Spanish King Sued In Tenerife Crash

The King of Spain has been named as a defendant in a wrongful death suit filed on behalf of a Laguna Hills Leisure World woman who died March 27 in the world's worst aviation disaster.

The suit was filed Monday in San Francisco federal court by Walter Michael Watt, special administrator for the estate of Jean Houston, 508C Ave. Sevilla, Leisure World. Mrs. Houston, who traveled extensively since the death of her husband five years ago, was a victim of the ground collision between a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 and a Pan Am 747 in the Canary Islands.

The suit requests unspecified damages for wrongful death and loss of property.

"His Catholic Majesty the King of Spain and the Kingdom of Spain" and the two airlines are named as defendants.

The suit said the Canary Islands are a province of Spain and the government of Spain operated the international airport facility at Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands, known as the Los Rodeos Airport.

It alleges that Spain, through its subjects and employes at the airport and airport control facility "were negligent and careless and otherwise derelict" in their duties in the movement and control of the aircraft.

Gang Hits Again?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Beverly Hills jewelry store was robbed Monday by two men who police believe were part of a gang responsible for up to 10 robberies in the past six months.

Newport Eatery Robbed

A dapper gunman conned his way into the Warehouse Restaurant in Newport Beach early today and then pulled a revolver on the night manager and took $1,600 from the safe.

Police said the suspect made his getaway from the restaurant at 3450 Via Oporto after handcuffing victim John Schirmer to the safe in the restaurant's office.

In addition to the evening's receipts, police said the bandit got a green Hawaiian print shirt.

Det. Dgt. Ken Thompson said Shirmer received a call at about 2 a.m. from a man who identified himself as Gene Ratton. He told the manager he had lost an envelope of important papers in the restaurant.

Sgt. Thompson said an envelope with a notice of late payment of attorney's fees apparently had been planted in the restaurant. Schirmer told the man he could have it if he could be at the restaurant in 15 minutes.

When the man arrived, Schirmer kept him outside the door until departing dishwashers opened it and the man came inside.

Schirmer said the so-called Ratton, who was dressed in a gray suit with an open-neck sports shirt, discussed the restaurant's banquet facilities before pulling a small revolver from his pocket.

He directed Schirmer to the safe and warned him that he would kill him if Schirmer failed to do as he ordered.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police say they are holding a 24-year-old man for questioning in the apparently motiveless slaying of Paul Gregory Nelson, 15, who had been jogging along the sidewalk.

Witnesses told police an attacker began stabbing Nelson Sunday night, then followed him into the street, thrusting a knife into the youth, several more times before Nelson fell screaming to the pavement.

The yough died a few minutes later in a hospital emergency room.

Instant Movie

Polaroid Ends Rumors

A long-time dream of inventor and company founder Edwin Land, 67, the movies-in-a-minute system was the subject of much speculation before the announcement. But the company did not announce the system officially before today.

With annual sales of $950 million last year, Polaroid is far smaller than photography rival Eastman Kodak Co., which got into the instant camera business for the first time about a year ago.

But Polaroid announced a 33 percent increase in first-quarter earnings last week: $14 million or 43 cents per share on record sales of $192 million. Kodak reported a 20 percent drop in first-quarter profits.

The instant motion picture equipment and film sales are expected to give the company a major boost in revenues. Those hopes were reflected in the stock market, when Polaroid shares rose 1⅛ Monday to 33⅛.

Foundation Files Irvine Sales Papers

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

Mobil officials have refused to make any such concession to the granddaughter of James Irvine II.

Judge Judge made it clear late Monday that he is not compelled to approve the higher offer for

Breezes Protect Trailers

A crow, electrocuted on high-tension wires, fell burning into scrub behind the El Morro Trailer Park off Pacific Coast Highway near Laguna Beach Monday and touched off an 85-acre Irvine Ranch brushfire that burned 19 hours before it was out.

More than 125 firefighters from the California Division of Forestry, Orange County Fire Department, Laguna Beach Fire Department and the Irvine Ranch fought the fire.

They were assisted by three twin-engine air tankers that dropped more than 6,000 gallons of fire-retardant chemicals on the blaze swept by light winds up the Moro Canyon ridgelines inland away from the trailer park.

Trailer park residents anxiously watched the billows of smoke pour over the hills closest to them. One resident said she wasn't worried, "as long as that wind keeps blowing the other way."

The firefighting was hampered twice by unexpected delays.

Spray Can Warning Approved by FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using fluorocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning after Oct. 31:

"Warning: contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

About 85 percent of aerosol products containing the chemicals are covered by the FDA regulation. The remaining 15 percent are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission — CPSC — or the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA already requires a warning label on pesticide aerosols containing fluorocarbons, and the product safety commission proposal is expected to take effect early next year.

The FDA and CPSC joint announcement said details of a mandatory phase-out program for all nonessential aerosols using fluorocarbons will be announced shortly.

"The label warning and ultimate ban will affect almost half the 2.4 billion pressurized containers sold in the United States each year," the agencies said. "The other half of such products use other propellants."

Among the products affected by today's action are deodorants, antiperspirants, hair sprays, colognes — all regulated by FDA — and household cleaners and air fresheners regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

FDA said its order would not apply to over-the-counter drugs used for inhalation therapy for bronchial asthma, contraceptive vaginal foams and cytology fixatives which are medical devices used in a cancer diagnostic procedure. Use of fluorocarbons in those products is essential, the FDA said.

Food and Drug Commissioner Donald Kennedy issued a statement with the announcement saying depletion of the earth's ozone layer "could increase the incidence of skin cancer worldwide, cause changes in the climate and have other undesirable effects."

UCI Professor

World Action Cited On Fluorocarbons

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

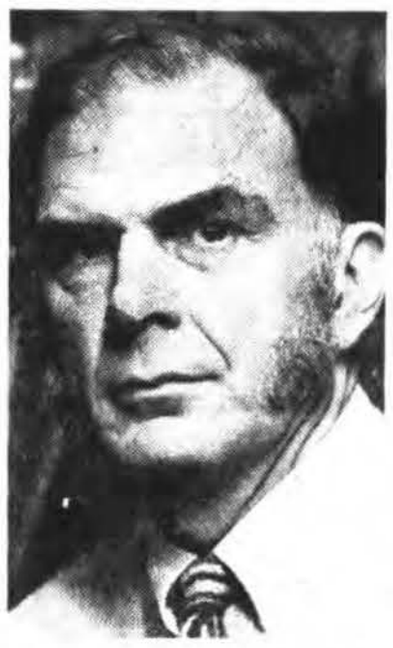

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate of fluorocarbon production continues, there will be at least 50,000 new cases of skin cancer each year.

Rowland observed that Canada and Sweden have already pledged to follow a path similar to that being taken by the United States. Other countries, though, have not yet decided, he said.

The UCI scientist also said it's important that individual states continue to enact their own bans to go along with the anticipated federal ban.

"It's double protection. First, it expresses people's beliefs that the bans are necessary, and second, it quickly limits the fluorocarbon market for manufacturers," Rowland pointed out.

the Irvine Company regardless of which contender submits the highest bid.

He warned lawyers for both sides that there are many other issues to be considered, among them the argument that a rapidly improving economic outlook in Orange County might mean a much better price for the Irvine Company within the next few years.

Mrs. Smith has agreed with that suggestion during testimony. She believes that the Irvine Company today is worth at least $450 million.

The sale of the Irvine Company became mandatory with the passage of the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969. The measure compels charitable foundations to divest themselves of private company holdings by 1983.

A last minute sensation appeared to be in the making late Monday when telegrams from a company identified as Jerard Development Limited were delivered in the courtroom to lawyers for both sides and Judge Judge.

The firm, further identified as a consortium of businessmen based in Philadelphia, said in the telegrams that it is prepared to pay $325 million for the Irvine Company.

Both Friedman and Privett immediately rejected the offer as worthless.

They said the Jerard group has not proved its ability to meet such a financial commitment in the past during an earlier approach to the Foundation that was not made public.

'Blowout Killers' Delay Second Day

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — The team of American "blowout killers" seeking to cap a runaway oil well in the North Sea today decided to postpone the operation one more day to lift more equipment onto the rig.

Plans to cap the well were postponed Monday by gale-force winds.

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Since the well blew Friday, the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig has been spewing between 840,000 and 1.05 million gallons a day into the sea, forming a slick six miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long.

At current oil cartel prices, the well was throwing away about $300,000 worth of crude oil a day. About 40 to 60 percent of crude oil can be refined into gasoline, experts said, meaning the oil lost so far could run about 2,800 cars for a year.

At current U.S. consumption levels, the oil lost by noon today would supply the entire United States for about 24 minutes, an expert in Washington said.

The two American experts, Boots Hansen and Richard Hatenorg of the renowned team of Texas oil well fire fighter Red Adair, made the decision to postpone capping operations after boarding the rig for the third time since they arrived on the scene Saturday. Four other men — two from Adair's crew and two from Phillips, also inspected the rig today.

They said they need more time to bring up special equipment from the barge Choctaw, which is sitting alongside Bravo and serving as their main operational base.

"We still feel confident the leakage can be closed fast as soon as all equipment is available and the work can begin, maybe within the next 24 hours," said Dag Mayer Hansen, spokesman for the Norwegian oil directorate. "The work itself can be done pretty fast, in one or two days."

Dutch oil experts who surveyed the slick said they felt sure the spilled oil would break down before reaching coastlines if the blowout killers can close the leakage this week.

Six Norwegian vessels began laying two protective lines of floating booms six nautical miles north of the Ekofisk field. The vessels are equipped with skimmers to lift the oil from the surface. More booms, skimmers and pumps were expected on the scene later.

The Norwegian Meteorological Institute said weather forecasts for the next 24 hours were favorable for the operation.

Parents Convicted of Abuse

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP) — The parents of a girl, whose mother said was conceived in a rape, have been convicted of keeping the child in a tiny, dark cubicle for much of her eight years.

"Every time I looked at her, I saw the face of that man who raped me," Linda Faye Burchfield, 31, testified during the week-long trial.

Mrs. Burchfield showed little emotion Monday when a jury found her guilty of child abuse, conspiracy, assault and false imprisonment. Her husband, Billy Floyd Burchfield, 38, was convicted by the judge on the same charges.

Patricia Anne Saunders weighed only 20 pounds and had the bone structure of a child less than half her age when police found her last summer in a 2- by 5-foot cubicle, according to testimony in the trial, which was moved here from Baltimore because of publicity.

Patricia, who is now with a foster family and reported doing well, had lighted cigarettes placed on her feet and hands as punishment, her 11-year-old sister Susan testified.

Susan told the court her sister slept and ate in the closet and did not go to school or out to play.

"Sometimes I let Patty out of the closet when my mother was out bowling," Susan testified. "I'd let her play with my stuff and we'd talk about everything."

The only light in the closet was the "light that came in under the door," Susan said.

Mrs. Burchfield's attorney, Robert Mann, said in his closing argument Monday that his client was a "sick woman" and was not responsible for her actions.

Mrs. Burchfield "never had any real love — from her stepparents, to that 'real winner,' her husband, Billy Burchfield," he said.

She also testified that she had been sexually assaulted by an unknown man when she was 7. Her first marriage to Harry Saunders was stormy and ended in divorce, she said.

Helen Laisure White, Mrs. Burchfield's foster mother, testified she found the child in the closet for the second time last July. Two years earlier she had discovered Patricia in the closet, she said, but Burchfield managed to remove the girl before authorities arrived.

Baltimore County Police Lt. Lee Peters said when he found Patricia, "she came to me immediately and I took her in my arms." He said she told him she was hungry.

He also told the court that pictures of the child when found "don't depict the smell."

Somerset Circuit Court Judge Lloyd Simpkins set May 27 for sentencing.

Mrs. Burchfield had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the charges. Her husband on Monday withdrew his earlier plea of innocent by reason of insanity and entered an innocent plea.

Simpkins convicted him after a statement of facts was presented to the court by an assistant state's attorney.

Homeowners Oppose Gisler Bridge

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A bridge over the Santa Ana River at Gisler Avenue raises for some homeowners the specter of increased traffic problems along Mesa Verde residential streets.

The bridge would connect Garfield Avenue, the Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley border, with Gisler, bringing eastbound traffic to Costa Mesa.

A City Council resolution opposing the bridge was recently sent to county Environmental Management Agency (EMA) officials.

"The last thing we need in this area is a bridge," said Costa Mesa realtor Paul Huber, who lives on Gisler.

Huber sent out 1,500 fliers to homeowners in Mesa Verde, outlining a proposed $50,000 bridge study, financed by the EMA.

Huber says Costa Mesa has little to gain by the bridge access, saying that most of the traffic generated would be coming from Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley—not the other way around.

"The only people going west would be those visiting friends in those two cities," he said.

He said condominium and apartment projects in north Huntington Beach and in Fountain Valley have increased the populations in those two cities.

"Most of the traffic would be pouring into Costa Mesa and those folks will be taking residential streets in Mesa Verde to get to the shopping centers," he warned.

His fears are echoed by Verlin Marth, another north Costa Mesa resident, who sees nothing but trouble with completion of a four-lane bridge over the river.

"There's no way those motorists are going to drive straight down Gisler to Harbor," he said. "They're going to take shortcuts right through the heart of Mesa Verde."

Marth said he didn't understand why the county would spend $50,000 on a study when county officials know "Costa Mesa doesn't even want the damn thing."

Councilman Dom Raciti, who introduced the anti-bridge resolution to the council, agrees.

"Why don't we ask them to use that $50,000 for a worthwhile project," Raciti said.

But Jim Eldridge, the city's public works director, says he

Oil Well Continues To Flow

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Witnesses For Doctor Rest Case

Defense attorneys for Dr. William B. Waddill of Huntington Harbour presented their final witnesses today in a hearing to determine if the physician should be tried on charges of killing an hour-old infant.

Deputy District Attorney Bob Chatterton said Judge Kenneth M. Smith is expected to decide whether to remand the case to Orange County Superior Court Wednesday.

Chatterton said he and Waddill's attorneys will present final arguments in the closed preliminary hearing in West Orange County Municipal Court Wednesday.

Waddill, 43, is charged with murder in connection with the March 2 strangulation death of a baby girl at Westminster Community Hospital.

Waddill is free on $25,000 bail.

Musicians Motivated

Honor Band to Perform in Costa Mesa

For conductor Charles Yates and the 75 young members of the Newport-Mesa Elementary Honor Band, Wednesday night is their chance to reward the public, and themselves, with the results of their long hours of musical effort.

The band, made up of the best fourth through sixth grade musicians in the district, will present its annual free concert at Costa Mesa High School Lyceum starting at 7:30 p.m.

During the hour-long performance the band will play eight musical selections, ranging from James Dodd's "Mickey Mouse March" to Serge Prokofieff's "The Love of Three Oranges."

"They are so enthusiastic and so eager there's been no problem with motivation. They're raring to go," said Yates, who will handle the baton this year after managing the honor band for the past five years.

Each year musical directors face the difficult task of pulling talented youngsters together into an integrated performing unit for a one shot presentation.

After auditions are held in mid-February, Yates and company have about two months to whip their act together. This time is broken down into seven two-hour practice sessions held Wednesday nights at Costa Mesa High School.

"The kids have really stuck to it and they've done a good job," said Yates, who has selected material that is melodic and fun to play, but challenging enough to require many hours of practice at home.

Young musicians who work the hardest have a chance to perform one number with what Yates calls his "super band," featuring the best musicians out of a flock of very talented young people. This year's super band will play "Hosts of Freedom" by Earl King during Wednesday's concert.

Yates sees the annual conert as an important step for young musicians, many of whom will move on to perform with middle school and then high school ensembles.

And, by drawing students from throughout the district's 25 elementary schools, the concert can mean new pals and the chance of developing long-lasting musical friendships.

Secret Vault Fun Related at Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Boyce, accused of espionage, took the witness stand in his own defense today and told of drinking parties within top-secret vaults at the defense research plant where he worked.

Boyce said that a marijuana plant was grown and displayed inside one of the secret communications centers at TRW Systems Inc. and one employe used the secure phones in "the war room" to place bets with his bookie.

"We used to drink vodka and orange juice in the vault all the time," the 23-year-old Boyce said under questioning by his attorney, William Dougherty.

"I'd say I drank with about 10 people . . . there was always a bottle in there behind the teletype link," Boyce said.

In an effort to prove that security was so lax that others might have stolen information, Boyce told how another employe made imitation security badges which were used by at least one person to walk in and out of the plant.

"He made a badge with a monkey on it for a joke," Boyce said.

He told how a marijuana plant sat in open view on a work table and told of attending a beer party on the day he was briefed about security regulations.

Death Tale Repeated By Witness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Kasabian, who says she's trying to forget her life with the Charles Manson "family," has recited without tears the nightmare details of the Sharon Tate murders.

The 27-year-old Mrs. Kasabian, star witness of the 1970 Manson trial, retold the grisly story for jurors at the retrial of former Manson follower Leslie Van Houten.

She spoke of shootings and stabbings, of bloody victims staggering across the lawn of Miss Tate's mansion and a young man crying out: "Please don't hurt me."

"I couldn't believe it," she said. "It just didn't seem real."

Her voice was a monotone and her face blank as she sat in the witness box, a plump mother of four whose past had come back to haunt her.

"Have you sought to repress memories of your six weeks with Manson at the Spahn ranch?" asked Miss Van Houten's attorney, Maxwell Keith, as he began cross-examination.

"I don't think about them," Mrs. Kasabian said flatly.

She said she had read transcripts of the first trial to refresh her memory and "a few points were hazy."

But she remembered the Aug. 8, 1969, trip to the Tate home with Manson followers Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkle and Charles "Tex" Watson.

Decision On Bids Awaited

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

doubts the bridge feasibility study will cost $50,000.

"My opinion is, the county needs to complete the study. They have our opinion on the matter and that opinion should be incorporated in their study," Eldridge said.

But, he said, asking the county to save the money on the study would not be appropriate.

"We are only one part of the county, only one input. They might study it and find out that, based on all the opposition, there is no need for a bridge."

"They can't make a decision based solely on our resolution," he said. "The bridge, after all, is on the county's master plan of arterial highways."

His personal opinion?

"I think the study will show the bridge is not necessary or desirable," Eldridge said. "If so, the county should take it off the master plan."

The public works chief added that, even if the county approved funding of the bridge, they would have to have city cooperation to complete approaches to the structure.

"And we've already said we would do that," he said.

Meanwhile, EMA officials today would not comment on the bridge study, and a spokesman for Fifth District Supervisor Thomas Riley said he would be discussing the Costa Mesa council resolution with the supervisor later this week.

Measures Called Limited

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer, caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate of fluorocarbon production continues, there will be at least 50,000 new cases of skin cancer each year.

Rowland observed that Canada and Sweden have already pledged to follow a path similar to that being taken by the United States. Other countries, though, have not yet decided, he said.

The UCI scientist also said it's important that individual states continue to enact their own bans to go along with the anticipated federal ban.

"It's double protection. First, it expresses people's beliefs that the bans are necessary, and second, it quickly limits the fluorocarbon market for manufacturers," Rowland pointed out.

Health Alert To Be Placed On Spray Cans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

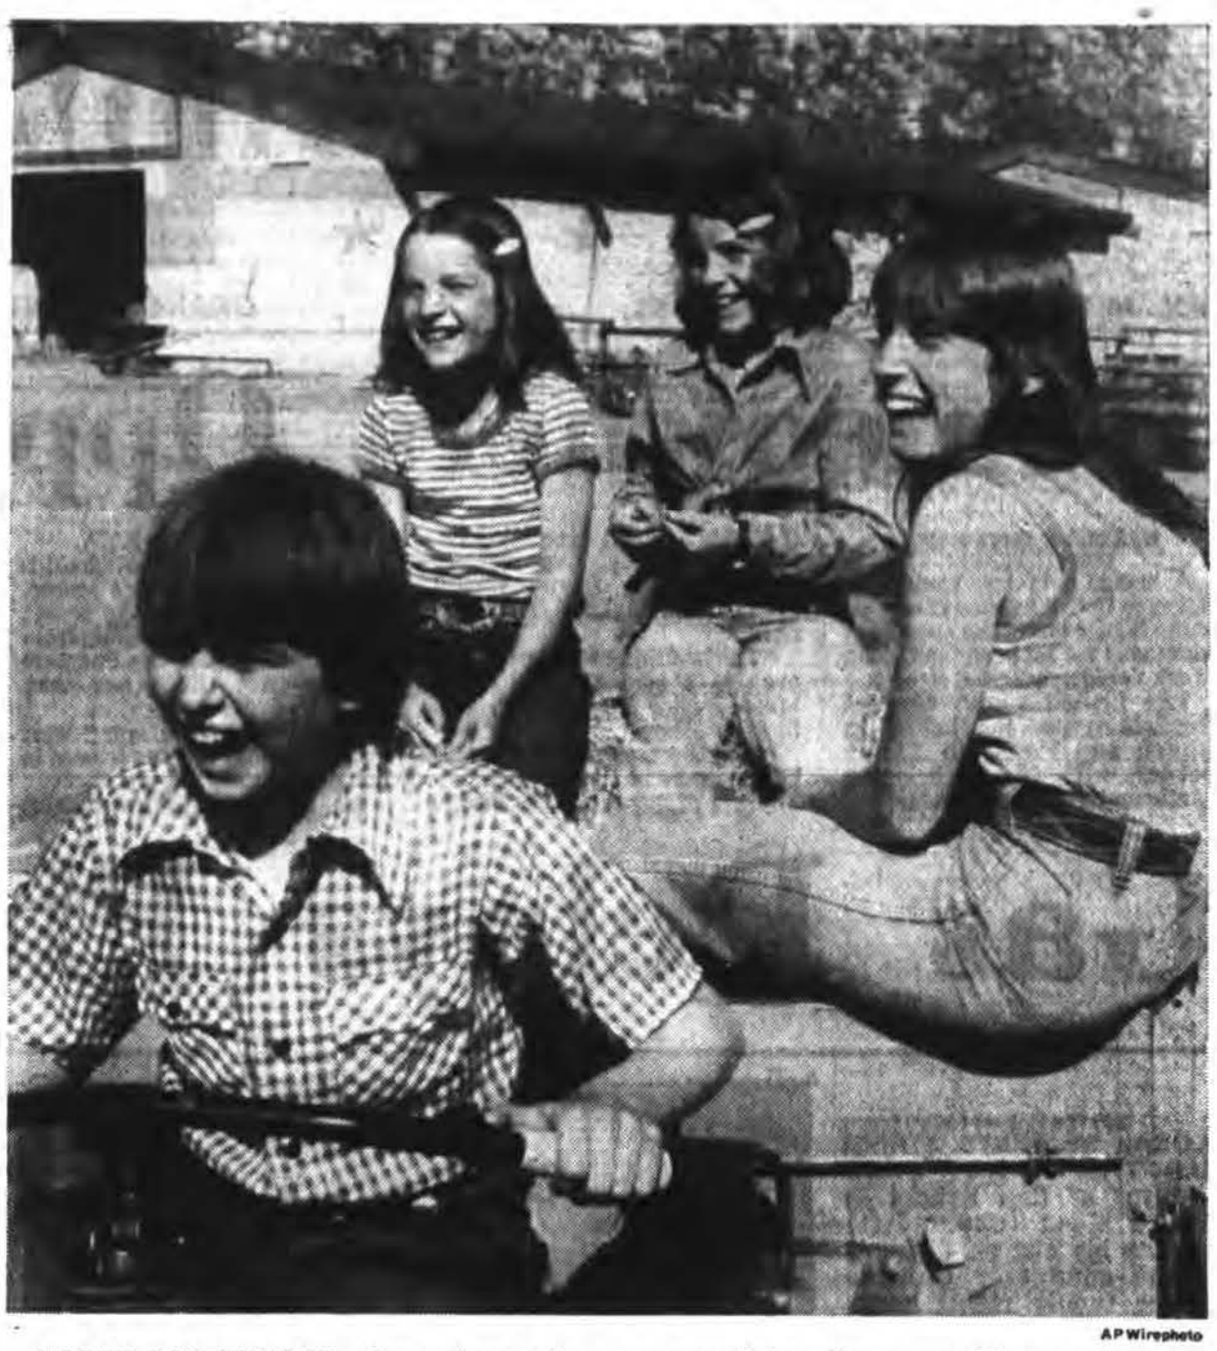

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using fluorocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning after Oct. 31:

"Warning: contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

About 85 percent of aerosol products containing the chemicals are covered by the FDA regulation. The remaining 15 percent are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission — CPSC — or the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA already requires a warning label on pesticide aerosols containing fluorocarbons, and the product safety commission proposal is expected to take effect early next year.

The FDA and CPSC joint announcement said details of a mandatory phase-out program for all nonessential aerosols using fluorocarbons will be announced shortly.

Kids Granted Permit

Horse Manure Firm Must Charge Tax

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The California Board of Equalization awarded a seller's permit today to a horse-manure distribution firm run by children who made up to $3,000 a month without collecting or paying state sales tax.

A senior tax representative of the board made the decision after meeting 45 minutes with the company's officers who range in age from 9 to 14 years.

The permit, No. 25686734, provides that they must now charge a sales tax on some but not necessarily all the homegrown fertilizer which is sold.

Neither tax official Bill Atwell nor an attorney for the children would say if any back taxes must be paid.

"We shouldn't be taxed," he said before the meeting.

"We're just kids. They ought to be glad we're out working on our own instead of being out someplace busting windows."

The action involved KIDCO, Inc., a corporation founded and run by the children of Richard Cessna, who operates the equestrian center at San Diego Country Estates, a planned community in Ramona.

Cessna said the children let him sit in at board meetings, but make their own decisions.

The firm, whose primary service is selling manure and wood shavings from the stable floors in the form of compost for nurseries and golf courses, incorporated in the British West Indies last year to prevent it from being subject to California taxes.

KIDCO contends the taxes are paid when horse feed and wood shavings are purchased, so there should be no tax on the back end.

The state, however, maintains the byproduct is new — compost — and the services offered by the youngsters are tangible and subject to sales taxes.

KIDCO also sweeps the streets of the community for $150 per month, exterminates gophers for $1 each and dabbles in anything else at which a profit can be turned.

Other officers of the firm, which made $3,000 last October, its best month, are Richard Jr.'s sisters, 9-year-old Ne-Ne, a vice president; Bette, 11, secretary; and their half-sister, June Cole, 14, treasurer.

National Group Honors UCI Prof

Dr. Richard F. Thompson, UC Irvine psychobiology professor, has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences, the academy announced today.

Membership in the academy is considered one of the highest honors given to American scientists and engineers. The academy, headquartered in Washington, serves as an adviser to the federal government in matters of science and technology.

Thompson, of Newport Beach, is the second current UCI professor elected to the academy. The other is Howard Schneiderman, biological sciences dean, who was chosen in 1974.

Sixty members were elected to the academy this year including eight from the UC system, bringing the total membership to 1,219.

Thompson has been at UCI since 1967, except for a year and a half in 1973 and 1974 when he was in the psychology department at Harvard University.

He previously taught at University of Wisconsin and the University of Oregon Medical He is a graduate of Reed College and earned his master's degree and doctorate in psychology from the University of Wisconsin.

Thompson was also the recipient of the Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award, presented by the American Psychological Association in 1974 for his work in brain function and behavior.

STORAGE: Approved a permit — with conditions — for construction of a 5,000-square-foot storage building at 3315 Fairview Road requested by C.J. Segerstrom and Sons.

APARTMENTS: Continued until May 9 a hearing for a 4.2 percent density variance for seven apartment units at 2677 Orange Ave.

ZONE EXCEPTION: Sent to City Council with no recommendation a request for an 8.1 percent density variance to build three apartment units in conjunction with a home at 1996 Anaheim Ave.

Californians Would Favor Water Ration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The majority of Californians surveyed on the state's water shortage said they would favor statewide rationing if needed, according to Mervin D. Field's California Poll released today.

Pollster Field said about four out of five Californians, regardless of where they live, believe water rationing should not be confined to water-short counties.

He said more Northern California residents were concerned about water, but "even in the south the greatest number of people see the water shortage as serious and favor statewide rationing."

Field said 93 percent of those surveyed said they were practicing some form of water conservation.

Californians said agriculture and health and safety should be given the highest priorities for water, according to the poll. They listed households next and said industry and business should be given the lowest priority for water.

The poll surveyed 962 adult Californians last month.

