Shoplifting Spree

Teens Face Theft Charge

Sixteen teen-agers, most of them girls, were arrested for stealing from Saddleback Valley stores over the weekend, according to a spokesman for the sheriff's south county substation which is gearing up for a surge of Easter vacation shoplifting.

Some Beaches Opened After Sewer Repair

BULLETIN
Orange County Health Department officials announced today that quarantined beaches from 38th to 52nd Street in Newport Beach would be opened to the public immediately. The ban remained in effect in Newport from 52nd Street to the Santa Ana River.

Sanitation workers today stopped the flow of sewage that had been pouring into the Santa Ana River at the rate of four to five million gallons a day for the past week.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts, said this morning that repairs to a broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

The 30-inch main broke March 12 and the sewage was carried to the sea by excess water flowing down the normally dry Santa Ana River, contaminating beaches on both sides of the river mouth that forms the border between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach.

Robert Stone, director of environmental health for the county Health Department, said the beaches would remain closed today, but could be reopened as early as Tuesday if tests show a decline in bacteria in ocean water.

He said water samples were to be analyzed this afternoon before a decision is made on the reopening of the strands stretching from 38th Street in Newport Beach to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach.

Lifeguards said small weekend beach crowds posed no problems in terms of keeping Twelve of the youths were arrested at stores within the Laguna Hills Mall, said a sheriff's patrol sergeant. Eight of them were girls.

Four were arrested at K-Mart in Saddleback Plaza, he added. Three of them were girls.

The sergeant said a deputy will be stationed at the mall to handle the anticipated increase in shoplifting during the week-long vacation period. Most shoplifters, he said, are detained by security personnel in the larger stores and turned over to deputies for booking.

Clothing, jewelry and phonograph records are the items most often taken at Easter time, said the sergeant, who said the shoplifter's Christmas list usually is even longer.

He said it appears the teen-agers take mostly for themselves at Easter while stealing everything from pipes to housewares as Christmas gifts.

Car Sprayers Sought in NB

Newport Beach police today are looking for the occupants of an old, light-colored pickup truck who apparently doused eight cars in Corona del Mar with corrosive chemicals early Saturday.

Police reported eight cars parked in the 400 block of Fernleaf Avenue were damaged by the chemical which they said appeared to be concentrated swimming pool chlorine.

Officers said the truck and its four occupants were seen in the area and that the witnesses detected a strong odor of chlorine at the time.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 65-year-old man who left a suicide note in his car leaped to his death from the Golden Gate Bridge, authorities reported. A coroner's investigator said Lawrence McCarthy, of San Francisco, was spotted floating under the bridge by a Coast Guard vessel on routine patrol early Sunday.

Rapist Given 99 Years Man Convicted in Kidnap, Rape of 15-year-old

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years.

"The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment. The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

They portrayed Bannister as a sick man who knew only trauma, rejection and failure — a ninth-grade dropout who was in and out of trouble with police and had no success with women.

Three psychiatrists testified for the defense that Bannister was legally insane, suffering from schizophrenia so that he couldn't tell right from wrong or understand what he was doing.

"There is a circus going on in his head," Slaughter told jurors. "What you have seen is a modern-day American tragedy. There are two victims, Charlotte Grosse and Rusty Bannister. . . we ask that you forgive Rusty Bannister because he is sick and did not know right from wrong."

The state agreed Bannister was ill.

"He's sick but sane," argued State Attorney James Gardner. "You can call this man misguided and pitiful. You can say he's got bats in his belfry. But you can't call him insane."

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army, driving northward despite a U.N. call for withdrawal, claimed control of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River today. The government declared that any settlement of the conflict must ensure that Palestinians do not return to the area.

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "the first steps were taken this morning" to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution on southern Lebanon and "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in the area.

Talking to reporters outside Prime Minister Menachem Begin's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herzog said he understood the U.N. chief of Middle East services, Lt. Gen. Enso Siilasvuo, met at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem to make "the necessary arrangements."

"It's a big human problem," Herzog said. "Christian villagers are pleading with us not to leave."

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization denied that all of Lebanon south of the Litani, 15 miles north of the

State Orders Cut In Amtrak Fares

Amtrak riders on the Los Angeles-San Diego route through Orange County will get a break on their round-trip tickets from April 30 to June 30.

A recent compromise between Amtrak and the California Department of Transportation over proposed fare increases has resulted in a temporary promotional discount on the line, people from using the contaminated beaches, although Newport Beach Lifeguard Lt. Logan Lockaby noted that "we're having the usual problem with the quarantine signs being ripped off."

The sewage pipe, buried near the river bed just south of the Garden Grove Freeway, apparently broke after rain waters washing down the river ate away the pipe's protective covering.

Sanitation workers were powerless to begin repairs for the first few days because spillways at the Prado Dam upstream had to be closed and the river drained before work could begin.

Miss Baker said district officials will decide today whether to do more work on the pipe or let it remain as repaired.

She said they don't anticipate any further problems from river water eroding the pipe's protective covering.

Gas Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Phased deregulation of natural gas prices and taxes on accompanying windfall gas profits for energy companies were endorsed Sunday by the League of Women Voters. Basing its position on a two-year study, the organization also called for federal policies that would reduce the rate of energy growth in this country.

which is heavily subsidized by the state and other local agencies, including Los Angeles County.

While fares nationwide will increase 2.5 percent, San Diego to Los Angeles riders will be able, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, to buy a round-trip ticket for the price of a one-way ticket plus $1.

So, while the one-way fare between Los Angeles and Santa Ana will be hiked from $3.10 to $3.28, on three days a week a rider can travel there and back for $4.28.

The fare between Los Angeles and San Diego will go from $9 to $9.25, but the same discount will apply.

In addition, a second promotional fare will extend the present 20 percent discount on a round-trip ticket Monday through Thursday to include Fridays. This offer also will end June 30.

CalTrans has opposed the overall fare increases, saying low fares are needed to attract riders, and threatened to cut off its subsidies unless a compromise was reached. The promotional fares were agreed on as an interim measure.

Longterm CalTrans-Amtrak contracts are still being worked out, according to Adriana Giamturco, CalTrans director.

Kentucky Bans Laetrile Use

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Legislature has killed a bill that would have legalized the use of Laetrile in the state.

The Senate voted just before the session's constitutionally imposed deadline Sunday to conclude its business while a conference committee was trying to resolve differences between Senate and House versions of a bill carrying a Laetrile legalization amendment.

Laetrile is found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Some claim it is a cure for cancer while others say it is worthless.

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP)—Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the Brittany coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

Israeli border, had fallen to the invasion force. The PLO said guerrilla "suicide squads" were counter-attacking "in many embattled locations."

The Israeli military command reported no heavy fighting, however. It said its forces reached positions dominating the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward.

The Israelis said they went around Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the border, and cut it off. They said their line of control extended eastward to a point north of Abasiya and to a position dominating the Akiya Bridge over the Litani.

The Israeli advance indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wanted to flush out the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. force authorized by Security Council resolutions Sunday.

The council called for an Israeli pullout "forthwith" from the region.

The Cabinet, meeting in special session without Begin, who was in the United States, issued a statement saying any settlement of the Lebanon crisis "must ensure southern Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks."

The statement reiterated that Israel does not intend to occupy southern Lebanon.

Two more Israeli soldiers were reported killed, bringing the admitted Israeli death toll to 20 in six days as the invasion force expanded the "security belt" to a depth of some 15 miles above the border.

The PLO in Beirut claimed it inflicted "heavy casualties" on the Israeli soldiers. The Lebanese government reported 1,168 Lebanese and Palestinian soldiers and civilians killed in the fighting, which began Wednesday.

The guerrillas Sunday said 144 of their fighters had been killed and that 450 Israelis had been killed or wounded.

Ford 'Shifts' Probed

114 Accidents in 5 Years Related?

DETROIT (AP)—Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Torinos, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTDs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lincolns; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 251 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined that half the fatal accidents involved FMX transmissions, the investigation was expanded.

Ford faces several lawsuits concerning the allegedly faulty transmissions.

Services Tuesday For Gen. Quilter

Military graveside services will be held Tuesday for Maj. Gen. Charles J. Quilter, USMC-ret., a resident of Emerald Bay who died Saturday of cancer. He was 63.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach.

