Offers Pour In For Coast Mom

Offers of help, free flights to Denver and some donations of funds have begun to arrive for Mrs. Linda Rea of Capistrano Beach as she continues to worry about the fate of her son who lies near death in a Colorado hospital.

Her 3-year-old son Jason, remains in extremely serious condition at the University of Colorado Medical Center where doctors have definitely ruled out for the present the possibility that the youngster could qualify as a transplant donor.

Jason who arrived at the center late last week unable to breathe on his own. He became progressively stronger and a day later, physicians took off the life-giving respirator and discovered the youngster — the victim of a tragic pool accident — could breathe unaided.

Since then, the comatose boy's condition has stabilized somewhat and today spokesmen for the center said the boy's blood pressure has been appearing steady and strong.

"He's being fed from a tube in his stomach which was put there before he was flown to Denver. The operation took all sorts of things out of him, the poor thing," said Mrs. Rea.

"So many people think I'm in Denver, and telegrams from old friends have been sent there and most of the offers of help have gone there, too," she added.

But the 29-year-old mother said that as of now, she is convinced that flying to Denver would serve little or nothing.

"It would just make me feel worse than I already feel," said Mrs. Rea.

Her agony — which began three weeks ago when her apparently dead child was pulled from a baby sitter's pool and revived 45 minutes later — has been compounded because of little or no information from the professionals caring for her only child.

"I had to call them collect Monday and all they told me was not to wait around for any news. But how can you not wait around for news of your only child?" she asked.

Middle-grade Cuts of Beef Still Around

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Middle-grade cuts of beef, in small amounts, can still be found in most Orange Coast markets, a Monday survey indicated, despite ominous warnings that meat counters are already bare.

But middle-quality meat is definitely in peril, and beef at either end of the line is already missing from many meat counters.

Filet, which would have been priced at more than $3 a pound had it been available, and the lowest grade of ground beef, previously selling for just under $1 a pound, were both nowhere to be seen in five of the six markets visited. Only Alpha Beta, which boasts its own packing plant in Pueblo, Colo., is still able to fill their customers' orders.

Some shoppers are weathering the shortage better than others. Those shopping in Richard's Lido Market in Newport Beach, one of the poshest markets around, were concerned over the high prices and low supply but exhibited more of a feeling of light-hearted camaraderie than of true anger.

"Oh, we'll all manage somehow," said one thirtyish woman wearing a chic pantsuit of bleached denim. Others around her, including the butcher, joked about the meat "crisis."

For others, however, not too far away, the shortage and high prices are devastating.

At Stater Brothers Market in Costa Mesa, on 19th Street across from Bethel Towers, a residence for the elderly, shoppers were visibly concerned.

"I'm just back from the hospital and this is the first time I've seen the (See BEEF, Page 2)

U.S. Bombers Strike Allies For 2nd Time

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island is six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

In Honolulu, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, which has responsibility for American air strikes in Indochina, said he could neither confirm nor deny that the second bombing mistake occurred. He said the command did not have enough information to formulate a statement.

There was no letup in the U.S. bombing. Heavy explosions could be heard from areas around Phnom Penh as U.S. fighter-bombers kept up support of government ground forces. There was no (See BOMBING, Page 2)

Sheriff Probers Sift Dump for Coast Woman

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The search for missing San Juan Capistrano housewife Rochelle White has led to the Forster Canyon dump where Orange County sheriff's investigators for the past three days have sifted through tons of rubbish with the help of heavy equipment.

Thus far, the crew of three investigators and several dump workers has found nothing relevant to the case in the gigantic mound of reeking trash and garbage.

Detectives seem convinced that the 22-year-old brunette who lived at 16702 Calle La Bomba met with foul play late last month when she vanished from the family townhouse.

The investigators at the scene early to day declined even to say they represented the Sheriff's Office but superiors admitted later that the unpleasant — and thus far futile — task had gone on since early in the weekend.

Spokesmen said that the area where the efforts are concentrated is the spot which was open for dumping during the period that Mrs. White was first reported missing by her husband, Roger White, 25, an electronics machinist.

Although official sources would not elaborate, one other source, a dump patron, said that over the weekend county employees told him the investigators were following up on a tip.

The county dump aide was quoted as saying a witness had told officers that he noticed someone dumping what could have been a body in the general area of today's digging.

To accomplish their task, county workers have dug a trench several hundred feet long and about 50 feet wide.

A bulldozer moves large quantities of the material and then a long shovel extension stirs the debris while investigators watch.

The three days of digging mark the latest in a series of quests for leads into the disappearance of the brunette who had been scheduled to appear at a divorce hearing two days after she (See DUMP, Page 2)

Retains Law Firm, Cites Innocence

From AP Dispatches

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

The Wall Street Journal said the allegations stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967-1968 and from federal contracts in Maryland let since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The federal contracts were let by the General Services Administration, the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun also reported that the investigation involved allegations of kickbacks from private contractors to Maryland and Baltimore County political (See AGNEW, Page 2)

False Attack Reports Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Air Force officer testified today he was secretly ordered to falsify reports of tactical air strikes by American fighter planes deep into Cambodia as late as April 1971.

The testimony by former Capt. George R. Moses significantly broadens allegations of false reports of the Cambodian bombing campaign ordered at the highest levels of the Nixon administration during 1969, 1970 and 1971.

Saying there was a dual reporting system for tactical strikes similar to that used for the B52 strikes, Moses testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "America does not need to be defended by lies and deception."

County Archeologic Find Told

DUMP...

By GEORGE LEIDAL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff
A paleontological find said to be outstripped in importance only by Rancho La Brea Tar Pits has been discovered in north Orange County. Paleontologists from the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History discovered the site. It includes a 10-million year visible "calendar" of stone and traces of exotic animals such as the slender limbed camel, otherwise found only in Florida. Officials of the State Department of Transportation announced the find. The site with fossils dating to 15,000 years ago is on excess lands owned by the state department. It was threatened by a county sanitary landfill operation, according to a spokesman for Archaeological Research Inc. of Costa Mesa. ARI maps land sites of interest because of buried archeological, paleontological or historic matter. ARI confirmed the importance of the new site. The state has offered "practical aid and cooperation" in assisting the scientists to excavate fossilized skeletal fragments of such creatures as the Columbian mammoth, the ground sloth, the Florida camel and approximately 34 other species.

The skeletal records in stone were first unearthed by Paul Langenwaller and Chris Callendo of the LA museum's vertebrate paleontology section. The remains were in danger from vandals as well as natural forces, a state spokesman said. W. J. Kenney, chief of the office of rights-of-way for the transportation district including Orange County, said the state furnished a backhoe tractor and operator to help unearth the specimens. The undisclosed site also was fenced by the state to discourage vandals. Langenwaller said the fossils date from 10,000 to 15,000 years ago, when a saltwater marsh with an adjacent brackish water pond opening into it existed on the site. It was a mecca for many varieties of animals — some exotic, like the Florida slender limbed camel. Others were mundane — many kinds of mammals and birds, a few reptiles, some fish, and one amphibian — a frog. "The vegetation of the area where antelope, elephants, and many other creatures met, consisted of reeds and cattails, wooded hillsides and verdant grassy flatlands. Man, though he was known to exist in this general region at that period, left no traces at this site," Langenwaller said. In addition to its paleontological worth, the area is notable for its geological features, which, according to Langenwaller, show a Pliocene-to-present geological record "sticking out" — a sort of 10-million year compilation of history in stone. If present plans go forward, eventually the area will be developed for public use, to advance educational and recreational interest in a long-vanished epoch in time, the state spokesman said.

vanished. Her car was found abandoned in Carlsbad, a coastal community immediately downcoast from Oceanside, but investigators said no evidence of foul play was noted in or around the vehicle. The missing woman's husband has been interviewed several times. Investigators said late last week, but has not been able to shed light on the disappearance. The White couple faced a divorce hearing which was rescheduled to next Monday because of the woman's disappearance. In that action, Mrs. White had alleged that she was subjected to physical abuse at the hands of her spouse during their four years of marriage. Also allied with the action is a court order forbidding her husband to harass, threaten or molest his estranged wife.

Tapes Subpoena Delayed

Nixon Lawyers Claim Courts Lack Jurisdiction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon told a federal judge today that the court lacks jurisdiction to enforce the subpoena served on the President by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

They said, "would be an unwarranted and unsupported violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers." J. Fred Buzhardt, special White House counsel, in a court appearance lasting less than two minutes, filed a lengthy legal brief supporting the President's refusal to turn over White House tapes subpoenaed by Cox. The action came shortly after the Senate Watergate committee decided to postpone any legal action of its own to obtain tapes and related documents pending disclosure of Nixon's reply to the Cox subpoena.

Hearing Ruckus

Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons alternately read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room. The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately. The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement." It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room. Police pushed their way to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration. By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refuse to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction. "The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," the Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday. Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be. After Nixon's lawyers filed their opinion, U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica gave Cox until Monday to respond. Buzhardt asked for and was granted until Aug. 17 for any additional written reply. Sirica scheduled oral argument for 7 a.m. PDT Aug. 22.

The artist confided that he felt the need of a "stopper" to draw attention to his exhibit and he figured that "after all those years of smiling, she would enjoy a yawn."

Kleindienst 'Wept' Upon Learning of Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the predawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its cover-up. In a three-hour session before the Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it. "You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails." The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew. Kleindienst also expressed outrage when he learned that John D. Ehrlichman tried to interfere with the grand jury investigation and taped his conversations with Kleindienst. Kleindienst testified as the next to last witness before the committee recesses until after Labor Day. Kleindienst said he learned the full Watergate story for the first time in the early morning of April 15, after John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury. Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

The White House brief repeated Cox's argument that the President had waived any claim of executive privilege when he permitted aides to testify before the Watergate committee about the conversations. The White House contended that the President's letter to Sirica July 25 notifying the judge that he would not comply with Cox's subpoena "constitutes a valid and formal claim of executive privilege by Richard M. Nixon in his official capacity as President of the United States to withhold information the disclosure of which he has determined would be contrary to the public interest." Cox's subpoenas for the presidential recordings originally included other demands.

figures. The Journal said the vice president sought a White House audience after learning of the investigation, presumably to inform President Nixon. A Nixon spokesman declined comment Monday night but said the White House was aware of Agnew's statement before it was released. The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore. If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said. There have been no indictments in the case against any prominent political figures, but one "information" equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Fornoff. Fornoff was a key county official who served briefly under Agnew when the latter was county executive and for a longer period under Agnew's Democratic successor, incumbent Dale Anderson. Anderson, who denies any illegal acts, is also a target of the investigation, the Journal said. The Baltimore Sun reported that others under investigation include Lester Matz of Matz, Childs & Associates and a frequent contributor to Agnew campaigns; Jerome B. Wolff, president of J. E. Greiner Environmental Systems, Inc., and a political associate of Agnew; J. Walter Jones, a county developer and close friend of the vice president; and I. H. Hammerman, head of a mortgage banking and real estate firm. Hammerman represents President Nixon as director of the National Corporation for Housing Partnerships and is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta.

son as a transplant donor was the right one. "We (her former husband, Jason's father) had to make the decision right away when the doctors told us Jason had gotten much worse." Last Friday, the day that Jason was flown to Denver on a private jet, the plans were grim and simple. Because of the youngster's moribund condition at that time funeral arrangements had been made and doctors in Denver seemed certain that death would occur over the weekend. "The change in his condition is certainly wonderful. For sure, I praise the Lord that Jason is breathing again," said Mrs. Rea. "But even though he is, my poor baby is hardly even there on that bed," she added.

Five Prisoners Escape in Riot

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — authorities are looking for five inmates of the McAlester prison who escaped during the confusion following an eight-day convict insurrection. Only one of the escapees was from the fire-gutted maximum security prison itself. The governor's office said Rex Brinlee Jr. apparently hid in a hole dug in the prison yard until an opportune moment to get to the fence enclosing the industrial compound and cut a hole to freedom. Brinlee was described by Gov. David Hall as a "brutal, dispassionate killer... who cannot be allowed freedom in Oklahoma or anyplace else."

Ventura Tough On Gambling

VENTURA (AP) — Police Chief Richard O. Baugh has warned local residents that the cards are stacked against them if they continue their friendly sessions of bridge and poker for money. Announcing a crackdown Monday against illegal games of chance, Baugh said his department received complaints from four of this city's 60,000 residents. "Based on a three-month investigation, we've found that trailer parks, churches, social clubs and other groups are getting together, playing a little bingo, having little lotteries and things of this nature, and these are all misdemeanors," the chief said.

prices," lamented Kathleen Mozingo, who lives at the Towers. "I have to eat a little meat but it's so expensive and they don't have the kind I need." Another elderly woman looked at the $1.39 a pound ground beef and asked the butcher, "Don't you have my kind of ground meat?" The butcher, Peter Robles, answered, "There's none of the cheaper beef left. They're not making it anymore because they can't afford to." Butchers, who are as unhappy as the customers, are telling hoarding tales — of customers who have come in with mammoth orders. Robles told the man who bought $196 worth of meat. "He just ordered meat by the row, not by the piece," Robles said. One woman in the Newport Beach Mayfair Market admitted she "stocked up a little," buying several steaks and two turkeys, "just in case for Thanksgiving." In some markets, beef was available in the rear of the butcher section, but was left uncut and unsold. The crush of meat-hungry customers has overwhelmed several meat departments. Robles, looking over his devastated counters, said, "We have all kinds of meat in the back but not the real cheap or real expensive cuts. And we have no one to cut it." Robles' superiors did not expect their meat order to arrive so they laid off two meat cutters. Instead, a half-load arrived, leaving Robles unprepared. Alpha Beta was the only market that appeared at all normal. Ground meat of all kinds was stocked, as were the higher-grade cuts of beef. Only rump roast was missing from the counters as their packing plant provides them a steady supply of beef. Jim O'Connell, meat cutter at the Food King in Costa Mesa, said he could get almost any kind of meat but only in small amounts. O'Connell predicts, "They ain't seen nothing yet. If LA packers all close, we're in for a lot of trouble." In these days of dwindling supply, some shoppers have learned to time their shopping with the arrival of meat. Some butchers are telling customers when orders are expected so they will have first chance at the meat. But other butchers claim that orders often don't arrive and when they do, they aren't on time.

The casualty toll at Neak Luong rose today as U.S. Embassy officials said the count now was 137 killed and 268 injured. Cambodian military officers at Neak Luong issued higher casualty figures, saying 189 persons were killed, including 96 soldiers and marines. Doergel said the embassy's casualty count came from initial Cambodian army reports.

Nixon Costs Itemized

$89 Listed For Pillows In Clemente

From Wire Services

A 70-page breakdown of the $10 million spent by the government on security and other work on President Nixon's homes included $89 for "four decorative pillows" in his San Clemente den.

The pillows, along with $475 for swimming pool cleaner at Key Biscayne, Florida, and $6.83 for "picture frame supplies," are among the apparently non-security related items included in the General Services Administration (GSA) report.

Acting on the President's instructions, officials at GSA, the White House and the Secret Service disclosed Monday that about $10 million had been spent in four years on the home-and-offices compounds in California and Florida.

GSA Administrator Arthur Sampson said the pillows, picture frames and other such items will be reclaimed by the government when Nixon leaves office and no longer needs them.

Presidential spokesman Gerald Warren said the same is true of more than $600,000 of the nearly $6 million in communications installations and other work financed by the military at Key Biscayne and the Western White House in south Orange County.

Money spent at San Clemente, according to White House spokesmen, included $39,500 for a new heating system, a bulletproof screen around the swimming pool and a fence between the property and the beach.

Another $100,000 was spent by the Secret Service in San Clemente for three gazebos, a gatehouse and another wall. Later projects — including $175,000 for electrical work and $76,000 for landscaping — were also approved at the First Family's California home.

GSA and White House officials said all measures were needed for security. The detailed costs had been secret.

According to government sources, a total of more than $9.9 million was spent at San Clemente, Key Biscayne, on Grand Cay Island in the Bahamas, owned by Nixon friend Robert Abplanalp and often used by the President, and at five residences used by Nixon's two daughters.

Less than 10 percent of the total was used on property owned by Nixon, the government claimed. Almost 60 percent went for operation of the Western White House and for communications facilities established at a Coast Guard base adjacent to the San Clemente estate.

The White House has been barraged with questions about the homes since May, when it disclosed that Nixon had borrowed $625,000 from industrialist Abplanalp to purchase the San Clemente site. The loan was supposedly canceled in a complex transaction 18 months later when Nixon sold to Abplanalp 23 of the 29 oceanside acres.

Baby Sitter Held In Tot's Death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A baby sitter told police Monday night he couldn't get an 18-month-old boy to stop crying so he taped the mouth of the child, stuffed him between the mattresses of a bed and sat on him until he died.

Ellis Francis Cook Jr., 24, who told police he was a former mental patient, was being held for investigation of homicide.

Police said Cook was taken into custody about 30 minutes after the body of William Day Foster was found by two children.

The California school turns out merchant marine officers.

Accepted as candidates for deck officers were Lynn D. Fivay, 20; Suzanne Shelli Foster, 18; Cinda Rae Boone, 17; and Susan Ann Buller, 21. The fifth woman, Jean Thatcher Arnold, 17, chose to enter the school as a candidate for third assistant engineer.

The women will move onto the academy's ship the Golden Bear, with 125 male classmates Aug. 14.

Prison Guard Held

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (UPI) — A grand jury Monday indicted a prison guard on charges he provided an inmate with the gun used for an escape attempt in which two guards were killed. However, Scioto County Prosecutor Everett Burton refused to give further details of the alleged plan by guard Ronald Pratt to aid the escape of Wayne L. Raney, a convicted killer.

WILLIAM AND THOMAS FARRELL OF THE MARINE CORPS In Orange County, Like Father, Like Son

Countian Follows Famed Father's Flying Career

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Thomas Farrell of Tustin was born on the U.S.S. Repose in the harbor of Tsing-Tao, China, 25 years ago this week.

His father, Marine Col. William Farrell, was a fighter pilot in the first of three wars in which he has served.

The U.S.S. Repose is now in Long Beach Harbor. Col. Farrell, one of five Marine Corps World War II flying aces still on duty, is Assistant Chief of Staff for the Human Affairs Office at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

And Tom, a salesman and father of a 3-year-old son, has decided to continue the family tradition by joining the Marines.

He will enter Officer Candidate School (OCS) this fall at Quantico, Va. and eventually will earn his aviator wings at Pensacola, Fla.

The younger Farrell admits that his decision to follow in his father's footsteps is "rare these days."

"I've always been impressed with the patriotism of the Marines," he said.

"My father never suggested that I should go into the Marines, but the common denominator of devotion to duty among these men has always struck me.

"On the whole, they are an honorable group of men, concerned with taking care of other people," he said.

Col. Farrell, who plans to retire within the next year or two, has seen many changes since his World War II days.

"The biggest difference is the type of airplanes," he said. "We graduated from the prop fighters of World War II and ended in Vietnam using the most advanced attack bomber jets."

Col. Farrell still puts in the required 100 hours a year of flight time to keep his wings.

In Korea, he flew 98 missions and in Vietnam flew 182 combat missions while he was the commanding officer of the The elder Farrell's present job is a switch from wartime aviation. He

Chu Lai Air Base.

"World War II was a lot like World War I in the air," Col. Farrell recalls. "There were a lot of dogfights and air-to-air combat activities."

"But Korea and Vietnam were mainly close air support for the ground troops."

As for the Marines over the years, Col. Farrell feels they have "the same gung-ho spirit as ever."

If there's any change, it's in technical demands.

"They have to be more intelligent to handle more technic aircraft," he added.

The father and son have always done many things together. Most recently, they attended night school at the base together — Col. Farrell to begin a master's degree in social psychology, and his son to finish a political science degree on a four-night per week schedule.

Col. Farrell said he told few war stories to his two sons. "Usually the people involved in the makings of war stories are the ones least anxious to talk about them," he said.

The elder Farrell's present job is a switch from wartime aviation. He coordinates a new department on the base which specializes in drug and alcohol rehabilitation, leadership training, racial harmony, and career planning.

"This is a sign of new direction in the Marines," Farrell said. "After only a year and a half, it's the biggest department out here."

"Regardless of what people say about today's kids, in Vietnam modern youth out-performed themselves. They worked 18 to 20 hours a day, never grumbling, and offered no discipline problems. It was really outstanding," Col. Farrell said.

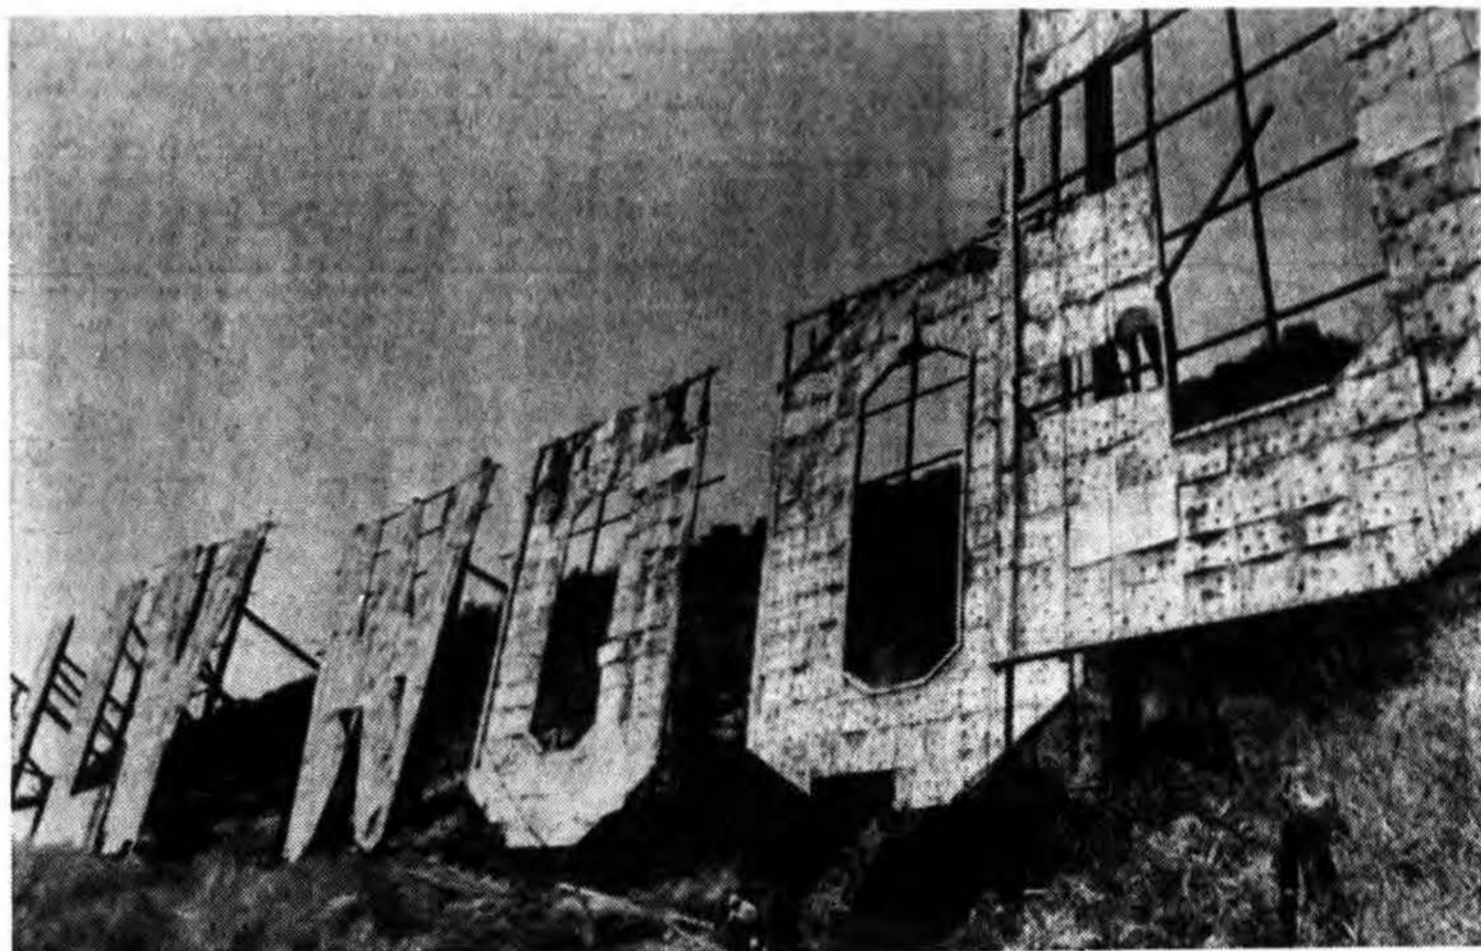

Tom Farrell said he hasn't decided whether to make the Marines his career or whether he will suggest that career to his own son, Joseph.

"It's up to him," Tom said.

Man Shot Dead After Car Crash

LONG BEACH (AP) — A Long Beach man who protested after his car was rammed was shot to death Monday, police reported.

Police said Douglas A. Gardner, 30, was in his parked auto when four men rammed the car while trying to park. Gardner objected, police said, and the men opened fire with pistols.

Gardner escaped through the passenger door and ran about 30 feet before he was hit in the back with a single bullet, police said.

Batista Rites Today

MADRID (UPI) — A funeral mass for Fulgencio Batista, the former Cuban dictator overthrown by Fidel Castro, was sung in a small chapel today, attended by more than 100 Cuban exiles and family members. Batista, 72, died Monday of "acute circulatory collapse" — heart failure — his physician said.

Medical Center System Slows Cash Collections

Accounting procedures and internal controls at the Orange County Medical Center are not functioning in a manner which assures that the medical center will collect all money due it, the Orange County Grand Jury auditor reported Monday.

If more patients were properly screened at time of entry, an increase in cash collections of $30,000 annually would result, the report said.

The auditor, Arthur Young and Company, said that combining the responsibilities of the center's financial evaluators and the welfare department Medi-Cal eligibility workers would result in better screening and reduced writeoffs caused by insufficient billing information.

"Emergency room financial evaluators work in one small room. This affords little privacy and causes embarrassment to the patient being interviewed," the auditor said. "We recommend that the evaluators be given more office space in an area that would not cause congestion but would still be near the emergency room entrance."

The report said that entry forms must be properly completed. "We tested a sample of 40 large, old accounts receivable; 40 percent either had no evaluation form on file or the form contained only a name and address and 30 percent were marked 'evaluated but not determined' or 'not evaluated'."

The auditor concluded that 70 percent of the sample had insufficient source of payment information to allow proper collection procedures.

The auditor said that during 1972-73 when one collection officer was added collections increased by about $100,000.

Keystone changes some old ways of doing things.

Easy come. Easy go.

At Keystone you can make money—and take money—without ever walking through the door.

It's as simple as the U. S. Mail for deposits and our Money Machine for instant cash.

They Can't Give It Back

RICKY TICKY POLITIX: Remember that extra penny sales tax that you've been paying since the first of last month? The one nobody wants or needs?

Well, our good California Legislature convened again just yesterday to do something about this extra one cent that is adding to a state treasury surplus already overloaded with some $826 million.

You remember how we got the extra penny tax. Before, you were paying five cents sales tax on each dollar in goods purchased. Then came a measure to boost that a penny. Abruptly, somebody noticed that state government already had more money than it could spend.

This, in itself, must have been some kind of shock. So the lawmakers set about to repeal the extra penny.

MEANWHILE, GOV. Reagan and the Democrats were arguing over how the state should give you folks back another $320 million in income taxes you also paid that they don't need up there in Sacramento.

Gov. Reagan, on the one hand, wanted to give it back to people in the same proportions as they had paid in. The Demos, on the other hand, wanted to spread the money around in equal batches among the rich, medium and poor.

SO IT DEVELOPED that when the penny sales tax repeal came up, those canny Democrats also tacked their version of the income tax rebate onto the tail end of the sales tax repeal.

Chuckling, they figured they had forced ol' Gov. Reagan's hand. If he wanted to get rid of the extra sales tax money, he'd have to get rid of the income taxes at the same time — and do it the Democrats' way.

Trouble was, the devious Demos got fooled. Gov. Reagan vetoed the bill, thus not giving you back any money yet, neither extra sales taxes nor extra income taxes. State government continues in the terrible situation of wallowing around in surplus cash.

Thus yesterday the Legislature met to override Gov. Reagan's veto and restore us to paying only a five-cent sales tax. And you have to admit, in this day and age, every penny counts. Particularly if it is yours.

REPORTS OUT OF Sacramento indicate there was much betting going on among the legislators. Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, the Democrat from Van Nuys, was confidently predicting his house would override the veto if the Senate acted likewise earlier.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco was waging that Moretti's Assembly fellows would "fall on their faces" and fail to follow any senate veto override.

Moscone never got a chance to find out. The Senate failed to pass the override by six votes.

Senator John L. Harmer, the Republican from Glendale, explained it all for the victors.

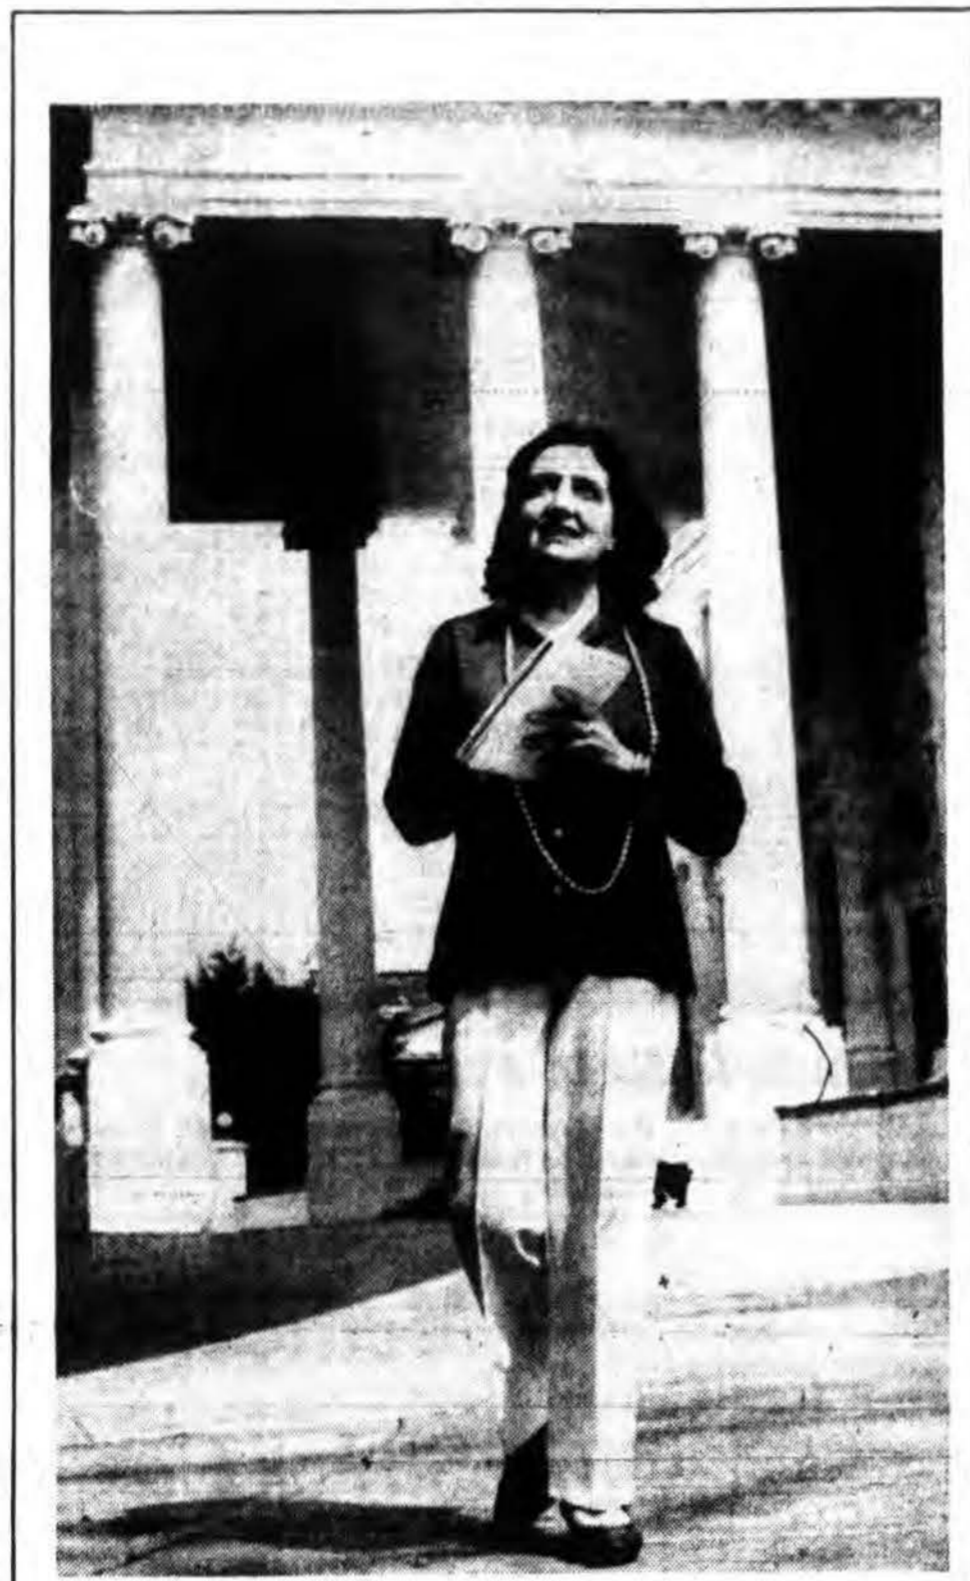

He said to turn off the extra penny tax so suddenly would create "a hardship" on merchants who have to collect the taxes and also those poor overworked state taxing agents.

FUNNY, BUT IT didn't seem to create all those hardships when the state turned on the extra penny levy.

All of this likely proves an old adage in government. It's real easy to pass higher taxes. It's another thing to get rid of them.

Top Level Tease

President Nixon teased UPI's Helen Thomas about wearing slacks in White House and made it perfectly clear that he prefers dresses. Miss Thomas is shown outside North Portico of White House.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts today switched on their sun-watching telescopes, signalling their return to orbital research after a record 6½ hour odd job spacewalk.

Ground engineers, encouraged by tests and the spacemen's outside inspection, were more confident in the future of the giant orbiting lab and officials were optimistic the Skylab 2 pilots could return safely in their mechanically troubled Apollo ferry ship, rather than be rescued.

Civilian scientist-astronaut Owen K. Garriott powered up the solar observatory and beamed back television pictures of the sun seen through the battery of telescopes which give scientists the best views ever of earth's nearest star.

GARRIOTT, JACK R. Lousma and Alan L. Bean were already up and working on a radio teleprinter when mission control gave the astronauts a wakeup call at 5:06 a.m. PDT, an hour later than normal.

The daily flight plans, changes in procedures and all lengthy messages are sent to Skylab on the teleprinter but the pilots informed mission control that nothing had printed overnight.

"Okay, we fixed the teleprinter," Lousma reported after making a small adjustment in a rubber ring on the printer. "You can send the messages. It looks like it's going to work all right."

The silver and white awning Garriott and Lousma hoisted over the space station, like sailors raising a sail, has already started dropping interior temperatures, solving an overheating problem.

LOUSMA AND mission commander Bean concentrated on medical experiments, and all three pilots hoped to get some rest from Monday's fatiguing spacewalk that kept them up past scheduled bedtime. It was by far the longest men had spent outside an orbiting spaceship and doubled the mark set by the Skylab 1 astronauts in June.

Before going to bed early today, Lousma told mission control the 17,000 mile an hour spacewalk "was like riding a white horse on top of the world, kind of like Peter Pan."

Ground controllers, meanwhile, breathed easier after a thorough check of engineering data radioed back from Skylab showed that its cooling system was in better shape than originally believed. It was first reported Sunday night that both cooling systems were leaking and flight directors said they would last only 60 days.

Vesco Yacht Seized

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Herald says U.S. Customs agents have seized a yacht that apparently belongs to financier Robert L. Vesco, who is under indictment with two former Nixon Cabinet officers on charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

The Herald said the $1.4 million, 121-foot yacht Patricia III was seized last week when it berthed for repairs at a shipyard on the Miami River. A federal judge later ordered the vessel not to sail outside U.S. Waters, the paper said.

Highway Cut

Phnom Penh Pounded 153rd Straight Day

From Wire Services

PHNOM PENH — U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around this city today, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began.

Field reports said the raids hit south and northwest of the capital and the concussions of explosives rumbled through the city through the night.

South of Phnom Penh, rebels cut Highway 30 about a mile from the suburb of Takhmau. Insurgents slipped onto the road during the night, set up roadblocks made of tree trunks and furniture and then mined the roadblocks.

Government troops began clearing operations early today, field reports said, and fighting was reported raging in the area.

IN THE HIGHWAY 1 area, the scene of heavy fighting last weekend, field reports said the situation was calm.

Government military sources said the town of Tang Kouk, 72 miles north of the capital, was evacuated and government soldiers defending the town were trying to battle their way through rebel lines to the city of Skoun, 12 miles south.

Radio contact with the defenders at Tang Kouk were lost, the sources said, and Skoun itself was reported under guerrilla attack.

U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around Phnom Penh, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began.

Meanwhile, it was announced that military activity in South Vietnam jumped to its highest level in seven weeks but a South Vietnamese command spokesman said the incidents were mostly insignificant clashes.

THE HEAVIEST fighting was in the Central Highlands provinces of Kontum and Pleiku where 28 Communists and two government troops were killed in a series of skirmishes Monday. It was the second day of intense fighting in the area.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Tien reported 127 Communist cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. It was the highest total since the 129 of June 16, the day after the second Vietnam truce took effect.