Ragtime, Bingo Win Trophies

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Editor

ENSENADA—Ragtime, the 65-foot sloop coskippered by Bill White and Bill Pasquini of Long Beach Yacht Club, was officially declared the winner of the President of the United States trophy as the Performance Handicap Racing Fleet division winner in the 30th Newport to Ensenada yacht race.

The handicap victory was particularly gratifying to the Ragtime crew as they were the first yacht to finish in one of the slowest races on record.

Winner of the President of Mexico trophy for the best corrected time in the Ocean Racing Division was Bingo, a 37-foot sloop sailed by Dennis Choate, also Long Beach Yacht Club.

Only 400 of the 504 starters finished the race because of light winds that forced many of them to abandon the effort at San Diego or to finish at Ensenada under power.

Ironically the winds at Ensenada were whipping up a small gale at about the time the trophy presentation got under way, resulting in several yachts dragging anchor in the still crowded harbor. No serious damage was reported.

Late Monday afternoon there was an unverified report that one of the yachts returning from Ensenada had sprung a leak and was taking on water.

The winds forced many of the yachts returning homeward to face a wet beat to weather before reaching San Diego for the usual customs inspection.

Reports that hundreds of wives and children were stranded here because of the slowness of the race were erroneous. John Robinson, president of the sponsoring Newport Ocean Sailing Association, said accommodations had to be made for one or two families because their boats did not arrive until late Sunday.

Rooftop Waterbed

Inventor Touts Simple Solar Heat

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Solar energy pioneer Harold Hay says he has an energy scheme that can provide 100 percent of a household's heating and cooling needs.

He says his concept, which he calls Skytherm, can do it without the use of fans, pumps, gas, fuel or other "high technology gadgetry."

But the inventor says his concepts will never go over big in this country.

"It's too efficient," Hay told a science hall full of students and visitors Monday at Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa.

"Besides being too efficient, it's too simple," he shrugged.

The Los Angeles inventor's solar energy experiments won awards from the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission and the Department of Housing and Urban Development last year.

In addition to touting his energy saving concepts, Hay challenged the effectiveness of past programs for energy use, tossed in a bit of history, and a lot of quips during the OCC Environmental Fair lecture.

The heating process works by opening roof panels in order to allow the water ponds to absorb heat. Then, at night, insulation is moved over the ponds so that heat radiates down into the house.

'IT'S TOO SIMPLE'
Solar Booster Hay

Cooling is accomplished by closing the panels over the ponds during the day and opening them at night.

"Now, one problem we have is that people don't like the idea of all that water over their heads," Hay said.

"They don't seem to mind seven stories of waterbeds over them in their apartments, however," he grinned.

Hay says his "rooftop waterbed" concept is more efficient than the best air conditioner on the market.

He points to his Skytherm Southwest system in Atascadero as proof, saying that during a two-year test period, the indoor temperature stayed between 66 degrees and 74 degrees Fahrenheit, even when the outdoor temperature reached 100.

Hay says his cooling concepts come from ancient times, citing several instances where other cultures used solar heating and cooling.

He said rock dwellers in Turkey made sure their windows faced away from the sun, adding that the rocks also retained heat for the night hours.

Hay said the first thermo-insulated structures were the Egyptian pyramids but added it would cost more than $1 billion to build one today.

And, he said, the Chinese used to live under ground, "coming up every once in a while to mow the lawns."

When questioned, the inventor admitted to several problems in his system, including the fact that it is very difficult to incorporate the process in already existing homes.

"About 75 percent of homes today are not made for solar heating and cooling," he said, citing incorrect orientation to the sun and improper construction materials as reasons.

He said other areas might have problems with mosquitos in the open ponds atop the homes, "but a chemical could take care of that."

And, of course, the recent drought also raises some problems that Hays did not dwell upon.

He discounts price as a problem, saying the units are "cheaper than putting on a new roof."

What can the owner of existing homes do to promote Hay's concepts?

"Make sure all new houses are built with solar heating and cooling," he said, "because all the homes built in the future that use gas and electricity are taking that fuel and power away from your home."

Controlled Torque Motor Oil Saver

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Santa Ana electrical engineer has designed a more efficient electric motor which he says could save one to two million barrels of oil per day if it is put into wide use.

Cravens Wanlass told a news conference Monday that his "controlled torque" motor uses up to one-third less power than most electric motors. State officials termed the motor a "major billion-dollar breakthrough for energy conservation."

The engineer said the motor, developed in his home workshop, uses more efficient windings and larger capacitors — energy storing devices — than conventional motors. The larger capacitors allow more energy to be stored within the motor for use as needed.

"It's not an obvious design — it looks like a dumb thing to do," Wanlass said.

Glenn Bjorklund, a spokesman for Southern California Edison Co., which tested the device, said, "No one ever thought about doing it the way he did."

Wanlass said the new motor could be used in air conditioners, swimming pool filter motors, washing machines and other appliances as well as industrial machinery.

He said it would cost about $40 to modify a current one horsepower electric motor to his design. But he added that motors in some appliances, such as refrigerators, would be more difficult to convert because of their casings.

Several hundred of the motors have been tested in Southern California for several months, Wanlass said. Officials at a fast-food operation in Santa Monica said the 11 motors tested at the establishment since February resulted in a 20 percent power savings.

Wanlass estimates that between one and two million barrels of oil could be saved each day for every 500 million motors converted. The United States consumes 18 million barrels of oil per day.

A study for the Federal Energy Commission last year found that more than half of all the electricity generated in the nation runs electric motors in industry, business and homes.

Robert Batinovich, chairman of the state Public Utilities Commission, and Richard Maullin, state Energy Commission chairman, said that neither the PUC nor the Energy Commission was sponsoring the new motor. But Batinovich said it was the first time the PUC had ever touted an energy-saving device.

Discount Rule Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A special discount on utility bills granted to Pacific Gas & Electric Co. executives and other employes is unlawful and discourages conservation, a complaint to the Public Utilities Commission charges.

The complaint, filed by Public Advocates Inc., seeks to void PG&E's 25 percent across-the-board discount for gas and electricity granted all employes as a fringe benefit.

The discount "unfairly subsidizes wealthy company executives," the complaint charges, by providing cut rates for "heating swimming pools in the winter, lighting tennis courts and heating fifteen-room Atherton mansions at 75 degrees."

Nurse Wins Damage Suit

A Laguna Hills nurse was awarded $230,000 in damages Monday for injuries she suffered in an auto accident four years ago.

But Margaret Bliss, 59, will receive only $175,000 of that award. The jury ruled that she was 20 percent responsible for the collision at the Main Street offramp of the Santa Ana Freeway in Santa Ana.

Damages were awarded by the Orange County Superior Court jury against Truett K. Whitmire II, driver of the car which struck Mrs. Bliss' auto and Securities Auto Leasing from whom Whitmire leased the car.

Mrs. Bliss' lawyer asked the jury to award his client $500,000 in damages. He pointed out that she is still disabled as a result of the whiplash injury she suffered in 1973.

War Sparked Interest

OCTD Member Cites Resistance Efforts

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The public member of the new Orange County Transportation Commission says he became interested in the movement of people and supplies while working with the Allied Resistance during World War II.

Santa Ana businessman Zika Djokovich, unanimously selected for the post Monday said Hitler's Blitzkrieg war strategy and mass movement of troops and materials during the war piqued his interest.

He later studied engineering in Europe and has since served as an adviser both abroad and in the United States in areas of public transit, energy conservation, air pollution and engine design.

Djokovich and Newport Beach attorney Joe Walker were introduced in public by the other four commissioners during Monday's session.

They were finalists from a list of 80 county residents who had applied to represent the public on the new county transit panel.

The commission, created by legislation which took effect in January, is responsible for transportation planning and has budget review power over local bus systems and road-building projects.

The other commissioners are Fountain Valley Councilman Al Hollinden, Santa Ana Councilman David Brandt and county Supervisors Ralph Diedrich and Ralph Clark.

Djokovich, 48, a native of Yugoslavia, is president of Mission Viejo Lighting Co. in Santa Ana and chairman of the Orange County Civic Center Commission.

He told commissioners Monday he believed energy truly is a problem but that given incentives, U.S. industries would develop ways to depend more upon coal and coal by-products.

He noted during World War II, for example, only 10 percent of the German and Italian forces were using gasoline, while the rest operated with coal by-products.

Because American business and industry have not yet needed to develop new energy sources, they have not, he said.

Djokovich said Southern Californians may begin conserving use of their cars because of the increasing cost of gasoline.

They can be encouraged further, he continued, if local agencies provide convenient low-cost bus service along with transit centers offering convenient parking for travelers.

Walker, who is chairman of the Orange County Transit District's citizen advisory committee, said he believed the new panel would have the power "to make or break transportation in this county."

He said its duties would include encouraging bus and carpool use, getting the best use from existing bus and freeway networks and tackling such tasks as synchronizing traffic signals to reduce fuel consumption.

Walker said he believed less than half the Southern California residents believe there is a real fuel problem.

"I am not sure that they are ready to admit that the problem is going to affect the way they use their car," he said.

GEM WISE

Our last column on terminology couldn't explain all the common terms describing gems so today we'll cover a few more.

The term natural is applied to a gemstone that was created by nature. The only man-made modifications allowed are cutting and polishing. Clarity, depth of color, hardness and permanence are characteristics which make natural gems fascinating. In the past 100 years scientists have succeeded in duplicating these desirable qualities in laboratory specimens giving rise to the Synthetic Movement. America's contribution has been significant.

As early as 1880 chemists throughout the world were attempting diamond synthesis, but without luck. In 1955 General Electric successfully synthesized diamond, and, although the product was of industrial quality the breakthrough was momentous. Since then G.E. has synthesized gem-quality material, but the process is still too costly to profit the industry.

The synthesis of emerald is another challenge met in the United States. Carroll Chatham of San Francisco began experimenting in high school and succeeded in creating a synthetic emerald crystal in 1935 while still in college.

1974 saw the advent of synthetic alexandrite which exhibits a color change under different types of lighting just as the natural gem does. Creative Crystals of California is responsible for this exciting stone.

Not all man-made stones are synthetics. In order to be classified as such, a stone must have essentially the same physical, chemical and optical properties as its natural counterpart. The creation of a true synthetic is a difficult challenge.

There is a great difference in value between the natural and synthetic gemstones so it is wise to depend on knowledgeable and well-trained jewelers for this identification.

A man-made stone that does not have essentially the same chemical, optical and physical properties as the natural is called an imitation. Most companies manufacturing such a product use the term simulated. The stones are generally of poor quality and lack the beauty, durability and value of the natural or synthetic stones.

One other item to be aware of is the substitute. This is a natural stone that is passed off as a more valuable gem. For example, red zircon and spinel sometimes resemble ruby and could be passed off as such.

Here again you need the advice and expertise of a reliable jeweler with membership in the American Gem Society.

His Ellipsis Now Cured

SAY IT AGAIN: Ron Cordova, our freshman coastal assemblyman, has taken some measure of offense at being short-quoted in this space.

All this developed some days back when your faithful correspondent was reporting on dispatches out of Sacramento. There was, at the time, a heavy measure before the Assembly.

Cordova and his colleagues were pondering a bill that would allow persons having sex change operations to also alter their birth certificates to reflect that change.

Our new assemblyman, who has already drawn a Sacramento reputation of being a rather conservative Democrat, was questioned by the press on why he balloted in favor of the measure.

Wire dispatches out of the capital quoted Cordova as saying, "Government has no business in that area."

THUS IT WAS that I pondered the brevity of this reply that was such a dramatic departure from the expected pontifications of a politico, which usually extend to infinity on any question.

Alas, it now develops that the abbreiviated reply attributed to Cordova was in error.

The assemblyman has informed me that he was only partially quoted in what he terms an "enigmatic ellipsis."

Enigmatic Ellipsis? Good heavens, that's awful.

THAT SOUNDS LIKE it should be the name of some automobile you bought that turns out to have a Chevrolet engine in it.

Or maybe it's some creeping, odious malady you get between your toes, requiring odoriferous medication that stings.

Clearly then, Assemblyman Cordova shouldn't be left with an enigmatic ellipsis just hanging out there.

Cordova has now informed me that his complete quote on the subject was, "The refusal to allow birth certificate changes is implicitly an attempt to regulate transsexualism. Government has no business in that area of regulation."

Further, in a press release, the assemblyman added, "While I am certainly not advocating that people change their sex, I believe that government should not complicate already complex psycho-medical procedure with bureaucratic red tape."

NOW THERE. That sounds more like the Ron Cordova I know.

True, the complete statement is a few dozen more words than the original enigmatic ellipsis. But then you should leave no stone unturned to get rid of one of those.

So, finally, I apologize to Assemblyman Cordova for only partially quoting him the first time around. I really should have known better.

GM Plan Assailed

Illinois Attorney Raps Olds Swap

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., swamped by consumer complaints and mounting legal actions over the use of Chevrolet engines in other GM cars, has worked out a settlement to appease disgruntled owners.

But the attorney general for Illinois, the state where the engine flap started, says GM's offer does not go far enough.

UNDER THE GM plan, an owner of a new 1977 Buick, Oldsmobile or Pontiac with a Chevy engine may trade that car for a new 1977 model, but must pay 8 cents for each mile he drove the original car. Or the owner may keep the car and get a 36,000 mile, 36-month engine warranty.

Elliott M. Estes, president of the No. 1 automaker, said Monday that GM was making the offer to "assure customer satisfaction."

But Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, while saying the plan was a step in the right direction, said it allows dealers to make thousands of dollars and still shortchange consumers.

Other suits are pending in Rhode Island, Kentucky, Florida, Alabama, Connecticut, Texas, North Carolina and Louisiana.

Scott released correspondence from J. F. Mattox, GM general sales manager, to Oldsmobile dealers. It said that for each car a dealer replaces under the plan, the dealer would be given "an allowance of $300."

SCOTT SAID THAT instead of giving the money to a dealer who "kept his mouth shut" about Chevy engines, GM should rebate the money to the victimized buyers.

Soctt said he would continue to seek fines from the car manufacturer and its dealers and intended to ask a U.S. District judge to require GM to make adjustments without cost to the purchasers.

The problem began two months ago when a Chicago man found his Olds Delta 88 came with a 350-cubic-inch V8 Chevy engine instead of the widely advertised Olds "Rocket."

GM SAID THE offer of either a new vehicle or special warranty is good on compact, intermediate and full-size Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs delivered to customers on or before April 1. The offer experes June 1, GM said.

Under the policy, a customer can:

—Return his car to the dealer for a credit toward the purchase of another 1977 car of the same make with whatever engine is then available on the model selected.

THE CREDIT WILL be for the original purchase price — excluding registration, licensing or sales tax — less the mileage charge. A charge for removal of any equipment or damage beyond normal wear and tear also would be deducted.

—Or the owner can keep his vehicle and GM will provide free of charge a warranty covering the engine, transmission and rear axle for 36 months or 36,000 miles, whichever comes first. Normally, those parts are covered by a 12-month, 12,000-mile warranty.

Moms Sue Hospital Over Cancer Cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three mothers, including a former congresswoman, are charging in a $77 million lawsuit that they unwittingly were given an experimental drug 25 years ago that later was linked to cancer in children.

The three say they were among more than 1,000 maternity patients who received the drug DES without their knowledge at the University of Chicago Lying-In Hospital in 1951 and 1952.

PATSY MINK, assistant secretary of state for oceans and international environmental affairs, and two other women filed the suit Monday in U.S. District Court in Chicago against the university and Eli Lilly & Company of Indianapolis, maker of the drug the hospital used.

The class-action suit asks $70,000 for each of the 1,081 women who were given DES and another $2 million in punitive damages.

The two other women joining in the suit were Phyllis S. Wetherill of Washington and Gladys E. Lang of Stonybrook, N.Y.

MRS. MINK, A former Democratic congresswoman from Hawaii, said she was taking part in the suit because, "The matter is of such serious proportion that it had to be resolved for the entire group."

The suit claims that another group of 1,081 pregnant women received placebos in an experiment that lasted 20 months to test whether DES could prevent miscarriages.

Research in recent years has found links between DES and rare vaginal and cervical cancers in the daughters of women who received the drug during pregnancy. The drug also has been tied to sterility and other abnormalities in the sons of some of the women.

THE FOOD AND Drug Administration told manufacturers in 1971 to stop making DES and to halt advertising that claimed it would prevent miscarriages. Many physicians also recommend that daughters of women who were administered the drug have checkups twice a year.

Civil Defense Boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Action by the House of Representatives would channel an extra $44.8 million into civil defense in response to Soviet emphasis on civil defense.

In approving a $35.9 billion weapons bill for fiscal 1978, the House boosted the civil defense budget by 50 percent to $134.8 million. The Pentagon had requested only $90 million.

The action Monday came after Rep. Ronald V. Dellums (D-Calif.), attacked any spending for civil defense as "a waste, ludicrous, insane. It makes me feel I'm sitting on the floor of the House in a dream. It's the height of insanity.

Probe Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) Despite FBI claims of shattered morale, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell says he'll continue the prosecution of former FBI supervisor John J. Kearney for allegedly illegal mail-opening and wiretapping because it's a matter of principle.

"What is at stake is the rule of law," Bell said Monday after listening for 90 minutes as FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley and 10 agents complained that bureau morale has suffered because of the charges and investigation.

AMA Asks Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association, saying it made "an innocent error," wants more time before it has to reimburse the Postal Service for more than $1 million in back postage.

The Postal Service said Monday the requested two-week extension "probably will be granted."

Fighting Stops

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A cease-fire has been restored in Beirut after three days of fighting between Syrian troops and Palestinian guerrillas.

Palestinian sources said more than 80 persons were killed in the worst battling since Syrian forces halted Lebanon's civil war five months ago.

IN SHORT

'Cannonball' Wants Privacy, Publicity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even a self-proclaimed "human cannonball" has a right to privacy, says Hugo Zacchini, who wants the Supreme Court to decide that television news cameras can't record his 15-second act without his permission.

The nation's highest court was told Monday that a Cleveland television station should not have been protected by its First Amendment right to gather the news when it filmed Zacchini's entire act for use on a news program.

IN THE ACT, Zacchini is shot from a cannon into a net some 200 feet away. His famous circus family has boasted a "human cannonball" among its members for more than 50 years.

"The news media can't come in and under the guise of the First Amendment capture a performer's entire act," argued Cleveland lawyer John G. Lancione.

He said Zacchini has a "right to publicity" — a cross between property right and the right to privacy.

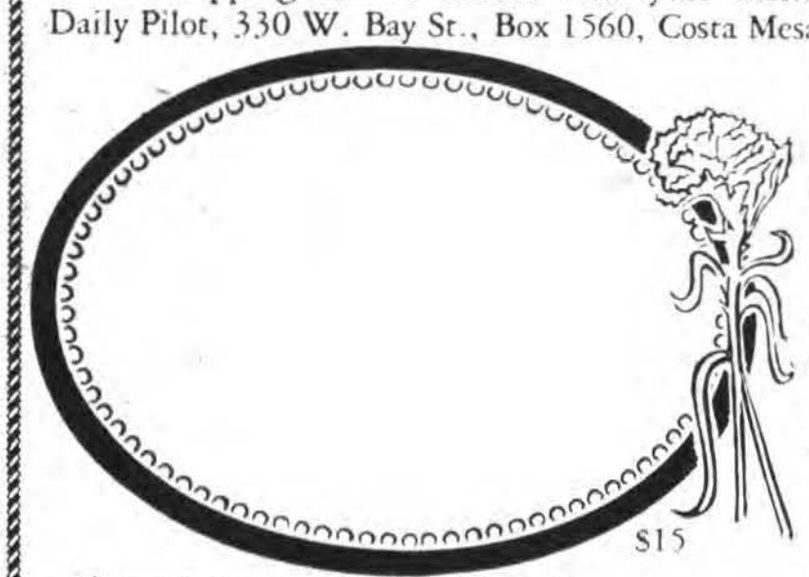

UNDER OHIO LAW, a performer has a right to exclusive control over the publicity given to his performance. What the high court has to decide is to what extent the news media is allowed to "invade" the performer's right in pursuit of a "legitimate public interest."

U.S. Summary

Sunny skies were expected over most of the nation with cool temperatures and some rain east of the Mississippi River and in the Pacific Northwest.

The National Weather Service said a sprawling high pressure system covered much of the country from the Appalachians through the Rockies.

Most of the nation will be sunny but some showers will be scattered over Washington and northern Oregon into the northern Rockies and also over the central and northern Appalachians and the lower Ohio Valley.

Except for mild temperatures in Florida and the upper Great Lakes region, cool temperatures will prevail east of the Mississippi Valley and the northern plains into the northern half of the Rockies. The rest of the nation can expect seasonal temperatures.

A cold front in the west brought gusty winds and sharp temperature drops. Pendleton, Ore. recorded gusts above 60 miles per hour and an 18 degree decrease in temperature with the passage of a storm front. Western Idaho had wind gusts above 50 m.p.h.

The clear skies and light winds combined to lower temperatures over the upper Great Lakes.

California

A cloud-spotter would have to get up pretty early in the morning, or pretty high in the sky, this week.

The National Weather Service predicts mostly sunny skies Wednesday. The only clouds should be late at night or early in the morning, with some faint high wispy white stuff in the sky over the beaches.

Temperatures were expected to remain warm, with highs ranging from the upper 60's at the beaches and the mountains, through the 70s in valleys and coastal plains and into the 80s in the desert.

Coastal Weather

Variable high cloudiness through Wednesday.

Light variable winds night and morning hours. Highs in the upper 60's at the beaches and in the 70's inland.

Coastal temperatures will range between 54 and 67, inland temperatures will range between 54 and 73. The water temperature will be 62.

Bionic Boo-boo

Lindsay Wagner, who displays her super talents as television's "Bionic Woman," tries her skills as a drum majorette and flubs it. She was performing one of her childhood fantasies for a TV special, "Another Side of Me" when she blew the scene while trying to blow the whistle. ABC-TV announced Monday that the "Bionic Woman" is one of several shows being canceled.

Bottle Bill Nixed

Panel Rejects Ban on Throwaways

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A California Senate committee has rejected a ban on no-deposit beer and soft-drink containers despite testimony it would help eliminate the American "throw-away ethic."

In the face of heavy industry and labor opposition, the measure by Sen. Omer Rains (D-Ventura), went down to defeat Monday on a 5-7 vote of the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. Albert Rodda (D-Sacramento), the chairman, said Rains could ask for reconsideration. But it seemed unlikely he could pick up additional support.

A similar Rains bill was killed in committee last year.

Modeled after a landmark Oregon law, the bill would require deposits of two or five cents on beer and soft-drink containers, which supporters said would cut litter and encourage recycling.

Rains said, "We have a throw-away ethic in our country right now. We have got to reject that ethic."

He said the equivalent of 1.7 billion gallons of gasoline a year could be saved nationwide and an estimated $900 million in consumer costs if throw-away containers were banned.

He cited three Oregon studies that showed the bottle law had resulted in a small increase in the number of jobs.

Also arguing for the bill, N. E. Norton, president of the Royal Crown Bottling Co., said if he marketed all returnable containers he could cut prices 15 percent.

"No matter where you are, the returnable bottle is the cheapest way to purchase soft drinks," Norton said.

But other spokesmen for industry and labor unions said the bill would result in heavy job losses.

Said Joseph Vanpool, executive officer of the Glass Bottle Blowers Association, "I am just a little bit disturbed about the indifference of the author to the need for jobs."

The chairman of the Industry Environmental Council, John Gallagher, questioned whether the bill would conserve energy, and said there are better ways to control litter.

Voting for the measure were Behr, Rodda, and Sens. Arlen Gregorio (D-San Mateo); Nicholas Petris (D-Oakland); Jerry Smith (D-Saratoga).

Habit Banned

Law Ends Smoking Near Food

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Supermarket shoppers can no longer smoke near tomatoes and cantaloupes.

Under a municipal ordinance that became effective Monday, they may not smoke near any foodstuffs in grocery stores. However, lighting up is still permitted in areas of the store set aside for serving food and drink, in restrooms and in areas not open to the public.

A POLICE spokesman said no complaints were received about violations of the ordinance, which joins those prohibiting smoking in elevators, movie theaters, auditoriums and hospitals.

Violators face a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and six months in jail.

Raise Your Own Pot?

Panel Okays Home-grown Marijuana Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The home-grown marijuana bill has won its first test despite a protest that future generations may not be able to handle all the drugs that are increasingly available.

The bill by Assemblyman Willie Brown (D-San Francisco), was sent to the Assembly floor Monday on a 5-2 vote of the nine-member Committee on Criminal Justice.

BUT AT THE last minute, Brown agreed to cut the six marijuana plants per person in the bill to three per household.

The bill would reduce the penalty for growing three plants to a $100 fine, levied like a traffic ticket. The plants would have to be for the grower's own use.

It would also make it a misdemeanor to cultivate between four and six plants, the penalty being a maximum of $500 in fines and six months in jail.

AND IT WOULD allow to stand the present felony provisions for possession of more than six plants, and for selling marijuana.

But a spokesman for the attorney general's office, Michael Franchetti, said there's already a wide range of drugs available including alcohol, and "future generations might not be able to handle it."

FRANCHETTI SAID the growers "will widen the use and popular acceptance" because they may grow an excess cheaply, becoming small neighborhood dealers.

A spokesman for the California Peace Officers Association said the bill will be too hard to enforce, inviting indifference on the part of officers.

BROWN SAID prosecutors presently charge marijuana growers with felonies, requiring high bail and resulting in criminal records, but later treat most cases as misdemeanors.

He said his bill would merely codify this general practice.

Brown also disputed the contention by the attorney general's office that six marijuana plants would yield up to 18,000 cigarettes per year. But Franchetti said researchers told him one of the 13 plants in Mexico, which will grow in California, could produce two pounds of manicured marijuana a year, and cigarette content is 0.3 to 0.5 grams per cigarette.

$3 Billion School Fund Bill Backed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The five-year, $3-billion school finance bill backed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has scraped through the Assembly after its sponsor said it would narrow the gap between rich and poor districts.

This was the first time either legislative chamber had approved a revamping of California's school finance system since the state Supreme Court ruled this year that the system discriminated against districts with little taxable wealth.

DESPITE THE 55-21 vote Monday, one more than the needed two-thirds majority, there was considerable opposition to the measure, particularly its effect on districts with high property wealth and many poor people, like San Francisco.

The three San Francisco assemblymen, and several others from outlying areas, voted for the bill reluctantly in hopes that the author, Assemblyman Leroy Greene, (D-Sacramento), can persuade Brown to increase the funding.

AFTER THE VOTE, Greene said that inflation, by increasing the local share of school funding, was partly responsible for reducing the estimated cost of the bill from the original $3.7 billion to $3 billion over five years.

That savings, Greene said, might be used to help urban districts pay some "variable" district costs like insurance, transportation and heating, and provide some local tax relief.

"I am optimistic, hopefully, we will get more money," he said.

Star Exhausted

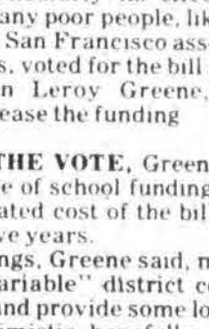

MH² Series to End At Season's Close

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the unconventional television comedy series created by producer Norman Lear and starring Louise Lasser, will end at the close of this season, columnist Rona Barrett said today.

The end of the two-year-old, syndicated program is due, in part, to "total exhaustion on the part of Miss Lasser," Miss Barrett said on ABC's "Good Morning, America" program.

There was no immediate comment from Lear.

The program, centering on the difficulties facing Mary Hartman in the town of Fernwood, is run late in the evening in most areas because of occasional use of profanity and references to sex.

LASSER

Miss Lasser was arrested last year for possession of cocaine. The charge was dismissed after she completed a drug education program.

Miss Barrett said a talk show might be spun off from the series.

Lear is also producer of such prime-time network series as "Maude," "All in the Family" and "One Day At a Time." In addition, he has begun a new syndicated series, "All That Glitters," which has women playing the roles of corporate executives while men do housework and work as secretaries.

Miss Barrett also reported that television interviewer David Frost would announce today that the format of his upcoming syndicated, four-part interview with former President Richard M. Nixon would be changed. She said the fourth part of the series, dealing with Nixon's involvement with the Watergate scandal, would be moved to the starting position.

SOMEONE STILL LOVES THEM AND THEY'RE CALLED CAMP FIRE GIRLS

Orange County girls from age 6 through high school belong to the Camp Fire Girls for one reason: it's fun. It's fun to know the other girls, to share adventures in living with them, and to participate in so many wonderful ways of serving other people. Service, the Camp Fire Girl way, is as much fun in doing as it is in receiving, and service to Senior Citizens – in homes, or in Senior Citizen centers – is just one example of the many community service programs of the Camp Fire Girls in Orange County.

