ANDY WILLIAMS, CLAUDINE LONGET LEAVE COURT Defense Presents Case in Manslaughter Trial

Eight Get to Testify in Longet Defense

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet will testify in her manslaughter trial that her lover "quite pointedly told her that little gun wouldn't kill anybody" several months before he was killed by a bullet from the pistol, Miss Longet's lawyer said today.

"Claudine will tell you there was no aiming, no pointing," defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said as he opened the case for the 35-year-old French-born entertainer.

Weedman said he will call about eight witnesses, including her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, in an effort to prove the dark-haired defendant did not recklessly kill pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich on March 21.

"She asked Spider about the safety on his gun . . . I'll leave it to you to decide how her finger pulled that trigger," Weedman said.

"We're going to call Andy back," he said. Williams testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but delivered a vigorous defense of his ex-wife's character.

"We're going to ask him some questions about Claudine's attitude toward security," Weedman said. " . . . we anticipate he will tell us Claudine had no knowledge of guns."

Weedman said five witnesses will be called to counteract prosecution testimony that Miss Longet was "a crazy gal" who liked to ski fast, drive fast and take chances.

Miss Longet was expected to take the stand to tell jurors her version of what happened when

Jury Told

Scudder Faced 'Kidnap Death'

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful.

Prosecutor Bill Morrissey told the panel in his final argument

Bell: Kelley To Lose FBI Directorship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Griffin B. Bell said today Clarence M. Kelley will be replaced as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the near future.

Under questioning by the Senate Judiciary Committee for the second consecutive day, Bell said that he had been looking for a possible FBI director while interviewing people for jobs in the Justice Department.

He noted that Kelley, appointed by former President Nixon in July 1973, is 64 years old.

"We can look forward to having a new FBI director before too long," Bell said.

Asked by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), if he could be more precise, Bell said he could not give an exact date for Kelley's departure, adding that it "will not be long."

Bell said that Kelley has expressed an interest in assisting with the transition that will take place when a new director is named. He said Kelley may be that violence was present in the kidnaping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack.

"He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said.

"He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnaping," Morrissey said.

He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle.

Morrissey described the evidence against Sellers as "absolutely overwhelming." He admitted that the evidence against co-defendant William Rudy Wesson, 45, of Tustin, was "almost totally circumstantial but no less worthy of a guilty verdict."

Morrissey condemned as "ludicrous" the defense argument that the wealthy Scudder helped plan the kidnaping in return for a major portion of the $250,000 the kidnapers hoped to get from the victim's wife, Mrs. Valerie Scudder.

"Again, the violence," Morrissey said. "Mrs. Scudder was told that if she didn't raise the $150,000 in $50 bills and $100,000 in $20 bills her husband

Babashoff To Dry Off

Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, America's top woman swimming star for the past five years, announced her retirement from active competition today.

During those five years, she broke 15 world records and set 30 national standards. She also won two Olympic gold medals and six silver medallions. For full details, see story in today's sports section, Page B1.

Accident Cited in Killing

Preliminary reports issued by two District Attorney's investigators apparently have cleared Newport Beach police officer Doug Thomas, 24, of wrongdoing in the shooting death of a bystander during a Corona del Mar holdup.

Police Chief B. James Glavas confirmed today that the reports compiled in the three-week investigation label the fatal incident as accidental.

However, the reports have yet to be officially reviewed by Deputy District Attorney Bryan Brown and Glavas said he has only received an informal verbal report from the investigators.

Thomas, who was staked out at the Albertson's Market in Corona del Mar Dec. 17, fired a shotgun at a fleeing robbery suspect. The blast killed bystander Joe Hines, 61, of Dana Point.

Initial police reports indicated that Hines was hidden from Thomas' view in a row of Christmas trees at the front of the store and stepped into the line of fire as the officer shot at the fleeing suspect.

The suspect, Richard William Sutton, 20, of San Clemente, was captured about a block from the market. Police alleged he was armed with a loaded .38-caliber revolver.

Gunman Nabs, Then Releases Clemente Girl

A 17-year-old San Clemente girl was kidnaped from a residential street Tuesday at gunpoint, driven near the Crestlite aggregate plant and forced to disrobe, police said.

Police said her attacker failed in his rape attempt, but did not explain further.

They said the man drove the girl back to where he had abducted her, at Monterey Lane and Ola Vista, and released her unharmed, after allowing her to dress.

Police said the man was described as being in his twenties, with long, stringy hair and wearing a heavy, dark jacket, and Levis.

OC Jobless Rate Stalled

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people.

Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers.

EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

Air Cal Lawsuit Settled

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dr. Clifford Nelson of San Francisco and other minority stockholders of Air California have won a $380,000 settlement of their civil suit against the Westgate-California Corp.

An attorney, Joseph Turner, said Tuesday that $108,000 of the money will go to pay attorneys' fees.

Nelson owned 8,000 shares of Air California when he filed the suit while a proposal to merge Air California with Pacific Southwest Airlines was pending. The merger fell through.

Nelson's suit accused C. Arnholt Smith and other Westgate officials of conspiring to dissipate Air California's assets to their own enrichment.

The suit said Westgate, which Smith founded and headed until he was forced out, controlled 81 percent of Air California stock before the conglomerate filed for bankruptcy three years ago.

School Board Eyes Members For 2 Panels

The Newport-Mesa District is seeking volunteers to serve on two commissions that will advise the district on the disposal of surplus school sites and implementation of the Serrano decision.

The two advisory commissions are required by law. The district is seeking 14 volunteers.

The Serrano decision will limit the amount of money wealthy districts can spend per student in an attempt to equalize statewide education programs.

Application and nomination forms may be obtained from the Superintendent's office, 1601 16th St., Newport Beach. District residents in Costa Mesa and Newport Beach are eligible to apply. For more information, call 556-3500.

ing a tremendous problem. "We have no authority to detain the youngsters except through our counselors urging them to stay."

Miss Grier said troubled youngsters on the loose without means of support or a place to stay can often become victims of crimes.

And, she added, a roaming population of troubled juveniles can easily drift into serious misadventures.

The intent of last year's juvenile justice reform legislation was to provide sterner treatment of juveniles who commit serious offenses such as murder while noninstitutionalized treatment was provided for minor offenders.

That lighter treatment included prohibiting local officials from detaining them in secure facilities where they are not free to leave at their choosing.

OC Jobless Rate Stays 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

No Protests On Pay Hike For Teachers

Tuesday night's meeting of Newport-Mesa school trustees turned out to be a study in contrast.

At their Nov. 9 meeting, trustees heard more than 25 district residents criticize teacher contract demands as "excessive" and "a bad faith gesture," during a public hearing. The teachers, represented by the Newport-Mesa Education Association, are seeking an 18 percent salary hike.

Tuesday night, trustees awaited public comment on the district's offer of a 7.2 percent pay raise for teachers.

Not one citizen rose to laud or criticize the district's offer. After a pregnant silence and a puzzled smile from Superintendent John Nicoll, trustees moved on to other business.

Burned Mesan Still Serious; Blaze Probed

A Costa Mesa trailer park tenant remains in serious condition today at the UCI Medical Center burn ward, following a pre-dawn mobile home blaze Monday.

Herman Darby, 70, who lives alone in a trailer at the Starlite Trailer Park, 2060 Newport Blvd., was pulled unconscious from a dining room area in the burning trailer about 4 a.m. Monday.

Fire analysts are still investigating the $5,000 blaze, saying the fire was either started by a faulty electric blanket or by careless smoking in bed.

Firemen said they were hampered in their firefighting efforts when they had to lay out 750 feet of hose to get to the nearest fire hydrant.

Lights OK'd For Kaiser

Outdoor recreation enthusiasts will soon be able to use Kaiser Middle School in Costa Mesa at night.

Newport-Mesa school trustees voted approval Tuesday night for installation of night lights and two baseball backstops at the eastside Costa Mesa school.

Entering a joint venture with the city of Costa Mesa, the school district will spend $20,000 with the city picking up the rest of the $80,000 tab. At present, there is no final date scheduled for completion of the project.

Prices Gain

U.S. Jobless Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment declined from 8.1 to 7.9 percent last month, the government said today, but the good news was offset by another sharp jump in wholesale prices, particularly for food.

Coffee, pork and poultry costs were the chief ingredients in the biggest rise in farm and food prices in eight months and pushed overall wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a percent in December. Industrial price increases slowed, with natural gas costs turning down after rapidly increasing for several months.

For the year, wholesale prices were 4.7 percent ahead of price levels at the end of 1975, when they posted an annual rise of 4.2 percent.

The improvement in the nation's job picture was an indication the economy is beginning to revive after a summer-fall period of stagnation and rising joblessness. The pause in the business recovery had aroused concern among economists and prompted President-elect Carter to propose a two-year package of tax cuts and rebates and job-creating measures.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the latest job figures indicate that the unemployment situation "has broken out of the holding pattern" which characterized it for several months.

Coming on the heels of gains in retail sales, industrial production and personal income, Shiskin told the congressional Joint Economic Committee, "it seems likely that the economy has resumed an upward path after the pause during the summer and fall."

The 7.9 percent unemployment rate in December was still slightly higher than the rate at the beginning of the year, when 7.8 percent of the labor force was jobless.

'Kidnap' Victim's Life in Danger?

Youth Gets Term for Life For Murder

One of two youths tried as adults and convicted of the murder of a member of a rival street gang in Santa Ana was sentenced to life in state prison Tuesday in Orange County Superior Court.

Judge Everett W. Dickey ordered the life term for Ruben Barela, 17, of Santa Ana, with the promise that he will review the sentence in May when the defendant completes an evaluation study at Chino.

Judge Dickey commented to a courtroom packed with youths who identified themselves as friends of the defendant that he might resentence Barela as a youthful offender if the results of the diagnostic study are favorable.

He postponed the sentencing of codefendant Anthony Soza, 17, of Orange until Jan. 25.

Barela and Soza were identified during their trial as members of the F Troop gang, a Mexican-American organization that has been frequently involved in downtown scuffles with police and rival gangs.

Barela was identified during the trial as the man who shot and killed Edward Velasquez, 21, of Santa Ana, as the victim drove his car past an auto occupied by the two defendants.

Assembly Pushes for Pollution Funds

State assemblymen voted Tuesday to speed action on a $2 million loan proposal to keep a pollution control agency serving Orange and three neighboring counties in operation.

The measure, by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis (R-Highland) would provide funds through June for the new South Coast Air Quality Management District.

It also would assess counties refusing to help finance the new agency a 10 percent penalty and threaten them with a loss of state sales tax revenues if they refuse to pay their portion.

Los Angeles County supervisors already have refused to pay their $2.3 million share of the agency's $8 million budget, and Orange County supervisors have agreed so far to fund only their $1.3 million annual share through this month.

The assembly voted 69-0 Tuesday to waive rules that would have required a 30-day wait before Lewis' loan bill could be heard.

Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit, the county's representative to the agency, has proposed that instead of the loan the legislators should be considering a revision in the agency's financing.

And, he said, cities and counties in the Southern California area already have proposed legislation that would tack $1 on to vehicle license plates and require industries to purchase annual permits to pay for the agency's financing.

Lewis last year sponsored legislation which created the new four-county agency to replace the Southern California Air Pollution Control District.

The district was a voluntary agency formed by supervisors in Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties. Its operating funds are split between the four based on population.

But Lewis' measure last year added city representation to the new agencies, and Orange and Los Angeles County officials have balked at the same population-based financing method.

Earlier this week Lewis attacked the Los Angeles County refusal to pay its share of costs as "irresponsible," saying it could lead to the layoff of 200 pollution control workers and leave the agency unable to function.

Meanwhile, the California attorney general has filed suit against Los Angeles County for its refusal to pay.

An aide to Schmit said Orange County has not been added to the suit because of its efforts to seek legislation to change the financing.

While the county has so far only paid its January share, supervisors later will consider whether or not to pay its assessments for February and March.

Hope Pushed Leary Changes Appeal

BERKELEY (AP) — It was the same toothy Timothy Leary smile, the same adoring audience of mainly white middle-class students, the same campus setting as the 1960's. But this time, the onetime LSD potentate was peddling "hope," not dope.

"I am proud of the 1960s, but I hope nobody here expects me to lead a 'Charge of the Light Brigade' back to Woodstock," the 55-year-old former Harvard University lecturer told 1,200 people at the University of California Tuesday night.

"We can go farther," he declared. "And I want to suggest to you three ideas whose time has come . . . space migration, intelligence increase and life extension."

Leary, a former federal fugitive, who lived for a time in Laguna Beach, has sounded the same theme on each of his lectures on a nationwide college tour over the past three months. His going rate is $2,500 per lecture.

LOOKS TO THE FUTURE
Ex-drug Guru Leary

Leary, who has been appealing a 1973 federal marijuana conviction, was convicted of escaping in 1970 from state prison where he was serving another marijuana sentence of one-to-10 years. While a fugitive, he was arrested in 1972 in Afghanistan and returned to the United States.

Cleaver, free on $100,000 bail, faces trial in neighboring Oakland on assault charges stemming from a 1968 Panther-police shootout. He returned voluntarily to the U.S. in November 1975 after jumping bail and spending seven years in self-imposed exile abroad.

Leary and Cleaver — who was introduced briefly to the sellout crowd — received standing ovations, although both have been called possible informants by certain radicals.

"I missed the whole movement the first time around," said Debbie Jones, an 18-year-old student. "I was too young. I wanted to see what Tim Leary's into."

An unidentified 35-year-old man who came to the lecture on roller skates said, "I had to see what Tim has to say about the future. He's a spokesman for us refugees of the 60s."

Second Marine To Trial

A second black Camp Pendleton Marine will go to trial Thursday before a special court martial on charges stemming from a Nov. 13 attack on a barracks room of seven white Marines.

The Marine Corps said Tuesday that Cpl. Dean Edwards, 20, of Colfax, La., will be tried by an all-officer board and a military judge, Lt. Col. F. Latimer Gould.

Gould also presided over the court-martial of Cpl. E. F. Henry, 20, of Ivanhoe, N.C., who pleaded guilty to six counts of assault, one count for each of the six Marines who required hospitalization.

Fourteen blacks were charged with the attack which Camp Pendleton officials said was made in the mistaken belief the injured whites were holding a Ku Klux Klan meeting.

Three Marines, admitted KKK members, have testified at pre-trial hearings for the black Marines. The hearings are to determine if the blacks should be tried by court-martial or receive lesser punishment.

Such a pre-trial hearing continued Tuesday for Sgt. Herman Fletcher, 23, of High Point, N.C. His civilian attorney contended conditions at the base, including the wearing of KKK emblems by some Marines, created tension which led to the incident.

Dr. Charles W. Thomas, a psychology professor at the University of California at San Diego, also testified, saying the black Marines probably acted from frustration because there had been no official action by the base to halt KKK activities.

Badham Gets Field Office In Newport

Monday marked the opening of the new field office for Congressman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach).

The office is located across the hall from the field office Badham used while a member of the state Assembly. It's located at 1649 Westcliff Drive, Newport Beach. The phone number is 631-0040.

The office staff is led by former Los Angeles Times reporter Howard Seelye of Newport Beach and includes Jan Burton, a case worker; Nancy Betcher, district administrator and Diane Terzenbach, executive secretary.

Office hours are Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Residents of the 40th Congressional District, which stretches from the Orange Coast into San Diego County, may contact Badham at his Washington office, 1108 Longworth House Office Building, Washington D.C., 20515. The phone number is (202) 225-5611.

Drug Center Pact Okayed

A contract with Straight Ahead, Inc., a Dana Point drug rehabilitation program, was renewed Tuesday by Orange County supervisors.

Under terms of the contract, the county will pay $126,346 to the firm to provide counseling and a temporary home for up to 36 former drug users at a time.

The firm, at 34185 Coast Highway, has had a contract with the county the past two years, according to a report to supervisors. The county's cost of the program is reimbursed by the federal government.

County OKs Hiring 8 Social Workers

The hiring of eight additional social workers to deal with Orange County's influx of Indo-Chinese refugees was approved Tuesday by county supervisors.

Robert G. Love, interim director of the county Social Services Department, said the number of refugees has grown from 293 in July 1975 to about 3,330 today.

And, he explained, the group includes some refugees who arrived from Thailand last August, who lacked needed health screenings and had other complex problems.

Supervisors approved hiring the extra social workers and a secretary to handle health examinations, act as interpreters, provide cultural and other counseling, as well as assist with emergency needs, Love said.

The extra employees will cost $72,485 this year, but the county will be reimbursed by the federal government.

Chase Nets Three Teens

OXNARD (AP) — A tankful of stolen gas and his mother's car took a 15-year-old Arcadia boy and his two teen-age pals on a 130-mile-an-hour chase from Ontario to Oxnard — with 31 squad cars pursuing.

Astonished Ontario police said Tuesday there were no injuries and no traffic accidents during the hour-long trip.

"But during the chase, the car lost numerous parts," said Ontario police Lt. Don Manning, "mostly nuts and bolts."

The three juveniles were sent back to Ontario and held for investigation of eight counts of assault on a peace officer.

SCAG: Extend Freeway

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A two-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax and mandatory vehicle inspection were called for in a regional transportation plan presented Tuesday in Santa Ana.

The draft plan, prepared by the six-county Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), also outlines completion of the Newport Freeway through Costa Mesa.

And it calls for possible preferential freeway lanes on the Newport, San Diego and Artesia Freeways within the next five years.

SCAG Transportation Planner Jim Gosnell said, however, that officials will be re-thinking the preferential lanes matter in light of the public outcry against the Santa Monica Freeway Diamond Lane venture.

And while he said freeway ramp metering is likely for those three roadways, plans for preferential lanes for buses and carpools may be scrapped.

The plan, which covers transit and road building programs for the next 10 years, is being discussed at meetings in each of the six counties at present.

A public hearing will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday at the Los Angeles Convention Center. Written comments will be accepted by SCAG through Jan. 28, when the draft plan is to be revised.

The plan calls for reducing gasoline consumption by five percent by 1980 and by 20 percent by 1995, by encouraging public transit use, metered freeways and possible preferential lanes.

In addition, Gosnell said SCAG is proposing legislation that would require mandatory vehicle smog control device inspection by 1981.

And SCAG officials hope to increase use of public transit from the current 2.5 percent of all trips made to six percent by 1985.

Gosnell said about $12.8 billion will be spent on transportation in the Southern California region within the next 10 years based on existing financing methods.

If new money sources are found, he said, the expenditure could climb to $19.7 billion.

Gosnell explained SCAG is calling for the two-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax as a source of some of that funding.

30 Days in Jail

Judge Nixes Pig As Tax Payment

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some may call him pig-headed, but Richard Panza threatened to sit in jail for 30 days because officials wouldn't accept the tender he offered to pay a delinquent tax bill — his pig "Sarah."

Panza was sprung after seven hours by a judge who believes in the installment plan.

It all started when Panza, a farmer in suburban Harmar Township, refused to pay $51 in wage taxes which he has owed for five years.

"He said he wouldn't pay the tax. Said it was unconstitutional," said District Magistrate Arthur Sabulsky, who sent Panza to the Allegheny County Jail for 30 days Tuesday.

Panza said that he didn't have the money to pay the tax bill and that township officials wouldn't accept "Sarah."

"The only thing he keeps bringing up is that pig," the magistrate said. "We aren't taking payments in pigs."

But after seven hours in the pokey, Panza was ordered released by Judge Samuel Strauss of Allegheny County Criminal Court. The judge said the farmer could pay $25 a month until the account is settled.

Panza said he couldn't afford even that, and would explain so to the judge in a letter.

Panza's dispute with the township erupted into pandemonium last September when he walked into a township supervisors' meeting wearing coveralls and a straw hat with the terrified, squealing pig under his arm.

Thomas Rodack, chairman of the meeting, was outraged.

"That pig was squealing so loud I couldn't think. There's no way we can accept a pig," he said after the meeting, from which Panza was forcibly moved.

Springtime In Hippoland

SEATTLE (AP) — Gertrude the hippo has had her first date with Kubwa Sana, but it's too early to tell if she and the Portland Zoo's hippo have a meaningful relationship in their future.

The chaperoned tryst took place in the Woodland Park Zoo's elephant compound. Several pounds of carrots were spread on the floor to help break the ice.

The meeting seemed amicable enough.

Kubwa Sana, on loan here, is 13 years younger than Gertrude and, at 5500 pounds, 4,450 pounds lighter.

THE SILVER MACE

Symbol of Capitol Authority

It doesn't happen often, but when tempers flare out of control in the House of Representatives, the Speaker of the House calls on the Sergeant of Arms to restore order. The symbol of the Sergeant's authority for the past 133 years has been a 4-ft. silver mace. The mace is a thing of beauty created in 1841 by silversmith William Adams of New York. Silver windings bind up 13 ebony rods, topped by a solid silver glove and eagle. The mace cost Congress only $400. Its value today could only be guessed.

Kenneth Harding, House Sergeant of Arms for the past 5 years, hasn't had to swing the mace. But, once, during the 53rd Congress, he came close. A New York Congressman made remarks that angered a Georgia representative, and the Georgian came at him with a knife. Harding grabbed his mace and moved in between the "gentlemen." Tempers cooled immediately.

DING DONG DEPT. — Critics of our society today seem to be occupied with the task of finding a large target and then attacking it. Throw rocks at the side of a barn. Don't try to flip pebbles at tin cans.

Thus the critics of our way of life try to find such hefty bullseyes in our own region as the Irvine Company or our Orange County government up at the Civic Center in Santa Ana.

I am uncertain whether county government or the ranch outfit is the most enormous target. Both, however, are bulky and therefore easy marks for the slings and arrows of outraged critics.

ON A GRANDER national scale, the critics can always fire away at Washington. If they find that target too small, then you always have the telephone company to batter about.

Since American Telephone & Telegraph Company is also likely the richest outfit embracing the known universe, this fact alone makes in it a juicy morsel for criticism.

You will note in the news only today that AT&T, in its infinite wisdom, has advised its Bell System subsidiaries to start listing both husbands and wives given names in the directory.

Observers suggest that this means AT&T is conceding a point to the women's movement.

Subsidiary telephone companies don't have to do what AT&T says, but usually Ma Bell falls into line.

Thus directory listings would be allowed that would be something like this:

"Glutz, Sam-Mary." Or, it might be, "Glutz, Mary-Sam."

ALREADY, YOU SEE, the phone company has put itself in the middle of another family argument. Will the listing be Mary-Sam or Sam-Mary?

No wonder the phone company is such a large target. Once again, the phone people are in a no-win situation. Now they'll have to put on special operators, known as domestic counselors, to arbitrate family disputes on whose name gets to go first.

Well, my own difficulties with the phone company have been far less complex. And I've learned, over the years, you might as well have it the phone company's way.

Some time back, for example, I had a phone that only tried to ring. But mainly, when the phone went off, it sounded more like a mouse, gargling. You had to be pretty close to the receiver just to hear the gargle.

So I called the phone people to complain.

"MY PHONE GARGLES," I whined. "I'm a heavy sleeper. I want it to go off like a Chinese Gong."

So the phone people came around and fixed it. It still doesn't sound precisely like a Chinese gong. It's more like a Big Ben in the middle of an earthquake. When it rings, it shakes walls.

Last night, for example, our esteemed Orange County bureau chief rang up about midnight to fill me in on the latest machinations at the County Seat. I stumbled out and got the phone on about the third gong.

"Did I disturb you," he asked from the other end of the line. "Not at all," I answered.

As for the neighbors, I'm not so certain

Freed Terrorist Spurs Anger

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli outrage over France's release of suspected Palestinian terrorist Abu Daoud boiled up today into an angry demonstration against the president of France.

"GISCARD, TERRORIST," roared a crowd of several hundred Israelis gathered outside the French embassy, referring to President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. Among them were families of 11 Israeli athletes slain at the 1972 Munich Olympics, allegedly on Daoud's orders.

THE FAMILIES earlier had pleaded with Giscard d'Estaing not to free Daoud before Israel could present an extradition request.

In Paris, French newspapers joined Israel and the United States in condemning Daoud's release.

"When acts so cruelly belie words, we are in the political realm," said Le Figaro, a paper normally friendly to the government. "It's a puppet show."

In the Tel Aviv demonstration bereaved parents, wives and children hung portraits of the dead athletes around their necks. The crowd tried several times to break through police barriers and march on the iron-gated seaside embassy building.

"MY LITTLE GIRL was one month old when her father was killed," said Anka Spitzer, widow of fencer Andre Spitzer. "It's incredible that Abu Daoud is free to see his family and my daughter will never know her father."

Some demonstrators threw eggs and fruit at an unidentified man on a balcony of the embassy. One egg thrower was detained.

Police estimated the crowd at 600, including a party of 80 American students who bellowed obscene anti-French slogans.

Mrs. Spitzer demanded that French ambassador Jean

Herly be expelled from Israel "back to France where he belongs, among the cowards and traitors."

Israel recalled its ambassador in Paris, Mordechai Gazit, and summoned Herly to Jerusalem to hear a vehement protest about Daoud's release.

Ephraim Evron, deputy director-general of the Foreign Ministry, charged at his meeting with Herly that France had given encouragement to Arab terrorism, violated its extradition treaty and performed "a hostile act."

Towns Vote Funding OK For Schools

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore. (AP) — Voters have approved a 1976-77 operating budget for the South Lane school district, enabling some 3,300 pupils to go back to class after an absence of nearly two months.

The financially strapped district, in and near Cottage Grove, closed school doors Nov. 24. Voters had rejected a fourth proposal for increased property taxes Nov. 2.

Tuesday's vote was 3,327 in favor and 2,068 opposed. Administrators said classes would resume Friday.

IN TWO OTHER Oregon districts — Eagle Point and La Grande — voters also approved tax increases that school officials said were necessary to prevent school closures. Those districts have a total of about 5,800 pupils. Eagle Point schools were closed from Oct. 15 to Dec. 6 because of lack of funds. But were then opened on a curtailed basis, using money that had been set aside for teacher unemployment payments. Voters had defeated five previous levy proposals.

In La Grande, where three previous levies were rejected, voters approved the latest proposal by a 3-1 margin. Schools in that district were scheduled to close last month, but residents kept them operating temporarily with $84,000 in pledges.

TAX BASES IN Oregon were set by a 1915 law and automatically increase 6 percent a year. If school districts need more — and they almost always do — they must go to the people. The state picks up about 29 percent of the local school costs.

In Cottage Grove, the district was asking for $2.4 million over the 6 percent limit.

HE REJECTED HERLY'S argument that the refusal to extradite Daoud was on legal grounds, saying Jerusalem had only asked that he be held until an extradition plea could be drawn up.

Gazit was in Paris just before his departure. "It seems that in an affair as grave as one which implicates a person suspected of having committed mass murder, the minimum is to give us the necessary time to complete the dossier."

In West Germany, where Daoud is wanted on charges of being an accomplice to murder and kidnaping, Bavarian state officials said several witnesses have identified him as being present in Munich at the time of the 1972 massacre.

WHILE WEST GERMANY officials said they regretted Daoud's release, the French government tried to shift the blame to them for the decision to let the Palestinian leader go.

French officials said the Bonn government did not follow the proper extradition procedure by confirming a Munich judge's request for extradition.

German authorities said that under the French-German extradition treaty, 20 days are allowed to prepare its case requesting delivery of an arrested person. Daoud was arrested only last Friday.

The British government kept silent on the decision and officials said privately the reason was that any criticism of Daoud's release was unlikely to do any good but only annoy the French and the Arab world.

BUT CONSERVATIVE British legislator Sir John Langford-Holt called for Britain's withdrawal from the European Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism because of the French decision.

"The French performance has been pathetic in not abiding by the terms of the convention," he declared.

Medical Records Safe?

Study Says Abuse Potential is Great

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recalling Watergate abuses of privacy rights, a government report warned today that computerized medical records are vulnerable to misuse by those who have no right to see them.

In state after state, the report found that health-care agencies moved to safeguard the confidentiality of patients only where civil liberties groups have gone to court.

THE 382-PAGE report was written by Alan F. Westin of Columbia University based upon an investigation sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards.

In New York, Westin's report found that the state Department of Mental Hygiene for more than three years required that detailed personal information on patients at state mental health institutions be punched into a statewide computer system.

EACH PERSON'S computer record would include such items as suicidal thoughts, sexual problems, anti-social behavior and drug use.

The patients' records would be available, with some controls, to doctors, courts, missing persons' agencies, police and Medicare and Medicaid administrators all over New York state, the report said.

After a lengthy court battle, New York state won the right to retain its centralized records system, which remains in use.

In Missouri, the state attempted to require all public and private hospitals to provide detailed information on hospital discharges. That data was to be fed into a computer so that state health officials could "study the prevalence and control of disease in Missouri."

AFTER SIMILAR questions were raised about the program's legality, it was made voluntary.

Guard: Hope Lost For Missing Crew

BOSTON (AP) — Thirty-eight Chinese seamen on the missing oil tanker Grand Zenith and a Rhode Island crewman lost when another tanker broke up Monday have been given up for dead by the Coast Guard.

The 644-foot, Panamanian-registered Grand Zenith was last heard from Dec. 31 when it was believed to be 60 miles south of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. It was heading for Somerset, Mass., with 8 million gallons of fuel oil and the seamen from Taiwan.

"We've been evaluating the reports sent to us by the (Coast Guard cutter) Dallas, and we no longer feel there is any chance for survival," Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs said. "We really don't think there is any further need to keep searching."

Griggs said the sea search ended at nightfall Tuesday. The air search, which at times involved up to seven Canadian and U.S. planes, was halted Tuesday morning because of 25-foot seas and 45-knot winds.

"With sea conditions such as they are, it's hard to sight objects in the water — with all those white caps," PO 1c William Van Valkenburg said.

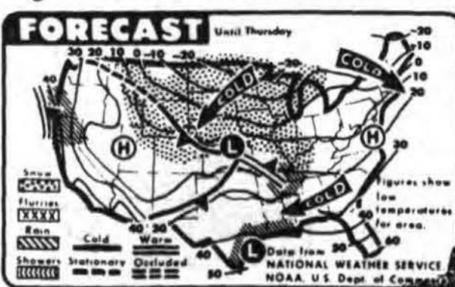

The ship had been written off last week, but the Coast Guard had held hopes of finding the crewmen in lifeboats or rafts. Two life jackets marked Grand Zenith were found about 330 miles off Cape Cod last week.

