Vandals Wreck Couple's Home

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing. Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago."

Autopsy Set For Drowned Valley Baby

Coroner's deputies are conducting an autopsy on the body of a tot who apparently drowned in his family's swimming pool Thursday evening.

Scott D. Jacobson, 14 months, of 17397 Santa Suzanne St., Fountain Valley, was pronounced dead on arrival at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital, where his father, David, works as a registered nurse.

The elder Jacobson pulled the infant out of the pool after his sister, Lisa, 8, spotted the tiny form in the water.

Investigators said Jacobson was attempting to revive the dead child when Fountain Valley Fire Department paramedics Don Newman and Dan Guerrero arrived.

Funeral services were pending today at Pierce Brothers-Smith Mortuary, Huntington Beach.

NEWPORT BEACH FIREMEN RESCUE ERIN BERCHAM FROM ATTIC CONFINEMENT
Victim Spent More Than Eight Hours in 100-degree Heat Thursday

NB Man Wedged 8 Hours in Attic

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

Bercham became wedged into the crawl space apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Morton said Anderson and (See TRAPPED, Page A2)

Gamble said that when he bent over the suspect's car engine, a hard object was shoved into his side and he was ordered into the station office. He said the bandit demanded money from the safe, but Gamble could not open it, so he was ordered to clean out the cash register. Gamble said the bandit brandished a butcher knife with a 6-inch blade while he was getting the money and ordered him to "be cool."

He was described as a tall, thin man in his early twenties with a distinct lip twitch.

The second robbery occurred about two and a half hours later at the Exxon gas station at 2121 S. E. Bristol St.

Station attendant Michael Gamble said the suspect, a young man of Latin descent, first came into the station to ask directions to Fashion Island.

Ex-Lax Spoof By 'Sex-Lax' Angers Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — An Ohio novelty firm has put out a product it calls Sex-Lax as a spoof on one of the nation's best known laxatives, Ex-Lax. But the latter is not in the least amused.

In fact, Ex-Lax carried its gripe into Brooklyn federal court Thursday in an angry attempt to halt the continued distribution and sale of Sex-Lax and to demand damages from the Leister Game Company, Inc. of Toledo, Ohio, creators of Sex-Lax.

Ex-Lax is a widely known chocolate flavored laxative packed 48 tablets to a box, with instructions for its use imprinted on the box along with its trademark.

In its suit, Ex-Lax Co. said the Sex-Lax package mimics in color and trademark the Ex-Lax package and has the following instructions imprinted on it:

"For relief of sexual irregularity. Not a laxative. Bed tested for effective results. Do not use with strangers, or casual acquaintances."

Sex-Lax bears the seal of approval of "The Unplanned Parenthood League," and the product turns out to be tablets of cinnamon-flavored chewing gum.

Ex-Lax charged in its suit that the takeoff on its product has caused it "great and irreparable damage," and said, "the notation Sex-Lax so resembles the trademark Ex-Lax as to be likely to cause confusion and mistake and to deceive and said use has been without the consent, license, or authorization of the plaintiffs."

Ex-Lax asked a binding court injunction to stop the manufacture (See SPOOF, Page A2)

Prices Dip; Jobs Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous (See ECONOMY, Page A2)

Bandits Strike in Newport

Bandits struck twice in Newport Beach Thursday, taking a total of $3,165 from a bank and a gas station in what police said today were unrelated robberies.

The first occurred at about 3 p.m. at the Bank of America in the Westcliff shopping center at Westcliff Drive and Irvine Avenue.

The lone bandit who kept his and concealed in a flight bag slung from his shoulder, passed a note to teller Claire Frubo warning her he had a gun and asking for all of the cash in her drawer.

The teller told police the note also warned her against tripping the bank's alarm because the bandit claimed he had a monitor.

She said she gave him the money in an envelope which he put in the bag marked "General Tours" before running from the bank.

As soon as the bandit turned from her window, the teller tripped the alarm. One bank employee followed the bandit and saw him run across Westcliff and

NBC Defense Due

'Scottsboro' Prosecution Rests'

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — After emotional but confused testimony by the chief witness against the Scottsboro Boys, attorneys rested her case today in a $6 million libel suit against NBC.

The network planned to call two main witnesses: John McGreevy, who wrote the script for the television movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro

Boys," and Dr. Dan T. Carter, a history professor from Emory University in Atlanta who advised NBC on the movie.

NBC is fighting the suit filed by Victoria Price Street, now the 70-year-old wife of a Tennessee tobacco farmer. She contends that the network invaded her privacy and libeled her in the movie by suggesting that she lied in the Scottsboro case.

Back in the 1930s, through three trials, Mrs. Price testified that she and a companion were raped by nine blacks as they hitched a ride aboard a freight train from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Huntsville, Ala.

"When they stopped the train, I was still laying down," she said Thursday. "One of them was in there and Ruby was in there and they woke me up and helped me get my clothes on."

Mrs. Street said she was bleeding from the head and other parts of her body.

"And I've got the scars to prove it from where those black boys cut me," she said, pointing excitedly to her chest, her arm, her face and her back.

Doctors at the original trial said they saw no signs of blood on either women.

Nine blacks were convicted of rape and spent a total of 130 years in prison before they were pardoned or paroled. They contended they had been railroaded in a racially troubled atmosphere.

"If they'd been a bunch of white boys, I'd have done the same thing," Mrs. Street testified Thursday. "It wasn't because of color that I charged. Because there's as good colored folks as there are white folk."

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Street said some scenes from the movies were inaccurate and others were "bold-faced lies."

She also denied testimony from transcripts of the original trials half a dozen times, saying at one point she may have been confused.

"It all happened so long ago," she explained.

Mrs. Street said she saw the film when it was first shown on television in April 1976.

"It just tore me up," she said. "The worst part of it was that they said it was all lies, and I knew that just wasn't so."

Her sister-in-law, Lois Price, later testified that the show had been traumatic for the elderly woman, who had told the six jurors earlier she just wanted to forget the whole thing.

"She is afraid to go out," said Mrs. Price. "She has lost confidence in the people she loves. She was even afraid that her whole family was going to turn against her."

Defector Says Peking 'Weak'

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A Chinese Communist squadron commander who defected to Taiwan said today he believes the Peking regime lacks the military capability to mount an invasion of Taiwan. He also said followers of the purged "gang of four" still have limited influence in the air force.

Fan Yuan-yan, who flew his MIG 19 jet fighter to Taiwan from Communist China Thursday, said the mainland Chinese would be unlikely to attack the island "because their air and sea strength is weak."

"I have never undergone any special training to attack Taiwan militarily," Fan added.

Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

Minuteman Halted

Rockwell Layoffs Seen in Anaheim

Rockwell International will lay off 700 more employees from its Anaheim plant because of a halt in production of the Minuteman 3 missile.

The first notices will be sent out later this month, officials said Thursday, in the wake of an order from the Defense department to halt production by the end of September.

Meanwhile, some 3,000 former Rockwell employees already have applied for unemployment benefits from the state, officials reported.

A spokeswoman for the state Employment Development Department (EDD) said Rockwell applications were being processed in groups of about 15 to speed up the process.

About 8,000 workers were laid off by the company when President Carter decided against production of the B-1 bomber.

One employee decided this week to take advantage of the company's special job relocation program, and by the end of the day, was on another firm's payroll.

Company officials hope this is an indication their relocation program will find jobs for at least half of those laid off when the B1 program was canceled.

Jack Hefley, a spokesman for the firm's B-1 division, said that 1,200 of the 2,700 B-1 workers already laid off have gone through briefings about the salary and benefits due them, about how to write resumes and about interviewing for new positions.

Hefley said that employee profiles will be catalogued by next week, and will be made available to other Rockwell divisions and to 150 companies that have contacted Rockwell for employee information.

"We're estimating there are quite a few openings for our skilled people and we feel we can relocate up to 50 percent of our people," Hefley said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), plans to explore what can be done for the laid off workers in a meeting today with government officials and Rockwell representatives from the firm's Palmdale assembly plant and El Segundo headquarters.

Richard Silberman, state Secretary of Business and Transportation, said "we are more interested in work than in aid," but indicated officials will look at city, county and state sources of funding to supplement what may be obtained from the federal government.

Run Kills Teen Pamplona Bulls Pile Up

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, trampling the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival. Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidayers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

THIEVES TAKE ENTIRE HOME

SPRAGUE RIVER, Ore. (AP) — Donald and Alice Humphrey of Richmond, Calif., reported "stolen properties" to the Klamath County sheriff.

The Humphreys, who returned to their vacation home site near Sprague River after a two-year absence, found that thieves had made off with the entire house, an outhouse, a deck for tents and an animal pen.

Laetrile 'Deadly' Claims Scientist

DAVIS (AP) — Laetrile, touted by some as a cancer cure, can be deadly when taken with some uncooked foods, says a scientist who tested the combination on dogs.

Out of 10 dogs fed a combination of Laetrile and almonds in an experiment last week, six died, says Dr. Jerry Lemis of UC Davis.

He spelled out his conclusions on the dangers of Laetrile in a paper published today in the California Medical Association's Western Journal of Medicine.

The CMA has been the leading opponent of legalization of Laetrile in California. A bill to legalize the substance has been approved by the state Senate. Similar measures have become law in 11 states in the past year.

Lewis, who heads the Davis medical school's studies of blood and tumors, disclosed the tests on dogs in an interview after the paper was written.

Laetrile, an apricot pit derivative, contains cyanide. Lewis wrote that the cyanide is chemically released by a substance, beta-glucosidase, found in some uncooked foods.

"In small doses, oral Laetrile may not be harmful," the researcher wrote. "But when ingested with uncooked foods such as fresh apples, sweet almonds or bean sprouts which contain the beta-glucosidase enzyme, cyanide may be released, with the patient suffering the effects of cyanide poisoning."

Lewis said doses varied in the experiment with dogs, and couldn't say which doses would cause death.

He added in the interview, "My concern is that there are going to be an awful lot of people taking this garbage and some are going to be innocently injured by it."

The man who patented Laetrile, Dr. Ernest Krebs, said Lewis' findings were "a proper area for exploration." But he said Laetrile has been used for 20 years and poisoning has not been a problem.

'Big Ride' Spells Jail For Youth

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ray Higgenbottom said he "wanted to ride in a big car just like the president." So he stole a hearse — twice.

Higgenbottom, 19, tried to steal a hearse Thursday, but police released him after the funeral home declined to press charges.

From police headquarters he went back to the Muehlig Funeral home, grabbed a funeral flag, jumped into the same hearse — by now in a garage — drove it through a wooden wall and up the street.

Chased by police again, he was caught when the hearse ran into an embankment at — naturally — Fairview Cemetery after hitting another car and injuring its driver.

He was held for arraignment on a variety of charges.

But police say more may be involved. They want to know if any one harbored a grudge against the Schubrings.

The community is a quiet suburb of 15,000, which has seen some minor vandalism lately — broken windows, paint smeared on walls, the kind of thing many communities experience. But police say they have rarely seen anything like that what happened to the Schubrings last weekend.

Schubring and his family have moved out for now, and are putting up in a motel. But he says he is determined to rebuild.

months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run.

Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor force last month, which rose by 480,000 to 97.6 million. The labor force includes those at work and those looking for work.

Since more people went looking for jobs than found work last month, the unemployment rate increased.

Trapped Man Freed

Newport Citizen Caught in Crawl Space

A JOYOUS REUNION AFTER EIGHT LONELY HOURS
Erin Bercham Hugged by Girlfriend Penny Arthur

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen. Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

Prices Take Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

License Check

Dog Nose Count To Start in Mesa

A two-month nose count of canines in Costa Mesa will begin Monday, according to city Finance Director Robert Oman.

The city is sending out four Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) workers to determine how many dogs are in the city and if their owners have current rabies certificates and licenses for the pets.

The reason? "We spend about $99,000 a year for animal control services," Oman said, "and we're only getting about $55,000 back in revenues from dog owners."

He said that only covers about half the expenses with the rest being picked up by the taxpayers.

"We feel people who have dogs should be carrying the full burden for animal control services," he said.

Oman is guessing there are about 11,000 dogs in the city, and said the $10 annual license fee would cover the city's cost.

He said the CETA employees will be asking Costa Mesa residents if they have a dog, then request permission to see rabies certificates and current licenses for the animals.

"If the owners do not have up to date licenses, they can either purchase them from the CETA people, mail in a check, or come down to city hall," Oman said.

Those who do not comply will be reported to Costa Mesa of-

Tax Rate to Drop?

Mesa Rise 'on Button'

Costa Mesa city officials say a 17.8 percent increase in the city's assessed valuation unveiled Thursday is just about what they had estimated earlier.

And they don't think the increase will affect the city's proposed $22.7 million spending plan for 1977-78 a great deal.

"I feel pretty good about our predictions of a 15 percent increase," said City Manager Fred Sorsabal, "although I'm not that happy about it as a taxpayer."

Working with a 15 percent increase estimate, the city manager predicted the city could drop the city's current $1.32 per $100 assessed valuation to $1.21.

But Robert Oman, the city's finance director, said he cannot compute what kind of tax cut reduction the city can realize until around Aug. 10 when the assessments for public utilities are reported.

"As of now we know we can cut it (the tax rate) to $1.21," Oman said. "The budget calls for a reduction from $1.32 this year to $1.21 and we can reduce it that far."

At $1.21 per $100 assessed valuation, a Costa Mesa homeowner with a $60,000 home

35 Injured

Running Bulls Trample Teen

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bullring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, treading on the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival.

Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidayers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago.

Police say the neighborhood's homes are worth an average of $90,000 to $100,000.

Gerald Schubring is a 39-year-old computer analyst. His wife Carol is 36. They have four children and their home is a seven-room dwelling in this quiet, affluent suburb northwest of Chicago.

"I don't know who would do this," said Schubring. "It's clear that it was just malicious vandalism."

But police say more may be involved. They want to know if any one harbored a grudge against the Schubrings.

The community is a quiet suburb of 15,000, which has seen some minor vandalism lately — broken windows, paint smeared on walls, the kind of thing many communities experience. But police say they have rarely seen anything like that what happened to the Schubrings last weekend.

Schubring and his family have moved out for now, and are putting up in a motel. But he says he is determined to rebuild.

"We've lived here for six years," he said. "We're not going to be scared away by kids."

Newport Employees Picket City Hall

A handful of Newport Beach city employees began picketing city hall today. They said they plan to maintain the picket line until Monday's city council meeting in the hopes of getting city officials to reopen stalled salary negotiations.

The pickets, who marched with blue and white signs, are members of the Newport Beach Employees League which represents 127 maintenance men, mechanics, trashmen, custodians, gardeners and sign painters.

League President Stan Peterson, who took a day off work to lead the pickets, said his group is unhappy with the city's last contract offer which totaled a 6.7 percent increase in pay and changes in the retirement system. His group is seeking a package totalling seven percent.

"The city isn't offering as much as they did last year," he claimed.

The picketing marks another effort by the league to call attention to its displeasure over negotiations. Tuesday, about 50 members of the group staged a sick-out.

Meanwhile, the 85-member City Employees Association which represents the clerks and secretaries, voted to accept a 4.8 percent pay raise which will cost the city an additional one percent in fringe benefit increases.

The first of the city's six associations to settle was the Professional and Technical Employees Association which earlier accepted a five percent pay raise for its 56 planners and engineers. That raise will also cost the city an additional one percent for fringe benefits.

Thursday, lifeguards agreed to a two-year contract which calls for three percent pay raises the first year except for three of the association's nine members. Marine Safety Capt. Bud Belshe will get a 4.5 percent raise and the two rescue boat operators will get four percent.

In the second year, there will be no pay raises, but at the end of the second year, the lifeguards will be taken out of the existing Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) and put into the more expensive California Highway Patrol (CHP) plan.

Members of the police and fire employee associations remain at odds with the city over use of the CHP plan and both groups have declared impasses in their negotiations.

Fire employees have asked for mediation and the first session has been set for Wednesday.

Police employees will take their grievances to the city council Monday.

3 Lose Hospital License

Three former owners of the Port Mesa Convalescent Hospital in Costa Mesa have had their licenses revoked by the State Department of Health.

Bob Nance, spokesman for the health department, said the trio sold the Port Mesa facility to another party in 1975, adding that the new owners are operating the hospital in a satisfactory manner.

"Port Mesa is not affected in any manner by this action," Nance said.

Licenses to operate nursing homes were revoked this week for Uri Mandelbaum of Los Angeles, Shalom Levitan of Seattle and Benjamin Levitan of Brooklyn.

He said the state investigations of the facility at 2570 Newport Blvd. began in early August 1975, and continued through late November of the same year.

The reason state officials kept coming back to the facility included more than 100 violations of health code standards, Nance said.

Drifter Still Out in Front In Transpac

The yacht Drifter reported a position 742 miles from Honolulu at 9 a.m. today and was 132 miles ahead of Windward Passage's record run in 1971.

Merlin was in second place on elapsed time and was 771 miles from the finish. Both yachts are in the light displacement division of the race.

In the Division I class A battle, Windward Passage had moved ahead of Kialoa and was 829 miles from the finish. Kialoa was 840 miles out.

The four lead boats were all ahead of WP's position of 874 miles to go in 1971.

Ragtime's position placed her 829 miles from Diamond Head.

would realize a city tax bill of $208, or $27 above last year's city tax bill.

But those figures are based on the city's estimated 15 percent increase in assessed valuations.

Oman said the 17.8 percent increase reported by the county assessor's office Thursday is pretty close.

"Of course the city council can cut more than 11 cents from the tax rate if it desires," he said. "Maybe it will be 12 cents. I just don't know."

Riding High Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

Coast Community

College Tax Cut Chances Seen Slim

Coast Community College District's chief financial officer doesn't see significant cuts in the district's projected 80-cent tax rate this year, despite a 19.7 percent increase in the district's assessed valuation.

Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for the three-college district, said he would like to see some of the 4.7 percent increase over his 15 percent estimations go into what he said is the district's depleted reserve account.

But district trustees might think otherwise next Wednesday night when they meet to establish the college district's tax rate.

Trustees approved a preliminary $68.2 million budget just last week, and are scheduled to establish a tax rate for the district next Wednesday.

A $5.5 million state allocation recently authorized for the district by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., is expected to cut the estimated 87.1 cent tax rate to about 80 cents.

But Thompson was not that enthusiastic about cutting more from the tax rate.

"I have not computed what the additional increase in property tax funds will mean to the district," he said. "Actually, I won't receive the official (assessed valuation) figures from the county until Monday."

He said it would be up to the board of trustees to decide what the final tax rate will be, "but any increases will have to go into building the reserve fund."

NB Bridge Backers Due At Hearing

Supporters of plans for a seven-lane bridge over Pacific Coast Highway over Upper Newport Bay are expected to turn out in large numbers Monday for the coastal commission hearing on the bridge permit.

The hearing is scheduled for 1 p.m. at the Huntington Beach City Council chambers.

Newport Beach architect Bill Ficker, who heads the citizen Bridge Action Team (BAT), is urging interested people to attend "to indicate to the coastal commission that governmental, civic and citizen leadership are behind this project."

The $6.5 million bridge to be built by CalTrans will be 20 feet high and will be located slightly to the north of the existing structure.

It will have six through lanes of traffic and a seventh lane for westbound traffic that is turning north on Dover Drive.

Highway officials say they hope the project is approved in time to put it out to bid by the end of 1977. It would be completed by mid-1979 if it stays on schedule.

Van Houten Said Healthy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney for former Charles Manson follower Leslie Van Houten says his client should be convicted of manslaughter, instead of murder, because she is "remarkably mentally healthy" now.

But Maxwell Keith contended in his final argument Thursday that the attractive, slender defendant had changed and no longer believes Charles Manson is Jesus Christ reincarnated.

He said the former homecoming princess has spent much time reflecting on the murder of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca during the 7½ years she's spent in jail since the Aug. 10, 1969, killings.

Script Came From Book

Chief Scottsboro Witness Tells TV Role

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — As the chief witness in a 1930s rape case sat at the plaintiff's table shaking her head, a scriptwriter told a federal court jury today where he got the material for the NBC-TV movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys."

His testimony came in Victoria Price Street's $6 million libel suit against the network. The 70-year-old white woman contends that NBC libeled her by suggesting she lied four decades ago during the rape case against the young black men who became known as the Scottsboro Boys.

Scriptwriter John McGreevy of North Hollywood said he took most of the material from the book "Scottsboro — A Tragedy of the American South," written by Dr. Dan P. Carter, a history professor at Emory University in Atlanta.

Carter, scheduled to testify later, told reporters much of his book came from court transcripts but that he interviewed Judge James E. Horton just before the judge's death several years ago.

Horton sacrificed his career by dismissing rape charges filed against one of the Scottsboro Boys in Decatur, Ala., in 1933. Eventually, all nine defendants were convicted and served a total of 130 years in prison.

Only one, Clarence Norris, is known to still be living.

Mrs. Street, now the wife of a Tennessee tobacco farmer, testified throughout three trials in the 1930s that she and a companion, Ruby Bates, were raped by nine blacks as they hitched a ride aboard a freight train from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Huntsville, Ala.

Mrs. Street said Thursday she was bleeding from the head and other parts of her body when the train stopped, but doctors at the first trial said they found no signs of blood on either woman.

Ruby Bates, who died recently, recanted her testimony after the first trial and testified that she was not assaulted and did not know whether Victoria Price was assaulted.

McGreevy, winner of an Emmy Award for another television show, testified he had to be selective about the material which went into the show.

"Unquestionably, my biggest problem was trying to condense a two-week trial into about 100 minutes, which is the length of a two-hour television special," he said.

The scriptwriter said he worked nearly eight months and was paid $25,000 for the show, which won a Peabody Award, a broadcast honor, and a Silver Gavel Award from the American Bar Association.

SJC Leads Boom

County Valuation Hits $9.7 Billion

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A breakdown of Orange County's 1977-78 assessment roll and its record one-year 19.7 percent overall increase shows that San Juan Capistrano and Irvine led county cities in percentage of gain.

According to figures released

Thursday by Assessor Bradley Jacobs, property values in San Juan Capistrano jumped 30.3 percent from a year ago. Irvine's value gain was measured at 29.3 percent.

Skyrocketing property values in those two cities set the pace for a record $1.6 billion countywide climb in assessed value that followed by a year a near record $1.2 billion 1976-77 increase.

By the time the two-year value binge ended at this year's assessment date, March 1, the assessed value of property in Orange County stood at $9.7 billion, according to the assessor's figures.

Assessed values are the base on which property tax rates are applied by more than 200 county taxing agencies.

The figures released Thursday don't include assessed values assigned to utilities, meaning that all gains have not yet been measured and that the total value of taxable property in Orange County could still climb still higher.

Jacobs made it clear Thursday that residents in San Juan Capistrano, Irvine and other cities where values increased substantially may not like the effect those gains will have on their tax bills this year.

"But even though the roll is up, tax bills do not have to go up," Jacobs said.

By that he meant that if taxing agencies slash property tax rates enough, the value gains will be offset by the lower tax rates.

Jacobs also pointed out that some of the value gain is the result of new construction, the adding of new property to the assessment roll.

He attributed 4.5 percent of the overall 19.7 percent gain to new construction.

The remaining 15.2 percent was charged off to inflation. Or, as Jacobs said, "the problem of too many people trying to buy not enough property."

Whatever the cause, Orange Coast cities were among the hardest hit by the gain in property value.

Two coast cities, Newport Beach and Huntington Beach, skipped by Santa Ana for the first time to become the county's number two and three cities in terms of assessed wealth.

Newport Beach's value gain of 19.2 percent forced the city's assessed value to $808 million, second only to Anaheim among Orange County's 26 cities.

Property values in Huntington Beach jumped by 21.6 percent, according to the assessment roll. That placed assessment value in Huntington Beach at $799 million, nudging it $1 million above Santa Ana, until now the constant second to Anaheim in assessed wealth.

San Clemente ranked sixth in percentage gain with a value growth measured by the assessor at 23 percent.

Next in order among the cities were Laguna Beach (22.2 percent) and Fountain Valley (21.9 percent).

In Costa Mesa, the gain tagged by the assessor was 17.8 percent.

And in the county's unincorporated reaches that include the Saddleback Valley, Dana Point and Capistrano Beach, the assessed value one-year gain was set at 24.3 percent.

The only inland cities to compete with coastal cities in soaring property values were Brea, where a building boom has been under way, tina Villa Park and fast growing Yorba Linda.

Among the county's school districts, the Irvine Unified showed the largest gain in tax base, a whopping 36.1 percent gain in assessed value.

Capistrano Unified was second only to Irvine in gain with a mark the assessor set at 28.1 percent.

Third in line among the county unified school districts was Laguna Beach with a gain of 26.1 percent.

The gain in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District's tax base was 19 percent, according to the assessor's breakdown.

Among the county's high school districts, Huntington Beach had the heaviest increase (20.3 percent) and is now the wealthiest in terms of tax-base among the county high school districts.

Fountain Valley elementary School District led the county's 16 elementary districts in tax base gain with a 24.6 increase, the assessor's figures show.

Next in line came Huntington Beach's Ocean View with a 34.1 percent tax base gain. Huntington Beach was not far behind with a 20.5 percent gain while the Westminster district showed a 16.5 percent increase.

In Seal Beach the increase in value was set at 8 percent.

Saddleback Community College District far outdistanced the county's three other community college districts with a tax base gain shown by the assessor at 27.5 percent.

Next in line was the Coast Community College District with a gain of 19.7 percent that sent assessed value within its taxing boundaries at $2.5 billion.

County Jail Incident

Female Inmates Stripped After Riot

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Jail authorities continued today to probe a Fourth of July fracas that caused nude women prisoners to remain in view of male guards for about 90 minutes.

Senior officers explained about the riot involving more than 70 women prisoners in which the women were stripped and isolated in an area that left them in full view of male personnel.

Jail Capt. Jerry Krans said the exposure was unavoidable. He explained that male personnel had to be summoned to the women's section because only five female deputies were on duty at the time.

Krans said the incident erupted when women prisoners objected to being removed from the jail roof where they had been permitted to watch a nearby fireworks display in the Santa Ana Bowl.

Jail officers said the prisoners asked that they be allowed to wait until the end of the fireworks display. They said the prisoners had to be returned to their cells because of the curfew hour.

He said a group of about 15 to 20 women sparked the riot which developed into the burning of mattresses, linen and reading materials in a number of cells.

Krans said the fires were quickly extinguished by jail personnel but the situation developed to the point that male deputies were rushed to the area from the men's jail.

At one point, he admitted, a group of women prisoners were stripped and searched by women deputies and then led naked into the jail's day rooms pending further investigation.

Throughout that incarceration, he said, the women prisoners were in full view of male deputies who were still patrolling the riot area.

Krans said the situation was regrettable but necessary. He said the women had to be searched for the matches that sparked the fires and were issued nightgowns as soon as the garments could be obtained.

Krans said the male personnel were kept in the area because of the possibility that women inmates might try to escape via a stairwell that had been opened to allow the smoke to escape.

He said male personnel were kept in the women's section for about 90 minutes. The women prisoners were kept in the day rooms for about four hours while their cells were cleaned up.

