ROBB MUNSON
Daily Pilot Correspondent

Cal State Fullerton Coach Gene Murphy looked content after he watched his football team put together a solid second half, led by quarterback Damon Allen, as the Titans opened their defense of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title with a 27-16 win over the Utah State Aggies Saturday before 6,262 fans at the Santa Ana Bowl.

And Murphy, the 1983 PCAA Coach of the Year, has some very good reasons for having a smile on his face these days, one being his team's unblemished record of 5-0 and another is the consistent play of Allen.

The senior quarterback, who threw for three touchdowns, passed for 171 yards while gaining 36 more on the ground.

"I'm feeling very good out there," said Allen, brother of former Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen. "We just wanted to win our first league game. We knew what we had to do."

The Titans took the early lead in the first quarter when Allen tossed a 23-yard scoring strike to Corn Redick.

But Fullerton couldn't manage a sustained drive for the rest of the first half, while Utah State scored its only points of the half when Mark Miraz tackled Allen in the Titan end zone for a safety.

However, at halftime the Titans regrouped, and came out looking like the team that wants to earn a berth in the California Bowl.

Less than one minute into the third quarter, Fullerton's Wade Lockett scored from 12 yards out on an end around play, after the Titans gained possession of the ball at the Aggie 15 when Sean Foy recovered a Utah State fumble.

After an exchange of punts, the Aggies put together a nine-play, 83-yard scoring drive, capped by Brad Ipsen's 23-yard touchdown pass to Mickey Bell. Bell caught the ball at the Titan 15, broke through a group of would-be tacklers at the 10, and scampered into the end zone.

But Ipsen's attempt at a two-point conversion run was stopped, and the Titans held a 13-8 advantage midway through the third quarter.

"We're disappointed," said Utah State Coach Chris Pella. "We weren't as disciplined as we should have been. Physically this is our game."

After the score, Fullerton came right back when Allen, who was forced out of the pocket on a third-

Improving Giants ready to face Rams

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The new-look Rams take on the new-look New York Giants today at Anaheim Stadium.

In the Rams' case, poise has replaced tenseness and Jeff Kemp has replaced injured Vince Ferragamo at quarterback.

As for the Giants, respectability has overcome mediocrity thanks to players like a healthy Phil Simms at quarterback, wide receiver Bobby Johnson and the ever-present Lawrence Taylor as well as big victories over Dallas, Philadelphia and Tampa Bay.

Kickoff is set for 1 p.m. and there will be no local television coverage. There were still 17,000 tickets to be sold by Thursday's 1 p.m. deadline.

It will be Kemp's second professional start after a successful performance last Sunday in a 24-14 victory over Cincinnati.

Kemp completed 13 of 23 passes for 205 yards and a touchdown to help the Rams even their record at 2-2.

"He played an absolutely great game," said Rams Coach John Robinson. "He was highly efficient and he loved playing. I don't know of any mistakes he made."

While Kemp was playing mistake-free football in Cincinnati, the Giants were holding off Tampa Bay for their third victory in four outings. In the process they equaled their victory output for all of 1983.

New York was 3-12-1 in 1983 but the Giants have rallied behind the play of Simms who has passed for 10 touchdowns this season, second only to Miami's Dan Marino.

In one pre-season rating Simms was ranked 23rd in the NFL based solely on the fact he hadn't been healthy enough to have the chance to

LSU's quickness too much for USC

Trojans unable to recover from slow start, 23-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern Cal was bigger, said Dalton Hilliard, but Louisiana State was quicker — by design of the Tigers' new coach, Bill Arnsparger.

"Arnsparger has us losing weight this season, trying to become quicker," Hilliard said Saturday after he scored twice on 2-yard runs to lead the Tigers to a 23-3 victory over 15th-ranked Southern Cal.

"I thought SC was big, but we were quicker. I thought they would be tougher than they were."

"It was a great win for our football team," said Arnsparger, a long-time Miami Dolphins' assistant who came to LSU this season. "I am proud of how our defense shut down USC and the offense put points on the board."

"It was a tough, hitting game like we expected. USC has great personnel ... They will get it together before too long."

Southern Cal Coach Ted Tollner, speaking in the hushed Trojan locker room, said, "We lost any semblance of pride on offense. We can't operate from a come-from-behind passing situation."

"This was a strong setback. LSU impressed us a great deal. They are a good ball possession team."

Hilliard, a bullish 5-8, 187-pound junior, put the Tigers on top to stay with his first touchdown run with 4:45 remaining in the first quarter.

He tallied again midway through the second period to give LSU a 14-3 advantage. Both his touchdowns capped LSU drives that began with the recovery of Trojan fumbles.

The victory gave LSU a 3-0-1 record, and the Trojans are now 2-1.

The Tigers' defense, spearheaded by nose guard Henry Thomas and linebacker Shawn Burks, victimized Southern Cal freshman quarterback Kevin McLean for two interceptions and a fumble recovery.

McLean, making his first college start, completed just nine of 20 throws for 64 yards. He became the Trojans' No. 1 quarterback last week when Sean Salisbury went down with a knee injury in Southern Cal's 6-3 victory over Arizona State.

LSU quarterback Jeff Wickersham, a junior who now ranks as the school's second-leading career passer, completed 14 of 27 throws for 171 yards against Southern Cal, including a 35-yard touchdown toss to Glenn Holt late in the third period.

The Tigers' other points came on Juan Betanzos' 46-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Southern Cal's only score was a 22-yard field goal by Frank Jordan that gave the Trojans a short-lived lead.

SPORTS BREAK

Not everybody has been stricken with Cubs' fever

From AP dispatches

CHICAGO — With baseball playoffs beginning Tuesday, Chicago Cubs fever is highly contagious — but some people seem to be immune.

Take Dawn McMahon, a bookkeeper at the Ultimate Sports Bar & Grill, where 450 Cub fans went through about 500 cases of beer the night their team clinched the National League East title.

Ms. McMahon, who works during the day, missed the celebration and says she was "probably sleeping" at the time.

"I just don't care," she said, adding that she didn't learn of the Cubs' Monday night victory until she was on the train to work the next day.

"I'm the only one at work that didn't watch it on TV," she said. "I didn't know anything about it."

She said she'd like the Cubs to win the World Series — it would be the team's first title since 1945 — "but I'm not overly excited. I'm not jumping up in the air."

Then there's Cynthia Quiroz, a beautician at Magic Comb Beauty Salon in downtown Chicago. She's never been to a Cubs game and doesn't care about the team's fortunes. "I don't like sports," she said.

And if that weren't enough to make a bleacher bum fall out of the Wrigley Field stands, Ms. Quiroz also said she didn't know until three days later that the Cubs were playoff-bound.

She said she didn't know — and doesn't care — which team the Cubs will face in Tuesday's playoff opener. "It doesn't matter," she said.

Others, like John Taylor, a beautician at Marilyn's Chateau of Beauty in downtown Chicago, have also avoided Cubs fever — but for a different reason.

"I just think they're just setting themselves up for a big letdown," said Taylor. "I've lost faith in Chicago baseball teams."

Quote of the day

Franco Harris, on his debut as a Seattle Seahawks running back after playing 12 years in Pittsburgh: "The old butterflies came back. Well, I guess at my age, you call them moths."

Strange spurts to six-shot lead

Curtis Strange, heavily bundled in layers of sweaters and foul weather gear, coaxed a 5-under-par 67 from blustery winds and biting cold and moved into a six-shot lead Saturday in the third round of the LaJeta Golf Classic in Abilene, Texas. Strange, who has collected more than $1 million but only one title in the years since 1980, finished three trips over the wind-raked Fairway Oaks Golf Club course in 202, 14 shots under par. Strange entered the day's play in a tie for the lead with Canadian Dan Halldorson, who had a 73 and dropped back into a tie for second at 208 with Vance Heafner.

In the Match Play Championship at Virginia Water, England, Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and West Germany's Bernhard Langer qualified for an all-European final. Ballesteros reached today's final, his third in five years, with a crushing 9 and 8 victory over American Ben Crenshaw, while Langer, by contrast, advanced to the final for the first time, edging defending champion Greg Norman of Australia 2 and 1 in a close match. In a seniors event in Yokohama, Japan, Lee Elder shot a 1-under-par 71 and increased his lead to five strokes after three rounds.

Clippers get Marques Johnson

MILWAUKEE — Marques Johnson of the Milwaukee Bucks and two other veteran players were traded Saturday to the Los Angeles Clippers for forward Terry Cummings and two guards, the National Basketball Association team announced.

The Bucks also sent Junior Bridgeman and Harvey Catchings to the Clippers for Craig Hodges and Rickey Pierce.

The deal was announced by John Steinmiller, the Bucks' vice president of business operations. Coach Don Nelson was not available for comment.

"I've put in a lot of long, hard years here," said the 6-7 Johnson, an all-star forward who played college ball at the UCLA. "It has been a good experience, yet I'll be happy to get back home to LA. I'm leaving a lot of people here who I've established strong relationships with."

Boddicker first in AL to win 20

Mike Boddicker scattered 12 hits and became the American League's first 20-game winner Saturday as Baltimore snapped a four game losing streak with a 6-3 victory over Boston. Boddicker struck out one and didn't walk a batter in struggling to the victory. The right-hander has lost 11 games. Elsewhere in the AL, Fred Manrique singled home the tie-breaking run in the top of the ninth inning as Toronto edged Milwaukee, 5-4. Pinch-hitter Carmen Castillo drew a bases-loaded walk to snap a seventh-inning tie and pinch-hitter Chris Bando followed with a two-run single as Cleveland gained its fifth consecutive victory, a 6-4 triumph over Minnesota, which lost its fifth straight. Chris Codrill pitched a seven-hitter and Carney Lansford hit two doubles to lead Oakland past the AL West champion Kansas City Royals, 6-2. Detroit set a club record with its 14th victory sparked by Lance Parrish's two-run homer capping a five-run sixth inning in a 11-3 triumph over the New York Yankees. The previous Tiger record for victories in a season was set by the 1968 World Champions, who posted a 103-59 mark. Harold Baines drove in two runs and Floyd Bannister won his 14th game as Chicago beat Seattle, 6-2.

Sandberg collects 200th hit

Jody Davis drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Ryne Sandberg collected four hits to give him 200 on the season Saturday, leading the National League East champion Chicago Cubs to a 9-5 victory over St. Louis. Davis drove in two runs to cap a four-run first inning off Danny Cox, 9-11, and he also singled in a run in the sixth. In other National League games Saturday, a first-inning fielding error by Houston center fielder Kevin Bass sparked a three-run Cincinnati rally that helped rookie pitcher Jay Tibbs earn his fourth straight victory as the Reds defeated the Astros, 4-1. Darryl Strawberry belted a two-run homer, rookie Herm Winningham tripled home a pair of runs and Ray Knight had four hits to lead the New York Mets to an 8-4 triumph over Montreal. Tony Gwynn highlighted a five-run second inning with a two-run single to lead San Diego to a 6-2 victory over Atlanta.