General Quilter first moved to Laguna Beach in 1957 and was president of the Emerald Bay Community Association from 1970-1972. He was a member of the Parish Council of St. Catherine's Church.

The University of Rochester, N.Y., graduate earned his Naval Aviator wings and a commission in the Marine Corps in 1937. He served as a fighter pilot flight leader at Midway Island and Guadalcanal during World War II.

General Quilter served in Korea and commanded the 3rd Marine Air Wing at the El Toro Marine Air Station from 1966 to 1968. He received some 14 U.S. and foreign personal decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth Quilter; sons Christopher M. Quilter of New York City and Patrick H. Quilter, Matthew M. Quilter and Charles J. Quilter II of Laguna Beach. General Quilter is also survived by brothers, Adm. Joseph Quilter, USN-ret., of Portola Valley; Capt. Edward S. Quilter, USN-ret., of Irvine, and Brendan T. Quilter of Michigan; and sisters Patricia Quilter, Elizabeth Quilter and Mary Louise Quilter of Binghamton, N.Y., and Frances Donovan of Montrose, Penn.

Boy Charged In Slaying

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A 16-year-old boy is to be charged with murder in the death of a Clovis woman whose body was found near here, police report.

They said the boy is the same one who was sought in Davis March 9 after a high speed chase on Interstate 80.

The Sacramento County coroner's office said Doris A. Ramirez, 46, was found dead Friday by an off-duty deputy sheriff in a gully east of Sloughhouse. She had been bludgeoned and raped.

Life's Better So Driver Pays $40 Fine

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—Kim Yoder is apparently one of those people who will go to any length to get out of a speeding ticket—even having himself declared dead.

The 24-year-old Goshen, Ind., man was caught speeding on Interstate 70 near here and ordered to pay a $40 fine or appear in court Feb. 10.

Although he failed to show up at his hearing, the state's attorney's office received a letter from Alfredo Girardo, who identified himself as Yoder's stepfather.

"I regret to inform you that my stepson, Kim Yoder, was killed in a hunting accident January 5th," Girardo said in the letter.

He asked that the speeding ticket be dismissed.

Investigator Ronald Numaker agreed the case should be dismissed but only after a death certificate was produced.

A few days later, the state's attorney's office received another letter, but this time from Yoder himself.

"A couple of weeks ago, being broke and of lesser mind, I took the liberty of reporting my death," Yoder wrote. "I know now the seriousness of those actions and am prepared for reconciliation."

"I am very much alive, thank you, and hope you accept my apology," Yoder added.

Attached to the letter was a check for $40.

Waddill Claims Baby Already Dead

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dr. William Baxter Waddill told an Orange County Superior Court jury today that a baby he is accused of strangling in the Westminster Community Hospital nursery was dead when he reached the hospital on March 2, 1977.

Waddill testified in his own defense that the baby which the prosecution claims survived his attempt to abort the mother was "pale and cold and lifeless" when he reached the nursery.

Waddill told defense attorney Charles Weedman that the nursing staff and a doctor he found in the nursery were "doing nothing, just standing around."

And he expressed his belief that the nurse who told him over the telephone that she saw the baby move shortly after it was expelled from the womb "simply misinterpreted signs of life." "It was lifeless and dead," he said. "Anyway, I've never had a live birth after a saline abortion."

Members of the Westminster hospital staff and two doctors have testified that the baby delivered by Waddill's 18-year-old patient showed signs of life and had a discernible heart beat and respiration after it was rushed to the nursery.

Nurses have testified that Waddill halted their efforts at resuscitating the infant, sent them out of the nursery and ordered them not to return.

Weedman asked Waddill today to explain that action.

"Well, no one was doing anything," Waddill said. "Some of the staff seemed pretty tense and upset and I had tried to calm them. There was no point in having them stand around in the nursery doing nothing."

Weedman then asked his client why he summoned Dr. Ronald Cornelisen, an Orange pediatrician, to the hospital "if, as you say, the baby was dead and beyond help."

"I wanted to have him there to calm people down," Waddill explained. "I thought he would verify the death of the baby and that his presence there with me would help to calm the hospital staff."

"Did you send the staff from the nursery so that you could strangle this baby to death, Dr. Waddill?" Weedman asked the witness.

Some Beaches Reopen

Portions of beaches in Huntington Beach and Newport Beach which have been off limits because of sewage contamination were declared safe for public use today by Orange County Health Department officials.

Health workers had quarantined beaches from 38th Street in Newport to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach after a 30-inch sewage main broke in the Santa Ana River on March 12.

Sanitation workers today stopped the flow of sewage which had been pouring into the river at the rate of four to five million gallons a day for the past week.

Robert Stone, director of Environmental Health for the county Health Department said some of the beaches on either side of the river mouth will remain restricted, but those beaches could be re-opened as early as Tuesday.

Stone's staff today opened the beach from 38th Street to 52nd Street in Newport Beach and the strand between Beach Boulevard and Brookhurst Street in Huntington Beach.

Stone said tests will be taken this afternoon of the waters between 52nd Street and Brookhurst Street to determine when those strands can be opened to public use.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts said this morning that repairs to the broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

The 30-inch main broke when rain water flowing down the normally dry river bed eroded the pipe's protective covering. The flowing river carried the sewage to sea, contaminating beaches on both sides of the river that forms the city line between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach.

Miss Baker said district officials will decide today whether to do more work on the pipe or let it remain as repaired.

She said they don't anticipate any further problems from river water eroding the pipe's protective covering.

Grace Marks T'ai Chi

Meditative Martial Arts Course Begins at UCI

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

He moves like the blades of grass he says he can hear bending to the wind, unhurried, sliken and yielding.

Swaying, dipping, his hands lead the motion of the rest of his reed body with balletic grace.

He learned to move that way in Macao, in China, in a monastery where a student of T'ai Chi Ch'uan was made to practice a single breathing exercise for months, to prove his devotion, before he was allowed to learn anything else of this, the most meditative of the martial arts.

Dominic Cheung, who today is a professor of Chinese and comparative literature at USC and who teaches T'ai Chi and the philosophy from which it springs, Taoism, doesn't make his students wait so long.

In the UC Irvine Extension course he begins Saturday, his students will have only 10 Saturdays to learn all the 81 basic movements of the exercise (9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Crawford Hall Stage on campus, $69 fee). Cheung says the course is just a beginning; it will take years of daily practice before most of his students will discover the meaning behind the movements.

"I wanted to learn the martial arts," he recalls of his own beginnings. "But my father was very reluctant to let me learn the hard fighting styles of the Bruce Lee type."

"Through a friend, I saw the abbot of the monastery, and learned T'ai Chi from an expert living there. I've studied since 13."

"In the beginning I was simply practicing the forms, without knowing what it meant. I practiced in the morning. Every evening I went back to the monastery to talk with the monks about the meaning.

"I'm still learning." Cheung came to the United States in 1967. He is 34. Enigmatic as the opposing movements of the exercise, he is a poet and professor of literature who believes language is inadequate to express what is in the mind.

He never became as fond of the "Bruce Lee" type of martial art, as he is of T'ai Chi and its physical expression of the mind, the spirit.

"The problem is," Cheung said, "I don't have a killing instinct. With the hard styles, you have to develop certain combinations. You have to know when to

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli troops backed by air and naval bombardment rolled northward along a broad front today to tighten their grip on southern Lebanon, pounding away at Palestinian guerrillas clinging to their last positions below the Litani River.

An Israeli official said later in New York a cease-fire was in effect in the region. But independent observers at the scene reported continued Israeli shelling and air attacks on guerrilla holdouts.

It appeared, nevertheless, that the Israelis had largely achieved their objective of establishing a "security belt" south of the strategic Litani, 15 miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border.

U.N. officials in New York said it might be weeks or months before Israel heeds a U.N. Security Council resolution and withdraws from southern Lebanon. But a small "symbolic" U.N. peace force might move into the area as early as Tuesday.

The invaders, using helicopter-borne commandos to leapfrog toward the Litani, hemmed in the Palestinian seacoast bastion of Tyre and dug in on the bluffs overlooking the river, the Israeli military command said.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said that "for reasons of population and to avoid more destruction" his troops would not try to occupy Tyre. He said a Litani River bridge linking Tyre with the north would not be seized "so the people of Tyre won't feel encircled."