California

Southern California skies should remain bright and sunny through Thursday, the National Weather Service says. Forecasters said areas between the coast and the San Fernando, San Gabriel and San Bernardino valleys can expect daytime highs in the mid to upper 60s and nighttime lows between 35 and 45. Some regions of the San Bernardino Valley may be cooler at night.

In the mountains, where resort operators and skiers still are enjoying the first major snow pack of the season, highs should range from 45 to 55, while lows will dip to between 10 and 25.

Fair skies were also forecast for desert regions, with highs in the 30s and lows from the mid 20s to mid 30s in upper elevations.

Coastal weather will be cloudy with variable high clouds Thursday. Light variable winds night and morning hours. Highs in the mid to upper 60s.

Coastal temperatures will range between 42 and 60. Inland temperatures will range between 29 and 64. The water temperature will be 60.

Rocky, Voyage Top Picks

Two Films Lead All Entries in Golden Globe Awards

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — "Rocky" and "Voyage of the Damned" have received half a dozen nominations each to lead all entries for the 34th annual Golden Globe awards.

The two films were both nominated Tuesday for best drama of the year, along with "All the President's Men," "Bound for Glory" and "Network."

"Rocky," the compelling tale of a third-rate fighter's grab for a dream, was also nominated for best dramatic actor, best dramatic actress, best screenplay, best director and best original score. Sylvester Stallone, who played the punchy, shuffling "Italian Stallion" in the film, also wrote the screenplay.

"VOYAGE" EARNED six nominations, including best picture, two nominations in the best supporting actress category (Lee Grant and Katherine Ross), best supporting actor (Oskar Werner), best screenplay and best original score.

In the television category, ABC led the television networks with 21 nominations, followed by CBS with 19, NBC with 12 and PBS with one nomination.

"Network," a biting satire of the television industry, picked up five nominations, followed by the dramatization of Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein's "All the President's Men," which drew four nominations. The story of the late folk singer Woody Guthrie, "Bound for Glory," also got four nominations.

Nominated with Stallone for best dramatic actor were David Carradine, for his portrayal of Guthrie; Robert De Niro, who played a rickshaw cabbie in "Taxi Driver"; Peter Finch for his portrayal of a mad television newscaster in "Network" and Dustin Hoffman, who played a college student hunted by Nazis in "Marathon Man."

FAYE DUNAWAY'S portrayal of a ratings-obsessed executive in "Network" won her a nomination for best actress in a drama, along with Glenda Jackson in "The Incredible Sara," Talia Shire in "Rocky," Liv Ullmann in "Face to Face," and Sarah Miles in "The Sailor Who Fell From Grace With the Sea."

Kris Kristofferson was nominated for best actor in a comedy or musical for his portrayal of a booze-saturated and drug-riddled rock musician in "A Star is Born." Also nominated in that category were Mel Brooks in "Silent Movie," Peter Sellers in "The Pink Panther Strikes Again," Jack Weston in "The Ritz," and Gene Wilder in "Silver Streak."

Barbra Streisand's performance in "A Star is Born" drew her a nomination as best actress in a comedy or musical, along with Jodie Foster in "Freaky Friday."

Health Department 'Failure,' Analyst

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 1972 merger that created the huge and troubled state Health Department has been a failure, says Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he will give "careful consideration" to Post's recommendation to break up the department. Brown's health director, Dr. Jerome Lackner, has said the department should be split up.

Post, the legislature's respected nonpartisan fiscal adviser, also said Tuesday that he would propose alternatives to Brown's $480-million property tax relief plan.

POST SAID HIS proposals would include state takeover of administration and financing of $250 million a year in county court costs.

He agreed with Brown that the governor's proposals can be financed without a general tax increase, but said the legislature should consider other plans.

The Health Department has been hit by reports of questionable deaths in state hospitals, allegations of mismanagement of prepaid health plans and homemaker-chore services, and rising Medi-Cal costs, and criticisms of Lackner's administration.

BROWN, WHO recently named veteran administrator Ray Procnunier to run most health programs under Lackner, said he has been listening to other proposals to change the department.

"For several months my staff has been evaluating alternatives to the present complexity of the state Department of Health," Brown said in a statement. "In the weeks ahead, we will incorporate Mr. Post's suggestions in our overall view."

Post said the department, which directs $4.3 billion a year in health programs, is too big to be managed as a single unit.

Hunt Ends In Capture Of Gunmen

WOODSIDE (AP) — One of two suspects in a $17,000 Wells Fargo Whiskey Hill branch robbery was wounded in a capture that ended a 12-hour manhunt by some 100 lawmen in rugged Peninsula terrain.

A posse of San Mateo and Santa Clara county sheriff's deputies concentrated their search on 600 acres in Portola Valley Tuesday.

WITNESSES SAID that about 9:20 p.m. one of the men being sought came out of the countryside near a market at Portola and Alpine roads. Officers shouted for the man to halt.

Robert Bean, a college teacher, said the man had a heavy caliber pistol and had begun to run when two shots were fired. The man fell in the market parking lot, wounded in the abdomen, he said.

A FEW MOMENTS later the second suspect came out of the woods and was ordered to halt, the FBI said. The man started running but was brought down by a dog from the San Mateo County sheriff's department.

Boy Admits He Set Apartment Blaze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police arrested a 10-year-old boy who they say admitted setting a fire in the apartment house where he lived that killed 10 persons during Christmas week.

Police Lt. Richard King said the boy, arrested Tuesday, admitted using matches to set fire to an old couch under a stairwell at the Witmer Street building near downtown Los Angeles.

Sheriff Bows to Eviction Order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sheriff Richard Hongisto, who has been sentenced to jail for contempt of court for refusing to evict elderly tenants of a low-rent hotel, has served the hotel with eviction notices.

Hongisto nailed a thick wad of eviction notices to the main door of the International Hotel Tuesday night. The sheriff, who was accompanied by a party of aides, was reported to have said the posting means the tenants can be legally tossed out after 5 p.m. Monday.

The sheriff said he will carry out the eviction, although he is sympathetic with the tenants who have been fighting for eight years to save the 70-year-old building now owned by Four Seas Investment Corp.

Rain Hits North State Area

By The Associated Press

Rain barged into Northern California in a brief but blustery display early today, but the forecast called for assorted cloudiness through Thursday in most districts of the top half of the state.

More rain was expected, however, in the northern districts, with snow expected through Thursday in the northern mountains and Sierra.

Scripps Backs Climate Study

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Officials of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography say there is nothing sinister in a climate forecasting study begun last March with a Central Intelligence Agency grant.

Existence of the $36,000 grant was disclosed earlier by David S. Saxon, president of the University of California, in response to a formal demand filed by a student group under the California Public Records Act.

Officer Suspended in Sex Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A police department trial board has suspended an officer for six months and reduced his pay grade as a result of last year's sex scandal involving teen-age girl members of the police Explorer Scouts.

Officer Richard Engstrom, 32, was found guilty Tuesday of five of seven charges of unlawful sex and of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Gas Going Up Utility Wins Increase Okay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern California Gas Company's rates are officially on their way up.

The company won approval from the state Public Utilities Commission Tuesday for an immediate monthly increase of 4.6 cents for the average residential customer.

A COMPANY SPOKESMAN said rates for commercial customers will also be hiked to help raise the $3.3 million the company needs for hunting untapped gas fields.

The giant utility is cutting back supplies to many commercial customers to make up for dwindling supplies and legal entanglements on available sources.

GAS COMPANY OFFICIALS do not expect residential customers' supplies to be limited for at least four more years.

In its outback projections, the gas company is not counting on millions of barrels of liquefied natural gas which the utility wants to ship in on supertankers from Alaska and Indonesia and perhaps later from ports in the Middle East.

Environmentalists and residents of harbor areas along the coast have mired the proposals in controversy.

Grant Needs Boost

Costa Mesa may be losing a battle of time to obtain $450,000 for open space acquisition in the city's westside.

The federal grant, under the Land and Water Conservation Fund Program, is being sought by city officials to help purchase 35 acres of open space canyon land between 19th and Victoria Streets in west Costa Mesa.

Things were looking good for a while, but now the loan application seems to be bogged down in the San Francisco offices of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

City officials say bureaucratic nit-picking — including formalized letters requesting information, instead of a simple phone call to the city — is threatening the loan.

So the Save Our Canyons citizens group, headed by Pat Dolan, is organizing a letter-and telegram-writing campaign to get the ball rolling again.

Telegrams or letters should be sent promptly to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, care of Frank Sylvester, 450 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco. Time is of the essence.

The group suggests messages emphasize the property may be sold to developers if not purchased by the city, and that it is a unique open space area that can be enjoyed by all Costa Mesans.

Timely Job Help

A public works grant worth $504,670 will mean jobs for about 60 so-called hard-core unemployed citizens in Costa Mesa this month and city officials have already outlined what those jobs will be.

The city will be receiving the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds from the county's Manpower Commission.

The grant will provide salaries through September for 67 Costa Mesans who have not worked for at least 15 weeks. Those new employees will come from areas in the city with more than seven percent unemployment.

And, while almost half of the jobs are in the maintenance and beautification fields, some will be in computer information, recreation, the legal department and even educational fields.

The city's use of these new CETA employees appears to be reasonable and Costa Mesa's business economy should also benefit.

But city officials should make certain they will not be burdened with continuing the employment program from municipal funds after the grant expires next September.

Coastal Honors

Two Orange Coast men have been honored at the national level in the last few weeks, one for his works in education and the other for his efforts to help hard-of-hearing youngsters.

Dennis Lee Landesman of Corona del Mar brought recognition to the Orange Coast by being named one of America's Ten Outstanding Young Men for 1977 by the United States Jaycees.

Landesman was lauded for founding the Children's Hear-More Institute, which sent more than 500 deaf children to camp. The institute also created a hearing aid loan bank.

Attorney George Rodda Jr., also of Corona del Mar, a member of the Coast Community College district board of trustees, was honored with an award by the Congressional Postsecondary Education Committee for his five years of support to the Council of Resource Development.

Rodda is founding and permanent director of the executive committee of the council, comprised of more than 600 community colleges.

Cleaner Water Is Here

PAUL HARVEY

Americans — your water is purer than it was.

If we've not done or undone everything possible to improve our environment, the quality of our nation's water — in lakes, streams and reservoirs — is measurably, provably clearer and cleaner than five years ago.

Let's drink to that!

One of the reasons we get a pessimistic picture of pollution is that the scaremongers can talk in alarming generalities using words like "poison" and "toxic" and "harmful" — while the scientists are restrained by the ethics of specifics.

A quick for-instance, and I'm quoting from an official report by the United States Geological Survey, Department of Interior:

"Water collected at hydrologic bench-mark stations, analyzed for the following: arsenic, barium, cadmium, chromium, cobalt, copper, lead, mercury, selenium, silver and zinc — 642 separate analyses — revealed 65 percent of the observed metal concentrations were zero."

Now, in shirt-sleeve English that that says is significant and exciting.

AT THE 57 places in 37 states where we are keeping a continuing watch on the water, the quality is good and improving.

Monitored streams are relatively undefiled.

And the Great Lakes. . . Here again let's reduce official

Dear Gloomy Gus

With all the regulations, taxes, restrictions and gradual loss of freedom the government is imposing on us, I fear we're getting into a very revolting situation.

The sparkle and the freshness are returning to the Great Lakes.

Once dead Lake Erie has come back to life.

We took more edible fish out of Lake Erie last year than out of larger Lake Superior. This depollution of the largest reservoir of fresh water in the world is one of the greatest success stories in American history.

Just 10 years ago hundreds of beaches were closed as raw sewage and industrial oils washed up onto the sand. The lakes were choked with explosive growths of aquatic plants near the shores.

FISH, literally, were suffocating as their oxygen supply dwindled.

But during the summer of '76 swimming beaches unusable for 30 years were reopened.

The highly prized lake trout and walleye have made dramatic comebacks in the western lakes; sport fishing again is a passion for lake residents and vacationers.

Most places on the Mississippi River you can drink without danger — a few decades ago you'd have got typhoid.

And the Cuyahoga River in Ohio does not catch fire anymore.

If we haven't done everything right, we've done some things right. Let's drink to that!

Overbuilding a Losing Game

To the Editor:

Environmentalists and other citizens are fighting desperately to prevent the complete ruin of one of the state's most beautiful counties and coastline areas.

I have been to meetings of the Orange County Planning Commission in Newport, Irvine and Santa Ana and found ex-chairman Shirley Grindle (who recently resigned under pressure) a well informed, efficient and concerned chairman while on the commission. She also leaned towards the environment and was against cementing and overbuilding the county and tried to prevent the land speculators from viewing the coastline as up for grabs.

We have not only lost Ms. Grindle but we have now lost Mr. Ralph Benson as attorney for the county planning commission. He, also, leaned towards the environment and was similar in outlook to that of Ms. Grindle.

It has been said that the supervisors are the administrative arm of the state. What affects the counties surely affects the state. The proposed division of the county's districts — placing part of Newport under Supervisor Schmit and the Saddleback area under Supervisor Diedrich — is also disturbing since the inland cities' problems are entirely different from the problems of the coastline cities. The inland cities and their supervisors seem to lean towards overbuilding and some inlanders have referred to environmentalists as eco-freaks, etc.

IT HAS BEEN said that the county is in the throes of a power play. Campaign funding, in my book, is the first step towards corruption in government. This nation is greatly in need of recovering the values, integrity and standards of our founding fathers. In short, we need more patriots and fewer politicians.

May I suggest that in a changing world, we also need to revise our property laws. A city built by generations of its citizens into a way of life, a city that is beautiful or unique, should not be allowed to fall prey to speculators who buy up property and then dictate the desecration of these cities or outlying areas. Hence, greenbelts are essential. Nor should speculators who bought land in watershed areas or flood basins or who bought land where there is hill slippage be allowed to foster off poor investments, with threats of lawsuits as they attempt to overbuild on unsafe property. (Those playing the stock market are solely responsible for their poor investments and the buying of land is also a gamble.)

Destroying Orange County by overbuilding, tearing down the beautiful hills and ignoring the ecology in the process and building a second L.A. stretching from Irvine to Laguna Niguel behind the beach cities is self-defeating, illogical and destructive to the county and the state. We already have too many large cities in financial trouble.

regarding park funds expresses the feeling of the vast majority of us on the west side.

Every time we hear of the large amounts of money being spent on the established parks it really makes us burn. As far as our west side is concerned there has never really been anything positively done.

THE SAVINGS and loan company has set a price on the canyon property; why the delay in the purchase of it? Are we waiting for the price to go up? Or perhaps for some builder to make a larger offer and build more apartments? Mr. Hammett probably knows that people remember the wrongs done them much longer than the rights. Also, once an image of an individual is fixed it usually remains a long time — maybe even until the next election.

Dismayed Students

To the Editor:

Today I have read another newspaper article concerning the problems at California state hospitals, with special emphasis on Fairview State Hospital.

Governor Brown is proposing recruiting volunteers to work in these hospitals, while Dr. Michael Levine is suggesting on the job training.

As a student at Golden West College at Huntington Beach, California, studying for my Psychiatric Technician license, I am appalled. At this time I have spent one and a half years training to qualify for the Psychiatric Technician license and have six more months to go to completion. I have dedicated my time, effort, and money in this pursuit, as have my fellow students. We are training in the areas of anatomy, physiology, psychology, nursing, pharmacology, etiology of mental retardation and mental illness, and approaches to deal with these problems.

I and my fellow students are in this field because we are dedicated to it. We are in this field out of choice and dedication. I cannot believe that Governor Brown thinks he can provide the quality of care the residents of Fairview and other hospitals need with volunteers. I cannot believe Dr. Levine thinks he can find dedicated staff from people off the street.

It is my opinion that the cause of some of the existing problems is the past recruiting of this kind.

The work at Fairview and other mental hospitals is extremely demanding physically, mentally, and emotionally if a good job is being done. The people required to do a job such as this should be properly trained and possess a good deal of dedication. I believe that my fellow students and myself have these qualifications.

I and my fellow students are asking and hoping for public support in this matter.

Police Philosophy

To the Editor:

Newport Beach Police Chief James Glavas' recent letter in the Pilot defending the actions of the police in the shooting behind Albertson's Market should be read by every citizen of this community. Chief Glavas describes the death of Joe Hines as an "unfortunate incident," uses such emotional rhetoric as "mad dogs loose on society," and ends with a discourse on the advantages of shotguns over hand guns "in shooting situations in business and residential areas." His letter portrays, as no outsider possibly could, a basic set of philosophies and priorities in the man charged with directing law enforcement in Newport Beach.

There are factual matters in dispute that need not concern us here; the investigators for the District Attorney will presumably clarify these details. But Chief Glavas' letter clearly points up the two basic issues:

1. The competency of a police force that would place armed men in a crowded parking lot in the first place, then resort to gunfire when the criminal was outnumbered, on foot, and subsequently caught hiding under a car;

2. The basic police philosophy — articulated by Chief Glavas — which says that if the apprehension of a criminal involves risk to a private citizen, then the priority is on apprehension — and if a citizen is gunned down in the process, that's just plain rotten luck. And apparently trains its police officers accordingly.

I WOULD hope there are others who agree with my conviction that if risk to a single innocent citizen is present, the police should and must recognize the citizen's safety as their top priority. If the criminal gets away in the process, I find that a risk to be borne much more comfortably than the death of an uninvolved person. One can't help speculating on the reaction to this affair had the victim been someone other than the gentle, elderly Joe Hines — perhaps the child of a city council member, who might just as easily have been looking at those Christmas trees.

I feel strongly that the law enforcement priorities outlined by Chief Glavas must be changed before some other innocent citizen becomes the victim of police gunfire. I hope enough other local citizens share that view to make it effective.

Bay Invasion

To the Editor:

I just returned from a trip to the Back Bay disgusted, horrified, and outraged at the tremendous evidence of abuse of this ecological preserve by four-wheel drive vehicles.

As my husband and I drove along the road we saw a red jeep stuck in the mud (or at least we thought he was), the driver calling for help on his trusty CB radio. By the time we returned, he was joined by three other vehicles all tearing around in the mud having a "good time" ruining the terrain.

WHY IS this allowed? Such violation of this wildlife refuge is illegal. Yet there in broad daylight were at least eight young people (who undoubtedly spout off about how others ruin the environment) doing more irrevocable damage in one hour than many people do in a lifetime.

My husband suggested that the penalty for such abuse should be confiscation of the vehicle, and after watching those idiots, I am inclined to agree. At least it might give them some second thoughts about this horrendous crime against nature.

I feel the area should be more conspicuously posted and patrolled constantly until the violators get the message that the Back Bay is not a place they are free to destroy for their own inane pleasure.

Mother Sentenced in Killings

Pleads Guilty to Bag Murders

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-year-old Margo Davies has been sentenced to three life terms in prison after admitting she killed her three young daughters by tying plastic garbage bags over their heads.

After pleading guilty to three counts of aggravated murder, she told the court Tuesday she bound the girls hands and feet, placed the bags over their heads and left them to die.

"THEY WERE NOT dead until after I left," Mrs. Davies said in a slightly audible voice during a sudden court appearance a week before she was scheduled to go on trial.

Mrs. Davies, who is separated from her husband, told Judge Henry E. Shaw of Delaware County Common Pleas Court she left her daughters — Laurie Jo, 18 months; Christine 2½, and Tonya, 3 — bound and in plastic bags at three different rural locations, two in park trash cans and one in a field.

Neither Mrs. Davies nor the authorities have commented publicly about a motive for the slayings.

DR. ROBERT ZIPP, a veteran pathologist who performed the autopsies, said earlier in the investigation that the slayings were "one of the cruelest cases I've ever seen."

"They must have screamed and clawed in their anguish," Zipp said. "It would take several minutes to die in that fashion."

The guilty plea came after defense attorneys decided there was no case for previously entered pleas of innocent by reason of insanity to the three counts of aggravated murder with death penalty specifications.

THOMAS CLARK, a court-appointed defense attorney, said he and his co-counsel began talks with prosecutors last week after receiving results of a medical report on Mrs. Davies' sanity.

"We advised this woman only after she fully understood her rights in this case," Clark said. "She made all of the decisions. She changed her own plea."

Prosecutors agreed to drop the death penalty specifications in exchange for the guilty pleas.

Ovens Repair Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Electric Co. has agreed to repair 36,000 microwave ovens that may be leaking excessive radiation, the Food and Drug Administration announced.

The ovens, now in customers' homes, are all GE and GE's Hotpoint "Versatronic" and "Cook Center" combination thermal-microwave ovens made from November 1973 through October 1975.

GE WILL send repairmen to customers' homes and make the repairs at no expense to the customers, the FDA said Tuesday.

Sherwin Gardner, acting FDA commissioner, said, "We are requiring this repair program because the door seals on these ovens can deteriorate with use, resulting in a leakage of microwave radiation above that permitted by FDA's strict safety standard."

HE ADDED, "We see no danger from consumer use of the ovens during the time it will take to repair them under this precautionary program."

GE will start the repairs next month and expects to repair 25,000 ovens by June 1 and the rest by the end of the year.

OWNERS WILL be notified two weeks before the repairmen come to their homes, the FDA said.

GE previously agreed to repair two similar groups of microwave ovens for leaks. The FDA said that by last month, GE repaired about 5,300 of 6,026 ovens made between June and November 1972, and about 9,900 of 12,854 ovens made before June 1973.

Label Dispute High-toned Tissue Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Gucci Shops, Inc., have done very well selling fashionable items emblazoned with their trademark. They were not amused when two firms began selling rolls of toilet paper similarly inscribed.

Lawyers for the shops went to Manhattan State Supreme Court on Tuesday and obtained a temporary restraining order from Justice Xavier Riccobono barring the firms from further sale of the high-toned tissue.

The suit said Gucci has spent "enormous sums" establishing its GG initials and red-and-green stripe as symbols of quality and prestige which "will be ridiculed and become worthless" if linked to toilet paper.

Court papers naming Entrepreneur Enterprise, Inc., and 666 Cosmetics, Inc., as defendants said the unauthorized toilet paper is being sold in shops throughout the country at $3.50 for two rolls.

Lawyers said samples of the tissue were too bulky to be attached to their briefs but promised to submit them at a hearing to be held Jan. 14 on the request for a permanent injunction.

Billboard Magazine

Diana Ross Top Winner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Diana Ross, back in the recording game after a year of movie-making, was Billboard Magazine's big winner of 1976, topping the charts in three categories.

The former lead singer of The Supremes took over-all singles honors and the top spot for female singers, plus she was named the top female album artist for 1976.

HER SINGLES INCLUDED "Theme From 'Mahogany'" and "Love Hangover," and her big album was "Diana Ross."

Billboard computed its winners from a 52-week compilation of sales charts, in which artists and their works were given points for the popularity of the disc, the ranking the record achieved on the charts, and the length of time spent there.

The chart-topping single of the year was Paul McCartney and Wings, "Silly Love Songs," which beat out "Don't Go Breaking My Heart," from Elton John and Kiki Dee.

PETER FRAMPTON's "Frampton Comes Alive" was the top overall album on the charts, although Frampton finished fourth in the competition between album artists. He finished behind Aerosmith — which had four chart-topping albums during the year, John Denver, and the Eagles.

Billboard paid homage to the disco phenomenon that dominated the music scene in 1976 by creating a special disco chart and a corresponding category for the year's best disco artist.

Donna Summer, whose moaning, "Love to Love You, Baby," was long the hottest single last year, was named the first recipient of that award.

JOHNNY TAYLOR, WHOSE "Disco Lady" was the first disco single ever to sell more than one million copies, was named top solo artist and his "Disco Lady" won top soul single of the year honors.

Rock singer Alice Cooper hosted the awards, which saw last year's big winner — John Denver — all but shut out in this year's honors. Denver, who won four awards last year, had six singles and seven albums on the charts, but was the winner only in the top pop male album artists' category.

LAST YEAR WAS THE year of the craze in music, and citizens' band radio buffs had their voices heard. C.P. McCall's blockbuster hit, "Convoy," earned top single country honors. Willie Nelson won the top country album artist award, and his "The Sound in Your Mind," was named the top country album to hit the charts in 1976.

Double Phone Listings OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bell System telephone companies have been advised to concede a point to the women's movement and list both husbands' and wives' names in their directories at no extra charge.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. notified the Federal Communications Commission that it made the recommendation to its subsidiary companies, which usually do as AT&T recommends.

The letter to the Bell companies said the practice of permitting only one name in the basic listing caused complaints that it was "not responsive to the varying business and social identification needs of our customers — particularly those of married women."

"Some companies have already recognized this need and are presently expanding their tariffs to provide listings which contain more than one given name," says the letter to the companies.

War Straggler Due Invitation

TOKYO (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda is reportedly planning to invite to the Jan. 19 anniversary observance of his rise to power a Japanese World War II straggler who surrendered after hiding out for 29 years.

The Kyodo news service, in a dispatch from Nairobi on Tuesday, reported Amin said the invitation to the straggler, Hiroo Onoda, "is expected to greatly contribute to raising the morale of Uganda's army."

Onoda, 54, surrendered in March 1974 after repeated attempts were made to reach him in the jungles of the tiny Philippine island of Lubang to convince him that World War II had ended.

Onoda now lives in Brazil. After settling there, he once expressed a hope of visiting Africa.

San Diego To Study Nudity

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A resolution asking for almost a mile of state beachland to be designated "swimsuit optional" will go before the City Council in a month, an official says.

At the same time, access trails to the beach are being built, said Deputy City Manager John Johnson.

The beach would be the nation's first owned by a state in which nude swimming and nude sunbathing would be allowed. It touches the north edge of Black's Beach, the 600-foot "swimsuit optional" strip which is the nation's only municipally owned beach on which nudity is allowed.

Herbert Rhodes, state parks and recreation director, has refused to rule on a request by San Diego for the state designation until he sees City Council endorsement.

L. M. Boyd Plays Pushed 'Tom's Cabin'

Just about everybody has heard of Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of the classic book of its day, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Few realize, though, that she might not have become so famous, if she'd been a little brighter in the money department. Play producers read the fine print to learn that Ms. Stowe had failed to reserve for herself the theatrical rights. So they staged numerous dramatic productions worldwide, thus enhancing her reputation, greatly. But she never got a royalty dime from them.

Between 4 and 8 p.m. in a cocktail lounge, the typical female customer will visit the powder room four times while the typical man will make such an excursion but once. Or so reports a bartender of lengthy experience.

Q. "Have the publishers ever put out a book that was totally free from errors?"

A. Know of none, other than diaries and journals with blank pages.

Q. "Left handed U.S. presidents have included Gerald Ford and Harry Truman. Any others?"

A. James A. Garfield was, too. None other comes to mind.

Q. "Are Navy men still called 'gobs'?"

A. In Chinese, they are. That's where the nickname came from.

Rainfall Replenishes Low Water Table

By RAY ESTRADA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Water District (OCWD) officials are relying on "Mother Nature" to drop more rain on Northern California to bring local water supplies back to desired levels.

Water officials were "delighted" over the 1.8 inches of rain which fell on Orange County since Jan. 1. This brings the season (Oct. 1 to present) total to about 3 inches, 1.5 inches short of the amount of rain normally received by this time.

But OCWD officials said not enough rain fell in Northern California to bring the state out of its two-year drought.

"IF WE WERE DRY HERE but Northern California received a great deal of rainfall, we would all be in good shape," said Nick Richardson, OCWD engineer.

"But if Northern California is dry and we still get average rainfall, then we may have some problems," he added.

The problem is that Orange County's water table, or underground water supply, is at its lowest level since 1961 as a result of last year's state-wide drought.

"Groundwater levels today are an average of five feet lower than last year," said Richardson.

SINCE TWO-THIRDS of Orange County's groundwater supply is imported from Northern California and the Colorado River, the key to keeping the local supply from getting dangerously low is rain up north, he said.

"It is difficult to place an accurate dollar figure on the recent rains," said OCWD board President Preston Allen, "But as far as OCWD is concerned, we have found that one inch of rain in Orange County results in 7,500 acre-feet being percolated (or soaked) into the groundwater basin."

One acre-foot equals 326,000 gallons.

"IMPORTED WATER FOR groundwater replenishment costs about $42 per acre-foot when it is available," said Allen. "This means that the 1.8 inches of rain that have fallen since Jan. 1 have saved water users in Orange County $500,000."

Allen said, "We are not out of the drought yet but at least the end of the tunnel may be in sight — providing rains keep coming both in Orange County and Northern California."

Richardson said increased water bills for Orange County residents may not come from the dwindling supply of water as much as the spiraling cost of fuel needed to pump imported water.

THE OCWD ENGINEER predicted a five to 10 percent increase in water costs to residents in some Orange County cities generally due to increased power costs.

Meanwhile, Richardson said OCWD is hoping to cut last year's record high of 410,000 acre-feet of water used by Orange County consumers.

This record high was due to "unusually dry conditions in the 1975-76 fiscal year," Richardson said. Orange County used only 358,000 acre-feet during 1974-75, he said.

Molester Gets Year In Prison

A man accused on arrest by Orange County sheriff's officers of sexually molesting 30 young boys during a four-month period has been sentenced to not less than one year in state prison.

Superior Court Judge Byron K. McMillan ordered the sentence for Joseph Arthur Morgan, 28, of Garden Grove, after refusing to certify the defendant as a mentally disordered sex offender.

It was alleged before Morgan filed his guilty plea that he solicited and molested young boys in Anaheim, Orange, Buena Park and Garden Grove. Officers said the victims ranged in age from 8 to 12 years.

College Offered At Lunch

Employees can earn college credit during their lunch hours if their employers take advantage of a new videotape program called "Lunchbox College" offered this spring by Coastline Community College.

Videotapes of any of the nine telecourses offered by Coastline for the spring semester will be aired over KOCE (50), KNXT (2), KABC (7), and KCET (28) beginning Feb. 7. Even if companies do not have their own video playback machines, the employees can still enroll for at-home viewing.

Some courses offered are: "Making it Count—Introduction to Computers and Computer Application," "Law for the 70's," "The Home Gardener," "Applied Techniques of Sketching," and "Classic Theater—Humanities in Drama."

For more information, call Charlanne Jelen at 963-0811, ext. 231 or 233.

OCC Plans Weekend Sessions

For people who cannot attend classes on weekdays or in the evening, Orange Coast College offers an alternative called the Weekend College.

Classes are offered on Friday nights and Saturdays and it is possible for a weekend student to earn six to 10 units a semester, according to George Blanc, OCC's associate dean and Weekend College coordinator.

Seminars, lectures, workshops and a wide range of courses are offered. Among them are physical education, astronomy and machine shop. The library, health center and the snack bars also stay open.

