

Stars, Friends Bid Devine Farewell

ANDY REMEMBERED — More than 200 people attended memorial services today for actor Andy Devine including members of "The Sons of the Pioneers" who were joined in a musical tribute by Ken Curtis of

Luminaries from the world of show business and friends and neighbors crowded into a Corona del Mar chapel this morning to bid farewell to the beloved actor Andy Devine.

Andy, as he was referred to in the eulogies delivered by friends, died Friday night at the age of 71. More than 200 people, including stars James Stewart and John Wayne, attended the memorial services held at Pacific View Mortuary Chapel. They listened in obvious agreement as Andy was recalled as a gentle giant with a big heart.

Eulogies were delivered by show business acquaintances Charles Lyon of the "Truth or Consequences" radio show, Bill Burch, a radio and television producer and actors Guy Madison and Lew Ayres. Appeal Court Justice Robert Gardner introduced each speaker.

The emphasis was on Andy's joy in living as each speaker recalled a touching and amusing moment they had shared with the actor.

The crowd that had filled the small chapel and slipped out into Pacific View's hallways and offices left the services listening to the strains of a Western song, "Tumblin' Tumbleweeds."

Outside on the lawn, they found another reminder of Andy's career as a Western actor.

Two members of the famed singing group Sons of the Pioneers were outside, playing their own musical tribute to their departed friend.

Organist Dick Aurandt selected several show tunes including a medley from "Show Boat" and several Gershwin tunes to precede the ceremony. He was the musical director on Andy's most famous television show, "The Wild Bill Hickock Show."

The 20-minute ceremony closed with the reminder of Andy's pleasure in making people happy when his theater producer Guy Little performed the song "I Want To Be Happy" from one of the actor's recent stage productions, "No, No, Nanette."

The standing room only audience included as many members of the Harbor Area community as it did representatives of show business.

Devine's career in motion pictures began in 1925, but Justice Gardner pointed out that he was a Newport Beach resident for 20 years and was active in a variety of service clubs.

Lyon, who was described as Andy's oldest friend, described him as "a big man in every sense of the word. Just thank God that your paths crossed his," he told mourners.

Burch perhaps best described the actor's impact on three generations of movie, radio and television fans when he said, "People just didn't recognize Andy — they knew him and they knew of him as a friend."

Coffee Growers Hit

Brazil Supply Said Withheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department cables released today say that Brazilian coffee growers have held back supplies to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond (D-N.Y.), released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in two years.

A cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20 said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23 cable from the U.S. consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

State Department officials in Washington have denied allegations that the Brazilian government has done anything to drive the price of coffee to artificially high levels.

Brazil is the leading coffee-producing nation, with about half the world's production.

Richmond said Brazil's "chief weapon in this price war against American consumers" has been steep increases in its coffee export taxes.

He said the cables also reveal that at least twice within the last year Brazil has entered the international coffee market to try to purchase large quantities of coffee from Angola and El Salvador in an apparent attempt to prop up world prices.

A State Department witness planned to repeat the department's position.

In testimony prepared for delivery later in the hearing, Asst. Secretary of State Julius L. Katz said:

"To the best of our knowledge, no coffee producing country is pursuing policies which restrict or inhibit the export of coffee to world markets."

He said there is no present shortage of coffee, but the 1975 frost in Brazil has diminished stockpiles. The lower stockpiles in turn have led to higher prices, he said.

The subcommittees will hear from representatives of consumer groups and government agencies as well as coffee producers, importers and retailers.

Ford Budget Hiked By $19.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed and sent to Congress today his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will (1) help the needy, (2) restore economic growth and (3) make a start on his own programs.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three days before leaving office.

He said it "is essentially still President Ford's budget."

At a brief Oval Office signing ceremony, Carter signed two copies of the 101-page budget amendment — one each for the Senate and House.

Leaning over his shoulder to his budget director, Bert Lance, Carter quipped, "If you keep a 1979 budget down this small, I'd appreciate it."

The President then added that he looks forward to implementing a "quite radical" budget-making process as he begins preparing his own spending plans for the 1979 fiscal year that will go to Congress next January. He emphasized that it would entail the zero-based budgeting concept he used as governor of Georgia, meaning that every program will be examined from scratch just as if it had not previously existed.

Carter proposed increasing 1978 spending to $459.4 billion, compared with the $440 billion Ford recommended. After subtracting revenues of $401.6 billion, there would be a deficit of $57.7 billion. Ford recommended a deficit of $47 billion.

Spending during the current 1977 fiscal year is estimated at $417.4 billion with a record deficit of $68 billion.

Rainfall Forecast Along Coast

Weather prognosticators see rainfall in their Orange Coast crystal ball, but it's not expected until late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Los Angeles Weather Service meteorologist Walt Rogers said a storm that was forecast to bring 30 percent chance of showers, went through Southern California in a hurry this morning, bringing winds and sunshine instead. (Related stories Pages A5, 8, 12.)

"The trailing end of that front was just too weak to bring in rain," he said, adding that the rainfall on much of the state stopped in the San Bernardino area.

Rogers said a high pressure system that had been hovering off the northern coast causing summer weather has moved south and is now off Baja California, allowing storms to track into northern California.

He said the north part of the state is cloudy and more rain is expected tonight.

"There's a pretty good chance we'll get rain down here late Wednesday or Thursday morning," he said.

MEAL WON'T HAVE WATER

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will speak on water conservation at a luncheon Friday. Don't expect a glass of water with the meal, though.

"No drinking water will be served," said City Club president George Mitrovich.

2 Masked Men Rob Mesan's Apartment

Two bandits wearing makeshift hoods over their heads and wielding a .45 caliber automatic, broke into a Costa Mesa apartment early today, tying up one tenant before taking stereo equipment and other items.

Police said Michael David Tolley, 32, of 383 Rochester St. was awakened by the masked men attempting to truss him up.

Police said the groggy resident thought the whole thing was a joke and told them to get out of his room. Officers said Tolley then went back to sleep.

The silent, masked pair then tied Tolley's roommate, Michael Howard Farwell, striking him over the head with the pistol when he began to struggle.

The pair then loaded up a set of drums, a stereo set with four speakers, a television and other equipment and carried the booty to a car outside.

Meanwhile, the two roommates called police who arrived on the scene shortly after the gunmen left.

No value has been placed on the stolen equipment, police said, pending further investigation.

Officers are seeking two men in a dark blue Ford Ranchero.

The two roommates said they did not get a good look at the gunmen, who were wearing what appeared to be white sheets over their heads with holes cut out for their eyes and noses.

Father, Two Children Die In Air Crash

BIG BEAR LAKE (AP) — A Manhattan Beach pilot, two of his children and a family friend were killed when a light plane plowed into a sheer precipice 2,000 feet above this mountain resort, authorities said.

The victims were identified as Edward Chaffee, 40, his daughter, Elise, 13, his son, Merrick, 8, and the friend, Kerri Anderson, of Hermosa Beach.

A San Bernardino County sheriff's search and rescue team carried the victims away from the wreckage at 2 a.m. today, about 6½ hours after the light plane careened into rugged territory about a half-mile south of the Snow Summit ski lift.

Sgt. Ted Dykes said the plane had taken off from Big Bear Airport near Chaffee's cabin and was headed "somewhere down the mountain."

Confrontation Fizzles 'Junk Food' Seller Misses Day at Sonora

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An expected confrontation between a food vendor and Sonora Elementary School parents in Costa Mesa, who allege he's a junk food junkie, failed to materialize today.

The vendor's truck had a dead battery. He failed to show.

The parents, who took to the streets of Mesa del Mar on foot and by car last week, were out in force again today, waiting for Carl Palumbo, the 66-year-old driver of the bright yellow truck that canvasses local schools as early as 8 a.m. each day.

The parent vigilantes allege their kids are using up their lunch money on Palumbo's goodies.

But Palumbo's mobile sweets store fell prey to a decayed battery at nearby Davis School and he was unable to make his rounds near Sonora School before the 8:45 a.m. bell.

The Sonora parents were somewhat disappointed since the candy controversy has been a hot item recently, with confrontations escalating into full-blown shouting matches between Palumbo and parents.

Parents vowed, however, to be back at their posts Wednesday to make sure Palumbo doesn't violate city ordinances which say he must not stop unless he is flagged down and then must leave his parking space within 10 minutes.

Palumbo, a disabled veteran, claims the parents are interfering with one of his only means of support. He says his food isn't junk and that he never sells to students unless they first show him an extra 45 cents for lunch.

The parents disagree, and say Palumbo also entices youngsters with free samples of doughnuts and candy. Palumbo admits there are occasional freebies.

The parental posse will continue and many parents have begun escorting their kids to school to make sure they arrive without goods from Palumbo's truck.

Most parents would like to see the candyman vacate the area completely. But Sharon Yagerlener says she wouldn't mind if he simply rearranged his rounds to arrive in the area after lunch.

Palumbo says he has no intention of changing his early morning rounds.

Harbor View Group Eyes Middle School

Harbor View Elementary School parents, many of whom want their sixth grade students to remain at an elementary level rather than be transferred to Lincoln Middle School, will discuss the district's middle school concept tonight with school trustees.

Tonight's regular meeting of the Newport-Mesa Board of Education will be held at 7:30 at Sims Hall, Newport Harbor High School, instead of the usual Costa Mesa council chamber location.

A group of parents at the Newport Beach Kindergarten to fifth grade elementary school have asked trustees for an option regarding the traditional transfer of sixth grade students to Lincoln Middle School, also in Newport Beach.

Parents claim many of their 11-year-old students are not emotionally equipped to handle a large school (Lincoln has about 1,250 students) where children are not able to maintain close relationships with teachers due to diverse class scheduling.

However, a district memo listing 1976 state testing results shows sixth grade students enrolled in a middle school with higher academic scores than those who remain in an elementary school environment.

A written reply prepared by Lois N. Nelson, a Harbor View parent and professor of education at San Francisco State University, claims these statistics "are highly questionable."

Currently there are six middle schools in the district with only one, Ensign Middle School, serving 7th and 8th grade students exclusively.

A district memo states keeping all sixth graders in elementary schools "would be shattering, affecting staffing units, teacher readjustment, program cutbacks, and worst of all, causing the seventh and eighth graders to feel the effects of a minimal program."

Mrs. Nelson claims this theory "is an indefensible argument to justify the sixth grade at Lincoln to maintain the status quo and prevent change."

Nixon Vote Fund To Pay $200,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former President Nixon's 1972 campaign fund have agreed to pay $200,000 in an out-of-court legal settlement to four men recruited for the original Watergate burglary.

"This settlement provides what we have been saying along, that the Cubans were tricked into participating in the Watergate entries," their lawyer, Daniel Schultz, said today.

The civil case had been scheduled to go on trial Thursday before U.S. District Judge Charles Richey.

The original lawsuit filed by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis asked $2 million in damages, mainly from former officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President.

The list of defendants in the case read like a Who's Who of the Watergate scandals which drove Nixon from office. They included former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, retired CIA official E. Howard Hunt, G. Gordon Liddy and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

All served as officials of the Committee to Re-elect the President, now known as the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust.

In their suit, the four Miami men, often referred to as the foot soldiers of Watergate, alleged that they believed they were working for the National Security Agency or the CIA when recruited for the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

All four said they had participated in CIA operations against the Castro government in Cuba, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. All served more than a year in prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from their part in the burglary.

Schultz said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

"The only drawback is that people will never know the full story of the Cubans," he said. "For people to really grasp the full reason they believed what they did you have to see the CIA records."

Hunt knew the Cubans from his CIA days. He recruited three of the four men for the 1971 break-in by the White House plumbers against Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Then later, he again asked them for help on the Watergate burglary. But Schultz said the CIA records would show far more than their earlier association with Hunt. He would not elaborate, citing the secret classification of the records, which would have been made public in court.

Slayer Of Teens Sought

Christopher J. Barber, 16, and his girlfriend, Linda Bosteder, 15, were each killed execution-style with a single bullet in the head from a small-caliber weapon, said detective Larry Murray.

Both bodies were found Sunday in a dry irrigation ditch about a half mile from Interstate 15, authorities said.

Ironically, Barber and Miss Bosteder apparently had decided to abort their hitchhiking plan shortly before they were shot.

Murray said the girl had called a friend in Riverside asking for a ride back home. The two teen-agers were last seen alive when they told their parents Thursday they were leaving for Arizona.

Mesa Council Faces Few Agenda Items

Costa Mesa council members face a light agenda tonight in their last scheduled council meeting until March 21.

Councilmen will be traveling to Washington D.C. next month to attend a five-day National League of Cities congressional conference and won't meet again as a legislative body until mid-March.

Tonight's agenda includes a request for a preliminary development plan for a 670-unit building project in north Costa Mesa.

But councilmen are expected to continue that hearing for the 48-acre Arnell Development Company project until their March meeting.

The continuance was sought last week by the North Costa Mesa Homeowners Association, which is opposed to the Arnell project.

A turnaway crowd of homeowners last week heard their opposition overruled in a 4 to 1 vote of the planning commission, which forwarded its recommendation to the council.

Homeowners said, however, that one week was not enough time for the organization to "re-group," and asked for the continuance.

"I'm assuming the council will approve the continuance," said City Manager Fred Sorsabal today. "But they might vote to go ahead and hear it," he added.

But Mayor Dominic Raciti confirmed today that he will be asking the council for a continuance on the developer's plan.

Bandit Knives County Man

An Anaheim man walking from his carport to his apartment early today was robbed and stabbed, according to police.

They said the victim, Keith William Szep, 28, of 1597 W. Ball Road, Anaheim, is in critical condition after undergoing emergency surgery in Good Samaritan Hospital.

Police said Szep was confronted by two men in the drive of the apartment complex where he lives shortly after 2 a.m. During a scuffle that followed the confrontation, Szep's wallet was taken and he was stabbed once in the area of his rib cage, police reported.

No Change Seen in Irvine Co.

Irvine Company President Raymond Watson assured 160 members of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce today that his company's development plans will change little under new ownership.

And if either of the two prospective buyers of the land development firm think they can come in and increase development in order to get the purchase price back overnight, "they're gonna do it without me there," Watson, the guest speaker at the chamber's Town Meeting at the Newport Inn, discussed a variety of questions concerning the company in his hour-long informal address.

Most of his discussion centered on the pending sale of the company and changes within the company that will result from new ownership.

While acknowledging that there has been some decline in company morale, the company president insisted that any uncertainties are off-set by the enthusiasm that most of the company's 1,000 employees have for their jobs.

Watson's assurances come near the end of the long and at times bitter court battle over sale of the company, a battle he predicted would be over within a month.

He answered questions prepared by his company's public relations staff for most of the breakfast meeting, although he also responded to a few queries from the floor.

The gist of what Watson had to say was that the pending sale to either the Mobil Oil Corp. or the Allen-Taubman consortium should not upset nor materially change the way the company operates.

"Nobody's offering $289 million to buy a company because they don't like what's going on there," Watson said.

His appearance marked the first time Watson has spoken publicly about the proposed sale since a deposition was read into the trial record by attorneys for litigant Joan Irvine Smith.

Hitchhikers Dump Driver In Costa Mesa

A Fountain Valley man who picked up two hitchhikers early this morning in Newport Beach drove them as far as Santa Ana before the pair booted him out of his own car and sped off.

Claude C. Darna, 17140 San Mateo St., told Costa Mesa police he picked the two men up at about 3 a.m. and drove north on the San Diego Freeway, getting off on Fairview Road.

From there the 49-year-old motorist drove north into Santa Ana, where the two men told him, "You don't know where you're going" and kicked him out when he slowed for a corner.

Costa Mesa police informed Santa Ana officers of the theft of Darna's nearly new automobile.

Prison Executions 'Possible'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said today it is possible there will be executions in California while he is governor despite his personal objection to capital punishment.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" show, the Democratic governor said he will enforce the death penalty with compassion if capital punishment is reinstated in California over his veto.

"I'll carry out the law. I will give no blanket pardons," he said in the interview recorded in his Capitol office.

On another subject, Brown responded with a light comment when interviewer Tom Brokaw also asked Brown if he could imagine running again for the Democratic nomination for president.

"I can imagine almost anything," Brown said. "I like to think I can consider a number of ideas, and keep my mind open. I can consider not running. I often have said I would like to go back to the monastery and try to meditate on all that has occurred," the 38-year-old former Jesuit seminary student said.

Brown, who has vowed to veto any death penalty bill sent to him by the Legislature, was asked what he would do if that veto is overridden and he faced the choice of allowing executions or issuing pardons.

"I will make a judgment in each case viewing the totality of circumstances, trying to be as compassionate as I can, but also mindful of the fact that whatever the law is, my oath of office is to carry it out."

Brown said there is a possibility of executions during his administration, but limited the possibility by saying he would want to see any new law enacted in California tested first in the courts.

CIA Spy Ship May Hunt for Energy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Scientists are considering sending the secret CIA vessel Glomar Explorer to the ocean depths once again — this time to hunt for energy.

Marine designers face a Feb. 28 deadline to report to the National Science Foundation their cost estimates for converting the computer-laden spy ship for deep ocean test drilling.

The deep-sea vessel was built by Summa Corp., a holding company of the late Howard Hughes, purportedly to mine mineral deposits from the ocean floor.

The ship actually was built for the CIA to recover submarines and other ships from the ocean bottom. Explorer was used once — in a partially successful attempt to lift a sunken Soviet nuclear sub from three miles down in the Pacific near Hawaii.

"We feel there is a valid use and need for a vessel of this variety. When I say we, I mean the scientific community in general," said Dr. Melvin N. A. Peterson of Scripps Institute of Oceanography, which hopes to obtain the Glomar Explorer for the Deep Sea Drilling Project that he directs.

Peterson and his colleagues think the 36,000-ton Glomar Explorer can be converted to explore the really deep ocean floor not now accessible to man.

Currently, penetrations of the sea floor are impossible beneath more than about 1,000 feet of water. Tests now are being carried out by the Deep Sea Drilling Project's Glomar Challenger, an almost toy-like ship when compared to Explorer.

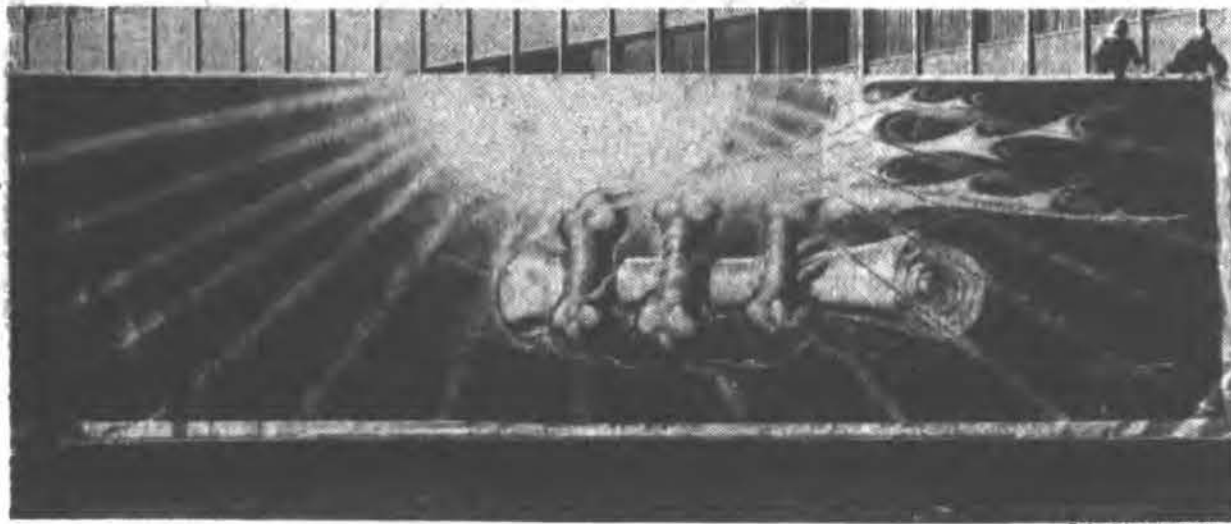

Peterson says he thinks Explorer can be converted to a ship that would enable scientists to sample crusts of the earth as much as 14,000 feet under water.

By comparison, offshore oil and natural gas drilling rigs to-day usually go no deeper than 1,000 feet.

The Glomar Explorer could give scientists a look at portions of the ocean floor largely neglected ed in past studies and could lead to discoveries of oil and natural gas, Peterson said.

Such exploration has been too risky in the past, he said, because a vessel like Challenger has lacked equipment capable of capping a deep undersea hole. Capping is necessary to prevent a blowout when oil is discovered at great depths.

'CLAW' PAINTING RIPPED OFF FROM ROOFTOP BUILDING IN DOWNTOWN LOS ANGELES
'Imperial Message' Valued at $15,000 by San Clemente Artist Rick Griffin

Art Effort Perplexing

Long Saga of SC Man's Work Finally Ends

By JACK CHAPPELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It began as an improbable task, to bring art to the people by erecting 16-by-60 foot paintings on billboards.

It got more improbable when pranksters stole one of the paintings, no mean feat as the huge painted canvas by San Clemente artist Rick Griffin was mounted on a rooftop billboard above Wilshire Boulevard and Fairfax Avenue in Los Angeles.

And the improbability spectrum broadened when the pranksters returned the painting, by dropping it off at a Glendale cemetery — only to have it seized by the Glendale Police Department as "evidence," before it could be rescued by the sponsoring "Eyes and Ears Foundation."

The events were described as "the story of Rick's life" by Steve Pezman, one of Griffin's associates at Surfer Magazine for whom the artist provides illustrations.

Griffin himself could not be reached for comment.

Ed Thomas, project chairman for Eyes and Ears, said Friday the foundation had finally gotten the painting back "bent, folded and mutilated" from the police department. Griffin was to work this weekend at repairing the work before it was rehung.

The painting, a gigantic spectacularly colored eagle claw emanating from a fiery sun and clutching a scroll is valued by the artist at $15,000. Griffin painted the work, "Imperial Message" at the old Columbia Studios, the only place available where the big painting could be done.

VICTIM OF THEFT
Artist Rick Griffin

"The object was to bring art to the public and not to have the public take our art," Thomas said ruefully.

Eyes and Ears, a nonprofit corporation, paid for the specially made canvas and provided the artists with paint and the space as well as a modest stipend for their time. The foundation seeks to promote public accessibility to work of California artists.

Thomas noted that it took a crew of four men to hang the painting from its billboard perch high above what have got to be two of LA's busiest streets.

He said he suspected Rick Griffin fans were responsible for the heist.

Griffin provides illustrations for record album covers, including those of the Grateful Dead, for posters and for magazines. He is also one of the cartoonists for Zap Comix and his works are a current craze in Europe.

Griffin is also a surfer of some renown in San Clemente.

The artist worked on the painting for three weeks in the old sound stage, sometimes painting until 5 a.m. Thomas recalled.

After the theft, Thomas issued a "return it and no questions will be asked" statement.

He got several calls, he thinks from youths, who wanted to know the value, and mumbled around about negotiating for its return. Thomas said he issued an ultimatum of "return it or else."

That was when it was dropped off at the graveyard, but by the time Thomas got the anonymous message and got to the site, the newspaper reporters, photographers and the police were already there.

He said sadly that the painting had been "folded up and tossed in the back of a police pickup." The cops wanted to dust it for fingerprints and such, he said.

"Imagine, dusting a 16 by 60 foot canvas for fingerprints" he said.

Since the theft, new precautions have been taken for the remaining eight works.

"The billboard lights are left on 24 hours a day and the police in each precinct with a painting have been alerted," he said.

Trial of Marines Opens

Blacks Face Court-martial for Attacks

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — The first black Marines go to trial by general court martial today for a commando-like attack on whites in a Camp Pendleton barracks Nov. 13.