In Tyre, Associated Press correspondent Aly Mahmoud reported that by later afternoon the guerrillas remained in tenuous control of only a coastal strip stretching nine miles from Rashidieh to the Litani and encompassing Tyre and the hills to the east.

Israeli warships had been observed firing on guerrilla positions near Rashidieh, an abandoned Palestinian refugee camp, and in the hills. Guerrillas claimed to have sunk one gunboat with a rocket but this was not confirmed.

The intensity of the fighting around Tyre diminished noticeably during the day, Mahmoud reported, but independent observers and refugees fleeing northward reported that at dusk the ancient city came under heavy bombardment by artillery, naval guns and warplanes.

Mesa Plans On Housing To Be Aired

Four general plan amendments and the final development plan for 189 single-family homes in north Costa Mesa are among the items to be considered tonight by the City Council.

In addition, the council will discuss the final zoning fate of the nine-acre Cagney property near Bear Street and Yukon Avenue at the 6:30 p.m. public meeting.

A large portion of the parcel is now zoned for commercial development, but northside homeowners have drawn city support for single-family homes (R-1).

The developers support the concept of low density rather than commercial development, but are seeking a zoning that would allow smaller lot "patio homes" on the acreage.

Representatives of the C. J. Segerstrom and Sons development company are seeking a variance from open space requirements to build 189 single-family homes on 32 acres at Fairview Road and Sunflower Avenue.

The plan already has been approved by the city Planning Commission.

A general plan amendment that could change commercial zoning to high-density residential on parts of the 700 block of West 19th Street and the 1800 block of Placencia Avenue also will be considered.

Another general plan amendment to switch zoning from medium density to parks on publicly-owned lowlands near the Santa Ana River also will be discussed.

The remaining general plan amendments deal with a small section of West Bay Street (commercial to high density) and housing element policies regarding conversion of apartments to condominiums.

"Our human nature is so difficult to yield, because through the ages we have trained ourselves to believe we have to conquer in order to survive.

"T'ai Chi tells you how to slow down, because it's a continuous, slow movement of forms. In this society we move too fast. People want to go fast. I am the fastest man. I am the fastest runner. But how would you be able to look around if you go fast? How would you be able to feel if you go fast?

"It is much harder to go slow. But when you do, you know the wind is blowing, the air is moving. You can even hear the grass growing. If you can do that, then you know what's happening in the universe. It's the sound of the blooming flower.

"I can feel the grass growing. "If you want to listen to the grass grow, don't listen with your ear, listen with your mind. But if you want to feel the grass growing, don't listen with your mind, listen with your spirit.

"You can feel the movement of the universe. You can even feel the breathing of the earth. "In T'ai Chi, it is not your arm that moves, but your spirit that moves."

Kentucky Bans Laetrile Use

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Legislature has killed a bill that would have legalized the use of Laetrile in the state.

The Senate voted just before the session's constitutionally imposed deadline Sunday to conclude its business while a conference committee was trying to resolve differences between Senate and House versions of a bill carrying a Laetrile legalization amendment.

Guilt Assumed 4 in 10 Doubt Innocence

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly four in every 10 people in the United States believe a person accused of a crime must prove his innocence, contrary to the most fundamental principle of American justice — that a person is innocent until proven guilty.

In a random sample of 1,931 adults, 37 percent thought an accused person was guilty until proven innocent, according to the survey commissioned by the National Center for State Courts and conducted by Yankelovich, Skelly & White Inc.

Court to Review Libel Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether public officials suing for libel may force journalists to tell what their thoughts, opinions and conclusions were while preparing a news story.

The justices will review an unprecedented ruling handed down by a federal appeals court last November in a pending lawsuit by former Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert against CBS and others.

The lower court said reporters and editors sued for libel do not have to disclose such information. The justices' eventual decision could carry tremendous impact for all future libel suits filed by public officials or public figures.

Rapist Sentenced Gets 99 Years for Attack on Girl, 15

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years. "The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment. The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

They portrayed Bannister as a sick man who knew only trauma, rejection and failure — a ninth-grade dropout who was in and out of trouble with police and had no success with women.

Three psychiatrists testified for the defense that Bannister was legally insane, suffering from schizophrenia so that he couldn't tell right from wrong or understand what he was doing.

"There is a circus going on in his head," Slaughter told jurors.

CM Freeway Group Moves Headquarters

The headquarters for a Costa Mesa group urging completion of the Costa Mesa Freeway (Route 55) has been moved.

Information and petitions can be obtained by calling 557-6571.

The grassroots organization known as "Citizens For Completion of Route 55" wants to present signed petitions to the state Legislature before June 1.

This is the deadline in the state budget inclusion of an environmental impact report required to get the project under way. Without the EIR, there can be no progress until the next fiscal year, the petitioners maintain.

Letters of support also are being solicited. They should be mailed in care of "Costa Mesa," P.O. Box 1694, Costa Mesa.

DOCTOR...

"No, I didn't," Waddill said. "Anyway, that baby was dead. It never had life."

Cornelisen testified as a prosecution witness that Waddill told him in the nursery: "this baby can't live."

Cornelisen said he saw Waddill choking the infant after the defendant warned him that the baby must have suffered massive brain damage and could be the cause of lawsuits totalling millions of dollars in damages.

Cornelisen testified that he ordered Waddill to stay away from the baby but saw Waddill return to the crib several times and clamp his hand around the infant's throat.

Cornelisen testified that Waddill suggested four other ways in which the baby could be eliminated, including drowning it in a bucket of water.

114 Accidents

Agency Probes Ford's Defect

DETROIT (AP) — Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Torinos, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTDs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lincolns; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 351 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined that half the fatal accidents involved FMX transmissions, the investigation was expanded.

Ford faces several lawsuits concerning the allegedly faulty transmissions.

Dam Eyed As Families Evacuate

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — "I'd hate to think what would happen if it rains hard in the near future."

With that comment, Horacio de la Cruz watched as families below Rodriguez Dam were moved to higher ground.

In the wake of heavy rains the past several weeks, the dam is holding back more water than at any time since 1941, says De la Cruz, in charge of its operation. An American company built it in 1937 at a cost of $1 million to stop the Tia Juana River for domestic and irrigation use.

At 350 feet, it is one of the highest and the largest earthen dams in Mexico.

Mexican soldiers worked last week to move families from squatter homes in the floodplain of the river valley.

A vast tent city has risen on Otay Mesa, which would be out of the way of a flood if the dam located 12 miles east of Tijuana should break.

De La Cruz said about 4,000 refugees were resettled, getting free food and care, by last weekend. Another 5,000 may have joined them by next Friday.

Many were reported unhappy despite the flimsy quality of their homemade houses.

Orlando Garcia said the squatters, within sight of tourists, were "an eyesore — but you can't fight the government."

"I think it would be a real disaster if those people were not moved out of that area," said De la Cruz in an interview.

Speeder's Death Report Exaggerated

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Kim Yoder is apparently one of those people who will go to any length to get out of a speeding ticket — even having himself declared dead.

The 24-year-old Goshen, Ind., man was caught speeding on Interstate 70 near here and ordered to pay a $40 fine or appear in court Feb. 10.

Although he failed to show up at his hearing, the state's attorney's office received a letter from Alfredo Girardo, who identified himself as Yoder's stepfather.

"I regret to inform you that my stepson, Kim Yoder, was killed in a hunting accident January 5th," Girardo said in the letter.

He asked that the speeding ticket be dismissed.

Investigator Ronald Numaker agreed the case should be dismissed but only after a death certificate was produced.

A few days later, the state's attorney's office received another letter, but this time from Yoder himself.

"A couple of weeks ago, being broke and of lesser mind, I took the liberty of reporting my death," Yoder wrote. "I know now the seriousness of those actions and am prepared for reconciliation."

"I am very much alive, thank you, and hope you accept my apology," Yoder added.

Attached to the letter was a check for $40.

AMERICANA: 500 PORTABLE TOILETS FOR CONCERT
Promoter J. Pierce Van Hoy Prepares for Crowds

Pickin's Fine Host Works for Comfort

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP) — J. Pierce Van Hoy, a rotund, white-haired retired farmer in red sneakers, is a most hospitable man. Look out over his land — see the rolling hills, see the 500 portable toilets.

Those cubicles will accommodate thousands of bluegrass music lovers and good-time seekers expected to converge on Van Hoy's farm this weekend for the 54th annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention.

