'Legal' Group's Tactics Judged Questionable

By JOANNE REYNOLDS

The Judges, Marshals and Constables Association of California (JMC) bills itself as a non-profit group formed to better the workings of the state's courts.

But the organization apparently has no representatives from the Orange County court system. Additionally, its non-profit corporate status was revoked by the state in 1972.

Jaws Act Gummed Up

Things were getting complicated at "Jaws," a tavern on Newport Boulevard, Universal Studios sued bar owner John Bellamy over use of the name. Bellamy filed a countersuit. Now the seller of suds says he's going to pull the teeth on his shark-maw bar entrance and end all his legal entanglements by renaming the place "Captain Dinghy's Wharf." Universal quickly agreed to drop their suit, Bellamy said. "They wanted the name down pretty bad."

Fire Pole's Days Numbered

Time is sliding by fast for a Huntington Beach fire station's brass pole, which will be eliminated when the station is torn down to make way for a new one. The 25-foot solid brass pole may wind up in a museum. Says Capt. Roger Hosmer, "Sliding down poles to get to the fire equipment in such a hurry made things more exciting."

Irvine

Bark Flies, Bite Follows

The City of Irvine may stop barking their dismay over plans to cut eucalyptus trees to make room for new developments, and take a bite from the hide of the Presley Companies for cutting 38 trees in the new Orangetree development. Fines of $500 per tree are possible, unless the city requires replanting of 38 new trees instead.

Host Helping Handicapped

Saddleback College's radio station packs a mere 10 watts wallop, but the message comes through loud and clear for the handicapped who listen to talk show host Joseph DeMarco each Wednesday night. His program, called "Wider Horizons," usually centers on the problems of specific handicaps and features guests who give advice on overcoming them. The station, KSBR at 88.5 FM, has an application pending with the FCC to boost the station's power to 3,000 watts, allowing coverage of much of the Orange County area. DeMarco says he is trying to sell the idea of his program for the handicapped to a commercial station. DeMarco, by the way, is legally blind, a result of the multiple sclerosis that struck him at age 16.

Second Sex Suit Sought

Once was not enough for Gail Samota, who last week filed a second sex discrimination suit against her employer, the City of San Juan Capistrano. The first suit centered on her claim that the city paid a male worker more for equal work. Her second suit alleges the city has threatened to fire her for filing the first. The firing threat followed her demotion to clerk typist after the city said she failed her probationary period. City Manager James Mocalis remained mum on the charges, saying that this is "a personal matter."

Newport Beach

Chip Scion Kidnapers Guilty

An Orange County jury has found two men guilty of kidnaping potato chip heir John H. "Jack" Scudder. The pair had demanded $250,000 ransom for return of the Newport Beach resident, but Scudder escaped before the ransom was paid by feigning a heart attack. Facing sentencing are William Rudy Wesson, 45, and Ricki Dale Sellers, 21. Their lawyers claimed Scudder had hired them to fake a kidnap in order to solve money problems, a claim the jury apparently chose not to believe.

'My Emissary'

Mondale Heads for Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Saturday that Vice President Walter F. Mondale, "my personal emissary," will carry "a very heavy and substantive agenda" for meetings with foreign leaders when he begins a round-the-world trip today.

Carter told reporters that he and the heads of government in the European nations and Japan that Vice President Walter F. Mondale will visit established the agenda together. He said it includes "very specific questions," but did not say what the questions concerned.

Officials have said Mondale is taking the 10-day trip to familiarize U.S. allies with the Carter administration and to consult with them on international economic problems.

Mondale, in the administration's first diplomatic mission, will visit Brussels for talks with officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market. He then goes to Bonn, West Berlin, Rome, London, Paris and Tokyo.

Carter called the meetings "much more than an honorary thing."

"The agenda is the same as if I were making the trip myself," he said, adding that Mondale has been briefed by national security advisers and the secretaries of state, commerce, defense and treasury.

"All the leaders know that when they see Mondale, he is coming there as my personal emissary," Carter said.

Voelkl protests he has nothing to do with what goes into the magazine. That's up to the organization, he says. He just sells the ads.

The ads range in size from one column inch, which goes for $22.50, to the back page, which costs $660.

The magazine itself is printed on light-weight bond paper with nothing but black and white drawings except for the five photos in the inside and the picture of the group's president that is on the cover.

Voelkl says all of the issues are of that quality except that the November-December edition at 82 pages is by far the biggest. This month's, he notes, ran only 32 pages.

One Newport Beach businessman, whose firm had a $112-ad in the big issue says he has no records of the ad, nor any recollection of having ordered it.

Speaking of association magazines generally, he said that he has discovered that the ads are solicited in one or two ways.

If there is a personal friend actively involved in the organization, the businessman will be approached to place an ad. He said he usually does so willingly.

The second method is for his firm to receive a letter containing a photocopy of an ad and a notice saying that this is the ad ordered as per a previous agreement and unless the businessman cancels it, it will run and he will be billed.

He said the ad copy is usually clipped from some other source and until a recent problem with another association publication, those confirmation-solicitation ads were paid just as the personally solicited ones were.

In discussing his solicitation practices, Voelkl said he uses personal contacts, phone or mail solicitations, but he denied using the practice outlined by the businessman.

According to Voelkl, the association was incorporated in 1934 and has subsequently been granted tax-exempt non-profit status by state and federal agencies.

He said he uses copies of a 1968 letter from the state Franchise Tax Board and a 1953 letter from

AROK THE ROBOT GOES TO GET THE MAIL. Builder Made His Helper With Discarded Parts

At His Service Robot Does Dirty Work

PALOS HILLS, Ill. (AP) — Ben Skora doesn't have to walk out to the street to pick up his mail or put out the garbage. He's got a robot that does that work — and is capable of chatting with the postman and the trash collectors.

The robot is Arok (Skora in reverse, without the 'S'), a 275-pound, radio-controlled servant who stands 6-feet-4-inches tall in his bare wheels, looking something like an astronaut in full uniform.

When Skoras throws a party, Arok is sometimes used to answer the door and announce the guests. Then he brings ash trays, hors d'oeuvres and drinks.

In good weather, Arok is stationed in the driveway. "Motorists really do a double take," laughs Skora.

Skora, a hypnotherapist, is an electronics buff on the side. Before he built Arok, Skora made a driverless car that could roll into a drive-in restaurant and order food with a voice coming from a speaker.

He says it took him six years to build the robot and estimates his labor alone at $800,000. He values Arok at $1 million.

Battery-powered Arok has an aluminum body with movable arms covered with flexible exhaust tubing used on clothes dryers. His molded hands can be clamped onto objects to hold them.

A plexiglass shield covers a rubber mask face. Arok's lips move when he talks (Skora's voice through a speaker). Other parts came from autos and appliances redesigned by Skora to suit his needs.

"I'm always adding something new to him," says Skora. "I can control him from two miles away. I'm going to put little TV cameras in the robot's eyes. Then I could control him for greater distances and he could be used as a guide for tours such as at Brookfield Zoo.

"He moves on wheels now, but I'm working on a system that will enable him to walk like a human."

Westminster Girl's Rites Slated Today

Private funeral services will be held today for a 7-year-old Westminster girl whose body was discovered inside a spare refrigerator at her home Friday.

The services for Patricia Lynn Thomas of 13751 Edwards St. will be held at Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminster.

Miss Thomas, who reportedly had stayed home from school Friday because of illness, was found by her mother when she returned from work. The body of the family cat was found alongside the girl.

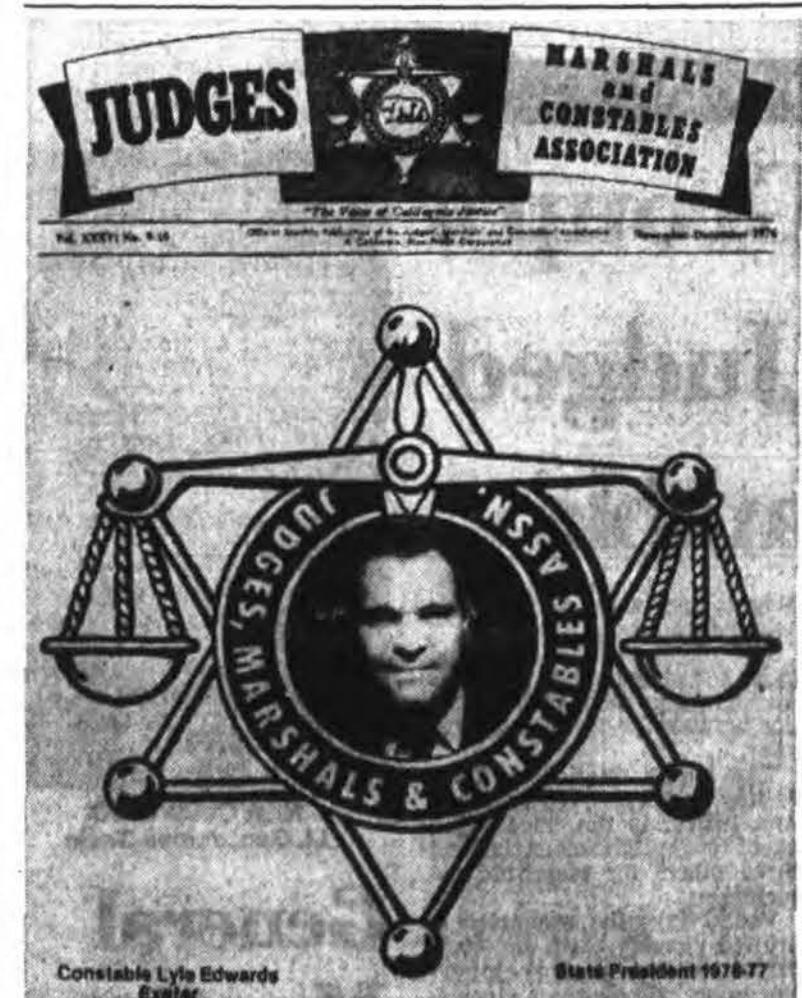

Survivors include the mother, Mary Thomas; father, Jack Thomas of Santee, Calif.; a sister, Deborah; and four grandparents: Homer and Margaret Earnest of Westminster and William and Ruth Thomas of Los Angeles.

Police Probe Girl's Death

Police are continuing to work through the weekend in an attempt to identify the body of a young woman apparently killed by gunshot wounds and found on a remote hillside in Orange.

No solid clues to her identity and no suspect had been uncovered by late Saturday, although the body was found Friday by a passing motorcyclist.

The woman was described as in her late teens, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing about 115 pounds with brown shoulder-length hair. She was wearing tangerine colored pants, a cardigan sweater and a white muslin blouse.

BEHIND MAGAZINE COVER IS NOT WHAT YOU'D EXPECT the federal Internal Revenue Service to back up the tax exemption claim in his sales pitch.

He also acknowledged that he tells prospective ad-buyers the organization is non-profit, in spite of the fact that records maintained by the state Secretary of Corporations show that status was suspended in April, 1972.

Voelkl said he was surprised about the suspension and guessed it was done because of a lapse in paperwork on the part of the association's members.

A spokesman for the state Franchise Tax Board would not give any details of the suspension of the association's corporate status, but said it was done because the group had either failed to file annual reports with the board or because the group had not paid its annual fees.

The spokesman further said the suspension means that in the eyes of the law, the corporation has ceased to exist and cannot legally conduct business.

Would the selling of ads in an association magazine constitute a violation of the law? It definitely would, the tax board spokesman said.

Voelkl said he has no plans to suspend his business activities since he is working on a contract with the organization.

No one from the organization itself could be reached for comment.

Guess Which Season

Judging from the bumper-to-bumper highway scene or the attire of Marty Wilson of Laguna Beach as he does a nifty handstand on his skateboard, it would appear to be midsummer. Daily Pilot Photographer Patrick O'Donnell caught these glimpses among the throngs who found Saturday's sunshine irresistible. Those drivers who were disgruntled by the traffic jam should have been grateful at least that they could start their cars in winter, which is more difficult than usual back East.

Unnatural Life

Biochemist Warns Of Test Dangers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A biochemist has told the California Legislature it should ban most of a new kind of research that is producing unnatural life forms.

Dr. Liebe Cavaliere of Cornell University said the danger of unleashing some dangerous new organism on the world outweighs the chance of producing some boon to mankind.

Testifying before a hearing held by two Assembly committees, Cavaliere said: "I personally think the risk is not worth it."

The state should prohibit the new research, he said, into "recombinant DNA" except at one or two laboratories under strict state control.

Another witness said the research is going on in at least eight California university laboratories and in private industrial labs.

Cavaliere said there is not only a danger of releasing some unstoppable disease-causing organism, there is a possibility of terrorists obtaining some and blackmailing society.

"That's not science fiction," he said.

The experiments are with "recombinant DNA," which enables scientists to combine genetic material from different species, producing hybrids that have never before existed in nature.

Clifford Grobstein, a biologist from the University of California at San Diego, told the hearing that the experiments could lead to such things as better and cheaper pharmaceuticals, "gene therapy" against hereditary defects, new ways to treat cancer, and crops that don't need fertilizer.

But he added they also could produce new methods of biological warfare, and carry the danger of "unexpected" possibilities — such as creation of new disease-causing organisms.

Ship Strings Pearl Along

HONOLULU (AP) — The abandoned Panamanian freighter Crown Pearl was taken in tow Saturday by the Liberian bulk carrier Asia Loyalty some 865 miles north of Honolulu, the Coast Guard reported.

The 400-foot Crown Pearl, with a load of logs bound for Japan from Tacoma, Wash., was abandoned by its 25-man crew Jan. 16, after the captain radioed his ship was in danger of sinking.

The crew was rescued by another ship which continued on to Japan.

The Asia Loyalty radioed it planned to tow the Crown Pearl into Honolulu, the spokesman said. He estimated the trip would take about a week.

Enterprise Shown Off

Whales Vie With Latest Competitor

By ALMON LOCKABEY

Enterprise, the newest U.S. 12-meter sloop which will compete for the right to defend the America's Cup this year, was put through her paces off San Diego's Point Loma Friday with her full crew aboard for the first time.

Enterprise is the 27th U.S. 12-meter to take shape, thus leading to her battle cry for the U.S. trials off Newport, R.I. come next June: "27 in 77."

Friday's preview of the Olin Stephens-designed sloop was witnessed by a full-house crowd of newspaper, magazine and television reporters as she glided across the smooth waters off Point Loma in a moderate breeze. On another chase boat was her designer Stephens with a camera glued to his eye to record every sail curvature and attitude of the yacht as the crew put her through beating, reaching and running maneuvers with the sails built by her skipper, Lowell North of San Diego.

Only competition afforded Enterprise on Friday was a pod of gray whales which paced the vessel and occasionally raised their giant snouts for a look at the graceful sloop before sounding.

"The presence of the whales was a little scary at times but our instruments showed that we actually had a little more speed," grinned North at a press briefing on shore.

At the helm of Enterprise was Malin Burnham, noted San Diego Yacht Club skipper, who has been named by North as his tactician and upwind helmsman during the official trials and during the actual Cup defense if Enterprise can defeat three other contenders in the fight to become the defender in 23rd campaign next September.

Ironically, Enterprise has logged much more land mileage at this point than she will at sea during the entire campaign.

After her launching and commissioning at Minneford's Shipyard, City Island, N.Y. on Dec. 4, she was towed to the Maritime College, her official owner, where she was prepared for a 3,000-mile cruise across the country by truck to Driscoll's Custom Boat Yard in San Diego for final outfitting.

Enterprise was trucked to San Diego in two parts. At the Maritime College the hull was lifted from the lead keel and the two parts shipped on separate trucks.

After an intense campaign of testing and crew training in Southern California she will again be dismantled for another truck voyage across the country to Newport, R.I. in time for the preliminary trials starting June 18. The yacht is expected to leave San Diego by trucks about May 15.

But Enterprise will have plenty of competition before beginning her 3,000-mile return trip to the East Coast.

Edward du Moulin, project manager for the Enterprise, announced that the Maritime College has chartered the 12-meter Intrepid, successful Cup defender in 1967 and 1970, and a defense contender in 1973, as a trial horse for Enterprise in Southern California waters.

Intrepid is being shipped from Honolulu to San Diego where Gerry Driscoll will put her in shape and skipper her in training races against Enterprise. If Intrepid does well against Enterprise Driscoll may recruit a crew and ship her east for the trials.

Burnham, rated as one of the top yacht racing helmsmen in the country, said Enterprise handles easily and appeared to have good boat speed in her trial runs.

In practice sessions by herself, computers aboard are recording performances under various conditions which are being compared with similar records on Courageous, the 12-meter that defeated Australia in four straight races in 1974.

North said the selection of the 11-man Enterprise crew began with the nucleus of Intrepid's 1974 crew who then chose others to sail with them. The crew, including the five who crewed on Intrepid, are familiar hames in the world of yacht racing both in this country and abroad.

North himself is a former three-time world champion in the Star Class and a gold medalist in the class in 1968. He is considered one of the premier helmsmen in the world in any class.

Burnham is also a former world champion Star sailor, having won the title when he was 17. He has been twice runner-up in Olympic trials and is considered an ace skipper in offshore yachting. Burnham will be North's tactician and upwind helmsman. The two have sailed together and against each other since their youth.

Other members of the Enterprise crew:

Emrys R. Black, Newport Beach, crewed on Intrepid and has coached ocean racing at the U.S. Naval Academy.

James A. Caldwell, Seattle, Wash., also crewed on Intrepid and has sailed in major Southern California ocean races.

Rod Davis, Placentia, crewed on the 1976 winner of the Ocean Racing Conference (SORC) in 1976 and numerous other major races.

Steve Taft, Mill Valley, Calif., crewed on Intrepid and has participated in a score of other prestigious races.

Richard T. du Moulin, New York, will be the navigator aboard Enterprise, the same role he played on Intrepid. He also served in the same capacity aboard Constellation in the 1967 Cup campaign.

John Marshall, Wilton, Conn. will be the sail trimmer on Enterprise. He served in the same capacity on Intrepid in 1974. He was a bronze medalist in the Olympics in the same year, and is head of North's sail loft in Connecticut.

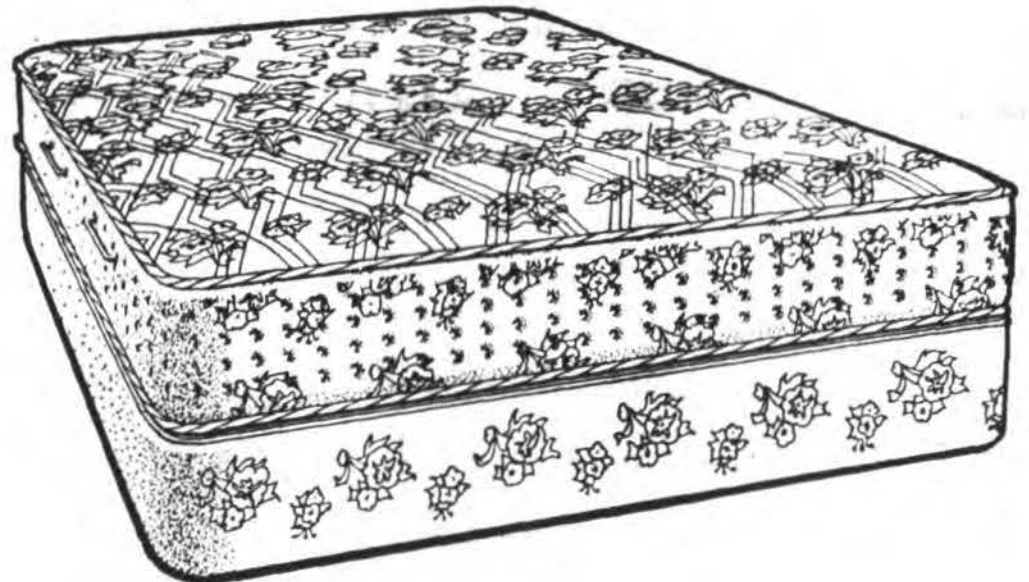

Roger Le Blanc, Scituate, Mass. has competed in many East Coast ocean racing events, the Bermuda race and other competitions.

Donald Kohlman, Alameda, is well known as a crew in West Coast yachting circles.

Andy MacGowan, Long Island, N.Y. crewed on Intrepid in 1974 and Weatherly in 1970, and has been a winning skipper in Mediterranean championships.

Project manager du Moulin said the Enterprise is not being billed as a West Coast effort for the America's Cup despite a pre-dominance of West Coast crew and personnel involved.

ENTERPRISE TAKES TO SMOOTH WATERS OFF SAN DIEGO Crew Practices on Newest U.S. 12-meter Sloop for First Time

East's Economy Frozen in Cold Wave

By The Associated Press

With thousands out of work, homes chilly and fuel shortages looming, additional cold weather and snow may be on their way to the eastern half of the nation after barely a two-day break in the cold wave.

The National Weather Service issued winter storm watches for today in Indiana, southern Illinois, northern Kentucky, northeastern Kansas, southeastern Iowa and most of Missouri.

LAYOFFS CONNECTED WITH the cold wave continued to plague the eastern half of the nation despite the moderating temperatures toward the end of the week.

Up to 22,000 coal miners have been laid off in West Virginia because coal has frozen in railroad cars, and river barges normally available have been stopped by ice. In Georgia, at least 50,000 workers are laid off because there isn't enough natural gas to run mills and factories.

Pennsylvania state officials reported Saturday that 265,000 workers were idled during the past week because of the cold wave.

Other states also reported thousands of workers laid off by plant closings or partial shutdowns because of energy cutbacks.

For the Southeast the problem goes back to the early fall.

October was 105 percent colder than normal in the South, November 52 percent, December 24 percent and early January 50 percent, said Frank Harrison of Southern Natural Gas.

That meant Southern Natural had to begin dipping into its reserves at its huge Muldin storage field in Mississippi too soon. By this week, the field was more than two-thirds empty, he said.

"WE NORMALLY DON'T BEGIN" withdrawing gas from that field until December," said Harrison. "This year, it was so cold in October that we had to withdraw two billion cubic feet of gas in October."

"It will be at least three or four weeks before we have some gas available for industry," said Walter M. Stark, executive vice president of Southern Natural Gas.

Georgia officials said the shutdowns are costing an estimated $20 million per week in lost production of goods and services.

"This thing is of crisis proportions from an industry standpoint," said Gene Dyson, president of the Georgia Business and Industry Association. "Even with an immediate warm-up, it would take at least a month to even get things back to normal. It looks like a catastrophe on the horizon."

IF THE COLD WEATHER and fuel shortages continue, he said, as many as 150,000 to 200,000 Georgians could be laid off within a week or two.

As an example of the severe energy drain, Alabama burned nearly two and one-half times its normal consumption of natural gas during last week's four-day cold snap, critically taxing both supply and reserves, officials said.

The little town of Hurley, Wis., lost its water supply over the weekend when the lake from which the water came was frozen to a point below the intake pipes. Efforts to connect to the nearby Ironwood, Mich., water system were frustrated by frozen pipes.

Seek Amendment

Abortion Foes March in Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of abortion marched from the Capitol to the White House on Saturday to demonstrate their support for a constitutional amendment to ban them.

Saturday was the fourth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision that eased legal restrictions on abortions.

Officials of the "March for Life" estimated the number of demonstrators at 100,000. Capitol police estimated the crowd at 35,000.

THE MARCHERS BUNDLED themselves against temperatures and winds in the 20s, and waved signs such as "Give Life a Chance," and "Life Not Death" and "Life Ain't Peanuts, Jimmy."

Nellie J. Gray, president of the "March for Life" organization, said she met Saturday with Jack Watson, an aide to President Carter, and urged that no federal funds be spent for abortions and that Carter "establish a pro-life leadership."

The marchers rallied at the Ellipse behind the White House for 30 minutes and listened to speeches against abortion and in favor of the constitutional amendment.

AT AN EARLIER rally on the west steps of the Capitol, former New York Sen. James L. Buckley (R-Con.-N.Y.) said that under the Supreme Court's liberalization of abortion laws "a million lives will be taken every year unless we stop it."

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (R-Utah) said abortions "are an epidemic that ought to be stamped out now." Rep. Robert E. Bauman (R-Md.) said "abortion is nothing short of murder."

The crowd listened to speeches for roughly an hour in the bitter cold and then began chanting: "March! March! March!" In response, Mrs. Gray speeded up the program and the demonstrators soon were marching up Pennsylvania Avenue toward the White House, the same route that Carter had walked in his inaugural parade.

KAREN MULHAUSER, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League, which supports legalized abortions, reacted to the demonstration by saying: "It is outrageous the narrow views of a few could be imposed on all citizens simply because a majority... is unaware of the threat to legal abortion."

The demonstrators should work to combat the causes of unwanted pregnancies and thus reduce the need for abortions, Mrs. Mulhauser said.