Successful return for Cooney

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Gerry Cooney came back from his loss to Larry Holmes 27 months ago by smashing Phil Brown to the canvas three times and stopping him in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round Saturday.

Cooney looked in good physical shape and punched extremely well to the body but the opposition furnished by Brown, a former sparring partner of Cooney's, was negligible.

Cooney hurt Brown about midway through the fourth round with a tremendous left hook to the head and dropped him with a right to the side of the jaw. Brown got up in five and took a standing eight count from referee Bill McConkey.

Slew o' Gold wins Marlboro

NEW YORK — Slew o' Gold, running for the first time with new shoes to protect a foot ailment, grabbed the lead leaving the backstretch and led the rest of the way in winning the Marlboro Cup Invitational Handicap Saturday at Belmont Park.

It was the fourth straight victory this year for the 4-year-old son of Seattle Slew, who now has won two-thirds of the Belmont's Fall Championship Series.

Newport girls dominate

Sailors record easy victory in their division at Dana Hills

By JOSEPH DUDEVOIR

Daily Pilot Correspondent

Local girls made good Saturday in the 11th annual Dana Hills High Cross Country Invitational as Newport Harbor High's varsity won the Division II crown and Edison finished second in the Division III team race.

Not to be outdone, Woodbridge's Sheri Smith set a new meet record of 17:09 on the three-mile course to win the Outstanding Girl competitor trophy.

The boys didn't do too badly themselves, as Edison's varsity came in third and Fountain Valley fifth in their Division III race.

Fountain Valley Coach Bill Thompson was especially pleased with his team's finish. "I'm really happy and sort of surprised, considering we didn't run our five best runners," he said. "Normally our best five is composed of four juniors and one senior, but today we couldn't run juniors in the senior's race so I'm very happy where we finished today."

Tim Gould placed the highest among Fountain Valley's finishers, coming in fourth with a time of 15:33. One coach who wasn't surprised with his team's finish was Newport's girls coach Bob Van Sickle.

"We expected to win today," said Van Sickle, who doesn't think his squad has gotten its due respect coming into the season. "We've been picked fourth and fifth in CIF in some polls and some of the teams picked ahead of us we beat today."

Van Sickle's team had three finishers break the 18-minute mark for new personal bests. Maggie Henson ran 17:49 for third, Buffy Rabbitt clocked a 17:54 for fourth, and Julie Morris checked in with a 17:57 for fifth.

Tiffany Anderson and Laura Lazo placed ninth and 10th to give Newport five finishers in the top 10.

Edison's varsity girls finished second to a powerful Tustin team, 38-56, but Coach Gordon Duff was still quite satisfied.

"I'm happy to finish second, especially to Tustin, who along with Newport, will be one of the teams to beat this year," he said.

Raiders put streak on the line

DENVER (AP) — A pair of eight-game winning streaks will be on the line today when the unbeaten Los Angeles Raiders invade Mile High Stadium for a key American Football Conference West Division game against the Denver Broncos.

The Raiders, 4-0 this season, have won their last eight games, including three victories in the 1983 National Football League playoffs, while the Broncos, 3-1, have won eight in a row at home.

"The Raiders really don't have any weaknesses," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "Their defense makes a lot of big plays. Their cornerbacks can cover one-on-one, and that enables their defense to do things other teams can't do."

"Offensively, they pound you up front, just wear you down. I think Marcus Allen is the best running back in football. He does so many things — he's a runner, blocker, receiver and passer."

"They've got excellent speed at wide receiver, and Todd Christensen is a great tight end who gets open all the time. They never think they're out of a game. They have the confidence to come from behind, and Jim Plunkett does a great job of throwing the ball in those situations."

Los Angeles has rallied to win its last two games, overcoming a 10-point fourth-quarter deficit to beat San Diego, 33-30, last Monday night. In the second meeting with Denver last season, the Raiders drove for the decisive field goal in the waning seconds in a 22-20 victory.

"Those drives have become a tradition with the Raiders," said Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores. "It shows the confidence our players have, their character. But I hope we don't have to do it all the time. It makes old men out of all of us."

The Broncos beat Kansas City, 21-0, last Sunday as Sammy Winder rushed for 139 yards and one touchdown, John Elway completed 17 of 29 passes for 172 yards, and cornerback Mike Harden returned an interception 45 yards for a TD.

Zahn throws 4-0 shutout at Texas

Downing, Brown crack home runs to lead Angels

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Left-hander Geoff Zahn pitched eight-hit ball and Mike Brown and Brian Downing stroked eighth-inning homers as the Angels defeated the Rangers, 4-0, Saturday night.

"(Texas starter Frank) Tanana got the ball on the outside of the plate in the strike zone," Brown said after he belted his seventh homer. Downing's homer was his 23rd of the year.

Tanana was touched for all four Angels' runs before giving way to Tom Henke, who pitched the ninth. "My curveball was working good and I didn't feel tired," said Zahn, 13-10, who struck out three Rangers and walked one.

Tanana, 15-15, also allowed eight hits in taking the loss.

Derrel Thomas tripled in the first inning and scored on Brown's single to give the Angels a 1-0 lead.

In the second, two errors by Texas shortstop Jeff Kunkel gave the Angels another run.

Brown hit his homer leading off the eighth, and Downing hit his homer one out later.

The Angels and Rangers square off again today in the final game of the season for both teams. Mike Witt (14-11) will oppose knuckleballer Charlie Hough (16-13) in the finale.

The Angels could finish in a second-place tie with Minnesota in the American League West if it beats Texas and the Twins lose to Cleveland.

Dodgers find right spot for Landreaux

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ken Landreaux stepped out of the Los Angeles Dodgers dugout to pinch-hit in the ninth inning and was abruptly called back.

"I decided to save him for a better situation," explained Dodgers' Manager Tommy Lasorda.

The "better situation" arrived in the bottom of the 11th when Landreaux appeared again, this time with the bases loaded and none out.

Landreaux stroked a single to left-center field, scoring pinch runner Rafael Landestoy to give the Dodgers a 4-3 victory over San Francisco Saturday.

The Giants walked Steve Sax before pitching to Landreaux, prompting Landreaux to remark, "I take that personally. It made me a little angry. I didn't say anything, I just went up to hit."

Pedro Guerrero singled in the first three runs for the Dodgers, giving him 24 RBI in September and his three singles lifted his average to a season high of .303.

Reliever Tom Niedenfuer, 2-5, earned the victory. Frank Williams, 9-4, the fourth Giants pitcher, took the loss.

Mike Scioscia started the Dodgers' winning rally with a leadoff single to right. Bill Russell dumped a single into short left-center, sending Landestoy to third. The Giants intentionally walked Steve Sax and Landreaux, batting for Niedenfuer, lined a single to left-center over the drawn-in infield.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the first when Mike Marshall doubled and Guerrero responded with the first of his three RBI singles.

The Giants went on top with two runs in the top of the second as Chris Brown doubled in one run and scored the second on John Rabb's single.

Los Angeles tied the score in the third when Sax led off with a single, stole second and came home on another single by Guerrero.

Rob Deer's third home run of the season with one out in the seventh gave the Giants a 3-2 lead. But the Dodgers tied the score in the bottom of the inning on Guerrero's third single.

Parsons, Hogan are eliminated

OCEANSIDE — Fog proved the biggest adversary for the competitors Saturday at the Stubbies Pro International Surfing Tournament at Oceanside Harbor Beach's North Jetty.

At 5:30 p.m. Saturday, the last half of round three of the main event was postponed until today when the fog rolled in, but the event wasn't halted until Mike Parsons of Laguna Beach and Jim Hogan of Capistrano Beach had been eliminated.

The pair join Newport Beach's Greg Mungall in a tie for 17th overall and each picked up $300 for the week's work.

Parsons was defeated by Shaun Tomson of South Africa in a unanimous decision, while Hogan was eliminated by Greg Day, who is 15th seeded in the tournament.

In other action, defending world champion Tom Carroll defeated countryman Terry Richardson of Australia to set up a featured matchup this morning against current tour leader Mark Occhilupo, also of Australia.

Occhilupo downed Vista's Joey Buran, when Buran, who was winning the heat, was disqualified for interference.

The top performance of the day was turned in by Tom Curren of Santa Barbara, who had the highest scoring wave of the contest. Curren, who beat Barton Lynch of Australia, posted two perfect 10s and three 9.5s from the judges for an aggregate score of 9.7.

Torre's future to be decided

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner did not reveal the future status of Manager Joe Torre, but he set an apparent deadline for deciding the matter in a terse clubhouse conversation with Torre.

"Come see me Monday morning at 11 in my office," Turner said as he popped into the clubhouse Friday night.

"At least I know when," Torre muttered, acknowledging Turner's request as the owner left without further word.

Turner declined further comment, saying: "I don't want to talk about it." Also gone is Pat Nugent, the assistant vice president for baseball. He left in what was announced as a resignation. He had been in the organization since 1977 and an assistant to General Manager John Mullen for five years.

Torre, in his third season with the Braves, led Atlanta to a National League West title in 1982. Last year, the Braves finished second and can finish no better than second this season.

Umps may go on strike for playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations between the Major League Baseball Umpires Association and the Commissioner's Office will continue this weekend as both sides try to avert a strike by umpires that would begin with next week's League Championship Series.

Umpire Dave Phillips, who worked the Minnesota-Cleveland game Saturday, called the situation "grave for the World Series and playoffs."

Baseball is prepared in the event of a strike by the umpires.

"There always is the possibility of a work stoppage, but it is our hope this can be settled amicably," Bob Witz, a spokesman for Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, said Saturday.

throw. Coming into the season, Simms had thrown just 13 passes since 1981.

But his six-year pro career has qualified him only as the NFL's injury-prone poster boy. Simms has suffered everything from knee injuries to thumb dislocations to shoulder injuries.

Through four games, Simms has completed 72 of 129 passes for 1,127 yards while being intercepted three times. He ranks third in NFC passing behind Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski and Detroit's Gary Danielson.

Kemp, meanwhile, was just getting his feet wet — literally — at soggy Riverfront Stadium last week in the win over the Bengals.

The fourth-year pro out of Dartmouth teamed with Ron Brown on a 52-yard touchdown pass, although Brown did most of the work on the play with a twisting, diving catch of a slick football.

Kemp's cool command of the team seemed to loosen up the rest of the Rams who had played their first three games as if the pressure of the world was on their shoulders.

"You could almost see us loosen up out there," noted Robinson. "We weren't too tense, we weren't just going out and playing football early in the season. Once we got into the flow, you could get us getting closer to what we should be."

Rams running back Eric Dickerson, who suffered a sprain of his right hand in Cincinnati, is expected to be in the lineup, but tight end Mike Barber, who was eligible to come off the injury list, is doubtful.

Although the Rams are at less than full strength, Giants Coach Bill Parcells is taking nothing for granted. "With Kemp, the Rams have less spread and play a lot more conservative," he said.

Pirates score a TD but still struggle in Mission opener

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When Orange Coast College decided to switch to the Mission Conference, Pirate Coach Dick Tucker insisted things weren't going to be easy in the new league.