"IT'S AS COUNTRY AS the wilderness and open plains. It's Americana," Van Hoy, who relishes his role as promoter, says of the three-day festival that begins Thursday.

His father started the affair to raise money for a nearby one-room school. From humble beginnings in 1924 with a few banjo pickers and a listener or two, the convention has caught on in recent years like blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Last year, according to the local sheriff's department and state Highway Patrol, some 125,000 people planted themselves on 500 acres here about 50 miles north of Charlotte.

SCATTERED ABOUT WERE VETERAN string music lovers, but most of the fans were too young to remember when, for folks outside the South, "bluegrass" meant merely a hearty vegetation.

"The timing in the spring and the setting of the convention is conducive to the young at heart," says Van Hoy, a robust 60 himself. "After you pass 50, you're not going to get Grandma and brouhaha in the woods for three days."

Each Easter weekend this crossroads town of 125, marked by the tiniest dot on the road map, becomes one of the largest population centers in the state.

TENTS SPROUT LIKE SPRING flowers, a communal spirit settles on the land and the hills echo with bluegrass music.

Big-name musicians are rare, but spirited bands vie for trophies and cash ranging from $25 to $1,000 for the best fiddler. Judging is based on categories such as accurate tuning and "how good does it sound."

No electric instruments are allowed — indeed, there are no electric outlets on the stage of the 12,000-seat amphitheater Van Hoy built two years ago.

Sinking in Channel

Barge Explodes; 1 Dead, 15 Hurt

DELAWARE CITY, Del. (AP) — A barge exploded and caught fire during loading operations at the Getty Oil Co. refinery here today, and police said one person was killed, another was missing and as many as 15 persons were injured. About 25 fire units were called to the refinery, just south of Wilmington near the mouth of the Delaware River, where a two-alarm blaze was reported out of control.

At the refinery, a company spokeswoman said the barge was reported sinking in the middle of a shipping channel with a flaming oil slick spreading from its hull.

"It's on fire," said the spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified. "I can see billows of black smoke. My office is 1½ miles away."

The Delaware State Police barracks in New Castle said the explosion occurred about 9:10 a.m. PST. Between 10 and 15 persons were injured in the accident, they said.

Authorities said the victims were being taken either to Delaware Division or St. Francis hospitals in Wilmington.

At St. Francis, Paul King, vice president of the hospital, said one person had been brought in from the refinery with apparent heart problems.

At Delaware Division, officials said they had received no patients from the explosion, but reported that a state police helicopter was at the refinery to transport victims.

It was not immediately known what caused the explosion or what type of fuel the barge was receiving.

Authorities said fire and rescue units from New Castle County were on the scene.

Services Set Tuesday For Gen. Quilter

Military graveside services will be held Tuesday for Maj. Gen. Charles J. Quilter, USMC-ret., a resident of Emerald Bay who died Saturday of cancer. He was 63.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach.

General Quilter first moved to Laguna Beach in 1957 and was president of the Emerald Bay Community Association from 1970-1972. He was a member of the Parish Council of St. Catherine's Church.

The University of Rochester, N.Y., graduate earned his Naval Aviator wings and a commission in the Marine Corps in 1937. He served as a fighter pilot flight leader at Midway Island and Guadalcanal during World War II.

General Quilter served in Korea and commanded the 3rd Marine Air Wing at the El Toro Marine Air Station from 1966 to 1968. He received some 14 U.S. and foreign personal decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth Quilter; sons Christopher M. Quilter of New York City and Patrick H. Quilter, Matthew M. Quilter and Charles J. Quilter II of Laguna Beach. General Quilter is also survived by brothers, Adm. Joseph Quilter, USN-ret., of Portola Valley; Capt. Edward S. Quilter, USN-ret., of Irvine, and Brendan T. Quilter of Michigan; and sisters Patricia Quilter, Elizabeth Quilter and Mary Louise Quilter of Binghamton, N.Y. and Frances Donovan of Montrose, Penn.

Niguel Boy Bitten While Petting Seal

A Laguna Niguel boy who was petting a harbor seal this weekend was bitten on both legs, an Orange County Harbor Patrol spokesman at Dana Point said today.

He said he didn't know the extent of injuries suffered by the boy, Jerry Tucker.

Many of the seals have been turning up on coast beaches and in harbors recently, exhausted by storms at sea. Injured ones are cared for by Laguna Beach lifeguards and then released.

The spokesman said efforts are under way to transport the seals out of the harbor. He said they are receptive to being fed fish but sometimes turn nasty when a hand comes down with no fish in it.

Copters Save 33 Fishermen

NEW BALTIMORE, Mich. (AP) — The ice fishermen of Anchor Bay are a determined lot.

Looking for one final catch, 33 of them ignored rising temperatures and high winds Sunday to venture out on the ice and wound up stranded on an ice floe.

In what has become a familiar chore, Coast Guard helicopters plucked them from the floating ice about a mile offshore in Lake St. Clair.

"Something like this happens twice a year," said Lt. j.g. David Zazzali.

Swallows Come Back San Juan Celebrates—To No One's Surprise

One of nature's best-known phenomena drew crowds this weekend to San Juan Capistrano to see the swallows come back just as legend says they have done every March 19 but one for the past 200 years.

And, while the sky was far from darkened with their little bodies, spokesmen for the mission said the swallows did indeed come back to Capistrano Sunday. At least, a few of them were reported.

The rest are expected to trickle in during the next week or so. The legend of their punctuality (they were late in 1935, say Mission spokesmen, because of bad weather) has made the city into a once-a-year tourist mecca and, while crowds were down somewhat from last year, a festive mood still prevailed.

The celebration began on Saturday with a parade. Orange County Sheriff's deputies said about 15,000 persons turned out, half the number who attended last year's parade. There were seven arrests, mostly for drunkenness, a spokesman said.

On Sunday, traffic jams forced the closure of the Ortega offramp on the southbound 405

Freeway five or six times, a sheriff's spokesman said.

He estimated that as many as 7,000 to 10,000 people were in San Juan Capistrano at any one time and that the total attendance may have gone as high as 50,000.

The swallows, whose reported return to Mission San Juan Capistrano every St. Joseph's Day has been the subject of a popular song, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano," usually stay until Oct. 23. Then they head back to Argentina, where seasons are the reverse of those in the northern hemisphere.

Fare Cuts Ordered For Amtrak

Amtrak riders on the Los Angeles-San Diego route through Orange County will get a break on their round-trip tickets from April 30 to June 30.

A recent compromise between Amtrak and the California Department of Transportation over proposed fare increases has resulted in a temporary promotional discount on the line, which is heavily subsidized by the state and other local agencies, including Los Angeles County.

While fares nationwide will increase 2.5 percent, San Diego to Los Angeles riders will be able, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, to buy a round-trip ticket for the price of a one-way ticket plus $1.

So, while the one-way fare between Los Angeles and Santa Ana will be hiked from $3.10 to $3.28, on three days a week a rider can travel there and back for $4.28.

The fare between Los Angeles and San Diego will go from $9 to $9.25, but the same discount will apply.

In addition, a second promotional fare will extend the present 20 percent discount on a round-trip ticket Monday through Thursday to include Fridays. This offer also will end June 30.

CalTrans has opposed the overall fare increases, saying low fares are needed to attract riders, and threatened to cut off its subsidies unless a compromise was reached. The promotional fares were agreed on as an interim measure.

16 Teen-agers Held On Shoplifting Rap

Sixteen teen-agers, most of them girls, were arrested for stealing from Saddleback Valley stores over the weekend, according to a spokesman for the sheriff's south county substation which is gearing up for a surge of Easter vacation shoplifting.

Twelve of the youths were arrested at stores within the Laguna Hills Mall, said a sheriff's patrol sergeant. Eight of them were girls.

Four were arrested at K-Mart in Saddleback Plaza, he added. Three of them were girls.

The sergeant said a deputy will be stationed at the mall to handle the anticipated increase in shoplifting during the week-long vacation period. Most shoplifters, he said, are detained by security personnel in the larger stores and turned over to deputies for booking.

Clothing, jewelry and photograph records are the items most often taken at Easter time, said the sergeant, who said the shoplifter's Christmas list usually is even longer.

He said it appears the teen-agers take mostly for themselves at Easter while stealing everything from pipes to housewares as Christmas gifts.