Registration will continue through Feb. 7. For more information, call 556-5880.

UC Irvine Sets Course On Cancer

Nursing home personnel can obtain continuing education credit by enrolling in a Biology of Cancer course offered by UC Irvine.

Physicians, cancer patients, researchers and social scientists will be featured in the 10-week series to be held from 7 to 10 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Science Lecture Hall.

The class is cosponsored by UCI and the Orange County unit of the American Cancer Society. It has also been approved by the Board of Examiners of Nursing Home Administrators.

For more information, call Margaret Parkhill at 833-7131.

Retirement Ends Babashoff's Career

By GLENN WHITE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Shirley Babashoff abdicated her throne and today is retiring as queen of American women's swimming, two weeks before her 20th birthday.

The Fountain Valley aquatics starlet made her decision based on two factors: (1) to have more time to concentrate on studies at UCLA (2) lack of motivation after having dominated U.S. swimming for the past five years.

Babashoff is the most prolific American woman Olympic Games medal winner in history, having bagged two golds and six silvers during her appearances in the 1972 Munich Olympics and the 1976 Montreal Games.

She was a standout freestyle swimmer, coming into her own in '72 when she won the U.S. Olympic team trials in the 200-meter freestyle.

A year later she won her first national title and by the time her career had closed she had won 18 gold medals in individual national championship competition.

Babashoff, renowned for her powerful finishes, broke over 30 national records and 15 world standards during her career.

And her finest hours came twice in 1976.

The first was during U.S.

Olympic team trials in Long Beach when in five days she broke the American record in the 100, 200, 400 and 800-meter freestyles, then for good measure came back and captured the 400 individual medley.

She swam in six events at Montreal — the four freestyle races and anchored both American relay teams.

She captured silver medals in all but one of those races, saving her gold medal effort for the final night of Olympic swimming competition.

Then she capped a staggering upset when she held off East Germany's Claudia Hempel in the freestyle relay to give the USA its only gold medal of women's swimming at Montreal. And with it came her final world record effort.

Babashoff had earlier taken the pool time and again against the East German juggernaut of Kornelia Ender, Hempel, Petra Thumer, etc.

Thumer, a blossoming 15-year-old, shattered world records to upset Babashoff in the 400 and 800 as the Fountain Valley girl recorded lifetime bests, but couldn't quite overhaul Thumer.

Babashoff got her early swim coaching from Saddleback College boss Flip Darr, then worked under Mark Schubert (Mission Viejo Nadadores).

Schubert says that Babashoff has dominated American swimming as no other woman and he feels that her best international effort was in 1975 when she defeated Ender in the 200 free at the World Championships in Cali, Colombia.

Babashoff appeared beaten with 50 meters left in the race, but unleashed her lethal kick and nipped the East German by an eyelash with the touch at the wall.

Schubert says her most imposing record performance was perhaps the one at Concord in 1974 when she reduced the world 400 freestyle record from 4:18 to 4:14.76.

"I don't think her success ever went to her head," Schubert says. "She was always extremely coachable and in practice she was one of the hardest working athletes I have ever coached."

Babashoff was a finalist in Sullivan Award balloting (for the nation's top amateur athlete), was featured on the cover of Sports Illustrated and Swimming World magazines, was homecoming queen at Golden West College and won various other honors.

A member of a highly swim-oriented family, Babashoff attended Fountain Valley High and Golden West College before moving on to UCLA this fall.

SHIRLEY BABASHOFF

Area Aces Chosen in Draft

NEW YORK — Two Orange Coast area players were among those drafted by the major league baseball teams in the 1977 annual winter free agent draft Tuesday.

Mike Selwood, a third baseman for the Golden West College Rustlers and a graduate of Edison High, was taken on the fifth round by the Chicago White Sox.

Ron Cooper, a right-handed pitcher who graduated from Marina High in Huntington Beach last year, was selected by the California Angels on the ninth round.

Jeff Evans, an outfielder for Golden West, was taken on the fifth round by the San Francisco Giants. He lives in Buena Park.

Other Orange County players selected included Gareth Ledbetter, a catcher from Orange by San Francisco on the first round; Handsome Roundtree, a pitcher from Garden Grove selected by the White Sox on the second round; Martin Castillo, a third baseman from Anaheim taken by California on the eighth round.

Jay Pettibone, a pitcher from Anaheim taken by San Francisco on the eighth round; and Russ Penfold, a pitcher from Cypress taken by Minnesota on the 15th round.

The Los Angeles Dodgers and the California Angels went for young California shortstops Tuesday.

Tim Gloyd, from Sacramento City College, was the pick of the Dodgers while the Angels chose Alan Wiggins from Pasadena City College. Each is 18.

In the second round, the Dodgers completed a double play combination when they tabbed second baseman Jessie Daniels of Louisburg Junior College in the second round.

The Angels went for a right-handed pitcher, 19-year-old Robert Healy of Meramec Junior College of St. Louis. Healy was drafted by Houston last June but did not sign.

The Montreal Expos, the worst team in baseball last season, opened the draft by selecting Calvin Adams, an 18-year-old catcher-third baseman from Central Arizona Junior College.

Adams, 6-1, 188 pounds, batted .484 in Central Arizona's 1976 fall season as a freshman after hitting close to .600 during his high school career in Corpus Christi.

Adams bats and throws right-handed.

Cardinals Get New Dress Code

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis baseball Cardinals will be sporting a new look next season — short hair and clean-shaven faces.

New Cardinals manager Vern Rapp, who issued an edict Tuesday against long hair, beards and mustaches, said responses from players living in St. Louis had been tremendous.

"I'm trying to build an image of players who are disciplined and dedicated to their profession, their team and to bring the best possible professional team to St. Louis," Rapp explained.

Trying to Get $ Too Fast -- Rose

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Pete Rose thinks some of his world champion Cincinnati Reds baseball teammates are trying to get rich too fast.

"Frankly, some of them want too much," the Reds third baseman said before departing for a Florida business trip. "Some of these guys want as much money as they're paying me. I worked 14 years to get where I am, and they want it in two or three years."

Rose said he had read of Dave Concepcion asking for a five-year, $1 million contract, of Ken Griffey undecided on how much money to seek and George Foster and Rawly Eastwick threatening to play out their options.

"Our guys need to be realistic about this thing," said Rose in an interview with the Dayton Daily News. "It's always been my understanding that you get paid for years of service to the club, consistency in your play and your fan appeal."

Made Key Plays

Davis Deserved Super Bowl MVP

OF BAD CHOICES—Fred Biletnikoff as Super Bowl player of the game? He caught four passes for 79 yards. Big deal. One was a difficult catch. Big deal. One of the receptions covered 48 yards. Big deal. On that play the defense was spread wide on the field while Biletnikoff was running down the middle.

My pick was Clarence Davis, an Oakland teammate of Biletnikoff. Biletnikoff handled the ball four times. Davis had it 16 and racked up 137 yards, only 21 away from Pauley Pavilion (where it almost never lost, prior to Bartow's arrival at UCLA) (2) The caliber of non-conference opposition has been woefully poor (Jacksonville, Brazilian Nationals, De Paul, San Diego State, SMU, Rice, Tulsa, Utah State, William & Mary).

Lone exceptions to that are Notre Dame and Houston.

FORECAST: Bartow may be bidding the Bruins adieu at the end of this season. Good!

GLENN WHITE

off the Super Bowl record held by Pittsburgh's great Franco Harris.

Davis danced and drove for extra yardage time after time. And on one gain which I felt was extremely crucial to the continuing trend of Oakland's domination, it was Davis lugging for 35 yards to get the Raiders out of the shadow of their own end zone.

That gave them more operable field position and they eventually drove 90 yards before settling for the field goal which gave them a 3-0 lead.

OF BASKETBALL—Biggest upset of the current high school basketball season probably is Westminster's 42-41 shocker over Compton early last month.

Westminster won it on Tim Page's 25-foot shot with eight seconds left in the game. Compton has since mowed down all opposition and sports a flossy 12-1 record.

Best team I've seen to date is Verbum Dei.

El Toro has a couple of prize victories over Santa Ana Valley High to its credit. Valley is 8-3 thus far.

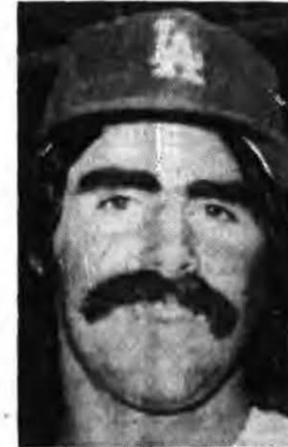

OF SPECULATION—The Super Bowl may rotate between Miami, New Orleans and the Rose Bowl. Geographically it seems fair. Weather-wise it seems like the answer to blizzards and freezing temperatures.

OF RESIGNING—Wonder when USC basketball coach Bob Boyd (or his administration) will awaken to the fact Southern Cal has fallen into the pits to become a regular—regular loser, that is? Give it up, Boyd. Get back into the sporting goods business. Or wash cars. Or draw unemployment.

And while on the subject, how much longer can UCLA cage boss Gene Bartow hold up under the pressure? His Bruins are struggling to stay in the top 20 (national rankings) and can ill-afford to lose many more circuit encounters if they are to be Pac-8 Conference title contenders.

True, UCLA boasts an 11-2 record, which doesn't seem all that shoddy.

But closer examination of that record reveals two key things: (1) UCLA has yet to play a game

BILL BUCKNER

LA Acquires Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Monday earned national acclaim in the outfield at Los Angeles when playing for the Chicago Cubs last April and now the hometown Dodgers hope he'll do the same for them.

Two different flags are involved.

Last spring, when two men climbed from the stands and attempted to burn the United States flag on the Dodger Stadium turf, Monday snatched it away before the spark could be struck.

Now it's the National League baseball pennant flag that's involved.

The 31-year-old centerfielder was acquired by the Dodgers on Tuesday in a trade that sent veteran left fielder Bill Buckner to the Chicago club.

Three other players also were involved in the transaction but Monday and Buckner were the big names.

The Dodgers also acquired 27-year-old relief pitcher Mike Garman and sent utility infielder Ivan DeJesus and minor league hurler Jeff Albert to the Cubs.

Buckner, who severely injured an ankle two years ago, came back to hit .301 in 1976 in 154 games and he owns a .289 lifetime batting average for his eight major league seasons, all with the Dodgers.

Monday, who starred at Arizona State University, signed with the old Kansas City A's for a reported $104,000 bonus in 1965, joining the major league club the next year and moving with it to Oakland in 1968.

On May 16, 1972, he hit three home runs in the same game. But he also has tied the major league record for consecutive strikeouts in a single game with five.

Last season Monday hit .272 for the Cubs with 32 homers as their top producer in the four-base category and third best in the National League. He drove in 77 runs. In the field, he made only two errors in 284 chances for a .993 percentage.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Top-seeded Chris Evert swept past unseeded Julie Anthony, 6-1, 6-0, but unheralded Kristien Shaw upset fourth-seeded Rosie Casals in a $100,000 women's pro tennis tournament.

Shaw made a surprisingly strong showing in defeating Casals, 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 Tuesday. Casals seemed to have trouble with her backhand.

Tanner Rolls

SYDNEY, Australia — Roscoe Tanner, winner of last week's Australian Open, was upset by fellow American Tom Gorman 6-3, 6-4 today in the $75,000 Australian tennis classic.

In other matches, Charles Pasarell defeated fellow American Arthur Ashe 7-6, 6-7, 6-3, American Sherwood Stewart beat Australian John Marks 6-0, 6-2, American Eric van Dillen topped Australian Ross Case 6-4, 7-6, and American Brian Teacher overcame Australian Charlie Fancutt 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Skier Injured

NEW YORK — Cindy Nelson, the best downhill skier America has ever produced, will know late tonight whether she will have to undergo an operation for a broken ankle she sustained in a race in West Germany.

RICK MONDAY

Corona In 37-33 Triumph

By ED BURGART
Alex Black broke out of a shooting slump in the fourth quarter, leading the uninspired Corona del Mar High Sea Kings to a 37-33 victory over the hard-luck Mission Viejo Diablos in South Coast League basketball action Tuesday night at Corona del Mar High.

Playing a delay game, Mission Viejo never led but came within 35-33 on Pete DeCasas' follow shot with eight seconds left to play.

But the 6-7 Black, who only connected on two of nine field goal attempts in the first three quarters, was fouled on a drive, sinking two free throws with three seconds remaining.

Black ended with 12 points, getting eight in the final period when Corona del Mar led by three-five points throughout against a team that has lost three circuit games by a total of 10 points.

Ranked No. 2 in Orange County, the Sea Kings, 10-4 overall and 3-0 in league, didn't play up to capabilities, failing to attack Mission Viejo's aggressive 2-3 zone with any consistency and suffering cold scoring lapses in the second and third quarters.

In those periods, the Sea Kings only connected on seven of 23 field goal attempts for 30.4 percent.

And if Mission Viejo had shot better, it might have won. Having to work hard to get high percentage shots against Corona del Mar's tight man defense, the Diablos only sank two of 10 from the floor in the third period and hit on 12 of 33 overall for 36.7 percent.

But the Diablos executed the slow down game well, only turning the ball over eight times and committing just four fouls—only one in the first half.

In that first half, Corona del Mar moved to a 14-4 lead with 4:46 left in the second quarter, but sparked by Bernie Hawkins, who ended with 14 points, the Diablos cut the gap to 18-13 at the half.

Hawkins had four points in a Mission Viejo spurt when it outscored Corona del Mar 9-4.

Corona del Mar was hurt with 2:40 left to play when guard Paul Akin, the team's playmaker, fouled out. The Sea Kings had a 30-25 lead at that point.

FV Explodes to Top Moors, 81-69

By ROGER CARLSON
ALHAMBRA—With five players scoring in double figures, the Fountain Valley High Barons exploded in the fourth quarter and went on to down a tough Alhambra Moors quintet Tuesday night, 81-69.

The non-league basketball tussle, featuring 12-1 Fountain Valley against the 15-1 Moors, was everything it was billed, as the two CIF-4-A powers battled for three quarters on even terms at a searing pace before 1,000 fans at the loser's gym.

Alhambra, with guard George Ratkovich, a first team All-CIF selection as a junior, took a 9-0 lead and was hitting from the field at a 65.7 percent clip (23 of 35) through three quarters, yet was trailing by four points entering the final stanza.

The Moors cut the margin to 58-55 on a free throw, but then their shooting magic against Fountain Valley's matchup zone went sour. Six times Alhambra was turned away empty handed from the field and in the meantime, the Barons of coach Dave Brown exploited the situation with baskets from each of their weapons.

First it was Scott Ford with a rebound and 10-footer, then Bret Wilkinson from 16 feet, then reserve Mike Heide, who did a good job at both ends of the court, hit from outside. Roger Holmes crossed the lane and hit a bucket, then George Barrios, the floor leader and high scorer with 21 points, gave Fountain Valley an insurmountable lead at 69-55 with a three-point effort from 12 feet.

Barrios, in a head-to-head duel with the highly regarded Ratkovich, was the best player on the floor. But despite Barrios' sterling efforts, it was a team-oriented victory for Orange County's No. 1 team.

Cagers Battle Tonight

Estancia High of Costa Mesa will be trying to snap back from a Century League basketball setback and three Sunset League teams vie in non-league action tonight.

The Eagles of Estancia will be trying to stay within range of the top after absorbing a loss at El Modena Friday — traveling to Orange.

With Ray Orgill, Pete Neumann and a lot of depth, the Eagles are heavy favorites to roll at Orange. Tipoff is at 7.

Also at 7 is Marina (Huntington Beach) High's Vikings, who will be trying to snap a two-game skid at Loara of Anaheim.

A doubleheader at Huntington Beach's Edison High features the Huntington Beach Oilers against Lynwood at 6:30, followed by Warren of Downey and the Edison High Chargers at 8:30.

Tony Warren and Leland Bruce have been the most consistent scorers for coach Steve Popovich's Marina quintet. Warren has been in double figures 14 straight games, averaging 16.0, while Bruce, averaging 11.2, has been in double figures the last seven games.

Huntington Beach, which has had nine different players score in double figures at one time or another, puts most of its chips behind the trio of Cary Burt, Clark Sims and Gary Contreras.

Edison, which has not won two in a row this season, will be trying to upgrade a 5-8 mark against Warren.

Tritons Outlast Mesans SC Holds On for 55-53 Victory

By HOWARD L. HANDY
The Costa Mesa High Mustangs closed fast but didn't make it to the wire in losing a 55-53 South Coast League basketball decision to visiting San Clemente's Tritons Tuesday night.

The Mustangs, trailing by 10 points with 1:35 to play, scored nine points in the waning minute and a half but time ran out before they could catch the front-running Tritons who held the lead all the way with exception of 6-4 early in the action.

San Clemente was up by 10 after John Carson hit a basket on a fast break to open the fourth quarter. Then the Tritons held the ball in a passing game near mid court with only an occasional scoring spurt.

This brought the clock down to 1:35 with San Clemente in front, 54-44. Steve Parrino hit a 10-foot jump shot and Stan Miller added a free throw.

When Mike Snow connected under the basket with 1:13 still to play, the lead was parred to 54-49.

San Clemente's Ted Hettinga rebounded a missed free throw with 30 seconds to go and John Stephens hit the front end of a one-and-one to make it 55-49 at the 25 second mark.

The scrappy Mustangs kept battling and Gary Willis tipped in a shot with 12 seconds to go. Miller stole the ball and Snow hit the final basket with time running out before San Clemente could get the ball in play. The Mustangs had used up their timeouts and had to watch the final four seconds tick off without a chance to get the ball.

It was a game of streak shooting. After Costa Mesa went in front for the only time, 6-4, the Tritons ran off a string of 14 straight and appeared headed for the barn early with an 18-6 edge.

Girls Vie In Hockey

University High School will host La Quinta High while Edison will play at Kennedy Thursday afternoon (3:15) in opening round CIF girls field hockey playoff competition.

University, winner of the South Coast League and boasting a 12-0-1 record this campaign, played Sonora High to a scoreless tie in the championship game a year ago but lost on time of possession.

The University Trojans are seeded third this year behind Orange League rivals La Habra and Sonora, the top two seeds.

Edison, winner of the Sunset League championship this season, is also a repeater in the playoffs. The Chargers are 6-2-3 overall and won the league crown with a 4-0-1 mark. The Chargers are in the opposite bracket from University.

Westminster High defeated Huntington Beach Monday to grab the second spot from the Sunset League from the Oilers and Newport Harbor. Westminster plays at Foothill Thursday.

Hirschler, Zirbel Pace GWC, 84-73

By CRAIG SHEFF
John Hirschler scored 22 points and Todd Zirbel fired in 20 in sparking Golden West College to an 84-73 Southern California Conference basketball win over visiting Rio Hondo College Tuesday night.

Golden West's Rustlers won the game inside as Hirschler (6-10) and Zirbel (6-5) tallied most of their points over the smaller Roadrunners. And Hirschler led all rebounders with 13 while Zirbel had 10.

Because of a decided height disadvantage, Rio Hondo played an aggressive floor game and it showed in the foul department as officials Ed Bowen and Jim Stupin cited the Roadrunners 25 times while calling 14 fouls on Golden West players.

And a pair of technicals on Rio Hondo didn't exactly bring a roar of approval from the Roadrunners fans. Golden West converted 26 of 37 free throw attempts while Rio Hondo hit seven of 11. Golden West took the lead for good mid way through the first half at 21-19, increased it to 41-32 early in the second half, then held off a Rio Hondo rally.

The Roadrunners closed the gap to 61-59 with nine minutes left, but Rio Hondo's leading scorer, Steve McGuire, then fouled out and the Rustlers gradually increased their lead.

McGuire, averaging 22 points a game coming into Tuesday night's tilt, was held to 10, his low by seven points this season.

The Rustlers also received a good performance from guard Gary Sanders, who hit five long corner shots and finished with 13 points.

Terry Haught sank a free throw with seven seconds left, helping the Laguna Beach High Artists hold off University's Trojans, 48-47, in South Coast League basketball action Tuesday night at University High in Irvine.

The Artists never trailed, leading 40-34 with 5:40 remaining in the game and 44-38 moments later.

But Doug Sorey's Trojans fought back, trimming the margin to 48-47 with 22 seconds left when Roger Poirier hit two free throws.

And when Haught missed the second of a one-and-one with seven seconds remaining, University got the rebound and got two shots off before the buzzer.

Ben Bacon, Laguna's 6-6 center, and 6-5 Jeff

Power Plan

Night Folks Experiment

KOHLER, Wis. (AP) — There are a couple of hundred new night people here, leaving the house as the kids go to bed and coming home at dawn.

"I'll have to wait for the fishing season before I know for sure," said one.

ABOUT 225 FOUNDRY WORKERS at the Kohler Company's main plant began a "graveyard" shift last week, working from 10 p.m. to dawn because power for electric furnaces is easier to supply and less expensive to use during those hours.

Public utilities around the nation are hoping it's part of a trend. They are inviting industries to shift some of their operations to night hours, when the demand on utility generators slacks off.

The idea is to ease the threat of overloads during hours of peak demand and to relax the need to build fuel-consuming generators.

TO ENCOURAGE THE PROGRAM, scores of public service commissions have ordered utilities to make it more attractive by providing participating businesses with reduced night rates.

The Kohler Company, with $10 million worth of electric furnaces producing iron for engine blocks and bathroom appliances, expects to save $420,000 to $480,000 this year on its electric bill. It is paying $26,000 in incentive wages to employees assigned to the new shift.

Most of the workers haven't decided whether it's worth it.

DAN POLSTER, 20, A BACHELOR, said, "It won't help being displeased, at least not yet. But I'm not sure about those guys who are married and have families."

Clarence Bergin, 54, said his wife "didn't like it too well."

Candy Reysen, 19, said, "It will take some time getting used to."

David Arenz, 24, thinks "the third shift is better. You get out during the day and have all day and half the night free."

THOMAS WAGNER, 23, SUPERVISOR in the molding department, said he foresees being able to spend more time with his children and with his pastimes, including fishing.

Charles Conrady Jr., president of United Auto Workers Local 833, said the electric company's "time of day pricing" may require labor representatives to demand higher wage differentials for night work.

Exactly What's in Drugs?

DEAR PAT: Where can I obtain information about the possible dangers of over-the-counter drugs? I've read so much recently about the problem of "unlisted ingredients" being potentially dangerous to certain individuals that I'd like to check out a few products myself.

E.J., Laguna Hills The "Handbook of Non-Prescription Drugs," published by the American Pharmaceutical Association, 2215 Constitution Ave NW, Washington, DC 20036, is a complete and easy-to-understand source of detailed analyses of non-prescription drug products available to the public. Check with your library for a copy or order from the publisher. It lists major ingredients and discusses effectiveness and safety factors for 32 types of products.

Check Up on Health Policies

DEAR PAT: I now am in business for myself and find that I must provide health insurance protection for myself and my family. We have excellent health, eat properly, exercise regularly and carry out the rest of the recommended good health suggestions. What I want to know is how I should judge a good individual health insurance program from one that might prove inadequate in case it has to be used.

T.S., Newport Beach Your family's basic good health regimen is your best protection. When choosing adequate financial protection against accidents or unexpected illnesses, AYS advises reading, "The Complete Retirement Planning Book," by Peter A. Dickinson.

He says that the average consumer can handle the health insurance situation best by purchasing a catastrophic type policy offering adequate protection in the case of major illness. Make sure that you have disability income insurance to pay living expenses in case you are unable to work and insure against the big losses rather than the small ones. Compare costs before buying. One should "shop" for insurance, just as for other consumer items.

Dickinson emphasizes knowing exactly what you are buying. Get sample copies of each policy you are considering and ask about anything you don't understand. Do your homework, get your answers and buy according to cost.

Firm Sees Upswing

The economy over the next two years will be marked by spurts of recovery followed by extended periods of growth without significant acceleration, according to forecasts by Dean Witter & Company.

The brokerage firm estimates real growth in the first two quarters of 1977 to be 5.4 percent and 6 percent, respectively, up from just over 4 percent for 1976's final quarter.

This higher level of sustained growth will be followed by a pause in which growth should be 5.2 percent in late 1977, gaining to 5.4 percent in the first half of 1978. A falling off of the growth rate to less than 3.5 percent is expected late that year.

Dean Witter forecasters expect this relatively rapid growth in 1977 to be due in part to economic stimulation brought about by the Carter administration. For example, the forecast is based on a predicted 1977 tax cut of $8-10 billion. Dean Witter expects a federal budget deficit of about $70 billion in 1977, dropping to $50 billion in 1978.

AT&T Suit Ploos On

As After-tax Earnings Hit $11 Million Daily

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ The government's antitrust suit against American Telephone and Telegraph, the phone company, is now going forward, but at this early stage the only beneficiaries in sight are the lawyers, Xerox and other companies that sell or rent copying machines.

Money Tree

Companies such as AT&T are so enormous that it's difficult for anyone to confront them, whether it's the Justice Department, regulatory commissions, customers or would-be competitors.

COMPETITORS DON'T have a chance, the government suit charges, because AT&T monopolizes the telecommunications business in the United States. Since nearly all the relevant information is inside the walls of AT&T, proving that will not be easy. And whether it can be proved or not, the entire process will be time-consuming. It took two years, for example, to settle what appeared to be a simple matter of jurisdiction. The Justice Department brought its action Nov. 20, 1974. AT&T moved for dismissal of the suit, claiming that the proper place to try the charges was the Federal Communications Commission, not the federal courts.

Judge Joseph C. Waddy, of federal district court in Washington, D.C., has now ruled that his court does have jurisdiction. This clears the way for the government lawyers to assemble the documents it needs from AT&T. And the AT&T legal army will ask for the documents it needs from the government. This exchange of information is expected to begin by March 1.

IT WILL BE, YOU can be sure, a mammoth exchange, going back over many years and covering who-knows-how-many documents. The amount of time consumed, legal fees paid and paper ac-culated in this case might well rival the incredible amounts registered in the antitrust suit now being heard against International Business Machines (IBM).

It took more than six years for the IBM suit to come to trial. And the trial in New York federal district court is now coming up to the two-year mark.

ARTHUR LUBOW, a writer for New Times, estimated that IBM may have more than 100 lawyers working on this case. The Justice Department has 21 full-time attorneys on the prosecution side.

IBM disclosed that it has accumulated a file of six billion sheets of paper related to the antitrust case. The court transcript alone runs to more than 27,000 pages. The difficulty of finding out what goes on at AT&T was demonstrated last month when the New York State Public Service Commission rejected a proposed $393 million rate increase by the New York Telephone Company. The commission said it turned down the proposal because the Bell unit failed to provide adequate justification for the various price hikes it wanted.

ONE OF THE AREAS in dispute is the matter of intrastate rates. You may have noticed that long-distance calls within your state can sometimes cost more, or just as much, as calls made to states clear across the country. The only way outsiders can determine the "justice" of these rate discrepancies is to see how the phone company allocates its costs.

Alfred E. Kahn, the chairman of the New York State regulatory agency, said that in the past the Bell system never did "good cost studies. They want to be free to set their rates the way they want. It just goes to show how sloppy rate-making has been in the past — totally permissive to the companies."

Meanwhile, as the antitrust proceedings drone on, AT&T goes about its business, earning $11 million a day after taxes and searching for new ways to increase its revenues. One of its proposals in New York is to double the cost of coinbox calls to 20 cents. The rate is already operative in 11 states. And three other states have a charge of 15 cents.

Club Sets Meeting

The Economic Club will meet at the community room of Laguna Federal Savings and Loan, Laguna Hills, at 4 p.m. Friday.

The program will feature the First National City Bank of New York's monthly report "The Sound of the Economy." Meeting cost is $1.50. Reservations were requested and may be made by phoning 633-0792.

'POCKET TV' SETS TO HIT MARKET

LONDON (AP) — A British firm that makes electronic calculators has introduced what it called the world's first pocket television.

Sinclair Radionics Ltd. says its "microvision" has a two-inch screen, is four inches wide, six inches long, 1 1/2 inches high and weighs just over 26 ounces.

Clive Sinclair, the company's founder and chairman, said the sets would go on sale next month for about $300 each.

Car Dealers Cut Disclosure Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you bought a car from a dealer who arranged the financing — if you may have spent several hundred dollars more in finance charges than you had to.

The extra money went as a payment from the lending institution to the dealer in return for steering the business its way.

FRANK ANNUNZIO, (D-Ill.), chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee, said such payments are "under-the-table kickbacks" that "have cost consumers millions in the past few years."

Under pressure from Annunzio and others in Congress, the Federal Reserve Board is expected to require disclosure of the payments, beginning next month. Then, the lending institution will have to inform borrowers that the ear dealer is getting a cut of the finance charge.

The disclosure a rule of the finance charge. Annunzio said the system works like this:

A CAR DEALER TELLS A CUSTOMER, "Don't go to a bank for a loan. I have someone I always work with. I'll arrange it for you." The dealer doesn't say there is an extra cut in it for him.

The lending institution gives the dealer about one-third of the interest charges or the bank may set an interest rate and tell the dealer that he can keep anything over that amount. In one case discovered by the subcommittee, a car buyer spent $791 in finance charges of which $272 went back to the dealer.

"A consumer has a right to know his dealer is getting a kickback from the lender, a kickback that the consumer pays for. With this knowledge, a consumer would know he can probably get a lower finance charge through direct financing," Annunzio said.

The finance industry disagrees with Annunzio.

"I DOUBT IF IT WILL AMOUNT TO the millions that Congressman Annunzio is talking about. If dealers didn't get this money, they would have to charge more as the basic cost of the car," said a spokesman for the National Consumer Finance Organization.

"This is a way of business that has gone on for many, many years and these payments are not kickbacks," he said.

Last August, the Federal Reserve Board, responsible for enforcing the Truth in Lending Act of 1968, issued a proposed regulation that would have allowed the practice to continue. The 1968 law requires lenders to notify consumers of credit terms so that they can make informed choices when shopping for a loan.

ANNUNZIO AND OTHERS PROTESTED TO THE FEDERAL RESERVE AND THE INTERPRETATION

He called the proposed regulation "a covering-up of the dealer-lender relationship."

The Fed now has issued an amendment to force disclosure of the fees to the dealer. The new requirement is expected to remain in the rules when they become effective after Feb. 4, the deadline for public comment.

The disclosure won't detail the size of the dealer's cut. But it will alert you that the dealer is taking a share of something that otherwise would appear to be going to the lender.