The stiefess of the military legal proceedings was ordered for Lance Cpl. Ricky C. McGilvery, 19, of Dallas, Tex., and Cpl. Clarence Capers Jr., 21, of Edgewater Park, N.J., both charged with conspiracy to commit assault and six counts of aggravated assault.

If convicted, they face a possible 21 years in prison.

It is expected to be several months before all eight general courts-martial ordered so far are completed.

A total of 14 blacks were charged after six white Marines were clubbed and stabbed.

Two have pleaded guilty to lesser charges in exchange for testimony. The charge against another was dropped, and a fourth was acquitted at a special court-martial.

The attack allegedly was planned on Ku Klux Klan members in the barracks but mistakenly hit the wrong room. Twelve Klansmen were transferred later to other bases.

The American Civil Liberties Union in San Diego has filed a federal suit contending the constitutional rights of those 12 whites were violated by the transfers. Several of the blacks are being defended by attorneys for the Los Angeles chapter of the ACLU.

Last week eight of the blacks were released from the brig after three months on order of a Court of Military Appeal. The court said no evidence had been presented that the Marines might try to escape prosecution.

UC Regents Okay $350,000 Clinic

University of California Regents have tentatively agreed to spend $350,000 to build a temporary community clinic in Anaheim for the UC Irvine College of Medicine.

The regents, who made their decision at last Friday's monthly meeting, would spend the funds to construct and install 12 modular trailer units at a two-acre site in Anaheim, at Romneya Drive and Swan Street.

Exact details have not yet been worked out between the regents and the city of Anaheim, but both sides have reportedly agreed to having a community clinic in Anaheim run by the UCI medical school.

The trailers would be used for the clinic until permanent structures can be built at a later date. If the project continues as scheduled, operation could begin by fall of this year. The departments of medicine, pediatrics and obstetrics-gynecology will staff the clinic.

The medical school now runs a general ambulatory clinic at the UCI Medical Center and has a second community clinic in Santa Ana.

The Anaheim facility would be the third community clinic. Two more facilities are planned for later, at still-undetermined locations in Orange County.

If the Anaheim facility is constructed as planned, it would accommodate up to 20,000 patient visits per year, through 1978-79.

Talks are now in progress with the city of Anaheim regarding terms of the lease. An exact lease proposal is expected to be considered by the regents sometime this spring.

Huntington Crash

Youth Confesses To Hit-run Rap

A Pico Rivera youth haunted by the recurring mental image of an explosive flash and yelling people frantically fighting flames, turned himself in to Huntington Beach police Monday as a hit-and-run driver sought since Saturday night.

Jesse Torres, 23, accompanied by his minister, was questioned by investigators at police headquarters and told essentially what they knew of the crash on Beach Boulevard at Warner Avenue.

Traffic Sgt. Eddie Groom said Torres, a factory worker who speaks no English, was released to the custody of his clergyman pending possible charges to be reviewed today by the district attorney.

Police said that Torres, admitted he was the driver of an old sedan that crashed into the rear of a sport coupe shortly before midnight, causing the explosive blaze that destroyed both cars.

Sports car driver Murray Shaevit, 39, of Cerritos, and his passenger, Barbara Kammerer, 32, of Belmont Shore, were both burned and remain in UC Irvine Medical Center's burn unit.

The Kammerer woman is in critical condition, while Shaevit is listed in satisfactory condition with head and back burns.

A passerby, Stephen Silva, of 16761 Viewpoint Lane, Huntington Beach, suffered less-serious burns in rescuing Miss Kammerer in a desperate effort that authorities assert saved her life.

Huntington Beach Fire Department spokesman Larry Marshburn said Monday Silva will receive a special citation for heroism due to his role in the rescue operation.

Still a fourth victim, motorist Kevin Hallman, 20, of Bellflower, suffered a cut hand helping the trapped couple escape from the inferno. His car was one of four involved, in addition to Torres' auto.

"He said he just got to thinking and thinking about it and couldn't stand it anymore, seeing those people in that fire," Sergeant Groom said after interviewing Torres through an interpreter.

"He told a pretty straight story. He said his brakes failed and he couldn't stop — which we already knew from inspecting the wrecked car," Sergeant Groom explained.

Marine Dies In Fiery County Crash

A Camp Pendleton Marine was killed in a fiery head-on collision in Yorba Linda Monday evening that left three people seriously injured, according to accident investigators.

They identified the dead man as Marine Cpl. Jeffrey F. Lawton, 19, of Anaheim.

According to the California Highway Patrol accident report, Lawton was a passenger in a car driven by his brother, Timothy James Lawton, 18, of Anaheim.

The auto was southbound on Imperial Highway north of Kellogg Drive when it went out of control, crossed over the center line and collided headon with an auto traveling in the opposite direction, the report said.

A few minutes after impact, the Lawton car burst into flames. By then, however, rescuers had pulled the brothers from the wreckage of their auto.

Jeffrey Lawton was dead at the scene, the report said. Timothy Lawton was taken to Canyon General Hospital with injuries described as major.

The two occupants of the auto that collided with the Lawton car were also taken to the hospital with serious injuries.

They were identified as Henry Meyer, 79, of 5391 Lakeview Drive, Yorba Linda and Neola Meyer, 72, of the same address.

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Cuba and Costa Rica have decided to reestablish diplomatic relations at the consular level, the Foreign Ministry announced Monday.

Reveler Off With Trolley

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Irked by the high spirits of some Mardi Gras revelers, the driver of Trolley No. 930 got off to call police and one of the revelers drove off with the trolley.

A squad car stopped the runaway about a block down the tracks.

Timothy P. Rabb, 27, of San Rafael, Calif., was charged with the theft, police said.

WRONG AGAIN DEPT.—The trouble with this column writing business is that you never keep what you need. This is the case with California State Treasurer Jesse M. Unruh and one Robert H. Simpson.

You may recall the late Mr. Simpson of Sacramento. He died back on Jan. 20 at the ripe old age of 96. His longevity is noteworthy by itself. But Mr. Simpson became famous for his antics in picketing the capitol building, carrying salty-worded placards that scathed and insulted politicians of both parties.

By 1975, Mr. Simpson, by his own count, had been arrested 314 times by capitol police for his placard-waving activities.

I NOTED ALL this in an admiring sort of way whilst musing in this space shortly after Mr. Simpson's passing.

Further, I noted that even Jesse Unruh once got mad at him. Comes now a letter from Jess, declaring:

"You are wrong! I was never mad at Mr. Simpson.

"As a matter of fact, I may be the only Sacramento politician he ever had kind words for.

"Furthermore, I opposed Don Mulford's bill (signed by Governor Reagan) which caused Mr. Simpson the cruelty of many arrests. That bill did not pass until after I was no longer speaker." Sincerely, Jess Unruh, State Treasurer.

So there you are. Jess didn't divulge what kind words Mr. Simpson had for him but if the former Assembly speaker and current state treasurer says he was never mad at Mr. Simpson, then we will have to agree and figure on having been wrong again.

FURTHER, WHEN Jess Unruh tells you the anti-picketing bill he didn't like didn't pass until he was no longer Assembly speaker, you can surely believe that too.

Very few bills Mr. Unruh didn't like ever got passed while he was Assembly speaker.

Anyway, back to being wrong. When somebody like Jess Unruh tells you that you've done him wrong, the first thing you think about doing is defending yourself. I mean, you figure you didn't just pull the information out of thin air. So I pulled the file on Mr. Simpson. There was nothing in it about Jess ever being mad at the old gentleman. Then I began the desk search, thus:

Here's a $30 bill for club dues that hasn't been paid yet. An invitation to the 14th Winter Festival in Laguna. Another note on a meeting Feb. 10 that I think I missed.

Also on this other corner are two job applications and an invitation from Disneyland. Further, here's a folder which is stamped on the outside, "Mission Impossible."

THAT ABOUT SUMS it up. It's impossible to find anything on this desk.

So I'll just have to figure Jess Unruh's right and I'm wrong again.

But I thank him anyway for helping me clean up some of this mess.

'Bias' Test Okayed

Court to Hear UC Policy Arguments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether a school's special admissions program benefiting blacks and other minorities discriminates against whites.

The court's eventual decision could affect the future of all such affirmative action programs undertaken by schools and businesses throughout the nation in the last decade.

THESE PROGRAMS have been hailed by some civil libertarians as means of overcoming past discrimination.

The justices agreed to hear the appeal of the UC Davis Medical School from a ruling that its special admissions policy is a kind of reverse racial discrimination.

The California Supreme Court ruled last October that the medical school's policy of admitting 16 "special students" — blacks, Mexican-American and American Indians — over higher-qualified white students was unconstitutional.

"THE QUESTION IS perhaps the most important equal protection issue of the decade," attorneys for the UC regents told the court. "It lies at the core of the country's commitment to real quality of opportunity for all of its citizens."

Allan Bakke, a 36-year-old white civil engineer who twice was turned down for admission to the med school, sued the regents. He claimed, and was never challenged by the university, that he would have been included in the school's 100-student entering class in 1973 or 1974 if the special admissions policy was not maintained for the minority students.

The policy, begun in 1969, was established to "increase opportunities in medical education for disadvantaged citizens." But the university never offered an explanation of "disadvantaged" and never admitted a white student under its special policy.

BAKKE CHARGED THAT the admissions policy was nothing more than a racial quota.

The Supreme Court postponed the effect of the state court's order dismantling the admissions program pending appeal by the university. Now the policy will remain in effect until the high court's decision.

Many civil rights groups, fearing an adverse ruling from the Supreme Court, urged the university regents not to appeal the state court's judgment. They felt that the program's failure to admit "disadvantaged" whites made it a weak test case.

MORE THAN A dozen civil rights organizations joined in filing a friend of the court brief asking the justices not to accept the case for review.

They contended that Bakke's case was not a good one to use if the court were going to resolve an issue that "may determine the future course of integration efforts not only in the medical profession, but in other professions and the educational avenues leading to them."

The deans of the four California law schools urged the court to hear the case and decide that such special admissions policies are valid. The law schools, UC Berkeley, UC Davis, UCLA and the Hastings College of Law, have such programs.

The issue was before the Supreme Court two years ago but a decision on its merits was never reached.

Describes Capture

Lt. Cmdr. Michael Jackets, 43, of Oak Harbor, Wash., describes how he and two other hostages overpowered a gunman Monday at Whidbey Island Naval Air Station. The gunman, enlisted man James C. LeBlanc, demanded a long-range anti-submarine aircraft. The hostages were held for several hours.

Blizzard Aid Fraud Probed in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Federal and local investigators are investigating "a horror show" of thefts, extortion and illegal use of tax dollars they say occurred during the blizzard of 1977.

Massive aid became available after a Jan. 28 storm paralyzed the Buffalo area, and now authorities are wondering where all the money went.

"THERE WAS ABOUT $25 million in fresh money pumped into the area for storm assistance and a lot of people moved in on it real fast," said one federal investigator.

Soon after the Army Corps of Engineers arrived to help clear Buffalo streets, they received reports from private contractors that someone was trying to make private haulers pay for permission to remove snow, said Lt. Col. Bryon G. Walker, deputy director of the Corps' Buffalo office.

Investigators say they know of a case in which a New Jersey contractor brought eight trucks to Buffalo and was met by a man who claimed to be a city official. The man asked for $500 "as a license fee to operate on city streets."

Buffalo has no such fee.

INVESTIGATORS ALSO are checking allegations that about 5,000 gallons of gasoline were siphoned illegally from city pumps.

"The whole thing's a horror show," said an attorney who has been working on the investigation for more than two weeks.

District Attorney Edward C. Cosgrove said Monday that his office is checking out a possible black market in food stamps. His consumer fraud bureau is trying to track down reports that stamps were used for such things as stakes in card games and liquor purchases.

FRED BUSCAGLIA, social services commissioner, said one county employee reported being approached by a man offering to sell food coupons for 60 cents on the dollar.

Federal laws forbid use of the stamps for any purpose other than buying food for human consumption.

'Open Field' Eyed for 1980

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Ford said today it is possible he will seek the Republican presidential nomination in 1980 but called for keeping the field open.

"It's possible things might develop where I would have an interest and the party would want me to do so," Ford said in the first of a two-part interview on the ABC-TV program "Good Morning, America."

"I JUST DON'T WANT ONE PERSON to assume the mantle of leadership at this point," Ford said, declining to comment on whether he was alluding to Ronald Reagan.

Ford declined to criticize President Carter, saying that while he did not agree with every step taken by the new administration, he thought Carter "has enough problems without somebody sitting in the grandstand and second-guessing him during the early period of his presidency."

ASKED ABOUT REPORTS that former President Nixon would like to return to public service, Ford said, "I have a good many reservations that it would be appropriate for him to get involved in any partisan political activity."

Ford said he was reconciled to his defeat and planned to meet three or four times a year with the Republican Congressional leadership. He said he and his wife Betty will be in Washington March 24-26.

'Beat Me, Cut Me ...'

Husband Charged In Wife's Death

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — The letter to the editor said: "He has beat me (when he catches me on the street), cut me, broke into my mother's house, stands and calls me obscene names, among other things I cannot mention."

Imogene Knode wrote that about her estranged husband, Timothy Wayne Knode, to a local newspaper. She was found shot to death Monday in the living room of her parents' home. Her husband was arrested and charged with first-degree murder.

HELEN AYERS, the victim's mother, said she was awakened early Monday by voices downstairs and when she reached the living room, she found her daughter dead on the couch.

In the letter published Feb. 4 in the Hagerstown Daily Mail, Mrs.

Knode wrote she had a "most serious problem" and "couldn't take the beating and punishment I was receiving from my husband."

"The police say they can't do anything to him, the City Hall seems to bow to his command. Will someone please tell me what to do?"

The letter was signed, "Helpless."

POLICE SAY MRS. Knode, 25, was shot in the neck with a rifle after the killer apparently entered the house by breaking glass panels in the front door.

Knode, 31, arrested about three hours after the slaying, is being held without bond at the Washington County Detention Center.

The couple had been married for seven years before they separated five months ago.

KNODE HAD BEEN arrested Jan. 7 and charged with cutting his wife's throat with a razor. He was released on $500 bond.

Last week, a separate assault warrant was filed against him, but he had fled and the warrant was not served, according to police.

Taxpayer 'Ripoff' Reported

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Taxpayers who turn to commercial firms in California for help in preparing their taxes have less than a 50-50 chance of having returns computed correctly, says the state Department of Consumer Affairs.

Even when faced with complex tax regulations, consumers "are just as well off taking a crack at it themselves and saving themselves the fee," said Department director Richard Spohn.

SPOHN ON Monday released the results of a June 1976 study prepared by a private research firm. The researchers posed as private citizens and took sample tax information to 477 tax preparers selected for the study. The completed federal and state returns were checked against models developed by the California Franchise Tax Board, the state tax collection agency. Spohn said that based on that comparison, only three of the 477 preparers correctly completed the returns.

On the basis of the rate of error committed in the samples prepared, the study projected that taxpayers overpaid about $200 million in both state and federal taxes each year.

"CALIFORNIANS are paying tax preparers over $120 million a year, yet may be losing more than $200 million because of the inept services provided," Spohn said.

He said his department planned to meet with both state and federal tax agencies concerning the possible refunding of overpayments.

Release of the study had been held up by a lawsuit filed by West Coast Enterprises, a northern California franchise of H&R Block, the nation's largest commercial tax preparer.

The suit now has been dropped, Spohn said.

Showers Continue In North

By The Associated Press

Grateful Northern Californians awaited more rain and snow today as a series of Pacific storms broke through a two-year drought.

The National Weather Service said the frontal systems "will slam into the state and bring alternating periods of showers and rain to Northern and Central California."

CHAINS WERE required on some Sierra Nevada roads as the snow level in the mountains dropped to 4,000 feet with locally gusty winds.

The weather service predicted a 60 percent chance of rain Wednesday in the San Francisco Bay area.

Meteorologists said Monday the ridge moved to Baja California where it normally belongs this time of year, allowing this storm and probably others to penetrate to the coast.

But the weathermen doubted that the storms would bring enough water to make up for the drought which has crippled winter ski resorts, ruined crops in most Western states and forced several California communities to adopt mandatory water rationing.

SNOW-BOUND motorists in the Sierra Nevada and umbrella-toting city dwellers were still welcoming the drought relief late Monday after more than 36 hours of nearly continuous precipitation.

"It looks like we're going to have showers off and on for the next few days," said meteorologist Keith Giles of the National Weather Service.

Giles said he didn't know if the showers signaled a break in the drought, but he added "it's certainly going to help."

California's Marin County, where strict water rationing started Feb. 1, received nearly 1½ inches of rain.

Infant Death Halts Product Sale

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Toy and infant stores in San Diego report they sold about 15 dangerous baby pacifiers before receiving word to pull the product off shelves.

Health officials said Monday the pacifiers, which bear the imprint "Made in Spain," are constructed in such a way they can obstruct a baby's breathing and cause death by asphyxiation. One infant death in New York has been attributed to the toys.

THE U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is recalling the estimated 150,000 pacifiers that were imported and distributed.

Officials described the pacifiers as being constructed of plastic and rubber. They have sailor, cowboy and heads of animals such as dogs, owls, and giraffes.

THE TWO San Diego stores which sold the pacifiers have halted sales. Officials said they are having difficulty tracing the customers of the pacifiers because they sold for about $1 and few records of buyers' names and addresses were kept.

Linda is the victim of an epidemic ...

The greatestcrippler and killer in the nation—
it's called
"drinking."

Linda was crippled in an auto accident. She's one of 500,000 people injured or killed last year—in accidents involving "drinking" drivers. In Linda's case, her mom was driving—after a couple of drinks. Only a couple. But they were enough to cause a mistake in judgment. And now Linda can't walk. More than 100 million Americans drink. The number increases each year. And so does the number who drive after drinking. The epidemic grows. Drivers who drink are more likely to be involved in accidents. Linda knows this. So does her mom. It's too late for Linda. But not too late for her mom and others.

School Legal Costs

Orange County supervisors should proceed carefully Wednesday in deciding whether or not most free legal services should be cut off to the county's 33 school districts. County Counsel Adrian Kuyper has proposed the cut-off, relying on a new state law which permits such services to be eliminated.

Some local school officials have said they were not surprised at Kuyper's proposal. Some districts already hired private attorneys this year to assist in employee contract talks and have sought private legal help in other areas, often complaining about slow service they receive from the county counsel's staff.

In a report to supervisors, Kuyper noted this trend toward seeking private attorneys, a trend he said he has encouraged.

However, a cut-off in free legal help will mean that schools, already facing tight budgets, will have to find funds somewhere to hire attorneys. Supervisors should be encouraged to work with the districts to find a source of improved legal help at a fair cost to everyone.

Pension Generosity

Today's topic is another generous—and virtually unfunded—pension plan that may rise to haunt our taxpaying children.

This is the California Legislators' Retirement System, established in 1947 to encourage parttime and then rather poorly paid state officials.

Members can begin drawing lifetime benefits at any age after 20 years of service, or can qualify for minimum benefits at age 60 after four years of service. They currently contribute 8 percent of their pay to the pension plan.

Unfortunately, this hardly makes a dent in the bill. In 1975-76 the state general fund had to add $1.29 million to member contributions of $154,000 to meet obligations.

Some of the payouts are impressive. Former Gov. Ronald Reagan gets $1,161 a month. Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. draws $2,718 because he served as attorney general prior to his two terms as governor.

Former U.S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, who also served 26 years in state offices, draws $1,950 each month to bolster his income as partner in a law firm.

California Sen. Alan Cranston is entitled to $907 for his service as state controller. And former Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty gets $305 a month for his hitch as a state assemblyman.

While not denying the valuable service of these gentlemen, we cannot help but be a little disturbed by the fact that the year 2002 is the target date for getting this cozy pension arrangement fully funded.

Untimely Shutoff

Orange County Water District officials are well advised to attempt to recover the county's investment in Water Factory 21, the Fountain Valley seawater desalting facility shut down by the U.S. Department of Interior last year, after only nine months of operation.

The experimental plant ate up $4 million in county tax funds. The federal government contributed $6 million and promised to invest $3 million a year to operate the facility for two to five years. The federal funds were shut off last April and the plant closed down.

A proposal to try to sell it to one of the Arab nations interested in desalinization of water got nowhere.

Now California Congressmen are preparing to introduce legislation to recover the county investment. If that fails, the OWCD is ready to file a claim against the government to get the local tax money back.

At this point it would appear the feds guessed rather badly when they shut down a facility that was already desalting 3 million gallons of water a day, and had a potential capacity of 15 million gallons.

Penitence Must Go With Pride

SYDNEY HARRIS

When he was president of the University of Chicago, many years ago, Robert Hutchins was fond of saying that "the university isn't a very good school — it's just the best there is."

I remember this ironic, and possibly truthful, statement because the attitude it expresses seems to me to apply to much more than a university. I would apply it to our country as a whole.

It seems terribly important to me, in this crucial period, to keep in mind two things at the same time: that this isn't a very good country, and that it's the best there is.

If we concentrate solely on the fact that it isn't a very good country, we turn into carpers and common scolds. If we concentrate solely on the fact that it is still the best country in the world (which I firmly believe), we turn into smug and self-satisfied jingoists.

WHAT WE need so desperately is to hold both these ideas in tension at the same time, so that both our pride and our disappointment can mutually support our efforts, in a realistic and constructive way.

It's not a very good country that endures and permits the ills, evils and injustices we are subjected to. It is not a country that should be, as perceived and declared by our founders. We have fallen far short of their mark, and have much to be ashamed of, much to atone for

Dear Gloomy Gus

With regard to the Feb. 15 Gus comment, the question is not where will my children play, but where will my children live?

and rectify.

It's the best country there is, despite these intolerable shortcomings. It offers the most promise, and most hope, the most opportunity, of any place in the world. Don't believe anyone who tells you differently.

BUT THE trouble is that most Americans tend to "polarize" themselves: they turn into either intemperate critics and cynics about our system, or into mindless patriots, waving the flag and advising their neighbors to move somewhere else if they don't like it here.

Both attitudes are absurd, short-sighted, and dangerous. Neither can be safely or sanely held by itself. They are complementary, needing each other for balance. And balance — intellectually or emotionally — is the hardest attitude for most people to maintain.

WE HAVE a right to be immensely proud of what our country has stood for, and still stands for — but our pride must not blind us to the fact that we have so often neglected or betrayed the dreams it was founded on.

Pride and penitence must go hand in hand. The flag may be waved, but it must also be washed, so that it is worthy of waving. The patriot who will brook no criticism of what we have let ourselves become is as useless, and as perilous, as the subversive who sees no good left in us.

U.N. Envoy Heading for Trouble Our Ambassador Is Out of Line

NICK THIMMESCH

WASHINGTON — It's fair to ask: How long can "Andy" Young, as President Jimmy Carter calls him, last in his job as United States, and I repeat, United States, ambassador to the United Nations?

In three short weeks, Young has stuck his foot in his mouth half a dozen times, presumably because he announced early that he would do more than represent the United States, he would make policy.

His verbal blunders are bad enough, but what he didn't say about the slaughter of seven white Roman Catholic missionaries by black Rhodesian guerrillas, is equally regrettable. Had blacks been slaughtered in this barbaric way, Young should have condemned the murders in the name of the United States. But it was whites, and he still should have spoken out on the same basis. But he has been silent.

Young is a disciple of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, and an advocate of the nonviolent approach. While he talks softly, and he often tries to smooth out political problems of the kind Carter had when he talked of "ethnic purity" in the primaries, Young, by word and deed, invariably comes down on the militant side.

THAT IS all right, providing he is in elective office. But now he represents all the people of the United States, and he should keep his personal opinions to himself.