Child Dies, 2 Injured In Head-on

Laura Holman, a two-year-old Fountain Valley girl, died Saturday night in a head-on traffic crash on Interstate 5 near Coalinga that left her mother and four-year-old brother in serious condition, officials reported.

The mother, Victoria Holman, 32, of 16325 Livingstone St., and her son, Greg, were reported in serious condition today at Valley Medical Center in Fresno with injuries they suffered in the 5:35 p.m. crash, officials said.

Funeral services are pending for the young Holman girl who was pronounced dead at 6:15 p.m., authorities said.

California Highway Patrol officials said Armando Gonzalez, 23, of Bakersfield, was booked on felony drunken driving charges and suspicion of vehicular manslaughter in connection with the Saturday crash that took the young girl's life.

CHP officials asserted that Gonzalez' auto was traveling on the wrong side of the freeway when the collision occurred.

Alien Policy Assailed

UCI Medical Center Flays Reporting System

Medical students and some faculty at UCI Medical Center say they object to a county policy that involves them in reporting illegal aliens to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for eventual deportation.

"This policy violates our medical duty to care for and treat the entire patient," the students said in a press release.

"It will quickly destroy the doctor-patient relationship of trust and confidentiality with future patients," the statement continued.

The students' words were backed by support from four faculty members as well as UCI Medical School Dean Stanley van den Noort.

County supervisors invoked the controversial reporting policy last year in an attempt to cut down on the expense of providing medical care to indigent illegal aliens.

It calls for medical personnel to complete Medi-Cal forms for those who cannot either pay or provide insurance forms to cover their bills.

In cases where residence is an issue, that fact is reported to immigration authorities.

The students said that policy sometimes ends up costing more taxpayer dollars because fearful indigent aliens avoid having minor ailments treated.

And frequently those minor ailments develop into major care cases that eventually run up the medical care tab, the UCI Medical students said.

They also contended that undocumented aliens sometimes avoid treatment of communicable diseases because of their fear of deportation.

The students also made reference to recent studies that show illegal aliens do pay sales, income and other forms of taxes that exceed in amount the tax dollars consumed for their care.

The calm words of protest to the county policy are expected to be repeated Wednesday when the Board of Supervisors will reconsider the medical payment policy.

The board's deliberation will include consideration of an illegal alien task force report that called for an end to the existing policy.

Gobbledegook Falls

WASHINGTON CALLING: You must have a certain admiration for one Joseph R. Fogarty, a member of our all-powerful Federal Communications Commission. Fogarty, you see, has a sense of humor. He can poke josh at his own bureaucracy.

Consider when the FCC went into session at the capital just the other day, pondering one of the greatest vexations ever visited upon its regulatory powers.

That hex is called Citizens Band Radio, better known across the land and upon our highways as CB Radio. The CB radio craze has grown like topsy in the last few years. It's become so popular that some automotive manufacturers are even building in the little transmitter-receivers into autos at the factory.

ENTHUSIASTS OF CB Radio, however, do have some communication hurdles to clear. They need to know three languages.

First is English, which isn't used much on the CB airwaves. Second is CB slant ("10-4, good buddy. Mobile easy. Keep the shiny side up and the dirty side down.") which is used a lot. Third, the CBER should be able to understand the bureaucrat-ese with which the FCC regulations are written.

Since the bureaucrats struggle to understand their own lingo, the FCC's rules for Citizen Band radio are almost universally ignored.

So that was what the commission was meeting about the other day. Two young FCC employees had been ordered to re-write the CB rules into plain English. The results looked good.

THESE TWO WORKERS, for example, took the FCC directions on how to apply for the CB license and reduced the gross verbiage from 39 lines of gobbledegook to just nine lines of plain, ordinary words. There were also 33 lines of directions on just how to sign a CB license application. They cut that down to nine lines too.

The simplification effort absolutely thrilled FCC Commissioner Fogarty. Pushing his tongue far into cheek, Fogarty enthused:

"THIS ENDEAVOR has proven to be a salutary and laudatory exercise in efficacious re-regulation designed to bring government to a more symbiotic and empathetic inter-relationship with its mass democratic constituency..."

Fogarty meant this was a good re-write job and regular people would understand it.

Then he added, "In a word, this item marks the ascendancy of semantic simplicity over obfuscatory verbiage inimical to the common weal. I am gratified that this collegial body today gives approbation to the felicitous regulatory enterprise concluded herein."

WHAT FOGARTY MEANT was that plain language had won a victory for the people over gobbledegook and he was glad the commission agreed.

I'm almost sure that's what he said. I think.

HELLO, MARS

Democrat Plan

Tax Increase Trim Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on a congressional study committee said today that upcoming Social Security tax increases should be cut by $33 billion even before the tax boost takes effect next year.

Majority members of the said in their annual report on presidential economic programs that the Federal Reserve should ease money supplies to counteract growing interest rates. They also called for government spending of at least the $500 billion President Carter has called for in his 1979 budget.

BUT MINORITY Republicans on the committee disagreed sharply on major points. They said easing money supplies would not work to lower interest rates but instead might increase them with heightened fears of growing inflation.

The Republicans agreed, however, that the Social Security tax increase should be moderated to avoid disproportionate burdens on middle-income families.

The Republicans by and large have opposed the Social Security tax increases from the start and have joined that with criticism of Carter's proposed income tax cut to offset its effects. Their minority opinion said, "At best, we must expect 1978 and 1979 economic activity to do well in spite of the government and not because of it."

THE CALL BY Democrats for the $33 billion cut in the Social Security tax increases would shift to general income tax revenues the cost of disability and Medicare benefits, programs borne by the Social Security system.

Such a move could substitute for Carter's proposed $25 billion income tax cut, the majority members said.

The congressional report comes only five days after House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill called for Carter to initiate a plan to rescind part of the upcoming increase. He said failure by the White House to propose the cut would force the House to take its own initiative.

O'NEILL AND many others in Congress say the public will not stand for the increase and that its discontent will show at the polls this November.

Congress is backing away from the law that it passed just last December to prop up the financially troubled system. The measure is designed to raise an additional $227 billion for the program over the next decade.

Continuing their criticism, minority members called for Congress to lower individual income tax rates and to review the tax code annually. They also suggested that businesses be allowed to deduct depreciation based on current equipment cost rather than on the pre-inflation price, the present policy.

Miners Study Contract

Need, Not Approval, May Settle Strike

By The Associated Press

After scuttling one settlement and ignoring a government order to get back to work, the independent-minded rank and file of the United Mine Workers union gets its first look today at a contract that could finally end their 105-day strike.

Local UMW leaders were briefed on the pact at district meetings throughout Appalachia Sunday.

TODAY, THE LOCAL leaders began taking the pact to the membership in meetings at local union halls and civic buildings throughout the coalfields.

The meetings are being held through Wednesday, with voting scheduled Friday.

The district meetings were calmer than when the local leaders were briefed on the last proposal three weeks ago, and many local leaders emerged saying they thought this pact had a better chance of acceptance by the membership.

BUT MANY OF those who were optimistic also said they had reservations about the terms in the pact, and there were some who said they thought it was not acceptable.

One commonly-heard comment was that the miners can live with this pact. But another was that if miners ratify it, it will be primarily because they are broke by now.

"If it's ratified, it'll be because of billfolds," said George Thomas, president of Local 7224 in Lebanon, Va.

"IF IT'S APPROVED it won't be because it's a good contract, but it'll be because the men have been out so long they feel like they're beating their heads against the wall," added Thomas. "The men (union negotiators) in Washington have lost contact with the men here."

George Frampton, president of a 300-member local near Indiana, Pa., used almost the same words in predicting narrow ratification.

"I think it will be passed because the miners are hurting, not because it's a good contract," he said.

TWO PROPOSED contracts between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association have already been rejected. The first never got past the union's bargaining council and was not voted on by the rank and file.

Truck Crash Kills Four Evangelists

MONTEAGLE, Tenn. (AP) — A truck rented in Louisiana by a band of vacationing evangelists tumbled over a 75-foot cliff, killing four people and injuring all 18 others.

"I was sitting in the passenger's side," Peter Thomas, 25, of New Orleans, the group leader, said Sunday night. "We hit a soft shoulder, and then soft rock. There were trees and then that was it. I thought we only fell about two feet. It all happened so quick."