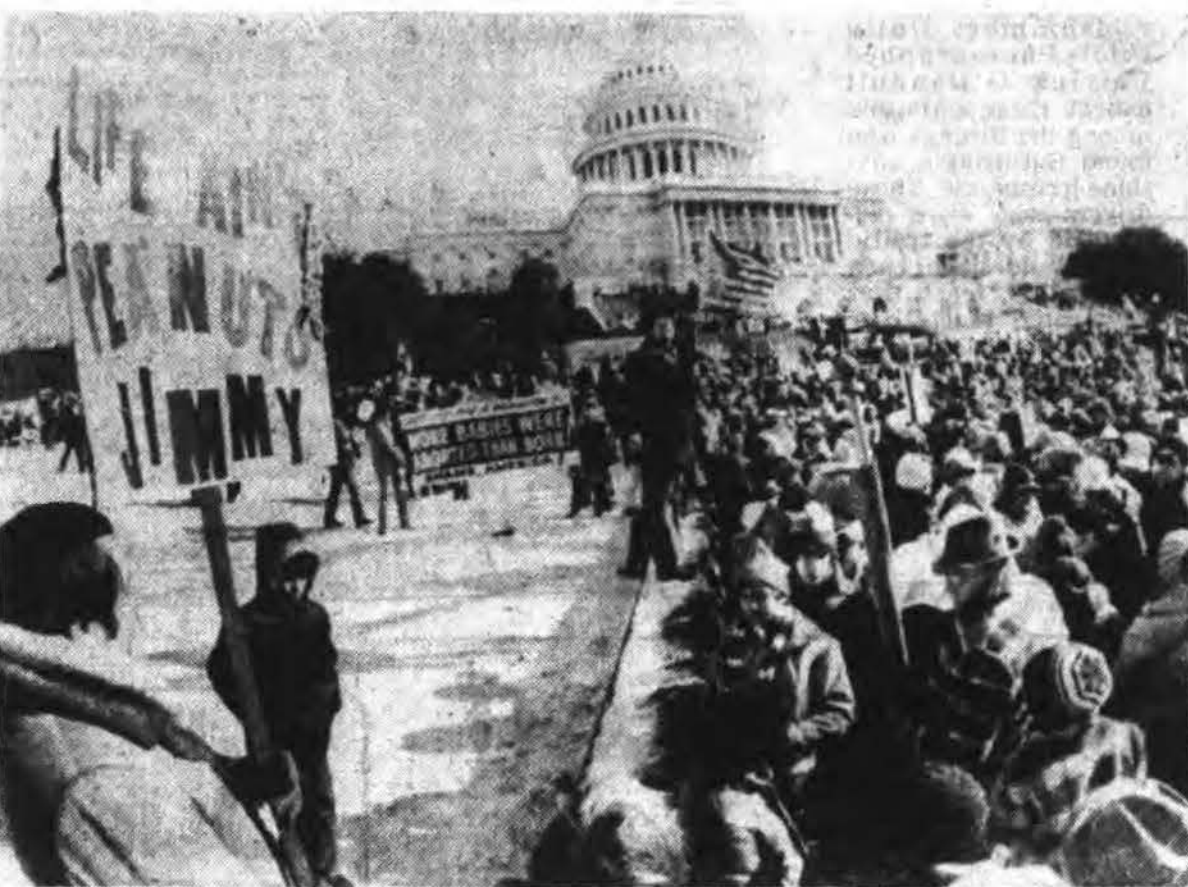

Hughes Will Deal Nixed

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Melvin Dummar may be given safe passage out of Nevada if he testifies Tuesday in a court hearing in Las Vegas on the so-called Mormon will of Howard Hughes.

Dummar was named a heir to the estate in the document the Ogden man recently admitted placing in the headquarters in Salt Lake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), which was also named a beneficiary.

"All I can tell you is we're coming to Las Vegas. If we're coming, we're coming to testify," Dummar's attorney John Sampson said in Ogden.

Nevada Atty. Gen. Robert List and Clark County Dist. Atty. George Holt have opposed granting Dummar's demand for immunity in exchange for his testimony.

Race Riots in Britain?

LONDON (AP) — Enoch Powell, right-wing member of Parliament, stirred sharp controversy Saturday with a prediction that racial civil war looms in Britain.

The statement to a Conservative meeting at Stretford, Manchester, brought immediate calls for Powell's prosecution on charges of inciting racial violence. He had ridiculed such charges in advance by remarking: "The custom of killing messengers who bring bad news is not confined to the kings and tyrants of antiquity or of fiction."

Powell asserted that immigrants and those of immigrant descent are taking over key areas and functions in Britain, building positions of strength and privilege which he predicted will be used as bases to secure still greater positions.

He said this development occurs while the non-white population of more than two million is growing at the rate of 100,000 a year and the indigenous British white population of some 58 million declines.

This, he forecast, will lead to a "catastrophic" result. "Just a few thugs, a few shots, a few bombs at the right place and time," he warned, "and that is enough for disproportionate consequences to follow."

The facts point to "the prospect of eventual conflict upon a scale which cannot adequately be described by any term less than civil war," said Powell, who was once regarded as a possible future Conservative prime minister.

First Flu Outbreak Gives Few Clues

ATLANTA (AP) — This season's first outbreak of flu has been reported, but scientists still are unable to predict whether there will be an epidemic this winter.

The outbreak, of the Influenza B type of virus, not swine flu, was reported among students at Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn. The school's clinic was seeing between 60 and 70 students a day last week with flu-like respiratory illnesses.

Mate's Boo Goes Boom

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Police say Randolph Gurganus surprised his wife with a "boo" and got shot in return.

Gurganus, 26, left for work last week but found frigid weather had closed his business.

When he came home, he couldn't get in because his wife, who was taking a shower, had bolted the doors.

When Mrs. Gurganus heard the noise her husband was making, she wrapped herself, picked up a pistol and went to investigate.

Said an investigator "He must have decided to play a joke on her. 'He jumped out and yelled 'boo,' and she shot."

Gurganus was treated for a flesh wound in the chest at a local hospital and was released. No charges were filed.

Peso Cut Again

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — A drop in the value of the Mexican peso last week disrupted commerce all along the Mexican side of the border with the United States. Mexican bankers and businessmen here have expressed hope that the government would soon peg the peso at 20 per dollar.

Midwest Braces Again

U.S. Summary

Parts of the Midwest prepared Saturday for stormy winter weather while the West and Southwest continued with sometimes heavy snow and rain.

Snow fell in higher elevations from California's Sierras into the central Rockies and over parts of Arizona. And there was rain across the Plains. In much of Texas and western Oklahoma and western Kansas.

Freezing rain and snow were forecast for the remainder of the weekend for the central Plains westward into the middle Mississippi Valley and the Ohio Valley. A winter storm watch was up for northeast Kansas, southeast Iowa, most of Missouri, southern Illinois, northern Kentucky and all of Indiana.

Saturday brought snow showers and flurries to an area from New York state to northern Vermont and over West Virginia and snow over Michigan. One inch of new snow fell at Syracuse, N.Y.

Colder skies were limited to the Atlantic Coast and the northwestern Plains. Cool temperatures continued in the Southeast, with Florida still in the 50s and 60s, and the north in the 30s prevailed across the northern parts of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

Orlando, Fla., had its sixth consecutive night of below freezing temperatures. The temperature was 40 or below in Miami, and in the Northeast, afternoon readings were in the teens or below.

California

After a day of typically Southern California rain — drizzles and the threat of them — fair skies and warm temperatures will remain in the area today, forecasters said.

But farmers were to get a break, albeit a slight one, with some light rain falling on most of the region through late Saturday, National Weather Service said.

The highs in Los Angeles today are expected to be near 70, with lows dipping to the upper 40s. Southern California coastal and intermediate valleys were expected to be fair and slightly warmer, with highs in the upper 60s. The NWS said that the mountain areas will also be fair and warmer, with highs in the 50s and lows in the 30s.

The desert areas can expect the same, fair today and slightly warmer, with the temperature reaching the mid-60s.

Coastal Weather POINT CONCEPTION TO MEXICAN BORDER AND 40 MILES OUT — Light variable winds through tonight except showers 8 to 15 knots with 1 to 2 foot wind waves this afternoon. Two to 3 foot westerly swells. Variable clouds through tonight.

Florida Declared 'Disaster'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Reubin Askew declared Florida a disaster area Saturday after receiving preliminary reports on the extent of crop damage from last week's freeze.

The declaration activates emergency plans prepared by state and local agencies and sets the stage for Askew to ask President Carter for a federal disaster declaration.

Askew said a federal declaration would not be sought until a more complete damage picture is available.

"ONE OF Florida's traditional sources of economic strength, the agriculture industry, has been devastated to varying degrees by the severe cold-weather conditions of this past week," Askew said in a statement.

"These conditions have not only damaged the crops of many of our farmers and growers, but also have brought on the likelihood that many workers will be jobless for an undetermined length of time.

"Precise information on the extent of the damage is not complete at this time, but from the preliminary reports I have received it has become obvious that Florida has suffered a major loss."

FARM-WORKER spokesmen said that as many as 130,000 people may have lost their jobs after the freeze wiped out most of South Florida's vegetable crop and hit hard at the mid-state citrus crop.

Tax Talks Jammed

BURBANK (AP) — Nearly 1,000 people jammed a meeting hall here Saturday for an informal give-and-take session with California's Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. on the emotional subject of property taxes.

BROWN

The two-hour meeting, first in what may be a series of similar hearings on the governor's plan for property tax reform, was held in the International Association of Machinists' district office. Despite short notice, concerned residents stood elbow-to-elbow in the 800-seat meeting hall.

ALTHOUGH THE GOVERNOR was often interrupted with angry questions and comments from the audience, particularly from people concerned with what they called the "high cost of the public payroll," he said after the meeting he felt he had gained support for his program.

"People want relief from property taxes and they want it fast," he said. "I feel I gained support for my program today and on that basis I'm going back to the capitol and present this to the legislature."

Brown was accompanied by three economic advisers for this first property tax public meeting, and referred frequently to charts brought along to explain his program.

BROWN'S TAX RELIEF plan includes $400 million for rebates of up to $700 each for 1.9 million of California's 3.8 million homeowners, and $80 million for rebates of up to $288 a year for about 416,000 elderly renters.

The plan also calls for restrictions on local government revenue, and a split rate that would increase business and industry property taxes at a more equitable rate compared to residential assessments.

A NUMBER OF people, often very emotional, told the governor of personal problems with taxes. Others complained of the high cost of government, saying if less money were spent for administration, taxes might be lower.

One woman, complaining about the length of time needed for change, said she would be "in her 90s" before tax relief came. But Brown said, "The program can be enacted this year if you'll support it." He said he will need grass-roots support to get the program through the legislature.

Aides said Brown held the first tax relief hearing in the San Fernando Valley because some of the first complaints about rising property taxes came from that area. He said he would hold more such informal hearings around the state.

Cranston Offers Job Plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) said Saturday that he would help lead efforts to fund President Carter's plan to provide 300,000 jobs for youths, veterans, the handicapped and the poor.

Cranston described his program at a news conference, saying it would cost $2 billion and create 285,000 jobs for young people in the public sector and in private industry.

jobs and job training for youth. "The phenomenon of a high youth unemployment rate is not confined to periods of economic hardship," he said, "but is a chronic problem, plaguing our nation even during more prosperous times."

At the same time, Cranston, now Senate majority whip, outlined legislation he has introduced to provide a national jobs program for youth.

Although he said he will lead congressional efforts to support it, Cranston called Carter's plan to create jobs "temporary." He said permanent legislation was needed to "ensure meaningful

He said his bill would funnel federal funds into "citizens commissions" to job programs in cities and countries throughout the nation.

Coffee Boycott Urged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A consumer group here Saturday launched a drive to get people to cut down on their coffee drinking in an effort to force down rising prices.

"If people can cut back 50 percent... and keep it up for two months, we will reduce prices," said Arlene Mathews, head of American Consumers Together (ACT).

Ms. Mathews said she thought the shortage which brought on recent price hikes was created to drive up prices. South American countries say unseasonably cold weather has damaged the coffee crop.

Record Robber Ring Routed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who had pleaded guilty to shoplifting 3,000 records from retail stores in Los Angeles and Orange County has been sentenced to nine months in jail.

Before his sentencing, Michael Clohessy, 40, was described by Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael Marcus as "involved in a highly organized ring that stole thousands and thousands of records, and he has been doing this on both the east and west coasts for at least 15 years."

Tricks 'Treat' 23 to Jail

LOS ANGELES — Police say they arrested 23 men in Hollywood in less than five hours for investigation of soliciting prostitution or a lewd act from undercover policemen. The men were arrested Friday by Hollywood Division's "Trick Task Force," police said.

The arrested men ranged in age from 22 to 51 and included an engineer, a studio grip, assorted advertising salesmen, a painting contractor, a writer, a chef and a construction worker, police said.

Californian May Be Carter Aide

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State Assemblyman Charles Warren is the frontrunner for the chairmanship of the federal Council on Environmental Quality, the Los Angeles Times reports. Warren (D-Los Angeles) met with President Carter last week to discuss the council chairmanship. The three-member council advises the President on environmental matters and frequently makes recommendations on federal projects likely to have major environmental impact.

Jurist's Judge in Conflict?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Embattled Justice Marshall McComb has charged that one of the seven jurists appointed to judge his fate has a personal stake in the outcome.

McComb's attorney has charged that Justice Cruz Reynoso is a likely choice to fill McComb's chair on the California Supreme Court if the 82-year-old justice is forced to resign or retire.

Terrorist Bomb Darkens Marin

OLEMA (AP) — A terrorist bombing knocked out power Saturday to about 1,000 Pacific Gas & Electric customers in Marin County, posing a serious dilemma for local dairymen with hundreds of un milked cows.

An unidentified caller told the Associated Press that the Eugene Kuhn Unit of the New World Liberation Front planted the explosive device, which reportedly detonated about 4:20 a.m. at a PG&E substation here.

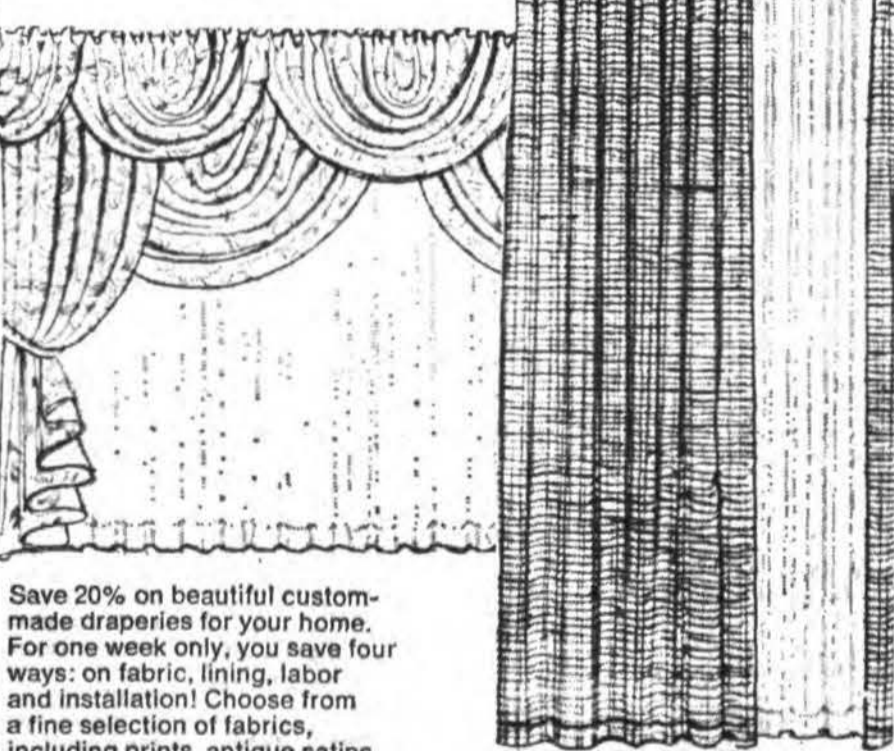

A Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spokesman said the bomb caused "substantial" damage, but no injuries.

He said it was discovered when the transformer failed. Power was initially restored to 500 customers, but then went down again.

Airport Proposals

Orange County Airport won't go away and, considering its role in our relatively healthy economy, it's wishful thinking to plan on any big rollback in airline jet flights there.

But at least there is at long last a glimmer of hope that the airport can function as a vital contribution to the county and its residents without ruining the lives of those beneath its takeoff and landing patterns.

That hope is found in an environmental impact report now in the hands of the Board of Supervisors and scheduled for public hearings this spring.

The massive (565 pages, $218,000 cost) EIR offers a wide range of options. At one end, the county could cut commercial jet operations from 38 a day to five a day. Using today's figures, this would leave on the ground about 1,236,000 passengers who would want to fly in or out of OCA annually.

At the other end, the county could go all-out in expanding and developing the airport, thus encouraging an annual passenger flow of six million by 1985. Current load is 1.56 million a year.

Both extremes are unlikely, even unacceptable. In between, the EIR offers some alternatives that, while not universally popular, could provide acceptable service at minimum impact on those beneath the flight paths.

Extension of the main runway northward by 737 feet is a key element. It would permit jets to get into the air sooner, placing them at higher altitude over houses on takeoff. Noise on the ground would be reduced considerably.

That noise level also would be lowered if the major jet operators—Hughes Airwest and Air California—could be induced to shift into wide-bodied DC10s and L1011s from their present 737s and DC9s. The larger craft carry more than double the passenger load and are powered by engines that make markedly less noise.

There are counter arguments, of course. Airport foes fear the extended runway would attract more flights, possibly even the shrieking 707.

And Air Cal and Airwest would have to find more passengers to make the larger planes a worthwhile investment. This would require expanding both the terminal and parking around it—programs hardly likely to draw applause among airport opponents.

Still, these are not unattractive possibilities. The county's consultant figures the airport could handle half a million more passengers annually with only two more jet flights a day under this program.

No universally satisfactory answers are going to be found. Exploration of middle-ground possibilities such as these is the only solution.

Tourism and Crime

Mexico needs American travelers' dollars and through the years it has been a popular vacation land for Orange Countians and other Southern Californians.

Not now, not since the hair-raising stories of assault and robbery and murder have flowed out of Mexico.

Putting it in perspective, most of the trouble has come from mainland Mexico, chiefly around the city of Culiacan in the state of Sinaloa. Few reports of trouble have come from Baja California. But the picture in the minds of most U.S. citizens is an entire country where travel is unsafe.

Unfortunately, the Mexican government has done itself no favor by denying the problem—only to have another incident occur after each denial.

Until our Mexican friends take conclusive and provable steps to protect travelers, they'll have fewer visitors and fewer dollars from Norte Americanos.

'Public Responds Most to Dramatic Contest'

More people saw the Super Bowl between Oakland and Minnesota two weeks ago than voted in the presidential election last November.

Some people would probably regard this statistic as evidence that it is easier to interest the American people in a sports spectacular than in the choice of a President.

Before accepting this conclusion, however, we should consider an equally impressive statistic.

The number of people who saw the first Carter-Ford television debate this past fall compared very favorably with the size of the audience for any sports event ever televised, including the Super Bowl and the World Series.

TWO INCONTROVERTIBLE conclusions flow out of these statistics. The first is that there are more television sets than polling booths.

The second is that the American people will respond in large numbers to any genuinely dramatic contest.

How can we put these two facts to work in upgrading the American political system?

The answer is, it is now possible, and relatively inexpensive, to equip home television sets with an electronic device that would enable citizens to vote at home.

The big advantage of such a prospect is that the home television set would enable people to vote not just on major candidates every two or four years but on major issues whenever they come to the fore.

NOTHING IS more consistent with American democratic institutions than the referendum. As far back as the American founding fathers, the referendum has been regarded as a fundamental feature of a democratic society.

But the principle and practice of the referendum have suffered because there has been no instant outlet or device through which people could register their opinions.

NORMAN COUSINS

One disadvantage was that the kind of questions that would be referred to the voters were generally confined to local issues, such as bond issues or redistricting and so forth. Major national issues like Vietnam or amnesty or how best to strengthen the United Nations never came before the voters directly.

It is now possible, however, through the electronic revolution to change all this.

CITIZENS CAN vote in their own homes—not just for candidates but on the fundamental issues before the nation. All the elements are now in place for what could be the greatest single advance in the American political process.

How would it work? First of all, the home voting devices would have to be manufactured and installed as the result of an act of Congress. No citizen would have to pay for the device, any more than he or she would have to pay a tax in order to vote.

What about citizens who do not have TV sets or telephones (the device could be attached either to TV or a phone)? Minimal public voting facilities would be maintained for all those without phones or TV.

Actual balloting for candidates could be synchronized with visual instructions given over TV.

THE BALLOTING on issues could take place at the end of televised debates between the leading spokesmen for opposing positions.

Each political party could select the person best qualified to advance or oppose a certain point of view. Minority positions would be similarly represented. The American people would have an opportunity to express their opinion on the issues under discussion.

The Carter-Ford debates gave the American people an important opportunity to assess the personalities of the candidates, the same general format might be used to assess major issues.

Some questions might be fairly philosophical in nature—such as the role of the federal government in education or in increasing unemployment relief and so forth. Some questions could be fairly specific—such as the decision whether to cut into our grain stores in order to send relief to famine-stricken areas.

Obviously, some of the questions put to the people would be more for the purpose of ascertaining the general flavor of public opinion than for the purpose of obtaining a mandatory vote.

The most important prospect offered by this new possibility is that there can be a profound enlargement in the capacity of the American people to make informed decisions on the great issues confronting them.

Listing, Directions for Emergency Expanded

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to your map and article entitled "Where to go in a Hurry When Seriously Hurt" which appeared on Sunday, Jan. 16. You wrote an extremely good article with valuable information for the citizens of Orange County concerning emergency treatment.

You also pictured a map of Orange County in which you gave the location of 17 hospitals which deliver emergency medicine. However, you omitted Westminster Community Hospital.

WESTMINSTER Community Hospital is located in Westminster, surrounded by the San Diego Freeway, the Garden Grove Freeway and Beach Boulevard. It serves the public of Westminster as well as parts of Garden Grove, Huntington Beach, Santa Ana, Fountain Valley, Seal Beach, and Los Alamitos.

We are extremely proud of our emergency room activities and staff, as well as our relationship with the local fire departments as a receiving station for the paramedic units.

Our emergency room is open 24 hours per day, 365 days a year with an emergency room physician on duty at all times. This physician is backed up at all times by physicians of all specialties. It is also staffed 24 hours a day with registered nurses and technicians especially trained in emergency care.

RICHARD W. LeGRAND
Administrator
Westminster Community Hospital

Why Not Riverview?

To the Editor:
I congratulate you on the fine article entitled "Emergency," of the Sunday, Jan. 16 edition.

Riverview Hospital at 1901 North Fairview in Santa Ana was not among the hospitals listed, nor was it shown on the map.

I have been in practice in California for 6½ years. Riverview Hospital has had 24-hour coverage of the emergency room for that period of time, and it is my understanding for several years prior to that period of time.

MAILBOX

Letters from readers are welcome. The right to condense letters to fit space or eliminate libel is reserved. Letters of 300 words or less will be given preference. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be withheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published.

THAT IS longer than some of the hospitals you have listed have been in existence. Staff doctors' patients, particularly, depend on that emergency room for emergency service and many severely injured patients have been and still are treated at our facility.

If there is a reason that Riverview Hospital was not listed, I would like to know the reason. I trust, however, the omission was merely an oversight.

R.C. BLACKWELL, D.O.
Chief of Staff,
Riverview Hospital
American College of Emergency Physicians

Apologies to Riverview and Westminster Community Hospitals and their staffs. In preparing the guide to emergency hospital care, the Daily Pilot unfortunately omitted including them. —Editor.

'Paramedics First'

To the Editor:
I read with interest your article regarding Orange County emergency hospital services and the accompanying map.

As executive director of the Emergency Medical Care Committee in Orange County, I heartily support public awareness of emergency hospital services within their area. The public must be aware of what services are available prior to a medical emergency. However, undoubtedly most people in Orange County are aware of the very fine paramedic system. Today, with few exceptions, Orange County is totally covered by paramedic services.

WE STRONGLY encourage people with medical emergencies to call the paramedics first. Therefore, it is of utmost importance that all people be aware of what paramedic services are available, when to call for them and what is the proper number to dial.

This number should be posted in a conspicuous place in each household and place of occupation. Phone stickers are available from your local fire department.

Only through this method can we be assured of saving lives, reducing pain and suffering and assuring quick and high quality emergency medical care to all in Orange County.

'Dr. Doom' Faulted

To the Editor:

Regarding trends in world population growth and Charles McCabe's Dec. 16, 1976 article entitled "Dr. Doom GuesSED Wrong," I must assume that McCabe either cannot or does not read. In strongly dogmatic terms he states that Paul Ehrlich "was stridently wrong about world population trends and yet acquired a sizable following by being dogmatic about the future." He simply has not understood Ehrlich. I suspect he has not bothered to read Ehrlich.

McCabe signals his ignorance in the very first sentence by stooping to name-calling ("Dr. Doom"), a standard tactic of those who don't know what they are talking about. No competent demographer, Ehrlich included, makes serious absolute statements predicting exact numbers of future populations. Rather, they project current trends and complex factors affecting birth and death rates and come up with an infinite number of possible futures. If McCabe had only bothered to read Ehrlich's "The Population Bomb" as far as the second chapter he would be aware of the author's scenarios outlining extremely different possible futures.

MORE SERIOUS than his lack of grasp of the essentials of Ehrlich (and Malthus) is his view that, due to recent apparent changes in the world's population growth rate, everything is somehow okay. A drop in the growth rate from 1.9 to 1.64 is not all that good. (It brings to mind Ehrlich's story of the person who jumped off a 50-story building and was heard to say, "Things have gone very well, so far," as he passed the second floor.) There is a good chance that the 1.64 figure is far too low because it assumes an undocumented, and for me unbelievable, fantastic drop in the Chinese birth rate.

No matter what the figure, we are adding well over 50 million people to the earth each year. And it is entirely conceivable that the growth rate will rise as the rural, non-developed, high birth rate regions become an even bigger percent of the total and keep on cranking out babies at rates up to 50 per thousand. Those are the regions which are now experiencing increasing death rates due to starvation. Given a current world grain reserve of 90 days (which McCabe incredibly calls "far from famine") we may be in for a dramatic drop in the growth rate due to starvation. Who knows?

McCabe is correct in stating that the human race will "take care of itself," but he may be right for the wrong reasons.

Henry Ford II Seeking Better Ideas

WASHINGTON — Henry Ford No. 2, in gutsy fashion, quit the obese foundation which bears his name and thrives on his family's money.

But, thank heavens, he also cut loose with parting words which left a pack of high-salaried gents in the foundation t r a d e ga a s h i n g their teeth and wondering what will happen next in this vale of tears.

Now a pack of sophists can strain their intestines to write that, well, after all, Henry Ford II's outspoken candor is expected, and that, by and large, in the main and for the most part, the great foundations are serving mankind and so forth.

THIS IS foundation-type prattle, to be sure. The truth is that Henry Ford II, grandson of the simple, genius farmer who started it, is like the peasant who came to town, got gypped and now erupts in talk.

Though Ford drinks Dom Perignon and wears suits which would cost most citizens two weeks' pay, he is a genuine workingman and has been since he was snatched from the U.S. Navy in 1945 to head the then-disordered Ford Motor Co.

He is proud of the American enterprise system, one which makes the multi-billion-dollar foundations possible, and he knows that in nations operating under state socialism there is no such largesse, only loud promises and depressing paper work.

So when the Ford Foundation, like many others, displays a marked affinity for those who mouth Marxist slogans and carp endlessly about our country, Henry figures he's had enough.