Saturday night, he found out he was right.

The Pirates dropped their Mission Conference opener to Saddleback, 28-7, before 3,000 fans at OCC for their third consecutive loss of 1984.

If it was any consolation, Coast broke a touchdown drought in the second quarter when running back Chris Cook slipped into the end zone on a 5-yard run.

At that point, in fact, the Pirates were making a game of things, slicing

Saddleback's 14-0 lead in half.

But the Gauchos, who improved their overall record to 2-1, added touchdowns on an 18-yard pass from Mike Douglass to Todd Cagle in the third quarter and a seven-yard run by John Salinas in the final quarter to put the game out of reach.

"We've simply got to improve our passing game," admitted Tucker following the game. "We're just not giving our thrower enough time to throw."

OCC quarterback Ken Laszlo managed to complete just 4 of 15 passes for 31 yards and was intercepted three times by the Gaucho defense. For the second week in a row, Tucker went to backup quarterback Scot Hagey in the fourth quarter, but the Saddleback defense continued to swarm.

"Our defense, in particular, played well," noted Saddleback Coach Ken Swearingen. "Our problem has been the offense. We just sputter and sputter."

The Gauchos got away with the sputtering Saturday night. The OCC defense limited Saddleback to 175 yards on the ground, and the only Gaucho running back to manage any consistency was sophomore Roger Brown, who picked up nearly half of that yardage with 87 yards on 18 carries.

Saddleback opened a 14-0 lead after a scoreless first quarter as Douglass connected with Mike Balsis on a 26-yard touchdown pass on the first play following Rob Williams' interception of a Laszlo pass.

Coast's lone touchdown came after Saddleback's Rudy Figueroa fumbled a Pirate punt and OCC's David Martinez recovered at the Gaucho 28.

Laszlo ran for 20 yards on a keeper and two plays later, Cook scored from five yards out.

belongs upstairs. Every human being in Orange County old enough to think lives with the absurdity of letting Nolan Ryan and Don Baylor get away — not to mention Don Drysdale and Dick Enberg.

If evidence that hungry baseball players still exist is ever submitted to the jury at Anaheim Stadium, it is ignored. Minnesota contended with a payroll similar to that of a department store. Kansas City knocked off the Angels in the stretch three straight times — with rookie pitchers.

Reggie Jackson has them all snowed down there. He hits his 500th career home run and whippers that the Angels management organized no ticker tape parade, no television special, no function which would have caused banknotes to settle in the pockets of Reggie.

Tom Brunansky over in Minnesota loves baseball. Reggie Jackson loves its rewards.

The Angel onlookers seemed ignorant that the millionaires in the lineup were willing — indeed eager — to get out of the lineup. Carew and DeCinces are not healthy people. Downing thinks and plays slow. Fred Lynn drove down the stretch. He was a free agent showcasing himself.

But hear the cries in the night:

"Where the hell is Nolan Ryan?"

So much for Southern California sophistication. There is another element to be considered which is different from all of them — the strange creatures who follow baseball in San Diego.

Orange Coast running back Chris Cook tries to elude the attempted tackle of Saddleback defender Neil Walner.

GWC SHOCKS TAFT...

From B1

In the second quarter, offensive lineman Dean Graves pounced on John Lambertson's fumble in the end zone to end a 14-play, 80-yard drive. And that was one of the Rustlers' shorter drives — timewise.

Taft led 14-0 midway through the second quarter thanks to a 20-yard run by John Stewart and a 31-yard return of a Heinle interception by linebacker Keith Williams.

Graves' touchdown with 1:32 remaining in the half cut the lead in half, but Taft's David Moffet booted a 40-yard field goal at 13:44 of the third quarter for a 17-7 lead.

Golden West saved its best drive for last, going 92 yards in 14 plays and using up 9:20 on the clock in the fourth quarter. Jeff Brown scored the winning touchdown with a 1-yard plunge with 2:20 remaining in the game. Mike Doan was made in 3-for-3 for the day with his extra point. Heinle, given great protection most of the game by his offensive line, completed 21 of 33 passes for 299 yards.

quarters of consistency, but when it was over he said, "We failed for the fourth week."

It was a stunning turnaround for the Barons, who appeared to be very much on their way to their fourth straight victory when a third-quarter drive of 72 yards resulted in Eric Zeno's 33-yard touchdown pass to Carl Harry.

Harry leaped for the ball at the 25 and dashed in unopposed on the audible call after Tim Malloy's 21-yard reception and some solid running by Dave Swigart set it up.

A two-point pass from Zeno to Glenn Gordon gave the Barons a 15-9 lead with 1:52 left in the third period.

The Barons had the ball again just 51 seconds later after forcing a Servite punt, but when the Barons went for the knockout punch, Razo was in the right spot to intercept the underthrown pass as a Baron receiver dashed 15 yards past the Servite secondary — wide open for a clinching touchdown.

After a spiking-the-ball penalty, the Friars moved 42 yards behind the passing of Eric Buechele, running of receiver Tom Wilson and bulldozing of Booker, with the latter carrying the final four yards with 10:24 still remaining.

With their backs to the wall the Barons responded with three downs and a punt, then survived a Servite threat when Harry blocked a 41-yard field goal attempt, moved the ball on passes of 8 and 12 yards to Glenn Gordon and Terry Reichert, only to see their final bid fail when Todd Prukop intercepted an overthrown pass with 2:16 remaining.

The Barons had used all of their timeouts for a variety of reasons during the 2½-hour contest, and all Servite had to do was run out the clock.

The Friars were handed a 6-0 lead in the first quarter when the Barons fumbled the ball away on their first play from scrimmage, giving Servite possession at the FV 37, where it required five plays to put the ball in, with Wilson bursting over from 8 yards out after bouncing off a stack of defenders.

Fountain Valley responded with a 53-yard march, with Zeno punching it in from a yard out after Swigart came through with a saving 15-yard reception at the Servite 11 on a pass which had "interception" written on the laces.

The Friars saw one drive fumbled away, but came right back with a march from their 22 in the second quarter to salvage a 30-yard field goal by Prukop and held a 9-7 halftime lead.

That set it up for the Barons' response, only to see it all go down the drain when Razo turned near-disaster into a game-winning situation.

Milner was unhappy with the officiating, and pointed out one situation where Harry appeared to be grabbed on a play going for a TD pass play.

But in the end, the Barons did it to themselves with the inability to stop sheer running strength and/or putting a game together without three turnovers.

Nebraska victim of Orange crush, 17-9

Syracuse pulls a stunner against No. 1 Cornhuskers

From AP dispatches

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Quarterback Todd Norley hit wide receiver Mike Siano with a 40-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter and unranked Syracuse University made its first lead of the game stand up with a colossal defensive effort Saturday to shock No. 1-ranked Nebraska, 17-9, in college football.

The Cornhuskers had led from halfway through the first period on the strength of a 25-yard toss from quarterback Craig Sundberg to tight end Todd Frain, but Syracuse closed the gap to 7-3 before halftime when Don McAulay booted a 24-yard field goal.

Both teams, playing before 47,280 in the Carrier Dome, emerged from the game with 3-1 records. The Orangemen put the lid on one of their most stirring upsets with 1:29 remaining in the game as fullback Harold Gayden knifed into the end zone from one yard out.

Syracuse punter Jim Fox ran out of his own end zone as time ran out to account for Nebraska's final points.

Texas 28, Penn State 3: Terry Orr bolted 51 yards for a first-quarter touchdown and Todd Dodge hit William Harris with an 84-yard scoring pass, third longest aerial in Texas history, one period later as the second-ranked Longhorns overcame four first-half turnovers and whipped fourth-ranked Penn State in East Rutherford, N.J.

Oklahoma 24, Kansas State 6: At Norman, halfback Steve Sewell combined for 295 yards rushing and receiving, including a 79-yard touchdown pass reception, to lead the seventh-ranked Sooners to victory over Kansas State.

South Carolina 17, Georgia 10: The Gamecocks played inspired defense and got a fourth quarter boost from backup quarterback Mike Hold to score a shocking upset over 12th-ranked Georgia.

Oklahoma St. 31, Tulsa 7: Running back Shawn Jones rushed for 174 yards and two touchdowns as No. 10 Oklahoma State swept past Tulsa.

Georgia Tech 28, Clemson 21: Substitute sophomore fullback Chuck Easley scored on a one-yard plunge with 33 seconds remaining to give the 18th-ranked Yellow Jackets an upset victory over No. 13 Clemson in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Notre Dame 16, Missouri 14: John Carney booted three field goals and Steve Beuerlein and Reggie Ward teamed up on a 74-yard touchdown play, lifting the 19th-ranked Fighting Irish to a hard-fought victory at Missouri. The Tigers drove to the Irish 22 in the final seconds, but Brad Burditt's 39-yard field goal attempt fell short.

Ohio State 35, Minnesota 22: Keith Byars tore through Minnesota's defense for 164 yards and two touchdowns to power his third-ranked Buckeyes to victory over the host Gophers.

Michigan 14, Indiana 6: A four-yard touchdown pass from Jim Harbaugh to Eddie Garrett, capping a 10-minute drive that was kept alive by an official's inadvertent whistle, clinched No. 14 Michigan's Big Ten Conference victory over host Indiana.

Florida State 44, Temple 27: Joe Wessel blocked a pair of kicks to set up two touchdowns and national passing leader Eric Thomas threw three scoring aerials to lead the ninth-ranked Seminoles at Tallahassee.

Miami, Florida 38, Rice 3: Bernie Kosar, ignoring a steady rain, passed for three touchdowns and a school record 368 yards as the Hurricanes pounded visiting Rice in a non-conference game.

Auburn 29, Tennessee 10: Kyle Collins scored three touchdowns and 20th-ranked Auburn overcame five turnovers to down visiting Tennessee in a Southeastern Conference game.

SMU 26, TCU 17: At Irving, Texas, wingback Ron Morris dashed eight yards for a touchdown and caught a 38-yard pass for another, and the 11th-ranked Mustangs outlasted emotional TCU in a Southwest Conference opener before 58,206 fans, second largest in series history.

On the next play, Allen threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Lockett who bobbled the ball at the goal line before finally hauling it in for his second touchdown of the game.

"We had Allen fake a pump before throwing the ball to Lockett," said Murphy. "That brought the defender up and Lockett slipped behind him."

"We have the ability to make the big plays like we never had before."

Fullerton put the game away with 14:15 left in the fourth quarter when Allen threw his ninth touchdown pass (in nine quarters), a two-yard toss to tight end Marvin Williams.

The game was stopped for 20 minutes midway through the final quarter when the Aggies James Suitt suffered an injury to the neck. Suitt was taken off the field on a stretcher to St. Joseph's Hospital in Orange.

"He'll be all right," said Pella. "There was numbness in the neck and they are just taking precautionary measures. He was unconscious at first, but when he woke up he was able to move."

timed him in the 40. But I feel like he's fast enough."

The Bruin coach said he was "particularly pleased with the lack of turnovers. I'm happy the game's over. I expected it to be closer than it ended up."