Judy Shelton, spokeswoman at Coffee County Hospital in Manchester, Tenn., said three victims — a woman, a man and baby boy — were dead on arrival. Another woman in her mid 40s was dead on arrival at Warren County Hospital in McMinnville, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Identities of victims were withheld until relatives were contacted.

Sgt. Joe Sons of the Grundy County Sheriff's office said the 12-foot, one-ton U-Haul truck ran off Tennessee 50, a two-lane road, between Altamont and Pelham on Old Pelham Mountain.

"It happened on a curve," said Sgt. Webb of the Highway Patrol.

Anita Bryant Blames Gays For Failure

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Claiming homosexuals have scored a victory, singer Anita Bryant says her show business career is apparently over.

Miss Bryant, a former Miss Oklahoma and first runnerup in the 1959 Miss America beauty pageant, appeared Sunday in this central Illinois city of 90,000 as part of the national "Revival Fires Crusade," an evangelical group organized by the Rev. Cecil Todd of Joplin, Mo.

She blamed her sagging concert schedule on an unfair national press coupled with what she called a conspiracy by gay activists to torpedo her singing career.

"I believe in human rights," Miss Bryant said in a news conference before her appearance at a local high school gymnasium. "But I don't believe in special rights for radical groups that would take away the constitutional rights of others."

About 4,000 attended Sunday's performance.

Pet Love Cost Boy His Life

BARSTOW (AP) — A four-year-old boy's love for his dog cost him his life, and the dog died also in a tragic train accident, sheriff's deputies reported.

Donovan James Armstrong and his dog had been playing near railroad tracks in Grandview Park near his home in Lenwood, a residential community five miles west of here.

WHEN A UNION Pacific locomotive suddenly came into view, Donovan's 13-year-old aunt told him to move away from the tracks, sheriff's deputies related today.

The little boy heeded his aunt's warning, but noticed his dog was still on the tracks. He ran back to retrieve his pet.

DONOVAN WAS struck by the train and dragged 130 feet, said Sgt. Terry McDonald of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department. Neither the child nor his dog survived.

The locomotive's engineer said after the incident Saturday that he saw the youngster about a quarter of a mile away and began applying the brakes, but was unable to stop the train.

Man Kills Self With Revolver

MARTINEZ (AP) — A Foster City man aboard a sailboat which apparently had run out of gas in Suisun Bay apparently shot himself to death with a pistol he had been using to signal for help, authorities said.

The Contra Costa County coroner's office investigated the Sunday incident, identified the victim as Joel Peters, 34, and ruled the death a suicide.

Peters and the owner of the boat, James Pepler, of Redwood City, had tied the boat to a buoy and fired a .357 Magnum to get the attention of a passing boat, whose crew said it would get help.

Pepler said he then went below while Peters waited above. When a Coast Guard cutter reached the stricken boat at 10:30 p.m., crewmen found Peters slumped over the wheel with a wound in his right temple and the revolver clamped in his right hand.

Riles' Opponent Vows: 'Keep Him Off Ballot'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A man seeking state schools chief Wilson Riles' office says he will intervene legally in an effort to keep Riles' name off the June 6 primary election ballot.

He is Dave Usulan of suburban Carmichael, an employee of the state Department of Education. Usulan is one of seven persons seeking to replace Riles in the non-partisan office of state superintendent of public instruction.

USULAN TOLD The Associated Press Sunday that his backers will monitor the courts today and file a "motion of intervention in a mandamus action" immediately after Riles' lawyer makes his move.

Secretary of State March Fong Eu said Friday that Riles apparently failed to file a declaration of candidacy and therefore can't be placed on the ballot.

RILES BLAMES a "bureaucratic snafu." He said he filed the declaration of candidacy Feb. 22 in the Sacramento County voter registrar's office.

His attorney, Coleman Blease, says he will seek

Rapist Strikes Again

STOCKTON (AP) — Sacramento's "east area rapist" has struck for a second time in Stockton, police report.

Police Lt. Dennis Perry said "We are sure it was the east area rapist. It was exactly the same method of operating he has used on all the others."

Officers say the rapist, who is blamed for 31 attacks in 29 months, entered a home in the Park Woods area through a door with a broken lock, awakened a couple in bed, tied up the man and raped the woman, who is in her 20s.

Man Held in Slaying of Deputy

GORMAN (AP) — A 20-year-old North Hollywood man has been booked for investigation of murder in connection with the shooting death of a sheriff's deputy at the deputy's live-in Gorman substation.

Authorities said that Terry Lynn Zachery was arrested Sunday shortly after Deputy Arthur Pelino, 51, was found dead. He had been shot several times with his own service revolver.

Pelino, a 19-year veteran of the department and father of six children, had apparently been in the process of booking a man when he was overpowered and his gun was taken from him, said Deputy Jim Borland.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 28-year-old San Francisco man, James Peter Poczalski, has drowned at Ocean Beach despite the efforts of an off-duty U.S. Park Service lifeguard who plunged into the turbulent surf and brought the victim back to shore.

The Park Service said the lifeguard, Robert Kirby, 25, wearing a wetsuit and carrying a styrofoam board Sunday, paddled out beyond the breakers and brought the nude man back to the beach, where fire department and ambulance crews tried to resuscitate him.

Man Held in Shooting Death

MARIN CITY (AP) — A Marin City man is being held without bail for investigation of murder in the shooting death of a city official who defeated his father in an election last November, police said.

George Graham, 27, board chairman of the Marin City Community Services District, died Sunday morning after being shot once in the stomach with a .22-caliber rifle.

Booked in the case was Claude Phillips, 32, also of Marin City. He is the son of Frank Phillips, who lost his chairmanship of the services district board to Graham in a 1977 election.

Cal Jam II Was 300,000 Rock Fans Make History

ONTARIO (AP) — California Jam II will be recorded as one of the largest one-day rock festivals in history — and also one of the safest as most of the estimated 300,000 rock fans in attendance left in good health, good health.

Authorities joined the promoters in saying the festival, which began at 9 a.m. Saturday and ended 15 hours later at midnight, came off as well as could be expected.

THE MASSIVE CROWD, which filled the infield of the giant Ontario Motor Speedway and stretched more than a mile back from the stage, was orderly.

No deaths were reported; only 75 persons were treated at hospitals for injury or illness, and only 23 persons were arrested, according to police in this community about 40 miles east of Los Angeles.

THE HAPPENING — which caused colossal traffic jams and left behind enough trash to keep clean-up crews busy until mid-week — apparently was a financial success.

Don E. Branker, executive coordinator of the show, estimated paid admissions will total about 220,000 at $12.50 each. The attendance was swelled by gate crashers and others who attended without paying.

THEY SAW SUCH rock stars as Ted Nugent, Aerosmith, Foreigner, Santana and Heart, along with 50 skydivers jumping down to the racetrack in an attempt at a world's record.

More than 1,000 college students and 300 policemen provided security for the event. Of the 23 arrests, eight were for felonies ranging from possession of hashish to strong-arm robbery to battery on a police officer. Most of the arrests were for public intoxication.

TWO RAPES WERE reported before the concert began, but no arrests were made.

Most of those taken ill suffered from drug overdoses, authorities said.

Role of Informer Not a Proper One

Students and faculty at UCI Medical Center have protested a county policy that requires them to be part of a process that ends with illegal aliens seeking medical care being reported to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The student doctors and instructors rightfully argued that placing them in the role of informants violates traditional physician-patient relationships.

They also pointed out that the reporting policy discourages illegal aliens with communicable diseases from seeking medical help.

The county has invoked the reporting policy to help recover costs of indigent medical care.

To be sure, the proper source for such medical costs should be the federal government that controls immigration policies.

Lacking cost recovery from that source, however, the county has no choice but to provide the medical aid in such a way that it doesn't jeopardize the health of those in need of care.

A Victim of Himself

Dr. Louis J. Cella Jr., once one of the most powerful figures in Orange County politics and perhaps in all of California, has copped a plea, as they say in the argot of the courtroom.

Dr. Cella, facing trial in San Diego on Orange County embezzlement charges, pleaded guilty to 10 of the 127 counts placed against him in the indictment. He will pay a $50,000 fine and face up to six years in prison.

Earlier, the man who had been considered the kingmaker and Mr. Big of our political scene had been found guilty in federal court on 22 charges involving tax evasion and fraud.

The Cella saga seems to be a melancholy story as it now moves full circle.