There were 120 Communist truce infractions reported in the 24-hour period ending at noon today.

"The intensity of most of the action was not significant," Hien said.

Fighting was also reported in an arc between Kontum and the Laos border where clashes have been fought sporadically for the last two months.

Wheat Future Prices Break Record at $4

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices have hit a historic high of $4 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade in what one commodity authority termed "possible hysterical buying."

The September contract closed at $4.04 as prices advanced the 10-cent daily limit

"substantial foreign buying."

PRIOR TO LAST week's high of $3.50 the record of $3.25 had stood since May 1971.

The higher prices were attributed by one source to growing foreign demand for United States wheat, dwindling existing stocks and a less-than-expected 1973 harvest.

Prices have almost tripled since the government announced the wheat sales to Russia last year. Since Phase 4 was initiated July 18, prices have gone up 40 percent.

RICHARD BELL, Department of Agriculture deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said large amounts of this year's crop already have been sold to Russia and China. Japan has made a major purchase.

Other commodity futures posted limited gains, including corn at 10 cents a bushel, oats at 6 cents and soybeans at 40 cents. Soybean oil climbed the limit of $1 a hundred pounds.

In future trading, a seller contracts to deliver a specified amount of a commodity by a specific future date, often at a price substantially higher than current cash market prices. At Monday's close, however, the September wheat contract was 18 cents below the cash market price.

California
A weather pattern of early morning low clouds and fog drifting away by afternoon is expected to persist in Southern California through the week. The National Weather Service said the high in downtown Los Angeles would peak between 80 and 84 Wednesday.

U.S. Summary
Heavy thunderstorms erupted widely scattered locations across the continent today after causing crop damage and flooding late Monday.

Generally pleasant weather was the rule outside the storm areas. Thunderstorms rained the northern Plains and northern Mississippi Valley. A few storms damped the central and southern Plains, the Gulf and South Atlantic Coast states and areas in northern New England.

Heavy thunderstorms flooded at least one highway near Boone, N.C., with three to four feet of water as northwestern North Carolina was hit by downpours. Burlington, Vt., was soaked by almost an inch of rain.

The Yadkin River at Patterson, N.C., rose 10.7 feet in two hours today and swept house-trailers into the river. No one was killed. Highways in the area were closed by washouts and high water; trees were toppled and power lines knocked down.

Some families in the area were evacuated and others were warned of other possible flash flooding in the northwestern North Carolina area.

Coastal Weather
Partly sunny today. Light variable winds night and morning hours becoming westerly 10 to 18 knots in afternoon today and Wednesday. High today 72. Coastal temperatures range from 65 to 71. Inland temperatures range from 64 to 79. Water temperature 65.

Captor Cleared In Church Sect Deprogramming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ted Patrick, hired by the father of a young man to abduct and talk the son into quitting a fundamentalist religious sect, has been found innocent of unlawful imprisonment.

Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Bruce McManis told the six jurors Monday that if they believed Patrick's abduction of Daniel Voll, 20, of Farmington, Conn., was justified, they should find him innocent.

Voll, 21, had left home to join the New Testament Missionary Fellowship of New York, and his father hired Patrick, a former aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, to capture the youth and get him to leave the sect through several talk sessions.

PATRICK HAD successfully "deprogrammed" other youths at their parents' requests to counter what he called "brainwashing" on the part of the sects.

But assistant district attorney Juan Ortiz said this constituted illegal imprisonment, a misdemeanor. He said there would be "chaos if we are going to allow parents who disagree over the religious doctrine of their children to kidnap them."

Army Shot Down

Ehrlichman's Adviser Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House military aide has been ordered promoted over the objections of the Army, the Pentagon has confirmed.

The order to promote Lt. Col. Dann G. Mead came from President Nixon, according to a spokesman.

Mead's name was not included in a list of newly named colonels handed down last September by a promotion board. The Pentagon spokesman said the promotion board was reversed, stating "the directions came from the Commander in Chief and we were acting on them."

Mead is a 10-year Army veteran who has worked in the White House for the past three years.

The Washington Post said that former Army Secretary Robert Froehle carried out the promotion order only after former Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson put it in writing.

Mead, 35, is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., and holds a doctoral degree in political science.

For much of his tenure in the White House he worked on domestic matters under former chief domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30. Recently Mead has been White House coordinator for District of Columbia affairs.

BRIEFS

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rep. Jerome Waldie (D-Calif.), stepped off from the Mexican-California border Monday on the first day of a 240-mile hike he hopes will help get him the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Waldie is regarded as the weakest of the serious contenders for the nomination, and has adopted the walking technique that worked so well recently for aspiring politicians in Illinois and Florida. About 100 supporters showed up to see him off, along with about a dozen pickets from the Right to Life Political Action Council, protesting Waldie's support of the Supreme Court's liberalized abortion rules.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit system is back in business, and so are the familiar bugs that have plagued the $1.6 billion mass transit system for the past 11 months.

Resuming operations following a 35-day strike, a BART official said Monday "was full of steady, minor, annoying delays, but in general things are going beautifully."

Quarantine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials have removed a 75-square-mile area in Riverside County from a quarantine of Newcastle disease, an exotic malady fatal to poultry but harmless to humans, a spokesman said.

With Monday's quarantine lifting, only 155-square-miles, all of it in San Bernardino County, remains under restriction. During a March 1972 epidemic of the disease, a 45,000-square mile area of Southern California was under quarantine.

Solon Hits 'Pushing' Of Pickets

DELANO (AP) — A congressman from Los Angeles charges that Tulare County sheriff's deputies used an "over-demonstration of power" in making United Farm Workers Union pickets clear a ranch entrance.

A TULARE County official denied the charge.

Rep. Ed Roybal (D-Calif.), joined UFW members on picket lines Monday and criticized deputies for the way they made pickets move so two trucks loaded with grapes could leave the ranch.

"It was an over-demonstration of power," Roybal said. "They're using power not for the purpose of keeping the peace. It was obvious to me they were there to push people around."

TULARE UNDERSHERIFF Max Foster replied, "I don't feel we overreacted to anything down there. We just moved them back so equipment could go onto the public street. We'll continue doing our job, protecting property and protecting people."

Quake Jars California

OXNARD (AP) — Little if any serious damage was reported today from a moderate earthquake which jolted a wide area of Southern California.

The quake was centered on Anacapa Island, 14 miles off the coast of Oxnard. A spokesman for Channel Islands National Monument, which administers Anacapa, said the quake caused minor slides on the small desolate island.

The tremor registered 4.75 on the Richter scale — about 16 times less than the major quake which hit the Los Angeles area in February, 1971.

Mullin Insane—Psychiatrist

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — A psychiatrist has completed two days of testimony that Herbert W. Mullin "did not understand that his acts were wrong" when he killed 10 persons during a three-week period.

DR. DONALD Lunde, a Stanford University psychiatrist, told the Santa Cruz County Superior Court trial Monday that Mullin, 26, was a "paranoid, schizophrenic type," who could not be held responsible for his actions.

Defense counsel James Jackson said he would call Mullin's sister, Patricia, to the stand today to tell how she first had him committed to a state mental institution.

Jackson said in his opening remarks last week that Mullin committed the slayings he is charged with and three additional ones. But he said he would prove his client was legally insane at the time.

DURING CROSS-examination, Asst. Dist. Atty. Chris Cottle attempted to draw a parallel between Lunde's diagnosis of Mullin and his analysis of John Linley Frazier, the man convicted in the Victor Ohta killings.

"He said Frazier was insane after only a two-hour talk with him."

Lunde said he had interviewed Mullin eight times in his cell, and Judge Charles Franich ruled Cottle's line of questioning improper.

State Sales Tax Cuts on Agenda

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's sales tax kept rolling in today at six cents on the dollar and Gov. Ronald Reagan faced a new round of talks with Democrats on how to cut it back to five.

Democrats, while they control the legislature, failed Monday to undo the unwanted sales tax increase by overriding a Reagan veto.

NOW THEY ARE forced into another round of negotiations with the Republican governor on rolling back the tax to five percent.

On June 30, Reagan vetoed a bill to postpone the sales tax hike for six months and to grant $315 million in state income tax rebates next year. The sales tax went up the next day.

The tax increase was approved last December. But it turned out to be unneeded so far because the state developed an unexpected $26 million surplus in the treasury.

The bill at issue Monday was the legislature's last effort to halt the sales tax increase before going on a five-week summer recess June 29. It passed the Senate 33-4 and the Assembly 65-8.

MONDAY, THE holiday was over and lawmakers resumed the 1973 session. While both Republicans and Democrats consider the tax a major political liability, only three GOP senators would vote against the governor's veto. The override effort failed 21-17. Republicans against the override included Sens. Dennis Carpenter, Newport Beach and James Whetmore, Garden Grove.

It takes a two-thirds vote in each house, 27 in the 40-member Senate, to override the governor.

Reagan is prepared to meet with legislative leaders later this week to negotiate the tax issue, said Senate Republican floor leader Fred Marler (R-Redding).

Reagan has endorsed a year's cut of the tax by half a cent, to 5½ cents in all of the state except the three Bay Area Rapid Transit District Counties where it is half a cent higher.

Oil Firm Criticized For Pro-Arab Letter

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Activists angered because Standard Oil of California called for improving relations with the Arabs have splashed red paint on the firm's headquarters, ordered a boycott against the firm and started a campaign to make a bonfire out of discarded Standard Oil credit cards.

THOSE EXPRESSING anger at Standard's statement were mainly Jewish groups — but included California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. and both the state's U.S. senators, John Tunney and Alan Cranston.

Eight plastic bags of red paint splattered the Standard headquarters here Monday, four bags burst against the grey stone facade of the Standard building in San Francisco, and a Star of David was painted with a spray paint can on the Los Angeles building. A Jewish group set up collection points where credit cards were taken up, cut in two and dropped into a garbage bag to be used later in a bonfire.

THE PROTEST grew out of a letter which Otto N. Miller, chairman of the board of Standard Oil of California, sent July 26 to 300,000 shareholders and employees. A Standard spokesman said the letter had to be read in full context and added there was nothing anti-Israel about its contents.

The letter discussed the current energy crisis, particularly the oil shortage, and traced Standard Oil's relationships with the Arab people going back 40 years. It said there was a growing feeling that the United States "has turned its back" on the Arabs.

Psst... Orange County. Peel $7.20 off your round-trip fare by flying PSA from Long Beach.

Long Beach-San Francisco, $18.37 including tax.
 Direct service to Sacramento, $21.37 including tax.

Heading north? Then head for PSA and Long Beach Airport. It's not all that far. It's easy to get into and out of. Plenty of parking. And the crowds haven't found it yet. Your travel agent knows the way.

Other airlines give you a squeeze. PSA gives you a lift.

It's Hard to Believe

For years cities along the Orange Coast have labored to ease their traffic circulation problems by providing more and more off-street parking. Developers usually are required to meet stringent off-street parking requirements and the cities themselves have invested monumental sums in establishing municipal parking areas to get the cars off the streets.

So now the Federal Environmental Protection Agency comes up with a really great plan: all cities and counties owning or operating off-street parking facilities would be required to reduce the number of parking spaces therein by five percent by Jan. 31, 1974. They would have to continue cutting down until they achieve the "goal" of a 20 percent reduction in parking spaces by Oct. 30, 1975. No new parking facilities could be constructed.

Yes, you read it right. They've figured out that reducing the number of available parking spaces will somehow reduce the number of automobiles in use and thus contribute to cleaner air.

While no one argues with the cleaner air goal, it must be said that among all the woolly ideas the EPA has come up with lately, this one is a real prize.

It's at least as good as the one that will have California motorists shelling out their hard-earned money to test smog control devices of very dubious value one while year before they're imposed on the rest of the country (if they work in California, of course).

Along with the great parking plan, which will be presented Thursday in public hearings in Los Angeles, is a proposal that all cities and counties reserve special traffic lanes for the exclusive use of buses and car pool vehicles on all their wider streets.

What this would do, for example, to something like Huntington Beach's Beach Boulevard approach on a summer weekend presumably cannot be imagined by the EPA theorists.

The parking proposal alone would cost that city an estimated $321,000 a year in beach parking revenue. Not to mention blocking completely something like Laguna Beach's long-awaited Gleneyre Street parking facility.

Among other things, the latest EPA brainstorm is in direct conflict with the efforts of the California Coastal Commission. (Perhaps someone should introduce them.) And they also might get together with the Orange County Transit District on the bus lane proposal. We suspect the OCTD is a long way from having enough rolling stock to justify blocking off lanes in every major street in the county.

The coastal cities will be represented at the Los Angeles hearing. It would be nice if someone would listen to the people who would have to live with this great scheme.

Clean Up Politics

They say that all's fair in love, war and politics, but California Sen. John V. Tunney, along with a lot of other Americans, feels it's time to draw a few lines in the political campaign arena.

He's offering two amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act, aimed directly at "political outlaws, acting on behalf of a candidate, who commit damaging acts of smear and sabotage."

The senator cites blatant examples in last year's campaigns, including false letters imputing ethnic prejudices to candidates; doctored documents; phony statements alleging sexual and other improprieties; and fraudulent campaign advertising.

One of his amendments would allow a defeated candidate to sue for cash damages if he has been the victim of such activity. The other would bar the use of campaign funds for any criminal defense.

There is no doubt many candidates have been damaged by smears designed to mislead and confuse the voters. And campaign contributors have been dismayed to realize their money was being used to defend participants in illegal activities who were careless enough to get caught.

These amendments, and others like them, are on the right track if political decency is to be restored in this country.

'Ah'm jes a lil' ol' country lawyer, Mr. Goliath, but lemme show you this here trick ah larned . . .'

What's Right with America

The consent of the governed is basic to American democracy. If the governed are misled . . . the system may go on, but not as a democracy. — David Wise in "The Politics of Lying."

One dire result of Watergate and the whole cancerous growth of what has been called "the politics of lying" is to deepen an ever-present cynicism about American politics and politicians.

How often these days do we hear our friends and neighbors say, or perhaps ourselves say, "I just don't know who to believe any more . . . I'm disgusted and sick of the whole business?"

And yet the whole history of our country teaches us that the cynicism is misplaced, because always, as each generation's fidelity to ancient ideals is tested, there are men who illuminate those ideals anew.

THEY REMIND us that our Constitution is not a sometime thing, designed only for fair weather, but that its checks and balances and restrictions on the abuse of power most apply when most needed — during the worst crises of our political life.

When this happens, we also find that there is a deep response from the American people.

The old words, tired words, words frayed from repetition in a thousand Fourth of July orations, come to life again.

We find that we have not forgotten what we learned about our country in school or absorbed from our fathers and mothers and grandparents about the rights and duties of Americans and those they entrust with public office.

PERHAPS that's why there has been such a warm response to grandfatherly old Senator Sam Ervin, the chairman of the Senate committee investigating the Watergate scandal.

It doesn't come only from ir-reconcilable partisans. It isn't necessarily based on certainty that the senator is always right or necessarily free of political bias in his pronouncements.

It can exist despite awareness that the televised proceedings of the Ervin committee have been at times flouted by some lack of restraint on the audience, and that venerable North Carolinian himself may have played to the gallery with his "country lawyer" pose, his Southern anecdotes, his "Bible-spouting."

And yet, somehow, Senator Ervin sends his bucket down deep into the well of an unexhausted public faith in American institutions, and what he comes up with is cool, refreshing drink for a country parched by Watergate and its like.

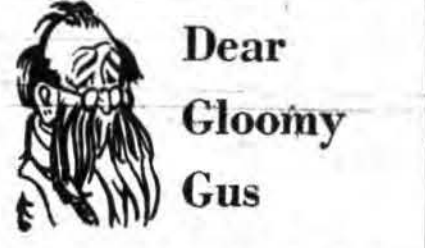

WHEN THIS old man cites the law and the prophets, when he recalls the simple freedom of the poorest, humblest man to be secure in his home from the invasion of arrogant authorities, when he reminds us of all the blood that has been shed to ensure that the constitutional protection of American liberties would stand like a rock of refuge in time of trouble . . .

When this stout gentleman with his quivering jowls, his fluttering eyebrows, and his gnarled hands hurls the noble words of William Pitt (the Elder) at a John Ehrlichman so glibly asserting the extremes of presidential authority

When Sam Ervin draws the lightning down from Mount Sinai and Independence Hall upon the heads of a succession of hard, slick young operators

Well, by heaven, it is hard not to cheer something that is, and one hopes always will be, very right indeed about America.

Speed of Air Travel Is a Modern Myth

SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everybody ought to know by now that the so-called "speed of transportation" is a modern myth. In the popular example, a horse-drawn carriage in 1910 could cross Manhattan faster than an automobile today.

What we don't realize to be equally true is that the "speed" of airplanes is as much of a myth. It is harder, and takes longer, to get in and out of many American small towns and cities than it was in the heyday of the railroads.

Consider a man who lives in Chicago and has to give a dinner talk in a medium-sized city, 300 miles away. This is a 600-mile round-trip, and too arduous for a one-day drive, so he has to take a plane there.

THE ONLY plane that will get him there in time for a dinner engagement leaves Chicago at 11:30, and arrives an hour later. So he is in a strange town, with nothing to do, from 12:30 until 7 p.m.

There is no plane that flies back to Chicago after 5:30 p.m. (at least not to the same airport where he left his car in the morning). So he is forced to sleep over, even though he is through with his dinner engagement by 9 p.m.

If he wants to get back in time to work a full day, he must get up at 6 a.m. the next morning to take a 7:40 a.m. plane.

IF THIS regimen doesn't appeal to him, he has to wait until noon; which means he won't get into his office back home until mid-afternoon. This would mean a full 24 hours consumed in order to attend a two-hour dinner that is only one hour away by air.

"One hour away" — what a delusion to speak of it that way. One hour, not including the hour it takes to get to the airport, park the car, check the baggage, walk a half-mile to the ramp, wait if the plane is delayed, board, and then wait some more before getting clearance to take off.

REVERSE the process at the other end, and then double the whole thing for the trip back. You have a man who is engaged in traveling at least six hours, and spends another 12 in just waiting for an arrival or departure. All of this is "dead time," in the bleakest sense of the word.

And this not-at-all-mythical trip is only one of hundreds just like it, throughout the length and breadth of the U.S. today,

'Third Vietnam' New Asia Threat

EVANS-NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Field reports from Vietnam warn that Communist forces, confident that U.S. bombers will never reappear in Indochina after Aug. 15 and hopeful that vital U.S. supplies will dry up, are sure to challenge Watergate-paralyzed Washington with a general offensive.

Both written reports and departed officials passing through Washington agree that Hanoi's new offensive is a question not of "if" but of "when." It could come in mid-October or perhaps not until spring or even later. But all observers believe the refitted North Vietnamese legions will strike from new bases in South Vietnam to attempt the conquest of the entire country.

PRESENT COMBAT readiness of North Vietnamese troops, worn out only six months ago, is a byproduct of the peace agreements negotiated in Paris. But the enhanced prospect of a Communist offensive soon stems from Hanoi's reading that the mood in Washington today will prevent President Nixon from helping the South Vietnamese.

The overriding new development in South Vietnam since the ceasefire is the development of a Communist-controlled "nation" in the wilderness (widely called the Third Vietnam). Secure behind those borders in the mountainous northwest, the North Vietnamese army has licked its wounds and prepared for battle.

TO GIVE the impression that the so-called "Provisional Revolutionary Government" really has its own country, Hanoi has been trucking civilians from North Vietnam (recently including truckloads of single women). Hanoi's optimism wish is for refugees to flow out of Saigon-controlled areas into the Third Vietnam.

That has not and surely will not happen. Despite continuing corruption, the people of South Vietnam have made their choice for President Nguyen Van Thieu's government. Skeptical old Vietnam hands in the U.S. Foreign Service, returned to Vietnam for temporary duty following the peace agreement were amazed that the prevailing public attitude had shifted from neutrality to a bread-and-butter preference for the Saigon regime. That is confirmed by a secret public opinion survey conducted by U.S. officials in the populous Mekong River delta.

THE THREAT from the Third Vietnam, therefore, is not political but military. With the Americanized South Vietnamese army (ARVN) neither equipped nor trained for guerrilla raids into the new base area, the Communists have safely rebuilt their army. Intelligence sources now evaluate North Vietnamese forces as at least their size when the massive spring 1972 offensive was launched. In terms of tanks, heavy artillery and anti-aircraft rockets, they are considerably superior.

What has so far inhibited a new offensive is the Hanoi politburo's difficulty in reading the intentions of the inscrutable Americans. Amazed at Mr. Nixon's resumption of bombing twice in 1972, Hanoi has feared his response to any new aggression.

BUT EXPERTS believe that Hanoi now views Mr. Nixon, politically crippled by Watergate, as unable to resume bombing anywhere in Indochina after the Aug. 15 statutory deadline. With that inhibition gone, there is only one thing for the Communists to do with their refitted army: use it.

That same realization is dawning on South Vietnamese officials. When we reported from Vietnam last April, several ARVN generals confided to us they could not stop a new general offensive without the U.S. B-52 bombers that halted the Communists at the gates of key cities a year ago. Now, according to new reports from Vietnam, that attitude has changed. ARVN generals know they must rely on less artillery and infinitely less air support and are prepared to make the best of it.

ARVN has fought best with its back to the wall and escape routes blocked — as in the 1972 siege of An Loc. Now, with massive American support ruled out, the entire army has its back to the wall.

CONSEQUENTLY, the most skeptical U.S. observers believe ARVN can stop a general offensive, if the necessary lifeline of U.S. supplies is not choked off. Even now, ARVN is on starvation rations of arms and ammunition, ending its once profligate expenditure of artillery. But sizable forces in Congress would totally cut that lifeline, dooming ARVN and South Vietnam.

The real possibility that Watergate's malaise may prevent Mr. Nixon from stopping such a calamity is a factor in Communist deliberations whether to attack. So, after the sacrifice of so much American blood and treasure, the final verdict in Vietnam — and all its ominous implications for this nation — may depend on whether the President can recover from Watergate.

...and What's Not So Right

WASHINGTON — "That is my metaphor, yes," said John Ehrlichman, and in the Great Marble Hall of Perjury the mind's eye imagined rows of dangling, rodden corpses suspended by their necks from the street lamps along Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House.

Lowell Weicker, the Connecticut Republican who's been known to wear white Levis to the hearings, had just asked the deposed Gauleiter if he had not said that the White House Horribles should let Pat Gray, "hang there, let him twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

It was not only that Ehrlichman had picked the question of all questions to answer truthfully, it was the vividness of this metaphor used in a telephone call to John Deah during the period that Gray was being exposed and rejected at his Senate FBI confirmation hearing. No regret for the disaster overtaking this man whom they'd used and who'd served them probably past the bounds of the law. The sociopathic personality of the witness showed no consciousness of the consternation he evoked.

SOME OF THE consternation derived from the simple, but somewhat ignoble, desire to see this proud pup squirm in humble public contrition. The most popular witnesses have been those who acknowledged guilt and asked for forgiveness. Attendance at the hearings gives you an insight into why the Russians should have held their infamous public trials at which the defendants were forced to grovel and confess. It has always been said they were conducted for propaganda reasons, but, judging from emotions here, such displays also satisfy our need for revenge and to make our faith in our political institutions whole again by having the malefactors react. There is a little bit of Ehrlichman in all of us, and it only takes an Ehrlichman to bring it out.

His words spring from a moral pathology which differs from arrogance, although heaven knows he is blessed with a bountiful supply of that, too. John Mitchell was arrogant — arrogant and disdainfully surly in the manner of one who has been found out. If much of what he said was preposterously unbelievable on its face, his was a case of "why should I bother to explain myself to you fools?"

NOT SO with Ehrlichman. Mitchell limited his answers to the least he could get away with — "We weren't volunteering anything," he said more than once. The Sociopath, however, was elaborate in misbegotten detail, all of which is susceptible to easy verification and refutation. Who would spin the yarn about Ellsberg's father-in-law and J. Edgar Hoover without bothering to pick up the phone to check the facts?

"What a liar!" Inouye was heard to exclaim over an inadvertently live microphone, and everybody took his meaning to be what a big liar, but he might have meant what a lousy one. With the previous witnesses, close students of Watergate rifled through the ever-growing files and records to find the contradictions, and bring them to light. With Ehrlichman they were so blatant, people had debates over whether he lies when he cocks that right eyebrow into an arch or when he flattens it level. It was not his testimony, but Ehrlichman himself that was shocking.

THE SOCIOPATH has an answer for everything and a sometimes puzzled sometimes blank look for the outraged moral sensitivities around him. In this most middle-class of all societies in which to own, to possess in fee simple a mortgage-free house, to be a property owner is the ambition, he can't understand why everyone around him is appalled at the burglary.

"Do you remember when we were in law school?" Herman Talmadge of Georgia asked him, "we studied . . . that no matter how humble a man's cottage is that ever, the King of England cannot enter without his consent?" To which the Sociopath responded in the blandest tones of fait accompli. "I am afraid that that has been considerably eroded over the years."

Pre-Ehrlichman the question propounded about each witness was, is he an idiot or a liar? Ehrlichman suggests a third choice, the devil's own psychiatric. He sent his agents out to procure Ellsberg's psychiatric profile, and now we look for his. He knows it. Sociopaths are rational, which is why in his opening statement he is compelled to refute the suspicion that "We were all suffering from some advanced forms of neurosis — some strange White House madness."

Maybe there was none and they bugged themselves for historical, not hysterical, purposes. Then what are we left with? The scary resemblance of his speech to Nixon's, the oft-made observation that this Gauleiter was the most pleasant, most likeable of all the high-ranking White House Horribles, and that damnable metaphor — hanging there, twisting, slowly, slowly in the wind.

15 Buses Added to Transit System

SANTA ANA — The Orange County Transit System will increase its service to bus riders next Monday with the activation of 15 new buses just received.

Additions which will benefit Orange County residents include:

—The Harbor Boulevard route from Newport Beach to La Habra will start at 6 a.m. rather than 7:35 a.m.

—Buses will arrive at Orange Coast College at 7:45 a.m. and 7:48 a.m., northbound and southbound and depart at 5:11 p.m. and 5:04 p.m., respectively.

—Seal Beach commuters to the county Civic Center will arrive at the center at 7:40 a.m. and depart at 5:13 p.m. All present timetables will be replaced and the 19 routes of the district will be divided among five folder schedules based on geographical location of the routes.

The new routes will be publicized in newspapers and on the radio. Schedules will be mailed to all households within three blocks of streets which will receive service for the first time.

Major transfer points in the county are Newport Center, South Coast Plaza, Santa Ana Civic Center, La Habra Civic Center, the City in Orange and Anaheim Plaza. At Newport Pier and UC

Irvine buses will depart immediately upon arrival of connecting buses.

District General Manager Gordon "Pete" Fielding reported that patronage increased 22 percent in June. There were 187,000 riders in June, 33,300 more than May.

In other business Monday, the district board members:

—Endorsed Senate Bill 534 by State Sen. Lawrence E. Walsh (D-Commerce). This bill calls for the integration of air and ground transportation. Future expansion of Orange County Airport or development of a new airport in the county would be delayed until April 1976 when the State

Transportation Plan is set for adoption.

—Approved a study of a search for Park-N-Pool sites. Here commuters would meet and pool for rides to work. Sites tentatively suggested include the intersection of the Newport and San Diego freeways and the intersection of the San Diego Freeway and Beach Boulevard.

Other proposed sites are the intersection of the Santa Ana, Garden Grove and future Orange freeways and the intersection of the Garden Grove and Newport freeways.

The district is well on the way to providing a Park-N-Ride facility at the intersection of the Riverside and Santa Ana Freeways. At this facility commuters to Los Angeles would board buses.

—Agreed to have plans drawn and federal funds sought for two bus passenger shelters in Santa Ana and a study of others throughout the district's area.

The Santa Ana shelters will be on Flower Street on the west and east sides, near Sixth Street. They will handle 60 passengers.

The shelters in other parts of the county will include three different designs with cities choosing the one they like best. It is hoped they can be constructed before the rainy season.

Pink Bus Lawsuit Dropped

SANTA ANA — Legal battles between the Pink Bus Line and the Orange County Transit District were settled Monday with an agreement which leaves the private bus line in operation.

A lawsuit for $81,000 will be dropped by the bus line and the district will pay the line $24,000. The lawsuit's allegation of unfair competition is withdrawn.

Likewise, a transit district condemnation suit against the Pink Bus Line is lifted.

Under the agreement approved by the district's board of directors the Pink Bus Line will continue to operate on Beach and Harbor boulevards and reserves the right to initiate additional services in the county.

Orange County Transit District lines on Beach and Harbor boulevards will also continue and cooperation in schedules will be achieved.

The district originally offered the private line $32,000 for its equipment and good will. This offer was refused when the district requested that the line continue the Beach Boulevard service.

Under the final agreement the line gets money for dropping the lawsuit and its good will and still continues the service.

Transit District board chairman Ralph Clark called the settlement a fine agreement and praised the continuation of service by the Pink Line.

'Study Proves Need'

County School Chief Defends Position

By CANDACE PEARSON of the Daily Pilot Staff

SANTA ANA — A management study by the County Administrative Office (CAO) "clearly states... the need for the department of education in Orange County."

So says Dr. Robert Peterson county superintendent of Schools, of the study, which is critical of his department. The study will be discussed in public hearing by the county Board of Supervisors Aug. 29.

Both the 1970 and the 1971 Grand Juries said the department should be abolished.

But Peterson said the study definitely "contradicts that basic premise."

The study states that "there is great need to coordinate activities between the state and local districts and to provide some centralized services at less cost than individual districts could."

"We'll do a better job because of their efforts," Peterson said, referring to the CAO study team.

"Most of what is said in the report we can enthusiastically support," he said.

But then Peterson added a vague objection to some statements in the report, without specifying anything.

The department is criticized in the study for not having any short or long range goals and for having low morale among employees.

"The staff members have no knowledge of where the department would like to go or how it intends to get there," the study states.

"The county superintendent... and the majority of district superintendents seem to be polarized at opposite ends of the continuum with respect to education philosophy," the report continues.

Dr. Peterson emphasizes a return to traditional education, the three R's, while most local districts want many varied and often innovative services, the study says.

The superintendent is the target for criticism on other grounds in the report, including an "over-concern for organization control."

"Numerous and redundant mechanisms have been established," the study says, "by the Superintendent to control the department."

The study recommends that the number of staff meetings held several times a week be reduced to one a week. Assistant county superintendents, it says, regard them as useful only to Peterson as "bed checks" and as "ridiculous."

Daily attendance sheets on department staff and probation school teachers should be eliminated, the report says.

Three county-run projects were praised as finding general acceptance among the 34 school districts. They are the $2.5 million central audiovisual library which distributes films; the $64,000 a year Marine Sciences

Laboratory at Dana Point which includes a "floating" lab on a boat; and the special schooling services for handicapped children.

Also praised were science training programs, drug abuse prevention projects and the central resource for interpreting legislation and government codes.

One of Peterson's favorite projects, the Academic Decathlon, was characterized by local educators as having little benefit.

Also criticized as relatively useless were department support of reading workshops, annual science fair, coordination of inter-district visits to various instruction programs and physical education in-service training.

Many district superintendents looked unfavorably on Peterson's alignment with voters. They felt the county office should be primarily concerned with and responsive to them.

The report also said many local districts were concerned because of the large numbers of resignations by county department officials in the last few years.

Peterson, who agreed to the administrative study, said a number of the study's proposals "will take quite a long time to implement — if it seems appropriate to do so."

Newport Nurse Vies For 'Red Rose' Title

FULLERTON — Susan Jones, a registered nurse from Newport Beach, has been chosen by St. Jude Hospital in Fullerton to enter the "Red Rose Nurse" contest.

The contest is sponsored by the Hospital Charity Fund, with the winner of the contest becoming the representative of the fund during its annual money-raising campaign. The new Red Rose Nurse will make appearances at sporting events and on TV and radio.

Miss Jones, 25, red-haired and blue-eyed, specializes in caring for heart patients. She attended Fullerton Junior College. She is currently a member of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses and serves as treasurer of the Orange County Chapter.

Miss Jones will be competing Aug. 28 with 25 other nurses from Los Angeles and

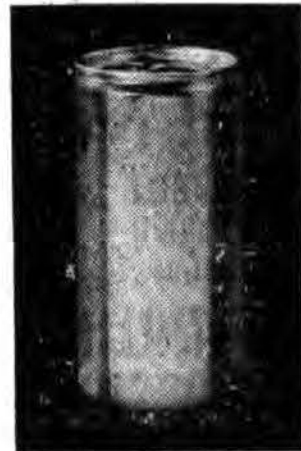

'ROSE' CANDIDATE Susan Jones

Orange County hospitals.

The sponsoring organization, the Hospital Charity Fund, is a group which provides financial assistance to hospitalized patients who are "caught in the gap between adequate insurance and eligibility for government assistance."

EMPTY ALL-ALUMINUM CANS

DESCRIPTION: They're easy to spot. Many say "all-aluminum" right on the can. They have rounded bottoms, are non-magnetic and have no side seam. Don't be fooled by some easy-open cans that say "aluminum" on the top. This does not mean they are "all-aluminum". You'll find your favorite beverage in quick-chilling all-aluminum cans. Cans that protect flavor and freshness — and prove their value even when empty.

REWARD

10¢ A POUND plus AN ENVIRONMENTAL BONUS

Reynolds Aluminum will pay a reward of 10¢ a pound — about ½¢ each, for every empty all-aluminum beverage can you collect. But your biggest reward will come from the self-satisfaction of participating in the fight against litter and solid waste.

HOW CAN WE SELL A DIAMOND FOR LESS MONEY? WE HAVE OUR WAYS.

For one thing, most other jewelers buy finished diamonds. We buy diamonds in the rough. We cut, polish and mount them ourselves. The savings are considerable. To us. To you. As a result, you can always buy a larger diamond from us for the same amount you'd pay down the street for a smaller one of equal quality. Think it over. Divided payments arranged.

Karabian: Sex Bias Glaring

QUEENIE

By Phil Interlandi

"Since we all wound up together, I see no reason why we shouldn't unwind together..."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Glaring discrimination against women exists in the hiring practices of the Legislature, Assemblyman Walter Karabian has charged.

The Los Angeles Democrat said Monday his staff found "glaring patterns of sex discrimination in the hiring of staff consultants for the 43 standing committees of the state Senate and Assembly."

KARABIAN, WHO led the successful fight for state ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, called for immediate steps to hire more women in decision-making legislative staff positions.

Woman make up only 14 percent of the staff positions in the Senate, and only 5 percent of such positions in the Assembly, Karabian said his staff found.

THE FEW positions women do hold are at the bottom of the pay scale, Karabian told a news conference. The highest 53 staff positions in the Senate and highest 51 in the Assembly are held by men, he added.

The most glaring discrimination is in the staffs of the majority and minority leaders and majority and minority caucuses, Karabian said. Women hold only three — the bottom three — of 37 positions on those staffs, he added.

Karabian, an announced 1974 candidate for state attorney general, said he didn't think the legislators realized the extent of the discrimination.

Graduate Wins $250

Cheryl Angel, a graduate of Estancia High School, Costa Mesa, has been awarded a $250 scholarship to study in the communications department at Cal State Fullerton this fall.

Miss Angel, 18, of 3159 Sicily St., was one of 11 scholarship winners in the department. Study areas in the communications department include news, photography, telecommunications, advertising and technical communications.

Proposal to Pay Scientists Dead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A proposal to give unemployed California scientists $10,000-a-year grants to continue working in their specialties in California has been killed by the state Senate Finance Committee.

The proposal's author, Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, (D-Oakland), told the committee Monday it would cost about $1 million.

But Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post placed the cost at "well over $10.5 million."

THE COMMITTEE rejected the Petris bill 3-7.

The measure would have set up a state Office of Scientific Manpower to provide grants of up to $700 a month for unemployed scientists and technicians. To qualify, they would have to have been working in the state at least one year.

The one-year grants would be renewable for up to three years and would be awarded only if existing laboratory facilities could be found which otherwise would be idle.

PETRIS SAID it costs at least $50,000 to develop one Ph.D. "and the people we're talking about have a lot more training than just one Ph.D."

The bill is needed, he said, because developments occur in the physical sciences so rapidly that an unemployed scientist "soon is rendered obsolete."

Lewis Pollack, a spokesman for the American Chemical Society, told the committee that the unemployment rate for physical scientists in California was over 6 percent and that a serious "brain drain" to Eastern states was developing.

Useful Tool

Use Checklist For Checkbook

By DEAN C. MILLER UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK — Many Americans are paradoxical economic animals.

They can be great providers and alert businessmen during life but fail to leave wills...

THEY CAN BE the souls of prudence, save consistently for years, then risk it all with a broker they've known for only two weeks...

The checking account is another vulnerable spot. Too few Americans know enough about it, or think about it, the checking account even though it is one of their most used economic tools.

Barbara Henninger, an assistant vice-president with United California Bank and operations officer at UCB's main Los Angeles office, has thought a lot about checkbooks.

AND FOR GOOD reason. Banks in the Los Angeles area annually process more than $216 billion worth of checks. Some are wrongly used, costing the user substantially in many cases.

To help the careless or inexperienced checkbook handlers become more expert in this area, Ms. Henninger offers some guidelines and suggestions.

When you've opened a checking account and have received the first imprinted checks, make certain the account number is correct. A printing error could delay the crediting of your deposits and cost you money.

Evaluate how many checks you normally write a month. If it is 10 or fewer, you could save up to $2 per month in service charges by getting a special checking account which costs as little as 15 cents a check at some banks.

Carry personal identification papers separate from the check book so another person doesn't have "everything he needs" to use your checks in case of loss or theft.

Don't leave excess funds in your checking account. Transfer them to a savings account so they'll earn interest.