McCartney bemoaned his team's mistakes. "We just mistaked ourselves right out of the game," he said. "It was a case of squandered opportunities and lack of communication."

The Bruins, rebounding from a 42-3 loss to Nebraska last week, raised their record to 3-1 despite having seven starters out of the lineup with injuries. Colorado, moving the ball effectively but unable to reach the end zone until the final quarter, fell to 0-4.

Lee, a junior, was successful on all four of his field-goal tries — from 51, 49, 39 and 36 yards. He now is a perfect 14-for-14 this season. He also kicked three extra points, and his 15 points enabled him to set a UCLA career scoring record of 215, eclipsing Gary Beban's standard of 214 set in the 1960s.

Green, who had carried only seven times in UCLA's first three games, capped an 80-yard drive with a 4-yard TD run in the opening quarter. He finished off a 75-yard drive in the third quarter, racing five yards around the right side.

Green also bolted 39 yards to set up sophomore quarterback Matt Stevens' 3-yard scoring toss to tight end Greg Bolin in the final period, which gave the Bruins a 33-9 advantage. Stevens and Bolin are each products of Fountain Valley High.

Dave DeLine kicked three field goals for Colorado. The Buffaloes finally reached the end zone with 5:39 left in the game when quarterback Steve Vogel, beating a Bruin blitz, lofted a 29-yard TD throw.

Arizona thwarts 49ers

Washington enjoys laughter; Arizona State stops Stanford

From AP dispatches

TUCSON — Tailback Phil Freeman swept left end for a 19-yard touchdown with 33 seconds remaining as Arizona stayed off Long Beach State for a 31-24 non-conference football victory Saturday night.

The Wildcats' winning drive came after Long Beach State had gained the momentum with a 10-point, fourth-quarter comeback to tie the game, engineered by the passing of quarterback Doug Gaynor.

Arizona quarterback Alfred Jenkins threw for three touchdowns but his key passes of the game came on the Wildcats' final scoring drive. He hit flanker Jay Dobyns on a 13-yard pass and split end Jon Horton on a 23-yarder to move to the 49ers' 19 and set up Freeman's decisive run.

Before that, Gaynor hit flanker Troy Ory on a 19-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter and place-kicker Jose Ocegueda, who had kicked three field goals, added the point after for a 24-24 tie.

Gaynor also connected on a seven-yard scoring pass to flanker Sheldon Gaines in the third quarter and then hit a two-point conversion pass to split end Charles Lockett to make it 17-14.

Max Zendejas booted a 54-yard field goal for Arizona in the third quarter, but missed on tries of 41 and 53 yards before Freeman's game-winning run.

Washington 53, Miami, Ohio 7: Tailbacks Jacques Robinson and David Toy each ran for two touchdowns as the sixth-ranked Huskies blasted winless Miami of Ohio.

In a final non-conference tuneup for their Pacific-10 Conference football opener at Oregon State next weekend, the Huskies, 4-0, rushed for six touchdowns on a day when top-ranked Nebraska and fourth-rated Penn State were beaten.

It was the most points scored against the Mid-American Conference Redskins, 0-4, since Dartmouth beat Miami of Ohio 58-7 in 1942.

Robinson, a senior making his first start of the season, scored on runs of 1 and 11 yards in the first quarter.

Arizona State 28, Stanford 10: Darryl Clack scored third-period touchdowns on a 65-yard pass play and an 84-yard run, breaking open a close game and propelling the Sun Devils to a Pacific-10 victory over the Cardinal.

The ASU tailback caught a pass into the left flat and weaved through Stanford's defense for his first touchdown, which came on the Sun Devils' opening offensive play of the second half. He made his TD run seven minutes later and ASU carried a 21-3 lead into the final quarter.

Luis Zendejas kicked four extra points in the victory and increased his career scoring total to 317 points, moving into eighth place on on major college football's all-time list.

San Jose State 33, California 18: Spartans' wide receiver Tony Smith caught three touchdown passes to lead San Jose State to a non-conference victory over the Golden Bears.

California quarterback Gale Gilbert's 4-yard touchdown run, the first of his career, and a two-point conversion brought the Bears, 1-3, within 26-18 early in the final quarter.

But Smith then put the Spartans, 2-3, back in command with his third touchdown reception on a 26-yard strike from Bob Frasco. Another Smith reception late in the first half put San Jose ahead 13-10 at halftime.

Oregon 30, Pacific 14: Sophomore quarterback Chris Miller passed for 216 yards and a touchdown to lead the unbeaten Ducks past the visiting Tigers.

Matt MacLeod added three field goals for Oregon, which boosted its record to 4-0 — the Ducks' best start since 1964.

Miller, who completed 19 of 28 passes, led Oregon to a 30-6 lead before leading the game at the end of the third quarter.

Idaho 41, Oregon St. 22: Idaho quarterback Rick Sloan bombed the Beavers for 332 passing yards as the Vandals routed the Beavers in a non-conference game.

Scott Auker was on the receiving end of nine of Sloan's passes for 117 yards and one touchdown.

Fresno State 53, New Mexico St. 24: Sophomore quarterback Kevin Sweeney threw four touchdown passes and ran for another score as the undefeated Bulldogs downed New Mexico State in a PCAA game.

Westminister Plaza celebrating grand opening.

Westminister Plaza opening marks $12 million renovation

Trains, treats, prizes and performers will be part of a grand opening that began Saturday and runs through today at the Westminister Plaza. The two-day event will bring city and state officials and shoppers from throughout the area to the newly renovated shopping center at Beach Boulevard and McFadden Avenue just north of the San Diego Freeway. What they will see, behind the balloons and ribbons, is 19 businesses sharing the fun with new customers and those who have remained loyal during the many months of reconstruction at the former K-Mart Plaza. Although some special activities are scheduled each day, many events will run both days. The $12 million shopping center sits on a 12-acre site and includes 140,000 square feet of retail space and parking for 633 cars. Interstate Consolidated Industries of Carson is the developer of the project.

American Airlines shuffles flights at John Wayne Airport

American Airlines has announced plans to enhance its Chicago-bound flights from John Wayne Airport by adopting new routings that are intended to free up seats for Orange County passengers.

Beginning Oct. 15, American will schedule non-stop service from Chicago to John Wayne and initiate new routing for its one-stop eastbound flight.

Under the new schedule, an east-bound flight will depart JWA at 12:15 p.m. daily and stop briefly at Burbank Airport before flying on to Chicago. Arrival time is scheduled a 7:02 p.m. (CST). Currently, American routes its outbound JWA flight through Phoenix.

Westbound, a flight will leave Chicago's O'Hare International Airport at 9:15 a.m., arriving in Orange County at 11:31 a.m.

"Passengers and travel agents who use John Wayne have been asking for more seats to Chicago and we are pleased now to have the opportunity to respond," said Anthony Mule, American's western division vice president.

With the addition of the new flight, American will fly a total of six flights per day from JWA, four to Dallas-Fort Worth, one to Chicago and to Chicago through Phoenix.

All the JWA flights utilize 142 seat McDonnell-Douglas MD-80 aircraft.

Line Store relocates

The Line Store, the only store in Orange County to carry the exclusive Italian Pratesi collection, has opened at Newport Center Fashion Island.

Todd Allyn Morrow firm principal announced that his present location, four doors from the new Atrium complex, is a 2,000-square-foot transition store. Morrow plans to open a 2,220-square-foot shop in Atrium Court in the spring of 1985.

"The move to Fashion Island was designed to better relate to our customers in a central location where ample parking is provided," Morrow explained. The Line Store was formerly located in Corona del Mar for three and a half years.

Joint venture announced

O'Donnell, Brigham & Partners/Southern, an industrial real estate developer based in Orange County, has formed a joint venture partnership with The Irvine Company to develop an additional 400,000 square feet of space in the Irvine Industrial Center.

The 900-acre Irvine Industrial Center, situated at the confluence of the Santa Ana (5) and San Diego (405) freeways, has been actively developed by The Irvine Company since 1977.

Development of the 28-acre site, called O'Donnell/Irvine I, which is the second phase of the planned four-phase Irvine Industrial Center, calls for construction of light assembly and manufacturing facilities, beginning in the summer of 1984. As part of the joint venture development, four single-story buildings are scheduled to be constructed at the intersection of Alton Parkway and Jeronimo Way.

Of the 400,000 total square feet of leasable space, Holt Engineering Inc., an international computer design firm specializing in integrated circuits, has signed a 10-year lease for 106,000 square feet to house their corporate offices, R&D facility plus their manufacturing and shipping operations.

El Toro development sold

Canada Business Center, a 16-building, 295,000-square-foot office and industrial park in El Toro has been purchased by Kroh Brothers Development Company of Kansas City, Mo. This is the second major acquisition in South Orange County for the national development company, which expanded to the area in early 1983 with the purchase of 180,145-square-foot La Paz Office Park in Laguna Hills.

"We're interested in more expansion in growth areas like South Orange County," said George P. Kroh, chairman of Kroh Brothers. "Our new regional office in Laguna Hills will be seeking still more opportunities."

Most execs still pencil pushers

Most U.S. executives, despite word processing, electronic mail, and other modern office conveniences, are still "pencil pushers" when they write business letters, memos and reports, according to a new, nationwide survey of 218 executives by Communispond, Inc., Newport Beach management consultants in business communication.

Asked how they compose their correspondence, a majority, 89 percent, of the respondents ranked the "pad and pencil" method far ahead of dictation, 10 percent, and computers, 1 percent.

"Even with all the new electronic hardware," one executive said, "I'm still putting the words down on a yellow pad." Another complained: "Writing is a manual task, plain and simple — and probably will be for years to come."

It's also a tedious job, the survey found. Nearly 80 percent of the executives reported writing "more or just as many" letters, memos, and reports in 1984 as they did in 1983. One pencil pusher claimed he wrote "over 500" pieces of correspondence per week.

The survey, covering small, medium, and large companies, included a cross section of mid- and upper-management in the accounting, marketing, finance, sales, research, and legal areas.

Evan-Picone shows longer layers with all-important crisp white shirt

Evan-Picone, women's sportswear manufacturer, predicts a fall '84 season in which "classic" will take on a new meaning. From manstyle bravado to ultra-feminine sexiness, this is going to be a time that gives women choices.

And what choices! Soft separates. Those perfect gray flannel trousers, high-powered soft jackets in navy flannels and a wonderfully layerable wool duster.

Easy trousers and a crisp white cotton shirt topped with sweater, a jacket alternative, provide soft separate dressing.

On the sultrier side of things, sweaterdressing's the hot news. Long and lean. Soft and supple. In two- and three-piece sets ... vests and sports-dresses.

Look for fine tailoring — even a soft unlined jacket is completely finished inside.

Frank Smith, designer of Evan-Picone Sportswear, says his philosophy and styling expertise reflect timeless fashion that is smart and contemporary. He designs for the working woman whose active lifestyle demands excellence in fashion, quality and fit.