CONTRARY TO the clever Marxist observation that capitalists are so shortsighted they would sell the rope for their own hangings, Henry Ford II, one of the last heads of large, family-owned industries, offered thoughts to mull in the future when he resigned from the Ford Foundation where he served 33 years on the board.

"THE FOUNDATION exists and thrives on the fruits of our economic system," Ford wrote in his goodbye. "The dividends of competitive enterprise make it all possible. A significant portion of the abundance created by U.S. business enables the foundation and like institutions to carry on their work.

"In effect, the foundation is a creature of capitalism—a statement that, I'm sure, would be shocking to many professional staff people in the field of philanthropy.

"It is hard to discern recognition of this fact in anything the foundation does. It is even more difficult to find an understanding of this in many of the institutions, particularly the universities, that are the beneficiaries of the foundation's grant programs.

"I'm not playing the role of the hard-headed tycoon who thinks all philanthropists are Socialists and all university professors are Communists. I'm just suggesting to the trustees and the staff that the system that makes the foundation possible very probably is worth preserving."

Now that's good strong stuff from an earthy man who isn't worried about fawning approval of the elitists in our midst.

Ford never had to work a day in his life, but he gets to his desk early in the morning and has worked hard for 42 years to make his company perform well and spew out products fancied by Americans and other consumer-minded citizens in the world.

FORD NEVER graduated from college, but he's got a keen mind. He reads what comes out of the universities, and from the typewriters of grantees who don't like our system.

It's fair to give money, time, and ear to such dissidents, but it's also fair to allow those who see good in our system have their say to — and perhaps found ation grants — too.

In America today, the person or scholar who sees strength in the free-enterprise system, who appreciates the values and successes in our political history, is not considered as "with it" on most campuses, and is also unlikely to be listened to at foundations, or at the Corp. for Public Broadcasting, or in certain editorial salons.

Indeed, here in Washington, congressional committees, public-service and special-interest organizations are disposed to hire young people, with graduate degrees, who plain think the United States is a bad place, and that businessmen and/or conservatives are the enemy.

All this amounts to a lack of intellectual fairness and balance needed in a lively, pluralistic society like ours.

WHAT IS THE reaction, so far, to Henry's eruption?

"I don't think one letter from anyone is going to change the foundation's course," spoke McGeorge Bundy, Ford Foundation president who has dropped grants on deserving, like-minded friends.

A "high official" of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace (too peaceful to give his name) moaned: "Is that what the Ford Foundation is set up for, to promote free enterprise?"

OF COURSE it isn't, and Henry Ford II never said it was. He is only saying: Let's keep intellectual activity fair-minded and thus try for the truth. Right now, the complainers and nihilists are autocratic in shutting out other points of view, and Ford thinks that's wrong.

Perhaps Henry's final shot was his best.

"All wisdom does not repose at 320 East 43rd Street (Ford Foundation address); nor may it be found solely at the American Road, Dearborn, Michigan (where Henry works); 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue (where Jimmy Carter resides); or any other power center in the world," Ford wrote in resigning from the Ford Foundation.

OTHER VIEWS

Selectivity vs. Unwanted Ads

An editorial from the Washington Post.

In November the Labor Department's survey counted 7.1 million unemployed Americans, an unacceptably high number. Jimmy Carter considers the creation of jobs to be his most urgent responsibility.

But those 7.1 million people are unemployed for a lot of different reasons. To judge the policies now being pressed on Carter, it helps to know what goes into that huge total figure.

WHY, FOR EXAMPLE, do we have high unemployment at a time when employers are running yards of help-wanted ads in most newspapers? A reader wrote us a letter the other day asking just that question. It's an important point and deserves careful consideration.

The explanation begins with a closer look at those ads; they are listed by the skill wanted, beginning with accountants and ending with X-ray technicians. There isn't much offered for people in the category of highest unemployment — the young people with little training and less experience.

OUT OF that national total of 7.1 million unemployed, about two million are people who have been fired, or whose jobs have collapsed. They are out on the street, looking anxiously for new jobs.

They represent the classic picture of unemployment that most of us, no doubt, carry around in our minds. But they make up fewer than one-third of the people carried in the unemployment statistics. Who are the others?

Some 1.4 million have been laid off temporarily, and very few of them are actually looking for other jobs. Their view is that they have good jobs — but they are in cyclical industries like automobiles or a part of life.

When consumer demand picks up again, they'll be called back to work that is, very often, highly skilled and highly paid. In the meantime they get unemployment compensation and perhaps supplemental benefits.

Of all the unemployed, these people are likely to be reached first and most effectively by a federal tax cut that leaves more money in consumers' pockets.

ANOTHER TWO MILLION of the unemployed are people who dropped out of the labor force altogether and are now coming back in.

They dropped out for an infinite variety of reasons: to get more education, to rear children, or maybe just to go skiing. A good many lost jobs months or years ago and found the market so bleak that they stopped looking altogether.

Remember that the Labor

Department doesn't count people as unemployed unless they are actively seeking work, or are registered for a call-back. When prospects improve, the dropouts flood back, start looking and become, technically, unemployed again.

That's why unemployment never comes down as fast as the jobs increase during an economic recovery.

Another 900,000 of last month's unemployed are people who voluntarily left their last jobs. They decided to risk an uncertain period of unemployment in the hope of finding something better.

THE FINAL 800,000 are the people, most of them teen-agers, who are looking for their first jobs. Most of them have very little in the way of skills to offer an employer.

Of all the categories, they will be helped least by a tax cut. Many employers will put their experienced work crews on overtime before hiring these young workers.

That is one of the reasons why inflation rates begin to rise long before the unemployment rate drops to 4 percent, the traditional idea of full employment. If these youngsters are to get effective help, it will have to be in the form of training, guidance and, as a last resort, public-service jobs.

EVEN IN TIMES of high unemployment like the present, half of the people who are unemployed manage to find work in no more than eight weeks.

The long-term jobless — people who have been looking for more than six months — are about one-eighth of the unemployed. Longer searches for the right job — meaning higher unemployment rates — may be inevitable in a rich society like ours with an increasing number of two-job families.

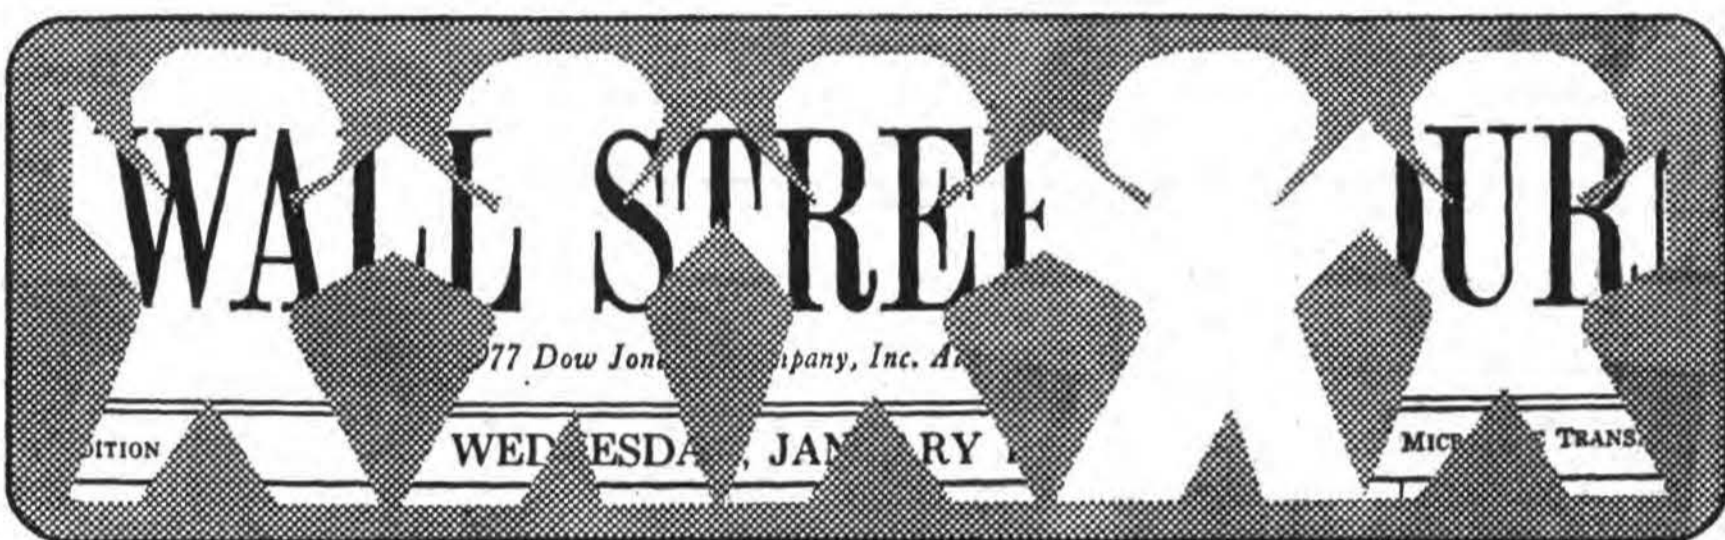

People's toleration of unpleasant working conditions drops when the income is no longer absolutely essential. Unemployment compensation, for example, raises the unemployment rate by a small but significant amount.

BUT IT is justified as a contribution to economic productivity if it helps the job-hunters to find the work best suited to their tastes and abilities.

Steady economic growth will make these searches a great deal quicker and more successful. Job training will help in some of the hardest cases. But Americans are increasingly inclined, evidently, to be selective and take their time in choosing jobs.

The prospect for the coming year is higher unemployment than the country is accustomed to seeing during economic recoveries, despite anything the federal government can do — and despite those floods of help-wanted ads.

'We Came for the Killing'

By BOB GREENE
Froid Newspaper Syndicate

We came for the killing. There was no other reason for us to be waiting outside the fence at Point of the Mountain, Utah, so early in the morning, with chill darkness still shrouding the hillsides.

We came for the killing. That is not what we told ourselves, of course; we are in the news business, and it was easy to say that we were only there because our jobs demanded it. Leave that for the Ethics of Journalism textbooks.

The fact is, we came for the killing, and we could hardly wait for the killing to begin.

WE CAME FOR the killing because we, just like our fellow citizens, are caught up in the bizarre morbidity and eerie attraction of death rites, and the thought of a firing squad bringing the death penalty back to our lives was a magnet we could not resist.

We came for the killing, and because we carry press cards, we were allowed on the killing site. And you, fellow citizen — you would have been on the killing site, too, given the opportunity.

"Come on in — the blood's warm."

And if you say that this is not true, if you say that you toward the house of death — well, if not you, then your neighbor. We got the message a long time ago.

You want to hear about the death rites, and you want to hear it all. You have read every word of the firing squad stories, and you will read every word of this. There is no escaping it.

It is the strangest of paradoxes. Here, in this early week of 1977, two stories dominate the news, and the national consciousness is honed in on them both.

LET US TAKE the second one first: the inauguration of a president who spoke during his campaign of love, and goodness, and the spirit of life. It worked, his words of love and life; we elected him, and now he will be our leader.

But that is the second story of last week. The first one, the story at the Utah State Prison, may tell us more about America than the happy story in Washington.

The story in Utah was about hatred and evil and the tingly drama of violent death, and if the relative fevers of American interest in the two stories were somehow to be measured, which do you think would win out? In your heart of hearts, which story would you rather hear a teller of stories unfold?

We told you everything we could about the house of death in Utah. We told you what the condemned man ate for breakfast. We told you what color were his clothes. We told you how the shed for the riflemen was constructed.

WE TOLD YOU about how the man's body shook and trembled as the bullets bore into his chest. We told you how the blood poured from beneath his shirt, and how it covered his pants. We told you where the blood remained, a sign of the killing ritual even after the killing was done, and the dead man driven away.

We told you everything, but we didn't tell you everything. We told you what you expected to hear; we told you everything we knew about the killing and the killed.

But there is something we left out, something we didn't tell you. We didn't tell you about ourselves. We didn't tell you what we did up on Point of the Mountain. We, your representatives in the free press, your guardians of the First Amendment — we didn't tell you about us.

WE DIDN'T TELL you how we rushed to the death shed the moment we knew we could get away with it. We didn't tell you how we crawled around the sandbags in front of the dead man's chair, the sandbags still fresh with his blood.

We didn't tell you how we hurried into the firing squad's canvas booth, and how we squinted out of the vertical slits where the rifles had been, squinted out at the chair and made ourselves a gift of the same view the executioners had viewed.

We didn't tell you how we touched everything, touched every possible surface in the death shed. We didn't tell you of the looks on the faces of the prison guards, who watched in amazement as we went about our doings with such eagerness, such lust. We didn't tell you what we did to the death chair itself — the chair with the bullet holes in its leather back.

We didn't tell you that, did we? Didn't tell you how we inserted our fingers into the holes, and rubbed our fingers around, feeling for ourselves how deep and wide those death holes were. Feeling it all.

WHY DIDN'T WE tell you that? Why didn't we tell you about ourselves? Probably because we understand the basic truth of it all. We understand that we are you, and you are us, and there are some things that we don't want to admit out loud about ourselves. Don't even want to think about.

If we were monstrous, we were monstrous in a small way; probably better if we just forgot about it, we and you both.

And besides, the killing at Point of the Mountain was only the beginning. There will be others; there will be more. And we will be there, too, and you will be right along with us. Oh yes you will. We will always come for the killing.

What the Dickens? Great Expectations

ART HOPPE

"Good news, Maude," Jud Joad called out as he slowly climbed the steps of the ramshackle cabin on the road a piece from Appalachee Corners. "You're going to be hankering for all these years."

"You really mean it, Jud?" cried Maude, her old eyes sparkle as she stood in the doorway, her thin hands clasped prayerfully to her chest.

"When?"

"Soon as I get my very first pay," said Jud.

"Oh, Jud, you gone and got yourself a job!" said Maude. "I always knew you would sooner or later. Is it driving truck for old man Watson like you been talking about for so long?"

"Well, I ain't exactly got it yet," admitted Jud.

"But soon as Mr. Carter gets himself humkered down in the White House . . ."

"Oh," said Maude. Her bony shoulders sagged. "Reckon I better get to fixing them collar greens for supper."

"NOW, hold on," said Jud, annoyed. "I heard it all on the radio down to the store. Mr. Carter's going to spend maybe $30 billion just to find work for folks like me."

"He going to talk to old man Watson for you?" asked Maude.

"You know presidents haven't got no time for that, Maude," said Jud. "Not with eight million of us looking for work. No, sir, first he's going to cut income taxes — so we'll have more money in our pockets."

"That sure would be right fine, Jud," said Maude. "if'n we had any income to speak of."

"Stands to reason we'll have plenty, Maude, once I get that job," said Jud. "Yes, sir, we'll be mighty grateful for that cut in taxes. And Mr. Carter, he's going to cut business taxes, too, so's old man Watson will have more money in the till. Then he'll want to hire me."

"To guard his money?" asked Maude.

"I DON'T rightly know," said Jud. "But it don't matter 'cause Mr. Carter, he's fixing to have the government give out more jobs, too."

"How can you work for the government, Jud?" said Maude. "You can't even typewrite."

"That's true," said Jud, frowning. Then he brightened. "Maybe he's going to find us government jobs driving truck."

"All eight million of you?" asked Maude.

"Well, what he'd like the first year," said Jud, "is to get the unemployment figure down from 8.1 percent to maybe 6.9 percent and then . . ."

"What I'd like," said Maude, "is a nice piece of fat back to go with them collar greens."

"YOU JUST don't understand these things," said Jud. "Do you know I can't recollect a single, solitary time when I was so certain in my bones that the President was going to find me a job and you was going to get them curtains."

"I can," said Maude.

"When was that, old gal?" asked Jud.

Maude sighed. "Every four years, Jud," she said.

Other White House Changing Hands

LA FORTE, Tex. (AP) — Paul Barkley sat on the south portico of the White House and watched two oil tankers slide silently along the horizon of Galveston Bay.

A small flock of killedeer darted up from the salt grass and vanished west toward a pall of haze covering Houston, 30 miles away.

THE WHITE HOUSE in question is a 50-year-old copy of the real thing and is up for sale for $415,000, less than half what it cost its first owner.

The home, built in 1926 by former Texas Gov. Ross Sterling, sits on five acres of land with 597 feet of waterfront on Galveston Bay. Murky water laps on a sandy beach and the wind blows clear and cool each day, eliminating the need for air conditioning.

The house is about three-fifths the size of the Washington White House, containing three floors and 34 rooms, including nine bedrooms, 17 bathrooms, seven fireplaces and three kitchens. Barkley, a 76-year-old Texan who made his money in banking, pipelines and investments, bought the building in 1961 as an investment. Never really thought about living here you know, with 21,000 square feet of space under the roof.

"BUT I GUESS the wife and I fell in love with the place. It is just too much now to keep up as we are both growing older. It should be perfect for someone who wants a great place to live parties.

According to local folklore, the legend began when Sterling pulled a $20 bill from his wallet and told the architect of his house: "Make it look like this." Sterling, who founded Humble Oil Co., now Exxon, paid $1.4 million for the house. In 1946, he gave the house to the Houston Optimist Club which used the property as a home for wayward boys.

Barkley bought the house from the Optimist Club for an undisclosed sum and set about repairing the damage done by 70 young boys.

HE ENJOYS SHOWING visitors the improvements he has made over the years and brags about the fact that he has furnished the mansion with leftovers from other homes, giveaways from friends and even "a few things from the Salvation Army."

"If I were younger," Barkley said, "I would try to furnish the place with antiques. Not now. It is too much of a burden. The school property taxes alone are $3,000 a year."

Although Barkley won't say what he paid for the house, he claims he has spent more in repairs than he did in buying the mansion. Asked if he would miss the big parties he used to give there, he said: "Not really, but I will miss fixing up the place."

POINTE DU BOUT RESORT AREA Marina in French West Indies

Point Worth Finding

There's a new focal point on the tourist map of Martinique for 1977. It's "Pointe du Bout," a French name translated roughly as "End Point."

For Martinique, an exotic French outpost in the West Indies where tourism has grown slowly but steadily for the past decade, Pointe du Bout is indeed an end point to many years of planning and preparation. On former maps of the island, it was just a dot, but today's mapmakers have inked it in to stay.

With the completion of a handsome and very colorful Handsome, and the opening of an 18-hole golf course minutes away, Pointe du Bout is now Martinique's major resort area, a little Caribbean Cote d'Azur.

LOCATED ACROSS the bay from the busy capital of Fort-de-France, Pointe du Bout is a 15-mile taxi ride from Lamentin Airport or an 18-minute hop by ferryboat from the city. By day, the ferryboat ride is pleasant and exhilarating; by night, under starry tropical skies, it is pure romance.

The resort encompasses five different hotels, from a sophisticated old one with a well-heeled international clientele to a fresh new one made up of studios and apartments designed for moderate budgets. In all, there are more than 800 guest rooms.

With the hotels have come new boutiques, cafes, restaurants, nightclubs and a casino. There are beaches, swimming pools and tennis courts, and new watersports centers.

THE PICTURESQUE core of Pointe du Bout is its marina. Filled with boats, schooners and yachts, it is here that one boards the ferry for the hourly shuttle to Port-de-France. All the hotels touch on the marina, either directly or by walkways.

If you don't stay in Fort-de-France, you'll surely want to visit it, to stroll the green Savane, to people-watch from one of the cafes, to wander the busy little balconied streets lined with boutiques, restaurants and pastry shops, and looking very much like the back streets of Paris.

The shops are stocked with local handicrafts, fashions from the mother country, crystal, china, and, of course, perfume, at prices reputedly the lowest in the Caribbean.

FOR THE SIGHTSEER, there's surprisingly much: fishing villages that resemble a St. Tropez of 20 years ago; La Pagerie where the Empress Josephine was born and where mementos of her life are displayed in a charming small museum; a spectacular rain-forest in the north where the air is cool, and green comes in a hundred different hues. There's Diamond Rock, a pinnacle in the sea, used by the British as a sloop of war. And Carbet, where Columbus landed, and where Gauguin once lived and painted.

Mexican Jail: Tourist Trap?

By STAN DELAPLANE SAN FRANCISCO — The AAA warns drivers going into Mexico: "Stay on main roads. Don't drive at night. Find a motel about 4 p.m."

They say there have been 18 "incidents" of tourist holdups. Shake downs by police. Some shootings. Even suggest forming convoys of three or four cars for mutual support.

Hot spots are Culiacan north of Mazatlan on west coast Highway 15. The beautiful (but lonely) beaches between La Paz and Cabo San Lucas in Baja.

The Government sent in army troops. But a reporter there a month ago told me: "They say in La Paz that the Army is shaking down the campers they supposedly are protecting."

THE WALL STREET Journal had a scary story on the situation. Dan Sanborn who has excellent connections on Mexican highways — (his car insurance agents are at every border crossing) — wrote me business is way down.

He says: "I think the Journal and other papers are polishing up some things that have been going on for years. Like an occasional shake down."

American Airlines man said: "We are carrying a normal number of people. We expect our traffic to go up the next few months."

They think slowly. No hurry. You're not going anywhere.

CB radios are not allowed in Mexico. Not even sealed. They confiscate them. And probably will jail you while they fit you for the electric chair. (Local joke: "Sometimes the electricity fails and we have to finish them off with candles." Some joke!)

GUNS ARE OUT in Mexico. You can get a permit for a hunting gun, but it's better to rent one when you get there. Permits issued by Mexican consuls sometimes don't work with local officials.

If a policeman stops you for a traffic violation ask — politely: "Can I give you the money to pay the fine for me?" (Something under $10 will do it. Officially, the tourist people say this is all wrong. But they do it themselves.)

If you want to complain, do it when you get home. Special Consular Services, State Department, Washington, D.C.

If you insist on having it out at the police station, you'll add the cost of the cop. AND the duty sergeant. AND a lawyer. And God help you.

IF YOU HAVE long hair or are under 30, don't even carry prescription drugs with you.

Don't get smart and have a pocketful of Zig-zag cigarette papers on you. Nobody smokes Bull Durham anymore. Who are you kidding?

Don't EVER get to the point of a formal arrest. It's a great climate, but Mexican jails are no winter cruise.

... some other ski resorts besides the well-known Vail and Aspen?"

The biggest resort area in the West is right outside Salt Lake City — 40 minutes from the Hotel Utah, newly done over and the posh place to stay.

The resort areas are Alta, Snowbird, Park City and two smaller ones. American, United and Western fly in from everywhere. Bus service three times every morning. Return in the afternoon and have dinner in the rooftop restaurant. First class.

WHAT TO DO? For a good many years, the golden tourist has been a protected species. Maybe the economic restlessness — campesinos seizing land, backyard heroin makers — has changed the climate.

If you get in trouble in Mexico, it's big trouble. Mexican law says you are guilty until you prove you're innocent. Meantime you sit in stony lonesome while they think it over.

IN SAMOAN homes (no chairs) it is impolite to speak on your feet. You sit — cross-legged — before you open your mouth. This uncomfortable position guarantees your speech will be very short. A splendid custom that should be imported to America for after-dinner speakers.

Southern Flora: Paradise Found

You don't have to see Winter Haven, Fla., "Gone With the Wind" whose small boats on winding waterways vie in popularity with its daily commercial water shows.

The February issue of Family Circle magazine reports that there are hundreds of gardens in the Sunbelt, which, with their stately antebellum mansions, sweeping lawns and lush profusion of blossoms, are calculated to satisfy even the most incurably romantic.

THE MOST exemplary of the genre, of course, are to be found in the "low country" of Charleston, S.C., where Cypress Gardens, Middleton Place and Magnolia Gardens, with their arching footbridges, oaken allees, camellias and azaleas, are straight out of Tara or Twelve Oaks.

No less sumptuous, however, are the gardens to be found elsewhere in the South. Some of the varieties you might want to sample:

The Orton Plantation Gardens near Wilmington, N.C., whose moss-draped oaks provide a glorious background for acres of roses, jasmine, mimosa and crape-myrtle. Cypress Gardens,

Site Yields Mystery Creature

PALO ALTO (AP)—Construction of additional facilities at the Stanford Linear Accelerator in 1977 may be a boon to paleontologists as well as physicists. Thirteen years ago while digging a trench for the accelerator, scientists uncovered the fossil remains of an animal that inhabited the area 14 million years ago. The 11-foot-long animal has been called "Paleoparadoxia," or ancient mystery. Although it has been compared to both a hippopotamus and a sea cow, the 6,600-pound creature has left no modern descendants.

Now paleontologists are looking forward to the construction of a positron-electron storage ring at the accelerator. The work will require a large excavation, four tenths of a mile wide and up to 100 feet deep. "There are possibilities that things will be found," says Dr. Charles A. Repenning, a paleontologist for the U.S. Geological Survey. "It's written into the construction plans that as the excavation goes on we will be able to examine it." However, Dr. Repenning says it's very unlikely that another complete specimen of Paleoparadoxia will be uncovered. Still, the area is known to be rich in fossils, mostly dating back to the last Ice Age about 20,000 years ago. At that time, says Dr. Repenning, San Francisco Bay was a broad flood plain covered by cypress, incense cedars, junipers and pines.

Alaska May Share Wealth With People

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — As Alaska's huge oil reserves are tapped and taxed, much of the state's profit would go right into its people's pockets under a proposal that Gov. Jay Hammond calls the "ultimate in grassroots revenue sharing."

Hammond's plan, announced last week, would establish an investment fund called Alaska, Inc. Every adult who has lived in the state for five years — about a fourth of the state's 400,000 residents — would receive a share. People over 65 would get two shares. For every five years they spend in the state in the future,

Alaskans would pick up another share. With the trans-Alaska pipeline scheduled to open in July, state income from oil and gas taxes and royalties is expected to total $420 million by the end of 1977 and more than $1 billion a year by 1980.

THE GOVERNOR estimated that dividends on each share would be $57 the first year and $460 by 1985.

Hammond said he's pushing the plan because he's upset over the mushrooming growth of Alaska's state government during the oil boom. "Nothing can do more to curb excessive growth of government," Hammond said, "let's grant shares to Alaskans and let them determine what services they want enough to permit government to recoup those shares in taxes."

Hammond, a Republican, said the scheme should be attractive to fiscal conservatives, because it limits the growth of government, and to liberals because it will help the poor.