Next month, National Volunteers' week will be celebrated across the land. There can be no better time for you to volunteer your time or your financial support to the Camp Fire Girls in Orange County. If you have a daughter who would enjoy being in a Camp Fire Girl group, if you have time to serve as a leader or helper, if you can send a check supporting this happy group of young ladies, call...

Bus Fare Confusion

The public can be pardoned for being confused by the way the Orange County Transit District (OCTD) staff has handled its 1977-78 budget and proposed 60 percent fare increase. They are not alone.

OCTD General Manager Ed Loritz first presented a $47 million spending package that called for a fare hike to 40 cents from 25 cents and a slight property tax rate increase. He also at first refused to make the budget proposal public.

After directors balked at the recommended fare and tax rate hikes, Loritz unveiled an increased budget of $52 million that miraculously dropped the fare increase and actually suggested a property tax rate drop as well.

Directors are still in the talking stages on both the budget and possible fare increase. But citizens' interests would have been served better in these initial stages had Loritz let them know that new information might be forthcoming and had he presented his alternatives then.

Directors have scheduled numerous budget workshops this year for both their own study and public comment. That is good. But Loritz did little to instill public confidence by his handling of initial budget proposals.

Dangerous Playground

Santa Fe Railroad detectives have been trying to cope with a worsening problem — youngsters and others playing on or near the tracks that run through Orange County housing developments.

The kids reportedly throw things at the trains, play "chicken" with speeding engines and place things on the rails — like coins to be flattened. Perhaps even worse, the railroad officials have reported adults with some youngsters doing many of the same things.

Though a coin probably wouldn't derail a heavy locomotive, such activity, regardless of how insignificant it may seem, is against the law and can be extremely dangerous.

The railroaders say it is possible for somebody to be on the tracks hunting for his flattened coin, only to be injured by another train close behind the first.

They also contend that it is difficult to judge the velocity of a big engine and it is even harder for the fast trains to stop in time to avoid hitting obstructions — or people — on the tracks.

Railroad tracks are an understandable attraction to young people, as they have been for generations. But the danger is clear.

Spanking Law Holds

California parents and their children apparently need not be unduly concerned about the recent U.S. Supreme Court opinion that appears to authorize spanking school children.

The California law that requires prior written permission from a parent or guardian before a teacher or principal may paddle a student still is in effect, according to Joseph M. Brooks, executive secretary of the California School Boards Association.

And schools must continue to follow the state law until the high court opinion can be studied by the Attorney General and perhaps tested in a specific court case, says Brooks.

The Supreme Court failed to uphold the contention that spanking school children is unconstitutional on the basis of the Eighth Amendment prohibition of cruel and unusual punishment.

But until the precise meaning of the opinion is resolved, California schools must continue to advise parents that their written permission is required for any application of corporal punishment — and that schools cannot paddle youngsters unless such permission is on file.

Tax Laws Endanger Art Works

PAUL HARVEY

Britain's Sir Winston Churchill earned millions with his books and paintings but, Britain's estate taxes being what they are, his widow had to auction household furnishings to pay for food, medicine and rent.

Doubtless Sir Winston was convinced that he was leaving his "darling Clementine" comfortably fixed, but what with taxation and inflation she, at 91, has no income beyond a widow's pension of $27 a week.

It can happen here, too.

Last year you saw news photos of the Southwest artist De Grazia burning hundreds of his paintings. The skimpy explanation left the impression that this was an unbecoming demonstration by a selfish artist who was "angry about taxes."

That's not the whole of it.

Should De Grazia die, leaving to his heirs those paintings, they would immediately become part of his taxable estate at whatever value the government's appraisers should decree.

Government appraisers could say they were "worth $2 million" and the heirs would have to come up with more than a million cash for taxes — from somewhere.

Sell the paintings? Logical, except that to flood the market with the paintings of any artist would cheapen them to a fraction of their rightful value.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Larry Toschik recently destroyed 26 years of his life's work, fearful that his widow might otherwise be impoverished by inheritance taxes.

To prevent Nixon from doing the same thing, the Congress hastily slammed shut that tax "loophole," but in a manner which includes literary and art works.

That is why the death of artist Alexander Calder created consternation in the marketplace.

I think that is why Ernest Hemingway's widow is publishing anything subsequent under her own name.

When President Carter and Congress impose the gasoline tax and auto tax on the rich and poor alike, has the new loophole been made yet so the rich will get it back on tax write-off?

I know that is why Igor Stravinsky, when he learned his $3.5 million gift to Yale would yield no tax relief for his heirs, sent those precious manuscripts to Russia instead!

BEYOND the fact that this is another law which destroys incentive for producers, the cruelest affront to the artists themselves is that their estates are taxed out of existence by a government which spends millions to subsidize junk art!

Anyway, if you hear again and again of bonfires of books or manuscripts or paintings, the world is being deprived of those treasures only because the widows could otherwise be left destitute.

And yet to be heard is a test case alleging that the artists' bonfires are "destruction of government property."

Should that come to pass, as the late artist Thomas Hart Benton once said, "I wouldn't dare paint another picture."

Arco Pullout Could Cost 2,000 Jobs

New Chemical Plant Casualty?

EVANS-NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — Chances are better than even that sometime this year the Atlantic-Richfield Co. (Arco) will quit trying to wade through California's red tape and cancel plans for a petrochemical plant, thereby intensifying conflict between jobs and the environment.

That would cost 2,000 permanent jobs, plus another thousand construction workers, in a state where there is higher-than-average unemployment. But the impact of an Arco withdrawal would extend well beyond that. It would undermine the credibility of the turn by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. away from no-growth environmentalism and toward industrial growth. Consequently, many more than 2,000 jobs are at stake.

IN FACT, the Arco case demonstrates that jobs vs. environment transcends Jerry Brown. The chemical plant will probably be lost because of laws, regulations and an entrenched bureaucracy that have given the environment top priority no matter what elected officials or voters now say. The horrified reaction by workers who prefer a little pollution to unemployment is becoming the nation's political issue No. 1.

The issue crystalized for California in January when Dow Chemical Co. sacrificed $10 million already spent by abandoning plans for a petrochemical plant in Solano County on the Sacramento River north of San Francisco. The reason: environmental red tape. The cost: 1,000 permanent jobs (plus another 1,000 construction workers). The shock waves abruptly altered Brown's previous stand that luring business into California was none of his business.

To politicians (including some close allies of the governor), Brown's new concern about the business climate is linked to his 1978 reelection. "This is really Jerry's only political problem, and he means to do something about it early," confided a prominent Democratic businessman. "I don't take it that seriously, and I don't know anybody who does. It's a hype-job."

Fair or not, a test of the governor's new attitude is the fate of the Arco plant — which like Dow's is to be located in Solano County and like Dow's is menaced by anti-pollution restrictions. Brown clearly wants no reenactment of the Dow pullout; for its part, Arco seriously explores all state suggestions (such as locating in Los Angeles instead of the San Francisco bay).

Yet, hope for the plant slowly fades, partly because environmental regulations simply do not take into account the trade-off with jobs. Rather, the phrase "trade-off" connotes the state's requirement that new pollution must be compensated for with reduced pollution in the same area. Seeking a trade-off, Arco suggested buying thousands of pre-1974 polluting autos around San Francisco to get them off the streets; the idea was rejected.

IF ARCO finally builds on the Gulf of Mexico instead of the Pacific, however, the main reason probably will be the contrast between eager Louisiana officials and cold-eyed California bureaucrats. What is involved here is descending cordiality toward business running from top to bottom of the governmental structure.

Brown clearly wants the Arco plant. Thomas Quinn, Brown's political adviser who is now chairman of the state air resources board, is perceptibly unenthusiastic about chemical plants but still wants Arco to go ahead. It is Quinn's subordinates who combine the environmentalist's passion with the bureaucrat's rigidity. "They make it clear they don't give a damn whether we solve our problems or not," an Arco official told us.

These bureaucrats are unaffected by the fury of workers against the environmental movement and its political allies. When California's Rep. Phillip Burton held a recent hearing at the logging community of Eureka on his bill to protect more giant redwoods, the San Francisco Examiner reported he "almost got booed back to San Francisco." In the trade-off between redwoods and jobs, the loggers demand jobs.

Two days later while Gov. Brown was addressing the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco, a questioner mentioned the Dow affair, then asked why Brown went to Japan pushing construction in California of Japanese automotive plants. The governor's ingenious answer sought to satisfy both environmentalists and workers: Japanese plants would hire California workers and put cleaner cars on the freeways to set a good example for Detroit.

FORGETTING his highly debatable claim that Japanese cars are markedly cleaner than small American cars, Brown's trip to Tokyo is discounted by the business community as cosmetic. While Brown is hoping for a Honda motorcycle assembly plant to be followed by auto factories, hard-headed Japanese businessmen may wind up where they get the best deal and the least harassment.

Nor will one or two Japanese plants coming here soften the basic choice between a less pure environment and chronic unemployment. Brown explained it to the Commonwealth Club this way: "If you do one thing, you don't have another thing. This is a zero-sum choice." Even a politician with Jerry Brown's skill must make his choice someday soon.

The Tangled Trail of Tongsun Park

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Tongsun Park, the Korean-about-town who passed out financial favors to Washington bigwigs, has no intention of returning to face bribery charges in the United States. The Justice Dept. considered his testimony crucial to making a case against congressmen on the take.

Another major witness in the Korean bribery scandal, Korean Embassy defector Kim Sang Keun, has been unable to give direct testimony about payoffs to congressmen.

These two developments, according to sources familiar with the investigation, probably will doom the dept.'s efforts to convict a single congressman of bribery.

We called attention to Park's operations as far back as April 1, 1974. By July 17, 1975, we were able to report for the first time that the Justice Dept. was investigating charges that the Koreans had tried to buy off congressmen.

Now we have had access to some of Park's papers, which were saved from the shredder. He has told associates categorically that he won't come back to the United States. The papers strongly indicate he has transplanted his base to London.

Payroll information, financial details and policy questions have been forwarded from his Washington headquarters to "Mr. T.S. Park, 44 Green Street, London, WIY3FJ, United Kingdom." The papers also contain references to a staff member in London.

THE KOREAN entrepreneur, with the enigmatic smile and the $100 bills, feted powerful congressmen from House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill on down. As many as two dozen bigwigs have come under the Justice Dept.'s hot-eyed scrutiny.

Among them have been such key House members, present and past, as Democratic Whip John J. McFall, D.-Calif., John Brademas, D.-Ind., Richard Hanna, D.-Calif., Otto Passman, D.-La., and Louisiana's Gov. Edwin Edwards, a former congressman.

Some of them have even admitted accepting payments or favors from Park. But they have denied that the envelopes packed with $100 bills, the business deals, the free trips and other favors constituted bribes. It must be proved that the congressmen gave important favors in exchange for these benefits. Now there appear to be no witnesses who can produce the necessary testimony.

This doesn't mean the American public will be deprived of a three-ring Korean circus. The House plans hearings, which are expected to show flagrant breaches of ethics. But the odds are against the conviction of any sitting congressmen or officials.

Park's private papers reveal that the Korean influence peddler's international economic empire has become a business junkyard, with creditors and taxmen fighting over the remnants while his skeleton staff bemoans the confusion.

BY NOW the bespectacled, cherubic Park is a pariah in Washington. The Internal Revenue Service claims he owes $4.5 million in back taxes. The taxmen have filed liens against his bank accounts and have seized two of his posh houses.

In addition to his impounded property, Park has left behind the shell of his major business creation, Pacific Development, Inc. Many of its records have been masticated by shredding machines in the manner of an embattled foreign embassy, but documents which escaped the shredders show the side of Tongsun Park which he tried to keep hidden for years while he wined and dined his way around the globe.

The documents show Park was never one to go second class. Air France presented the gallavanting entrepreneur with a certificate when he crossed the sound barrier aboard a Concorde on Sept. 30, 1976. But the documents also show that Park had a tendency not to pay for his first-class adventures.

The Abu Dhabi Hilton recently wrote Park about his $5,580.06 outstanding bill and London's posh Claridge Hotel has sternly demanded payment of overdue bills from November 1976, for more than 500 British pounds. Other internal memos indicate that Park probably stiffed at least one American hotel.

His financial fandangos have also astounded a number of the American banks which once welcomed the Korean's business. On June 23, 1975, for example, the Riggs National Bank of Washington sent Park a friendly reminder that his account was slightly overdrawn to the tune of $194,284.44. And the National Bank of Washington has sent PDI a final notice that a $2,246.42 payment is due on a loan. According to the notice, "Further delinquency cannot be permitted."

PARK'S PAPERS indicate that the American Express company has jerked Park's credit-card privileges. Meanwhile, his Washington staff is floundering, pleading for a "definite chain of command," someone to bring order as it tries to decide which creditor to stave off next with a token payment.

Humor sometimes creeps into the chaos at Pacific Development. A company official, for example, accidentally omitted a name from the staff payroll. He explained in a memo, "In my hurry to spend the money, (the house and corporate cars had been taken by Internal Revenue the previous night) I forgot to add the $6,000 for Mr. Lee to the list."

Mexican Ban of Laetrile an 'Error'?

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Laetrile, the drug that has caused a controversy in the United States over its use in cancer treatment, is the subject of a legal dispute in Mexico where it is made from peach and apricot pits.

The Mexican Department of Health banned the drug last October after Mexican medical researchers said they found no evidence that it was effective in the treatment of cancer. An appeal by the firm in Tijuana that makes Laetrile has blocked the Health Department order, at least temporarily.

THE DRUG STILL IS BEING manufactured and exported in large quantities to Asia, the Middle East and Latin America.

Jorge del Rio Torres, manager of the Cytopharma Laboratories in Tijuana, said in a telephone interview that the Mexican ban resulted from a misunderstanding. He claimed that the authorities really intended to ban another of Cytopharma's products.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has banned the use of Laetrile in the United States.

THE FDA AND ITS MEXICAN counterpart say there is no proof Laetrile is effective in the treatment of cancer. The FDA has scheduled a hearing on the drug in Kansas City on May 2.

MEDICINE

About half a dozen U.S. states are considering legislation which would allow limited use of Laetrile, which is made from amygdalin, a chemical taken from the pits of peaches and apricots.

Mexican health authorities said they have no idea how many Americans have been treated with Laetrile in Mexico.

Del Rio Torres said thousands of American cancer patients take Laetrile in tablet form or injections. Tablets cost 50 cents each and the injections are $4 each.

ON OCTOBER 26 THE MEXICAN Health Department issued orders banning Laetrile and Kemdalin, a similar product manufactured by the Kem Laboratories, also in Tijuana. The makers of Laetrile opted to make an administrative appeal which blocked the department's action until a further study can be made. The Kemdalin makers asked for a permanent injunction against the ban which Federal District Judge Carlos Trijillo rejected in Tijuana on Feb. 22.

Dr. Francisco Durazo Quiroz of the department's food, beverage and drug control section said Cytopharma Laboratories registered Laetrile — also marked as Amigdalina — as an analgesic but later began advertising it as a cancer cure.

"WE ARE NOT RESPONSIBLE for that advertising," Del Rio Torres said. "The patients are doing it. We do not pay them anything."

He said Laetrile is made in 22 other countries.

The Mexican investigation of Laetrile started in April, 1976, after Dr. Jose Urban Planchet, who then had the job now held by Durazo Quiroz, received reports of claims the drug could cure cancer.

Rodolfo Diaz Perches, chief of the national anti-cancer campaign, reported June 30 that Laetrile had "no specific or curative action" against cancer.

DR. JOSE NORIEGA LIMON, director of the Mexican Institute of Cancerology, reported July 9 that "this institution has never used, or does it plan to use, Laetrile," because "there does not exist sufficient experimental or clinical data."

Many cancer patients had written the institute from abroad asking about the product, he said.

"All this information reached these patients in a less than serious manner and we feel that this medication should be withdrawn," he said.

DEL RIO TORRES SAID IN the interview that the drug had been tested and approved at Mexico City's huge general hospital.

The report from Diaz Perches said the drug had indeed been tested at the general hospital several years ago with the conclusion "that this product does not represent any benefit in the treatment of cancer patients."

Cytopharma Laboratories filed its appeal Nov. 3, claiming that the 30-day period given to withdraw the product from the market was not in accord with previous rules allowing a year for market withdrawal.

DURAZO QUIROZ SAID THE company would be forced to submit any proof it has of cancer cures quickly so the Health Department can make a final ruling.

Cytopharma included in its brief 53 cases in which the company claimed patients who used Laetrile showed relief from cancer.

"Clinical histories are no proof that the product is effective in the control of cancer," said Dr. Augusto Bondani Guasti, head of the department's medicines section. "You need controlled clinical studies done in a scientific manner to demonstrate its action."

DEL RIO TORRES SAID HIS company has about $1.2 million invested in its Tijuana plant which employs 85. He said the laboratory produced about $220,000 worth of the drug last year.

Asked about the company's other products, del Rio Torres said it produces protein for human consumption from fish, beef and other animals. He said the protein is sold in Mexico, the United States, South America and Africa.

He also said the company produces a highly concentrated vitamin called amultin, sold in Mexico and the United States.

Ripped Off by Morris?

DEAR PAT: I feel that I've been victimized by a nationally advertised product and although the amount of money involved is small, the principle remains. I ordered two Morris Calendars last November and enclosed a $5 check. I sent three letters and copies of my canceled check to the post office box in Lombard, Ill. where I had mailed my order. I never received an answer to my request for a refund. Will you look into this for me?

G.E., Costa Mesa

Star-Kist Foods Inc., Los Angeles, has issued a refund to you. Next time you a have a delivery problem with a product premium offer, contact the manufacturer of the product offering the premium, not the postal box number to which you sent your order. These order postal boxes are fulfillment centers, and seldom respond to complaints. "Morris" premium complaints have become common in this column's files. Star-Kist always explains that the demand exceeded the supply, but this excuse is beginning to wear thin. If inadequate supplies of these premium products continues to present delivery problems, consumers may become just as "finicky" as Morris and decide to avoid getting involved in responding to these promotions.

Luggage Loss a Worry

DEAR PAT: I don't want to come on like a pessimist, but my inexperience as an air traveler makes me worry. I plan to fly to my vacation destination this summer and wonder what I should do if my luggage is lost.

A.E., Laguna Beach

You're smart to check out lost baggage claim procedures prior to your flight, rather than risking a claim rejection because you didn't know how to handle this situation. Civil Aeronatics Board tariffs require any claim to be made in writing within 45 days, but you'll stand a better chance of having your claim accepted if you fill out the airline's "loss or damage" report immediately. Keep a copy for your records and get the name of the airline employe who helps you. Retain your baggage check and a copy of your airline ticket until the items are recovered or the claim is paid, since this is the only proof you have that the bag was checked.

Skinny Suit Skipped

DEAR PAT: I ordered a $15.95 "Skinny Suit" from an ad in TV Guide on March 15. I am starting to think my order was lost in the mail or that it is not being processed. Will you find out for me?

I.G., Newport Beach

TV Guide's customer service department reports that up to 10 weeks is required for delivery of this item. Your order is being checked, however, and it will be shipped as soon as possible.

County Courts to Note 'Law Day'

All five Orange County courthouses will be open to the public April 30 as part of a Law Day program based on the theme "Partners in Justice."

Headed by Superior Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoreaux, Law Day chairman, a roster of judges, lawyers and volunteers from Lawyers Wives organizations will be available to the public in all five locations.

AMONG THEM are the central courthouse on Civic Center Drive, Santa Ana, Harbor Municipal Court, 4601 Jamboree Road, Newport Beach, South Orange County Municipal Court, 30143 Crown Valley Parkway, Laguna Niguel and West Orange County municipal court, 8141 13th St., Westminster.

All five courts will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Programs will include demonstration trials, guided tours and an opportunity of discussing elements of law with judges and attorneys.

AMONG THE TOPICS scheduled by organizers of Orange County's Law Day observance are: criminal law, small claims, wills and probate, consumer fraud, traffic violation, personal injury and juvenile law.

"But we want to get both adults and students into the courts and participateing in these programs," Judge Lamoreaux said.

THE NEWPORT Beach jurist pointed out that Law Day programs are already in progress in 22 high schools in Orange County.

She said more than 9,000 county school students have been made aware of Law Day programs through the efforts of more than 150 lawyers and Law Day volunteers.

A HIGHLIGHT of the county bar's Law Day observance will be April 28 when Justice William P. Clark Jr. of the California Supreme Court will speak at a meeting scheduled for the Newporter Inn, Newport Beach.

Five Orange Coast residents will be among 10 high school students who will receive citizenship awards and $25 bonds at the 7:30 p.m. dinner.

And Vice Mayor Jack Hammett of Costa Mesa will be among nine community leaders who will receive Liberty Bell awards from the county bar.

In Stab Death

Woman Gets Jail Term

A woman who admitted that she stabbed another woman to death during a dispute between two couples at a Buena Park home has been sentenced to nine months in Orange County Jail.

Superior Court Judge William S. Lee ordered the jail term and two years probation for Dorothy Mae Payne, 26, who had earlier pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Payne was booked on murder charges Dec. 1 after Jean Elizabeth Evans, 26, died in an Anaheim hospital from knife wounds inflicted by the defendant.

It was argued for the defense that the stabbing was unintentional and occurred at the height of a fracas between four persons.

70 Promote Careers

More than 70 exhibitors, ranging from television networks and real estate firms to police departments and insurance companies, will be on hand Wednesday at Saddleback College's first annual "Career Day."

The event will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the quad next to the science and mathematics building on the upper campus.

STUDENTS AND the public will have a chance to discuss a variety of occupations and job trends, education and training requirements and the particular qualities sought of prospective employes.

A number of companies will also be recruiting during the campus activity, according to organizers Pat Cassi and Vern Hodge.

"It's an opportunity for students to meet with individuals who are willing to share their experience in an attempt to build futures," Cassi said.

"We're bringing together personnel from the world of work and neophytes searching for direction to improve industries and the educational programs that feed into those industries."

Hair Cuts Aid Fund For Center

A Mission Viejo hair salon will stage a "cut-a-thon" May 2 to raise funds for equipment to be used in Saddleback College's new child care center when it opens.

George Miller's Looking Good shop will wash, cut and blow dry the hair of all comers for $5 and donate proceeds to the day care facility. The salon staff will set up shop in Building C on the "lower campus."

STUDENTS AND community residents interested in making a contribution and getting a haircut should phone Miller's store at 495-1724 for an appointment.

Six hair cutters will shear as many locks as possible between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Talks to Cover Drinking Woes

Problem drinking will be discussed on four successive Wednesdays in May in a series offered in Mission Viejo by the Saddleback Community Mental Health Clinic and South Coast Community Hospital.

The programs, scheduled for 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Mission Community Hospital, are:

— MAY 4: "HOW DO I KNOW If I 'Know' an Alcoholic?" with Tony Sovern, alcoholism therapist and lecturer at UC Irvine and Cal State Long Beach.

— May 11: "I Think I'm Living with an Alcoholic — What Do I Do?" with Ann Price, family therapist in private practice.

— May 18: "Yikes, My Kid's Drinking!" with Bill Raymond, youth counselor with the Community Counseling Center in San Juan Capistrano.

Court Backs Editor's 'No'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to consider whether the editor of a student newspaper at a state university may refuse a paid advertisement describing counseling and legal services offered by an alliance for homosexuals.

The justices let stand Monday a U.S. Circuit Court decision upholding the student editor's right to reject the ad because he objected to the subject matter.

THE MISSISSIPPI GAY ALLIANCE, with support from the American Civil Liberties Union, urged the Supreme Court to overturn the lower court ruling in the case involving "The Reflector," the student newspaper at Mississippi State.

The ACLU lawyers argued that the newspaper is an arm of the state because it is published at a state-supported school. In that situation, they continued, the newspaper cannot constitutionally accept some commercial, political and social announcements and reject others simply because the student editor found the contents objectionable.

THE LAWYERS ACKNOWLEDGED a recent Supreme Court decision that the First Amendment guarantee of a free press gives newspapers the right to refuse to publish whatever its editors reject.

"Compulsion to publish is unconstitutional," the high court said in that case.

But the ACLU attorneys argued that this case is different because the student newspaper is published by a state institution.

A three-judge panel of the circuit court in New Orleans split 2-1 on the case.

THE MAJORITY SAID THE STUDENT editor "had a right to take the position that the newspaper would not be involved, even peripherally, with this off-campus homosexually-related activity." The court noted that Mississippi law makes "unnatural intercourse" a crime.

In dissent, Judge Irving L. Goldberg said the ad was innocuous and simply "carried an informative statement with regard to a matter of social concern."

Men Smarter Than Wives

Most men are more intelligent than their wives, Wait, that's not my notion. A university researcher said it. But it doesn't mean men are smarter generally than women. Rather, women tend to fall for men they can look up to in matters of the mind while men are inclined to shy away from women who're obviously brighter than themselves. Thus the matrimonial mates match up in such a manner that the husbands usually have a bit of an intellectual edge on their own wives. Personally, however, I cannot say that I've found that to be true. Not that it isn't true. I just cannot say it and expect a decent lunch.

Curse of professional boxing seems to be the middleweight crown. Why I don't know. But world champion middleweights have been shot to death at age 24, gone to San Quentin for killing a woman and later committed suicide, murdered a wife and likewise then committed suicide, died in a plane crash, died from rare disease, suffered alcoholism or drug addiction, been jailed repeatedly, and been involved in episodes that brought on disgrace and financial ruin.

That medical practitioner whose life is most likely to be threatened by an irate patient is the plastic surgeon.

And to the list of redundancies, please add that sports term "face mask."

HB Junior a Jump Ahead of Rivals at 6-10¾

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Five days ago Huntington Beach junior Cary Burt broke the all-time Orange County high jump record with a soaring 6-10¾.

But, just imagine what he could have done had he been healthy.

All season Burt has been plagued with a lingering chest infection and his knees are weakened by tendonitis.

He missed two days of practice due to illness during the week he broke the record, and he twisted his right ankle the day of the meet.

"We didn't even know if he was going to be able to compete," says Huntington Beach coach Carter Lewis. "In fact, we never know from one day to the next whether he's going to be at practice."

It's been a season of aches, pains and coughs for Burt, but it's also been a season of record-setting performances. The high jump is just one of the things he does well.

He has also proven capable of running and consistently winning the 100, 220 and 440. Burt added the long jump to his repertoire on the same day he broke the high jump record.

On his first long jump attempt in a dual meet he sailed out to a 22-8 mark. It would have been an Orange Coast area season high, but he fouled on the takeoff.

As it was, Burt won with a legal jump of 21-4. But that was overshadowed by his high jump record.

"He can do whatever he sets his mind to," Lewis says. "I really don't know what his potential is, but I've always thought he's capable of jumping 7-0."

Lewis says Burt thrives on competition, and that can only help when he gets to big meets like the league finals and CIF prelims.

"If another guy is with him at 6-10, he'll go 7-0. He needs someone there to push him. Otherwise he only seems to jump high enough to win," Lewis comments.

"We never know what he's going to do," Lewis continues. "He isn't sold on the idea of dedication and hard work yet, but if he ever does start really applying himself, he's really going to be something to watch."

As for pure physical talent, Burt seems to have all the necessary tools.

"He's strong as an ox and has spring to spare in those legs," Lewis says. "He's the best athlete I've seen at Huntington Beach in a long time."

Burt seems to know that. Coaches and teammates alike have complained, "He's good, but he doesn't seem to think he has to practice like the rest of us."

In his defense, Burt explains, "The best thing for tendonitis is rest. I jump better if I don't work out a couple of days before a meet. In fact, I think I could have cleared 7-0 if I hadn't run the 100 earlier that day."

Before moving into track, Burt distinguished himself on the basketball court by averaging 14.9 points per game and earning a spot on the All-Sunset League team.

He could have a collegiate future in either sport, and maybe both. But he's still got a full year of high school left, and a chance to become Orange County's first 7-0 high jumper.

Miscues Did It For Halos Ace

Tony Solaita kicked away two balls for the Angels Sunday. So he decided to kick himself into gear.

The pair of errors enabled Milwaukee to score five unearned runs and beat the Angels, 10-9.

April 29 California at Baltimore	4:25 p.m.

"The second error did the trick," the first baseman declared Monday night after accounting for four runs in a wild, 11-6 victory over Oakland at Anaheim Stadium.

Minutes after the errors Sunday, Solaita hit a two-run homer. He took up where he left off Monday. He singled home a run in the first inning. He homered in the fourth inning.