Investors Worried About Inflation

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation worries drove the stock market into its steepest decline in a long time. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 10.22 points Tuesday, was off another 8.40 to 968.25.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Superb Sub for LAPO

Many supposedly sage men and women of music, this writer included, gave a deep sigh of resignation when we learned that the ailing Dame Janet Baker would be unable to join the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra for its performance of Mahler's Third Symphony.

Those of us who were there in 1973 for the LAPO's prior venture into the intricacies of the massive Mahler score rather hoped that the presence of Dame Janet would lift all concerned into an acceptable rendition of the work.

THE SUBSTITUTION OF MEZZO soprano Beverly Wolff did little to allay our fears. Our hearts in our boots, we headed for the Los Angeles Music Center for what we predicted would be a Bakeresque and uninspired evening of Mahler.

We owe all connected with this magnificent performance — especially Miss Wolff — an abject apology for such negative pre-concert thinking.

Our conclusions were kicked from the auditorium via a majestic offering that owed much to the dynamic interpretation of Zubin Mehta who led his LAPO, the Los Angeles Master Chorale and the California Boys Choir in a Mahler concert that bore no resemblance to the pallid offering of three years ago.

MEHTA ALWAYS HAS BEEN a Mahler advocate but he has never until now reproduced the heroic and grandiose climaxes that particularly embellish the Third.

The man who failed in 1973 got a standing ovation in 1977 and we should be still standing there clapping our hands off for his role in this superb concert.

It was Mahler played as Mahler should be played and Miss Wolff would have drawn bravos from Dame Janet herself had the great Briton been there to witness the substitute's role in the glorious fourth and fifth movements.

Wasn't it Sir Thomas Beecham who once advised us that "substitutions do not necessarily mean diminutions?" Ah, music critics never learn, and Sir Thomas would have said "Amen" to that.

'Oh, God' Roles Cast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two notable castings for Warner Brothers' "Oh, God": Ralph Bellamy as a prosecuting attorney and Dinah Shore as Dinah Shore. Carl Reiner is writer and director of the comedy which stars John Denver in his movie debut and George Burns in the role of God.

'Jacksons' to Air As Video Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS Television has substituted a half-hour musical show, "The Jacksons," for "A Year at the Top," the situation comedy that had been scheduled to premiere Jan. 26.

Producer Norman Lear said that "A Year at the Top," which was to star Mickey Rooney, Vivian Blaine and Robert Alda, had been "shut down for repairs." Lear added that the show would return to production in March with hopes for a debut in the fall.

"The Jacksons" stars the Jackson Five and other members of the musical family.

NY Man Honored Keep It Clean, Says Resident

From AP Dispatches
The sight of a dirty sidewalk is an affront to 87-year-old William Hirscher, who for 10 years has been badgering, cajoling and persuading the residents of his Bronx neighborhood to help keep its streets clean.
Until Tuesday, it's all been unofficial. One of Hirscher's acts has been to hand out his own hand-printed summonses.
But now he has won official recognition. At a ceremony, Sanitation Commissioner Anthony T. Vaccarello of New York City gave him a badge and named him an honorary deputy commissioner. Hirscher gets no salary — only the satisfaction of doing his volunteer job.

Entertainer Frank Sinatra and his son, Frank Jr., cancelled appearances at Harrahs clubs in Reno and in Stateline following the death of Sinatra's mother in a plane wreck. (Related picture, A5)

A San Diego man who calls himself "Captain Sticky" says he'll kick off his personal vendetta against "evil in nursing homes" with a Navy beach landing.

Richard Pesta says he'll stage a 700-mile, 90-day journey — his most ambitious project since retiring from the fiberglass business — to gather witnesses to tell the state about nursing home abuses.

At a news conference in Sacramento, sponsored by the state Department of Aging, the 375-pound, one-man war against evil said the Navy will land him Saturday on Imperial Beach to begin his assault.

Former pro basketball center Walt Bellamy was elected doorkeeper of the Georgia Senate, succeeding former Atlanta Braves pitcher Pat Jarvis, who is now sheriff of DeKalb County, Ga.

The 6-foot-10 Bellamy was nominated by Sen. Ed Johnson, who said, "It's often been said that the doorkeeper must be a big man."

The senators laughed loudly when Bellamy rose to his feet, looming over Lt. Gov. Zell Miller's shoulder just as Miller asked if there was any objection to the nomination.

The Navy is being asked to stop interfering with free exercise of religion in a suit filed by a follower of the Sikh faith discharged after wearing a turban with his uniform.

The suit filed in U.S. District court in San Diego by Ronald B. Sherwood seeks his reinstatement, a damage award of more than $10,000 and a definition of the legal meaning of Navy uniform rules.

Sherwood, who joined the Navy in 1970 and took his religious vows four years later, contends his court-martial for refusing to remove the turban and subsequent discharge were arbitrary and violate freedom of religion.

Former Gov. Sherman Adams, who was chief of staff and confidant to President Dwight D. Eisenhower, has been hospitalized after falling at a ski resort.

A spokesman for the Loon Mountain Resort in New Hampshire said Adams, 78, fell and injured his head while walking during the worst blizzard there in 10 years.

He resigned from the White House post in 1958 amid allegations of impropriety stemming from his acceptance of a vicuna coat for a nominal price and other gifts from Boston businessman and longtime friend, Bernard Goldfine.

Prince Jean-Felix de Merode, 33, a descendant of one of Belgium's oldest noble families, was found dead in a pool of blood on the stairway of his Paris apartment building, apparently the victim of a fall.

Police said their early suspicions he had been beaten to death were apparently not sustained by an autopsy, which found only one wound at the base of the skull, consistent with his having hit the staircase in falling.

Neighbors said the bachelor prince, unemployed and a figure of Paris night life since his father's death two years ago, often came home in the early hours.

Nottoway (Va.) County Sheriff Ray Royall, recently indicted on charges of misusing public funds, won the moral support of some people who know him well.

"We, the inmates of the Nottoway County Jail, would like to voice our opinion concerning Sheriff Royall," said a letter to the editor of the Blackstone newspaper, The Courier Record.

"We think Royall is the best sheriff Nottoway County has ever had for justice toward the people and inmates of this county."
The letter was signed by 10 inmates.

Fred Marler was all ready to serve as a juror in Sacramento before his boss told him he was more help to the court as a judge.

Marler, a former state senator and now a Superior Court judge, was called to jury duty under a state law effective last year that stripped many professionals, including judges, of their automatic exemptions.

But when he reported, presiding Superior Court Judge Joseph Babich told Marler he could serve the public more as a judge than as a juror, and excused him from jury duty.

The widow of sculptor Alexander Calder says she will not pick up his posthumous Medal of Freedom as a gesture in favor of complete amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters.

Mrs. Louisa Calder did not go to the White House when President Ford presented the medals, the nation's highest civilian honor, to 22 individuals. If the President knew of her feelings, he said nothing about it.

In a telephone interview from New York with the Washington Post, she said she had sent a telegram to Ford.

"We said freedom should be for everyone, and freedom meant total amnesty," she said.

Selling Of Tapes Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Sirica is considering a plan that would enable anyone with $3.75 and a stamp to hear for himself the conversations that caused the downfall of Richard M. Nixon.
Lawyers for a variety of broadcasting organizations and a record company submitted a plan Tuesday that calls for the National Archives to sell one-hour tape cassettes for $3.75 to $5.75, depending on tape speed.

IN SHORT

Included in that price would be a complete transcript, packaging and mailing. A full set of the 30 tapes played at the Watergate trial might be had for about $100.

Ships Collide

MESSINA, Italy (AP) — The U.S. 6th Fleet aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt was involved in a collision Tuesday night with the 28,000-ton Liberian freighter Oceanus in rough seas off the Sicilian port of Messina, port officials said.

They said both ships suffered minor damage. There were no reports of casualties.

Viet Loan OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — "They're eligible in the same way any other country is eligible for any of the fund facilities," says an American official of the decision by the International Monetary Fund to loan $36 million to war-torn Vietnam.

The IMF approved the loan Tuesday, stating its purpose was to compensate for the export earnings Vietnam lost in 1976 due to war damages.

The loan to Vietnam by the 129-member agency was the first since the Communist government was admitted to membership over U.S. opposition late last year.

GOP in Black

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican party has a healthy bank balance and a $1 million trust fund to pay any leftover bills of a campaign in which President Ford's organization appears to have shortchanged itself.

A party official said $1.8 million raised by the Republican National Committee and earmarked for the Ford campaign went unspent because nobody asked for it.

Transfer Calm

MIAMI (AP) — As the stricken cruise ship Monarch Star drifted about in tropical waters off the coast of Cuba today, its 391 passengers sailed for Haiti aboard a sister ship.

A Monarch Lines spokesman said the mid-ocean transfer of passengers, some of the 368 crew members, luggage and provisions to the Monarch Sun was completed without mishap Tuesday.

The 617-foot Star, which left Miami Sunday on a 14-day cruise, stopped dead with a pump problem early Tuesday, a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said.

Probe Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will not prosecute President Ford's former campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, for an alleged conflict of interest involving his ski resort in Colorado.

The department notified Callaway Tuesday that, after six months, it was dropping its investigation and had no plans to pursue it. Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard Thornburgh made the letter to Callaway public.

Confirmation Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Bergland was among friends when he met with the Senate Agriculture Committee to discuss his nomination as President-elect Carter's agriculture secretary.

Even Republican members of the panel had praise for Bergland, and the committee late Tuesday unanimously recommended that the Senate confirm the Minnesota farmer to head the Agriculture Department.

TV, Stereo Taken

A burglar who was aided by an unlocked door at a Laguna Hills home carried off a color television set and stereo equipment jointly valued at $1,025.

Orange County sheriff's officers said the loss was reported by El Toro Marine Steve Alan Nowka, 27, of 25191 Hartog. He was working at the base when the theft occurred.

Pilot Logbook Having Nice Time; Wish I Was There

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Everybody always sends home such cheery vacation notes that I thought I'd contribute one so you won't have to ask me if I had a good time in Mexico. The answer is no. The reason is I never got there.
My original plan was to dash off a vacation note in a snug, secluded trailer on the Baja California beach with the comforting thunder of the surf some 20 yards from my front door.

Ideally, it would be in between writing chapters of one or the other books currently in slow, painful progress. Or after finishing some more sketching and painting and cracking open the tequila and an icy beer to savor with salt and sliced fresh lime while watching a magnificent sunset over the Bay of All Saints.

EVEN IF I'D EVER gotten down there, I don't think the sun was seen from Tuesday on, either setting or rising. The dirt road to our favorite hideaway is probably still impassible and impassable, due to storms.

My plans were already made, however, and no amount of nagging and pleading by several females who read those alarmist stories about Mexican bandits could change them.

I should have seen the handwriting on the wall Monday, the first day of vacation. Since my wife had to work, I spent the day doing dishes, laundry, tidying the house and taking down the Christmas tree. I was on vacation. I had nothing more important to do.

VINSEL

THAT WAS THE DAY I realized, after taking the empty Sparkletts water jugs out and locking the garage door as my wife drove away to work in South El Monte, 65 miles distant, that I had just locked myself out of the house.

My keys were in my pants pocket all right. But my pants were hanging on a bedroom chair. The temperature was hovering at 54 and the only things between me and an indecent exposure or burglary rap were a flimsy bathrobe and my inability to barehandedly tear the screen off the bedroom window.

I finally found a neighbor who hadn't left for work and called mother-in-law to come over with the spare house key.

TUESDAY I WAS GOING to get Old Blue a tuneup and wheel alignment so I could hit the road but one must submit a resume and personal references to get a car into a west Orange County garage for work. They said maybe Wednesday.

Wednesday, they mentioned the coming toad-strangler storm, as old Uncle Bob called such downpours, and said again they couldn't do the work. They wanted all hands available to tow in motorists stranded with wet and out-of-tune cars.

They didn't want to cut into that market by tuning up a car so its operator didn't get stranded, either here or somewhere south of the international border crossing at San Ysidro.

Thursday it was raining so hard it woke me up. THE BIGGEST EXCITEMENT of the day came when I dropped the shaving cream and it landed on my hairbrush, flipping the brush in a neat one-and-a-half gainer right into the toilet.

Rube Goldberg and Nadia Comaneci in concert couldn't have done better.

Friday, I sat around the house staring at our romantic phony gas fireplace and wondering what to do. Every time I heard police cars or fire truck sirens, which I was going to Ensenada to escape, I forbade myself from calling authorities to check out the action.

I TOOK MY MIND OFF being on vacation by fixing a nice Mexican dinner for Working Wife.

Now, I'm back at work, minus one week of 1977 vacation time and — for some insane reason — looking forward to taking the rest of it off and maybe spending a few days in Mexico.

Maybe I just feel good because today I didn't lock myself out of the house or come close to donating my hairbrush to the Orange County Sanitation District.

Ballots Disputed Labor Panel Eyes Register Election

Agents for the National Labor Relations Board district office in Los Angeles are conducting an investigation of a contested union election held among advertising employees of the Santa Ana Register.

An NLRB spokesman said the inquiry could last about a month before a finding is made.

Workers at the newspaper voted by a 53 to 44 margin to join the Communications Workers of America, an AFL-CIO affiliate, last Thursday, but a total of 21 challenges to ballots have been filed.

Thirteen challenges came from the Register alleging the ballots were cast by part-time, and therefore ineligible, employees.

One challenge came from the NLRB agent conducting the election on the grounds that the ballot was cast by an employee whose name did not appear on the eligibility list.

The remaining seven challenges were brought by the union which charged that the ballots were cast by people who, for a variety of reasons, are not members of the bargaining unit being polled.

Following the conclusion of the probe, either side may appeal to the NLRB office in Washington D. C.

The NLRB spokesman said that if the union loses the election at the conclusion of the proceedings, no further union activity will be allowed for a year.

If the newspaper loses, he said, the case can be taken to federal court if the paper's management refuses to negotiate with the bargaining unit.

Stereo Gear Gone

Stereo equipment valued by the victim at $800 was stolen from a Mission Viejo home by a burglar who entered via the unlocked window. Orange County sheriff's officers said the theft was reported by William F. Gardner, 21, of 27332 Jardines. He was at a neighbor's home at the time of the break-in.

INTREPID BACK IN AMERICA'S CUP FIELD
Gerry Driscoll to Take the Helm Again

Driscoll to Take Helm of Intrepid

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gerry Driscoll says he should be skipping the Intrepid in 12 meter America's Cup trials in San Diego by March.

An Arizona court was scheduled today to issue a final decision on the sale of Intrepid. Preliminary sale was approved Monday.

DRISCOLL SAID THE prospective owners have asked him to again prepare, oversee and skipper the fourth challenge by the venerable sloop.

After her near-miss in 1974, the Intrepid was purchased by Bob Fendler, who planned to campaign her out of Hawaii next summer. However, Intrepid was among holdings thrown into trusteeship when Fendler's financial empire ran into problems with federal agencies.

If the sale plans go through, Driscoll said he hopes to tune Intrepid against Lowell North's Enterprise, which is already berthed in San Diego.

DRISCOLL THINKS THE 66-foot boat can be packed, shipped from storage in Hawaii via San Francisco and reconditioned for launch within a month.

"We don't know yet if all the work would be done here or if the boat would be prepared in Hawaii," he said. "At least it won't be going to port."

With Driscoll steering, Intrepid came close three years ago to defeating eventual champion Courageous for the right to defend sail racing's most prestigious prize, but was knocked out by a last minute problem.

St. Francis Club Rebuilt After Fire

Southern California non-resident members of St. Francis Yacht Club, San Francisco, will be interested to learn that reconstruction of the clubhouse is scheduled to be completed by Aug. 31.

The 49-year old clubhouse was destroyed by fire when a Christmas tree exploded at the club's annual Christmas party Dec. 21.

Commodore John Klopfer announced that the annual meeting of the club's members would be held Saturday, Jan. 8 on the clubhouse property. A canopy has been placed over the boat storage yard and all provisions are being made to make the area as comfortable as possible, Klopfer said.

Commodore-elect Gene Harter, who will serve as chairman of the reconstruction committee, said the club has an excellent financial position, is adequately covered by insurance and is debt-free and that reconstruction is expected to proceed at a rapid pace.

The Aug. 31 target date for construction completion means that the clubhouse will be rebuilt in time for the club's annual "Big Boat Series," usually held in September, and which draws a number of yachts from Newport Beach and other Southland communities.

Outboards Change Dsigs for 1977

Traditionally, the spectacular displays of the major American outboard manufacturers — Chrysler, Johnson, Mercury, Evinrude — are the most glamorous of the Southern California Boat Show.

More of the same will be in store for show visitors this year when the 21st edition of the exposition opens Feb. 4 at the Los Angeles Convention Center. All of the outboard manufacturers have come up with changes and additions to their lines.

Chrysler has all-new 55 and 56 horsepower creations to go along with its four horsepower lightweight motor.

Mercury has added the Thruster, a battery-operated electric model, and the 70 horsepower Merc 700.

Evinrude will be showcasing a new 175-hp V6, a new 40 V-4 and a 25 hp model. In all, Evinrude has 44 models for 1977.

Johnson has a six-cylinder V-6, a 75-hp job that is expected to draw considerable attention. It also has a 200-hp motor that is termed "king of the kickers."

The last chance for registration in Balboa Power Squadron's spring class in safe boating will be Monday night at 6:30 p.m. The 13-week course started last Monday with a registration of over 200.

The class is free and open to all people whether or not they own a boat. It is applicable to sail as well as power vessels. Classes are from 7 to 10 p.m. each Monday night.

Boat Class Filling Up

COFFEE BREWS CONFUSION

By BARBARA GIUS-BOWEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The price of coffee has more than doubled over the past 18 months but American consumers seem to be doing little more than complaining about it.

Coffee growers and exporters explain away the price increase as the natural result of supply not meeting demand.

Largely the result of a 1975 frost that wiped out 70 percent of Brazil's crop (and 40 percent of the world supply), the scarcity is exacerbated by a civil war in Angola, floods in Colombia and Mexico and a drought along the Ivory Coast — all of which are primary sources of the exalted bean.

By no means is the U.S. the only market affected by the bean shortage. In Rome, if you care, the 14-cent espresso has gone up to 18 cents; and in the stores, a pound of coffee has doubled in price since September to $3.36.

In Colombia, raw beans are selling as high as $2.27 a pound, compared to 71 cents 18 months ago.

EVEN IN BRAZIL, the largest coffee-producing country, the demand for the brew has declined as prices have gone up — to $1.65 a pound from 81 cents last year.

Still, around the world calls to boycott are falling on deaf ears. Even in the U.S., where consumer protests have been known to shake up the powers that price, few organized efforts have been reported, even though mark-ups affect this country's favorite beverage.

Spiraling prices and threats of boycott have brewed little else than confusion, it seems. While some observers blame prices on the shortage, others blame it on higher export fees; and still others speculate there is a conspiracy among coffee-growing nations to manipulate the market. Coffee industry spokesmen say a conspiracy is imaginary, of course. But the prices aren't.

According to the Wall Street Journal, General Foods Corp. which processes Maxwell House and Sanka brands, last week raised wholesale prices to $2.91 a pound. Folgers, a unit of Procter and Gamble Co., and the second-biggest U.S. roaster, has raised its wholesale price to $3.08 a pound.

Hills Bros.' San Francisco office reports coffee up in the wholesale market this week to $2.88 a pound, 20 cents above last month and $1.35 over last year's price.

Recent reports show that boycott efforts in the East are shaking wholesale prices down to last month's levels. Currently there is talk among grower-nations to place a freeze on the price of "green" beans. That would mean a stabilization of roasters' prices too, and even a possible decline.

ON THE SHELVES in the meantime, it looks something like this: Maxwell House sells for $2.84 a pound and it is among the lowest-priced available. Eighteen months ago, the brand retailed at $1.80. The most expensive popular brands (MJB, Yuban) are up to $2.63 a pound with instants (Taster's Choice, Nescafe) in 10-ounce jars at $3.65.

Bargain coffees, if there is such a thing, are packed under store labels. While they hardly produce a connoisseur's cup of brew, they are marketed in "economy-size," three-pound cans, as are some other brands, all priced between $6.23 and $7.29.

One Newport Beach store clerk said she's been selling a lot of the bulk-packed brands. "People don't seem to be cutting down or boycotting the stuff. It's just like the rush on meat a few years back. Everyone's stocking up now before the prices are really unbearable," she said.

A testimony from one shopper seems to sum it up: "I can't function without a cup of coffee in the morning. I'd stop buying cigarettes and booze before I'd quit buying coffee, and if that means driving 10 miles to (one of the discount chain stores) to get it, that's what I'll do."

Thus, because of its mysteriously addictive nature, coffee remains in effect, a social institution, falling in step with apple pie and motherhood.

It gets you moving in the morning, gives you an excuse to think in peace or fraternize, and its gourmet aficionados claim it finishes off a meal with finesse.

KNOCKING COFFEE is a little like knocking football. Those that do risk labels just short of pinko.

By the same token, teas, especially herbal varieties, have become the nectar of long-hairs and health food faddists who have yet to turn this country off its habits.

Coffee is the center of an acquired taste — one that's been around since the beginning of this nation. People take to it like a swig of Scotch — a shot seems to cure whatever ails them.

Still it remains a mystery to many what the dark, muddy-looking and acridly taste-defying liquid has to offer. And it's common knowledge in the medical world that excessive ingestion of the stuff can make a sieve out of the stomach wall.

"Let's face it," says Carl Diedrich, a local retail coffee roaster, "people who drink coffee just don't switch that easily to tea or cocoa."

Diedrich, who imports coffee beans from family-owned plantations in Central America, seems to know the business well enough to have his own opinions about recent developments.

"The price increase is for a lot of reasons. People talk about scarcity, but exporters also have to make up for increases in shipping fees which have jumped from $84 last year to $106 per metric ton," he said.

Diedrich also said that most American commercial-grade roasters buy from East Coast jobbers and add on rail costs for distribution nationwide. "Everyone's making money doing it this way," he said.

And, since they are hard-pressed to meet consumers' economic demands, American roasters are trapped into buying low-grade beans, he added.

"Because most American brokers don't speak Spanish or other languages, they don't go abroad to find their coffee, so they don't know where to get the best deals," Diedrich said.

The bulk of our coffee, he said, comes from the Robusta bean which is grown in lower altitudes in Brazil and Africa. Since Brazil's commercial crop was wiped out by the frost, producers must come up with the price increase.

PREMIUM COFFEES, he said, come from the Arabica and Liberica beans which are grown in higher altitudes where the soil contains more volcanic ash. These coffees are distributed primarily to European markets where they sell for as much as $6 a pound.

European coffees are also processed by hand, he said, so there is little damage to the beans. American coffee, on the other hand, is put through a mechanical sorter which tends not to be so selective about defects.

Broken beans, Diedrich said, roast darker than whole beans and impart a burnt or bitter flavor to brewed coffee.

By continuing to buy commercial-grade coffee, Diedrich says the American public is insisting on paying high prices for low-quality taste.

"What a majority of people don't know is that they're better off buying at bean stores (retail roasters)," said Diedrich. "They'll get better coffee that goes farther because they don't have to use so much to get good flavor and aroma."

So, it seems, until the powers that be find a way for us to get coffee for beans, consumers are left with three alternatives:

— 1) Continue to pay high prices for what roasters and growers know to be the lowest grade of coffee.

— 2) Continue drinking it but pay even more for "fresh-roasted" and European imported blends which may "go farther."

— 3) Quit. Redirect tastebuds to tea for caffeine; or, if hooked on the flavor, drink cereal-based substitutes that can be purchased in supermarkets and health food stores.

One popular substitute, according to several health food store owners, is Pero, a roasted blend of ground malted barley, chicory, rye and molasses.

A seven-ounce container of the powder is about $2.85, which may not seem like much of a bargain, yet a container that size claims to make up to 180 cups of brew which also manages to greet you with purpose in the morning.

Consumers are continuing to buy coffee, despite price hikes affecting the exalted bean.

An Alternative:

Do It Yourself

For the devoted—and patient — among coffee drinkers, there is always the option of growing your own, but it takes about three years for a tree to produce beans.

Paul Soderholm, a horticulturist doing research on coffee trees in Miami, says people can save money by growing their own coffee like people in South American countries who harvest their brew from trees in their backyards.

But it's a little more difficult for North Americans, he warns.

Coffee trees can be grown outside only in tropical or subtropical climates such as that of southern Florida. The only species recommended for home growing is the "arabica" type, which is sold in nurseries for prices up to $40 a tree.

Soderholm suggests that a home planter start with an 8-10-inch seedling. A slow grower, it will take about 14 months to grow a foot, he says. The tree will start producing coffee "cherries" in about three years.

The arabica will survive the home climatic conditions of a home, office or lobby with good care, he said.

The plant should be kept in brightly lighted rooms within three or four feet of south, west or east windows. Soil should be kept uniformly moist and an acid-type fertilizer with chelated iron in it is recommended every 1-2 months.

The species will produce fruit between September and January. The cherries ripen over a period of a month to six weeks and are ready for picking when their color ranges from red to dark maroon.

You're not done yet. There's a seven-step process to get coffee from the fruit. First, you must remove the pulp. This can be done by a fermentation process.

Cover the seeds with water for 36 hours to remove the sticky slime that protects the pit. Dry the pits in the sun for up to three weeks, raking often to ensure even rays.

Some coffee connoisseurs demand that their coffee be dried on mahogany wood, which apparently imparts a subtle flavor to the resulting brew.

Finally, remove the seed coat, called the parchment, by pounding the seeds or rolling them between hard surfaces. Blow off the loosened casings with a fan.

What's left is a green coffee bean. It is at this point that beans are sold to roasters. Roasting can be done at home by spreading the beans in a single layer in a shallow pan and baking in a moderate oven until their color is the same as coffee in a can.

Then, all you have to do is grind the beans and brew them.

Warning: a 5- to 6-foot tree only produces about three pounds of fruit per year, or about one pound of ground coffee.

If it sounds like too much work for too little reward, Soderholm adds that coffee trees are just pretty to look at, too.

Carl Diedrich, Costa Mesa coffee roaster and importer, says commercial coffee's a ripoff.

Now's the Time to Clam Up

Locals who think the season for beachcombing is over evidently don't know about the gastronomic treasures hanging out at the ocean shore these days.

Clams are expected to come out of hiding early Saturday afternoon and continue lolling around through Friday evening. They're usually up for grabs in the middle afternoon, when the tide's amenable to diggers. (Check your tide table.)

Providing you've got a bucket, some rubber waders or freeze-proof feet — and a fishing license valid for this calendar year — there's some fun to be had in scooping them up for dinner.

(Note: If you plan on making this a family outing, keep in mind that the state Department of Fish and Game has decreed all diggers 16 years of age or older be licensed.)

The varieties of clams that frequent these shores are the butter or Littleneck and the Pismo.

Although primarily sourced in Pismo Beach, the Pismo clam has been known to migrate to waters south, stopping in at Long Beach, Huntington and Newport Beach, sometimes in places like San Diego county.

Since they're larger and often chewier than the smaller varieties, most people prefer them chopped up, in chowders or stews. Pismos also make good fixings for quiches, dressings and souffles; and they can be frittered, scalloped, au gratin or linguined to perfection. (The perfection is up to you.)

The Littlenecks, or cockles, are for the simpler among us. Just give them repeated baths in fresh seawater or brine (½ cup salt to 1 gallon of water), letting them stand 15-20 minutes each time — this gets the grit out.

You can then pry them from their shell and swallow them down with a squirt of fresh lemon or lime; or steam them open and enjoy them with a cup of steaming buttery nectar.

A bucket of fresh steamers takes me back to childhood picnics in the Pacific Northwest where butter clams are prolific. As I remember, half the fun of eating the critters was in grabbing for them out of the pot.

We would drench them, one-by-one in melted butter and pop them in our mouths. It would take a little more patience to pry off the clam-like muscle that joins the clam meat to its shell, but I remember that it, too, was a delicacy well worth the effort.

According to the people at the Department of Fish and Game, Littlenecks are abundant in the vicinity of San Mateo Point (Cotton's Point or Nixon's beach, whichever you prefer), just north of the San Diego County line. The point's accessible through San Clemente State Beach, but be prepared for a good trek.

CALIFORNIA CHOWDER

1 pint or 2 cups clams
¼ cup chopped bacon or salt pork
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup clam liquor plus 1 cup water
2 cups diced potatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped carrots
1 cup whole-kernel corn
2 cups milk or half and half
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon thyme
Dash hot pepper sauce
1 tablespoon butter or fat

Drain clams, and reserve liquor (add enough water to make 2 cups liquid). Chop clams and set aside. Fry bacon until crisp and drain on absorbent towels. Pour out some of the fat and cook onion and celery in fat (or butter) until tender.

Add clam liquor, water, potatoes, carrots, seasonings and clams. Cook about 15 minutes over medium-low flame until vegetables are tender when pierced with a fork. Stir in corn, milk, salt and pepper to taste, and heat through. Garnish each serving with bacon bits.

CLAM FRITTERS

1 pint or 2 cups clams, drained and chopped
1½ cups flour
¼ cup fresh, unflavored wheat germ
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons grated onion
½ teaspoon parsley flakes
1 tablespoon butter, melted
Vegetable oil for frying
Mix flour with salt, baking powder and wheat germ and set aside. Combine eggs, milk, onion, parsley, butter and clams. Pour mixture into dry ingredients and stir thoroughly until smooth.
Drop batter by tablespoons into hot oil, fry about 3 minutes, turning to brown both sides. Drain on absorbent towels. Serves 6.

PILGRIMS CLAM PIE

3 dozen shell clams or 3 cans (8 ounces each) minced clams

1½ cups water
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons minced onion
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dill
½ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup reserved clam liquor
1 cup half and half
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
Pastry for a 1-crust 9 inch pie
1 egg, beaten
Wash clam shells thoroughly. Place shells in a large pot with water. Bring to a boil and simmer for 8 to 10 minutes or until clams open. Remove clams from shell and cut into fourths. Reserve 1 cup clam liquor. (Or, if using canned clams, drain and reserve 1 cup liquor.)
In a skillet melt margarine. Add mushrooms and onion and cook until tender. Stir in flour, mustard, liquid hot pepper sauce, salt, and pepper. Gradually add clam liquor and half and half. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Stir in lemon juice, parsley, pimiento, and clams.
Pour mixture into a 9-inch round deep-dish pie plate (about 2 inches deep). Roll out pastry dough and place on top of mixture in pie plate; secure dough to the rim of the pie plate by crimping. Vent pastry. Brush with beaten egg. Bake in a hot oven, 375 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes or until pastry is browned. Makes 6 servings.