UNLIKE PREVIOUS share-the-wealth plans, Hammond said, his proposal "doesn't take money from me or you and give it to somebody else."

Instead, Hammond said, "It takes from wealth that belongs to the people and makes sure that at least some of it is funneled directly through their pockets."

Former University of California President Clark Kerr foresees more turbulence on campus—but he says this time it will come from the teachers.

Teachers Seen as New Campus Rebels

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Turbulence will return to the nation's college campuses but it will come from teachers rather than students, a man who saw much of the campus violence a decade ago said recently.

"I see more turbulence," said Dr. Clark Kerr, who was president of the University of California at the height of antiwar demonstrations during the 1960s.

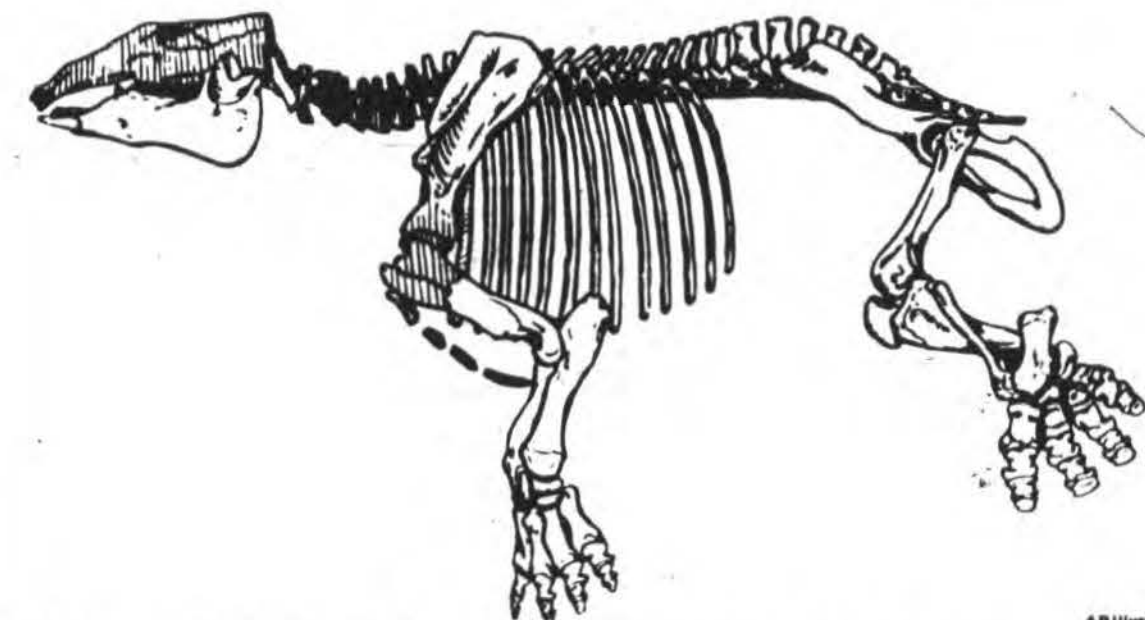

KERR SAID he based his forecast on the results of a $500,000 survey of about 25,000 university teachers in the United States. The survey was published as a report for the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education. Kerr is chairman of that council.

The 1975 survey showed the proportion of teachers favoring collective bargaining and strikes, if necessary, to improve wages and working conditions has risen since 1969.

OF FACULTY members surveyed, 61 percent favored strikes as a "legitimate means of collective action" compared with 47 percent in 1969, when the same council published a $1 million survey on U.S. campus attitudes.

More than 70 percent of faculty members also approved collective bargaining by teachers, an increase from the 62 percent who approved in 1969.

Kerr said he foresees increasing tension on campuses as teachers become more willing to strike to get their demands.

'OC Prime Spot'

Builder Chief Maps Strategy

Increased communication with government officials and the public in Orange County is the prime 1977 goal of the Orange County Chapter of the Building Industry Association, it was announced by John Konwiser, the chapter's new president.

Konwiser, who is president of the Konwiser Corp. of Newport Beach, said the communication will be aimed at crediting the industry for its contributions and to solving the county housing problems.

"Orange County is perhaps the prime spot to live in the United States," he began to explain. "We started with a great climate and interesting topography. We've added outstanding houses with much-copied innovations that are the envy of the industry and the public in the rest of the country. And we topped it off with just about every conceivable type of recreation.

"A GREAT DEAL OF THE credit for all this is due to the planning and foresight of people within the building industry, working together with governmental agencies. The results include the famous villages of Irvine, Mission Viejo, Laguna Niguel, Anaheim Hills, Huntington Harbour, and the scores of good small developments around the county. We have no intention of taking all the credit for the great place Orange County is today, but the building industry has played the key role in the blossoming of the county.

"People tend to forget it — but just about every single person in the county is living in a home built by our industry. Like agriculture and clothing, we are one of the three essential industries."

Thinking about the future, Konwiser added: "I look forward to the public respecting our industry for making its tremendous contributions to the Orange County way of life, for providing the family-living environments in which we raise our children, for creating innovative development concepts that are being studied by people from many counties, and for making a tremendous contribution to the county's economy."

KONWISER SAID THAT THE industry needs to communicate all elements of the public. However, he added that primary emphasis would be on reaching appointed and elected governmental officials, residents of the more rapidly growing cities and county areas, and students and teachers in colleges and universities.

"Our chapter will continue its high-level, eyeball-to-eyeball contact with elected and appointed officials through our Presidents' Council, our Task Forces, and many other organized activities.

"We also plan to communicate with the community via the many established organizations — such as Chambers of Commerce and women and mens groups. Our experience in speaking to such groups has been that — when we put the facts about housing into proper perspective — they are not only receptive, but are anxious to help communicate the housing industry's story to others. The chapter is developing a speakers bureau to communicate with such groups."

KONWISER RECITED A LIST of five "public misconceptions that need to be clarified":

1. That the public wants and is willing to pay for "tremendous areas" of open space and parks.
2. That the housing industry induces growth, rather than operating in response to it.
3. That high density is bad.
4. That developers and builders can somehow be hit with new and increasing fees and assessments without having such costs passed on to the buyer.
5. That builders are making exorbitant profits.

ADDRESSING HIMSELF TO high prices, Konwiser said: "Home prices have risen at a higher rate than inflation for two reasons. First, increased government regulations and processing time delay most projects a year or two, compounding carrying costs and development costs. Second, every time a school board, a parks commission, or any other governmental body levies another fee or assessment on a builder, that cost has to be added to the home price."

What's the solution? Konwiser concluded: "As housing prices continue to advance, leaving more and more people behind, and as the public realizes what has happened, people will be more receptive to our message. Once they realize what really is driving up prices, they hopefully will put sufficient pressure on elected and appointed officials to halt the spiral."

BENCHES, CONCRETE PATHWAY, TREES IN TURTLE ROCK PARK CORRIDOR

Irvine Corridor Finished

The first segment of what will become a four-mile-long, tree-lined corridor through the Irvine village of Turtle Rock has been completed, according to Douglas M. Ford, director of community development for the Irvine Company.

On completion, the corridor will wind its way from the 320-acre William R. Mason regional park on the north to a future 20-acre public park on the southerly side of the village.

The initial link is located just north of Campus Drive, the major entrance to the village, at its intersection with Turtle Rock Drive. A portion of the first segment also serves as a view corridor between Campus Drive and the sandstone rock formation resembling a turtle for which the village is named.

AN 11-FOOT wide concrete walkway, bordered by extensive landscaping, will extend the full length of the village-wide park, which is referred to as a riparian corridor since portions of the trail follow the course of a waterway dating into the area's prehistory.

The corridor is designed to accommodate both foot and bicycle traffic, and will include two tunnels — passing beneath major thoroughfares — when completed. Several schools in the village and the future village shopping center will eventually be accessible via the trail.

Numerous benches and attractive lighting units will be installed in each of the riparian increments. Eight sections of the park are planned, with new links being added as the village grows. Completion of the entire riparian system is scheduled for some time in 1982, with completion of the village itself.

"THE ACTUAL riparian corridor will extend from 75 to 200 feet in width at various points along its' route," Ford said. "We've attempted to place as many of the benches as possible where they have views of portions of the village's 320 acres of open space."

Paul Brady, assistant city manager for the city of Irvine, expressed the city's viewpoint on the riparian concept. "We've been very pleased with the design of the corridor itself and feel it will help greatly in removing pedestrian and bicycle traffic from Turtle Rock Drive. We've looked favorably on the overall concept since its inception."

The riparian corridor and trail will become a part of the city's park system.

Forest Homes Open

Pre-sales have begun in the second, and last, phase of Influential Homes, Lake Forest, announces Wes Weissinger, regional sales director for Butler Housing Corp., the Irvine-based developer.

"Sales in the first unit were tremendous, with 80 percent of the units reserved during the opening weekend," notes Weissinger. "Buyers have been enthusiastic about the woodsy exteriors, the spacious floorplans, the outstanding architectural features, and the luxury appointments included in the price."

Three one- and two-story plans — designed by Dale Naegel Architecture & Planning Inc. of La Jolla — are offered. The clean-lined exteriors will feature wood, brick and horizontal V-groove paneling. Roofs will be cedar shingles or shakes.

TENNIS, SWIMMING and sailing are available to buyers as members of the Lake Forest Master Homeowners Assn., to which all residents belong.

Prices range from $86,950 to $103,450. The project is scheduled to hold its grand opening in late January — if it is not sold out before then. Second phase move-ins are scheduled for November.

On the south side of Jeronimo Road, Influential Homes, Lake Forest, may be reached by taking the Santa Ana or San Diego Freeways to the Lake Forest Drive off-ramp. Cross over the freeway into Lake Forest, drive northeast on Lake Forest Drive to Jeronimo. Turn left and go one block to the partially completed models and temporary sales office.

WORK ON THE second link is rapidly nearing completion, according to Ford, with an opening now possible as early as late January or early February.

The second portion will extend through a tunnel beneath Turtle Rock Drive and then easterly through Turtle Rock Glen, the new residential area currently under development in the village.

On completion, an estimated 3,900 trees will have been planted in the riparian corridor. Some 500 have been set in place as part of the first phase, according to Ford.

"EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITIES"

Energy-savers

Industry Eyes Solar Models

More than 50 Orange County builders glimpsed what may be the future of the housing industry when they toured two energy-saving homes in Mission Viejo and an El Toro apartment complex equipped with a solar water heating system.

The single-family homes they visited in Mission Viejo were completed this summer as part of a Minimum Energy Dwelling — or "MED" — research project. That project is being conducted jointly by Mission Viejo Company, Southern California Gas Company and the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

The goal of MED research is to design and build two homes that will use less than half the energy of similar conventional homes. Another goal is to encourage developers to include MED's energy saving features in their new developments.

THESE FEATURES INCLUDE, among others, thicker and better insulated walls and ceilings, double-paned windows, a special air circulation system, advanced appliances and a solar-assisted system for cooling and comfort and water heating.

The Orange County builders also visited the Timbers apartments in El Toro where 32 units are now having their domestic water heated by a Solar Assisted Gas Energy — or "SAGE" — water heating system.

The SAGE system was installed in August, 1975. Since then it has used the sun's energy to supply about 70 percent of the apartments' hot water needs. The balance is provided by a natural gas boiler.

INSTALLATION OF THE EL TORO system is part of a three-year research program being conducted by the gas company, ERDA, the Federal Energy Administration and the National Science Foundation. Field testing of a similar SAGE system is under way in Upland.

After touring the MED and SAGE sites, the builders attended a briefing on the gas company Energy Management Services program at the utility's Orange County Division headquarters in Anaheim.

That program is designed to show builders proven energy saving designs, building techniques and pilotless equipment.

Determination Overcomes Handicap

Four years ago, a doctor told Cayetano Lopez he could never work again. Now Goodwill Industries of Orange County has named him its Goodwill Worker of the Year. Lopez, an Anaheim resident, turned to Goodwill for help after an automobile accident had left him with a crippling back injury.

"I HAVE ALWAYS supported my wife and our six children. That is the way it should be. I don't want to change now. Can you help me?" was Lopez' plea to a Goodwill counselor.

Determined to support his family and give them the best advantages possible, Lopez had moved from his native Jalisco, Mexico to Orange County in the early 1940s. That proved to be a profitable step, for he soon obtained employment as a farm laborer at a large, local produce farm. He remained there until his accident.

Lopez entered Goodwill's evaluation program three years ago. Although he expressed interest and aptitude in several work areas, he realized that he would be unable to perform the necessary duties because of his disability. He could function, however, in one area — the electrical appliance repair department. Lopez immediately enrolled in the Goodwill Trade School.

Upon graduation from his training program, he was hired to fill a vacancy within Goodwill Industries.

IN HIS BROKEN English, Lopez expresses his feelings about his accomplishment, "I had always supported my family. Now, I still can. That is the way it should be!"

The selection of Goodwill Worker of the Year is based upon outstanding achievement in overcoming a handicap. In addition to work achievement, this includes physical, mental and social adjustment. The severity of the handicap to be overcome is also considered.

"Cayetano Lopez was selected from 195 other men and women who completed Goodwill's training program during 1976 and were placed either into competitive industry or employed within Goodwill," said Gaylord M. Hicks, executive vice president of the nonprofit rehabilitation facility.

Marine Gets Six Months in Rape

A Camp Pendleton Marine who told a Saddleback College student shortly before he raped her that he was an undercover San Clemente police officer has been sentenced to six months in the Orange County Jail.

Superior Court Judge Byron K. McMillan ordered the jail term and three years probation for Marine Daniel Lloyd Holland, 19, after finding him guilty of rape in a nonjury proceeding.

The 19-year-old victim told police Holland raped her after showing her a .45-caliber automatic and telling her that he was engaged on undercover duty.

She said he then drove her to Saddleback College after apologizing for his actions. She jotted down his car license number as he drove off.

Watson Ahead by 1; Ford Delights Mob

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — The largest gallery golf has ever seen, a cheering, enthusiastic, swarming mob, failed to get former President Gerald Ford past the cut while Tom Watson — playing in the relative solitude of another course — swept into the lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The former President, with Arnold Palmer as his pro partner, chipped in for a natural birdie on the 14th hole — with his 18 handicap a net eagle for the team — and said "it made my day."

He and Palmer had a better ball score of 208, only seven under par and not even close to the score required to qualify for the final round today. Ford, however, played extremely well on the sunswept back nine at the Pebble Beach Golf Links and played a five-hole stretch starting at the 12th in level par. In all, he had four natural pars and the birdie. Ford helped Palmer eight shots for the day and they had a team score of 66 for the round.

Under the format for this unique event, amateurs are not required to putt out on every hole. Ford picked up several times and an exact score was not available. Palmer shot a 74 and failed to qualify for the pro portion of the tournament with a 219 total.

They were followed by what Jack Tuthill, Tournament Director for the PGA Tour, called "the biggest gallery I've seen in 17 years on the Tour," a galloping mob of uncounted thousands that tied up traffic on the famed 17 Mile Drive and caused delays of more than two hours.

Watson, a former British Open champion, played his third round at the par 71 Shore course at Monterey Peninsula Country Club — away from the mob — and managed a 67 and a 202 total, 13 under par for one round on each of the three peninsula courses.

Tony Jacklin, a former British and American Open champion mired in a deep slump for four years, had a solid 68 and was just shot out of the lead at 203.

Lee Elder, who gained international attention as the first black to play in the Masters, shot 69 at the Shore course and was third at 204. Mexican Victor Regalado, who held the second round lead, went to a 71 at Cypress Point and was one more behind at 205.

Don Bies was next at 207 after a 67 at Cypress Point.

Jack Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, had it in position to make a charge — then came to woe in the water behind the 17th green.

He had to take a drop, chipped close — almost hitting the pin — and one-putted for a bogey. He finished with a 70 and a 208 total, six big shots back going to today's final round at Pebble Beach.

In addition to Palmer, some other major casualties of the cut included Johnny Miller, who had a 77-219, defending champion Ben Crenshaw, 73-218, and U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate.

The Golden Years

When 5 Young Men Put Valley on Map

There were five of them. They all grew up within 40 miles of each other in some of the small towns that help make up the central portion of California's San Joaquin Valley.

They came from areas that are renowned for cotton, grape and potato production. And for heat, fog and dust.

But from 1948 to 1960, they made the names of their villages come back four years later to bag the gold medal in Rome.

Johnson also served as student body president at UCLA.

Inness and Koch were discus throwers and got their college education at USC. Inness copped the gold medal in Helsinki (1952) while Koch settled for a bronze award four years later in Melbourne.

King rounds out the quintet. A sprinter with 9.3 speed over 100 yards, King placed fourth in U.S. Olympic team trials. That wasn't good enough to run the 100 meters for his country (the top three make the team).

However, it did give him the other spot on America's 400-meter relay team. And that quartet won the gold medal. King went to Cal.

It was an extraordinary concentration of talent to be produced by such a small, sparsely populated area.

And it gave the folks of the valley something to be mighty proud of in those 12 golden years.

prominent in world sports news. They were all standout high school athletes. They each made at least one United States Olympic track team. And they accounted for five Olympic gold medals, a silver and a bronze.

I am speaking of Bob Mathias (Tulare), Sim Inness (Tulare), Desmond Koch (Corcoran), Rafer Johnson (Kingsburg) and Leamon King (Delano).

Mathias is probably the most well remembered of the quintet. A 17-year-old high school boy at the time, he grabbed world acclaim by winning the decathlon gold medal in London (1948), then repeated the triumph four years later at Helsinki.

He also starred in football at Stanford University and led the team to the 1952 Rose Bowl game by returning a kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown in a 27-20 victory against USC.

That triumph before nearly 100,000 at the LA Coliseum gave Stanford the Pacific Coast Conference crown and its first trip to the Rose Bowl in 16 years.

Mathias is now a member of Congress.

Johnson was also a decathlon star. He was second to USA teammate Milt Campbell in the '56 Olympics at Melbourne, then Freshman Lamont Jerrett came off the bench with 6½ minutes to play, leading UC Irvine to a 65-57 college basketball victory over visiting University of San Diego Saturday night.

Jerrett, a 6-9 Dorsey High (LA) graduate, hit his only two points the first time he had his hands on the ball, grabbed five rebounds in five minutes of playing time and blocked two shots.

When he entered the game the Anteaters were down, 53-49.

UCI grabbed the lead for good with 2:59 to go when Dan Hair hit a jumper at the top of the key. That made it 57-55.

Louis Stephens was again UCI's leading scorer, hitting 20 points. Freshman Steve Rodgers had 14.

Bruins Battle Irish, Branning

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame's Fighting Irish will be there. So will UCLA's Bruins. So will 11,345 screaming fans, ear-splitting pep bands, a battalion of sport writers and network television cameras.

Nothing much. Just what Irish coach Digger Phelps calls "the best rivalry in college basketball today."

When Notre Dame upset UCLA 66-63 last month at the Bruins' Pauley Pavilion, a jubilant Phelps was a mile high. Four straight losses before last Tuesday's victory over Stonehill brought him back to earth, but the Irish coach pledges:

"Believe me, we'll be ready."

The Notre Dame-UCLA rivalry — still dominated 12-8 by the Bruins — has been fierce the past four seasons. The Irish's biggest victory, also viewed by a national television audience, came here three years ago when they edged UCLA, 71-70, and snapped the Bruins' record 88-game winning string.

"I think it's a great rivalry," said Phelps, who lost his first four games to UCLA. Since then,

Palomino Retains Crown

LOS ANGELES — Knocked down in the first round, Carlos Palomino came back to outbox and finally stop Mando Muniz in the 15th round Saturday night to retain his World Boxing Council welterweight title in the first championship match between a pair of college graduates.

Late in the fight, Palomino, 146½, of Westminster, continually beat Muniz, 147, of Monterey Park, to the punch and moved ahead in the scoring.

In the 15th, before the cheering crowd of 9,028 at the Olympic Auditorium, the 27-year-old Palomino floored his 30-year-old rival with a right and left to the head.

Muniz reached his feet only to run into a barrage of punches and some thought referee John Thomas was late in halting the fight after 2:24 of the final round had elapsed.

Fleisher Captures Pro Golf Tourney

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Bruce Fleisher, after a rocky first nine that saw him lose three strokes to par, came back with a strong finish to capture first place in the third annual Bing Crosby Southern pro-am golf tournament at Irvine Coast Country club of Newport Beach Saturday.

Fleisher, the first round leader with a course-record tying 64, started on the 10th hole in the shotgun event Saturday and found the back nine tougher than the day before. He made the turn at three over par for the day.

But five birdies on the closing nine including the ninth hole where he sank a 15-foot putt, gave him the win.

"There's a lot of luck to this game," he said after the round. "I gambled with a four-wood on the third hole and came off of it a little."

"The ball bounced on the concrete bottom of a water hazard and I saw a splash. But landed 30 feet from the pin and I two-putted for a birdie. That turned it around for me."

"I was able to keep my composure despite the first nine and my wife Wendy joined me then and told me to relax. She helped a lot."

With the victory, he qualifies for the San Diego Open at Torrey Pines this week along with four other players from the Irvine Coast tournament.

"It's very hard when you have to go out and qualify every Monday. You can never get your momentum going," he said. "Things will pick up now, though."

Fleisher, the 1968 U.S. amateur champion and national junior college title holder, was also a member of the 1969 Walker Cup team and the U.S. world amateur team before turning pro in 1970. His best finish in a major tournament was third in the Greater Greensboro Open in 1974. He finished second at the Quad Cities tourney, another satellite PGA tour event.

The 29-year-old pro from Florida won by four strokes over three players bunched at 137 including Dennie Meyer of San Juan Capistrano (69-68); Bobby Fleckman (68-69); and Marty Weizman (70-67).

New Channels Tangle CB Party Line

By TOM MURPHINE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If you're among the thousands who will join America's party line of the airwaves known as Citizen's Band or CB Radio, you ought to do some shopping and checking before you buy that rig.

At first blush, getting into CB Radio seems simple. You can drop down to the store and purchase one of the transistorized transmitter-receivers that is about the size of a rectangular lunchbox.

TO INSTALL IT as a home base unit or in car, truck or boat, all you need is an antenna. Plug in the set and you should be on the air.

You must, however, apply for a Federal Communications Commission license which is free and requires no test.

But it isn't all quite this simple. There are a lot of questions for the beginner, like:

- Did I get my money's worth on my CB set?
- How will it work? Am I transmitting at maximum power? Can anybody hear me out there?
- Am I getting the right CB rig for my needs?
- Will my transmissions interfere with neighbors' television or radio sets?

In addition to these questions, there is a measure of controversy in CB Radio circles today because of the new 17 channels for CB broadcasting which were just added by the FCC at the first of the year.

Prior to that, CB operators were limited to broadcasting on just 23 channels.

So, should you buy one of the new 40-channel outfits or settle for a 23-channel model at a much lower cost?

There is disagreement even among the experts.

SOME POINT OUT that the FCC approved the additional 17 channels because the old 23 frequencies were getting jammed as the CB craze swept across the nation and mushroomed in popularity almost beyond belief.

It has been estimated that the FCC now gets between 20,000 and 30,000 license applications each day. The number is expected to escalate when CB sets become optional equipment on new cars. There are more than 15 million sets now in operation in the United States.

Crowding on airwaves of the CB party line is obvious the moment you first tune in your new CB radio here along the Orange Coast.

Most truckers and commuters out there on the freeways are using Channel 21. Channel 13 is popular in the Newport Beach-Costa Mesa area. Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley operators seem to like channels 18, 19 and 20. Laguna Beach CBers stick to 21. Mission Viejo and southerly CBers use several high-numbered channels.

Most CBers like the high-numbered frequencies because they seem to transmit and receive with more "punch" and power.

ALL THIS LEADS some operators to see the new 40-channel setup as an answer to the jammed CB network.

But there is controversy on this point. Some CBers believe that the new models won't have the effectiveness of the older 23-channel units.

One CB salesman, who sells only one line and therefore wouldn't go on the record, said this:

"The 40-channel jobs are going to be a big disappointment. Because of new FCC restrictions forced by commercial broadcasters, you're only going to transmit at two watts of power on the added 17 channels."

Maximum allowable output on a CB rig is four watts.

ANOTHER CB specialist, however, disagrees with this analysis although he envisions the result about the same.

"All CB sets including the new ones have four watts output," said Heath Kline, who is senior buyer for The Electronics Store, Inc. in Costa Mesa.

"The problem really is that the new 40 channel models have a lot more government restrictions on them."

"I compare it with how autos lost power in 1972 when the government forced us to install all that smog control equipment."

KLINE, WHO IS a ham amateur radio operator and has been selling CBs for five years, figures that the new 40-channel models will be transmitting with "less punch" and the receivers will be less sensitive than the old 23 channel rigs.

"Eventually, technology will catch up with the new government restrictions and overcome it," Kline suggests. "Just like the automakers redesigned and overcame smog control losses."

"But my advice would be to wait for that technology catch-up before investing in a 40-channel CB unit."

But what about the price of CB units that can be a total confusion to the beginner?

ADVERTISED CB Radio prices range all the way from $30 to more than $350.

"My one bit of advice probably applies to all kinds of merchandise," Kline says. "You get what you pay for."

"All CB Radios can get up to four watts of output. The question is what do you do with that four watts? The cheapie models will have terrible voice distortion and often bleed over from the channel you're broadcasting on to other adjacent channels."

Kline also points out, "Often on cheapie models customers must return sets because they are faulty."

"On some cheapies (we don't carry 'em), the customer return is as high as 10 to 25 percent. On top-line brands, it's less than one percent."

BUT WHAT ABOUT price and the model you should buy?

Kline says, "If you are going to operate on the open road or in areas where the channels are uncrowded, the less expensive sets in established brands do just fine."

"But if you want to operate in cities or where CB channels are crowded, you'll need a more

Antenna Can Be Deadly

During Installation, Look Up, Look Out

The greatest danger to human life involved in Citizen's Band radio today has nothing to do with operation or maintenance of the set. It's home antenna installation that is the killer.

In Southern California alone last year, there were three deaths and 20 injuries to enthusiasts who were installing CB radio antennas on their homes.