If Young's opinions indicate where he will take the United States in the United Nations, we are in trouble. In 1970, Young remarked on ABC-TV that Western technology and militarism suppressed freedom in Latin America, Africa and Asia. Therefore, he reasoned, it would take Black Panther kind of thinking — the "destruction of Western civilization" — to create "a free and brotherly society" in the rest of the world.

Asked directly whether he supported the destruction of Western civilization, Young answered: "I probably would."

Subsequently, Young has publicly identified with, and supported, Marxist-led, Soviet-equipped guerrilla movements in Angola, and backed the "liberation" of southern Africa by means of armed struggle.

He had hardly been confirmed as ambassador last month when he was telling CBS' Dan Rather that the Cubans "bring a certain stability and order to Angola." But when Young was asked if it was wrong for the United States to be in Vietnam — as Young argues — how come it is not wrong for the Cubans to be in Angola, Young answered: "You got me there."

In a moment he was sputtering about how "Most colored peoples of the world are not afraid of communism," and that "communism has never been a threat to me." Young finished his act by declaring that he has "a Biblical view of the world." I thought the U.S. government was paying his salary.

Earlier, Young had declared his support for the United States to allow Communist Vietnam to be admitted to the United Nations, a view so contrary to official U.S. policy that the timid State Department had to slap his wrist.

NO MATTER who is running the country, Democrats or Republicans, there must be continuity in foreign policy provided by career professionals. These foreign service officers have an "institutional memory" of what has happened before, and must caution any new administration about mistakes of the past.

But Young doesn't recognize the need for such continuity. Hence, he plans to get rid of the four experienced career professionals who work for us at the United Nations, and replace them with his own people.

Now if Young wants to play dynamic, irate congressman, that's fine when he's in Congress. But he owes us more than that. Sure, he helped save candidate Carter in the primaries by defending his Georgia friend against charges of racism. And sure, Carter had the right to reward him. But there are many places in government where Young could vent his feelings, and still not damage the national interest as he is doing now.

ANYONE WHO has read me knows that I was a sharp critic of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, especially for his devious ways. But last week, Young, in blaming Kissinger for putting the burden of Rhodesia "on Britain's back," dealt the former secretary of state a low blow, and the United States as well.

Perhaps Young's appraisal of Kissinger's role in arranging a Geneva conference on Rhodesia as a futile mission is correct. Even so, Young has an obligation as ambassador for the United States to think of our international reputation before mouthing off.

Dilemma of the $50 Rebate

ART HOPPE

DEAR PRESIDENT, I, Joe Sikspak, American, take pen in hand to welcome you aboard with open arms and tell you to keep your lousy 50 bucks.

The way this comes up is I am down to Paddy's Place the other night. "Give me a Seven-high, Paddy," says I, "and kindly throw in a bag of peanuts as I am celebrating our President's glorious plan to give each of us taxpayers 50 bucks back in cash in order to stimulate the economy."

"He is making a terrible mistake, Joe," says Paddy, "and no doubt about it."

"Why so?" says I. "What the government takes away, cannot the government give back?"

"That may be," says Paddy. "But what will you do with the money?"

"I was thinking of going hog wild," says I, "and splurging it all on a pound of coffee."

"The citizens of Brazil will thank you," says Paddy, "for stimulating their economy."

"Then I will be thrifty and responsible," says I, "and stick it under my mattress."

"I have doubts that would even stimulate your Missus," says Paddy. "No, Joe, let us face facts. The President has misplaced his confidence. You haven't the faintest idea of how to stimulate our economy."

"PADDY, YOU are right," says I. "But what should I do?"

"Nothing," says Paddy. "The President has at his side the finest economic brains in the country. You got to admit they know more about stimulating the economy than you ever will."

"That they do," says I. "You think they should ought to give me the 50 bucks and tell me how to spend it?"

"Frankly, Joe, I don't think you can be trusted," says Paddy. "You are liable to fritter it away on hamburger helper or paying off Al, the loan shark. No, what they should do is take your 50 bucks, buy what is most needed to stimulate the economy and ship it to you post paid."

"I like presents," says I.

"What do you think I'll get?"

"Well, if I was them," says Paddy, "I'd make a $50 down payment for you on something like a $500 eight-track, color barbecue with white sidewalls."

"I don't need one," says I.

"You're missing the point, Joe," says Paddy. "Ask not what your country can buy for you. Ask rather what you can buy for your country."

WHEN IT COMES to that, President, you can count on me. Like Paddy says, "The economy is far too complicated a subject to be left in the hands of us ignorant consumers."

So I'm sure looking forward to getting my present. (I just hope it isn't pot holders.) And the only thing that's bothering me now is that it was my 50 bucks in the first place.

Truly Yours,

'Silent Man' May Win Freedom

JACK ANDERSON

He was a fast draw.

For a mercifully brief period, Liddy thought he had been instructed by Jeb Magruder to kill me, a mission whose merit he divined automatically and embraced without question. He was on his way to gun me down when he was apprised that he had misunderstood Magruder. Liddy was disturbed over Magruder's imprecision of speech. "Where I come from," he grumbled, "that means a rub-out."

Later, Liddy tried to obtain some exotic poisons from the Central Intelligence Agency to use against me in a more sophisticated plot. "He hates the other side," Richard Nixon said of him.

LIDDY was drummed off to prison, mouth shut and head erect, for a 21-year sentence. He became known to his fellow inmates at the Danbury, Conn., penitentiary and the Allentown, Pa., prison farm as "Watergate Liddy." The prison records show that he has continued his non-talkative ways. A supervisor reported that Liddy "can be relied upon not to talk out of turn or pass on rumors. What he learns in the office stays in the office, and what he learns in the yard stays in the yard."

LIDDY WON'T be eligible for parole until May 1981, after serving eight years, two months. In contrast, the men responsible for Watergate — John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Erlichman — will be eligible for parole after only 30 months in the slammer.

Lesser Watergate figures, such as former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, received light, suspended sentences. And, of course, Richard Nixon was pardoned for his White House crimes.

The Justice Dept. has received several letters, meanwhile, urging leniency for Liddy. We have had access to his confidential file.

For instance, Chesterfield Smith, former president of the American Bar Association, wrote: "The sentence given Mr. Liddy . . . seems to me to be outrageously out of line with sentences in the federal criminal justice system given to others under similar circumstances." Smith suggested that Liddy received excessive punishment for refusing to squeal on his associates.

Yale law professor Dennis E. Curtis wrote that Liddy's sentence was "so grossly disparate" that it "can only reflect distrust and discontent with our sentencing system." The sentence, he noted, was "more than ten times as great as the sentences received by most of the Watergate group."

The final decision whether to commute Liddy's sentence will be up to President Jimmy Carter, who, in the past, has advocated equal sentences for the same crimes.

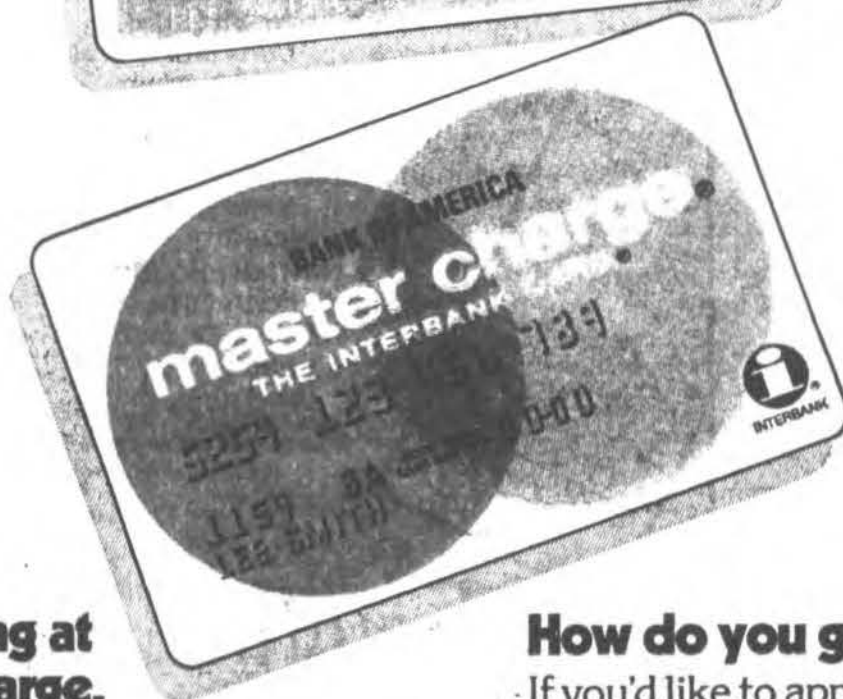

WASHINGTON — G. Gordon Liddy, the silent man of the Watergate conspiracy, may soon be set free. Although he won't be eligible for parole until 1981, he has asked the Justice Dept. to commute his sentence. The request, according to our sources, is under "serious consideration."

The tight-lipped Liddy, a tenacious little man with a Groucho Marx mustache and a macho manner, had flair. Once he held his hand over a burning candle to impress friends.

Another time, he pulled out a pistol and shot out a street light so that Sen. George McGovern's presidential headquarters could be observed under proper cover of darkness. As an assistant district attorney, he whipped out a gun in court and fired at the ceiling to dramatize a robbery case.

Four-year Trek

Import of Snow Ruled Out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you think snow from the East might solve the California drought, think again.

It would take 182 million carloads of water or tightly packed snow to make up for drought-stricken California's water shortage, which stands at a staggering 2.3 trillion gallons.

IF THAT 182 million-car train were linked together and if it were traveling 50 miles per hour, it would take the train nearly four years to pass any single spot on the rail line.

That's the word from the state Department of Water Resources, which has been receiving numerous phone calls and letters suggesting snow from outside the state could solve the drought problem.

Don Engdahl, a department planner, said that the number of railroad cars needed to move the snow is only part of the problem.

Here are a few other obstacles he mentions:

—IF THE SNOW were being hauled 2,000 miles, for example, it would require 77 billion gallons of fuel oil to move the cars to California.

—The tab for train transportation would be $437 billion, based on average railroad costs, and truck transportation would cost about four times that much.

—If all the existing tank and open train cars in the country were put to the job of moving this snow, it would mean each of them would have to make 500 round trips to deliver the water.

ENGDAHL ADDED, "In the right circumstances, involving short distances and crucial needs, this kind of transportation might be feasible. But given the magnitude of the California problems and the distance involved, it would be a staggering problem."

Diet Food Info's Mandatory

DEAR PAT: I've often wondered if health foods are required by law to list fat, protein, carbohydrates and calorie content on their labels. All of them do, and I'd like to know if this is a sales booster or if it's mandatory.

H.W., Costa Mesa
It's the law (AB 1123) in California. All foods sold for special dietary use to control weight or to manage a diet with respect to disease must bear labels with specific statements of content, such as you mentioned. This law applies only to food sold for human consumption. As you probably have noticed, many "non-health" food labels now contain voluntary nutritional information due to a growing national interest in nutrition.

Was Bond on Back Burner?

DEAR PAT: Last May I saw an ad stating that a $50 U.S. Savings Bond would be awarded as a bonus with every purchase of a GE oven range (model JB500). I purchased this range, but never received a savings bond. My letter of inquiry was not answered.

R.O., Costa Mesa
Helen Gibson of General Electric Co., Louisville, Ky. reports that your bond now has been mailed to you. She explained that normally, after GE receives an owner registration certificate and request for the bond, it takes six weeks for delivery. Although she noted that GE had received a large number of responses to this ad, no reason could be found for the long delay in issuing your bond.

Universal Money Not Honored

DEAR PAT: I purchased money orders here in California from the Universal Money Order Co. on Dec. 23 and Jan. 3. They totaled $181.15. The problem is that neither has been honored. I was informed that in mid-January the company declared bankruptcy. Is there any way I can get my money back or have the money orders cashed?

L.H., Santa Ana Hgts.
According to John Stuart of the California State Banking Commission, Universal Money Order Co. is a New Jersey based firm with corporate offices in New York. He said it did the bulk of its business in California but also was licensed to operate in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey and Colorado.

After having been issued a cease and desist order in two states, the company declared bankruptcy on Jan. 12.

There is no federal regulation of companies selling money orders nor any uniform state regulation. In California, New York and Pennsylvania such companies are regulated by state banking commissions. But the restrictions are not as stringent as those for banks. In these states a company need only demonstrate solvency and be bonded in order to get a business license.

Stuart estimated California consumer losses at $9 million. He said the banking commission is unsure how, or if, reimbursements will be made to purchasers of Universal money orders. Claim forms may be filed with the Banking Commission (600 S. Commonwealth, Los Angeles, CA 90005) for sharing in any subsequent reimbursements that may be issued.

Income Tax Aid Being Offered

A program offering free income tax advice and assistance in preparing tax returns is in progress for Costa Mesa, Irvine and Newport retirees during daytime hours until April 7.

Volunteer counselors, trained by the Internal Revenue Service, scheduled the program: Mondays from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Four-square Church in Costa Mesa; Tuesdays and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Downtown Community Center in Costa Mesa and Thursdays, 1 to 4 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Master in Corona del Mar.

THREE additional days of service will be offered at the Senior Citizen Center at the Costa Mesa Fairgrounds March 1, 15 and 29.

The service is being offered by the Tax-Aide Program of the American Association of Retired Persons. Shirley Laskin, coordinator for the program, said the service is designed to help older taxpayers, and especially retirees, understand this year's changes in income tax law.

COUNSELORS DO not actually prepare tax forms but will assist in filling out the returns and in getting the full credits, exemptions and refunds to which taxpayers may be entitled.

Anyone wishing to take advantage of the service should bring this year's forms, last year's tax return and all appropriate papers and information to be entered on the return. These include Wage Earning Statements (W-2), interest, dividend or pension statements, and medical information.

Radio Station to Expand

KSBR, Saddleback College's tiny 10-watt FM radio station, may have its voice amplified 300-fold next fall.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has granted preliminary approval for a Class A, 3,000-watt FM station in Mission Viejo on "Channel 203A," which is the channel occupied by KSBR.

THE SMALL STATION, which broadcasts at 88.5 on the FM radio band, has been transmitting for 12 hours a day, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Its signal can be heard only in the immediate vicinity of the college because the transmitter is atop the library building.

Jim Lane, station director, said the FCC action means the remainder of the permit procedure is "all downhill."

"Our Class A signal coverage area will be all the college district (48 percent of Orange County) and our Class B signal area (a little weaker) will include almost all the county."

KSBR STILL NEEDS a construction permit from the FCC to erect a transmitter tower and install new equipment to boost the signal, Lane said.

Two off-campus sites for the tower are being examined, one in Mission Viejo and the other in the San Juan Capistrano area.

"It has to be up as high as we can get it to take full advantage of our signal in this hilly area," Lane said.

IN ADDITION, LANE said, the station will soon move into larger studios with bigger production facilities.

Money for the station's growth may come in part from the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Lane said an application is being prepared to participate in an HEW grant program that could provide up to 75 percent of the finances.

Of Romance In Late Years

Those snoopy survey takers inquired into the private lives of married couples beyond the age of retirement. Among those husbands and wives who'd given up the romantic activity they'd enjoyed in bygone years, it was the men, not the women, who proved to be responsible. As for those couples who'd not given up, half of them revealed to the pollsters that they'd become even more amorous from year to year beyond the age of 65.

To the Australian aborigine, a stick that is held in the right hand is a male stick while a stick that's held in the left hand is a female stick.

COLOR MINDED

Q. "What's 'chromesthesia'?"
A. An oddball condition in relatively few people. Reportedly, certain colors spring to their minds when they hear certain sounds or see certain objects or touch certain textures or taste certain substances. The noise of a chain saw might make them think red, for instance. Or a picture of a horse and buggy might make them think green, no matter what the real color. So on.

Maybe you've seen pictures of erupting volcanoes that seem to be spewing out flames. But in fact, volcanoes don't do that. If there's fiery color, it's no doubt the reflection of molten lava on vapor clouds.

How many musical instruments can you identify that were named after the men who invented them? Sousaphone. Saxophone. Any others?

Twice as many college students as citizens in general commit suicide.

CUSTOMS

Customs officials draw a simple distinction between "chiselers" and "smugglers." Chiselers try to sneak into the country undeclared items for their personal use. Smugglers bring stuff in for profit, if they can. Chiselers are fined. Smugglers are jailed.

Carpenter was bested only by three other senators, according to Associated Press. Sen. John Stull (R-Escondido) led his 39 colleagues with $262,766 in expenses. He was followed by Senators John Dunlap (D-Napa) with $258,775 and Peter Behr (R-Tiburon) with $249,537.

Senate President pro tem James Mills (D-San Diego) said the increase was less than the inflation rate, which indicates lawmakers are "keeping their own economic house in order."

The next meeting of the Southern Orange County Democratic Club will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the San Juan Women's Club House, 31442 El Horno St., San Juan Capistrano.

There will be a smorgasboard dinner and a business meeting will follow. Speakers will be Dennis de Snoo from the V.I.P. Club, Tom Murphy and Tom Plante.

Robert G. Begam, president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the nation's largest trial bar organization has hailed Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s appointment of Rose Bird as chief Justice of the California Supreme Court.

"She is sensitive, intelligent and has proven to be a brilliant administrator," Begam said. "Her elevation to the highest judicial position in California is an outstanding choice."

On the other hand, Sen. John V. Briggs (R-Fullerton) has called for Gov. Brown to abandon "cronyism" in his proposed appointment of Ms. Bird by voluntarily submitting Supreme Court appointments to a confirmation hearing by the Senate.

"THE SENATE, acting in behalf of the people, is in the best position to fairly evaluate whether Rose Bird is truly qualified or if she is just another bosom buddy of the governor looking for a lifetime job," Briggs said.

Briggs said Ms. Bird had no judicial experience.

The Orange Coast League of Women Voters is supporting the Newport Beach Open Space Bond issue.

Valery Murley, president of the League, said the acquisition program is consistent with the Newport Beach General Plan's open space policies. "The League of Women Voters calls upon the citizens of Newport Beach to take action to meet their commitment to their basic planning document," she said.

A pro and con debate on the $7 million bond issue has been scheduled by the League at 7:30 tonight at 501 Cliff Dr., Newport Beach.

Speaking in favor of the bond issue, and presenting a slide show, will be Evelyn Hart. Speaking in opposition will be Goldie Joseph. All voters in the city are invited to attend.

Good Life Ends in Flight From Indictments

DALLAS (AP) — The house in Dallas' most exclusive suburb is dark now. Inside, time has stopped — nine days before Christmas.

Presents, wrapped and unwrapped, lie scattered about the expensively appointed living room. A $1,200 Persian rug is an island of blue on a large expanse of burnished hardwood.

IN THE KITCHEN, a box of cereal sits on the counter. Glasses stand beside the sink. The cabinets hide $100 place settings of china. Several copper ornaments adorn one wall. Their $200 price tags were never taken off.

The over-all impression is that someone will be back momentarily. As one neighbor put it: "She left it just like I would leave mine if I were going to the grocery store."

But the bedroom tells a different story.

MAIL IS BEGINNING to stack up on the bed. Most of the envelopes appear to be bills, past due notices from nearly every fashionable store in Dallas.

Editor's Note — Kay Munch had it all: the right clothes, the right friends, the right address. She hosted the right number of black-tie parties in her Highland Park home during the opera season. For at least a year, the money flowed like good wine. And then on Jan. 27, the 34-year-old Miss Munch was indicted by a grand jury. Authorities say she embezzled at least $100,000 from her employer. But Kay didn't wait around for the law. She vanished, leaving her expensive friends wondering who she really was — or is.

Among the bills are invitations to boutique openings, tennis matches, opera functions — and a reply from the Australian consul in San Francisco to a visa inquiry.

A photograph shows a blonde woman with a prominent nose and a sprinkling of freckles across high cheekbones. It's the face of an independent woman, strong, but friendly. It is also the face of a fugitive.

ON THE MORNING of Dec. 16 — a Thursday — Kay Ann Munch had wheeled her new Buick through North Dallas traffic. She parked in front of a Concrete Construction Supply Inc. in nearby Garland where she was a stockholder and company treasurer.

She had been with the firm since July 1974.

"She came in and stayed about 20 minutes and said she had an errand to run," said President Larry Smith. "I understand she went home, packed her bags and left."

SMITH SAID HER disappearance was prompted by an outside audit of company books that was to start the same day. The following Tuesday, 13 months of checks and financial statements were discovered missing.

On Jan. 27, she was indicted on a charge of theft more than $10,000.

Jon Sparling, head of the district attorney's special crimes section, said investigators have substantiated losses totaling $120,000 so far.

"It looks like she hit 'em for about $20,000 the last week," said Sparling.

A NOTE FOUND BY bankers in the Lakewood Bank & Trust night depository Monday morning said the gold Buick was in the Delta Airlines parking lot at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

There were other notes, all written strangely enough, on cheap tablet paper and signed simply "Kay." They went to friends and her brother in Murdock, Neb., explaining cryptically that she had deep personal and psychological problems and was leaving.

Two friends, Ted and Suzanne Terry, received their note in Saturday's mail. Kay was the legal guardian of their two small children if they both died.

"SHE'S NOT THEIR guardian anymore, and that's official," said Terry, a Braniff copilot.

Terry had known Kay about nine years, his wife about four.

"She was supposed to spend Christmas with us," said Mrs. Terry. "She always did ...

WHERE IS SHE NOW?
Socialite Kay Munch

When she left, we were told she took her furs and all her jewelry, even her costume jewelry. And she remembered to take some pictures of the kids. I feel sure we'll hear from her. I looked for something around Christmas and then around Valentine's Day but

THE TERRYS WERE fooled. Both said they had wondered where Kay got her money and assumed it came from an inheritance.

Rex and Sharon Jobe were fooled, too.