DAR Salutes 'Good Citizens'

After 15 years of honoring outstanding senior girls as "good citizens", the Col. William Cabell Chapter, DAR will, for the first time, honor boys as well as girls.

The awards will be presented during a tea at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, in the Corona del Mar home of Mrs. William E. Fisher.

Recipients are Kathy Forbath of Estancia High School; James Curley, Corona del Mar High School; Jennifer Hinshaw, Newport Harbor, and Greg Purdy, Costa Mesa.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Forbath, Costa Mesa; Earnest T. Hinshaw, Newport Beach; Mrs. Norma Curley and Jack R. Curley, Newport Beach; Mrs. Marilyn Purdy, Long Beach, and David Purdy, Costa Mesa.

Students are selected on the basis of dependability, service, patriotism and leadership.

First, each senior class selects three students, and the final decision at each school is made by the faculty.

Pills: Woman's Ego Tonic?

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — More and more women are abusing drugs, particularly mood altering ones obtained from physicians.

Jackie Mendleson, drug abuse consultant for the State Health Department, says a growing number of women, including housewives, career professionals, secretaries and college students are relying on barbiturates, tranquilizers, sedatives and diet pills to their changing role.

"Prescription drug abuse is not confined to any one category of women. A woman's tendency to abuse these drugs depends largely on her sense of self-esteem.

"Part of the problem is that in our society everyone strives to feel good. So to avoid feeling bad, women turn to mood altering drugs."

A recent survey indicates about 20 percent of women use mood-altering drugs, as opposed to only eight percent of the male population.

Approximately 67

percent of prescriptions written for these drugs are for women, according to a study by Dr. Linda S. Fidell of Cal State Northridge.

In Los Angeles County a recent study indicates an increasingly heavy usage of barbiturates and tranquilizers by women.

Retiring U.S. Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt says he's appalled at the ease with which physicians over-prescribe amphetamines and tranquilizers to women.

The Federal Drug Enforcement Administration has called for stricter enforcement to prevent abuse of amphetamines, tranquilizers, and barbiturates.

Mendleson says women overuse drugs to cope with their traditionally subservient role in society. Others say women can't handle the conflict thrust on them by the women's movement.

Dr. Josette Mondanaro, deputy director of the State Health Department's Substance Abuse Division, believes the problem among women is symptomatic of society in general.

"I think there is a huge problem in our society in which people are saying they can't be themselves — that they can't be natural without taking a drug."

Mendleson says reducing the incidence of drug abuse among women depends on fostering a concept of self esteem among little girls.

"The most effective program is to prevent things before they happen. Young girls realize their own self worth and know that they don't need to take a back seat to any male."

"The other factor is for parents to help their children. Parents have a responsibility not to take pills in front of their children. Otherwise pill-popping becomes a way of life."

Canadian Scores Hit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ordinarily, I would have passed over the letter signed "All Hung Up And Trying Too Hard" without a second thought. If the lady wants hairy legs and matching armpits, so be it. But her statement, "I live in Canada and it gets mighty cold up here in the winter," made me boil.

I've heard of U.S. citizens arriving at the Calgary airport in mid-July wearing fur coats. These dingbats expressed surprise that we had concrete sidewalks. (They expected to see wooden ones.) And they were "so happy" we have TV up here. (Bathtubs, too, maybe).

Yes, we Canadians water ski, swim in the lakes, laugh, cry, sleep, work, play, love, hate, live and die just like humans everywhere else. Any woman who uses "living in Canada" as an excuse not to shave her legs and under her arms needs professional help. — OKANAGAN VALLEY, B.C.

DEAR OK: Thanks for the short course in meteorology, human relations, and personal grooming. You scored a three-base hit.

DEAR ANN: I'm 40, divorced four years, with an 8-year-old son. My job is secretary in a real-estate firm. I've been supporting myself since I was 16.

Five months ago, I started having an affair with a 26-year-old man who works at a menial job and attends college at night. We see each other whenever there is a spare moment and enjoy one another's company immensely.

He never mentions marriage, which is just as well. In ten years, he'd see my wrinkles, grey hair and flaccid skin, and feel trapped.

I realize eventually he'll leave me for someone his own age and I'll probably be heartsick, but right now I'm very happy. When I met him I hadn't had a date in three months. My tongue stuck to the roof of my mouth as I watched TV by myself.

The problem is my mother. When she saw it coming she called me "an idiot." Now she won't even call me on the phone. She speaks to me only when I speak to her. I told her I thought I had a right to do what I wanted and she responded, "So have!"

I know my mother is disappointed, but it is right of her to make me feel depressed, embarrassed and guilty? What should I do? — MIAMI

DEAR M.: Enjoy yourself. A woman of 40 should not have to live her life to please her mother.

Do keep your eyes open in anticipation of being dumped, dear. It will be less painful if you have alternatives. This is my only suggestion.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That letter from "Hot Stuff" made me laugh. It also took me back a few years.

When my husband and I were first married I thought he must be a sex maniac because he was after me all the time. I decided to stop trying for a gold medal in housekeeping and be "Available Alice" whenever he wanted me.

Within two weeks, I discovered he didn't want me so often. What was even more interesting, the quality of our lovemaking improved when the frequency diminished.

There are a couple good lessons in this letter for any young bride who reads it carefully. — CONTENT IN PORTLAND

DEAR PORT: There certainly are. The first one to pop off the page is that even AFTER marriage the fun is in the chase. Thanks for writing, Alice.

California's Authors: Write On

By MARCIA FORSBERG
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The legendary Queen Califia ruled an exotic island populated with Amazon women who devoured their male victims.

Of course, they kept the strongest and most handsome to propagate the race.

In Spain, Garcia Rodriguez Ordenez de Montalvo was inspired to write the romantic tale after hearing glowing reports of a land of milk and honey from explorers like Cabrillo and Cortez.

The story gave birth to California's name, taken from the queen herself.

The state, rich in history, has been home base for writers for more than 100 years. It was the Gold Rush in '49 that contributed to the great influx of wordsmiths from all over the country.

Examining the impact of past and current authors is the main thrust of "California Literature," a free, three-unit course that will be offered this spring at Orange Coast College.

The class, English 156, will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays in Science 4 starting Feb. 9. Registration is at OCC's counseling and admissions office.

"THE MIGRATION during the Gold Rush made California a dynamic state. American writers came because the action was here," said Grayce Gruner, instructor who will teach the course for OCC's Evening Program. Touching first on the region's history, the class also includes a look at the oral literature of native California Indians as well as the early Spanish settlers.

Mark Twain started the comic realism genre with his famous "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." After sending the short story to his editor in the East, it was an instant hit.

A central theme in literature, it focuses on "the hero who strikes out on his own, and by his individual strength, conquers the wilderness."

"His goodness and morality win over lawlessness," she conceded.

FRANK NORRIS and Jack London, two authors representative of the San Francisco area, are included in the curriculum.

"Ambrose Bierce, who wrote about and actually fought in the Civil War, moved here from the East and made a name for himself writing for the William Randolph Hearst papers," Ms. Gruner recalled.

The common man became the hero in American literature.

"Instead of having great tragedies on a grand level, United States writers portrayed the man next door, with his personal emotional and psychological conflicts," she said.

For example, John Steinbeck, social protest novelist, "wrote about the very lowest level of society, the poor and uneducated people."

MYSTERY WRITERS Raymond Chandler and Ross McDonald explore the "world of Los Angeles" in their works.

"It's not necessarily great literature," added Ms. Gruner, "but it does talk about the California syndrome of the 1940s."

A "sophisticated, modern view of California" is probed in the essays of Joan Didion. The class will also analyze Robinson Jeffers' poetry.

"There's a sense of freedom here. There's a spirit which I think stimulates creativity in California."

"I feel it, having moved here. Tradition falls off and we're not so bound by the past," Ms. Gruner said.

The resident of Irvine attended Lincoln University in Missouri. She has a bachelor's and master's degree in English from California State University, Fullerton, as well as a secondary teaching credential.

Grayce Gruner will instruct Orange Coast College's California Literature course beginning Feb. 9

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spotlight on versatility, the way you utilize material at hand. Accent on taxes, mystery, money in connection with partner or mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on details associated with security, legalities, rights and permissions. Money affecting young persons is also in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June

20): Highlight service, family needs — and do something to "control" your own moods. Give logic a chance to compete with impulse. Ask questions, but do so with good humor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with creativity, imprinting of your style — and love. Married or single, you "rediscover" meaning of romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slowdown will work to your advantage. Know it and shake off any tendency to brood, worry. Be sympathetic, even generous — without becoming inextricably involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Message is more important than might be apparent on surface. Take special care with quotes — don't assume anything. Verify. Check.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish rather than begin, round out project. Give full play to imagination. You can get what you want — and the sky can be the limit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Flash of enlightenment is featured. "I've got it!" is apt to be your keynote.

Cycle high — be independent, original, willing to take a chance on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check with one who has access to "backstage information." Visit person who is confined to home, hospital. You could be arranging a tour.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on wish fulfillment, romantic desires, friends, gains due to career advancement. Social activity increases — your sense of fitness, humor is spotlighted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent lines of communication with professional superior. Maintain self-esteem. Tear down for purpose of rebuilding on more solid structure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Write, advertise, publish — submit plans, concepts, formats. Key is to keep ideas in circulation, maintain open, swirling, vital line of communication.

If January 13th is your birthday you were on your own at a relatively early age. You are rebellious, inventive, creative, attractive to opposite sex.

Milk Prices

No War Yet

Milk prices have dropped only slightly in Southland stores as a result of milk price controls being lifted by the state for the first time in 40 years.

The sharpest drop reported in the Orange Coast area was at one store in Huntington Beach, where a half-gallon of milk was marked at 58 cents last week. The store, however, has since raised the price to 66 cents (the average price throughout Southland supermarkets) at the urging of the Bureau of Milk Marketing Enforcement investigators.

The bureau was set up in 1937 to set minimum price guidelines. A spokesman for the bureau explained that the guidelines were "suspended, not terminated," and "could be reinstated" if necessary.

The purpose of the price controls, he said, was to make certain milk retailers didn't violate the unfair trade practice laws of the state Agriculture Code and charge prices below cost.

Prices to stores by milk distributors are apparently not affected by the suspension, and neither are the bureau's spokesman continued.

As yet, the lifting of the controls has not forced a major price break or stimulated windfall milk sales. As to whether or not the price lift will fuel a milk price war or new controls will be re-established, "you'd have to have a crystal ball better than mine," he said.

The price lift affects only milk, not milk products such as cottage cheese, yogurt or cream.

No longer victim of the blahs, spinach is a versatile flavor find.

Popeye'd Love It

Popeye, where are you? We've jazzed up your spinach and everyone's turned on to its flavor power.

Spinach Taco Casserole is a meal in itself, easy to make for now, or for later.

SPINACH TACO CASSEROLE

- 1 large onion, finely chopped
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 2 pounds lean ground beef
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 teaspoons chili powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon each cumin, oregano, seasoned pepper
 - 1 (16-ounce) can tomato sauce
 - 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
 - 1 small package tortilla chips, dip size
 - 1/2 pound Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
 - 2 (10-ounce) packages frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
 - 1/2 cup sour cream
 - 1 avocado
 - Ripe pitted olives
- In large frying pan, saute onion in butter until glazed. Add meat. Cook until browned. Stir in salt, garlic, and chili powder. Add tomato sauce and vinegar. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Layer bottom of buttered 2 1/2 quart casserole with chips. Add 1/2 of the cheese, 1/2 of the spinach, and 1/2 of the remaining spinach meat sauce. Top with remaining cheese and poke chips around the edge. If desired, cover and refrigerate at this point.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes (40 minutes if refrigerated) or until heated through. Spoon sour cream on top. Arrange sliced avocado, olives. Makes 8 servings.

Cream spinach easily

Thaw and drain frozen chopped spinach and place in blender with prepared French-style mustard, salt and pepper, a dash of nutmeg and a tablespoon mayonnaise. Heat through; stir in a tablespoon each of sour cream and grated Parmesan cheese. Heat through again briefly and serve.

Pasta Pot Beefy

Cooking with a slow cooker is merely a matter of adding wonderful things to the pot.

SLOW COOKER BEEF WITH PASTA

- 2 pounds beef chuck bone-in roast
- 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
- 1 (6-ounce) can tomato paste
- 1/2 medium onion, chopped
- 2 medium cloves garlic, minced
- 1 1/2 teaspoons oregano, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon basil, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Hot cooked spaghetti or noodles
- Grated parmesan cheese

Cut beef from bones, leaving large chunks. Trim off excess fat. Place beef and large bones in slow cooker. Add all remaining ingredients except spaghetti and cheese.

Cover and cook on lowest setting 8 hours or until beef is tender. Portion spaghetti onto large platter. Top with meat and sauce. Sprinkle with cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Need a Warm-up?

Beef and lentils combine in a hearty whole-meal soup that can be cooked up in 45 minutes.

If you've never tried lentils before you will be pleasantly surprised at their nut-like flavor; they are also high in protein and can be cooked with just vegetables alone to provide a satisfying soup. Or, try combining them with cooked pork, bacon or chicken.

Also, unlike other dried legumes, lentils require no pre-soaking. Just wash and drain them before adding to the pot.

In this soup, beef chuck can be used to render a rich meaty flavor. Separate the meat from the bones but be sure to put the bones in the pot too, so they can contribute as well to the robust flavor.

QUICK BEEF LENTIL SOUP

- 1 1/2 pounds lean beef chuck steak
 - 6 slices bacon
 - 1 1/2 cups lentils, washed
 - 1 small onion, chopped
 - 2 cups thinly sliced carrots
 - 1/2 cup minced parsley
 - 1 (8-ounce) can stewed tomatoes
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon sage
 - 6 cups water
- Trim beef from bones. Save large bones. Discard small bones and excess fat. Cut beef into 1/2-inch cubes. Dice bacon and fry in dutch oven. Drain off drippings. Add beef, large bones and all remaining ingredients. Cover and bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 45 minutes or until lentils are tender. Makes 2 1/2 quarts.

Food for Thought

A series of special programs on diet and nutrition will be presented this month and next by the Santiago Library System.

Included this month are two programs: "A New You" will be presented by Gladys Trousdale, Orange County Cooperative Extension at 10 a.m., Newport Beach Mariners' Library.

"To Eat is Neat - Kids Love Healthy Snacks" will be presented at the Fullerton Public Library at 10 a.m., Jan. 25.

Programs planned in February will include a talk Feb. 16 at the Mariners' branch on "Gourmet Dining and Restaurant Touring" by Geril Miller, co-owner of the Ambrosia Restaurant, and a display on "Fukes and Pads in Diets and Nutrition" at the Santa Ana branch.

Check Our New Lower Milk Prices

The Consumer Line
by Julie Grayson

When I pay good money for beef, I want to be certain I'm getting my money's worth. I'm sure you do, too. That's why it's important to know something about government beef grading.

Beef is government graded for quality. The highest grade is USDA Prime; however, this may contain a little too much fat for some tastes.

The grade many people prefer, and which Ralphs features exclusively, is USDA Choice Beef. It produces juicy cuts with excellent flavor.

The USDA Choice shield is an excellent gauge of quality. That's why it's important when comparing prices to make sure you're comparing Choice with Choice. If you don't see the Choice shield on the package, it's a pretty safe bet that it isn't Choice and you may not be getting the quality you want. At Ralphs you can be sure our beef is USDA Choice and as with all Ralphs products the satisfaction is guaranteed.

If you want more facts on grading, or if you have a question, comment or price inquiry, call me. I'm here to help.

Dieters Can Ham It up With Linguine

THE SLIM GOURMET

By Barbara Gibbons
Ham 'n' eggs 'n' cheese. Sounds more like the makings of a breakfast omelet than a sauce for a spaghetti supper. But those are the main ingredients in our quick 'n' easy "Italian Linguine with Ham 'n' Cheese Sauce."

Not only delicious, but protein-rich and very nutritious. And, if you didn't know it was a calorie-conscious recipe, you'd guess it was very rich and fattening!

We make this dish with linguine... the flat, ribbon-shaped pasta. (We prefer to use a brand that's protein-enriched.) You can substitute spaghetti if you prefer.

Traditionally, spaghetti linguine and spaghetti are cooked only till firm ("al dente")... resistant to the teeth. But, if you cook it longer — about 18 minutes, until tender — it will be fuller and less fattening.

The longer-cooked pasta absorbs more water, swells up plumper, and therefore less makes more! It takes only six ounces of dry raw pasta to make four cups of cooked pasta at 155 calories a cupful.

By comparison, a cupful of "al dente" pasta adds up to more than 200 calories.

In this easy recipe the hot drained pasta is returned to the same pot in which it was cooked, then tossed quickly with raw egg, yogurt, pot cheese and shredded Swiss cheese... a self-making rich-tasting "sauce" that coats every strand. This easy, cheesy linguine is seasoned and served with diced ham and chopped parsley.

With all these protein-rich dairy goodies, all you need is a big tossed salad or hot green vegetables. A dry Italian white wine would be nice, too!

LINGUINE WITH HAM 'N' CHEESE SAUCE
4 cups tender-cooked protein-enriched 6 ounces linguine

One-half pound lean cooked hamsteak (or Canadian bacon), diced
One-half cup plain cheese, coarsely shredded

One-third cup fresh chopped parsley
You'll need about six ounces dry linguine (three-fourths of an eight-ounce package.) Cook by dropping the linguine into rapidly boiling salted water, a few strands at a time. Cook till tender (about 18 minutes.)

Meanwhile, dice the ham (or bacon) into half-inch cubes and brown the cubes in a nonstick skillet with no fat added. Set aside.

When linguine is tender, drain but don't rinse. Return the hot pasta to the same pot in which it was cooked. Quickly stir in the yogurt, then the egg (the heat of the linguine will cause the egg to thicken slightly.) Then stir in the cottage cheese, seasonings and shredded Swiss cheese.

Put the pot over very low heat and stir constantly until the Swiss cheese is melted and every linguine strand is coated with a rich sauce. Remove from heat and stir in parsley. Season to taste. Spoon onto four plates and top with diced ham. Serves four, 383 calories each.

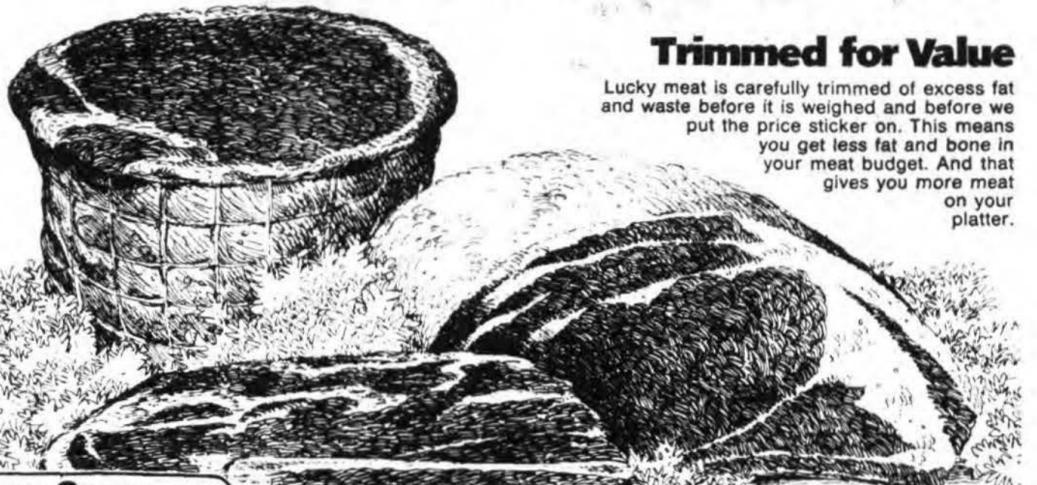

Lucky Bonded Beef

Bonded for Quality

We want you to be satisfied with each and every piece of juicy beef you choose at Lucky. In fact, we're so sure that we've done the best we can to select the highest quality available, that we'll refund the purchase price if you are not entirely satisfied.

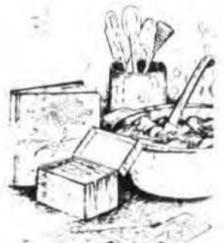

Priced Lower Overall

We don't wish to confuse our customers by "high-low" pricing... that is, by lowering a price on one item and making up the difference on other items in the store. We maintain an even low discount price on each and everything we offer, so you can really see the difference at the cash register, when your purchases are totaled up. Shop Lucky and compare!

Trimmed for Value

Lucky meat is carefully trimmed of excess fat and waste before it is weighed and before we put the price sticker on. This means you get less fat and bone in your meat budget. And that gives you more meat on your platter.

Recipes Sought

Old-fashioned recipe exchanges are a popular way for friends to share favorite recipes with each other. Indeed, consumer research studies conducted by a major food marketing company show that about 60 percent of women say they usually get new recipes from friends and families, as well as from favorite cookbooks.

In an update of the recipe exchange concept with a new consumer offer, Hunt-Wesson Foods invites consumers to "send us one of yours and we'll send you a bunch of ours." For $1.25 and a favorite recipe using one of Hunt's 15 oz. flavored sauces, the company will send its best-selling "Hunt's Complete Tomato Sauce Cookbook," a $1.89 value.

The book contains more than 200 new recipes using canned tomato sauce, in categories such as budget entertaining, low-calorie dishes, Mexican and Italian specialties and low-cost family meals.

Consumers may receive their cookbook by writing to Hunt's Recipe Exchange, P. O. Box 9437, St. Paul, Minn. 55194 (Consumer recipes are considered in public domain).

Squash Souper

When you find that neglected bunch of zucchini in the bottom of vegetable drawer.

ZUCCHINI SOUP
3 chicken bouillon cubes
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 1/2 cups boiling water
3 medium-small (about 1 pound) zucchini, unpared and grated
1 large onion, thinly sliced
1/2 cup milk

Dissolve the bouillon cubes and curry powder in the boiling water. Add the prepared zucchini and onion. Simmer, covered, for about 1/2 hour.

Puree in an electric blender. Stir in the milk and reheat. Makes about 1 1/4 quarts.

Munchies Met Mexican-style

By BARBARA GIUS-BOWEN
Food Editor

Mexican food, my mother once said, is like chocolate. When the urge for it strikes, it stays with you until you get some — now!

And, like chocolate, it's hard to stop at just one bite, or just one item, especially when the local burrito heaven has liberally embellished your plate with rice and beans.

Some cooks balk at fixing their own Mexican food because so much of it requires the grease-splattering chore of frying tortillas. But if all you're after is the flavors, not the work, a simple Chiles Rellenos Casserole could fill the bill — for far fewer nickels than a trip to the Mexican joint. (Save them for when your waist and your wallet are more prepared for the extras.)

The bonus to fixing rellenos en casserole is that you can cook it in two dishes and freeze one for later — when the mad Mexican munchies strike again.

To round out your meal, and add some crunch interest, try a gazpacho salad. Simply dice up, for the two of you, 1 large tomato, 1 cucumber, 2 green onions and about 1/4 of a green pepper.

Stir together 1/2 cup of plain yogurt (you can use sour cream), a generous squirt of fresh lemon or lime juice, and a dash each of cayenne and coriander. Pour over the chopped veggies and toss to bind. Chill; then set it on the table with a basket of tortilla chips.

CHILES RELLENOS CASSEROLE

- 1 cup milk or half and half
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup flour
- 2 cans (4-ounce) whole green chiles
- 1/2 pound grated Monterey Jack cheese
- 1/2 pound grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce with bits

Whisk eggs and milk together until well blended. Split apart chiles, rinse out seeds and drain on paper towels.

Mix cheeses together and reserve about 1/2 cup for the topping. Pour a little of the tomato sauce in the bottom of the casserole dishes to coat, then alternate layers of chiles, cheese and batter. Pour remaining tomato sauce over all and sprinkle with cheese.

Bake in a 375-degree oven for 45 minutes if you're using two casseroles; one hour if you're only using one. This recipe will serve two twice.

AT MOMENT'S NOTICE

Salad Sliceable

With "Frozen Fruit Salad" in the freezer, you'll be able to serve a party salad at a moment's notice.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks
- 1/2 cup dates
- 12 large marshmallows
- 1 (8 ounce) package cream cheese
- 1 (12 ounce) package frozen sliced strawberries
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 bananas
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- Crisp lettuce

Drain pineapple well. Cut dates into thin slices, and marshmallows in eighths. Allow cheese to stand at room temperature until softened. Thaw strawberries just until syrup is thawed. Blend syrup from strawberries, lemon juice and honey into cheese, beating until smooth. Stir in mayonnaise. Fold in stiffly beaten cream.

Peel bananas and cut into small chunks. Fold into cheese mixture, along with marshmallows, drained pineapple, dates, strawberry slices and coconut. Spoon into cans or molds, cover tops with foil and freeze until firm. When ready to serve, remove as many cans or molds as desired. Remove frozen salad and cut into slices. Arrange on lettuce. Makes 2 quarts (fills 3 1/2 cans of the 1 pound 4 ounce size), sufficient for 24 servings.

Bolsa Wetlands Purchase Sought

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach), said Tuesday that he will introduce legislation as soon as possible to buy a substantial portion of the Bolsa Chica wetlands. Mangers declined to give details on estimated costs or the amount of land to be acquired under provisions of the Coastal Bond Act. He said he will make a complete disclosure of his plans at a Friday press conference in Huntington Beach. Mangers has been holding private meetings with city, county and federal officials and other groups concerned with saving the 1,604 acres of marshlands lying east of Pacific Coast Highway and south of Huntington

Harbour. The area includes lowlands, bluffs, oilfields and estuaries. Environmentalists claim it includes some of the best restorable marsh in the state. Three persons attending the private meetings said a rough draft of an acquisition map probably would include up to 800 acres of the marshlands for purchase.

Mangers said he would seek authorization of the Legislature to buy land to put up a buffer around the tidelands area to prevent encroachment. Under plans being formulated, Signal Landmark Co., which owns 1,200 acres of the Bolsa Chica, would sell the lowlands area to the state and be allowed to develop some of the remaining uplands.

George Stringer, vice president of Signal Landmark, said today that if Mangers is successful in getting legislation passed, the state probably would file condemnation on the desired property. "We would then sit down and negotiate over the price. I have no idea right now what our holdings should be valued at," Stringer said.

Stringer said that Mangers has been very fair in his dealings and that he is hopeful that the state will come through with the money. Sources said that a starting point for the acreage to be acquired was 540 acres, but that a compromise of about 800 acres had apparently been worked out. ANDY WILLIAMS, CLAUDINE LONGET LEAVE COURT
Defense Presents Case in Manslaughter Trial

Eight Get to Testify In Longet Defense

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet will testify in her manslaughter trial that her lover "quite pointedly told her that little gun wouldn't kill anybody" several months before he was killed by a bullet from the pistol, Miss Longet's lawyer said today. "Claudine will tell you there was no aiming, no pointing," defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said as he opened the case for the 35-year-old French-born entertainer. Weedman said he will call about eight witnesses, including her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, in an effort to prove the dark-haired defendant did not recklessly kill pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich on March 21. "She asked Spider about the safety on his gun. . . I'll leave it to you to decide how her finger pulled that trigger," Weedman said. Williams testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but delivered a vigorous defense of his ex-wife's character. "We're going to ask him some questions about Claudine's attitude toward security," Weedman said. ". . . we anticipate he will tell us Claudine had no knowledge of guns." Weedman said five witnesses will be called to counteract prosecution testimony that Miss Longet was "a crazy gal" who liked to ski fast, drive fast and take chances. Miss Longet was expected to take the stand to tell jurors her version of what happened when a .22-caliber gun went off in her hands, pumping a single slug into Sabich's abdomen. Weedman said that by Friday, the manslaughter case could be in the hands of jurors, who must decide whether to accept Miss Longet's claim that the shooting (See LONGET, Page A2)

HB Man Set As Interim GSA Director

Huntington Beach resident Tom R. Egan was appointed interim director of the Orange County General Services Agency (GSA) Tuesday by county supervisors. Egan, currently assistant GSA director for special services, will replace Costa Mesa resident R.I. "Cuba" Morris, who will retire as director at the end of the month. Supervisors made Egan's appointment for up to 90 days and reaffirmed their earlier plans to recruit a new director from the immediate Orange County area. Egan, 53, joined county government 11 years ago as an appraiser in the county assessor's office. He earlier served 21 years as a U.S. Marine Corps aviator, retiring as a major. As assistant director for special services, Egan is responsible for the county airport, libraries, registrar of voters, office of emergency services and cooperative extension. He and his wife, Georgia, have three grown children.

Neglect In Death Denied

Huntington Beach Union High School District trustees denied a $5 million claim Tuesday from the parents of Michael P. Kane, a 14-year-old student who died as a result of burns from a Sept. 27, 1976 laboratory explosion at Fountain Valley High School. Mr. and Mrs. John Kane of 16450 Jody Circle, Westminster, claim the explosion "occurred due to the negligence of the Huntington Beach School District, the instructor, Robert Bolle, an employee of the school district, and other agents and employees of the district."

The explosion occurred during an experiment conducted with alcohol burners. Duplicating fluid was used as fuel for the burners, according to a report of the Fountain Valley Fire Department.

A gallon can of the fluid was ignited, exploded and then showered the 14-year-old student with a flammable liquid. Michael Kane suffered third degree burns over 90 percent of his body. He was transported to UCI Medical Center burn unit where he died 10 days later. Attorneys for the Kanes and district's insurance companies will decide on a settlement for the claim, a district official said.

OC Jobless Rate Stuck at 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department. Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent. In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report. In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people. Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers. EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season. However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

SF Murders Hit 10

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city had its 10th murder in the first 11 days of the new year with the suffocation-slaying of a 59-year-old woman in her bed. The victim appeared to have been raped, police said.