AND ONLY LAST week, Huntington Beach resident Robert Jarrell died tragically while attempting a CB antenna installation on his house. The antenna got out of his control, struck a 12,000-volt power line and he was killed. Jarrell's 12-year-old daughter, who was assisting him, suffered serious injuries.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, 207 deaths have occurred during antenna installation efforts since the CB radio craze began its rapid growth in 1973.

A CB antenna appears somewhat similar to a television antenna. Yet many CB home installations—known as base stations—have antennas on a flexible mast which may be 30 to 40 feet in length.

The greatest danger is the flexibility of the mast.

DURING INSTALLATION, it may twist out of the installer's control and any nearby power lines pose a real danger.

Most knowledgeable CBers agree that no one should attempt a home antenna installation on a roof without at least four helpers on the project. This need has brought about popularity of the "antenna-raising party"—similar to the old barn-raising parties of rural America.

Thus several CBers will get together on a weekend and help one of their "good buddies" get his antenna up. It's a lot safer and usually more fun.

So serious has become the threat of electrocution during CB antenna raisings that Southern California Edison Company has launched an educational campaign to warn the public of the danger, according to Edison Vice President David J. Fogarty.

HE NOTES THAT almost all base station installations are do-it-yourself projects.

Fogarty said the safety tips apply to anyone working near power lines around the home. Some of his tips include:

- Before starting up that ladder to the roof, secure it to the side of the building with a rope.
- Check the area from the roof and ground to locate all nearby power lines.
- When moving the metal masts to the roof, stay at least one and one-half times the length of the mast away from nearby power lines. This is because the flexible masts can whip around suddenly just like a fishing rod.

ADDITIONAL FACETS of the CB safety campaign include warning stickers that have been prepared for dealers to place on antenna kits, placards for retail store displays and pamphlets carrying safety messages.

Former First Lady Betty Ford, whose nickname on the CB airwaves is "First Mama," and country singer Jerry Jordan also have been enlisted to help publicize the CB antenna safety campaign.

The slogan is "Look Up 'n Look Out." Jordan has created a special version of his CB-oriented hit, "Don't Call Me, I'll Call You," in which he accidentally contacted heaven on his CB radio.

As for antenna installation safety, he quipped, "If you don't look up and look out, you may be closer to the Lord than you know."

Credit Wanted for Superior Court Win

DEAR PAT: I'd like to know what I can do about a problem I'm having with a credit reporting bureau. I lost a Small Claims Court suit several months ago, but appealed in Superior Court and won. The only information that was passed on to my creditors by the bureau was that the Small Claims Court judgment had been entered against me. There wasn't one word about my winning the Superior Court case. As a result, a department store refused me credit for my holiday shopping. This ruined Christmas, not to mention the time and expense I had to invest in about 15 phone calls and several letters in an attempt to find out what was causing my sudden loss of credit.

K. T., Santa Ana

Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1971 you have the right to have incomplete or incorrect information removed from your credit file. You also can insist that the credit reporting agency notify those who have received the incomplete or inaccurate information that such information has been deleted from your file. You can then check your own file personally and contact your creditors to make sure their information about you has been corrected. If a credit reporting agency willfully or negligently violates this law, you have the right under this act to sue for damages.

Mistakes Occur As the World Turns

DEAR PAT: I mailed a subscription order to Soap Opera Digest in February 1976, and enclosed a $6.85 check. When no magazines had arrived by April 1, I wrote asking that my subscription be checked. I didn't get any answer, and would prefer to receive a refund at this point.

E. L., Mission Viejo

This column forwarded your complaint and half a dozen others about Soap Opera Digest to Magazine Action Line. Robert Treffer, manager of this service, reports that your money has been refunded, and that the other six complaints also have been settled. MAL, a division of Publishers Clearing House (PCH), a mail order subscription agency, is a free public service which has proven effective in resolving magazine subscription complaints.

People who have been unable to get satisfaction from a magazine publisher may write to MAL for help. If PCH handles the magazine in question, MAL usually will re-enter the subscription. If the magazine is not carried by PCH, MAL also may re-enter the subscription. In other cases, MAL will either offer a subscription to a substitute magazine at no charge or provide a refund. The address is: Magazine Action Line, 282 Channel Drive, Port Washington, NY 11050.

Digital Watches Under Arm of Law

DEAR PAT: A few weeks before Christmas I saw an ad in TV Guide about digital watches. If two were ordered, a person was supposed to receive a free calculator. I believe the brand was "Teletonics." I ordered the two watches about Dec. 10, enclosing a check for around $40. I haven't received my check back from the bank, nor do I have the ad or address to which it was mailed. The watches were guaranteed to be delivered by Christmas if ordered by Dec. 15. Now I don't know what to do because I don't have the watches and have no way to locate the address.

A. M., Costa Mesa

Even though you have not received your canceled check, you can contact your bank and request an immediate report on the check's status. If it has been cashed, you can obtain the information on the back of the check which would help you trace the company which cashed it. If it has not been cashed, AYS advises you to stop payment immediately in view of information received from TV Guide's Customer Service Department.

Its spokesman says that when a flood of non-delivery complaints arrived at TV Guide, it contacted the "reputable advertising agency" which placed the ad in TV Guide and a number of other publications. A contact with the U.S. Postal Service followed, along with instructions from the Illinois Attorney General that all complaints were to be directed to that office.

Send details of your order with a copy of your canceled check (if it has been cashed) to TV Guide, Customer Service Department, Box 900, Radnor, PA 19088. Your complaint will be forwarded by that office to the Illinois Attorney General, and you will be informed about the subsequent status of your refund or merchandise delivery.

Overdue Check Asked on Buy-centennial

DEAR PAT: Your answer will be too late to do any good, but reflection on the past year prompts my inquiry. Did anyone try to organize a group in this age of groups to counteract the offensive commercialization of the bicentennial celebration?

H. L., Corona del Mar

Of course such a group was formed, but where was it when the bicentennial toilet seats were being publicized and sold? The People's Bicentennial Commission (1346 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20036) was "organized to counteract the commercialization and superficiality of official bicentennial activities."

The commission promoted its aims by "publishing books, producing educational radio and television programs, exhibitions and workshops to inform the American people about the basic principles fought about in the American Revolution," according to information published about it.

Of course, it could be argued that many products promoted during the bicentennial year did not have direct relationship with "official" bicentennial activities.

Sound Idea May Save Porpoises

By REBECCA STICKLAND
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dennis Johnson, 33, a Costa Mesa businessman, believes he has discovered a way to save the lives of thousands of porpoises by using an underwater telephone.

The problem began around 1960 when U.S. tuna fishermen began using the purse seine, a large circular net with a purse-string closing at the bottom.

Knowing that a large school of porpoises on the water's surface often meant tuna below, fishermen habitually took advantage of the dolphin's inadvertent guide service to locate their catch.

It was a harmless practice when the fishermen used a line, bait and pole to pull in the tuna one at a time. But with the arrival of the purse seine, the situation changed.

Not only are the tuna trapped in the net, so are the porpoises. Confused by the closing of the net, the noise of the tuna boat and the hundreds of tuna teeming around them, the porpoises panic. Swimming blindly, they run out of air and drown.

The need to develop a method of separating the porpoises from the tuna is apparent. Enter Johnson. He is president of Sound-Wave Systems, a company that specializes in developing underwater communications systems.

According to Johnson, when he became aware of the porpoise kill problem, it occurred to him that some of the sound concepts he had been using to develop his company's products might be used to save the porpoises.

JOHNSON HAS a bachelor of science degree from Annapolis Naval Academy and holds a masters degree from Harvard University's School of Business Administration. He calls his underwater telephone for dolphins "Space-Sound."

"The sides of school fish have pressure-sensitive spots, so that when one fish turns, the pressure caused by its movement reaches the next fish and causes it to turn also. It's like a wave of sound traveling through the school," Johnson says.

"We can generate a man-made sound that will cause the porpoises or tuna to turn in the direction we want them to go," he continues.

According to Johnson, Space-Sound works by using two sound sources, transducers, placed at selected separate points in the water. From the transducers, the desired sounds are emitted toward each other.

When the two sounds meet, they form a third dimension that is actually a two to three foot deep plane of sound spread across the tuna's expanse in the water.

When the porpoises encounter the pressure of the sound plane, he explains, they will move away from it. Theoretically, as the plane is moved, so are the porpoises, he adds.

The theory of directing porpoises' behavior through the mechanical emission of specific sounds has been tested before.

According to Johnson, one experiment reproduced the sound of a killer whale to frighten the porpoises away. The sound, however, only increased the panic of the porpoises, causing even more of them to drown.

Johnson claims his concept operates from a different perspective.

"WE USE SOUNDS that will cause a normal conditioned response from the porpoise, similar to the condition that tells the porpoise it is short on air and needs to re-surface," he explains.

Conservationists estimate the porpoise kill at more than three million since U.S. fishermen began widespread use of the purse seine.

The Marine Mammal Protection Act was passed in 1972 to initiate a program to prevent this slaughter. As a result, several fishing gear innovations have been made in recent years and the porpoise kill has decreased, according to figures published by the Department of Commerce.

But, according to some experts, as long as the porpoises are enclosed in a net, the result will be dead porpoises. The ideal solution, these experts conclude, will use a method that traps only the tuna.

Johnson says he hopes his Space-Sound method can eventually be developed to reach this ideal. The plane of sound will be used to herd the tuna and a net will not be necessary, he explains.

Through his company, Johnson has applied for a grant from the Porpoise Rescue Foundation of La Jolla, to fund the testing of his system.

sophisticated rig that will eliminate interference and voice distortion."

There seems to be little question that the CB bargains today are in the older 23-channel outfits that are still on dealer's shelves.

In some instances, you might pay half-price today on a quality transceiver when compared to what it cost a few months ago.

PRICES HAVE dropped because dealers are anticipating a rush for the new 40-channel models.

Kline says a good 40 channel rig will cost from $150 up to $400.

In comparison, a good quality 23-channel model will now range from $75 to $190.

"In other words, you're going to be paying double if you go for those extra 17 channels," Kline suggests.

mercial businesses are using these channels.

"So CBers will be competing for air time with businesses until the FCC moves the commercial uses to other channels in 1979," Kline explained.

The best advice for beginning CB Radio enthusiasts seems to be to do a lot of shopping and comparing before buying. Additionally, the more veteran CB operators you can talk to before plunking down hard cash for a rig, the better.

Like all hobbies, there are all kinds of accessories you can add in the effort to improve performance — if you want to pay the cost.

And when it comes to buying like TV interference, auto engine noise interruptions or antenna matching, the CB beginner has little choice but to seek out an expert to solve the vexations for him.

Member Quits

ANOTHER complication for the new models is that the 40 channels will be sharing airwaves with the so-called "business band." This means that com-

You Can Help

Learn the Law

Here's one program that can offer those who help as much information as those who are helped.

A new program seeks aides to teach hour-long classes in area schools at all grade levels in the legal and social processes of decision making and their consequences. Helpers will receive training in law prior to assignment.

Counselors find former drug addicts are guarded with professional guidance staff, less so when they are offered crafts activities. A county agency seeks aids to help in directing activities involving leather and pottery. Volunteers can work Monday through Friday, morning or afternoon.

STAY-AT-HOMES can still render important aid to agencies and groups that need help with mass mailing and other clerical tasks. The Voluntary Action Center operates a clerical bank that supplies workers for short-term projects by schools, charitable and service organizations.

Baby grown up? A social worker could use that old high chair to help a needy local family with an infant who's just beginning to sit up. Chair will be picked up.

A family planning clinic can use the aid of a bilingual (Spanish) person to act as receptionist, one evening per week from 5-8:30 p.m.

Childrens Hospital in Orange needs persons 16 or older to donate four hours per week for a variety of jobs scheduled both morning and evening. Gift shop, reception desk, gift cart and other tasks are to be assigned.

THE NEWPORT Beach Boathouse Boutique, operated for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, is seeking the assistance of several persons for selling duties in the shop, which stocks craft items, sculpture and artifacts.

To find meaningful work helping others, contact the Voluntary Action Center, 1714 W. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach, 675-9210, or the West Orange County center at 520 Pecan, Huntington Beach, 960-3312. Central offices are available by calling 530-2370.

He Lends Ear to Deaf

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dennis Landesman of Corona del Mar has returned from Las Vegas where he received an award as one of America's Ten Outstanding Young Men for 1977 from the Jaycees.

Landesman's volunteer work in forming a summer camp, hearing aid loan bank and interpretation program for deaf children led to the award.

Past recipients of the award include presidents Gerald Ford, John Kennedy and Richard Nixon as well as conductor Leonard Bernstein, writer William Saroyan and industrialist Howard Hughes.

LANDESMAN, 33, of 4701 Dorchester Road, Corona del Mar, was president of the Newport Harbor Jaycees in 1973. After leaving the position, he founded the Children's Hear-More Institute.

Since the formation of the institute, Landesman has been instrumental in sending 500 deaf children throughout the state to a special summer camp.

His volunteer work has helped screen more than 10,000 preschool children for hearing problems and has led to the formation of a hearing aid loan bank for children whose families can't afford the devices.

In his professional life, Landesman is director of Audiology Inc. of Newport Beach, an organization that has opened branches at St. Jude's Hospital, Fullerton, and the Hearing and Speech Center of Orange County in Huntington Beach.

"DEAF AWARENESS is on the way up," said Landesman. "People should be aware that there is help that can be found." Landesman noted that professional aid is often completely free of charge and urged anyone with a hearing problem to contact an audiologist.

He said he hopes to expand his volunteer services and form a halfway house for deaf persons in Orange County and a helpline to aid deaf people with consumer problems.

Landesman, who received a masters degree from Northwestern University, has already set up a sign language and interpretation program for expectant deaf couples so the father can be in the delivery room with the mother.

Last year, he was named one of the Five Outstanding Young Men in California and an Outstanding Young Man of the United States by the Jaycees.

THIS YEAR'S jump to the Top Ten (out of about 35,000 applications and nominations) put Landesman in the company of such notables as Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey and singer Wayne Newton during last weekend's ceremonies in Las Vegas.

Others who received the award were entertainer Harry Chapin, President Ford's staff assistant David Frederickson, physician Grady Stumbo, blind intern Dr. David Hartman, accountant Frank Banks, teacher and priest Father William Atkinson and U.S. Rep. Les AuCoin of Oregon.

Landesman and his wife Earlene have four children.

American Artists Wow World U.S. Arts Lauded

By The Associated Press

Andrew Wyeth is very big in Tokyo, Vera Zorina is very big in Oslo, Grace Bumbry is very big in West Germany, soprano Mary Costa is very big in Chile, Tennessee Williams is very big in Moscow, George Balanchine is very big in Denmark, Frank Sinatra is very big in Amsterdam, Benny Carter's quintet is very big in Cairo, James King of Dodge City, Kan., is an honored singer in Vienna and Ken Kesey's "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest" is on the best seller list in Spain.

WHATEVER AMERICANS think of their image abroad after Vietnam and Watergate, American artists carry the flag proudly everywhere and to rising acclaim.

An Associated Press survey of the world's cultural scene finds Americans on the stage, in the museums and on the best seller lists of almost every literate nation, including the communist world.

Take West Germany. John Neumeier directs the Hamburg Opera ballet to critical approval.

Theodore Bloomfield of Cleveland is director of the West Berlin Symphony. There are 10 American soloists with the Bavarian State Opera in Munich and 19 with the German Opera of West Berlin.

THERE ARE 17 AMERICAN ballet dancers in the Hamburg State Opera Company. The Hamburg opera ensemble has seven American singers, all of international stature.

There are more than 1,000 American paintings in West German museums and the number increases every year.

Even in Soviet-dominated Eastern Europe, the American presence is appreciated, largely in literature, but still appreciated. After World War II, the most popular American authors in Czechoslovakia were Edgar Lee Masters, Walt Whitman, Emily Dickinson and William Carlos Williams.

Even today, there is a lag between what appears in the East against what appears in the West. The most influential American authors in Czechoslovakia today are Ernest Hemingway, William Faulkner, Scott Fitzgerald, Erskine Caldwell, and thereafter Arthur Hailey, Ray Bradbury, Norman Mailer, Truman Capote, William Saroyan, Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, Louis Bromfield and Irving Stone.

LATEST ON THE SOVIET translation list are Kurt Vonnegut, John Updike and Irving Wallace, with Kesey's "Cuckoo" currently in process.

Among American plays now being staged in the Soviet Union are Tennessee Williams' "Sweet Bird of Youth" and "A Streetcar Named Desire," and Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five."

Singapore may be a little slow with the more serious arts, but 95 percent of the English language films shown there come from Hollywood and 45 percent of the television programs come from the United States.

Even in South Korea, the American musical presence is growing, as well as the theatrical with "The Fantasticks" and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

WHILE EGYPT SHOWS mainly a predilection for American jazz, Europe is fascinated by most things American.

When Frank Sinatra performed at Amsterdam's Concertgebouw, one paper wrote:

"For 80 minutes he thrilled the packed concert hall. Those who complain about his voice are mad. The man sings life itself and listening to him was an unforgettable experience."

Dutch ballet experts consider U.S. dancers among the best in the world. There are 15 Americans in the Amsterdam-based National Ballet, and 10 in the Netherlands Dance Theater of The Hague.

Hans Knill of the Netherlands Dance Theater says of American dancers "They are among the best dancers in the world and certainly the best trained. They come to Europe after leaving ballet school because they can't all get a job in America."

AMERICANS HAVE LONG been appreciated in London, and among those on the concert schedule this season are Andre Previn, principal conductor of the London Symphony who lives in a country village outside London, Zubin Mehta, James Levine, Isaac Stern, Lorin Maazel, Rudolf Serkin, Frederica von Stade, Judith Blegen, Sherill Milnes, Grace Bumbry, Jessye Norman, John Browning, Craig Sheppard and the Juilliard String Quartet.

Leningrad's audiences love conductor Seiji Ozawa and the San Francisco Symphony

American literature is a major Yankee influence in South America where, in many countries, the only visits by musicians, dancers and singers are sponsored by the U.S. government.

But there are seven Americans who play in Peru's only symphony orchestra. Mary Costa sang in the Chilean production of "La Traviata," and bass James Morris of the New York Metropolitan sang in "Faust."

Museums Enter Boom Times

By The Associated Press

In a storefront museum on New York City's Staten Island, Elaine Schweninger guides 100 schoolchildren a day through an exhibit of Egyptian hieroglyphics, then shows them how to draw their own symbols and paint their faces.

On a Navyajo reservation in Tsaile, Ariz., Harry Walters is assembling a display of Indian weavings and a collection of recorded ritual chants for a new $4 million cultural center.

AT THESE AND MORE conventional museums across the nation, interest in art and cultural exhibits is booming. Attendance rose during the bicentennial year and new museums are springing up while old ones are being enlarged, an informal survey shows.

"Everywhere you look, museums have arrived into the mainstream of American life," says Joe Noble, president of the American Association of Museums.

In Texas, 140 museums are under construction or planned.

At the Charles M. Russell Museum and Gallery in Helena, Mont., "attendance is up so far our girls have lost count," says spokeswoman Dolores Brown.

At the Philadelphia Museum of Art, a bicentennial exhibition and newly installed air-conditioning helped push attendance over the 500,000 mark in eight months. That was more than the previous 12-month total.

"Where once art museums interested mainly the rich, now if a museum opens in a community it's a cause for great rejoicing — just as public libraries were in the late 19th century," Noble said.

"More people are spending time in museums every year because we're growing more sophisticated as a nation and people have more leisure time," Noble said. He also said he felt educational television has played a significant role in awakening the public to the varieties of art that are available.

"THE BICENTENNIAL, of course, generated tremendous awareness of American art," he said. "but the interest extends back to the European masters — and to contemporary art as well."

Spokesman Jim Hunter offers a more prosaic explanation of why this year's attendance at the Toledo, Ohio, Museum of Art has passed 400,000 in a city of 340,000 people.

"More people are taking advantage of things to do close to home, because they can't afford to travel as much as they used to," he said.

Carol Bannerman, editor of the museum association's newsletter, says a "noticeable increase in the number of visits" has occurred during the past year, "despite almost universal increased admission charges."

IRONICALLY, THE HIGHER attendance "creates its own problems in a time of severe economic conditions — a demand for additional shows, service and educational programs," she said.

But she said individual and corporate donations to museums, particularly art museums, are also increasing. In a recent survey, she said, 90 percent of the museums responding reported gains in private memberships.

THE PASADENA MUSEUM of Modern Art doubled its attendance to 2,000 a week after industrialist Norton Simon donated his classical art collection — and the name was changed to The Norton Simon Museum of Art.

In Texas, an unprecedented wave of museum fever sparked plans for 140 new museums in addition to the present 350. Most of the new ones specialize in local history.

Students' Needs Fed

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It was a lean night at Interfaith. Since it was near the beginning of the quarter, few students had shown up for the Protestant discussion and potluck.

No matter. Someone was dispatched for pizza and a few minutes after 7, the UCI students and one of their chaplains, the Rev. Bill McLaughlin, were enjoying a sumptuous, if simple, feast.

They apologized to the visitor. The food usually is better.

Food isn't the important thing at the university's Interfaith Foundation, however. More significant events take place every day and during the Wednesday evening potlucks.

Interfaith, the "church" serving the UCI "parish," is "a neat place where upbeat, joyful things happen for the most part," Rev. McLaughlin said.

"Students do have problems but they're handled in a spirit of love and gentleness."

REV. McLAUGHLIN, an Irish priest who usually is called Father Bill, is part of the reason the center is so upbeat. His gentle humor and the fact that he knows each student by name help ease the tension of the highly competitive school.

Interfaith, while not used by a large number of students, fills a significant need on the campus.

The organization was developed in 1966 by the Rev. Dr. Cecil Hoffman and Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich as a framework for various denominations to use.

Students often are confused or "turned off" by religion when they reach college and Interfaith offers an opportunity for them to ask questions without feeling silly or disloyal to their church.

The doors of the lounge in Town Center usually are open so students who are lonely or just want to talk can drop in at their leisure.

Steve Durkee, a freshman from Burlingame, said he enjoys meeting members of his faith and others and just being able to share experiences on a weekly basis.

"There is a lot of caring about fellow individuals here," he asserted.

CAROL HUFFMAN, a sophomore from Upland who is president of the Protestant Student Fellowship, said she finds most of her close friends at Interfaith. She drops in a lot and usually attends the Catholics' weekly 10 p.m. mass.

Miss Huffman said Interfaith is an important part of the campus because it offers students a chance to explore new ideas and new faiths.

"Many do question. Here everyone accepts you at your own stage. You can learn a lot. I've learned that different denominations have a lot to offer. Now I don't know where I am. I don't feel like 'just a Presbyterian.'"

Laurie Tiberi, a freshman from San Clemente, calls her involvement with Interfaith "an excellent decision on my part."

The Roman Catholic who recently accepted Christ said life on campus would be "less" without Interfaith.

"I like listening to what other people have found in their faiths."

Interfaith also attracts people other than UCI students such as Rich Johnson, an engineer for TRW, who comes because "it has a more free expression than a parish."

JOHNSON, WHO attended UC Berkeley and was a member of the Newman Club there, deliberately sought out the Irvine campus ministry when he moved to the area in 1972 because he wanted the university stimulus plus the close friendships Interfaith offered.

"A lot of former students still come here," he said. "Most of the people I know I've met here."

The campus ministers enjoy the opportunity to work with students of all beliefs. "This is the only vehicle where the faiths can come together and gain understanding and love for each other," explained the Rev. Don Sturgeon, whose salary is paid by the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest.

Rev. Sturgeon, also pastor of the new Irvine Baptist Fellowship, said Interfaith doesn't see a high percentage of UCI students but that fact doesn't bother him. "We don't concern ourselves with numbers but quality," he asserted.

There are several reasons for this, he believes. Irvine is largely a commuter campus so many students worship with their families on the weekends. And, there has been a lot of "anti-institutionalism" among the youths.

"THIS IS THE age where they drop their faith temporarily or permanently," Rev. McLaughlin said.

In the past few years there has been a turning within, he added, in contrast to the social action of the '60s.

The Rev. Bill McLaughlin (left) is the Catholic chaplain. Most call him 'Father Bill.' Laurie Tiberi (below), a freshman social ecology major, calls her involvement an excellent decision.

The Battered Wife: Theory Strikes Out

DEAR ANN: Many writers (including you) have devoted a lot of space to the Battered Wife and the Sadistic Husband who abuses her. You seem to believe he is a psychopath who should be counseled and/or jailed in short order.

I remember my uncle, whose wife badgered him, complained and criticized endlessly. Why he put up with it I could never understand. True, they had children and they were poor, but still...

Then came my turn. I married the prettiest, most virtuous girl in town. Within two years she became the same kind of badgering, complaining, critical wife my aunt had been. But we had children and were poor and she was still beautiful and insisted she loved only me.

Now, after 40 years, she is gone. And so are my ulcers. Why was that woman so miserable to live with? I have speculated that perhaps she thought the honeymoon would last forever.

When it didn't and I became busy with other things (such as keeping the wolf from having pups on our doorstep), she started in on me. I believe now she did it to get my attention. I wonder if I should have slapped that mean mouth of hers when she began to get ugly. I wish I had done it.

The point is that when a wife torments a man and drives him to the brink, I honestly believe she is asking for a bit of battering and that's exactly what she should get. Please comment. — LEARNED TOO LATE

DEAR L.T.L.: Your theory is based on the assumption that all wives are alike. Well, they aren't. Neither are all husbands. The hysterical woman, the screamer and thrower of lamps, vases and frying pans just might bash in the head of a husband who attempted to give her "a bit of battering."

The low-profile, super-critical nag who subtly drives a guy up the wall with her picky-pick-pick-pick might react quite differently to a crack in the teeth. She could dissolve in tears and stay in bed for a week with a case of the vapors.

Ditto for men. Some husbands could never hit a woman no matter what she did. (I bet you're one; witness 40 years of restraint.)

I've said it before and I'll say it again. Women who live with men who beat them have a sick need for punishment. Men who hit women are also sick. And it's amazing how these people seem to find each other.

DEAR ANN: I'm a fairly attractive 24-year-old woman (unmarried). Last night, a friend laughingly said, "You're built like a 12-year-old boy." Then she told me about an ad she had read in a magazine for breast-developing — exercising with dumbbells for 20 minutes a day. Will it do something for me? — 32-A-CUP

DEAR A.: Exercising 20 minutes a day with dumbbells will definitely "do something" for you. It will develop the muscles in your arms and back and you will look like a wrestler.