Jail officers said it is likely that a number of women involved in the riot could lose up to 10 days of privileges. Those privileges include television viewing, recreation and visiting time.

POLICE DIG UP SKELETON IN SUSPECTS' YARD
First in a Series of Homosexual Murders?

Another Trash Bag Victim Unearthed?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bones of a person believed to be another "trash bag" murder victim have been unearthed behind a house once occupied by the two avowed homosexuals who are charged in two murders and under investigation in 26 others.

The skeleton was found Thursday at a Culver City house.

One of the defendants, Patrick Kearney, provided information

"We believe this was the first residence in which they (Kearney and his codefendant, David Hill), lived together."

Kearney, 37, and Hill, 34, surrendered in Riverside last week and were arraigned on charges of murdering Arturo Marquez, 24, of Oxnard and John LaMay, 17, of El Segundo.

Authorities said Kearney identified the dead man only as George and said he had been fatally shot. Sheriff's deputies said the person whose remains were found had been shot through the head.

With Thursday's discovery, the two men have been linked with 11 uncovered bodies. Authorities say the murders may be related to homosexual activity.

Some of the victims were found dismembered in trash bags.

that led authorities to the lot, said sheriff's Lt. Ed Douglas. The triplex building where the two men lived from 1968 to 1970 is on a quiet residential street behind a movie studio that once housed Desilu Productions and is now Culver City Productions.

"This appears to be the first of the murders," Douglas said.

Dealer Agrees To Fine

Operators of Dot Datsun, Inc., of Huntington Beach have agreed to pay a $20,700 civil penalty in settlement of a lawsuit filed against the firm by the Consumer Fraud Division of the Orange County District Attorney's office.

Legal action was taken against the dealership at 18835 Beach Blvd. following investigation of the sale of 69 cars that did not comply with the state's air pollution control regulations.

Investigators said smog certificates on the cars were issued after inspections by an unlicensed and unauthorized inspector and were either stolen, counterfeited or forged.

Investigators said at least 19 more auto dealerships in Orange County face identical action involving an estimated 500 vehicles.

They refused to identify the dealerships pending the filing of legal actions.

Lawyers for Dot Datsun have made it clear that the firm does not concede the truth of the allegations filed by the district attorney's office.

But the dealership has agreed to recall the 69 cars involved, pay the $20,700 penalty and refrain from such alleged conduct in the future.

Deputy District Attorney Jean Rheinheimer said the illegalities stemmed from the alleged criminal conduct of a defendant identified by her as Merlin Chambers, 43, of Huntington Beach, who faces trial Sept. 26 in superior court.

Chambers is accused of issuing stolen, forged or counterfeited inspection certificates and operating without a state inspector's license.

It is conceded by authorities that most of the dealerships investigated had no knowledge of Chambers' lack of credentials, but were, nonetheless, civilly liable for his activities.

Miss Rheinheimer said Dot Datsun was "extremely cooperative" in the investigation and moved quickly to take remedial action once the illegal nature of the smog certifications was brought to the attention of the firm's managers and owners.

Nixon Tied to Koreans?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bruce F. Caputo (R-N.Y.), says he's going to try to confirm his belief that Richard M. Nixon knew about alleged South Korean influence-buying while he was president.

"I personally believe that both former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and former President Nixon knew about the Korean lobbying attempts but for a variety of reasons did not choose to act on that knowledge," he said Thursday.

Caputo, a member of the House

panel probing the alleged influence-buying in Congress, said he will ask the ethics committee to seek access to Nixon's White House tapes "in hopes of gaining information about which particular congressmen were involved, and about who in the White House knew of that involvement."

Reds Circle Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Soviet ships being tracked in the Gulf of Mexico by an American destroyer are heading west again after returning to the area around Havana, the Pentagon said today.

The ships, including a guided missile cruiser, two destroyers and a support ship, have been in the Gulf since July 2 following a stop in Cuba. They are being observed by the U.S. destroyer Bigelow. The ships returned to the Havana area Thursday after a counterclockwise sweep through the Gulf, the Pentagon said.

Talks to Continue

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Britain and Guatemala have agreed to continue negotiations on the future status of Belize, defusing the latest threat of war over the British colony in Central America.

British Minister of State Edward Rowlands and Guatemalan Foreign Minister Adolfo Molina Orantes announced Tuesday after two days of talks in Washington that Rowlands would visit Guatemala City as soon as possible "to discuss means of reducing tension and the next stages in the negotiations."

Sheriff Trial Set

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Sheriff Tom Purvis and nine of his officers, charged in an inmate killing, remain free without bond today after pleading innocent in a court appearance that at times had the flavor of a campaign rally.

There was loud cheering from his supporters after the plea Thursday. Friends outside carried placards. A public relations consultant talked with reporters.

Bus Leads Chase

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A passenger took over a Greyhound bus with four other people aboard Thursday night and led police through a chase that was punctuated by gunfire before he was forced to stop and apprehended at an intersection, state police said.

The man identified as William Borock, 32, of Seminole, Fla., kept police from forming a roadblock by running three patrol cars off the road during the 10-mile chase from New Castle to Wilmington, police said. Two young girls, an elderly woman and a 15-year-old boy were on the bus during the chase, they said.

Widows Await Bodies

Grieving widows wait for the bodies of four miners killed in an explosion in a shaft near St. Charles, Va. Authorities said today that methane gas concentrations above federal limits caused the explosion. Fourteen other miners working about 1,500 yards from the explosion escaped unharmed.

Prosecution Nears End of Hanafi Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a month and a half of sometimes stormy proceedings, the prosecution is winding up its case against 12 Hanafi Moslems accused of murder, conspiracy and kidnapping in the armed takeover of three downtown Washington buildings last March.

The prosecution was expected to call its final witnesses today in the trial, which resulted from the siege March 9-11 in which a reporter was killed and several other persons wounded.

AT LEAST ONE defendant, Hanafi leader Abdul Haamas Khaalis, is expected to take the stand in his own defense. He allegedly led the siege to avenge the murders of seven of his children by a rival Black Muslim sect.

The defense case could begin Monday if the prosecution concludes its presentation as scheduled.

Jurors heard a recording Thursday of Khaalis calling his son-in-law at Hanafi headquarters during the siege "Kiss the children for me," the voice on the recording said. "We're gonna get the murderers, too, or heads are gonna come out of here. If the murderers are more important than these people, then I don't care."

HE WAS REFERRING to his demand that the killers of his children be brought to him for justice.

He also said, "They stopped the picture," a reference to "Mohammad: Messenger of God," which the Moslems wanted removed from movie theaters.

Betty Neal, a B'nai B'rith employee who acted as Khaalis' telephone operator, identified his voice as the one on the recording. B'nai B'rith's headquarters was one of the buildings taken in the siege.

Gay Hospitality

Ad Invites Homosexuals

MIAMI (AP) — Homosexuals in Minnesota are inviting their comrades in Dade County to move to the Minneapolis-St. Paul area. "Trade a rotten palm for a thriving pine," urged an ad in today's editions of The Miami Herald. It was placed by the Target City Coalition, a Minnesota homosexual group.

THE INVITATION FOLLOWS DADE County's repeal of a homosexual rights ordinance June 7, according to Minneapolis attorney Jack Baker, who heads the group.

Dade County's gay community campaigned vigorously to preserve the ordinance. But opposing forces, led by singer-orange juice promoter Anita Bryant, won repeal of the ordinance in a county-wide referendum.

Baker said his group wants "to double the percentage of gay men and lesbians in Minneapolis and St. Paul in the next year."

HOMOSEXUALS IN THE TWIN CITIES area will help the Dade County emigrants get settled and find jobs, he said.

Baker said the ad does not suggest Dade County's homosexual community give up the fight. But "some are burned out and leaving Florida," he said, "and if they want to leave, we want them to think about Minneapolis."

Twins Separated

Girls Remain 'Desperately Ill'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Siamese twins joined at the torso since birth remain desperately ill today after an operation that followed a "tough ethical decision" to try to save both infants, rather than sacrifice one.

"We decided the chances of both surviving were very small, but the chances of one surviving were reasonable," said Dr. Judson G. Randolph, who supervised the operation that separated the two-month-old girls on June 23.

"IF WE HAD chosen to save one child, it would have been a relatively simple operation because there would have been plenty of tissue and plenty of skin," Randolph said Thursday after hospital officials released word of the operation.

"One was not healthier than the other," he said. "It is our judgment that separation, even at a greater risk, was kinder."

Now, even though he is caring for two very sick infants, Randolph said he "wouldn't go back" on "the tough ethical decision" he made with other physicians, clergymen, the family and others at Children's Hospital.

THE GIRLS, FLOWN from Italy for the 10-hour operation, "laughed, smiled and cried independently" when they arrived, he said.

Before separation, the twins had two hearts, two sets of lungs, two stomachs, four arms, two heads and separate spines, Randolph said.

Their intestinal tracts were intertwined, their diaphragm and liver were joined and they had two legs.

"WE DON'T KNOW whether they will live. They're still desperately ill," he said.

Randolph said if the twins survive, corrective surgery may be possible later to allow each to be outfitted with an artificial leg.

Randolph said his main concern is the "gaping wounds" in each child's torso that are covered with plastic. "They are still an indefinite way away from being healed," he said, adding the risk of infection was large.

SKIN GRAFTS COULD be made from other parts of the body and skin around the wounds could be stretched to cover part of the exposed areas later, he said.

The infants have been in the hospital's intensive care section since the operation.

Randolph said the operation raised several ethical questions for the doctors and clergy, including whether a major medical risk should be taken with healthy two-month-old babies.

"WE WERE CONCERNED that leaving them together would have an enormous psychological impact," he said. "We felt that it would be cruel and unusual for these children to remain together."

He said the idea of saving only one child was discarded "because we felt we had two little baby girls and couldn't decide that one would survive and one wouldn't."

The hospital's chief psychologist, Dr. Keat Ravenscroft, said before the surgery the children "were totally separate neurologically and in terms of their capacity to develop emotionally, psychologically and socially. 'Given that, what else could one do?' he said.

Detente Hurt?

Moscow Attacks U.S. Neutron Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moscow is stepping up its attack against U.S. development of the neutron bomb as President Carter considers whether to move ahead with production of the weapon.

After disclosure Thursday that the warhead has been tested underground in Nevada, a Russian commentator wrote in a dispatch reported by the Soviet news agency Tass that instead of seeking a satisfactory settlement of the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks, "the American administration is doing everything possible to complicate these negotiations."

"THIS ROUND IN the race for illusive military superiority is an extremely dangerous venture which jeopardizes the cause of deepening and strengthening detente," wrote commentator Yuri Kornilov.

Administration officials refused to respond to the Soviet commentary.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said last week in Paris that U.S.-Soviet relations have been strained by "very substantial" differences over strategic arms limitations and human rights.

IN CONFIRMING THE bomb tests in Nevada, a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration declined to say when the testing began or how extensive it has been. He said the tests were conducted underground in accordance with existing treaties.

The spokesman said weapons are tested before production as "a matter of procedure."

The White House says Carter will decide whether to recommend production of the warhead after reviewing the results of studies expected to reach his desk about Aug. 15.

The neutron warhead is designed to kill people through radiation while leaving buildings intact. Pentagon planners say the new bomb would be a greater deterrent than conventional nuclear warheads to a Soviet bloc invasion of Europe.

Severe thunderstorms continued early this morning from the central Plains across the Ohio valley into the northern and mid-Atlantic states and over southern Florida.

Six tornadoes were reported Thursday — two in Colorado and one each in Iowa, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Florida. The Florida twister was near Zephyr Hills and damaged buildings and blew down trees.

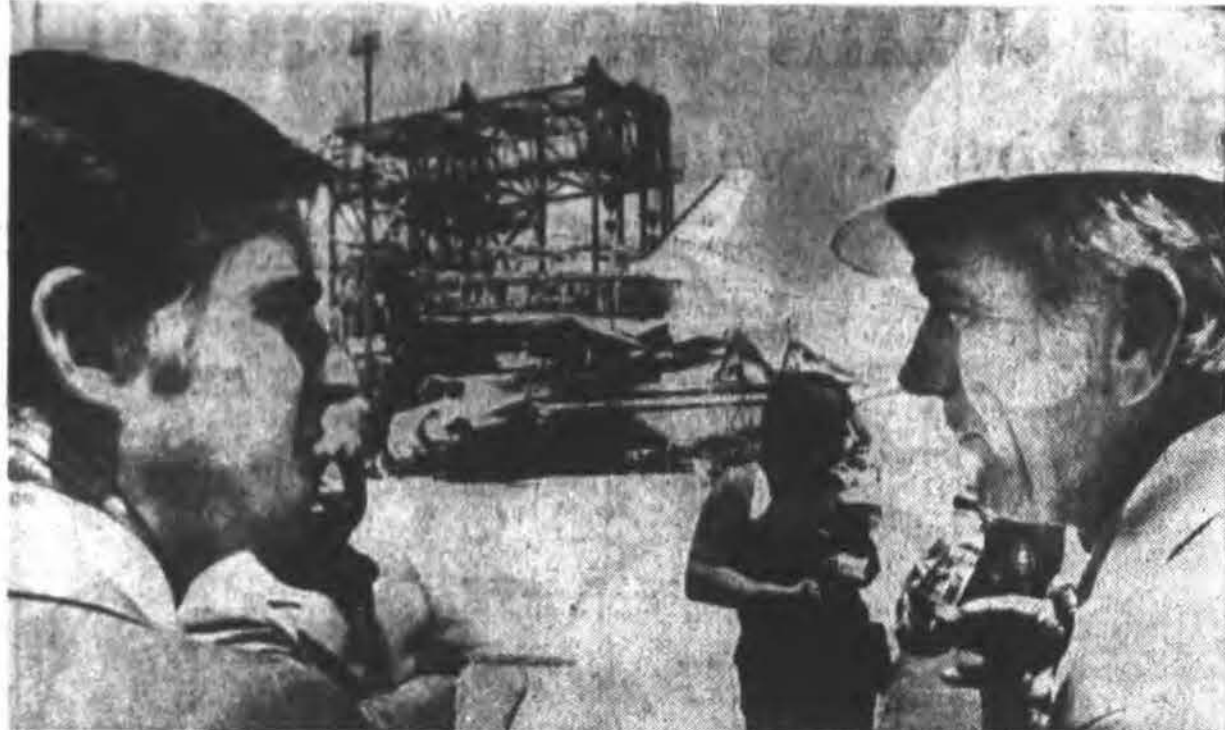

California

It'll be a good weekend for string bikinis and binoculars, with warm weather and clear skies predicted over much of Southern California. High temperatures along the coast, where low clouds are expected through noon, will range from the upper 60s at the beaches to the mid-70s in the inland valleys, the National Weather Service said. A high of 80 is predicted for downtown Los Angeles. In the mountains, temperatures will hit 75 to 85, with desert highs ranging from the mid-80s in the Antelope Valley to about 114 in the low desert. High temperatures in the Mojave Desert can reach 100.

State Unit Bans Gas Additive MMT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California has decided to ban a controversial gasoline additive that its detractors say could cause brain damage, ruin automobile smog devices and reduce fuel economy. Thursday's action will save Californians money, improve automobile performance, protect our anti-smog program and most importantly, remove a major public health hazard," said Tom Quinn, chairman of the state Air Resources Board.

California is the first state to ban the controversial additive methylcyclopentadienyl manganese tricarbonyl, known as MMT. The ban becomes effective in 60 days to allow oil companies time to use up their stocks of MMT, according to Quinn.

Wildcat Strike Strands BART Commuters
OAKLAND (AP) — A wildcat strike today shut down the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system, stranding some 80,000 morning commuters in three San Francisco Bay Area counties.

Only two operators showed up for work for the regional transit system which serves San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties, said BART spokeswoman Diane Levine.

4 Insurance Firms Sued by LA County
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city and county of Los Angeles have sued four major auto insurance companies and the state Insurance Services Office to halt the practice of charging higher rates to persons in heavily populated areas.

County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, an outspoken opponent of what he terms auto insurance "redlining," filed the suit Thursday on behalf of the county's 4.5 million drivers.

General Fund Surplus Sets Record
SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Controller Ken Cory says the state's general fund finished the fiscal year with a record $1.79-billion cash balance, about $300 million more than expected.

Cory, in an announcement Thursday, credited the increase to growing economic activity and the effect of inflation on taxes, both of which created "a phenomenal flow of cash revenues."

Federal Aid Sought in Beetles Fight
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alarmed by an invasion of Japanese crop beetles, county agriculture officials have called upon the federal government for help.

County Agricultural Commissioner Paul B. Engler told a news conference Thursday that 47 Japanese Beetles have been found aboard planes landing at Los Angeles International Airport in the last week.

Suicide Victim Aids Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The testimony of a woman who committed suicide by leaping from a building one month after being raped has led to conviction of her attacker, Michael Hogan, 24.

The jury was told by a judge only that the victim, Linda Bullis, 37, would be "unavailable for testimony" and did not know of her suicide until after they returned a guilty verdict Thursday.

"It's the only case in my memory like it — it's certainly unusual if not unique," said San Francisco Superior Court Judge Claude Perasso.

A female bailiff read testimony submitted by Miss Bullis at a preliminary hearing held a few days before she killed herself May 12.

3 Kids Killed by Train

Engineer's Dreaded Nightmare Reality

HUNTINGTON PARK (AP) — It's a sight dreaded by every train engineer — kids on the tracks, heads down.

Larry Van Daele was pulling his 15-car freight toward its home yard after a daily run to Los Angeles harbor Thursday when he spotted four children, hand in hand, idly stepping from tie to tie, a Union Pacific spokesman said.

Slowly, they came toward him.

HE SOUNDED his diesel's shrill whistle. But they kept coming.

He sounded the whistle again and threw on the emergency brake.

The train slowed, but only gradually.

Brakeman Maurice Dieu leaped from the train, running and waving at the kids. The railroad said the freight was traveling at less than the 20 miles per hour train yard speed limit.

"But the four of them, they were looking directly down at the ties," said Dieu.

He said he climbed onto the platform in front of the engine.

"I thought, well, maybe my voice might carry... I have no idea why they didn't hear the whistle."

Three of the children were killed on the rails as the train ground to a stop. The fourth was critically injured.

No one knows why they didn't move.

"The brakeman got out and waved and hollered and everything else," said Union Pacific spokesman John Forbes. "Have you ever heard a diesel whistle? It turns you blue."

But Van Daele "was pushing a thousand tons... He tried, but trains don't stop like automobiles," Forbes said.

"Before we identified them, we thought they might be handicapped," Forbes said of the children. "We thought they might be deaf."

AMANDA LACK, 7; her 6-year-old brother Jason; and Julie Kline, 10, were killed. Julie's 8-year-old sister Holly was listed in "extremely critical" condition at St. Francis Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery.

On their way home from a morning in the park on a hot summer day, they had decided to stop at the trainyard in this largely industrial suburb.

"They use it as a playground, unfortunately," Forbes said. "There are kids all over."

"Some of the older children still like to play 'chicken,' jump out of the way at the last minute," he added. "The younger ones like to emulate them, although we don't think these kids were."

SF Mayor No Drip on Water Use

Gays' Silence Hinders Probe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police say a suspect in 14 homosexual murders has not been charged because three survivors of his knife attacks, including a "well-known entertainer" and diplomat, won't "come out of the closet" and testify against him.

For the past year, police have been questioning a young man they call "The Doodler" about the 14 slayings and three assaults that occurred in San Francisco's gay community between January 1974 and September 1975, Inspector Rotea Gilford said Thursday.

Interest in the case surfaced again this week after two Redondo Beach men were arrested in Riverside for questioning about as many as 28 slayings linked to homosexual encounters.

The suspect here, his name not released, has talked freely with police but has not admitted the slayings, Gilford said.

To Testify
American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks will be called to testify in the Skyhorse-Mohawk murder trial in Los Angeles. Skyhorse and Mohawk are accused of murdering a cab driver.

Water department meter readings released Thursday showed that Moscone, his wife and two children used 235 gallons of water daily, 49 percent of their current water allotment of 478 gallons a day.

Moscone has been urging San Franciscans to conserve as much water as possible.

Airport Woes Remain

Despite completion four months ago of a four-year study that cost $300,000, whatever decisions to be made about Orange County Airport's future won't be made until some time in 1978.

The delay is a result of apparently no one — except Airport Director Robert Bresnahan and the Airport Commission — being satisfied with the study.

So, the hefty document that was supposed to contain all the answers has been sent back by the county planning commission to its designers. It isn't scheduled to reappear until "sometime between Christmas and Easter."

That's a victory of sorts for those who oppose so much as lifting a pebble at the airport to accommodate what they see as undesirable expansion that would increase noise and air pollution.

In the meantime, however, county air travelers will continue to suffer in an airport terminal that is overcrowded and with parking facilities that don't meet their needs.

So be it. Someday, though, someone is going to come up with an answer to the airport dilemma that will have more meaning than just more of the same.

Pension Pay-off

Last month Los Angeles Fire Chief Kenneth R. Long retired after two years on the job that pays $56,150 a year. His pension is $41,382.

To many taxpayers that sounded generous.

But it wasn't nearly as startling as the detailed breakdown of what Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger calls his "good retirement program."

It's so good that six years from now, when Younger turns 65, he'll be collecting no fewer than four separate pensions totalling $53,226 a year — paid for the most part by the taxpayers.

There's been a lot of grumbling about "double dipping" by people who retire on military pensions, then take government jobs with the prospect of yet another pension at taxpayer expense.

But Younger is an interesting example of the new breed of "multiple dippers" who manage, quite legally, to take full advantage of the government's lenient retirement programs.

Right now he's drawing $530 a month in Los Angeles County pension benefits for serving as district attorney from 1964 to 1970, while earning $42,500 a year in his state job. Next year he'll qualify for a military service pension of $850 a month.

When he leaves his attorney general job to run for governor, his eight years of service in that post will yield a state pension of $1,416 a month.

After that he'll have to wait until 1983 to begin collecting his fourth government pension — $1,638 a month for past service as a Municipal and Superior Court judge in Los Angeles.

President Carter has said he'll undertake a full survey of federal, state and city retirement plans in an effort to unspool this complex taxpayer rip-off.

Meanwhile retirees on Social Security, 60 percent of whom have no other pension benefits, scrape along on their government pittance. And if they're careless enough to earn more than $3,000 a year in part-time work, they even lose that.

Clearly the multiple dipping into government pension funds is getting out of hand. A lifetime of public service should be adequately rewarded with a decent retirement program. But reaching into the taxpayers' pockets three or four times to provide it is downright indecent.

And how will be the next generation manage to support the ever-growing army of retirees?

The President and Congress would do well to consider the practice, adopted in many countries, of limiting persons who have served in different areas of government to one government pension — the largest to which he is entitled, but only one.

(Apologies to Peter Arno)

"Well, back to the old drawing board."

SYDNEY HARRIS

There are familiar sayings that cut both ways, and most people who use them don't understand how they cut the other way. Like the man I heard today, remarking to a friend at lunch, "I just love to keep busy."

He was a stranger, so I don't know anything about the implications of his remark. But there are two opposite ways we can "love to keep busy," and they are totally different, in motive and consequence.

The healthy way to keep busy is to project yourself, as a person, into the life of your work, or your family, or your community, so that you are looking forward to tomorrow. Without this sort of involvement, we tire easily, age rapidly, and turn crabby and self-involved. But there is also an unhealthy way to keep busy. This is to engage in activity for its own sake, to use busy-ness as a device for warding off reality. Activity can be a narcotic, just as alcohol can, for deadening the senses to personal relations, family obligations, and community responsibility. And for keeping tomorrow at bay.

WORK AND LOVE, said Freud, are the two elements that combine for a satisfactory life. But many people who seem to "love their work" use it as a substitute for working at their love. They let their families go to pot (emotionally, if not materially), while focusing all their libido on a company, a merger, a stock issue, or any commercial enterprise.

Dear
Gloomy
Gus

Well, well, Dr. Spock, who misguided a generation of parents on how to bring up children, only to admit he was wrong when it was too late, says Anita Bryant is wrong. What next?

K.S.W.

Gloomy Gus comments are submitted by readers and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper. Send your pet peeve to Gloomy Gus, Daily Pilot.

Not to be involved in work of some kind is stultifying to the human spirit; and, obviously, the best kind of work is that which you would be willing to do for nothing if you could afford it. But not many are lucky enough, or talented enough, to find so creative an outlet for their energies.

WOMEN, TOO, of course, are not exempt from this syndrome. The "busy, busy" woman who is always attending club meetings, working for causes, or performing civic duties may be doing so because she has an abundance of vitality and concern — or because she is escaping from a genuine relationship with her husband and her children. Which takes work, too.

It is the inner dynamics of the situation, not the raw facts themselves, that determines whether our busy-ness is a heightening of our powers or a lowering of them.

Most of us require a balanced life in order to reach the optimum satisfaction for our diverse needs; too much industry can be as crippling as too much indolence. But people tend to be proud of their industry, while secretly ashamed of their indolence. If many of them examined its emotional roots, however, they might begin to recognize that, just as all that glitters is not gold, all movement is not necessarily getting anywhere.

WASHINGTON — A new and chilling study of the potential impact of Soviet civil defense measures on the U.S.-Soviet strategic nuclear balance raises fresh doubts about U.S. reliance on a strategy that assumes each side is capable of virtually destroying the other — a strategy called "mutual assured destruction," or MAD.

A result of long analysis by a team of experts under the direction of T. K. Jones, one of the foremost American students in strategic nuclear analysis, the study was privately done for non-government defense and nuclear students. These include Paul H. Nitze, former Deputy Secretary of Defense, and other acknowledged experts long worried about glaring imperfections in the strategy of MAD and in the concept of overkill, both of which are constantly paraded by doves in the arms-control community who want to slow U.S. strategic growth.

The Jones study first measures potential fatalities in the Soviet Union under an arbitrary scenario: following a Soviet first-strike nuclear attack against U.S. strategic launchers (a counter-force strike), the U.S. retaliates with an all-out nuclear strike specifically designed as a population-killer, using every strategic weapon that survived the Soviet first strike.

The study (which Pentagon experts have not yet been able seriously to flaw) assumes that full use is made of Soviet civil defense planning. Thus, there is a maximum exodus of population from Moscow and other cities via 24 hours of walking and maximum use of what the study calls "expedient shelters" — that is, simple but adequate cover for two weeks' protection from nuclear fall-out.

The Impact of Soviet Civil Defense

A Startling Nuclear Scenario

SOVIET civil defense, which has budget priority equal to the military and is under the command of a high Soviet general, has distributed millions of designs for quick construction of just such crude — but effective — shelters. Indeed, school children are regularly taught that art. Highly advertised exit routes for various neighborhoods when evacuation is ordered are also a routine part of Soviet civil defense.

The study claims that under "a full evacuation in accordance with Soviet civil defense principles" the number of fatalities from the American retaliatory attack would be as low as 4 million — even lower, if the 24-hour walking time for evacuation is lengthened.

But the U.S. today has no plan whatever for "expedient shelters." Indeed, civil defense has been lost under the liturgy of MAD, the concept of deterrence and the mythology of "overkill" (superfluous nuclear power).