CHRIS LARSON DISPLAYS RARE FISH HE CAUGHT TUESDAY

Something Fishy

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach dory fleet fishermen were shaking their heads in wonder Tuesday afternoon after surfer Chris Larson, 18, of Balboa Island brought his 30-pound catch to shore. ALTHOUGH SOME of the fishermen had been in the business for up to 30 years they had never seen a fish with the head of a salmon, the mouth of a yellow-finned tuna and the body of an albacore. They had good reason. The fish, later identified by state Department of Fish and Game Officer Bob Decker as an escalator, is rare even in its native waters off the coast of Peru. THE BRIGHT silver fish with razor sharp teeth is a member of the tuna family and only three have ever been caught off the coast of California, said Decker. It all started when Larson, 600 E. Ocean Front, was surfing off 28th street and spotted the fish swimming nearby. After a tentative inspection, Larson rammed the fish with his board, jumped on it and brought it to shore tied to his surf leash. "EATING ESCALAR would act like a massive dose of castor oil," said Decker. The peculiar property was transported to Fish and Game offices in Long Beach and, after an autopsy, the rare find probably will end up as a display in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

Violence Cited 'Kidnap' Victim's Life in Danger?

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff
An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful. Prosecutor Bill Morrissey told the panel in his final argument that violence was present in the kidnapping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack. "He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said. "He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye. "I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnapping," Morrissey said. He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle. Morrissey described the evidence against Sellers as "absolutely overwhelming." He admitted that the evidence against co-defendant William Rudy Wesson, 45, of Tustin, was "almost totally circumstantial but no less worthy of a guilty verdict." Morrissey condemned as "ludicrous" the defense argument that the wealthy Scudder helped plan the kidnaping in return for a major portion of the $250,000 the kidnapers hoped to get from the victim's wife, Mrs. Valerie Scudder. "Again, the violence," Morrissey said. "Mrs. Scudder was told that if she didn't raise the $150,000 in $50 bills and $100,000 in $20 bills her husband would be eliminated." Scudder testified as a prosecution witness that he escaped from the kidnappers' van in Fountain Valley by faking a heart attack and then catching the unwary Sellers off guard as the alleged kidnaper tried to revive him. Sellers admitted that he panicked and fled through the (See HEIR, Page A2)

Two Welders Burned as Fluid Sparks

A Huntington Beach man and a friend helping him with an automotive welding job sustained burns Tuesday afternoon when an arc welder ignited flammable liquids as the pair worked on a car at one victim's home. Charles Groom, 33, and Robert Olson, 20, were both treated by Huntington Beach Fire Department paramedics at the Lake Street address where Groom lives. He resides with his father, Huntington Beach Police Department Traffic Division Sgt. Eddie Groom. Investigators said Groom and Olson, 727 Yorktown Ave., both declined hospital treatment and said they would seek further medical attention from family physicians. Evangelists Object of Police Interest

A group of self-styled evangelists, allegedly promoting a new faith which involves the wearing of Mexican serapes and white arabic turbans, is on the Huntington Beach Police Department's suspicious persons list today. Investigators took descriptions of the cult from an unhappy young woman Tuesday night at her 10th Street apartment, after they assertedly dropped by with intentions of converting her. She told police she had a friendly conversation with them recently as they passed out literature promoting their brand of spiritual salvation at a local shopping center. The victim of the Tuesday night problem said they obtained her address, which led to the missionary visit in which they urged her to abandon her children and follow them.

Date Delayed Oil Leases Await Studies

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The U.S. Interior Department is postponing by 10 months the target date for awarding offshore oil leases to better weigh environmental impacts.

A spokesman for the Department said Tuesday the leasing timetable would be postponed from June until March, 1978, a statement at conflict with earlier ones in which the department talked of tentative leasing in February, 1978, after completion and review of environmental impact studies.

According to published reports, the action by the Interior Department in the last full week of the Ford administration may be moot anyway because of President-elect Carter's promise to take a slow approach to such leasing.

The reports said the latest announcement makes the possibility of new oil drilling off the California coast appear ever more remote than it had been.

Kelley to Go

Bell Claims FBI To Get New Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Griffin B. Bell said today Clarence M. Kelley will be replaced as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the near future.

Under questioning by the Senate Judiciary Committee for the second consecutive day, Bell said that he had been looking for a possible FBI director while interviewing people for jobs in the Justice Department.

He noted that Kelley, appointed by former President Nixon in July 1973, is 64 years old.

"We can look forward to having a new FBI director before too long," Bell said.

Asked by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), if he could be more precise, Bell said he could not give an exact date for Kelley's departure, adding that it "will not be long."

Bell said that Kelley has expressed an interest in assisting with the transition that will take place when a new director is named. He said Kelley may be given a role as an adviser.

President-elect Carter has

AG-designate Bell

never stated that Kelley would be replaced, but has said that he believes in "the general principle" that the head of the FBI should change with the administration.

Huntington Adopts 'Zero Base' Plan

A new city budget process that an official says "is sweeping the nation like wildfire" has been unveiled before the Huntington Beach City Council.

City officials will use the process "the zero based budget" in setting the coming year's budget.

Darrel Cohoon, city administrative senior analyst, said the budget doesn't really start from ground zero but will offer the city council four options on spending levels for each program in the city.

The options range from the most minimal plan for spending up to 80 percent of the money allocated to a program in the current budget to the most expensive option which provides for increased services and expanded areas.

Cohoon said the new process will enable the city council to make a decision on which level to fund.

"Council members may either fund all departments at lower levels than last year, maintain the same amount of spending or increase some essential programs while cutting others," he said.

"The council will have all the minimum and maximum levels before them. It will be more involved in policy making decisions rather than having to react to individual items," he said.

Cohoon said the 1977-78 budget will have about 125 programs.

Cohoon said the zero based budget concept has gained popularity because of its use by president-elect Jimmy Carter while governor in Georgia.

He said many cities are turning to its use this year.

Cohoon declares that the zero based budget has been misunderstood. He said that city departments will not have to justify each program from zero.

nearest back yard as Scudder, a piece of tape flying from his face and minus the glasses he needs to see, ran down the sidewalk yelling, "heart attack, help me. Kidnap, help me."

But both Sellers and Wesson insisted in their testimony that Scudder helped them plan the kidnap and that two other men who have been identified in the courtroom but not arrested were involved in the plot.

Morissey condemned Wesson Tuesday as "a con man" who planned the kidnap of Scudder at a time when the victim thought he was dealing with an old friend he first met when Wesson was the manager of the Bank of America's Corona del Mar branch.

"Wesson was the last man to see Jack Scudder before the kidnap and we know that he would have been if the kidnap had been successful," Morissey told the jury.

"He would have been the concerned friend. Wesson, the man we believe to be the man who demanded ransom from Mrs. Scudder, would have been on the telephone again to ask her if he could help in any way."

Morissey argued that Wesson invented the defense of a kidnap plot when he realized that Sellers, his brother-in-law, had been identified by Scudder and could not escape conviction.

"He looked on Sellers as a son just as Sellers looked on him as a father," the prosecutor said. "He thought they would have a better chance together if he stuck with the boy and he thought they might get away with it."

OC Alien Problem To Grow

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A Los Angeles immigration official predicted today that problems with illegal aliens will escalate in Orange County during the coming months.

"I think it's really like the little Dutch boy who put his finger in the dike. It's just too late," said Gene Sabin, an immigration official in the Los Angeles bureau.

"We're just too late in stopping the illegals and I think we're going to see more and more in Orange County," Sabin commented.

He said that for the problem to improve significantly, individual businesses found employing illegals must be penalized.

Final figures from Tuesday morning's raid on an Irvine Industrial Complex company totaled 117, Sabin said.

All but four of the 117 illegal aliens are believed to be from Mexico, with the remaining four from El Salvador and Colombia, he said.

Twenty-four agents arrived at Laguna Manufacturing Company, 17622 Von Karman, Tuesday morning and filled 10 vans with employees who, authorities said, did not have valid papers to be working in this country.

They are being processed in Los Angeles and all but the "perennial troublemakers" will be taken back to the border and returned to Mexico.

Those who have been picked up in raids several times before will have deportation hearings and may be deported. That means it will be a felony if they are caught in this country again.

Immigration officials conducted a similar raid at Laguna Manufacturing last Sept. 23, when 84 aliens were picked up. Sabin explained that they try to "survey" new businesses, but that often the same companies are repeat offenders.

"There is no federal law against companies who hire illegal aliens, so we can't file charges against the different firms," Sabin said.

But he said there is a new state law that can result in a fine for companies caught hiring illegals.

He said he believes it has been used only once, in Santa Barbara, but said he hopes immigration officials can persuade county and city attorneys to begin cracking down on business during the coming year.

"We routinely furnish lists to employers involved in surveys, listing which aliens we picked up at their businesses," Sabin said.

But he added that unless the businesses can be fined there is little incentive for them to stop using illegals, who are willing to work for lower wages.

Sabin says he knows of no definite surveys planned for the Orange County area in the immediate future, but said he expects there will be others due to the escalating numbers of illegals being employed by Orange County companies.

was an accident, or the prosecution's argument that she disregarded a serious risk to Sabich. If convicted, she faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Williams, 48, wearing an open-neck white shirt, dark sweater and slacks, said of the mother of his three children: "I wouldn't say she was the type to take chances. She was especially careful around children and other people."

Two dozen persons unable to gain entry to the 70-seat courtroom peered through its glass-topped doors for a glimpse of the television celebrity and his 35-year-old ex-wife.

Williams came to Aspen the day after Sabich was shot in the $250,000 mountainside chalet he shared with Miss Longet for two years.

The singer said he talked with his ex-wife after they left the guest house of singer John Denver to stop at the home of Peter and Mary Ann Greene, where their children stayed the night of the shooting.

"She said, 'Spider was showing me how to use the gun, it went 'Boom! Boom!' and went off, and I shot him,'" Williams testified.

"She said, 'You know that if I meant to kill him, I would tell you that,' and said it was an accident."

"She said, 'Do you believe me?' and I said 'Yes,'" Williams said.

First Athletic Event

About 150 people watched Tuesday as Ocean View High School's freshman wrestling team defeated a squad from Pacifica High School 30-26. It was the first athletic event held in Ocean View's recently completed gymnasium. Grand

1,000 More Pupils Eyed at Ocean View

By RAYMOND ESTRADA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Huntington Beach Union High School District trustees are eying a proposal to spend an estimated $117,000 for plans to expand Ocean View High School, which is now under construction, to accommodate 1,000 more students.

Superintendent Frank Abbott told trustees Tuesday night plans for the 92,000-square-foot expansion should be completed by April and sent to the federal government for possible funding under the Public Works Employment Act of 1976.

Assistant Superintendent Charles Hess said the new administration in Washington, D.C., is expected to introduce another $4 billion appropriations bill to fund projects under the Public Works Employment Act.

"We feel we have an excellent chance to get some of that $4 billion," said Hess. "It is estimated that the construction costs (for the high school's expansion) would be $3,680,000."

But the idea of spending $117,000 for the plans "which may never be used" was called a "gamble," by District Educators Association (DEA) President Ray Cooper.

A workshop on child labor laws for employers of personnel under the age of 18 years will be held Jan. 18, from noon to 5 p.m., at Murdy Community Center, 7000 Norma Drive, Huntington Beach.

The workshop, sponsored by the Huntington Beach Union High School District, will include presentations by federal, state and county officials on how new child labor laws and regulations affect employers. This Friday is the last day to make reservations for attending the workshop, district officials said. Reservations can be made by calling Ed Harcharik at 898-6711.

Laurence Schmit said today that Schmit is fully supportive of Mangers' efforts to buy the land.

The aide said that if Mangers is successful, Schmit would seek county purchase of parkland linking Bolsa Chica to Huntington Beach's Central Park.

The aide said if the legislation fails, Schmit would seek county designation of much of Bolsa Chica area as a regional park to establish a buffer around the area owned by the state and under the operation of the State Fish and Game Commission.

The state currently owns 300 acres in the Bolsa Chica area and leases 230 additional acres. Under the arrangement, the state would get title to the 230 acres if it cut a boat channel to the sea.

Youth Gets Term for Life For Murder

One of two youths tried as adults and convicted of the murder of a member of a rival street gang in Santa Ana was sentenced to life in state prison Tuesday in Orange County Superior Court.

Judge Everett W. Dickey ordered the life term for Ruben Barela, 17, of Santa Ana, with the promise that he will review the sentence in May when the defendant completes an evaluation study at Chino.

Judge Dickey commented to a courtroom packed with youths who identified themselves as friends of the defendant that he might resentence Barela as a youthful offender if the results of the diagnostic study are favorable.

He postponed the sentencing of codefendant Anthony Soza, 17, of Orange until Jan. 25.

The jury ruled that Soza was equally guilty of first degree murder.

Jury Told

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful.

Prosecutor Bill Morrissey told the panel in his final argument that violence was present in the kidnaping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack.

"He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said.

"He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnaping," Morrissey said.

He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle.

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach dory fleet fishermen were shaking their heads in wonder Tuesday afternoon after surfer Chris Larson, 18, of Balboa Island brought his 30-pound catch to shore.

ALTHOUGH SOME of the fishermen had been in the business for up to 30 years they had never seen a fish with the head of a salmon, the mouth of a yellow-finned tuna and the body of an albacore. They had good reason.

The fish, later identified by state Department of Fish and Game Officer Bob Decker as an escalator, is rare even in its native waters off the coast of Peru.

THE BRIGHT silver fish with razor sharp teeth is a member of the tuna family and only three have ever been caught off the coast of California, said Decker.

It all started when Larson, 600 E. Ocean Front, was surfing off 28th street and spotted the fish swimming nearby. After a tentative inspection, Larson rammed the fish with his board, jumped on it and brought it to shore tied to his surf leash.

"EATING ESCALAR would act like a massive dose of castor oil," said Decker.

The peculiar property was transported to Fish and Game offices in Long Beach and, after an autopsy, the rare find probably will end up as a display in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

OC Jobless Rate Stays 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people.

Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers.

EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

Nationwide Unemployed Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment declined from 8.1 to 7.9 percent last month, the government said today, but the good news was offset by another sharp jump in wholesale prices, particularly for food.

Coffee, pork and poultry costs were the chief ingredients in the biggest rise in farm and food prices in eight months and pushed overall wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a percent in December. Industrial price increases slowed, with natural gas costs turning down after rapidly increasing for several months.

For the year, wholesale prices were 4.7 percent ahead of price levels at the end of 1975, when they posted an annual rise of 4.2 percent.

The improvement in the nation's job picture was an indication the economy is beginning to revive after a summer-fall period of stagnation and rising joblessness. The pause in the business recovery had aroused concern among economists and prompted President-elect Carter to propose a two-year package of tax cuts and rebates and job-creating measures.

Council Holds Action on Skateboards

The Irvine City Council spent more than an hour Tuesday night listening to over a dozen speakers regarding what to do with the skateboard course in University Community Park.

But when the dust had settled, nothing was decided. In effect, that means the skateboard course will stay where it is now — adjacent to the new Peters townhomes.

Because the council did not make a motion and take action on the item, the matter will appear on the agenda, week after week, until some action is taken, according to City Attorney James Erickson.

But Mayor David Sills said today he is opposed to that rule and plans to look into possibly changing the system.

"I don't think we should go around voting for things to stay the way they already are. That's a waste of time," said Sills.

"We didn't take a vote on matter, so that means we want the skateboard course to stay where it is," he added.

The council was asked whether it wanted to leave the skateboard

In Shooting Death

DA Clears NB Officer

Preliminary reports issued by two District Attorney's investigators apparently have cleared Newport Beach police officer Doug Thomas, 24, of wrongdoing in the shooting death of a bystander during a Corona del Mar holdup.

Police Chief B. James Glavas confirmed today that the reports compiled in the three-week investigation label the fatal incident as accidental.

However, the reports have yet to be officially reviewed by Deputy District Attorney Bryan Brown and Glavas said he has only received an informal verbal report from the investigators.

Irvine Preschool Gains Cosponsor

The Irvine City Council agreed Tuesday to co-sponsor the Irvine Community Nursery School, a decision that may reduce the state red tape plaguing the preschool.

The school, which operates as a parents' cooperative for about 60 students ages 3 and 4, suddenly found itself without a building this month and had to suspend classes.

Because of strict state licensing requirements, the pre-school organizers have had trouble relocating. None of the city or school district facilities are adequate for state licensing.

However, because of the council's co-sponsorship action, some standards may be eased and a school district building may be satisfactory, according to Jeanine Martin, president of the school's board of directors.

Mrs. Martin said that after talks with the school district and the state licensing office, she may learn that the pre-school could reopen its doors as early as next Monday.

"It's still all very up in the air, but the council's decision helped us and we may be able to find a new spot," she said.

About 25 mothers from the non-profit cooperative attended Tuesday's meeting to ask for council help in finding a new location.

The pre-school began five years ago and had been operating out of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Irvine until last month.

The church opened its own pre-school and the Irvine Community Nursery School left last month, expecting to move into the new

Police Nab Suspect in Irvine Rape

A 29-year-old woman was raped in the storeroom of an office in the Irvine Industrial Complex Tuesday afternoon, Irvine police reported today.

A man matching the description of the assailant was spotted a half hour after the 1:30 p.m. attack by a police helicopter. He was booked at Newport Beach City Jail on charges of forcible rape.

Police declined to reveal the man's name, saying only that he was black and a Santa Ana resident. They said they will either reveal his name when more evidence is lodged against him, or he will be released due to insufficient evidence.

Investigators said "it appears" that the man is the rapist, but admitted they had only circumstantial evidence at this point.

The woman, an Anaheim resident, told police she is a receptionist for a book sales firm within the industrial complex.

She said the man entered her office, where she was working alone, and asked for a job. The woman gave the man an application form and told him to fill out the form at a desk in a nearby storeroom.

When he had not emerged from the room after a half hour, the woman went to check up on him and was quickly forced onto the floor, tied and then sexually assaulted, police said.

The man fled after the attack, leaving her tied up on the floor. She told police she wriggled free after 10 minutes and then went next door to phone for help. Police said she was not injured aside from the sexual assault.

The area was sealed off by police and the suspect was spotted at 2 p.m. by the Costa Mesa police helicopter.

Anthony's $10,000 Disputed

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Gene Conrad, a police informer turned financier, denied today that he contributed $10,000 to Orange County Supervisor Philip Anthony's campaign, disguised as a contribution from a Costa Mesa building supply firm.

Conrad admitted, however, that the $10,000 cashier check given to Anthony's campaign managers was drawn on his funds.

And, he said, the check was delivered by his part-time employe, Loran Norton.

Anthony's campaign disclosure statement shows the donation coming from Robert G. LanFranco, owner of Amco Builders Supply in Costa Mesa.

Conrad said today that at the time the controversial contribution was made, he owed LanFranco $200,000 on a real estate deal.

"I called him (LanFranco) to ask him to make a contribution and he said he would," Conrad said.

He went on to say that he then sent Norton to a bank with a cashier's check he held to convert a portion of it to the $10,000 LanFranco contribution.

According to Conrad, the drawing of the $10,000 check reduced the balance he owed LanFranco from $200,000 to $190,000.

Conrad says he is the sole owner of the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, a firm specializing in locating real estate loans for operators of pension and welfare funds.

Last week, the 42-year-old agent turned financier filed a $170 million lawsuit against the Orange County District Attorney's Office.

The federal lawsuit alleges Conrad's constitutional rights were violated in a series of actions by the office.

When campaign financial disclosure statements were filed late last week, there were indications that Conrad was active last fall in a number of campaigns.

Earlier this week, he said that in addition to Anthony he had helped financially in the campaigns of Assemblyman Richard Robinson (D-Santa Ana), Congressman Jerry Patterson (D-Santa Ana), Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) and former Assemblyman Robert Burke, a Huntington Beach Republican.

Mistaken Criticism

College Site Blast Firm's 'Error'

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The suddenness of the Irvine Company's move to block construction of Saddleback College's second campus on 20 acres of prime agricultural land was apparently the result of bogged-down corporate communications.

A company spokesman said today that the huge firm's agricultural division planners were not fully aware of the scope of the college's proposal until very recently.

"When they gave the proposal more detailed study, they determined that the two uses would not be compatible in that location," said Martin Brauer, company public relations director.

The company irked college officials Monday when it urged the school not to buy its chosen site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue and instead acquire 20 acres at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road about three miles away.

The college has already completed $30,000 worth of appraisals and preliminary design work on the Myford-Bryan site and was within two weeks of closing a deal with the Irvine Company to buy it.

According to Brauer, who said he consulted with top corporate officers when the company's action was revealed, the Myford-Bryan site is not acceptable to the company for several key reasons, including:

—The fact that the site in question is in an area that is not even part of the company's five-year development plan and is not due to be removed from agricultural preserve status until 1984.

—The fact that the site is part of the agricultural division's five-year plan and is planted with a high-risk, high-yield crop (asparagus) that takes five years to mature.

—The fact that all utilities, including water, sewer and power, will have to be brought onto the site at high cost to the college district.

Brauer said the alternative site being offered by the company would probably cost more to buy but would be much cheaper to improve because the utilities are already there.

He also said the company-favored location is more in line with general plan policies, which call for development of contiguous land rather than sites in the middle of incompatible areas.

College trustees have given the company until Monday night to come up with a detailed, "bona fide" offer to sell the alternative sites and strongly indicated that the bid will have to be extremely attractive before they will accept it.

According to Brauer, an inadvertent mistake may have been made within the company's infrastructure, resulting in the seeming "last-minute ploy."

He said the company's land planners were probably not in close enough contact with the agricultural planners during the time when prospective second campus sites were being pondered.

The agricultural division apparently informed company planners working with the college that they would not only lose the output of the 20 acre campus site but would also have to make major adjustments in surrounding agriculture activities.

"When we farm next to urbanized areas, there are certain procedures that are followed to protect both uses," Brauer said.

ANDY WILLIAMS, CLAUDINE LONGET LEAVE COURT Defense Presents Case in Manslaughter Trial

Singer Returns To Stand

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Singer Andy Williams returned to the witness stand today to defend ex-wife Claudine Longet, accused of reckless manslaughter in the shooting of her lover, Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

The eyes of Williams and Miss Longet rarely met as he talked about her feelings in protecting their three children. Williams had testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but offered a vigorous defense of Miss Longet's character.

He was questioned closely by lawyers for both sides today about security arrangements at the couple's homes in Beverly Hills and Malibu, before their divorce two years ago.

Earlier, Miss Longet's lawyer said she would testify that her lover "quite pointedly told her the little gun wouldn't kill anybody" several months before he was killed by a bullet from the pistol March 21.

"Claudine will tell you there was no aiming, no pointing," defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said as he opened the case for the 35-year-old French-born entertainer.

Weedman said he will call about eight witnesses, including her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, in an effort to prove the dark-haired defendant did not recklessly kill pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich on March 21.

"She asked Spider about the safety on his gun . . . I'll leave it to you to decide how her finger pulled that trigger," Weedman said.

"We're going to call Andy back," he said.

Williams testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but delivered a vigorous defense of his ex-wife's character.

"We're going to ask him some questions about Claudine's attitude toward security," Weedman said. ". . . we anticipate he will tell us Claudine had no knowledge of guns."

Weedman said five witnesses will be called to counteract prosecution testimony that Miss Longet was "a crazy gal" who liked to ski fast, drive fast and take chances.

Miss Longet was expected to take the stand to tell jurors her version of what happened when a .22-caliber gun went off in her hands, pumping a single slug into Sabich's abdomen.

Weedman said that by Friday, the manslaughter case could be in the hands of jurors, who must decide whether to accept Miss Longet's claim that the shooting was an accident, or the prosecution's argument that she disregarded a serious risk to Sabich. If convicted, she faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Williams came to Aspen the day after Sabich was shot in the $250,000 mountainside chalet he shared with Miss Longet for two years.

Council Action

The following actions were taken by the Irvine City Council Tuesday:

—MOTOCROSS: Voted to spend $2,000 to connect a water line at the new bicycle motocross site in Woodbridge. If the cost exceeds $2,000, the Warmington Development Company will pay the balance. An additional $2,500 will be held by the city for future landscaping.

—EXCURSIONS: Agreed to allow Irvine Excursions to remain at city hall until the end of the fiscal year. Desk space, a phone and a mailing address will continue to be provided. The non-profit organization provides cultural activities for residents.

—PUBLIC HEARINGS: Set Feb. 8 as the date for hearings regarding "special taxing areas" for Northwood developers for drainage improvements, certain traffic signal improvements and the proposed overcrossing at Yale Avenue and the Santa Ana Freeway.

—CABLE TV: Awarded the franchise for cable TV services in Irvine to Community Cablevision Company, which is currently operating the cable TV operation in Irvine.

—EXCISE TAX: Established an excise tax, to be collected by the county, for trash service in Irvine, beginning July 1.

Skateboard Park Reviews Pushed

City aides were asked by the Irvine City Council Tuesday to review two proposals submitted to the city for commercial skateboard facilities in Heritage Park.

The council voted 4-1 to have staff members review proposals by Leisure Specialties, Inc. and by Pelican Hill Skateparks, Inc., both Newport Beach companies.

Councilwoman Mary Ann Gaido voted against the motion because she said she was opposed to having the first commercial venture in Irvine (on city property) geared towards teens.

"It's not fair because they're the group that can least afford to pay. Therefore, I oppose it," said Mrs. Gaido.

Leisure Specialties first submitted its plans late last year to the city's Community Services Commission.

The company proposes a skateboard park within Heritage Park, now being built on Walnut Avenue. Company officials say it would bring an annual revenue to the city between $71,000 and $150,000.

But just last week, the other firm submitted a proposal of its own, proposing a skateboard and rollerskating facility at the same site.

Pelican Hill officials say they will pay the city a minimum rent of $25,000 per year, plus 15 percent of the gross income past $200,000.

The site under consideration was originally slated for a commercial tennis facility, but negotiations with several tennis companies fell through.

Staff members were asked to look into the two proposals and also to review the city policy for having commercial facilities on city property.

Councilman John Burton complained that the city's approach to coordinating such facilities appeared to be haphazard.

course alone, move it to a new site within University Community park, or to another site outside the original park area.

Residents who live behind the popular skateboard course, in the Peters townhomes, have complained repeatedly that they are bothered by noise, large crowds of teenagers, profanity and vandalism — particularly in the evening hours.

But other residents of the University Park area asked that the skateboard course be left either where it is now, or moved to a new site within the same park.

They were against a proposed move to a site on Michelson Drive in the Rancho San Joaquin development because it would mean their children would have to cross busy Culver Drive.

City officials offered a staff report that showed it would cost about $19,900 to construct a new course at a different site, such as the one proposed on Michelson Drive.

To construct a course at another site in University Community Park would cost more, about $24,200, since it is more expensive to build on already improved land.

Jim Peters, of the Peters Development Company, said his firm would be willing to spend $8,800 to demolish the existing course.

But council members insisted that the park, including the skateboard course, was planned before the new Peters townhomes, and declined to move the facility.

"That's not saying we won't decide at some other point that it should be moved, but for now nobody wanted to make a motion to do so," said Sills.

Secret Meet For Trustees

Irvine school trustees will meet tonight at Culverdale School in Irvine, but the public meeting will be delayed by a preliminary executive session.

The public meeting is not expected to get under way until 8 p.m. Trustees will first meet in private to discuss the situation with Olson Construction Company — the firm they are in conflict with over specifications at the new Irvine High school.

Following that closed session, trustees will handle a routine agenda.

ALIENS . . .

"We routinely furnish lists to employers involved in surveys, listing which aliens we picked up at their businesses," Sabin said.

But he added that unless the businesses can be fined there is little incentive for them to stop using illegals, who are willing to work for lower wages.

Sabin says he knows of no definite surveys planned for the Orange County area in the immediate future, but said he expects there will be others due to the escalating numbers of illegals being employed by Orange County companies.

Stockholders Win $380,000 Suit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dr. Clifford Nelson of San Francisco and other minority stockholders of Air California have won a $380,000 settlement of their civil suit against the Westgate-California Corp.

An attorney, Joseph Turner, said Tuesday that $108,000 of the money will go to pay attorneys' fees.

Nelson owned 8,000 shares of Air California when he filed the suit while a proposal to merge Air California with Pacific Southwest Airlines was pending. The merger fell through.

Nelson's suit accused C. Arnholt Smith and other Westgate officials of conspiring to dissipate Air California's assets to their own enrichment.

The suit said Westgate, which

Smith founded and headed until he was forced out, controlled 81 percent of Air California stock before the conglomerate filed for bankruptcy three years ago.

Conrad also said a member of his firm, Donald Eckhart, had delivered a $1,000 check to Anthony's election rival, Santa Ana City Councilman Harry Yamamoto.

However, according to Conrad, Yamamoto's campaign manager, Pat Burnett, refused to accept the check.

Anthony was attending a Board of Supervisors meeting and his campaign manager, Loretta Walker, could not be reached at her office.

Those investigating Conrad's involvement in the political campaigns are reportedly researching those sections of campaign regulations that make it illegal for contributions to be channeled through an intermediary or agent without divulging the true source of the funds.

Jurors Hear SC Child Beating Details

Both defendant Carolyn Brewster and the young Marine who shared her San Clemente motel room beat her 2-year-old daughter with their hands and his heavy Marine Corps belt on several occasions, an Orange County Superior Court jury was told in opening statements today.

Deputy District Attorney Frank Fasel told the panel sworn in late Tuesday that little Cora Brewster was close to death when paramedics were called to the Carmella Motel Aug. 17.

The prosecutor said Mrs. Brewster, 23, and Camp Pendleton Marine Kenneth Ray Bolden, 20, were asked while paramedics tried to revive the unconscious child how she suffered her extensive injuries.

He said Bolden commented while being questioned: "she never cries because I belt her on the ass when she does."

Fasel said the child was rushed to San Clemente General Hospital with injuries that included a broken left arm, a deep bite mark on the left arm, cigarette burns on the chest and bruises over most of the body with heavy bruising on the buttocks and pelvis.

The prosecutor told the jury that the child spent a month in the hospital after undergoing brain surgery. Mrs. Brewster and Bolden were charged with multiple counts of felony child abuse.

Fasel told the jury that he will introduce incriminating statements allegedly made by both defendants. Each has admitted using the belt and Bolden has admitted biting the child, he said.

Fasel said a witness will testify that Bolden once forced the child to walk barefoot from the motel across hot asphalt and that he kicked her in the buttocks when she cried out with pain.

Judge Harmon G. Scoville ordered opening statements today after denying a defense motion for separate trials for the two defendants.

It was argued during the pre-trial hearing that each defendant has accused the other of inflicting injuries on Mrs. Brewster's daughter.

Financier Denies Political Gift

Jury Told

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack"

Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful.

Prosecutor Bill Morrissey told the panel in his final argument that violence was present in the kidnaping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack.

"He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said.

"He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnaping," Morrissey said.

He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle.