It will also "do something" for the guy who is selling the dumbbells. He'll make a nice profit.

Confidential to Can It Be?: Not only can it be, it IS! Male menopause is indefinitely a factor in strange and unpredictable behavior.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Stress Is Puzzling

STANFORD (AP) — Solving puzzles puts a greater strain on the heart than watching erotic movies, Stanford University researchers report.

In a study of recovering heart attack patients, the scientists reported they found that heart rates and blood pressure jumped highest when patients were given a geometric puzzle to assemble.

THE INCREASES were less pronounced when the patients were interviewed about their jobs, their heart attacks or sex, or when they were shown films of erotic and traumatic scenes.

Dr. Margot McNeil, psychologist for the School of Medicine's Cardiac Rehabilitation Program, said assembling the puzzle induces stress because it is a self-imposed, self-competitive activity similar to the kind of pressure found at work.

She and Dr. Robert F. DeBusk, director of the program, said they tested 20 patients six to seven weeks after they had suffered heart attacks. The study was supported by the National Heart and Lung Institute, and by the George Frederick Jewett Foundation of St. Paul, Minn.

THE TESTS WERE arranged in sequence and separated by periods of relaxation exercises.

Dr. McNeil said the personal interviews elicited the second-highest increase in heart rate and blood pressure, while the videotape viewing had little effect.

She said the testing will help doctors to evaluate heart attack patients for their psychological readiness to return to work and help make patients aware of how much stress is safe for them.

Cancer And Jobs Subject Of Study

CONCORD (AP) — The Contra Costa County industrial belt is the subject of an American Cancer Society-funded study to determine whether pollution is increasing cancer risk in the area.

The county Health Department moved to prepare the $112,000 study after the National Cancer Institute showed that Contra Costa County has a mortality rate for lung, kidney and skin cancers that exceeds state and national averages.

IN THE REGION, stretching from Richmond to Antioch along the northern fingers of the San Francisco Bay, there are five refineries and 46 chemical plants.

In a recent letter to the cancer society, Contra Costa health officer Dr. Orlyn Wood said:

"These industries continue to eject into the environment substantial amounts of hazardous substances that include but are not limited to hydrocarbons, sulfur dioxide and other sulfur compounds and particulates such as asbestos, lead and arsenic."

"THE WORKING community of this county is employed in chemical, petroleum and other heavy industries with potential exposure to carcinogenic agents."

Dr. Kathryn Smick, who has worked 12 years in chest clinics in the industrial belt, said many physicians believe "there is a lot of cancer associated with jobs." But we have no proof. So we welcome any study that can help."

Drug Switch Asked

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Cancer Society is asking Congress to remove control over the testing of new anti-cancer drugs and combinations of drugs from the Food and Drug Administration and give the authority to the National Cancer Institute.

"It would seem that only legislation can tie down the point that cancer patients are different from others," the society says in a letter to Rep. Paul G. Rogers, chairman of the House subcommittee on health and environment.

THE CANCER society's action is the latest development in a growing controversy between some of the nation's leading cancer researchers and the FDA.

The researchers contend that the FDA is needlessly delaying the approval of drugs for clinical use in human patients by an overcautious concern about safety in the cancer patients.

The FDA counters that it is simply following laws and regulations designed to protect the rights of the patient.

"THE CANCER patient has the same right to protection as anyone else," says Dr. William Gyarfás, director of the FDA's Division of Oncology and Radiopharmaceutical Drug Products in the Bureau of Drugs.

An FDA spokesman, Wayne Pines, says "it's not a new charge to say the FDA is too restrictive. Some say we are not restrictive enough. The fact is there have to be guidelines in the interest of protecting patients. But doctors would like to do whatever they want to."

The cancer researchers take a different view.

"IT IS NOT BAD to go to clinical trials early when life is ebbing away," says Dr. Vincent J. DeVita Jr., who is in charge of drug testing at NCI.

Programs Underpay Hospitals

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Nearly half of the hospital bills in California are paid by Medicare and Medi-Cal, but those two programs aren't paying their full share of hospital costs, a state report says.

The California Health Facilities Commission documented that during the year ending in June 1976, Medicare and Medi-Cal were billed for 47 percent of the $4.6 billion in hospital services rendered statewide.

Medicare underpaid its $1.4 billion in billings by $153 million, and Medi-Cal underpaid by $87 million on billings of $798 million, the report said.

"When the full charges are not paid by Medicare and Medi-Cal, the difference is recovered from other insurance carriers through increased premium rates, and from individual patients."

Chamberlain Always Surprising Critics

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — Richard Chamberlain keeps being discovered. He doesn't mind a bit.

"There's an endless surprise evident," says the man who after 16 years of prominent activities elsewhere has finally arrived on Broadway.

"I'm forever getting reviews that say 'at last Chamberlain proves he can act.'"

"That's all right, because it means you're still climbing. Only when you are up there on top do they start pulling you down."

"It's like awards — getting nominated is lovely, but I'd like to put off winning for about another 15 years."

CHAMBERLAIN suspects that chronic wonder about his emotive agility stems from the inverted way in which his career developed — from television to movies to stage. Players usually move in the opposite direction.

"I'd rather try everything than get stuck in an image," says the tall, lean, blue-eyed chap who now can pick roles in all three entertainment areas.

By a scheduling coincidence, the public here and afar has recently had the opportunity to see him in each.

Until Feb. 20 Chamberlain is appearing at Broadway's Circle in the Square Theater in an intriguing revival of "The Night of the Iguana" by Tennessee Williams. He portrays the corrupted, self-hating clergyman struggling for redemption.

OVER AT RADIO City Music Hall, he enacts Cinderella's Prince charming in a film extravaganza, "The Slipper and the Rose."

A few evenings ago he starred in a two-hour special on the NBC television network in "The Man in the Iron Mask."

In his constant search for challenge in roles that put him against other impressive talents, he's been on the screen with Katharine Hepburn in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," been Julie Christie's brutal husband in "Petulia," and a tormented Peter Glych Tschaiakowsky opposite Illya Jackson in "The Music Lovers."

Chamberlain has stacked against such male eminents as John Gielgud, Michael Redgrave and Ralph Richardson. On an early stage sortie he was the first American to play "Hamlet" in England since John Barrymore 40 years earlier. He has also portrayed Lord Byron, Octavianus Caesar and the Duke of Windsor.

"I learned a lot from them," he says of the five-year British interlude.

HIGHLY ARTICULATE on professional activities and such hobbies as tennis, riding and biking, Chamberlain prefers privacy about such topics as his bachelor existence and even his age. "I don't think that's necessary," he says.

By the record, he was born March 31, 1935 in Los Angeles, into a nontheatrical family. There's an older brother, Bill, "fantastically handsome," who shunned suggestions of acting in favor of supplying equipment for supermarkets.

After Beverly Hills High School, Chamberlain majored in art at Pomona College, still indulges in water colors and mobile sculptures when time permits.

Chamberlain at 41

During college there was a lot of moonlighting with the little theater activities, and, after a hitch in Korea as an infantry company clerk, Chamberlain returned for a round of jobs in groceries, construction and chauffeuring.

BEING AROUND the movie capital opened certain contacts and he had also studied acting with Jeff Corey. The result was one of the last seven-year contracts with MGM.

The studio happened to be starting a project for TV called "Dr. Kildare." On the basis of a discarded pilot picture, he was summoned for an audition after 25 other players had been tried.

THE HEGIRA to England began six or so years after. By extraordinary good fortune he was cast in a BBC six-part adaptation of Henry James' "Portrait of a Lady." Critics for the first time discovered he could act; other bids came quickly. One was to join the distinguished Birmingham Rep.

Hits Rock Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Rock music is coming out from underground after decades of suppression in the Soviet Union during which it was condemned as "bourgeois poison."

At restaurants, weddings and even at gatherings of the Young Communist League, long-haired musicians are permitted to play more and more hard rock music.

A MOSCOW radio station has started broadcasting occasional Sunday afternoon selections of top pop hits from the West, and a newspaper has begun publishing stories about Western rock 'n' roll.

Government-run record stores soon will put on sale a two-record album by the Beatles, believed to be the first Western rock music ever sold here legally.

The album, imported from EMI records of Britain under the Soviet Melodia label, will sell at the fixed government price for light music of $2.86 a disc.

Beatles records on the black market here have sold in the past for anywhere from $50 to $100, despite the flat statement in 1968 in the newspaper Sovetskaya Kultura that "Beatlemania has no influence here."

AT THAT TIME, Pravda, the organ of the Communist party, described Beatles music as "a flood of cacophony, yells, giggles and God knows what (which) plays a major role in turning men into beasts."

But last month, Sovetskaya Kultura itself passed on a rumor from the British press that former Beatle Paul McCartney's new group, Wings, might tour the Soviet Union.

In contrast to its earlier criticism of the Beatles, the newspaper quoted McCartney approvingly, saying, "We'd like to come and see you. It would be great. Music plays an important role in the contemporary world. The fact that it unites people with each other is extremely important."

Yuri B. Leonov, head of the Soviet book and record import department, said that recordings of the Bee Gees, Donny Osmond and Wings also are scheduled to be imported this year.

Commercials Cut Costs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can watch their productions every day and night on television, but you'll never find them listed in the TV logs and it's a safe bet to say you won't watch them on purpose.

Television commercials are big, big business. But most of what you see today isn't as elaborate as 10 years ago, say commercial film makers who lament tightening production budgets.

While the cost of buying time continues to rise steadily — 30 seconds of prime network time now cost advertisers an average of $50,000 — the men who actually make the commercials say their production budgets have not gone up.

REMEMBER THAT soap commercial from the mid-1960s? A cast of dancers prancing and singing atop a giant soup can was filmed at six-figure expense on an elaborate sound stage. Now children sturp up the product in a set or location kitchen for a fifth the cost, while a mother extols the virtue of their easy-to-prepare lunch.

And recall the airline commercials with exotic world shots from around the world? The viewer now is more likely to see a businessman rushing his baggage through a claims counter, filmed at the neighborhood airport.

Most budgets for filming commercials "aren't what they used to be because everybody has become cost conscious from the consumer on," says David Smirnoff, 41, a producer for Film Fair, a major maker of commercials in Los Angeles. "You don't see the big budgets you saw a few years ago," says Abby Binstein, a production assistant at Wakeford-Orloff, Inc., a Los Angeles-based commercial maker.

AND FROM the buyers comes the same word. "Everybody now is really watching their dollars," says Jerry Shanks, supervisor of radio and television production for Young Rubicam International, Inc., who says he buys hundreds of commercials yearly for the agency's West Coast clients.

Benson Green, president of N. Lee Lacey Associates Ltd., an international producer of commercials, believes that the late 1960s were the heyday for his industry. "Production budgets became incredible, enormous sums of money were being spent. Tremendous sets were being built, people were flying around the world making some very extraordinary films," says Green, president of the 38-member Association of Independent Commercial Producers-West Coast.

"That was the period when everybody used to say, 'My God, the commercials are better than what you see on television.' You don't hear that line much any more."

"PROBABLY the best time for commercial makers was between 1965 and 1967," agrees Smirnoff.

The recession starting in the late 1960s prompted many advertisers to tighten up their ad budgets, both Green and Smirnoff say.

"There are lots of brilliant commercials today," says Green. "There are just fewer of them."

"In the 1950s, five percent was in that expensive experimental, creative vein. In the '60s, 40 percent. We may be down to 20 or 10 percent now," he says.

Green, whose company has made commercials for such firms as IBM, United Airlines and McDonald's restaurants, says current production is a "blending of the 50s and 60s... The '50s were a very hard sell. The '70s is a period of much more realistic advertising... less experimentation."

PRICES, LIKE everything else, have been going up and advertisers' total budgets have been rising. But Green and Smirnoff say the cutbacks are being made at the production end and their companies are forced to operate on tighter profit margins.

"My opinion is that the client probably would pay less in '77 for the same commercial he bought in '67," says Green. "He used to pay $50,000 (for a minute of time and now he's paying $100,000. He seems to understand that. But he's not taking a $50,000 commercial and paying $100,000. He's taking a $50,000 commercial and he wants it for $40,000."

The average 30 or 60 second network spot — then and now — costs about $20,000 to $50,000 to produce, estimates Smirnoff, say Green and others in the industry.

Cairo Museum Touts Tut

CAIRO (AP) — What do tourists from the United States, Europe and Asia have in common when they leave the Egyptian Pharaonic Museum? Grubby fingers.

They have had to clean little patches of showcase to see more clearly the priceless objects of the world's most ancient civilization.

Some well-advised museum guides now carry flashlights to help their clients appreciate the fine details of artifacts through the fingerprints and dust.

THE EGYPTIAN Museum, once a neat, well-organized establishment, has become a shamefully overcrowded warehouse making cleaning and dusting a superhuman task.

The management complains of lack of funds and is trapped in bureaucratic routines that can only be solved with money.

It is to raise cash that some of the more than 3,300-year-old priceless art objects from the tomb of Egypt's famous boy-king Tatanakhamen are now on a three-year tour in the United States.

THE KING TUT exhibit remains in Washington until March 15. It then goes to New Orleans, Los Angeles, Seattle and New York for four months each.

"The money from the sales can literally save Egypt's museum from further deterioration," said curator Abdel Kader Selim. "I pray the gallery goers will realize how much is at stake... the world's greatest museum is in trouble."

"To preserve it and its contents for the world to enjoy is a responsibility we all share."

The sales benefits, estimated between $1.5 and $2.5 million, will support several projects at the museum, including installation of a new electricity network and purchase of cleaning and maintenance equipment. If the returns are higher, the antiquity department plans to start building two extensions.

"If the fund-raising mission of King Tut is as good as we hope it will be and the world realizes the need for helping us out, our worries will be almost over," said Selim. "I am crossing my fingers."

Jazz Greats Issue Own Discs

Marian McPartland is available now on mail-order records.

The subject this week is music. Not the garden-seed variety of noise you hear on the cacophonous juke boxes or unimaginatively programmed radio stations of America. I'm talking about real music performed by real musicians with taste and talent, the kind that doesn't sell because people with class don't know where to buy it.

To hear decent popular music, jazz and theater songs, you have to turn to a new phenomenon that has sprung up in the record world in recent days — the mail-order business.

Stan Kenton has bought up all of the master tapes he made during his reign at Capitol Records, and now reissues them all himself on his own label. Anita O'Day, Blossom Dearie, jazz pianist extraordinary Marian McPartland, Tony Bennett and others are tired of the callous treatment they've gotten from the major record companies and are all manufacturing and distributing their own records on their own labels.

MOST OF THE new records that spend their time on my turntable have been acquired directly from the artists I like through direct mail, and today I'm going to assume there are others in this sad, mad world besides me who want to increase their record collections with works that broaden the scope and enrich the soul.

All of the records listed below must be ordered by mail. Except in rare instance, they cannot be purchased in stores.

Out Take Records, that marvelous new firm that produced volumes 1 and 2 of the collected musical numbers cut from Hollywood movie musicals, is now performing another beneficial service.

The result is two new releases by musical stars Elaine Stritch and Nancy Walker that were originally released on the now-defunct Dolphin label.

LONG BEFORE she became the rage of TV and the indomitable "Rosie" on the paper towel commercials, Nancy Walker was a tough, wise and relentlessly individual interpreter of Broadway show music.

Elaine Stritch's new fame as a result of singing performances and a near eclipse of her career in America, but nobody who ever heard her original cast recordings of "Goldilocks," "Sail Away" and (more recently) Sondheim's "Company" can easily forget the special lusty, low-voiced lustre with which she mows down a song like "sophistication."

The Nancy Walker and Elaine Stritch albums are available at $7.50 each (including postage and shipping) for a limited time only from Out Take Records, P. O.

Box 298, Ansonia Station, New York, N. Y. 10023.

Elaine Stritch turns up again, newly recorded the way she sounds today, on Ben Bagley's "Oscar Hammerstein Revisited," a tender, nostalgic and truly melodic valentine to the late lyricist that features some of his most wondrous and sadly neglected songs, performed to perfection by Blossom Dearie, Gloris Swanson, Cab Calloway, Patrice Munsel, Alfred Drake, Dorothy Loudon, and — in a very rare and appealing vocal appearance — the legendary poet lyricist man about town, E. Y. Harburg.

MR. BAGLEY is doing a beautiful job of keeping music alive through his albums honoring Ira Gershwin, Harold Arlen, Rodgers and Hart, Cole Porter, Noel Coward, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Vernon Duke and others. Each can be purchased for $6.95 from Ben Bagley, Painted Smiles Records, 116 Nassau St., New York, N. Y. 10038. Mr. Bagley pays the postage and shipping costs. Write him and he'll put you on his mailing list.

Blossom Dearie's new label, Daffodil Records, has just come out with the third volume of this supernaturally gifted pianist-composer-singer's works, called "My New Celebrity Is You."

The new one is a double set that sells for $9.95 through Daffodil Records, Box 312, Winchester, Va. 22601. It is like mulled wine in the raw

in a winter snowstorm. The title tune is the last song written by the late Johnny Mercer, and the last word in name-dropping.

Any jazz collection without Marian McPartland is like a bar without ice. This magnificent, deftly subtle and always swinging pianist has wisely turned her back on the commercial hackery of the major record companies and started her own recording firm called Halcyon Records, 302 Clinton St., Bellmore, N. Y. 11710. Write to her there for more information on her new catalog of sublime recordings.

IMPROV RECORDS, Tony Bennett's new label at 107 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., has also generously recorded McPartland on a new and breathtakingly beautiful album called "A Fine Romance," featuring, among other bonbons, the most skillful version of "Send in the Clowns" I've ever heard.

Other new albums worth ordering from Improv are Tony Bennett's 10 Rodgers and Hart songs and his swinging big-band album "Life Is Beautiful," with a title song by Fred Astaire and Tommy Wolf. He's never been in better voice, maybe because he's doing it for love.

'Peaceful' Kids Beat Hum Drum

By ERMA BOMBECK

The younger generation talks a great game of peace.

They want no more wars, no military stockpile, and no involvements with anyone whose peace is threatened.

As a mother of three whose children pay dues in that generation, let me tell you they'll never pull it off.

You know why? Someone will "hum" and it'll be World War III. In 20 years of child raising, I have discovered "humming" is the one sin children cannot tolerate and never outgrow.

Hitting, biting, scratching, shoving, taking records, hogging the phone, locking doors, using up all the hot water, failing to repay bad debts, forgetting to pick them up at the gym — all that they can handle, but "humming" will drive them up the wall.

AS SMALL children they used to sit around the dinner table and suddenly one of them would drop his fork and implore, "Mom! Make her stop it!"

The silence was deafening. "Make her stop what?"

"Humming!"

"I don't hear anything."

"You never hear it. She's humming just so I can hear it."

I'd lean over, my hair resting on her lips, and listen. Nothing. Then, I'd stare at her neck to make sure it wasn't moving. It got to the point where I used to feel the veins in her neck to see if they were still warm.

They hummed in the back seat of the car, nearly causing their father to crash into a tree with their fighting. They hummed on the playground one day and happily were near someone who knew pressure points.

They hummed one Sunday in church and ended up having a water fight in the vestibule — with holy water yet.

TWENTY YEARS I put up with humming I couldn't hear. Twenty years of recriminations, retaliations and general rottenness.

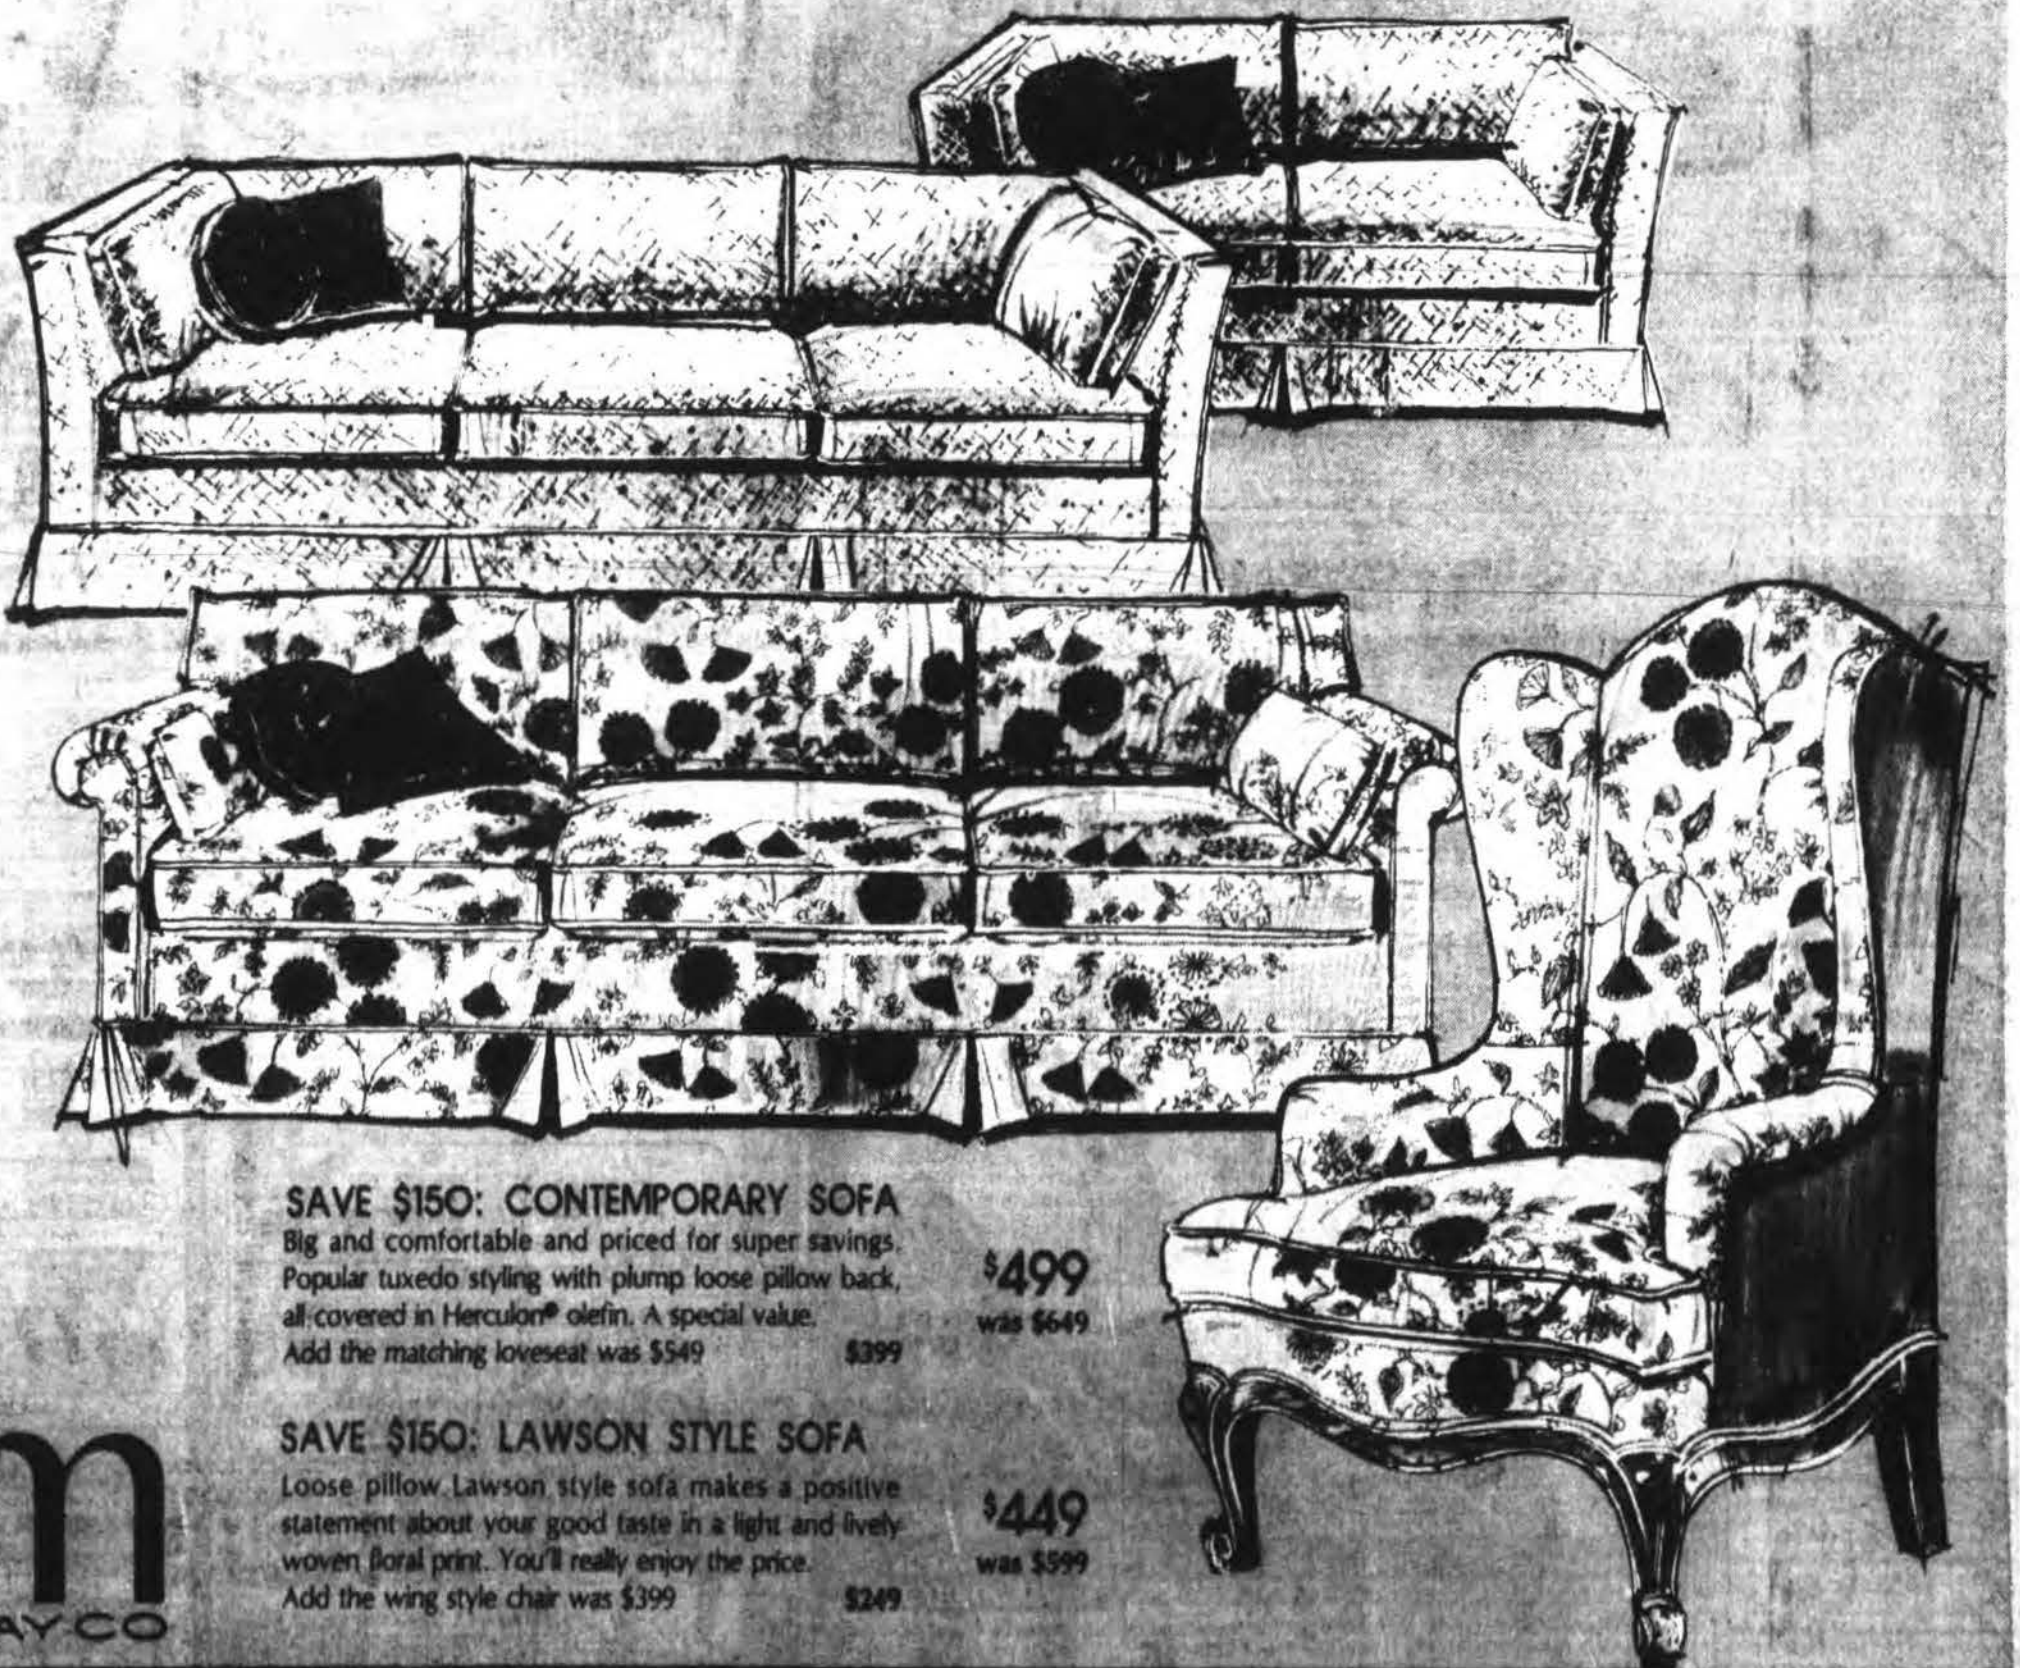

Once, one of them became so incensed over an inaudible hum that he leaned over and yelled in to his brother's ear, causing him to read lips throughout an entire summer.