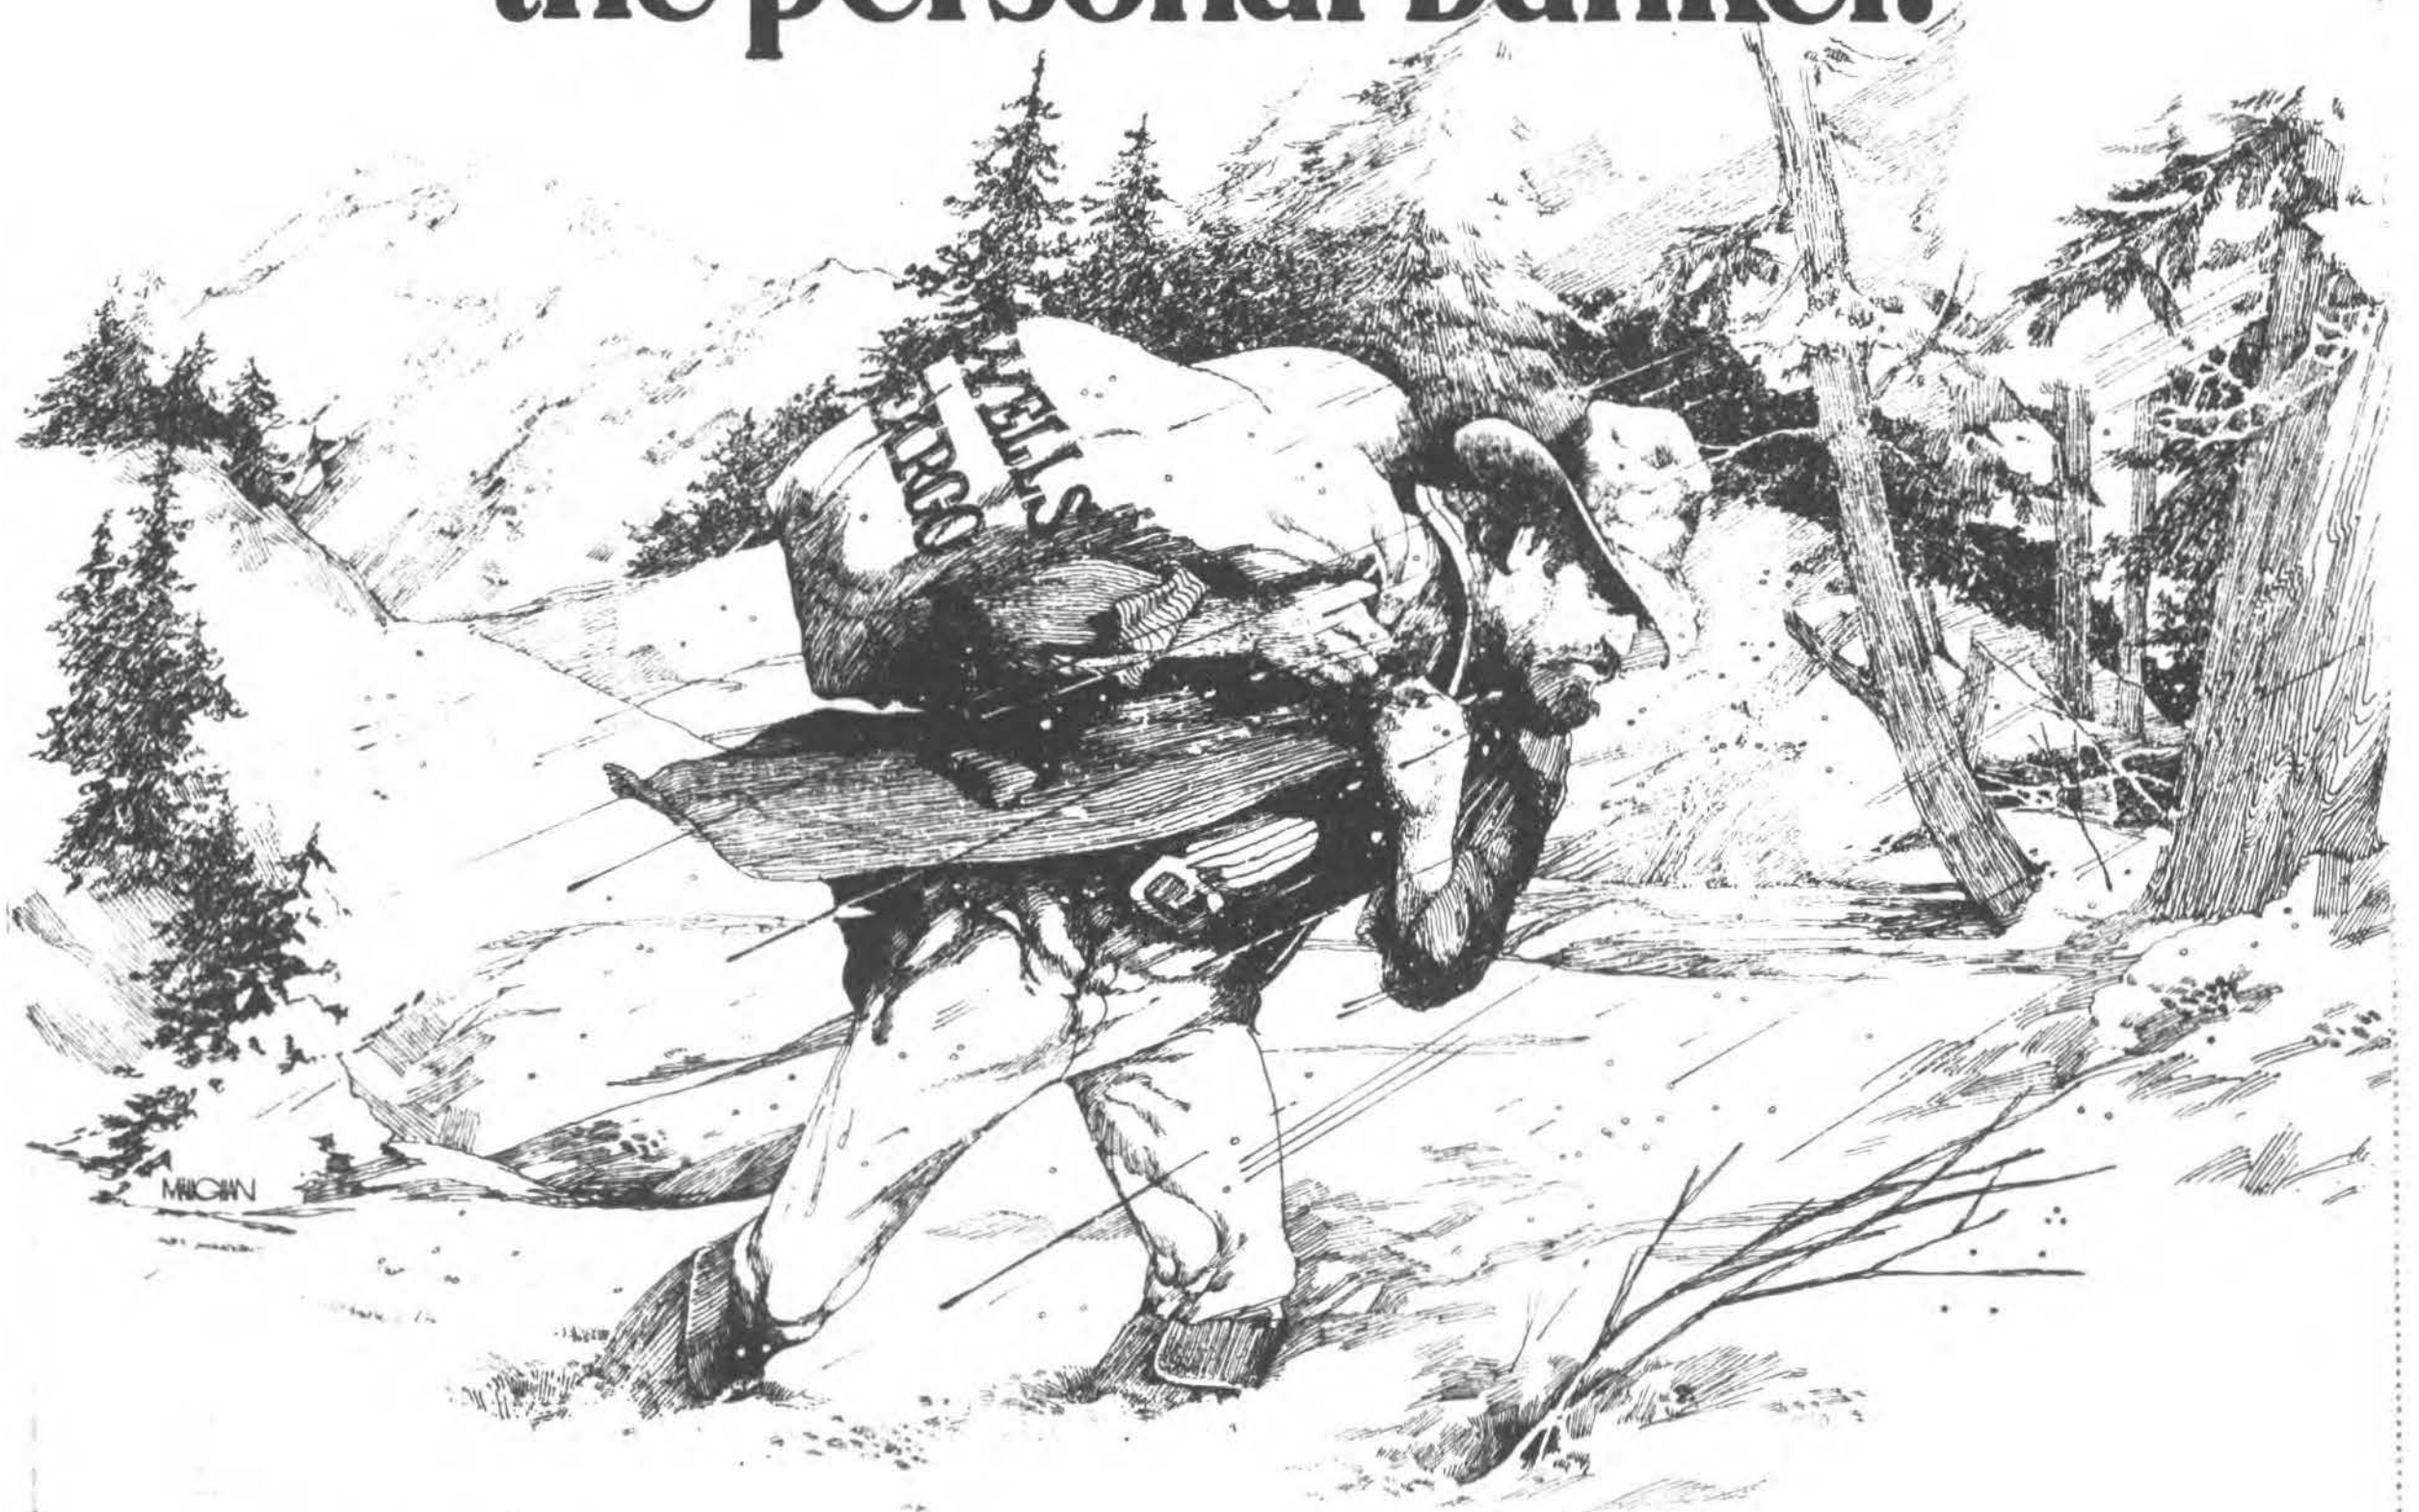

"She told me the money was from farm income," said Mrs. Jobe, vice president and legal officer of the Republic of Texas Corp. "I come from the same background. So, it was natural for me to believe it."

Saturday, following their friend's disappearance, the Jobses met with mutual friends. Everyone in the group had long before exchanged house keys, so when one went on vacation, others could take in the mail and such.

THEY DECIDED TO go to Kay's to look for some clue as to what made their friend leave.

"There were several deposit slips for $5,000 apiece from CCS," (See VANISHING, Page A12)

"Like all of us, she wanted it . . . Kay wanted to keep up. The clothes, the friends she selected . . . We all live in nice houses, have nice jobs . . . I think Kay had a hard time keeping up. I think she wanted us to like her for what she had, not who she was."

If the Jobses and the Terrys were fooled, they weren't alone.

Kay's neighbors say they were delighted when the bright, vivacious blonde moved in next door.

"THIS LOVELY charming young woman moved into our neighborhood, our lives and our hearts," said a neighbor. "She, well, she had class. Sometimes, she would walk with us in the evenings. But around the end of October, that stopped. I sort of got the feeling, don't call me. I'll call you. I never talked to her after that."

Her friends, and her boss, believe the house and its furnishings led to the alleged embezzlement. That, and the need to keep pace in circles where furs, diamonds, and expensive cars are required passports.

Kay Munch's Buick has been repossessed and sold. Her home, in the $100,000 range, is in the hands of a court. The company hopes to recoup some losses by selling the house and its furnishings.

NO ONE KNOWS where Kay, a onetime farm girl from Pratt, Kan., has gone.

"Wherever she is, she's riding first-class," said Mrs. Jobe.

Maggie Kuhn, Gray Panther founder, won hearts of young and old during rally at Golden West College.

Champion of the Elderly Panther Strikes Again

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Harry Truman would have liked Maggie Kuhn.

The Gray Panther founder speaks her mind in a fashion reminiscent of the "give 'em hell, Harry" tradition of the late president.

Ms. Kuhn, a fiery 71-year-old who travels the country championing both the young and old, delivered pot shots at mandatory retirement, "sexless agism" and old people who "sign off and cop out" of life during a noon rally at Golden West College.

She took time to get acquainted with her audience before launching into her tirade.

"I am 71 years old and I like to brag about my age," she said. "I feel very comfortable in it. I've seen many changes."

"Life is a continuum and that's the aging process. It doesn't begin at 60 or 55. It begins very early and we don't realize it," she asserted.

Ms. Kuhn asked how many people were in the 75-80 bracket, 80-85 and 16 or under. The oldest person in the audience was 85 and the youngest, aside from a child, 18.

THEN SHE gingerly moved to the "middle period" of life. "How shall I define it?" she asked.

Someone suggested that 50 would be a good age because it's halfway to 100.

Delighted at the mix of young and old, she said that young and old should be together, not with the old segregated in "ghettos of age" like the Sun Cities and Leisure Worlds.

She suggested that although society has become youth-oriented, young and old have much in common and that the young are as oppressed as the elderly.

Both ages share the questions "Who am I?" and "What are my goals," she asserted. "What shall I do with the rest of my life" is a troubling question for both groups.

One commodity of young and old is the drug scene, she said. "The big pharmaceuticals have made doctors their pushers. But they never go to jail."

"I've smoked an occasional joint. It's not too bad. I'm sure some of my peers have too."

Ms. Kuhn also is concerned about the problem both young and old have in "getting credit in a cashless society."

While youths need a parent to co-sign with them, the elderly need money in the bank to get a loan, she said. "Then you don't need one."

SHE SAID YOUNG people are experimenting with new life styles. Out of necessity the old are following suit. "We are taking a leaf from your notebook and doing the same," she said. "I would hope we dare to take the next step of living together."

Ms. Kuhn shares her large home in Philadelphia with three young people, three cats and one Norwegian elkhound. They buy their food at a co-op and divide the house and yard work.

"We do it together," she asserted. "There is an excitement of spirit."

Both young and old also are experimenting with new kinds of sexuality, she noted. "We ought to understand it and affirm it in a new way."

Both age groups also have the freedom to be risk-takers, to move in new directions and be radical, the petite revolutionary said.

And together they should be the "futurists," she suggested, combining the new knowledge of youth and the sense of history of the old.

There are five myths which keep youth and age from coming together, Ms. Kuhn said.

She drew a lot of laughs as she went through the list then blasted the myths to pieces.

First, age and aging is not a disease, she asserted. "Old age is NOT a disaster."

NEITHER IS old age mindless, Ms. Kuhn emphasized. "The number of older people who are going back to school has surprised everyone."

She asked her peer group to be missionaries in dispelling this myth. "Go visit some centers for older adults where most of the time is spent in Bingo and tasteless crafts."

She called the crafts, particularly those where plastic egg cartons are used, a "terrible trivialization of old age."

The next myth is that old age is "sexless." Older people believe they become "neutered" when they reach a certain point.

"But now we know that after menopause a woman has a new burst of energy. It should be enjoyed."

You should celebrate your sexuality," she said, hinting that she wouldn't turn down a date if someone asked.

The fourth myth is that old age is useless. Here, Ms. Kuhn's dander really was raised. She is working for legislation ending mandatory retirement at 65 and calls the "gold-watch" treatment "an enormous waste."

"Imagine a scrap pile of the skills of 25 million Americans."

Ms. Kuhn said mandatory retirement is simply "an excuse for damn poor personnel workers."

OLDER EMPLOYEES should be retrained if necessary or counseled into other jobs, she asserted. "Then there wouldn't be an excuse for putting the deadwood out to pasture."

As a special appeal to Orange County she challenged the audience to start putting together a "think tank" to utilize skills that have been declared obsolete.

"We may need some of what we have thrown away during the Hungry '80s."

The final myth is that old age is powerless. Ms. Kuhn scoffed at this. "There is power to change our whole society."

While young people share the oppression, old people are the only ones who can rock the boat without getting penalized, Ms. Kuhn said.

This is because there is nothing at stake for them. They won't lose their jobs, children or status by stepping out on the line.

It will be the older person's job to "demonstrate a different set of standards that move toward a more egalitarian society," Ms. Kuhn asserted. "There is now a fierce, competitive spirit that is tearing our society apart."

"THIS IS NOT a popular thing to say but I dare to say it."

Women's Rights Warrant Search

By MARCIA FORSBERG
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

In the past six or seven years, the courts have become increasingly involved with cases dealing with the rights of women.

During a program sponsored by the Golden West College Women's Center, Linda Jensen-Paterson elaborated on three significant court decisions. She is director of legal services for Coast Community College District.

No discussion of laws affecting women would be complete without a rehashing of the pros and cons of the Equal Rights Amendment, a well-known yet often difficult to understand topic.

The ERA, approved by Congress in 1972, will become the 27th amendment to the Constitution if it is ratified by 38 states by March, 1979.

SO FAR, 35 states have ratified.

It says, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Initial misconceptions are still prevalent, Ms. Jensen-Paterson indicated.

Does the ERA mean that private men's clubs will be required to admit women?

Will both sexes have to use the same restrooms?

Will companies be required to give mandatory pregnancy leave to men?

Will women be drafted?

IN SHORT, will the ERA help or hinder women?

Although she did not answer the questions directly, Ms. Jensen-Paterson stressed her belief that "the Constitutional amendment will be interpreted by the courts in a rational manner."

Pointing out arguments in support of the ERA, she said:

"The National Organization for Women feels that discrimination on the basis of sex is deeply entrenched in our country. NOW believes we need a national commitment."

"Waiting for the courts to strike down discrimination on a case by case basis is too uncertain and time-consuming."

"If we leave the decision up to the United States Supreme Court, we can't count on a favorable decision."

"The ERA guarantees uniformity among all the states, so the same equal treatment would be given no matter what state you live in."

"The symbolic value of the ERA says to the country that this issue of sexual equality is not trivial or humorous."

Ms. Jensen-Paterson drew legal arguments against the amendment from Paul Freund, a professor at the University of Chicago.

"HE BELIEVES we need to do this slowly, to deal with each act of discrimination as it occurs on a case by case basis, with specific laws to deal with specific acts of discrimination," she revealed.

His arguments include "unwarranted side effects."

"He cited the woman who has been married for 25 or 30 years whose husband wants to leave her without alimony payments," she said.

"He argues that she won't have a legal right to get alimony, yet I think the courts will be realistic in interpreting the amendment."

"I THINK they will still be concerned about providing for women," she added.

"He also believes the situation is already taken care of by the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment."

Ms. Jensen-Paterson noted that it was designed after the Civil War to deal with racial inequalities, "not sexual discrimination. The League of Women Voters says the 14th Amendment simply isn't adequate."

Her presentation also included an examination of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, passed in 1975.

"WOMEN HAVE been the most disadvantaged group economically in terms of getting and maintaining credit," she said.

In the past, credit was generally established on the basis of a score—credit institutions gave a certain number of points for length of employment, home ownership and so on.

Women were required to score higher in order to establish credit. "This is no longer valid," she noted.

With the ECOA, credit institutions are not allowed to ask questions of women that could not also be asked of men.

For example, "Questions like 'Are you on birth control pills?' and 'How will you provide child care?' are not permissible," she said.

Credit institutions now are required to "look at the credit record of both the husband and wife, rather than just that of the husband."

The ECOA stipulates that credit institutions examine the married personal records of separated or divorced women who often have never established credit records in their own name.

MS. JENSON-PATERSON termed the "monumental decision" in the Marvin vs Marvin case as a "step forward for men and women who chose to live together but remain unmarried."

Actor Lee Marvin and the woman he lived with for six years acquired property together, had children and essentially lived as husband and wife.

"When they broke up, she went to court for equal division of property and also for support payments. The court ruled in her favor," she said.

The court said, according to Ms. Jensen-Paterson, that "if you have a contractual relationship, and if consideration for the contract isn't for sexual services, then the agreement will be enforced" and each party will be entitled to half the property in case of a separation.

The contract can be an implied agreement, in which case the court "looks at the conduct of both parties."

"If they did things like call themselves husband and wife, had children, filed a joint income tax return and otherwise intended to have a relationship like a married relationship," then the court will recognize the implied agreement.

The Equal Rights Amendment, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act and the Marvin case are among many significant court decisions affecting women. The 1970s have seen the courts become increasingly involved with women's rights.

'Failure' in Eye of Beholder

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Empty Shell," the wife who is worried about her sex life because she had a hysterectomy. I'm glad you told her to quit asking her husband if everything is OK. Honestly, some women can be so dumb!

I had the same operation six years ago and the only real change is that I no longer worry about getting pregnant.

My car is almost 10 years old. Sometimes it doesn't start as quickly as it did when it was new. My husband is 45. He doesn't start as quickly as he did when I first got him, either. But he's still great.

When he does have a problem we relax and forget it. We never try to analyze his "failures." We just love each other, is all. — CONTENT

DEAR CONTENT: Your letter makes better sense than a pile of "How To" manuals. I hope all women who consider themselves "Empty Shells" because they had hysterectomies will take notice and shape up.

DEAR ANN: Your comments about taking the car keys away from a friend who is drunk really hit home. I had to take the car keys away from my father, not because he drank but because, at 78, he was a menace behind the wheel of a car. He was furious, but I knew what had to be done and I did it.

Last spring, Dad had an accident. I phoned the police and begged them to revoke his license. They said they couldn't, but that they would re-test him. Would you believe he passed the test? I was horrified. One look at his car — dented fenders, crooked headlights and bumpers — should have told them something.

I'll probably fight too, when the time comes, but having gone through it, I hope I'll be able to accept the decision gracefully. — L.G. INNEWARK

DEAR L.G.: It's hard to tell a driver who has passed his test that he is not competent to drive. It's difficult, too, to use age as a criterion. Some 82-year-olds drive better than many teenagers.

But if you are sure Gramps is endangering himself and others, I salute you for your gutsy stand. Perhaps your letter will give others a shot of courage.

DEAR ANN: My husband is in the plumbing and heating business. Recently a "friend" asked Oscar to install the heating and plumbing equipment in his new house.

Oscar put in many long hours and believe me, this is not easy work. When the job was finished, the "friend" shook Oscar's hand and said, "Thanks, pal. That was real nice of you."

I want Oscar to mail the jerk a bill for $500. That's what the job was worth. He says he can't do it. What is your advice? — BURNED UP WIFE

DEAR BURNED: Of course your husband should be paid for his work, but the time to have discussed that subject was BEFORE the work was done. Oscar can (and should) ask for compensation, but chances are he'll get a lot less now that the job has been completed. (You're calling the wrong guy "jerk.")

CONFIDENTIAL TO Torn and

Conflicted: Your values need overhauling. Too bad your "rich cousins" made such an impact on your early thinking. If you want to know what God thinks of money just look at some of the people he gave it to.

What's prudish? What's OK? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Be Ready

By SYDNEY OMARR

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be ready to demonstrate meanings, to illustrate beliefs. Accent on value, reevaluating, getting budget into some kind of order — change need not be equated with chaos.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight ability to understand family tradition, foibles — be mature, capable of making concessions without feeling weak. Element of surprise dominates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Perceive potential — don't wait for others to approve or disapprove of plans, actions. Be your own person. Accent on secrets, backstage glimpses, hospital visits, media appearances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Key is ability to organize, to be responsible for actions, to express love, to give of yourself without regret.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish rather than begin — raise sights to broader horizons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Highlight originality, independence; your personal magnetism soars.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Steer clear of pipe dreams — there is much you can afford, achieve, accomplish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Surprise element is featured. You might be making a personal appearance, a speech — popularity quotient is magnified.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some persons try to change you, sway you, cause you to feel less-than-efficient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Feelings, emotions tend to dominate. Ride with tide.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You settle family differences — harmony can be restored.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't take others too seriously. You tend now to attract those who spin "tall tales."

Service Is Her 'Line'

By DENNIS McLELLAN

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If your neighbor's house was on fire on the Orange Coast in 1942 you didn't just pick up the phone and dial the nearest engine company. You picked it up and waited for the operator in the small phone company building on Balboa Peninsula to answer.

"Number please," she would say, listening to the anxious request and immediately connecting you to the fire department, phone number 16.

"There was that personal touch of helping and you never knew when that light went on what it was going to be," says Eltha Swanson, one of a dozen of those early operators.