Accordingly, in the reverse case — an American first strike against Soviet launchers, and Soviet retaliation designed only to kill people — the study predicts 72 million dead in the U.S. What is worse — if anything could be — is that even if the American people had access to "expedient shelters," the study predicts there would still be 20 million dead.

THESE catastrophic results both assume that 90 percent of the urban population has 24 hours to get out of town; that the evacuees take maximum advantage of residential housing for fall-out protection; and that the 10 percent left in the cities make "optimum use" of designated fallout shelters (such as subways) — in tragic short supply here.

One reason for these ghastly high estimates is the size of Soviet nuclear weapons, with much higher yields in both explosive force and in radiation than U.S. long-range missiles. Thus, effective shelter from the deadly blast of a Soviet nuclear warhead in this country requires far more structural strength.

The arithmetic is startling. A shelter that would protect a Soviet citizen one mile from the point of impact of an average-size American warhead (a Poseidon submarine-launched weapon) would give protection only at three miles from the point of impact of an average one-megaton (million tons of TNT equivalent) Soviet warhead.

WITHOUT question, studies such as this suffer from arbitrary assumptions. The authors concede that their scenarios are "overstated" and certainly "not likely." Yet to begin to perceive dangers from the highly organized Soviet civil defense program, and the absence of any in the U.S., a start must be made somewhere.

'Sure Congress could strike for a pay increase, but how would people know we're on strike?'

full picture of what goes on above the 38th parallel, except that it is one of the most isolated societies on earth.

The border is tightly controlled. The few details that have leaked out provide a dim outline of a highly authoritarian government and a brutally regimented society. In the words of one American analyst: "It is '1984' — in spades."

Every aspect of North Korean life is controlled. The day is literally divided into 480-minute segments: Eight hours are spent on work; eight hours are spent on study and mass organization; eight hours are given to eating, sleeping and other necessities.

The degree of party membership is greater in North Korea than in any other Communist country. The Communist party is supplemented by mass organizations for every element of society — youth, women, labor. There is tremendous psychological pressure upon everyone to join, to conform, to participate, to show a "positive" attitude.

EVERY CHILDREN of 5 and 6 are regimented into organizations, where they are taught to run wooden bayonets through the "U.S. imperialists."

All property in North Korea belongs to the state. People are permitted to work garden plots, for example. But they don't own them; they are merely on loan.

Food and clothing are rationed; travel is restricted. When North Koreans leave their

We Trust in the Father of Our Country

As we paused last month to consecrate once again the institution of fatherhood, we should have remembered to honor in our thoughts and prayers The Father of Our Country, Walter Cronkite.

As befits his role, Mr. Cronkite eschews acclaim, asking only to be left in peace to perform his paternal tasks — soothing our fears, comforting our hurts, and gently guiding our destinies.

For the past decade and more, Mr. Cronkite has wisely and well carried out the duties of this, the highest office in our land, leaving the lesser honors to others. John Chancellor, for example, has been declared The Uncle of Our Country; David Brinkley its Kid Brother; and while Barbara Walters has tried her utmost to become The Mother of Our Country (no mere woman can hope for more), she has been forced to settle for Visiting Social Worker.

BUT Mr. Cronkite's hold on the lifetime appointment has been confirmed again and again. Poll after poll has shown him to be the "most respected," the "most admired," and, by inference, the most beloved man in America. Time magazine has officially proclaimed him "the most convincing and authoritative figure" imparting knowledge and moral guidance nightly to us in our living rooms.

And let us not forget that when President Carter faced his first major crisis — how to conduct a radio talk show from the White House — Mr. Cronkite was the one he asked to sit beside him throughout the two-hour ordeal. "Our assumption," Jody Powell explained at the time, "is that there will be people in this country who would be disrespectful to the President, but that no one would be disrespectful to Mr. Cronkite."

How true. Presidents may come and go, but there can be but one Father of Our Country.

There may be some, mostly foreigners and the like, who think the office a ceremonial one. But to compare Mr. Cronkite to the Queen of England is to miss the point. It is his onerous job, for instance, to nominate, elect and install Presidents.

EVERY FOURTH summer, he assumes his throne high above some convention floor, visible but unreachable, and labors three long days to bring forth a candidate. During the grueling campaign, he remains aloof, as a good father should, from our petty squabbles, but at last on election night he finally decides who our next President will be.

Far more demanding is his unending task of steering us through each current crisis. Every evening as we gather about him in our living rooms, he describes the agonizing problems we face. He hides nothing from us. When he says, "And that's the way it is," we know that's the way it is.

WE KNOW from his grave frown that we must be concerned. Yet we know from his quiet confidence that he will somehow see us through these desperate straits.

Even Mr. Cronkite, however, is not above criticism. Many feel he should have ended the Vietnam war sooner. It was not until 1968 that, with an almost audible sigh, he put down his papers, got up from his desk and went out to Vietnam to see what was going on. On his return he reluctantly told us that it was, indeed, a squalid war — thus leaving President Johnson no alternative but to retire forever from public life.

Yet, all in all, Mr. Cronkite is just about the best father a country ever had — patient, gentle, calm, kind, wise, moral, slow to anger, quick to forgive and, above all, a beacon of certainty in a turbulent world.

JFK Death

News Review
Set for Film

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Docu-dramas on TV claim to re-create actual events. But they occasionally are accused of distorting history to heighten drama, of offering surmise as 100-proof fact.

Worried about this and the growth of docu-drama as a form of evening entertainment programming, CBS-TV chief Robert Wussler has taken an unusual step with a planned TV movie, "Four Days in Dallas."

He says CBS News will review it for accuracy.

"DALLAS," ABOUT THE 1963 slaying of President Kennedy, traces the last days of accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald and of club owner Jack Ruby, who fatally shot Oswald after JFK's death.

Wussler, who during a 15-year stint as a CBS News producer helped prepare reports on Kennedy's assassination, says CBS News won't be asked to say if the show should or shouldn't air.

But he says if there's any doubt about the film's accuracy, its broadcast — scheduled for next spring — will be delayed and corrections made, or it will be postponed indefinitely.

HE SAID "DALLAS" IS BASED in large part on the Warren Report, which found that Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy.

But he said involving CBS News in a review of this basically entertainment project wasn't prompted by fears of "fairness time" demands from critics who dispute the report's findings.

"No, it was not," he said by phone from New York. "It was prompted by our viewing of docu-dramas of other networks that we felt were major steps toward a revisionist theory of history."

HE ALSO SAID HE DIDN'T want children who watch docu-dramas to grow up with an erroneous view of history, noting that when kids see things on the tube "they think that's the real world."

"If we start doing historical things and we're loose with the facts, I think it's going to come back and haunt us, both from TV critics and people in the government."

Wussler, the only current network head with a news background, was asked if a CBS News review of docu-dramas will become the network's standard operating procedure for such programs.

"NO," HE SAID. IT'LL happen only "when we decide to go forward with a sensitive subject, a subject of public concern which still may be... an open matter or open controversy."

"Then, we'll ask the president of our news division (Richard S. Salant) or other experts there about it. We don't want to put them in the position of final judgments."

"But we certainly will seek out their thoughts on the subject matter and, having spent 15 years at CBS News, I think it'd be a very good idea to see how they felt."

"The most important thing is, I don't want to be responsible for rewriting history."

'SAM IS THE POPULARIST GUY,' FAN ATTESTS
And Here's Why: 'They're All My Children'

Kids Love Sam
Ice Cream Man Returns Favor

By JULES LOH

AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK — Hell hath no fury like the sidewalks of New York on a steamy summer day.

East Side, West Side, all around the town, boys and girls cavort under fireplug sprinklers, splash in gutter rivulets, run barefoot from shade to shade on soft asphalt.

ON 20TH STREET a block from the East River, they line up at Sam the ice cream man's white pushcart.

Sam Batchoff, a man of good humor, has been selling ice cream at the same corner for 30 years.

"What is Nathan's famous for?" Sam calls out.

"Hot dogs!" chorus the kids gathered around his cart.

"What is Sam famous for?"

"SAMMY'S WHAMMYS!" cry the kids, and run away laughing.

A Whammy, for the benefit of all over 12, is a cold confection on a stick and costs 10 pennies, or six, or nine, however many a small fist happens to hold. Sam rarely counts.

"What are you going to do," he says, reaching into the cart through a mist of magic vapor, "not give it to them?"

ACCORDING TO ONE well-placed observer, Joey Varua, a 9-year-old connoisseur of almond bars, "Sam is the popularist guy in the neighborhood."

No argument there. Last year on July 2 the neighborhood women, many of them former members of Sam's clientele, greeted him on his corner with a big cake and some nice summer shirts and several boxes of cigars and stood with their kids and sang Happy Birthday to You.

Sam's eyes, which are chocolate, moistened. He examined the shirts, lit a cigar, composed himself, thanked the ladies. Then he passed out the cake to the kids.

"IF YOU'RE AN ice cream man and don't like kids you're in the wrong job," Sam said.

"No, I never had children of my own but they're all my children if you know what I mean. I know nearly all of them by name. I know their mothers and fathers. I've watched them grow up and go off to college and get married."

"They come back and visit me and bring their kids and say, 'Honey, this is Sam. I used to get ice cream from Sam when I was a little girl.' Yes, I know them all and I guess they all know me."

IS THAT SO, kids? Is there anybody in the neighborhood who doesn't know Sam? The kids pondered the question a long moment.

"Conroy. Maybe Conroy doesn't know Sam," said Joey, polishing off his third almond bar.

"Yeah, maybe," said Phillip the fudge bar freak, "but Conroy's only been here a month. Conroy doesn't count."

To Sam Batchoff they all count, every sticky-fingered one of them, because they are his life.

SAM LIVES ALONE a few blocks from his corner. He awakens each morning at 4, sits alone in a restaurant and dawdles over breakfast and the paper until 9, loads his cart, fastens his coin changer to his belt and heads for his corner, his world.

Glass in Cookies
Leads to Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,000 packages of Archway Chocolate Chip cookies contaminated by glass are being recalled by their manufacturer, the Food and Drug Administration says.

Merit Baking Co., of Boone, Iowa, began the recall with a June 8 letter to distributors, the FDA said.

It said the recall is under way and it is not known how many of the 10-ounce packages, coded with the date July 23, remain on the market. The cookies were distributed in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas.

The FDA said the cookies also were being recalled because they contained nuts that were not listed on the label.

Kenton Released
From Hospital

READING, PA. (AP) — Bandleader Stan Kenton was released from a hospital here following a six-week recuperation from brain surgery.

Kenton, 65, had been at Reading Hospital where he underwent surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain.

The surgery was the result of a fall the musician suffered in a garage at a Reading motel May 22.

Kenton's manager drove him to Philadelphia where he caught a flight to his home in Los Angeles.

Cleanest Mud Hill in Town

With rare form and youthful abandon, the "mud slide" at Irvine's Adventure Playground gets its initiation and is approved for summer use. Dave Cramer, top two photos, demonstrates how to get the most out of a hill, a tarp and a little water. At the bottom of the slide Dave, right, makes a smooth landing in the company of Jim Barnsky, left and Bobby Hurd. Playground hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. Whether mothers enjoy the facility as much remains to be seen.

Mesa Club Limits Choice Start Times

Lady golfers at the Costa Mesa Golf and Country Club will get preferred starting times only once a week instead of twice a week, the city council has ruled.

Keith Van Holt, director of the city's Department of Leisure Services, defended the reduction of preferred starting times for women by saying most courses offer only one women's and one men's day per week.

Sparkler Blamed In SC Roof Fire

San Clemente firemen blamed a sparkler for igniting a small fire near midnight Wednesday on the roof of an abandoned house in the 200-block of Avenida del Mar.

Damage amounted only to scorching of the roof on the building, which has been condemned to make way for the new county branch library.

der the new regulations. Councilmen also approved special rates for junior duffers this week, charging $12 a month to play the Mesa Linda Course and $15 per month to play the Los Lagos course.

THOSE RATES ARE good for one 18-hole round per day and good only after 12:30 p.m., according to Van Holt. The rates apply after 1 p.m. in the summer months.

Those rates were to apply to senior citizens also, according to City Manager Fred Sorsabal, but the council decided to hold over a decision on the afternoon hours until their next meeting.

Some seniors objected to the afternoon starting times, saying they preferred to play in the morning.

HIGH SCHOOL AND college team players will continue to be allowed free golf play during the spring, according to the new rules, but councilmen placed a limit on the number of players, Van Holt said.

"We just limited the teams to 14 team players and two coaches for the schools," he said. Teams using the 234-acre facilities include Orange Coast College, Costa Mesa, Estancia and Newport Harbor High School.

Newport Set For Dodger Night Fest

Aug. 11 will be Newport Beach night at Dodger Stadium during which a host of city dignitaries led by Mayor Milan Dostal will be seen in pre-game ceremonies.

Reserved seats for the game between Cincinnati Reds and the Dodgers are being sold through the city Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department and the Harbor Area Baseball office.

There are 1,000 reserved $3 seats and 500 $4.50 box seats on sale for $3.50 and $5. The money above the regular price of the tickets will go to the baseball program.

Free bus transportation will be provided for those who make their reservations through the recreation department or the baseball program.

For further information, contact the PB&R office at 640-2271.

Queen Speaks

'Soaps' Bubble Up

Report: Game Shows to Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of soap operas on daytime television is likely to increase at the expense of game shows this year, a report by a major advertising agency says.

The report by Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn Inc. also noted that daytime programming has been so successful, mainly at reaching women, that the minimum average cost of a 30-second commercial has increased by 50 percent in a year.

THE 16-PAGE REPORT NOTED that game shows accounted for more than 50 percent of the network daytime schedules in 1975. In the spring of this year, they accounted for 34 percent. And the figure could dip below 30 percent by the end of the year, BBDO said.

Soap operas account for 52 percent of daytime network programming between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., with reruns of situation comedies like "All in the Family" and movies making up the difference.

"ONE REASON FOR THE disappearance of this daytime staple is that the costs to produce a game show have gone up significantly — almost doubled over the last two years — so they are no longer an inexpensive filler for a time period," the report said.

"Another reason is that serials draw a much more loyal audience, and the networks perceive them to be more stable programming than game shows."

WHILE BBDO SAID IT WAS possible that "One Life to Live" and "General Hospital" would follow the trend to hour-long soaps, it quoted an NBC executive, Madeline David, as saying that longer shows were "not producible."

The agency said the price of a 30-second announcement ranged from $4,000 to $16,000 at the end of 1976. For the season beginning this fall, however, the price has risen to $6,000 to $19,500.

Although BBDO released its report as an "evaluation" and an "analysis," it was filled with observations to potential advertisers about the desirability of buying daytime commercials.

'75-76 Rebate

'Double Tax' Gets 'No' Vote in SJC

San Juan Capistrano's troublesome "double taxation" issue reared its head again as councilmen backed away from approving additional tax rebates to residents of two southwest San Juan housing tracts.

The issue arose last year, when city officials learned that two special taxing districts were continuing to tax residents of the Mission Bell Ranch and Mariners Village tracts even though they had been annexed to the city in 1975.

THE CAPISTRANO Bay Parks and Recreation District and the Capistrano Beach Sanitary District were taxing residents for services at the same time the city was charging residents for identical services.

Councilmen last year authorized more than $9,000 in rebates for 1975-76 taxes collected by the two districts.

City officials said they backed the rebate at the time because they believed themselves responsible for failing to begin a severance process from the special districts.

WEDNESDAY, HOWEVER, city officials claimed further investigation of the issue revealed at least one of the districts knew about the double taxation.

"We supported the rebates last year because we were responsible for failing to initiate severance proceedings and we thought they (the two districts) didn't know about the tax situation," City Manager Jim Mocalis explained.

The council voted unanimously to rebate $1,521 to four property owners who were neglected under the earlier rebate program, but declined to refund over $8,000 in recreation taxes collected by the park district in 1976-77.

Councilman John Sweeney suggested affected homeowners file a taxpayer suit against the recreation district to recover those taxes.

Disgruntled Man Chomps Victim's Ear

THISTED, Denmark (AP) — Police were looking today for a jobless worker who bit off the ear of a labor exchange official and left it wrapped in paper with the handwritten message: "This is your ear."

The victim was Arne Jensen, head of the Koldby labor exchange office near here. Doctors put the ear back in its right place, but told Jensen it probably would never be quite the same old ear.

POLICE IDENTIFIED Jensen's assailant only as a 34-year-old worker who had been jobless for a long time and repeatedly had refused to take the jobs offered by the labor exchange.

Police said he came rushing into the office after Jensen had phoned him to say there was a job for him as a farm hand. The man made it clear he did not want that kind of work and then reacted violently at the prospect of losing his unemployment relief.

JENSEN TOLD POLICE the irate worker jumped over a counter, knocked him to the floor and dug his teeth into his left ear. Jensen fainted and when he came to his attacker had vanished. But on the counter was the ear, wrapped in paper.

A charwoman and one of Jensen's colleagues put the ear in a glass of salt water and took it and its owner to the nearest hospital.

Police said the ear-biting man would be charged with assault and battery of public official, which is punishable by a prison term.

SJC Council Supports TV Control Law

A new law regulating cable television in San Juan Capistrano has been endorsed by city councilmen.

The new city ordinance would provide more control over cable TV franchises and allow the initiation of pay TV, which was previously prohibited by city ordinance.

If councilmen approve the ordinance at their next meeting, the law will become effective 30 days later.

City officials said the law would not have immediate impact on cable TV companies but would allow them to apply for a franchise under the new regulations.

The ordinance provides city regulation of cable rates, service levels such as programming and grievance procedures for user complaints.

San Juan Area

Higher Water Rate To Stay in Effect

Residents of San Juan Capistrano and the adjacent Dana Knolls and Spotted Ball areas will continue to pay higher water rates originally imposed on an interim basis May 1.

County Water District No. 4 directors, who are also San Juan city councilmen, voted 5-0 this week to raise water rates by 11 percent over last year's rates.

The new rates of $4 base fee, plus 33 cents per 100 cubic feet of water (about 748 gallons) used, are made necessary by a surcharge imposed by the Metropolitan Water District (MWD), which sells District No. 4 its water, officials said.

District directors also approved unanimously a $1.3 million budget for 1977-78, up from $1 million for the previous fiscal year.

Increases are greatest in the areas of capital outlay and higher water costs, said T.J. Meadows, manager.

'Rogue' Tips Fishing Boat

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — A 15-foot "rogue wave" smashed onto a private fishing boat, hurling a large party of fishermen to the decks and injuring five of them, authorities said.

The 65-foot boat, Captain John, was just off the Farallon Islands when it was hit Thursday by the towering swell.

'Cash' Topic Of Seminar

"How To Raise Cash" will be the topic of a business development seminar to be held Tuesday at the Marriott Hotel by the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce.

The program, which runs from 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., features Donald Royce Jr., vice president and director of corporate finance for William R. Staats Company; Leonard Morgan, assistant vice president and corporate banking officer for the Bank of America, and A. G. Timothy Hay, president of Security Pacific Capital Corp.

Tickets for the seminar cost $6 for chamber members and $10 for non-members.

The conversion would be along Stonehill from Street of the Golden Lantern to Selva Road.

Supervisor Tom Riley said the $300,000 conversion project would be financed primarily by the San Diego Gas and Electric Company.

How to Shave In 20 Seconds

How long does it take you to shave? Men differ greatly in this matter. Few can do the job in less than 15 seconds. Some take several minutes. Many years ago it became clear that it would do to learn how to be swift at that lifelong chore. If you change blades every third day and use pushbutton foam, you can run an average of 20 seconds per shave.

In the old days, an Indian boy was given one name at birth, took on another name at about age 13, was dubbed with still a different name after performing some notable feat such as killing a bear, and wound up with yet a changed name again upon retirement age.

BERMUDA TRIANGLE

Q. "The Bermuda triangle, that South Atlantic ocean area between Miami, San Juan and Bermuda, is supposed to be hexed in some way. How many ships and planes have been lost there without a trace in the last 50 years?"

A. More than 60 ships and 40 planes. No wreckage, no distress signals, no bodies, no survivors. It's weird.

Q. "How did the Louisiana town of Baton Rouge get its name?"

A. From a red post that marked the boundary between two Indian hunting grounds.

Q. "Has anybody parachuted off the Statue of Liberty and lived to tell about it?"

A. At least one somebody did. A stuntman named F.R. Law. In 1912.

Q. "Quick, Louie, where's the world's largest pyramid?"

A. Near Puebla, Mexico, snapped back he. No, that's a lie. I looked it up.

ACHIEVERS

Question arises as to what the so-called super achievers have in common. Am talking about men like St. Thomas Aquinas and Thomas Edison and Albert Einstein, people who do great things. Studies show just about all of them were none too popular as youngsters, except maybe for a lone friend each. They certainly weren't party types. And a lot of them had trouble in school, too. They were different in indefinable ways from the outset, and miserable most of the time. Might keep that in mind if you're beginning to get the impression that one of your kids is an oddball.

Did I tell you that one of every four men in this country is named John or William or James or Charles or George?

Coast Folks Urged to 'Save Water'

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange Coast residents are being asked to join their neighbors throughout Southern California in making water conservation a new way of life, a high-ranking water agency official said Thursday.

John H. Lauten, general manager of the Metropolitan Water District, told an Anaheim audience, "We are hoping that the conservation we achieve now will stay with us."

"LOOKING JUST a few years ahead," Lauten told members of Orange County Forum of Town Hall, "we probably are going to have a shortage of water not because of the lack of water as much as the lack of energy to pump it."

Lauten also said water conservation and the 10 percent cutback in water use agency officials are seeking may not reduce residents' water bills.

BECAUSE WATER agencies have fixed costs relating to their equipment, Lauten said, water conservation could result in some rate increases.

Dennis MacLain, general manager of the Municipal Water District of Orange County, contacted after the meeting, said he knew of no agency in the county planning a rate increase presently because of conservation.

MACLAIN, WHOSE agency purchases imported water from Metropolitan and sells it to 36 local agencies, said increased rates likely would not come about immediately.

The dollars residents spend for water probably would not change, MacLain said, because rate hikes caused by conservation probably would be tied to the amount conserved.

Tall Club Selects President

Mortgages Meet New Needs

By The Associated Press

If you're trying to figure out a way to borrow enough money to buy a house, take heart. The banks are trying to figure out a way to lend it to you.

The problem, as many would-be homeowners have discovered, is the soaring price of housing, which has required more money down and hefty monthly mortgage payments.

THIS PRECIPITATION HAS many lenders thinking about a new type of mortgage.

"We've got to tailor the mortgage to adapt it to varying stages in the life cycle of the borrower," says Tony Frank, president of the California Savings & Loan League.

"To have level-payment mortgages as we do now is a straight jacket into which not all borrowers fit. For example, for young people, we need a mortgage that permits lower payments at the start, when their income is lower. As their income rises in later years, their payments would go up."

FRANK WOULD LIKE TO SEE mortgage payments figured as a portion of family income, say 25 percent, so that the payments would automatically rise as the family's income increases. He notes that some lenders in the East are able to offer almost 100 percent financing by using a borrower's savings account partially as a down payment and partially as a reserve for reducing monthly payments.

Punch

"Bad news, honey—Jones just resigned."

Dr. James F. Reagan, Newport Beach, has been named vice president and senior advisor for tactical systems at Rockwell International's Autonetics group. He has headed the missile systems division since 1972 and now is responsible for development of business plans for tactical missile programs.

New officers of the South Coast Plaza board of directors are Larry Ober of Larry Douglas, president; Don Rooten, Rooten's Luggage, chairman; Joe Metcalf, Sears, treasurer, and Bent Simonsen, the Hotel Men's Store, vice president.

Charles W. Missler, Corona del Mar, has been elected president and chief executive officer of Western Digital Corp., replacing H.F. Fought, former chief officer, who continues as chairman of the board. The position of president has been vacant since 1975.

Missler was previously associated with Ford Motor Company, TRW and Systems Development Corp. and was a founder of Cyphernetics Corp. For the past seven years he has been with the Missler Group of Newport Beach.

Bank of America has announced the following personnel appointments:

—Steven Carnevale has been named vice president and assistant manager of the Newport Center office. He is former assistant vice president and credit administrator with the bank's corporate banking North America division in Los Angeles.

—Donald Clavesilla has been appointed assistant vice president and business development officer at the Irvine Industrial office in Newport Beach. He is former assistant vice president and commercial loan officer at the Anaheim main office.

—Lee Heins, Irvine, has been named real estate loan officer at the Laguna Beach office. He succeeds Lynn Schneider, who has moved to the Fountain Valley branch. Heins joined BofA in 1973 as a teller.

Barbara Derry, San Juan Capistrano, has been named savings supervisor at the Irvine office of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Diego. She is former customer service representative in the San Juan Capistrano office.

Ruby M. Boecker has joined the Costa Mesa office of Glendale Federal Savings as regional consumer loan officer. She has several years' experience in the financial industry and most recently was consumer loan officer for a savings and loan in Santa Ana.

Gary D. Johnson of Costa Mesa, partner in the accounting firm of Arthur Young & Company, has been elected secretary of the Long Beach/Orange County chapter of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He has served in a number of elected and appointed positions within the chapter, including chairman of the committee on cooperation with credit grantors.

He is also a member of the Board of Directors of Big Brothers of Orange County.

Also elected were president, James J. Sullos Jr., Long Beach; vice president, Gayford H. Hinton, Fountain Valley; and treasurer, Thomas L. Andrew, Irvine.

Elected to the board of directors were Howard D. Bland, Huntington Beach; Lloyd A. Brown, Orange; Eugene J. Jorman, Fullerton; Jeannie E. Jankins, Anaheim; Lee A. Asher, Huntington Beach; Evan J. McDowell, Long Beach; and W. Richard Mills, Costa Mesa.

Patrick Harper, Newport Beach, has joined Teled Advertising & Public Relations, Irvine, as an art director. He previously headed his own graphic design firm.

OCC to Offer Manager Class

An advanced executive program for local business leaders and organization managers will be offered at Orange Coast College, Costa Mesa, beginning in September.

The seminar, which confers three units of college credit, will meet on Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. The first session of the 18-week program is scheduled for Sept. 13.

"INVITATIONS WILL BE ISSUED this summer to local corporations and organizations to elect one participant for the new advanced executive program," said seminar director Richard A. Greene Jr. "Other interested persons may enroll, but registration is limited."

Greene, a business consultant, is the author of "The Management Game" and "Business Intelligence and Espionage."

The seminar will offer a new management system for multi-plant management. It will describe new approaches to predicting the future and improving profitability, and will also offer new views on personnel selection, development and training.

For information about the program, phone 556-5842.

S&L Chief Proposes More Flexibility

The technique, known as a "flip" mortgage, hasn't been approved for California savings and loans, but is expected to be offered here soon. Frank thinks it's a step forward but objects to the fixed monthly payments required. In fact, he would do away with the idea of 30-year, fixed payment mortgages altogether.

"If we were reinventing the mortgage today, it wouldn't look the same at all," he contends. "To have the same fixed payments for 360 months is ignoring the fact that needs of the occupants change, their income changes and the value of their house changes."

FRANK, PRESIDENT OF SAN FRANCISCO-based Citizen Savings and Loan, thinks mortgages can also be used to help older couples.