The latest Evan-Picone collection, shown recently at Robinson's, Fashion Island, featured:

SILHOUETTE: — Simple. No fuss! Few details. "Bigness" is replaced by perfect, easy-on-the-body fit. In fact, the body never gets lost, even under multiple layers, it's shown to its best and fuller styles have a linear, body-conscious quality.

PROPORTION: Length is important. Long kind of length. Long-over-long. Short-over-long. To the knee or to the ankle. Pants — cropped or full length — worn with elongated tops.

THE NEW "MUST": A crisp, starch-white cotton shirt. Classic, man-tailored or ascot styles. It goes with everything.

COLORS: Unexpected. Neutrals with neutrals. Taupe with grey looks fresh and new. Pales — dusty rose, blush. Black sparked with brights or white. And, the clean winner — winter white.

FABRICS: Real wool. Real cotton. Real handknits. Look for the feeling of softness, luxury.

ACCESSORIES: Excitingly spare, allowing the clothes to carry the power. Maybe a hat or scarf... To add real polish, the emphasis is on new shoes, carrying the classicism down to the bottom line: Flats, slip-on and tie-on; Low-heeled pumps, Higher pumps for dressier occasions.

TEXTURE: Plaids, tattersalls, and geometrics in all proportions. Herringbones are hot. All mixed together — keeping color tones constant to keep the message clear.

Red, white and blue American sportswear befits today's woman. Layerable red wool duster mixes with plaid pleats and classic white shirt. Multiple layers emphasize long over short, right, from Evan-Picone's fall '84 season.

Skirts and jackets are longer and fall '84 pant outfits are playful, but the body never gets lost even under multiple layers of Evan-Picone sportswear separates.

LOOKING GOOD

Signs sparkle, diamonds are Virgo's best friend

Have you noticed all of the beautiful fashion jewelry available these days? At a recent party, everybody seemed to have on an unusual necklace — big chunky styles in wood and metals, etc. I guess they were all born under the sign of Aries.

Don't laugh! The latest word on jewelry from a class ring manufacturer (Art Carved Class Rings) says the type of jewelry a person buys and wears depends on where the sun was displaying its power when he or she was born.

Aries people are the first ones to spot a trend. In fact, they are trendsetters in just about everything under the sun, including the jewelry they wear.

Anyway, if you are not an Aries, but are fascinated by astrology, read on and see if this list fits in with your choice.

Next is the Taurus (April 20-May 21) personality.

VIDA DEAN

Being practical, Taurans usually are loyal to one dependable piece of jewelry, perhaps a heavy sterling silver link bracelet, symbolizing this sign's strength. Spontaneous Gemini (May 21-June 21) is liable to choose a Promise Ring in just what happens to catch her eye as she curiously glances into the window of her local jewelry store.

What about the person who displays a very simple, thin band of gold as his or her wedding ring? You can almost count on the fact that he or she is a thrifty, sensible Cancer (June 21-July 22).

Next on the astrological agenda, the bold, regal Leo (July 22-Aug. 23), is apt to pick a massive, personalized gold ring to prove to the world he's king (or she's queen) and proud of it!

Not to be outdone, the discriminating Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) won't be happy with anything but the best — maybe a handcrafted, delicate platinum band complete with a sparkling, near-flawless diamond to help ward off those bouts of moodiness to which she's prone. (This Virgoan would settle for a large emerald.)

Romantic and charming Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23), the person who literally "falls in love with love," usually chooses jewelry strewn with hearts, lace or flowers. While not much for sentiment, Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) lives for mystery and intrigue. The Scorpio man relishes a ring with a secret compartment for hiding a tiny photo of an undeclared love; a female Scorpio loves a locket where she can stash a perfume-soaked cotton swab.

Extroverted and daring Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) might surprise you one day by wearing a wildly ornate "slave" bracelet, encrusted with semi-precious stones and washed in gold — given to her by a Middle Eastern prince whom she met while skydiving in Nepal! On the other hand, traditional and realistic signs like Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 20) like basic jewelry that will last a lifetime: a traditional gold class ring or a string of pearls — they'll never be "out."

The Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) is the most likely of the 12 signs of the Zodiac to choose the latest in faddish or avant-garde jewelry. The unconventional Aquarius you know was probably the first on your block to sport a mood ring a few years ago... and don't be surprised if he or she shows up at a party with a sliver of fuchsia moon rock pierced through one ear! Last but not least in the sun sign parade, subdued Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) likes inconspicuous jewelry that won't call too much attention, such as the thinnest wisp of a chain for the neck or one gold bangle bracelet.

The influence of the stars and planets on the way we behave, even down to our choice of jewelry, may be much more than a theory. But, whether you're a firm believer in the Zodiac signs as a near-religion, or a novice who only asks "What's your sign?" as an icebreaker at social affairs, you have to admit one thing: Astrology is fascinating.

BEAUTY NEWS: Alexandra de Markoff has a new collection of powder eye shadows in dual pan compacts of coordinating shades. The formula is moist to the touch and the claim is it never looks oily and the color stays true for hours. To create the foundation for the eye makeup there is a moisturizing Eye Shadow Base. A dot of it is applied to clean eyelids before the shadow.

L'Erin Cosmetics has all eight shades of its liquid makeup available in trial sizes for $1.25. The product contains 86 percent moisturizers and emollients. Trial sizes would be great for travelers and also eliminate getting stuck with a big bottle of the wrong shade. These products are sold in drug and grocery stores.

Train's whistle will be music to winners' ears

Chances are one in 300 that if you attend the Oct. 14 Orange County Pacific Symphony benefit at the Ritz, you'll soon be aboard the Orient Express having the time of your life.

One of the door prizes (opportunity comes with the $200 ticket) is a trip for two on the Venice-Simplon Orient Express with round-trip airfare to London (donated by American Airlines), plus $1,000 in travelers' checks.

Second and third prizes aren't bad either — a dinner for 20 in the new Cellar at the Ritz (donated by Hans Prager) and Gucci's his and hers gold watches.

For the fund-raiser, the restaurant terrace will resemble an Edwardian train station with baggage carts and other props. Champagne (Mums Cordon Rouge) and hors d'oeuvres will be served before guests are escorted inside for a gourmet dinner and a show of Neiman-Marcus designer fashions. "Claude Montana and James Galanos both have Orient Express collections," said Coordinator Kitty Leslie at preview cocktail party at the Ritz.

The idea for the party to benefit the Symphony came from Warren Johnson, a member of the executive committee and OCPSA board. Helping him carry out his idea are Barney Barnett, vice president and general manager of N-M; Matthew Bates of Mary Homi International PR, V-S Orient Express (vice president David Picken and wife are coming from New York for the party) and The Ritz.

For more information and (possibly) reservations to the black-tie or dress of the '20s affair, Neiman-Marcus' executive office may be called.

Had a note from Erline Garn telling me about her new position — the former personal shopper at Saks Fifth Avenue, South Coast Plaza, is now with United Way of Orange County.

Jerry Richards has the reputation of being a fabulous cook. At a breakfast last week in his Lido Isle home for the planners of the Helmsmen Oct. 19 fund-raiser he served a great buffet. Eggs in a yummy cream sauce and the sausage casserole, etc. were delicious. But, he didn't make them! He also has a fabulous caterer, because the now retiree finds he's short on time.

Amelia Lockney, chairperson of "A Fashion Fantasy Cruise" being held at the Newport Beach Marriott Hotel, talked about the Helmsmen who support Goodwill of Orange County and their plans. The event begins at 6:30 p.m. with a reception with dinner and a fashion extravaganza presented by Bullock's, Santa Ana. (Five Helmsmen will model along with the pros).

Others there included Dr. Anemaria Ballin (she's co-chair), Gene Hartline (president) and Margo and George Yule. Margo was saying, "People think of Goodwill as thrift shops only. We do so much more. We have training programs for disabled adults to help them become employable."

More than 400 are expected to attend the benefit when fabulous prizes including vacation packages and jewelry will be awarded. Tickets may be obtained by calling 547-6301, ext. 236.

Olive Osmond, mom of the singing Osmonds, will be honored Thursday at the Anaheim Marriott Hotel when Providence Speech and Hearing Center holds its ninth annual dinner. Marie is expected to attend as a special guest and other family members will be there to entertain.

The honoree has reared two profoundly deaf children and is involved in starting a speech and hearing clinic called "A Child Shall Speak" in Orem, Utah.

Thomas Testman of Ernst & Whinney is chairman of the $175 per person event. Reservations may be phoned to 639-4990.

Marie Gray, founder and head designer of St. John Knits, received an "Orange County Woman of Achievement" award from Dawn Magazine. Each month, the magazine selects a woman who has become successful in her chosen field, according to Editor Margaret Hall.

Max Rose is all set to auction off all those great items accumulated by Ebell Club of Irvine members for their 6 p.m. Saturday sale (live and silent) at Heritage Park Teen Center. They have chairs, baby furniture, car leasing and sailing lessons to name a few. The $2.50 admission fee includes wine and hors d'oeuvres. Tickets can be purchased in advance by calling Lois Lauer, 552-6266 or at the door. Women interested in learning more about the club may call Gana Totten, 835-1080. New members will be installed Tuesday.

Also on the calendar for Saturday is an Octoberfest at Lido Marina Village planned by the Active 20-30 Club of Newport Beach. The outdoor party along Via Oporto will feature live band music, cheerleader dancing, disco and a plate of food. A main attraction, according to Mark W. Hart, 20-30 chairman, will be a Miss Bavaria of Newport competition for looks and outfit. Entry to the event is $10 and proceeds go to Olive Crest Treatment Center and the Florence Crittenton Home.

Patience Wright Chapter of DAR will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in the Capri Room of Hotel Laguna. Guest speaker, Robin Williams, will show his film "Voyage of Columbus," a 16mm documentary, as the group commemorates Columbus Day. For more information, call 494-3260.

Phil and Valley Reilly are being honored Oct. 9 with the National Human Relations Award from the American Jewish Committee. Ray Watson, chairman of the board Walt Disney Productions, and Supervisor Harriett Wieder are co-chairmen of the 6:30 p.m. awards banquet being held in the Westin South Coast Plaza Hotel. Reservations ($200 per person) may be arranged by calling 546-2914.

Estevez' winners put femininity first

At the age of 24, Luis Estevez was the youngest designer ever to receive the Coty American Fashion Critics Award. That was in the '50s for creating the little American black dress with a focus on novelty necklines that were architectural, modern, sexy and feminine. His first collection with Ben Papell was shown in 1955 and he continues to design very feminine attire for "the woman." Devotees of Estevez have included the late Merle Oberon, Lana Turner, Dinah Shore, Faye Dunaway, Jane Fonda and Betty Ford. The Cuban-born designer studied architecture at the University of Havana which probably explains the nice lines of his fashions — classics that go on forever. Recently at the Irvine Marriott Hotel, the premier showing of his winter and holiday '84 collection was staged as a benefit for Santa Ana auxiliary of Children's Home Society. Daytime and evening pieces were shown with an absence of the latest menswear look which does not fit into Estevez' outlook.