"People kind of knew you by your first or last name."

The Costa Mesa resident went to work for Pacific Telephone in 1942 "to help out during the war." In those days, she says, the military came first. "If a civilian got a telephone he had to agree to give it up if the military needed it."

IN FEBRUARY — more than 34 years after she started — service representative Swanson put in her last day on the job, which has spanned some dramatic changes in Orange Coast telephone service.

She's seen men enter the once female-dominated world of telephone operators and women go out in the field and climb poles.

And she's seen telephones change from the dialless "ugly, dull black" to the colored push button decorator-line models of today.

In the early '40s there weren't more than 2,600 phone lines operating in the Costa Mesa-Harbor Area. Today there are 39,000 residential lines alone.

Of course, many people in the '40s were on a four-party line. In the rural areas up to 10 people sometimes shared the same line.

"There wasn't that much population then," she recalls, "except in the summer months. Then we borrowed operators from Los Angeles and Riverside.

In the wintertime, of course, we didn't need them."

WHEN MRS. Swanson first went to work and, in fact, until 1957, coast phones were dialless. "We were one of the last ones to change over."

A lot of people were concerned about putting people out of work, but it didn't.

About a dozen operators, including Mrs. Swanson, transferred to the business office where they became service representatives.

The two most memorable experiences she had as an operator occurred during her first few years on the job. One was a storm, which caused a power failure for seven hours one night.

The other was when she received the call of a fire that destroyed a large Balboa restaurant. It melted one of the main cables, putting several hundred telephones out of order.

Eltha Swanson

Mrs. Swanson, who is having a retirement party March 4 at the Marriott Hotel, plans to take a trip to northern California in July when her husband, Gene, retires.

THEY ALSO PLAN to spend several months in Hawaii at the end of the year. But after nearly 35 years, she admits, it's going to be difficult to stop working.

"It's going to be a big adjustment," she says. "I'm just going to have to tell myself I'm going on vacation."

While she may miss being with her co-workers at the telephone company, she needn't be too concerned. After all, they're only a phone call away.

Slander Shared

By ERMA BOMBECK

At midnight on New Year's Eve, my friend and I put our left hand over the phonebook, raised our right hand and solemnly swore that from this day forward we would no longer gossip about our friends, so help us Rona Barrett.

We have not carried on a conversation longer than a minute and a half since.

The other day I couldn't stand it. "You know what's wrong with you?" I snapped. "You're a boring, shallow, uninteresting person."

"I hope you said that with love," she smiled wryly.

"I am sick of being good. Thanks to you I have lost all of my friends. How do you think I feel, sitting there around viciousness and not being able to join in? I feel like someone clipped my tongue."

"Look," she said, "we agreed if we couldn't say anything nice about anyone, we'd say nothing."

"Exactly. Do you know what it's like to sit around and talk about static electricity from your pantyhose for three months?"

"We didn't agree not to discuss anyone. We just said we'd have to present them in a good light. Now, let's try to carry on a conversation. Did you hear they gave a surprise birthday party for Kay last week?"

I thought for a moment. "Did she show up for it?"

"Yes, why?"

"I'm glad. The poor dear hasn't shown up for her last eight birthdays. But she is a good mother. We saw her in church last Sunday with her children."

My friend measured her words carefully. "For that she should be canonized. If the Good Lord had meant for Kay to take her children to church, He would have put a john at the end of every pew."

"True. I hear she's very happy about her pregnancy."

"Who wouldn't be? She's almost assured of a PTA presidency with her 27 years' experience."

"Yes, wonderful, wonderful Kay. She could find fun laundering dust balls."

"Speaking of dust, have you heard from wonderful Ethel lately? I do admire anyone who can sort the priorities in her life and put them in perspective. Is she still playing the ponies?"

"I think so. You know we've been talking for 10 minutes or so and not once have we been vicious. You see how easy it is not to talk about our friends?"

"Yeah, but next year it's going to be harder. We're going to include the word, 'whisper'."

Ms. Kuhn, seemingly full of energy, admitted that she hadn't been tired that morning. Her schedule has taken her in a matter of days to college campuses throughout Orange County, to San Diego and to the Johnny Carson Show.

But she was revitalized after an hour of speaking about the cause.

"There are three things I like about getting old," she told the audience. "Being able to speak my mind and that I have outlived much of my opposition."

"And, when one is building a new community with others, you have access to a boundless source of energy."

"I hope some of my excitement influences you."

The audience clapped and Ms. Kuhn, energized and excited, clapped too.

LOS ANGELES — Usually mild-mannered UCLA baseball coach Gary Adams went into a rage over a balk call and was tossed out of the second game as his Bruins and UC Irvine split a doubleheader here Monday.

UCLA tallied a run in the ninth inning to win the opener, 3-2, while the Anteaters scored five times in the fifth inning of the nightcap to pull out a 6-3 victory.

It was in that fifth inning that Adams, the former UC Irvine coach, got the heave-ho.

The dispute centered around a balk by the UCLA pitcher that allowed Irvine's Kenny Washington to score. Adding to the confusion was a disagreement between the two umpires. The plate ump said it was a balk, the base ump said it wasn't.

The angry Adams argued long with the plate official, then was given the thumb.

In the five-run inning the Anteaters put together a double by freshman Eric Payton, a single by Brian Hester, a walk, Scott Thayer's two-run double, he balk and two errors.

Freshmen pitcher Bob Frisette got the victory for UCI. He tossed the first six innings, allowing just three hits. Russ Johnson pitched the last frame for the Anteaters.

Former Costa Mesa High standout Dennis Delany had a run-scoring triple in the nightcap for UCLA.

Trips Are Disasters For Cornell Teams

LENOXVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Trips this season have been near fiascos for Cornell University's women's basketball and swimming teams. Sunday's almost turned into tragedy.

"It's like we're jinxed on our trips," said basketball coach Donna Turnbaugh following a bus crash in northeastern Pennsylvania that hospitalized 10 of her players, two in serious condition.

The teams were returning from an Ivy League match at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia when the bus went out of control on ice-covered Interstate 81 north of Scranton.

The bus crashed about 30 feet through a guardrail and overturned, injuring 15 of the 31 people on board. Ten remained hospitalized Monday afternoon.

"I was in the front seat and saw it all," said Turnbaugh, 24. "I had no concept of how fast we were going. We were coming down a curve and then I heard the bus driver saying 'Hold on, here we go.'"

"I looked out the window and saw nothing but trees and then I blacked out, but just for a moment."

Turnbaugh's injuries did not require hospitalization and she spent the night calling parents of the team members.

Sunday was the third time out of Ithaca, N.Y., for the teams. On the first trip in January, the teams were snowed in for six days at Watertown, N.Y.

"The second trip wasn't so bad. That was just a speeding ticket. But it was something," said Turnbaugh.

"And now this. We're really beginning to think we're jinxed."

Two of the injured were treated and released from Binghamton General Hospital in Binghamton, N.Y. The others were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Carbondale, Pa.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's said two of the women — Eva Patterson, 21, of Wilkesburg, Pa., and Pam Stefoniak, 21, of Ava, N.Y. — were in serious condition in the intensive care unit.

Growing Boy is 6-11 at Age 15

NOVATO (AP) — At 15, Rogue Harris already knows what he wants to be when he grows up. And at 6-11, his goal of playing professional basketball seems well within his reach.

"I don't know how much more I'll grow," the towering youngster says. "But I had an uncle on my grandfather's side who was 7-foot-11. He was so tall he wouldn't go to school because the kids kidded him so much."

Harris, whose father is 6-5, currently plays basketball for the Novato High School junior varsity in this San Francisco suburb. And although he hasn't been setting the league ablaze, his coach isn't worried.

"Rogue, naturally, isn't as coordinated on the court as he's going to become," said coach Ed Anello. "But he's already shown a lot of improvement and once he stops growing, his coordination will catch up."

"Doctors say I might grow a couple of more inches," Harris said. "If I do or I don't, it doesn't make much difference to me."

Harris already has the height to make most pro scouts drool. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, center for the Los Angeles Lakers and one of the best professional players on the current scene, stands 7-2, as does center Tom Burleson of the Seattle SuperSonics.

The 220-pound teen-ager has physical problems associated with his rapid growth. Doctors considered operating because he "was pigeon-toed, but a weight

Death of Roth Brings Reaction

BERKELEY (AP) — News of the death of University of California quarterback Joe Roth was met with stunned silence on campus after the 21-year-old lost a three-year battle against cancer.

Many students heard the news at a Cal basketball game Saturday night, a few hours after Roth died in his Berkeley apartment surrounded by his parents, coaches, friends and teammates.

Since then, the silence has turned to expressions of admiration for the quiet battle that Roth kept mostly to himself after discovering he suffered from a rare form of cancer called melanoma. Off the football field, Roth was active at the Roman Catholic Newman Hall on campus.

"People have been reacting with a great deal of admiration for Joe Roth," said the Rev. Michael Hunt. "His illness only became public in January and many of the students, not then aware of the extent of the cancer, have spoken of his extreme heroism."

"He left many friends," Father Hunt said. "He was here only a relatively short period of time."

Roth, 6-4 with curly blonde hair, left his mark on coaches and teammates as well.

Linebacker Pete Sitta said, "We loved him. It's too tragic for words."

Roth was released from the school's Medical Center in San Francisco last Thursday at his own request.

From then until the end, he never was alone as family and teammates took turns sitting at his bedside.

"It was just a terrible way it happened, a slow death, eating away at him," said teammate and former roommate Bob Warner. "He was the kind of guy who didn't want people feeling sorry for him."

Skip Stress of the football coaching staff said Roth "cherished his privacy."

"As a college quarterback, he didn't have a lot of spare time. There was football; Sunday: were reserved for mass, and he liked intramural water polo," Stress said.

When Roth's illness was made public last month, he said "Really, just figure I'm a normal guy."

Father Hunt said, "I think Joe always faced up to it."

Roth will be buried in Jerome, Idaho, where his parents live.

Roth, a top prospect on the list of professional football scouts first learned of the cancer in 1974 at a junior college near his native San Diego.

Surgery then was successful and he helped Cal tie for the Pacific-8 championship in 1975. The cancer apparently began plaguing him again this season and he was forced to drop out of the post-season East-West Shrine game. He returned to play in the Hula Bowl and last played in the Jan. 15 Japan Bowl at Tokyo.

He continued to attend college classes until two weeks ago.

Sports in Brief

Laver Rips Rahim; Hunt Crashes Car

PALM SPRINGS — Semi-retired Rod Laver, the Corona del Mar rocket, is back on center court after beating Pakistan's Haroon Rahim in the first round of a $250,000 tennis tournament.

Laver, once the world's best player but a 6-0, 6-1 loser last week to Jimmy Connors, now rated No. 1, said he felt Monday night's 6-3, 6-2 victory over Rahim was a major step toward becoming "more competitive."

The big upset of the night was provided by Mike Machette, former USC player. He posted a 3-6, 6-4, 6-0 victory over Victor Pecci of Paraguay. Machette replaced Bjorn Borg after the Swede was sidelined with a stomach injury.

In another match, Harold Solomon defeated Andrew Pattison, 6-1, 6-0.

Hunt OK

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — World racing champion James Hunt of Britain walked away unharmed from a 100-mile-an-hour crash at Kyalami near here today, but his new prototype McLaren M26 was badly damaged.

Cause of the crash was a blown tire. A bolt securing a section of the brakes had worked loose and cut through the wheel rim causing the tire to deflate.

"I was doing around 100 as I braked and changed gears for the corner," said Hunt. "I felt the car was not going to turn into the corner. It felt as if I had a puncture."

Walton Returns

PORTLAND, Ore. — Center Bill Walton probably will return to action tonight after an absence of nearly a month because of an inflamed Achilles tendon, a spokesman for the Portland Trail Blazers said.

Walton's return for the National Basketball Association's stretch run is none too soon for the Blazers. During his absence, they were 3-7 and dropped out of the Pacific Division lead. They trail the Los Angeles Lakers by two games going into tonight's game against Boston.

Death Furor

ROME — The death of Luciano Vendemini, towering center of the Italian national basketball team, triggered a widespread controversy today following a report that he had been declared unfit to play in the Montreal Olympics because of a heart condition.

The 7-foot Vendemini, 25, died of a heart attack Sunday while he sat on the bench of his team, Chinamartini of Turin, waiting for the start of a game in the town of Forli.

Swim Record

SALINAS — Cynthia Woodhead, a seventh grade student from Riverside, has broken the U.S. swim record for the 1,650 yard freestyle event.

Woodhead, who turned 13 last month, broke the record (16:27.11) set by Olympic gold medalist Shirley Babashoff with a time of 16 minutes, 25.18 seconds at the Northern California Invitational swim meet here Monday.

Hrebec Wins

SAN JOSE — Foreign players dominated the $50,000 San Jose Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia rallied for a 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 upset over eighth-seeded Sandy Mayer 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 for the men's singles title Monday night.

And South Africans Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan beat Geoff Masters and Tom Gorman, 6-2, 6-3, in the doubles final.

Coach of the Year

Orgill Top Player Estancia's Carlisle Honored

Ray Orgill, the 5-11 catalyst who led the Estancia High Eagles to the 1977 league basketball championship with a three-game spread, is the player of the year in the Century League.

Also earning first team honors on the official All-Century League as selected by the Daily Pilot, is forward Pete Neumann.

Coach of the year honors go to Dave Carlisle, in his final season at the helm of the Costa Mesa-based Eagles. Entering the CIF 4-A playoffs, the Eagles are 20-5 overall.

Orgill, an All-Century League

choice as a sophomore who was knocked out of action in his junior year due to a back injury, led the Eagles with his playmaking, assists, scoring and ability to break the press.

He averaged 13.7 points per game and scored in the 20s five times in league.

Neumann, double teamed a great deal of the time up front, still scored in double figures eight times in league. But more important was his rebounding in a circuit which featured outstanding front line talent across the line.

Corona del Mar High's Sea Kings, South Coast League champions after disposing of San Clemente Friday night in impressive fashion, moved to No. 2 in the final CIF 3-A basketball poll for 1977.

The Sea Kings, in advancing to second, knocked Santa Clemente into the No. 4 position. La Habra, with a 22-3 record, captured all but three first place votes in taking the No. 1 spot in 3-A rankings.

Fountain Valley High's Barons, with their 24-1 record the best of any CIF 4-A unit, finish third in the rankings behind Pasadena and Verbum Dei as the first round of the 32-team playoffs unfolds Thursday and Friday.

Except for Verbum Dei's 19-2 record, no other team came within a game of Fountain Valley in the loss column.

Also picking up votes in the final 4-A poll is Costa Mesa's Estancia, which ended the regular season with its best ever season at 20-5 and Century League championship.

In small schools division,

Newport Beach's Huntington Valley Christian, with a 16-4 mark, is fifth and its opponent Friday night in the first round of the playoffs, American Christian, is ninth.

SoCal Closes Out Regular Hoop Play

Coach Paul Peak's Southern California College Vanguards basketball team will close out the regular season tonight at home against Pt. Loma College of San Diego.

The NAIA District III Southern Division game will get under way at 8 o'clock.

SoCal lost to Pt. Loma earlier in the season, 80-75. In Southern Division conference play, the Vanguards are 5-4 and will be seeking to conclude with a winning effort. For the season, after forfeiting five early games, the Vanguards are 10-16.

Sophomore center Randy Adams has had the hot shooting hand recently as SoCal has won five of its last six outings.

Hot Corner

Mr. White: This is a short thank you letter for allowing the press coverage of local women's and girl's volleyball. Through the support of Howard Handy and your paper, the Orange County Volleyball Club has grown from one team with 10 players to six teams. Four of these teams have gained national titles.

Your coverage is what excites our younger players to join these types of healthy, competitive activities, because they recognize the names of people just like themselves. "If they can do it, so can I!" attitude.

TORRANCE—Bishop Montgomery High of Torrance provides the opposition in first round CIF 4-A basketball action at Fountain Valley Thursday night and the Knights enter with some similar statistics.

Coach Rick Sabosky has four players averaging in double figures, the front line is 6-5, 6-4, 6-4 and guard Pat Rumsey is a returning All-Camino Real League standout.

Losing only to Verbum Dei of Los Angeles and Gardena's Serra in league play, the Knights have compiled a 19-7 overall record.

One of those losses was in a tournament championship game where La Habra pounded Bishop Montgomery, 69-37.

"That was a combination of overconfidence and the pressure of being in a tourney finals for the first time in 10 years," says Sabosky. "We got down right away and just couldn't get things together."

Among the Knights starting lineup is 6-4 forward Darrell Harris, a two-time all-league ace with a 14.5 scoring average. Rumsey is averaging 13.5 points per game, while 6-5 senior George Morris (12.0) and 6-4 sophomore forward Mark Sewald is at 10.1.

Kevin Lloyd, a 6-0 senior guard is in the 8.5 points per game range, while first off the bench figures to be Dan Bowman.

Bowman, a 6-2 forward who started for the Knights, missed 10 league games with an injury, but he saw limited action last week and is expected to be ready to play at Fountain Valley.

When he does play, it'll be in Sewald's place, giving Bishop Montgomery an all-senior look.

"I haven't seen Fountain Valley, but I've heard a lot about the guard, George Barrios. Fountain Valley sounds a lot like La Habra, with a lot of good shooters inside or outside and trapping out of a zone," says Sabosky.

Sabosky, in his third year at the Knights helm, says his team will take the fast break when it's there, but otherwise his crew generally is patient, looking for the percentage shot.

21-3 Record

CM Freshmen Claim Crown

By LAURENE KEYS

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Coach Jose Dominic's Costa Mesa freshman basketball team is small, scrappy and long winded, and it gets the job done.

Winners of the South Coast league title with a 14-0 loop mark, the Mustangs finished the season with a 21-3 overall record. Their biggest loss was to Santa Ana's Foothill in the second game of the year by a five-point margin.

According to Dominic, this is a team that came ready to play and needed little motivating. It's also a team, he says, that shot about 70 percent from the floor, which may account for a lot of its self-confidence.

Costa Mesa's leading shooter was 5-9 guard Steve Lux who averaged about 15 points per game. Not far behind is Dan Bauer, a 5-7 guard, who hit 13 per game.

The Mustangs used the press and a tough man defense to break down the opposition and then employed the fast break and running game to wear them out.

Dominic says Costa Mesa played a lot of the teams even at the half, but then the enduring Mustangs get the edge.

An example of this was the last game of the season against a good Dana Hills team. At halftime the score was tied at 38. Then the Mustangs poured on the steam to win 71-56.

If shooting was the Mustangs' bread and butter, there's no way they could exist without a good defense, especially in view of the height they give away.

"We tried to take away what the other team did best," says Dominic. "We used an aggressive man-to-man, but we changed depending on the flow of the game."

"The kids were able to change quickly on command and I didn't have to pull my hair. Defensively this team was able to do things as well as a varsity team, they were just not as physical."

The Mustangs use the press and a tough man defense to break down the opposition and then employ the fast break and running game to wear them out.

A big factor in the Mustangs defense was 5-10 center Bill Lux.

"He gets the most difficult person on the other team assigned to him for defense, no matter what his height is," says Dominic. "Bill is the best jumper in the league and was our most consistent rebounder."

Helping out on the boards is forward Mike Sprague who is the tallest on the team at 6-0. Sprague averaged about 12 points per game.

Also helping on what Dominic calls the best team he's coached is 5-9 forward Brad Thompson and Tim Giddings (5-6).

"Something happens when Tim comes in, he's got to be the best sixth man in our league," says Dominic.

"Almost everyone on the team played in every game," adds Dominic. "And kids like Terry Bedell, Owen Watomura and Jon Richardson can come off the bench and fit right in."

According to Dominic, his freshmen have worked hard to polish their skills and eliminate the technical mistakes.

"And if any of them ever grow," he says, "They will be tough to reckon with."

Mangers to Introduce Bolsa Bill

Over 900 Acres Sought

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) announced today that he will introduce legislation Wednesday to purchase 923.7 acres of the Bolsa Chica wetlands with money from state tideland oil royalties surplus.

The acreage covers almost the entire lowland areas.

The original proposal called for acquisition of 800 acres but the area was expanded at the suggestion of the State Lands Commission, an aide to Mangers said.

Mangers' bill proposes the State Lands Commission buy the land and turn it over to the State Department of Fish and Game for development of a wildlife habitat, tideland restoration and preservation of scenic open space.

The bill specifically prohibits dredging of navigable channels to support shipping or recreational boating and landfill projects for the development of residential, commercial or industrial sites.

While the cost amount will not yet appear in the bill, the purchase price is expected to range from $2.5 million to $4 million.

The State Lands Commission is preparing an appraisal and will announce its findings on April 1. Attorneys from Signal Landmark are doing their own appraisal as a preliminary to negotiations.

Mangers stressed that the producing oil wells on the land would continue to operate and that tax money derived from the oil of the Bolsa Chica will continue to accrue in the fund from which the wetlands are to be purchased.

Mangers emphasized the urgency of legislation since only approximately 8,500 acres of marsh and mud flats remain in Southern California.

Introduction of this legislation caps nearly three months of discussion both in the district and in Sacramento.

Mangers said he has secured the support of Rep. Mark Hananford (D-Lake Forest), Supervisor Laurence Schmit, members of the Huntington Beach City Council, the coastal commission, U.S. Fish and Wildlife, the League of Women Voters, school districts and many other citizens groups.

Mangers said he will continue to work with Supervisor Schmit who has a plan to link the Bolsa Chica and Pacific Ocean with Huntington Central Park via Orange County parklands and a trail system.

Forecasters Say Rainfall 'On the Way'

Weather prognosticators see rainfall in their Orange Coast crystal ball, but it's not expected until late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Los Angeles Weather Service meteorologist Walt Rogers said a storm that was forecast to bring 30 percent chance of showers, went through Southern California in a hurry this morning, bringing winds and sunshine instead. (Related stories Pages A5, 8, 12.)

"The trailing end of that front was just too weak to bring in rain," he said, adding that the rainfall on much of the state stopped in the San Bernardino area.

Rogers said a high pressure system, that had been hovering off the northern coast causing summer weather has moved south and is now off Baja California, allowing storms to track into northern California.

He said the north part of the state is cloudy and more rain is expected tonight.

"There's a pretty good chance we'll get rain down here late Wednesday or Thursday morning," he said.

PLEASANT VIEW SCHOOL STUDENTS PUT THEIR HEADS TO TASK OF WATER SAVING

Save on Water Pleasant View Students Offer Pointers

Students in the Pleasant View School's mentally gifted minor program in Huntington Beach have come up with a few pointers on how to save water in the current drought.

Sixth grader Peter Gennaro seems to take a hard-line attitude against the governor for the problem.

"If the governor of California doesn't have the brains to desalt ocean water or get water from the rivers nearby, the people up north deserve to have a water shortage," he wrote.

Peter had some ideas on how youngsters and their parents can save water.

"Don't take showers so long and cut down the water in the bath," he said.

"Eat foods where you don't need water such as hamburger, waffles, pancakes and other things and put something in a john to reduce the amount of water when flushing," he said.

Another sixth grader, John Snyder, says, "The idea I have to solve the water crisis is to ship ice from the East and bring it over here and melt it."

"It would also solve the East's flood problem."

"Then I would save water by only flushing when you really need to."

"Also, turn the shower off between rinses and washes."

Fourth grader John Blair said, "I think they should use snow and melt it. And they should store it up. They should only use the amount they need."

Darin Martinez, a first grader, thinks the problem will be solved by letting nature take its course.

"Snow will come down into the lakes and the sun can melt it," he says.

"Instead of drinking water, drink juice and milk. Don't put so much water on your grass," he added.

Kindergartner Shila Parks was at a loss on ways to save water but she did recall a water crisis in her home.