Don't time deposits and checks too closely. You could be assessed extra charges each time your deposit reaches the bank a few hours after a check has been received on that account.

Don't borrow a other person's blank check or deposit slip or lend one of yours. That magnetic account number can't be erased not even by blacking it out, so the check or deposit could be posted to the account of the original owner.

Don't write checks for "cash" before you get to the bank. If lost or stolen, such checks are the equivalent of cash and the bank cannot put a "stop payment" order on them.

If you receive Social Security or dividend checks regularly, arrange to have them mailed directly to your bank for deposit. There's no charge and it's safer.

Never leave your personal check book in an office drawer or public place. If you note a check is missing from the numerical sequence, notify the bank immediately.

Golden State's 'Big' On Savings and Loan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California is noted for bigness in many areas, and the savings and loan industry is one of its true giants.

From a meager beginning in 1865, savings and loan associations have matched the state's growth stride for stride as California rose to No. 1 in population.

TOTAL ASSETS of California S&Ls crossed the $45 billion mark at mid-year, up from $42.9 billion at the end of 1962. The new total is more than twice that of the No. 2 state — Illinois.

What makes this state's associations loom so overwhelmingly at the top are its big institutions. Among its 179 individual associations are seven of the top 12 in the nation.

Here are the assets of California's Big 10 as of last March 31: Home, Los Angeles, $4.71 billion; Great Western, Beverly Hills, $4.39 billion; American, Beverly Hills, $4.06 billion; California Federal, Los Angeles, $2.22 billion; Glendale Federal, Glendale, $1.69 billion; Citizens, San Francisco, $1.24 billion; Gibraltar, Beverly Hills, $1.22 billion; Coast Federal, Los Angeles, $1.11 billion; Home Federal, San Diego, $1.02 billion; Imperial, San Diego, $728.14 million.

CALIFORNIA institutions have been particularly aggressive in opening branches, reaching in every direction for depositors and borrowers. Since the end of 1969, more than 400 offices have been opened, bringing the total to in excess of 1,000.

Until recent years, the associations were primarily involved in financing new construction to house the millions of people who streamed into California from other sections of the country. But now the picture has changed, says the California Savings and Loan League.

IN 1963, ABOUT 50 percent of S&L lending was in the area of construction. It had dropped to 15 percent in terms of dollars invested in 1972. Last year, out of $8.8 billion in loans made by S&Ls only $1.35 billion went into construction with the rest going to finance the purchase of existing housing.

Until the "credit crunch" of 1969, S&Ls had only one savings package to offer savers—the passbook account. That year the Federal Home Loan Bank Board authorized "certificates of deposit," which enabled the institutions to pay a higher rate for larger accounts pledged for longer maturities.

UNDER NEW rates announced in July, passbook accounts now pay 5 1/2 percent interest while large accounts have no maximum rate. An S&L can pay what it can negotiate with the customer.

Improved Dollar Peps Up Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A sharply higher dollar in Europe offset the spread of the higher prime rate at home to produce a moderate rally in the stock market Monday afternoon, brokers said.

Despite indications of a business slowdown in purchasing declines, and the spread of the 9 percent prime to most major commercial banks, investors apparently took heart in the strength of the dollar on European exchanges.

It rose more than 1 percent from Friday's close. Other positive factors, brokers said, were record auto sales and continued strong demand for steel.

Part-time Courses Offered

Golden West College now has courses for people interested in doing parttime elementary school library work.

This fall the college will be offering introductory courses in card cataloging, indexing and reference books for the elementary school library, with emphasis on effectively communicating those resources to the elementary-aged child.

Each course will involve two hours lecture-laboratory per week for three weeks with the segment on card catalogs running from September 19 to October 10, indexes from October 17 thru November 7 and reference books November 14 thru December 5.

Registration for the class runs from August 24 to September 15 in the college admissions office.

Hotter Torches Carried by Men

Men are more temperamental than women. They mourn a broken heart longer. When women carry a torch, rarely is it so much for the lost love as for the hurt pride. So contends a student of romantic matters. Our Love and War man is inclined to concur. He says it appears to explain why some women can fall in love repeatedly while most men can handle only one or two such profound attachments.

At age 72, Lewis Glazer can still make a goose quill pen every 30 seconds. And does so when he desires. Sells more than 1,000 a year to the U.S. Supreme Court. Don't believe anybody else in the country is handcrafting those fowl-feather instruments anymore.

Client asks the correct way to wear a western hat. Flat and forward. Straight over both eyebrows. Only a dude habitually cocks a western hat.

Pollsters say 65 out of every 100 elementary school teachers nationwide condone the notion of spanking students.

KNUCKLES — Q. "What makes the noise when you crack your knuckles?"

A. That's an explosion of gas bubbles in knuckle joint fluid. Or so one Dr. Tony Unsworth reports, at any rate. He says X-rays show the gas doesn't actually escape, that it's just reabsorbed into the knuckle fluid in about 15 minutes. Interesting, if true.

Q. "Who invented the clothes pin?"

A. Can only report it was somebody who belonged to that offshoot of the English Quakers known as the Shakers. Shakers also invented the modern towel rack and the power-driven washing machine, might mention.

Q. "Can unborn babies hear noises?"

A. Definitely. Expectant mothers who've gone to symphony concerts report the clashes of cymbals have set their infants to romping and stomping.

The late Pablo Picasso got his clothes mostly from a tailor named Michael Sapone. In Nice. And he paid Sapone not in cash, but in paintings. Sapone wouldn't have it any other way, bright fellow. It now comes out his art collection is worth about $1 million.

No barber should ignore the fact that his craft is mentioned more than 20 times in the Bible.

The little girl in front loosened her grip on the big friendly teddy bear while a boy simply let his cuddly tiger slip, forgotten, to the floor.

Another boy in the back of the room calmed his restless brother by anchoring him to the floor with a foot on the stomach. And the quiet youngster next to them closed his adventure book while the rest of the children settled down to hear the story.

"I just love to sit there and watch their faces. That's where I get enjoyment," explained the storyteller, Mrs. Delores Bowles.

She was reading the "Tale of Peter Rabbit" at Costa Mesa Library Saturday. It's a story she reads quite often.

REPEATED REQUESTS

While a primary grade school teacher, children would repeatedly ask her to read this story. Now as a reading specialist with the Newport Beach schools, she seldom reads stories to her students.

But she accepts most requests to read and tell of Peter Rabbit, a story she seems never to tire of. So, when she packs her small suitcase, she's likely to be heading toward a library or bookstore. The doll size case contains her props; she doesn't just read the story during her story hour. She shows off mugs and plates painted with scenes of Peter Rabbit which she keeps for her grandchildren. She also displays posters, printed yardage, and cloth and china figurines from her collection of the story's characters.

But the children are most happy when she introduces them to her Peter Rabbit puppet. He has clothes for every month of the year, a clown's costume for Halloween, an Indian's suit for Thanksgiving, a Santa Claus outfit for Christmas and, for this time of the year, swim fins and a mask.

"Where's his swim suit?" demanded several from her audience the other day.

"He goes in the nude but don't tell anyone," Mrs. Bowles replied. But then she quickly explained, "Because he's got fur clothes on all the time."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Peter, the puppet, even has a birthday cake. It was especially needed this day because the children had gathered to celebrate the birthday of his creator, Beatrix Potter.

If she were alive today, they learned, she would be 107 years old. Although she hasn't lived on, Mrs. Bowles told them, Peter Rabbit can be found in many languages and even in Braille.

Actually, this story of the rabbit who lost his clothes and became scared and sick only because he didn't mind his mother and stay out of Mr. McGregor's garden was never intended to become a book.

It was written as a letter to the ill son of Beatrix Potter's former governess. Friends, however, encouraged her to have it published.

She had it printed privately, in very small size so it would be easy for children to handle, because "no one (of the publishers) wanted the story of a rabbit then," Mrs. Bowles said.

STORY PIRATED

"It was pirated because it was not copyrighted," she explained. It had been, she believes, many children in the world wouldn't know of Peter Rabbit as they do now.

So, she believes what some consider a mistake was actually a fortunate thing.

"I feel she did a lot for children's literature," Mrs. Bowles explained.

Miss Potter doesn't repeat simple words as most authors of children's books. Instead she uses a variety of adjectives and words like "amongst" and "fortnight" which children enjoy hearing, the teacher said.

In addition to being an enchanting animal story, there is the obvious lesson of minding one's mother which gives the tale universal appeal with adults as well.

After Peter's adventure, he was given tea and put to bed. But his good bunny brothers and sisters, Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail, stayed up and were treated with bread, milk and berries.

Still, there is more to this tale, most of which Mrs. Bowles doesn't tell her eager young listeners.

BE CURIOUS

They probably aren't as curious about authors as she is. She became especially interested in Miss Potter "because I couldn't find enough to satisfy me."

Even though Peter Rabbit is a familiar story throughout the world, very little is known about the author who wrote and illustrated 35 other books.

So, Mrs. Bowles set out to learn all she could of the English writer about 25 years ago. Once, she thought she would use what she learned to get a doctorate in children's literature.

In 1964, she went to Europe with the express purpose of visiting Beatrix Potter country. In her later years, the author raised sheep on a farm, Hill Top, in Windermere around the lake country of northern Great Britain.

The government owns much of the land up there only because Miss Potter left it to them for a reserve. Her home has been preserved for visitors.

"When you go in there you're just about reliving her books," the teacher said. Miss Potter, she explained, could "draw only from real life so scenes of Peter Rabbit are there."

Once, to write a book on "The Two Bad Mice," she let two mice loose in a doll house to watch their actions.

FARMER'S WIFE

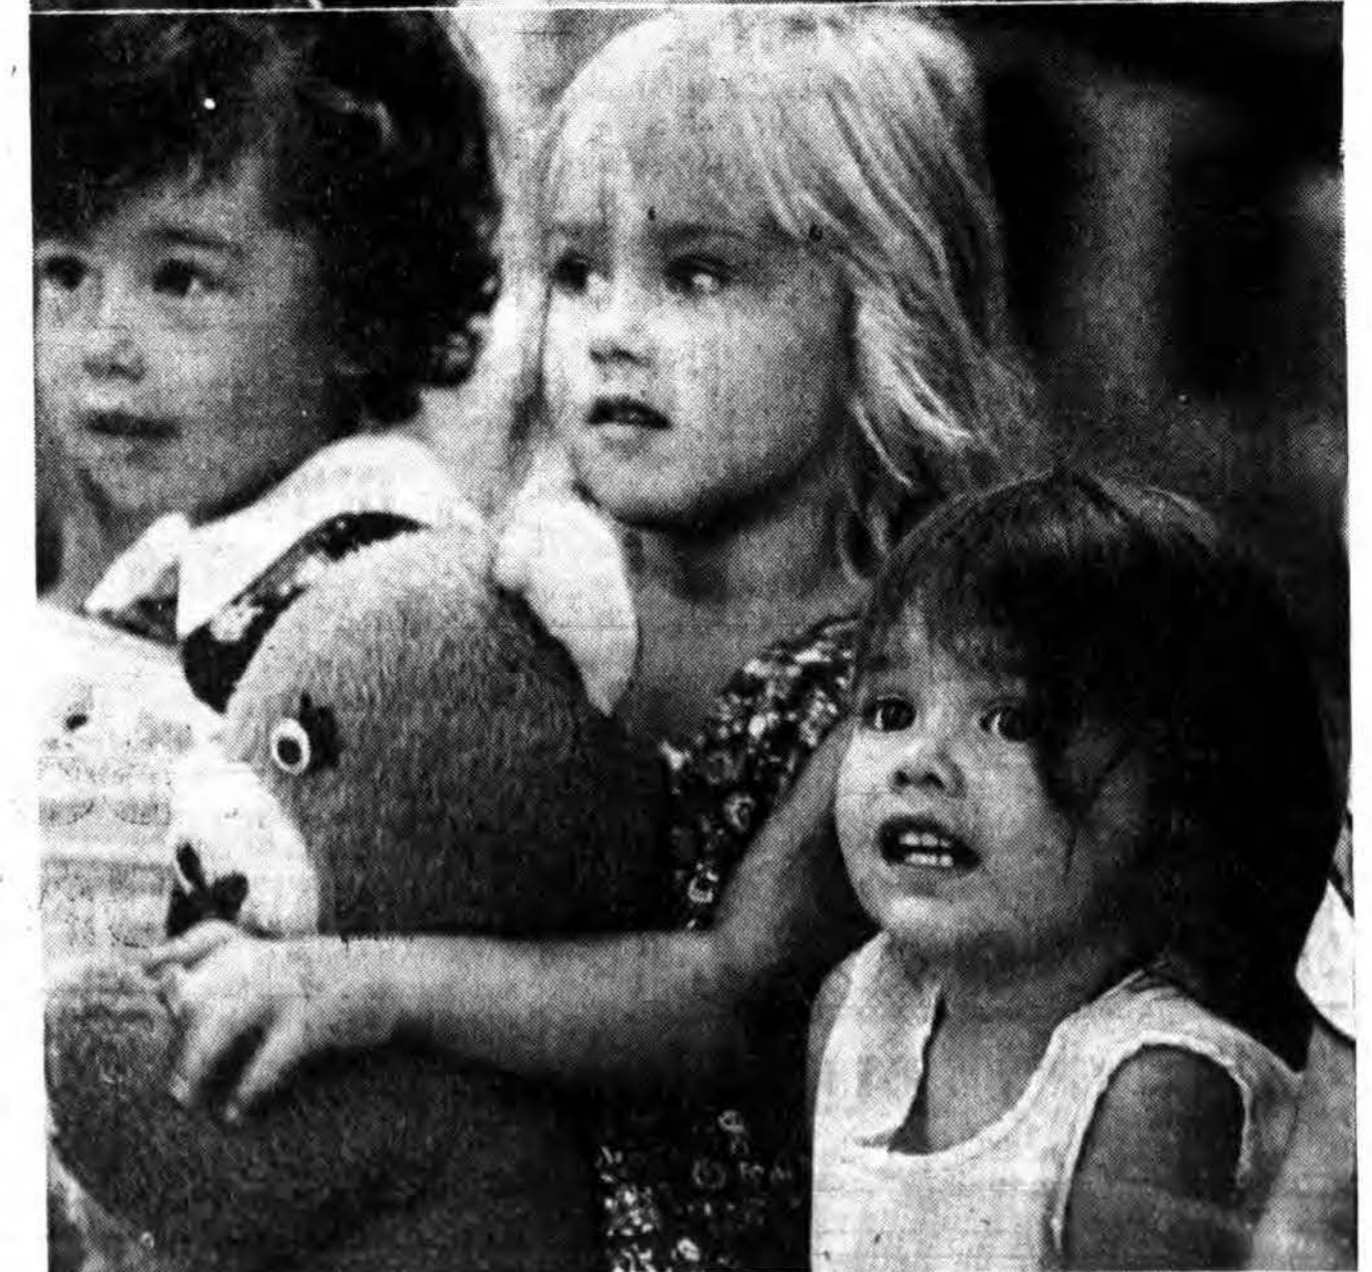

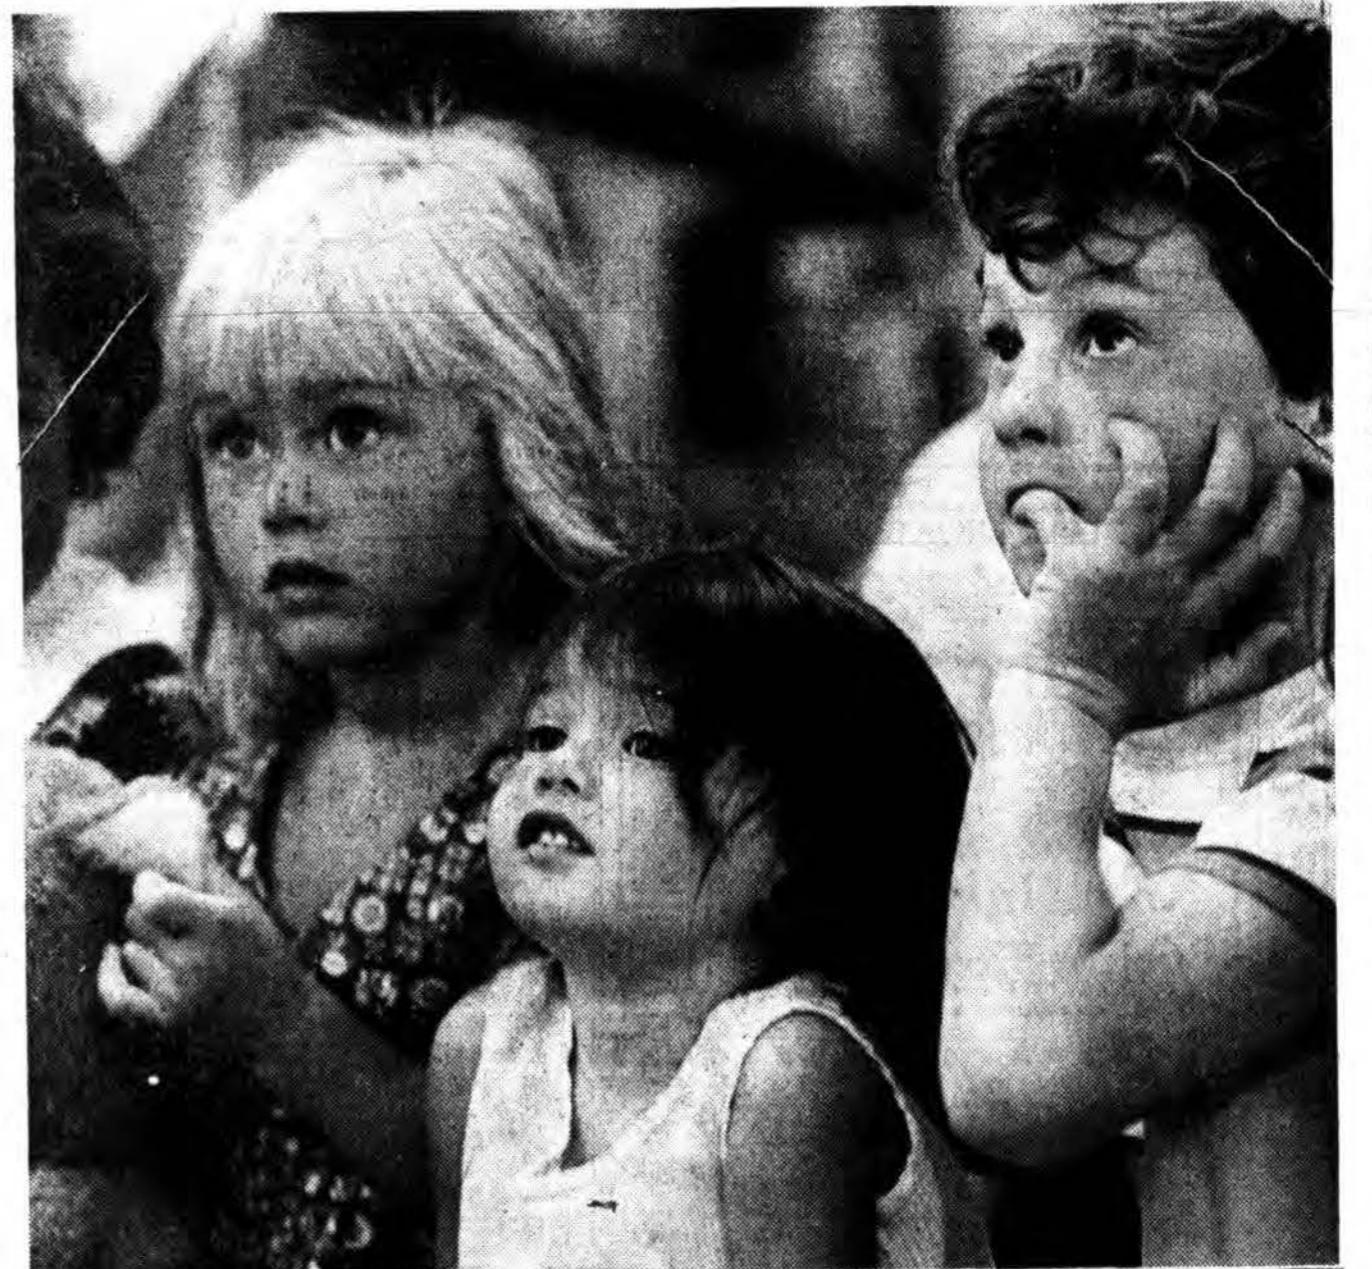

But Beatrix Potter wanted to be known as a farmer's wife rather than a writer. Perhaps this is because she was happier during that part of her life.

She was born July 28, 1866 into a well-to-do London family. "Back then, girls were not educated," said Mrs. Bowles. So, the girl led a sheltered life restricted, except for daily drives, to the third floor of her home.

Other than her governess, her only friends were plants and animals. She taught herself to make intricate drawings of them at a very young age just as she practically taught herself to read.

As soon as she was old enough, she left home and bought her farm.

Why would a teacher want to spend her free time reading to youngsters?
"I just love to sit there and watch their faces. That's where I get enjoyment."

Dangerous Racket

On Court, Love Means Nothing

By ERMA BOMBECK
Well, if I had known the battle of the sexes was going to be fought on a tennis court, I wouldn't have let my knees grow together.

Ever since Bobby Riggs became Queen of the Courts (grass, clay and Margaret), people have talked of little else.

"I think in our own family, we should keep the conflict of the sexes on an intellectual level," I said to my husband.

AT WIT'S END

"You want arm wrestle? Five out of seven?"

"Tennis is a great way of settling the dispute," he said. "For example, you say I should take out the garbage and trash every night when it is clearly in your domain. What better way to resolve the problem than to delegate the chore to the loser of a tennis match?"

We met on the neighborhood court right after dinner. "Don't think you can psych me out just because you are wearing shoes with rubber soles," I said. Then I bent over to pick up the ball.

"What are you doing?" asked my husband.

"Picking up the ball," I said.

"You have all the grace of a gorilla retrieving a brown banana. You don't swoop in on a ball like your legs are in casts, you use the Eastern forehand grip at the end of the handle. Then by perfect timing and wrist action you extend your arm and racket downwards until the tip head contacts the ball. Then with short, rapid bounces you begin to bounce the ball... tap, tap, tap, until you bounce it onto your racket."

"Like this?" I said, bringing my racket down on the ball.

"That depends. If you are beating a snake senseless that should do it. If you are picking up a ball, you have to have a little refinement."

Determinedly, I grasped my racket on the end and with short taps began to attack the little white tennis ball. A crowd formed. "Whatya doing, dear?" asked a woman in a neat tennis dress.

"Trying to pick up the ball. My husband said I wasn't doing it right."

"You mean 'Paunchy' Gonzales over there?"

"Hey look, lady," said a man nearby. "You've no right to slur a male tennis player. This woman on the court looks like Totie Fields swatting flies."

"It all started when they began smoking in the gazebo," offered another male spectator.

Me? I was just sitting there beating that little white ball to death and thinking how easy it was when we just burned bras.

Coast Ceremonies

Vows Repeated

TODD-PALMER

Barbara Rae Palmer and Richard J. Todd exchanged nuptial vows and rings before the Rev. Jack Thomas in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Newport Beach.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Palmer of Newport Beach and Mrs. Helen Hurtado of Costa Mesa.

Honor attendants were Joanne Palmer and Dick McCoy. Others were Nancy, Marilyn, Linda and Jim Palmer, Tisa Hurtado, Mike and Jim Todd, Steve Barton, Greg Lareley and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Romero.

The bride is a graduate of Newport Harbor High School and Orange Coast College where her husband is a student. He is a graduate of Estaneta High School and Army Flight School. They will reside in Costa Mesa.

PARKER-HEALY

Cameo Wedding Chapel, Anaheim was the setting for the marriage ceremony linking Carol Jean Healy and Randall James Parker, both of Costa Mesa.

They are graduates of Estancia High School and he attends Golden West College.

Their parents are Mrs. Joseph Dragon of Costa Mesa, Mrs. Evelyn Canary, Costa Mesa, and James L. Parker, Reno.

Attendants were Deborah Amorde, Patti Smith, Margi Carpenter, Shelly Parker, Judy Zarley, Matthew Graham, Rick Parker, Mark Keeton, Jim Pirtle and Mike Graham.

The newlyweds will reside in Garden Grove.

IWANA-HONDA

UCI graduates Amy Emi Honda and David Kenji Iwana were married in the Community Church, Garden Grove with the Revs. Calvin Rybrandt and Howard Toriumi officiating.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Honda of Huntington Beach, was attended by Diane Honda, Susan Horinouchi, Sandi Fukanaga, Mrs. Billy Payne and Mrs. Ed Ledford.

Stanley Iwana served as best man, and ushers were James Izumi, Ken Honda, Dan Shirakawa and David Reiland.

The new Mrs. Iwana is a graduate of Fountain Valley High School and majored in math at UCI. Her husband, a psychology major, is an intern teacher in Laguna Beach. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Iwana of Los Angeles and a graduate of Lincoln High School.

MRS. PARKER

The newlyweds will reside in Santa Ana.

FORGY-LANE

Home in Huntington Beach are Marc Raymond Forgy and his bride, the former Suzette Ann Lane who were married in St. Hedwig's Catholic Church, Los Alamitos.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. Jack Lane of Rossmore and Cmdr. (ret.) and Mrs. James P. Forgy of Huntington Beach.

... Cotton Tales

In her 30s, she fell in love with the son of her publisher. Her parents refused to give her permission to marry him. Although she decided to go against their wishes, he died suddenly before they could marry.

At the age of 47, she fell in love again, with a farmer and attorney from the lake country where she had made her home. "She still didn't get her parents' permission but she married him anyway," Mrs. Bowles said.

"After her marriage, she was happy and felt accepted," Mrs. Bowles said. "Then her work went downhill."

"Something tragic has happened to most good writers," the teacher noted. Many were blind or suffered an illness.

"I have lived too normal a life, I hope, to accomplish

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is about the divorcee who wrote, "I'm madly in love with a married man and he loves me — but he'll never leave his wife and children and I refuse to give him up." She didn't fool anyone by signing herself "Trifling in Tulsa." The tramp lives in Atlanta. I hope you print this. I'd hate for her to think she fooled you — HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't bet the rent, Lovey. Read on.

DEAR ANN: The woman who signed her letter "Trifling in Tulsa" travels a little. But her home is in Miami, next door to mine. A few other facts were a little twisted, too. What a liar! — CAN'T LOVE THAT NEIGHBOR.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Did you check the postmark on the envelope that came with the letter signed "Trifling in Tulsa"? If it doesn't say Fresno, I'll eat my shoes. — NOBODY'S FOOL.

DEAR N.F.: I hope they aren't 4-inch platforms.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm surprised "Trifling in Tulsa" had the nerve to identify herself that way. She does, indeed, live in Tulsa. The least she could have done was substitute the name of another city in order to protect the identity of the man. Her letter was additional evidence that she has no principles, no character and no consideration. — EX-FRIEND

DEAR ANN: And all others who wrote: According to my mail, there's a good bit of triflin' going on all over. Thanks for your comments.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to have an answer for everyone. How about me? I am the stepmother of three teenage girls. I've taken care of them since the oldest child was eight. They've gotten into the habit of inviting their mother to the house for coffee. Lately they have been asking her to stay for supper.

I have explained to them that I am not keen on the arrangement, but they continue to ignore my wishes. It's becoming increasingly difficult to keep my dignity. The volcano bubbling inside me might erupt at any moment. I need some advice. — PATIENCE RUNNING OUT

DEAR P.R.O.: You should not be forced to extend hospitality to your husband's ex-wife. And he ought to protect you against this indignity.

The girls' father should inform them that they can visit their mother at her home any time they want to, but before they invite her to their home they must first check with you so you can arrange to be absent if you wish. They should also be told that if they are not at liberty to invite their mother to stay for supper without first getting permission from you.

Victim Tells Of Shooting At Stadium

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It was halftime and Charles Cooper and more than 50,000 other football fans were savoring the festive mood at Three Rivers Stadium, where the Pittsburgh Steelers led the Baltimore Colts 24-0.

The 46-year-old Cooper once a basketball All-American at Duquesne University, was seated just below the end zone scoreboard on the warm Saturday night.

Suddenly, he felt something hit his right thigh, just above the knee.

"I felt a sharp impact and a sting, and I thought somebody had thrown something other than confetti from above," he was to recall later.

"Then I looked down and saw blood on my pants. I looked around and asked what happened. It was incredible, but I did say, 'I think I've been shot.'" Cooper was right. He had been hit by a bullet fired from a .45-caliber revolver by an unknown sniper, who also fired another shot that struck a woman spectator in the foot.

The woman, Rose Marie Della, 38, of Westmoreland County, was sitting at the opposite end of the stadium, about even with the goal line.

Police say it's possible the shots were fired from a vantage point above and between the two victims, but they can't say for sure and they don't have a single witness.

"Getting shot is a shock even on the battlefield," Cooper recalled Monday from his hospital bed. "And you sure don't expect it to happen at a football game."

Mrs. Della was treated at the infirmary and sent home, but Cooper will be in the hospital another week and it will be several weeks after that before he returns to his job as a social worker.

"I still have a lot of pain and I guess that is to be expected," Cooper declared. Nonetheless, he said he took solace in the fact that nobody was injured more seriously by the shots, apparently fired at random into the stands.

"I would just as soon it happened to me than for somebody else to have been seriously hurt," he said. "I was lucky enough to be sitting in the position I was."

Initially, police said the shots may have been fired by a man dressed in white who entered the stadium by posing as an agent of the State Liquor Control Board.

The man told a stadium security guard that he was checking reports that vendors were selling alcoholic beverages to minors.

Nonetheless, police conceded Monday that the man in white may not have been related to the shooting.

then their record has faded steadily downward.

California lost 10 of its 14 games right before the All-Star break, going from 2½ games out of first to seven games back.

Since the All-Star game the Angels had fared about the same, winning just three while losing nine — including a three game sweep at the hands of Oakland over the weekend that set California 10½ games behind the leading A's.

Winkles, though, says he knows the answer. Winning.

"The only thing that will bring us out of the slump is to win some games," the Angels manager said.

"We've got to go out and win four or five games in a row. We can't win one or two then lose two or three."

Winkles says the time to start the change should be tonight, when the Angels open a three-city trip sending Nolan Ryan, 12-13, against the Milwaukee Brewers and Jerry Bell, 9-8.

Brohamer's Bat Hot

CHICAGO — Jack Brohamer, former Huntington Beach High star now playing second base for the Cleveland Indians, had a triple and two singles while driving in a run Monday night as they defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7-3, at Comiskey Park here.

Davis Cup Win

Smith's Shoulder Sore

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The United States, which recorded the longest set in Davis Cup history en route to victory over Chile in the American Zone Davis Cup final, forfeited a meaningless singles match Monday after Stan Smith turned up with a sore shoulder.

Smith and Erik van Dillen gave the U.S. team the margin of victory earlier in the day in doubles, rebounding from a two-set deficit for a 7-9, 37-39, 8-6, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Jaime Fillol and Pat Cornejo. Then Tom Gorman beat Cornejo 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 in another singles match for a 4-0 lead in the best-of-five tennis series.

Dennis Ralston, nonplaying captain of the U.S. team, said Smith had a slight shoulder injury and excused the tall Californian, who left immediately to meet business commitments in London.

The United States, which has won the Cup the last five years, will meet Romania, winner of the European Zone A final, in an inter-zone series Aug. 17-19 near San Francisco.

DETROIT CATCHER DUKE SIMS KNOCKS DOWN BOBBY MURCER AT HOME PLATE.

Ex-Halo Aids In Detroit's Thrilling Win

DETROIT (AP) — Former Angels player Aurelio Rodriguez was in a daze.

But the affable Detroit Tigers third baseman, a hero Monday night, wasn't the only one in a state of shock.

Most of the persons among the near capacity crowd of 41,101 at Tiger Stadium, and many in the national television audience, probably pinched themselves to make sure they weren't dreaming.

Was the confused 10th inning finish of Detroit's 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees, in which Rodriguez scored from first base on a bunt, for real?

How about the Tigers' three-run rally in the ninth, climaxed by pinch hitter Frank Howard's two-run homer off ace reliever Sparky Lyle which sent the game into extra innings tied 4-4?

Those things must have really happened, for the Tigers climbed back into first place in the frantic American League East race for the first time since late June.

Detroit, which has won 11 of 13 games since the All-Star break, holds a one-half game edge over Baltimore and a one-game lead over New York and Boston.

New York lost three of four to Detroit before a record Tiger Stadium four-game series total of 184,629 spectators.

Monday's outcome concluded a disastrous trip for the Yankees. They lost nine of 11.

"We were lucky to get this one," Tigers manager Billy Martin said after the latest triumph, "but New York was lucky to get its victory Saturday."

But the bottom of the 10th inning didn't begin with luck. Rodriguez opened with a solid single off Lyle. Then Brinkman laid down his bunt and here's what happened: Lyle fielded it, saw he had no play on Rodriguez at second base, then turned toward first. Second baseman Horace Clarke was slow getting to the bag and after hesitating, Lyle finally threw the ball.

It went wide of the bag and rolled foul toward the right field stands where Felipe Alou picked it up.

Rodriguez had reached third by then and would have held up but Alou's throw home skipped past catcher Thurman Munson's glove and rolled toward third. Rodriguez dashed home. Munson chased the ball. But finally third baseman Graig Nettles threw it to first baseman Matty Alou covering the plate.

Although umpire Red Flaherty's arm went up to signal Rodriguez out, it quickly came down as Alou couldn't hang onto the ball. Aurelio slid in head first.

Dodgers Win, 2-0

Alston Unconcerned About Rookies' Hitting

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Soon the days will dwindle to a precious few and Walter Alston waits to see how the three rookies in his starting line-up will react as the Los Angeles Dodgers reach for the National League's Western Division championship.

"Some of the kids are tailing off with the bat and I'm trying to convince them not to worry about it," the major's senior manager said Monday night after the Dodgers won a series opener against San Diego 2-0 behind left-hander Al Downing's five hit.

"Earlier in the year," Alston said, "kids like Dave Lopes, Ron Cey and Joe Ferguson (all rookies) were hitting over .300 and I didn't expect that to continue. I told them I don't care if they hit .210 as long as they don't let it affect the rest of their play."

"The Dodgers aren't hitting the way they were but their pitching is carrying them," said San Diego manager Don Zimmer after run-scoring singles by Willie Crawford and Cey helped Downing, 9-6, overcome the six-hit pitching of Clay Kirby, 7-12, and Mike Caldwell.

During most of the 20 seasons at the Dodgers helm, Alston has been blessed with remarkable pitching. His current staff leads the league with a 2.78 earned run average.

Nevertheless, the Dodgers are being pressed in their division and that's something that didn't appear likely to happen as recently as July 17, when their lead over second-place Cincinnati was 8½ games.

Since then the Dodgers have won nine and lost eight. Now they are only four games in front of the runner-up Reds, who had trailed by only three before their loss to Houston Monday night and the Dodgers' victory here.

Alston feared a let down after the Dodgers won two of three over the weekend in a series at San Francisco that dampened the title hopes of the third-place Giants.

THE DODGERS' DAVE LOPES AND BILL RUSSELL PULL A DOUBLE PLAY AGAINST SAN DIEGO.

Burned Driver Eager to Race

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — David "Salt" Walther, scarred from his brush with death in a fiery Indianapolis 500 race car accident two months ago, says he's anxious to return to racing but is waiting to see if new safety measures will be adopted.

"It'll be the last race of the year, if I can even make that," Walther told The Associated Press Monday after taking his first few steps since the May 28 crash.

"I'm waiting to see what the U.S. Auto Racing Association does about safety," said the 26-year-old driver, who also races hydroplanes.

"I was worried about it before. But now, after having gone through an accident like that, before I can make up my mind completely I want to look at the new rules."

"I'm going to try to run the unlimited hydroplanes, however."

Walther was placed in a private hospital room about two weeks ago after being transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital's special burn unit in early June with burns over most of his body. Hospital officials now describe his condition as good.

"For a month I didn't even know what was going on," he said. "I don't think there's any doubt, I'm lucky to be alive. I don't think anybody would dispute that."

The accident that nearly cost Walther his life came only 10 seconds after an aborted start in the rain-delayed Indy 500. Walther says he's been investigating the cause of the accident but isn't ready to make a definite statement on it.

"I felt that I got hit," he said. "We've had people send us film — people that were friends of ours. A lot of them show a car up by us and a puff of smoke, and it looks like I got hit."

Walther said his fingertips on both hands were amputated "because the gloves didn't come off so they had to cut them off — but that won't stop me from racing boats or the car."

Walther said he had skin grafts on his right hand and right wrist and his legs are still bandaged from the thigh down. He also said doctors were afraid they would have to cut off part of his nose, but it healed by itself.

"All the burns went away on the face and body," he said. "If I took my shirt off, you wouldn't even notice."

Nonetheless, Walther won't allow himself to be photographed while he remains in the hospital.

Purists Would Yell

Aaron Says Role as DH Would Blemish Mark

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Henry Aaron knew what he was talking about Monday, and he proved it in a hurry.

He said that if he hit home runs as a designated hitter, purists who claim too many things have changed since Babe Ruth hit a career record 714 home runs would have another argument.

So he went out and hit a home run in his third at bat as Atlanta's designated hitter in an exhibition against the Milwaukee Brewers. The game was played under American League rules,

A strapping 195 pounds before the accident, Walther complained that his weight plummeted 25 pounds while he was recuperating.

He said he expects to be released in a week or two and plans to return to his Dayton, Ohio, home to recuperate and start getting back in form.

"I used to lift weights four or five times a day," he said. "I've got my entire weight room ready, but just trying to walk is a new experience."

Widow Calls It Last Triumph For Roberto

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — "This is Roberto's last triumph," said Vera Clemente, filled with emotion during baseball's Hall of Fame induction ceremonies Monday.