Here is a man who was a respected physician; a healer, a builder of hospitals. He became enamored of the political arena. He exulted in the maneuvers of the smoke-filled back rooms where politicians were made or destroyed. He lusted for that kind of power.

The more power he gained, the more he wanted.

And therefore, according to the judgments of both state and federal courts, he unlawfully procured the money he needed to pursue that dream of exerting ever-increasing political muscle in wider ranging circles.

Once again the ancient axiom was proved: All power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely.

One might hope that Dr. Cella may serve his sentence and return to the role he once held as a productive member of our society and a healer of the sick. May he make that return perhaps a sadder but wiser man.

Dr. Cella isn't the first political figure in Orange County to have fallen from grace in the pursuit of money and power. He probably won't be the last.

This is true because far too many political power-seekers have insatiable appetites. They ignore the clear signals of history, even in the recent past.

Injustice Is Blind

A dubious award of merit should go to the Orange County Transit District for clearing the air over an affliction known as blindness.

OCTD's district officials have told 82-year-old Gustave Volle of Costa Mesa that he really isn't disabled at all.

Mr. Volle is 90 percent blind, but that's no reason why he shouldn't use his cane to walk two miles to catch a 6 a.m. bus to Long Beach, according to OCTD.

He'd like to catch a ride on OCTD's free Dial-A-Lift buses that are designed to provide curb-to-curb service. And all he wants is a ride to the regular bus stop.

However, hard-nosed district policy states that Dial-A-Lift service is only for those unable to board a regular bus. Blindness simply won't do.

If blindness doesn't qualify as a disability, then there is nothing save age that is blocking Mr. Volle from becoming an OCTD driver.

He already sees clearly enough to know when an injustice exists.

Boyd / Muggers

By L.M. BOYD

What do strongarm robbers, otherwise known as muggers, have in common? Mostly, each owns only one coat and one pair of shoes. Each may have more than one shirt and more than one pair of pants. But policemen of lengthy experience say the one-coat-one-pair-of-shoes thing is characteristic of almost all of them. The fact that a man shows up in the same neighborhood three days in a row in the same coat and shoes doesn't mean he's a strongarm robber, clearly. But beat lawmen take note of it, even so.

and War man's "Women, Miscellaneous" file is a quotation by an anonymous cynic: "If a woman's first love is a Dane who beats her and her second an engineer who cheats her, be assured her third will be a Danish engineer."

In the lingo of a standup comic, an acquaintance thusly reports that his wife is socially ambitious: "When we moved out here, it was Goat Hill. Now it's Angora Heights."

Q. "Can you confirm the claim that a woman hatched a hen's egg by sitting on it for 21 days?"

A. No, but the fact that Mrs. Ella Petry of St. Leonards-on-the-Sea, England, hatched such an egg by carrying it in her bosom that long has been well documented.

When the late Winthrop Rockefeller flew in one of his three airplanes, he always took along two of his four pilots. So? Nothing much. It's just hard for ordinary men to comprehend how the very rich can cater with such ease to their anxieties. Scott Fitzgerald was right when he said the rich are different. And Ernest Hemingway was wrong in what he meant when he said, yeah, they have more money. The rich are different.

Refugees Wait for Open Gate

WASHINGTON — "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free," proclaims the lady who stands, with torch thrust proudly skyward, on Liberty Island in New York harbor.

And they have come by the thousands. Jews from Hitler's Germany; Hungarian Freedom Fighters who fought Russian tanks in Budapest; Cubans who opposed Castro.

Now, the nation's willingness to open its arms to the world's homeless is about to be tested again. At this moment, the Carter administration is trying to hammer out a comprehensive policy on refugees. But the president's advisers are hung up over what to do about the thousands of refugees who have fled Indochina since the communists took over Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia.

THE UNITED STATES has already approved, on an emergency basis, the admission of 172,000 Indochinese refugees into this country since Saigon fell in April, 1975. But thousands upon thousands more are crammed into squalid camps in Thailand, Malaysia and elsewhere.

Each month, an estimated 1,500 "boat people" flee by sea from Indochina to join the 100,000 "land people" who have already escaped. Their only route out of the limbo in which they are trapped appears to be emigration to other nations. But no country has been willing to step forward and accept them.

In preparation for testimony before Congress, the Immigration and Naturalization Service recently sent investigator Michael Harpold to Southeast Asia on a fact-finding mission. He has compiled a compelling eye-witness account of the trials the "boat people" have undergone in their flights to freedom.

HARPOLD and his boss, INS Commissioner Leonel Castillo, told our reporter Doug Southerland they have been waiting since Jan. 24 to make public the account. Meanwhile, we have obtained a copy of the document.

In Songkla, Thailand, Harpold spoke to a group of Vietnamese refugees who had fled in a 34-foot fishing boat. "Aboard it were 13 men, five women and 16 children," wrote the investigator. "Most were sick because they had been reduced to drinking sea water. Many of the children, in particular, were ill. The boat's engine was not working. They had only 20 kilos of rice left, about enough for one day."

The night before they arrived in Thailand, the refugees were intercepted by Thai pirates who robbed them of watches and jewelry. Had they been turned away from Thailand, the refugees said, they had intended to sail on to Australia, some 3,000 nautical miles away.

Three refugee boats which arrived at Trengganu, Malaysia, Harpold found, were told to ride at anchor at the mouth of a nearby river. "During the night, a storm came up and one of the boats broke anchor and capsized. There were 21 refugees aboard. Fifteen of them drowned and only six were able to swim to shore. We found that drownings and piracy are the most frequent hazards the boat people face."

While in Singapore, Harpold heard of a boat carrying 27 Vietnamese refugees which had been rescued by a tanker. He hopped a ride with a pirate and sped to the location, about 120 miles east of the Vietnamese coast.

"We found the Italian crew joyfully feeding spaghetti to the 13 children, four adult females and 10 males," reported

Harpold. "Originally, they had planned that only the one family group of 12 would go, but 15 other neighbors who knew about the plot simply came along."

"Using a compass, the same as used by our foot soldiers in World War II, and a political map showing only Vietnam, they set a course . . . and headed out for 'any country out of Vietnam.'"

ON THEIR second night out, the refugees ran into a severe storm, and their boat began taking on water. When the engine sputtered to a stop, they hoisted an SOS flag. Three ships approached them, took a close look, then simply sailed away. When they were finally picked up, they were 450 nautical miles from the Philippines and had only three bags of rice left.

Wrote Harpold in awed admiration: "Their spirit, their will was unconquerable."

Near the Cambodian border, Harpold found a five-acre refugee camp with 1,055 inhabitants. The only well in the camp had run dry, and the refugees were forced to use their own meager savings to purchase water and food from nearby villagers. Even under these adverse conditions, the INS investigator found the camp clean and the inhabitants eager to organize their new lives.

The escapees from communism, and the thousands yet to come, Harpold concluded, are truly facing a "life and death situation." And their ultimate fate, he wrote, is in the hands of the United States. If the American people open their arms to these homeless fugitives from oppression, other governments would probably cooperate.

"WE SHOULD adopt and announce as policy," he urged, "our willingness to accept and resettle refugees rescued by vessels at sea and those who arrive by boat on the shores of those countries bordering the South China Sea. Only by doing so can we ensure that masters of commercial vessels and the governments of Malaysia, Thailand and Singapore will treat the boat people humanely."

Footnote: Only four Immigration and Naturalization Service officers have been assigned to the vast Indonesian archipelago to deal with the swelling refugee problem.

The Gay Life in Bali: There Isn't Any

"Lord knows, I'm not the one to give a hoot about what people do with their bodies. They can be homosexual, or lesbian or neuter or old hetero. What is getting to me is when they become boringly homosexual."

"I just can't stand the noise the homosexuals make. On the radio, in the press, on the tube. The noise is terrible in San Francisco. It's getting almost as bad in other cities in the country. Isn't there any way you can get away from it all?"

Thus Frankie, a young fellow I know around North Beach.

"HAVE YOU thought about Bali?" I asked. A few days later I gave him a piece I had read in the British weekly Spectator. It described a little-known peculiarity in the sex life of the Balinese, who live on an island of Indonesia, east of Java.

The author, Max Harris, apparently has lived some ten years on the island. He says the 2½ million people there have never heard of or even bothered to invent homosexuality. There is no word for it in the Balinese language.