She said her baby brother Stevie, who is also known as "Buckaroo," stuffed Kleenex in the sink and clogged it up.

"Mom got it fixed by using Drano or something like that," she said.

Deliberate Inflation

Coffee Growers' Holdup

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department cables released today say that Brazilian coffee growers have held back supplies to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond (D-N.Y.), released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in two years.

A cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20 said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23 cable from the U.S. consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

State Department officials in Washington have denied allegations that the Brazilian government has done anything to drive the price of coffee to artificially high levels.

Brazil is the leading coffee-producing nation, with about half the world's production.

Richmond said Brazil's "chief weapon in this price war against

CIA Image

Lift Promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's candidate for director of the CIA said today he hopes to rebuild the reputation of the U.S. intelligence community and will make the lawful conduct of intelligence activities a top priority.

Adm. Stansfield Turner, a Naval Academy classmate of Carter and now chief of NATO forces in southern Europe, also told the Senate Intelligence Committee that while some secrecy is necessary, the CIA must avoid overclassifying data and should "selectively publish" that which would be of public value.

The 53-year-old career Navy officer was the lead-off witness as the Senate panel opened a hearing on his confirmation as chief of the intelligence agency.

American consumers" has been steep increases in its coffee export taxes.

He said the cables also reveal that at least twice within the last year Brazil has entered the international coffee market to try to purchase large quantities of coffee from Angola and El Salvador in an apparent attempt to prop up world prices.

A State Department witness planned to repeat the department's position.

In testimony prepared for delivery later in the hearing, Asst. Secretary of State Julius L. Katz said:

"To the best of our knowledge, no coffee producing country is pursuing policies which restrict or inhibit the export of coffee to world markets."

He said there is no present shortage of coffee, but the 1975 frost in Brazil has diminished stockpiles. The lower stockpiles in turn have led to higher prices, he said.

The subcommittees will hear from representatives of consumer groups and government agencies as well as coffee producers, importers and retailers.

Girl Injured In Huntington Cycle Crash

A 14-year-old Huntington Beach girl was seriously injured Monday afternoon when she lost control of her Moped motorized bicycle, dumping a passenger and slamming head first into a parked car.

Bonnie Jo McCarty, of 19592 Canberra Lane, was listed in fair condition today at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, where she is under treatment for head injuries.

Police said her passenger, Anthony A. Piccolo, also 14, of 10075 Los Coyotes Court, Fountain Valley, suffered less-serious head injuries when he fell off the Moped just before impact.

He did not require hospital treatment following the accident. Police said Miss McCarty made a turn from Lutrine Drive onto Canberra Lane just before smashing into the parked car.

BUDGET VIEWS — President Carter reaches for pen to sign his budget message from behind "The Buck Stops Here" motto made famous by President Harry S. Truman. Economic chief Charles L. Schultze (left) gets eyebrow out of shape over budget while Defense Secretary Harold Brown ponders a $2.8 billion budget cut.

Ford Budget Hiked By $19.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed and sent to Congress today his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will (1) help the needy, (2) restore economic growth and (3) make a start on his own programs.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three days before leaving office.

He said it "is essentially still President Ford's budget."

At a brief Oval Office signing ceremony, Carter signed two copies of the 101-page budget amendment — one each for the Senate and House.

Leaning over his shoulder to his budget director, Bert Lance, Carter quipped, "If you keep a 1979 budget down this small, I'd appreciate it."

The President then added that he looks forward to implementing a "quite radical" budget-making process as he begins preparing his own spending plans for the 1979 fiscal year that will go to Congress next January. He emphasized that it would entail the zero-based budgeting concept he used as governor of Georgia, meaning that every program will be examined from scratch just as if it had not previously existed.

Carter proposed increasing 1978 spending to $459.4 billion, compared with the $440 billion Ford recommended. After subtracting revenues of $401.6 billion, there would be a deficit of $57.7 billion. Ford recommended a deficit of $47 billion.

Spending during the current 1977 fiscal year is estimated at $417.4 billion with a record deficit of $68 billion.

Congress has already begun work on Carter's proposals and Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, the House Democratic leader, said (See BUDGET, Page A2) after a meeting with Carter this morning that the President did not seem upset with the extra $1.7 billion that the House Ways and Means Committee has added to his economic package.

Burglars Get $10,000 Loot In HB Homes

Burglars have raided two homes in the Huntington Harbour area of Huntington Beach for a total loss of $10,000.

The hardest hit in the latest of a series of burglaries within the wealthy waterfront marina community was Mrs. Linda Murphy, who reported a $6,000 loss Monday.

The Murphys, of 4352 Pickwick Lane, lost three diamond rings, a diamond necklace and a costly wristwatch, according to investigators.

Police said Mrs. Murphy discovered the jewelry missing Monday and pinpointed the probable burglary date as about six days ago, although no point of entry could be determined.

Officers said the Jack Woodings, of 17140 Edgewater Lane, lost about $4,000 in valuables to burglars who literally tore their waterfront residence apart hunting loot.

The loss includes a dozen assorted firearms, four expensive cameras and miscellaneous items, police said.

An apparent team of cat burglars going from waterfront dock to waterfront dock in a stolen boat two weeks ago crept into five Huntington Harbour homes, stealing nearly $10,000 in valuables.

Thermostats at all Fountain Valley (elementary) School District facilities except Placentia School have been turned down to 65 degrees during the day and 55 at night, officials said.

Placentia School, a facility for handicapped students, has its thermostats set 70 for heating and 75 for cooling, district officials said.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union accused the Voice of America today of slander and psychological warfare, possibly laying the groundwork for renewed jamming of the American broadcasts first permitted into the Soviet Union three years ago.

Man Hurt In Bizarre HB Crash

A Los Angeles man whose car was knocked over a highway center divider in Huntington Beach Monday afternoon was hospitalized in critical condition today.

Marion S. Coffey, 44, suffered 10 fractured ribs, a punctured and collapsed lung and multiple cuts and bruises, police said following the 2:25 p.m. crash.

His passenger, Marilyn Denson, 24, also of Los Angeles, sustained cuts and bruises, while the second motorist involved, William R. Rudolph, 22, of 502 S. Cooper St., Santa Ana, suffered facial injuries including cuts and bruises.

All were taken to Pacifica Hospital, where Coffey is in the intensive care unit. The other two victims were treated and released.

Police Officer Dennis R. Smith said Coffey was attempting to make a left turn on Beach Boulevard at Memphis Avenue when the crash occurred.

The impact of the crash sent Coffey's car over the Beach Boulevard center divider into oncoming lanes.

The collision demolished both vehicles.

Marine Found Shot to Death

OCEANSIDE (AP) — Sheriff's deputies say they have no leads in the murder of a Camp Pendleton Marine whose body was found Monday alongside a road in Fallbrook.

Deputies said David Allen Rogers, 25, apparently was shot in the head. The body also had numerous bruises on it, and had apparently been at the spot for at least 12 hours.

Officers said Los Angeles residents visiting in the area found the body. No identification was found at the time, but investigators were able to trace a ring to Rogers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A San Pedro man, Avadesh Kumar Agarwal, escaped with a broken leg and contusions after his car crashed through a guardrail and plummeted 20 feet onto the busy Harbor Freeway in downtown Los Angeles Monday.

MEAL WON'T HAVE WATER

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will speak on water conservation at a luncheon Friday. Don't expect a glass of water with the meal, though.

"No drinking water will be served," said City Club president George Mitrovich.

Liquor Thieves Hunted

Huntington Beach police are searching for operators of a major liquor theft ring specializing in costly Scotch whiskey which the thieves re-sell to finance drug habits.

Detective Richard Hooper said the same trio of suspects has struck repeatedly in recent weeks, varying their method of operation only slightly, with surprising success.

"They enter a food market during early afternoon or early evening hours, walk directly to the liquor department and remove half-gallons and quarts of expensive Scotch," he explained.

"Usually two suspects enter the business, one male and the other female."

Detective Hooper said they select costly brands and quickly place them in the woman's large handbag, then nonchalantly walk out of the store.

Generally, they steal only enough liquor to constitute a misdemeanor petty theft case, should they be caught, but a $320 loss was recorded recently when they hit Ralphs Market at Golden West Street and Warner Avenue.

The shoplift team apparently specializes in Ralphs, Thriftmart and Von's market outlets, Detective Hooper said.

Suspects involved in the current wave of liquor thefts have reportedly escaped in a variety of different vehicles, indicating they have access to many cars, some with out-of-state license plates.

Three known to be in use are a 1968 Dodge, black over brown in color, with 802 PPM on its license plate. A second is a 1969 Chevrolet Camaro, blue with ZQ230 on its plate. The third is a 1967 Pontiac, dirty green, with WIA173 on its plates.

Detective Hooper said in one recent case, the brazen booze burglars sent only one man into a market's liquor department.

He went to a checkstand, took three large bags and filled them with half-gallon jugs of J & B, Johnny Walker Red Label and Cutty Sark Scotch whiskey and wheeled them out in a shopping cart.

By the time clerks realized what was happening, he had loaded the goods into a car and the team was speeding away.

Anyone spotting the suspects involved should immediately telephone police and keep the liquor thieves under observation until officers arrive, or for as long as possible, Hooper said.

Investigators say under no circumstances should market personnel attempt to detain them.

SUNSET BEACH WATER TOWER A HISTORICAL SITE
$85,000 Sought for County Acquisition, Repair

Coast Water Tower Ruled 'Historical'

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County supervisors declared the 36-year-old water tower in Sunset Beach to be of historical significance today and agreed to spend $85,000 to preserve it.

The money needed to buy the tower site from Huntington Beach and to restore the somewhat dilapidated wood tower won't come from county coffers, however.

Supervisors agreed they should apply for a $42,500 federal National Historic Act grant to offset half the anticipated cost of acquisition and repair.

The other $42,500 needed to preserve the aging water tower will come from state grants, supervisors agreed.

While the five county supervisors approved the grant applications without comment, grant coordinator George Johnson said something in a memo directed to the supervisors.

"I question this project," Johnson said.

"If there were no water tower (in Sunset Beach) and one were needed, I am sure the adjacent homeowners would object to such a structure," he continued.

"From the pictures, it doesn't appear to be an asset to the neighborhood but a liability as an attractive structure for kids to climb."

"If an injury occurred in such an event would the county be liable?" Johnson asked.

The grant coordinator wasn't the first person to question the Sunset Beach water tower project.

Last summer, a county Environmental Management Agency (EMA) challenged the tower's structural soundness and its pending designation as having historical significance.

EMA officials suggested that Sunset Beach residents interested in preserving the aging structure form a local assessment district to pay for acquisition and rehabilitation.

But the county Historical Commission countered the challenge by declaring the tower has countywide historical significance.

The commission pointed out that the existing wooden structure replaced a tower that stood on the site since the turn of the century.

That tower, the commission said, served as a navigation aid to ships skirting up and down the coast.

The commission also said the water tower's design and wood structure are unique to a bygone age.

And, the commission noted, the tower is an identification symbol for the Sunset Beach community and wayfarers traveling along Coast Highway.

Prisoner Deaths Possible

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said today it is possible there will be executions in California while he is governor despite his personal objection to capital punishment.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" show, the Democratic governor said he will enforce the death penalty with compassion if capital punishment is reinstated in California over his veto.

"I'll carry out the law. I will give no blanket pardons," he said in the interview recorded in his Capitol office.

On another subject, Brown responded with a light comment when interviewer Tom Brokaw also asked Brown if he could imagine running again for the Democratic nomination for president.

"I can imagine almost anything," Brown said. "I like to think I can consider a number of ideas, and keep my mind open. I can consider not running. I often have said I would like to go back to the monastery and try to meditate on all that has occurred," the 38-year-old former Jesuit seminary student said.

Brown, who has vowed to veto any death penalty bill sent to him by the Legislature, was asked what he would do if that veto is overridden and he faced the choice of allowing executions or issuing pardons.

"I will make a judgment in each case viewing the totality of circumstances, trying to be as compassionate as I can, but also mindful of the fact that whatever the law is, my oath of office is to carry it out."

Brown said there is a possibility of executions during his administration, but limited the possibility by saying he would want to see any new law enacted in California tested first in the courts.

There could be executions, "if that's what the law is, as determined by the people and upheld by the courts."

"I'll carry it out. That's what a governor has to do," he said.

Father, Two Children Die In Air Crash

BIG BEAR LAKE (AP) — A Manhattan Beach pilot, two of his children and a family friend were killed when a light plane plowed into a sheer precipice 2,000 feet above this mountain resort, authorities said.

The victims were identified as Edward Chaffee, 40, his daughter, Elise, 13; his son, Merrick, 8; and the friend, Kerri Anderson, of Hermosa Beach.

A San Bernardino County sheriff's search and rescue team carried the victims away from the wreckage at 2 a.m. today, about 6½ hours after the light plane careened into rugged territory about a half-mile south of the Snow Summit ski lift.

Sgt. Ted Dykes said the plane had taken off from Big Bear Airport near Chaffee's cabin and was headed "somewhere down the mountain."

Garage Door Kills Boy, 6

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 6-year-old boy was crushed to death when caught under an automatically operated garage door at his home in Studio City, police said.

The incident Monday was being investigated by detectives.

The child's name was withheld pending notification of his parents, who were out of town. The child had been left in the care of a baby sitter.

Panel Okays Paul Warnke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved President Carter's nominations of Paul C. Warnke to be director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chief U.S. negotiator at strategic arms limitations talks with the Soviet Union.

In separate actions, the committee voted 15 to 1 for Warnke to head the disarmament agency and 14 to 2 to be chief disarmament negotiator with the Russians.

Sen. John C. Danforth (R-Mo.) voted against Warnke for both positions. Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) opposed him only for SALT negotiator with rank of ambassador.

Seafarer Leaves Mark

George L. Green, a former resident of Huntington Beach, has been dropping note-bearing bottles into the ocean for nearly four decades.

One of them was tossed into the waters off Yokohama in 1970 and washed ashore recently on the northeast coast of Oahu.

Green said he deposited the note in a wine bottle from the decks of the S.S. Lurline.

"It had to travel 10 to 15,000 miles," he said. "It was carried by tides and currents around Vladivostok in the Soviet Union, around the Aleutians, the Gulf of Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Northern California and then to Hawaii."

Green, who serves as head bartender on ocean-going passenger vessels, said he has probably dropped off 10,000 wine bottles into the ocean.

He says he lists the ship's location, the date, and a request to contact him.

"Sometimes I offer a small gratuity when they answer my letter," he said.

"I have really got some tales of woe."

"One person asked that the next time I ship comes to Samoa, would I please bring an old piano to him."

Green, 57, now lives in El Dorado County near Sacramento.

He says he plans to taper off on his sea-going ways and begin raising Japanese fish on his five-acre farm.

He says he plans several more voyages on the S.S. Monterey or its sister ship S.S. Mariposa before leaving the sea, however.

His wife Laura, who was a waitress on the Monterey before retiring, traveled with him for many of the years.

"We met on the maiden voyage of the Monterey and fell in love and got married," he said.

Green said he has received about 300 replies most of them from the Orient but also from Norway and Estonia.

He says he buys special corks in Portugal, sometimes 1,000 at a time, for his missives.

The most recent discovery of one of Green's messages was made by John Jay near his home in Punaluu, a village on Oahu's northeast coast.

Jay wrote to Green, but at his former address on Nottingham Lane in Huntington Beach.

Green moved four years ago and his address for any future bottle finders is 5169 Highway 49, Diamond Springs, Calif. 95619.

Green said he left Huntington Beach because it was too crowded for an "old seafaring boy who spent much of life on the bounding main."

"It's beginning to be time to slow down and see what's going on in this country," he observed.

"The more you travel, the more you appreciate America."

Irvine's Watson Sees 'Little Change'

Irvine Company President Raymond Watson assured 160 members of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce today that his company's development plans will change little under new ownership.

And if either of the two prospective buyers of the land development firm think they can come in and increase development in order to get the purchase price back overnight, "they're gonna do it without me there."

Watson, the guest speaker at the chamber's Town Meeting at the Newport Inn, discussed a variety of questions concerning the company in his hour-long informal address.

Most of his discussion centered on the pending sale of the company and changes within the company that will result from new ownership.

While acknowledging that there has been some decline in company morale, the company president insisted that any uncertainties are off-set by the enthusiasm that most of the company's 1,000 employees have for their jobs.

Watson's assurances came near the end of the long and at times bitter court battle over sale of the company, a battle he predicted would be over within a month.

He answered questions prepared by his company's public relations staff for most of the breakfast meeting, although he also responded to a few queries from the floor.

The gist of what Watson had to say was that the pending sale to either the Mobil Oil Corp. or the Allen-Taubman consortium should not upset nor materially change the way the company operates.

"Nobody's offering $289 million to buy a company because they don't like what's going on there," Watson said.

His appearance marked the first time Watson has spoken publicly about the proposed sale since a deposition was read into the trial record by attorneys for litigant Joan Irvine Smith.

In that statement, Mrs. Smith, who brought the suit to halt the sale of the company to Mobil for $200 million, claimed that representatives of Allen-Taubman felt the company management was full of "deadwood" and that major changes in the company's operation and development schedule would be (See WATSON, Page A2)

Big Profit
'Desired'
By Texaco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco Oil Company is sitting on reserves in the Gulf of Mexico containing over 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas but failed to produce from these reservoirs because of its "desire to maximize its profits," congressional investigators said today.

Investigators for the House Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations said natural gas from these fields should have been pumped into interstate pipelines this winter to help avert severe natural gas shortages throughout much of the nation.

Summarizing the findings of a two-month investigation, subcommittee staff members identified the nonproducing reserves as the Tiger Shoal and Lighthouse Point natural gas fields, both off the coast of Louisiana and both operated by Texaco.

Texaco has said previously it is producing as much natural gas as it can from these fields.

The subcommittee is studying allegations that energy companies have been withholding natural gas from production to (See PROFITS, Page A2)

Fontana Murders

Search Continues
For Teens' Slayer

FONTANA (AP) — Detectives continued to search today for the killer of two Riverside teen-agers shot in the head and left in a ditch shortly after they left home on a hitchhiking trip to Arizona.

Christopher J. Barber, 16, and his girlfriend, Linda Bosteder, 15, were each killed execution-style with a single bullet in the head from a small-caliber weapon, said detective Larry Murray.

Both bodies were found Sunday in a dry irrigation ditch about a half mile from Interstate 15, authorities said.

Ironically, Barber and Miss Bosteder apparently had decided to abort their hitchhiking plan shortly before they were shot.

Murray said the girl had called a friend in Riverside asking for a ride back home. The two teen-agers were last seen alive when they told their parents Thursday they were leaving for Arizona.

The girl's body was nude, Murray said, except for a pair of socks. He estimated the girl had been dead 18 to 48 hours when found and the body had decomposed to such an extent in the hot weather that it was impossible to determine if she had been sexually molested.

The boy was fully clothed, said the detective, who speculated the double murder may have been committed by someone who had picked up the hitchhiking couple along Interstate 15 and later drove and carried the bodies to the ditch.

Water Device Sale
Launched by Irvine

Irvine Ranch Water District officials say they are launching several efforts to further reduce water consumption in the district, including the sale of special water-saving devices to homeowners.

A district spokesman said today that two devices — a "water gate" to be used in toilets and a water-restricting shower head — have been ordered and will be available either later this week or next week for sale, at wholesale prices, to homeowners.

The "water gate" is a plastic device, costing about $2.50, that fits into the reservoir of the toilet and limits the amount of water used when the toilet is flushed.

The district spokesman said the water gate can save between one and two gallons per flush.

The second device to be offered to homeowners is the water-restricting shower head, a $3.50 gadget that reduces the amount of water used during showers.

The water district is taking other steps, too, to increase local water conservation efforts, although officials point out that the district has been "way out in front" of such efforts for many years.

The district is printing small cards that explain the water shortage situation. Restaurant owners in the Irvine area, particularly near Orange County Airport, will be asked to place the cards on their tables and not serve water unless asked to do so.

The district's public education program is being intensified, (See DEVICE, Page A2)

Growers Gouging U.S.?
There's an Awful Lot of Coffee in Brazil

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department cables released today say that Brazilian coffee growers have held back supplies to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond (D-N.Y.), released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in two years.

A cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20 said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23 cable from the U.S. consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

Outlays

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed and sent to Congress today his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will (1) help the needy, (2) restore economic growth and (3) make a start on his own programs.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three

Friends Bid Farewell

Andy Devine Eulogized

Luminaries from the world of show business and friends and neighbors crowded into a Corona del Mar chapel this morning to bid farewell to the beloved actor Andy Devine.

Andy, as he was referred to in the eulogies delivered by friends, died Friday night at the age of 71.

More than 200 people, including stars James Stewart and John Wayne, attended the memorial services held at Pacific View Mortuary Chapel. They listened in obvious agreement as Andy was recalled as a gentle giant with a big heart.

Eulogies were delivered by show business acquaintances Charles Lyon of the "Truth or Consequences" radio show, Bill Burch, a radio and television producer and actors Guy Madison and Lew Ayres. Appeal Court Justice Robert Gardner in-

Gunmen Rob Bank Of Loot

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A two-man holdup team robbed the Hudson Valley National Bank here today of at least $34,000, but police said the total loot could go over $1 million.

Police said the missing cash included some proceeds from Yonkers Raceway, the harness track which runs at night and presumably made a night deposit.

An accountant at Yonkers Raceway estimated the track probably deposited about $1.1 million Monday night.

The accountant said $400,000 was deposited from the night's receipts. He said about $700,000 in daily operating cash is usually deposited each night and withdrawn from the bank the following day before the track's nightly racing program begins.

The robbers were described as polite men in ski masks who put the three bank employees at ease as they carried off the holdup. They wore gloves and carried walkie-talkies and handguns, police said.

Police said the bandits surprised two tellers and a cleaning man inside the bank's main branch on East Grassy Sprain Road at 7:15 a.m., handcuffing the three to a basement stairway bannister.

Then the pair made off with cash the tellers had been counting in a first-floor money room. The door to the bank vault had been opened earlier by the employees, according to detective Lt. Harry Masce.

Police said they did not know how the pair entered the bank. The two triggered an alarm in leaving the bank at 7:45 a.m.

Police arrived soon thereafter and found the bank locked and the three workers handcuffed.

Police said the robbers talked to a third person with their walkie-talkies, possibly a partner outside the bank. They said no getaway vehicle was seen.

Police said the robbers were first seen when one of them approached the cleaning man, who was vacuuming a basement meeting room.

The bank was locked because it does not open until 9 a.m.

BUDGET ADVISER
Fred Gahm

Trustee Hopeful Cautious

(Editor's Note: This is the second article in a series of interviews with the 10 candidates running for two seats on the Irvine Unified School District board. The election is March 8.)

By HILARY KAYE

Fred Gahm believes the Irvine Unified School District is taking the right tack in implementing alternative education programs.

But Gahm, a 43-year-old purchasing agent, says he'd be cautious about expanding the number of options.

"There's a chance you'd dilute some of the efforts of the school district," says Gahm, who lives at 3671 Provincetown in The Colony, with his wife, Natalie, and three children, who all attend Irvine Schools.

Gahm thinks the Basics Plus School is needed and well-liked in the district, but believes that fundamentals — reading, writing and arithmetic — should be stressed at all levels.

He believes Competency Based Education tests, which show whether students are ready to advance to the next grade, are a good idea.

"We need to be innovative, as long as it's not at the expense of the students and taxpayers," says Gahm.

The candidate served as co-chairman of last year's citizens advisory budget committee and believes that position will help him as a school board member.

He believes this year's budget is sound and views the budget as a flexible plan, not a "firm, unyielding document."