He walked and scored a run in the fifth inning. And he singled home another run in the seventh inning.

"The errors relaxed me," said Solaita, the only player from American Samoa to reach the major leagues. "I look a different guy since the errors. I now look like myself last year.

"I've always started slow. I have to swing the bat. I knew eventually I would come out of it."

Now the question is when are the Angels' pitchers going to come out of it?

Frank Tanana was given nine runs Sunday and couldn't win, although he escaped without the loss.

Nolan Ryan emerged with his third win Monday night after one of the poorest games of his career. He allowed 10 hits, walked seven and hit a batter for a total of 18 base runners in 5⅔ innings.

Cincy Erupts For 23 Runs

ATLANTA (AP) — George Foster drove in seven runs with five hits, including two homers, and scored five times Monday night as the world champion Cincinnati Reds erupted from a batting slump with an awesome display of power to smash the Atlanta Braves 23-9.

The Reds, losers of four in a row and nine of their first 13 games and mired in last place in the National League West, scored six runs in the first inning and exploded for 12 more in the fifth, tying a modern National League record and scoring the most runs against the Braves since they moved from Milwaukee to Atlanta in 1966.

Foster had a three-run homer in the first inning, a run-scoring double in the second and an rbi single as well as a two-run homer in the fifth. The homers were his second and third of the season. Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo also homered as the Reds pounded Atlanta starter Phil Niekro and three relievers for 18 hits.

The Braves, beaten 16-6 by the Los Angeles Dodgers on Sunday, have given up 39 runs and 34 hits in two games.

The Reds sent 16 batters to the plate in the fifth and eight of them got hits, including two each by Foster and Dan Driessen, who had a three-run double and a run-scoring single. Geronimo's home run with two men on base also came in the fifth.

LA Has Good Shot At 1984 Olympics

The Southern California Committee for the Olympic Games has told Mayor Tom Bradley it has "very strong assurances" that Los Angeles could have the 1984 summer Games.

Bradley gave City Council copies of a letter from committee president John C. Argue on Monday, asking for hearings on the matter.

The committee, which backed a losing bid for the 1980 Games, didn't give the source of its assurances that Los Angeles could be chosen by the U.S. and International Olympic committees.

The committee and Bradley said the Games could be staged at no cost to taxpayers.

LA Cleanup Cleans Up

Cey Credits Garvey for Batting Success

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ron Cey is cleaning up as the new Los Angeles Dodgers' cleanup hitter. He suggests that last year's cleanup hitter, Steve Garvey, is one of the major reasons.

"We've got protection in the power spots now," said Cey after his two home runs and three runs batted in led the Dodgers to a 7-3 victory over the San Diego Padres Monday night.

"Last year I batted fifth and Bill Russell batted behind me," Cey said. "Bill isn't a home run threat, so it made it pretty tough to do my job, which is driving in runs."

With Garvey now batting fifth, Cey has been having a ball. His two homers gave him seven for the season, while his rbi total increased to 25. Both figures are tops in the National League.

"I took some static when I first said I was going to bat Cey fourth and Garvey fifth," said Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda, "Garvey is a .300 hitter who always gets his 200 hits, but I still wanted this to be our order."

That order looked awesome against the Padres, who became the Dodgers' 10th victim in the last 11 games.

Right-hander Rick Rhoden, 3-0, beat the Padres for the fifth straight time, breezing to his first complete game of the year. He struck out eight and walked four.

Dave Lopes had three hits and Garvey a solo homer, helping the Dodgers' 10-hit attack, while Dave Winfield led San Diego with two hits, including a two-run homer.

Connors, Lutz Win in Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jimmy Connors is past the first hurdle in his bid to defend his title in the Alan King Tennis Classic, having beaten Sweden's Ove Bengtsen in the first round 6-2, 5-7, 6-2.

Connors is top seeded in the $250,000 tournament, which began Monday.

The biggest upset in the opening round was the elimination of third-seeded Roscoe Tanner, the tournament's 1975 winner. Tanner lost to Mark Edmondson 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Raul Ramirez, the No. 2 seed, whipped Jeff Borowiak, 6-3, 6-1, while No. 7 seed Stan Smith beat Bernie Mitton, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1. Eighth-seeded Bob Lutz of San Clemente defeated Billy Martin 6-1, 6-3.

In other first-round action, Tom Gullikson beat Vijay Amritraj, 6-4, 7-6; Bob Hewitt defeated Phil Dent, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Lakers Try Again

Game 4 Tonight at Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — Rick Barry knows how crucial a victory over Los Angeles in tonight's National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoff game would be.

"That's all that matters now," said Barry, the all-star forward of the Golden State Warriors. "We've got to be ready and turn this into a two-of-three series. Los Angeles is tough at home — but not unbeatable."

On TV Tonight
Channel 9 at 8

The Warriors, after losing the first two playoff games 115-106 and 95-86 in Los Angeles, cut the Lakers' margin in the Western Division playoff to 2-1 with a 109-105 triumph Sunday.

Barry opened with 40 points in the first game and scored 40 again in game three. Only on Sunday, however, did the Warriors come up with adequate offensive support, as reserve Charles Johnson scored 28.

Sunday Abdul-Jabbar came up with 28 points, 14 rebounds, seven assists and three blocked shots, but afterward the Warriors and Lakers both agreed Golden State had done a good job on defense.

"No one can stop Kareem when he gets the ball," Los Angeles coach Jerry West said. "What they did was keep the ball away from Kareem. We had a lot of trouble getting the ball to him so he could go to work."

"You can only stop so much of an opponent's game," said coach Al Attles of the Warriors. "With the Lakers you have to concentrate on Kareem and this often opens up the rest of their game.

Swedes, USSR Roll

VIENNA (AP) — Roland Eriksson of the Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League collected three goals Monday as Sweden topped West Germany 7-1 and remained unbeaten in the World Ice Hockey Championships.

The Soviet Union, favored to win the title, overwhelmed weak Romania 18-1 in a game without a penalty.

South Coast Boasts CIF's Best Volleyball

Nearly everyone around the South Coast League is saying they play the best high school volleyball in the United States.

They just may be right.

CIF championships have come to the South Coast League in each of the last two years. San Clemente won it in 1976 and Laguna Beach took it home in 1975.

Corona del Mar went undefeated while winning the Inglewood tournament last month, whipping some of the toughest South Bay area teams. But in the South Coast League Corona del Mar is locked in fourth place with a 5-3 record.

"This is the toughest league in the United States, without a doubt," proclaims El Toro coach Tom Read.

University coach Mike Puritz is a little more cautious. "The South Coast League is definitely the toughest in Southern California," Puritz says.

"You'll find no better volleyball than in Southern California, and I don't think you'll find a league in Southern Coast," Murio assures.

Says Read: "If they could take five teams to the playoffs from our league, they'd probably finish one-two-three-four-five."

And Read is a man with considerable expertise in the game. He toured with the U.S. national team for four years and now he's player-coach of the El Paso-Juarez Sol, a pro team that competes during the summer.

Read's El Toro High varsity is in last place with a 1-7 record, but he still believes he has a powerful team.

"You put El Toro into the open Orange County League and we'd be winning it. We'd probably do very well in the Sunset League, too," Read says.

"There may be a strong team here and there in the rest of CIF, but nowhere is there anything like the South Coast League, where every team is great."

Mission Viejo is in third place at 6-2. Coach Murio says, "Personally, I feel we're one of the top five teams in CIF and it would be a real shame if we couldn't get into the playoffs.

"We could have a very real shot at the CIF championship but we may not even get into the playoffs if they only take the top two teams."

San Clemente coach Jack Iverson knows what he means. Last year Iverson's team couldn't win the league (Laguna Beach did) but San Clemente went on to grab the CIF crown.

Laguna Beach, this year's favorite, has several athletes who played on the AAU national championship team last summer. The squad receives unofficial guidance from one of the all-time greats in U.S. volleyball history, Rolf Engen.

Engen isn't on the faculty and Mike Duncan is the team's real coach, but Engen volunteers invaluable help. He's a former All-American, played on U.S. national teams and was the first man elected to the United States Volleyball Association Hall of Fame.

With men like him helping build programs around the South Coast League, it's small wonder the circuit is so highly respected.

And it doesn't hurt to have a few players like Chris Allard (Corona del Mar, All-Southern California as a junior), Tom Beard (San Clemente, All-CIF as a junior) and Kip Engen (Rolf's son, a solid All-CIF candidate at Laguna).

"You hear about some of these other teams around here that are supposed to be so good," says coach Murio. "Well, Newport Harbor couldn't do anything in our league and Huntington Beach (which is undefeated) isn't any better than Mission Viejo."

Then, as if to temper earlier statements about the South Coast being the best in the United States, Murio concluded, "There's no doubt that we're the strongest league in CIF."

New Motivation For UCI Paddlers

With a couple of hours to go, the oarsmen were rowing along at a very slow clip, dead tired and in extreme pain.

But their spirits quickly picked up.

CRAIG SHEFF

As the cruiser steamed past, the Anteaters suddenly picked up the pace. They probably could have won the Henley Royal Regatta at that moment.

UCI's top two distance stars — Steve Scott and Ralph Serna — will run in Saturday's Penn Relays.

Scott will compete in the mile and Serna will race in the 5,000 meters. Scott has a best of 3:56.5 while Serna ran 4:06.1 in the mile recently.

Warrant Charges Randle

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A warrant charging suspended Texas Rangers second baseman Lenny Randle with aggravated battery in the spring training beating of manager Frank Lucchesi has been issued by local authorities.

Randle is charged with beating Lucchesi in Orlando as the two were discussing Randle's status with the team. Lucchesi spent seven days in a hospital.

Lucchesi had no comment on the filing of the criminal charges and also declined to comment on whether he would file civil charges.

"Once again, I'm saying no comment," said Lucchesi. "I have two years under the statute of limitations to decide on something like that and I'm not worried about it at this time. My only worry is about the Rangers playing winning baseball."

Randle reportedly was angry over losing his job to rookie Bump Wills, son of former Los Angeles Dodgers star Maury Wills.

The Rangers' 30-day suspension of Randle ends Wednesday. The club has been trying to trade Randle, who they fined $10,000.

Striking Referees Return to Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Turning their attention from the bargaining table to the basketball court, 24 striking National Basketball Association referees are ready to resume work in the playoffs.

Players, coaches and the officials themselves said Monday they were relieved the 16-day walkout is over.

Under the pact announced Monday, the National Association of Basketball Referees and the NBA agreed to drop charges against each other.

Mutual Foe Tabs HB Gals

Huntington Beach High School has an excellent chance of upsetting No. 1-seeded St. Joseph High of Lakewood Friday night in the CIF 4-A girls basketball championship game at Cal State (Fullerton), according to Barbara Ammann, coach of the Fountain Valley High Barons.

Ammann has an insight into the championship game since her Barons played each of the title combatants twice during the year. The Barons lost to Huntington Beach twice in Sunset League play and split a pair of games with St. Joseph, winning by one point in an early season game in the Garden Grove tourney and losing in the CIF semifinals Friday.

"I think they match up really well and the key for Huntington Beach will be to keep Kathy Hammond of St. Joseph off the boards," Ammann says.

"I have a feeling that Huntington Beach is going to pull it out. I hope so, anyway. I think Joanne Kellogg has done a heck of a job with the team this year."

Does Ammann give St. Joseph an edge in any phase of the title game?

"I think the only edge they will have will be in experience and I don't know if that will be such a big factor or not.

"Huntington Beach has played so well and so cool all season and the pressure hasn't seemed to bother them even though they are a young team."

Does Huntington Beach have the personnel to control the boards against the 5-10 Hammond?

"They are a good rebounding team," Ammann says of the Oilers. "They are taller across the front line than St. Joseph and Debbie Burrows (5-9) jumps so much taller than her listed height.

"I think Huntington Beach is a little more skilled all the way through. Their forwards and guards are stronger, teamwise.

"Of course, you can't take anything away from St. Joseph. They play that 2-3 zone on defense and they are very quick up on top.

"They cover a lot of territory and make it very difficult to get the ball to the wings. Their guards deflect a lot of passes and I feel that Hammond is taller than 5-10.

Both teams like to run with the ball but Huntington Beach doesn't employ a pressing-type defense and could be set and ready for the St. Joseph Jesters.

Road Signs Go Metric

Cold Turkey Switch to Use No English Subtitles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speed signs along the nation's roads and highways will be converted to the metric system next year under regulations being drawn by the Federal Highway Administration.

There is no plan to print both metric and English figures on signs to ease the familiarization, a highway administration official said.

Instead of 40 m.p.h., for example, a sign will read 64 k.p.h. (kilometers per hour).

UNDER THE PLAN, THE conversion of all speed limit signs will take place in a 90-day period ending Sept. 30, 1978. Vertical clearance signs for overpasses also will be changed over to metric by that date.

Auto makers already are planning to install metric speedometers and odometers in new cars. Speedometers in old models can be changed with a simple paste-on layover label.

The official said the plan calls for converting warning and regulatory signs by Sept. 30, 1980, and milepost and guide signs, such as those designating distances to cities, by Sept. 30, 1982.

WARNING SIGNS PROVIDE information on such things as divided highways and railroad and pedestrian crossings. Regulatory signs are those with messages such as "Do Not Enter," "No U Turn," and "No Parking."

Highway administration regulations in this case will apply to the size of the signs and rarely will numbers be involved.

The regulations will be published in the Federal Register on Wednesday, and the public will have 45 days to make written comment.

THE NOTICE WILL ADVISE THE public of the intention to publish a 1977 addition to the Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices.

The highway administration official said the action is in line with the national policy of converting to the metric system as outlined in the Metric Conversion Act of 1975. He said estimates of changing over the nation's highway signs run as high as $100 million.

The federal government will share the changeover cost with state and local governments on federal use highways, the official said.

IN MOST CASES, HE said, the change can be made by painting an old sign or pasting or bolting new figures or words over the old sign.

The government plans a massive awareness and information program next year to prepare the public for the changeover from a way of life with which people are so familiar.

Under the new system, the conversion to a metric figure may be done to the nearest easily recognizable number. Thus, drivers may be able to go slightly faster on the highways — because the national 55 m.p.h. speed limit translates to 88.5 k.p.h. The consideration is to make this 90 k.p.h.

Hayes' Cadillac on Block

MEMPHIS (AP) — Isaac Hayes' gold-plated Cadillac will be auctioned Thursday as part of the liquidation of the Memphis entertainer's assets.

"I heard he paid about $30,000 for the gold-plated Cadillac," said Jasper Jones of Delta Auction Co., who will conduct the auction.

HE SAID, HOWEVER, he expects the car to sell for between $10,000 and $15,000.

Hayes and his wife, Mignon, filed personal bankruptcy petitions in federal court last December. An attorney for the Grammy and Emmy award winning singer-composer estimated Hayes' debts may run as high as $6 million.

HAYES, WHO GAINED nationwide fame and an Academy Award for "Theme From Shaft," is recording for ABC Records in Los Angeles. He still maintains a Memphis residence, however.

Jones said two other automobiles belonging to Hayes — a 1971 Cadillac Fleetwood limousine and a 1973 customized van — also will be auctioned.

OTHER ITEMS INCLUDE a four-by-six foot television screen, antiques, china, barbells and exercise equipment and 12 wardrobes of miscellaneous clothing and furs.

"I would say we're looking at between $30,000 and $50,000 that we'll take in on the auction," Jones said. "All the furnishings and cars are probably worth $75,000 or more."

Union Planters National Bank bought Hayes' 8,000-square-foot East Memphis home at a foreclosure sale Jan. 21, for $375,000. In addition, the Internal Revenue Service filed a tax lien against Hayes last September for nearly $464,000.

Newport, Tijuana Plan Day's Trip

The tickets, $20 per person, entitle the visitors to a round-trip train ticket from Santa Ana to San Diego, a bus trip into the race track and Tijuana and a complimentary brunch at the track where reserved seating will be available.

The trip has been planned as a means of promoting tourism to Baja California, a chamber spokesman said.

Hospital Gets Gift Of Stock

The gift, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler of Corona del Mar, is in the form of 100 shares of preferred stock in the Jay Eye Corporation, said Christeson. The donation will be used to help the hospital's future building needs.

Mrs. Wheeler, granddaughter of James Irvine, founder of the Irvine Ranch, said the donation was given to recognize the many years of service the hospital has given to Orange County.

Airline Jobs on Line

CAREERS

By JOYCE L. KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: I've heard there are many types of jobs with airlines, other than flying and mechanics. As a 22-year-old single female, the free travel opportunities appeal to me. How can I find out about and apply for the various jobs?

G.S., Albany, N.Y.

A few hints beyond wing and wrench:

— Passenger services clerk, whose general duties at an airport include answering routine questions about schedules and lost articles; may pay $8,000-16,000.

— SALES REPRESENTATIVE, who calls on travel agencies and others to promote the habit of flying an airline's system; may pay $10,000-20,000.

— Tape librarian, who maintains taped records and operates tape cleaning and certification equipment; may pay $10,000-13,500.

— Junior buyer, who scouts suppliers' markets and assists in general purchasing; may pay $13,000-17,000.

— AIRCRAFT CLEANER, who cleans planes, hangers, and other things; may pay $5.30 per hour minimum.

Although job titles, duties, pay and fringes vary between airlines, a common horrible problem for applicants is getting through the employment gates. Because competition for the relatively few entry-level jobs is fierce, merely meeting the requirements for a particular job isn't enough.

You must acquire superior job-applicant skills, such as thoroughly researching your employment target, refusing to be easily discouraged, and presenting yourself like an ace in job interviews.

A GOOD BEGINNING is to study a new book: "The Official 1977-78 Guide to Airline Careers," by Alexander Morton.

The author, who publishes airline industry periodicals, describes not only particular jobs, but 50 airlines, including travel privileges offered by each, whether the airline is even considering hiring right now, and where to apply for a job.

If your bookstore doesn't have it, order for $5.95 direct from the publisher: Arco Publishing Co., 219 Park Ave. S., New York, N.Y. 10003.

Send career questions for possible use in this column to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Sorry, the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

Coastal Agency Swamped

Keeping up with its workload with a decimated staff has reached such a critical point the South Coast Regional Zone Control Commission is demanding help from San Francisco headquarters.

The panel has asked the California Coastal Zone Commission for additional staff members.

Mel Carpenter, commission executive director, said the commission staff has been depleted by 17 members who apparently sought better jobs with a lighter workload.

Athletic Supporter Supported

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — If customers dial information for the phone number of "The Athletic Supporter," they should be given the number, a circuit court has ruled.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. contended it found the sporting goods store's name "distasteful" and refused to list the number with information operators.

William Berris, owner of the Southfield store, sued the phone company after it refused to list his business when it opened.

Berris's suit asked for up to $70,000 in damages for loss of business and violation of his rights under the First Amendment.

A spokesman for the telephone company said he did not know if Bell would continue to oppose listing of Berris' firm.

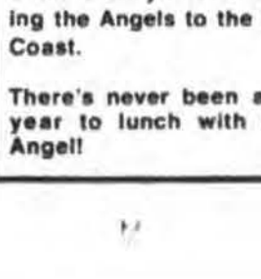

The Oakland County court order gave the utility until May 12 to reply to the restraining order.

Take an Angel to lunch

On Thursday, May 12, California Angels Manager Norm Sherry will speak at a luncheon at the Marriott Hotel in Newport Center.

The occasion is the first Harbor Area salute to the county's American League team.

Sherry is expected to outline prospects for bettering the team's success record evident since Sherry was named manager in mid-season, last year.

He'll talk about team personnel and strategies that make hopes for the '77 season the brightest in Angel history.

Angel's luncheon tickets are $6 and may be purchased at any bank or savings and loan in Newport Center.

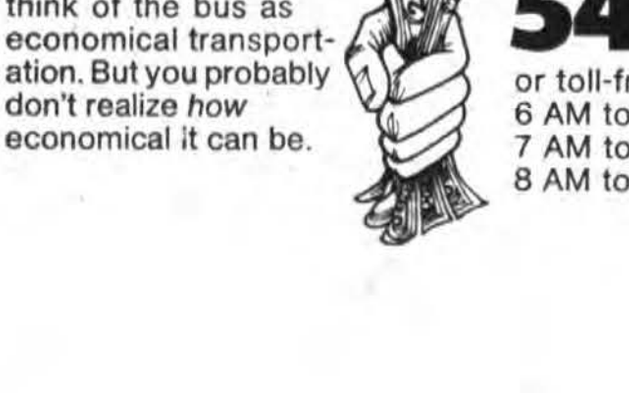

Join with the Newport Center Association, the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce and the Daily Pilot in welcoming the Angels to the Orange Coast.

Romance Threatened

'Feasible' Bridge May End Ferry's Glorious Trip Across Bay

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

LEWIS, Del. — Capt. Billy Phillips, as seafarers say, is keeping an eye aft. Reefs of progress threaten again.

Capt. Phillips pilots a ferryboat 16 miles across Delaware Bay between Cape May, N.J., and Lewes, Del. In the spring sunshine, or under the stars, it is a glorious trip, an hour and a quarter of seacoast romance.

THERE'S THE rub. A bridge could shorten the trip to five minutes by car.

Bridge builders sank Capt. Phillips once before. He recognizes the warning sounds as clearly as the bellowing of foghorns in the night. They are phrases like "feasibility study" . . . "practical considerations" . . . "national defense."

The phrases are coming from the Jersey shore. The Jersey shore is where casino gambling was approved recently.

"I DON'T REALLY know what I'll do this time if they build a bridge," the captain said. He peered through the broad windshield of the pilot house at the approaching red buoy marking Crow Shoal and did not mask his sarcasm. "I guess I'd get a job on the bridge."

Billy Phillips was born in Red Bank on Virginia's eastern peninsula and for all his 42 years has known only the sea.

At 17 he took a job as an ordinary seaman on the ferry that ran from Kiptopeke, Va., across the mouth of Chesapeake Bay to Little Creek near Norfolk. Before long he worked his way through the ranks to captain.

"THAT WAS A fine ferry crossing. The boats handled nicely. The water was safe. I enjoyed it down there. Of course, it was home."

In 1964 the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel, a true marvel of engineering, linked the eastern peninsula to the Virginia mainland at Norfolk. Travel time was slashed. So was the ferry.

The three superfluous ferry boats steamed north and the New Jersey-Delaware service started. The new place wasn't home, but Capt. Phillips found it a fine ferry crossing, too, especially when the old Chesapeake boats were replaced with the three brand-new vessels.

THEY ARE commodious boats, 320 feet long, 65 feet wide. The townspeople at Lewes and Cap May go down to the ferry slip just to watch them dock. The scene has something of the excitement of a Mississippi landing in Mark Twain's steamboat era.

STYROFOAM COOLERS are lifted from car trunks. Youngsters toss Frisbies. Some travelers sit alone with their car doors open and read the paper. Some stroll to the terminal building and buy saltwater taffy and post cards and plastic ferryboat models for the kids.

With a whistle blast, the ferry arrives.

Engines rumble, backing down as it eases up to the slip. The heavy pilings groan against its weight. Along a chain link fence at the harbor's dedge, a boy applauds.

THE BOAT disgorges its load of cars. Then, slowly, backs out.

From the wing of his, excuse the expression, bridge, Capt. Billy Phillips deftly works the levers and wheels that turn the boat around in the foamy water.

AMERICA

It backs into the slip and takes on its new cargo stern first.

Aboard and parked, passengers rush to the upper deck to find a place at the rail. As the boat pulls away, they call and wave to the people on shore. The people on shore wave to the people aboard. Strangers wave. Squadrons of gulls fly a farewell salute.

IN THE PILOT house, Capt. Phillips draws a mug of coffee from a stainless steel urn. He checks a bank of dials, scans the sea for traffic. "It's a busy bay. Sometimes pleasure craft can become a problem."

Below, passengers queue up at the snack bar, and then head for outdoor benches with plates of fried shrimp and glasses of beer. Children pose before lifeboats. Cameras click. At the lee rail a young man's shoulder edges toward a young woman's shoulder. Shoulders touch. They smile.

"A round trip costs $3.50 for a walk-on passenger," Capt. Phillips said. "You'd be surprised how many come laong just for the ride on a nice summer night. It's cool out on the bay and always smells salty."

But a bridge could get you across quicker. At least that's what a feasibility study shows. It was sponsored by a dozen New Jersey municipalities and it shows that for somewhere between a quarter and half billion dollars, a bridge could get you across quicker.

Rate Hike Called Long-term Savings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Gas Company officials believe that a rate hike to experiment with solar power may wind up saving money in the long run.

The utility's vice president, Pat Shea, told the state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) Monday that a proposed $11 million solar energy experiment would ultimately benefit customers.

"IF SOLAR ENERGY can be proven to be economically viable, all energy consumers will benefit much the same as in other successful energy supply or conservation efforts," Shea said.

The hearing was called to discuss the experiment's initial 3.3-cent-a-month increase in an average residential customer's bill.

"We believe our customers deserve to know as soon as possible, whether solar energy can supplement their energy needs in the foreseeable future," Shea said.

THE PUC IS considering a proposed five-year "Operation Sunflower" project, consisting of more than 300 solar energy systems serving 863 residential, commercial and industrial customers in Southern and Central California.

The experiment seeks to answer questions on solar energy, such as how long solar collectors last and what their maintenance problems are.

Several consumer groups opposed the rate increase, contending the public should not have to fund a private corporation's project.

SHEA SAID THE amount of the rate increase could drop if his company gets money from the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration to help finance the experiment.

County Up, State Down in Beef Cost

April's statewide average price for five popular beef cuts was $1.31 a pound. Compared with same-day prices surveyed by the American National Cattlemen's Association in 19 U.S. cities, California fell 6 cents a pound below the national average of $1.37 for the same five cuts. Last month's national average was $1.40 per pound.

THE OVER-ALL trend in beef prices continues to show minor fluctuations from month to month, according to Robert Rolston, Beef Council manager. Widely varying prices from city to city are due largely to store "specials" and "featuring," he said.

Rolston predicted low beef prices until mid-summer because of adverse economics due to California's drought and other factors contributing to high beef supply.

The council visits markets in 12 major California cities and notes the retail prices on ground beef, bone-in round steak, bone-in sirloin steak, T-bone steak and seven-bone chuck roast.

Bertea Declares Stock Dividend

Directors of Bertea Corp., Irvine, declared a 5 percent stock dividend on common stock, payable May 31 to stockholders of record May 13.

"The current strong rate of sales and new orders indicate that Bertea Corp. will achieve record operationg results for the year 1977, following our record first quarter performance," Richard Bertea, chairman, said.

'RHINESTONE COWGIRL' AT HOME AT OPRY

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ann-Margret at the Grand Ole Opry may offhand sound as incongruous as Archie Bunker at the Metropolitan Opera, but it will happen on the NBC television special "Ann-Margret. . .Rhinestone Cowgirl."

The show appears tonight with guests Perry Como, Minnie Pearl, Bob Hope and Chet Atkins, all performing live at Nashville's shrine to country music." (Channel 4, 9 p.m.)

"ANN-MARGRET AND THE Grand Ole Opry seem like an antithesis, and that's why we liked the idea," admits her husband-manager Roger Smith. "It turned out to be a love match. They gave her a standing ovation."

"I had never been to the Opry before, but I felt right at home immediately," added Ann-Margret. "We went on a Saturday night to get the feel of the place, and it was amazing. There are 4,500 seats, and each one was filled. All kinds, from teensy folks to old people.

"The action is going on all the time, people getting up and walking down the aisles to get popcorn. A hundred people on the stage, and the performers step up and do a number, . then step back. It's the friendliest group I've ever seen."

ANN-MARGRET SINGS "THANK God, I'm a Country Girl," duets with Minnie Pearl on "I'm a Little Bit Country," Hope with "Buttons and Bows," Como with "Your Cheatin' Heart." But the special won't be all grits. Ann-Margret will dance to a medley of Aaron Copland ballet music from "Rodeo," "Billy the Kid" and "Appalachian Spring."

"That fits the show, too," she observed, "because Copland took folk music and put it in a symphonic setting. They loved it at the Opry.

"I SPENT THREE MONTHS making 'Joseph Andrews' in England, five months on 'The Last Remake of Beau Beste' in Ireland and Spain."

The rest of her year was devoted to the NBC special and appearances in Nevada. Although she is enjoying the brief respite at home (she opens May 17 at the Las Vegas Hilton), her zest for work seems more evident than ever.

"Ann-Margret has changed a great deal in five years," observed Smith. "She has come out of her cocoon, out of the woodwork. She really was a paradox to what her image has been on the screen. In most of her films she has come on strong — the 'Kitten with a Whip.' But she wasn't that way at all."