Morrissey described the evidence against Sellers as "absolutely overwhelming." He admitted that the evidence against co-defendant William Rudy Wesson, 45, of Tustin, was "almost totally circumstantial but no less worthy of a guilty verdict."

Morrissey condemned as "ludicrous" the defense argument that the wealthy Scudder helped plan the kidnaping in return for a major portion of the $250,000 the kidnapers hoped to get from the victim's wife, Mrs. Valerie Scudder.

"Again, the violence," Morrissey said. "Mrs. Scudder was told that if she didn't raise the $150,000 in $50 bills and $100,000 in $20 bills her husband would be eliminated."

Scudder testified as a prosecution witness that he escaped from the kidnapers' van in Fountain Valley by faking a heart attack and then catching the unwary Sellers off guard as the alleged kidnaper tried to revive him.

Sellers admitted that he panicked and fled through the nearest back yard as Scudder, a piece of tape flying from his face and minus the glasses he needs to see, ran down the sidewalk yelling, "heart attack, help me. Kidnap, help me."

But both Sellers and Wesson in-

DA Clears NB Officer

Preliminary reports issued by two District Attorney's investigators apparently have cleared Newport Beach police officer Doug Thomas, 24, of wrongdoing in the shooting death of a bystander during a Corona del Mar holdup.

Police Chief B. James Glavas confirmed today that the reports compiled in the three-week investigation label the fatal incident as accidental.

However, the reports have yet to be officially reviewed by Deputy District Attorney Bryan Brown and Glavas said he has only received an informal verbal report from the investigators.

CHRIS LARSON DISPLAYS RARE FISH HE CAUGHT TUESDAY

Something Fishy

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach dory fleet fishermen were shaking their heads in wonder Tuesday afternoon after surfer Chris Larson, 18, of Balboa Island brought his 30-pound catch to shore.

ALTHOUGH SOME of the fishermen had been in the business for up to 30 years they had never seen a fish with the head of a salmon, the mouth of a yellow-finned tuna and the body of an albacore. They had good reason.

The fish, later identified by state Department of Fish and Game Officer Bob Decker as an escalator, is rare even in its native waters off the coast of Peru.

THE BRIGHT silver fish with razor sharp teeth is a member of the tuna family and only three have ever been caught off the coast of California, said Decker.

It all started when Larson, 600 E. Ocean Front, was surfing off 28th street and spotted the fish swimming nearby. After a tentative inspection, Larson rammed the fish with his board, jumped on it and brought it to shore tied to his surf leash.

"EATING ESCALAR would act like a massive dose of castor oil," said Decker.

The peculiar property was transported to Fish and Game offices in Long Beach and, after an autopsy, the rare find probably will end up as a display in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

Wa-Wa Wailed Taken in Laguna Theft

A stuffed armadillo, wa-wa pedal and Gibson guitar jointly valued at $675 were reported stolen from Laguna Beach resident Arthur C. Lynch, 417 Poplar Street, and police are investigating today.

The theft apparently occurred during a birthday party for Lynch at which 20 to 30 people were present, police reported.

Lynch told officers the armadillo, wa-wa pedal and guitar were at his home the night of the party.

Arms Surrendered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Censored — Lebanese and Palestinian forces are surrendering large quantities of heavy weapons to the Arab League peacekeeping force before the deadline at midnight tonight, Beirut newspapers reported today.

He had played the guitar during part of it. (A wa-wa pedal is an attachment to a guitar which when activated makes the instrument go "wa-wa"). The missing armadillo had been on an end table.

The victim said the articles were still there when he and some friends left the house to visit a few taverns.

Police do have a clue, although it's a slim one.

Lynch's dog turned up Sunday with the tail of the armadillo in his mouth.

Patrolman Jim Lansford speculated that perhaps the tail was broken off during the thief's flight, or that the suspect had taken the property from the house and hidden it in bushes nearby to enable him to return later and take it unobserved. The armadillo tail was not booked into evidence. It was too badly chewed.

Krishna Nix Suggested by LB Planners

Allowing churches or church-related functions in an industrial zone is not in the best interest of the city, the Laguna Beach Planning Commission decided Tuesday.

The Hare Krishna cult had requested the change which would have enabled it to use industrially zoned Laguna Canyon property for its temple.

The commission, however, voted unanimously to recommend that the city council not change the uses permitted in the M-1A zone.

Church-related activities would not be compatible with industrial activities, the commission ruled.

The question appeared to be moot because property the cult once sought has been acquired by another party.

The Hare Krishna sect is under a court order to cease use of its current temple, a big house at 641 Ramona Ave., a residential area.

In other action, the commission:

—Continued a hearing on a 12-unit subdivision proposed for a ridge between Arch Beach Heights and Top of the World due to illness which prevented the applicant's appearance at the public hearing.

—Voted to hold on March 22 a hearing on the rezoning of M-1 property near the Festival of Arts to medium-commercial.

SF Murders Hit 10

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city had its 10th murder in the first 11 days of the new year with the suffocation-slaying of a 59-year-old woman in her bed. The victim appeared to have been raped, police said.

OC Jobless Rate Stays 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people.

Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers.

EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

Gunman Nabs, Then Releases Clemente Girl

A 17-year-old San Clemente girl was kidnaped from a residential street Tuesday at gun point, driven near the Crestlite aggregate plant and forced to disrobe, police said.

Police said her attacker failed in his rape attempt, but did not explain further.

They said the man drove the girl back to where he had abducted her, at Monterey Lane and Ola Vista, and released her unharmed, after allowing her to dress.

Police said the man was described as being in his twenties, with long, stringy hair and wearing a heavy, dark jacket, and Levis.

Clemente Council Slates Pier Study

The San Clemente City Council meets at 7:30 tonight for a study session on redevelopment of the city pier and entry bowl area.

Council members are expected to discuss the scope of the project with Keisker Johnson Associates of Newport Beach, a consulting firm hired to design the proposed rehabilitation program. Cost of consulting chores is about $80,000.

Anthony's $10,000 Disputed

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Gene Conrad, a police informer turned financier, denied today that he contributed $10,000 to Orange County Supervisor Philip Anthony's campaign, disguised as a contribution from a Costa Mesa building supply firm.

Conrad admitted, however, that the $10,000 cashier check given to Anthony's campaign managers was drawn on his funds.

And, he said, the check was delivered by his part-time employe, Lorán Norton.

Anthony's campaign disclosure statement shows the donation coming from Robert G. LanFranco, owner of Amco Builders Supply in Costa Mesa.

Conrad said today that at the time the controversial contribution was made, he owed LanFranco $200,000 on a real estate deal.

"I called him (LanFranco) to ask him to make a contribution and he said he would," Conrad said.

He went on to say that he then sent Norton to a bank with a cashier's check he held to convert a portion of it to the $10,000 LanFranco contribution.

According to Conrad, the drawing of the $10,000 check reduced the balance he owed LanFranco from $200,000 to $190,000.

Conrad says he is the sole owner of the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, a firm specializing in locating real estate loans for operators of pension and welfare funds.

Last week, the 42-year-old agent turned financier filed a $170 million lawsuit against the Orange County District Attorney's Office.

The federal lawsuit alleges Conrad's constitutional rights were violated in a series of actions by the office.

When campaign financial disclosure statements were filed late last week, there were indications that Conrad was active last fall in a number of campaigns.

Earlier this week, he said that in addition to Anthony he had helped financially in the campaigns of Assemblyman Richard Robinson (D-Santa Ana), Congressman Jerry Patterson (D-Santa Ana), Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) and former Assemblyman Robert Burke, a Huntington Beach Republican.

Conrad also said a member of his firm, Donald Eckhart, had

College Criticism 'Error'

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The suddenness of the Irvine Company's move to block construction of Saddleback College's second campus on 20 acres of prime agricultural land was apparently the result of bogged-down corporate communications.

A company spokesman said today that the huge firm's agricultural division planners were not fully aware of the scope of the college's proposal until very recently.

"When they gave the proposal more detailed study, they determined that the two uses would not be compatible in that location," said Martin Brauer, company public relations director.

The company irked college officials Monday when it urged the school not to buy its chosen site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue and instead acquire 20 acres at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road about three miles away.

The college has already completed $30,000 worth of appraisals and preliminary design work on the Myford-Bryan site and was within two weeks of closing a deal with the Irvine Company to buy it.

According to Brauer, who said he consulted with top corporate officers when the company's action was revealed, the Myford-Bryan site is not acceptable to the company for several key reasons, including:

—The fact that the site in question is in an area that is not even part of the company's five-year development plan and is not due to be removed from agricultural preserve status until 1984.

—The fact that the site is part of the agricultural division's five-year plan and is planted with a high-risk, high-yield crop (asparagus) that takes five years to mature.

—The fact that all utilities, including water, sewer and power, will have to be brought onto the site at high cost to the college district.

Brauer said the alternative site being offered by the company would probably cost more to buy but would be much cheaper to improve because the utilities are already there.

LB Council Eyes Money, Skateboards

Skateboards and city finances are up for Laguna Beach City Council scrutiny today.

Skateboarding discussion is first on the agenda starting at 5 p.m. in city hall chambers.

A report from the city's audit committee by Price Waterhouse, accountants will be considered beginning at 7:30 p.m. also in the council chambers.

The council is expected to activate a committee to study means of safely providing skateboarding opportunities and to consider if regulation is necessary.

Finance director Richard Reese said the audit report will deal with recommendations to improve city internal accounting controls and reporting systems, and recommendations to improve operating controls and efficiencies as well as the routine financial statements.

Arms, Cash Taken

Laguna Beach carpenter James E. Skelton reported the theft of a rifle, hunting knife and $60 in cash Tuesday to Laguna Beach police. Skelton, 1060 Gleneyre St., said the items had been missing since mid-December, but he had delayed reporting the incident while he questioned friends. No evidence of forced entry was found.

delivered a $1,000 check to Anthony's election rival, Santa Ana City Councilman Harry Yamamoto.

However, according to Conrad, Yamamoto's campaign manager Pat Burnett, refused to accept the check.

Anthony was attending a Board of Supervisors meeting and his campaign manager, Loretta Walker, could not be reached at her office.

Those investigating Conrad's involvement in the political campaigns are reportedly researching those sections of campaign regulations that make it illegal for contributions to be channeled through an intermediary or agent without divulging the true source of the funds.

Safety Debate Goes On

Public Utility Commission hearings continued today in San Clemente to debate a city application to build a pedestrian safety gate crossing of Santa Fe railroad tracks fronting the city pier.

City officials want to build the crossing at track level, using an electronically controlled gate. Santa Fe, PUC and state highway department staff members are resisting the application.

They argue that for safety's sake a grade-separated crossing should be used, such as the existing tunnel crossing.

Tuesday a Santa Fe architect was scheduled to justify an estimated $151,000 cost figure attached to Santa Fe's own proposal to modify the tunnel entrance.

The Santa Fe plan was similar to another design volunteered by San Clemente building designer Eric Boucher, in that it also uses concrete ramps for entry to and egress from the tunnel.

Los Angeles attorney Wyman Knapp, who is arguing San Clemente's case, demanded Monday that the architect produce working papers to show how he arrived at the cost estimate.

At today's hearing, held at City Hall in council chambers, Santa Fe was expected to call high-level safety experts to testify about potential hazards of ground-level crossing gates.

PUC Examiner Norman Haley has predicted that the hearings, which have been recessed twice before last year, will conclude by Friday.

Cyclist Gets Away After Speed Chase

A motorcyclist traveling at more than 80 miles per hour down Avenida Del Presidente in San Clemente Tuesday was chased by a policeman before the cyclist crashed into a dirt bank.

Sgt. William Trudeau said the driver scrambled away on foot onto Camp Pendleton property.

Police alerted Pendleton authorities, Secret Service agents stationed at the Richard M. Nixon home, and nearby hospitals to watch for the speeder, who Trudeau said may have been injured in the crash.

Police said the motorcycle had been stolen in Huntington Beach.

Thieves broke into the garage of an apartment rented by Edgar Carnell, 246-C Avenida Victoria, San Clemente, Tuesday and stole an oriental rug, police reported. No immediate value was assigned the loss.

'NEED TAX REVENUE'
Councilman Friess

San Juan Business Hike Eyed

By ANNE COOPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The next priority for the City of San Juan Capistrano is to stimulate business, councilman Kenneth Friess told a businessmen's organization today.

Friess, who has at times appeared antagonistic to business interests in San Juan, told the Capistrano Business and Property Owners Association he is as much a capitalist as anyone.

"We are not trying to curtail industry and commercial development in San Juan," he said. "We know we need the sales tax revenue. We're not stupid."

Friess opened his remarks by saying he was nervous about addressing the group. He said that after some of the things he's done on City Council, he "could walk in here and be shot."

"I brought a check this morning to join your organization," he said. "I believe we have virtually the same goals and objectives. I want to work to eliminate the polarization we have in San Juan, with every issue having a 'them and an us'."

Friess said government planning is more difficult in an already partially settled community like San Juan. Planners in Irvine and Mission Viejo don't face the same problems," he said.

"It is obvious people will get hurt occasionally," Friess said. "If we are working for a common good, individuals sometimes get in the way."

"When someone might be hurt, everyone should share in that hurt, just as when there is good, everyone should benefit."

Friess, who has been a staunch supporter of agricultural preservation in San Juan, said the city has taken only the first step in a program which may or may not succeed.

Youth Gets Term for Life For Murder

One of two youths tried as adults and convicted of the murder of a member of a rival street gang in Santa Ana was sentenced to life in state prison Tuesday in Orange County Superior Court.

Judge Everett W. Dickey ordered the life term for Ruben Barela, 17, of Santa Ana, with the promise that he will review the sentence in May when the defendant completes an evaluation study at Chino.

Judge Dickey commented to a courtroom packed with youths who identified themselves as friends of the defendant that he might resent Barela as a youthful offender if the results of the diagnostic study are favorable.

He postponed the sentencing of codefendant Anthony Soza, 17, of Orange until Jan. 25.

Barela and Soza were identified during their trial as members of the F Troop gang, a Mexican-American organization that has been frequently involved in downtown scuffles with police and rival gangs.

Barela was identified during the trial as the man who shot and killed Edward Velasquez, 21, of Santa Ana, as the victim drove his car past an auto occupied by the two defendants.

sisted in their testimony that Scudder helped them plan the kidnap and that two other men who have been identified in the courtroom but not arrested were involved in the plot.

Morissey condemned Wesson Tuesday as "a con man" who planned the kidnaping of Scudder at a time when the victim thought he was dealing with an old friend he first met when Wesson was the manager of the Bank of America's Corona del Mar branch.

"Wesson was the last man to see Jack Scudder before the kidnap and we know what he would have been if the kidnap had been successful," Morissey told the jury.

"He would have been the concerned friend. Wesson, the man we believe to be the man who demanded ransom from Mrs. Scudder, would have been on the telephone again to ask her if he could help in any way."

Morissey argued that Wesson invented the defense of a kidnap plot when he realized that Sellers, his brother-in-law, had been identified by Scudder and could not escape conviction.

"He looked on Sellers as a son just as Sellers looked on him as a father," the prosecutor said. "He thought they would have a better chance together if he stuck with the boy and he thought they might get away with it."

Reward Offered For Dog Poisoner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A reward is posted for the arrest and conviction of a killer of dogs in "the worst attempt here of mass poisoning of pets that we can remember."

A spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Tuesday a search of the Sunset district uncovered some 30 hamburger patties heavily dosed with deadly strychnine.

Four dogs, a mixed breed, schnauzer, dalmatian and malamute, have suffered deaths from strychnine this week, the SPCA said.

The latest was the mixed breed, a puppy named Baco, whose death Tuesday was mourned by the Rodezno family.

"My son Frank was sick when he heard about it," said Elena Rodezno, his mother. "I cried so much. It was terrible, a horrible death."

The poisoned patties were found in an area bordering Sunset Boulevard and 86th Avenue, the SPCA said, announcing a $250 reward for the arrest and conviction of the poisoner.

SPCA officials said notices of the offer which were pinned up in the neighborhood have been torn down.

Date Delayed Oil Leases Await Studies

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The U.S. Interior Department is postponing by 10 months the target date for awarding offshore oil leases to better weigh environmental impacts.

A spokesman for the Department said Tuesday the leasing timetable would be postponed from June until March, 1978, a statement at conflict with earlier ones in which the department talked of tentative leasing in February, 1978, after completion and review of environmental impact studies.

According to published reports, the action by the Interior Department in the last full week of the Ford administration may be moot anyway because of President-elect Carter's promise to take a slow approach to such leasing.

The reports said the latest announcement makes the possibility of new oil drilling off the California coast appear ever more remote than it had been.

Juvenile Judge Tackles State Law

Orange County Superior Court Judge Raymond Vincent said today he has issued court orders that, in effect, challenge a state law prohibiting the detaining of certain classes of juvenile offenders in secure facilities.

Judge Vincent said his action was touched off by "an enormous runaway problem at McMillan School and not by a desire to punish youngsters."

Judge Vincent's orders have the effect of commanding juveniles to remain at McMillan rather than having the license to leave at will.

Disobedience of those orders is contempt of court and violators then can be placed in juvenile hall.

When a new state law said that minor juvenile offenders cannot be detained in a secured detention institution, McMillan was designated an unsecure facility by county officials. On Dec. 27, those offenders charged with status offenses and housed in Orange County Juvenile Hall were transferred to McMillan.

Status offenders are youngsters who have committed offenses such as runaway and truancy which would not be offenses if they were adults.

According to records at McMillan, in the first week of giving such offenders the right to roam at will 21 of the approximately 45 juveniles housed there exercised their option to leave at will.

Records show one girl was stabbed shortly after her departure and a runaway from Rhode Island whose parents were en route to return her home was lost from custody because of the free access rule.

"I don't believe there is a right for a child to roam the streets under no one's control," said Judge Vincent.

"And we are particularly concerned with those who do not return to their homes and, in effect, are roaming at will under no one's supervision."

Chief County Probation Officer Margaret Grier today said the new state regulations are "positive" (See SECURE, Page A2)

Financier Denies Political Gift

Anthony's $10,000 Disputed

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Gene Conrad, a police informer turned financier, denied today that he contributed $10,000 to Orange County Supervisor Philip Anthony's campaign, disguised as a contribution from a Costa Mesa building supply firm.

Conrad admitted, however, that the $10,000 cashier check given to Anthony's campaign managers was drawn on his funds.

Anthony's campaign disclosure statement shows the donation coming from Robert G. LanFranco, owner of Amco Builders Supply in Costa Mesa.

Conrad said today that at the time the controversial contribution was made, he owed LanFranco $200,000 on a real estate deal.

"I called him (LanFranco) to ask him to make a contribution and he said he would," Conrad said.

He went on to say that he then sent Norton to a bank with a cashier's check he held to convert a portion of it to the $10,000 LanFranco contribution.

According to Conrad, the drawing of the $10,000 check reduced the balance he owed LanFranco from $200,000 to $190,000.

Conrad says he is the sole owner of the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, a firm specializing in locating real estate loans for operators of pension and welfare funds.

Last week, the 42-year-old agent turned financier filed a $170 million lawsuit against the Orange County District Attorney's Office.

The federal lawsuit alleges Conrad's constitutional rights were violated in a series of actions. (See CONRAD, Page A2)

ANDY WILLIAMS, CLAUDINE LONGET LEAVE COURT Defense Presents Case in Manslaughter Trial

Singer Returns To Defend Longet

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Singer Andy Williams returned to the witness stand today to defend ex-wife Claudine Longet, accused of reckless manslaughter in the shooting of her lover, Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

The eyes of Williams and Miss Longet rarely met as he talked about her feelings in protecting their three children. Williams had testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but offered a vigorous defense of Miss Longet's character.

He was questioned closely by lawyers for both sides today about security arrangements at the couple's homes in Beverly Hills and Malibu, before their divorce two years ago.

Earlier, Miss Longet's lawyer said she would testify that her lover "quite pointedly told her the little gun wouldn't kill anybody" several months before he was killed by a bullet from the pistol March 21. "Claudine will tell you there was no aiming, no pointing," defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said as he opened the case for the 35-year-old French-born entertainer.

Weedman said he will call (See LONGET, Page A2)

Interpreter Found for Cambodians

The plight of three young Cambodian girls in need of an interpreter has been solved through community response, a spokesman for the Newport-Mesa School District said today.

The three students at Rea Middle School in Costa Mesa soon will have an interpreter to help them communicate with their teachers, the spokesman said.

"We are very pleased with the response," the spokesman said, referring to a story in Monday's Daily Pilot which called on people fluent in Cambodian to assist the teenagers in breaking the language barrier.

Because of the article, three people have come forward and district officials are interviewing them.

However, there still are a number of foreign speaking students new to this country who could use similar help.

District officials hope to form a pool of interpreters fluent in Vietnamese, Cambodian, Laotian, Korean and Hindustani to aid new arrivals to district schools.

People willing to help should contact Fay Harbison, Newport-Mesa Director of Bilingual and Adult Education, 556-3300.

CHRIS LARSON DISPLAYS RARE FISH HE CAUGHT TUESDAY

Something Fishy

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach dory fleet fishermen were shaking their heads in wonder Tuesday afternoon after surfer Chris Larson, 18, of Balboa Island brought his 30 pound catch to shore.

ALTHOUGH SOME of the fishermen had been in the business for up to 30 years they had never seen a fish with the head of a salmon, the mouth of a yellow-finned tuna and the body of an albacore. They had good reason.

The fish, later identified by state Department of Fish and Game Officer Bob Decker as an escalator, is rare even in its native waters off the coast of Peru.

THE BRIGHT silver fish with razor sharp teeth is a member of the tuna family and only three have ever been caught off the coast of California, said Decker.

It all started when Larson, 600 E. Ocean Front, was surfing off 28th street and spotted the fish swimming nearby. After a tentative inspection, Larson rammed the fish with his board, jumped on it and brought it to shore tied to his surf leash.

"EATING ESCALAR would act like a massive dose of castor oil," said Decker.

The peculiar property was transported to Fish and Game offices in Long Beach and, after an autopsy, the rare find probably will end up as a display in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

Nationwide Jobless Dip

Wholesale Prices Increase Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment declined from 8.1 to 7.9 percent last month, but the government said today, though the good news was offset by another sharp jump in wholesale prices, particularly for food.

Coffee, pork and poultry costs were the chief ingredients in the biggest rise in farm and food prices in eight months and pushed overall wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a percent in December. Industrial price increases slowed, with natural gas costs turning down after rapidly increasing for several months.

For the year, wholesale prices were 4.7 percent ahead of price levels at the end of 1975, when they posted an annual rise of 4.2 percent.

The improvement in the nation's job picture was an indication the economy is beginning to revive after a summer-fall period of stagnation and rising joblessness. The pause in the business recovery had aroused concern among economists and prompted President-elect Carter

OC Jobless Rate Stuck at 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people.

Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers.

EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

to propose a two-year package of tax cuts and rebates and job-creating measures.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the latest job figures indicate that the unemployment situation "has broken out of the holding pattern" which characterized it for several months.

Coming on the heels of gains in retail sales, industrial production and personal income, Shiskin told the congressional Joint Economic Committee, "it seems likely that the economy has resumed an upward path after the pause during the summer and fall."

The 7.9 percent unemployment rate in December was still slightly higher than the rate at the beginning of the year, when 7.8 percent of the labor force was jobless.

In Shooting Death

DA Clears NB Officer

Preliminary reports issued by two District Attorney's investigators apparently have cleared Newport Beach police officer Doug Thomas, 24, of wrongdoing in the shooting death of a bystander during a Corona del Mar holdup.

Police Chief B. James Glavas confirmed today that the reports compiled in the three-week investigation label the fatal incident as accidental.

However, the reports have yet to be officially reviewed by Deputy District Attorney Bryan Brown and Glavas said he has only received an informal verbal report from the investigators.

Thomas, who was staked out at the Albertson's Market in Corona del Mar Dec. 17, fired a shotgun at a fleeing robbery suspect. The blast killed bystander Joe Hines, 61, of Dana Point.

Initial police reports indicated that Hines was hidden from Thomas' view in a row of Christmas trees at the front of the store and stepped into the line of fire as the officer shot at the fleeing suspect.

The suspect, Richard William Sutton, 20, of San Clemente, was captured about a block from the market. Police alleged he was armed with a loaded .38-caliber revolver.

He has been bound over for trial in Superior Court on charges that he is responsible for a series of market robberies throughout the south coast area including the one that ended with the shooting.

That investigation will officially conclude with a written report from Brown. The prosecutor could not be reached for comment about the investigators' findings and the release date of that report.

Newport Beach police called in the district attorney to investigate the shooting.

AirCal Lawsuit Settled

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dr. Clifford Nelson of San Francisco and other minority stockholders of Air California have won a $380,000 settlement of their civil suit against the Westgate-California Corp.

An attorney, Joseph Turner, said Tuesday that $108,000 of the money will go to pay attorneys' fees.

Nelson owned 8,000 shares of Air California when he filed the suit while a proposal to merge Air California with Pacific Southwest Airlines was pending. The merger fell through.

Nelson's suit accused C. Arnholt Smith and other Westgate officials of conspiring to dissipate Air California's assets to their own enrichment.

The suit said Westgate, which Smith founded and headed until he was forced out, controlled 81 percent of Air California stock before the conglomerate filed for bankruptcy three years ago.

Dispute On Speed Settled

A dispute between the Newport Beach Police Department and the city traffic engineer apparently has been settled with the agreement to raise the speed limit on Newport Hills Drive.

That agreement was reached Tuesday afternoon at the city's traffic affairs committee whose members decided to increase the speed limit to 30 mph and post stop signs at all of the cross streets except Port Seabourne Way.

The changes will not go into effect for at least two weeks, since they must be approved by the city council, said Joe Devlin, director of public works for the city.

The committee consists of the city Traffic Engineer Bill Darnell, Capt. Don Oyaas of the police department and Bob Long, administrative assistant to the city manager.

The committee agreed to raise the speed limit and post the stop signs and let Darnell study the results for an indefinite period of time.

Darnell's preliminary study of the speed vehicles travel on the road that winds through the housing area, revealed that 85 out of 100 cars travel between 30 mph and 35 mph on most of the road.

According to Oyaas, the stretch of Newport Hills Drive West between Port Seabourne and Ford Road showed that 85 out of 100 cars traveled faster than 35 mph, but the committee decided to keep the speed limit on the road uniform and agreed to increase it from the existing 25 mph to 30 mph.

Residents of the area had asked that the speed limit and use of stop signs be studied because of a recent rash of speeding tickets issued in the neighborhood.

Policy Backed By Blumenthal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The incoming Treasury secretary said today he sees no need for the United States to soften its strong stand against the Arab boycott of Israel, even in an effort to ensure a steady supply of foreign oil.

"The United States should never be afraid to speak clearly... on a matter on which we feel strongly," W. Michael Blumenthal told the Senate Finance Committee, which is considering his nomination.

Juvenile Crime City Approves Referral Fee

In order to preserve what police describe as "the single most valuable diversion program available" Newport Beach city councilmen have agreed to pay a $90 fee for juvenile offenders referred by city police to the Assessment and Treatment Services Center of Coastal Orange County. The center, located on Bristol Street near the end of the Orange County Airport runway, originally was established by the county under a federal grant to provide counseling for troubled youths and their families. Since the grant money ran out two years ago, the non-profit center has operated on private funds.

A financial crisis at the close of 1976 nearly forced the center to close its doors, but an intensive fund raising drive provided the money to keep it operating for at least the next three months.

The city fee, which will net the center about $9,000 based on about 100 cases referred from Newport Beach last year, will go into the center's $70,000 annual operating budget.

Gordon Jones, a member of the ATSC board of directors, explained that the fee is significant because it is tangible evidence of the city's support of the program.

He noted the center currently handles about 250 cases a year and has a maximum capability of 300. "Our costs work out to about $300 a kid," he explained.

Members of the Newport Beach Police Department's juvenile section have been vocal in their support of the center because they say it is an effective tool they have successfully used to keep youngsters out of the formal juvenile justice system.

In a memo recommending the institution of a city fee, Sgt. Mike Blitch said that "by not funding ATSC we will have maintained a philosophically pristine financial attitude, but we will have lost the single most valuable diversion program available to us."

ing a tremendous problem. "We have no authority to detain the youngsters except through our counselors urging them to stay."

Miss Grier said troubled youngsters on the loose without means of support or a place to stay can often become victims of crimes.

And, she added, a roaming population of troubled juveniles can easily drift into serious misadventures.

The intent of last year's juvenile justice reform legislation was to provide sterner treatment of juveniles who commit serious offenses such as murder while noninstitutionalized treatment was provided for minor offenders.

That lighter treatment included prohibiting local officials from detaining them in secure facilities where they are not free to leave at their choosing.

'Kidnap' Victim's Life in Danger?

By TOM BARLEY

An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful.

Prosecutor Bill Morissey told the panel in his final argument that violence was present in the kidnaping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack.

"He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said.

"He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnaping," Morissey said.

He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle.

about eight witnesses, including her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, in an effort to prove the dark-haired defendant did not recklessly kill pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich on March 21.

"She asked Spider about the safety on his gun . . . I'll leave it to you to decide how her finger pulled that trigger," Weedman said.

"We're going to call Andy back," he said. Williams testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but delivered a vigorous defense of his ex-wife's character.

"We're going to ask him some questions about Claudine's attitude toward security," Weedman said. " . . . we anticipate he will tell us Claudine had no knowledge of guns."

Weedman said five witnesses will be called to counteract prosecution testimony that Miss Longet was "a crazy gal" who liked to ski fast, drive fast and take chances.

Miss Longet was expected to take the stand to tell jurors her version of what happened when a .22-caliber gun went off in her hands, pumping a single slug into Sabich's abdomen.

Weedman said that by Friday, the manslaughter case could be in the hands of jurors, who must decide whether to accept Miss Longet's claim that the shooting was an accident, or the prosecution's argument that she disregarded a serious risk to Sabich. If convicted, she faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Williams came to Aspen the day after Sabich was shot in the $250,000 mountainside chalet he shared with Miss Longet for two years.

The singer said he talked with his ex-wife after they left the guest house of singer John Denver to stop at the home of Peter and Mary Ann Greene, where their children stayed the night of the shooting.

"She said, 'Spider was showing me how to use the gun, it went 'Boom! Boom!' and went off, and I shot him,'" Williams testified.

"She said, 'You know that if I meant to kill him, I would tell you that,' and said it was an accident."