"If he could have been here he would have dedicated it to the people of Puerto Rico, the people of Pittsburgh and fans throughout the United States," said the wife of Roberto Clemente, the former Pittsburgh Pirates star who died last New Year's Eve in a plane crash off his native Puerto Rico.

Clemente's three sons and the late outfielder's mother, Louisa Walker, as well as the Pittsburgh Pirates and club officials, were on hand for the occasion.

Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball, presided at the 34th annual ceremonies, unveiling the plaques of the latest inductees which boosted the Hall of Fame list to 142.

The ceremonies were interrupted briefly when Warren Spahn's brother-in-law collapsed during Spahn's acceptance speech. Leo Curran of Buffalo, N.Y., was treated by doctors on the scene and then taken to a local hospital.

Authorities said he apparently collapsed from exhaustion and reported he was in satisfactory condition.

Spahn later went on with his speech, saying the game was beyond reproach. "I'm a proud fellow," said Spahn.

"Guys play for the sake of winning," he concluded, visibly shaken by Curran's collapse.

which permit the DH.

The Brewers won, 7-5, but that mattered little to the 33,337 fans who came out on "Hank Aaron Day" in Wisconsin.

They came to see Aaron, who made his major league debut as a Milwaukee Brave in 1954. His sixth inning home run was made to order.

The fans cheered when he appeared, booed when he was thrown out, and exploded for two standing ovations after the home run.

At a news conference before the game, Aaron said he would just as soon do without the DH rule until after he breaks Ruth's record. He now has 701 homers.

"I hope the designated hitter will not come to the National League for a while," he said. "There are already too many logs on the fire about breaking Ruth's record — like my batting more times than Ruth. If after I break the record they want to adopt it, fine."

Aaron said he hopes to stay in baseball after retiring as a player.

"I'd like to stay in baseball in some front office capacity where I can be helpful to young kids," he said. "Where? Well, I've been with the Braves for 19 years and it's been a good relationship."

Asked if he would entertain other offers, Aaron said, "Well, I'll need a job and I've got to eat and feed my family. I like Milwaukee. If I had a choice this would be it."

He said he would not consider becoming a major league manager, but feels he would work "as hard in being a success in the front office as I worked on being a success as a player."

Pro Griddier Denies Marijuana Charge

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles quarterback John Reaves waived right to a jury Monday as his trial got under way here on marijuana possession charges.

Officer Mike Floyd testified that when he arrested the 23-year-old National Football League player outside a Tampa nightclub May 18, Reaves shouted at him: "My name is John Reaves. I play football for the Philadelphia Eagles. You can't arrest me."

Police said they spotted Reaves, a former University of Florida star, standing with his brother, Bob, 28, and Sharon Emerson, 21, in a parking lot passing around a marijuana cigarette.

As they approached, police said, Reaves tossed the butt to the ground.

Start Your Engines!
WITH DEKE HOULGATE

One year ago Harold J. Tippetts, director of the Utah Division of Parks and Recreation, declared, "The State of Utah has no intention of losing the Bonneville Salt Flats," adding that the historically significant landmark has "an unparalleled record of use as a high speed race track."

That statement came at the urging of Gov. Calvin Rampton, who had turned a sympathetic ear to the pleas of the advocates of a growing movement to "Save the Salt."

According to Mark Dees, city attorney of Inglewood, there is a growing body of evidence that potash mining on the edge of the salt is gradually depleting the surface, only one like it anywhere in the world.

His position is supported only by the few users of the salt flats who go back year after year to race their cars, plus some public spirited Utah citizens who share a sense of historical perspective about the salt.

Dees recently addressed the Utah Historical Society as president of the Bonneville 200 Mile an Hour Club, pointing out the significance of runs made there by John Cobb, Sir Malcolm Campbell, Ab Jenkins, Craig Breedlove, Gary Gabelich and other Land Speed Record setters to the American heritage. Tippetts was at the same meeting and told of plans to have the salt flats preserved as a national monument.

In front of TV news cameras later, Dees called for a state or federal investigation to make sure that potash mining was not draining the salt, indicating he and others believe what they see out there more readily than what state officials tell them.

The dispute centers around whether canals dug by the company mining the west end of the salt flats are draining off surface water that has acted for thousands of years as a preservative.

Tippetts claims his department has commissioned studies in 1967, 1968 and 1972 but failed to link the potash plant to deterioration of the surface. He admits some questions remain unanswered but insists the miners stopped pumping brine from the salt into one of its ditches in 1966 and the other in 1970. Dees disputes these findings.

"If it is true that the canals have breached the watertight 'bowl' surrounding the race course," Dees wrote in a report to other Bonneville racing enthusiasts, "then they draw the brine from the flats whether the canals are actually pumped directly or not."

"An experienced hydrologist who has worked on the Salt Flat problem states that, if our fears are confirmed, the flats can be saved by surrounding them with a ditch backfilled with impermeable clay or slurry at an estimated cost of $150,000 to $250,000."

This would achieve what the state is apparently trying to do — keep the salt flats in good condition without shutting down the mine. Dees suggests that if the state would forego the expense of making a recreation park out of nearby Wendover Air Force Base, it could easily afford to dike the salts in this manner. (That is only a suggested project.)

In the next few weeks this issue may become important in Utah, because Aug. 19 marks the start of the 25th annual Speed Week at the Salt. Dees said his inspection of the course last month showed a sea of white with no mud or blotches of clay marring the surface, the result of a very wet winter.

Good salt this year might take the heat off state officials, but veteran racers expect the ravage of one of the world's unique geographical wonders to continue.

Drag Racing to Japan

The Japanese complicate our economic problems by shipping us cute little automobiles and tiny transistor radios, but we're getting even. We are now exporting drag racing to Japan.

Tony Nancy, the Commodore Perry of the hot rod set, has just returned from triumphal tours of Japan and England flushed with success. He is already planning to spread the plague of noise, smoke and speed to other corners of the world, South America later this year and South Africa in the near future.

Nancy, an ex-Marine hero of the Korean War, is by far the most well traveled drag racer in the sport. He has raced in Australia, Italy and England before, but his assault in the Land of the Rising Sun may have the most significant effect on the future of drag racing internationally.

"I think you will find there will be a great deal of guys in drag racing in Japan," he said. "The typical Japanese in motor racing comes from a wealthy family. The average Joe doesn't participate."

"I got so many questions from these guys, and afterwards my sponsor, Revell, got a lot of letters asking for dimensions (See Start Your Engines, Page 18)

North Tabbed by 12 Over Rebs

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The South has been officially selected as 12-point underdog to the heralded North in the 14th annual All-Star Orange County football game at Orange Coast College Thursday night.

In a poll by Orange County sportswriters at Monday's pregame luncheon, coach Jim Everett's big, fast and talented North bunch was a unanimous choice to bury the South.

With such names as Western's Bob Acosta and Paul Charlton, Brea's Dan Carpenter, La Habra's Mike Crosby, Servite's Mark Herms and Arnold Angelici and Anaheim's Howard Carson, the South, with the no-names, appears to have little chance to survive the North option series.

Even South coach Dave Holland of Corona Del Mar was introduced as Bob Holland at the meeting and the faux pas seemed appropriate in the light of the North's seeming superiority in every department.

Everett named his starting lineup and in the offensive alignment he's tabbed Angelici (200) at center, Buena Park's Roy Shroeder (200) and Western's Tom DeLaHunt (215) at guards, Sunny Hills' Gus Coppens (245) and Servite's Kevin Stephenson (235) at tackles and Loara's Gary Stewart (190) and Valencia's Richard Hernandez (175) at tight and split ends.

In the backfield its Alleverything Bob Acosta of Western at quarterback, Carson at halfback, Western's Al Osborn at fullback and Carpenter at flanker.

The defensive setup includes Crosby, Western's Gary Caskey and Anaheim's Larry Estrada and Bob Wigginton in the secondary. Middle guard Jeff Barton (185) of Los Alamitos anchors the front four of Troy's Randy Fife (190) and either La Habra's Jerry Wight (213) or Magnolia's Roger Page (212), La Habra's Don Rogers (180) and Orange's Gary Harris (215).

At linebacker will be Charlton of Western (205) and Anaheim's Sam Tagaloa (200).

Both coaches foresee a wide open attack and Everett says he still is unable to view the full potential of the North's attack.

"We'll throw the ball and with the options available it should be a wide open attack," says Everett.

wondered what he was doing in the middle of it all: "We feel we're in very heavy, but we think we can be representative."

Master of ceremonies speaker Dick Tucker, Orange Coast College football coach, noted, "It's interesting to see kids making this the prime game of the summer," obviously referring to Acosta's disdain of the Los Angeles Shrine game Sunday in favor of participating in the 14th edition of the Orange County classic.

Cycle Injuries Kill Gomez' Son

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — Duane C. Gomez, son of baseball Hall of Fame pitcher Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, died here from injuries suffered in a motorcycle race, it was reported today.

Gomez, 20, a student at College of Marin, suffered shoulder, neck and head injuries in the accident and died five hours after surgery Sunday.

Race officials said Gomez slammed into the motorcycle of another rider who had lost control of his vehicle.

Rentzel Loses

LOS ANGELES — Lance Rentzel lost another immediate effort to rejoin the Los Angeles Rams but a fight against his suspension will continue in Superior Court Aug. 22, Judge David A. Thomas declined to issue a temporary restraining order Monday. But he set the hearing date for commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and the Rams to show cause why Thomas should not order a preliminary injunction in Rentzel's favor. The 29-year-old wide receiver was suspended July 20 for at least the 1973 season. Rozelle cited "conduct detrimental" to the NFL.

Gibson Out

ST. LOUIS — Veteran pitcher Bob Gibson will be lost to the St. Louis Cardinals for four to six weeks due to a knee injury he suffered last weekend in New York, the team announced Monday.

Dr. Stan London, team physician, said the right-hander will undergo surgery this week in St. Louis to repair torn cartilage on the outside of the right knee. London reported after a series of tests, however, that there was no ligament damage.

Spencer Hit

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — Jim Spencer's two-run single in the seventh inning gave the Texas Rangers a 6-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Monday in the annual Hall of Fame exhibition baseball game.

Bonavena Wins

LAS VEGAS — Argentine heavyweight Oscar Bonavena sent Roy "Cookie" Wallace sprawling to the canvas barely into the first round then put him down three more times before scoring a sixth round knockout Monday night.

The once fourth-ranked challenger, Bonavena knocked Wallace down in the opening round, then decked him again in the second, fourth and twice in the sixth rounds — the second time for keeps.

After the first four knockdowns Wallace managed to climb back to his feet grinning each time, which appeared to be a ruse.

Hicks had games of 212, 215, 268 and 254 for a 949 block and 9503 total to move him within 83 pins of new leader, Bob Ramirez of Anaheim.

For the first time in eight weeks Tustin's Fred Bernal is not the leader as the former pacesetter posted a 774, fourth lowest among the 16 finalists, to slip into fourth place at 9468. Azusa's Dave Frame is third at 9476.

BEVERLY BIRKHEIMER (40) PLAYS TIGHT DEFENSE FOR WESTMINSTER.

Girls Agree to Take Bops, Try Out for Boys' Polo Team

By STEVE BRAND
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Word spread fast in the Tuesday night water polo league at Orange Coast College.

"Hey, Westminster High has a couple of girls playing on their team," said the rumors. Only they weren't rumors. There are two girls playing for the Lions' entry in the league, which is the equivalent of a junior varsity circuit.

They are Debbie Ince and Beverly Birkheimer, a pair of 16-year-olds.

Diving, tennis, golf and track figured to be the first sports joined by the girls after the CIF state ruling that they were eligible for all varsity competition.

But water polo? Isn't that the sport where the players have been known to bop each other on the head and kick the opponent under water?

"That's the chance Debbie and Beverly agreed to take," says Westminster High water polo coach Gerald Mannion.

"When they came out we told them they would have to take the training and game punishment like all the other boys... I mean players."

"That means when they join the team in the fall, they'll have to lift weights, run and go through all the training rigors required of the boys."

"We told them there would be no concessions, but at the same time we wouldn't push them any harder just because they're girls."

Mannion admits there are certain drawbacks to being a girl trying out for water polo.

"Debbie and Beverly aren't as strong as the boys and this is a very physical sport," says Mannion. "Also, they aren't as fast swimming as the others."

"They're like freshmen because they've never played the game before."

Both girls will be seniors in the fall and while they've been in almost every summer game, they haven't scored a goal.

"We figure the two girls will be on the junior varsity team this fall," says Mannion.

"They don't appear to be good enough to make the varsity but that's no disgrace for two players who are just learning the game."

"There are two freshmen, Beth Whipple and Leslie Crowell, and a sophomore, Kim DeCroma, who will try out for the frosh-soph team in the fall and they're the ones who may make the varsity in the future."

"I give the girls lots of credit coming out. It's all so new to them and the boys."

"So far the boys have not looked at them as a threat to their position on the team. One thing, the boys on our team haven't clobbered them like they do the other boys."

"There are some humorous changes, too."

"For example, while explaining the man-to-man defense to the team, the girls had big grins. I changed my vocabulary so now it's a person-to-person defense."

The Westminster coach, while seeing the girls fit nicely into the summer water polo program, doesn't see the girls doing quite as well at sports like football.

"There are certain areas that are a male's domain right now and one of them is football," he says. "They just don't stand a chance against the boys who have played the game since they were old enough to walk. Maybe in the future, but I wouldn't even like to see a girl out on the football field."

So much for Mannion being an advocate of woman's lib.

"You won't see many girls coming out by themselves for previously all-boy sports," he adds.

"Debbie and Beverly talked it over and by encouraging each other, asked if they could play for the team. The same thing with the three youngsters who will join us this fall."

"That doesn't mean a lone girl or even a group of girls couldn't make it big in water polo as early as 1973."

"The way I see it," says Mannion, "if a girl or group of girls can make the team and give your club a good chance at the championship, you'd be a fool not to allow them to play on the team."

"Obviously, all the coaches in the area don't agree. Some coaches have made it particularly tough on the girls to try to discourage them, but all I ask is that they do what we ask the boys to do as far as training and workouts go."

"If they do that, there's no reason they should be left off the team."

peared to infuriate Bonavena. Referee Buddy Basilio stopped the fight one minute into the sixth after Bonavena floored Wallace with a barrage of punches to the face.

● Fumbles Aid
CLEVELAND — The San Francisco 49ers capitalized on three fumbles deep in Cleveland territory and went on to defeat the Browns 27-16 in a National Football League exhibition game Monday night. San Francisco tackle Bob Hoskins recovered a fumble by Browns' quarterback Mike Phipps in the first quarter on the Cleveland 13-yard line. Three plays later Larry Schreiber ran over left tackle from the two for the 49ers' first touchdown and a 7-0 lead and they never trailed again.

● U.S. Victory
TIJUANA, Mexico — The U.S. men's team won the third North, Central American and Caribbean Volleyball Championship, beating Cuba Monday night 3-0. The set scores were 15-12, 15-11 and 15-10 and the match lasted one hour, 10 minutes. Cuba, which won the two previous championships in Mexico City in 1969 and Havana in 1971, finished in second place.

In the women's division, the American team finished third after it beat Mexico 3-2 Monday night in sets of 15-10, 3-15, 2-15 and 15-11 in a two-hour, 10-minute match.

Cuba, for the first time, ended in first place in the final round of women's competition played Monday night. The Cuban women beat Canada 3-0. The sets were 15-11, 15-6 and 15-12 in a one-hour, 10-minute game.

● Pilic Triumph
CINCINNATI — Fourth-seeded Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia overcame a strong challenge from Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to win his first round match of the $75,000 Western Tennis Championships Monday, 7-5, 6-4.

In the other men's division match involving a seeded player, eighth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina overcame a strong second set rally to beat Italy's Paolo Bertolucci, 6-1, 7-6.

Cage Wrapup

Escadrille Aims For 2nd Place

Escadrille takes aim at a share of second place in tonight's final salvo of action in the Costa Mesa Open summer basketball league at Costa Mesa High.

Escadrille needs a victory over wireless Saddleback in the 8:30 test following the Red Carpet Realty-Arby's clash at 7:15.

A & C Properties clinched a tie for second in the loop Monday with a 90-67 triumph over the Orange Coast Alumni at Estancia High.

And champion Blackies closed out its season with a 63-56 victory over Nads for its 12th win against two losses.

In other basketball action Mater Dei High closed out the regular season at Santa Ana College with its fourth summer loss to Santa Ana Valley, 56-38.

Mater Dei returns to action Wednesday evening in the loop's playoffs, facing Villa Park at 7.

A & C's victory was paced by the ex-Huntington Beach High trio of Mike Contreras, Brian Ambrozich and Roy Miller.

Newport Poloists Win, 7-3

Newport Harbor High's summer league water polo outfit shook off Garden Grove Monday night at Orange Coast College with a 7-3 victory to assume sole possession of first place in the No. 1 league standings.

And Marina upped its mark to 6-0 in the No. 3 varsity setup at Costa Mesa High with a 10-3 win over Edison.

Other results in the No. 1 varsity league at Orange Coast College saw Mira Costa staying a half-game off Newport's pace with an 11-2 win over Estancia; Costa Mesa whipped Westminster, 4-1; and Lakewood topped Anaheim, 7-3.

Additional results at Costa Mesa included Mission Viejo's 5-0 win over Servite; Los Alamitos' 11-0 triumph over Bolsa Grande; and Troy's 9-2 decision over Rancho Alamitos.

Jim Lyle led Mission Viejo's 5-0 win with three goals.

Newport's leading scorer was Greg Horman with three goals while Tom Greule led Costa Mesa with a pair of markers.

Marina's scoring was paced by Doug Fabian and Jim Rock with four and three tallies.

of cars, specifications and just information in general about drag racing.

"While I was there they took a million pictures of my car. You know how good those Japanese guys are at copying."

Nancy's exhibition runs in his fuel dragster, "The Loner," were made during the nation's biggest motor sports event, the Japanese Grand Prix at Mt. Fuji Raceway.

Nancy's burnout and backup maneuvers which are always made to heat up the tires so they will give better traction on the timed runs, were disappointing at first to the 110,000 fans on race day. They thought he had blown up his car.

"The public address announcer kept explaining over and over what was going on, and then they understood. On the last run I did a fire burnout, and the people about fell out of the stands, including the Prince of Japan in his private box."

Afterwards Nancy was asked to go up into the stands to sign autographs.

"That was a big mistake," he said, but not seriously. "I didn't think I would ever get away. I was up there for two hours. There were so many people around me I couldn't see the sun. I thought I was going to get claustrophobia."

"We (the driver was accompanied by NHRA photographer Leslie Lovett and mechanic Steve Kreimendahl) handed out 15,000 color photos of the car, and I think they wanted me to sign every one of them. I signed everything from bellies to shirts and hats."

The "bellies," he explained, belonged to attractive young girls who wore midriff outfits to the race.

If drag racing establishes a beachhead in the country or not, Nancy has left behind him a new line of products which the speed-hungry Japanese are grabbing up — model cars, T-shirts, crash helmets with "The Loner" painted on them, decals and autographed pictures.

Before Nancy made the junket the Japanese distributor for Revell wouldn't buy model car sets of his dragster, because the Japanese simply didn't know what it was. Now the dealer can't get enough to sell.

That'll teach those people for messing up our currency. We will now clutter up their homes with pieces of those model cars.

McGovern Ex-Nixon Aides Scramble for Jobs

Rumor Probe OK

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A federal judge has given limited approval for a check of illegitimate-birth records here in connection with the "Fort Wayne story" mentioned during the Senate Watergate committee hearings.

The "Fort Wayne story" was referred to in a memorandum written by former White House aide H.R. Haldeman. The nature of the story was not revealed at the hearings.

BUT THE Washington Post later reported that the "Fort Wayne story" was that Sen. George S. McGovern (D-S.D.) fathered an illegitimate child here in the early 1940s.

McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1972, has denied the story.

U.S. District Court Judge Hermann E. Busse approved the search of illegitimate birth records even though he said he was "very reluctant to authorize any sort of snooping expedition."

BUSSE GRANTED access to the confidential records to attorneys for the Fort Wayne, News-Sentinel, and the city health department only on condition that, if the controversial birth certificate is found, the mother's and child's names will be withheld.

He also stipulated that the newspaper must tell the public if the search is unsuccessful.

The attorneys granted the right to make the search said they would start the checks by Wednesday morning.

THE POST said it confirmed the existence here of a birth certificate listing a George S. McGovern of Mitchell, S.D., as the father of a child born out of wedlock. Mitchell is McGovern's hometown.

The newspaper said the mother told it her late husband, not McGovern, was the father. She said she had known McGovern in the 1940s but hadn't listed his name on the birth certificate and didn't know who did.

MEANWHILE, A former Fort Wayne health employee said that she recalled an incident last year involving what she thought was the same birth certificate.

But Virginia McVay, formerly in charge of the records division for the Fort Wayne Board of Health, said the certificate never contained the name of the father.

She said a man who carried an identification card from the U.S. Senate attempted to get a copy of the birth certificate Aug. 18, 1972.

She said that, because the man has the name of the mother and date of birth of the child, she was able to give him a form with the information on the birth certificate. But she said neither the record nor the original birth certificate listed the father's name.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nixon Administration officials who lost their jobs because of the Watergate scandal have no government financial fringe benefits on which to rely, and several presidential appointees have scrambled to find new jobs to maintain their standard of living.

Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who quit his $60,000-a-year post April 30 because of his "personal and professional association" with figures in the scandal, said when he resigned he could live "about 30 days" without a job.

KLEINDIENST NOW is practicing law in Washington, but admits business could be better.

"John Mitchell is one of the few people who is prepared for adversity," Kleindienst said, alluding to the affluence of President Nixon's former campaign manager, who also is a former attorney general.

But Mitchell took a leave from his Wall Street law firm when he was indicted with financier Robert Vesco for allegedly attempting to conceal a $200,000 campaign contribution to Nixon's 1972 campaign. Maurice F. Stans, a millionaire and a campaign finance chairman, was indicted with Mitchell and Vesco.

MITCHELL AND his wife, Martha, continue to maintain an expensive apartment on New York's Fifth Avenue.

But in a recent long distance telephone call by Mrs. Mitchell to UPI reporter Helen Thomas, Mitchell interrupted their conversation to say "Who's paying for this call? Remember, I'm unemployed now."

Advised by Miss Thomas that his wife called her, Mitchell admonished the women to cut the conversation short.

MITCHELL, Kleindienst and former White House aides John Ehrlichman, H. R. "Bob" Haldeman and John W. Dean III were presidential appointees and therefore ineligible for health, life insurance, leave and pension benefits assured regular civil servants, according to the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

Other departed Administration officials also failed to qualify for benefits because of their appointee status or because they quit or were fired, the commission said.

A spokesman added that denied benefits only are denied civil servants who have been convicted of endangering national security or espionage.

THE LIFE STYLES of the officials, many of whom were in government for the first time and serving for about four years, have changed radically.

Many of them have devoted hours to preparing their testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee or conferring with their lawyers. The re-election committee, Director L. Patrick Gray III, who was refused Senate confirmation because of his investigation of the Watergate, has returned to his Stonington, Conn. law practice.

Former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Madrian, who testified before the committee, has returned to his family construction business in Phoenix. He also maintains a home in San Clemente.

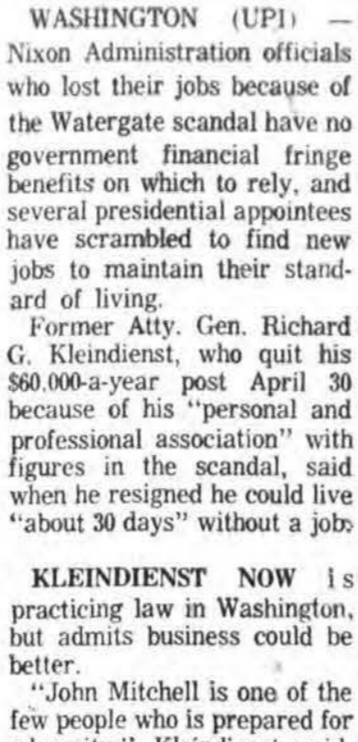

Dean resides in a fashionable section of Alexandria, Va., referred to by developers as "the Watergate of Alexandria."

The "Watergate Seven" who conducted the break-in are jailed, except for former CIA agent James W. McCord Jr., who is cooperating with the investigation and continues to operate his private security firm in suburban Maryland.

EHRlichman HAS returned to Seattle, Wash. with his family. Herbert W. Kalmbach, of Newport Beach, the President's former lawyer, told the Senate committee that he personally lent his friend, Ehrlichman, $20,000 after he lost his White House job.

Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former Nixon campaign official, has remained on the inaugural committee payroll temporarily to conclude the committee's unfinished business remaining from last January. He and his family are vacationing in London.

GARAGE SALE USA.

The neighborhood garage sale is sort of an American institution. Like baseball, apple pie, and Chevrolets.

So it seems only natural that Chevrolet should have a Garage Sale.

Ah, but unlike some garage sales you've been to, Chevrolet is not selling antiques. Just shiny new cars, and some tough new trucks.

We can't tell you, in this ad, exactly which models and styles and colors. After all, there are over 6000 Chevrolet dealers across the country.

We're simply here to suggest that if you're even remotely in the market for a new Chevrolet, you ought to go down to your dealer's and browse.

With a little luck you'll come up with a big bargain.

Impala Custom Coupe. The Great American Value year after year. Traditionally high in resale value, too.

Impala Sport Sedan. A fine-looking 4-door that's both elegant and sporty. Roomy, quiet, a real value indeed.

Rubble Searched For Lost Wife

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The search for missing San Juan Capistrano housewife Rochelle White has led to the Forster Canyon dump where Orange County sheriff's investigators for the past three days have sifted through tons of rubbish with the help of heavy equipment.

Thus far, the crew of three investigators and several dump workers has found nothing relevant to the case in the gigantic mound of reeking trash and garbage.

Detectives seem convinced that the 22-year-old brunette who lived at 16702 Calle La Bomba met with foul play late last month when she vanished from the family townhouse.

The investigators at the scene early today declined even to say they represented the Sheriff's Office but superiors admitted later that the unpleasant — and thus far futile — task had gone on since early in the weekend.

Spokesmen said that the area where the efforts are concentrated is the spot which was open for dumping during the period that Mrs. White was first reported missing by her husband, Roger White, 25, an electronics machinist.

Although official sources would not elaborate, one other source, a dump patron, said that over the weekend county employees told him the investigators were following up on a tip.

The county dump aide was quoted as saying a witness had told officers that he noticed someone dumping what could have been a body in the general area of today's digging.

To accomplish their task, county workers have dug a trench several hundred feet long and about 50 feet wide.

A bulldozer moves large quantities of the material and then a long shovel extension stirs the debris while investigators watch.

The detectives, as well, were using pitchforks to examine some material this morning.

The three days of digging mark the latest in a series of quests for leads into the disappearance of the brunette who had been scheduled to appear at a divorce hearing two days after she vanished.

Her car was found abandoned in Carlsbad, a coastal community immediately downcoast from Oceanside, but investigators said no evidence of foul play was noted in or around the vehicle.

The missing woman's husband has been interviewed several times, investigators said late last week, but has not been able to shed light on the disappearance.

The White couple faced a divorce hearing which was rescheduled to next Monday because of the woman's disappearance.

In that action, Mrs. White had alleged that she was subjected to physical abuse at the hands of her spouse during their four years of marriage. Also allied with the action is a court order forbidding her husband to harass, threaten or molest his estranged wife.

Ventura Tough On Gambling

VENTURA (AP) — Police Chief Richard O. Baugh has warned local residents that the cards are stacked against them if they continue their friendly sessions of bridge and poker for money.

Announcing a crackdown Monday against illegal games of chance, Baugh said his department received complaints from four of this city's 60,000 residents.

"Based on a three-month investigation, we've found that trailer parks, churches, social clubs and other groups are getting together, playing a little bingo, having little lotteries and things of this nature, and these are all misdemeanors," the chief said.

SHERIFF'S INVESTIGATORS RAKE THROUGH DEBRIS AT FORSTER CANYON DUMP From Santa Ana, Confirmation That Detectives Are Searching for Mrs. White's Body

Clemente Customers 'Resigned'

By MARCI DODSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A frustrated silence has seemingly surrounded the meat counters in San Clemente stores as shoppers disbelievingly eye the high meat prices and almost-empty shelves.

The shoppers' attitudes have been marked with a lack of hostility or vocal displeasure as chicken and pork prices soar and beef counters, where steaks and roasts used to be, are nearly bare.

"The customers have been extremely friendly, considering the circumstances," said a butcher from Safeway.

"They've been really understanding, although I do hear a few unkind comments," he added.

The same attitude has been noted by Reggie Fernandez, owner of the Red Steer butcher shop.

"They're not too happy about the prices, but as long as they got their meat, they're satisfied. And they've been buying it up like there's no tomorrow."

Despite the meat prices, shoppers have been stocking up on beef in anticipation of the lifting of the price freeze Sept. 16, Fernandez said.

"They know the price is going to go up soon. When the freeze is lifted, we're going to see the highest prices we've seen in any inflation," he added.

The customers' shopping rush on beef, in addition to the butchers' difficulty in buying beef from the wholesalers, has created the problem of the empty beef shelves, the butchers agreed.

"Anything we have in the case right now is all we're certain about. We'll keep getting more meat, but we can't be certain about what cuts or how much," said Safeway's butcher.

"I can get all the beef I want, if I want to pay the wholesalers' prices," complained Fernandez. "But to make money on the prices they charge, nobody would buy it."

"They've got us stuck. So why work if you can't make money? I'm going to have to take a vacation pretty soon when I run out of what I have," he added.

Meanwhile, back at the meat counters, a few comments from the shoppers could be heard as they inspected the rapidly disappearing beef:

"It's frightening, just frightening," said one woman.

"I'd be a vegetarian, but even that's too expensive these days," another said.

"I can't believe the prices, but if you have to eat, you have to eat. So what can you do?"

Plot to Murder Officials Told

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The government's star witness has told of a conspiracy to assassinate political figures, and violence with such weapons as crossbows and firebombs in the trial of the "Gainesville Eight."

The eight antiwar activists are charged with conspiring to disrupt last summer's national GOP convention.

The prosecution witness, William Lemmer, the former Arkansas head of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW), gave a detailed account Monday of a weekend-long Gainesville planning session at which the alleged conspiring was discussed.

Coast Mother Offered Help

Offers of help, free flights to Denver and some donations of funds have begun to arrive for Mrs. Linda Rea of Capistrano Beach as she continues to worry about the fate of her son who lies near death in a Colorado hospital.

Her 3-year-old son Jason, remains in extremely serious condition at the University of Colorado Medical Center where doctors have definitely ruled out for the present the possibility of the youngster could qualify as a transplant donor.

Jason who arrived at the center late last week unable to breathe on his own. He became progressively stronger and a day later, physicians took off the life-giving respirator and discovered the youngster — the victim of a tragic pool accident — could breathe unaided.

Since then, the comatose boy's condition has stabilized somewhat and today spokesmen for the center said the boy's blood pressure has been appearing steady and strong.

"He's being fed from a tube in his stomach which was put there before he was flown to Denver. The operation took all sorts of things out of him, the poor thing," said Mrs. Rea.

"So many people think I'm in Denver, and telegrams from old friends have been sent there and most of the offers of help have gone there, too," she added.

But the 29-year-old mother said that as of now, she is convinced that flying to Denver would serve little or nothing. "It would just make me feel worse

Showdown Looms $10,000 Elimination Fee

In San Juan Recycling Feud

An anticipated showdown in a bitter feud between present operators and the ousted founder of the World Repair, Inc., recycling center never materialized before concerned city councilmen in San Juan Capistrano Monday.

Instead, the officials quietly accepted a staff report endorsing the official status of the recycling operation headquartered at city hall and agreed to hear another progress report at the first meeting in September.

One flurry of discussion, however, did emanate from the issue Monday as the ousted founder, Lionel Burt, asked to have the chance to peruse documents recently filed with the city from WRI President Walter Jobson. He also asked — and won — an invitation to plead his case before City Attorney James Okazaki.

Councilmen agreed to both points, but emphasized that they did not relish the prospect of becoming arbiters in the dispute.

Burt was ousted from the board of the non-profit group last spring after returning from a stay at June Lake, and shortly afterwards began lodging charges of financial mismanagement of the center which processes donated materials for recycling. Profits from the sale of those materials pay salaries to two workers but board members do not obtain any recompense, Jobson has said.

In recent weeks the dispute has reached all the way to the streetside collection bins where Burt and his foes each have competed for the same donated newspapers, cans and bottles.

About a week ago, Burt also hauled away several bales of processed newsprint from the center site. The ensuing hassle resulted in City Manager Donald Weidner ordering the posting of signs at civic center forbidding access by "unauthorized persons."

The only strong voice on the council Monday came from Councilman Edward Chermak who vowed that if he were to decide on the fate of the center in San Juan "I'd boot them all out."

Clemente Woman Faces Trial in Murder Plot

A San Clemente woman and a male co-defendant have been ordered to face trial in Orange County Superior Court on charges that they plotted the killing of his business partner.

Siberian Tiger Terrorizes Kids, Killed by Police

LAKESIDE (AP) — A 250-pound Siberian tiger was shot to death by sheriff's deputies as it terrorized six children in a bedroom early today. None of the children was reported hurt.

The tiger was one of several wild animals kept in an enclosure at the home of William Hampton, a trainer, sheriff's officers said.

Hampton was booked in county jail after a man attempting to serve a court order sought by Hampton's wife was shot in the chest.

Michael C. Wood, 22, of Brea was taken to San Diego's University Hospital in satisfactory condition after being hit by birdshot pellets.

Hampton, 30, was booked for investigation of assault with intent to commit murder, Sheriff's Lt. James Williams said.

The tiger confronted two sheriff's deputies answering a call about a prowler in the house but fled into the bedroom where the children were sleeping.

Williams said it lunged at them but apparently none was injured. As the big cat prepared to jump at them, a deputy killed it.

Wood was a friend of Hampton's wife, trying to serve a show cause order. Williams said, when the shotgun was fired from inside the house.

The sheriff's officer said there was no explanation why the tiger was in the house at the time the deputies arrived. Williams said it was learned later the animal was declawed.

Judge James Turner set Aug. 20 as the trial date for Betty Love flatley, 46, of 1880 N. El Camino Real, and Carl Leo Osowski, 50, of Anaheim. They are free on bail on charges of soliciting commission of a murder.

Those charges were filed after San Clemente police tapped telephone conversations which allegedly indicated that Osowski was prepared to pay a substantial sum of money to eliminate his business partner, George Minkian.

It was alleged in municipal court action that the plan to kill Minkian was discussed over brunch at the Laguna Niguel Country Club. It was testified that the figure of $10,000 was quoted as the appropriate fee for the removal of the Long Beach man.

The prosecution said its key witness is a man who once lived with Mrs. Flatley at her San Clemente home and who allegedly was offered the job of eliminating Minkian.

Governor Dumps Indian Adviser

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has dumped his chief adviser on Indian affairs.

Reagan spokesman Rudy Garcia said Monday the contract of H. D. Timm Williams as head of the state's Indian Assistance Project would not be renewed for another year.

The Indian office itself will continue "in one form or another" and the governor's office is seeking a replacement for Williams, Garcia said in an interview.

Agnew Retains Law Firm Aid Against Charges

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

The Wall Street Journal said the allegations stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967-1968 and from federal contracts in Maryland let since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The federal contracts were let by the General Services Administration, the agency in charge of constructing federal (See AGNEW, Page 2)

2nd U.S. Bombing Error Revealed

Tells His Concern

Kleindienst 'Wept' In Watergate Coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the pre-dawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its coverup.

Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it. "You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails."

The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew.

Kleindienst also expressed outrage when he learned that John D. Ehrlichman tried to interfere with the grand jury investigation and taped his conversations with Kleindienst.

Kleindienst testified as the next to last witness before the committee recesses until after Labor Day.

Kleindienst said he learned the full Watergate story for the first time in the early morning of April 15, after John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury.

Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

"This was the first time, since June 17, 1972 that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of these people were involved in anyway, in the cover-up, or that incident," Kleindienst testified.

"Two of these men (named by Silbert and Petersen) are two of my closest friends I've ever had in my life, and I think one of the things I did that night, is, I wept."

His two friends were John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, and Robert C. Mardian, another former Justice Department official who later worked for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP). (Mardian has a home in San Clemente.)

Also implicated, Kleindienst said, were Dean and Magruder; Frederick C. LaRue, a CRP official and Mitchell associate; and Nixon's two closest aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

This exchange occurred between Kleindienst and Fred Thompson, the committee's Republican counsel:

Thompson: "You went to see the President the 15th?"

Kleindienst: "Yes, sir."

Thompson: "Did you substantially tell him what they had told you?"

Kleindienst: "To the best of my ability, because I took the notes that I had written on my wife's blue stationery and I had them in my pocket, and I read from my notes."

Thompson: "And what was the President's reaction?"

Kleindienst: "He was . . . very upset. He was . . . uh . . . very upset."

Prison Measure Placed in Limbo

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A reorganization of California's prison system was somewhere in legislative limbo today after two apparently contradicting votes on the state Senate Finance Committee.

The committee Monday voted 7-6 to send the bill to the Senate floor. By the same margin Monday, it voted to hold the bill for between-sessions study.

All correctional programs would be brought under a single agency instead of the current system of different agencies for youth, women and men under the bill by Sen. Craig Biddle (R-Riverside).

subpoena.

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refuse to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction.

"The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," the Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday. Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be.

After Nixon's lawyers filed their opinion, U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica gave Cox until Monday to respond. Sirica asked for and was granted until Aug. 17 for any additional written reply. Sirica scheduled oral argument for 7 a.m. PDT Aug. 22.