According to Gahm, one of the most important aspects of the budget process is making the contents of the budget clear to the layman. Checking to make certain the budget is adhered to by the different schools is essential, too, he says.

Looking ahead to the coming school year, Gahm believes the Serrano-Priest ruling will be important to watch, but he does not think it will have a great effect on Irvine.

"Nevertheless, the board will have to be aware of the implications and plan accordingly," says Gahm.

Communication is another area that should be tackled by the new board, according to Gahm. He points out that some of the concerns being mentioned by other candidates are actually the result of misunderstandings and misinformation.

Nixon's Trust Pays Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former President Nixon's 1972 campaign fund have agreed to pay $200,000 in an out-of-court legal settlement to four men recruited for the original Watergate burglary.

"This settlement provides what we have been saying along, that the Cubans were tricked into participating in the Watergate entries," their lawyer, Daniel Schultze, said today.

The civil case had been scheduled to go on trial Thursday before U.S. District Judge Charles Richey.

The original lawsuit filed by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis asked $2 million in damages, mainly from former officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President.

The list of defendants in the case read like a Who's Who of the Watergate scandals which drove Nixon from office. They included former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, retired CIA official E. Howard Hunt, G. Gordon Liddy and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

All served as officials of the Committee to Re-elect the President, now known as the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust.

In their suit, the four Miami men, often referred to as the foot soldiers of Watergate, alleged that they believed they were working for the National Security Agency or the CIA when recruited for the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

All four said they had participated in CIA operations against the Castro government in Cuba, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. All served more than a year in prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from their part in the burglary.

Schultze said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

"The only drawback is that people will never know the full story of the Cubans," he said. "For people to really grasp the full reason they believed what they did you have to see the CIA records."

Hunt knew the Cubans from his CIA days. He recruited three of the four men for the 1971 break-in by the White House plumbers against Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Then later, he again asked them for help on the Watergate burglary. But Schultze said the CIA records would show far more than their earlier association with Hunt. He would not elaborate, citing the secret classification of the records, which would have been made public in court.

Two bandits wearing makeshift hoods over their heads and wielding a .45 caliber automatic, broke into a Costa Mesa apartment early today, tying up one tenant before taking stereo equipment and other items.

Police said Michael David Tolley, 32, of 383 Rochester St. was awakened by the masked men attempting to truss him up.

Police said the groggy resident thought the whole thing was a joke and told them to get out of his room. Officers said Tolley then went back to sleep.

The silent, masked pair then tied Tolley's roommate, Michael Howard Farwell, striking him over the head with the pistol when he began to struggle.

The pair then loaded up a set of drums, a stereo set with four speakers, a television and other equipment and carried the booty to a car outside.

Meanwhile, the two roommates called police who arrived on the scene shortly after the gunmen left.

No value has been placed on the stolen equipment, police said, pending further investigation.

Officers are seeking two men in a dark blue Ford Ranchero.

The two roommates said they did not get a good look at the gunmen, who were wearing what appeared to be white sheets over their heads with holes cut out for their eyes and noses.

Mangers Eyes State Buy of Bolsa Chica

By ROBERT BARKER

Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) announced today that he will introduce legislation Wednesday to purchase 923.7 acres of the Bolsa Chica wetlands with money from state tideland oil royalties surplus.

The acreage covers almost the entire lowland areas.

The original proposal called for acquisition of 800 acres but the area was expanded at the suggestion of the State Lands Commission, an aide to Mangers said.

Mangers' bill proposes the State Lands Commission buy the land and turn it over to the State Department of Fish and Game for development of a wildlife habitat, tideland restoration and preservation of scenic open space.

The bill specifically prohibits dredging of navigable channels to support shipping or recreational boating and landfill projects for the development of residential, commercial or industrial sites.

While the cost amount will not yet appear in the bill, the purchase price is expected to range from $2.5 million to $4 million.

The State Lands Commission is preparing an appraisal and will announce its findings on April 1. Attorneys from Signal Landmark are doing their own appraisal as a preliminary to negotiations.

Mangers stressed that the producing oil wells on the land would continue to operate and that tax money derived from the oil of the Bolsa Chica will continue to accrue in the fund from which the wetlands are to be purchased.

Mangers emphasized the urgency of legislation since only approximately 8,500 acres of marsh and mud flats remain in Southern California.

Introduction of this legislation caps nearly three months of discussion both in the district and in Sacramento.

Forecast Calls For Some Rain

Weather prognosticators see rainfall in their Orange Coast crystal ball, but it's not expected until late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Los Angeles Weather Service meteorologist Walt Rogers said a storm that was forecast to bring 30 percent chance of showers, went through Southern California in a hurry this morning, bringing winds and sunshine instead. (Related stories Pages A5, 8, 12.)

"The trailing end of that front was just too weak to bring in rain," he said, adding that the rainfall on much of the state stopped in the San Bernardino area.

Rogers said a high pressure system that had been hovering off the northern coast causing summer weather has moved south and is now off Baja California, allowing storms to track into northern California.

He said the north part of the state is cloudy and more rain is expected tonight.

"There's a pretty good chance we'll get rain down here late Wednesday or Thursday morning," he said.

Film Director Robert Wise Plans Lecture

Academy award-winning director Robert Wise, whose credits include "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music," will discuss his role in the motion picture industry in an illustrated lecture Wednesday at Saddleback College.

His lecture is part of the Mission Viejo school's spring forum series called "Master of Modern Film." It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Room 313 of the science and mathematics building. Admission is free.

The subject of Wise's talk will be "What Does a Director Do?" He will illustrate his talk with a special screening of the 1963 film "The Haunting," starring Julie Harris, which he directed and produced.

The veteran filmmaker has directed 36 films. The most recent is the disaster movie "The Hindenberg." Wise will be available to answer questions after his presentation.

County Lifts Jet Curfew

The curfew on jet aircraft operating out of Orange County Airport was lifted today to make room for a private jet plane described as "no noisier than small propeller driven airplanes."

Excluded by county supervisors from the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. jet curfew at the airport was the Cessna Citation and similar private jets having the same noise characteristics.

Waiving the curtailment of operating hours for such jet aircraft has no effect on commercial jet operations that are still subject to curfew regulations.

Watson's remarks appeared to be in rebuttal to those statements.

He said the company's employees are "prepared for a period of instability during the change" in ownership. He also said that he doubts that even if new owners wanted to make sweeping changes in development plans that the community or local government would allow any significant alterations to be made.

Watson said that he is not worried about his future with the company and acknowledged that of all the people who work there he would have the easiest time finding another job.

When one audience member asked about the possibility that Watson might take a job with Mobil, he jokingly responded that the oil company had opened several new service stations and "I always enjoyed pumping gas as a kid."

Devine's career in motion pictures began in 1925, but Justice Gardner pointed out that he was a Newport Beach resident for 20 years and was active in a variety of service clubs.

Lyon, who was described as Andy's oldest friend, described him as "a big man in every sense of the word. Just thank God that your paths crossed his," he told mourners.

Burch perhaps described the actor's impact on three generations of movie, radio and television fans when he said, "People just didn't recognize Andy—they knew him and they knew of him as a friend."

focusing on homeowners, school children and industrial users.

One of the district staff members regularly gives presentations to school children regarding water and water conservation and mailings are sent to homeowners detailing water-saving methods.

Large industrial and commercial users are getting involved in the water-saving process, too, according to the spokesman.

An employee at the Irvine Company last week asked the water district how to save water while watering their landscaped areas.

The Irvine Company was told to switch from a timed watering system to one using moisture sensors, that turns only when the ground reaches a certain dryness.

The district's water reclamation program is already operating at 100 percent efficiency, recycling all of the waste water that flows into the plant — about 4.5 million gallons of waste water daily.

The district plans to give a high priority to expanding the capabilities of that system, the spokesman said.

Spending during the current 1977 fiscal year is estimated at $417.4 billion with a record deficit of $68 billion.

Congress has already begun work on Carter's proposals and Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, the House Democratic leader, said after a meeting with Carter this morning that the President did not seem upset with the extra $1.7 billion that the House Ways and Means Committee has added to his economic package.

Coffee Supply Said Withheld

best and unfortunately, the worst.

"This past year, we had a continuous summer, which really took its toll. The beaches have been full every weekend, and there's been an abnormally large number on weekdays," Chief Sparks said.

In dollar terms, Lagunans lost $605,549 in 1976 of which $187,268 was recovered. That loss is down $5,790 from the year before. The recovery is down about $4,500.

Despite the shrinking number of San Clemente burglaries, the town's total crime loss figure was up.

In 1975, $392,000 was lost and in 1976, $524,000 was stolen. Police recovered about $55,000 in property in 1975 and nearly $300,000 in 1976.

Crime trends indicated a reduction of violent crime.

—Homicide; Laguna Beach zero; San Clemente one. The previous year each community had one.

—Rape/attempted rape; Laguna Beach 17; San Clemente, 13. The numbers respectively in 1975 were 16 and 15.

—Robbery; Laguna Beach, 13 (down from 19 in 1975); San Clemente, 40 (down from 47 in 1975).

—Assaults; Laguna Beach, 16 (down from 18); San Clemente, 67 (up from 59 year before).

Chief Spinks said most of the assault cases in San Clemente stemmed from "combative Marines fighting amongst themselves."

Chief Sparks said most of the Laguna robberies were "one-on-one street offenses," not the traditional commercial stickup. He said this is due to the limited number of targets in the city and limited avenues of escape after the commission of a robbery.

"Overall, our small city is not a desirable target for would be robbers," Chief Sparks said.

San Clemente, on the other hand, is bisected by Interstate-5 affording easy flight. However, the department has a 52 percent capture and conviction record against robbers.

Narcotic activity in terms of seizures were down for both cities.

Chief Sparks noted: "in relation to past years, narcotic traffic appears to be low, although indications are that marijuana and cocaine usage is on the increase."

Traffic Cops On Rampage In Clemente?

It looked as though traffic ticket writing in San Clemente had taken off with a tire-squealing, rubber-burning start in 1976.

There it was, in the police department's annual report, a three-times jump in the number of moving violation tickets, from 2,270 in 1975 to 6,633 tickets in 1976.

Police Lt. Cliff Gates, patrol division commander was incredulous when queried by a reporter about the phenomenal jump.

"That can't be right," Lieutenant Gates said.

It wasn't. A clerical error, not overzealous cops, had resulted in the rocketing rate. The real figures indicated only a modest seven percent increase, from 2,953 in 1975 to 3,167 last year.

to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond (D-N.Y.), released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in two years.

A cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20 said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23 cable from the U.S. consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

State Department officials in Washington have denied allegations that the Brazilian government has done anything to drive the price of coffee to artificially high levels.

Brazil is the leading coffee-producing nation, with about half the world's production.

Richmond said Brazil's "chief weapon in this price war against American consumers" has been steep increases in its coffee export taxes.

He said the cables also reveal that at least twice within the last year Brazil has entered the international coffee market to try to purchase large quantities of coffee from Angola and El Salvador in an apparent attempt to prop up world prices.

A State Department witness planned to repeat the department's position.

In testimony prepared for delivery later in the hearing, Asst. Secretary of State Julius L. Katz said:

"To the best of our knowledge, no coffee producing country is pursuing policies which restrict or inhibit the export of coffee to world markets."

He said there is no present shortage of coffee, but the 1975 frost in Brazil has diminished stockpiles. The lower stockpiles in turn have led to higher prices, he said.

President Claims

Irvine Company Won't Change Plans

Irvine Company President Raymond Watson assured 160 members of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce today that his company's development plans will change little under new ownership.

And if either of the two prospective buyers of the land development firm think they can come in and increase development in order to get the purchase price back overnight, "they're gonna do it without me there."

Watson, the guest speaker at the chamber's Town Meeting at the Newport Inn, discussed a variety of questions concerning the company in his hour-long informal address.

Most of his discussion centered on the pending sale of the company and changes within the company that will result from new ownership.

While acknowledging that there has been some decline in company morale, the company president insisted that any uncertainties are off-set by the enthusiasm that most of the company's 1,000 employees have for their jobs.

Watson's assurances come near the end of the long and at times bitter court battle over sale of the company, a battle he predicted would be over within a month.

He answered questions prepared by his company's public relations staff for most of the breakfast meeting, although he also responded to a few queries from the floor.

The gist of what Watson had to say was that the pending sale to either the Mobil Oil Corp. or the Allen-Taubman consortium should not upset nor materially change the way the company operates.

"Nobody's offering $289 million to buy a company because they don't like what's going on there," Watson said.

Friends Pay Tribute At Devine Funeral

Luminaries from the world of show business and friends and neighbors crowded into a Corona del Mar chapel this morning to bid farewell to the beloved actor Andy Devine.

Andy, as he was referred to in the eulogies delivered by friends, died Friday night at the age of 71.

More than 200 people, including stars James Stewart and John Wayne, attended the memorial services held at Pacific View Mortuary Chapel. They listened in obvious agreement as Andy was recalled as a gentle giant with a big heart.

Eulogies were delivered by show business acquaintances Charles Lyon of the "Truth or Consequences" radio show, Bill Burch, a radio and television producer and actors Guy Madison and Lew Ayres. Appeal Court Justice Robert Gardner introduced each speaker.

Mancini Says

CUSD Facing 'Big Problems'

(Editor's Note — This article is one of a series profiling the seven candidates seeking three open seats on the Capistrano Unified School District board of trustees. The winner in each of the three trustee areas will be the candidate polling the most votes district-wide in the March 8 election.)

By ANNE COOPER

Pasquale "Pat" Mancini says the Capistrano Unified School District faces serious problems in the areas of planning and communication.

To alleviate problems of communication, Mancini said that if elected he would meet monthly with presidents of parent-teacher organizations and would drop in on schools unannounced.

"The school district could do a better job of informing parents and other taxpayers," he said. "The public has a right to know, even if informed citizens can cause problems sometimes.

Mancini, if elected, would represent trustee area 6, the inland portion of Laguna Niguel, currently represented by incumbent Bob Hurst.

Making Laguna Niguel a stronger area within the Capistrano district would be one of Mancini's goals, if he is elected, he said.

"We in Laguna Niguel have felt at times that we are getting the school district leftovers," said the candidate, who has twice served as the Laguna Niguel Homeowners' Association president and twice as vice president of the Saddleback Area Coordinating Council.

"I have been very involved in the community since we moved to Laguna Niguel nine years ago," he said. "I had in mind running for the school board in the past two elections, but this year everything seemed to come together for me."

Mancini, 34, is an insurance man who says he looks at everything logically and does not base decisions on emotions. He said devoting time to the schools is an extension of his role as parent.

"I want to make sure the growth that is inevitable in the Capistrano district does not dilute the quality of my sons' education," he said.

"I learned during the time I spent coaching Little League that the kids are more important than winning," Mancini said. "This carries over to schools."

Mancini said he doesn't put much stock in test scores as a valid measure of what a person knows.

"I feel every individual is capable of learning," he said. "I am not ready to chalk up test score differences among schools to socio-economic factors. I think there's more involved."

Apathy is a problem in the Capistrano school district, Mancini said. People take action only when an action hits home. He said one way to get people involved is to try to keep them better informed.

"When parents find out about a district decision after the decision is already made, they're going to be turned off," he said.

"It's a matter again of needing better communication."

"What it all comes down to is that I am looking to keep the Capistrano school district as good as it is now, maybe making it better," he said.

Attorneys For Nixon Settle Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former President Nixon's 1972 campaign fund have agreed to pay $200,000 in an out-of-court legal settlement to four men recruited for the original Watergate burglary.

"This settlement provides what we have been saying along, that the Cubans were tricked into participating in the Watergate entries," their lawyer, Daniel Schulte, said today.

The civil case had been scheduled to go on trial Thursday before U.S. District Judge Charles Richey.

The original lawsuit filed by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis asked $2 million in damages, mainly from former officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President.

The list of defendants in the case read like a Who's Who of the Watergate scandals which drove Nixon from office. They included former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, retired CIA official E. Howard Hunt, G. Gordon Liddy and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

All served as officials of the Committee to Re-elect the President, now known as the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust.

In their suit, the four Miami men, often referred to as the foot soldiers of Watergate, alleged that they believed they were working for the National Security Agency or the CIA when recruited for the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

All four said they had participated in CIA operations against the Castro government in Cuba, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. All served more than a year in prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from their part in the burglary. Schulte said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

Bingo Viewed For Senior Center Plans

Bingo games could finance it. The old Laguna Beach sewer plant could house it.

Those are two of the ideas city planning staff are analyzing before the City Council decides whether to form a committee to study proposals for a senior center.

The first — bingo — is the suggestion of Jay Murley, former chairman of the Human Needs Committee which made previous recommendations to the council on the establishment of a center.

The second suggestion — the sewer plant — is that of George Fowler, director of the city Human Affairs Department.

Fowler said when the Aliso Water Management Agency plant is built, the sewer plant the city now uses might be a suitable place for the center.

Although the original proposal was for a community center, talks at the council have narrowed the concept to a center for seniors.

Fowler said, "The seniors really do need a wing of the community center they can use on a daily basis."

He added that the city's seniors, who were displaced when the city did not renew its lease on the Gleneyre Street annex they used, are "not too happy with what's being offered them."

Senior activities were moved to a new building next to City Hall which houses the Human Affairs Department. A number of other activities, not connected with the seniors, also are conducted there.

Fowler said the seniors had more space in the old annex.

The crowd that had filled the small chapel and spilled out into Pacific View's hallways and offices left the services listening to the strains of a Western song, "Tumblin' Tumbleweeds."

Two members of the famed singing group Sons of the Pioneers were outside, playing their own musical tribute to their departed friend.

Budget Hike Asked

Carter Sends Congress Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed and sent to Congress today his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will (1) help the needy, (2) restore economic growth and (3) make a start on his own programs.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three days before leaving office.

He said it "is essentially still President Ford's budget."

At a brief Oval Office signing ceremony, Carter signed two copies of the 101-page budget amendment — one each for the Senate and House.

Leaning over his shoulder to his budget director, Bert Lance, Carter quipped, "If you keep a 1979 budget down this small, I'd appreciate it."

The President then added that he looks forward to implementing a "quite radical" budget-making process as he begins preparing his own spending plans for the 1979 fiscal year that will go to Congress next January. He emphasized that it would entail the zero-based budgeting concept he used as governor of Georgia, meaning that every program will be examined from scratch just as if it had not previously existed.

Carter proposed increasing 1978 spending to $459.4 billion, compared with the $440 billion Ford recommended. After subtracting revenues of $401.6 billion, there would be a deficit of $57.7 billion. Ford recommended a deficit of $47 billion.

Spending during the current 1977 fiscal year is estimated at $417.4 billion with a record deficit of $68 billion.

Congress has already begun work on Carter's proposals and

Watson Sees No Changes

Irvine Company Chief Reassures Chamber

Irvine Company President Raymond Watson assured 160 members of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce today that his company's development plans will change little under new ownership.

And if either of the two prospective buyers of the land development firm think they can come in and increase development in order to get the purchase price back overnight, "they're gonna do it without me there."

Watson, the guest speaker at the chamber's Town Meeting at the Newport Inn, discussed a variety of questions concerning the company in his hour-long informal address.

While acknowledging that there has been some decline in company morale, the company president insisted that any uncertainties are off-set by the enthusiasm that most of the company's 1,000 employees have for their jobs.

Watson's assurances come near the end of the long and at times bitter court battle over sale of the company, a battle he predicted would be over within a month.

He answered questions prepared by his company's public relations staff for most of the breakfast meeting, although he also responded to a few queries from the floor.

The gist of what Watson had to say was that the pending sale to either the Mobil Oil Corp. or the Allen-Taubman consortium should not upset nor materially change the way the company operates.

"Nobody's offering $289 million to buy a company because they don't like what's going on there," Watson said.

His appearance marked the first time Watson has spoken publicly about the proposed sale since a deposition was read into the trial record by attorneys for litigant Joan Irvine Smith.

In that statement, Mrs. Smith, who brought the suit to halt the sale of the company to Mobil for $200 million, claimed that representatives of Allen-Taubman felt the company management was full of "deadwood" and that major changes in the company's operation and development schedule would be made if the consortium bought the firm.

Watson's remarks appeared to be in rebuttal to those statements.

He said the company's employees are "prepared for a period of instability during the change" in ownership. He also said that he doubts that even if new owners wanted to make sweeping changes in development plans that the community or local government would allow any significant alterations to be made.

Watson said that he is not worried about his future with the company and acknowledged that of all the people who work there he would have the easiest time finding another job.

Newport Gas Station Hit

Newport Beach police are seeking a man armed with a revolver who took $50 at gunpoint from a Corona del Mar gas station early Monday.

According to police reports, the gas station attendant was approached by the bandit at about 2 a.m. at the Tom Sharp Union station at 2201 E. Coast Highway.

The man brandished the gun and demanded all of the money in the cash box, which the attendant handed over. Police said the suspect escaped in an old Ford Galaxy.

U.S. Probe Claims Coffee Held Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department cables released today say that Brazilian coffee growers have held back supplies to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond (D-N.Y.), released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in two years.

A cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20 said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23 cable from the U.S.

consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices, after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

State Department officials in Washington have denied allegations that the Brazilian government has done anything to drive the price of coffee to artificially high levels.

Brazil is the leading coffee-producing nation, with about half the world's production.

Richmond said Brazil's "chief weapon in this price war against American consumers" has been steep increases in its coffee export taxes.

He said the cables also reveal that at least twice within the last year Brazil has entered the international coffee market to try to purchase large quantities of coffee from Angola and El Salvador in an apparent attempt to prop up world prices.

A State Department witness planned to repeat the department's position.

In testimony prepared for delivery later in the hearing, Asst. Secretary of State Julius L. Katz said:

"To the best of our knowledge, no coffee producing country is pursuing policies which restrict or inhibit the export of coffee to world markets."

He said there is no present shortage of coffee, but the 1975 frost in Brazil has diminished stocks. The lower stockpiles in turn have led to higher prices, he said.

The subcommittees will hear from representatives of consumer groups and government agencies as well as coffee producers, importers and retailers.

Annie Allen got a surprise birthday present when she got up this morning at her San Bernardino Avenue home in Newport Beach. Her husband had plastered the Middle School Talks Set Newport-Mesa Board, Parents to Meet

Harbor View Elementary School parents, many of whom want their sixth grade students to remain at an elementary level rather than be transferred to Lincoln Middle School, will discuss the district's middle school concept tonight with school trustees.

Tonight's regular meeting of the Newport-Mesa Board of Education will be held at 7:30 at Sims Hall, Newport Harbor High School, instead of the usual Costa Mesa council chamber location.

Parents claim many of their 11-year-old students are not emotionally equipped to handle a large school (Lincoln has about 1,250 students) where children are not able to maintain close relationships with teachers due to diverse class scheduling.

However, a district memo listing 1976 state testing results shows sixth grade students enrolled in a middle school with higher academic scores than those who remain in an elementary school environment.

A written reply prepared by Lois N. Nelson, a Harbor View parent and professor of education at San Francisco State University, claims these statistics "are highly questionable."

Currently there are six middle schools in the district with only one, Ensign Middle School, serving 7th and 8th grade students exclusively.

A district memo states keeping all sixth graders in elementary schools "would be shattering, affecting staffing units, teacher re-adjustment, program cutbacks, and worst of all, causing the seventh and eighth graders to feel the effects of a minimal program."

Mrs. Nelson claims this theory "is an indefensible argument to justify the sixth grade at Lincoln to maintain the status quo and prevent change."

A petition circulated by parents reportedly has gathered signatures from 79 of eligible 91 families in support of keeping current 5th graders at Harbor View on campus for another year.