"What an older couple might have is a great deal of equity built up in a home, but relatively little income and almost no chance of increasing that income, the reverse of a younger couple," he says.

"What could be done in that case is what's called a reverse mortgage or housing annuity, where they in effect resell the equity in their home and get a lifetime annuity."

FRANK SAYS THE REVERSE MORTGAGE, so called because the lender pays the homeowner instead of the other way around, can provide elderly couples with a way to increase their monthly income without having to sell the home they've lived in for years.

Frank offers the example of a couple with a $50,000 house and $10,000 remaining on the mortgage. The original mortgage might have been $40,000, he notes, so the monthly payments might still be quite high. Under a reverse mortgage, the couple would pre-sell their $40,000 equity to the lender, who would use $10,000 to pay off the mortgage. At that point the couple would no longer have monthly payments and the rest of the money could be used to set up a lifetime annuity for them.

Frank would also like to see what he calls a "forbearance feature" in mortgages to allow for times when a homeowner is laid off and unable to make his payments.

"IF HE OR SHE IS Laid off through no fault of their own, they shouldn't have to make payments for six months or a year," he explains. "The payments would be added onto the balance at the end and it would give the people some breathing space."

Mortgages also could be used as an "umbrella" for making other consumer loans, according to Frank.

"The way it is now, if you have a $50,000 house and a $30,000 loan at 8 percent and you want to borrow another $10,000, a lender will rewrite the entire loan and bring it up to a new interest rate," he says.

"I'D LIKE TO SEE HIM pay the new rate only on the new money. It would still be secured by the home, but he wouldn't be paying higher interest on the whole loan."

Frank believes these and other kinds of flexible mortgages will become increasingly popular in coming years as lenders adapt their policies to fit today's higher-priced houses and changing requirements of homeowners.

Records Told

Avco Financial Services, Inc., Newport Beach consumer finance company, has posted record net earnings for the 1977 second quarter and first half. It is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Avco Corp., Greenwich, Conn.

Net earnings for the second quarter and six-months' periods which ended May 31, 1977, before unrealized gains on foreign exchange fluctuations and extraordinary credits arising from the carryforward of prior years' foreign tax credits, totaled $14,692,000 and $27,013,000, up 30 percent and 24 percent, respectively, from the restated 1976 levels of $11,307,000 and $21,799,000.

Avco Community Developers, Inc., a San Diego subsidiary of Avco Corp., has reported record earnings for its second quarter as well as for its first half ended May 31.

Health Care

Reasons Listed For Cost Hikes

By SYLVIA PORTER
Costs of health care, ranging from the simplest physical exam to the most complicated procedures, keep going up.

And proposed solutions to the problem, ranging from restricted protection for catastrophic illness to a costly national health care system, and coming from sources as far apart as Massachusetts Democratic Sen. Edward Kennedy and the conservative American Medical Association.

This is a good time to review the reasons for the problem:

FACTOR NO. 1: CURRENT PAYMENT systems offer little if any incentive for the practitioner or the patient to try to keep costs down.

For example, A. J. needed tests. "We can do the tests right here in my office in a few minutes," the doctor said, "but I thought you would want to go into the hospital so it would be covered by your insurance."

For another, B. S. went to her doctor every few months as needed for a checkup. Under Medicaid, she has been told to go every month, even if only her blood pressure is recorded.

FACTOR NO. 2: There often is no moderate level of response to a moderate problem. It is either a full-dress affair or nothing.

To illustrate, C. D. recently scratched his eye on a bush in his yard. The general practitioner refused to look at it "because it is an eye problem." The specialist he recommended was unavailable for several days and his fee would be in the hundreds of dollars. C. D. went to a hospital emergency room and, after a two-hour wait, was told that after another three-hour wait, the doctor would determine whether an appointment would be made with a specialist the patient could see the next day. When he refused to wait, someone applied a simple ointment to the scratch. The injury was cleared up in a few days.

FACTOR NO. 3: DOCTORS FREQUENTLY admit they order unnecessary tests and procedures to protect themselves against possible malpractice suits. The practice is called "defensive medicine."

R. M. bruised a muscle in a minor auto accident. He was told to go to a hospital and be put in traction for two weeks to straighten out any distortion of the spine that the accident might have caused. He refused. His symptoms disappeared quickly. Asked why the hospital had been ordered, the reply was: "defensive medicine."

FACTOR NO. 4: DOCTORS MAY be pressured to fill hospital beds

FACTOR NO. 5: HOSPITALS and practitioners often have arrangements to send all work of a certain type to certain sources (a laboratory, for example) even if it costs more.

FACTOR NO. 6: DRUG COSTS are high and controversies are mounting about the cause. Pressure against druggist advertising of prices continue despite a Supreme Court decision that the bans violate freedom of the press. Drives continue against consumer purchases of "generic" drugs in favor of often more expensive brand name drugs.

FACTOR NO. 7: HOME CARE, cheaper than institutional care and frequently preferable is not often used

Dow Loses Ground Despite Price News

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market managed only a mixed showing today despite some favorable inflation

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 2 points at the outset, lost 1.52 points to 907.99.

The government reported that the wholesale price index fell 0.6 percent last month, thanks to a sharp decline in farm and food prices.

In the meantime, hosts can just keep their fingers crossed that word of their party doesn't hit the CB channels — at least until the morning after.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — At least 36 persons riding a Guadalajara-to-Nogales freight train illegally were killed Thursday when the train derailed, police reported. The police said more bodies might be found in the wreckage.

In their suits, the companies ask the court to enjoin the unauthorized sale of posters, transfers, T-shirts and buttons using the names, characters, symbols, designs and likenesses from the movie.

Youth Counseling a Family Affair

By CHERYL ROMO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Matt is 13 years old. His father died three years ago and since that time Matt's mother has been raising the boy and his two sisters alone.

During the last few months, both his mother and teachers have noticed changes in him.

He's become defiant, refuses to attend school and has been staying out late nights. His mother recently caught him smoking marijuana and he's threatened to run away.

Matt's mother is upset and expresses her concern to a friend. The friend suggests she contact the Youth Service Program at the local police department.

She calls and makes an appointment for family counseling.

Meredith Bates is a very pretty lady with shoulder length, honey-blond hair and striking mahogany eyes.

She's also a single parent with two tousle-headed little girls and is one of 30 counselors in Orange County employed by the Youth Service Program.

She works with kids, and very often, with their parents.

But the 28-year-old defies all stereotypical descriptions. Meredith Bates has a handicap, or perhaps it isn't a handicap at all, but, as she says, maybe it's just helped her understand others with problems.

Because she knows what it's like to be rejected and misunderstood when you're a kid.

Born with a rare birth defect that caused her hands to be located just below her elbows, life has been just a bit more complicated for the petite woman with a bachelors degree from UC Berkeley and a masters in counseling from Arizona State.

And for many of the youngsters she's helped... life has been difficult too.

A veteran of the VISTA Corps and the Neighborhood Youth Corps for Disadvantaged Children, she says her handicap has made her more determined to help others.

"It's helped me to be more understanding — more tolerant. All handicaps aren't visible; sometimes they're on the inside."

MRS. BATES is one of three full-time counselors working out of the Huntington Beach Police Department. She shares an office with juvenile officers.

She prefers family counseling so she can see how family members interchange with one another. She says, very often, it's the parents who need help in learning effective parenting, especially when they're trying to cope with an adolescent.

Most of the youngsters she counsels as part of the voluntary, free-of-charge service have been referred by local police. These juveniles are generally first offenders and guilty of minor infractions.

The program is targeted at early offenders and is considered a diversionary effort.

Prior to 1971, when the pilot program was initiated by Dr. Arnold Binder, professor of social ecology at UC Irvine, police were expected to act as counselors.

Most law enforcement officers didn't relish this extra duty and weren't properly trained for the task. Counseling, at this time, did not include parents.

The current program, staffed by trained professionals, is federally funded and available in 16 cities throughout the county.

LOCAL OFFICES are in Costa Mesa, Fountain Valley, Huntington Beach, Westminster, Garden Grove, Irvine, Mission Viejo, Laguna Beach and Seal Beach.

One of the added benefits of being located in law enforcement agencies, says Mrs. Bates, is that "people feel better about the police."

Although counselors work directly with officers, she says they are not always accepted by them.

"There are some police who don't feel we have any business being here. We're guests of the department."

Youth Service statistics attest to the fact that youngsters who have received some counseling are less likely to be repeat offenders than those who receive no counseling.

"The rewarding thing for me is that I have an impact. You can see the change, and sometimes, parents who had trouble with one child will call us if another child has problems later on," she says.

Looking little more than a teenager herself, the soft-spoken woman says she sees more boys than girls. But more parents call in for help with their daughters.

What constitutes a minor offense in a juvenile?

"WE HAVE A higher percentage of girls running away from home. For boys, it's generally things like possession of marijuana or petty theft," she says.

The majority of her clients are between the ages of 13 and 16; but she's dealt with youngsters in the 3- to 5-year-old bracket.

The young children were all boys and all were charged with setting fires.

When queried as to how she deals with children who are little more than toddlers, Mrs. Bates replied:

"They were all trying to get their parents' attention. So, I work with the parents on parenting."

Youth Service also offers evening group therapy sessions where adolescents learn communications skills and give each other group support.

And this summer, parents may participate in a new program entitled Coping With Adolescents. It is offered through the Huntington Beach office.

Mrs. Bates urges people to volunteer for Youth Service's Special Friend Program. "You become a friend to a kid. After all, if you're out there and making it, you're someone who represents a success."

"Someone who can give a positive influence."

HER EYES SPARKLE as she describes her own new pet project for school-age mothers. Mrs. Bates says many girls who become pregnant today are pressured to keep their babies and continue living at home with their parents.

She says these youngsters have complex problems dealing with guilt and trying to find time to continue growing up and pursuing their own interests.

Plans are currently being implemented for Youth Service counselors to be on call 24 hours a day. Mrs. Bates appears to be a little apprehensive about taking on an even busier schedule, but says:

"After all, most crises don't happen between 8 and 5."

While walking out of Meredith Bates' second-floor office, a boy of about 14 says, "I walk into her office feeling like I hate the whole world. But after I talk to her for a few minutes—I really feel good."

"I like knowing someone cares about me."

MD Conceives New Technique

By MARCIA FORSBERG
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Joel and Hannah Green, both in their early 40s, are happy with their jobs and are settled comfortably in a relaxed lifestyle.

Their four children are teenagers now. The last thing the Greens want is a new baby.

Nancy Smith, 32, is the divorced mother of two daughters. Both are in school and old enough to look after each other until their mother arrives home from work at 4:30.

Although Nancy has enjoyed an intimate relationship with a male friend for five years, she neither wants to marry again nor have another child.

Richard and Ann Berg are 28 and 27, have been married for seven years and have no children. They love their challenging careers and take night classes toward graduate degrees.

They delight in spur-of-the-moment outings, travel a great deal and devote a lot of time to hobbies. They feel that children wouldn't fit into their way of life.

Ron Davis will be 30 next year. He and a female friend have lived together long enough for the relationship to develop into a serious one.

However, he has avoided the subject of children because he has never felt the need to be a father and he rejects the parenting role.

None of these are actual cases, but the situations are real. For personal reasons, as well as the increasing interest in overpopulation, many millions of people in this country have a major concern — birth control.

The average age of a woman who has decided that her family is complete is 31.5 years, according to a public health survey at UCLA.

That means she has approximately 20 more years, prior to her natural period of infertility at menopause, to be concerned about some form of birth control.

A man, too, must consider the methods of controlling his own fertility — for a lifetime.

And once a couple is certain they have as many children as they want, they may look for a sure, easy way to avoid accidental pregnancies.

Unfortunately, the ideal method of birth control has yet to be developed. The pill, intrauterine device, diaphragm, condom, jellies and foam all have their disadvantages.

SO, MILLIONS are opting in favor of permanent birth control — sterilization — either vasectomy for the man or laparoscopy with tubal coagulation for the woman.

Dr. William M. Moss, an associate professor of surgery at the University of California School of Medicine, Irvine, revealed that these two permanent surgical methods of preventing birth are rapidly becoming the modern choices for couples who have decided to limit the size of their families, yet still have many years of birth control ahead.

He noted that more and more people are "eliminating the worry of unwanted pregnancy for the rest of their lives" simply by taking a few hours out of their regular schedules to have the operation performed.

The Santa Ana-based doctor has perfected techniques for both operations, making them

"easier, simpler and more comfortable for the patient."

Dr. Moss, last year's president of the Orange County Surgical Society, said, "It's easy to have birth control surgery these days, but a lot of men still think a vasectomy is a terrible procedure and that they'll end up hobbling around."

Likewise, women have feared sterilization, believing the procedure to be more complicated than it actually is, he said.

Although they are more expensive, take longer and have a longer period of recovery than vasectomy, laparoscopy and tubal coagulation (often called "Band-Aid operation" or "belly button surgery") have become simplified in the past five years, Dr. Moss indicated.

HE HAS DEVELOPED new techniques for the contraceptive methods during the past few years. Dr. Moss, formerly a general surgeon, began limiting his practice to sterilization after having his own vasectomy eight years ago.

"It was a bad experience, painful, and there were complications," he recalled.

Dr. William Moss says permanent sterilization is rapidly becoming a modern choice for couples who don't want more children.

"Because of it, I became empathetic to my own vasectomy patients. I wanted to make the operation easier to perform."

Through experimentation, he originated and perfected a single incision that is now so small that stitches are not required. "It takes only about 10 minutes," he said.

After the operation, performed in the doctor's office, the patient relaxes for about an hour "to make sure there are no complications." Dr. Moss provides books and stereo (See TECHNIQUE, Page B2)

UC Professors Calculate Benefits

BERKELEY (AP) — Children who haven't yet learned to write numbers are mastering basic mathematical concepts with the help of rubber frogs, dinosaur eggs and electronic calculators.

And the youngsters, starting at four years old, are learning to like math, says Arthur Kessner, a University of California mathematician.

He developed the innovative system in collaboration with Dr. David Miller of UC's School of Education.

Calculators aren't intended to replace traditional teaching methods, but they're a valuable aid, Kessner and Miller report.

Concern of some educators and parents that calculators are a "crutch" rather than a teaching tool is unjustified in the new highly structured system, Kessner said.

"Adults normally use calculators for speed and accuracy. We use them to teach children the logic on which the calculator is based. We don't use the calculators as a shortcut for computation."

Parents alienated by some "new math" procedures in the past should have no difficulties in helping their children with calculator homework, Kessner said.

He said one study shows seven out of 10 households already have one calculator, which can be purchased for as little as $5.

The calculator program for kindergarten and first graders has been tested for three years in 29 classrooms involving 800 students in California, Massachusetts, Minnesota and Texas.

Independent evaluation by Syracuse University showed the calculator-trained children did just as well on most tests as control groups without calculators, Kessner said. The calculator children did significantly better on other tests, he added.

"But the most significant data comes from teachers," Kessner said in an interview. Teachers report students enjoy doing math with the calculator programs, "which are a good deal like games," Kessner said.

For example, kindergarten youngsters learning to count use a calculator with only the one, zero, plus and "clear" buttons showing. As they pick up a plastic frog, they say "plus one more" and push the appropriate keys to get the new total showing in the display window.

Other calculator keys have the appropriate number of dots, instead of numbers, with the running total appearing in the display window.

"The physical act of picking up the frog and pushing the buttons helps them to grasp the concept of counting, and consequently addition," Kessner said.

"When students this young learn numbers they often chant them off as if they were reciting letters of the alphabet. They frequently don't know what the numbers mean and often make mistakes getting the sequence right."

More advanced calculator programs have been developed for fourth through sixth grades. Both systems are copyrighted by the UC Lawrence Hall of Science.

"We teach children the logic on which calculators are based."

One-way Street Dead Ends

DEAR ANN We have only one son. He was an outstanding student — won a scholarship to an Ivy League school and while studying there, he married.

His wife's family is wealthy but took the position that it's a husband's responsibility to support his wife. We supported them both generously until he passed his bar examination. To day he is a prominent lawyer.

His wife never cared for us, was always unfriendly, antagonistic and sarcastic. They have two children. We continue to be generous.

We never missed an occasion to present them with a lovely gift for example, a new car for a birthday and we air-conditioned their home for their anniversary. They are always happy to accept anything we give them.

We have expected very little in return except love and thoughtfulness. Yesterday was my birthday and they plumb forgot it.

We are considering changing our wills, leaving a substantial amount to charity or medical research, and would like to know what you think about this. Should we tell them how we feel, especially since nothing can be done about it anyway?

Should we announce that we intend to divert some of the inheritance (which they undoubtedly expect to get)? It may ruin our relationship and hurt us more than them. Or should we just shut up and carry on as before? FORGOTTEN BUT NOT GONE YET

DEAR FORGOTTEN: I see no reason to make any announcements. Parents don't owe their children gifts or inheritances.

The next time one of their birthdays or anniversaries rolls around, just skip it. And keep skipping it. If any questions are asked simply say, "We decided to cut out the gift-giving since it was a one-way street."

If they don't shape up, I see nothing wrong in leaving the money to charity or medical research (bravo!). The kids can have the heirlooms — the house, the car and the family Bible.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I have been married less than a year. D. is gorgeous physically and brilliant mentally.

Some so-called friends have spread vicious rumors linking her sexually with my golf buddies and business associates. D. is furious. What's more, she knows who the gossip-spreaders are. She wants to have a dinner party at our home and invite the big-mouths and the people she's been linked with so she can tell them off. I'm not sure it's a good idea. She has agreed to go by what you say. HOT UNDER THE COLLAR

DEAR HOT COLLAR: Your wife might be "gorgeous physically," but she isn't brilliant mentally if she thinks a "denial party" will clear her name.

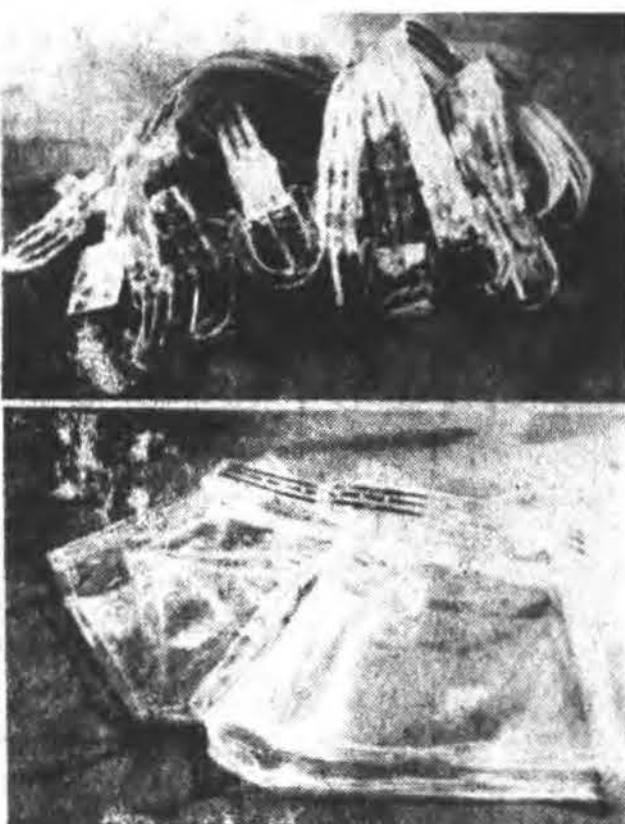

The best way to deal with vicious gossip is to ignore it.

DEAR ANN: What capsulized advice can you give a woman who has had more than her share of family problems because of "proximity" and habit? (Doing more than she should.) I am 39 and want to handle my remaining years better than I've handled the ones so far. — ANASTASIA

DEAR A.: You have two choices. Either you alter the "proximity" and break the habit — or you change yourself so you can cope with the situation.

headphones during the hour.

He added that "the discomfort of the operation is surprisingly minimal. Almost all of my patients say that it surprised them that it hurt so little."

Dr. Moss also performs what he terms an "uncomplicated" sterilization procedure for women. "It is a safe, effective and rapid method."

Since he began doing laparoscopy surgery five years ago, Dr. Moss attributes coordination, efficiency and experience to his ability to operate quickly.

WHAT IS THE advantage of fast surgery? It's a practical one. "It costs less, because the patient is in the operating room for less time," he said.

Another way Dr. Moss' "technique" differs from that of many doctors is that he provides the services of two women "companions" who have had the surgery and are available to answer questions his female patients may have.

"They are with us when I do the physical examination, they go with us to the hospital, and they wait in the waiting room. They phone the patient the next day to see how she's doing."

"It's been popular because women seem to want that personal touch. It doesn't work with the men, though," he revealed.

Dr. Moss claims he is the only doctor in Orange County who performs sterilization for both males and females. The advantage to this, he indicated, is that he can counsel couples who are considering the operation, then help them decide together which party should be sterilized.

Preliminary consultation "is the most important, and it takes a lot more time than the actual surgery," he said.

THE DECISION is a serious one, and shouldn't be considered unless the individuals "are finished having children. Everything must be considered — what if the spouse or kids die? What if you remarry?"

"I try to give information about sterilization, not sell anybody on it," he added.

Back in the early '70s, when "a lot of women wanted to get off the pill" because of possible harmful effects, vasectomy became quite popular, Dr. Moss noted.

"Back then, it was also more difficult for women to have their tubes tied, so many men became responsible for birth control."

He added that now, about an equal number of men and women are being sterilized. "I operate on whoever wants to be infertile the most," he said.

Estimates from the New York-based Association for Voluntary Sterilization, Inc., reveal that in 1975, 4.6 million men and 3.6 million women underwent sterilization operations.

According to Tina McCraw, sterilization program coordinator for the Birth Control Institute, Inc., in Anaheim, figures have "always been higher for men, mainly because it's simpler and requires less time."

SHE EMPHASIZED that women are becoming more aware of new methods and more are having the operation.

Ms. McCraw said the average male who is sterilized is 27 to 35 years old, has two children and is married. The average female is 24 to 31, with two children and "surprisingly, most are either separated or divorced."

She revealed that both sexes are concerned that their bodies will function the same after the sterilization procedure. "They will," she said.

Dr. Moss agreed, saying, "laparoscopy does not interfere with the female hormones, change your menstrual cycle, induce premature menopause, nor does it alter your body or shape."

He said there is no physical effect at all with vasectomy, although there can be a psychological effect if the man does not realize that he will still function the same sexually.

Weddings and Engagements

To avoid disappointment, prospective brides are reminded to have their wedding stories with black and white glossy photographs to the Daily Pilot People Department one week before the wedding.

Pictures received after that time will not be used.

For engagement announcements it is imperative that the story, also accompanied by a black and white glossy picture, be submitted six weeks or more before the wedding date; otherwise it will not be published.

To help fill requirements on both wedding and engagement stories, forms are available in all Daily Pilot offices. Further questions will be answered by People Department staff members at 642-1321.

College Costs Up

Students Urged to Consider Aid

By the Associated Press

The thousands of students getting ready for college this fall face record costs, but there are several steps individuals can take to cut expenses and ease the strain on the family budget.

A survey by the College Entrance Examination Board showed that the typical student attending a private, four-year college and living on campus will spend $4,905 for the 1977-78 academic year, up about 5.2 percent from last year.

The College Board says incidentals account for 18 percent of the cost of a year at college. As a general guide, you can expect to spend about $200 for books and supplies and $400 for personal expenses. Transportation will range from $200 to $400, depending on whether you live on campus or commute.

If you have not settled on a college, consider a public institution. Tuition and fees at public, four-year colleges will average $621 for the 1977-78 year, compared to $2,476 for similar, private institutions. Warning: students who are not residents of the state where the college is located can face extra tuition charges of $100 to $1,500.

THE HIGHER COSTS of private schools, meanwhile, do not seem to be discouraging students.

THE SAME STUDENT who chooses a public four-year college and lives on campus will spend $3,005, up 4 percent from the 1976-77 year.

The biggest difference in costs between public and private colleges is in the area of tuition and fees, which also accounts for the biggest chunk of a student's spending, according to the College Board, a nonprofit organization that provides tests and other services for students and educational institutions.

Board experts urge students to consider financial aid—even if they think their family income is too high to qualify. Income alone is not the determining factor. Family size and obligations also may be taken into account.

FAMILIES CONCERNED about paying rising college costs should consider financial aid as one alternative, said Elizabeth Suchar, director of financial aid services for the board's College Scholarship Service. "The purpose of financial aid is to help students attend a college they otherwise couldn't afford."

The scholarship service offers a free pamphlet to help students figure out which types of financial aid they may qualify for. The booklet are available from high school counselors, community agencies and college financial aid administrators.

It is generally too late now to apply for financial aid for the fall term, particularly when it comes to federal programs, but there are other things you can do to cut costs. For example:

— CONSIDER LIVING AT home. The College Board study shows that the student who commutes can save from $400 to $600 a year, depending on transportation costs and other expenses.

— Make an expense budget for incidentals including books and supplies, transportation, laundry and recreation and try to

Movie Scene 'Too Real'

Passers-by Join Set of 'Superman' Filming

From AP Dispatches

While most of the crew for the new Superman movie were busy setting up lights and cameras, Bobby Wilson had other problems.

Wilson looked so much like a vendor, his grapes and cherries were so lush, that he had difficulty convincing the passers-by on East 42nd Street in New York City that his wooden fruit stand wasn't real.

Wilson and his stand were both part of the set for the first scene of the movie, in which mild-mannered reporter Clark Kent, who is secretly Superman, emerges from the Daily Planet with fellow reporter Lois Lane. The scene was filmed in front of the New York Daily News Building, whose art deco facade was adorned with gothic Daily Planet nameplates.

Kelly Ann Martin, daughter of New York Yankees baseball manager Billy Martin, was ordered released from prison in Colombia after serving 1½ years of a three-year term for drug trafficking.

Miss Martin, 23, was arrested Nov. 16, 1975, at the airport in a Caribbean coastal city as she boarded a flight for Miami. Authorities said she had about a pound of cocaine in her possession.

"She was credited with many hours of handicrafts in our shops and the English lessons she gave to her jailmates," the jail director said.

Dubuque (Iowa) police officer Paul O'Brien resigned after his boss, who also is his uncle, ordered him to stand in near 100-degree heat for four days because he forgot to carry his ticket book.

O'Brien submitted his resignation, effective July 12 then took vacation leave and said he would not report again for duty.

Police Chief Robert O'Brien stood on the same corner for three hours to show he could withstand the punishment he ordered for his nephew.

"I'm here to show that it's not beyond the capabilities of a normal human being to stand on this corner for three hours and not become beat and broken," Chief O'Brien, 53, said as he stood in the 95-degree heat.

Rep. George Mahon says he will retire at the close of his current term, ending a 44-year career in Congress and a 52-year career in public office.

The Texas Democrat, who has served longer in the U.S. House of Representatives than any other member, said he will not seek re-election in 1978. He did not disclose future plans.

"I promised myself long ago that I would not seek to serve in Congress after reaching age 80, a milestone I would pass prior to the conclusion of another two-year term," said the 77-year-old Mahon, the only congressman the 19th District in West Texas has ever had.

A federal judge in Cincinnati delayed the "War Pamphlet" trial of Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt pending a hearing on the rights of two New York lawyers to defend him.