Cox had subpoenaed tapes of nine presidential conversations related to the Watergate case.

The Senate Watergate committee also subpoenaed presidential tapes documents. President Nixon refused to comply with any of the subpoenas.

The White House brief repeated Cox's argument that the President had waived any claim of executive privilege when he permitted aides to testify before the Watergate committee about the conversations.

The White House contended that the President's letter to Sirica July 25 notifying the judge that he would not comply with Cox's subpoena "constitutes a valid and formal claim of executive privilege by Richard M. Nixon in his official capacity as President of the United States to withhold information the disclosure of which he has determined would be contrary to the public interest."

Cox's subpoenas for the presidential recordings originally included other demands.

The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun also reported that the investigation involved allegations of kickbacks from private contractors to Maryland and Baltimore County political figures.

The Journal said the vice president sought a White House audience after learning of the investigation, presumably to inform President Nixon.

A Nixon spokesman declined comment Monday night but said the White House was aware of Agnew's statement before it was released.

The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore.

Hearing Ruckus

Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons abruptly read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room.

The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately.

The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement." It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room.

Police pushed them to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration.

By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

Accidental Toll Climbs Past 400

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island is six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

responsibility for American air strikes in Indochina, said he could neither confirm nor deny that the second bombing mistake occurred. He said the command did not have enough information to formulate a statement.

There was no letup in the U.S. bombing. Heavy explosions could be heard from areas around Phnom Penh as U.S. fighter-bombers kept up support of government ground forces. There was no word of B52 operations, but it was considered unlikely that there had been any curtailment because of the tragedy at Neak Luong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The casualty toll at Neak Luong rose today as U.S. Embassy officials said the count now was 137 killed and 268 injured.

Cambodian military officers at Neak Luong issued higher casualty figures, saying 189 persons were killed, including 96 soldiers and marines. Doergel said the embassy's casualty count came from initial Cambodian army reports.

False Attack Reports Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Air Force officer testified today he was secretly ordered to falsify reports of tactical air strikes by American fighter planes deep into Cambodia as late as April 1971.

The testimony by former Capt. George R. Moses significantly broadens allegations of false reporting on the Cambodian bombing campaign ordered at the highest levels of the Nixon administration during 1969, 1970 and 1971.

Saying there was a dual reporting system for tactical strikes similar to that used for the B52 strikes, Moses testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "America does not need to be defended by lies and deception."

CUSD Trustees Give OK To Budget of $13 Million

A $13 million budget calling for a 4.84 tax rate was adopted by trustees of the Capistrano Unified School District Monday night.

The rate jump — 42.5 cents — was the highest in district history.

After little discussion, trustees unanimously approved the budget which outlines expenditures $1.6 million greater than last year's.

Superintendent Truman Benedict called the document a "sound budget," noting that this is the first year the school district will be operating under Senate Bill 90, an attempt by the state legislature to equalize school districts and limit their tax income.

"There are many advantages and disadvantages to the bill," Benedict told the trustees. "The biggest disadvantage to our district is the greatest increase in the tax rate that we've ever seen."

The new tax rate is 42.5 cents greater than the past year's primarily because although expenditures for the district increased, state revenue to the district did not.

"We will still be able to offer an educational program to the students equal to or better than what we have in the past," Benedict added.

Charles Conklin, representing the district's teachers' organization, told the board the teachers hope the trustees will consider upgrading employees' fringe benefits to "at least be competitive with the other districts."

The adoption of the budget was the last step in months of deliberations to arrive at a final budget for the district.

Hooker said nine incidents have been reported since January. He said they were unrelated and occurred in different areas of the campus.

Spacemen View Sun—Situation's Rosy

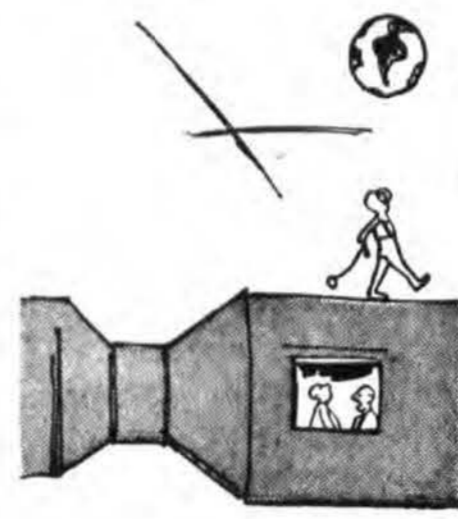

Skylab Hopes Glowing

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts today switched on their sun-watching telescopes, signalling their return to orbital research after a record 6½ hour odd job spacewalk.

Ground engineers, outraged by tests and the spacemen's outside inspection, were more confident in the future of the giant orbiting lab and officials were optimistic the Skylab 2 pilots could return safely in their mechanically troubled Apollo ferry ship, rather than be rescued. Civilian scientist-astronaut Owen K. Garriott powered up the solar observatory and beamed back television pictures of the sun seen through the battery of telescopes which give scientists the best views ever of earth's nearest star.

GARRIOTT, JACK R. Lousma and Alan L. Bean were already up and working on a radio teleprinter when mission control gave the astronauts a wakeup call at 5:06 a.m. PDT, an hour later than normal.

The daily flight plans, changes in procedures and all lengthy messages are sent to Skylab on the teleprinter but the pilots informed mission control that nothing had printed overnight. "Okay, we fixed the teleprinter," Lousma reported after making a small adjustment in a rubber ring on the printer. "You can send the messages. It looks like it's going to work all right."

The silver and white awning Garriott and Lousma hoisted over the space station, like sailors raising a sail, has already started dropping interior temperatures, solving an overheating problem.

LOUSMA AND mission commander Bean concentrated on medical experiments, and all three pilots hoped to get some rest from Monday's fatiguing spacewalk that kept them up past scheduled bedtime. It was by far the longest men had spent outside an orbiting spaceship and doubled the mark set by the Skylab 1 astronauts in June.

Before going to bed early today, Lousma told mission control the 17,000 mile an hour spacewalk "was like riding a white horse on top of the world, kind of like Peter Pan."

Ground controllers, meanwhile, breathed easier after a thorough check of engineering data radioed back from Skylab showed that its cooling system was in better shape than originally believed. It was first reported Sunday night that both cooling systems were leaking and flight directors said they would last only 60 days.

They Can't Give It Back

RICKY TICKY POLITIX: Remember that extra penny sales tax that you've been paying since the first of last month? The one nobody wants or needs?

Well, our good California Legislature convened again just yesterday to do something about this extra one cent that is adding to a state treasury surplus already overloaded with some $826 million.

You remember how we got the extra penny tax. Before, you were paying five cents sales tax on each dollar in goods purchased. Then came a measure to boost that a penny. Abruptly, somebody noticed that state government already had more money than it could spend.

This, in itself, must have been some kind of shock. So the lawmakers set about to repeal the extra penny.

MEANWHILE, GOV. Reagan and the Democrats were arguing over how the state should give you folks back another $320 million in income taxes you also paid that they don't need up there in Sacramento.

Gov. Reagan, on the one hand, wanted to give it back to the people in the proportions as they had paid in. The Demos, on the other hand, wanted to spread the money around in equal batches among the rich, medium and poor.

SO IT DEVELOPED that when the penny sales tax repeal came up, those canny Democrats also tacked their version of the income tax rebate onto the tail end of the sales tax repeal.

Chuckling, they figured they had forced ol' Gov. Reagan's hand. If he wanted to get rid of the extra sales tax money, he'd have to get rid of the income taxes at the same time — and do it the Democrats' way.

Trouble was, the devious Demos got fooled. Gov. Reagan vetoed the bill, thus not giving you back any money yet, neither extra sales taxes nor extra income taxes. State government continues in the terrible situation of wallowing around in surplus cash.

Thus yesterday the Legislature met to override Gov. Reagan's veto and restore us to paying only a five-cent sales tax. And you have to admit, in this day and age, every penny counts. Particularly if it is yours.

REPORTS OUT OF Sacramento indicate there was much betting going on among the legislators. Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, the Democrat from Van Nuys, was confidently predicting his house would override the veto if the Senate acted likewise earlier.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco was wagering that Moretti's Assembly fellows would "fall on their faces" and fail to follow any senate veto override.

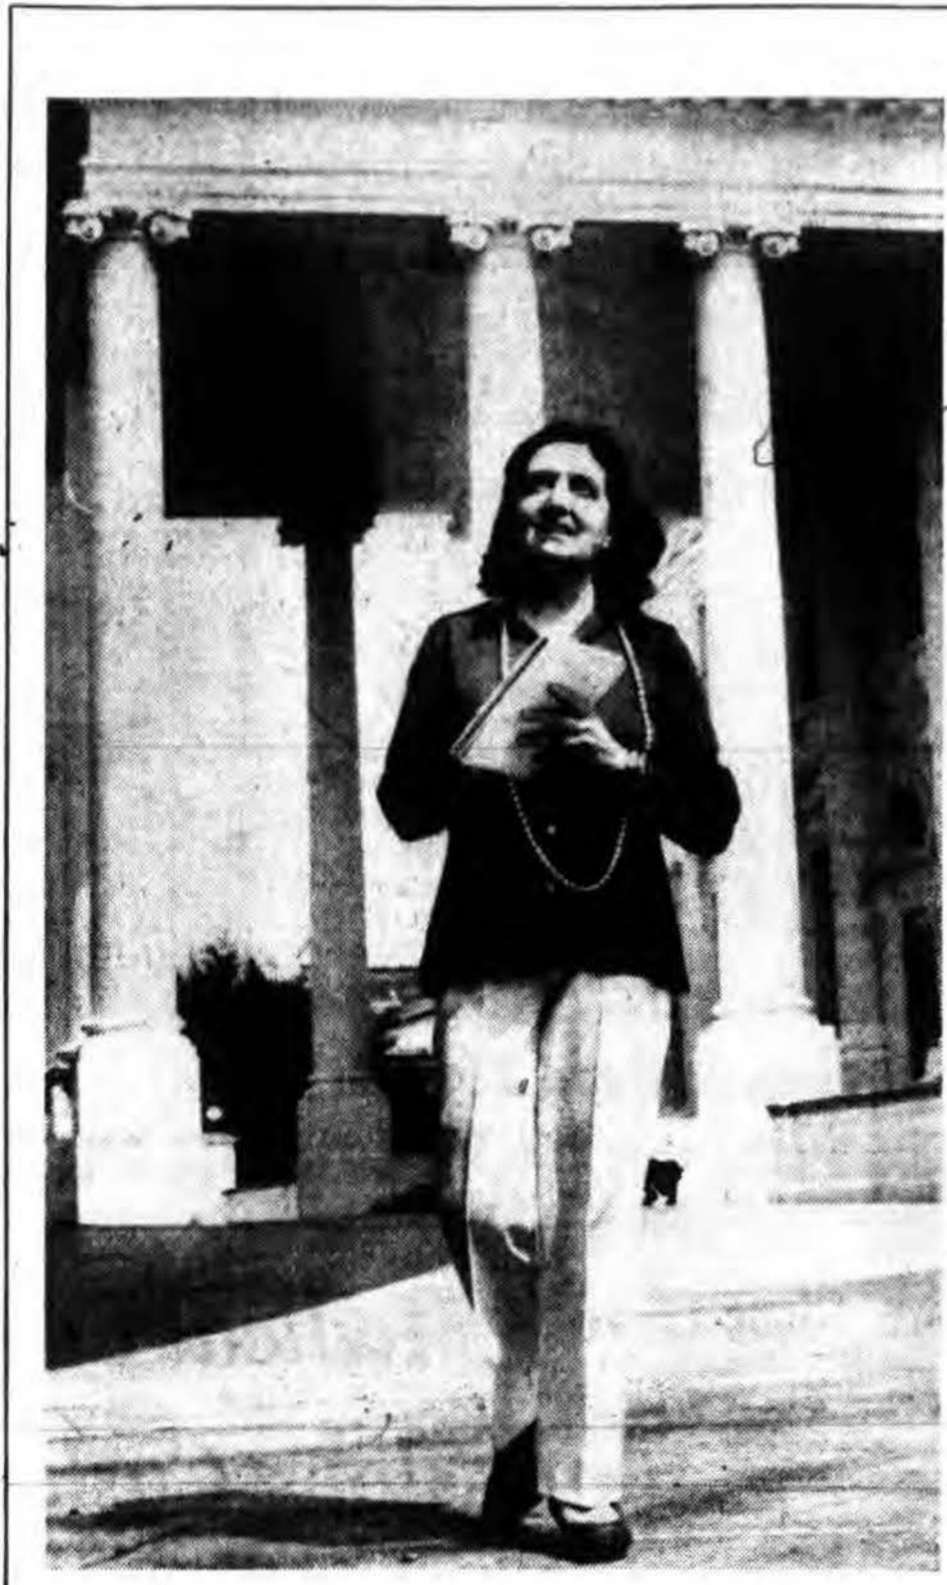

Moscone never got a chance to find out. The Senate failed to pass the override by six votes.

Senator John L. Harmer, the Republican from Glendale, explained it all for the voters.

He said to turn off the extra penny tax so suddenly would create "a hardship" on merchants who have to collect the taxes and also those poor overworked state taxing agents.

FUNNY, BUT IT didn't seem to create all those hardships when the state turned on the extra penny levy.

All of this likely proves an old adage in government. It's real easy to pass higher taxes. It's another thing to get rid of them.

Wheat Future Prices Break Record at $4

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices have hit a historic high of $4 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade in what one commodity authority termed "possible hysterical buying."

The September contract closed at $4.04 as prices advanced the 10-cent daily limit

"substantial foreign buying."

PRIOR TO LAST week's high of $3.50 the record of $3.25 had stood since May 1917.

The higher prices were attributed by one source to growing foreign demand for United States wheat, dwindling existing stocks and a less-than-expected 1973 harvest.

Prices have almost tripled since the government announced the wheat sales to Russia last year. Since Phase 4 was initiated July 18, prices have gone up 40 percent.

RICHARD BELL, Department of Agriculture deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said large amounts of this year's crop already have been sold to Russia and China. Japan has made a major purchase.

Other commodity futures posted limited gains, including corn at 10 cents a bushel, oats at 6 cents and soybeans at 40 cents. Soybean oil climbed the limit of $1 a hundred pounds.

In future trading, a seller contracts to deliver a specified amount of a commodity by a specific future date, often at a price substantially higher than current cash market prices. At Monday's close, however, the September wheat contract was 18 cents below the cash market price.

California
A weather pattern of early morning low clouds and fog warring away afternoons is expected to persist in Southern California through the week. The National Weather Service said the high in downtown Los Angeles would peak between 80 and 84 Wednesday.

Generally pleasant weather was the rule outside the storm areas. Thunderstorms joined the northern Plains and northern Mississippi Valley. A few storms damped the central and southern Plains, the Gulf and South Atlantic coast states and areas in northern New England. Heavy thunderstorms flooded at least one highway near Boone, N.C., with three to four feet of water as northwestern North Carolina was hit by downpours. Burlington, Vt., was soaked by almost an inch of rain. The Yadkin River at Patterson, N.C., rose 10.7 feet in two hours today and sweet water trailers into the river. No one was killed. Highways in the area were closed for washouts and downed water trees were hoisted and power lines knocked down. Some families in the area were evacuated and others were warned of possible flash flooding in the northeastern North Carolina area.

Partly sunny today. Light variable winds night and morning hours becoming westerly 10 to 18 knots in afternoons today and Wednesday. High today 72. Coastal temperatures range from 65 to 77. Inland temperatures range from 64 to 79. Water temperature 66.

Highway Cut Phnom Penh Pounded 153rd Straight Day

PHNOM PENH — U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around this city today, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began.

Field reports said the raids hit south and northwest of the capital and the concussions of explosives rumbled through the city through the night.

South of Phnom Penh, rebels cut Highway 30 about a mile from the suburb of Takhmau. Insurgents slipped onto the road during the night, set up roadblocks made of tree trunks and furniture and then mined the roadblocks.

Government troops began clearing operations early today, field reports said, and fighting was reported raging in the area.

IN THE HIGHWAY 1 area, the scene of heavy fighting last weekend, field reports said the situation was calm.

Government military sources said the town of Tang Kouk, 72 miles north of the capital, was evacuated and government soldiers defending the town were trying to battle their way through rebel lines to the city of Skoun, 12 miles south.

Radio contact with the defenders at Tang Kouk was lost, the sources said, and Skoun itself was reported under guerrilla attack.

U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around Phnom Penh, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began. Meanwhile, it was announced that military activity in South Vietnam jumped to its highest level in seven weeks but a South Vietnamese command spokesman said the incidents were mostly insignificant clashes.

THE HEAVIEST fighting was in the Central Highlands provinces of Kontum and Pleiku where 28 Communists and two government troopers were killed in a series of skirmishes Monday. It was the second day of intense fighting in the area.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Tien reported 127 Communist cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. It was the highest total since the 129 of June 16, the day after the second Vietnam truce took effect.

There were 120 Communist truce infractions reported in the 24-hour period ending at noon today.

"The intensity of most of the action was not significant," Hien said.

Fighting was also reported in an arc between Kontum and the Laos border where clashes have been fought sporadically for the last two months.

Captor Cleared In Church Sect Deprogramming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ted Patrick, hired by the father of a young man to abduct and talk the son into quitting a fundamentalist religious sect, has been found innocent of criminal imprisonment.

Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Bruce McManis told the six jurors Monday that if they believed Patrick's abduction of Daniel Voll, 20, of Farmington, Conn., was justified, they should find him innocent.

Voll, 21, had left home to join the New Testament Missionary Fellowship of New York, and his father hired Patrick, a former aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, to capture the youth and get him to leave the sect through several talk sessions.

PATRICK HAD successfully "deprogrammed" other youths at their parents' requests to counter what he called "brainwashing" on the part of the sects.

But assistant district attorney Juan Ortiz said this constituted illegal imprisonment, a misdemeanor. He said there would be "chaos if we are going to allow parents who disagree over the religious doctrine of their children to kidnap them."

Army Shot Down

Ehrlichman's Adviser Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House military aide has been ordered promoted over the objections of the Army, the Pentagon has confirmed.

The order to promote Lt. Col. Dann G. Mead came from President Nixon, according to a spokesman.

Mead's name was not included in a list of newly named colonels handed down last September by a promotion board. The Pentagon spokesman said the promotion board was reversed, stating "the directions came from the Commander in Chief and we were acting on them."

Mead is a 10-year Army veteran who has worked in the White House for the past three years.

The Washington Post said former Army Secretary Robert Froelike carried out the promotion order only after former Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson put it in writing.

Mead, 35, is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., and holds a doctoral degree in political science.

For much of his tenure in the White House he worked on domestic matters under former chief domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30. Recently Mead has been White House coordinator for District of Columbia affairs.

Countian Follows Famed Father's Flying Career

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Thomas Farrell of Tustin was born on the U.S.S. Repose in the harbor of Tsing-Tao, China, 25 years ago this week.

His father, Marine Col. William Farrell, was a fighter pilot in the first of three wars in which he has served.

The U.S.S. Repose is now in Long Beach Harbor. Col. Farrell, one of five Marine Corps World War II flying aces still on duty, is Assistant Chief of Staff for the Human Affairs Office at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

And Tom, a salesman and father of a 3-year-old son, has decided to continue the family tradition by joining the Marines.

He will enter Officer Candidate School (OCS) this fall at Quantico, Va. and eventually will earn his aviator wings at Pensacola, Fla.

The younger Farrell admits that his decision to follow in his father's footsteps is "rare these days."

"I've always been impressed with the patriotism of the Marines," he said.

"My father never suggested that I should go into the Marines, but the common denominator of devotion to duty among these men has always struck me.

"On the whole, they are an honorable group of men, concerned with taking care of other people," he said.

Col. Farrell, who plans to retire within the next year or two, has seen many changes since his World War II days.

"The biggest difference is the type of airplanes," he said. "We graduated from the prop fighters of World War II and ended in Vietnam using the most advanced attack bomber jets."

Col. Farrell still puts in the required 100 hours a year of flight time to keep his wings.

In Korea, he flew 98 missions and in Vietnam flew 182 combat missions while he was the commanding officer of the

The elder Farrell's present job is a switch from wartime aviation. He

Chu Lai Air Base.

"World War II was a lot like World War I in the air," Col. Farrell recalls. "There were a lot of dogfights and air-to-air combat activities."

"But Korea and Vietnam were mainly close air support for the ground troops."

As for the Marines over the years, Col. Farrell feels they have "the same gung-ho spirit as ever."

If there's any change, it's in technical demands.

"They have to be more intelligent to handle more technic aircraft," he added.

The father and son have always done many things together. Most recently, they attended night school at the base together — Col. Farrell to begin a master's degree in social psychology, and his son to finish a political science degree on a four-night per week schedule.

Col. Farrell said he told few war stories to his two sons. "Usually the people involved in the makings of war stories are the ones least anxious to talk about them," he said.

The elder Farrell's present job is a switch from wartime aviation. He coordinates a new department on the base which specializes in drug and alcohol rehabilitation, leadership training, racial harmony, and career planning.

"This is a sign of new direction in the Marines," Farrell said. "After only a year and a half, it's the biggest department out here."

"Regardless of what people say about today's kids, in Vietnam modern youth out-performed themselves. They worked 18 to 20 hours a day, never grumbling, and offered no discipline problems. It was really outstanding," Col. Farrell said.

Tom Farrell said he hasn't decided whether to make the Marines his career or whether he will suggest that career to his own son, Joseph.

"It's up to him," Tom said.

Nixon Costs Itemized

$89 Listed For Pillows In Clemente

From Wire Services

A 70-page breakdown of the $10 million spent by the government on security and other work on President Nixon's homes included $89 for "four decorative pillows" in his San Clemente den.

The pillows, along with $475 for swimming pool cleaner at Key Biscayne, Florida, and $6.83 for "picture frame supplies," are among the apparently non-security related items included in the General Services Administration (GSA) report.

Acting on the President's instructions, officials at GSA, the White House and the Secret Service disclosed Monday that about $10 million had been spent in four years on the home-and-offices compounds in California and Florida.

GSA Administrator Arthur Sampson said the pillows, picture frames and other such items will be reclaimed by the government when Nixon leaves office and no longer needs them.

Presidential spokesman Gerald Warren said the same is true of more than $600,000 of the nearly $6 million in communications installations and other work financed by the military at Key Biscayne and the Western White House in south Orange County.

Money spent at San Clemente, according to White House spokesmen, included $39,500 for a new heating system, a bulletproof screen around the swimming pool and a fence between the property and the beach.

Another $100,000 was spent by the Secret Service in San Clemente for three gazebos, a gatehouse and another wall. Later projects — including $175,000 for electrical work and $76,000 for landscaping — were also approved at the First Family's California home.

GSA and White House officials said all measures were needed for security. The detailed costs had been secret.

According to government sources, a total of more than $9.9 million was spent at San Clemente, Key Biscayne, on Grand Cay Island in the Bahamas, owned by Nixon friend Robert Abplanalp and often used by the President, and at five residences used by Nixon's two daughters.

Less than 10 percent of the total was used on property owned by Nixon, the government claimed. Almost 60 percent went for operation of the Western White House and for communications facilities established at a Coast Guard base adjacent to the San Clemente estate.

The White House has been barraged with questions about the homes since May, when it disclosed that Nixon had borrowed $625,000 from industrialist Abplanalp to purchase the San Clemente site. The loan was supposedly canceled in a complex transaction 18 months later when Nixon sold to Abplanalp 23 of the 29 ocean-side acres.

Baby Sitter Held In Tot's Death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A baby sitter told police Monday night he couldn't get an 18-month-old boy to stop crying so he taped the mouth of the child, stuffed him between the mattresses of a bed and sat on him until he died.

Ellis Francis Cook Jr., 24, who told police he was a former mental patient, was being held for investigation of homicide.

Police said Cook was taken into custody about 30 minutes after the body of William Day Foster was found by two children.

First Female Cadets Sworn

VALLEJO (AP) — Five women were scheduled to break tradition today and become the first women sworn in as cadets in the California Maritime Academy.

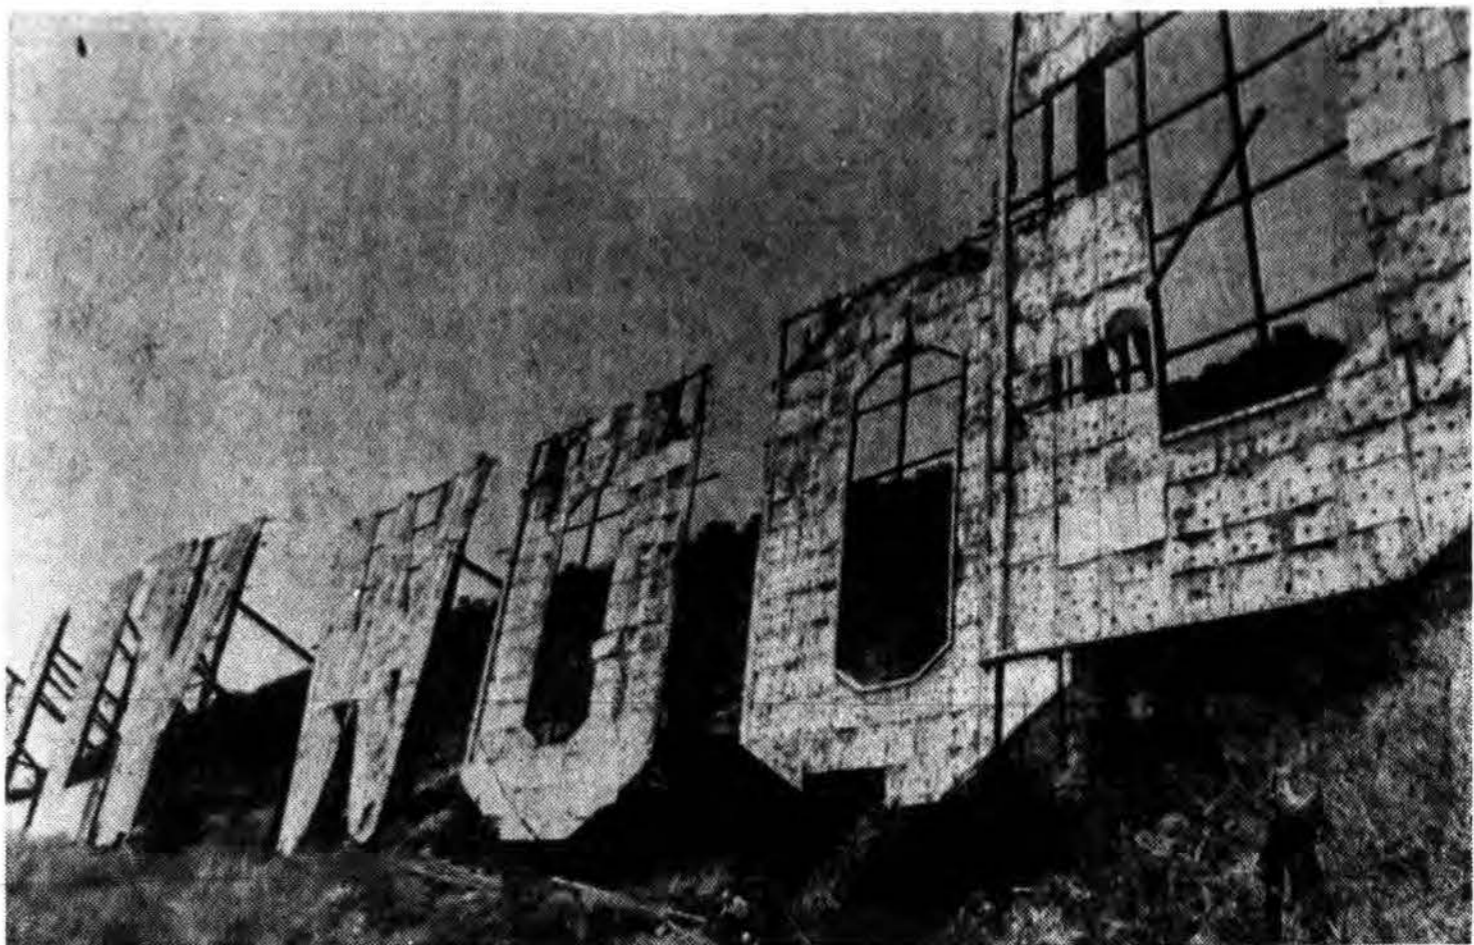

The California school turns out merchant marine officers.

Accepted as candidates for deck officers were Lynn D. Fivey, 20; Suzanne Shelli Foster, 18; Cinda Rae Boone, 17; and Susan Ann Buller, 21. The fifth woman, Jean Thatcher Arnold, 17, chose to enter the school as a candidate for third assistant engineer.

The women will move onto the academy's ship the Golden Bear, with 125 male classmates Aug. 14.

Prison Guard Held

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (UPI) — A grand jury Monday indicted a prison guard on charges he provided an inmate with the gun used for an escape attempt in which two guards were killed. However, Scioto County Prosecutor Everett Burton refused to give further details of the alleged plan by guard Ronald Pratt to aid the escape of Wayne L. Raney, a convicted killer.

Man Shot Dead After Car Crash

LONG BEACH (AP) — A Long Beach man who protested after his car was rammed was shot to death Monday, police reported.

Police said Douglas A. Gardner, 30, was in his parked auto when four men rammed the car while trying to park. Gardner objected, police said, and the men opened fire with pistols.

Gardner escaped through the passenger door and ran about 30 feet before he was hit in the back with a single bullet, police said.

MADRID (UPI) — A funeral mass for Fulgencio Batista, the former Cuban dictator overthrown by Fidel Castro, was sung in a small chapel today, attended by more than 100 Cuban exiles and family members. Batista, 72, died Monday of "acute circulatory collapse" — heart failure — his physician said.

Medical Center System Slows Cash Collections

Accounting procedures and internal controls at the Orange County Medical Center are not functioning in a manner which assures that the medical center will collect all money due it, the Orange County Grand Jury auditor reported Monday.

If more patients were properly screened at time of entry, an increase in cash collections of $30,000 annually would result, the report said.

The auditor, Arthur Young and Company, said that combining the responsibilities of the center's financial evaluators and the welfare department Medi-Cal eligibility workers would result in better screening and reduced writeoffs caused by insufficient billing information.

"Emergency room financial evaluators work in one small room. This affords little privacy and causes embarrassment to the patient being interviewed," the auditor said. "We recommend that the evaluators be given more office space in an area that would not cause congestion but would still be near the emergency room entrance."

The report said that entry forms must be properly completed. "We tested a sample of 40 large, old accounts receivable; 40 percent either had no evaluation form on file or the form contained only a name and address and 30 percent were marked 'evaluated but not determined' or 'not evaluated'."

The auditor concluded that 70 percent of the sample had insufficient source of payment information to allow proper collection procedures.

The auditor said that during 1972-73 when one collection officer was added collections increased by about $100,000.

Tuesday's Closing Prices—Complete New York Stock Exchange List

Market Waiting For Better News

NEW YORK (AP)—A quiet and somewhat aimless stock market impressed a lot of brokers Tuesday, who said that if the market could just get some "neutral news" for a change, prices could begin their technical rise.

Despite some bad news—a lower dollar in Europe after Monday's gain—and some potentially bad news—word that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was under investigation by a U.S. attorney in Maryland—prices remained mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which opened the day higher in a carryover from Monday's afternoon gain, sank lower, then rose, then fell again to the close.

Hotter Torches Carried by Men

Men are more temperamental than women. They mourn a broken heart longer. When women carry a torch, rarely is it so much for the lost love as for the hurt pride. So contends a student of romantic matters. Our Love and War man is inclined to concur. He says it appears to explain why some women can fall in love repeatedly while most men can handle only one or two repeated attachments.

At age 72, Lewis Glazer can still make a goose quill pen every 30 seconds. And does so when he desires. Sells more than 1,000 a year to the U.S. Supreme Court. Don't believe anybody else in the country is handcrafting those fowl-feather instruments anymore.

Client asks the correct way to wear a western hat. Flat and forward. Straight over both eyebrows. Only a dude habitually cocks a western hat.

Pollsters say 65 out of every 100 elementary school teachers nationwide condone the notion of spanking students.

NUCKLES — Q. "What makes the noise when you crack your knuckles?"

A. That's an explosion of gas bubbles in knuckle joint fluid. Or so one Dr. Tony Unsworth reports, at any rate. He says X-rays show the gas doesn't actually escape, that it's just reabsorbed into the knuckle fluid in about 15 minutes. Interesting, if true.

Q. "Who invented the clothes pin?"

A. Can only report it was somebody who belonged to that offshoot of the English Quakers known as the Shakers. Shakers also invented the modern towel rack and the power-driven washing machine, might mention.

Q. "Can unborn babies hear noises?"

A. Definitely. Expectant mothers who've gone to symphony concerts report the clashes of cymbals have set their infants to romping and stomping.

The late Pablo Picasso got his clothes mostly from a tailor named Michael Sapone. In Nice. And he paid Sapone not in cash, but in paintings. Sapone wouldn't have it any other way, bright fellow. Now comes out his art collection is worth about $1 million.

No barber should ignore the fact that his craft is mentioned more than 20 times in the Bible.

Developers, Ecologists in Laguna Hassle

By JACK CHAPPELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Land developers and conservationists squared off Monday over a Planned Residential Development (PRD) ordinance proposed for Laguna Beach to control building on city hillsides.

Both sides had been invited to a special study session of the Laguna Beach Planning Commission to consider the suggested PRD law which would reduce housing density as the slope of land increased.

Rodger Howell, attorney for Sycamore Hills, told the commission that concerns over high density development and loss of community identity because of high population were "myths" which he would "explode."

Howell said the commission should concern itself with "quality of development" not density and that it was a mistake to believe that a low density development was inherently better than a high density one.

"If you want the quality development . . . you don't panic on density or public identity. You press the button on quality," Howell said.

Howell also said massive grading was not bad per se, but, that it required instant landscaping to keep the bare slopes from being an eyesore.

Howell said the "better developments in California" were those where mass grading had taken place. He cited construction in La Jolla and Beverly Hills as examples.

Mildred Hannum snapped back at a developer's claim that increased density permits construction of housing for lower income residents.

"The more units you get on a piece of property, the more valuable that property becomes," said Mrs. Hannum, a Laguna Beach resident.

She said that in Laguna, it is a fallacy that additional high density housing will permit a lower income segment of the population to buy houses.

Howell asserted that if the city wants to remain a "village" it should remain physically small or even "give (annexed land) to somebody else."

Resident William Leak denied the city was panicky on the matter of density, noting that all the developers had been mailed special letters advising them of the meeting and requesting their opinion.

"We're going about it in a very nice way," Leak said. Further discussion will be held by the Commission Aug. 20 at city hall.

"It is only common sense that a person who has 75 acres of cliffs and crags shouldn't be allowed to put up five units per acre," Leak said, noting that the standard was not to penalize the land-

Carpenter Asks State Beach Buy

A bill by State Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter (R-Newport Beach) authorizing state purchase of 1,500,000 acres and 3.5 miles of beachfront between Newport Beach and Laguna Beach today moved to the Senate floor for consideration.

The bill, SB 1089, cleared the Senate Finance Committee Monday on a 9-0 vote.

A Carpenter aide said today the bill made it through committee without amendment. It carries an urgency clause meaning a $7.6 million price could be paid immediately by the state upon approval by the Assembly and signature by Gov. Reagan. Deadline for legislature approval is Sept. 15.

The price, according to state parks director William Penn Mott, is "exactly half the value of the land."

The land, 3.5 miles of beach and two inland canyon parks totaling 1,500 acres, is owned by the Irvine Company.

The state parks acquisition is part of a longrange development plan by the company for development of a 10,000-acre parcel of the Irvine Ranch known as the coastal sector.

It is ocean view property lying between the cities of Irvine, Laguna and Newport Beach and the Pacific Ocean.

Development plans call for a Mediterranean resort mix of residential and commercial development and relocation of a stretch of Pacific Coast Highway.

Agreement to move the highway inland has not been reached between Irvine Company and state highway department officials.

The 19th Laguna Beach Open Volleyball Tournament will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Laguna Main Beach.

The tournament, once postponed because storm surf washed out the courts, will run all day, both days. Finals are expected to start at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Thirty-two teams of volleyball players will compete in the double elimination tournament.

The competition will be held at the north end of the beach. Program master of ceremonies is John Lund of Laguna Beach.

Further information is available by calling the Laguna Beach Recreation Department, 494-1124, ext. 45.

Reagan Recalls Espionage Fears

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan says the Watergate break-in was part of a pattern of political espionage "that's been going on for years."

"I know the first time that I campaigned the professionals in the campaign were constantly on guard against that sort of thing," Reagan said Monday.

Precautions taken by his campaign aides included changing locks on doors, Reagan said during a question-and-answer session that followed a dinner speech to Sacramento's Comstock Club.

Agnew Retains Law Firm Against Criminal Charges

From AP Dispatches

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

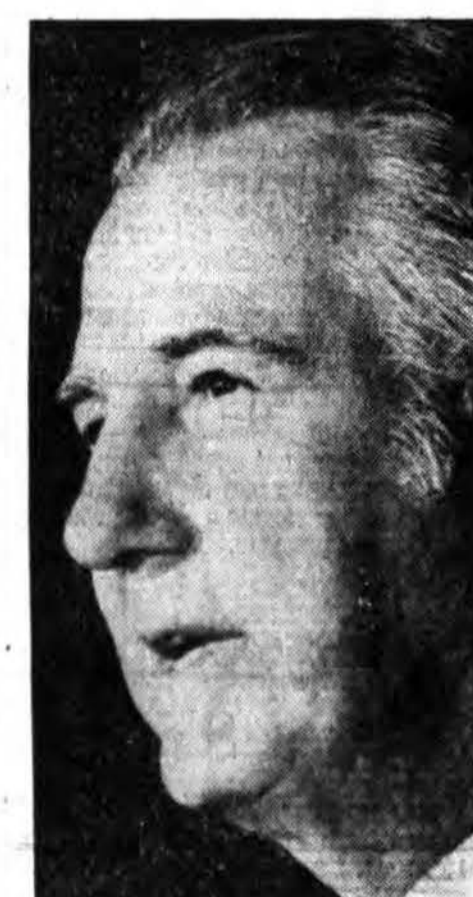

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson decided today to keep the investigation inside the Justice Department and not turn the case over to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Richardson made the decision after discussing with U.S. Atty. Gen. George Beall the ways to proceed with the probe.