Chinese choose queen, bear fashions a fit

Daily Pilot Photos by Terri Kean
Moon Festival emcee Frank Kwan interviews contestant Sheryl Lynn Jung.

Robb Evans, president of American Asian Bank which gave $500 scholarship, talks with OCCCC President Dr. Lock Gee Ding.

It was citing for 22-year-old Eva May Sung of La Palma who was crowned Orange County Moon Festival Queen at the Airport Inn Hotel in Irvine.

It was so exciting for the 400-plus people at the festive dinner and beauty pageant sponsored by the Orange County Chinese Cultural Club. (It boasts a membership of more than 600 countians.)

After Sunday's dinner, guests and committee people enjoyed the very entertaining competition of the 10 beautiful contestants.

Last year's winner Susan Wan relinquished the crown saying, "The Moon Festival beauty pageant, I hope, will set a new tradition for Orange County, and I am proud to have been its first queen."

Eva May was born in Hong Kong and majors in social ecology at UC Irvine. She plans to attend UCLA for graduate studies in urban planning. She is a hostess at Ming's Restaurant.

Her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wai Sung were as delighted as she was when her name was called as the winner of the $1,000 scholarship prize. She will compete in the Miss Chinatown Pageant in Los Angeles or San Francisco.

Anna Y. of Carson, Sherry Chang of Irvine and Judy Wang of Los Alamitos were chosen runners-up and received $50, $300 and $200 scholarships. Each contestant received $100 scholarship. The Miss Congeniality title was won by Jennie Ko of Los Angeles.

Pageant Coordinator Helen Woo and May Sue Chee, assistant coordinator, had a wonderful time at the festival dancing to the music of the Blue Sand as did City Councilman Daniel Wong of Cerritos, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sargent, Ted Carey Johnson, Laurie Spaheart, Eugene Murray, Judith Gray, Florence Lorrin Chee, Mrs. and Mr. Henry Chew, OCCCC Young Peoples President Richard Chew, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kwan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sun, Dr. and Mrs. Christopher Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woo.

OCCCC representative Florence P. Black described Sung's face as "just flawless" and raved about the flower-decked stage where emcee Frank Kwan, NBC-TV producer/moderator, presided.

Judging with the enviable job of choosing winners were Ben Quo, Jacqueline Tom, Tsuyin Olive Lu, Benson Fung and Gerald Jann.

Also at the event were such notables as Lily Chen, vice president of the American Asian Bank of Irvine; Bk President Robb Evans; Gerald Jann, publisher of Magazine; Jackie Tom, former queen L.A. competition; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Powell, Harold Haase, Bette Shuck, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Young Grace, Mr. and Mrs. George Wan and OCCCC President Dr. Lock Gee Ding and wife Ruth.

Children's Hospital of Orange County's Small World Guild members are still talking about the spectacular fashion show Robinson's Newport Beach presented as a benefit for their 120-member group.

Eyatching portions of the production being raved about at the bridal segments with all of the white doves flying about and that big bear (a real live one) in the midst of the great outdoors styles.

"It is a fun show," said Judy Goletz (vice president and co-chair with Jan Ortiz, president.) "It was so easy to sell tickets, because everybody remembered what a great show it was last year."

The event, Goletz said, kicked off another guild project, "The Two on the Town" sale of gourmet dining experiences with a chance at a $500 shopping spree at Robinson's. Jan Volrol is the chairman and the winner will hold Oct. 7. (For more info call 997-300, ext 277.) Among the almost 300 at the fashion extravaganza were Matti Howard, Nancy Willbanks, Sharon Tase, Mary Nielsen, Ann Sim with daughter Andrea, Judy Chappell, Jane Fowler, Lisa Hill, Liz Lax, Lori Leo, Nany Cleeremans and Debbie Lane.

Lunch was as well received as the latest fall trends. Roco provided baskets filled with fruit, petite sandwiches on nut bread, brie, marinated asparagus and chocolate macaroons.

The Guild will realize more than $5,000 from the event which will go toward CHOC's new outpatient clinic building fund.

Athalie Clarke, Richard Hausman, Walter Schmid and Alva Wilson received a standing ovation at a Balboa Bay Club dinner recently when supporters of UCI Irvine College of Medicine gathered.

Dean Stanley van den Noort presented the four with engraved awards, not only for their support of the UCI College of Medicine but also for leadership roles in the community.

Many of the guests, who belong to the Founder's Circle (contributors of $5,000 or more) and the Dean's Circle (gifts of $1,000), were present to help launch UCI-CCM's first annual fund-raising campaign.

Because of her continuous support to the school over the years, Clarke was named honorary chairperson of the campaign. "UCI is fortunate to have Athalie Clarke as a friend of the College of Medicine," commented Van den Noort.

Clarke has served on numerous national committees as a presidential appointee, been a delegate at Republican presidential conventions since '52 and is a member of dozens of educational and charitable groups.

Hausman, former chairman of the board of Allergan International and former vice chairman of the board at Allergan Pharmaceutical, has been associated with health care for 15 years and devotes time to the Multiple Sclerosis Society, Orangewood and other charities.

Wilson of Laguna Beach, too, is active in numerous philanthropic causes and as a builder played a major role in the construction of more than 800 homes in Southern California and Las Vegas including Shore Cliffs in Corona del Mar and Upper Emerald Bay.

Schmid of Tustin has been a county resident since 1911 when he emigrated with his family from Germany. A trustee at Chapman College and board member of Goodwill Industries, he has served on the state water and air pollution boards.

Among those attending were UCI Chancellor Jack Peltason (wife Suzanne was with their daughter and new fourth grandchild), Frank Amato, Dr. Harriet Opfell, John and Kittle Rau, George and Dottie Hewitt, John and Dolores Virtue, Walter Schaefer, Jim Swinden, grandson of Athalie Clarke, and wife Deborah, Warren Hancock, Vincent Carroll, the Robert Meserves and Dr.

Oregon: A winter wonderland

Crater Lake National Park a mecca for skiers, snowmobilers, campers

Oregon's national park lands are year-round playgrounds where late fall and winter visitors can ski around the nation's deepest lake, explore a cave filled with mysterious formations and discover million-year-old fossils. They can even visit a replica of the fort once used as winter quarters by one of America's most famous exploring parties.

T-shirt message raises standard

In my heart I always suspected there was no tooth fairy who had a checking account at the same bank as my parents and forged my dad's name.

There were always doubts about Santa Claus scaring down a plateful of brownies on Christmas Eve when my mother had chocolate breath on Christmas morning.

And there was some skepticism about my dad being able to blow on traffic lights and make them change color. (Especially when, if he had that kind of talent, why did he yell at us every day of our lives to turn the lights off?)

But I always believed in T-shirts. I believed every message on every chest I ever read.

When it said, "I survived Mt. Saint Helen's," I believed they did. When I read, "I made a pig out of myself at Farrell's," I believed they had. When I saw a runner wearing an Olympic symbol on his T-shirt, I put my hand over my heart and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

When a woman appeared in aerobics class wearing a "CATS!" T-shirt, there was no doubt in my mind she had done a stint on Broadway.

Then one day my faith began to waver. I saw a woman about 70 years old wearing a T-shirt with an arrow pointing to her stomach that read, "BABY." I reasoned, why would she advertise it if it weren't true?

Later, I saw a guy in a bar with two stomachs (one hanging down to his knees) puffing on a cigarette. His T-shirt read, "Boston Marathon, 1983." It made me very skeptical.

Last week I saw a toddler with an oversized T-shirt that read, "FOR BRAKE ALIGNMENTS, I GO TO CHARLIE FOX." The kid couldn't even go to the bathroom by himself.

What is happening? Is there no integrity anymore? I mean, if you can't trust a chest who (or what) can you trust? Billboard clothing is flourishing. We all know that, but is there anyone who can't be bought for the price of a T-shirt? There is even a price tag on status. People are walking around in "Hill Street Blues" jackets which they bought from a retail shop at NBC. T-shirts are making promises their owners will never keep, focusing attention on causes they never support, advertising products they've never used and companies they've never heard of.

T-shirts are supposed to reflect some kind of honesty by the wearer. For several months, I've had a T-shirt in the back of my drawer that I knew would be controversial and un-American. But it says what I believe. Yesterday, I figured out it was time to bring it out. It reads: "Auntie Em: I hate you. I hate Kansas. I'm taking the dog. Signed Dorothy." Someone has to set the standard.

Thousands of years after fiery ash raced down forested mountainsides, Crater Lake National Park is now covered throughout most of the year with a thick blanket of snow that all but buries its rustic buildings.

High in the Cascade Mountains of southern Oregon, the deep, incredibly blue waters of Crater Lake fill a caldera formed 6,800 years ago by violent volcanic eruptions.

After half a million years of cone-building activity, 12,000-foot Mt. Mazama exploded, hurling boulders, ash and cinders across an area now occupied by eight states and three Canadian provinces. Geologists estimate the eruptions to have been 42 times greater than those of Washington's Mount St. Helens in 1980.

"The big problem is, with 50 feet of snow here, people think we must be closed," said Ron Warfield, chief of the park's visitor services. However, the park is a mecca for cross-country skiers, snowmobilers, snowshoers, winter campers and photographers, who can enjoy their sports while admiring the lake's vivid hues of blue surrounded by dazzling white.

Fall and winter are ideal times to visit another year-round attraction, Oregon Caves National Monument. Located 32 miles from the Oregon-California border in the extreme southwestern corner of the state, this cavern of corridors and chambers filled with fascinating subterranean formations is pleasant in any season because of its always moderate temperature. "October is an especially good month because of fall colors and beautiful weather," said John Miele, park superintendent.

Oregon's newest national monument protects some of its oldest geological records. The John Day Fossil Beds National Monument in northeastern Oregon protects fossils of plants and animals that lived in the area about 30 million years ago — animals such as giant pigs, saber-toothed cats and three-toed horses.

A wintertime visit to Fort Clatsop National memorial gives present-day explorers an authentic glimpse of what life was like for the early 19th century Lewis and Clark Expedition. This is an exact replica of the one constructed by the party a few miles south of Astoria.

Today, one can truly feel their presence, as park rangers dressed in buckskin jackets and Indian costumes demonstrate hide tanning, canoe building and other frontier survival skills as part of the park's living history program.

A warm night's lodging and a hearty meal are no more than an hour's drive from each of these popular attractions. Klamath Falls, south of Crater Lake National Park, has a wide array of motels and an overnight trailer park. To the north, Diamond Lake Resort has rustic cabins and a lodge set along another scenic lake.

Visitors to Oregon Caves National Monument can find late fall and winter accommodations in Cave Junction, 20 miles northwest of the park. A larger number of facilities can be found 50 miles to the north in Grants Pass.

Lodging near the John Day Fossil Beds is available in the town of John Day on U.S. Highway 26.

Fort Clatsop National Memorial is only minutes away from coastal resorts and inns, where winter storm watching is a favorite pastime. The nearest are located in Astoria, six miles northeast of the historic site.