U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin ruled that two Hamilton County Common Pleas judges erred in summarily refusing to allow out-of-state lawyers Herald Price Fahringer and Paul Cambria to defend Flynt.

Flynt, originally scheduled to go to trial May 5, was charged with disseminating material deemed harmful to juveniles, based on about 400,000 mailings last winter of a pamphlet depicting maimed bodies of United States soldiers that asked readers whether war was not more obscene than Flynt's magazine.

Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain sent a communique to the people of Tillamook, Ore., thanking them for a sample of their prized product—Tillamook cheddar cheese.

The chamber of commerce in the Oregon coastal community sent the queen a two-pound loaf of the cheese to help her celebrate her Silver Jubilee, her 25th year on the throne.

Chamber president Jerry Knudsen received a letter from Vice Admiral Sir Peter Ashmore, of her majesty's yacht, Britannia, thanking the town for the gift.

Civilians have vacations, military men have furloughs, and senators have nonlegislative periods. They took a week off for the Independence Day non-legislative period, which ends Monday, the same day the House ends its latest district work period.

It certainly sounded like a vacation. Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd went home to West Virginia.

"I am going to get rejuvenated, get back to the iridescent sunsets and the iridescent hills and enjoy the pure water and clean air and the hospitality and good cooking for which West Virginia is known," he said.

The lawyer for Elmer Wayne Henley said that Henley, then 18, was tried and convicted of six murders in "some sort of circus atmosphere" in San Antonio.

Henley's court-appointed attorney, Will Gray, told the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals that the "evidence of the young man's guilt is overwhelming."

He added, however, in appealing Henley's conviction and six 99-year prison sentences that the evidence "does not deny him the right to a fair trial. I submit that he was denied that right."

Conservatorship of the Estate of GRACE CUNNINGHAM. Conservator: NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, subject to confirmation by the above entitled Superior Court, on July 11, 1977, the undersigned, as Conservator of the Estate of Grace Cunningham, Conservator, will sell at private sale to the highest and best bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter stated, all right, title and interest of Grace Cunningham, Conservator, in the real property located in the County of Orange, State of California, described as follows:

Lot 104 of Tract Number 3438 recorded in Book 18, Pages 36, 37, 38, 39 and 40 of Miscellaneous Maps, County of Orange, State of California.

The property is commonly referred to as 1044 El Comodoro, Fullerton, California.

The sale is subject to current taxes, covenants, conditions, restrictions, easements, rights of way, and encumbrances of record to be satisfied out of the purchase price.

The property is to be sold "as is, where is, except as to title."

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the office of Durvey, Randolph, Malcolm & Day, Attorneys, 4301 MacArthur Boulevard, Newport Beach, California, or may be filed with the Clerk of said Superior Court, or delivered to Durvey, Randolph, Malcolm & Day personally, at any time after first publication of this Notice and before making said sale.

The property will be sold on the following terms: Cash or part cash, and part deferred payments, the credit in no case to exceed ten (10) years from the date of a sale, with Conservator securing from the purchaser notes, and a mortgage or deed of trust on the residence, with such additional security as is necessary and sufficient to secure the prompt payment of the amount so deferred, and interest thereon. Taxes, rent, operating and maintenance expenses, and prepayments on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of recording of conveyance. Examination of title, recording of conveyance, transfer taxes, and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchaser or purchasers.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids prior to entry of an order confirming the sale.

Dated: June 23, 1977

NORTH'S HOBY BRENNER SNAGS A PASS AS MIKE HEALY, STEVE CRAPO (13) CLOSE IN.

Says South Coach

Wish We Could Play It Again

By a Daily Pilot Writer
There was a marked contrast Thursday night at Anaheim's La Palma Stadium following the 18th Orange County All-star football game as players and coaches milled around the playing field in the wake of a 27-0 North conquest.

South coach Bill Workman of Huntington Beach's Edison High said he wasn't surprised at the North's ability to move the ball or in the way it contained his own eleven's offense.

"I just wish we could play it again," said Workman. "The North? They all looked good, it's hard to pick out anything that made the difference. But we were hurt when we couldn't get decent field position. We told our kids at halftime (the South was trailing, 6-0) that all we had to do was score."

"But we couldn't," North coach Pete Yoder of Anaheim's Esperanza High, who molded an all-star outfit into one of the better appearing units in these past 18 attractions, said. "I felt we could beat them. We only scored one touchdown in the first half was scary."

"Surely, we couldn't give up the ship because of a couple of fumbles," Fountain Valley High's Ken Margerum was about the only effective offensive weapon for the South and the North coach said he expected the Rebels to go to the air 70 percent of the time.

"We knew Margerum and we had to give him some room. A player like that, you have to respect him. But our kids did a good job on him, especially Tim Aguayo (Anaheim's Savanna)."

The difference in a 27-0 rout that could easily have been in the 40s had the North not coughed up four fumbles and been socked with a dozen penalties?

"Our line had to be doing the job," said Yoder. "When you run that well you're doing something right. And we were very pleased with our linebackers."

Newport Man, Gonzalez Vie In Net Play

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hugh Stewart of Newport Beach faces Pancho Gonzalez in the opening round of the Grand Masters of Los Angeles tournament today renewing a rivalry of more than a quarter century.

The schedule of first round matches at the Los Angeles Tennis Club was announced Thursday. In the opener, Rex Hartwig will play fourth-seeded Sven Davidson, followed by the top-seeded Gonzalez vs. Stewart.

In the third round match, second-seeded Torben Ulrich will face Whitney Reed. The opening night's final match will pit Frank Sedgman against former U.S. Davis Cup ace Vic Seixas.

Semifinals in both singles and doubles in the $10,000 tournament will start at 7 p.m. Saturday and the finals open at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old star from Rolling Hills, who played in the Wimbledon women's singles, and Southern California's 18-and-under champion Trey Lewis will be paired with two of the Grand Masters in an exhibition mixed doubles match Sunday.

Two Boats Claiming Race Win

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The crews of both Enterprise and Australia's Gretel II are claiming victory in an unofficial 12-meter race in Rhode Island Sound.

Gretel II was making her first runs Thursday since arriving in Newport last week when she met the newest American yacht being put through her paces. The boats faced off in a short race to windward and downwind.

From one vantage point, Gretel II appeared to sail slightly faster to windward than Enterprise. But at dockside, the crew of Enterprise boasted it had outsailed Gretel II.

The Australians also claimed victory when they arrived at their berth. But without official observers, no decision could be made.

The Enterprise is one of three American 12-meters bidding for the right to defend the America's Cup.

Boats Eye Record

Drifter, Merlin Leaders in Transpac

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Writer

In the 1971 Los Angeles to Honolulu race Windward Passage was 1,101 miles from the finish on her record crossing for an elapsed time record of nine days, nine hours, six minutes and 48 seconds.

Thursday was the fifth day of the current race and four yachts, including Windward Passage, were ahead of that record run.

The leader Thursday was Drifter, a 69-foot light-displacement yacht sailed by Harry Moloscho, Long Beach. She was 1,005 miles from Honolulu and 96 miles ahead of Passage's record run.

BUT DRIFTER IS not yet a cinch for first to finish. Twenty-eight miles behind her was Merlin, Bill Lee's 67-foot ultra-light displacement speedster, 64 miles ahead of Passage's position in 1971. In third place, 1,087 miles from Diamond Head and 14 miles ahead of the record was Jim Kilroy's 79-foot ketch Kialoa of Los Angeles. Passage was one mile behind Kialoa and 13 miles ahead of her 1971 position.

Still in contention despite her fifth position with 1,018 miles to go Thursday was Ragtime, the elapsed time winner in the 1973 and 1975 Honolulu races.

A plot of her position shows she was considerably south of the other leaders with the ability of a fast reach in the last 1,000 miles while the others would be sailing more dead downwind.

ESTIMATED TIMES of arrival (ETAs) for the lead yachts vary from 9 a.m. Sunday to 10 a.m. Monday on both sides of the Pacific. A lot will depend on weather conditions in the often breezy Molokai Channel where the northeast trades blow up to 35 knots and generate giant following seas which increase the boats' speeds. Word from Honolulu Thursday was that the wind was increasing and may hold for the next few days.

Several local yachts are doing well on handicap time and may finish as trophy winners in their respective classes. Best performance is being recorded by John Arens' 37-foot sloop Cottontail which has been hanging in third place overall and in Class D since the start of the race.

The 50-foot sloop Native Son, designed and built by Duffy Duffield and syndicated by the eight-man crew, is holding about the middle of Division II, the 10-boat ultra-light displacement group.

LOCO VIENTE, JIM Seals' 40 foot Lee-designed ULDB is fighting a seesaw battle with Native Son in Division II.

Quadri, a 38-foot sloop sailed by George Gianandrea, Paradise Harbor, San Rafael, continues to hold her handicap lead in the overall and Class D Division I.

According to ham radio reports from Honolulu, excitement was already beginning to build along the waterfront as the lead yachts passed the halfway mark recording speeds of 10-12 knots with 285-mile day's runs. Speculation is already rife as to which yacht will finish first and at what time.

Jackknife Sloop Gets Race Win

The 42-foot sloop Jackknife, skippered by Jack Greenberg, was declared the winner of the 473-mile Annapolis, Md., to Newport, R.I. race.

The victory gives Greenberg the Blue Water Bowl, awarded to the corrected time winner by the U.S. Naval Academy. Jackknife was the eighth boat to finish in the 75-boat fleet. First to finish the unusually slow race was Eric Ridder's 80-foot yacht Tempest.

Boating Family Honored

The Paul Merrill family of Alamitos Bay Yacht Club in Long Beach, has won the California State competition and will compete among 20 state winners for national Boating Family of the Year contest sponsored by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers.

The nominations are made by boating writers. The Merrills were nominated by Don Culpepper, outdoor editor of the Long Beach Independent-Press Telegram.

The finalists will be announced by NAEBM in November. The winner will receive a $1,200 cash prize and a free trip to New York during the National Boat Show.

Brown Wins PHRF Series

Performance Handicap Racing Fleet yachts from Voyagers Yacht Club and Southshore Yacht Club inaugurated a new challenge series recently with a race to Los Angeles Yacht Club.

The winner was Thorobred, skippered by George Brown, SSYC. Second was Trend, George McClellan, VYC; third was Tigress, Gil Knudsen; fourth was Redline, Vernon Mathison, VYC, and fifth was Lumarán, Bill Rohrs, VYC.

Coastal Weather

Fair except for low clouds along the beaches Saturday morning. Light variable winds night and morning hours. Nights in upper 40s. Coastal temperatures will range between 61 and 69, inland temperatures will range between 62 and 80. The water temperature will be 66.

FUNCTIONAL

Driving fun. Functional cargo room. Together in one of the best looking cars in town. Toyota Celica GT Liftback.

Inside your Celica is all the comfort you could ask for. Full carpeting. AM/FM Stereo. Reclining bucket seats. Tinted glass. The works. All standard.

The Celica GT Liftback goes as good as it looks. There's a 2.2 liter SOHC engine under the hood—coupled to a 5-speed overdrive gearbox.

The Celica GT Liftback is built Toyota tight and tough. Welded unitized-body construction. Total immersion in a rust inhibiting primer bath. Even the pretty paint is applied to a thickness that helps withstand the elements.

Here's where the Liftback gets its name. Flip up the back. Flip down the rear seat. And you've got fun room. Golf clubs. A bike. Or functional room for 9 bags of groceries.

It doesn't cost an arm and a leg to buy or maintain a Celica. Celicas are Toyotas—and Toyotas are economical and dependable. The Toyota Celica GT Liftback is truly a functional car.

Behind these steel-belted radial tires is a MacPherson strut front suspension and power assisted front disc brakes. A top road-holding and stopping combination.

The changing face of San Clemente, from the time the missionaries and the Spaniards first invaded the land of the Indians, to today's youthful beachgoers, will be reflected in the pageant and other events this month in the Fiesta La Cristianita.

Fiesta Revives the Past

By PHILIP ROSMARIN

Summer in San Clemente means fiesta, ocean games and a trek five miles and 208 years back into the hills behind the Spanish village by the sea.

The orgy of celebration they put on in that town when the sun waxes hot is, if not larger than life, at least equal to it.

It starts this year a little differently from in most years past, when a parade would begin the summer festival and, if you didn't watch out, end it, too.

THE FIRST Annual Beach Amateur Volleyball Tournament, an all-comers two-man teams competition, starts Saturday and Sunday and continues next weekend.

First service is at 8 a.m. each day, and play continues until dusk or until they run out of teams.

Competition courts are at Trafalgar Street and Avenida Pico beaches, and at the main beach next to lifeguard headquarters.

Rules are those of the United States Volleyball Association.

For those less inclined to the bumps and grinds of volleyball, another kind of bumping and grinding is also scheduled Saturday at an outdoor barbecue and buffet dinner on the south lawn of the San Clemente Inn, 125 Esplanade.

The 6 p.m. kickoff party for Fiesta La Cristianita includes square dancing, belly dancing and jazz, Polynesian and Spanish dancing.

Dancing (celebrators don't have to do the exotic ones) is until 1 a.m. Tickets are $6.50.

A week from today, on July 15, the 24th Fiesta La Cristianita begins with an Ocean Festival of aquatic and beach games at and around the city pier and lifeguard headquarters.

Games begin at 10 a.m. for the two-day festival, which continues through July 16.

Ocean Festival events include a Mini-Miss San Clemente contest for budding beauties 3 to 6 years old, a sand castle contest, surfboard races, paddleboard and swim relays, a one-mile swim and a five-mile open run.

THE LIFEGUARDS will flex some muscles in their own set of competitive games July 16.

In conjunction with the Ocean Festival is a carnival, with game, food and beverage booths run by local service clubs.

The Kiwanis Club serves up breakfast July 16 and July 17, from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m. in a market parking lot at North El Camino Real and Mariposa Avenue.

Orange juice, sausages, pancakes and coffee or milk are yours for $1.75 per adult, $1.25 per child.

At 10 a.m. July 16, about 20,000 people are expected to line San Clemente streets to watch the Fiesta La Cristianita parade of 200 bands, drill teams, clowns, horses and riders and novelty acts.

THE PARADE starts on Avenida Del Mar, with the line of march to El Camino Real, then north to El Portal. Grand Marshal will be Macdonald Carey.

The festival is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. It commemorates the first California baptism.

A recreation of the 1769 event is the theme of the La Cristianita Pageant, an outdoor play held in the hills behind the city, where it actually took place.

Local actors re-enact the story of the expedition of Spanish soldiers and missionaries whose goal was to win over the California Indians to the Christian religion.

THE DRAMA is produced by a volunteer pageant association. It was written and will be directed by resident Norman Wright, an author and television director/producer. The pageant was first held last year. It won popular and critical kudos, including a Disneyland community award as most innovative Orange County project for 1976.

More than 100 actresses and actors of all ages, culled from the community, play the parts of conquistadores versus Indians.

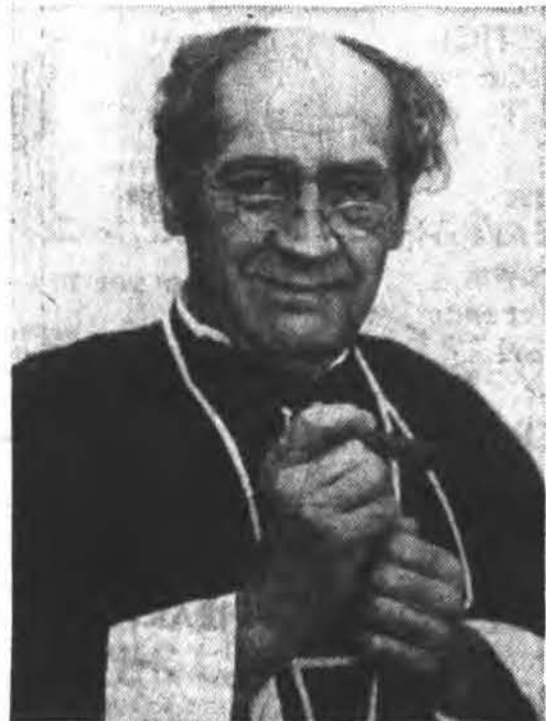

The play runs from July 22 to Aug. 7 every day but Mondays. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children aged 12 or under. Phone numbers are 492-1131 and 498-0880.

To get to the canyon site, take the Camino de Estrella off-ramp of the San Diego Freeway (from either direction), turn inland and follow the signs to the pageant.

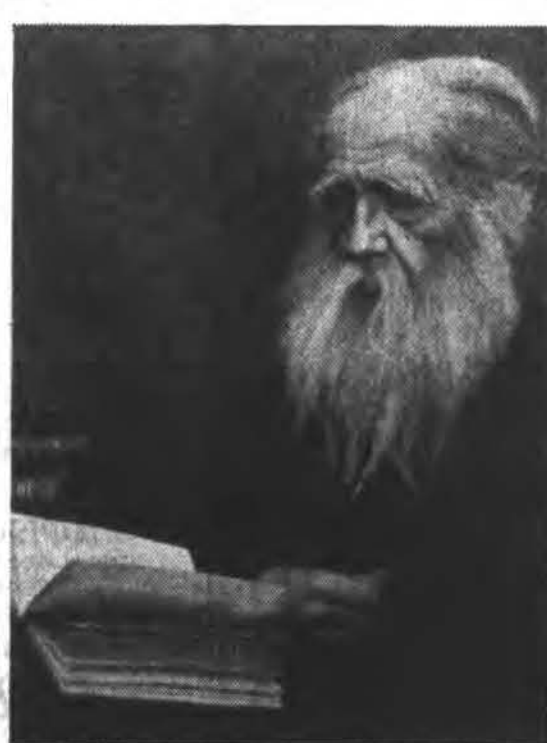

The final event of the San Clemente summer festival season is the annual arts and crafts fair sponsored by the San Clemente Arts and Crafts Club.

The fair is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 20 and 21.

There are display spaces for more than 150 artists and craftsmen, located in the Sandy Martin Memorial Gallery and on the grounds surrounding the Community Center, at the corner of Avenida Del Mar and Calle Seville.

'Reborn' Scientists Tell Own Stories

Charles Darwin will be speaking at UCI Irvine this month.

Not the scientist himself, of course — he's dead. But he'll be 'reincarnated' in the form of Richard Eakin, a UC Berkeley professor of zoology who decided to spice up his lectures by turning himself into famous discoverers.

Eakin, who painstakingly recreates the scientists with makeup and acting skills, will portray Darwin in person and show films of himself as Gregor Mendel and Louis Pasteur from 7 to 10 p.m. July 14 in Room 100 of UCI's Social Science Hall. Admission is $5.

In discussing his impersonations, Eakin said, "In my opinion the best instruction is not measured by the sheer quantity of information communicated from teacher to student... Scientists have their failures and frustrations as well as their triumphs, their weaknesses as well as their strengths."

The Eakin appearance will be followed a week later, on July 21 at the same time and place, by an evening with science fiction and screen writer Harlan Ellison. Tickets for that talk are also $5.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or at the UCI Extension office, Room 102 of Administration Building.

Young Artists Come To Disney's Rescue

The last of the old-time animators at Walt Disney Productions have been joined by a new group of young artists to produce the studio's newest animated feature, "The Rescuers."

Starring the vocal talents of Bob Newhart, Eva Gabor and Geraldine Page, the film depicts the adventures of two mice out to save a kidnapped orphan named Penny from the clutches of villainess Madame Medusa, who needs the girl to help find a priceless diamond.

The young artists are being trained in the Disney tradition by the studio's veteran animators as part of a Talent Development Program now in its seventh year. More than 30 artists have successfully completed the program and are now working in all phases of animation.

ONE OF THE DIRECTING animators on the film is Don Bluth, regarded as the leader of the new artists.

In 1955, just out of high school, Bluth joined Disney Studios on "Sleeping Beauty," but quit to continue his education. It wasn't until the early 1970s that he returned to animation. He was the first of the new generation to attain the rank of animator and, in addition to his work on "The Rescuers," he is directing animator on "Pete's Dragon," a combination live-action/animation musical due at Christmas starring Helen Reddy and Mickey Rooney.

Other key animators include Andy Gaskill and John Pomeroy, both still in their mid-20s, and Gary Goldman, 32, who majored in life drawing at the University of Hawaii before coming to Disney. He's responsible for the opening sequences of "The Rescuers" as well as most of the scenes involving a dragonfly named Evinrude.

Pomeroy, originally an illustrator, set out to become a background artist for Disney, fell in love with animation while enrolled in the Talent Development Program and, he says, hasn't painted anything since. He did most of the work on Penny in the film.

AT AGE 21, ANDY Gaskill joined the Disney Program with previous training in sculpture, not art, at Philadelphia's Academy of Fine Arts. Now, just four years later, he, like Goldman and Pomeroy, is a full animator, drawing many of the sequences involving "The Rescuers" heroes, mice Bernard and Bianca.

'Grease' Retains Nostalgic Charm

By DENNIS McLELLAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When "Grease," Broadway's longest-running show — more than 2,250 performances — cruised onto the Great White Way six years ago, it was a refreshingly novel idea.

What could be more fun and delightful, in the cynical '70s, than to look back at the age of greasy ducktail hair-dos, black leather jackets, bobby sox and blue jeans?

But after six years that also spawned "American Graffiti," "Happy Days," and "Laverne and Shirley," will audiences still go for '50s nostalgia?

And while the words to the show's tunes — "Beauty School Dropout," "It's Raining on Prom Night," "Alone at a Drive-in Movie" — are more tongue-in-cheek than even the period's own, they definitely have captured the feel, sentiment and beat of the originals.

That authentic feeling is multiplied when the announcer, sounding so much like someone from out of the past, requests that there be no smoking, recording or picture-taking, please.

"And," he says as the lights dim, "when the bell rings, go straight to your homeroom."

IT IS A tribute to the enthusiasm of the cast — and the music — of "Grease," playing at the Hollywood Pantages Theater through July 31, that the era still comes off. (It is the show's third Los Angeles engagement.)

The cast, as they used to say in the '50s, really puts out.

It's an energetic group from the word go, man. They've all got the moves, the stances and the '50s phrases down perfectly.

THE INGREDIENT that makes "Grease" much more than the family hour TV versions of the Eisenhower Years is that these kids come across as the real McCoy: hot-rodding, rumbling, "cool" semi-juvenile delinquents.

But the real hit of the show — and the era — is King Rock 'n' Roll.

Scenery Appetizing

Californians, like Texans, are often accused of boasting too much about their state. Leaving those down on the Pecos to praise what they will, we feel boosters of the Golden State can present a pretty solid case for any crowing they do.

The particular feeling and expression of California was never more evident than during a recent dinner at Ben Brown's restaurant in South Laguna.

THERE IS A distinctive quality — one is tempted to say magic — about this restaurant's location and atmosphere that bespeak California's summer best.

Situated where scenic Aliso Canyon comes down out of the San Joaquin Hills to meet the Pacific shoreline, Ben Brown's is nestled amid surroundings of unrivaled natural beauty. Not the High Sierra, to be sure, the hills nonetheless have that rugged and craggy appearance typical of the state's rustic mountain areas.

To this setting add the majestic grandeur of the ocean on the other side and you get a locale without peer. But it's only the first of many delights to be found in an evening here.

Food, service and entertainment are on a par with the environment. And the handsomely appointed decor and furnishings, through color and textures, prove extraordinarily complementary to nature's handiwork.

Out 'n' About

BY THE TIME everyone is settled at the dinner table, it is impossible to recall a more relaxing and peaceful atmosphere that is not at least a day's journey away.

When it comes to selecting dinner entrees, each person has to be on his own. Whatever the taste of a given moment, there's a dish to satisfy.

Two orders for scampi (in the shell), $9.95, netted generous portions of tasty jumbo shrimp prepared in olive oil with garlic and white wine. Delightful, too, was the accompanying garni and fluffy seasoned rice.

The four remaining family members rendered decisions for as many different entrees. Scallops Mousseline, $7.25, netted the delectable combination of jumbo scallops, fresh mushrooms and sherry wine blended with sauce Mousseline, accompanied by rice pilaff.

The Seaweed Cowboys Provide Backup at Ben Brown's

Flavorsome veal Oscar, $3.75 (also accompanied by rice pilaff), had been sauteed in butter, then crowned with king crab meat, asparagus and hollandaise sauce. Petite filet mignon, $7.50, served with house potato and broiled tomato, was appetizingly wrapped in bacon and topped by a fresh mushroom cap.

Chicken a la Kiev, $6.75, proved a winner: the boned breast of chicken, filled with butter and chives, had been bread crumbed and cooked to a golden brown. The dish further included sauce supreme, rice pilaff and spiced peach.

All dinner entrees at Ben Brown's include soup of the day and salad. There are three choices for the latter: house, crisp greens and spinach, all detailed at length on the menu. It's beyond believing, however, that you'll ever find a better spinach salad than the one served here.

Other selections on the evening bill of fare include veal scallopini, $6.95; trout saute amandine, $6.25; tournedo of beef, $8.25; bouillabaisse Marseillaise (highly recommended on the basis of an earlier sampling), $6.95; roast prime rib of beef, au jus, $8.50; New York or New York pepper steak, $8.75.

DINING AT Ben Brown's is always enhanced by drifting to the lounge after dinner for a little listening and/or dancing music. Currently front and center in the entertainment spotlight is the talented and whimsical Bobbi & Clyde group, playing Tuesdays through Saturdays.

In addition to the evening meal, the restaurant is open seven days a week for breakfast and lunch, and serves a special Sunday brunch from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Beyond a meal, Ben Brown's has all the facilities to provide you with a home away from home. You're next to the fairways of the Laguna Beach Golf Course, complete with pro shop; in the hotel-motel complex there are 64 private-patio suites; five meeting rooms can accommodate private groups from 10 to 200; the 68 foot heated pool adjoins a cabana with a card-playing area; a short stroll away is the serene warm sand of Aliso Beach.

Ben Brown's is officially located at 31106 Coast Highway, South Laguna. The address isn't important, though, if you keep a sharp watch for Aliso State Beach and the pier. Then proceed up the little side road on the north side of the bridge over Aliso Creek. Reservations: 499-2663.

By LISA ROBINSON
Field Newspaper Syndicate
He's never been an ordinary rock star, so when Bryan Ferry performed two shows at New York's Bottom Line, it was no surprise that the club was filled to capacity with an unusual audience.
Bryan's girlfriend Jerry Hall invited all her modeling friends. Andy Warhol brought a party of tuxedo-clad guests direct from a Carter fund-raising dinner. Artist Larry Rivers was there, as were playwright Robert Wilson and actress Lucinda Childs. It was the cutest crowd I've ever seen in the place.
BUT DESPITE the fact that Bryan speaks properly, often wears suits, and lives with the glamorous Jerry Hall, the assembled sophisticated set got a full dose of rock and roll, perhaps more than they had bargained for.
Bryan's show is fabulous. Since he wrote most of the songs for Roxy Music, it seemed a moot point that he was performing without them for the first time in this country.

His band — Chris Spedding and Phil Manzanera on guitars, Paul Thompson on drums, John Whetton on bass, Ann Odell on keyboards and a three-man horn section — provided the perfect background for Ferry's uniquely weird, slightly diabolical rock singing.