Housewife Vanished Last Month

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The search for missing San Juan Capistrano housewife Rochelle White has led to the Forster Canyon dump where Orange County sheriff's investigators for the past three days have sifted through tons of rubbish with the help of heavy equipment.

Thus far, the crew of three investigators and several dump workers has found nothing relevant to the case in the gigantic mound of reeking trash and garbage.

Detectives seem convinced that the 22-year-old brunette who lived at 16702 Calle La Bomba met with foul play late last month when she vanished from the family townhouse.

The investigators at the scene early today declined even to say they represented the Sheriff's Office but superiors admitted later that the unpleasant — and thus far futile — task had gone on since early in the weekend.

Spokesmen said that the area where the efforts are concentrated is the spot which was open for dumping during the period that Mrs. White was first reported missing by her husband, Roger White, 25, an electronics machinist.

Although official sources would not elaborate, one other source, a dump patron, said that over the weekend coun-

Chorale Staging Summer Concert

The Laguna Beach Artist Chorale will present a summer concert at 8 p.m. Friday at the high school auditorium.

Included in the program are Vaughan-Williams' "Five Musical Songs," featuring Keith Halverson as baritone soloist and minor works by Faure, Pergolesi, and Victoria.

The chorale, made up of singers from high school college and professional musical reaches, is under the direction of Fredrick M. Stouffer.

Tickets will be available at 7 p.m. Friday at the auditorium box office. They are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Building Officials Hit Home of 'Love Animals'

By FREDERICK SCHOEMEHL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Laguna Beach Building Department inspectors today were expected to take action to rectify "immediate fire hazards" at the South Coast Highway home of Love Animals Don't Eat Them.

James Winter, senior building inspector, said he was going to post a notice on the free-style temple asking Love Animals followers to remove the hazards within 24 hours.

Folks at Love Animals will have another 60 days to clear up less important violations of the city building code.

That deadline extends beyond Sept. 21, the date the Love Animals followers plan to pack their bags and leave Laguna Beach.

Some of the immediate violations that city officials want changed include straw on the floor, partitions that block exits and faulty wiring.

"The way things are now, it wouldn't take much to have a loss of life if there was a fire," Winter commented today.

In event the people at Love Animals don't comply with the city request, Winter said the next step would be to have the building vacated and the utilities shut off.

Today's action from the city was spawned two weeks ago when Winter, along with City Attorney Tully Seymour and Fire Marshal James Presson, made an inspection of the temple at 728 S. Coast Highway.

Winter said he has had many verbal complaints from "people in the neighborhood" about Love Animals and related singing, dancing and general partying on the sidewalk.

Seymour said he had also heard complaints from individual citizens, businessmen in the area and the

2nd U.S. Bombing Error Revealed

Kleindienst Weeps Over Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the predawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its coverup.

In a three-hour session before the Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it.

"You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails."

The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew.

Kleindienst also expressed outrage when he learned that John D. Ehrlichman tried to interfere with the grand jury investigation and taped his conversations with Kleindienst.

Kleindienst testified as the next to last witness before the committee recesses until after Labor Day.

Kleindienst said he learned the full Watergate story for the first time in the early morning of April 15, after John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury.

Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

"This was the first time, since June 17, 1972 that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of these people were involved in anyway, in the cover-up, or that incident," Kleindienst testified.

"Two of these men (named by Silbert and Petersen) are two of my closest friends I've ever had in my life, and I think one of the things I did that night, is, I wept."

His two friends were John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, and Robert C. Mardian, another former Justice Department official who later worked for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP). (Mardian has a home in San Clemente.)

Brooks Surfing Signups Begin

Signups are now open for the 19th Annual Brooks Street Surfing Contest scheduled for 8 a.m. Aug. 18 at the city's surfing beach.

Registration may be made through August 17 at the Laguna Beach Recreation Department, 175 N. Coast Highway. Last-minute signups will be accepted at the beach the day of the event.

The contest is open to Laguna and South Laguna residents, men and women, board and body surfers. Awards will be presented to first through fourth finishers.

Entry fee is $2 and allows contestants to enter all events within the division for which they qualify. Further information is available at the recreation department.

Coast Mother Offered Help

Offers of help, free flights to Denver and some donations of funds have begun to arrive for Mrs. Linda Rea of Capistrano Beach as she continues to worry about the fate of her son who lies near death in a Colorado hospital.

Her 3-year-old son Jason, remains in extremely serious condition at the University of Colorado Medical Center where doctors have definitely ruled out for the present the possibility the youngster could qualify as a transplant donor.

Jason who arrived at the center late last week unable to breathe on his own. He became progressively stronger and a day later, physicians took off the life-giving respirator and discovered the youngster — the victim of a tragic pool accident — could breathe unaided.

Since then, the comatose boy's condition has stabilized somewhat and today spokesmen for the center said the boy's blood pressure has been appearing steady and strong.

"He's being fed from a tube in his stomach which was put there before he was flown to Denver. The operation took all sorts of things out of him, the poor thing," said Mrs. Rea.

"So many people think I'm in Denver, and telegrams from old friends have been sent there and most of the offers of help have gone there, too," she added.

But the 29-year-old mother said that as of now, she is convinced that flying to Denver would serve little or nothing.

"It would just make me feel worse than I already feel," said Mrs. Rea.

Her agony — which began three weeks ago when her apparently dead child was pulled from a baby sitter's pool and revived 45 minutes later — has been compounded because of little or no information from the professionals caring for her only child.

"I had to call them collect Monday and all they told me was not to wait around for any news. But how can you not wait around for news of your only child?" she asked.

And at this point, Mrs. Rea is wondering if her decision to volunteer her son as a transplant donor was the right one.

"We (her former husband, Jason's father) had to make the decision right away when the doctors told us Jason had gotten much worse."

Last Friday, the day that Jason was flown to Denver on a private jet, the plans were grim and simple.

Because of the youngster's moribund condition at that time funeral arrangements had been made and doctors in Denver seemed certain that death would occur over the weekend.

"The change in his condition is certainly wonderful. For sure, I praise the Lord that Jason is breathing again," said Mrs. Rea.

"But even though he is, my poor baby is hardly even there on that bed," she added.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island is six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said it appears that the second bombing may have been caused by an equipment malfunction.

Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said it is not known what equipment went wrong, apparently causing bombs to be dropped some 1,800 feet from the intended target on the west bank of the Mekong River.

Friedheim said one B52 was involved in Monday's raid and that the episode is under what he called "rather intensive investigation."

He did not say where the plane was based, but other sources said it came from Andersen Air Base on Guam.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

In Honolulu, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, which has responsibility for American air strikes in Indochina, said he could neither confirm nor deny that the second bombing mistake occurred. He said the command did not have enough information to formulate a statement.

'Moonfire' Gives Animals His Tender, Loving Care

Louis Beach Marvin III created quite a spectacle last September when he chauffeured a camel and a rooster to a Love Animals Don't Eat Them court appearance in a big, black Cadillac.

The son of the chairman of the board of S & H Green Stamps was told by an Chamber of Commerce.

"People have told us they're fed up with the problem down there," Winter added.

Since July 4, 1972, when Love Animals Don't Eat Them held its grand opening with Boney Bananas (a camel) and Col. Sanders (a rooster), not all has been well with the city and county.

James Roberts, manager of the then vegetarian eatery, was fitted for allowing a domestic animal, Boney, in a restaurant.

Although found guilty as charged, Roberts and other followers haven't paid much attention to local ordinances and have been cited for many misdemeanors, including vagrancy, blocking the sidewalk and health code violations.

All the while, followers have been making changes to the former home of Nina's Peanut Butter Pies, including addition of a psychedelic storefront, a rooftop garden, and a cosmic form of interior decorating.

Several months ago, the group seceded from the union, but their proclamation of self-government hasn't met with much understanding from folks in the USA.

The most recent announcement from Love Animals said they have voluntarily offered to leave Laguna Beach on the autumnal equinox.

In return, the Orange County District Attorney's Office has agreed to drop some 30 charges now pending against various LADETIans.

owner of hill property, but just a fact of life.

The standards discussed by the commission would allow:

—Five units an acre on zero to 15 percent grades.

—2½ units an acre on 15 percent to 30 percent grades.

—One unit an acre on 30 to 50 percent grades.

—A half unit an acre on plus 50 percent grades.

(By comparison, Third Street hill is a 26 degree incline, but a 55 percent grade.)

One developer suggested expanding the number of categories to 10 from the four outlined in the PRD proposal. He said the greater number of categories would be more fair to a builder and cited the inequity done to a man with a 16 percent grade land. By virtue of one percent, his allowable building would be cut in half.

Planning Director Wayne Moody cited the problems he believes existed with high density development, even high quality high density development.

Moody said that existing development has already overloaded the "structure" of the city.

"I don't think we can afford to keep developing at high density served by the automobile," Mo said.

He explained that residents in Laguna frequently work outside the city, and individual commuting in private vehicles is producing significant problems for the city and the nation.

Attorney William Wilcoxon asked Moody if the city has been coordinating its PRD with proposed development in lands adjacent to Laguna Beach.

Moody said he had discussed development of the Moulton lands with the developer's planners.

Stanley Cooper Services Slated

Rosary and requiem mass will be held tonight for Stanley P. Cooper of Laguna Hills. Mr. Cooper died Saturday. He was 67.

Rosary will be held at 8:15 with requiem mass at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Both are at St. Nicholas Church in Laguna Hills.

Mr. Cooper is survived by his wife, Thelma; and two nephews. He was formerly with Brown Bevis Industrial Equipment Company. McCormick Mortuary is directing the funeral.

Orange County Animal Control officer that transporting a camel in a Cadillac was inhumane.

Marvin, as always, was quite polite about the whole incident, and has changed his ways. He now transports Boney Bananas — that's the camel — in a rented trailer.

The appearance of Boney Bananas is one of many ways Marvin has been trying to call attention to mistreatment of animals.

Marvin, along with others from Love Animals Don't Eat Them, descended on a McDonald's hamburger stand, not as the hamburger but as the dispensers of vegetable burgers.

Moonfire, as Marvin prefers to be called, also got the group to march around a fried chicken eatery, while wearing chicken costumes.

Moonfire's sanctuary is a whitewashed concrete structure, resembling an overturned teacup, situated on a 50-acre ranch in Topanga Canyon.

He wears a black gaucho hat over his red hair, a Fu Manchu moustache, a black smock and a white cape.

With him at the hilltop zoo are Boney, a llama, an African pygmy-goat, a dog, a deer, a Black Angus cow, two sheep, 12 peacocks and a flock of chickens.

He reports that an elephant is on the way.

All animals are allowed in the house, whether housebroken or not.

Moonfire, however, may be tiring of his campaign of good for the animals. He's talking about buying an island off Panama.

"There are many that are uninhabited, you know but I'll take the animals to Central America by truck, put them on a freighter and live off the land.

"There's practically every fruit growing there."

Avco Exemption Claim Weighed By Coast Unit

State Coastal Zone Conservation commissioners will vote Wednesday on a claim of exemption for a 900-unit condominium tract in Laguna Niguel by Avco Community Developers.

The commission meets at 9:30 a.m. in the Inglewood city administration building at 1 Manchester Blvd.

The exemption from Proposition 20 permit controls was denied for the tract inland of Pacific Coast Highway near Niguel Shores Road by South Coast Regional Zone Conservation commissioners.

Avco appealed the denial to the state panel, while at the same time receiving a permit for the project from the regional group. That permit, however, has been appealed by the United South Orange Coast Communities.

A hearing on the permit appeal also is scheduled Wednesday.

If Avco is granted the exemption by the state commission, it doesn't need a permit to build the condominiums.

Also on the state agenda Wednesday is a claim of exemption by Aries Development Co. for a 45-unit condominium at 406-410 Pasadena St., San Clemente.

A 213-townhouse development on Camino Capistrano in San Clemente by Robert H. Grant Corp. will have a public hearing before the state panel.

A permit granted the project by the regional commission was appealed by the Capistrano Beach Community Association.

Donald Albert Perkins, a Garden Grove teacher, has been arraigned in South Orange County Municipal Court on charges of growing marijuana at his Laguna Beach residence.

Perkins, 37, did not enter a plea during the short hearing in Judge Richard Hamilton's courtroom. The case was continued to Aug. 17 for possible disposition.

Laguna Beach Police arrested Perkins July 19, after spotting what they claimed was a genuine marijuana plant in the window of his home, 1757 S. Coast Highway.

Investigation led to seizure of several other plants growing in the back yard, police said.

ty employes told him the investigators were following up on a tip.

The county dump aide was quoted as saying a witness had told officers that he noticed someone dumping what could have been a body in the general area of today's digging.

To accomplish their task, county workers have dug a trench several hundred feet long and about 50 feet wide.

A bulldozer moves large quantities of the material and then a long shovel extension stirs the debris while investigators watch.

The detectives, as well, were using pitchforks to examine some material this morning.

Burglar Gets Pants, Wallet

A burglar prowling through the bedroom of a Laguna Beach couple early this morning took a pair of trousers and wallet containing $380 in currency.

Lily Coffman, awakened by the thief in her 500 High Drive home pretended to be asleep and waited until the burglar left before waking her husband, Lemuel.

The couple, in their 60s, delayed about a half hour before calling officers fearing the man might still be in the house. When Patrolman Bruce Praet arrived, the burglar was gone, but the trousers minus cash and a credit card were found near an outside wall.

The burglar gained entry to the house by prying open a bathroom window.

Laguna Officer Arrests Angry Young Thumber

A hitchhiker who was to receive just a warning for thumbing a ride while standing in the traffic lanes now faces charges of resisting arrest after allegedly throwing his backpack at a police car and threatening to fight a Laguna Beach patrolman.

Arthur O. Anderson, 21, of New York was booked on a charge of resisting arrest and interfering with a policeman Monday. He was free on $500 bail today and faces arraignment Friday at South Orange County Municipal Court in Laguna Niguel.

Patrolman Terry Temple reported he observed Anderson hitchhiking standing in the traffic lane at the 400 block of North Coast Highway.

Temple hailed the hitchhiker who ran from the patrol car after flinging his backpack at the vehicle. Temple pursued the man on foot and had stopped him when the man turned, doubled his fists and became threatening.

During a search, police said they found citations for hitchhiking from the roadway and trespassing from San Jose and San Diego.

False Attack Reports Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Air Force officer testified today he was secretly ordered to falsify reports of tactical air strikes by American fighter planes deep into Cambodia as late as April 1971.

The testimony by former Capt. George R. Moses significantly broadens allegations of false reporting of the Cambodian bombing campaign ordered at the highest levels of the Nixon administration during 1969, 1970 and 1971.

Saying there was a dual reporting system for tactical strikes similar to that used for the B52 strikes, Moses testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "America does not need to be defended by lies and deception."

Some Beef Still Available on Orange Coast

By HILARY KAYE Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Middle-grade cuts of beef, in small amounts, can still be found in most Orange Coast markets, a Monday survey indicated, despite ominous warnings that meat counters are already bare.

But middle-quality meat is definitely in peril, and beef at either end of the line is already missing from many meat counters.

Filet, which would have been priced at more than $3 a pound had it been available, and the lowest grade of ground beef, previously selling for just under $1 a pound, were both nowhere to be seen in five of the six markets visited.

Some shoppers are weathering the shortage better than others. Those shopping in Richard's Lido Market in Newport Beach, one of the poshest markets around, were concerned over the high prices and low supply but exhibited more of a feeling of light-hearted camaraderie than of true anger.

"Oh, we'll all manage somehow," said

one thirtyish woman wearing a chic pantsuit of bleached denim. Others around her, including the butcher, joked about the meat "crisis."

For others, however, not too far away, the shortage and high prices are devastating.

At Stater Brothers Market in Costa Mesa, on 19th Street across from Bethel Towers, a residence for the elderly, shoppers were visibly concerned.

"I'm just back from the hospital and this is the first time I've seen the prices," lamented Kathleen Mazingo, who lives at the Towers. "I have to eat a little meat but it's so expensive and they don't have the kind I need."

Another elderly woman looked at the $1.39 a pound ground beef and asked the butcher, "Don't you have my kind of ground meat?"

The butcher, Peter Robles, answered, "There's none of the cheaper beef left. They're not making it anymore because they can't afford to."

Butchers, who are as unhappy as the customers, are telling hoarding tales — of customers who have come in with mammoth orders.

Robles told the man who bought $196 worth of meat. "He just ordered meat by the row, not by the piece," Robles said.

One woman in the Newport Beach Mayfair Market admitted she "stocked up a little," buying several steaks and two turkeys, "just in case for Thanksgiving."

Archeologic Find Told In County

By GEORGE LEIDAL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A paleontological find said to be outstripped in importance only by Rancho La Brea Tar Pits has been discovered in north Orange County.

Paleontologists from the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History discovered the site. It includes a 10-million year visible "calendar" of stone and traces of exotic animals such as the slender limbed camel, otherwise found only in Florida.

Officials of the State Department of Transportation announced the find. The site with fossils dating to 15,000 years ago is on excess lands owned by the state department. It was threatened by a county sanitary landfill operation, according to a spokesman for Archaeological Research Inc. of Costa Mesa. ARI maps land sites of interest because of buried archeological, paleontological or historic matter. ARI confirmed the importance of the new site.

The state has offered "practical aid and cooperation" in assisting the scientists to excavate fossilized skeletal fragments of such creatures as the Colombian mammoth, the ground sloth, the Florida camel and approximately 34 other species.

The skeletal records in stone were first unearthed by Paul Langenwaller and Chris Caliendo of the LA museum's vertebrate paleontology section. The remains were in danger from vandals as well as natural forces, a state spokesman said.

W. J. Kenney, chief of the office of rights-of-way for the transportation district including Orange County, said the state furnished a backhoe tractor and operator to help unearth the specimens.

The undisclosed site also was fenced by the state to discourage vandals.

Langenwaller said the fossils date from 10,000 to 15,000 years ago, when a saltwater marsh with an adjacent brackish water pond opening into it existed on the site.

It was a mecca for many varieties of animals — some exotic, like the Florida slender limbed camel. Others were mundane — many kinds of mammals and birds, a few reptiles, some fish, and one amphibian — a frog.

"The vegetation of the area where antelope, elephants, and many other creatures met, consisted of reeds and cattails, wooded hillsides and verdant grassy flatlands. Man, though he was known to exist in this general region at that period, left no traces at this site," Langenwaller said.

In addition to its paleontological worth, the area is notable for its geological features, which, according to Langenwaller, show a Pliocene-to-present geological record "sticking out" — a sort of 10-million year compilation of history in stone.

If present plans go forward, eventually the area will be developed for public use, to advance educational and recreational interest in a long-vanished epoch in time, the state spokesman said.

Saddleback Valley OK's Budget of $16.1 Million

A $16.1 million 1973-74 budget for the Saddleback Valley Unified School District was approved 3-1 by the board of trustees Monday after a two-hour discussion.

Voting no, Trustee Dennis Smith said he objected to the budget's tax rate of $5.93 per $100 assessed valuation. Trustee George Henry was absent.

"There's a lot of fat throughout this budget we've made no attempt to cut," Smith said. "The whole process has been characterized by lack of communication between the board and district employees."

Major expenditures in the budget, the first for the newly unified district, include $10.38 million for instruction and teachers salaries, $1.1 million for plant operation, and almost $500,000 for administration.

Smith, a teacher in Huntington Beach's Ocean View district, objected most to the costs of administration and various categories of instructional costs.

He repeated his opinion of earlier budget meetings that "high administration costs are developing a philosophy that the administrator is king, and not the servant."

The budget includes a salary of $34,200 for Superintendent William Zogg, $30,000 for a deputy superintendent, and $27,000 each for superintendents of administrative services and business services.

Income on next year's budget includes $265,300 in federal aid, $3.89 million in state aid, and $11.89 million from local taxing sources and adult education fees.

Board Chairman Vince McCullough challenged Smith's statements, saying "I am certain our administrators have done a responsible and exhausting job of coming up with the best possible education for our children at the best possible cost."

Robert Matthew, district business superintendent, added the computer print-out provided Smith contained 10,000 details.

Pot Issue Divides Trustees

By JAN WORTH Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Should a youngster be suspended from school because he is caught smoking marijuana at home?

The Saddleback Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees split on this issue Monday night and tabled a decision on a drug abuse policy written by students to the next meeting.

The policy is hard on "pushers," calling for expulsion for any student who sells narcotics or hallucinogenic drugs either on or off campus.

But on the question of willful involvement of a student in use other than the sale or distribution, the policy said only students caught using drugs on campus should be suspended pending the recommendations of a drug abuse committee.

Trustee Chet Briner moved to delete the "on campus" provision of the policy. Joe Peterson seconded.

"Are you saying that if a kid smokes marijuana in his home, we as a school district should become involved?" Vince McCullough, board president, asked.

"I think we should," Briner replied.

The California Education Code requires the local police department to notify the superintendent of schools whenever a student in the district is involved in illegal drug use.

By the code, the school administrators are authorized to take action to expel or suspend the student if the school is satisfied the involvement was willful.

"I feel we need more study and advice from the administration on this," Dennis Smith, trustee, said.

In other policy action, the board passed to second reading a dress code which says "if, in the judgment of the principal, the dress and grooming of any student is . . . detrimental to the educational program or health, welfare and safety of any student corrective and/or appropriate disciplinary action will be taken."

This policy was an alternate offered by the superintendent to a code written by students concluding that "student dress and grooming is the responsibility of the home."

Under Investigation

'Innocent'—Agnew

From AP Dispatches

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson decided today to keep the investigation inside the Justice Department and not turn the case over to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Richardson made the decision after discussing with U.S. Atty. Gen. George Beall the ways to proceed with the probe.

The Wall Street Journal said the allegations stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967-1968 and from (See AGNEW, Page 2)

Irvine Okays $9.9 Million School Budget

By JOHN ZALLER Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Irvine Unified school board adopted its first official budget Monday, a document that calls for spending $9.9 million and raising the school tax rate 85 cents.

School trustees approved the 1973-74 budget on a unanimous vote after a 90-minute, page-by-page review of the document.

The budget calls for the same student-to-teacher ratios that were used in the old San Joaquin and Tustin Union High School Districts.

However, the Irvine district's first budget authorizes higher spending levels for teaching materials and capital equipment than the old districts did. Officials said the expenditures were necessary on a one-time basis to get the new district on its feet.

The budget provides for spending an average of $1,214 per student with a tax rate of $5.84 per $100 assessed valuation. The combined tax rate under the San Joaquin and Tustin districts was $4.89 per $100.

To the owner of a $40,000 home, the difference in tax rates will cost about $95 on the annual property tax bill.

John Rajcic, deputy superintendent for business, said the main reasons for the stiff tax hike are:

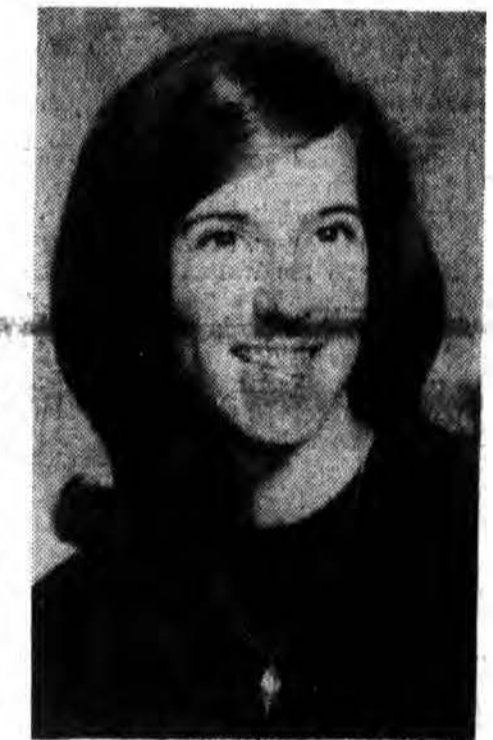

—Salary hikes averaging 8.9 percent for teachers and administrators, plus the cost of bringing elementary school teachers up to the old Tustin high school salary schedule. He said these increases would amount to 40 cents on the tax rate.

—Capital equipment costs for items like typewriters, desks, lawn mowers, etc., amount to another 30 cents on the tax rate.

—The relatively poor Tustin district qualified for supplemental state aid that the relatively well off Irvine district does not. The difference is $250 per high school student, and must be made up from local taxes.

"We didn't have any prior history to draw on, so we faced a difficult time in putting this budget together," said Superintendent Stan Corey.

"We did the best we could by pulling (See BUDGET, Page 2)

BODY HUNTED IN DUMP Missing Rochelle White

Deputies Search Dump for Body Of Lost Woman

By JOHN VALTERZA Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The search for missing San Juan Capistrano housewife Rochelle White has led to the Forster Canyon dump where Orange County sheriff's investigators for the past three days have sifted through tons of rubbish with the help of heavy equipment.

Thus far, the crew of three investigators and several dump workers has found nothing relevant to the case in the gigantic mound of reeking trash and garbage.

Detectives seem convinced that the 22-year-old brunette who lived at 16702 Calle La Bomba met with foul play late last month when she vanished from the family townhouse.

The investigators at the scene early today declined even to say they represented the Sheriff's Office but superiors admitted later that the unpleasant — and thus far futile — task had gone on since early in the weekend.

Spokesmen said that the area where the efforts are concentrated is the spot which was open for dumping during the period that Mrs. White was first reported missing by her husband, Roger White, 25, an electronics machinist.

Although official sources would not elaborate, one other source, a dump patron, said that over the weekend county employees told him the investigators were following up on a tip.

The county dump aide was quoted as saying a witness had told officers that he noticed someone dumping what could have been a body in the general area of today's digging.

To accomplish their task, county workers have dug a trench several hundred feet long and about 50 feet wide.

A bulldozer moves large quantities of the material and then a long shovel extension stirs the debris while investigators watch.

Panel Backs Carpenter's Beach Bill

A bill by State Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter (R-Newport Beach) authorizing state purchase of 1,500,000 acres and 3.5 miles of beachfront between Newport Beach and Laguna Beach today moved to the Senate floor for consideration.

The bill, SB 1089, cleared the Senate Finance Committee Monday on a 9-0 vote.

A Carpenter aide said today the bill made it through committee without amendment. It carries an urgency clause meaning a $7.6 million price could be paid immediately by the state upon approval by the Assembly and signature by Gov. Reagan. Deadline for legislature approval is Sept. 15.

The price, according to state parks director William Penn Mott, is "exactly half the value of the land."

The land, 3.5 miles of beach and two inland canyon parks totaling 1,500 acres, is owned by the Irvine Company.

The state parks acquisition is part of a longrange development plan by the company for development of a 10,000-acre parcel of the Irvine Ranch known as the coastal sector.

It is ocean view property lying between the cities of Irvine, Laguna and Newport Beach and the Pacific Ocean.

Development plans call for a Mediterranean resort mix of residential and commercial development and relocation of a stretch of Pacific Coast Highway.

Agreement to move the highway inland has not been reached between Irvine Company and state highway department officials.

Trustees Insure Data on Schools

A resolution passed Monday night by the Saddleback Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees insures that new residents get full information on their schools.

In line with a recent state law, realtors and developers will be required to provide homebuyers with written advice on the closest schools for each age and lot, transportation available, and who pays for it.

The homeowner must sign an agreement that he has read the school information before closing escrow.

Realtors and developers are required to get the information from the district; it will not be provided automatically.

U.S. Again Hits Wrong Bomb Site

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island is six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said it appears that the second bombing may have been caused by an equipment malfunction.

Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said it is not known what equipment went wrong, apparently causing bombs to be dropped some 1,800 feet from the intended target on the west bank of the Mekong River.

Friedheim said one B52 was involved in Monday's raid and that the episode is under what he called "rather intensive investigation."

He did not say where the plane was based, but other sources said it came from Andersen Air Base on Guam.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

In Honolulu, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, which has responsibility for American air strikes in Indochina, said he could neither confirm nor deny that the second bombing mistake occurred. He said the command did not have enough information to formulate a statement.

There was no letup in the U.S. bombing. Heavy explosions could be heard from areas around Phnom Penh as U.S. fighter-bombers kept up support of government ground forces. There was no word of B52 operations, but it was considered unlikely that there had been any curtailment because of the tragedy at Neak Luong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The casualty toll at Neak Luong rose today as U.S. Embassy officials said the count now was 137 killed and 268 injured.

Cambodian military officers at Neak Luong issued higher casualty figures, saying 189 persons were killed, including 96 soldiers and marines. Doergel said the embassy's casualty count came from initial Cambodian army reports.

False Attack Reports Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Air Force officer testified today he was secretly ordered to falsify reports of tactical air strikes by American fighter planes deep into Cambodia as late as April 1971.

The testimony by former Capt. George R. Moses significantly broadens allegations of false reporting of the Cambodian bombing campaign ordered at the highest levels of the Nixon administration during 1969, 1970 and 1971.

Saying there was a dual reporting system for tactical strikes similar to that used for the B52 strikes, Moses testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "America does not need to be defended by lies and deception."

federal contracts in Maryland let since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The federal contracts were let by the General Services Administration, the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun also reported that the investigation involved allegations of kickbacks from private contractors to Maryland and Baltimore County political figures.

The Journal said the vice president sought a White House audience after learning of the investigation, presumably to inform President Nixon.

At the White House today, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused to go beyond his statement that "we're not going to have a comment at this time."

Warren turned aside all questions on the matter — including those asking whether Agnew and Nixon discussed the investigation and whether Nixon still has confidence in his vice president.

The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore.

If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said.

There have been no indictments in the case against any prominent political figures, but one "information" equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Fornoff.

Robles, looking over his devastated counters, said, "We have all kinds of meat in the back but not the real cheap or real expensive cuts. And we have no one to cut it."

Robles' superiors did not expect their meat order to arrive so they laid off two meat cutters. Instead, a half-load arrived, leaving Robles unprepared.

Alpha Beta was the only market that appeared at all normal. Ground meat of all kinds was stocked, as were the higher-grade cuts of beef. Only rump roast was missing from the counters as their packing plant provides them a steady supply of beef.

Jim O'Connell, meat cutter at the Food King in Costa Mesa, said he could get almost any kind of meat but only in small amounts.

O'Connell predicts, "They ain't seen nothing yet. If LA packers all close, we're in for a lot of trouble."

In these days of dwindling supply, some shoppers have learned to time their shopping with the arrival of meat.

Some butchers are telling customers when orders are expected so they will have first chance at the meat. But other butchers claim that orders often don't arrive and when they do, they aren't on time.

The butcher at the Pantry in Costa Mesa explained that the best idea is to come in the morning rather than the afternoon or evening.

Hearing Ruckus

Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons alternately read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room.

The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately.

The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement."

It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room.

Police pushed their way to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration.

By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

Kleindienst Weeps Over Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the predawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its coverup.

In a three-hour session before the Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it.

"You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails."

The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew.

Kleindienst also expressed outrage when he learned that John D. Ehrlichman tried to interfere with the grand jury investigation and taped his conversations with Kleindienst.

Kleindienst testified as the next to last witness before the committee recesses until after Labor Day.

Kleindienst said he learned the full Watergate story for the first time in the early morning of April 15, after John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury.

Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

"This was the first time, since June 17, 1972 that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of these people were involved in anyway, in the cover-up, or that incident," Kleindienst testified.

"Two of these men (named by Silbert and Petersen) are two of my closest friends I've ever had in my life, and I think one of the things I did that night, is, I wept."

His two friends were John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, and Robert C. Mardian, another former Justice Department official who later worked for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP). (Mardian has a home in San Clemente.)

Also implicated, Kleindienst said, were Dean and Magruder; Frederick C. LaRue, a CRP official and Mitchell associate; and Nixon's two closest aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

This exchange occurred between Kleindienst and Fred Thompson, the committee's Republican counsel:

Thompson: "You went to see the President the 15th?"

Kleindienst: "Yes, sir."

Thompson: "Did you substantially tell him what they had told you?"

Kleindienst: "To the best of my ability, because I took the notes that I had written on my wife's blue stationery and I had them in my pocket, and I read from my notes."

Thompson: "And what was the President's reaction?"

Kleindienst: "He was dumb-founded. He was very upset. He was...uh...very upset."

Lawyers Debate Judge's Authority to Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon told a federal judge today that the court lacks jurisdiction to enforce the subpoena served on the President by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An attempt to enforce the subpoena legal brief supporting the President's they said, "would be an unwarranted and unsubstantiated violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

J. Fred Buzhardt, special White House counsel, in a court appearance lasting less than two minutes, filed a lengthy legal brief supporting the President's refusal to turn over White House tapes subpoenaed by Cox.

The action came shortly after the Senate Watergate committee decided to postpone any legal action of its own to obtain tapes and related documents pending disclosure of Nixon's reply to the Cox subpoena.

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refuse to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction.

"The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," the Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday. Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be.

formation than that." Matthew said in response to Smith's claim that he didn't have enough information.

Three members of the audience commented on the budget during the public hearing.

Rev. Preston Howell, a trustee of the former San Joaquin elementary district, said he felt the tax rate betrayed voters who were told that unification would not cause an increased tax rate.

"It's wrong to assume this tax rate is the result of the unification," Trustee Chet Briner answered. "There's no way to tell what the two budgets of the districts would have required had they remained separate."

Offers Pour In Capo Mother Awaits Fate of Son

Offers of help, free flights to Denver and some donations of funds have begun to arrive for Mrs. Linda Rea of Capistrano Beach as she continues to worry about the fate of her son who lies near death in a Colorado hospital.

Her 3-year-old son Jason, remains in extremely serious condition at the University of Colorado Medical Center where doctors have definitely ruled out for the present the possibility the youngster could qualify as a transplant donor.

Jason who arrived at the center late last week unable to breathe on his own. He became progressively stronger and a day later, physicians took off the life-giving respirator and discovered the youngster — the victim of a tragic pool accident — could breathe unaided.

Since then, the comatose boy's condition has stabilized somewhat and today spokesmen for the center said the boy's blood pressure has been appearing steady and strong.

"He's being fed from a tube in his stomach which was put there before he was flown to Denver. The operation took all sorts of things out of him, the poor thing," said Mrs. Rea.

"So many people think I'm in Denver, and telegrams from old friends have been sent there and most of the offers of help have gone there, too," she added.

But the 29-year-old mother said that as of now, she is convinced that flying to Denver would serve little or nothing.

"It would just make me feel worse than I already feel," said Mrs. Rea.

Her agony — which began three weeks ago when her apparently dead child was pulled from a baby sitter's pool and revived 45 minutes later — has been compounded because of little or no information from the professionals caring for her only child.

The detectives, as well, were using pitchforks to examine some material this morning.

The three days of digging mark the latest in a series of quests for leads into the disappearance of the brunette who had been scheduled to appear at a divorce hearing two days after she vanished.

Her car was found abandoned in Carlsbad, a coastal community immediately downcoast from Oceanside, but investigators said no evidence of foul play was noted in or around the vehicle.

The missing woman's husband has been interviewed several times, investigators said late last week, but has not been able to shed light on the disappearance.

The White couple faced a divorce hearing which was rescheduled to next Monday because of the woman's disappearance.

In that action, Mrs. White had alleged that she was subjected to physical abuse at the hands of her spouse during their four years of marriage. Also allied with the action is a court order forbidding her husband to harass, threaten or molest his estranged wife.

Corey promised that changes would be brought to the school board for decisions as "policy matters," and not made administratively by the district staff.

One unique feature of the budget, according to Rajcic, is the inclusion of $37,000 for "research and development."

"Most school districts are negligent for not trying to develop new ideas and ways of doing things," Rajcic said.

"What specifically will come from this money, I don't know yet for sure. But we're thinking about developing tools for measuring the cost effectiveness of our teaching program in a way that hasn't been done before."

Commissioners Downzone Huntington Density

By CANDACE PEARSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Densities in Huntington Beach became the target Monday for South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commissioners, who exercised their downzoning powers on two beach-area projects.

Approved after a reduction were a six-unit apartment building at 301 19th St. and a 10-unit apartment building at 18th Street between Olive and Orange Streets.

The projects by Jacqueline Foxx had been proposed at eight and 12-units, respectively, representing densities of 33.3 and 36.3 dwelling units per acre.

Huntington Beach's R-3 (multi-family) zoning for the area would have allowed the projects, which had concept approvals from the city.

But Melvin Carpenter, coastal commission executive director, revealed that staff planners believe a maximum of about 20 units an acre is right for the area.

He recommended the projects be cut to five units and seven-units which would bring them down to that density and help prevent a "Chinese wall" he said is building up in the area.

The commission, under Proposition 20 passed by voters last November, has jurisdiction over development within 1,000 yards of mean high tide line.

The 12-member Orange-Los Angeles counties panel already has demonstrated its authority in similar down-zoning actions in Newport Beach. There a duplex was reduced to a single-family dwelling, also on grounds of density.

Jim Foxx of Santa Ana, representing his wife, objected but agreed to the reductions in the Huntington Beach cases.

"In general, it's a good concept to cut down density — it improves the living environment," Foxx said. "But apartment buildings afford more people the chance to live by the beach."