Pair to Star In Cop Flick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elizabeth Montgomery and O.J. Simpson will star in a television movie as police detectives who fall in love.

Columbia Pictures has announced the pair as stars of "D.H.Q." a TV feature for CBS.

'Dragon' Breathes Mesa Fire

Dan Mathews and Tony Anderson head a cast of 23 in "Dudley, the Docile Dragon" which will play at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Community Recreation Center on the west end of the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa. The Costa Mesa Civic Playhouse Jr. is producing the play.

Tickets at $1 each are on sale at the box office. Reservations may be made by telephoning 556-5459 between 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. through Friday. Group rates for 30 or more are available by making advance reservations through the box office.

Auditions in the "Young Artist-Musician Contest" will be held May 14 and 15 at Orange Coast College, Costa Mesa. The contest was organized by Orange Coast Community Symphony conductor Joseph Pearlman and Lew Kidder, president of Coast Music Service, Costa Mesa.

Spokane's 'Cat' Cut

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The earthy language of a play by Tennessee Williams apparently is too strong to suit Spokane theatergoers.

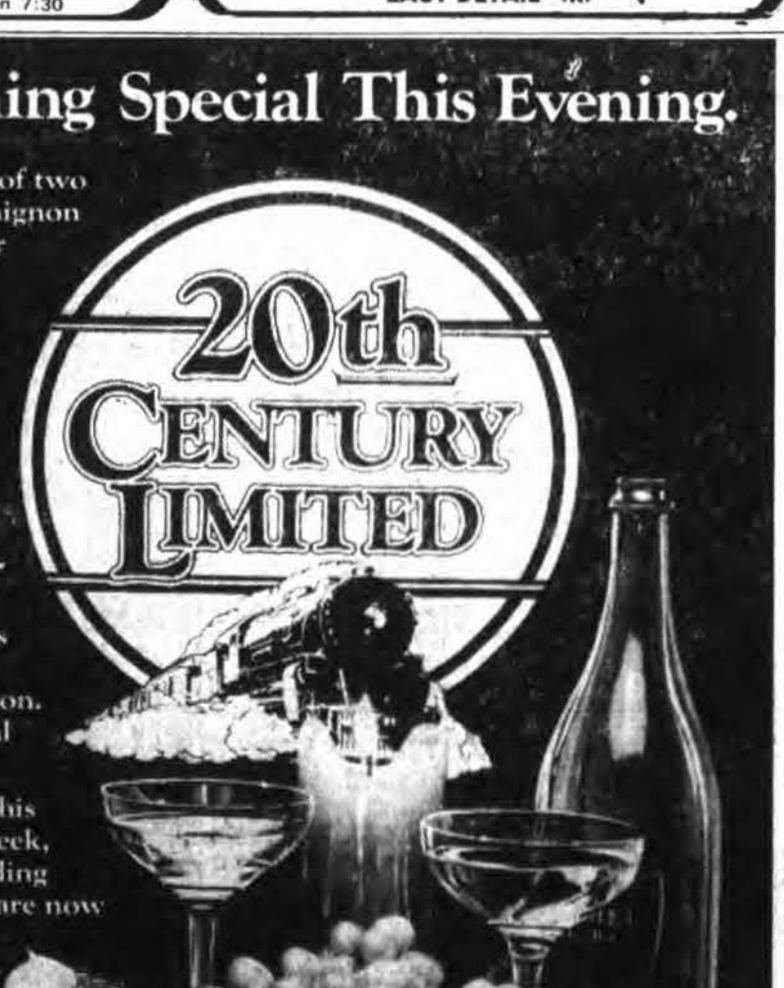

Firth Chew, a director of the Spokane Civic Theater, said a few of the strongest four-letter words would be excised from a production of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

"We paid royalties and we figure we have the right to change a word or two," he said.

Two women left the theater during a performance last week, and actress Dorothy Smith received enough telephone calls about the play's language that she asked the director to delete some of the most offensive words, theater officials said.

Increase In Taxes Scrapped

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. wasn't there. But an Assembly committee gave in to him and scrapped some tax increase proposals out of its major property tax relief bill.

A 13-1 vote Monday approved the altered legislation, a nearly unanimous, bipartisan product of the Assembly Committee on Revenue and Taxation, and sent it to the Ways and Means Committee.

The measure still contains $480 million for homeowner property tax relief, averaging $251 for California homeowners. It also has $282 million for renters and $10 million for senior citizen property tax deferrals.

State

Assemblyman Willie Brown, the committee chairman, made the surprise proposal to cut new taxes — including local income taxes — from the measure and put them into another bill.

Bill Gains OK

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s bill to lengthen some prison sentences has cleared its first committee — with help from Republican Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger.

The 7-2 vote Monday of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee followed months of negotiations to change the state's new fixed-term sentencing law before it takes effect July 1.

Suit Record

VISALIA (AP) — A 20-year-old Woodlake woman diagnosed as in a permanent coma has been awarded $1.125 million in the largest court settlement in Tulare County history.

The award on behalf of Yolanda Semanario of Woodlake was approved by Superior Court Judge N. O. Bradley. She has been in a coma since undergoing anesthesia two years ago at Visalia Community Hospital and now is a patient at Porterville State Hospital.

Unit OKs Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A husband could be prosecuted for raping his estranged wife under legislation on the floor of the California Assembly.

The bill by Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), won 5-1 approval Monday of the Assembly Committee on Criminal Justice.

Hike Seen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It will probably cost an extra five cents to ride Southern California Rapid Transit District beginning July 1, according to the general manager of the SCRTD.

Jack Gilstrap told a public hearing Monday that the across-the-board rate increase would be hard to avoid unless the district gets financial help. He said the district a faces a $21 million deficit in the coming fiscal year.

Pair Finish One-year Sail

From AP Dispatches

A Southern California man and his 19-year-old son have arrived in Yokohama after completing a one-year trans-Pacific voyage in a 36-foot sailboat.

R.M. Hendricks, 47, of Sepulveda said he and his son Steven set out from Los Angeles on April 24, 1976, stopping at Tahiti, Samoa and other Pacific islands.

Former New Jersey death row author Edgar Smith Jr. was sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole for the kidnaping last year of a local woman.

SMITH

Smith, 43, appeared before Superior Court Judge Gilbert Harelson almost a month after his conviction at a nonjury trial of kidnaping for robbery, attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon and attempted robbery.

A request by Smith to be certified as a mentally disordered sex offender was denied by Harelson, who said such a hospital commitment would "probably seem a reward."

Harelson said Smith was an "extraordinarily intelligent man who uses that intelligence to manipulate people."

The ceremonies in Freehold, N.J. at the hall, described as containing the only comprehensive collection of radio memorabilia in the country, were highlighted by the appearance of Godfrey, who spoke romantically of a broadcast era when radio shows were live and slips of tne tongue often went on the air uncensored.

Recalling one of his first announcing jobs, with station WMAL in Washington, Godfrey said he tried doing a station break for "the National Farm and Home Hour." But it came out as the "National Harm and Foam Hour."

Gays Get Okay for Church

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — City Council has approved the remodeling of a two-story brick building into a church by a predominantly homosexual congregation.

The approval came despite opposition from Councilman William Katona, who changed his vote when he learned the nature of the church, saying, "I don't think there should be any gay churches."

The Rev. Debbie Gendron, 25, of Trinity Metropolitan Community Church, said, "We're a Christian church with an outreach to the homosexual community. We also have an outreach to alcoholics and dope addicts."

Fountain Valley

Meal Program Wins Funding

The Fountain Valley City Council has approved $1,850 to start a meals for home-bound residents program.

The program is to begin in mid-May. Volunteers are being recruited to deliver the meals, said Rich Holmer, city Human Services Department director.

HOLMER SAID ANY FOUNTAIN Valley resident is eligible to purchase the meals. The program will provide two meals, one cold and one hot, which will be prepared at Fountain Valley Community Hospital.

Holmer said the program is aimed at providing low-cost meals to disabled or handicapped residents who have difficulty getting out of their homes.

Another aim of the program is to lessen the necessity for long hospital stays, said Holmer.

HOLMER SAID NO ONE who requests the meals will be turned away. Civic groups are setting up funds to pay for meals for those residents who cannot pay.

For more information about the program, contact Holmer at 963-8321, extension 239.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill), is to undergo surgery Thursday at Bethesda, Md. Naval Hospital to remove a nodule from his thyroid gland. Physicians will not be able to determine if the growth is cancerous until a biopsy is completed.

Ramp Stinks
Revelers Love It

COSBY, Tenn. (AP) — The hollow-dwellers in the Great Smoky Mountains have been honoring the legendary ramp for 24 years.

Although they ate 80 bushels of ramps over the weekend, they still aren't complimentary when they speak of the wild plant with roots like an onion, leaves like a lily and a reputation for a vile smell and aftertaste.

MOUNTAIN FOLKS GET TOGETHER every year at about this time to pay tribute to the "stinkin' weed," which is found wild only in high elevations.

To the residents of the area, the appearance of the ramp after the last snow melted off for many years signified the beginning of spring — and the end of winter-long diets of salt pork and dried beans.

More recently, the annual festival sponsored by the local Ruritan Club has served as an excuse for between 5,000 and 50,000 people to get together, feast, swap stories and listen to bluegrass and gospel music.

SO, EVEN RAIN ALL MORNING and overcast skies the rest of the day couldn't keep an estimated 8,000 ramp fans away this year.

The sponsors of the festival now have to go deep into North Carolina, almost down to the Georgia line, to dig the ramps needed for the feast.

Search Lights Way For Others

By BEA ANDERSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It was no "seventh inning stretch" that brought the crowd of about 400 to its feet.

A break in the fast-paced program of lectures had just been called and the time was used in awarding door prizes.

So, the standing ovation demonstrated the collective admiration for Florence Fisher, founder and national president of ALMA (Adoptees Liberty Movement Association).

It was obvious she has been the inspiration to many attending the Southern California conference to continue searching when discouragement seemed to be taking over.

In turn, the crowd acknowledged her leadership with rousing applause each time she criticized agencies and challenged her audience to "let's end it all so no one has to die before completing his search."

Although a statement from the Child Welfare League, which was read earlier, said it no longer opposed open adoption records, Mrs. Fisher said, "That just isn't good enough.

"If they will take that last step (support open records), maybe they'll right the wrong so we can respect them."

SHE ADVOCATED to those in search "before going to an agency or back to an agency, get support (from ALMA members). Talk to a group leader."

And, she reminded them, "You don't have to take it when they question why you are in search or why you want to know who your birth parents are."

A tactic that she recommended was to "ask them why they ask you why, each time they ask."

So many adoptees, she said, think they were rejected by their birth mother or parents and they think it again when they begin to search.

"You never were rejected," she emphasized. "It's a word that should be delected from your vocabulary.

"Maybe the mother rejected the circumstances. . . or responsibility. . . or the truth, but she never rejected the baby.

"She did not reject you, but she might have rejected facing what had to be done or the pressure that was put on her.

"Remember, you are not a reject but a gift."

Mrs. Fisher told adoptees that they have every right to know their "roots."

"YOU HAVE EVERY RIGHT to know everyone you are biologically related to. No one has the right to take that away from you.

"If someone tries to keep a surreptitious relationship," she warned, "don't be swept under the rug. There is nothing dirty about you. Don't allow it."

Granted, she said, birth parents have their rights too, "but don't forget yours."

Mrs. Fisher talked about her experience with her birth mother and suggested the audience do the same if they find themselves in a similar situation.

Mrs. Fisher has a half brother and sister and she wanted her birth mother to tell them about her.

The founder said she probably wouldn't have given that much time but she was involved in founding ALMA and writing her book, "The Search for Anna Fisher."

One morning, she said, she woke up and had that gut feeling that she had given her mother enough time and decided to locate and tell her siblings.

AFTER LOCATING both, she discovered her brother worked just a few blocks from her home and that her sister was in Houston.

He was teaching a music class when she arrived at his school. She went in the room, tapped him on the shoulder and asked if he would see her after class. She also requested to sit in on the lesson.

"I kept looking at my brother and was overwhelmingly filled with love. I started to cry and I didn't know how to stop."

Later he took her home and they discovered they had been living around the corner from each other for about 15 months.

"I felt this was meant to be. It was like I had been with him all my life."

Mrs. Fisher told her brother that she now needed to let their mother know that she had made contact and that she also wanted to get in touch with their sister.

"HE INSISTED on handling both.

"I told him I didn't think it was right to dump on a brother, especially when I had just met him."

"He replied, 'That's what brothers are for'."

She concluded the conference with reading a letter from him.

In describing their meeting, he said, "I was surprised at how natural and right it felt. It's interesting how new this is and yet it's like it has been there all the time.

"It's like something had been missing, subtly, and now I feel complete.

"Since she has found us, my music has flowered also.

"I cannot explain it. Perhaps she has something to do with it."

A Happy Blend

New Concept Woven In

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When the September issue of Vogue magazine hits the stands, another chapter in the fascinating saga of a local company will have been published.

St. John Knits, headquartered in Irvine, will announce to the world that it has turned out another beautiful "purl"; woven gabardine pants to go with its ensembles for the first time in its history.

"We offer a total concept now," said Marie Gray, the cofounder and chief designer for the company.

To understand the importance of the pants, one must go back to the beginning and trace the history of the company, which is a real "yarn" in itself.

The most interesting thing about the company is that its founders, Bob and Marie Gray, never intended to design and manufacture knits. Their concept happened almost by accident and it has been a long time maturing.

Mrs. Gray, in fact, has knit one sweater in her life, which she never wore, one sock and one dress, which was the beginning of the company.

A FORMER FASHION model and hostess on the Queen for a Day show, Mrs. Gray tried to think of a way to make money for clothes when she was planning to get married.

Always thrifty, she realized she would have to quit her free-spending ways because she would have other priorities as a homemaker.

"I always liked clothes," she said. "That was one of my big loves. Modeling was sensational. I could wear a lot of clothes and be a lot of people. After two or three wearings, a garment became a tired, old dress.

Her "economy drive" started with knitting a dress to sell to a friend. "I was so bugged because I couldn't do it fast enough," she said.

The answer was to buy a $300 knitting machine, which was a total puzzle. But after two weeks of figuring it out, Mrs. Gray was able to make six dresses for her friends.

They were so successful that Gray, who worked in the garment industry, took them to Bullock's Wilshire to see if there was a bigger market for them.

"THEY ORDERED 50 pieces on the spot," Gray recalled.

Then they asked him the name of his firm and he was stumped. On the spot he called it St. John, using his wife's professional name.

Then he went home and figured out that it would take seven months to produce the dresses at their current rate of speed.

Both the Grays worked at other jobs until St. John finally could support Bob full-time.

The first dress, of ordinary four-ply worsted purchased in a department store, retailed for $50. "I could see they could be mass-produced, which would keep the price down," Gray said.

For the next 12 years the growth was slow and steady as the concept changed and matured. Now, the knits are made of fine special European yarns and retail from $180 to $350.

THE GRAYS SEEM almost surprised at the upturn their business has taken, but they have known from the beginning what it would take to succeed and they have done accordingly.

"The name of the game in creating garments for women is to make them look young," Gray asserted. "Our garments are basically handmade and we have good quality control."

The knits are very carefully constructed to prevent "growth," so they can hang in the closet just like any woven piece. Also, every garment goes out marked with a dye lot so it can be returned for repairs up to six months.

Mrs. Gray designs two lines a year with new, beautiful yarns as her inspiration. "She makes what she thinks is right," Gray said.

Because of their simplicity and the high-quality material used, most of the knits can be worn year-round in Southern California.

They are conservative but tasteful. "Though I like new and exciting things I wouldn't consider myself a fad follower," Mrs. Gray said. "Our concept has matured like a good wine. It has taken us a long time to design a more comprehensive picture."

SHE WORKS by sitting down and thinking, "If I were going on a cruise, what would I like to take along?"

"I might make a few sketches. But it depends on my mood," she added. "I work closely with the research and design group. It's total chaos."

Mrs. Gray, who at one time planned to be an opera singer in her native Yugoslavia, said she mentally redesigned many of the clothes she modeled before her marriage.

Now, she creates with a certain kind of woman in mind. "Our original dress was to be worn for one occasion," she noted.

"Now, we have a total concept. The woman who wears our clothes is a woman of good taste who knows what looks well on her. She is not in any age bracket, per se. She has a body that's young. She's conscious of her body and she has some means because they're not inexpensive."

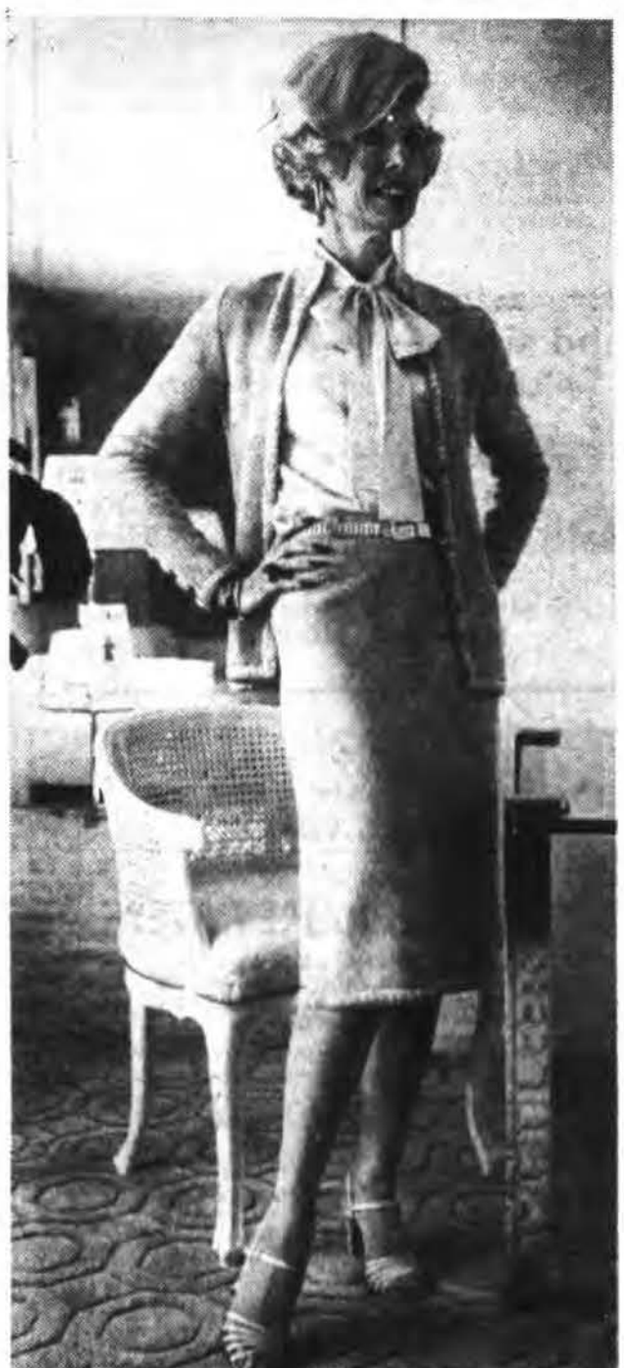

A golf enthusiast who has clubs in every room where she works, Mrs. Gray is like that typical customer herself. She is slender and attractive and shows off the knits well.

She has come a long way from the day she whipped up a two-piece dress of worsted to make a little money for her honeymoon, because 400 employes turn out the expanding line.

Confusion Over Fabrics Hems In Consumers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans spend more than $70 billion a year on clothing, but shoppers may find that selecting the best buy is harder than trying to predict next year's skirt lengths.

A recent survey of 2,500 persons by a market research company, showed that American men intend to purchase 133 million dress shirts, 131 million pairs of slacks, 122 million sports shirts and 100 million pairs of jeans this year.

Women expect to buy 168 million pairs of slacks, 113 million dresses, 127 million knit shirts, 89 million sweaters and 79 million pairs of jeans.

The Conference Board, a business group, says clothing purchases account for about 10 percent of all consumer spending. The variety of fabrics, finishes and styles can turn shopping into a confusing experience, however.

Do you want a natural fiber or a man-made one? Both have advantages and disadvantages; it depends on what you're looking for.

Will a preshrunk garment get smaller after you wash it? Yes.

NATURAL FIBERS

Cotton is absorbent, washable and of medium strength. It wrinkles and shrinks easily unless treated.

Linen is cool, strong and crisp-looking. It does not pick up lint. It washes easily, but unless treated, it wrinkles and shrinks.

Silk is luxurious, wrinkle resistant and strong, but is sensitive to sun and prespiration and usually is not washable. White silk yellows with age.

Wool is warm, strong, durable, resilient, naturally wrinkle resistant and easy to dye. It does, however, shrink very easily.

SYNTHETICS

Virtually all the man-made fibers are washable; other characteristics vary.

Acetate is soft and silky, inexpensive, resistant to wrinkles, moths and mildew, but may dissolve if you spill nail polish or remover, perfumes and many other solvents on it. Triacetate has many of the same characteristics, but is less sensitive to heat.

Acrylic is wool-like in texture and warmth, and furry in appearance. It is quick drying and resists wrinkles and sun. Modacrylic is similar, but has the added quality of being flame resistant.

Nylon is the strongest of all. It is light, dries quickly and doesn't shrink, but it can develop static electricity unless treated.

Polyester is easy to wash and dry and super-resistant to wrinkles. It also holds pleats and creases well and is often blended with cotton for permanent press garments.

Rayon is soft and comfortable, highly absorbent and cheap. It also is durable and easy to dye.

SHRINKING

The word "preshrunk" means what it implies — almost. It does not mean that the fabric has been preshrunk completely. The word frequently will be followed by a statement saying how much more shrinkage is expectable. If there is no statement, be prepared for it to shrink at least 3 percent.

Sanforized refers to a patented process to control shrinking of cotton and linen articles. Again, you can expect some further shrinkage, but it should be only one percent or less.

If there is no label statement, you can expect shrinkage of about five percent. Knitted, napped and sheer fabrics will shrink even more.

CARE

The phrase "wash and wear" means you should be able to wash an item and wear it with little or no ironing, but some garments don't live up to the label very well. The product may have achieved its wash-and-wear status one of three ways: by a resin finish added to the fabric to reduce wrinkling (it may still need ironing), through a chemical modification of the fiber or through a mixture of cotton and a synthetic which is naturally wrinkle resistant.

Drip dry means that the garment must be hung up to dry while wet. The runoff helps remove the wrinkles.

If you want to be able to do your laundry by machine, look for labels that say "automatic wash and wear," "permanent press," or "durable press." Cotton and polyester blends generally are permanent press, making them easy to care for. They also are difficult to alter, however, because hems and pleats are permanent.

Good Lesson to Be Learned

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: The letter about the rotten behavior of school kids got to me.

The main problem is the gutless behavior of the administrators. Last year a teacher reprimanded an upper-grade boy for jogging across the tops of the cafeteria tables. The child's mother phoned the school and complained to the principal for allowing the teacher to embarrass her son before his peers. The principal should have defended the teacher but instead she was roundly criticized.

The mother then called the teacher at home that evening and chewed her out. This is just one of many examples I could relate from my years of trying to teach.

The sad truth is that the teachers are afraid of the administrators. The administrators are afraid of the parents. The parents are afraid of their children, and unfortunately the children aren't afraid of anyone.

Unfair to the students who want to learn? YES. Gutless behavior? DEFINITELY. So gutless, in fact, I won't even sign ny name, because — I NEED A JOB NEXT YEAR

DEAR NEED A JOB: My readers tell me that column has been widely discussed at PTA meetings. If I started something that results in stronger support for teachers, I'm delighted. Here is another point of view:

DEAR MISS LANDERS: This is in response to the barrage of letters you received regarding the negativism of students in our schools. Since I have never been in their buildings, I am no judge of what goes on elsewhere, but I can speak for the school of which I am the principal.

The students in our school are not angels, but they are courteous, respectful both of people and property, eager to learn, and a pleasure to be with.

I like to feel that the reasons behind those positive characteristics can be traced to the parents, religious affiliations and the teachers. If the adult society shows respect and love toward our students, we find they reciprocate.

I realize there is much information one must have before making a judgment, but I'd be interested in finding out what the letter writers have done to (a) create such problems, and (b) alleviate them.

I don't envy anyone having to go to work under the conditions described. I wake up each morning, looking forward to another wonderful day. — ALVIN N. COHEN, PRINCIPAL, WILMOT JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL, CHICAGO

DEAR MR. COHEN: I received a handful of letters similar to yours, but unfortunately you folks were badly outnumbered.

DEAR ANN: I have a neighbor who constantly "drafts" me to take care of her children, ages four and two. She phones and says she's in a jam. I have two youngsters of my own and wouldn't dream of doing this to anyone unless it was a dire emergency.

Last week I was stuck with her kids four afternoons. How can I let her know I feel abused without losing her friendship? — NAPA VALLEY

DEAR N.V.: Let her know the same way you let me know. TELL HER. If you lose her "friendship" you'll gain something more valuable — independence and self-respect.

Have Fun

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Highlight creativity — accept necessity for change. Emotions dominate — you feel, perceive and detect subtle signals. A relationship is growing more intense.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight basic values, standards. Don't veer too far off course. Being pleasant to someone does not mean you are to give up your own beliefs, personality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on contacts, messages, written material, relatives, short trips. Be aware of fine print, details. Have fun without abdicating responsibilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You gain access to information which can prove profitable. Take notes. Check sources. Aid can be received from group, club or special organization.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What had been a money or property "misunderstanding" rights itself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Much that occurs is behind the scenes — you could do well by working within organization.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on desire, friendship, romantic interests, attainment of goal. You regain sense of direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Prestige, creative endeavors are featured. You get rid of what has been a burden.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dig beneath superficial layers — insist on factual data. Be ready for change, travel, variety, intensified relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Low profile gets job done. Accent on details, basic issues, the way you accomplish tasks.

No Love Lost

AT WIT'S END

By ERMA BOMBECK

My kids said the other day, "Mom, good news! We just signed you up for the intramural tennis team at the recreational center."

"I don't like to play tennis," I grumbled.

"Of course you do. Every red-blooded American mother likes to play tennis. Besides, it's good for you. You sit around and watch too much television and you don't get enough exercise."

"How often do I have to practice?"

"My goodness, that's no attitude," said my son. "Tennis is fun. You're going to love it. And you're going to win. And we're going to sit in the stands and root for you and who knows, you might even get your name in the paper. Would you like that?"

I shrugged and flipped channels.

Practices were a drag. I went every afternoon to the center and played my heart out . . . running to strengthen my legs . . . hitting 50 gillion balls and dropping into bed each night exhausted.

One night as I was dozing off, my son came in and put a rubber ball in my hand and said, "Keep squeezing, it's good for the old serving arm."

The first match was last week. My kids took me aside for last-minute instructions. "Okay now, Mom, just relax. This woman serves like she's swatting flies. Just watch her at the net. Don't let her draw you in. Hang back and keep it steady. Play your Evert game. Just keep slammin' 'em in. Got that? Now, we don't want you to get uptight or anything but if you win, there's that water massage shower you've had your eye on. Go get 'em."

The stands were full of vicious kids, all with their eyes on their own mothers, shouting instructions, calling the line judges names, and screaming, "That turkey foot-faulted. Didn't anyone see her?"

On the way home they tried to comfort me. "Hey, it's just a championship game where you either bring honor to your team or humiliate them. Don't sweat it. You almost gave your best. Of course in that second set, you stood there like you were waiting for a city bus . . .

"And you could have gotten that corner shot if you'd had your racket back in time, but what the heck . . . Hey, your opponent had 30 pounds on you. We're just going to have to get you into better shape. We'll get it all together before next week's match. Besides, you had a wonderful time, didn't you?"

I woke up in a cold sweat. What a lousy dream. It was a dream, wasn't it? What am I saying? Of course it was. I mean, how many people push their mothers into organized sports?

Or children for that matter.

Tell Mom You Love Her

This Mother's Day send Mom a greeting all the world can share on Sunday, May 8.

Express your love in a Daily Pilot Mother's Day greeting.

Ads come in three sizes: $8, $15 and $2 for the special child's size card. (You must be under 12 to qualify for the littlest greeting).

It's easy. Write your message to fit the border shown here. Bring it to any Daily Pilot office prior to noon May 6. Or, you may mail a clipping of the border with your message and payment to Daily Pilot, 330 W. Bay St., Box 1560, Costa Mesa, CA 92626.

For help with your ad or if you have any questions, call 642-5678. A friendly Daily Pilot ad-viser will be glad to help you.