"This has been the longest tour we've ever done," Bryan told me a few days later. "And it's been the most successful, both with Roxy or alone. We started in January in England, then went to Europe, Australia and Japan — provided the perfect background for Ferry's America. And the reactions have been great everywhere we've played. One can't expect more than that."

"I WAS A bit apprehensive about the reaction to me without Roxy," Bryan admitted, "but all those fears have been dispelled by the reaction. Obviously the people who come to see me are Roxy fans — those are the ones who know who I am. But they certainly don't seem to be disappointed."
"I'm very tired, but I'm confident. I feel this was the right thing to do. There was a certain pressure on the part of the record company against us coming here to do this tour at this time. But with all due respect to them, I think they were wrong."

As for the American success that has eluded him thus far (compared to the rest of the world where he's a giant star), "Well, it's a challenge. Because it's the last wall of resistance."

Disney Mice Magical

"THE RESCUERS" displays the Disney magic factory in top form. The plot concerns a pair of intrepid mice (voices of Bob Newhart and Eva Gabor) who seek to rescue an orphan kidnapped by the evil Madame Medusa (gloriously voiced by Geraldine Page). It's funny and exciting and totally engaging, thanks in large part to the animation of Medusa, the crochety pilot of a one-albatross airline (Jim Jordan-Fibber McGee) and a sputtery dragonfly named Evinrude. Rated G.

"NEW YORK, NEW YORK" succeeds in capturing the sounds, styles and mood of the big-band era following World War II. It fails in achieving workable scenes or audience interest in the declining marriage of a saxophonist and a band singer. Liza Minnelli is in splendid voice and creates sympathy as the patient wife. Robert DeNiro continues the unexplained violence of "Taxi Driver." Rated PG.

"SORCERER" is high adventure in the "River Kwai" — "Sierra Madre" tradition. William Friedkin ("The French Connection," "The Exorcist") again proves his talent as a storyteller in this story of four outcasts in a squalid South American town driving truckloads of explosives through dense jungle to an oil blowout. The symbolism is murky and plot points have been lost in the cutting, as well as the meaning of the title (one of the trucks is named Sorcerer). But the film can be enjoyed for its sheer excitement and visual beauty. Rated PG. AP/BOB THOMAS

OCC Readies Summer Musical

The first 21 musicals attracted more than 100,000 people...

Well, for the first time in six years, Orange Coast College is doing a summer musical with more than one word in the title.

This piece of trivia crops up as the college approaches its 22nd annual such event, "Mack and Mabel," to be staged Aug. 3-6 in the auditorium of the Costa Mesa college.

For those unacquainted with OCC's annual summer extravaganza, it all started in 1956 when the college decided to present "South Pacific" as a tribute to Newport Beach's Golden Jubilee.

"SOUTH PACIFIC" and the next three summer musicals — "Kismet," "Oklahoma" and "Guys and Dolls" — were all staged by director Lucian Scott, who also put on the college's biggest box office success, "Kiss Me, Kate," in 1962, as well as "The Sound of Music" (1964) and his parting shot, a reprisal of "South Pacific," in 1968. Scott is now acting professionally in New York.

John Ford directed six summer musicals — "The King and I," "Li'l Abner," "The Music Man," "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," "My Fair Lady" and "Pajama Game" — during the 1960s. He was succeeded by Jack Holland, who put on one, "The Most Happy Fella."

Beginning in 1970, the summer musical became an alternating project between two OCC directors, William Purkiss and John Ferzacca. Purkiss was responsible for "Man of La Mancha," "Camelot," "Oliver" and "Carousel," while Ferzacca staged "Fiddler on the Roof," "Follies" and "Cabaret," and is currently rehearsing "Mack and Mabel."

The four-day musicals at OCC have always been crowd pleasers. The first 21 attracted more than 100,000 people to the Fairview Road theater, with "Kate" accounting for 6,200 to lead the field.

Intermission Tom Titus

Also breaking the 6,000 mark were "The Music Man" and "The Sound of Music" — the latter starring a local girl named Diane Hall who changed her last name to Keaton and became OCC's most famous alumna in show business.

"MACK AND MABEL" has the additional distinction of being an Orange County premiere — something a bit hard to come by in local musical theater.

Robert Engman (in his fourth leading role in an OCC musical) and April Winchell play the title roles in "Mack and Mabel," which will be staged at 8:30 Wednesday through Saturday in the opening week of August. Ticket orders are now being accepted by mail, with the box office opening July 28.

Oh, yes, about those one-word productions. Reading from 1972 to 1976, they have been "Camelot," "Follies," "Oliver," "Cabaret" and "Carousel."

"A BRIDGE TOO FAR" IS A SUPERIOR MOVIE IN EVERY WAY. NOTHING CAN FOLLOW IT.

Regis Philbin, ABC-TV

"For one who was there, the realism is almost too much. The ultimate war movie. The horror, and the courage are graphic beyond words."

— Walter Cronkite, CBS

"Nothing to touch it since 'Patton'."

— Chuck Walsh, KFWB

"A profoundly effecting pageant that provokes deep feelings."

— David Sheehan, KNXT-TV

"An engrossing and inspired film."

— Ruth Batchelor, LA Free Press

"Epic films about World War II will be measured from now on against 'A Bridge Too Far'."

— Bruce Williamson, Playboy

PUBLIC NOTICE

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF ORANGE

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE RE: JAMES MICHAEL WROBEL FOR CHANGE OF NAME

WHEREAS, JAMES MICHAEL WROBEL, Petitioner, has filed a Petition with the Clerk of the Superior Court for an Order changing Petitioner's name from JAMES MICHAEL WROBEL to GRIZZARD

IT IS ORDERED that all persons interested in the above-named matter appear before this Court at 11:00 a.m. on August 7, 1977, in Department 1002 of the Superior Court, located at 700 Civic Center Drive West, Santa Ana, California, and show cause why they should not be granted the relief requested.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order to Show Cause be published in the Daily Pilot, a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in Orange County, California, once a week for four (4) consecutive weeks prior to the date set for hearing on the Petition.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

RELATIVE TO THE URBAN MASS TRANSIT DISTRICT A D-MINISTRATION CAPITAL GRANT PROJECT OF THE ORANGE COUNTY TRANSIT DISTRICT

1. Purchase of transit buses and supportive equipment. Purchase of land and design for a Maintenance and Operations facility. Purchase of a leasehold and construction of site improvements for a Transportation Center.

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Orange County Transit, at the Board of Supervisors' Hearing Room, 11th Floor, 515 North Sycamore, Santa Ana, California, on August 1, 1977 at 9 a.m. for the purpose of considering a project for which financial assistance is being sought from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, pursuant to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, generally described as follows:

1. Purchase of 75 new 43 to 47 passenger air-conditioned, diesel transit buses to be operated throughout the County.

2. Purchase of 10 to 12 24 passenger air-conditioned, buses/vans, (11 with wheelchair lifts) to be operated throughout the County.

3. Purchase of 4 service vehicles to be used in 3 autos and 1 station wagon to be used throughout the County.

4. Purchase of 95 registering, locked fareboxes to be installed on the District's transit buses and to be used throughout the County.

5. Purchase of 129 two-way mobile radios to be installed on the District's transit buses and to be used throughout the County.

6. Purchase of 30 passenger waiting shelters to be installed throughout the County.

7. Purchase and installation of 270 bus stop signs and posts to be installed throughout the County.

8. Purchase of Administration Facility Equipment to be utilized at the District Administration Building.

9. Purchase of an existing property leasehold and site improvements for a Transportation Center located between Broadway (Laguna Canyon Road) and Ocean Avenue approximately 1 mile north of Pacific Coast Highway in the City of Laguna Beach.

10. Purchase of land and design for a permanent Maintenance and Operations facility to be located between Baxter Street and State College Boulevard on Via Burton in the City of Anaheim.

The net project cost of the above items is estimated to be $11,489,216.80% of the proposed project will be financed by a Federal Capital Grant under Section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended. The remaining 20% will be financed by the District from funds made available by the Transportation Development Act of 1971, State of California Stats. 1971, Chap. 1400 and other local sources.

The proposed project will have no significant adverse social, economic or environmental impacts upon Orange County.

This project is in conformance with comprehensive land use and transportation planning in this area and is currently being reviewed by the Southern California Association of Governments and the State Clearinghouse (A-55 Clearinghouse and 204 Review Agency).

The elderly and handicapped will benefit from the increased level of public transportation to be provided. In addition, it is planned that eleven small buses/vans will be utilized and this option will be considered by the Board of Directors for the single buses at the time that detailed specifications are prepared.

All the hearing, the Orange County Transit District will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the social, economic, and environmental aspects of the project. Interested persons may submit orally or in writing, evidence and recommendations with respect to said project.

A copy of the application for a Federal Capital Grant for the single buses, together with an environmental analysis and the transit development plan for Orange County, is currently available for public inspection by appointment at the Orange County Transit District, Administrative Office, 1200 North Main Street, Suite 500, Santa Ana, CA by calling (714) 844-1190.

Prices Take Dip; Unemployment Rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run.

Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor

NEWPORT BEACH FIREMEN RESCUE ERIN BERCHAM FROM ATTIC CONFINEMENT
Victim Spent More Than Eight Hours in 100-degree Heat Thursday

Trapped Man Freed Newport Citizen Caught in Crawl Space

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firefighters said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

Bercham became wedged into the crawl space apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen.

Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

10,000 May Get Tax Refunds in HB

An estimated 10,000 Huntington Beach property owners can expect to receive property transfer tax refunds if an Orange County Superior Court ruling issued Thursday survives expected appellate court action.

Judge Walter Smith ruled against the city in a lawsuit filed two years ago by Orin Berge Jr. of 16971 Sims St., who paid his property transfer tax under protest after buying an apartment complex.

Berge challenged the tax imposed by the city in August, 1974, and which was repealed by voters in the following May.

He argued that the $900,000 collected by the city via property transfer taxes in that nine-month period should be refunded.

The tax rejected by the voters compelled Huntington Beach residents selling or transferring real property to pay the city one-half of one percent of the selling price or market value, whichever figure was the greater.

Berge argued in his lawsuit that the tax was a subterfuge by the city to escape the $1 per $100 of assessed valuation property tax limit in the city charter. Judge Smith agreed.

City officials estimated that about 5,000 property transfers or sales were taxed in the nine months the levy was imposed with most of the buyers and sellers involved splitting the tax imposed.

Coast Community

College Tax Cut Chances Seen Slim

Coast Community College District's chief financial officer doesn't see significant cuts in the district's projected 80-cent tax rate this year, despite a 19.7 percent increase in the district's assessed valuation.

Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for the three-college district, said he would like to see some of the 4.7 percent increase over his 15 percent estimations go into what he said is the district's depleted reserve account.

But district trustees might think otherwise next Wednesday night when they meet to establish the college district's tax rate.

Trustees approved a preliminary $68.2 million budget just last week, and are scheduled to establish a tax rate for the dis-

Arsonist Torch Car in Huntington

Police have no suspects. No injuries were reported.

Property Tax Trims Studied

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Officials in Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley are taking a new look today at trimming city property tax rates after getting assessed valuation figures that show sharp increases in taxable wealth in their communities.

Huntington Beach received an increase of 21.1 percent while Fountain Valley had its valuation jump 21.9 percent. (Related story Page A3.)

While both cities plan tax rate cuts, it seemed almost certain that the property owner still will pay more taxes because of the added valuation.

The exact amounts were not known today. Official tax rates will be set in August.

Huntington Beach's current tax rate is $1.62 per $100 assessed valuation. If the city were to raise only the same amount of revenue that it did last year, the tax rate would be about $1.35, according to a city official.

However, officials don't expect more than a 10-cent cut on the tax rate on a budget of $30.9 million.

A 15 percent increase in assessed valuation already had been projected into the 1977-78 budget.

Councilwoman Harriett Wieder is one of those spearheading the fight to return all money over the 15 percent valuation mark to taxpayers.

"There are no ifs, ands or buts," she said. "We should do this."

Fountain Valley Comptroller

Howard Stephens said the assessed valuation figures came in somewhat higher than expected for his city.

He said that it appears that a new tax rate of $1.12 would be sufficient to raise revenues to meet the budget of $2,798,484.

Last year's tax rate was $1.21. It was cut 22 cents from the previous year.

A Fountain Valley official who asked not to be quoted by name said "odds were very good" that the tax rate would be cut to the $1.12 mark.

Stephens said the only increases in taxes were due to the consumer price index and the cost of providing services for residents.

He said figures on what the new tax rate would be if it met only last year's costs were not available.

Minuteman Halted

Rockwell Layoffs Seen in Anaheim

Rockwell International will lay off 700 more employees from its Anaheim plant because of a halt in production of the Minuteman 3 missile.

The first notices will be sent out later this month, officials said Thursday, in the wake of an order from the Defense department to halt production by the end of September.

Other Stories

Meanwhile, some 3,000 former Rockwell employees already have applied for unemployment benefits from the state, officials reported.

A spokeswoman for the state Employment Development Department (EDD) said Rockwell applications were being processed in groups of about 15 to speed up the process.

About 8,000 workers were laid off by the company when President Carter decided against production of the B-1 bomber.

One employee decided this week to take advantage of the company's special job relocation program. (See ROCKWELL, Page A2)

NBC Defense Due 'Scottsboro' Prosecution Rests

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — After emotional but confused testimony by the chief witness against the Scottsboro Boys, attorneys rested her case today in a $6 million libel suit against NBC.

The network planned to call two main witnesses: John McGreevy, who wrote the script for the television movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys," and Dr. Dan T. Carter, a history professor from Emory University in Atlanta who advised NBC on the movie.

NBC is fighting the suit filed by Victoria Price Street, now the 70-year-old wife of a Tennessee tobacco farmer. She contends that the network invaded her privacy and libeled her in the movie by suggesting that she lied in the Scottsboro case.

Back in the 1930s, through three trials, Mrs. Price testified that she and a companion were raped by nine blacks as they hitched a ride aboard a freight train from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Huntsville, Ala.

"When they stopped the train, I was still laying down," she said Thursday. "One of them was in there and Ruby was in there and they woke me up and helped me get my clothes on."

Mrs. Street said she was bleeding from the head and other parts of her body.

"And I've got the scars to prove it from where those black boys cut me," she said, pointing excitedly to her chest, her arm, her face and her back.

Doctors at the original trial said they saw no signs of blood on either woman.

Nine blacks were convicted of rape and spent a total of 130 years in prison before they were pardoned or paroled. They contended they had been railroaded in a racially troubled atmosphere.

"If they'd been a bunch of white boys, I'd have done the same thing," Mrs. Street testified Thursday. "It wasn't because of color that I charged. Because there's as good colored folks as there are white folk."

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Street said some scenes from the movies were inaccurate and others were "bold-faced lies."

She also denied testimony from transcripts of the original trials half a dozen times, saying at one point she may have been confused.

35 Others Injured

Teen Boy Crushed In Chase of Bulls

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bullring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, treading on the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival. Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidaymakers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

Vandals Destroy Home Illinois Camping Couple Return to Chaos

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing.

Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

old computer analyst. His wife Carol is 36. They have four children and their home is a seven-room dwelling in this quiet, affluent suburb northwest of Chicago.

Police say the neighborhood's homes are worth an average of $90,000 to $100,000.

"I don't know who would do this," said Schubring. "It's clear that it was just malicious vandalism."

But police say more may be involved. They want to know if any one harbored a grudge against the Schubrings.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago."

Gerald Schubring is a 39-year-

The community is a quiet suburb of 15,000, which has seen some minor vandalism lately — broken windows, paint smeared on walls, the kind of thing many communities experience. But police say they have rarely seen anything like that what happened to the Schubrings last weekend.

Schubring and his family have moved out for now, and are putting up in a motel. But he says he is determined to rebuild.

"We've lived here for six years," he said. "We're not going to be scared away by kids."

Riding High Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

Escaped Mom, Girl Surrender to FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas jail escapee surrendered to the FBI in Washington today, accompanied by the 9-year-old daughter who earlier spent her savings to ask President Carter for help.

An FBI spokesman said Patricia Gale Boake surrendered about 11 a.m. at FBI headquarters, accompanied by three of her daughters. One of them was Sandy Chandler, who in early June made the fruitless trek to the White House.

Two weeks after Sandy attempted to see the President, Mrs. Boake escaped from the Fort Worth, Tex., Correctional Institute, a minimum security facility.

The FBI spokesman said Mrs. Boake called earlier and told the FBI to expect her.

Mrs. Boake was to be taken to the District of Columbia jail and Service Held For General

A private family funeral was held today for Maj. Gen. Edward A. Wilcox, commander of the 1st Marine Division who died of a heart attack at Camp Pendleton Tuesday.

The cremated remains were scattered at sea from the destroyer escort Meyerkork. Memorial services for Wilcox, 53, are scheduled Sunday in the base chapel, a Marine Corps spokesman said.

Survivors include his widow, Dorothy, living in Long Beach, and their four children.

Workers OK New Contract With County

A new two-year contract covering about 8,200 Orange County employees won the approval of workers in votes cast Thursday.

About one-third of the eligible members of the Orange County Employees Association turned out for the vote, OCEA Association Manager John Sawyer said.

If approved by county supervisors Tuesday, the contract will give most workers pay increases of 5.85 percent the first year and 5.5 percent the second, along with increases in health insurance benefits, Sawyer said.

Members of the OCEA general unit and supervisory management unit voted 1,250 to 379 in favor of the contract.

gram, and by the end of the day, was on another firm's payroll.

Company officials hope this is an indication their relocation program will find jobs for at least half of those laid off when the B1 program was canceled.

Jack Hefley, a spokesman for the firm's B-1 division, said that 1,200 of the 2,700 B-1 workers already laid off have gone through briefings about the salary and benefits due them, about how to write resumes and about interviewing for new positions.

Hefley said that employee profiles will be catalogued by next week, and will be made available to other Rockwell divisions and to 150 companies that have contacted Rockwell for employee information.

"We're estimating there are quite a few openings for our skilled people and we feel we can relocate up to 50 percent of our people," Hefley said.

All of the company's divisions have stopped advertising for new employees, he said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), plans to explore what can be done for the laid off workers in a meeting today with government officials and Rockwell representatives from the firm's Palmdale assembly plant and El Segundo headquarters.

Richard Silberman, state Secretary of Business and Transportation, said "we are more interested in work than in aid," but indicated officials will look at city, county and state sources of funding to supplement what may be obtained from the federal government.

Boy Seriously Injured in Rock Battle

A 9-year-old Westminster boy was listed in stable condition today after suffering injuries in a rock fight with another youngster.

Detectives are investigating the incident.

Surgery was performed on the victim, Kevin Cody, for removal of his spleen, according to police officers.

Police Officer Mike Proctor said the injury occurred July 5 in a field near a construction site near Iowa Street.

Proctor said the injured youth was apparently throwing rocks in the air and one struck the other boy, 10.

The 10-year-old, according to Proctor, then struck Kevin in the stomach with a large piece of asphalt.

He was taken to Westminster Community Hospital. The incident wasn't reported to police for several days.

trict next Wednesday.

A $5.5 million state allocation recently authorized for the district by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., is expected to cut the estimated 87.1 cent tax rate to about 80 cents.

But Thompson was not that enthusiastic about cutting more from the tax rate.

"I have not computed what the additional increase in property tax funds will mean to the district," he said. "Actually, I won't receive the official (assessed valuation) figures from the county until Monday."

He said it would be up to the board of trustees to decide what the final tax rate will be, "but any increases will have to go into building the reserve fund."

Thompson said the district currently holds reserves of $1.7 million, or about five percent of the district's budget. He added that he feels comfortable with a 10 percent reserve account.

Autopsy Set For Drowned Valley Baby

Coroner's deputies are conducting an autopsy on the body of a tot who apparently drowned in his family's swimming pool Thursday evening.

Scott D. Jacobson, 14 months, of 17397 Santa Suzanne St., Fountain Valley, was pronounced dead on arrival at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital, where his father, David, works as a registered nurse.

The elder Jacobson pulled the infant out of the pool after his sister, Lisa, 8, spotted the tiny form in the water.

Investigators said Jacobson was attempting to revive the dead child when Fountain Valley Fire Department paramedics Don Newman and Dan Guerrero arrived.

Funeral services were pending today at Pierce Brothers-Smith Mortuary, Huntington Beach.

SB College Valuation Soars 27.5%

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The 27.5 percent increase in Saddleback College property valuation this year means trustees could cut the tax rate by about 20 cents and still raise the same amount of money as they did last year.

District officials view such a move as unlikely, however, in light of the district's continuing struggle to finance new construction to meet growth.

It is also improbable because of a new state law that put a lid on college district tax rates, permitting them to be lowered and frozen but not increased again without a vote of the electorate.

District Business Manager Roy Barletta had predicted a valuation increase of 18 percent this year and expressed some surprise at the actual figure.

Barletta said the difference would amount to "several hundred thousand dollars" if trustees choose to hold the tax rate at its present level of 95 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Much of the valuation increase reported this week stems from (See COLLEGE, Page A2)

Tax Cut, Big Budget Mulled

Irvine could have $120,000 more money in its budget next year due to the city's gigantic 29.3 percent increase in property values, but it's uncertain yet whether the city will spend that money or lower the city tax rate. (Related story Page A3.)

Jim Harrington, the city's administrative services director, said the city council would have to lower the tax rate about five cents to operate with the current level of property tax revenues.

That would lower the rate from 11.5 cents to 26.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The city council already has tentatively lowered the rate to 29 cents, based on the city's assumption that property values would climb 20 percent.

Harrington said the council would have to shave another 2.5 cents off the rate to keep the current level of property tax revenue.

According to Harrington, the council seems to be "headed in that direction", but he said it's impossible to tell yet what the council will do. The decision on the city tax rate is expected to be made at the second meeting in August.

Harrington said he is surprised by the huge increase in Irvine and attributed it to the "doubling effect."

He said that assessments rose so high in Irvine because there is so much new construction and that existing property values climbed so high.

Harrington pointed out that the highest increase took place in San Juan Capistrano, which also has a high rate of new construction. Irvine was second to San Juan Capistrano.

Council Settles Most Land Use Issues

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Irvine City Council decided Thursday to allow development of residential villages 10 and 14 and to permit construction of a home improvement center and a discount center at specific sites in Irvine.

Those decisions came at a public hearing, during which the council settled most of the land use planning issues that will guide future development in Irvine.

All that's left to decide is where the Bonita Canyon Road extension should be built, several other road matters, and revisions of the city's transportation noise element and the historical, archeological and paleontological element. Those matters are scheduled for public airing July 28.

One of the most important decisions reached by the council was the confirmation that Village 14 will be developed. Village 14 is bounded by the San Diego Freeway, Peters Canyon Wash, Irvine Center Drive and Culver Drive.

Only Councilwoman Mary Ann Gaido opposed the decision to go ahead with the development as it is currently shown on the city's general plan.

Mrs. Gaido said she wanted those 1,200 acres preserved as permanent agricultural land instead of being turned into more houses, since it is the last major parcel of agricultural land in the city.

The one change made by the council was to ask city staff members to meet with council members John Burton and Gabrielle Pryor to devise a new density scheme.

The council said it wanted to preserve the same medium densities at the fringe of the village, where it will touch other already-developed villages such as Culverdale, but that it wanted higher densities towards the center of the village.

The land currently is used by the Irvine Company to grow asparagus, beans, corn and tomatoes.

The council also decided to maintain the residential uses in Village 10 as now shown on the (See VILLAGES, Page A2)

Freed of Trap

NB Man Caught in Attic

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawlspace in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

Bercham became wedged into the crawlspace apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid. (See TRAPPED, Page A2)

Prices Fall; Irvine's RV Ban Jobless Rate Offsets Gain Begins Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today.

But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous (See PRICES, Page A2)

Irvine Police Chief Leo Peart announced today his officers will begin enforcing the new recreational vehicle parking ban beginning next Friday.

The new law was adopted by the City Council in April, but enforcement of the new rules has been held up until new "no parking" signs could be posted around the city.

Peart explained that the following rules are included in the new prohibition:

—Motor vehicles wider than 84 inches are not permitted to be parked on city streets unless they are being loaded or unloaded, are making deliveries or require emergency repairs.

Non-motorized vehicles, such as trailers and campers, that are not attached to a motor vehicle, may not be parked on city streets, at any time, regardless of their width.

—Vehicles parked on streets for the principal purpose of being displayed for sale are prohibited.

Peart said that persons who violate the new law will be issued citations.

He said the reasons for the new rules are to reduce the danger of limited visibility to pedestrians, bicyclists and motorists, to prevent obstructions blocking fire trucks or ambulances and to eliminate congestion and loss of parking space created by cars for sale parked on streets.

Destruction Wreaked on Pair's Home

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing.

Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, included (See VANDALS, Page A2)

DISABLED VET REPAIRS OLD BIKES TO GIVE TO NEEDY CHILDREN
Elvine Johnson, 69, Turned Hobby Into Community Effort

Hobby With a Heart

Disabled Vet Repairs Bikes for Children

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — At Elvine Johnson's house, the trash collectors make deliveries as well as pickups, dropping off any rusted old bicycles they find.

Parents in this central Florida community come by with bikes that have been outgrown. Dealers give Johnson a break on parts.

THE 69-YEAR-OLD DISABLED veteran spends his days in his backyard cleaning, painting, repairing and reassembling the bikes. Then he gives them to needy children.

"When I get through with them, they may not be new, but they run like new," says Johnson. "And when you make a kid happy, you're just as happy."

He started making kids happy with bicycles on Thanksgiving. The auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had prepared a food basket for a poor family, and Johnson thought about getting bicycles for the three children.

"I SHOPPED AROUND AND got some old bikes and repaired them," he said. "Then I realized there were other children who could not afford to buy bikes, and I just couldn't quit."

Johnson, who had seven brothers and sisters, said he knows how difficult things can get for large families with little cash.

"I got my first bike by picking up the parts and making it myself," he said.

BUT A COUPLE OF TIMES, he said, he found out that some of the children to whom he had given bicycles could have paid for them. Now he asks neighbors and others in the community for recommendations.

When a youngster can afford a small payment, Johnson charges a nominal fee and uses the money to buy parts.

So far, he has sold six bikes — and given away 32.

Border Arrests Decline

Arrests of illegal aliens were down this week at the San Onofre checkpoint south of San Clemente, after U.S. Border Patrol agents apprehended nearly 500 aliens over the three-day holiday weekend.

Sunday, the arrest of 444 aliens on one eight-hour shift broke all previous records for a single shift, said Alex Janicki, patrol agent in charge. The total number of aliens arrested Sunday was 493, he said, not approaching the record 570 arrested in a single 24-hour period on June 12.

The 776 aliens and two U.S. citizens arrested for smuggling on Sunday and Monday compared to 206 aliens and a single U.S. citizen arrested July 3 and 4 last year, Janicki said.

"You must remember that last year we didn't have the checkpoint," he said. "We had to have probable cause to stop a vehicle." He referred to a federal court interpretation of the law then extant.