Commissioner Robert Rooney of Huntington Beach said the issue isn't density to him, but is "open space and the preserving of options. I don't care if he had 20 units an acre, I'd still vote against it," Rooney said.

The six regional and one state coastline commissions must develop a coastal master plan by 1976.

Projects in this area of Huntington Beach should be denied without prejudice while alternatives are being decided, Rooney said.

"Here's an area with 85 percent open space," Commissioner Rimmon Fay said, supporting Rooney's arguments.

"We have received recommendations for development with a total absence of justification other than there is an application."

"There is absolutely no reason," Fay concluded, "why any development has to occur in that area at this time."

Rooney, Fay and Commission Chairman Donald Bright voted against the Foxx projects.

In commenting that the number of apartments in the area have formed a "row of rectangular boxes almost to the edge of the street," Carpenter also said it's time the commission became concerned in general about architecture.

"We should be encouraging developers and architects to find new methods of designing to achieve open space," Carpenter said.

Agnew Retains Lawyer

Bribery, Extortion, Tax Fraud Alleged

From AP Dispatches

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson decidated today to keep the investigation inside the Justice Department and not turn the case over to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Richardson made the decision after discussing with U.S. Atty. Gen. George Beal the ways to proceed with the probe.

Voters Eye Appointive City Posts

Voters in Huntington Beach will decide Nov. 6 if they want to change the city charter to make the posts of attorney, clerk and treasurer appointive rather than elective.

Councilmen agreed Monday night to put all three proposals on the ballot, despite some dissension over a clause which insures the three incumbents their same jobs even if the office becomes appointive.

Councilwoman Norma Gibbs objected to the "carryover" clause, saying "I'm not in favor of this automatic provision."

"The incumbents will support the charter change with that provision. Without it, they won't," replied Mayor Jerry Matney.

Councilman Jack Green then pointed out that the city charter actually requires such a "carryover" clause. "Once the office becomes appointive, then they are subject to the same removal procedures as other department heads," he said.

The incumbents are City Clerk Alicia Wentworth, City Attorney Don Bonfa and Treasurer Warren Hall.

Councilman Al Coen objected to a provision which makes the treasurer's post full time, so he abstained on the vote, though agreeing in principle to the charter change.

Later the same night, councilmen met in executive session and decided to hire the treasurer on a full time basis anyway, starting in September with an

Cat Clinic Eyed 58,000 a Year in Huntington

By TERRY COVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dennis Smith, animal control officer for Huntington Beach, estimates that 58,000 cats are born every year in this city — most of them unwanted.

"Cats are like a never-ending river, they just flow in to our pond," he told city councilman during a study session Monday night.

In an effort to dam the feline river, councilman informally agreed Monday to establish a voluntary cat licensing program and a low cost spaying and neutering clinic for all animals.

Specific proposals for the clinic and a voluntary license will be brought back to the council at its Aug. 20 meeting, according to City Administrator David Rowlands.

Smith, who represents California Animal Control (CAC), the city's official dog catcher, wanted a mandatory cat license.

"Councilmen... already... scarred... by previous battles with cat owners, refused. They did, however, add a provision that any impounded cats would have to have a license before being released to their owners.

Cats are only picked up by CAC when somebody else had already caught them. Smith said the agency does not waste its time chasing cats.

Smith said a mandatory cat license in Fremont has proved successful.

The low cost neutering and spaying clinic will have a price range from a low of $11 for a male cat to a high of $44 for a female dog.

One local veterinarian, Dr. Arliss

Kline, told councilmen the clinic idea was foolish because it would not be able to support itself and would never make a dent in the cat population.

Rowlands said some other animal control proposals which were not discussed much Monday will still be brought to the council as recommendations. They involve mandatory sterilizing of impounded animals and establishment of a breeders' license.

No fee was recommended, but Smith proposes that anyone in the city who breeds animals or offers stud service, should pay the city a business fee.

He also suggested that before any impounded animal is released the owner pay a breeder's license fee, or the animal would be sterilized.

Smith suggests that if the animal is impounded a second time in one year it should be automatically sterilized, even if the owner has a breeder's license.

"I don't care if it's a $1,000 dog, the second time it's impounded, it should be sterilized," Smith told councilmen.

Members of the council took no action on those proposals.

Coast Panel OKs Homes For Birds and People

La Solana Corporation can build 125 $150,000 homes for people in Huntington Harbour — after it constructs a more modest abode for a small, endangered bird.

South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commissioners Monday approved the man-made island project after corporation officials agreed to relocate the least tern nesting site to the Naval Weapons Station in Seal Beach.

Six to 10 percent of all known California least terns, an endangered species numbering about 300, nest at the Huntington Harbour site.

The area at Harbor and Midway channels is also used by black necked stilts, killdeer, snowy plover, and other bird species.

As many as 250 shore birds representing 13 different species have been seen in the area where 125 homes and an equal number of boat slips, a lagoon and private beach will be constructed, commission planners reported.

Attorney Al Kaufer, representing La Solana, agreed to all the conditions the coastal commission requested. They include:

- No construction until the current nesting season is over in August or September.
- No work in that portion of the tract used by the birds until the alternate sandy site is built.
- Fill from other parts of the 46-acre site can be used to build the new nesting area.
- A committee including representatives of state Fish and Game Department and Cal State Long Beach professors Stu Warder and Charles Collins must certify all nesting site work.
- Dr. Collins, an ornithologist, said relocating to a new site is "gambling" the birds will accept it.
- He agreed with commission Chairman Donald Bright, a biologist, who said the current site is "more accessible to two predators — dogs and children."
- The project will have 33-acres of land area, with a gross density of 3.7 units an acre.
- The commission also expressed concern about flushing action in harbor waters.
- "I'm wondering if we're not creating a

N.Y. Man Offers Innocent Plea In Porno Case

A New Yorker identified by the prosecution as a key figure in an alleged pornography ring that included a Los Alamitos warehouse among its outlets was arraigned today in Orange County Superior Court.

Judge Kenneth Williams accepted the innocent plea of Tony Zappi, 48, and ordered the indicted defendant to appear Oct. 8 for trial — the same date assigned to seven of nine codefendants.

Zappi, who was freed on $20,000 bail, was also ordered to return Aug. 27 for hearings on a number of motions which include a bid for dismissal of the charges.

District attorney's investigators confirmed after the brief hearing that they have met with no success in trying to arrange the Orange County arraignment of Ettore Zappi, 68, Tony Zappi's father and the alleged kingpin of Suki Inc. operations in this area.

Both Zappis and most of the nine persons indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury on obscenity charges face identical allegations returned by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury.

Capsule Council Action

Here in capsule form are the major actions taken Monday night by the Huntington Beach City Council:

- CAT TAGS: Informally agreed to establish a voluntary cat licensing system and support a low cost spaying and neutering clinic for all animals.
- ELECTION: Set Nov. 6 as the day voters will decide if they want to change the city charter to make the clerk, attorney and treasurer posts appointive, rather than elective.
- VIEW PARK: Ended the debate over a view park overlooking Huntington Harbour by declaring the city-owned property at Los Patos Avenue and Marine View Street surplus and up for sale.
- FLOOD: Supported a plan to build a dam at Mentone in San-Bernardino County, improve Prado Dam and improve the Santa Ana River flood control walls.
- TREASURER: Agreed to hire City Treasurer Warren Hall on a fulltime basis starting Sept. 1 with an annual salary of $20,486.
- ECOLOGY: Agreed to help the high school district win a $40,000 federal grant to establish a mobile science laboratory for environmental studies. All references to expansion of the city's coastal study, however, were struck from the resolution.
- CULTURE: Gave the Allied Arts Commission permission to negotiate the possibility of an Orange County Cultural Arts Center being built in the city.
- ARCHEOLOGY: Supported planning commission suggestions for tighter laws to preserve archeological and historical sites.

Crane Causes Power Outage

A heavy-duty crane, working on the Orange County Water District's project in Fountain Valley this morning, became entangled in high voltage wires, causing a brief power outage.

A spokesman for the Southern California Edison Company said there were no injuries reported in the mishap this morning, although the wires downed by the crane at the intersection of Ward Street and Euclid Avenue caused a jam up of the early morning traffic.

The spokesman said power was out from 7:31 a.m. to 7:51 a.m. to the 1,950 customers who live in the area bounded by the Santa Ana River, Warner Avenue, Brookhurst Street and Garfield Avenue.

Football Feast Set for Saturday

Football coaches in the South Huntington Beach Junior All American Football program will don chefs' hats Saturday morning to stir up football funds.

They'll flip flapjacks and serve up eggs, sausage, juice and coffee from 7 a.m. to noon at Lake Park.

Breakfast costs $1 and tickets can be purchased at the park, or from players in the junior football league.

Students Escort Coeds to Halt Campus Assaults

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State University campus police have launched a coed escort service to counter a rash of rapes and assaults on the campus.

"We've had four assaults in five days and we had to do something," FSU Capt. Steve Hooker said Monday night as the escort service started. "The assaults have been in isolated, dark areas of campus and against coeds alone."

Hooker said nine incidents have been reported since January. He said they were unrelated and occurred in different areas of the campus.

"We've only been able to make one arrest so far," he said. "And we believe different men are involved in each case."

William Jude Norman, 23, of Tallahassee, has been charged with the rape of a 22-year-old coed. Police said Norman is not a student at the university.

Not City Function?

Coastal Study Program Scored

Huntington Beach's ocean monitoring program fell under a few city council storm clouds Monday night.

The program itself was not up for discussion, but Councilman Jack Green issued a few sharp comments about it during talks about a proposed $40,000 mobile science lab for the high school district.

A resolution seeking city support for the science lab referred to the lab as part of a program "to expand the city's coastline study."

"I will not be committed to anything that says we will expand the coastline study," fumed Green. "I have serious questions whether the city should be in that field."

The coastline study, conducted by the harbors and beaches department, is currently under fire by councilmen who feel other agencies ought to be responsible for studying the ocean.

The harbors and beaches department has spent the past two years sending diving teams underwater to collect water samples and categorize the chemical and biological makeup of the ocean.

Some marine biologists have questioned the accuracy of the city study, and some councilmen question the wisdom of spending limited city funds on the project.

A spokesman for the Huntington Beach Union High School District told councilmen the mobile science lab was not really a part of the ocean study.

District officials hope to win a $40,000 federal grant to purchase the vehicle and its technical equipment. The city would put up $3,500 to pay half the salary of a technician to run the mobile lab.

Green and other councilmen agreed to support the lab proposal after all references to the city's coastline study were struck from the resolution.

The lab will serve two purposes: as a field study for students, and as a local monitoring laboratory for both air and water quality.

After approving the lab, Green launched another attack on the harbors and beaches department for not supplying the council with information on what other agencies are doing about ocean studies off Huntington Beach.

Green pointed to a survey of such projects published last February by the Orange County Health Department and said the survey was never mentioned by city staff.

City Administrator David Rowlands said Harbors and Beaches Director Vince Moorhouse is compiling the information and will shortly present a thorough report to the council.

Hearing Ruckus

Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons alternately read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room.

The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately.

The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement."

It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room.

Police pushed their way to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration.

By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

Kleindienst Tells Panel He Wept Over Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen testified this afternoon he ordered federal prosecutors to restrict their grand jury investigation to the Watergate break-in and not go beyond, into another political "dirty tricks."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the predawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its coverup.

In a three-hour session before the Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it.

"You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails."

The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew.

Kleindienst also expressed outrage when he learned that John D. Ehrlichman tried to interfere with the grand jury investigation and taped his conversations with Kleindienst.

Kleindienst testified as the next to last witness before the committee recesses until after Labor Day.

Kleindienst said he learned the full Watergate story for the first time in the early morning of April 15, after John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury.

Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

"This was the first time, since June 17, 1972 that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of these people were involved in anyway," Kleindienst testified.

"Two of these men (named by Silbert and Petersen) are two of my closest friends I've ever had in my life, and I think one of the things I did that night, is, I wept."

His two friends were John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, and Robert C. Mardian, another former Justice Department official who later worked for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP). (Mardian had a home in San Clemente.)

Also implicated, Kleindienst said, were Dean and Magruder; Frederick C. LaRue, a CRP official and Mitchell associate; and Nixon's two closest aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

This exchange occurred between Kleindienst and Fred Thompson, the committee's Republican counsel:

Thompson: "You went to see the President the 15th?"

Kleindienst: "Yes, sir."

Thompson: "Did you substantially tell him what they had told you?"

Kleindienst: "To the best of my ability, because I took the notes that I had written on my wife's blue stationery and I had them in my pocket, and I read from my notes."

Thompson: "And what was the President's reaction?"

Kleindienst: "He was dumbfounded. He was very upset. He was...uh...very upset."

nic area that will operate very quickly," Commissioner Art Holmes, a San Clemente city councilman, said.

Commissioner Rimmon C. Fay, a marine biologist, agreed that the poor circulation could cause more problems, but said the sandy lagoon being built will help aerate the water.

Kaufman said the project will have to meet water quality standards and added a pump would be installed to aid water flow.

Prior to unanimously approving the construction permit, commissioners denied an exemption from Proposition 20 controls for the Huntington Beach Development.

Kaufman said it should be exempt from the controls of the initiative passed last November because Huntington Harbour Corporation master plans called for single-family development in the area as early as 1960.

Only Commissioner Russ Rubley, a Long Beach city councilman, agreed with Kaufman.

Ocean View Taxes Drop Next Year

Ocean View School District trustees approved a $14,047,982 budget for the 1973-74 school year Monday night, enabling a tax rate cut of $1.13 within the Huntington Beach district.

The tax decrease, which lowered the rate to $2.61 per $100 assessed evaluation, allows a person owning a $40,000 home to save $113 on school taxes for the year.

The board was able to approve the tax cutback through supplemental financing by the state under provisions of SB 90, which has shifted much of the school funding from the local district to the state. The additional state revenue will mainly come from the increased state sales tax recently enacted.

Superintendent James Carvell called the effect of SB 90 on the Ocean View budget "significant." Fifty-nine percent of the budget will come from the state this year, with 37.8 percent from local taxes. The 1972-73 budget was based on 51.4 percent from local taxes.

The lower tax rate "reflects the state government's basic idea of shifting a portion of the state schools' funding from the local taxpayer to the state," Carvell explained.

Although the school budget is now costing the taxpayer less, it contains a 10 percent increase in the cost per child for the new school year. In addition, school officials anticipate a student increase of three percent for the following year.

Another increase in the budget is for teachers' salaries. A 5 percent cost-of-living increase has been included for teachers, although negotiations are still under way between the administration and the teachers, who are asking a 9 percent raise.

Valley Industrial Parcel Future To Be Weighed

The future of a piece of property on the fringe of the Fountain Valley industrial area will be decided by the City Council Tuesday night.

Property owner Henry DeLapp is appealing a planning commission denial of his proposal to construct a series of mini-warehouses on the eastern 10 acres of the land at Warner Avenue and Euclid Street.

According to Planning Director Clinton Sherrod, the proposal was denied by the planning commission because it is "in possible conflict with studies currently being conducted by the commission and Mr. DeLapp expressed no willingness to continue the items pending a conclusion of the commission's studies."

Sherrod also noted that there remains a question about rezoning of the property following a referendum which resulted from a proposal to construct a four-screen drive-in theater on the site.

That proposal was defeated when a referendum petition was upheld in court. In a memo to City Council members, Sherrod notes that the mini-warehouse development "is functional and compatible with the surroundings. The use meets an apparent unsatisfied demand for recreational vehicle storage compound."

He also noted that the Environmental Impact Report submitted for the proposed project "does cover in one fashion or another the major points required by the state guidelines."

The land is currently zoned for agricultural use, but it is master-planned for industrial.

Council Kills Park Proposal In Huntington

A stormy battle for a hill overlooking Huntington Harbour was ended Monday night by Huntington Beach City Councilmen.

They killed a view park proposal offered by a handful of residents by declaring city-owned property at Los Patos Avenue and Marine View Street surplus and up for sale.

That clears the path for developer Richard Ashby to build condominiums on his 2.1 acres and to clean up, but preserve the old water tower on top of the hill.

Councilman Henry Duke launched the fireworks as he tried to block the council's action.

"Why is the staff pushing this so hard?" Duke asked, blaming the city administrator for bringing the item before the council Monday.

"This has been the staff's position from the inception," replied Councilman Al Coen. "I don't know why the hell you don't address yourself to the only issue before us, should this be a park? It doesn't meet park criteria. Selling it puts it back on the tax rolls, and the agreement will keep this open space."

Councilwoman Norma Gibbs, who originally supported the idea of a 2.5-acre view park, also said, "I don't think it's feasible or practical to make it a park."

The park idea was originally proposed by Ann Conway, whose husband is building a home on the other side of Marine View Drive. She suggested the city acquire the Ashby acreage and put it with the city land to make a view park.

At one point, she and a half-dozen other Marine View homeowners suggested they would even be willing to develop the park for the city.

Ashby charged that the Conways were only attempting to preserve their own private view. This condominiums would partially block their view.

"We don't need or want the city land," Ashby told councilmen. "But we're willing to buy it, clean it up, and preserve it as open space just to make our project more attractive."

88-cent Cut For Valley Home Owners

Taxpayers in the Fountain Valley School District received an 88-cent tax rate cut when district trustees approved a $12 million budget Thursday night.

The new tax rate will be $2.73 per $100 assessed valuation, down from last year's rate of $3.61.

To the owner of a $40,000 home, the new budget means his school tax bill will be $273 this year instead of the $361 he paid last year.

In spite of the tax rate decrease, this year's budget is $1,722,168 higher than last year's budget.

The difference is being financed by state tax funds under the new school finance reform law, SB 90.

In giving final approval to the budget, trustees noted that the school district has managed to lower its tax rate $1.50 in the past ten years, in spite of rising prices and a growing student population.

This year the district expects to house an additional 319 students, bringing the total to 12,321.

Included in the new budget is an undetermined percent cost of living pay raise for district teachers.

The pay dispute between teachers and district officials is currently being mediated and neither side will release the figures being argued.

Elementary Unit Board Takes Up School Budget

Trustees of the Huntington Beach City (Elementary) School District tonight will consider a $11.9 million budget for fiscal 1973-74 that calls for a 26-cent tax rate hike.

The tax rate would go from last year's figure of $2.95 per $100 assessed valuation to $3.21 because of the new school finance law, SB 90.

According to Deputy Superintendent Charles Palmer, the new law resulted in a raise in the elementary district's tax rate because the district has a relatively low number of students compared to its tax base.

Included in this year's budget figure is $2,134,000 for the building fund and $1,090,000 in bond redemption as the district's share of the state school building program.

Those two sums will be financed by a 49 cent levy which is included in the total tax rate.

Also included in the new budget is a five percent cost of living pay raise for the district's teachers.

Last month, when trustees approved the publication budget, board member Steve Holden tried unsuccessfully to get the board to cut $400,000 from it.

At that time he maintained that the proposed tax rate increase would be too much for district taxpayers and approval of his cut, would lower the tax rate 15 to 20 cents.

federal contracts in Maryland let since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The federal contracts were let by the General Services Administration, the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun also reported that the investigation involved allegations of kickbacks from private contractors to Maryland and Baltimore County political figures.

The Journal said the vice president sought a White House audience after learning of the investigation, presumably to inform President Nixon.

At the White House today, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused to go beyond his statement that "we're not going to have a comment at this time."

Warren turned aside all questions on the matter — including those asking whether Agnew and Nixon discussed the investigation and whether Nixon still has confidence in his vice president.

The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore.

If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said.

There have been no indictments in the case against any prominent political figures, but one "information" equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Fornoff.

Fornoff was a key county official who served briefly under Agnew when the latter was county executive and for a longer period under Agnew's Democratic successor, incumbent Dale Anderson.

Anderson, who denies any illegal acts, is also a target of the investigation, the Journal said.

Huntington Teacher Seeks Reinstatement

A Huntington Beach teacher who found the appellate court on his side after an Orange County Superior Court judge ruled that he could be dismissed for immoral conduct is pressing for his reinstatement to his former post.

A hearing into the writ filed by former student counselor Clarence L. Netwig, 49, has been set for Aug. 13 before Superior Court Judge Walter W. Charamza.

Netwig demands his reinstatement effective June 21, 1973, to the post he lost April 13, 1971, when trustees of the Huntington Beach Union High School District accused him of responsibility for the pregnancy of a 16-year-old student at his school.

It was alleged that Netwig frequently dated the girl and that he stayed overnight with her in Las Vegas. The girl's mother testified that Netwig asked her for permission to marry her daughter.

The girl, now 18, has since married her former counselor.

Judge William S. Lee ruled that the district could follow up its suspension by firing Netwig with an opinion containing his view that dismissal was justified and charges against the counselor had been adequately proved.

But he was reversed by the Fourth District Court of Appeals in San Bernardino in a ruling that struck down Judge Lee's findings and paved the way for Netwig's current demand.

Netwig claims in his new court action that the school board has made no attempt to rehire him despite the ruling in his favor by the appellate bench.

2nd U.S. Bombing Error Revealed

Offers Pour In Capo Mother Awaits Fate of Son

Offers of help, free flights to Denver and some donations of funds have begun to arrive for Mrs. Linda Rea of Capistrano Beach as she continues to worry about the fate of her son who lies near death in a Colorado hospital.

Her 3-year-old son Jason, remains in extremely serious condition at the University of Colorado Medical Center where doctors have definitely ruled out for the present the possibility the youngster could qualify as a transplant donor.

Jason who arrived at the center late last week unable to breathe on his own. He became progressively stronger and a day later, physicians took off the life-giving respirator and discovered the youngster — the victim of a tragic pool accident — could breathe unaided.

Since then, the comatose boy's condition has stabilized somewhat and today spokesmen for the center said the boy's blood pressure has been appearing steady and strong.

"He's being fed from a tube in his stomach which was put there before he was flown to Denver. The operation took all sorts of things out of him, the poor thing," said Mrs. Rea.

"So many people think I'm in Denver, and telegrams from old friends have been sent there and most of the offers of help have gone there, too," she added.

But the 29-year-old mother said that as of now, she is convinced that flying to Denver would serve little or nothing.

"It would just make me feel worse than I already feel," said Mrs. Rea.

Her agony — which began three weeks ago when her apparently dead child was pulled from a baby sitter's pool and revived 45 minutes later — has been compounded because of little or no information from the professionals caring for her only child.

"I had to call them collect Monday and all they told me was not to wait around for any news. But how can you not wait around for news of your only child?" she asked.

And at this point, Mrs. Rea is wondering if her decision to volunteer her son as a transplant donor was the right one.

"We (her former husband, Jason's father) had to make the decision right away when the doctors told us Jason had gotten much worse."

Last Friday, the day that Jason was flown to Denver on a private jet, the plans were grim and simple.

Because of the youngster's moribund condition at that time funeral arrangements had been made and doctors in Denver seemed certain that death would occur over the weekend.

"The change in his condition is certainly wonderful. For sure, I praise the Lord that Jason is breathing again," said Mrs. Rea.

"But even though he is, my poor baby is hardly even there or, that bed," she added.

Accidental Toll Climbs Past 400

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island is six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said it appears that the second bombing may have been caused by an equipment malfunction.

Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said it is not known what equipment went wrong, apparently causing bombs to be dropped some 1,800 feet from the intended target on the west bank of the Mekong River.

Friedheim said one B52 was involved in Monday's raid and that the episode is under what he called "rather intensive investigation."

He did not say where the plane was based, but other sources said it came from Andersen Air Base on Guam.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

In Honolulu, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, which has responsibility for American air strikes in Indochina, said he could neither confirm nor deny that the second bombing mistake occurred. He said the command did not have enough information to formulate a statement.

There was no letup in the U.S. bombing. Heavy explosions could be heard from areas around Phnom Penh as U.S. fighter-bombers kept up support of government ground forces. There was no word of B52 operations, but it was considered unlikely that there had been any curtailment because of the tragedy at Neak Luong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The casualty toll at Neak Luong rose today as U.S. Embassy officials said the count now was 137 killed and 268 injured.

Cambodian military officers at Neak Luong issued higher casualty figures, saying 189 persons were killed, including 96 soldiers and marines. Doergel said the embassy's casualty count came from initial Cambodian army reports.

SHERIFF'S INVESTIGATORS RAKE THROUGH DEBRIS AT FORSTER CANYON DUMP From Santa Ana, Confirmation That Detectives Are Searching for Mrs. White's Body

Dump Sifted for Woman Probers Hunt 3 Days for Missing San Juan Wife

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The search for missing San Juan Capistrano housewife Rochelle White has led to the Forster Canyon dump where Orange County sheriff's investigators for the past three days have sifted through tons of rubbish with the help of heavy equipment.

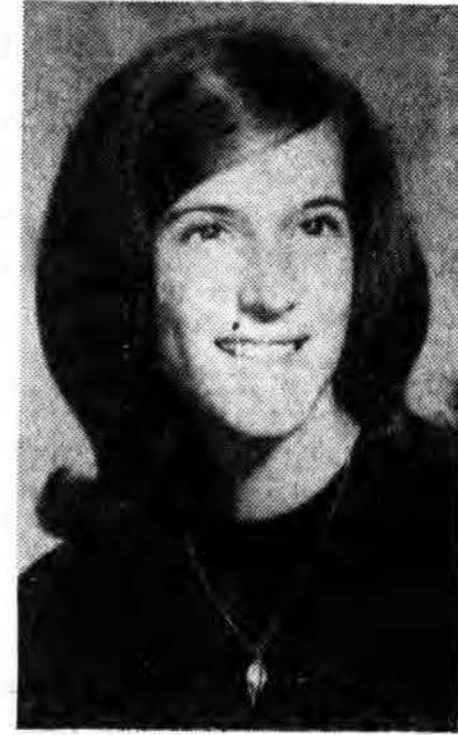

Thus far, the crew of three investigators and several dump workers has found nothing relevant to the case in the gigantic mound of reeking trash and garbage.

Detectives seem convinced that the 22-year-old brunette who lived at 18702 Calle La Bomba met with foul play late last month when she vanished from the family townhouse.

The investigators at the scene early today declined even to say they represented the Sheriff's Office but superiors admitted later that the unpleasant — and thus far futile — task had gone on since early in the weekend.

Spokesmen said that the area where the efforts are concentrated is the spot which was open for dumping during the period that Mrs. White was first reported missing by her husband, Roger White, 25, an electronics machinist.

Although official sources would not

BODY HUNTED IN DUMP Missing Rochelle White elaborate, one other source, a dump patron, said that over the weekend county employees told him the investigators were following up on a tip.

The county dump aide was quoted as saying a witness had told officers that he noticed someone dumping what could have been a body in the general area of today's digging.

To accomplish their task, county workers have dug a trench several hundred feet long and about 50 feet wide.

A bulldozer moves large quantities of the material and then a long shovel extension stirs the debris while investigators watch.

The detectives, as well, were using pitchforks to examine some material this morning.

The three days of digging mark the latest in a series of quests for leads into the disappearance of the brunette who had been scheduled to appear at a divorce hearing two days after she vanished.

Her car was found abandoned in Carlsbad, a coastal community immediately downcoast from Oceanside, but investigators said no evidence of foul play was noted in or around the vehicle.

The missing woman's husband has been interviewed several times, investigators said late last week, but has not been able to shed light on the disappearance.

Clemente Woman Faces County Death Plot Trial

A San Clemente woman and a male co-defendant have been ordered to face trial in Orange County Superior Court on charges that they plotted the killing of his business partner.

Judge James Turner set Aug. 20 as the trial date for Betty Love Flatley, 46, of 1880 N. El Camino Real, and Carl Leo Osowski, 50, of Anaheim. They are free on bail on charges of soliciting commission of a murder.

Those charges were filed after San Clemente police taped telephone conversations which allegedly indicated that Osowski was prepared to pay a substantial sum of money to eliminate his business partner, George Minkian.

It was alleged in municipal court action that the plan to kill Minkian was discussed over brunch at the Laguna Niguel Country Club. It was testified that the figure of $10,000 was quoted as the appropriate fee for the removal of the Long Beach man.

The prosecution said its key witness is a man who once lived with Mrs. Flatley at her San Clemente home and who allegedly was offered the job of eliminating Minkian.

Medical Center System Slows Cash Collections

Accounting procedures and internal controls at the Orange County Medical Center are not functioning in a manner which assures that the medical center will collect all money due it, the Orange County Grand Jury auditor reported Monday.

If more patients were properly screened at time of entry, an increase in cash collections of $30,000 annually would result, the report said.

The auditor, Arthur Young and Company, said that combining the responsibilities of the center's financial evaluators and the welfare department Medi-Cal eligibility workers would result in better screening and reduced writeoffs caused by insufficient billing information.

"Emergency room financial evaluators work in one small room. This affords little privacy and causes embarrassment to the patient being interviewed," the auditor said. "We recommend that the evaluators be given more office space in an area that would not cause congestion but would still be near the emergency room entrance."

The report said that entry forms must be properly completed. "We tested a sample of 40 large, old accounts receivable; 40 percent either had no evaluation form on file or the form contained only a name and address and 30 percent were marked 'evaluated but not determined' or 'not evaluated.'"

The auditor concluded that 70 percent of the sample had insufficient source of payment information to allow proper collection procedures.

The auditor said that during 1972-73 when one collection officer was added collections increased by about $100,000.

Prison Guard Held

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (UPI) — A grand jury Monday indicted a prison guard on charges he provided an inmate with the gun used for an escape attempt in which two guards were killed. However, Scioto County Prosecutor Everett Burton refused to give further details of the alleged plan by guard Ronald Pratt to aid the escape of Wayne L. Raney, a convicted killer.

False Attack Reports Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Air Force officer testified today he was secretly ordered to falsify reports of tactical air strikes by American fighter planes deep into Cambodia as late as April 1971.

The testimony by former Capt. George R. Moses significantly broadens allegations of false reporting of the Cambodian bombing campaign ordered at the highest levels of the Nixon administration during 1969, 1970 and 1971.

Saying there was a dual reporting system for tactical strikes similar to that used for the B52 strikes, Moses testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "America does not need to be defended by lies and deception."

Nixon Home Costs Itemized

$10 Million Includes $89 for Decorative Pillows

From Wire Services

A 70-page breakdown of the $10 million spent by the government on security and other work on President Nixon's homes included $89 for "four decorative pillows" in his San Clemente den.

The pillows, along with $475 for swimming pool cleaner at Key Biscayne, Florida, and $6.83 for "picture frame supplies," are among the apparently non-security related items included in the General Services Administration (GSA) report.

Acting on the President's instructions, officials at GSA, the White House and the Secret Service disclosed Monday that about $10 million had been spent in four years on the home-and-offices compounds in California and Florida.

GSA Administrator Arthur Sampson said the pillows, picture frames and other such items will be reclaimed by the government when Nixon leaves office and no longer needs them.

Presidential spokesman Gerald Warren said the same is true of more than $600,000 of the nearly $6 million in communications installations and other work financed by the military at Key Biscayne and the Western White House in south Orange County.

Money spent at San Clemente, according to White House spokesmen, included $39,500 for a new heating system, a bulletproof screen around the swimming pool and a fence between the property and the beach.

Another $100,000 was spent by the Secret Service in San Clemente for three gazebos, a gatehouse and another wall. Later projects — including $175,000 for electrical work and $76,000 for landscaping — were also approved at the First Family's California home.

GSA and White House officials said all measures were needed for security. The detailed costs had been secret.

According to government sources, a total of more than $9.9 million was spent at San Clemente, Key Biscayne, on Grand Cay Island in the Bahamas, owned by Nixon friend Robert Abplanalp and often used by the President, and at five residences used by Nixon's two daughters.

Less than 10 percent of the total was used on property owned by Nixon, the government claimed. Almost 60 percent went for operation of the Western White House and for communications facilities established at a Coast Guard base adjacent to the San Clemente estate.

The White House has been barraged with questions about the homes since May, when it disclosed that Nixon had borrowed $625,000 from industrialist Abplanalp to purchase the San Clemente site. The loan was supposedly canceled in a complex transaction 18 months later when Nixon sold to Abplanalp 23 of the 29 oceanfront acres.

They Can't Give It Back

RICKY TICKY POLITIX: Remember that extra penny sales tax that you've been paying since the first of last month? The one nobody wants or needs?

Well, our good California Legislature convened again just yesterday to do something about this extra one cent that is adding to a state treasury surplus already overloaded with some $826 million.

You remember how we got the extra penny tax. Before, you were paying five cents sales tax on each dollar in goods purchased. Then came a measure to boost that a penny. Abruptly, somebody noticed that state government already had more money than it could spend.

This, in itself, must have been some kind of shock. So the lawmakers set about to repeal the extra penny.

MEANWHILE, GOV. Reagan and the Democrats were arguing over how the state should give you folks back another $320 million in income taxes you also paid that they don't need up there in Sacramento.

Gov. Reagan, on the one hand, wanted to give it back to people in the same proportions as they had paid in. The Demos, on the other hand, wanted to spread the money around in equal batches among the rich, medium and poor.

SO IT DEVELOPED that when the penny sales tax repeal came up, those canny Democrats also tacked their version of the income tax rebate onto the tail end of the sales tax repeal.

Chuckling, they figured they had forced off Gov. Reagan's hand. If he wanted to get rid of the extra sales tax money, he'd have to get rid of the income taxes at the same time — and do it the Democrats' way.

Trouble was, the devious Demos got fooled. Gov. Reagan vetoed the bill, thus not giving you back any money yet, neither extra sales taxes nor extra income taxes. State government continues in the terrible situation of wallowing around in surplus cash.

Thus yesterday the Legislature met to override Gov. Reagan's veto and restore us to paying only a five-cent sales tax. And you have to admit, in this day and age, every penny counts. Particularly if it is yours.

REPORTS OUT OF Sacramento indicate there was much betting going on among the legislators. Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, the Democrat from Van Nuys, was confidently predicting his house would override the veto if the Senate acted likewise earlier.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco was waging that Moretti's Assembly fellows would "fall on their faces" and fail to follow any senate veto override.

Moscone never got a chance to find out. The Senate failed to pass the override by six votes.

Senator John L. Harmer, the Republican from Glendale, explained it all for the victors.

He said to turn off the extra penny tax so suddenly would create "a hardship" on merchants who have to collect the taxes and also those poor overworked state taxing agents.

FUNNY, BUT IT didn't seem to create all those hardships when the state turned on the extra penny levy.

All of this likely proves an old adage in government. It's real easy to pass higher taxes. It's another thing to get rid of them.

Spacemen View Sun—Situation's Rosy

Skylab Hopes Glowing

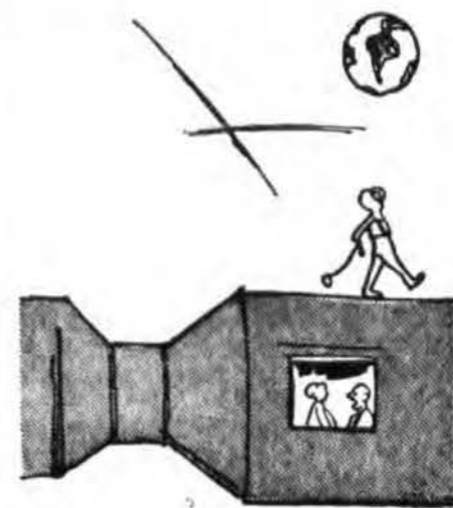

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts today switched on their sun-watching telescopes, signalling their return to orbital research after a record 6½ hour odd job spacewalk.

Ground engineers, encouraged by tests and the spacemen's outside inspection, were more confident in the future of the giant orbiting lab and officials were optimistic the Skylab 2 pilots could return safely in their mechanically troubled Apollo ferry ship, rather than be rescued.

Civilian scientist-astronaut Owen K. Garriott powered up the solar observatory and beamed back television pictures of the sun seen through the battery of telescopes which give scientists the best views ever of earth's nearest star.

GARRIOTT, JACK R. Lousma and Alan L. Bean were already up and working on a radio teleprinter when mission control gave the astronauts a wakeup call at 5:06 a.m. PDT, an hour later than normal.

The daily flight plans, changes in procedures and all lengthy messages are sent to Skylab on the teleprinter but the pilots informed mission control that nothing had printed overnight.

"Okay, we fixed the teleprinter," Lousma reported after making a small adjustment in a rubber ring on the printer. "You can send the messages. It looks like it's going to work all right."

The silver and white awning Garriott and Lousma hoisted over the space station, like sailors raising a sail, has already started dropping interior temperatures, solving an overheating problem.

LOUSMA AND mission commander Bean concentrated on medical experiments, and all three pilots hoped to get some rest from Monday's fatiguing spacewalk that kept them up past scheduled bedtime. It was by far the longest men had spent outside an orbiting space ship and doubled the mark set by the Skylab 1 astronauts in June.

Before going to bed early today, Lousma told mission control the 17,000 mile an hour spacewalk "was like riding a white horse on top of the world, kind of like Peter Pan."

Ground controllers, meanwhile, breathed easier after a thorough check of engineering data radioed back from Skylab showed that its cooling system was in better shape than originally believed. It was first reported Sunday night that both cooling systems were leaking and flight directors said they would last only 60 days.

Wheat Future Prices Break Record at $4

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices have hit a historic high of $4 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade in what one commodity authority termed "possible hysterical buying."

The September contract closed at $4.04 as prices advanced the 10-cent daily limit for a sixth consecutive day. "There's possible hysterical buying here," said Clifford Roberts, vice president of commodity marketing for Cargill, Inc., one of the largest grain exporters in the country. He added that there was

PRESIDENT SETS SALARY FOR COX

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has set the salary of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox at $38,000 annually.

Nixon's order came in a document issued Monday. It did not mention Cox by name but referred to "Special prosecutor, the Department of Justice."

"substantial foreign buying." PRIOR TO LAST week's high of $3.50 the record of $3.25 had stood since May 1917.