And, if you like, you can charge your Mother's Day ad. Your credit is good with us, or you may use your Master Charge or BankAmericard.

Kids Face Sales Tax Evasion Charge

RAMONA (AP) — The 12-year-old president of a company with gross earnings of up to $3,000 monthly has been ordered to appear before the state Board of Equalization to explain why the firm has no permit to sell its product — manure.

Richard Cessna Jr., president of Kidco, Inc., and his three young co-officers, ages 9 to 14, also have been accused by the state of failing to charge sales tax.

THE YOUNGSTERS — RICHARD'S SISTER, Ne-Ne, 9, vice president; another sister, Bette, 11, secretary, and a half-sister, June Cole, 14, treasurer — went into business a year ago with a contract to sweep the six main streets of San Diego Country Estates for $150 monthly.

They branched out by contracting with their father, who supervises the developments's 110-horse stables, to remove manure and wood shavings.

After composting the mixture, they sell it to landscapers and the local golf course at prices lower than commercial suppliers.

THE YOUNG ENTREPRENEURS ALSO offer a service to kill gophers for $1 each, but that's another story.

Cessna's father, Richard, said he will accompany them today to the hearing in San Diego.

"The Board of Equalization says they need a permit because it is something tangible and that they have to add a sales tax for their customers," the elder Cessna said in an interview. "They may have to pay the state sales tax on their past sales, plus penalties."

THERE WAS NO ESTIMATE ON how much money might be ruled due.

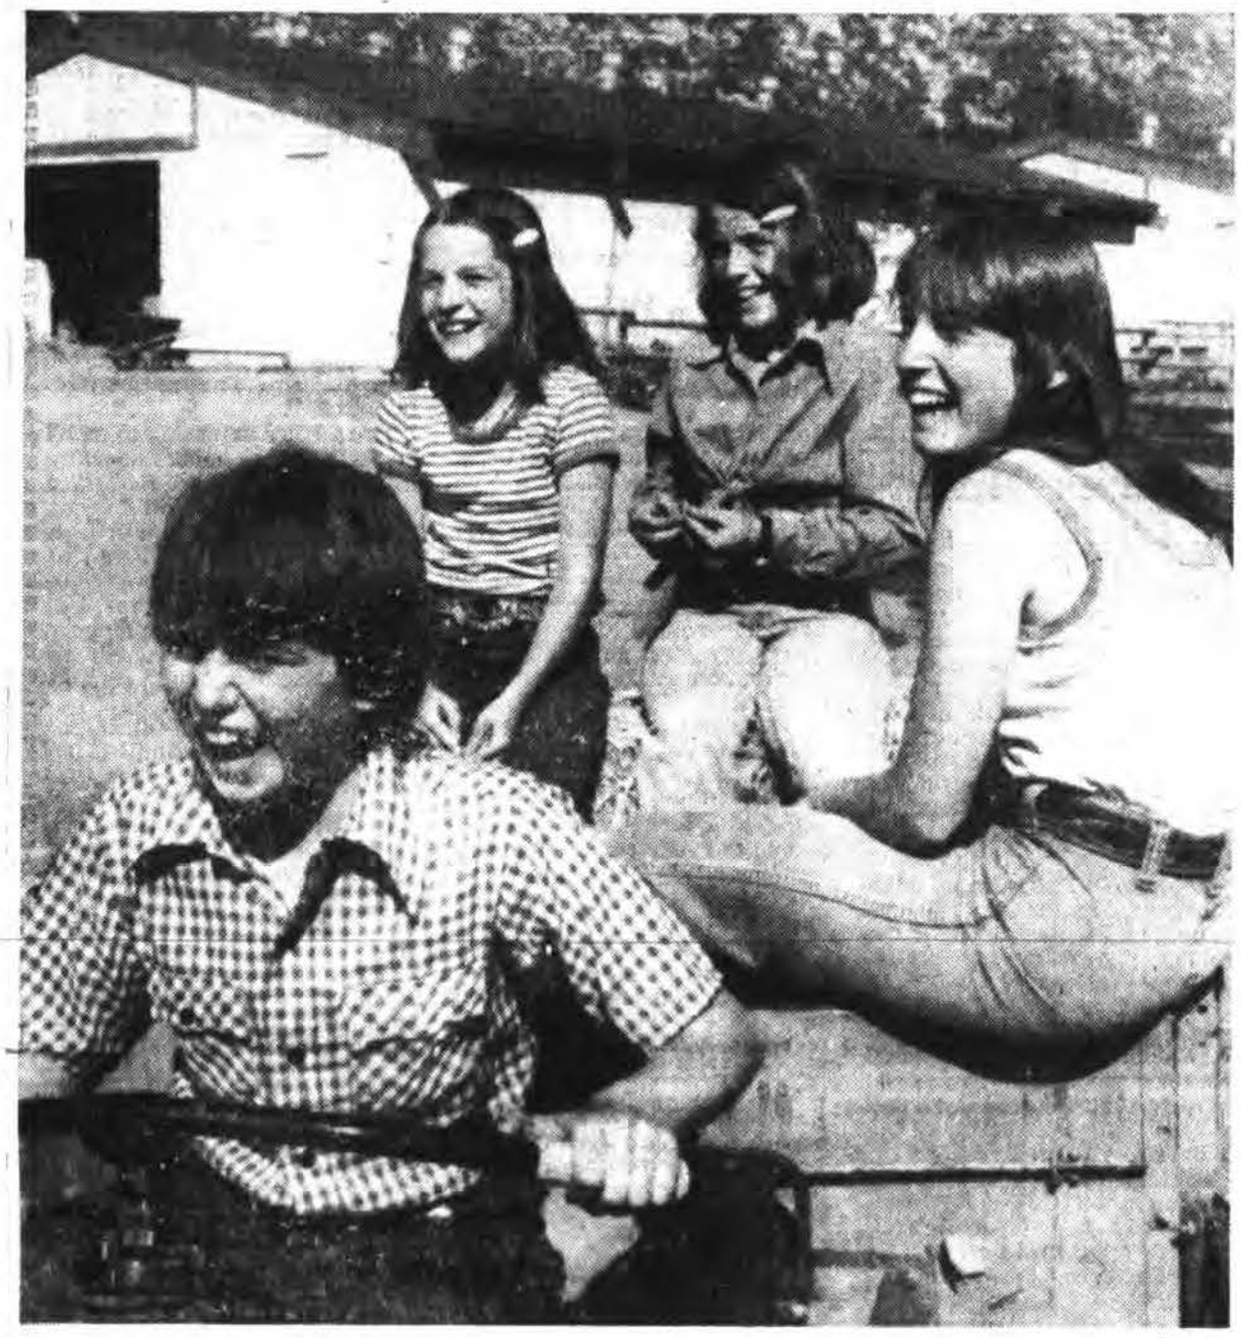

But he and his son believe "the sales tax was already paid when the feed for the horses and the wood shavings to bed down the stables were brought in.

If the state board rules against them, he said they plan to take it to the courts.

THEY GROSSED $3,000 LAST October, their biggest sales month, but refuse to disclose their average earnings because, the young Cessna says, some of the kids at school try to borrow money.

Kidco, said Cessna, was incorporated in the Cayman Islands in the British West Indies when Cessna paid $1,500 in registration costs to avoid the earnings tax in California.

Gale-force Winds Halt Well Capping

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Since the well blew Friday, the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig has been spewing between

Huntington To Request Water Cuts

Residents of Huntington Beach will be asked to voluntarily cut back on water consumption by 15 percent to combat effects of a statewide drought.

Notices urging conservation efforts will be sent to residents in about two weeks.

In the summer, the city gets 60 percent of its water from wells and buys the remainder from the Orange County Municipal Water District.

Hartge said the water supply is generally "in pretty good shape" but that the water table is dropping slowly.

"If we can reduce water use by 15 percent, it will allow us to catch up with the drop in the table," Hartge said.

Hartge said if residents continued to use water at previous rates, drastic steps would have to be taken in four or five years.

They include deepening wells, buying more water and engaging in extensive efforts to halt salt water intrusion.

Californians Would Favor Water Ration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The majority of Californians surveyed on the state's water shortage said they would favor statewide rationing if needed, according to Mervin D. Field's California Poll released today.

Pollster Field said about four out of five Californians, regardless of where they live, believe water rationing should not be confined to water-short counties.

He said more Northern California residents were concerned about water, but "even in the south the greatest number of people see the water shortage as serious and favor statewide rationing."

Field said 93 percent of those surveyed said they were practicing some form of water conservation.

Californians said agriculture and health and safety should be given the highest priorities for water, according to the poll. They listed households next and said industry and business should be given the lowest priority for water.

The poll surveyed 962 adult Californians last month.

HONORED FOR SERVICE
Trustee Ralph Bauer

HB Trustee Bauer Feted By Council

Veteran school board member Ralph Bauer said Monday he has no immediate plans to seek public office after serving 11 years as a trustee in Huntington Beach.

Bauer, 46, was honored Monday by the Huntington Beach Union High School District Secondary PTA Council for his service to youth since 1966.

The former trustee, who chose not to run for reeelection to the high school board last month, has also served two four-year terms on the Ocean View (elementary) School Board.

Bauer, a 13-year Huntington Beach resident, served on the Huntington Beach Union High School District Board from 1968 until last month.

"I chose to voluntarily relinquish power to give someone else a chance to have input," said Bauer. "If one person dominates the school board too long, that weakens it."

Bauer said he "left the district in excellent hands" but admitted the current board has "short-range philosophical differences."

The former trustee said he plans to keep active in volunteer groups such as Los Amigos de Bolsa Chica, an environmental group attempting to preserve the marshlands in northwestern

An open house for parents will be held at Marina High School Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the student cafeteria.

Parents and school staff will meet in the cafeteria, visit classrooms and return for refreshments.

Infant Death Hearing Near Completion

Defense attorneys for Dr. William B. Waddill of Huntington Harbour presented their final witnesses todday in a hearing to determine if the physician should be tried on charges of killing an hour-old infant.

Deputy District Attorney Bob Chatterton said Judge Kenneth M. Smith is expected to decide whether to remand the case to Orange County Superior Court Wednesday.

Chatterton said he and Waddill's attorneys will present final arguments in the closed preliminary hearing in West Orange County Municipal Court Wednesday.

Waddill, 43, is charged with murder in connection with the March 2 strangulation death of a baby girl at Westminster Community Hospital.

Waddill is free on $25,000 bail.

HB's 'Consigliore' Plans Foundation

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A Huntington Beach area man who earned his law degree while in prison scored another first Monday.

Charles Thomas "Tom" Miller, 33, who was known as The Consigliore to his jailhouse clients of Italian heritage, flew to Sacramento to incorporate his own nonprofit foundation.

"It really got heavy. . .," Miller said in an interview late Monday after his whirlwind flight to the state capital where paperwork was filed creating his Equal Justice and Human Rights Foundation.

California officialdom — at least in certain quarters — is skeptical of the longtime convict and parolee's motives but Miller, an Orange County-based law clerk who plans to become an attorney, says he is totally serious.

He said Sen. Richard J. Alatorre (D-Los Angeles) and an aide, Daniel Castro, intervened successfully on his Sacramento visit to arrange a VIP tour of Folsom Prison, where he once served time.

Miller says much of his dream plan of creating the Equal Justice and Human Rights Foundation were devised at Folsom, where on Dec. 12-13, 1975, he passed the test for his LLB degree.

He was paroled three days later — some years after his stretches in 31 city, county, state and federal jail facilities began — and last month his state and federal paroles expired.

"The staff at Folsom wasn't too happy but they stopped giving me the runaround when they found out Sen. Alatorre was getting me into the prison," says Miller, who is busy with more work today.

He said Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., was out of town and he was unable to arrange an audience with him but he presented the governor's office with an honorary membership in the new foundation.

Miller was interviewed at the prison by convict Bob Collins, editor of the Folsom Observer, an inmate newspaper, and KABC-TV newsmen and representatives of the Sacramento Bee accompanied him.

Miller said after papers were filed and the Equal Justice and Human Rights Foundation received its tax-exempt status from the State Franchise Tax

UCI Prof

Worldwide Ban On Spray Asked

UNITED EFFORT STRESSED
UCI Prof. Frank Rowland

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer, caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate of fluorocarbon production continues, there will be at least 50,000 new cases of skin cancer each year.

Rowland observed that Canada and Sweden have already pledged to follow a path similar to that being taken by the United States. Other countries, though, have not yet decided, he said.

The UCI scientist also said it's important that individual states continue to enact their own bans to go along with the anticipated federal ban.

"It's double protection. First, it expresses people's beliefs that the bans are necessary, and second, it quickly limits the fluorocarbon market for manufacturers," Rowland pointed out

Spray Can Warning Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using fluorocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning after Oct. 31:

"Warning: contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

About 85 percent of aerosol products containing the chemicals are covered by the FDA regulation. The remaining 15 percent are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission — CPSC — or the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA already requires a warning label on pesticide aerosols containing fluorocarbons, and the product safety commission proposal is expected to take effect early next year.

The FDA and CPSC joint announcement said details of a mandatory phase-out program for all nonessential aerosols using fluorocarbons will be announced shortly.

Parks Committee Sets Public Meet

The Fountain Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will hold a public hearing tonight at 7:30 on proposed uses for the city's $390,000 in federal revenue sharing.

The meeting will be held in the council chambers, 10200 Slater Ave.

Low Level Attack

California Division of Forestry planes, flown in from Hemet's Ryan Field, dropped about 6,000 gallons of pink fire retardant chemicals onto Irvine Ranch fire that burned 85 acres in Moro Canyon, between Laguna Beach and Corona del Mar Monday. The three twin-engined aircraft used are converted Navy submarine detection planes. Critical flights were delayed 1½ hours as planes were committed to San Diego fires.

Westminster Services Set For Crash Dead

A mass funeral service for 114 unidentified victims killed in the Canary Islands air disaster will be held Wednesday afternoon in Westminster.

Bodies of 100 unidentified American victims of the March 27 crash arrived Friday at El Toro Marine Air Station. Another 14 bodies were flown Thursday night to Los Angeles International Airport.

The bodies were flown in following efforts to identify the victims of aviation's worst disaster, which occurred when a Pan-Am 747 and a Dutch KLM 747 collided on the runaway at Tenerife, killing 580 persons.

Pan-Am spokesman Brad Dressler said the identification process was halted at Dover, Del., last week with 204 of the 329 American victims named.

About two-thirds of the remaining unidentified victims have been determined to be from Southern California, and the rest from other parts of California, Dressler said.

All 114 caskets were delivered to Westminster Memorial Park, which has donated a mass gravesite for the dead. Wednesday afternoon's services will be inter-denominational.

Band Concert Slated in HB

Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District students in a 100-piece orchestra and 150-piece combined band will perform tonight in a free intra-district music festival in the Sowers Middle School mall.

The music will begin at 7:30 p.m. The school is located at 9300 Indianapolis Ave., Huntington Beach.

The band and orchestra consist of instrumental students from Dwyer, Gisler and Sowers Middle schools under the direction of David Borkenhagen, Marvin Gay and James Martin.

The event is public.

Park Parking Fee Dropped At HB Site

In these times, one wouldn't think that 50 cents makes much of a difference one way or the other, but it did in Huntington Beach.

Last September, the city imposed a charge of 50 cents per night for each member of an organized group such as Boy Scouts to camp in Central Park in the area east of the library.

Camping attendance nosedived by about 90 percent, according to Norm Worthy, recreation and parks department director.

Because of the drastic falloff, the city council voted unanimously last week to remove all fees for overnight parking.

Worthy said that he had received criticism from scoutmasters who felt there is a fee for just about everything and decided to go to other parks where camping was free.

A $1 per day fee for each motor vehicle also was rescinded by the council.

Spectacular Auto Crash Injures Man

A Huntington Beach man escaped with moderate injuries Monday when his powerful sport sedan allegedly rammed one parked car after glancing off another, hurling the second vehicle 15 feet airborne.

Richard Evands, 34, of 8277 Cape Horn Drive, declined hospital treatment following the spectacular 2:45 p.m. collision on Pacific Coast Highway 500 feet west of Beach Boulevard, police said.

Motorcycle Patrolman John Hauser said Evans' sporty coupe was a total loss, while one of the two cars it struck was nearly demolished in the crash.

Officer Hauser said the auto owned by Sam Hambro, of 16583 So. Pacific Ave., Sunset Beach, sustained major damage in the accident that knocked it 15 feet into the air and 45 feet down the highway.

Investigators said Evans was eastbound on Coast Highway when his car apparently sideswiped the first parked auto and then veered into Hambro's car.

Valley Police Seek Woman In Store Heist

A female bandit tried to run down a supermarket meat clerk with her auto and stole $73.20 worth of groceries Monday night, Fountain Valley police reported.

The suspect was described as a Caucasian, about five feet, one inch tall and weighing 120 pounds.

'Rare' Auto Window Stolen

A Huntington Beach bookstore clerk has lost the rear window of her classic 1957 Ford Thunderbird hardtop sport convertible to thieves who stole it in a busy shopping center in broad daylight Monday.

Dorothy Yohe, an employe of Walden Books, 7777 Edinger Ave., valued the T-Bird window at $250, according to police who filed a grand theft report.

Budget Hike Eyed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County taxpayers will fund a budget next year that is $221 million higher than the current one if the County Chief Administrative Officer's proposal stands. The budget proposal, totaling $3.5 billion, was released Monday.

840,000 and 1.05 million gallons a day into the sea, forming a slick six miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long.

At current oil cartel prices, the well was throwing away about $300,000 worth of crude oil a day. About 40 to 60 percent of crude oil can be refined into gasoline, experts said, meaning the oil lost so far could run about 2,800 cars for a year.

At current U.S. consumption levels, the oil lost by noon today would supply the entire United States for about 24 minutes, an expert in Washington said.

The two American experts, Boots Hansen and Richard Hattenorg of the renowned team of Texas oil well fire fighter Red Adair, made the decision to postpone capping operations after boarding the rig for the third time since they arrived on the scene Saturday. Four other men — two from Adair's crew and two from Phillips, also inspected the rig today.

They said they need more time to bring up special equipment from the barge Choctaw, which is sitting alongside Bravo and serving as their main operational base.

Decision On Irvine Awaited

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

Mobil officials have refused to make any such concession to the granddaughter of James Irvine II.

Judge Judge made it clear late Monday that he is not compelled to approve the higher offer for the Irvine Company regardless of which contender submits the highest bid.

He warned lawyers for both sides that there are many other issues to be considered, among them the argument that a rapidly improving economic outlook in Orange County might mean a much better price for the Irvine Company within the next few years.

Mrs. Smith has agreed with that suggestion during testimony. She believes that the Irvine Company today is worth at least $450 million.

HB Youngster Hurt in Crash

A Huntington Beach youth was in stable condition at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital today following a head-on collision in Costa Mesa which also injured two other youths.

Randy Lee Lockhart, 18, of 401 Atlanta Ave., Huntington Beach allegedly ran a red light at Baker Street and Mendoza Drive, colliding with a car driven by Robert M. Kennedy, 20, of 300 Bucknell Drive, Costa Mesa.

The crash also injured Lockhart's passenger, 17-year-old Will Curtis Niesley, 9619 Toucan Circle, who was treated by Costa Mesa paramedics and later examined and released from the hospital.

Kennedy also suffered cuts to the head, but refused transportation to the hospital.

Polaroid Ends Rumors

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Polaroid Corp. has unveiled its long-awaited instant home movie camera and television-like viewer that produces films in one minute.

Dr. Edwin Land, Polaroid's 67-year-old founder and chairman, demonstrated the "polavision" system at the company's 40th annual stockholders meeting today.

Land said the hand-held camera contains a film cassette good for 2½ minutes of home movies. The cassette fits in the top of the viewer, which automatically develops the film and shows it in color one minute later on its 12-inch screen.

Land said the camera and film will eventually include sound, but the company has not yet been able to develop a high-quality sound system.

Land said the camera and viewer will be available in the fall. He would not disclose the system's price but said it will be competitive with "any good home movie system."

Saddleback Scraps Myford-Bryan Site

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

After a three and a half hour hearing laced with some bitter audience comments, Saddleback College trustees Monday scrapped plans to buy a second campus site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue on the Irvine Ranch.

The board then voted 4-3 to begin negotiations with the Irvine Company to acquire an alternative location for the new campus at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road.

New board member William Watts joined Trustees Donna Berry and Frank Greinke in opposing acquisition of the alternate site, even though he had voted earlier to rescind the decision to buy Myford-Bryan.

Trustees will meet again May 9 to close the deal on that parcel following yet another hearing to permit the landowner and the public to comment.

Tustin Trustee Frank Greinke, a vocal opponent of the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site, intimated after the new vote that he would spend the next few weeks seeking legal loopholes to stall the purchase.

Most of those attending the session were from a mobile home park called The Meadows and a housing tract called The Ranch. Both developments are located near the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site endorsed by the board.

Most of the speakers during the hearing voiced concern over traffic, the impact on their neighborhoods of an influx of students, parking and noise.

The general attitude appeared to be that voiced by a woman in the audience who said, "We're all for education but we don't want it in our neighborhood."

Nick Alles of the Meadows Association gave the most detailed presentation in opposition to the new location for the campus, which would start out as a 20-acre satellite and have the capacity for growth up to 100 acres over the next five years.

Alles said the college board had to make a choice of "being fair to many residents in the area or to government (the city of Irvine) and private business (the Irvine Company) who shoot credibility to pieces."

He said residents should not

Worldwide Ban On Spray Asked

UNITED EFFORT STRESSED
UCI Prof. Frank Rowland

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer, caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate

HealthWarning To Be Placed On Spray Cans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

Kids Granted Permit

Horse Manure Firm Must Charge Tax

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The California Board of Equalization awarded a seller's permit today to a horse-manure distribution firm run by children who made up to $3,000 a month without collecting or paying state sales tax.

A senior tax representative of the board made the decision after meeting 45 minutes with the company's officers who range in age from 9 to 14 years.

The permit, No. 25686734, provides that they must now charge a sales tax on some but not necessarily all the homegrown fertilizer which is sold.

Neither tax official Bill Atwell nor an attorney for the children would say if any back taxes must be paid.

"We shouldn't be taxed," he said before the meeting.

"We're just kids. They ought to be glad we're out working on our own instead of being out someplace busting windows."

The action involved KIDCO, Inc., a corporation founded and run by the children of Richard Cessna, who operates the equestrian center at San Diego Country Estates, a planned community in Ramona.

Cessna said the children let him sit in at board meetings, but make their own decisions.

The firm, whose primary service is selling manure and wood shavings from the stable floors in the form of compost for nurseries and golf courses, incorporated in the British West Indies last year to prevent it from being subject to California taxes.

KIDCO contends the taxes are paid when horse feed and wood shavings are purchased, so there should be no tax on the back end.

The state, however, maintains the byproduct is new — compost — and the services offered by the youngsters are tangible and subject to sales taxes.

KIDCO also sweeps the streets of the community for $150 per month, exterminates gophers for $1 each and dabbles in anything else at which a profit can be turned.

Other officers of the firm, which made $3,000 last October, its best month, are Richard Jr.'s sisters, 9-year-old Ne-Ne, a vice president; Bette, 11, secretary; and their half-sister, June Cole, 14, treasurer.

National Group Honors UCI Prof

Dr. Richard F. Thompson, UC Irvine psychobiology professor, has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences, the academy announced today.

Membership in the academy is considered one of the highest honors given to American scientists and engineers. The academy, headquartered in Washington, serves as an adviser to the federal government in matters of science and technology.

Thompson, of Newport Beach, is the second current UCI professor elected to the academy. The other is Howard Schneiderman, biological sciences dean, who was chosen in 1974.

Sixty members were elected to the academy this year including eight from the UC system, bringing the total membership to 1,219.

Thompson has been at UCI since 1967, except for a year and a half in 1973 and 1974 when he

Capping Halted

Gas Forces Crew To Leave Oil Spill

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

Espionage Trial

Drinking Told At TRW Firm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Boyce, accused of espionage, took the witness stand in his own defense today and told of drinking parties within top-secret vaults at the defense research plant where he worked.

Boyce said that a marijuana plant was grown and displayed inside one of the secret communications centers at TRW Systems Inc. and one employe used the secure phones in "the war room" to place bets with his bookie.

"We used to drink vodka and orange juice in the vault all the time," the 23-year-old Boyce said under questioning by his attorney, William Dougherty.

"I'd say I drank with about 10 people . . . there was always a bottle in there behind the teletype link," Boyce said.

In an effort to prove that security was so lax that others might have stolen information, Boyce told how another employe made imitation security badges which were used by at least one person to walk in and out of the plant.

"He made a badge with a monkey on it for a joke," Boyce said.

He told how a marijuana plant sat in open view on a work table and told of attending a beer party on the day he was briefed about security regulations.

"We had a party at lunch," he recalled, "and drank a considerable amount of beer."

He said perhaps eight or nine pitchers were downed before he and other new employes returned for the rest of their briefing on the operation of code machines.

Boyce said one of the first things he was told by a CIA technician was that the code equipment had already been compromised to a foreign country.

"The Central Intelligence Agency technician said all of the equipment had been compromised on the Pueblo and a lot of it had been lost in Vietnam," Boyce said.

Mike Mathews, a TRW spokesman reached at the firm's Redondo Beach offices, said "we're not going to comment while the thing is in litigation."

Boyce is charged with stealing secrets from TRW in Redondo Beach for sale to the Russians through a Soviet science attache in Mexico. His attorneys have claimed that the government, focusing its attention on Boyce and another defendant, Andrew Daulton Lee, 25, failed to thoroughly investigate whether others might have sold secrets.

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

The sale of the Irvine Company became mandatory with the passage of the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969. The measure compels charitable foundations to divest themselves of private company holdings by 1983.

A last minute sensation appeared to be in the making late Monday when telegrams from a company identified as Jerard Development Limited were delivered in the courtroom to lawyers for both sides and Judge Judge.

The firm, further identified as a consortium of businessmen based in Philadelphia, said in the telegrams that it is prepared to pay $325 million for the Irvine Company.

Both Friedman and Privett immediately rejected the offer as worthless.

They said the Jerard group has not proved its ability to meet such a financial commitment in the past during an earlier approach to the Foundation that was not made public.

Rowland observed that Canada and Sweden have already pledged to follow a path similar to that being taken by the United States. Other countries, though, have not yet decided, he said.

The UCI scientist also said it's important that individual states continue to enact their own bans to go along with the anticipated federal ban.

"It's double protection. First, it expresses people's beliefs that the bans are necessary, and second, it quickly limits the fluorocarbon market for manufacturers," Rowland pointed out.

Merit Pay Supported

Irvine Panel Likes Plan—With Guidelines

The committee assigned to study alternative pay systems for teachers will tell the Irvine School Board Wednesday that a "merit pay" system might work in Irvine if certain guidelines are followed.

Robert Q. Shupe, chairman of the 12-person committee, said today his group is not making a recommendation to the board one way or the other.

Instead, the committee has drawn up a list of six guidelines which it believes must be followed for a merit pay system to work in Irvine.

The report will be given to the school board at the 7:30 p.m. meeting at Irvine High School.

According to Shupe, his committee has spent the past six months meeting weekly, studying various alternative pay systems used elsewhere in the country.

"It's a complex and touchy subject and the charge to the committee was simply to give a general recommendation to the board, not provide a model system," explained Shupe, an attorney who unsuccessfully ran for the school board in March.

"I guess if they agree to try it, the model will be worked out in negotiations between the teachers and school board," Shupe continued.

The chairman said the six guidelines "might sound simple, but they're not." He explained they were gathered from "reams of reports" studied by the committee and were thought to be the best methods to be used in a merit pay system.

The guidelines suggested include:

— Identifying the goal of the system as "recognizing and rewarding superior teaching," not using it as a punitive measure.

— Finding methods to distinguish between good teaching and superior teaching, basing such methods on sound evaluation practices. Also, providing appeal safeguards.

— Realizing that the system will probably add administrative expense, not decrease the cost of paying teachers.

— Include teacher evaluation as an integral part of the merit plan, using clearly defined criteria and including teachers in the evaluation procedure.

— Letting the teacher who is being evaluated have the opportunity to provide a self-evaluation and review and respond to others' evaluations.

The school board is not expected to take action on the group's report, but will apparently take the findings into consideration as negotiations with the teachers proceed.

The committee was composed of representatives picked by the teachers organization and by the school board. Members included teachers, principals and private citizens.

have to put up with "college students spread all over our lawns and berms as is the case at UC Irvine."