Smuggling arrests at the checkpoint dwindled to 79 on Tuesday and 73 on Wednesday, he said.

general plan. Village 10 is adjacent to the existing Colony homes on the west side of Culver Drive.

Residents from the Colony and from College Park asked the council to keep that land as agricultural property, partly because they believe more houses would be jeopardized by flights from the Marine helicopter base next door.

But the council voted 3-2 (Mrs. Gaido and Mrs. Pryor voted no) to go ahead and allow the Irvine Company to build houses in Village 10.

Community Development Director Eddie Peabody pointed out that the Marine Corps had a chance to buy that land if it believed it affected helicopter operations, but that it had not. Peabody said there is no great danger due to helicopter flights at that site.

Another decision made by the council was to allow the Irvine Company to develop a discount center at the corner of Jamboree Boulevard and Main Street.

All of the city's commissions and staff members had recommended against that site because of concern about traffic. But the council unanimously voted to allow the discount center, partly because of its recent decision to expand the uses in the Irvine Industrial Complex to allow retail sales.

The council also voted unanimously to allow the Irvine Company to build a home improvement center at Culver Drive and Irvine Center Drive. Such a project would involve small shops geared to the homeowner, such as paint, wallpaper and hardware stores.

Battle Looming

new construction, though virtually all homeowners in the college district will pay higher taxes next year.

With the average home in the district now selling for roughly $90,000, the tax bill — to support the college — on such a home would increase from about $214 last year to almost $275 this year, if the full 27.5 percent valuation increase is applied (individual assessments will vary).

The pending budget for next year presently stands at $24.7 million and Barletta said trustees could conceivably increase that figure based on the additional revenue generated by the valuation increase.

Barletta said the additional revenue could be used by trustees to restore some items cut from the budget, which started out at $30 million. Last year's final budget was only $19 million.

In addition, the business manager suggested that the additional funds could be applied to construction of the district's second campus in Irvine on a "pay-as-you-go" basis rather than a more costly lease-purchase arrangement.

Riding High Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

Minuteman Halted

Rockwell Layoffs Seen in Anaheim

Rockwell International will lay off 700 more employees from its Anaheim plant because of a halt in production of the Minuteman 3 missile.

The first notices will be sent out later this month, officials said Thursday, in the wake of an order from the Defense Department to halt production by the end of September.

Meanwhile, some 3,000 former Rockwell employees already have applied for unemployment benefits from the state, officials reported.

A spokeswoman for the state Employment Development Department (EDD) said Rockwell applications were being processed in groups of about 15 to speed up the process.

About 8,000 workers were laid off by the company when President Carter decided against production of the B-1 bomber.

One employee decided this week to take advantage of the company's special job relocation program, and by the end of the day, was on another firm's payroll.

Company officials hope this is an indication their relocation program will find jobs for at least half of those laid off when the B1 program was canceled.

Jack Hefley, a spokesman for the firm's B-1 division, said that 1,200 of the 2,700 B-1 workers already laid off have gone through briefings about the salary and benefits due them, about how to write resumes and about interviewing for new positions.

Hefley said that employee profiles will be catalogued by next week, and will be made available to other Rockwell divisions and to 150 companies that have contacted Rockwell for employee information.

"We're estimating there are quite a few openings for our skilled people and we feel we can relocate up to 50 percent of our people," Hefley said.

All of the company's divisions have stopped advertising for new employees, he said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), plans to explore what can be done for the laid off workers in a meeting today with government officials and Rockwell representatives from the firm's Palmdale assembly plant and El Segundo headquarters.

Richard Silberman, state Secretary of Business and Transportation, said "we are more interested in work than in aid," but indicated officials will look at city, county and state sources of funding to supplement what may be obtained from the federal government.

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen.

Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

Tested on Dogs

Laetrile 'Deadly,' Claims Scientist

DAVIS (AP) — Laetrile, touted by some as a cancer cure, can be deadly when taken with some uncooked foods, says a scientist who tested the combination on dogs.

Out of 10 dogs fed a combination of Laetrile and almonds in an experiment last week, six died, says Dr. Jerry Lemis of UC Davis.

He spelled out his conclusions on the dangers of Laetrile in a paper published today in the California Medical Association's Western Journal of Medicine.

The CMA has been the leading opponent of legalization of Laetrile in California. A bill to legalize the substance has been approved by the state Senate. Similar measures have become law in 11 states in the past year.

Lewis, who heads the Davis medical school's studies of blood and tumors, disclosed the tests on dogs in an interview after the paper was written.

Laetrile, an apricot pit derivative, contains cyanide. Lewis wrote that the cyanide is chemically released by a substance, beta-glucosidase, found in some uncooked foods.

"In small doses, oral Laetrile may not be harmful," the researcher wrote. "But when ingested with uncooked foods such as fresh apples, sweet almonds or bean sprouts which contain the beta-glucosidase enzyme, cyanide may be released, with the patient suffering the effects of cyanide poisoning."

months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run.

Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor force last month, which rose by 480,000 to 97.6 million. The labor force includes those at work and those looking for work.

35 Others Injured

Teen Boy Crushed In Chase of Bulls

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, treading on the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival.

Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidayers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

SB College Valuation Soars 27.5%

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The 27.5 percent increase in Saddleback College property valuation this year means trustees could cut the tax rate by about 20 cents and still raise the same amount of money as they did last year.

District officials view such a move as unlikely, however, in light of the district's continuing struggle to finance new construction to meet growth.

It is also improbable because of a new state law that put a lid on college district tax rates, permitting them to be lowered and frozen but not increased again without a vote of the electorate.

District Business Manager Roy Barletta had predicted a valuation increase of 18 percent this year and expressed some

Barletta said the difference would amount to "several hundred thousand dollars" if trustees choose to hold the tax rate at its present level of 95 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Much of the valuation increase reported this week stems from new construction, though virtually all homeowners in the college (See VALUATION, Page A2)

Jobless Rate Up

Prices Take Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

Little Stolen

Home Destruction Caused by Vandals

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing.

Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago."

Gerald Schubring is a 39-year-old computer analyst. His wife Carol is 36. They have four children and their home is a seven-room dwelling in this quiet, affluent suburb northwest of Chicago.

NB Man Trapped 8 Hours

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

Bercham became wedged into the crawl space apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Laguna Asks Planner Aid For Shelter

"We're looking at every possible site... we will be asking the planning commission to assign their staff to help us ferret out some corner of this community in which we can logically place an animal shelter."

So said an anxious Laguna Beach Police Chief Jon Sparks today.

Chief Sparks is anxious because the city has been given until Oct. 3 to get out of its leased dog and cat quarters.

The kennel is run by veterinarian Dr. Rose Ekeberg, who was angered by the city's action placing a 600-car temporary parking lot across the Laguna Canyon Road from a node of canyon homes and businesses, including her kennel.

Dr. Ekeberg cancelled the lease giving the city 90 days to pack up its pooches and go.

The planning commission will consider a variety of long and short range solutions to the animal services problem when it meets at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at city hall.

The city council told Sparks Wednesday to look not only for a temporary solution, but for a permanent pound as well.

On a short term basis, Chief Sparks said the city would be investigating contracting with another private kennel, or Orange County, or setting up temporary facilities some place. He mentioned city-owned property at the eucalyptus grove just off Woodland Drive.

Working with the city is the Pet Responsibility Committee, a citizens group largely responsible for development of Laguna's "pro-life" animal services department.

"We're going to lay out all the alternatives and say 'this is what we face folks, help,'" Chief Sparks said.

Stable Tax Would Double LB Revenue

An increase of 22.2 percent in the assessed value of Laguna Beach means that by keeping the same tax rate as last year, the city would raise an additional $470,000, nearly twice as much as it counted on getting, Finance Director Richard Reese said today.

The $7 million Laguna Beach city budget was predicted on a 12 percent increase in the city's assessed valuation. (Related information, Pages A2 and A3).

It proposed to retain last year's tax rate of $1.65 per $100 assessed value plus the seven-cent paramedic override approved by voters last November.

To raise the same amount of revenue as was raised last year, the City Council could cut the rate to $1.29 per $100 assessed value, Reese said in response to questions.

The City Council last year cut

29 cents from the tax rate which has declined steadily from a high of $2.12 in fiscal 1973-74. The city's assessed value since that time has more than doubled, from $73,377,000 to the current $160,836,000.

Property taxes are determined by multiplying the tax rate by the assessed value of a property. Assessed value is one quarter market value.

If the city were to retain the same rate as last year, the owner of an $80,000 home would pay in city taxes $330 plus $14 for the paramedic override.

More Parks Due for SJC?

Tiny San Juan Capistrano's 30.3 percent assessed valuation increase — highest in the county — may mean more city parks rather than a rollback in the tax rate for local residents. (Related story, Page A3)

Assistant City Manager John O'Sullivan said today the city staff calculated that the assessed valuation increase would bring the city an extra $45,000 in revenues, beyond what had been anticipated.

The projected municipal tax rate for next year is 96 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. It could be cut about 20 cents to raise the same revenue as last year.

The city's proposed $3.7 million 1977-78 budget was based on a 23 percent increase in assessed valuations. The final decision over whether to have more parks or to roll back the city tax rate will be made by the City Council.

"I will have to write a report for the council at their next meeting," O'Sullivan said. He hinted that city staff would favor more parks as opposed to a tax rate increase.

O'Sullivan said city officials figured the increase in assessed (See PARKS, Page A2)

Clemente's Value Jumps 23 Percent

San Clemente's assessed valuation jumped by 23 percent in the past year, but city taxpayers will have to wait until August to learn what impact the increase will have on their tax bills.

"We have received no official notification of the city's assessed valuation," Rod Coloma, city finance director, said today. "We are waiting for the breakdown in August from the county auditor in order to see where assessments have increased." (Related story Page A3)

Coloma said the city could drop the current $1.21 tax rate by nearly nine cents, based on the 23 percent assessment increase, and still generate the same tax revenue as the fiscal year just ended.

The increase in assessed valuation, announced Thursday by the county assessor's office, brings the city's total to $154.4 million.

Coloma said the city's proposed 1977-78 budget was based on an estimated 22 percent AV increase. (See TAXES, Page A2)

Clemente's Fiesta Begins Saturday

Everything from buffet to beach volleyball will be on tap at San Clemente's 24th annual celebration of the first Christian baptism in California, to be launched Saturday and continue through August.

Fiesta La Cristianita, commemorating the 1769 baptism in a local canyon, is centered traditionally on a July parade. It will begin Saturday with a 5:30 p.m. buffet dinner at the San Clemente Inn, where Mayor Donna Wilkinson will crown Miss San Clemente, Robin Heller, queen of the fiesta. (Complete story and pictures, Page C1).

Additional highlights of this year's fiesta include:

—Beach competitions, beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday with the First Annual Beach Volleyball Tournament.

—A carnival in Plaza Park, beginning Friday, July 15.

—A fiesta breakfast, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club in the market parking lot at El Camino Real and Mariposa from 7 to 11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 16 and 17.

—The parade, with 200 bands, equestrian entries, floats and clowns, beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 16, on Avenida del Mar and proceeding east to El Camino Real and north to El Portal.

—The La Cristianita Pageant, starting Friday, July 22 and continuing daily except Mondays through Aug. 7 in a natural amphitheater in a canyon inland from Camino de Estrella.

—An arts and crafts fair from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 20 and 21 at the Community Center, Avenida del Mar and Calle Seville.

Additional information on the fiesta is available by calling the chamber of commerce, 492-1131.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run.

Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor force last month, which rose by 480,000 to 97.6 million. The labor force includes those at work and those looking for work.

Since more people went looking for jobs than found work last month, the unemployment rate increased.

TRAPPED...

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen.

Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

Alien Arrests Slowing Down In San Onofre

Arrests of illegal aliens were down this week at the San Onofre checkpoint south of San Clemente, after U.S. Border Patrol agents apprehended nearly 500 aliens over the three-day holiday weekend.

Sunday, the arrest of 444 aliens on one eight-hour shift broke all previous records for a single shift, said Alex Janicki, patrol agent in charge. The total number of aliens arrested Sunday was 493, he said, not approaching the record 570 arrested in a single 24-hour period on June 12.

The 776 aliens and two U.S. citizens arrested for smuggling on Sunday and Monday compared to 206 aliens and a single U.S. citizen arrested July 3 and 4 last year, Janicki said.

"You must remember that last year we didn't have the checkpoint," he said. "We had to have probable cause to stop a vehicle." He referred to a federal court interpretation of the law then extant.

Smuggling arrests at the checkpoint dwindled to 79 on Tuesday and 73 on Wednesday, he said.

Penny Ante Thief Loots Piggy Banks

A burglar who cut the window with a glass cutter to gain entry took a total of $100 in cash from two piggy banks in a Laguna Niguel home, Orange County sheriff's officers said.

Deputies said the theft was reported by insurance agent Dean P. Fisher, 46, of 29091 Madrid Drive. He was away from his home at the time.

Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

Tested on Dogs

Laetrile 'Deadly' Claims Scientist

DAVIS (AP) — Laetrile, touted by some as a cancer cure, can be deadly when taken with some uncooked foods, says a scientist who tested the combination on dogs.

Out of 10 dogs fed a combination of Laetrile and almonds in an experiment last week, six died, says Dr. Jerry Lemis of UC Davis.

He spelled out his conclusions on the dangers of Laetrile in a paper published today in the California Medical Association's Western Journal of Medicine.

The CMA has been the leading opponent of legalization of Laetrile in California. A bill to legalize the substance has been approved by the state Senate. Similar measures have become law in 11 states in the past year.

Lewis, who heads the Davis medical school's studies of blood and tumors, disclosed the tests on dogs in an interview after the paper was written.

Laetrile, an apricot pit derivative, contains cyanide. Lewis wrote that the cyanide is chemically released by a substance, beta-glucosidase, found in some uncooked foods.

"In small doses, oral Laetrile may not be harmful," the researcher wrote. "But when ingested with uncooked foods such as fresh apples, sweet almonds or bean sprouts which contain the beta-glucosidase enzyme, cyanide may be released, with the patient suffering the effects of cyanide poisoning."

Lewis said doses varied in the experiment with dogs, and couldn't say which doses would cause death.

He added in the interview, "My concern is that there are going to be an awful lot of people taking this garbage and some are going to be innocently injured by it."

The man who patented Laetrile, Dr. Ernest Krebs, said Lewis' findings were "a proper area for exploration." But he said Laetrile has been used for 20 years and poisoning has not been a problem.

valuation would mean an additional $8 on the tax bill of an average $70,000 home.

The issue of parks was raised during council budget hearings earlier this year when city officials disagreed with the parks and recreation commission over additional parks.

"It was a friendly disagreement," explained O'Sullivan. "We wanted more parks, too, but the city did not have the funds to build or maintain them."

O'Sullivan said he believed most city residents would favor more parks but added they would have to pay for them through the increased city revenue from the assessed valuation increase.

Horde Of Bulls Kills Boy

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, treading on the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival.

Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidayers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

VANDALS...

Police say the neighborhood's homes are worth an average of $90,000 to $100,000.

"I don't know who would do this," said Schubring. "It's clear that it was just malicious vandalism."

But police say more may be involved. They want to know if anyone harbored a grudge against the Schubrings.

The community is a quiet suburb of 15,000, which has seen some minor vandalism lately — broken windows, paint smeared on walls, the kind of thing many communities experience. But police say they have rarely seen anything like that what happened to the Schubrings last weekend.

Schubring and his family have moved out for now, and are putting up in a motel. But he says he is determined to rebuild.

"We've lived here for six years," he said. "We're not going to be scared away by kids."

Minuteman Halted

Rockwell Layoffs Seen in Anaheim

Rockwell International will lay off 700 more employees from its Anaheim plant because of a halt in production of the Minuteman 3 missile.

The first notices will be sent out later this month, officials said Thursday, in the wake of an order from the Defense Department to halt production by the end of September.

Meanwhile, some 3,000 former Rockwell employees already have applied for unemployment benefits from the state, officials reported.

A spokeswoman for the state Employment Development Department (EDD) said Rockwell applications were being processed in groups of about 15 to speed up the process.

About 8,000 workers were laid off by the company when President Carter decided against production of the B-1 bomber.

One employee decided this week to take advantage of the company's special job relocation program, and by the end of the day, was on another firm's payroll.

Company officials hope this is an indication their relocation program will find jobs for at least half of those laid off when the B1 program was canceled.

Jack Hefley, a spokesman for the firm's B-1 division, said that 1,200 of the 2,700 B-1 workers already laid off have gone through briefings about the salary and benefits due them, about how to write resumes and about interviewing for new positions.

Hefley said that employee profiles will be catalogued by next week, and will be made available to other Rockwell divisions and to 150 companies that have contacted Rockwell for employee information.

"We're estimating there are quite a few openings for our skilled people and we feel we can relocate up to 50 percent of our people," Hefley said.

All of the company's divisions have stopped advertising for new employees, he said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) plans to explore what can be done for the laid off workers in a meeting today with government officials and Rockwell representatives from the firm's Palmdale assembly plant and El Segundo headquarters.

Richard Silberman, state Secretary of Business and Transportation, said "we are more interested in work than in aid," but indicated officials will look at city, county and state sources of funding to supplement what may be obtained from the federal government.

Church Gets Its Steeple

DENVER (AP) — The great steeple chase is over.

Police in the Denver suburb of Lakewood say the Rev. Gene Parrett, pastor of the Alameda Hills Baptist Church, received a call early today from an anonymous male who said the missing steeple could be found in a field in Lakewood.

The metal-and-wood structure was undamaged when it was recovered.

"I can't imagine what someone would do with a church steeple," said Mr. Parrott.

NB Bridge Backers Due At Hearing

Supporters of plans for a seven-lane bridge on Pacific Coast Highway over Upper Newport Bay are expected to turn out in large numbers Monday for the coastal commission hearing on the bridge permit.

The hearing is scheduled for 1 p.m. at the Huntington Beach City Council chambers.

Newport Beach architect Bill Ficker, who heads the citizen Bridge Action Team (BAT), is urging interested people to attend "to indicate to the coastal commission that governmental, civic and citizen leadership are behind this project."

The $6.5 million bridge to be built by CalTrans will be 20 feet high and will be located slightly to the north of the existing structure.

It will have six through lanes of traffic and a seventh lane for westbound traffic that is turning north on Dover Drive.

Highway officials say they hope the project is approved in time to put it out to bid by the end of 1977. It would be completed by mid-1979 if it stays on schedule.

Inmate Killed

ROCKVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Flames swept through the second floor of an old jail here, killing one inmate. Police say they believe the victim set the fire 30 minutes after he was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge. Authorities identified the dead man as Earl Decker of Rockville.

TAXES...

"I don't expect the final figures we receive in August will make much difference, but it depends where the increases occur," he said. "For example, we may find that the street lighting district is not up by 23 percent, but only by 15 percent."

San Clemente city councilmen are expected to set this year's tax rate at their Aug. 17 meeting, when they are scheduled to approve the final 1977-78 budget.

NEWPORT BEACH FIREMEN RESCUE ERIN BERCHAM FROM ATTIC CONFINEMENT
Victim Spent More Than Eight Hours in 100-degree Heat Thursday

Trapped Man Freed

Newport Citizen Caught in Crawl Space

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

Bercham became wedged into the crawl space apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen.

Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

Judge Goldstein Appointed

North Orange County Municipal Court Judge Leonard Goldstein of Newport Beach was appointed to the Superior Court bench today by Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Judge Goldstein, 45, replaces Judge Samuel Dreizen who retired last week after 16 years on the superior bench. Judge Goldstein was named to the north county court by Governor Brown in 1976.

He served as a hearing officer for the State of California and in private practice before being appointed to the Fullerton bench. He is a Democrat.

Lone Bandit Hits Bank in Newport

Bandits struck twice in Newport Beach Thursday, taking a total of $3,165 from a bank and a gas station in what police said today were unrelated robberies.

The first occurred at about 3 p.m. at the Bank of America in the Westcliff shopping center at Westcliff Drive and Irvine Avenue.

The lone bandit who kept his hand concealed in a flight bag hanging from his shoulder, passed a note to teller Claire Trube warning her he had a gun and asking for all of the cash in her drawer.

The teller told police the note also warned her against tripping the bank's alarm because the bandit claimed he had a monitor. She said she gave him the money in an envelope which he put in the bag marked "General Tours" before running from the bank.

As soon as the bandit turned from her window, the teller tripped the alarm. One bank employee followed the bandit and saw him run across Westcliff and into the medical complex on the other side of the street.

He was described as a tall, thin man in his early twenties with a distinct lip twitch.

The second robbery occurred about two and a half hours later at the Exxon gas station at 2121 S. E. Bristol St.

Station attendant Michael Gamble said the suspect, a young man of Latin descent, first came

Jobless Rate Up

Prices Take Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run.

Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor force last month, which rose by 480,000 to 97.6 million. The labor force includes those at work and those looking for work.

Salary Flap

Newport Employees Picket City Hall

A handful of Newport Beach city employees began picketing city hall today. They said they plan to maintain the picket line until Monday's city council meeting in the hopes of getting city officials to reopen stalled salary negotiations.

The pickets, who marched with blue and white signs, are members of the Newport Beach Employees League which represents 127 maintenance men, mechanics, trashmen, custodians, gardeners and sign painters.

League President Stan Peterson, who took a day off work to lead the pickets, said his group is unhappy with the city's last contract offer which totaled a 6.7 percent increase in pay and changes in the retirement system. His group is seeking a package totalling seven percent.

"The city isn't offering as much as they did last year," he claimed.

The picketing marks another effort by the league to call attention to its displeasure over negotiations. Tuesday, about 50 members of the group staged a sick-out.

Meanwhile, the 85-member City Employees Association which represents the clerks and secretaries, voted to accept a 4.8 percent pay raise which will cost the city an additional one percent in fringe benefit increases.

Newport Beach

Valuation Rises 19.2%

The 19.2 percent increase in assessed valuation of property in Newport Beach could result in a nickel being shaved off the city's $1.11 tax rate. (Related Story Page A3.)

City Manager Robert Wynn said today the unofficial figures released by county Assessor Bradley Jacobs will produce about $302,950 more in revenue than was anticipated in the recently approved city budget.

That figure, he said, represented about five cents on the tax rate.

If the city's revenue from property taxes remained at the same level for 1977-78 as it was for 1976-77, then the new assessed valuation figures would mean the city could raise that money with a 95-cent tax rate, Wynn said.

Councilmen will take no action on the tax rate until August when the assessed valuation figures have been finalized. Councilmen have pledged to lower the tax rate to offset any assessed valuation increases beyond the estimated 15 percent on which the budget was based.

Wynn said the city's property tax raises about 27 percent of the income needed to meet this year's $24.4 million budget.

$850,000 Grant OK

Joint Use Won't Jeopardize Center

Councilmen who met with federal officials Thursday reported today the proposed joint use of the senior citizen facility in Corona del Mar with a private school apparently will not jeopardize the $850,000 grant the city is using to set up the center.

Three councilmen — Pete Barrett, Lucille Kuehn and Ray Williams — met with three officials from the Los Angeles office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

In a memo to other council members, the trio reported that HUD appears to have little concern with whether or not the school is actually there for a few more months, but that there is an active program under way and a timely movement toward our ultimate goal of a full service senior citizen's facility."

The HUD officials also met with school owners John and Judith Wilson, center backers Barnett Larks and Grant Howald and Congressman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach).

The meeting was called by councilmen two weeks ago after one of the HUD officials, Herbert Roberts, sent a letter to the city indicating the city faced loss of the funds because of the recently approved lease extension for the private school.

The school has been operating in the buildings at the senior center site at Fifth and Marguerite Avenues on a yearly lease that has been renewed twice.

Under the lease just approved which will run from Aug. 1, 1977 to June 30, 1978, the school will have use of two of the buildings on the site and the senior citizen center will be installed in the third.

While the last year of the school's lease is running, the city has proposed to build a cafeteria-auditorium on the site and to install some other recreational facilities for the seniors.

Coast Community

College Tax Cut Chances Seen Slim

Coast Community College District's chief financial officer doesn't see significant cuts in the district's projected 80-cent tax rate this year, despite a 19.7 percent increase in the district's assessed valuation.

Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for the three-college district, said he would like to see some of the 4.7 percent increase over his 15 percent estimations go into what he said is the district's depleted reserve account.

But district trustees might think otherwise next Wednesday night when they meet to establish the college district's tax rate.

Trustees approved a preliminary $68.2 million budget just last week, and are scheduled to establish a tax rate for the district next Wednesday.

A $5.5 million state allocation recently authorized for the district by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., is expected to cut the estimated 87.1 cent tax rate to about 80 cents.

But Thompson was not that enthusiastic about cutting more from the tax rate.

"I have not computed what the additional increase in property tax funds will mean to the district," he said. "Actually, I won't receive the official (assessed valuation) figures from the county until Monday."

He said it would be up to the board of trustees to decide what the final tax rate will be, "but any increases will have to go into building the reserve fund."

Thompson said the district currently holds reserves of $1.7 million, or about five percent of the district's budget. He added that he feels comfortable with a 10 percent reserve account.

Battle Looming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is bracing for a stiff battle in Congress over its proposal to sell even highly sophisticated airborne radar systems to Iran. Even before the Pentagon announcement Thursday of the proposed $1.2 billion deal, several senators were on record against it.

Running Bulls Kill Teen

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, treading on the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival.

Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidayers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

Auto Victim Said Serious

A Corona del Mar woman remained in serious condition today at Hoag Memorial Hospital after being struck by a car while crossing East Coast Highway Thursday morning.

Police said Frances Merrie Anderson, 52, of 305 Fernleaf Ave. was struck in the crosswalk at Goldenrod Avenue.

The driver of the car, Mabel Fitzmorris, 79, of 412 Heliotrope Ave., Corona del Mar, was making a left turn from Goldenrod onto the highway at the time of the mishap, police said today.

Police said the accident is still under investigation.

Gamble said that when he bent over the suspect's car engine, a hard object was shoved into his side and he was ordered into the station office. He said the bandit demanded money from the safe, but Gamble could not open it, so he was ordered to clean out the cash register. Gamble said the bandit brandished a butcher knife with a 6-inch blade while he was getting the money and ordered him to "be cool."

Destruction Wreaked on Pair's Home

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing.

Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago."

Police say the neighborhood's homes are worth an average of $90,000 to $100,000.

The first of the city's six associations to settle was the Professional and Technical Employees Association which earlier accepted a five percent pay raise for its 56 planners and engineers. That raise will also cost the city an additional one percent for fringe benefits.

Thursday, lifeguards agreed to a two-year contract which calls for three percent pay raises the first year except for three of the association's nine members. Marine Safety Capt. Bud Belshe will get a 4.5 percent raise and the two rescue boat operators will get four percent.

In the second year, there will be no pay raises, but at the end of the second year, the lifeguards will be taken out of the existing Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) and put into the more expensive California Highway Patrol (CHP) plan.

Members of the police and fire employee associations remain at odds with the city over use of the CHP plan and both groups have declared impasses in their negotiations.

Fire employees have asked for mediation and the first session has been set for Wednesday.

Police employees will take their grievances to the city council Monday.

Parking Meters

Looted in Newport

Thieves apparently armed with a pass key have hit parking meters in central Newport, getting $570 from meters on 15th Street between Bay Avenue and the Ocean Front, police said today.