More information about Oregon's year-round national parks and monuments is available from the Oregon Economic Development Department, Tourism Division, 595 Cottage St. NE, Salem, Ore. 97310.

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for thousands we consider to be out of favor. That makes quite a list. For a time being, therefore, we are doing the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

I had the overbearing personality of one who had been given poor before he was quite ready for it. He was surrounded by a small group of sycophants who hung on his every word.

The days are long gone when I was prepared to get into a game with anyone," sniffed the Jack of Spades. "Now, unless I know that the game is going to be of a certain quality, I'd sooner stay home. Just the other day I was invited to this expert game. Oh, the difference... it's like night and day. Take this hand, as an example of what I mean. "In third seat, I must say that I agree with our opponent's decision to open four hearts. He had the worst possible distribution and, opposite a partner who had passed there was no chance of slam.

"The expert who held me made his natural lead of the queen of diamonds. Our partner rose with the ace and, since the lead marked declarer with the king of diamonds and the club suit offered no prospect of a trick, he made his natural switch to a low spade.

"Now, if I had been playing with the penny-pinching crowd that you are used to playing with, the contract would have been made. Had one of them been in the West chair, he would have used me to win the second trick, cashed the ace and then searched around frantically for the setting trick. Declarer easily would have made the rest of the tricks.

"Watching my expert at work was a thing of beauty. He won the second trick with the ace of spades, then cast me to the dogs. His partner captured me with the king and led a third spade, and that was that.

"If declarer ruffed low, he would be overruled by my cousin, the Knave of Hearts. If he ruffed high, my cousin would score a trick by force. Either way, the contract was doomed.

"I hope this dissertation will be of use to you in the future."

Rape laws no deterrent

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I appreciated your printing the letter from the rapist who had not been caught. The man who wrote to explain why men rape described himself as "32, highly intelligent and a graduate of an Ivy League school."

His explanation that he started on "this rotten road" to get even with a cruel and punishing mother who caused him to hate all women made a great deal of sense to me. I, too, was raised by a mother who beat me regularly — once when I was 9 years old for taking more on my plate than I could finish. Although I never was inclined toward rape, I had a terrible time relating to women in a civilized manner until I had had three years of therapy — starting at age 25.

Rape, as one news reporter pointed out, is a highly subjective act. It depends not so much on what happened, but what the participants were thinking at the time. Unlike robbery, there is no money missing. Unlike murder, there is no dead body. Since your column is a great tool for educating the public, will you please point out the differences in the various state laws? I believe this would be extremely useful, a real eye-opener, and maybe a deterrent. Thanks for all the good you do. — SADDIEGO READER

EAR SAN DIEGO: The information you ask for may be "a real eyepener" but I doubt that it will be a deterrent. Statistics show that even the 10th penalty is not a deterrent to crime.

Source is Timothy Harper, a writer for the Associated Press.

Some following states a rapist can get in prison: Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Rhode Island, Washington, D.C. In Mississippi, rape is punishable by death.

In Alaska and South Carolina, a rapist now can get 30 years. In Montana and Nebraska it's 40 years. In Indiana and Wyoming it's 50 years. In Minnesota it's 20 years and a fine of $35,000. In South Dakota it's 25 years and a $25,000 fine.

In many states the penalties are more severe under certain circumstances. In Arizona, for example, the maximum sentence for rape is 14 years if no weapon is used and 21 years if a weapon is used.

In Illinois the usual 4-to-15-year sentence is upgraded to 6-to-30 years if the victim is younger than 13 or older than 60.

In Tennessee the sentence is increased by five years if the attack results in pregnancy, venereal disease or a mental breakdown.

In Louisiana the penalties may be more severe if the victim was drunk, retarded or tricked into thinking he or she had gotten married the night before.

In California each prior felony conviction can increase a rape sentence by five to 10 years.

In Colorado the sentence must be doubled if the defendant is injured.

And now — before 10,000 people write and ask if I believe castration would be the best solution to the problem, the answer is NO.

INTERMISSION

Three openings offer variety

A comedy, a drama and a musical join the footlight parade at Orange County's community and collegiate theaters this week as producing groups in Irvine, Huntington Beach and Buena Park all unveil their latest offerings Friday.

The Irvine Community Theater is opening the final production of its "theatrical season," Oliver Healey's bittersweet comedy "For the Use of the Hall." Golden West College will present the World War II drama "Home of the Brave," while the musical "The Fantasticks" will be bowing in at the Buena Park Civic Theater.

Marcia Berthoff and John Green-slade head the cast of "For the Use of the Hall," a left-handed salute to the losers in the game of life. Completing the Irvine cast are Lenore Stjerne, Mary Benton, Ron Duvall and Nathalie Michaud.

Performances will be given Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. for four weekends, with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. Oct. 7 and 21, in the auditorium of Turtle Rock Community Park, Sunnyhill Road off Turtle Rock Drive in Irvine. Call 857-5496 for reservations and information.

At Golden West, Charles Mitchell is directing "Home of the Brave," Arthur Laurents' drama about men in combat. The cast consists of Ron Hunsaker, Dan Pankratz, David Robb, John Parker, Stephen Silva and Mike Owens.

Performances will be given Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. for two weekends with a closing matinee Oct. 14 at 3 p.m. in the Actors Playbox on the GWC campus. Call 895-8378 for ticket information.

"The Fantasticks" will be presented Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through Nov. 10 by the Buena Park Civic Theater at Sullivan Center on Melrose Avenue in Buena Park. Call 523-0351 for directions and information.

Three local stage productions complete their respective runs this weekend. They are:

"A Tomb With a View" at the Westminster Community Theater, 7272 Maple St., Westminster (955-4113). Closing performances are Friday and Saturday at 8:30.

"Charlie's Aunt" at Saddleback College in Mission Viejo (831-4656). Curtain times are 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. today and next Sunday.

Westerns making a comeback?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Listen up, pilgrim, the Western movie may not have ridden off into the sunset after all.

Clint Eastwood is shooting a Western in Idaho. Two Western spoofs are before the cameras. Lawrence Kasdan has written an old-fashioned oater and insider says is a Western version of his "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Hollywood has avoided Westerns since the $40 million misfire of "Heaven's Gate" and the box office fizzle of other Westerns.

Eastwood is directing and starring in "Pale Rider," his first Western since "The Outlaw Josey Wales" in 1976. He plays a stranger in gold-rush country who becomes enmeshed in a battle between independent miners and corporate interests.

SOAP SUMMARY

Erica's statuesque scheme fans a furor

BY LYNDIA HIRSCH

ALL MY CHILDREN: Learning Erica intends to turn game preserve into park featuring full-size statue of herself, Phoebe goes to Palmer for help. Cynthia, Ross' destitute ex-wife, believes she's struck paydirt with Palmer because he wants relationship with Andrew, her son by Ross. Greg refuses to believe Myrtle's charge that the seance, where he was confronted by Jenny, is a bunch of hokum. Greg goes to cemetery for a meeting with Jenny, but Sheila confesses Olga set up scam when Sheila, who looks much like Jenny, came to her for modeling assignment. Olga thought publicity of Jenny coming back from the dead would be fabulous for agency and her career. Feeling sorry for Sheila, Myrtle offers her lodging and job at the boutique. After meeting with Hillary, Tad marries Dottie. Unbeknownst to friends and family, Adam is alive. Langley returns to college.

ANOTHER WORLD: Felicia hires medium to locate the missing Cass. Donna angry when she enters secret cellar room and spots Catlin and Sally embracing. Later Donna remembers her own passionate meeting with lover years before in the stable. Larry becomes hysterical when he learns Clarice critically hurt when his car exploded. Grant tells Carter not to attend the small college which accepted him, but try for a larger university. Larry turns Sally and Catlin over to the police. Police release Sally from custody. Cass believes he's spotted Cecile on terrace.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Peggy upset when movie agent Ted interested in Marey, not her. Calling wedding off while at altar with Russ, Betsy decides to return to Oakdale even though Russ tells her police are looking for her. At bus station, Craig spots Betsy. At that very moment, Simon reactivates the hypnotic control he has over Craig. When policeman comes up to Betsy, she bolts, but Craig tells policeman Betsy is his wife, then shows Betsy a picture of them together with baby Danielle. Murray agrees to help Liza trap Lucinda. Margo and Frank guarding Steve to stop him from leaving country. Steve knocks out Frank, then heads for Amsterdam with Juliet. Lionel gives Heather his blessing to do a movie. John and Karen's try at reconciliation is a disaster.

CAPITOL: Julie and Tyler confident he'll win election. Hal doesn't want Kelly to know his condition has worsened. When Clarissa spots Kelly holding Scotty and crying, Kelly explains she never had a family and feels sorry for the baby. Kelly stunned by Thomas' dinner invitation, but he insists he's not doing it out of pity. Mark informs Clarissa Sloan not ready to learn of his plans to divorce Paula and marry Clarissa. Paula tells Mark she will not contest the divorce. Brenda opposed to coming-out party but Wally suggests she go ahead with plans because her parents will not question her being out of the house, thus allowing them to have secret rendezvous.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Daphne suffers heart attack. As she lies near death, Bo and Hope fear prison lost forever. Pete manages to keep strip joint flatter picture away from Melissa. When Melissa pays visit to club, she's stunned that Pete is featured performer. Carlo surprised when Liz responds to his kiss with slap in face. Alice searches penthouse for prism. Liz tells Carlo to move out. Max and Megan plan to force the critically ill Daphne to reveal whereabouts of the prism. Although she still loves him, Gwen says goodbye to Larry.

EDGE OF NIGHT: Sky beds down with Alicia. Sky furious when he learns Rick's statement cannot be used in Raven's trial, or the fact that Jamie put Logan and Geraldine's key in Raven's dresser. Judge wants Jamie questioned after Chris and Geraldine testify. Jodie tells Bev she's sorry she rushed into making love to Preacher. Preacher still missing. Geraldine admits on the witness stand she cleaned gun that killed Logan a week before the shooting.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Jimmy Lee accuses Edward of paying Beatrice money for bible page which shows Lila once married to Tolliver. Lorena tells Jimmy Lee they have power to bring Edward to his knees. Holly thrilled when coroner report shows Beatrice didn't die from overdose of pain medication but allergic reaction to heart medication. When police believe Lila the culprit, Edward jumps to his feet and says he poisoned Beatrice. Holly discovers hidden camera at spa.

GUIDING LIGHT: Learning H.B. is terminally ill, Reva decides to go back to Springfield as Mrs. H.B. Lewis. Josh feels going back to Springfield would be a mistake and create problems for his father and Reva. Roxy determined to go to Springfield to find out any dirt she can and then blackmail the Lewises. As Hillary and Jim listen to carousel music box, an explosion rips through the cabin. Jim's injuries are minor but Hillary dies on operating table while Ed is attending surgeon. India paid surprise visit by her secret lover Armand and learns her alcoholic father has literally drained the family fortune. India seduces Warren, then threatens to tell Alex unless she's paid $15,000.