"We don't need a college at this location and we don't want a college at this location," he concluded, to a resounding standing ovation from many audience members.

The Irvine Company has offered the site at Irvine Center and Jeffrey for $45,000 an acre with a five year option to buy up to 100 total acres at the same fixed price, unaffected by inflation that would increase actual land values to more than $100,000 during the same period.

No such growth option was offered on the Myford-Bryan site, which was a flat 20 acres at about $30,000 an acre, based on the college's own appraisal.

The Irvine City Council has endorsed the satellite campus site offered by the Irvine Company.

The audience listened impatiently Monday to presentations by planners for the city and the college district regarding the noise, parking, traffic and other factors, including the fact that the Myford-Bryan site would be subject to flooding in the event of major rains.

Irvine Council Ponders Policy On Annexation

The Irvine City Council will try to decide tonight whether it wants to stretch its city boundaries, and, if so, in which directions.

During tonight's 7:30 o'clock meeting at city hall, the council will be asked to look at the city's annexation policy.

Staff members have prepared a report for the council that lists six different areas being eyed for annexation, either individually or in various combinations with each other.

Five of the proposed areas are in the northern portion of the city, mostly extending the city's sphere of influence. The sixth alternative includes the city's sphere of influence to the south — the Coyote Canyon landfill, San Joaquin Reservoir and the northern slopes of the San Joaquin Hills to the ridgeline.

Once the countil decides what, if anything, it wants to annex, it must forward that policy to the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC) for ultimate approval.

Staff members are asking the council to decide soon because they believe the annexation policy must be established prior to any further decision on land use policy.

SB College Meet Topper For Trustee

Saddleback College Trustee Larry Taylor has chaired some wild board meetings in his years as a school official but even he had to admit Monday's college board session was more taxing than most.

One member of the often-hostile, sarcastic audience in Irvine wanted to know why board members were reconsidering the site for a second district campus when a decision had already been made to buy one of two suggested locations.

Taylor attempted to justify the action by explaining that three new board members had been elected in March, replacing one incumbent and filling two vacancies left by a resignation and the death of another trustee.

Monarch Sued in LW Death

The King of Spain has been named as a defendant in a wrongful death suit filed on behalf of a Laguna Hills Leisure World woman who died March 27 in the world's worst aviation disaster.

The suit was filed Monday in San Francisco federal court by Walter Michael Watt, special administrator for the estate of Jean Houston, 508C Ave. Sevilla, Leisure World. Mrs. Houston, who traveled extensively since the death of her husband five years ago, was a victim of the ground collision between a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 and a Pan Am 747 in the Canary Islands.

The suit requests unspecified damages for wrongful death and loss of property.

"His Catholic Majesty the King of Spain and the Kingdom of Spain" and the two airlines are named as defendants.

The suit said the Canary Islands are a province of Spain and the government of Spain operated the international airport facility at Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands, known as the Los Rodeos Airport.

It alleges that Spain, through its subjects and employes at the airport and airport control facility "were negligent and careless and otherwise derelict" in their duties in the movement and control of the aircraft.

Other suits have been filed in U.S. District Courts as a result of the crash, but none have named Spain or its King as defendants.

Westminster Crash Dead Services Set

A mass funeral service for 114 unidentified victims killed in the Canary Islands air disaster will be held Wednesday afternoon in Westminster.

Bodies of 100 unidentified American victims of the March 27 crash arrived Friday at El Toro Marine Air Station. Another 14 bodies were flown Thursday night to Los Angeles International Airport.

The bodies were flown in following efforts to identify the victims of aviation's worst disaster, which occurred when a Pan-Am 747 and a Dutch KLM 747 collided on the runaway at Tenerife, killing 580 persons.

Pan-Am spokesman Brad Dressler said the identification process was halted at Dover, Del., last week with 204 of the 329 American victims named.

About two-thirds of the remaining unidentified victims have been determined to be from Southern California, and the rest from other parts of California, Dressler said.

All 114 caskets were delivered to Westminster Memorial Park, which has donated a mass gravesite for the dead. Wednesday afternoon's services will be inter-denominational.

Brown 'Life' Stand Lashed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate's Republican leader claims that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is trying to block enactment of a death penalty law by pushing a life-without-parole bill.

Sen. George Deukmejian lashed out at Brown and a GOP colleague Monday, contending that passage of the life bill would make it "almost impossible" to override Brown's promised veto of a death penalty measure.

"I think he has set out to deliberately kill our death penalty bill," Deukmejian said at a Capitol news conference.

Argon Gas Fells Six

Six men were injured in an industrial accident Monday on the construction site of a nuclear reactor at the San Onofre Generating Station.

The men were all exposed to argon gas, an inert substance used to displace oxygen inside stainless steel pipes when they are being welded.

The argon also displaces oxygen in human lungs and the men were suffocating, San Clemente Fire Department Capt. Gary Carmichael said.

Of the six injured, all but one were released after emergency treatment at San Clemente General Hospital.

Edward Heff was reported in satisfactory condition at the intensive care unit today. He had been admitted in critical condition.

David Barron, a spokesman for the Southern California Edison Company, said the incident occurred in the bottom of the containment sphere of unit 2, one of two new reactor housings under construction at the plant.

No nuclear material was involved.

He said two men had been working with the gas when they were stricken. Two other men ran to their assistance and were overcome. Two more men who aided in the rescue of the others were involved as well.

San Clemente Fire units and ambulance responded to the scene originally reported incorrectly as a structure fire with injuries at the nuclear generating station.

As the ambulance arrived, a van carrying five of the injured was leaving. The ambulance was used to transport one other victim. San Clemente firemen aided a San Onofre emergency brigade in searching for additional injured persons in the labyrinth of tunnels at the site.

Capt. Carmichael described it as "something out of 2001."

The injured were employes of Bechtel Construction, the prime contractor for the $2.3 billion project; or a subcontractor.

The men were identified as Stewart Burkhammer, 33, of Oceanside and James D. Paulson, 37, of Mission Viejo, both safety engineers; Bruce Bernstein, 30, of San Diego and Edward Hess, 30, of Poway, both pipefitters; Charles Dragamire, 33, of Oceanside, a laborer, and Keith Warden, age not known, of the San Fernando Valley, a sheetmetal worker employed by a subcontractor.

Bitter Hearing

Trustees Scrap Campus Buy

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

After a three and a half hour hearing laced with some bitter audience comments, Saddleback College trustees Monday scrapped plans to buy a second campus site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue on the Irvine Ranch.

The board then voted 4-3 to begin negotiations with the Irvine Company to acquire an alternative location for the new campus at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road.

New board member William Watts joined Trustees Donna Berry and Frank Greinke in opposing acquisition of the alternate site, even though he had voted earlier to rescind the decision to buy Myford-Bryan.

Trustees will meet again May 9 to close the deal on that parcel following yet another hearing to permit the landowner and the public to comment.

Tustin Trustee Frank Greinke, a vocal opponent of the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site, intimated after the new vote that he would spend the next few weeks seeking legal loopholes to stall the purchase.

Most of those attending the session were from a mobile home park called The Meadows and a housing tract called The Ranch. Both developments are located near the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site endorsed by the board.

Most of the speakers during the hearing voiced concern over traffic, the impact on their neighborhoods of an influx of students, parking and noise.

The general attitude appeared to be that voiced by a woman in the audience who said, "We're all for education but we don't want it in our neighborhood."

Nick Alles of the Meadows Association gave the most detailed presentation in opposition to the new location for the campus, which would start out as a 20-acre satellite and have the capacity for growth up to 100 acres over the next five years.

Alles said the college board had to make a choice of "being fair to many residents in the area or to government (the city of Irvine) and private business (the Irvine Company) who shoot credibility to pieces."

He said residents should not have to put up with "college students spread all over our lawns and berms as is the case at UC Irvine."

"We don't need a college at this location and we don't want a college at this location," he concluded, to a resounding standing ovation from many audience members.

The Irvine Company has offered the site at Irvine Center

Saddleback Sessions 'Taxing'

Saddleback College Trustee Larry Taylor has chaired some wild board meetings in his years as a school official but even he had to admit Monday's college board session was more taxing than most.

One member of the often-hostile, sarcastic audience in Irvine wanted to know why board members were reconsidering the site for a second district campus when a decision had already been made to buy one of two suggested locations.

Taylor attempted to justify the action by explaining that three new board members had been elected in March, replacing one incumbent and filling two vacancies left by a resignation and the death of another trustee.

85 Acres Of Brush Burned

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A crow, electrocuted on high-tension wires, fell burning into scrub behind the El Morro Trailer Park off Pacific Coast Highway near Laguna Beach Monday and touched off an 85-acre Irvine Ranch brushfire that burned 19 hours before it was out.

More than 125 firefighters from the California Division of Forestry, Orange County Fire Department, Laguna Beach Fire Department and the Irvine Ranch fought the fire.

They were assisted by three twin-engine air tankers that dropped more than 6,000 gallons of fire-retardant chemicals on the blaze swept by light winds up the Moro Canyon ridgelines inland away from the trailer park.

Trailer park residents anxiously watched the billows of smoke pour over the hills closest to them. One resident said she wasn't worried, "as long as that wind keeps blowing the other way."

The firefighting was hampered twice by unexpected delays.

Water tank trucks carrying emergency refills to supply the front line firefighters were halted as county sheriff's deputies worked to push the wrecked vehicles off the road.

The youths were arrested for trespassing and impeding fire equipment. They were treated for minor injuries at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach and released to the custody of their parents.

Fire Battalion Chief Bob Robeson, of the Orange area county station, told sheriff's deputies he had slowed his pickup to nearly a stop when he saw the teenagers' red Volkswagen bearing down the road. Neither Robeson nor his passenger, Fire Capt. Mike Van Bibber of Yorba Linda, was injured.

The second delay was in getting the air tankers to the scene. Fire Capt. Bruce Turbeville said when the Moro Canyon fire started at 11:18 a.m., every available firefighting plane was already committed to other fires in San Diego County.

Turbeville said the fires in that county turned out to be not so serious, and the aircraft were released to fight the Orange County fire.

The delay, Turbeville said, was 1½ hours.

Turbeville said it was difficult to position firemen to control the blaze, because of rough terrain, much of which was inaccessible to vehicle traffic. "We just couldn't get vehicles into it," Turbeville said. "Only about 30 percent of the fire was drivable, even by bulldozers."

The fire was contained by midnight today, with the last of the

Clemente Gets May Hearing on Sewer Ban Lift

After a spirited presentation by Vice Mayor William Walker, the San Diego Regional Water Quality Control Board voted to hold a public hearing May 23 to determine if the lid on issuance of sewer connection permits should be lifted.

Since July when the regional board clamped a cease and desist order on the city — an action taken after numerous sewage spills and other incidents — the connection permits have been doled out carrot-like to force the city into making treatment plant improvements.

Without the permits, new construction cannot be completed. The city has several large tracts waiting in the wings for resolution of the situation.

The board also prompted the city to rejoin the South East Regional Reclamation Authority, a consortium of several area waste treatment entities. The city had quit SERRA citing cost overruns for a regional ocean outfall.

Spanish King Sued in Disaster

The King of Spain has been named as a defendant in a wrongful death suit filed on behalf of a Laguna Hills Leisure World woman who died March 27 in the world's worst aviation disaster.

The suit was filed Monday in San Francisco federal court by Walter Michael Watt, special administrator for the estate of Jean Houston, 508C Ave. Sevilla, Leisure World. Mrs. Houston, who traveled extensively since the death of her husband five years ago, was a victim of the ground collision between a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 and a Pan Am 747 in the Canary Islands.

The suit requests unspecified damages for wrongful death and loss of property.

"His Catholic Majesty the King of Spain and the Kingdom of Spain" and the two airlines are named as defendants.

The suit said the Canary Islands are a province of Spain and the government of Spain operated the international airport facility at Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands, known as the Los Rodeos Airport.

It alleges that Spain, through its subjects and employes at the airport and airport control facility "were negligent and careless and otherwise derelict" in their duties in the movement and control of the aircraft.

Other suits have been filed in U.S. District Courts as a result of the crash, but none have named Spain or its King as defendants.

Clemente Man Hurt in Crash

Johnnie Gonzales of 918½ N. El Camino Real was treated at the scene by San Clemente firemen and taken by city ambulance to San Clemente General Hospital.

Gonzales had stopped breathing and suffered numerous cuts from glass in his face. He was transferred to military medical facilities for further treatment.

A San Clemente Police department accident report is pending, but officers today said Gonzales was west-bound on Santa Barbara when he collided with another car in his travel lane, careened into the opposing lane and collided with two other vehicles.

Mobil Answer Friday

Decision Awaited On Irvine Bidding

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

Mobil officials have refused to make any such concession to the granddaughter of James Irvine II.

Judge Judge made it clear late Monday that he is not compelled to approve the higher offer for the Irvine Company regardless of which contender submits the highest bid.

He warned lawyers for both sides that there are many other issues to be considered, among them the argument that a rapidly improving economic outlook in Orange County might mean a much better price for the Irvine Company within the next few years.

Mrs. Smith has agreed with that suggestion during testimony. She believes that the Irvine Company today is worth at least $450 million.

The sale of the Irvine Company became mandatory with the passage of the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969. The measure compels charitable foundations to divest themselves of private company holdings by 1983.

A last minute sensation appeared to be in the making late Monday when telegrams from a company identified as Jerard Development Limited were delivered in the courtroom to lawyers for both sides and Judge Judge.

Gas Forces Oil Team To Leave

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Since the well blew Friday, the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig has been spewing between 840,000 and 1.05 million gallons a day into the sea, forming a slick six miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long.

At current oil cartel prices, the well was throwing away about $300,000 worth of crude oil a day. About 40 to 60 percent of crude oil can be refined into gasoline, experts said, meaning the oil lost so far could run about 2,800 cars for a year.

and Jeffrey for $45,000 an acre with a five year option to buy up to 100 total acres at the same fixed price, unaffected by inflation that would increase actual land values to more than $100,000 during the same period.

No such growth option was offered on the Myford-Bryan site, which was a flat 20 acres at about $30,000 an acre, based on the college's own appraisal.

The Irvine City Council has endorsed the satellite campus site offered by the Irvine Company.

The audience listened impatiently Monday to presentations by planners for the city and the college district regarding the noise, parking, traffic and other factors, including the fact that the Myford-Bryan site would be subject to flooding in the event of major rains.

Mel Roop, an Irvine city planner, said that even if the college was not built at Irvine Center and Jeffrey, traffic loads on those two roads would still be four to 10 times higher than present capacity because of proposed widening and new development.

Larry Seeman, who drafted the college site environmental impact report, said the new site falls outside the heavy noise impact area of El Toro Marine Corps Air Station and could be shielded from existing noise.

And William Blurock, the architect designing the modular satellite facility that will house up to 2,000 students, assured the audience that all parking would be "on site" and that there would be plenty of space on campus for students to "spread out."

Gummo Marx Laid to Rest

GLENDALE (AP) — With a bitter court battle barely settled over the custody of Groucho Marx, the aged comedian's brother, Gummo, has been quietly laid to rest.

Gummo's death leaves the 86-year-old Groucho, whose given name is Julius, and Zeppo (Herbert), 74, as the only surviving members of the zany Marx Brothers comedy team. Chico (Leonard) died in 1961 and Harpo (Arthur) died in 1964.

Waterbed Set San Juan Fire

The Stan Reeder family of San Juan Capistrano hooked up a garden hose to drain their waterbed while they were out of town but they didn't turn off its heater. They are coming home to $21,000 fire.

Orange County firemen are attributing the fire Monday to the waterbed heater, which the Reeders failed to disconnect. The heater apparently continued to heat the empty plastic waterbed liner, until it became so hot, it ignited.

The bedroom, at 24651 Paseo San Gabriel, was destroyed by the fire, which required 15 firemen 28 minutes to control. The Reeders lost their pet parrot in the fire, and have had extensive smoke damage to their condominium.

Neighbors, who called firemen about 1 p.m., were battling the blaze with garden hoses when fire engines arrived. No one was injured in the fire.

Woman Jailed In Car Theft From Laguna

The jailing of a woman in Laguna Beach today on a charge of car theft may lead officers to the ringleaders of a Los Angeles County auto theft gang, police said.

Watch Commander Mike Slusher said the arrested woman claimed she was paid $100 to drive a Volkswagen from Laguna Beach to Long Beach.

Debbie Ann Taylor, 22, of Los Angeles, was stopped by a sheriff's patrol car on Pacific Coast Highway in Dana Point, after an alert was broadcast by Laguna Beach police.

Police said she was apparently headed south for the San Diego Freeway to avoid risking an encounter with Laguna Beach officers, who were alerted to the theft by the owner of the car, Brian Jenkens of 222 Arch St.

The officer said police expect to arrest at least two more suspects believed operating a professional car theft group.

4 Kids Taxed

No Permit, State Says

RAMONA (AP) — The 12-year-old president of a company with gross earnings of up to $3,000 monthly has been ordered to appear before the state Board of Equalization to explain why the firm has no permit to sell its product — manure.

Richard Cessna Jr., president of Kidco, Inc., and his three young co-officers, ages 9 to 14, also have been accused by the state of failing to charge sales tax.

THE YOUNGSTERS — RICHARD'S SISTER, Ne-Ne, 9, vice president; another sister, Bette, 11, secretary, and a half-sister, June Cole, 14, treasurer — went into business a year ago with a contract to sweep the six main streets of San Diego Country Estates for $150 monthly.

"The Board of Equalization says they need a permit because it is something tangible and that they have to add a sales tax for their customers," the elder Cessna said in an interview. "They may have to pay the state sales tax on their past sales, plus penalties."

THERE WAS NO ESTIMATE ON how much money might be ruled due.

But he and his son believe "the sales tax was already paid when the feed for the horses and the wood shavings to bed down the stables were brought in.

If the state board rules against them, he said they plan to take it to the courts.

THEY GROSSED $3,000 LAST October, their biggest sales month, but refuse to disclose their average earnings because, the young Cessna says, some of the kids at school try to borrow money.

Kidco, said Cessna, was incorporated in the Cayman Islands in the British West Indies when Cessna paid $1,500 in registration costs to avoid the earnings tax in California.

Mass Rites Slated For Crash Victims

A mass funeral service for 114 unidentified victims killed in the Canary Islands air disaster will be held Wednesday afternoon in Westminster.

Bodies of 100 unidentified American victims of the March 27 crash arrived Friday at El Toro Marine Air Station. Another 14 bodies were flown Thursday night to Los Angeles International Airport.

The bodies were flown in following efforts to identify the victims of aviation's worst disaster, which occurred when a Pan-Am 747 and a Dutch KLM 747 collided on the runaway at Tenerife, killing 580 persons.

Pan-Am spokesman Brad Dressler said the identification process was halted at Dover, Del., last week with 204 of the 329 American victims named.

About two-thirds of the remaining unidentified victims have been determined to be from Southern California, and the rest from other parts of California, Dressler said.

Newport Bogs Down on Seniors Site

The continuance, after nearly two hours of debate and testimony, was agreed to in a 5-2 vote with Mayor Milan Dostal and Councilwoman Lucille Kuehn dissenting. They argued that a decision not to renew the lease should have been made at Monday's meeting.

The already-controversial subject of the school lease and the senior citizen center brought out another large crowd. Most were backers of the center and at times some angrily heckled councilmen, particularly Paul Ryckoff who has faovred keeping the school operating at the expense of the senior center.

The continuance was suggested by City Manager Robert Wynn and put into a motion by Ryckoff who cited two recent letters sent to the council — one from Thomas Riley, chairman of the county board of supervisors and one from the Los Angeles office of the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development which has given the city the funds to buy the Corona del Mar site and operate the center.

Riley's letter, received Friday asked the delay so that time could be found for the county to work out the details of the transfer of the administration of the federal grant from the county to the city.

The HUD letter, hand delivered to city officials late Monday afternoon, asked for clarification of five points in light of the fact that "the senior citizens project has apparently been elevated to the level of a major controversy in the city."

The HUD letter asks for information on:

—What has been done to develop the center other than purchase of the property at Fifth and Marguerite avenues?

—Is the proposed project consistent with the needs of the city's low income seniors?

—What data is available that supports the need for a senior center?

Supporters of the senior citizens believe the city will have no trouble providing information on the project fulfilling needs

Foundation Files for Ranch Sale

Deadline To Mobil: Friday

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit-developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

Musicians Motivated

Honor Band to Perform in Costa Mesa

For conductor Charles Yates and the 75 young members of the Newport-Mesa Elementary Honor Band, Wednesday night is their chance to reward the public, and themselves, with the results of their long hours of musical effort.

The band, made up of the best fourth through sixth grade musicians in the district, will present its annual free concert at Costa Mesa High School Lyceum starting at 7:30 p.m.

During the hour-long performance the band will play eight musical selections, ranging from James Dodd's "Mickey Mouse March" to Serge Prokofieff's "The Love of Three Oranges."

"They are so enthusiastic and so eager there's been no problem with motivation. They're raring to go," said Yates, who will handle the baton this year after managing the honor band for the past five years.

After auditions are held in mid-February, Yates and company have about two months to whip their act together. This time is broken down into seven two-hour practice sessions held Wednesday nights at Costa Mesa High School.

"The kids have really stuck to it and they've done a good job," said Yates, who has selected material that is melodic and fun to play, but challenging enough to require many hours of practice at home.

Young musicians who work the hardest have a chance to perform one number with what Yates calls his "super band," featuring the best musicians out of a flock of very talented young people. This year's super band will play "Hosts of Freedom" by Earl King during Wednesday's concert.

Yates sees the annual conert as an important step for young musicians, many of whom will move on to perform with middle school and then high school ensembles.

And, by drawing students from throughout the district's 25 elementary schools, the concert can mean new pals and the chance of developing long-lasting musical friendships.

Warehouse Robbed Of $1,600

A dapper gunman conned his way into the Warehouse Restaurant in Newport Beach early today and then pulled a revolver on the night manager and took $1,600 from the safe.

Police said the suspect made his getaway from the restaurant at 3450 Via Oporto after handcuffing victim John Schirmer to the safe in the restaurant's office.

In addition to the evening's receipts, police said the bandit got a green Hawaiian print shirt.

Det. Dgt. Ken Thompson said Shirmer received a call at about 2 a.m. from a man who identified himself as Gene Ratton. He told the manager he had lost an envelope of important papers in the restaurant.

Sgt. Thompson said an envelope with a notice of late payment of attorney's fees apparently had been planted in the restaurant. Schirmer told the man he could have it if he could be at the restaurant in 15 minutes.

When the man arrived, Schirmer kept him outside the door until departing dishwashers opened it and the man came inside.

Schirmer said the so-called Ratton, who was dressed in a gray suit with an open-neck sports shirt, discussed the restaurant's banquet facilities before pulling a small revolver from his pocket.

Capping Halted

Gas Forces Crew To Leave Oil Spill

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

Legal Cost Of District To Get Eye

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach city councilmen Monday agreed to find out how much legal advice will cost them should they decide to go ahead with a proposed special district to finance open space acquisition.

But at least two council members — Mayor Milan Dostal and Councilman Don McInnis — indicated they are not enthusiastic about the proposed district.

The action taken Monday night to obtain a proposal from the law firm of Rutan and Tucker came after an afternoon session with the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission on the subject of land acquisition.

The members of the two bodies have been discussing the subject since their proposed $7.1 million general obligation bond failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote in March. The money would have purchased about 134 acres of open space.

Since the March proposal got about 63 percent favorable vote, it is generally expected that the special district bonds would be approved.

UCI Prof

Worldwide Ban On Spray Asked

UNITED EFFORT STRESSED
UCI Prof. Frank Rowland

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer, caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate

But they say the council's already-voted-on intent to renew the school lease while giving the seniors just one room on the site, may cause HUD to intercede.

The interest in the school lease expressed by HUD is the result of "repeated inquiries from local citizens and county organizations regarding the perceived delays in implementing the project," the letter, signed by division director Herbert Roberts, Read.

Although it appeared from the beginning of Monday's discussion of the subject that it would be continued, nearly 15 people rose from the audience to address the council.

Three were parents of Carden School students who urged the council to approve the lease agreement. Two were senior citizens who urged other elderly residents to agree to the compromise and share the facility for one year.

The balance spoke against renewing the lease and in favor of turning the whole site over to the senior citizens when the school lease expires in August.

One blind Corona del Mar senior, Jim Harrington angrily pounded the podium. "It is an insult to we older citizens for you to suggest that we go up there and play footsie-footsie with a bunch of little children in a building that we own," he told the council.

Checkout Premature

According to a report filed by the Chick Iverson Volkswagen Porsche Audi dealership, the older model red VW was towed into their service department last week by a man who gave the name Ron Patterson.

He asked them to fix the car and gave an address in Orange.

Friday, one of the mechanics saw Patterson driving the the car off the lot and a subsequent check revealed he assertedly had failed to pay his $131 service bill.

'Voice' Head Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has quietly fired Kenneth Giddens, the Republican-appointed director of the Voice of America.

Health Warning To Be Placed On Spray Cans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using fluorocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning ofter Oct. 31:

"Warning: contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

About 85 percent of aerosol products containing the chemicals are covered by the FDA regulation. The remaining 15 percent are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission — CPSC — or the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA already requires a warning label on pesticide aerosols containing fluorocarbons, and the product safety commission proposal is expected to take effect early next year.

The FDA and CPSC joint announcement said details of a mandatory phase-out program for all nonessential aerosols using fluorocarbons will be announced shortly.

"The label warning and ultimate ban will affect almost half the 2.4 billion pressurized containers sold in the United States each year," the agencies said. "The other half of such products use other propellants."

Among the products affected by today's action are deodorants, antiperspirants, hair sprays, colognes — all regulated by FDA — and household cleaners and air fresheners regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

MOBIL . . .

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

Mobil officials have refused to make any such concession to the granddaughter of James Irvine II.

Judge Judge made it clear late Monday that he is not compelled to approve the higher offer for the Irvine Company regardless of which contender submits the highest bid.

He warned lawyers for both sides that there are many other issues to be considered, among them the argument that a rapidly improving economic outlook in Orange County might mean a much better price for the Irvine Company within the next few years.

Mrs. Smith has agreed with that suggestion during testimony. She believes that the Irvine Company today is worth at least $450 million.

The sale of the Irvine Company became mandatory with the passage of the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969. The measure compels charitable foundations to divest themselves of private company holdings by 1983.

A last minute sensation appeared to be in the making late Monday when telegrams from a company identified as Jerard Development Limited were delivered in the courtroom to lawyers for both sides and Judge Judge.

The firm, further identified as a consortium of businessmen based in Philadelphia, said in the telegrams that it is prepared to pay $325 million for the Irvine Company.

Both Friedman and Privett immediately rejected the offer as worthless.

They said the Jerard group has not proved its ability to meet such a financial commitment in the past during an earlier approach to the Foundation that was not made public.

Tustin Home Hit by Blaze

In addition to the structural damage, officials said damage to the contents of the home at 13361 Kootenay Drive might reach $15,000.

No injuries were reported in the 8:34 p.m. blaze officials believe started in the garage area as the result of an electrical short.

More than 300 persons flocked to the fire scene as Orange County firemen battled 37 minutes before bringing the blaze under control, according to a fire report.

The report said the 3,500-square-foot, single-story house's roof and garage area were destroyed.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The San Bernardino Sun-Telegram says state investigators have found some "discriminatory notations" on score sheets for state dental license exams.

Brown 'Life' Stand Lashed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate's Republican leader claims that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is trying to block enactment of a death penalty law by pushing a life-without-parole bill.

Sen. George Deukmejian lashed out at Brown and a GOP colleague Monday, contending that passage of the life bill would make it "almost impossible" to override Brown's promised veto of a death penalty measure.

"I think he has set out to deliberately kill our death penalty bill," Deukmejian said at a Capitol news conference.

Kids Granted Permit

Horse Manure Firm Must Charge Tax

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The California Board of Equalization awarded a seller's permit today to a horse-manure distribution firm run by children who made up to $3,000 a month without collecting or paying state sales tax.

A senior tax representative of the board made the decision after meeting 45 minutes with the company's officers who range in age from 9 to 14 years.

The permit, No. 25686734, provides that they must now charge a sales tax on some but not necessarily all the homegrown fertilizer which is sold.

Neither tax official Bill Atwell nor an attorney for the children would say if any back taxes must be paid.

"We shouldn't be taxed," he said before the meeting.

"We're just kids. They ought to be glad we're out working on our own instead of being out someplace busting windows."