Investigators said they believe the money was stolen during the hours of darkness last Thursday and Friday.

Irvine Expects Lease

Irvine Company officials said today they expect to sign a lease with the Prudential Insurance Company "shortly" for a portion of the 11-acre parcel at 600 Newport Center Drive.

The insurance company will build a 22-story office building on part of the site, a company spokesman said. No definite plans have been made for the remainder of the site, although a "prestige hotel" is one of several possibilities under consideration.

The company has hired architect Ernest C. Wilson Jr. of the firm of Langdon and Wilson to design the office building.

The project is to be built as a joint venture by Henry C. Beck and C. L. Peck, with construction tentatively slated to begin by late 1978. Occupancy would be in late 1979 or early 1980.

The building is to be built as an investment by the insurance company which financed the construction of Fashion Island in 1965.

Wilson said the building proposed is under the height limit and "well within" the square footage limit recently set by the city council's resolution limiting the ultimate growth of Newport Center.

The development of the center and the traffic that development has produced has caused concern among city officials who have been divided over how to deal with it.

Two recent efforts led by Councilman Paul Ryckoff to impose a building moratorium on projects such as the Prudential high rise have been defeated.

The site lies outside the jurisdiction of the coastal commission and is already zoned for high rise office use, so it would not normally come under review by the city council.

However, City Manager Robert Wynn said this morning that there is a provision in the city's general plan which enables the city council to review any project in the city that might have substantial impact on the other parts of the general plan, such as its traffic circulation element.

Drifter Still Out in Front In Transpac

The yacht Drifter reported a position 742 miles from Honolulu at 9 a.m. today and was 132 miles ahead of Windward Passage's record run in 1971.

Merlin was in second place on elapsed time and was 771 miles from the finish. Both yachts are in the light displacement division of the race.

In the Division I class A battle, Windward Passage had moved ahead of Kialoa and was 829 miles from the finish. Kialoa was 840 miles out.

The four lead boats were all ahead of WP's position of 874 miles to go in 1971.

Ragtime's position placed her 829 miles from Diamond Head.

Winds were reported from 18 to 23 knots through the 66-boat fleet. (See earlier story Page B6.)

Amin Orders Two Limos?

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The Daimler Benz motor company says its dealer in Uganda has ordered two Mercedes 600 limousines, one of the world's most expensive cars, and the newspaper Bild Zeitung said they are for President Idi Amin.

"We don't know who they are for," said a company spokesman, "but you'd be surprised to know how many people apparently can afford a 600."

However, the spokesman denied the newspaper's report that the cars were to be armor-plated and equipped with extra-strong air conditioning and direct communications to Amin's palace guard.

The company said the 600 model is made only to order and about 50 are sold annually at prices of up to $52,000, depending on the extra equipment. Users have included Pope Paul VI, President Tito of Yugoslavia and Mao Tse-tung.

'Big Ride' Spells Jail For Youth

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ray Higgenbottom said he "wanted to ride in a big car just like the president." So he stole a hearse — twice.

Higgenbottom, 19, tried to steal a hearse Thursday, but police released him after the funeral home declined to press charges.

From police headquarters he went back to the Muehlig Funeral home, grabbed a funeral flag, jumped into the same hearse — by now in a garage — drove it through a wooden wall and up the street.

Chased by police again, he was caught when the hearse ran into an embankment at — naturally — Fairview Cemetery after hitting another car and injuring its driver.

He was held for arraignment on a variety of charges.

Vandals Wreak Destruction on Home

PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Gerald Schubring and his family, back from a camping trip, pushed open their front door in this comfortable suburb and felt horror: vandals had kicked through eight walls, slashed furniture, strewn food about — and stolen almost nothing.

Schubring's stunned wife Carol sized it up:

"They came to destroy, and boy, they did a beautiful job. Two tape recorders and a clock radio are the only things missing."

"There was total destruction everywhere and all I could do was scream, 'Oh, My God!'" she said.

"Steaks, roasts, a gallon of sourdough starter and other food was thrown all over the place."

"Two glass chandeliers were smashed as if they were swinging on them. They poured liquid detergent on our bed and poured oil inside and out of our 1976 auto parked in the garage. They put Kitty Litter on our dining room table."

"They took all our slides and dumped them all over the place, ripped up our projector screen, knocked in the television picture tube and completely dismantled our eight-track tape player."

"The hedge clippers were lodged in the ceiling of the family room and a knife was stuck in the wall. One hole in a wall upstairs was big enough to walk through."

"They covered the family room wall with eggs and Vaseline. They smashed mirror tiles on the wall and punctured holes in family portraits, including a photograph of my 9-year-old daughter who died three years ago."

Gerald Schubring is a 39-year-old computer analyst. His wife Carol is 36. They have four children and their home is a seven-room dwelling in this quiet, affluent suburb northwest of Chicago.

Police say the neighborhood's homes are worth an average of $90,000 to $100,000.

"I don't know who would do this," said Schubring. "It's clear that it was just malicious vandalism."

But police say more may be involved. They want to know if any one harbored a grudge.

College Value Up 27.5 Percent

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The 27.5 percent increase in Saddleback College property valuation this year means trustees could cut the tax rate by about 20 cents and still raise the same amount of money as they did last year.

District officials view such a move as unlikely, however, in light of the district's continuing struggle to finance new construction to meet growth.

It is also improbable because of a new state law that put a lid on college district tax rates, permitting them to be lowered and frozen but not increased again without a vote of the electorate.

District Business Manager Roy Barletta had predicted a valuation increase of 18 percent this year and expressed some surprise at the actual figure.

Barletta said the difference would amount to "several hundred thousand dollars" if trustees choose to hold the tax rate at its present level of 95 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Much of the valuation increase reported this week stems from new construction, though virtually all homeowners in the college district will pay higher taxes next year.

With the average home in the district now selling for roughly $90,000, the tax bill — to support the college — on such a home (See COLLEGE, Page A2)

Jobless Rate Up

Wholesale Prices Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell six-tenths of one percent in June, the biggest drop in nearly four years, the government reported today. But the good news was offset by a rise in the unemployment rate from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent.

A big drop in farm prices led the price decline last month, an indication of an easing of inflationary pressures at the wholesale level.

Wholesale prices generally presage prices consumers pay and the effects of last month's decline could first show up at supermarket counters following several months of rapidly rising food prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the increase in unemployment "can't be considered a very serious adverse sign for the future."

He also told the Joint Economic Committee that the drop in wholesale prices is "a long way from a new pattern."

But he agreed with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), that recent drops in retail sales and in the index of leading indicators, coupled with increased unemployment, "may be the beginning of some serious trouble that will have to be watched closely."

The increase in the jobless rate was the first in four months, as the number of Americans without jobs in June rose by 210,000 to 7 million. Most of the increase occurred among adult women, whose jobless rate rose from 6.6 to 7.2 percent.

The price news was certain to cheer the Carter administration, which has been deeply worried over price reports in previous months that showed inflation increasing at a worrisome 10 percent annual rate during the first quarter.

However, the turnaround in the unemployment rate could be a disturbing sign for the long run. Administration officials have cautioned that unemployment might increase in some months but are predicting the jobless rate will decline to about 6.5 percent by the year's end.

Not all the job report was bad. Employment continued to increase last month, rising by 270,000 to a total of 90.7 million. Employment grew by 2.9 million over the past eight months as the economy continued to expand.

However, there was also a large gain in the size of the labor force last month, which rose by 480,000 to 97.6 million. The labor force includes those at work and those looking for work.

Running Bulls Kill Teen

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — Dozens of men chased by fighting bulls in this city's annual festival jammed up at the entrance to a bull ring today, trampling each other and being trampled by the half-ton animals. A teenager was crushed to death under the pileup and 35 men were injured.

Authorities said the dead boy, Jose Joaquin Esparza, 17, a promising amateur soccer player from Pamplona, triggered the pileup when he tripped and fell at the narrow gate to the bull ring.

One after another, about 50 men running ahead of the six charging bulls fell atop Esparza. The bulls then plowed into the mass of humanity, trampling the fallen runners for about five minutes before heading into the ring.

The screaming men, many covered with blood, lay writhing on the ground until ambulances arrived.

Doctors said Esparza was crushed to death.

It was the second day of the annual running of the bulls festival.

Esparza was the first fatality in the bull running since 1975, when a bricklayer was killed and 20 men hurt in another pileup at the entrance to the arena.

There will be six more runs in the week-long festival, over a 900-yard course from the corrals through the streets of the arena. Police estimated that 1,200 runners, an unusually large number, took part today.

Hotel and bar workers halted a strike just before the festival began. A spokesman for the strikers said the walkout, called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers, might resume after the heavy spenders leave town.

There were also street fights on opening day between Basque nationalists and anti-political holidaymakers shouting "Festival — Yes! Politics — No!"

THIEVES TAKE ENTIRE HOME

SPRAGUE RIVER, Ore. (AP) — Donald and Alice Humphrey of Richmond, Calif., reported "stolen properties" to the Klamath County sheriff.

The Humphreys, who returned to their vacation home site near Sprague River after a two-year absence, found that thieves had made off with the entire house, an outhouse, a deck for tents and an animal pen.

Newport Man Stuck 8 Hours in Ceiling

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 24-year-old Newport Beach man is recovering from minor injuries today after being trapped for more than eight hours in a ceiling crawl space in temperatures firemen said reached more than 100 degrees.

Erin Bercham was pulled from the enclosed attic area at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday by firemen who were called to his home at 7404 W. Ocean Front by friends who had worked unsuccessfully at freeing him for more than an hour and a half.

Fire department spokesman Art Morton said Bercham climbed into his attic at about 12:30 p.m. to do some work on a light fixture that hangs over his kitchen sink.

School Heads Get Raises, Merit Pay

Saddleback Valley Unified School District administrators will receive cost of living raises this year in addition to any merit pay awarded on the basis of job performance.

The size of cost of living hikes to be given to individual administrators will range from four to 10 percent, depending on the amount of merit pay earned last year.

The administrators will again be eligible for merit pay raises this year, on top of their cost of living hikes, based on upcoming job performance evaluations.

Gilbert Moreno, district business manager, has estimated the pay increases for 48 management employees will cost the district $100,000. Administration salaries total about $1.4 million of the district's $36 million tentative budget.

Cost of living increases were applied to the administrative salary schedules in an effort to bring the top managers in line with other district employees, who got an across-the-board increase of five percent last year.

Under the merit plan last year, administrative raises ranged from zero to six percent, with the average falling at about 4.5 percent.

The latest revision to the administration pay charts is part of a plan to make merit pay a true record for good work.

Under the new schedule, a high school principal can earn a maximum of $33,386. Last year, the (See RAISES, Page A2)

Bercham became wedged into the crawl space apparently because he had loaded tools into his pockets.

At about 6 p.m. Bercham's girlfriend, Penny Arthur, came over for a visit and spent nearly an hour trying to find him.

She told firemen she could hear his faint cries and his pounding on the walls, but she couldn't figure out where the noise was coming from.

When Miss Arthur did locate him, she called a friend, Mark Anderson, and they tried to slide Bercham out of his trap by covering him with dishwashing liquid.

Morton said Anderson and Miss Arthur punched some holes in the ceiling near Bercham's face so he could get air. They used one for a straw to provide him with water.

At 8:30 p.m., they gave up their efforts and called firemen.

Morton said seven firemen from the city hall station under command of Capt. Jerry Strom worked for more than 45 minutes before they were able to peel the wood and plaster off the walls and ceiling and free the trapped man.

Morton said Bercham apparently suffered only a few minor cuts and bruises in the ordeal.

Minuteman Halted

Rockwell Layoffs Seen in Anaheim

Rockwell International will lay off 700 more employees from its Anaheim plant because of a halt in production of the Minuteman 3 missile.

The first notices will be sent out later this month, officials said Thursday, in the wake of an order from the Defense Department to halt production by the end of September.

Meanwhile, some 3,000 former Rockwell employees already have applied for unemployment benefits from the state, officials reported.

A spokeswoman for the state Employment Development Department (EDD) said Rockwell applications were being processed in groups of about 15 to speed up the process.

About 8,000 workers were laid off by the company when President Carter decided against production of the B-1 bomber.

One employee decided this week to take advantage of the company's special job relocation program, and by the end of the day, was on another firm's payroll.

Company officials hope this is an indication their relocation program will find jobs for at least half of those laid off when the B1 program was canceled.

Jack Hefley, a spokesman for the firm's B-1 division, said that 1,200 of the 2,700 B-1 workers already laid off have gone through briefings about the salary and benefits due them, about how to write resumes and about interviewing for new positions.

Hefley said that employee profiles will be catalogued by next week, and will be made available to other Rockwell divisions and to 150 companies that have contacted Rockwell for employee information.

"We're estimating there are quite a few openings for our skilled people and we feel we can relocate up to 50 percent of our people," Hefley said.

All of the company's divisions have stopped advertising for new employees, he said.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), plans to explore what can be done for the laid off workers in a meeting today with government officials and Rockwell representatives from the firm's Palmdale assembly plant and El Segundo headquarters.

Richard Silberman, state Secretary of Business and Transportation, said "we are more interested in work than in aid," but indicated officials will look at city, county and state sources of funding to supplement what may be obtained from the federal government.

financed by state school building funds which could not be used for a pool. So, the school's staff and parents said they would raise the needed money in the community.

Some people doubted that they could raise enough money. But Mrs. Edman said she studied the proposal when she was assigned to the school in March, 1976. After that, she said, she knew the goal would be reached.

Esperanza students have been using community pools for their swimming lessons. These facilities, however, often aren't available in good weather.

Mrs. Edman said the pool will provide her students with both physical and psychological therapy.

"I just couldn't imagine any more solid support from the community," she said. "I just couldn't imagine it any better than it's been."

In addition to the support for the pool, she said, there has been an expanded awareness of the school.

Goldstein Appointed

North Orange County Municipal Court Judge Leonard Goldstein of Newport Beach was appointed to the Superior Court bench today by Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Judge Goldstein, 45, replaces Judge Samuel Dreizen who retired last week after 16 years on the superior bench.

Judge Goldstein was named to the north county court by Governor Brown in 1976.

He served as a hearing officer for the State of California and in private practice before being appointed to the Fullerton bench. He is a Democrat.

would increase from about $214 last year to almost $275 this year, if the full 27.5 percent valuation increase is applied (individual assessments will vary).

The pending budget for next year presently stands at $24.7 million and Barletta said trustees could conceivably increase that figure based on the additional revenue generated by the valuation increase.

Barletta said the additional revenue could be used by trustees to restore some items cut from the budget, which started out at $30 million. Last year's final budget was only $19 million.

In addition, the business manager suggested that the additional funds could be applied to construction of the district's second campus in Irvine on a "pay-as-you-go" basis rather than a more costly lease-purchase arrangement.

Alien Arrests Slowing Down At San Onofre

Arrests of illegal aliens were down this week at the San Onofre checkpoint south of San Clemente, after U.S. Border Patrol agents apprehended nearly 500 aliens over the three-day holiday weekend.

Sunday, the arrest of 444 aliens on one eight-hour shift broke all previous records for a single shift, said Alex Janicki, patrol agent in charge. The total number of aliens arrested Sunday was 493, he said, not approaching the record 570 arrested in a single 24-hour period on June 12.

The 776 aliens and two U.S. citizens arrested for smuggling on Sunday and Monday compared to 206 aliens and a single U.S. citizen arrested July 3 and 4 last year, Janicki said.

"You must remember that last year we didn't have the checkpoint," he said. "We had to have probable cause to stop a vehicle." He referred to a federal court interpretation of the law then extant.

Smuggling arrests at the checkpoint dwindled to 79 on Tuesday and 73 on Wednesday, he said.

FPC Cites Texaco

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission has ruled that Texaco Inc. has been burning offshore natural gas at one of its Port Arthur, Tex., refineries without proper authority, a spokesman said Thursday.

Texaco issued a statement in New York claiming its use of the gas was "entirely proper and legal" and a spokesman said the company was "not engaged in any deceptive practices."

Libel Defense To Start

WINCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — After emotional but confused testimony by the chief witness against the Scottsboro Boys, attorneys rested her case today in a $6 million libel suit against NBC.

The network planned to call two main witnesses: John McGreevy, who wrote the script for the television movie "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys," and Dr. Dan T. Carter, a history professor from Emory University in Atlanta who advised NBC on the movie.

NBC is fighting the suit filed by Victoria Price Street, now the 70-year-old wife of a Tennessee tobacco farmer. She contends that the network invaded her privacy and libeled her in the movie by suggesting that she lied in the Scottsboro case.

Back in the 1930s, through three trials, Mrs. Price testified that she and a companion were raped by nine blacks as they hitched a ride aboard a freight train from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Huntsville, Ala.

"When they stopped the train, I was still laying down," she said Thursday. "One of them was in there and Ruby was in there and they woke me up and helped me get my clothes on."

Mrs. Street said she was bleeding from the head and other parts of her body.

"And I've got the scars to prove it from where those black boys cut me," she said, pointing excitedly to her chest, her arm, her face and her back.

Doctors at the original trial said they saw no signs of blood on either woman.

Nine blacks were convicted of rape and spent a total of 130 years in prison before they were pardoned or paroled. They contended they had been railroaded in a racially troubled atmosphere.

"If they'd been a bunch of white boys, I'd have done the same thing," Mrs. Street testified Thursday. "It wasn't because of color that I charged. Because there's as good colored folks as there are white folk."

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Street said some scenes from the movies were inaccurate and others were "bold-faced lies."

She also denied testimony from transcripts of the original trials half a dozen times, saying at one point she may have been confused.

"It all happened so long ago," she explained.

Teaching 'Brass' To Older Folks

By WILLIAM SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

MORE AND MORE young people — and young women in particular — are engaging in an activity that's become known as "assertion training."

Saddleback College has decided such training, which is aimed at improving self-image and confidence, shouldn't be limited to the younger generation, which often is cocky enough.

So the Mission Viejo school is offering a summer course that teaches "assertive skills for older people." The class will be offered through the college's Emeritus Institute from July 12 to Aug. 18 on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon.

Instructor Janice Chalfant noted that assertion should never be confused with aggression.

"The intent of assertive behavior is to communicate honestly and directly, standing up for personal rights without being demanding, or humiliating or coercing others," she said.

With practice, assertion-trained oldsters will be able to create better relationships with authority figures, doctors, lawyers, bank officials and the Internal Revenue Service, Mrs. Chalfant said.

SADDLEBACK VALLEY Unified School District trustees miss meetings now and then but as far as anyone knows, an upcoming absence may be the first attributed to a case of measles.

The dreaded red spots struck Mark Howell, the board's student member, this week.

Howell, selected by a student committee to sit for a second year as the student member, was to be sworn in at the session next week. However, district officials doubt he will recuperate in time.

"He has a terrible, terrible case of the measles," said Loa Young, board president.

Howell thinks he picked up the disease while attending Boys State in Sacramento recently.

That raises the question if some of our state legislators are also spending some vacation days with the itchy spots.

A GROUP OF 39 BOYS from all over Orange and Los Angeles Counties called El Toro Marine Corps Air Station "home" for the last two weeks in June.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 8 to 16, participated in the "boot camp" portion of the Marine Corps League's "Young Marine" program.

To make the experience as authentic as possible, the first stop was the barber shop for a "white sidewall" job, followed by classroom work, drills and a healthy dose of physical training.

"The most important part of our training is to give the boys respect not only for themselves but also for their parents, country and flag," said Ralph Hutton, a retired Marine gunnery sergeant and founder of the first Young Marine Unit in California.

Tested on Dogs

Laetrile 'Deadly,' Claims Scientist

DAVIS (AP) — Laetrile, touted by some as a cancer cure, can be deadly when taken with some uncooked foods, says a scientist who tested the combination on dogs.

Out of 10 dogs fed a combination of Laetrile and almonds in an experiment last week, six died, says Dr. Jerry Lemis of UC Davis.

He spelled out his conclusions on the dangers of Laetrile in a paper published today in the California Medical Association's Western Journal of Medicine.

The CMA has been the leading opponent of legalization of Laetrile in California. A bill to legalize the substance has been approved by the state Senate. Similar measures have become law in 11 states in the past year.

Lewis, who heads the Davis medical school's studies of blood and tumors, disclosed the tests on dogs in an interview after the paper was written.

Laetrile, an apricot pit derivative, contains cyanide. Lewis wrote that the cyanide is chemically released by a substance, beta-glucosidase, found in some uncooked foods.

Marine Gets His Bars

Robert E. Ledee, Huntington Beach, a Marine air reservist, fulfills a 14-year goal of becoming a Marine Corps officer as he has his captain's bars pinned on by his wife, Sharon, and Col. Simon Kittler, commanding officer of the Reserve Training Detachment at El Toro MCAS. He was promoted to captain on a direct commission by Gen. Lewis H. Wilson, commandant of the Marine Corps. Capt. Ledee is one of few persons ever given a direct commission.

Playing With Fire Lands 2 Boys in Dutch

A pair of north Huntington Beach boys, 15, who just can't seem to learn, are back in parental custody today after being reminded again you get burned when you play with fire. Police Detective Bob Russell said the youths, who admitted they are experimenting with incendiary devices, set fire to street pavement at Montecito Drive and Woodstock Lane with Molotov cocktails. The day before, they were nabbed after an airborne contraption made of a Fourth of July pyrotechnic pinwheel and a sparkler lit on a roof, igniting it. No formal charges have been filed since the fires weren't intentional, police said, but officers said the boys' neighbors in the Marina High School region are becoming impatient with their experiments.

Coed Gets Grant

Former Fountain Valley High School student Myrene Tierney, 20, now a first-year coed at Creighton University, Omaha, Nev., has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship from the Fountain Valley Community Hospital Guild.

Terminals Close

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A strike by the 98-member office workers unit of the International Longshore Workers Union over benefits has closed five major cargo terminals in Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors.

Labor Unit Attacked By Grower

FRESNO (AP) — A Kern County rose grower contends the state farm labor board has been "totally unresponsive" to charges that United Farm Workers pickets have harassed and threatened non-striking workers. "The board and its agents in Fresno and Delano have been totally unresponsive to a series of charges," said John Camp, manager of Mt. Arbor Nurseries at McFarland. Those charges include "threats against employees' lives, vandalism to their automobiles and picketing and other tactics of harassment at their homes," Camp said at press conferences here and in Bakersfield Thursday.

Officers Ousted in Shooting

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A police officer who told a 14-year-old Explorer Scout to fire a shotgun at a car driven by a man who ran through some red lights has been relieved of duty, along with another officer who fired three shots at the car. The driver of the car, fatally wounded in a scuffle with one of the officers at the end of a high-speed chase through the city, never fired at police, a spokesman said.

SGT. ROBERT "Bo" Marshall said officers Arthur Nugent and Gary Evans were relieved of duty in connection with the shooting of Edward Jones Jr., 23, on Monday night. There was no indication of when disciplinary hearings for the officers might be held. Marshall gave this account:

NUGENT AND Evans noted Jones' car speeding and gave chase at about 56 miles per hour. Jones ran through several red lights and struck another police car during the chase.

Nugent instructed the unidentified scout, who was participating in a training program for future police officers and had been taught to fire a weapon, to fire a shotgun at the car, and the boy did so.

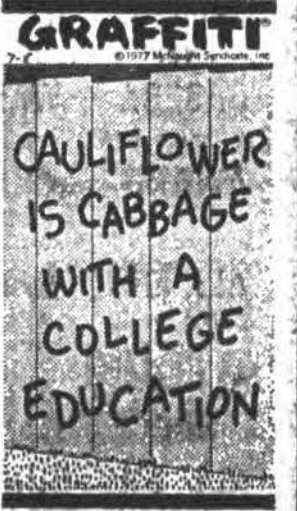

EVANS LATER fired three shots at the car as Jones fled the officers on a 10-mile chase, reaching speeds up to 110 m.p.h. Jones eventually ran his car off the road south of Little Rock, and Evans approached it. Jones got out and struggled with Evans, whose pistol discharged, fatally wounding Jones in the neck.

"It is not our policy to shoot at cars for running red lights," Marshall told a news conference.

LT. L.E. HALE said acting police chief W.D. "Hoot" Gibson had changed department policy to authorize the release of the officers' names. He said Gibson told him to "tell it like it is, including if we've made a mistake."

On Monday night, Marshall had said Jones shot at officers first. But he said Wednesday that account was "probably not factual."

"WE HAVE no evidence a shot was fired at the officers," he said.

Parents Held In Beating Death of Tot

MERCED (AP) — A Merced husband and wife were charged with felony manslaughter and child abuse in connection with the death of their infant son.

The charges against Jesse Lewis, Sr., 30, and Mary Lewis, 16, were announced by Thursday by Dist. Atty. Patrick Hallford.

AN AUTOPSY SHOWED the infant, also named Jesse, died from a fractured skull May 18.

Mrs. Lewis testified at a coroner's inquest that she thought her husband had injured the child. But Lewis testified that his wife frequently beat the infant at their residence in a Merced motel.

HALLFORD SAID THE couple will be tried separately with Mrs. Lewis answering charges in Juvenile Court because of her age.

Lewis already faces a rape charge stemming from a separate incident at an Atwater motel, Hallford said.

Brown Energy Meet Guest

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will join at least 36 other governors Saturday at President Carter's energy conference at the White House, his office says.

The Thursday announcement said Brown will also attend a briefing by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano.

Carter is to host a meeting on energy in the morning, followed by afternoon workshops on vehicle fuels, the use of coal, and other issues.

Street Drugs Topic Of Seminar in HB

Street drugs available through illicit sources and their ultimate impact on a community will be explored Saturday in a day-long seminar at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

The free program is offered in the campus' Forum One, with registration beginning at 8 a.m. under sponsorship of GWC and the Correctional Facilities Nurses' Association of Southern California.

ORGANIZERS SAY IT is designed for nurses, law enforcement personnel, teachers, parents, paramedics, pharmacists and young people concerned with the contemporary problem of drug abuse.

College credit in continuing education for nurses and pharmacists may be obtained by turning in evaluation sheets to the school.

"What's Happening on the Streets?" is the title of the opening morning talk by Hugh Shanahan, supervising agent for the U.S. Department of Justice's Drug Enforcement Administration.

"WHAT DID YOU Take?" is the title of a film presentation to be followed by a lecture, "Who's Up and Who's Down?," by Tustin Police Sgt. Fred Krasco.

"Here Comes The Nurse..." is a discussion to follow, led by Kay Coffee R.N., a detention officer at San Mateo County Jail and president of the Northern California division of the Correctional Facilities Nurses' Association.

Anni Brautigam, charge nurse at the UCI Medical Center emergency room, and Donna Innis, R.N., drug abuse program coordinator at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk, will assist.

THE AFTERNOON session features a workshop on the psychology of drug abuse by Dr. Forrest S. Tennant Jr., UCLA associate professor.

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow — And The Law," is a session conducted by Superior Court Judge William Murray, State Department of Corrections parole unit supervisor Louis P. Carney and Huntington Beach Police Chief Earle Robitaille.

Further information is available from Dr. Loren Moll or Bruce Hand at Golden West College.