I'd love to think this generation would live in peace and harmony with the rest of the world forever, but one of these days — I don't know when it will be — a Russian or perhaps a Chinese national will hum . . . not a hum that a normal ear could hear . . . but one of those aggravating, sanity-defying hums that only a bionic ear could pick up and then . . .

I hope I won't be around to see it.

Beer Cans, Imagination Warm His Home

ITHACA, Mich. (AP) — Larry Brown, 24, singlehandedly designed, then built — board by board, beer can by beer can — a three-bedroom home heated by solar power.

He recently put the finishing touches on the home just north of this city of 4,500 in central Michigan.

IT WORKS, BUT Brown just shrugs. He's been inventing things that work for years.

As an architecture student at the University of Michigan, for example, he wanted to escape the grating din of his dormitory. He built a soundproof bed enclosure complete with air vents and stereo.

Brown took a leave of absence from his draftsman's job last year to devote full time to the solar home.

"I had to design it partly as I went along," he recalled. "But I already had the basic knowledge to build a house. I took a composite of other people's ideas. It just struck me as being so darn simple that I couldn't lose."

THE SIMPLE SYSTEM culminated in the solar heating unit on which the house is based. The structure itself is reminiscent of an A-frame home commonly found in snow areas.

HOW DID BROWN get into solar power?

"I got the bug in my senior year at U-M," he said. "It just looked so simple."

He learned about solar power in architecture classes, wrote to companies making solar heating systems and devoured their literature.

But it wasn't until after graduation that he realized his dream. "When you get out of college, you search for what you want to do," Brown said, and the draftsman's job just wasn't enough. "I consider myself an inventor, and this is a terribly exciting field."

WHEN HIS DESIGN was completed, Brown arranged for a bank loan to finance the work.

He said he had no trouble convincing the bank's board to grant him the stake.

The design itself is a basic one that makes use of laws of physics. Rather than use water as his heat conductor, Brown chose air for its distinct advantages. There are no freezing problems, and leaks in the system will not cause disasters as they can in water units.

FROM THE COLLECTORS, warm air is brought down by a blower motor into the home's basement, where heat is transmitted to two foundation sections. Each contains 25 tons of rock, which retains the heat.

That heated air then is allowed to take its own natural course. It flows up through the house in ducts to heat louvers, which are opened and closed by an electric thermostat.

When the air cools off, it becomes heavier, and drops down through floor vents that take it back to the system.

LARRY BROWN, 24, DESIGNED AND BUILT HIS OWN SOLAR HEATED HOME.

Press Here To Save Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Katherine Held felt the chest pains and knew she was having a heart attack — she had already suffered four. She squeezed the pendant around her neck and within minutes, paramedics arrived at her home to give her emergency aid.

Mrs. Held, 64, now recovered, is one of more than a thousand persons who wear one-ounce transmitters, slightly larger than a pack of matches, around their necks or on their wrists.

THE DEVICE, WHICH leases for $20 a month, allows a user to set off a series of prerecorded telephone messages to paramedics, neighbors or police by triggering a separate sending unit that is kept plugged into a standard telephone jack.

Heart patients, disabled or elderly persons, shopkeepers worried about robbers or anyone else who may need help in an emergency can use the Microlet Pendant Transmitter, made by Microlet Systems International of North Hollywood.

"IT'S SAVED MY LIFE more than once," said Mrs. Held. "I wouldn't be without the thing. All I have to do is push on that little button and I've got paramedics and everybody else here."

Tom Cataldo, the 51-year-old president of MSI, said he founded the firm three years ago after his mother suffered an attack and lay alone for several hours in her Boston home before help came.

"There is often no way to get help in these situations other than by having something on your person," Cataldo said in an interview.

"IT JUST SEEMED like there ought to be a way for people in that situation to get help, so I decided to chuck it all and get involved in this. I had an engineering background and figured I could do something more useful with my life." Today, Cataldo's firm has the potential to produce as many as 10,000 Microlets a month. The device can trigger its sending unit within a range of about 300 feet, setting off as many as 50 phone calls to preselected numbers, although Cataldo said five or six messages are normally sufficient.

Cataldo pointed out that a few minutes' delay in alerting paramedics in a heart attack can mean the difference between life and death, and a person suffering the attack frequently can't make it to a phone.

area as well as five other retirement homes and associated convalescent units in California, Arizona and Hawaii.

Marek said the nearly 2,100 residents of the seven homes are being asked to voluntarily terminate their existing contracts in favor of agreements that would revise what they pay to keep the corporation afloat. The firm is headquartered in Los Angeles.

He said if the plan fails, sale of the homes or bankruptcy will be other alternatives.

Now you can rent in Woodbridge.

Woodbridge Pines Apartments may be the best-kept secret in this season's residential best seller, the Village of Woodbridge. And this rustic apartment community isn't easy to get to right now, either, with all the village construction going on.

But these one-, two-, and three-bedroom units, designed like early California bungalows, are well worth the effort. There are cozy built-ins. Fireplaces. Patios and balconies. Lots and lots of style. Plus all the wide-open village recreation and other goodness of Orange County's most exciting new place to live.

Follow our map. With determination. And visit soon. Before we're all taken, too.

FIAT ANNOUNCES A $400 FACTORY REBATE ON THE '76 FIAT 131.

To get your rebate, just see your local Fiat dealer before March 31, 1977, pick the '76 Fiat 131 2-door coupe, 4-door sedan or wagon you want from his stock, and make your best deal with him. (Your dealer will be in a bargaining mood because it's end-of-year clearance time.) Then, simply take delivery of your Fiat by March 31.

You can apply the $400 rebate towards the down payment, or Fiat will send you a check for $400 if you like.

Either way, you'll be getting a Fiat that's bigger and more luxurious than any Fiat you've ever seen. A car that offers a wealth of standard features comparable to cars costing thousands of dollars more.

So besides getting the most rebate we've ever offered, you'll be getting it on the most Fiat we've ever offered.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR GEN. WILLIAM WESTMORELAND, former Army Chief of Staff

How will the soldier 100 years from now differ from the enlisted man of today?—A.G., Little Rock, Ark.

● He will not differ too much physically, except that he will probably be taller and heavier. He will, though, be better educated and more skilled, and he'll be required to man and maintain weapons and machines more technical and sophisticated than today's. In addition, the ratio of officers to enlisted men will be considerably higher than today. The soldier of tomorrow will be better protected, but he will have to undergo the same hardships that soldiers have encountered throughout history.

FOR JANIS SIEGEL, member of the Manhattan Transfer group

I hear you like to spend your off-hours in an operating room. True or false?—R.C., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● It's true. I have a friend, a surgeon, who lets me watch, and I love it because I'm a thwarted doctor. My idea of heaven would be to be a singer who moonlights in medicine.

FOR DAVID BRENNER, comedian

Got any new plans for your nose?—Jenny Bryant, Latta, S.C.

● So far, my nose has definitely helped my career; it gives me a place to hang my tuxedo while I'm traveling. Nevertheless, I'm planning to do some work on it—wall-to-wall carpeting, then I'll break through the wall and make a kitchenette.

FOR VICTOR BORGE, Danish-born pianist and mime
Did you do crazy things with music when you were a kid?—R.O.B., Medford, Ore.

● Oh sure. When I was about eight or nine, my parents—being very proud of me—would always make me play when they had guests. After a while I got fed up with that, and I started playing tricks: I'd say the next piece is . . . and would mention something by Beethoven or Mozart. I then went on to play one of my own "compositions." And do you know what—very few knew I was fooling.

FOR SALLY FIELD, actress

I heard you say on a talk show that you're shy and introverted. You've got to be putting us on. If this were true, how could you play such extroverted roles as the flying nun?—J.T., Cocoa Beach, Fla.

● I'm not putting you on. I started acting at the ripe old age of two, and it was in my roles that I could be what I couldn't be in real life. In this make-believe world I felt good. Out of it, I didn't. It's still that way. I live a schizo life, either all-actress or all-homebody.

FOR REP. SHIRLEY CHISHOLM (D.-N.Y.)

When you really want something, do you find it hard to compromise?—Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● It's difficult to fight for issues of human justice and equality and have to make concessions because of the unwillingness of others who are motivated by the politics of expediency. But at the same time, I know that compromise is a necessary tool that sometimes must be used to achieve my goals. Not everyone shares the same opinions or approaches problems in the same way.

FOR EILEEN FULTON, star of As the World Turns

Someone told me you wear gloves to bed. Why?—J.R., Grand Forks, N.D.

● Because I have to. My hobby is ceramics, which has a skin-drying tendency. As my hands often appear in TV closeups, I don't want them to look old and withered. What I do after I've finished a work session is oil and grease my hands and fingers, going right under the nails. If I didn't wear gloves, all that stuff would rub off on the sheets.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR
Is it true those Russian-crilled dancers, Rudolf Nureyev and Mikhail Baryshnikov, are sworn enemies?—Mary Oberton, Washington, D.C.

● No. While they're not what you'd call inseparable, one doesn't walk out when the other enters the room. In fact, the night the rumor broke that the two were feuding, a FAMILY WEEKLY reporter saw them together at New York's Russian Tea Room. There is, however, a lack of warmth between Nureyev (right) and Natalia Makarova. (All three are products of the famed Kirov Ballet.)

FOR GENE SARAZEN, member of golf's Hall of Fame

What got you interested in golf?—R.M., Dubuque, Iowa

● As a teen-ager I worked in the pro shop of the Brooklawn Country Club in Bridgeport, Conn. I practiced before the shop opened, and then again after it closed. One day a club member hired me to play a round. I shot my first sub-par round (69), and from then on, all the members spoke about the "kid" in the shop. It made life miserable for the pro, and I had to leave. But the next time I was in Bridgeport, I was the U.S. Open Champion.

PRO AND CON

Is There Too Much Violence On Television?

Some authorities say that the portrayal of violence triggers more of it in real life.

PRO Herbert Schlosser, President, NBC

No. Violence has troubled our society for a long time and represents one of the more difficult problems facing us, and we are acting to deal with the depiction of that violence. The networks maintain Broadcast Standards Departments responsible for taste and propriety. Programs are considered in the light of their context, meaning and purpose. Merely counting violent incidents in a program, without regard to context, does not provide a meaningful measure of their significance or their effect on viewers. It is unfortunate that body-count approach has become fashionable because it can mislead rather than enlighten.

CON Dr. George Gerbner, Dean, Annenberg School of Communications, University of Pennsylvania

Yes. The evidence is convincing that cheap and stereotyped violence on American television is the highest in the world and has not changed much, especially late-evening and children's programming. It is prejudicial to women, older people and minority-group characters as they tend to be portrayed as victims. The consequence of heavy exposure to this diet is acceptance of violence as a ready solution to problems. If we don't want our children to grow up mean and terrorized by vivid images of meanness around them, we need to change the amount and pattern of violence on television.

Finally, Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar.

Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.

Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.

Try a pack today and see if you go along with us.

STALLONE FIGHTS HIS WAY TO THE TOP

It sounds corny and sentimental: a down-and-out loser destined to fail makes it to the Big Time. But that's the story of the hit movie Rocky—and of its star and writer.

By Carol Botwin

"I asked myself a long time ago, what is it like to really make it? Do you go, Yeah! I made it! and kiss every mirror you pass, or do you become baffled and sit back and watch yourself? Well, I'm sitting back and trying to get some perspective on what's going on."

Sylvester Stallone, who has just made it big as star and writer of the new hit movie Rocky, is talking in the living room of his manager's apartment. Even now it's hard to believe how it all happened. "I was getting nervous," he recalls. "I was pushing thirty. It was now or never. I thought desperately, I need a vehicle." In the unbelievably short time of three-and-a-half days he wrote Rocky, the story of a down-and-out fighter who gets one final chance to make it through a fluky opportunity to fight the world champion. The script ended up in the offices of producers Robert Chartoff and Irwin Winkler. They liked it. So did United Artists. But nobody wanted the unknown Sylvester Stallone to play the part of Rocky. They searched, instead, for "bankable" big names like Burt Reynolds and James Caan. Sylvester stubbornly held on. At last he convinced everybody, and the part was his.

"Then I panicked," he remembers. "Okay, Sly, I said to myself. You've got it, but what if you can't do it? On the day the movie started I was sitting in a trailer at 4:00 A.M. in Philadelphia. I couldn't move. The technicians kept calling me from outside. Finally, I psyched myself. I got up, passed a mirror and looked at myself in all the makeup and thought, all right, Rocky, you can do it. I kicked open the door and never felt any doubt after that."

He believes Rocky is a success because it is an old-fashioned story about a hero who triumphs. "The public is sick of weirdos," he says passionately. "A man who works hard all week and wants to go to the movies with his family is subjected to brutality, murder, a bombardment of foul language. You have every conceivable sicko on screen. The public wants something, someone to believe in. And that's what I'm going to give them in the future—optimistic films."

But at this time in his life he is trying to adjust to the overwhelming critical acclaim that began even before the film opened—the rush of interviews, the scripts with starring parts suddenly being sent to him, the idea of having lots of money for the first time.

At the moment, however, Sylvester appears remarkably relaxed. His head is against the back of his chair. His legs are stretched out, crossed at the ankles. A glass of wine stands within easy reach of his large, chunky hands.

In repose, the face of Sylvester Stallone is an unlikely one for a star: too much jaw, hangdog eyes, lips that curl downward. The most remarkable thing about his appearance is his shoes, which come to vicious stiletto-pointed tips. They are don't-mess-with-me-or-I'll-kick-you shoes. The face and the shoes are street-guy tough, but Sylvester, as he talks, is not.

He ignores the phone that constantly rings, as well as the hot lights put up by the photographer, who silently stalks him, and explains that it is Sylvester the author I am looking at, not Sylvester the actor.

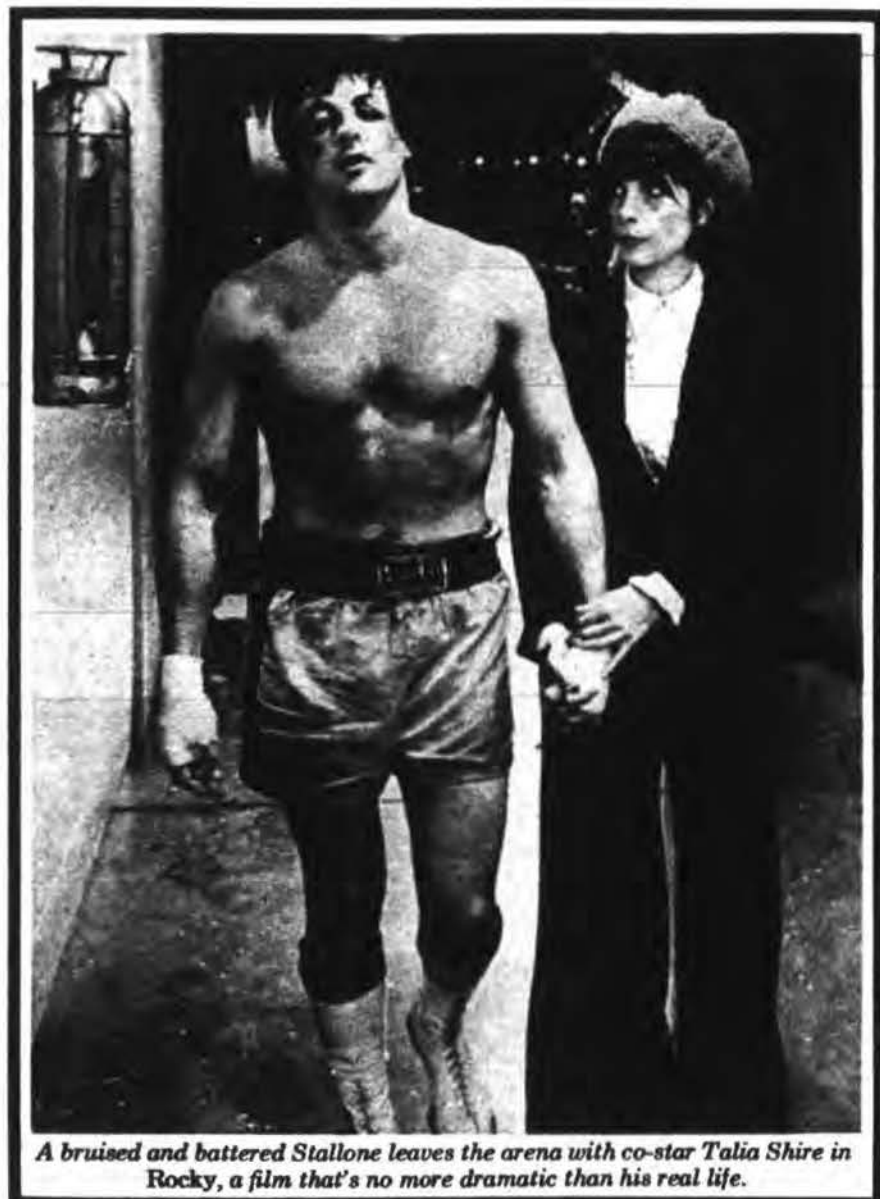

"Me, the writer, I am unaggressive, curious, very relaxed. If you were interviewing me the actor, however, I would be doing handsprings, cartwheels, showing you my tap dancing—anything to catch your attention. It's a habit I picked up auditioning for producers. They always ask, 'Tell me a little about yourself,' and then give you one minute. So you tell them you've been lost in a blizzard in the Alps, married 37 women—anything that will get you through that wall of indifference."

Sylvester admits that he was rarely successful in getting through to producers in the past, and success did not come easily. In fact, that it came at all is extraordinary.

Born 30 years ago in New York's Hell's Kitchen to an Italian immigrant father and an ex-showgirl mother, Sylvester was trouble from the start. By the age of two he was diagnosed as hyperkinetic. "I thought nothing of taking a crayon and going over someone's entire living-room wall with it or completely dismantling a piano. I was lost in fantasies, fantasies, fantasies."

When he was five, the Stallone family moved first to Maryland, then to Philadelphia, where Sylvester spent the rest of his childhood and adolescence being a cutup in class, a bully after class, getting thrown out of one school after another and visiting a series of psychiatrists. "I was ostracized. They called me crazy, and I began to believe it. I felt nobody understood me. My father didn't. My hyperness drove him crazy. He punished me severely for things that were really out of my control.

"But my mother," he says with admiration and warmth, "she was wonderful. She supported me no matter what I did. She is one of the world's great eccentrics herself and was always trying out new things. She allowed me to feel I could fail and still go on."

A bruised and battered Stallone leaves the arena with co-star Talia Shire in Rocky, a film that's no more dramatic than his real life.

At 19 Sylvester decided he had to do something with himself. "I knew I wasn't crazy, but I also knew something was wrong. I decided maybe it was what I was putting into my body. I started taking vitamins, and it helped." To this day, Sylvester swigs down a mind-boggling array of vitamin supplements.

Straightening out his life also included going to college. He enrolled at the University of Miami but found that still another disastrous experience. He dropped out and came to New York to try his luck as an actor, but the closest he got to an active role in the theater was a job as an usher at a movie house. He did come away from that job, though, with Sasha, a girl friend who believed in him, an actress who was working as an usherette. She is now his wife.

Out of desperation Sylvester started to write. The words came easily, something he attributes—quite seriously—to having been a writer in a previous existence. "It's going to sound crazy in print," he admits, "but I do believe I have had other lives. I think I was guillotined during the French Revolution. When I see a movie about a person being guillotined, I have the strangest feeling I know what it was like."

"Sly," as he is called by friends, is also a passionate believer in astrology. "My kid is an astro-baby. My wife and I wanted our child born under a specific sign. We went to the doctor and told him it had to be born within the hour—the constellations were about to change. He said, 'Impossible. She won't be ready for at least 12 hours.' But he didn't know my wife. The baby was born in 32 minutes flat. Fantastic!"

It was through astrology, too, that his mother predicted his success as a writer. Her prediction was, in part, what kept him behind the typewriter while his wife worked to keep them eating.

And what does he predict for himself? "I'd like to be able to help other writers and actors get started. I want to take long shots and never forget where I came from. That's why I keep pictures of myself from three or four years ago next to my bathroom mirror. I look at them every day and remind myself what a miracle this all has been."

According to a U.S. Government publication:

The New Chevrolet has 5 more cubic feet of room inside than our nearest sales competitor's older style full-size cars.

The Caprice Classic Sedan

Five cubic feet.

That's how much more passenger room there is inside The New Chevrolet than there is inside this year's older-style full-size cars of Chevy's nearest sales competitor.

Five cubic feet.

And you don't have to take our word for it.

That's based on U.S. Government estimates of vehicle interior size, as reported in the 1977 EPA Guide for New Car Buyers. You can get a copy at any new car showroom.

Five cubic feet.

It's not Grand Canyon, but it's a sizeable difference. Enough, we hope, to cause you to wonder why anybody would need that extra "size" on the outside of the car when you can get so much room and comfort inside the crisp, contemporary, trend-setting 1977 Chevrolet.

Sit in a New Chevrolet soon and see.

EXERCISE FOR FUN

Certain physical characteristics reveal not only which sports you'll do well in and like the best but also a good deal about how you approach life.

By George Sheehan, M.D.

The main problem with exercising is how to make it fun. So before you begin any program—and as little as thirty minutes four times a week can convert you from a lounge lizard to an energetic athlete—first ask yourself what you'll enjoy. Begin by analyzing your body type. Function follows structure, and each of us is built to do some things better than others. Our physiques range from eggshape to something resembling a flagpole, and there are sports and games to fit every build. Next, consider your temperament. We react differently to stress—by withdrawal, by confrontation or by seeking to be with others.

Assessing one's suitability for a particular physical activity through analysis of body type and temperament is called constitutional psychology. It is a controversial concept, and there are certainly exceptions to the guidelines set forth below. Nevertheless, from a practical standpoint the concept can make you think about what type of person you are and what exercise program you'll be happy with.

The best differentiation of body types is based on the three layers of the human embryo: endoderm, mesoderm and ectoderm. Endomorphs (morph means shape) have large stomachs and intestines. They like to eat, drink and socialize and tend to be short on strength and endurance. Because of their round build, endomorphs are best suited for activities that don't require working against gravity—cycling, skiing, walking, running, tennis, golf and yoga, for example. Endomorphs, as a rule, don't like solitary pursuits. They need company. Finally, although endomorphs usually are not natural athletes, they have one physical advantage—they float well and can swim almost indefinitely.