LOVING: Shana refuses to quit her post at Burnell's in hopes of proving to Cabot that she truly does love him. Dane and Ann continue their clandestine relationship. Just as she is about to go into Stephanie's room, Edie realizes Stephanie on the scene. Jonathan and Lorna also arrive just as Stephanie is about to open the door.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Brad disturbed by number of changes the inn must undergo now that it's part of the Crown Hotel chain. Brad wants Sam to pawn her jewels so he can get out of the deal. Jinx spying on Brad for Trent. Alex Crown arrives in town in search of his wife Laurel. As Cassie begins moving into the abandoned theater the lights are mysteriously turned on and off. Cassie says the theater is haunted and wants to quit job but Michelle offers to stay with Cassie. Bo furious with Asa for almost telling Didi truth about Drew being his son. Asa tells Bo to choose between him and the O'Neills. Dee makes certain Bo catches her and J.J. Warren embracing.

RYAN'S HOPE: Max insists Maggie give him teddy bear Dave gave her. As Maggie goes for the bear, she sees Dave but refuses to go with him. Dave and Laslo sneak out before Max's henchmen touch them. Max heads for Nice and Maggie realizes Jacqueline keeping her prisoner in the apartment. Maggie tries to get message about where Max keeps his gold to Jack. Maggie being drugged. When Dee asks Pat to help her get over her fear of sex because of Matthew's heart condition he suggests she see marriage counselor. Dee fearful Bess is out to snare Matthew.

SANTA BARBARA: Warren stands to lose big if Joe found innocent of Channing's murder. A woman from Peter's past demands a quarter million dollars in a week. When a desperate Peter asks Mason for money, Mason agrees to lend it. C.C. anxious to have little Brandon out of town before he has any other meetings with Santana. Mason hurt and flabbergasted to learn that Santana is his father's secret lover. The woman who calls herself Dominic determined to keep her disguise until Channing's killer is found. Peter fears he's losing his fiancée Kelly to Joe.

NOTICE OF DEATH OF HARRY WILLIAM ELLIOTT a/k/a Harry W. Elliott AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE NO. A124698
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will and/or estate of: Harry William Elliott a/k/a Harry W. Elliott
A petition has been filed by Bruce C. Elliott in the Superior Court of Orange County requesting that Bruce C. Elliott be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.
A hearing on the petition will be held on October 3, 1984, at 9:30 A.M. in Dept. No. 3 at 700 Civic Center Drive West, Santa Ana, CA 92702.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Section 700 of the Probate Code of California. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing notice above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may serve upon the executor or administrator, or upon the attorney for the executor or administrator, and file with the court with proof of service, a written request stating that you desire special notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of the petitions or accounts mentioned in Section 1200 and 1200.5 of the California Probate Code.

Southern California HOME

Executive homes show rapid sales

More than two-thirds of Summerfield's executive homes — located near South Coast Plaza — were sold by the grand opening date.

"Pre-grand opening weeks were tremendously successful. We had more than 150 home-seekers on hand for our official opening and introduction of three vignetted and landscaped Summerfield models," said Steve Scarborough, vice president of Standard Pacific Corp.

Scarborough credits the development's location for its success.

The immediate neighborhood of the new Standard-Pacific development is "quietly residential," according to Scarborough, "but for those who prefer city-living, the theatre, gourmet dining, complete financial facilities and world-famous stores and shops are just minutes away."

The limited collection of 50 luxury homes is priced from $190,000 to $225,000. Three floor plans and a selection of traditional exteriors are offered.

Various architectural elevations are detailed with natural cedar siding, textured stucco, mission clay or shakelike roofs. Most homes feature three-car garages. The two-story plans offer from 2,190 to 2,560 square feet of living area, with three bedrooms and den or four bedrooms and 2½ or three full baths.

Interiors feature skylights, vaulted ceilings and an abundance of clerestory windows and sliding glass doors. The homes have formal living and dining rooms, family rooms, breakfast nooks and master bedrooms with mirrored door wardrobes in dressing room/bath areas.

Custom touches include oak entry doors, oak stair rails, hand-built masonry fireplaces, antique-finish brass hardware and decorator-selected lighting fixtures. Bath features include Corian marble pullmans, full-width mirrors, and porcelain tubs and showers with ceramic-tile surrounds.

Summerfield kitchens have oak cabinets, oak-trimmed luminous ceilings, and ceramic tile counter tops. Appliances include microwave and self-cleaning ovens, separate cooktops and 11-cycle dishwashers.

Outside, the homes have fenced rear yards and gas-barbecue outlets.

The sales office and new vignetted and landscaped Summerfield model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Information may be obtained by phoning 957-1282.

To reach the South Coast Plaza area site, take the San Diego Freeway to Fairview Street in Costa Mesa and drive north to Sunflower Avenue. Turn right on Sunflower, then right again on Smalley to Summerfield.

The Sunflower, one of three plans in Standard-Pacific's Summerfield community, aims for an elegant look.

Warmington Homes has introduced a new phase of 25 single family homes at Ridgefield in Laguna Hills.

"It's easy to see why this development has gained such popularity with south Orange County home-seekers," said Bob Mister, senior vice president of sales and marketing for Warmington. "Buyers appreciate the flexibility designed into each floor-plan, the carefully detailed exteriors and the other quality appointments that have been built into these new homes."

Ridgefield's selection of single-level and two-story floor plans range from 1,624 to 2,269 square feet. The three- and four-bedroom arrangements offer several design options, allowing families to adapt the space to suit individual lifestyle needs.

Two of the plans have a master bedroom retreat area that can be adapted for use as a nursery or additional bedroom.

Ridgefield prices range from $156,000 to $192,000, with several financing plans available.

The furnished models and sales office are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Ridgefield. To visit the community, take the Alicia Parkway, exit south from the Santa Ana Freeway to Aliso Hills Drive. Turn left and follow the signs to the site. For further information call 645-4542.

7.9 percent financing draws buyers to Lake Grove

First-year financing at 7.9 percent and a 5 percent down payment on homes that start at $77,400 has elicited a strong buyer response at Lake Grove, according to Chuck Henderson of Elite Development.

"The return to a single-digit interest rate has opened up the possibility of homeownership to first-time buyers who believed that they had been priced out of the new home market," said Henderson.

"Under the 7.9 percent rate, principle and interest payments during the first year start as low as $534 per month. While this low amount is comparable to renting for many individuals and couples, the tax benefits that accompany homeownership make the reduced mortgage payments even more attractive," said Henderson.

The 30-year, fixed-rate bond financing has 8½ percent the second year, 9 percent the third year and 10 percent interest for years four through 30.

Now available for immediate occupancy, the one- and two-story, one- and three-bedroom condominiums may also be purchased with individually tailored financing, FHA terms or VA loans with a $1 move-in cost.

The condominiums, situated amid a security-gated setting with lakes and streams, feature air conditioning, microwaves, mirrored bedroom wardrobe doors, enclosed laundry areas, private patios or balconies and kitchens equipped with storage pantries, luminous ceilings and dishwashers.

Amenities also include carpeting, separate dining areas or bay-windowed dining rooms, multi-paned windows, instantaneous circulating hot water and energy-efficient raydronic forced air heating. Select condominiums have fireplaces, cathedral ceilings and skylights.

Completing the Garden Grove community are a swimming pool, a private spa with a conversation area and restroom/shower facilities.

Model homes and the sales office are open from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily. Representatives from Rainier Mortgage are on-site each weekend to acquaint buyers with the variety of FHA and VA loans available. For more information, phone 636-9622.

A 7.9 percent interest rate and prices that start at $77,400 are eliciting a strong response at Elite Development's Lake Grove condominiums, available for immediate occupancy in Garden Grove. For information, call 636-9622.

Woodbridge Seasons models open for viewing in Irvine

Models for Woodbridge Seasons homes by Irvine Pacific in Irvine are now open, said Candy Shepard, Irvine Pacific director of sales and marketing. The four models are professionally decorated by Color Design Art of Pacific Palisades.

Woodbridge Seasons homes are designed to appeal to young marrieds and singles, Shepard said. The two- and three-bedroom single family homes start at less than $115,000 and feature two car attached garages and private yard areas.

"Woodbridge continues to be one of Southern California's most popular new communities with its recreation-oriented lifestyle," Shepard said, noting that its exteriors of wood siding and shingles match the overall contemporary Woodbridge theme.

The homes are offered in four floor plans of one and two stories.

Woodbridge Seasons homes include up to 1,458 square feet, ranging from two bedrooms and two baths to three bedrooms and 2½ baths plus family room.

Every Woodbridge Seasons

home features wall-to-wall carpeting, wood parquet or ceramic tile entry, attached two-car garage with garage door opener and two remote controls and preparation for air conditioning.

Kitchens offer continuous cleaning and space-saver microwave ovens, energy saver dishwasher, oak cabinets, ceramic tile counter tops and luminous ceilings.

Woodbridge Seasons homeowners automatically become members of the Woodbridge Village Association, which maintains the neighborhood's common areas. Each association is supported by monthly dues from all homeowners.

Woodbridge Seasons is located between the Santa Ana and San Diego freeways south of Culver Drive. From Culver, take the Main Street entrance to Woodbridge, turn right on West Yale Loop, right on Springbrook South to the model complex on the right at 6 Summerfield, Irvine.

Models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call the sales office at 552-1466.

Well frankly there couldn't be a better value anywhere, but you be the judge of that. Two-Bedrooms & Two-Bedrooms/Den beginning at $209,900. A very limited selection of penthouse homes from $259,900 to $399,900. For further information stop by our new Sales Office or call our Sales Representative at 714-645-6459.

EXPERT ADVICE

Shady tricks revealed in book

By SIMON SYKES

Some distressing examples of less-than-professional behavior by real estate licensees highlight a new handbook for buyers.

A Birmingham, Ala.-based attorney and real estate broker, Sloan Bashinsky, bases his book on the experiences of his years in practicing real estate law.

From its provocative title — "Home Buyers — Lambs to the Slaughter" — to its cheeky disrespect for the real estate hierarchy, Bashinsky's book offers buyers an object lesson in guarding against disaster.

He argues that while many good books have been written on the nuts-and-bolts of home buying, little or nothing has been offered to warn buyers of the sheep-shearing games played behind the scenes for the buyer's money.

The work offers a valuable checklist of steps a buyer should take to ensure a successful transaction.

A strong advocate of single agency — in which buyers and sellers each have exclusive brokers working for them — Bashinsky notes that his views clash with those of the National Association of Realtors (NAR).

NAR opposes single agency, says Bashinsky, because it would place home buying on an "at arm's length" basis.

"This would mean agents would no longer be able to serve two masters in an effort to control the deal and get themselves paid," he writes.

Dismissing so-called "cooperating agents" as of doubtful legality, Bashinsky notes that "both agents are the seller's agents by agreement, although the co-op agent usually misleadingly acts like he or she is representing just the buyer. When this occurs the co-op agent is an illegal double agent. The co-op agent is never your agent in your dealings with the seller..."

This book will undoubtedly earn the disapproval of those who want to preserve the status quo, but it is hard to oppose educating the public to avoid the pitfalls described.