"She said, 'Do you believe me?' and I said 'Yes,'" Williams said.

Two dozen persons unable to gain entry to the 70-seat courtroom peered through its glass-topped doors for a glimpse of the television celebrity and his 35-year-old ex-wife.

Morissey described the evidence against Sellers as "absolutely overwhelming." He admitted that the evidence against co-defendant William Rudy Wesson, 45, of Tustin, was "almost totally circumstantial but no less worthy of a guilty verdict."

Morissey condemned as "ludicrous" the defense argument that the wealthy Scudder helped plan the kidnaping in return for a major portion of the $250,000 the kidnapers hoped to get from the victim's wife, Mrs. Valerie Scudder.

"Again, the violence," Morissey said. "Mrs. Scudder was told that if she didn't raise the $150,000 in $50 bills and $100,000 in $20 bills her husband would be eliminated."

Scudder testified as a prosecution witness that he escaped from the kidnapers' van in Fountain Valley by faking a heart attack and then catching the unwary Sellers off guard as the alleged kidnaper tried to revive him.

Sellers admitted that he panicked and fled through the nearest back yard as Scudder, a piece of tape flying from his face and minus the glasses he needs to see, ran down the sidewalk yelling, "heart attack, help me. Kidnap, help me."

But both Sellers and Wesson insisted in their testimony that Scudder helped them plan the kidnap and that two other men who have been identified in the courtroom but not arrested were involved in the plot.

Morissey condemned Wesson Tuesday as "a con man" who planned the kidnaping of Scudder at a time when the victim thought he was dealing with an old friend he first met when Wesson was the manager of the Bank of America's Corona del Mar branch.

"Wesson was the last man to see Jack Scudder before the kidnap and we know what he would have been if the kidnap had been successful," Morissey told the jury.

"He would have been the concerned friend. Wesson, the man we believe to be the man who demanded ransom from Mrs. Scudder, would have been on the telephone again to ask her if he could help in any way."

Morissey argued that Wesson invented the defense of a kidnap plot when he realized that Sellers, his brother-in-law, had been identified by Scudder and could not escape conviction.

tions by the office. When campaign financial disclosure statements were filed late last week, there were indications that Conrad was active last fall in a number of campaigns.

Earlier this week, he said that in addition to Anthony he had helped financially in the campaigns of Assemblyman Richard Robinson (D-Santa Ana), Congressman Jerry Patterson (D-Santa Ana), Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) and former Assemblyman Robert Burke, a Huntington Beach Republican.

Conrad also said a member of his firm, Donald Eckhart, had delivered a $1,000 check to Anthony's election rival, Santa Ana City Councilman Harry Yamamoto.

However, according to Conrad, Yamamoto's campaign manager Pat Burnett, refused to accept the check. Anthony was attending a Board of Supervisors meeting and his campaign manager, Loretta Walker, could not be reached at her office.

Those investigating Conrad's involvement in the political campaigns are reportedly researching those sections of campaign regulations that make it illegal for contributions to be channeled through an intermediary or agent without divulging the true source of the funds.

Newport Outlook Brightens

Financially, things are looking good for the City of Newport Beach.

Councilman Paul Ryckoff, a member of the council's budget committee, made his mid-fiscal year report Monday and noted that, while expenditures in the city's $23.1 million budget appear to be right on schedule, income is ahead of schedule.

Ryckoff's report was an informal preliminary report which will be followed at the Jan. 24 council meeting with a full analysis from city Finance Director George Pappas.

Pappas said that the city's income from sales taxes, bed taxes, gas taxes, building excise taxes and parking meters is running ahead of estimates.

He said the budget estimate on the gas taxes for the fiscal year 1976-77 was $3.34 million. Based on returns after six months, Pappas says the gas tax income for the fiscal year is going to be around $3.5 million.

Pappas, who noted that "the Super Bowl didn't hurt us any," said his staff estimated bed tax income at $541,000 at the start of the fiscal year. He said that income will probably be $670,000.

At the halfway point of the fiscal year, Pappas said income from gas taxes as well as parking meters was up $29,000 each.

But he said the biggest increase of all is from the building excise tax which will probably bring in $250,000 more than anticipated.

Pappas explained that the tax went up 1.5 cents per square foot at the start of the fiscal year — an 8.1 percent increase — but he said the rate increase does not account for the enormous increase in funds from that source.

"There's just an awful lot of building going on," he said.

Tours Slated At Upper Bay Ecology Site

Guided tours of the Upper Newport Bay Ecological Reserve will be conducted on Jan. 22, Feb. 19 and March 19 by the Friends of Newport Bay.

The purpose of the tours is to explain the value of ecological reserves and their importance to birds and marine life. Numerous waterfowl and shorebirds can now be found in the reserve, according to Ronald Hein, biologist for the California Department of Fish and Game, which manages the reserve.

The tours will begin at the intersection of East Bluff and Back Bay Drives, just off Jamboree Road. The first tour leaves at 9 a.m., and the last one leaves at 10:30 a.m. For more information, call Ralph Young or Si Nathenson at (213) 590-5126.

Jury Told

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury was told late Tuesday that it was highly likely that potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder of Newport Beach would have been killed last Aug. 19 if his alleged kidnapers' aborted abduction had been successful.

Prosecutor Bill Morrissey told the panel in his final argument that violence was present in the kidnaping of Scudder, 64, from the moment he was grabbed as he left his dentist's office in Huntington Beach to the moment he gained his freedom by faking a heart attack.

"He was hit so hard that he lost the caps from several of his teeth," the deputy district attorney said.

"He was pummeled about the head and shoulders, his eyes were taped and he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"I wouldn't say that those injuries fitted with the defense picture of a man who helped to plan his own kidnaping," Morrissey said.

He reminded the jury that Scudder had identified defendant Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Hermosa Beach as the "blonde gentleman" who menaced Scudder at gunpoint and who allegedly held the Balboa Island man captive in a motorhome after the gunman's companion had left the vehicle.

Morrissey described the evidence against Sellers as "absolutely overwhelming." He admitted that the evidence against co-defendant William Rudy Wesson, 45, of Tustin, was "almost totally circumstantial but no less worthy of a guilty verdict."

Morrissey condemned as "ludicrous" the defense argument that the wealthy Scudder helped plan the kidnaping in return for a major portion of the $250,000 the kidnapers hoped to get from the victim's wife, Mrs. Valerie Scudder.

"Again, the violence," Morrissey said. "Mrs. Scudder was told that if she didn't raise the $150,000 in $50 bills and $100,000 in $20 bills her husband would be eliminated."

Scudder testified as a prosecution witness that he escaped from the kidnapers' van in Fountain Valley by faking a heart attack and then catching the alleged kidnaper tried to revive him.

Sellers admitted that he panicked and fled through the nearest back yard as Scudder, a piece of tape flying from his face and minus the glasses he needs to see, ran down the sidewalk yelling, "heart attack, help me. Kidnap, help me."

But both Sellers and Wesson insisted in their testimony that Scudder helped them plan the kidnap and that two other men who have been identified in the courtroom but not arrested were involved in the plot.

Morrissey condemned Wesson Tuesday as "a con man" who planned the kidnaping of Scudder at a time when the victim thought he was dealing with an old friend he first met when Wesson was the manager of the Bank of America's Corona del Mar branch.

"Wesson was the last man to see Jack Scudder before the kidnap and we know what he would have been if the kidnap had been successful," Morrissey told the jury.

"He would have been the concerned friend, Wesson, the man we believe to be the man who demanded ransom from Mrs. Scudder, would have been on the telephone again to ask her if he could help in any way."

Morrissey argued that Scudder invented the defense of a kidnap plot when he realized that Sellers, his brother-in-law, had been identified by Scudder and could not escape conviction.

MISSION VIEJO STUDENTS STUDY WORLD ISSUES FOR MODEL UNITED NATIONS

Students Jaunt First Viejo Teens Model U.N. Participants

By LAURIE KASPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Ten Mission Viejo High School students will board a plane for Europe later this month to become the first California group ever to participate in the Model United Nations at the Hague, The Netherlands.

The students will represent Italy and Costa Rica during mock committee, General Assembly and Security Council meetings. Although they're not leaving until Jan. 21, they've already begun some international wheeling and dealing.

The Iraq delegation (students from Brussels) have asked for support of a resolution to restore all antiquities to the country of their origin.

The Costa Rica representatives are supporting the move.

Now they're considering what they can ask for in return. They say they may ask for relief on the price of oil to third world countries.

Italy, however, won't support Iraq's resolution. The country would lose too much if it is passed.

The students' split has nothing to do with how they feel personally about the issue. During the meetings, their thoughts and actions must reflect what the nations they represent would do in the real situation.

The issues scheduled to come to the floor of the Model United Nations are also of concern to the real United Nations.

In fact, said Suzanne Charlton, the adviser who will be traveling with the group, two of the resolutions passed by the Model U.N. last year were passed recently by the real U.N.

So, for the past several weeks, the students have been absorbed in research.

They're learning all they can about their respective countries, parliamentary procedure and such things as the decolonization of the Panama Canal Zone, admission of Vietnam and Korea to the UN, a code of conduct for transnational corporations, an international code of police ethics, South Africa racism, terrorism, disarmament and more.

They're also doing extra projects to make up for the time they'll miss in classes. And, they're taking final exams early.

While keeping up with all this, most of the students are working part-time jobs, speaking to community groups, promoting fundraising parties and selling sponsors' seals to raise the money for the trip.

They're also planning what they'll see during a 10-day tour of London, Amsterdam, Brussels and Paris after the conference and trying to quell their growing excitement.

"Everytime I think about it, I get hyper," admitted Shawn Brooks, a senior who will be going on the trip.

They consider it an honor to be a part of this program. Only three other schools from the (See STUDENTS, Page A2)

Eight Set to Testify In Longet Defense

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet will testify in her manslaughter trial that her lover "quite pointedly told her that little gun wouldn't kill anybody" several months before he was killed by a bullet from the pistol, Miss Longet's lawyer said today.

"Claudine will tell you there was no aiming, no pointing," defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said as he opened the case for the 35-year-old French-born entertainer.

Weedman said he will call about eight witnesses, including her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, in an effort to prove the dark-haired defendant did not recklessly kill pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich on March 21.

"She asked Spider about the safety on his gun. . . I'll leave it to you to decide how her finger pulled that trigger," Weedman said.

"We're going to call Andy back," he said. Williams testified for the prosecution Tuesday, but delivered a vigorous defense of his ex-wife's character.

"We're going to ask him some questions about Claudine's attitude toward security," Weedman said. . . We anticipate he will tell us Claudine had no knowledge of guns."

Weedman said five witnesses will be called to counteract prosecution testimony that Miss Longet was "a crazy gal" who liked to ski fast, drive fast and take chances.

Miss Longet was expected to take the stand to tell jurors her version of what happened when a .22-caliber gun went off in her hands, pumping a single slug into Sabich's abdomen.

Weedman said that by Friday, the manslaughter case could be in the hands of jurors, who must decide whether to accept Miss Longet's claim that the shooting was an accident, or the prosecution's argument that she dis-

MAC Approves Parks

The Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council has approved general plans for development of two key community parks, which now must win final approval of Orange County supervisors.

Casting the lone negative vote during the proceedings was newly seated councilman Jim Dodge, who went on record opposing plans for 9.5-acre Alicia Park because of what he called insufficient parking space.

The plans for five-acre Castilla

Park were approved unanimously, however.

The Castilla proposal was slimmed down by the council, which eliminated rest rooms and two tennis courts, which had been suggested but not budgeted. The final cost for that project will be about $75,000.

The action approving development of Alicia Park at a cost of $240,000 was also conditional. The council asked that further study be given to maintenance costs for the site, which could run as high as $2,850 per month.

In an effort to counter Dodge's opposition to the Alicia plan, William Ackerman of EDWA Inc., the firm that drafted the plans, said there would be adequate parking on residential streets adjacent to the park.

Facilities at Alicia, which is bounded by Via Logrono, Via Galicia and Via Talvarea, will include a children's play area, pic-

Anthony's $10,000 Disputed

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Gene Conrad, a police in-former turned financier, denied today that he contributed $10,000 to Orange County Supervisor Philip Anthony's campaign, disguised as a contribution from a Costa Mesa building supply firm.

Conrad admitted, however, that the $10,000 cashier check given to Anthony's campaign managers was drawn on his funds.

And, he said, the check was delivered by his part-time employee, Loran Norton.

Anthony's campaign disclosure statement shows the donation coming from Robert G. LanFranco, owner of Amco Builders Supply of Costa Mesa.

Conrad said today that at the time the controversial contribution was made, he owed LanFranco $200,000 on a real estate deal.

"I called him (LanFranco) to ask him to make a contribution and he said he would," Conrad said.

He went on to say that he then sent Norton to a bank with a cashier's check he held to convert a portion of it to the $10,000 LanFranco contribution.

According to Conrad, the drawing of the $10,000 check reduced the balance he owed LanFranco from $200,000 to $190,000.

Conrad says he is the sole owner of the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, a firm specializing in locating real estate loans for operators of pension and welfare funds.

Last week, the 42-year-old agent turned financier filed a $170 million lawsuit against the Orange County District Attorney's Office.

The federal lawsuit alleges Conrad's constitutional rights were violated in a series of actions by the office.

However, the reports have yet to be officially reviewed by Deputy District Attorney Bryan Brown and Glavas said he has only received an informal verbal report from the investigators.

OC Jobless Rate Stays 5.9 Percent

Orange County's unemployment rate in December remained at 5.9 percent, according to figures released today by the state Employment Development Department.

Last month's unemployment rate was 1.5 percent under a year earlier when the county was confronted with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.4 percent.

In terms of unemployed people, that means in December of 1976, there were 45,600 countians on the unemployed roll, according to EDD's report.

In contrast, a year earlier the number of unemployed county residents stood at 55,900 people.

Total employment in the county, buoyed by the Christmas retail shopping season, reached 784,300 workers.

EDD's forecasters today said employment generally falls sharply at the close of the Christmas shopping and tourist season.

However, they predicted the decline in the next few months will not be as severe as normally.

Nationwide Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment declined from 8.1 to 7.9 percent last month, the government said today, but the good news was offset by another sharp jump in wholesale prices, particularly for food.

Coffee, pork and poultry costs were the chief ingredients in the biggest rise in farm and food prices in eight months and pushed overall wholesale prices up nine-tenths of a percent in December. Industrial price increases slowed, with natural gas costs turning down after rapidly increasing for several months.

For the year, wholesale prices were 4.7 percent ahead of price levels at the end of 1975, when they posted an annual rise of 4.2 percent.

The improvement in the nation's job picture was an indication the economy is beginning to revive after a summer-fall period of stagnation and rising joblessness. The pause in the business recovery had aroused concern among economists and prompted President-elect Carter to propose a two-year package of tax cuts and rebates and job-creating measures.

Alicia Park Grant Okayed

A $150,000 state grant to develop Alicia Park in Mission Viejo was accepted Tuesday by Orange County supervisors.

The funds were made available under a state bond act approved by voters in 1974.

The 10-acre park site, located northeast of Alicia Parkway and Jeronimo Road, will include picnic facilities, ball diamonds, a playing field and a tot lot, county officials said.

Date Delayed

Oil Leases Await Studies

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The U.S. Interior Department is postponing by 10 months the target date for awarding offshore oil leases to better weigh environmental impacts.

A spokesman for the Department said Tuesday the leasing timetable would be postponed from June until March, 1978, a statement at conflict with earlier ones in which the department talked of tentative leasing in February, 1978, after completion and review of environmental impact studies.

According to published reports, the action by the Interior Department in the last full week of the Ford administration may be moot anyway because of President-elect Carter's promise to take a slow approach to such leasing.

The reports said the latest announcement makes the possibility of new oil drilling off the California coast appear ever more remote than it had been.

College Criticism 'Error'

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The suddenness of the Irvine Company's move to block construction of Saddleback College's second campus on 20 acres of prime agricultural land was apparently the result of bogged-down corporate communications.

A company spokesman said today that the huge firm's agricultural division planners were not fully aware of the scope of the college's proposal until very recently.

"When they gave the proposal more detailed study, they determined that the two uses would not be compatible in that location," said Martin Brauer, company public relations director.

The company irked college officials Monday when it urged the school not to buy its chosen site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue and instead acquire 20 acres at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road about three miles away.

The college has already completed $30,000 worth of appraisals and preliminary design work on the Myford-Bryan site and was within two weeks of closing a deal with the Irvine Company to buy it.

According to Brauer, who said he consulted with top corporate officers when the company's action was revealed, the Myford-Bryan site is not acceptable to the company for several key reasons, including:

—The fact that the site in question is in an area that is not even part of the company's five-year development plan and is not due to be removed from agricultural preserve status until 1984.

—The fact that the site is part of the agricultural division's five-year plan and is planted with a high-risk, high-yield crop (asparagus) that takes five years to mature.

—The fact that all utilities, including water, sewer and power, will have to be brought onto the site at high cost to the college district.

Brauer said the alternative site being offered by the company would probably cost more to buy but would be much cheaper to improve because the utilities are already there.

He also said the company-favored location is more in line with general plan policies, which call for development of contiguous land rather than sites in the middle of incompatible areas.

College trustees have given the company until Monday night to come up with a detailed, "bona fide" offer to sell the alternative sites and strongly indicated that the bid will have to be extremely attractive before they will accept it.

According to Brauer, an inadvertent mistake may have been made within the company's infrastructure, resulting in the seeming "last-minute ploy."

He said the company's land planners were probably not in close enough contact with the agricultural planners during the time when prospective second campus sites were being pondered.

The agricultural division apparently informed company planners working with the college that they would not only lose the output of the 20 acre campus site but would also have to make major adjustments in surrounding agriculture activities.

"When we farm next to urbanized areas, there are certain procedures that are followed to protect both uses," Brauer said.

Williams, 48, wearing an open-neck white shirt, dark sweater and slacks, said of the mother of his three children: "I wouldn't say she was the type to take chances. She was especially careful around children and other people."

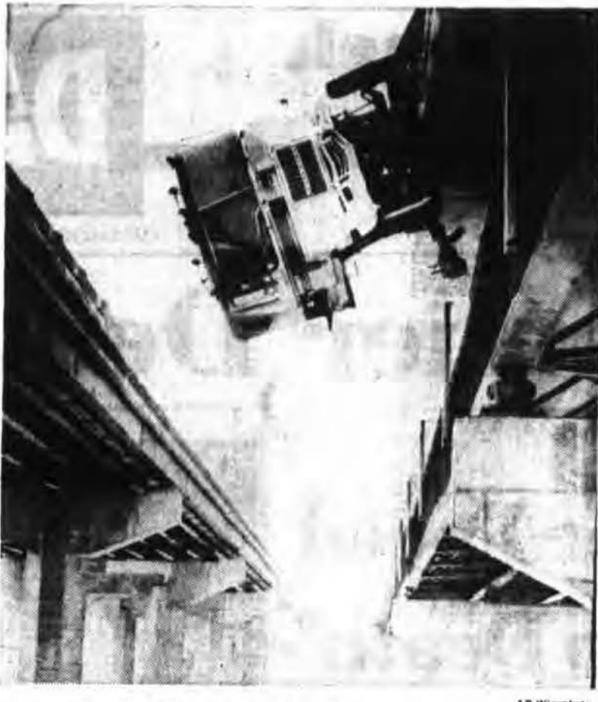

Two dozen persons unable to gain entry to the 70-seat courtroom peered through its glass-topped doors for a glimpse of the television celebrity and his 35-year-old ex-wife.

Williams came to Aspen the day after Sabich was shot in the $250,000 mountain chalet he shared with Miss Longet for two years.

The singer said he talked with his ex-wife after they left the guest house of singer John Denver to stop at the home of Peter and Mary Ann Greene, where their children stayed the night of the shooting.

"She said, 'Spider was showing me how to use the gun, it went 'Boom! Boom!' and went off, and I shot him,'" Williams testified.

"She said, 'You know that if I meant to kill him, I would tell you that,' and said it was an accident."

of labor statistics, said the latest job figures indicate that the unemployment situation "has broken out of the holding pattern" which characterized it for several months.

Coming on the heels of gains in retail sales, industrial production and personal income, Shiskin told the congressional Joint Economic Committee, "it seems likely that the economy has resumed an upward path after the pause during the summer and fall."

The 7.9 percent unemployment rate in December was still slightly higher than the rate at the beginning of the year, when 7.8 percent of the labor force was jobless.

Unemployment dropped from a recession peak of 8.9 percent in May 1975 to a low of 7.3 percent last May. The rate then started rising and stuck on a plateau of 7.8 to 7.9 percent from July through October, before jumping to 8.1 percent in November.

OC Alien Problem To Grow

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A Los Angeles immigration official predicted today that problems with illegal aliens will escalate in Orange County during the coming months.

"I think it's really like the little Dutch boy who put his finger in the dike. It's just too late," said Gene Sabin, an immigration official in the Los Angeles bureau.

"We're just too late in stopping the illegals and I think we're going to see more and more in Orange County," Sabin commented.

He said that for the problem to improve significantly, individual businesses found employing illegals must be penalized.

Final figures from Tuesday morning's raid on an Irvine Industrial Complex company totaled 117, Sabin said.

All but four of the 117 illegal aliens are believed to be from Mexico, with the remaining four from El Salvador and Colombia, he said.

Twenty-four agents arrived at Laguna Manufacturing Company, 17622 Von Karman, Tuesday morning and filled 10 vans with employees who, authorities said, did not have valid papers to be working in this country.

They are being processed in Los Angeles and all but the "perennial troublemakers" will be taken back to the border and returned to Mexico.

Those who have been picked up in raids several times before will have deportation hearings and may be deported. That means it will be a felony if they are caught in this country again.

Immigration officials conducted a similar raid at Laguna Manufacturing last Sept. 23, when 84 aliens were picked up. Sabin explained that they try to "survey" new businesses, but that often the same companies are repeat offenders.

"There is no federal law against companies who hire illegal aliens, so we can't file charges against the different firms," Sabin said.

But he said there is a new state law that can result in a fine for companies caught hiring illegals.

He said he believes it has been used only once, in Santa Barbara, but said he hopes immigration officials can persuade county and city attorneys to begin cracking down on business during the coming year.

'Worst Case'

Reward Offered For Dog Poisoner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A reward is posted for the arrest and conviction of a killer of dogs in "the worst attempt here of mass poisoning of pets that we can remember."

A spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Tuesday a search of the Sunset district uncovered some 30 hamburger patties heavily dosed with deadly strychnine.

Four dogs, a mixed breed, schnauzer, dalmatian and malamute, have suffered deaths from strychnine this week, the SPCA said.

The latest was the mixed breed, a puppy named Baco, whose death Tuesday was mourned by the Rodezno family.

"My son Frank was sick when he heard about it," said Elena Rodezno, his mother. "I cried so much. It was terrible, a horrible death."

The poisoned patties were found in an area bordering Sunset Boulevard and 86th Avenue, the SPCA said, announcing a $250 reward for the arrest and conviction of the poisoner.

SPCA officials said notices of the offer which were pinned up in the neighborhood have been torn down.

"In my experience, there's never been a similar attempt here of mass execution of pets," said Richard Avanzino, local SPCA president.

Some of the dogs killed were on leashes being walked by owners when the animals found the hamburger. Soon afterward, they showed extreme nervousness, grew stiff, salivated heavily and went into convulsions.

Last September, one dog was killed and 10 others sickened from poisoned meat scattered in the same area.

Avanzino said an anonymous caller telephoned the SPCA, warning that the poisonings would continue if "owners let their dogs run loose."

STUDENTS

United States will be in attendance when it convenes in the Peace Palace of the Hague.

The trip was proposed by Lisa Dominguez, a junior who last year attended as a representative of Israel from the American School of Madrid.

"It was very hard getting the thing going because no one thought there was any time to do anything about it," she said.

But Mrs. Charlton, a foreign language teacher, joined the effort, district approval was obtained and students were recruited from the mentally gifted minors program and advanced language classes.

Steve McGee felt it was an opportunity to learn the history, politics and culture of other countries from their point of view.

"I love to argue," said Miss Brooks. So, she explained, she is looking forward to the opportunity to debate.

Miss Dominguez, who plans a diplomatic career, considers it an excellent experience. Noting that the UN is "very important for world peace," she said, "If we do not discuss things among ourselves, how would we know what every body else is doing?"

Mrs. Charlton believes the program will help build leadership and independence among her students. But most importantly, she said, it will broaden their view of the world.

She predicts they'll learn more from these two weeks than they would from a year of formal school.

The suspect, Richard William Sutton, 20, of San Clemente, was captured about a block from the market. Police alleged he was armed with a loaded .38-caliber revolver.

He has been bound over for trial in Superior Court on charges that he is responsible for a series of market robberies throughout the south coast area including the one that ended with the shooting.

That investigation will officially conclude with a written report from Brown. The prosecutor could not be reached for comment about the investigators' findings and the release date of that report.

County Okays Alicia Project

An agreement between Orange County and a private developer to build a portion of Alicia Parkway in Laguna Hills was approved Tuesday by supervisors.

Under the agreement Moreland Development Company and the county will share costs for extending Alicia southwest from Paseo de Valencia to Moulton Parkway.

A report to supervisors said the county's share of building the road is expected to be about $500,000, while the firm's share is expected to be about $700,000.

nic spaces, restrooms, four lighted baseball fields and facilities for soccer and football.

Castille Park is bounded by Via La Coruna, Via Oviedo, Via Navarra and Via Bayona. Deletion of planned restrooms at that facility reduced expected maintenance costs to only $750 per month, council members were told.

Because the bulk of the development costs will be borne by county and state grant funds, the plans must win the approval of county supervisors. Added incentive was provided by the Mission Viejo Company, which has agreed to provide $17,000 per acre worth of basic landscaping and irrigation work.

Car Dealers Cut Disclosure Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) - If you bought a car from a dealer who arranged the financing, you may have spent several hundred dollars more in finance charges than you had to.

The extra money went as a payment from the lending institution to the dealer in return for steering the business its way.

FRANK ANNUNZIO, (D-ILL.), chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee, said such payments are "under-the-table kickbacks" that "have cost consumers millions in the past few years."

Under pressure from Annunzio and others in Congress, the Federal Reserve Board is expected to require disclosure of the payments, beginning next month. Then, the lending institution will have to inform borrowers that the car dealer is getting a cut of the finance charge.

The disclosure rule would apply to any credit arrangement used to finance autos or other consumer goods. Annunzio said the system works like this:

A CAR DEALER TELLS A CUSTOMER, "Don't go to a bank for a loan. I have someone I always work with. I'll arrange it for you." The dealer doesn't say there is an extra cut in it for him.

The lending institution gives about one-third of the interest charges or the bank may set an interest rate and tell the dealer that he can keep anything over that amount. In one case discovered by the subcommittee, a car buyer spent $791 in finance charges of which $272 went back to the dealer.

"A consumer has a right to know his dealer is getting a kickback from the lender, a kickback that the consumer pays for. With this knowledge, a consumer would know he can probably get a lower finance charge through direct financing," Annunzio said.

The finance industry disagrees with Annunzio. "I DOUBT IF IT WILL AMOUNT TO the millions that Congressman Annunzio is talking about. If dealers didn't get this money, they would have to charge more as the basic cost of the car," said a spokesman for the National Consumer Finance Organization.

"This is a way of business that has gone on for many, many years and these payments are not kickbacks," he said. Last August, the Federal Reserve Board, responsible for enforcing the Truth in Lending Act of 1968, issued a proposed regulation that would have allowed the practice to continue. The 1968 law requires lenders to notify consumers of credit terms so that they can make informed choices when shopping for a loan.

ANNUNZIO AND OTHERS PROTESTED to the Federal Reserve that the interpretation went against the intent of Congress. He called the proposed regulation "a cover-up of the dealer-lender relationship."

The Fed now has issued an amendment to force disclosure of the fees to dealers. The new requirement is expected to remain in the rules when they become effective after Feb. 4, the deadline for public comment.

The disclosure won't detail the size of the dealer's cut. But it will alert you that the dealer is taking a share of something that otherwise would appear to be going to the lender.

Spill Risk Profit Motive Cited

SEATTLE (AP) - The financial condition of the tanker ship industry has increased the likelihood of oil spills, according to an expert in oil pollution cleanup.

Bob Allen, vice president and general manager of the pollution control division of Marine Construction and Design Company (Marco), said it has become cheaper to charter an old tanker than to take a safer one out of mothballs.

MOREOVER, HE SAID, the low charter rates don't provide enough money for the operators to be able to make safety repairs.

Marco holds the patent on a fabric that soaks up oil while rejecting water and has sold 45 skimmers, including two dozen to the Navy, in recent years.

Two Marco skimmers helped contain oil from the tanker Sansinena, which exploded at San Pedro. The Navy had four Marco skimmers on alert when the Argo Merchant broke up off Nantucket, Mass., but they were not deployed.

ALLEN, WHOSE FIRM BUILDS fishing boats as well as oil-skimming vessels, returned recently from talks with oil industry officials in London and Europe.

"People tell me that tanker charter rates are so low they can't afford to take a ship out of layup," he said. "Startup costs are more than what they'd earn on the charter. Spot tanker charter rates are running as little as a tenth of what they were during the oil embargo."

"Many of the tankers sailing under these conditions are 20 or 30 years old. Their operators are running on a shoestring."

"THEY'RE PRESSED TO the limit, and they couldn't afford to maintain their ships even if they wanted to." Allen said the main exceptions are tankers under long-term charters with rates that cover safety and maintenance more adequately.

Mercury Announces Record in Earnings

Mercury Savings & Loan Association, Huntington Beach, has announced unaudited 1976 operating results that showed annual growth and earnings approximately 1 1/2 times greater than the previous highest year.

Mercury reported assets of approximately $340 million at Dec. 31, up from $245 million at yearend 1975. Earnings for 1976, net after-tax accrual, reached $1.32 a share, compared with the previous record year of 65 cents and 1975 earnings of 34 cents a share.

Net after-tax earnings reached approximately $3.8 million, compared with the previous record year of $1.5 million. Unaudited figures were consolidated with Mercury's wholly owned service corporation subsidiary.

Milk Prices Begin Drop

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A private researcher says milk prices have dropped about 3 cents a half-gallon in San Diego markets since California decontrolled retail prices last week.

The California Public Interest Research Group said 20 volunteers checked prices at 27 major chain stores. Miles Frieden, co-director of the group, said those stores reduced prices to 66 cents with the exception of one, which dropped its price to 65 cents.