The action involved KIDCO, Inc., a corporation founded and run by the children of Richard Cessna, who operates the equestrian center at San Diego Country Estates, a planned community in Ramona.

Cessna said the children let him sit in at board meetings, but make their own decisions.

The firm, whose primary service is selling manure and wood shavings from the stable floors in the form of compost for nurseries and golf courses, incorporated in the British West Indies last year to prevent it from being subject to California taxes.

KIDCO contends the taxes are paid when horse feed and wood shavings are purchased, so there should be no tax on the back end.

The state, however, maintains the byproduct is new — compost — and the services offered by the youngsters are tangible and subject to sales taxes.

KIDCO also sweeps the streets of the community for $150 per month, exterminates gophers for $1 each and dabbles in anything else at which a profit can be turned.

Other officers of the firm, which made $3,000 last October, its best month, are Richard Jr.'s sisters, 9-year-old Ne-Ne, a vice president; Bette, 11, secretary; and their half-sister, June Cole, 14, treasurer.

National Group Honors UCI Prof

Dr. Richard F. Thompson, UC Irvine psychobiology professor, has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences, the academy announced today.

Membership in the academy is considered one of the highest honors given to American scientists and engineers. The academy, headquartered in Washington, serves as an adviser to the federal government in matters of science and technology.

Thompson, of Newport Beach, is the second current UCI professor elected to the academy. The other is Howard Schneiderman, biological sciences dean, who was chosen in 1974.

Sixty members were elected to the academy this year including eight from the UC system, bringing the total membership to 1,219.

Thompson has been at UCI since 1967, except for a year and a half in 1973 and 1974 when he was in the psychology department at Harvard University.

He previously taught at University of Wisconsin and the University of Oregon Medical He is a graduate of Reed College and earned his master's degree and doctorate in psychology from the University of Wisconsin.

Thompson was also the recipient of the Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award, presented by the American Psychological Association in 1974 for his work in brain function and behavior.

Council Action

SENIOR CITIZEN CENTER: Continued until May 23 a decision on renewing the lease of the private school which occupies the site purchased for the senior citizen center.

ICE CREAM VENDORS: Accepted the withdrawal of a request by two college students for a permit to sell ice cream along the ocean front sidewalk this summer.

PARKLANDS: Gave final approval to an ordinance increasing acreage dedicated for park use in new developments from two acres per 1,000 population to five acres.

OIL SPILL. .

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Since the well blew Friday, the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig has been spewing between 840,000 and 1.05 million gallons a day into the sea, forming a slick six miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long.

At current oil cartel prices, the well was throwing away about $300,000 worth of crude oil a day. About 40 to 60 percent of crude oil can be refined into gasoline, experts said, meaning the oil lost so far could run about 2,800 cars for a year.

At current U.S. consumption levels, the oil lost by noon today would supply the entire United States for about 24 minutes, an expert in Washington said.

Saddleback Scraps Myford-Bryan Site

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

After a three and a half hour hearing laced with some bitter audience comments, Saddleback College trustees Monday scrapped plans to buy a second campus site at Myford Road and Bryan Avenue on the Irvine Ranch.

The board then voted 4-3 to begin negotiations with the Irvine Company to acquire an alternative location for the new campus at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road.

New board member William Watts joined Trustees Donna Berry and Frank Greinke in opposing acquisition of the alternate site, even though he had voted earlier to rescind the decision to buy Myford-Bryan.

Trustees will meet again May 9 to close the deal on that parcel following yet another hearing to permit the landowner and the public to comment.

Tustin Trustee Frank Greinke, a vocal opponent of the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site, intimated after the new vote that he would spend the next few weeks seeking legal loopholes to stall the purchase.

Most of those attending the session were from a mobile home park called The Meadows and a housing tract called The Ranch. Both developments are located near the Irvine Center-Jeffrey site endorsed by the board.

Most of the speakers during the hearing voiced concern over traffic, the impact on their neighborhoods of an influx of students, parking and noise.

The general attitude appeared to be that voiced by a woman in the audience who said, "We're all for education but we don't want it in our neighborhood."

Nick Alles of the Meadows Association gave the most detailed presentation in opposition to the new location for the campus, which would start out as a 20-acre satellite and have the capacity for growth up to 100 acres over the next five years.

Alles said the college board had to make a choice of "being fair to many residents in the area or to government (the city of Irvine) and private business (the Irvine Company) who shoot credibility to pieces."

He said residents should not

Spanish King Sued in Disaster

Tenerife Victim Countian

The King of Spain has been named as a defendant in a wrongful death suit filed on behalf of a Laguna Hills Leisure World woman who died March 27 in the world's worst aviation disaster.

The suit was filed Monday in San Francisco federal court by Walter Michael Watt, special administrator for the estate of Jean Houston, 508C Ave. Sevilla, Leisure World. Mrs. Houston, who traveled extensively since the death of her husband five years ago, was a victim of the ground collision between a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 and a Pan Am 747 in the Canary Islands.

The suit requests unspecified damages for wrongful death and loss of property.

"His Catholic Majesty the King of Spain and the Kingdom of Spain" and the two airlines are named as defendants.

The suit said the Canary Islands are a province of Spain and the government of Spain operated the international airport facility at Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands, known as the Los Rodeos Airport.

It alleges that Spain, through its subjects and employes at the airport and airport control facility "were negligent and careless and otherwise derelict" in their duties in the movement and control of the aircraft.

Other suits have been filed in U.S. District Courts as a result of the crash, but none have named Spain or its King as defendants.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE, THAT IS THE QUESTION
Counselor Ruth Mader Works For Career Awareness

'You Can Be'

El Toro High Cites Careers

The buttons at El Toro High School say, CAN BE. The posters say, "I can be. He can be. She can be. You can be."

And the purpose behind the To-Be-Or-Not-To-Be word play is emphasis on occupational opportunities not traditionally open to one or the other of the sexes.

Sophomores and juniors last year responded to a survey on career plans. "When we took a look at the results," said Ruth Mader, career guidance counselor, "everything seemed to fall in the traditional area."

The girls especially favored the traditional female occupations: airline flight attendant, interior decorator, nurse, office worker, social worker, teacher and model.

Fourteen of the girls said they want to be fashion designers. "That's probably how many fashion designers will be hired in Orange County in the next five years," Mrs. Mader said.

Despite the opportunities for women today, few of the girls polled planned to enter engineering, scientific or technical fields.

Many girls and one boy showed up to hear a male flight attendant speak about his job.

Mrs. Mader writes that lack of career awareness off to a "normal maturation process" and said the youngsters will change as they leave high school.

Can Be, which was formulated by a committee of faculty and staff, includes guest speakers, school announcements and job descriptions to whet the students career interest.

Gummo Marx Laid to Rest

GLENDALE (AP) — With a bitter court battle barely settled over the custody of Groucho Marx, the aged comedian's brother, Gummo, has been quietly laid to rest.

Gummo Marx, 84, was entombed in a hillside mausoleum Monday after a brief funeral service attended only by family members and close friends. Marx died of natural causes last last Thursday in a Palm Springs hospital.

Gummo's death leaves the 86-year-old Groucho, whose given name is Julius, and Zeppo (Herbert), 74, as the only surviving members of the zany Marx Brothers comedy team. Chico (Leonard) died in 1961 and Harpo (Arthur) died in 1964.

Westminster Crash Dead Services Set

A mass funeral service for 114 unidentified victims killed in the Canary Islands air disaster will be held Wednesday afternoon in Westminster.

Bodies of 100 unidentified American victims of the March 27 crash arrived Friday at El Toro Marine Air Station. Another 14 bodies were flown Thursday night to Los Angeles International Airport.

The bodies were flown in following efforts to identify the victims of aviation's worst disaster, which occurred when a Pan-Am 747 and a Dutch KLM 747 collided on the runaway at Tenerife, killing 580 persons.

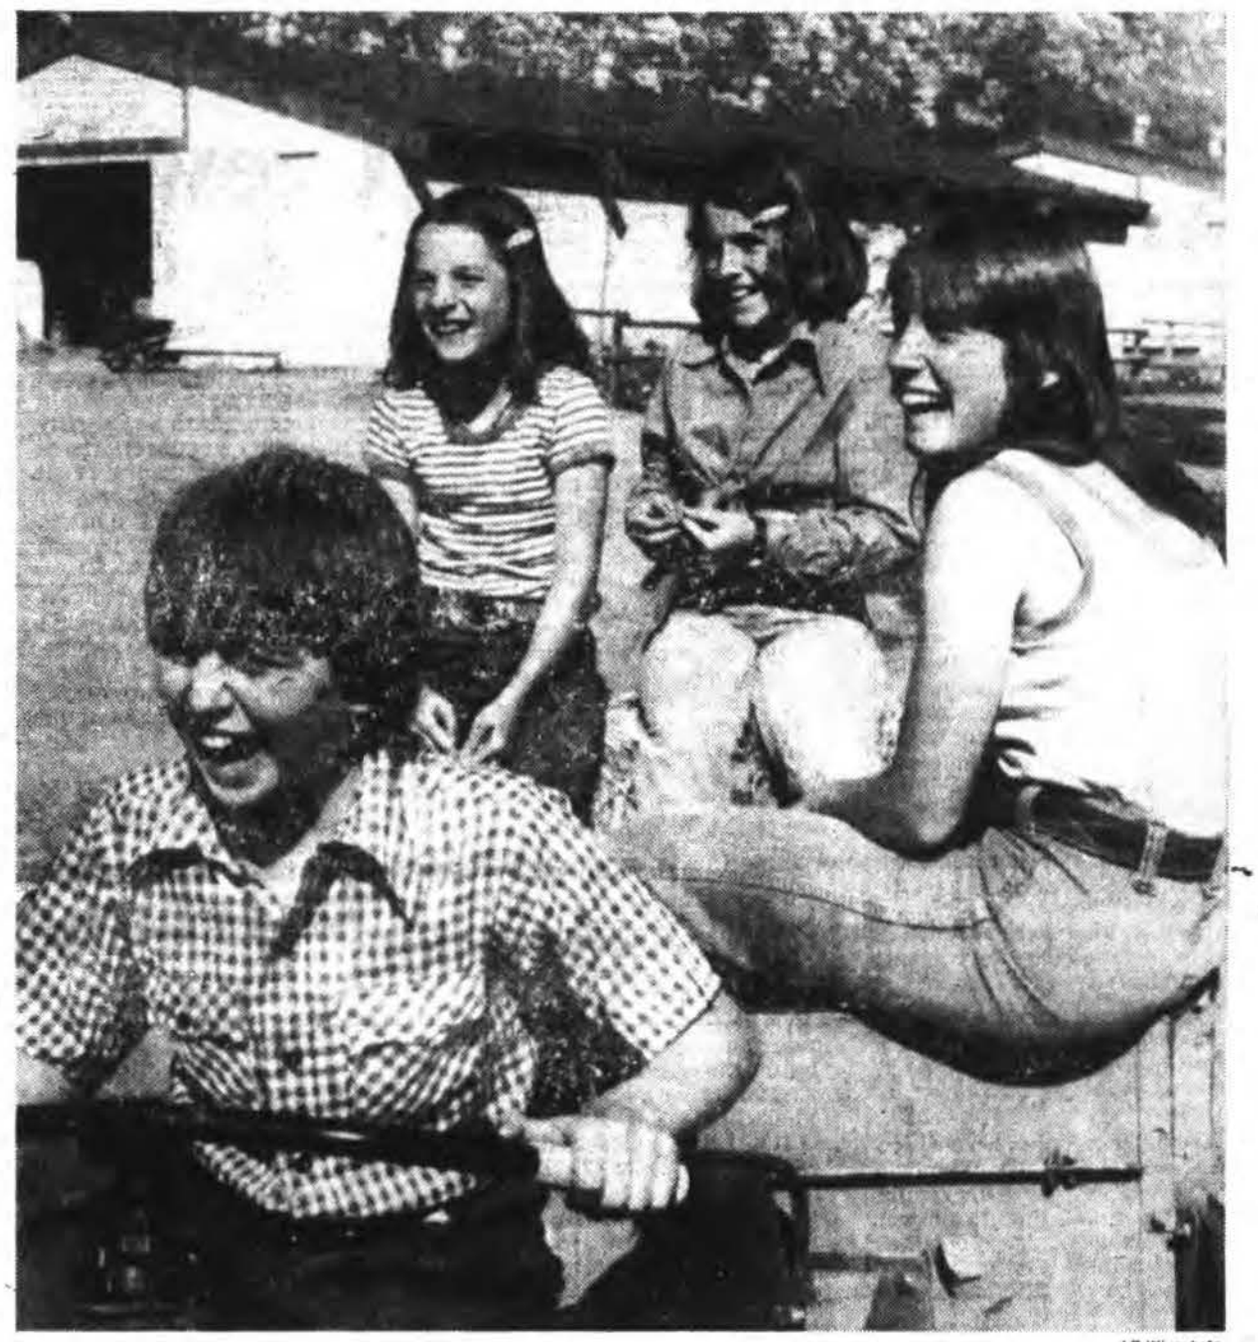

Pan-Am spokesman Brad Dressler said the identification process was halted at Dover, Del., last week with 204 of the 329 American victims named.

About two-thirds of the remaining unidentified victims have been determined to be from Southern California, and the rest from other parts of California, Dressler said.

All 114 caskets were delivered to Westminster Memorial Park, which has donated a mass gravesite for the dead. Wednesday afternoon's services will be inter-denominational.

Recreation Plan Funding Blasted

Kathleen Kelly of the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) took strong exception Monday to a proposed $22,571 contribution by county service area 9 to a school-run recreation program.

"I consider this program a disservice to the taxpayers," Mrs. Kelly said at a MAC study session on the county service area budget. "I don't know why I should pay for anyone else's children to participate in a recreation program.

"I wouldn't expect anyone else to pay for my children. We belong to a recreation center."

Tony Loechner, vice chairman of the MAC parks and recreation committee, said only 25 percent of Mission Viejo residents belong to the private community recreation centers.

Residents of the Mission Viejo planned community can join recreation centers for $120 iniation fee and $17 monthly dues.

"Of course, people can't afford to belong to the recreation centers, because their taxes are too high," said Mrs. Kelly. "As far as I am concerned, any amount spent on such (tax-supported) programs is too much."

Loechner said the Saddleback Valley Unified School District contributes $114,000 to the recreation program, which it supervises. Five county service areas pay $98,000 toward the recreation program, with county service area 9 (Mission Viejo) paying about $22,000 of the total.

Although Mission Viejo residents support only about 20 percent of the total recreation program budget, Loechner said 49 percent of the children who participate in the program live in Mission Viejo.

The MAC took the recreation contract allocation of $22,571, requested for fiscal year 1977-78 into account as part of its study of the total proposed budget for county service area 9 of $1,672,149.

With an estimated 1977-78 tax rate of .4629 for the county service area, the tax rate for the contribution to the recreation program would work out to about a cent and a half per $100 of assessed valuation, said Loechner.

The MAC referred the budget to its budget and finance committee for recommendations. The council is expected to take action on the budget at its May 9 meeting.

Business Complains

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (AP) — Several hundred Lake Tahoe business people complained to aides from California Sen. S. I. Hayakawa's office Monday night about environmental controls in the Sierra resort area.

Californians Would Favor Water Ration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The majority of Californians surveyed on the state's water shortage said they would favor statewide rationing if needed, according to Mervin D. Field's California Poll released today.

Pollster Field said about four out of five Californians, regardless of where they live, believe water rationing should not be confined to water-short counties.

He said more Northern California residents were concerned about water, but "even in the south the greatest number of people see the water shortage as serious and favor statewide rationing."

Field said 93 percent of those surveyed said they were practicing some form of water conservation.

Californians said agriculture and health and safety should be given the highest priorities for water, according to the poll. They listed households next and said industry and business should be given the lowest priority for water.

The poll surveyed 962 adult Californians last month.

UCI Prof

Worldwide Ban On Spray Asked

UNITED EFFORT STRESSED
UCI Prof. Frank Rowland

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The UC Irvine chemistry professor who first warned the world that fluorocarbons may be cancer causing said Monday that preventive actions taken by this country will be meaningless without similar steps taken elsewhere in the world.

"The crucial question is, how quickly will the other countries respond to our moves?" asked Dr. Frank S. Rowland, who first detected the fluorocarbon danger in 1974 with his UCI laboratory colleague Mario Molina.

"Everybody's stratosphere is everybody else's. If fluorocarbons aren't controlled in Europe, our steps won't help," the professor said.

Rowland said he's in favor of all of the preventive actions now being proposed by the government.

That includes today's joint announcement by the Food and Drug Administration and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that a warning label explaining the fluorocarbon danger must be placed on products by Oct. 31.

Rowland also supports an anticipated announcement by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), possibly next week, that will create the schedule to ban aerosol products that use fluorocarbons as a propellant.

According to Rowland, the EPA most likely will set Oct. 15, 1978 as the date manufacturers must stop producing nonessential fluorocarbon products and April 15, 1979 as the date when the aerosol products, such as deodorants, may no longer be sold in stores.

Rowland said he's not certain yet whether the proposed ban will be in time to prevent a marked increase of skin cancer, caused by the fluorocarbons depleting the ozone in the stratosphere.

"It'll be 10 or 20 years before we know if we caught it in time," he explained.

Rowland and Molina have estimated that if the present rate of fluorocarbon production continues, there will be at least 50,000 new cases of skin cancer each year.

Rowland observed that Canada and Sweden have already pledged to follow a path similar to that being taken by the United States. Other countries, though, have not yet decided, he said.

The UCI scientist also said it's important that individual states continue to enact their own bans to go along with the anticipated federal ban.

"It's double protection. First, it expresses people's beliefs that the bans are necessary, and second, it quickly limits the fluorocarbon market for manufacturers," Rowland pointed out.

Spray Can Warning Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today it will require a warning label on aerosol containers using fluorocarbon propellants as a first step toward eventual elimination of virtually all such products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a joint announcement with FDA it is proposing similar action for the products it regulates.

The actions came in response to a National Academy of Sciences report last year that the propellants formally known as chlorofluorocarbons rise into the stratosphere and deplete the earth's ozone layer, a thin protective gaseous belt that filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from the sun.

The FDA said that all food, drug and cosmetic containers using fluorocarbon propellants and shipped in interstate commerce must carry the following warning after Oct. 31:

"Warning contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

About 85 percent of aerosol products containing the chemicals are covered by the FDA regulation. The remaining 15 percent are regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission — CPSC — or the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA already requires a warning label on pesticide aerosols containing fluorocarbons, and the product safety commission proposal is expected to take effect early next year.

The FDA and CPSC joint announcement said details of a mandatory phase-out program for all nonessential aerosols using fluorocarbons will be announced shortly.

"The label warning and ultimate ban will affect almost half the 2.4 billion pressurized containers sold in the United States each year," the agencies said. "The other half of such products use other propellants."

Among the products affected by today's action are deodorants, antiperspirants, hair sprays, colognes — all regulated by FDA — and household cleaners and air fresheners regulated by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Low-level Attack

California Division of Forestry planes, flown in from Hemet's Ryan Field, dropped about 6,000 gallons of pink fire retardant chemicals onto Irvine Ranch fire that burned 85 acres in Moro Canyon, between Laguna Beach and Corona del Mar Monday. The three twin-engined aircraft used are converted Navy submarine detection planes. Critical flights were delayed 1½ hours as planes were committed to San Diego fires.

Crew Forced From Well

Calm, Gales Take Turns Delaying Capping

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — A dangerous concentration of gas today forced six American blowout experts to evacuate a platform in the North Sea shortly after they had begun efforts to cap a four-day-old geyser of oil from a runaway offshore well.

Officials said the explosive gas built up after the wind stopped, and the experts decided to postpone their efforts again. A similar calm had blocked capping operations Monday morning, and gale-force winds Monday afternoon prevented the Americans from getting onto the Bravo platform.

The well, operated by the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma in Norway's Ekofish oil field, blew Friday during routine maintenance and has been spewing about 49,000 gallons of oil and gas an hour since.

A Phillips spokesman said the blowout fighters — two members of the Houston-based Red Adair oil well fire-fighting team and four Phillips technicians — managed to close and repair some valves before they were forced to evacuate the platform.

The experts went back to their headquarters on the barge Choctaw, and then pulled the barge several hundred yards from the rig.

The blowout is developing into a major issue for the fall general election and oil companies were worried that the minority Labor government would cancel plans for test drilling off northern Norway, which is to begin next year.

Since the well blew Friday, the Phillips Petroleum Co.'s Bravo rig has been spewing between 840,000 and 1.05 million gallons a day into the sea, forming a slick six miles wide and 15 to 20 miles long.

At current oil cartel prices, the well was throwing away about $300,000 worth of crude oil a day. About 40 to 60 percent of crude oil can be refined into gasoline, experts said, meaning the oil lost so far could run about 2,800 cars for a year.

At current U.S. consumption levels, the oil lost by noon today would supply the entire United States for about 24 minutes, an expert in Washington said.

The two American experts, Boots Hansen and Richard Hattenorg of the renowned team of Texas oil well fire fighter Red Adair, made the decision to postpone capping operations after boarding the rig for the third time since they arrived on the scene Saturday. Four other men — two from Adair's crew and two from Phillips, also inspected the rig today.

They said they need more time to bring up special equipment from the barge Choctaw, which is sitting alongside Bravo and serving as their main operational base.

"We still feel confident the leakage can be closed fast as soon as all equipment is available and the work can begin, maybe within the next 24 hours," said Dag Mayer Hansen, spokesman for the Norwegian oil directorate.

Decision Awaited On Irvine Bidding

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Documents reflecting the James Irvine Foundation's decision to sell the Irvine Company to an East Coast consortium for $302.9 million were filed today in Orange County Superior Court.

But the new legal action does not prevent the Mobil Corporation from re-entering the bidding race which it led until recently with an all cash offer of $281.9 million.

An obviously impatient Judge James F. Judge quickly denied Monday a move that would have given Mobil 90 days during which the company would have held its annual meeting and reappraised its stand on the Irvine Company sale.

Instead, Mobil was given until Friday to top the bid submitted by a combine headed by Detroit developer Alfred Taubman, Wall Street financier Charles Allen and auto billionaire Henry Ford II.

Backing them in the bid to ensure that Mobil does not take over the Irvine Company is Irvine heiress Joan Irvine Smith whose lawsuit stymied a $200 million sale of the company to Mobil four years ago.

Foundation attorney Howard Privett told Judge Judge that if Mobil has not submitted an offer by Friday he will ask the court to approve the Taubman-Allen-Irvine offer.

The further extension to Mobil by Judge Judge came under fire from attorney Howard Friedman who has represented Mrs. Smith throughout the eight-month trial.

Friedman told the judge that Mobil was made aware of the consortium's latest offer last April 2 but has made no move to submit a new bid or even indicate that it was interested in remaining in contention.

Taubman-Allen-Irvine has agreed to allow Mrs. Smith to buy sufficient stock in the new company which would allow her to retain the board seat she now holds on the Irvine Company.

Mobil officials have refused to make any such concession to the granddaughter of James Irvine II.

Judge Judge made it clear late Monday that he is not compelled to approve the higher offer for the Irvine Company regardless of which contender submits the highest bid.

Tustin Home Hit by Blaze

County fire officials today estimated the damages to a north Tustin area home that caught fire Monday night at $70,000.

In addition to the structural damage, officials said damage to the contents of the home at 13361 Kootenay Drive might reach $15,000.

No injuries were reported in the 8:34 p.m. blaze officials believe started in the garage area as the result of an electrical short.

More than 300 persons flocked to the fire scene as Orange County firemen battled 37 minutes before bringing the blaze under control, according to a fire report.

The report said the 3,500-square-foot, single-story house's roof and garage area were destroyed.

'My Fair Lady' Bows at El Toro

El Toro High School will present "My Fair Lady" May 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Cost of tickets is $1 for El Toro students having an ASB card and $2 for the general public, and are available now at the school.

have to put up with "college students spread all over our lawns and berms as is the case at UC Irvine."

"We don't need a college at this location and we don't want a college at this location," he concluded, to a resounding standing ovation from many audience members.

The Irvine Company has offered the site at Irvine Center and Jeffrey for $45,000 an acre with a five year option to buy up to 100 total acres at the same fixed price, unaffected by inflation that would increase actual land values to more than $100,000 during the same period.

No such growth option was offered on the Myford-Bryan site, which was a flat 20 acres at about $30,000 an acre, based on the college's own appraisal.

The Irvine City Council has endorsed the satellite campus site offered by the Irvine Company.

The audience listened impatiently Monday to presentations by planners for the city and the college district regarding the noise, parking, traffic and other factors, including the fact that the Myford-Bryan site would be subject to flooding in the event of major rains.

Mel Roop, an Irvine city planner, said that even if the college was not built at Irvine Center and Jeffrey, traffic loads on those two roads would still be four to 10 times higher than present capacity because of proposed widening and new development.

Larry Seeman, who drafted the college site environmental impact report, said the new site falls outside the heavy noise impact area of El Toro Marine Corps Air Station and could be shielded from existing noise.

And William Blurock, the architect designing the modular satellite facility that will house up to 2,000 students, assured the audience that all parking would be "on site" and that there would be plenty of space on campus for students to "spread out."

Secret Vault Parties Told In Spy Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Boyce, accused of espionage, took the witness stand in his own defense today and told of drinking parties within top-secret vaults at the defense research plant where he worked.

Boyce said that a marijuana plant was grown and displayed inside one of the secret communications centers at TRW Systems Inc. and one employe used the secure phones in "the war room" to place bets with his bookie.

"We used to drink vodka and orange juice in the vault all the time," the 23-year-old Boyce said under questioning by his attorney, William Dougherty.

"I'd say I drank with about 10 people . . . there was always a bottle in there behind the teletype link," Boyce said.

In an effort to prove that security was so lax that others might have stolen information, Boyce told how another employe made imitation security badges which were used by at least one person to walk in and out of the plant.

"He made a badge with a monkey on it for a joke," Boyce said.

He told how a marijuana plant sat in open view on a work table and told of attending a beer party on the day he was briefed about security regulations.

"We had a party at lunch," he recalled, "and drank a considerable amount of beer."

He said perhaps eight or nine pitchers were downed before he and other new employes returned for the rest of their briefing on the operation of code machines.

Boyce said one of the first things he was told by a CIA technician was that the code equipment had already been compromised to a foreign country.

San Onofre Site

Argon Gas Fells Six

Six men were injured in an industrial accident Monday on the construction site of a nuclear reactor at the San Onofre Generating Station.

The men were all exposed to argon gas, an inert substance used to displace oxygen inside stainless steel pipes when they are being welded.

The argon also displaces oxygen in human lungs and the men were suffocating, San Clemente Fire Department Capt. Gary Carmichael said.

Of the six injured, all but one were released after emergency treatment at San Clemente General Hospital.

Edward Heff was reported in satisfactory condition at the intensive care unit today. He had been admitted in critical condition.

David Barron, a spokesman for the Southern California Edison Company, said the incident occurred in the bottom of the containment sphere of unit 2, one of two new reactor housings under construction at the plant.

No nuclear material was involved.

He said two men had been working with the gas when they were stricken. Two other men ran to their assistance and were overcome. Two more men who aided in the rescue of the others were involved as well.

As the ambulance arrived, a van carrying five of the injured was leaving. The ambulance was used to transport one other victim. San Clemente firemen aided a San Onofre emergency brigade in searching for additional injured persons in the labyrinth of tunnels at the site.

Capt. Carmichael described it as "something out of 2001."

The injured were employes of Bechtel Construction, the prime contractor for the $2.3 billion project; or a subcontractor.

The men were identified as Stewart Burkhammer, 33, of Oceanside and James D. Paulson, 37, of Mission Viejo, both safety engineers; Bruce Bernstein, 30, of San Diego and Edward Hess, 30, of Poway, both pipefitters; Charles Dragamire, 33, of Oceanside, a laborer, and Keith Warden, age not known, of the San Fernando Valley, a sheetmetal worker employed by a subcontractor.

Instant Movie

Polaroid Ends Rumors

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Polaroid Corp. has unveiled its long-awaited instant home movie camera and television-like viewer that produces films in one minute.

Land said the hand-held camera contains a film cassette good for 2½ minutes of home movies. The cassette fits in the top of the viewer, which automatically develops the film and shows it in color one minute later on its 12-inch screen.

Land said the camera and film will eventually include sound, but the company has not yet been able to develop a high-quality sound system.

Land said the camera and viewer will be available in the fall. He would not disclose the system's price but said it will be competitive with "any good home movie system."