The higher prices were attributed by one source to growing foreign demand for United States wheat, dwindling existing stocks and a less-than-expected 1973 harvest.

Prices have almost tripled since the government announced the wheat sales to Russia last year. Since Phase 4 was initiated July 18, prices have gone up 40 percent.

RICHARD BELL, Department of Agriculture deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said large amounts of this year's crop already have been sold to Russia and China. Japan has made a major purchase.

Other commodity futures posted limited gains, including corn at 10 cents a bushel, oats at 6 cents and soybeans at 40 cents. Soybean oil climbed the limit of $1 a hundred pounds.

In future trading, a seller contracts to deliver a specified amount of a commodity by a specific future date, often at a price substantially higher than current cash market prices. At Monday's close, however, the September wheat contract was 18 cents below the cash market price.

Highway Cut

Phnom Penh Pounded 153rd Straight Day

From Wire Services

PHNOM PENH — U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around this city today, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began.

Field reports said the raids hit south and northwest of the capital and the concussions of explosives rumbled through the city through the night.

South of Phnom Penh, rebels cut Highway 30 about a mile from the suburb of Takhmau. Insurgents slipped onto the road during the night, set up roadblocks made of tree trunks and furniture and then mined the roadblocks.

Government troops began clearing operations early today, field reports said, and fighting was reported raging in the area.

IN THE HIGHWAY 1 area, the scene of heavy fighting last weekend, field reports said the situation was calm.

Government military sources said the town of Tang Kouk, 72 miles north of the capital, was evacuated and government soldiers defending the town were trying to battle their way through rebel lines to the city of Skoun, 12 miles south.

Radio contact with the defenders at Tang Kouk were lost, the sources said, and Skoun itself was reported under guerrilla attack.

U.S. warplanes, including B52s and F111s, again struck targets around Phnom Penh, the 153rd consecutive day since the intensified air offensive began.

Meanwhile, it was announced that military activity in South Vietnam jumped to its highest level in seven weeks but a South Vietnamese command spokesman said the incidents were mostly insignificant clashes.

THE HEAVIEST fighting was in the Central Highlands provinces of Kontum and Pleiku where 28 Communists and two government troops were killed in a series of skirmishes Monday. It was the second day of intense fighting in the area.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Tien reported 127 Communist cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. It was the highest total since the 129 of June 16, the day after the second Vietnam truce took effect.

There were 120 Communist truce infractions reported in the 24-hour period ending at noon today.

"The intensity of most of the action was not significant," Hien said.

Fighting was also reported in an arc between Kontum and the Laos border where clashes have been fought sporadically for the last two months.

Captor Cleared In Church Sect Deprogramming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ted Patrick, hired by the father of a young man to abduct and talk the son into quitting a fundamentalist religious sect, has been found innocent of unlawful imprisonment.

Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Bruce McManis told the six jurors Monday that if they believed Patrick's abduction of Daniel Voll, 20, of Farmington, Conn., was justified, they should find him innocent.

Voll, 21, had left home to join the New Testament Missionary Fellowship of New York, and his father hired Patrick, a former aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, to capture the youth and get him to leave the sect through several talk sessions.

PATRICK HAD successfully "deprogrammed" other youths at their parents' requests to counter what he called "brainwashing" on the part of the sects.

But assistant district attorney Juan Ortiz said this constituted illegal imprisonment, a misdemeanor. He said there would be "chaos if we are going to allow parents who disagree over the religious doctrine of their children to kidnap them."

Army Shot Down

Ehrlichman's Adviser Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House military aide has been ordered promoted over the objections of the Army, the Pentagon has confirmed.

The order to promote Lt. Col. Dann G. Mead came from President Nixon, according to a spokesman.

Mead's name was not included in a list of newly named colonels handed down last September by a promotion board. The Pentagon spokesman said the promotion board was reversed, stating "the directions came from the Commander in Chief and we were acting on them."

Mead is a 10-year Army veteran who has worked in the White House for the past three years.

The Washington Post said that former Army Secretary Robert Froehke carried out the promotion order only after former Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson put it in writing.

Mead, 35, is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., and holds a doctoral degree in political science.

For much of his tenure in the White House he worked on domestic matters under former chief domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30. Recently Mead has been White House coordinator for District of Columbia affairs.

California

A weather pattern of early morning low clouds and fog wafting away by afternoon is expected to persist in southern California through the week.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST FOR 7 AM EST 8-1-73

Generally pleasant weather was the rule outside the storm areas.

Thunderstorms roared the northern Plains and northern Mississippi Valley. A few storms dampened the central and southern Plains, the Gulf and South Atlantic Coast states and areas in northern New England.

Heavy thunderstorms flooded at least one highway near Boone, N.C., with three to four feet of water as northwestern North Carolina was hit by downpours. Burlington, Vt., was soaked by almost an inch of rain.

The Yadkin River at Patterson, N.C., rose 10.7 feet in two hours today and swept house-trailers into the river. No one was killed. Highways in the area were closed by washouts and high water, trees were toppled and power lines knocked down.

Some families in the area were evacuated and others were warned of other possible flash flooding in the northwestern North Carolina area.

Coastal Weather

Partly sunny today. Light variable winds night and morning hours becoming westerly 18 to 18 knots in afternoons today and Wednesday. High today 72. Coastal temperatures range from 65 to 71. Inland temperatures range from 64 to 79. Water temperature 65.

Some Beef Still Available on Orange Coast

By HILARY KAYE Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Middle-grade cuts of beef, in small amounts, can still be found in most Orange Coast markets, a Monday survey indicated, despite ominous warnings that meat counters are already bare.

But middle-quality meat is definitely in peril, and beef at either end of the line is already missing from many meat counters.

Filet, which would have been priced at more than $3 a pound had it been available, and the lowest grade of ground beef, previously selling for just under $1 a pound, were both nowhere to be seen in five of the six markets visited. Only Alpha Beta, which boasts its own packing plant in Pueblo, Colo. is still able to fill its customers' orders.

Some shoppers are weathering the shortage better than others. Those shopping in Richard's Lido Market in Newport Beach, one of the poshest markets around, were concerned over the high prices and low supply but exhibited more of a feeling of light-hearted camaraderie than of true anger.

"Oh, we'll all manage somehow," said

one thirtyish woman wearing a chic pantsuit of bleached denim. Others around her, including the butcher, joked about the meat "crisis."

For others, however, not too far away, the shortage and high prices are devastating.

At Stater Brothers Market in Costa Mesa, on 19th Street across from Bethel Towers, a residence for the elderly, shoppers were visibly concerned.

"I'm just back from the hospital and this is the first time I've seen the prices," lamented Kathleen Mazingo, who lives at the Towers. "I have to eat a little meat but it's so expensive and they don't have the kind I need."

Another elderly woman looked at the butcher, "Don't you have my kind of ground meat?"

The butcher, Peter Robles, answered, "There's none of the cheaper beef left. They're not making it anymore because they can't afford to."

Butchers, who are as unhappy as the customers, are telling hoarding tales — of customers who have come in with mammoth orders.

Robles told the man who bought $196 worth of meat. "He just ordered meat by the row, not by the piece," Robles said.

One woman in the Newport Beach Mayfair Market admitted she "stocked up a little," buying several steaks and two turkeys, "just in case for Thanksgiving."

Building Permit Delayed

By CANDACE PEARSON Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A group of Corona del Mar residents got the gift of time from South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commissioners Monday.

The coastline commission approved construction of a single-family home at 3611 Ocean Blvd. by Carl Hillgren, but delayed issuance of the building permit until Oct. 15.

The Hillgren property, adjacent to Inspiration Point View Park, is being sought by the residents, who were represented Monday by attorney Tully Seymour. They want it for park purposes.

Initially, commission staff planners suggested a six-month delay to allow government or private purchase of the lot and to settle any question of prescriptive rights gained through public use of the land.

Commissioner Robert Rooney then asked that the building permit be held up a year in case state park funds were available. The state coastline commission recently took such an action in the Bodega Bay area of Sonoma County.

Commissioner Louis Nowell, a Los Angeles city councilman, objected that the state precedent was "the most cruel action of any governmental agency in the entire world."

Nowell said if the general public wants the land, it should be paid for immediately. "Why should the individual have to pay taxes (during the delay)?" he asked.

"That's an illegal action under any proposition — Proposition 20 or common sense," Nowell claimed.

The commission has authority over permits within 1,000 yards of mean high tide line through Proposition 20, the coastline initiative passed by voters last November.

The time delay was shortened to about two months at the suggestion of Commissioner Judy Rosener of Newport Beach, who pointed out that city and county officials should know about financing by then.

A decision on whether to fund the proposed park in this year's budget is expected Aug. 14 from Orange County Harbor, Beaches and Parks Department officials.

Newport Beach city officials are supposed to hear about federal revenue-sharing possibilities during September.

Attorney Seymour said it would be a "tragedy" if the land was lost to development.

"I thought that was what this commission was all about — to try to protect this area," he said later, referring to what he described as the "last window along the state beach park."

Hillgren's attorney, Gregory Harris, objected to delays longer than Sept. 1 and said the house will be built below the street line.

The case marked the first appearance before the commission of Gilbert Ferguson, whose development-oriented organization is asking the courts to declare Proposition 20 unconstitutional.

Lido Isle Condominium Gets Coastal Panel Okay

After trying to reach his only opposition by phone, a developer gained approval of a five-unit Lido Isle condominium from South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commissioners Monday.

Lynn Thomsen flew in from Utah for a late-night hearing in Long Beach on his project at 320 Via Lido Nord, Newport Beach.

Commission planners recommended approval of the building, which would have two parking spaces per unit and replace a six-unit structure.

But the situation got complicated quickly. Commissioner Judy Rosener, a Lido Isle resident, said she'd told a woman that morning that she could go home because the item was on the last page of a lengthy agenda and probably wouldn't be reached.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Baldwin M. Baldwin, followed that advice. The commission — which took the project out of order — didn't.

When the hearing began at about 11 p.m., Mrs. Rosener asked Thomsen if he could wait a few weeks for a vote.

He said he couldn't, but offered to call Mrs. Baldwin if the commission thought it would help.

Mrs. Rosener, who said she thought the woman wanted information and probably wasn't in opposition, and Commission Chairman Donald Bright urged him on.

Thomsen returned a few minutes later and said he'd been unable to reach her. The commission approved the project unanimously. Commissioner Louis Nowell closed with, "Let this be a lesson to everyone not to advise people when they'll be heard on the agenda."

Tidelands Suit Stalls

Sturges Gets 40 Days to List Cause of Action

By TOM BARLEY Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach attorney Max Sturges' $625 million action against the Irvine Company ran into rough water today in Orange County Superior Court when the lawyer was told he has failed to state an acceptable cause of action against the corporation.

Judge Robert P. Kneeland gave Sturges, 70, of 4 Rue St. Cloud, 40 days to amend his lawsuit. He declined to immediately act on Irvine Company attorney Bruce Tester's plea that Sturges' action is a "ridiculous sham."

Sturges principally contends in his complaint that the Irvine Company wrongfully sold and leased state owned tidelands when it developed portions of the Upper Bay and that it should be ordered to refund all the funds which it has received in that development.

He concentrated his courtroom attack today on what he also claims are the illegal actions of the Irvine Company in acquiring and developing Linda Isle.

Tester today asked Judge Kneeland to recognize that Sturges' "so-called class action" stems from the Newport lawyer's resentment of the Irvine Company's denial of his plans for construction of a two-story home on Linda Isle.

"He refused to pay his rent after that denial and the company foreclosed his lease," Tester said. "His resentment of that action is at the heart of this current lawsuit."

Judge Kneeland pointed out to both attorneys that he is himself a lessee of the Irvine Company at his Corona del Mar home. But both lawyers assured the jurist that they had no objection to his

Increase in Newport Drug Arrests

Crime Down 11.6%

By JOHN ZALLER Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach police have increased their arrest rate by 11.5 percent in the last six months and found as a result that serious crime decreased by 11.6 percent.

At least that's one conclusion that can be drawn from crime statistics for the first six months of 1972.

The increase in the rate of arrests has been mainly in one area — narcotics offenses. In the first six months of 1972, Newport Beach police made 579 drug arrests. In the first half of this year, there were 690, an increase of about 19 percent.

The crime reduction was measured for seven major crime areas, but the only significant reduction was in the area of home burglaries. In the first six months of 1972, there were 618. This year there were 537, a 13 percent decrease.

Police Chief B. James Glavas said there could be a relationship between the high drug arrest rate and the decrease in home burglaries.

"A heroin addict may have to make one or two burglaries a day to support his habit," Glavas said. "That kind of activity drives your burglary rate up in a hurry."

"So keeping drug activity under control may be helping with the burglary rate," he said.

However Glavas cautioned that most of the drug arrests the city makes are for (See CRIME, Page 2)

Panel Backs Carpenter's Beach Bill

A bill by State Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter (R-Newport Beach) authorizing state purchase of 1,500,000 acres and 3.5 miles of beachfront between Newport Beach and Laguna Beach today moved to the Senate floor for consideration.

The bill, SB 1089, cleared the Senate Finance Committee Monday on a 9-0 vote.

A Carpenter aide said today the bill made it through committee without amendment. It carries an urgency clause meaning a $7.6 million price could be paid immediately by the state upon approval by the Assembly and signature by Gov. Reagan. Deadline for legislature approval is Sept. 15.

The price, according to state parks director William Penn Mott, is "exactly half the value of the land."

The land, 3.5 miles of beach and two inland canyon parks totaling 1,500 acres, is owned by the Irvine Company.

The state parks acquisition is part of a longrange development plan by the company for development of a 10,000-acre parcel of the Irvine Ranch known as the coastal sector.

It is ocean view property lying between the cities of Irvine, Laguna and Newport Beach and the Pacific Ocean.

Development plans call for a Mediterranean resort mix of residential and commercial development and relocation of a stretch of Pacific Coast Highway.

Agreement to move the highway inland has not been reached between Irvine Company and state highway department officials.

Agnew Retains Law Firm Aid Against Charges

From AP Dispatches WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew has retained a New York law firm to represent him in a case involving allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew disclosed Monday night through his press secretary that he is under investigation for possible criminal violations, but added that he has done nothing wrong.

A representative of the New York law firm, Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, was to be in Washington today to find out more about the case.

A spokesman said Agnew contacted the firm two days ago.

Agnew declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson decided today to keep the investigation inside the Justice Department and not turn the case over to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Richardson made the decision after discussing with U.S. Atty. Gen. George Beall the ways to proceed with the probe.

The Wall Street Journal said the allegations stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967-1968 and from federal contracts in Maryland let since Agnew became vice president in 1969.

The federal contracts were let by the General Services Administration, the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

$38 Million Budget Asked For District

Newport-Mesa school trustees tonight will be asked to adopt a record $38 million budget for the fiscal 1973-74. It will mean tax rate increases of 14 to 16 cents in Newport Beach and Costa Mesa, respectively.

Trustees are expected to make few changes in the fiscal document at their 7:30 meeting in Costa Mesa City Council chambers. The budget has been reviewed at every school board meeting for the past three months.

Several trustees have expressed dissatisfaction with the need to hike the district's tax rate after school administrators indicated earlier in the budget process the rates would go down five or six cents per $100 assessed valuation.

District fiscal experts say the reversal in their tax position came when final assessed valuation figures came in.

When budget deliberations began in the spring, the preliminary budget was based on an estimated 11 percent increase in assessed valuation. In fact, it rose less than 8.5 percent, officials noted.

The district also was expecting that the rate of tax payment delinquency would be only three percent. It came out to be four percent.

The discrepancy in the delinquency figures alone meant a difference of more than $250,000 in available funds, school officials said.

As a result, Costa Mesa taxpayers will shell out $5.22 per $100 next year (up 14.5 cents) and Newport Beach homeowners will pay $4.83 (up nearly 16 cents).

The record budget will be nearly $4 million more than the $34.8 million spent last year.

Fun Zone Units Ruling Delayed

A hearing on 33 condominiums proposed on the Fun Zone property in Newport Beach has been delayed until Aug. 20 by South Coast Regional Zone Conservation Commissioners.

In another marathon session Monday, the commission failed to finish its lengthy agenda by 11:45 p.m. The meeting in Long Beach began at 9 a.m.

Jon Konwiser's permit application to build the bayfront condominiums at Edgewater and Palm-Avenues on the Balboa Peninsula was continued along with a number of other items.

The commission's Aug. 20 meeting will begin at 9 a.m. at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

Remember what the weather was like today? Well, it'll be the same Wednesday, with highs of 70 at the beaches, 80 inland and lows in the mid-60s. Some sun in the afternoon hours.

the rear of the butcher section, but was left uncut and unsold. The crush of meat-hungry customers has overwhelmed several meat departments.

Robles, looking over his devastated counters, said, "We have all kinds of meat in the back but not the real cheap or real expensive cuts. And we have no one to cut it."

Robles' superiors did not expect their meat order to arrive so they laid off two meat cutters. Instead, a half-load arrived, leaving Robles unprepared.

Alpha Beta was the only market that appeared at all normal. Ground meat of all kinds was stocked, as were the higher-grade cuts of beef. Only rump roast was missing from the counters as their packing plant provides them a steady supply of beef.

Jim O'Connell, meat cutter at the Food King in Costa Mesa, said he could get almost any kind of meat but only in small amounts.

O'Connell predicts, "They ain't seen nothing yet. If LA packers all close, we're in for a lot of trouble."

In these days of dwindling supply, some shoppers have learned to time their shopping with the arrival of meat.

Some butchers are telling customers when orders are expected so they will have first chance at the meat. But other butchers claim that orders often don't arrive and when they do, they aren't on time.

The butcher at the Pantry in Costa Mesa explained that the best idea is to come in the morning rather than the afternoon or evening.

"We can't be partial now and save beef for some customers. It's first come, first served," he said.

Shoppers who are accustomed to making the rounds of different markets in search of bargains will probably fare the best in actually bringing home the beef.

Each market appears to have its own area of short supply and nothing short of visiting a number of counters will enable the shopper to track down that Porterhouse, Round Steak or even the "low-priced" ground beef at 89 cents a pound.

Butchers all over agree, however, that even market-to-market shopping may prove futile by next week.

Santa Ana Youth Missing on Hike

SEQUOIA NATIONAL FOREST (AP) — A Santa Ana boy on a church outing here has been reported missing, Madera County sheriff's deputies said.

Gerrard Amos, 12, wandered away from a group hiking near Minarets Falls Monday, Father Dennis O'Neal told searchers. O'Neal was one of the adult leaders of the outing.

Park rangers, deputies, dog teams from the San Francisco area and a Lemore Naval Air Station helicopter sought the boy, following information from a camper who said he saw the boy heading downstream in the Devil's Postpile area, several miles from where he vanished.

Hearing Ruckus

Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons alternately read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room.

The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately.

The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement."

It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room.

Police pushed their way to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration.

By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

Kleindienst Tells Panel He Wept Over Watergate

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen testified this afternoon that when he told President Nixon about the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist the President told him to "stay out of it" because it was a national security matter.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst testified today that he wept when he learned in the predawn hours of April 15 how many friends and high officials in the Nixon administration were involved in the Watergate and its cover-up.

In a three-hour session before the Senate Watergate Committee, Kleindienst defended the judicial system's failure so far to indict any of those who approved the conspiracy or concealed it.

"You have to have evidence to indict someone," he said. "You don't put people in the rack; you don't crush their fingernails."

The Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, smoking cigarettes, also testified that President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when — the same day Kleindienst learned the full cover-up story — he told Nixon all he knew.

Nixon's Lawyers Say Court Lacks Subpoena Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon told a federal judge today that the court lacks jurisdiction to enforce the subpoena served on the President by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An attempt to enforce the subpoena legal brief supporting the President's legal said, "would be an unwarranted and unsupported violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

J. Fred Buzhardt, special White House counsel, in a court appearance lasting less than two minutes, filed a lengthy legal brief supporting the President's refusal to turn over White House tapes subpoenaed by Cox.

The action came shortly after the Senate Watergate committee decided to postpone any legal action of its own to obtain tapes and related documents pending disclosure of Nixon's reply to the Cox subpoena.

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refuse to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction.

"The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," the Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday. Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be.

Archeologic Find Told In County

By GEORGE LEIDAL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A paleontological find said to be outstripped in importance only by Rancho La Brea Tar Pits has been discovered in north Orange County.

Paleontologists from the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History discovered the site. It includes a 10-million year visible "calendar" of stone and traces of exotic animals such as the slender limbed camel, otherwise found only in Florida.

Officials of the State Department of Transportation announced the find. The site with fossils dating to 15,000 years ago is on excess lands owned by the state department. It was threatened by a county sanitary landfill operation, according to a spokesman for Archaeological Research Inc. of Costa Mesa. ARI maps land sites of interest because of buried archeological, paleontological or historic matter. ARI confirmed the importance of the new site.

The state has offered "practical aid and cooperation" in assisting the scientists to excavate fossilized skeletal fragments of such creatures as the Colombian mammoth, the ground sloth, the Florida camel and approximately 34 other species.

The skeletal records in stone were first unearthed by Paul Langenwalter and Chris Caliendo of the LA museum's vertebrate paleontology section. The remains were in danger from vandals as well as natural forces, a state spokesman said.

W. J. Kenney, chief of the office of rights-of-way for the transportation district including Orange County, said the state furnished a backhoe tractor and operator to help unearth the specimens.

The undisclosed site also was fenced by the state to discourage vandals.

Langenwalter said the fossils date from 10,000 to 15,000 years ago, when a saltwater marsh with an adjacent brackish water pond opening into it existed on the site.

It was a mecca for many varieties of animals — some exotic, like the Florida slender limbed camel. Others were mundane — many kinds of mammals and birds, a few reptiles, some fish, and one amphibian — a frog.

"The vegetation of the area where antelope, elephants, and many other creatures met, consisted of reeds and cattails, wooded hillsides and verdant grassy flatlands. Man, though he was known to exist in this general region at that period, left no traces at this site," Langenwalter said.

In addition to its paleontological worth, the area is notable for its geological features, which, according to Langenwalter, show a Pliocene-to-present geological record "sticking out" — a sort of 10-million year compilation of history in stone.

If present plans go forward, eventually the area will be developed for public use, to advance educational and recreational interest in a long-vanished epoch in time, the state spokesman said.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The second person to die in a plunge from the San Diego-Coronado Bay Bridge, opened in 1969, was identified Monday as Ann Marie Thurman, 51, of National City. investigation involved allegations of kickbacks from private contractors to Maryland and Baltimore County political figures.

The Journal said the vice president sought a White House audience after learning of the investigation, presumably to inform President Nixon.

At the White House today, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused to go beyond his statement that "we're not going to have a comment at this time."

Warren turned aside all questions on the matter — including those asking whether Agnew and Nixon discussed the investigation and whether Nixon still has confidence in his vice president.

The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore.

If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said.

There have been no indictments in the case against any prominent political figures, but one "information" equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Fornoff.

Fornoff was a key county official who served briefly under Agnew when the latter was county executive and for a longer period under Agnew's Democratic successor, incumbent Dale Anderson.

Anderson, who denies any illegal acts, is also a target of the investigation, the Journal said.

The Baltimore Sun reported that others under investigation include Lester Matz of Matz, Childs & Associates and a frequent contributor to Agnew campaigns; Jerome B. Wolff, president of J. E. Greiner Environmental Systems, Inc., and a political associate of Agnew; J. Walter Jones, a county developer and close friend of the vice president; and I. H. Hammerman, head of a mortgage banking and real estate firm.

General Plan Attachments Okayed—With Opposition

Scenic, recreational and ecological attachments were bolted onto the Costa Mesa General Plan Monday night, but not without objections.

Specifically, the three planning packages — they are guiding, not binding — tacked onto the General Plan cover open spaces, scenic highways and environmental management systems conservation.

"I am going to be voting no..." declared an annoyed Councilman Alvin Pinkley as soon as the hearing opened.

He said he, for one, is fed up with state and federal officials intervening to require local agencies to measure up to what higher powers feel is best for a given area.

Councilman Pinkley then moved for approval of the general plan amendments, cackling capriciously, and voted against the motion.

Councilman Robert M. Wilson joined Pinkley in expressing his own personal opposition to a related matter, adoption of a resolution approving Environmental Impact Report (EIR) procedures, to conform to the 1970 California Environmental Quality Act.

Councilman Pinkley voted against that measure too.

Bethel Towers Residents Ask Bus Expansion

Residents of Bethel Towers on West 19th Street in Costa Mesa like the services offered by the Orange County Transit District and wanted them expanded. (Related stories Page 7.)

In a letter signed by 212 residents of the retirement facility the bus service was called "a great boon to those of us who are senior citizens."

"Some of us have sold our cars since January and are availing ourselves of the relaxation and pleasure of enjoying the scenery instead of following the white or yellow line.

"The bus riders have been most cooperative and courteous. We can go shopping, out to lunch and enjoy the activity without experiencing the fatigue which results from driving. There is also the saving which we can use to shop and enjoy life," the letter continued.

The Bethel Towers residents asked for Sunday and holiday services and promised more would sell their cars when this is provided.

"On Sundays there is no way for us to get out on our own to attend church, shop for Sunday specials or enjoy dinner away from our kitchens," the letter said.

The retirement residents also asked for later evening service.

Transit District General Manager Gordon "Pete" Fielding said Sunday service would not be provided until the general patronage increases to the point where the district is solvent. He said past experience of the South Coast Transit Company had shown that Sunday business was poor.

The Costa Mesa City Council ruled Monday that percussion instrument students at the home studio of Robert W. Wrate must step to the beat of another drummer unless their instructor sets up shop in a proper commercial zone.

Wrate, 1383 Garlingford St., went before councilmen with an impressive display of support for a zone exception permit to operate in his home.

Denial was recommended at an earlier planning commission hearing, but Wrate managed to convert many among 24 original protesters against the percussion studio. Monday, some of them campaigned in his favor.

The turnout, tactic appeared to impress councilmen, until a delegation of neighbors marched to the podium to renew their opposition.

Petitions carrying names in favor of Wrate's continued drum instruction came from his students and other drum instructors, some from as distant as Laguna Niguel and Brea.

Charles Ropp, 1373 Garlingford St., was perhaps the most vocal opponent. He also spoke for another neighbor, Lorenzo Sanchez, 1377 Garlingford St., right next door to Wrate.

Sanchez, who speaks virtually no English, had signed the petition supporting Wrate's home operation as a drumming instructor, apparently without understanding what he was signing.

He sought Ropp's assistance in making himself perfectly clear.

"I don't want a drum school in my neighborhood," Ropp declared.

A parade of pro-Wrate partisans then took to the podium to argue that his studio has been sound-proofed and that (See DRUMS, Page 2)

the rear of the butcher section, but was left uncut and unsold. The crush of meat-hungry customers has overwhelmed several meat departments.

Robles, looking over his devastated counters, said, "We have all kinds of meat in the back but not the real cheap or real expensive cuts. And we have no one to cut it."

Robles' superiors did not expect their meat order to arrive so they laid off two meat cutters. Instead, a half-load arrived, leaving Robles unprepared.

Alpha Beta was the only market that appeared at all normal. Ground meat of all kinds was stocked, as were the higher-grade cuts of beef. Only rump roast was missing from the counters as their packing plant provides them a steady supply of beef.

Jim O'Connell, meat cutter at the Food King in Costa Mesa, said he could get almost any kind of meat but only in small amounts.

O'Connell predicts, "They ain't seen nothing yet. If LA packers all close, we're in for a lot of trouble."

In these days of dwindling supply, some shoppers have learned to time their shopping with the arrival of meat.

Some butchers are telling customers when orders are expected so they will have first chance at the meat. But other butchers claim that orders often don't arrive and when they do, they aren't on time.

The butcher at the Pantry in Costa Mesa explained that the best idea is to come in the morning rather than the afternoon or evening.

"We can't be partial now and save beef for some customers. It's first come, first served," he said.

Shoppers who are accustomed to making the rounds of different markets in search of bargains will probably fare the best in actually bringing home the beef.

Each market appears to have its own area of short supply and nothing short of visiting a number of counters will enable the shopper to track down that Porterhouse, Round Steak or even the "low-priced" ground beef at 89 cents a pound.

Butchers all over agree, however, that even market-to-market shopping may prove futile by next week.

Siberian Tiger Terrorizes Kids, Killed by Police

LAKESIDE (AP) — A 250-pound Siberian tiger was shot to death by sheriff's deputies as it terrorized six children in a bedroom early today. None of the children was reported hurt.

The tiger was one of several wild animals kept in an enclosure at the home of William Hampton, a trainer, sheriff's officers said.

Hampton was booked in county jail after a man attempting to serve a court order sought by Hampton's wife was shot in the chest.

Michael C. Wood, 22, of Brea was taken to San Diego's University Hospital in satisfactory condition after being hit by birdshot pellets.

Hampton, 30, was booked for investigation of assault with intent to commit murder, Sheriff's Lt. James Williams said.

The tiger confronted two sheriff's deputies answering a call about a prowler in the house but fled into the bedroom where the children were sleeping.

Williams said it lunged at them but apparently none was injured. As the big cat prepared to jump at them, a deputy killed it.

Wood was a friend of Hampton's wife, trying to serve a show cause order, Williams said, when the shotgun was fired from inside the house.

The sheriff's officer said there was no explanation why the tiger was in the house at the time the deputies arrived. Williams said it was learned later the animal was declawed.

Building Officials Hit Home of 'Love Animals'

By FREDERICK SCHOEMEHL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Laguna Beach Building Department inspectors today were expected to take action to rectify "immediate fire hazards" at the South Coast Highway home of Love Animals Don't Eat Them.

James Winter, senior building inspector, said he was going to post a notice on the free-style temple asking Love Animals followers to remove the hazards within 24 hours.

Folks at Love Animals will have another 60 days to clear up less important violations of the city building code.

That deadline extends beyond Sept. 21, the date the Love Animals followers plan to pack their bags and leave Laguna Beach.

Some of the immediate violations that city officials want changed include straw on the floor, partitions that block exits and faulty wiring.

"The way things are now, it wouldn't take much to have a loss of life if there was a fire," Winter commented today.

In event the people at Love Animals don't comply with the city request, Winter said the next step would be to have the building vacated and the utilities shut off.

Today's action from the city was spawned two weeks ago when Winter, along with City Attorney Tully Seymour and Fire Marshal James Presson, made an inspection of the temple at 728 S. Coast Highway.

Winter said he has had many verbal complaints from "people in the neighborhood" about Love Animals and related singing, dancing and general partying on the sidewalk.

Seymour said he had also heard complaints from individual citizens, businessmen in the area and the Chamber of Commerce.

"People have told us they're fed up with the problem down there," Winter added.

Since July 4, 1972, when Love Animals Don't Eat Them held its grand opening with Boney Bananas (a camel) and Col. Sanders (a rooster), not all has been well with the city and county.

James Roberts, manager of the then vegetarian eatery, was cited for allowing a domestic animal, Boney, in a restaurant.

Although found guilty as charged, Roberts and other followers haven't paid much attention to local ordinances and have been cited for many misdemeanors, including vagrancy, blocking the sidewalk and health code violations.

All the while, followers have been making changes to the former home of Nina's Peanut Butter Pies, including addition of a psychedelic storefront, a rooftop garden, and a cosmic form of interior decorating.

Several months ago, the group seceded from the union, but their proclamation of self-government hasn't met with much understanding from folks in the USA.

The most recent announcement from Love Animals said they have voluntarily offered to leave Laguna Beach on the autumnal equinox.

In return, the Orange County District Attorney's Office has agreed to drop some 30 charges now pending against various LADEtians.

AGNEW . . .

Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused to go beyond his statement that "we're not going to have a comment at this time."

Warren turned aside all questions on the matter — including those asking whether Agnew and Nixon discussed the investigation and whether Nixon still has confidence in his vice president.

The Journal said Agnew has not been called to testify in the case and the prosecutors have not presented the evidence they have assembled to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore.

If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said.

There have been no indictments in the case against any prominent political figures, but one "information" equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Forno.

Forno was a key county official who served briefly under Agnew when the latter was county executive and for a longer period under Agnew's Democratic successor, incumbent Dale Anderson.

Anderson, who denies any illegal acts, is also a target of the investigation, the Journal said.

The Baltimore Sun reported that others under investigation include Lester Matz of Matz, Childs & Associates and a frequent contributor to Agnew campaigns; Jerome B. Wolff, president of J. E. Greiner Environmental Systems, Inc., and a political associate of Agnew; J. Walter Jones, a county developer and close friend of the vice president; and I. H. Hammerman, head of a mortgage banking and real estate firm.

Nixon Aides Challenge Subpoenas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon told a federal judge today that the court lacks jurisdiction to enforce the subpoena served on the President by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An attempt to enforce the subpoena legal brief supporting the President's they said, "would be an unwarranted and unsupported violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

J. Fred Buzhardt, special White House counsel, in a court appearance lasting less than two minutes, filed a lengthy legal brief supporting the President's refusal to turn over White House tapes subpoenaed by Cox.

The action came shortly after the Senate Watergate committee decided to postpone any legal action of its own to obtain tapes and related documents pending disclosure of Nixon's reply to the Cox subpoena.

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refuse to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction.

"The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," the Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday, Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be.

WATERGATE . . .

Nixon campaign director who has admitted committing perjury at the original trial in January, had talked to the grand jury.

Kleindienst said he was given a summary of their testimony in his home by Earl Silbert, chief assistant U.S. prosecutor, and Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, a career man at the Justice Department who runs its criminal division.

"This was the first time, since June 17, 1972 that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of these people were involved in anyway, in the cover-up, or that incident," Kleindienst testified.

"Two of these men (named by Silbert and Petersen) are two of my closest friends I've ever had in my life, and I think one of the things I did that night, is, I wept."

His two friends were John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, and Robert C. Mardian, another former Justice Department official who later worked for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP). (Mardian has a home in San Clemente.)

Also implicated, Kleindienst said, were Dean and Magruder; Frederick C. LaRue, a CRP official and Mitchell associate; and Nixon's two closest aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

Hearing Ruckus Eight Youths Disrupt Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were disrupted for five minutes today when eight young persons alternately read loudly from a statement in the packed caucus room.

The five men and three women were removed by Capitol police and taken to a basement room for questioning but police said no formal charges were filed immediately.

The statement, almost unintelligible over the commotion, apparently dealt with the CIA and "end the Fascist movement."

It seemed to be well orchestrated. One demonstrator began reading, and when the police closed in on him through the heavy crowds, another took up from the opposite side of the room.

Police pushed their way to the next reader, and another person popped up to continue the narration.

By the time all the demonstrators were escorted out, the hearing had been disrupted and Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), was heard to mutter over his open microphone, "There seems to be a conspiracy to disrupt the proceedings."

students work with quiet practice pads anyway, not genuine drums.

Wrate's father Edward, 3112 Trinity Drive, also spoke up, saying his bearded, balding son is an excellent drummer with eight years' experience.

Scowling Fullerton physician warned councilmen that modern America needs to encourage all artistic effort, adding that some of his young male patients are musicians who failed to make the grade.

Wrate's brother, Dick, of Westminster, reemphasized for councilmen his brother's drumming talent and said many such home occupations are permitted in Westminster.

"This is not Westminster," declared Mayor Jack Hammett. "I'm not putting you down . . . but the issue is the zoning," Mayor Hammett added.

Wrate argued that he recently lost a commercial district studio, when a Tustin music store where he worked went out of business, saying the $350 store rental then offered to him was too high.

Councilman Dominic Raciti, whose pawn shop usually has a few musical instruments in stock, sympathized with the plight of the musician.

He said he knows of one small downtown shop which can be rented for a mere $35, leading Wrate to say he will certainly look into it.

"The small businessman is the backbone of the country," Councilman Raciti observed, saying he began toiling at 16 to become a success and can sympathize with others.

He then moved for denial and the vote was swift and unanimous.

There was no drum roll, only the shuffling of feet as Wrate's supporters and opponents filed out.

Five Prisoners

Escape in Riot

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — authorities are looking for five inmates of the McAlester prison who escaped during the confusion following an eight-day convict insurrection.

Only one of the escapees was from the fire-gutted maximum security prison itself. The governor's office said Rex Brinlee Jr. apparently hid in a hole dug in the prison yard until an opportune moment to get to the fence enclosing the industrial compound and cut a hole to freedom.

Brinlee was described by Gov. David Hall as a "brutal, dispassionate killer . . . who cannot be allowed freedom in Oklahoma or anyplace else."

Traffic Signals To Be Installed In Costa Mesa

Seven new traffic signals will be installed soon, following Costa Mesa City Council approval of $163,548 in construction contracts Monday.

The signal lights scheduled for placement at locations throughout the city will be supplied by Grissom and Johnson Inc., a Santa Ana firm.

Lights to be installed include fixtures at Red Hill Avenue and its intersections with Baker and Paularino Avenue in the northeasterly section of town.

Orange Avenue and East 19th Street will also be light-controlled, and installations are set for Pomona Avenue at its intersections with Wilson-Victoria, and West 19th streets.

A seventh installation will be at Victoria Street and Monrovia Avenue.

Trash Collectors Hit the Jackpot

Workers going to the east side, the west side and all around the town have collected 17 truckloads of trash from six Costa Mesa properties, according to city officials.

The crews cooperating with the city's Cleanup Spree of '73 was given use of five municipal trucks and a Skiploader vehicle for the volunteer program.

Six city employees were assigned, along with 10 teenaged boys from the Harbor Area Youth Employment Service and members of Girl Scout Cadet Troop 286.

Vacant properties covered by the ecological cleanup program were at several locations around the city.

officials said. As a result, Costa Mesa taxpayers will shell out $5.22 per $100 next year (up 14.5 cents) and Newport Beach homeowners will pay $4.83 (up nearly 16 cents).

The record budget will be nearly $4 million more than the $34.8 million spent last year.