Mesomorphs are strong and powerful people with heavy muscles and well-developed hearts and circulatory systems. Often they are natural athletes, and they prefer competitive sports, particularly those which require they go one-on-one with an opponent. As courageous individuals who love excitement and action, they want to hit something or somebody. Hence, they are happy with contact sports, basketball, martial arts, wrestling and boxing, and with hitting games such as squash and handball. They can be induced to jog, cycle or ski if competition is added or if they can add the challenge of personal "goals."

Ectomorphs tend to be thin and fragile with a low threshold for pain. They dislike going head-to-head and avoid physical contact. They shun schedules and regular activities (like tennis doubles every Wednesday night). The ectomorph is the ideal lonely jogger, long-distance runner, skier and walker.

Which group do you belong to? Which physical activity is right for you? Remember, the important thing is to have fun, and fitness will take care of itself.

George Sheehan, a dedicated runner and sports physician, has for 15 years treated athletes and dealt with fitness programs. He is the author of books on fitness and is a columnist for World Tennis magazine.

Penetrate the secrets of the pyramids... and meet the remarkable people who built them

Visit ANCIENT EGYPT
for 10 days free as a guest of TIME LIFE BOOKS

This gilded 6-foot lioness served as a pharaoh's bier.

Graceful symbols form hieroglyphic art.

One of the three coffins of King Tutankhamen was made with 242 pounds of solid gold.

Let TIME-LIFE BOOKS take you beyond the rigid death masks, the tombs, the unsmiling portraits that Ancient Egypt presents to history. Meet the Egyptians as they really were at the height of their splendor: a gay, romantic people who thought of death as only a door to another, equally happy life.

Start with The Great Pyramid of Gizeh, built of stone blocks weighing up to 15 tons apiece, fitted together as precisely as a necklace clasp. Learn how workmen sealed it off so effectively (from the inside) it took looters 400 years to gain entrance. Gaze at the statue of beautiful Queen Nefertiti... and see the 3,000-year-old mummified head of Ramses II. (Now in a Cairo museum, Ramses arrived there after suffering the indignity of being taxed as dried fish by a befuddled customs inspector.)

The world's first united nation

The Egyptians wrote lyric poetry to lost loves; their doctors used sutures; they endured history's first recorded labor strike — and, blessed with a genius for organization, they formed the world's first united nation more than 3,000 years before Christ. In Ancient Egypt, Lionel Casson, Professor of Classics at New York University, gives you an intimate view of a people whose span of accomplishment has few rivals in human history.

The GREAT AGES OF MAN Series

Ancient Egypt is your introductory volume in GREAT AGES OF MAN—a series brought to you by the editors of TIME-LIFE BOOKS. In text and photographs, each volume presents one of the high points of human history. Ancient Egypt is typical of the series: clothbound, 8¾" x 10¾", it contains nearly 200 pages, with approximately 150 colorful illustrations, maps and photographs. Thanks to our large print orders, you pay only $6.95 plus shipping and handling. And with your purchase of the first volume, you receive a 5,200-word introduction to the GREAT AGES OF MAN, entitled "What Man Has Built," by Jacques Barzun, distinguished scholar and critic. YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH AND GROOMING GUIDE

Here's medical news on dental care, helping dry skin and more.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Le Hot Facial

For dry, winter skin try this before bedtime: warm up a spoonful of petroleum jelly by resting a teaspoon over a bowl of very hot water or letting underside of spoon touch the water. Meanwhile, remove makeup. Next, massage the warm jelly into the face and throat. Place face in a hot, moist towel for a few minutes. Then, tissue off the excess jelly. Enough lubricant will remain to protect the skin from moisture loss and to give it a soft, smooth feeling.

Tooth Flash!

Here's an update from the American Dental Association on how you and your children should brush for the removal of plaque, a primary cause of tooth decay and gum disease.

Place toothbrush on your teeth with the bristle tips against the gum line. Move back and forth with very short strokes, brushing the gums as well as outer surface of upper and lower teeth. Use the same method on inside surface of your teeth.

To clean the four upper and lower front teeth, however, tilt the brush vertically, using several gentle up-and-down strokes with the "toe" (front part) of brush, with bristles against the teeth and gum tissue.

Rx Drug Safety

Here are some good pointers from the F.D.A. on the use and storing of drugs: never take drugs in combination or along with alcohol without your doctor's approval . . . Use pill boxes only for temporary storage, as pills can lose or gain strength . . . Never carry nitroglycerin in a pill box; keep in original container, designed to maintain pills' potency . . .

Rx: A drug is prescribed for you alone, never meant to be shared . . . It's a good idea to discard all leftover prescription drugs. For a free copy of A Primer on Medicines, write Consumer Information, Dept. 53, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Your Body— The Magnificent Machine

Do you know that our bodies are more efficient than computers? . . . The human heart pumps blood through 70,000 miles of blood vessels and back in less than a minute . . . The nose cleans, humidifies and warms about 500 cubic feet of air for the lungs daily . . . Many bones, such as thigh bones, are tubular, making them stronger than a solid rod of steel. Some more fascinating facts? Your palms and soles contain the richest supply of sweat glands but very few oil glands—which is why they get wrinkled when you stay in water too long. And those "goose bumps" you get on a cold day are a carry-over from our "furry" days, when skin muscles tightened so that hair would stand on end for better insulation and protection.

For cold & flu relief nothing's changed:

PEOPLE AND YOU

Why Winning A Marriage Fight Means You Lose

When Bill and Ellen's car stalls in the middle of a busy highway, Ellen says, "See, I keep telling you the car needs a check-up." And in Ralph's and Ruth's kitchen, Ruth is rushing to complete dinner before guests arrive. The salad bowl slips from her hand, smashes on the floor. Ralph bursts out, "I told you, you didn't allow enough time to get ready." Both Ellen and Ralph feel they've "won." Other couples will store up grudges and "win" their fights by suddenly hauling out their lists and using them as weapons.

When you push your mate to a You-Lose, I-Win position, your marriage loses. Consequently, neither husband nor wife really "wins" says marriage counselor Marcia Lasswell who, with Norman M. Lobsenz, has written No-Fault Marriage, The New Technique of Self-Counseling and What It Can Help You Do (Doubleday, 1976). To really win a marital fight, you both must abandon the idea of personal victory and concentrate on what exactly you're fighting about and how it can be resolved. A phrase like "Prove it!" in the midst of an argument inflames controversy rather than aims at a solution. Be especially careful of turning a small disagreement into a crisis say Lobsenz and Lasswell. For example, if you're arguing about where to go on a Saturday evening, stick to the point. Don't drag in serious differences about money by accusing your spouse of being unwilling to spend a few extra dollars for the night's entertainment. The authors conclude, "Ultimately the basic reason that 'winning' does not work is that it reduces marriage to a power struggle. . . . A couple can opt for power and seek to 'win.' Or they can opt for love and seek to reach accord."

—Shirley Sloan Fader

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Are You Neurotic? Here's a quick way to find the answer.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people have neurotic tendencies.
2. Neurotics are relatively happy.
3. The person who always feels sorry for himself, feels abused by others and claims no one appreciates or understands him has an excellent chance of developing a full-blown neurosis.
4. Never ask a neurotic person how he feels—he's liable to tell you.
5. It's easy for a person to determine the extent to which he is neurotic or well adjusted.
6. The United States is the least neurotic nation.

ANSWERS

1. True. As one leading psychiatrist has observed: it is the rare person who does not have some tendencies which result in mental and emotional conflicts; however, only in some people do they develop into neurosis. Truly neurotic people are described as being constantly in conflict with their environment, fighting their emotional battles on two fronts: inside, as visible in their physical symptoms and personality difficulties; and outside, in their quarrels and obstinacy.
2. False. In his pen portrait of the typical neurotic, Professor H. J. Eysenck, Director of the Psychological Laboratories at The University of London, describes him with such adjectives as "moody," "touchy" and "restless."

3. True. Studies show that many people develop elaborate neuroses based on feelings of abuse and claims derived from these feelings. ("I don't know why I should have to take all that abuse from anybody.") Such people make a career of misconstruing remarks and imagining slights and insults.

4. True. In a study conducted by British and American specialists, a questionnaire concerning the number of neurotic symptoms experienced during one week was answered by 100 known neurotics and 100 normals. Findings: complaints were reported more frequently in neurotics than normals.

5. True. Psychologist Gardner Murphy suggests: "A well-adjusted personality is one which utilizes effectively and without conflict all that it possesses." In other words, the person with a well-adjusted personality doesn't waste energies on self-doubts and inner conflicts but applies whatever assets he does have to his everyday life. The extent to which he is capable of doing this will provide him with an accurate index of his adjustment.

6. False. A study of national differences in neurosis, sponsored by Britain's Social Science Research Council, showed the nation with the highest incidence of neurosis to be Austria; the least neurotic, Ireland, with the U.S. roughly in middle place.

Observations

Never on Sunday? Our offer of $25 U.S. Savings Bonds for verified examples of silly government rules is producing no end of funny—and not so funny—letters. And once in a while there's evidence that government is overcoming its silliness. A letter from James L. Morgan of Winchester, Virginia, provides an example. He reported that he could buy beer and soft drinks on Sundays in his town, but he couldn't buy ice there. If he wanted ice for his drinks, he had to purchase it outside city limits. Well, in the November election, Winchester repealed its silly rule. Quite a victory for the voters.

It's taxing. If you work in New York City but live elsewhere, one tax form you must file is called a "certificate of nonresidence." And just to avoid any confusion, the form includes the following:

"Nonresident individual.—A nonresident individual means an individual who is not a resident."

A word about supply. In a recent nationwide survey, 51 percent of those polled favored an end to price controls on U.S. oil and natural gas. Only 27 percent backed continued regulation. Which leads us to believe that most Americans know the importance of assured supply. And we would add: they also know the economy can tolerate reasonably higher prices better than a shortage of basic energy supplies.

A quote we like. "The best things and best people rise out of their separateness; I'm against a homogenized society because I want the cream to rise."
Robert Frost.

Endeavour. That was the name of the ship on which Captain James Cook set out in 1768 to go "as far as it was possible for man to go." His travels took him to King George's Island (now Tahiti) where he bartered with the natives and observed a strange new art form: tattoos. His adventures are the third episode of Ten Who Dared, the "Mobil Showcase" documentary series on great explorers. Check your local TV listings for time and station.

MMM...THREE EASY STEPS TO HOMEMADE BREAD

Pro and beginner will find breadmaking rewarding with this advice from Food Editor Marilyn Hansen. "An easy way to get started," she says, "is to make a yeast batter bread—there's no kneading with this method!"

BASIC BATTER BREAD

- 1 cup warm water (105° to 115° F.)
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 1 cup warm milk
- 2 tablespoons softened margarine
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 4½-5 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water

1. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved.
2. Add milk, margarine, sugar and salt. Beat in 3 cups flour until well blended, using large spoon. Beat vigorously for 2 minutes; scrape side of bowl.
3. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes.
4. Stir down dough. With greased hands shape into balls and place into 6 greased 10-oz. deep-pie dishes or place in 4 greased 12-oz. casseroles.*
5. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until double in bulk, about 35 minutes.
6. Just before rising time is up, preheat oven to 375° F. Beat egg white and water together. Carefully brush loaves with egg mixture. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until tops are golden brown and sound hollow when rapped with knuckles. Remove from pans immediately and cool on wire rack.

Makes 4 to 6 individual loaves

*Or place dough in 2-qt. straight-sided casserole. Let rise as in step 5 and bake at 375° F. 45 to 55 minutes.

DILLY CASSEROLE BREAD

- 2-2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 2 teaspoons dill seed
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon softened margarine

- ¼ cup very hot tap water (125° to 135° F.)
- 1 cup creamed cottage cheese (at room temperature)
- 1 egg (at room temperature)

1. In large bowl, thoroughly mix ¼ cup flour, sugar, salt, instant minced onion, dill seed, baking soda and undissolved active dry yeast. Add softened margarine.
2. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add cottage cheese, egg and ½ cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter.
3. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter.
4. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour and 15 minutes.
5. Stir batter down. Turn into a greased 1½-qt. casserole. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes.
6. Just before rising time is up, preheat oven to 350° F. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes or until top is golden brown and surface sounds hollow when rapped with knuckles. Turn out of pan immediately and cool on wire rack.

Makes 1 loaf

WHEAT GERM CASSEROLE BREAD

- 2¼-3¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ cup wheat germ
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 2 tablespoons softened margarine
- 1½ cups very hot tap water
- 2 tablespoons molasses (at room temperature)

What is yeast?

Yeast is a plant in the fungus family. It exists in air and soil. Like other fungi, yeast plants require air, moisture and sugar or starch to grow.

Can Bakers' and Brewers' yeast be used interchangeably?

No. Brewers' yeast by itself will not raise bread dough. Bakers' yeast is composed of yeast strains selected for flavor and the superior ability to produce carbon dioxide.

- Blankets for those who found the sanctuary too cold.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Dr. David Hartman: "Blindness put my life into focus"

"Everyone is handicapped in some way. My blindness put my life into focus," says Dr. David Hartman, the first blind person to graduate from an American medical school. Rejected by nine schools before being accepted at Temple University (Pa.), David stayed in the top fifth of his class from his first semester. Volunteers taped medical textbooks (700 hours of them) and exams. Instead of identifying slides from a microscope, David recognized them from an oral description. He performed especially well in anatomical dissections because "a lot of surgery is done by touch." After his internship and residency, Dr. Hartman will specialize in psychiatry and rehabilitative medicine. In psychiatry, Hartman feels his blindness may turn out to be an asset. "Many people feel nervous when a psychiatrist looks at them, as if somehow he has inside information which exposes them. My patients might feel more comfortable."

Wide World

What Really Makes A Kid "Accident-Prone"?

"Accident-proneness" in children is directly related to the amount of stressful change in their lives, reports a University of Washington research team. In a five-month survey of 103 seventh-grade boys, those who had experienced a high number of such events as suspension from school or a serious illness within the previous year had more than twice as many accidents as those with low life-change patterns. On the other hand, no relationship was demonstrated between high risk-taking behavior and the number of accidents reported.

Quick Takes

Clowns Linda Kay Lambert and Wayne Paul Sidley are getting married in a clown wedding at Circus World Amusement Park in Orlando, Fla., next month. The bride's clown gown is being designed and made in New York, and both will wear clown-face makeup, as will the wedding party. Elephants will serve as ring bearers. . . . Women now comprise 25 percent of freshman medical-school classes across the country, and no medical institution has fewer than 10-percent females in its first-year class. . . . Ian Locklear, a four-year-old with an I.Q. above 170, is running for student-government president at the University of South Florida. How come? He's enrolled in the school's enrichment program for gifted children, so University officials were forced to admit he can be legally on the ballot.

If Your Head Needs Help

Do you know that the words "psychotherapist," "psychoanalyst" and "counselor" are not defined by law? Most of these people are legitimate professionals, and may even have medical degrees, but in most states just about anybody can set up shop under one of these classifications with no special training or qualifications. A person called a "psychologist" or "psychiatrist" must meet professional requirements: a psychologist holds a doctorate and has passed state licensing boards; a psychiatrist is a medical doctor who has also met specialty standards and passed state licensing boards. This and other helpful information come from the New York Consultation and Referral Service Inc., a mental-health service staffed by qualified psychiatrists and psychologists. Questions? Write to the organization at 130 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

How To Help Improve Children's Television

As a result of growing concern by parents and professionals over the effects of television on youngsters, Action for Children's Television, a group made up of parents and educators, makes these suggestions:

- Talk about TV with your child. Find out what programs, if any, upset him. Discuss ways TV characters could solve problems without violence.
- Look at television with your child. Watch the kind of TV behavior your child tries to imitate. Be sure to point out TV characters who care about others and TV women and men who are competent in a variety of jobs.
- Choose programs with your child. Try to improve children's TV by writing a letter to a local station or a television network. Specify the number of shows your child can watch. And don't hesitate to turn off the set.

You Can Test Your Dog's Intelligence

Now there's a 10-part dog intelligence test developed and published by school psychologist Cathy Coon, who once thought her dog was the dumbest in the world. Her three-year study of more than 100 dogs showed that most owners had no accurate idea of the intelligence of their pets. On a scale of 0-10—Very Dumb to Brilliant—the mean test score is 5.75. Purebred hounds scored highest, with a 7.63 average. Toy poodles were worst, with 4.78. Obedience-school dogs were no better than unschooled dogs. Mixed breeds were about as smart as pure breeds. Neither male nor female dogs were significantly smarter. "The Dog Intelligence Test Manual," complete with test, scoresheet and findings, sells for $3 at pet shops and department stores.

No presentation in television history has aroused such anticipation and received such advance acceptance as ABC's dramatization of "Roots." Alex Haley's landmark book of the same title, airing as an eight-part presentation (on consecutive nights) on ABC, beginning Sunday with a 2-hour first episode from 9 to 11PM.

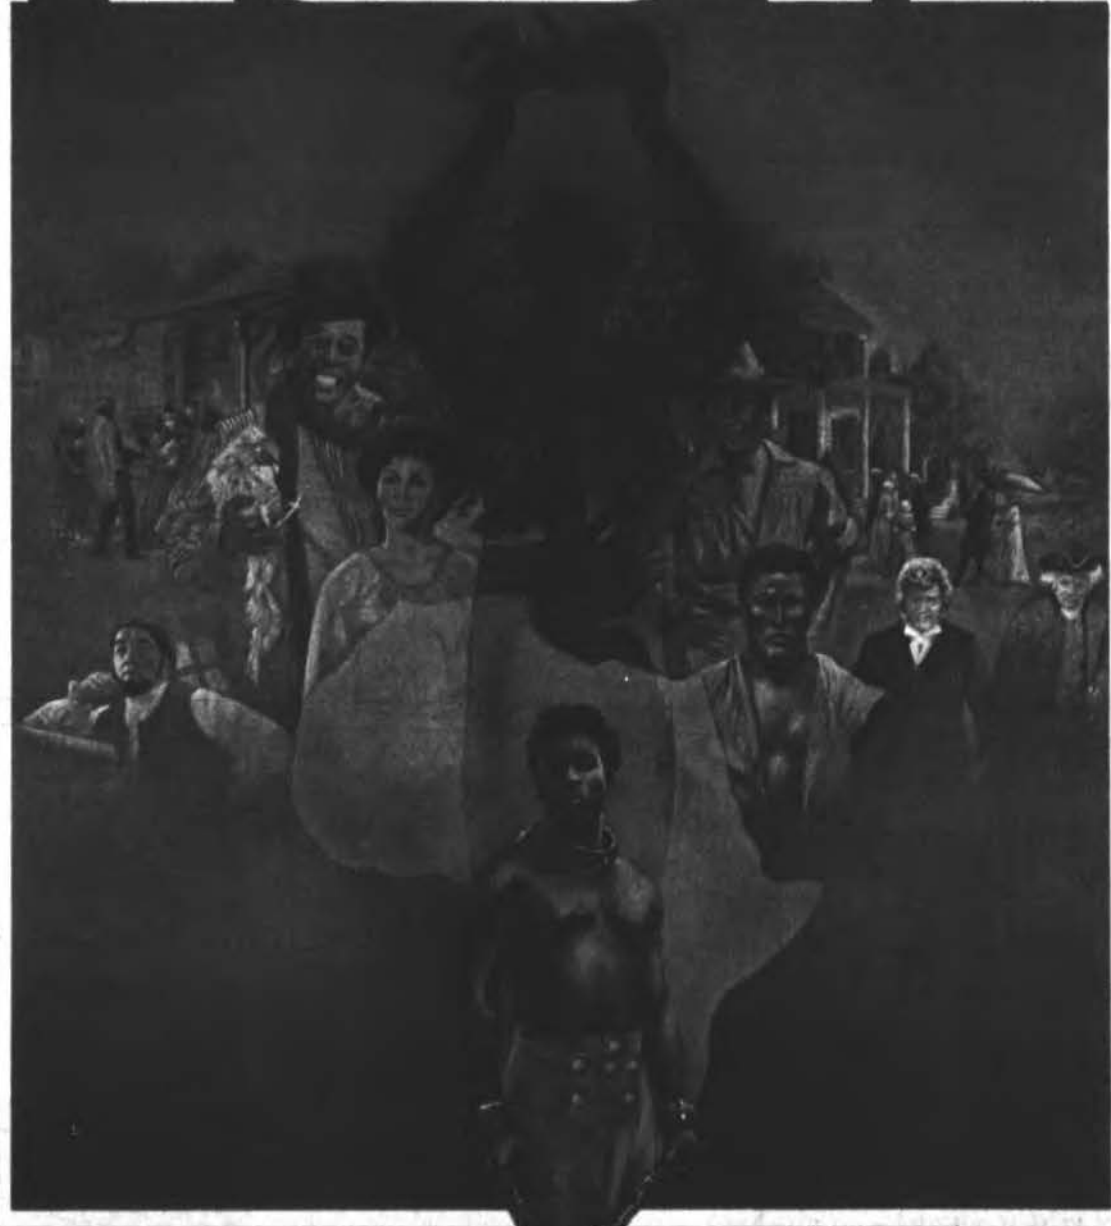

"Roots" was inspired by stories, told to author Haley by his grandmother when he was a boy in Henning, Tenn. The tales went back to her grandparents and their grandparents all the way to a man she called "the African" who, as a boy, had been abducted and dragged aboard a slave ship bound for Colonial America. Years later, as a writer, Haley began a ten year search across three continents to authenticate the story. He discovered not only the name of "the African"—Kunta Kinte—but the precise location from which Kunta was abducted, taken to Maryland and sold to a Virginia planter.

"Roots" begins in 1750 with the birth of the boy Kunta Kinte in the village of Juffure in The Gambia, West Africa. The boy's abduction to America as a slave leads to a fight for freedom of body and soul that continues throughout his own life and the lives of the generations that followed on the plantations of pre-and-post-Civil War America. It's a struggle that involves slaves and freedmen, farmers and blacksmiths, lumber mill workers and Pullman porters, lawyers and architects—and one author.

The story covers more than 100 vital and agonizing years of a changing America, culminating in the nation's bloodiest war, when the growing land was violently divided.

THE BIG DIFFERENCE IN SECOND TRUST DEED LOANS ON ANY REAL ESTATE:

Not all second trust deed loans cost the same. That's why the Federal Government has given you a simple way of comparing the annual cost of any loan... the Annual Percentage Rate. The lower this rate, the lower your annual cost.

Most other companies ask you to pay Annual Percentage Rates from 17% to 21%. That's because they charge you 10% interest, a maximum commission and give you a short time to repay. Not us. Through Reliable your interest rate is lower (9%), the commission is lower, and you get more time — 8 years — to fully repay your loan, including principal and interest. There are no balloon payments. We offer you an Annual Percentage Rate of 12.88%. Check around. We believe it's the best rate available... and it's available to everyone.

The figures look like this. For every $1,000 you borrow you pay only $14.66 a month for 96 months. The total of payments is $1,407.36. We also offer shorter term loans at the same interest rate and commission, but with proportionately higher Annual Percentage Rates. Naturally, you can pay off your loan at any time by pre-paying interest on the balance in accordance with state law.

You may borrow from $2,000 to $50,000 on a first or second trust deed loan — on any real estate anywhere in California. On the average, you'll have your loan in 10 working days.

No gimmicks. No double-talk. We just think it's good business to give you the facts... and more money for your money.

THE TRIUMPH OF AN AMERICAN FAMILY

ROOTS. Today's best-selling book by Alex Haley comes to television tonight.

ROOTS is the true story of men and women who helped build America. It begins with Kunta Kinte. A proud African warrior. Slavery shackled his body, but it couldn't chain his soul.

ROOTS is his story, the story of his children and his children's children.

'THE GROWING UP PROCESS'

The stars of ABC's new What's Happening!! comedy series about three high school students—an inseparable trio of high-spirited black teenagers—are like high school students everywhere...When the bell rings, they run outside.

"It's great doing the show," explains Ernest Thomas, who stars as Raj, "but a three-camera show with readings, rehearsals and taping keeps you inside so much that you do feel like a student when they say you can go. You run, not walk, to the nearest door."

The series, which airs Thursdays (8:30PM), is about the hilarious and unpredictable situations that are a vital part of the growing up process for youth everywhere.

Ernest's character, Roger "Raj" Thomas, is a smart energetic kid who dreams of a writing career, but for now is often sidetracked by some wild scheme that invariably backfires. Raj is aided and abetted in these endeavors by his mischievous buddy, Freddy "Rerun" Stubbs, who is as rotund as he is funny, and by shy, naive Dwayne, a faithful tag-along friend. Ernest is the most serious of the three off-camera as well as on. A native of Gary, Indiana, he is a graduate of that city's Emerson High School. "Karl Malden (star of ABC's Streets of San Francisco) also went there," he says proudly.

After Emerson, he was accepted by the prestigious American Academy of Arts in New York City, studied there for more than a year and then had to take a leave of absence because he got the lead role in the off-Broadway production of Joyce Carol Oates' "The Miracle Place." Not content just to work in a television series, the energetic Thomas has formed a company with Fred and Haywood, Fitzgerald & Co., with which he hopes to publish Fred's poetry and Haywood's cartoons.

Fred, like his character, Rerun, admits that he likes food. What kind? "Lots of it," he says with a grin, "like lots of spaghetti, lots of fish, lots of fruit, lots of vegetables—yes, even lots of junk food." Typically, his What's Happening!! role came by chance. He was auditioning for a guest spot on the Mac Davis series when he heard that auditions for a new show were being held upstairs in the same building. He walked upstairs, tried out for the role and became Rerun.

Haywood is the youngest of the three, but started in show business when he was six years old by getting several TV commercials to do. By 12, he was a full-fledged actor, having appeared in Mel Shavelson's "Mixed Company" with Joe Bologna and Barbara Harris. His other major show business credits include a year on Broadway with Marlo Thomas in "Thieves," a guest stint on the Grady series and parts in the daytime TV series, As the World Turns.

Although well-meaning, the three boys in What's Happening!! have a knack for getting into trouble. And, when they really get out of line, they have to contend with Roger's mother, Mrs. Thomas, portrayed by Mable King. An overworked but caring parent, she can be tough as nails when it comes to disciplining her son, just as she can—almost literally—smother Roger with affection when she's pleased with him.

Ernest Thomas (left) stars as Roger (Raj), Fred Berry as Rerun, and Haywood Nelson (right) as Dwayne, three spirited black youths growing up in a big American city.