Forecasters Say Rainfall 'On the Way'

Weather prognosticators see rainfall in their Orange Coast crystal ball, but it's not expected until late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Los Angeles Weather Service meteorologist Walt Rogers said a storm that was forecast to bring 30 percent chance of showers, went through Southern California in a hurry this morning, bringing winds and sunshine instead. (Related stories Pages A5, 8, 12.)

"The trailing end of that front was just too weak to bring in rain," he said, adding that the rainfall on much of the state stopped in the San Bernardino area.

Rogers said a high pressure system that had been hovering off the northern coast causing summer weather has moved south and is now off Baja California, allowing storms to track into northern California.

He said the north part of the state is cloudy and more rain is expected tonight.

"There's a pretty good chance we'll get rain down here late Wednesday or Thursday morning," he said.

Police Hunt Killer of 2 Teen-agers

FONTANA (AP) — Detectives continued to search today for the killer of two Riverside teen-agers shot in the head and left in a ditch shortly after they left home on a hitchhiking trip to Arizona.

Christopher J. Barber, 16, and his girlfriend, Linda Bosteder, 15, were each killed execution-style with a single bullet in the head from a small-caliber weapon, said detective Larry Murray.

Both bodies were found Sunday in a dry irrigation ditch about a half mile from Interstate 15, authorities said.

Ironically, Barber and Miss Bosteder apparently had decided to abort their hitchhiking plan shortly before they were shot.

Murray said the girl had called a friend in Riverside asking for a ride back home. The two teen-agers were last seen alive when they told their parents Thursday they were leaving for Arizona.

The girl's body was nude, Murray said, except for a pair of socks. He estimated the girl had been dead 18 to 48 hours when found and the body had decomposed to such an extent in the hot weather that it was impossible to determine if she had been sexually molested.

The boy was fully clothed, said the detective, who speculated the double murder may have been committed by someone who had picked up the hitchhiking couple along Interstate 15 and later drove and carried the bodies to the ditch.

Schultz said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

"The only drawback is that people will never know the full story of the Cubans," he said. "For people to really grasp the full reason they believed what they did you have to see the CIA records."

Reserves Withheld? Texaco Accused Of Profiting Ploy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco Oil Company is sitting on reserves in the Gulf of Mexico containing over 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas but failed to produce from these reservoirs because of its "desire to maximize its profits," congressional investigators said today.

Investigators for the House Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations said natural gas from these fields should have been pumped into interstate pipelines this winter to help avert severe natural gas shortages throughout much of the nation.

Summarizing the findings of a two-month investigation, subcommittee staff members identified the nonproducing reserves as the Tiger Shoal and Lighthouse Point natural gas fields, both off the coast of Louisiana and both operated by Texaco.

Texaco has said previously it is producing as much natural gas as it can from these fields.

The subcommittee is studying allegations that energy companies have been withholding natural gas from production to await the higher prices that will come if Congress lifts existing price controls.

"Texaco's failure to accelerate the production of its one-half trillion cubic feet of known reserves in nonproducing reservoirs in Tiger Shoal and Lighthouse Point is attributable to a profits-before-gas philosophy," testified John Galloway, who headed the subcommittee investigation.

Galloway said Texaco's fields are among the roughly seven trillion cubic feet of proved reserves in nonproducing Gulf Coast reservoirs that have been earmarked for interstate pipelines.

The congressional study comes several days after an Interior Department report said that 10 major producers in the Gulf of Mexico had cut gas production on federal leases.

Galloway said most of the Texaco gas in question involves "behind the pipe" reserves. These are untapped reservoirs above other reservoirs already in production.

To get at this behind the pipe gas quickly, producers must drill additional wells. Galloway testified that producers have been reluctant to do this because it reduces profits.

"Production from these reservoirs should have been on line this winter," he said. "Because they are in extremely shallow waters, not requiring drilling platforms, they could have been fully developed in about six months. The failure to produce these reservoirs is directly attributable to Texaco's desire to maximize its profits."

Panel Okays Paul Warnke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved President Carter's nomination of Paul C. Warnke to be director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chief U.S. negotiator at strategic arms limitations talks with the Soviet Union.

In separate actions, the committee voted 15 to 1 for Warnke to head the disarmament agency and 14 to 2 to be chief disarmament negotiator with the Russians.

Sen. John C. Danforth (R-Mo.) voted against Warnke for both positions. Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) opposed him only for SALT negotiator with rank of ambassador.

Real Estate Sales Jump

January multiple listing real estate sales in Costa Mesa and Newport Beach totaled a brisk $39.2 million, an increase of $12.5 million over January, 1976, the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors reported this week.

Sales transactions for the month went up from 350 to 396, but major cause for the sharp increase in total sales was in value of the properties sold.

Only six sales of less than $35,000 value were reported, yet 133 properties valued at more than $100,000 changed hands during the month. Fifteen of them were priced at more than $250,000.

Smith Lashed by Three Trustees

Board President Withdraws Support

By LAURIE KASPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Alleging "unethical behavior" in incumbent Trustee Dennis Smith's re-election campaign, three of Smith's fellow Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees have refused to support his candidacy.

Loa Young, president of the board of education, unexpectedly wired from Hawaii, where she is vacationing, that she is withdrawing her support of Smith. She requested that the information be released to the public.

A copy of the telegram, sent Saturday, was released today along with a statement from trustees George Henry and Carole Neustadt, saying they "fully concur and support the sentiment expressed in Mrs. Young's telegram."

In the telegram, addressed to Mrs. Neustadt, Henry and Trustee Bill Kohler, Mrs. Young said, "At the outset of the current school board election campaign, I felt a responsibility as the board president to endorse my fellow colleagues in the spirit of unity and board harmony."

"However, it is impossible for me to continue to support the unethical behavior of one of the incumbents during this campaign," the message stated.

"Therefore I am withdrawing my support of Trustee Dennis Smith and have requested that he refrain from further use of my name in conjunction with his campaign for re-election," the telegram continued.

Smith, contacted today by the Daily Pilot, said he was unaware of the telegram and after being read the material said he would have no comment.

"I know nothing of it," he said. "I don't know to what she's referring. I have not discussed it with her."

He called back later, confirming that he had been told of the telegram by the school district and that he would conform to Mrs. Young's request that her name not be used in his campaign.

He admitted that he was disappointed.

Smith said there has been internal politics on the part of Mrs. Neustadt and Henry to get him defeated. He said they may have talked with Mrs. Young before she left for Hawaii.

Though Smith said he did not know what Mrs. Young was referring to, the action may have stemmed from contentions by another candidate, William Kelly, that Smith had obtained a list of student names, addresses, phone numbers and birthdates from the district.

Kelly admitted at the last trustees meeting he had no proof but said he could find no other way that such information could be obtained.

Smith said if Kelly's allegation prompted Mrs. Young's telegram, he will reaffirm his own position that "there was no wrongdoing on my part."

He repeatedly said he is proud of his efforts to get young people registered to vote in favor of his candidacy March 8.

Mrs. Young's withdrawal surprised observers of the school campaign because she has consistently spoken of her desire for unity.

Although she said she wouldn't actively campaign for either incumbent—Smith or Kohler—she said she would let them use her (See NIXED, Page A2)

Carter Boosts Ford Budget

President Urges Ceiling on Hospital Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed and sent to Congress today his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will (1) help the needy, (2) restore economic growth and (3) make a start on his own programs.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three days before leaving office.

He said it "is essentially still President Ford's budget."

At a brief Oval Office signing ceremony, Carter signed two copies of the 101-page budget

1979 budget down this small, I'd appreciate it."

The President then added that he looks forward to implementing a "quite radical" budget-making process as he begins preparing his own spending plans for the 1979 fiscal year that will go to Congress next January. He emphasized that it would entail the zero-based budgeting concept he used as governor of Georgia, meaning that every program will be examined from scratch just as if it had not previously existed.

Carter proposed increasing 1978 spending to $459.4 billion, compared with the $440 billion Ford recommended. After subtracting revenues of $401.6 billion, there would be a deficit of $57.7 billion. Ford recommended a deficit of $47 billion.

Spending during the current 1977 fiscal year is estimated at $417.4 billion with a record deficit of $68 billion.

Congress has already begun work on Carter's proposals and Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, the House Democratic leader, said after a meeting with Carter this morning that the President did not seem upset with the extra $1.7 billion that the House Ways and Means Committee has added to his economic package.

Wright said Carter told Republican and Democratic House and Senate leaders that he understood the additional funds were the result of the severe winter weather.

Teachers Ask Additional Pay Increase

Capistrano Unified School District teachers, who won an 8.4 percent salary hike in December, want an additional 12 to 12.4 percent salary and fringe benefit increase for 1977-78.

Their demands will be presented to district trustees tonight at a 7:30 p.m. school board meeting at district offices, 32972 Calle Perfecto in San Juan Capistrano.

The two-year contract negotiated between the school district and the Capistrano Unified Education Association (CUEA) representing teachers, in effect from July 1, 1976, through June 30, 1978, provides that the CUEA may reopen negotiations by March 1, 1977.

In addition to the proposed salary and fringe benefit hikes, the CUEA has also submitted for renegotiation the teacher grievance procedure.

A teacher currently takes a complaint first to his school principal. If the principal cannot resolve the problem, it is referred to district administrators, and ultimately to the school board.

The CUEA is proposing that when a teacher grievance cannot be resolved at the district administration level, a neutral third party be called in and both the teacher and the administration submit to binding arbitration.

The CUEA-proposed salary schedule would mean that a teacher with a bachelor's degree, new to the district, would earn $11,153. This year he is earning $9,958. Last year he would have earned $9,188.

Friends Bid Farewell

Andy Devine Eulogized

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Luminaries from the world of show business and friends and neighbors crowded into a Corona Del Mar chapel this morning to bid farewell to the beloved actor Andy Devine.

Andy, as he was referred to in the eulogies delivered by friends, died Friday night at the age of 71. More than 200 people, including stars James Stewart and John Wayne, attended the memorial services held at Pacific View Mortuary Chapel. They listened in obvious agreement as Andy was recalled as a gentle giant with a big heart.

Eulogies were delivered by show business acquaintances Charles Lyon of the "Truth or Consequences" radio show, Bill Burch, a radio and television producer and actors Guy Madison and Lew Ayres. Appeal Court Justice Robert Gardner introduced each speaker.

The emphasis was on Andy's joy in living as each speaker recalled a touching and amusing moment they had shared with the actor.

Organist Dick Aurandt selected several show tunes including a medley from "Show Boat" and several Gershwin tunes to precede the ceremony. He was the musical director on Andy's most famous television show, "The Wild Bill Hickock Show."

The 20-minute ceremony closed with the reminder of Andy's pleasure in making people happy when his theater producer Guy Little performed the song "I Want To Be Happy" from one of the actor's recent stage productions, "No, No, Nanette."

The standing room only audience included as many members of the Harbor Area community as it did representatives of show business.

Devine's career in motion pictures began in 1925, but Justice Gardner pointed out that he was a Newport Beach resident for 20 years and was active in a variety of service clubs.

Lyon, who was described as Andy's oldest friend, described him as "a big man in every sense of the word. Just thank God that your paths crossed his," he told mourners.

Burch perhaps described the actor's impact on three generations of movie, radio and television fans when he said, "People just didn't recognize Andy—they knew him and they..." (See DEVINE, Page A2)

Embattled Letter To Publish Again

Residents of the Saddleback Valley Unified School District can expect to receive another issue of the district's controversial newsletter in late March.

Although she admitted the publication, called Spotlight, can be improved, Loa Young, president of the Board of Education, denied during a recent trustees' meeting that the first issue was a political move.

Mrs. Young, who is not up for re-election, was reacting to a candidate Juneann De Casas' earlier charge that the newsletter, which was sent out in January, was a "political propaganda sheet paid for at taxpayers' expense."

Mrs. DeCasas did not respond to Mrs. Young's denial during the meeting.

Mrs. Young recalled that she had requested a district newsletter in May of last year. But, she said, two layouts were "absolutely rejected" by trustees and then negotiations caused delays in the publication.

But after a speech on the need for communication by State Supt. of Instruction Wilson Riles and an article on the lack of communication in the El Toro High School student newspaper in November, she said, she sent a memo to the district superintendent asking him to immediately proceed with the publication.

She said the newsletter was ready before Christmas but "I interceded again." Because she thought the newsletter would get lost in residents' holiday mail, she explained, she asked the superintendent to postpone the mailing of the publication.

"It was not political," she said. (See LETTER, Page A2)

Mancini Foresees Problems

(Editor's Note — This article is one of a series profiling the seven candidates seeking three open seats on the Capistrano Unified School District board of trustees. The winner in each of the three trustee areas will be the candidate polling the most votes district-wide in the March 8 election.)

By ANNE COOPER

Pasquale "Pat" Mancini says the Capistrano Unified School District faces serious problems in the areas of planning and communication.

To alleviate problems of communication, Mancini said that if elected he would meet monthly with presidents of parent-teacher organizations and would drop in on schools unannounced.

"The school district could do a better job of informing parents and other taxpayers," he said. "The public has a right to know, even if informed citizens can cause problems sometimes."

Mancini, if elected, would represent trustee area 6, the inland portion of Laguna Niguel, currently represented by incumbent Bob Hurst.

Making Laguna Niguel a stronger area within the Capistrano district would be one of Mancini's goals, if he is elected, he said.

"We in Laguna Niguel have felt at times that we are getting the school district leftovers," said the candidate, who has twice served as the Laguna Niguel Homeowners' Association president and twice as vice president of the Saddleback Area Coordinating Council.

"I have been very involved in the community since we moved to Laguna Niguel nine years ago," he said. "I had in mind running for the school board in the past two elections, but this year everything seemed to come together for me."

Mancini, 34, is an insurance man who says he looks at everything logically and does not base decisions on emotions. He said devoting time to the schools is an extension of his role as parent.

"I want to make sure the growth that is inevitable in the Capistrano district does not dilute the quality of my sons' education," he said.

"I learned during the time I spent coaching Little League that the kids are more important than winning," Mancini said. "This carries over to schools."

Mancini said he doesn't put much stock in test scores as a valid measure of what a person knows.

"I feel every individual is capable of learning," he said. "I am not ready to chalk up test score differences among schools to socio-economic factors. I think there's more involved."

Apathy is a problem in the Capistrano school district, Mancini said. People take action only when an action hits home. He said one way to get people involved is to try to keep them better informed.

"When parents find out about a district decision after the decision is already made, they're going to be turned off," he said. "It's a matter again of needing better communication."

"What it all comes down to is that I am looking to keep the Capistrano school district as good as it is now, maybe making it better," he said.

Shot in Head

Killer of Two Teens Hunted

Christopher J. Barber, 16, and his girlfriend, Linda Bosteder, 15, were each killed execution-style with a single bullet in the head from a small-caliber weapon, said detective Larry Murray.

Both bodies were found Sunday in a dry irrigation ditch about a half mile from Interstate 15, authorities said.

Ironically, Barber and Miss Bosteder apparently had decided to abort their hitchhiking plan shortly before they were shot.

Murray said the girl had called a friend in Riverside asking for a ride back home. The two teen-agers were last seen alive when they told their parents Thursday they were leaving for Arizona.

The girl's body was nude, Murray said, except for a pair of socks. He estimated the girl had been dead 18 to 48 hours when found and the body had decomposed to such an extent in the hot weather that it was impossible to determine if she had been sexually molested.

The boy was fully clothed, said the detective, who speculated the double murder may have been committed by someone who had picked up the hitchhiking couple along Interstate 15 and later drove and carried the bodies to the ditch.

Outside PE Classes Mean Exemptions

Saddleback Valley Unified School District high school students who receive private instruction in a specialized physical activity may not have to take physical education in school.

Trustees have approved a policy that allows students getting lessons in such things as ballet and figure skating to petition for exemption from the classes.

The exemption, however, will be limited to "unusual circumstances such as preparation for professional performance," according to the policy. It does not include participation in community team sports.

The policy was opposed by Trustee George Henry. "We're not very healthy now," he argued. "I think everybody ought to have physical education, including me."

Forecast Calls For Some Rain

Weather prognosticators see rainfall in their Orange Coast crystal ball, but it's not expected until late Wednesday or early Thursday morning.

Los Angeles Weather Service meteorologist Walt Rogers said a storm that was forecast to bring 30 percent chance of showers, went through Southern California in a hurry this morning, bringing winds and sunshine instead. (Related stories Pages A5, 8, 12.)

"The trailing end of that front was just too weak to bring in rain," he said, adding that the rainfall on much of the state stopped in the San Bernardino area.

Rogers said a high pressure system that had been hovering off the northern coast causing summer weather has moved south and is now off Baja California, allowing storms to track into northern California.

He said the north part of the state is cloudy and more rain is expected tonight.

"There's a pretty good chance we'll get rain down here late Wednesday or Thursday morning," he said.

Mangers Eyes State Buy of Bolsa Chica

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) announced today that he will introduce legislation Wednesday to purchase 923.7 acres of the Bolsa Chica wetlands with money from state tideland oil royalties surplus.

The acreage covers almost the entire lowland areas.

The original proposal called for acquisition of 800 acres but the area was expanded at the suggestion of the State Lands Commission, an aide to Mangers said.

Mangers' bill proposes the State Lands Commission buy the land and turn it over to the State Department of Fish and Game for development of a wildlife habitat, tideland restoration and preservation of scenic open space.

The bill specifically prohibits dredging of navigable channels to support shipping or recreational boating and landfill projects for the development of residential, commercial or industrial sites.

While the cost amount will not yet appear in the bill, the purchase price is expected to range from $2.5 million to $4 million.

Saddleback Sets Lectures By Explorer

Global explorer John Goddard, whose expeditions have traversed 113 countries and more than a million miles, will present two free lectures Wednesday at Saddleback College.

Goddard will present a talk on Thailand at 11 a.m. and a two-hour, film-illustrated lecture entitled "From Andes to Amazon" at 7:30 p.m. Both programs will take place in Room 313 of the Science and mathematics building.

Goddard first gained international reputation for exploring the River Nile, the world's longest, from its source to its mouth for the first time in history. He conducted a similar "first time" expedition down the length of the Congo River.

In 1972, he was credited with having flown in an airplane faster than any civilian, excluding test pilots. At an altitude of 63,000 feet, his plane flew 1,500 miles per hour.

Film Director Robert Wise Plans Lecture

Academy award-winning director Robert Wise, whose credits include "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music," will discuss his role in the motion picture industry in an illustrated lecture Wednesday at Saddleback College.

His lecture is part of the Mission Viejo school's spring forum series called "Master of Modern Film." It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Room 313 of the science and mathematics building. Admission is free.

The subject of Wise's talk will be "What Does a Director Do?" He will illustrate his talk with a special screening of the 1963 film "The Haunting," starring Julie Harris, which he directed and produced.

The veteran filmmaker has directed 36 films. The most recent is the disaster movie "The Hindenberg." Wise will be available to answer questions after his presentation.

SVUSD Sets March 8 Meet

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees have no meetings scheduled until after the March 8 school board election.

Trustees have postponed their regular meeting, scheduled for March 2, until March 8.

Trustees also said they will meet April 13 rather than April 6.

Nixon Vote Fund To Pay $200,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former President Nixon's 1972 campaign fund have agreed to pay $200,000 in an out-of-court legal settlement to four men recruited for the original Watergate burglary.

"This settlement provides what we have been saying along, that the Cubans were tricked into participating in the Watergate entries," their lawyer, Daniel Schultze, said today.

The civil case had been scheduled to go on trial Thursday before U.S. District Judge Charles Richey.

The original lawsuit filed by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis asked $2 million in damages, mainly from former officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President.

The list of defendants in the case read like a Who's Who of the Watergate scandals which drove Nixon from office. They included former Atty. Gen. John N.

Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, retired CIA official E. Howard Hunt, G. Gordon Liddy and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

All served as officials of the Committee to Re-elect the President, now known as the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust.

In their suit, the four Miami men, often referred to as the foot soldiers of Watergate, alleged that they believed they were working for the National Security Agency or the CIA when recruited for the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

All four said they had participated in CIA operations against the Castro government in Cuba, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. All served more than a year in prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from their part in the burglary.

Schultze said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

SVUSD to Purchase Viejo School Site

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees hope to buy a new elementary school site in Mission Viejo by selling another unused site in that community.

Trustees have agreed to begin the process required to sell the unused site on Montanoso Drive.

The land was purchased in 1968 but, according to Robert Ferguson, the district's director of planning and development, enrollment projections verify that it won't be needed for a future school.

In 1968, the land's fair market value was $300,000. Trustees have agreed to have the land re-appraised.

The money from the sale of this land is expected to be enough to purchase another site at Entidad and Los Alisos Boulevard in northern Mission Viejo.

Trustees also have authorized an appraisal to determine the fair market value of this land.

The unused site on Montanoso Drive currently is being used by the Mission Viejo Little League. Ferguson said he has promised to help find them another place to play.

School Plans Mouse Follies

Door prizes also will be given during the follies, which is sponsored by the school's Advisory Organization.

Tickets will be sold before school and at the door before the performance. Admission is $1 for adults and 50-cents for children.

Women Suffer Law's Inequities

By SYLVIA PORTER
(First in a series.)

During the past 40 years, the Social Security system has been repeatedly modernized with a patchwork of amendments to the original law and court decisions, but not one basic change has taken into account the changing role of women in the American economy.

Not one amendment has focused on the fundamental shifts in family relationships and lifestyles.

NOT ONE LAW OR COURT DECISION has challenged

Of course, giving the dependents of women workers the full rights enjoyed by the dependents of male workers is de-run rights enjoyed by the dependents of male workers is desirable and overdue. But much more fundamental is the need to recognize that women do not necessarily fit into either the category of lifelong housewife or of lifelong earner.

Ninety percent of women work outside the home for pay during at least some part of their lives. More than 45 percent of the paid work force today consists of women. Sixty percent of women working for pay are married.

SINCE THE 1940 CENSUS (following the enactment of Social Security legislation), the proportion of women in every age group in the work force has soared. Among women 35 to 44, it has doubled; among women 45 to 64, it has increased 2½ times; among women 65 and over, it has more than quadrupled.

The trend born in the 1930s became increasingly powerful after World War II when women, actively recruited to replace men called up for service, wanted to continue working.

Other forces since then have added strength to the development. Among them: college attendance and women's desire for careers, the move toward later marriages, steady decline in the birthrate since 1957, growing acceptance of childless marriages, rising divorce rates, greater longevity and families' need or desire for two incomes.

Mexico to Probe Oil, Gas Supply

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's proven crude oil reserves now total 11 billion barrels but eventually should surpass the previous estimate of 60 billion barrels, says the man in charge of the government-owned petroleum industry.

The president of Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex), Jorge Diaz Serrano, gave the 11 billion figure for proven reserves Monday.

HE SAID THE 60 MILLION probable reserves figure made public by U.S. petroleum industry sources last week was too low and the ultimate figure would be "much superior to that," but he refused to specify.

The 60 billion figure would amount to six times the re-

The 6 billion figure would amount to six times the reserves in Alaska's North Slope and account for nearly one-tenth of the world's proven oil reserves of 700 billion barrels. It would place Mexico among the top oil nations in terms of reserves.

LATEST OIL INDUSTRY FIGURES, for instance, show Saudi Arabia with reserves of 148 billion barrels, and the United States with 125 billion.

Diaz Serrano said Pemex has "substantial indications" of big oil fields in the Gulf of Mexico states of Veracruz, Tabasco and Campeche.

He said they were "as important and with the same characteristics" as the "Reforma" fields discovered two years ago in Chiapas state that converted Mexico from an importer to an exporter of crude.

THE REFORMA FIELDS CURRENTLY have 100 wells producing 5,500 barrels a day each. Diaz Serrano said the new La Sonda offshore fields in Campeche will hopefully have 120 wells with a 3,000-barrel daily production each by 1990.