THE BALINESE, he says, have few observable hangups about sex, and yet their culture places only a "very moderate" emphasis on it. Sex is "a preoccupation less demanding than gamelan music, legong dancing, funeral festivities, offerings to the rice goddess, and cock fighting. Sexuality is viewed as a natural appetite, and somewhat comic at that."

Their sexual tolerance is so great that it is clear there would be no social or moral objection to homosexuality if the idea had occurred to anyone. But it hasn't.

"For the cruising European or Japanese homosexual Bali is a sort of special hell. The most physically beautiful people on earth, and not one of them with a clue about the codes and signals of homosexual freemasonry."

How can Harris support this claim, since it is notoriously difficult in logic to prove a negative? It is impossible, he says, to prove that homosexuality does not exist, but on balance he has found it more difficult to find evidence that it DOES exist.

The only really reliable field investigators among the Balinese, going back to the days of the Dutch occupation, are a Catholic order called the Society of the Divine Word. He has talked to old men in this order, and they have never known of homosexuality.

Father Anibal Oprandi, an Argentinian worker-priest with 13 years of close intimacy with villagers all over the island, has found that homosexuality is not suppressed; it is just not comprehended. Other priests say the same thing.

EDUCATED Japanese say the Balinese sometimes engage in sexual acts with homosexual Europeans because they think it courteous to indulge the sexual eccentricities of outsiders; but among themselves, never.

The author implies that the absence of homosexuality is related to the way the Balinese children are brought up. "After ten years," he says, "I have yet to see my first crying child in Bali."

Children are brought up in an extended family. Their welfare is the shared responsibility of all living within the sometimes very large family compounds. Children are never struck or otherwise ill-treated. They never develop those dependency needs which many doctors think are at the root of homosexuality.

THERE is even an independence game played with the child. "The infant is called to the mother, and on responding the mother teasingly rejects the child. The game is played repetitively. The purpose of the game is quite clear. Mother is mother, but not an object for dependency fixations." This game has been reported, with some puzzlement, by Margaret Mead.

Whatever the cause, there is no physical understanding of homosexuality in the islands. And the last time I saw Frankie he was taking passport photos.

Here's Your Sign — Take It and Run

Everyone says the times are changing. So I've created a new column called, "The Looking Out for Number One Power Horoscope for Getting What's Yours, Jack."

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your first loyalty is to the man who pays your salary. Establish a reputation for rectitude, dependability and openness with your boss. Snitch.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): This time of year, you should employ extreme prudence and not fling away your entire nest egg on some wild opportunity. Fling away your mother's.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): All work and no play makes Gemini a dull boy. Have fun. Go to the beach. Find a 97-pound weakling and kick sand in his face. Be careful not to return to the same beach 30 days later.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Encourage your wife to convert past successes and latent resources into ready cash. Also encourage her to keep an eye peeled for the vice squad. This is also a good day to cheat on your income taxes.

Leo (July 23-August 22): Watch your language in traffic, Leo. Verbal obscenity indicates a lack of imagination. Remember: one gesture is worth a thousand four-letter words. Now's the time to embark on a corporate profit-sharing plan. Embezzle.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't squander your money on fruitless projects that won't help you get ahead financially. Tell the United Crusade to shove it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stop feeling guilty and procrastinating. It's high time you cleaned up the clutter around the house and packed Granny off to the old folks home.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This will be an excellent week to pause in the hurly-burly of your daily rounds, sit back, and count your blessings. Then count your neighbor's. If he has more than you, covet.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

You know that digital watch you've had your eye on at Prockmeyer's, but thought you couldn't afford? Well, you only go this way but once. Steal it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Children need patience, love and understanding. Send them to your mother's. You can look forward to a great summer vacation if you plan ahead and start stealing $2.50 a day now from petty cash.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This may be the day that Mr. Right comes along. So tell your husband you're going to the movies.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Never forget that there are times when you should overlook the faults of others, such as when the boss's wife questions her performance in bed.

HOLLYWOOD — Maybe it's just as well F. Scott Fitzgerald never got around to finishing "The Last Tycoon."

The novel was only half finished when Fitzgerald died of a heart attack in 1940 here in Hollywood, where he labored as a scriptwriter, but the whole idea was at least three decades premature.

THE HOLLYWOOD TYCOON IS still with us, even if the big movie lots are passing faster than the bison, the double feature, the dollar bottle of muscatel and other endangered species.

Movie moguls can be seen strutting almost every afternoon around the pool at the Beverly Hills Hotel, the pink and green stucco zoo complex that has been a meeting place for moguls and moguls-on-the-make since the gilded age of Pola Negri, Harold Lloyd and Mary Pickford.

ZANUCK

Unlike Darryl Zanuck, a local player who graduated to mogul status and gave the hotel bar its nickname, "The Polo Lounge," modern moguls do not affect megaphones, cavalry boots and jodhpurs, and loud sports jackets garnished with a paisley cravat, while engaged in the ritual mogul strut around the pool.

Today's tycoon is apt to be arrayed in nothing more than a tiny French male monokini, like a Bull Durham sack without the tag, and a pair of reflecting sunglasses that mirror the world around him but give no clue to his monumental innermost thoughts. Accepted mogul habdashery also is an Olympic-style warmup suit with a tennis racket tucked under one arm and several scripts under the other.

WHEN NOT STRUTTING, YOUR authentic mogul is usually upright on a poolside chaise-lounge talking into a plug-in telephone, while a golden goddess of a starlet, tanned deeper than Zanuck's saddle pommel, is recumbent nearby in a hand crocheted string bikini that Whistler's mother could have whipped up at her first sitting.

"Manny," a mogul was heard shouting into his phone the other day, in case those in the outlying bungalows didn't realize he was a true blue mogul. "Have you seen the mock-ups? They're fantastic. The boys have come up with a gem of a Victorian house, all gingerbread and acres of porch, that just screams Booth Tarkington and Middle America or my name isn't Gary Glutz. Only something's got to be done about those power cables coming in from the street. Can you get on to the lighting company?"

ANOTHER REMAKE OF "THE magnificent Ambersons"? No, further eavesdropping revealed, a 50-second laxative commercial but done with heart and impact and built around the pioneer virtues that made this country the world's great consumer of plumbing fixtures.

As the busy noon hour approaches, moguls at poolside manage to get themselves paged on the public address system every 20 minutes so they can share further telephone conversations with the

Newport Chamber Surveys Members

As part of a new emphasis on local and state governmental affairs, the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce has launched a monthly series of surveys of its 1,500 members.

The first survey was sent to chamber members last week, asking comments on four issues — a building moratorium in Newport Beach, completion of arterial highways planned for the Harbor Area, the Jarvis-Gann initiative and expansion of the Orange County Airport.

DAN ROGERS, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR of the chamber, said the surveys will cover topics that chamber directors have taken a position on or which are planning a position.

"We want to find out if the membership agrees with the board's position. If we find they don't, then the board will have another look at those topics," he said.

THE SURVEYS WERE RECOMMENDED by the board's Governmental committee recently reorganized into six subcommittees to study categories of topics and recommend positions of support or opposition for the chamber directors.

The subcommittees cover land use, labor and employment, state and local taxation, campaign and election reform, environment and energy, and health and medicine.

Couples' Workshop Scheduled

"Assertion Training for Couples," a workshop sponsored by Coastline Community College, will be held 7 to 10:30 p.m. April 7 and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 8 at the Westminster City Hall.

Lecturers Ed Andrus and Michael Armstrong will discuss topics such as acting assertively in long-term relationships, relationships with other couples, and achieving happiness or satisfaction.

The lectures are open to the public and there is no charge. Pre-registration is required and must be completed by March 31.

More information can be obtained by calling Coastline Community College, 963-0811, ext. 256.

roaming packs of tourists, who sometimes are treated to a whole treatment.

A treatment is where a story line stands when it's out of the idea stage but not quite into the script stage, which usually means the sponsor or the producer hasn't got wind of it yet.

"HE DESIGNS RACING CARS for his boyhood pal, a Grand Prix driver," one mogul in a brushed denim athletic supporter-type swimsuit was shouting out a treatment. "But he's having an affair with the driver's wife, and when the car crashes and the guy gets killed, they both feel awful. Did his design subconsciously cause the crash? They both drive up to Florence, where the car burned up, hell for rubber, recklessly through the Alps — is Florence near the Alps? The designer goes for a ride in a hot air balloon, which symbolizes his freeing himself from guilt and the whole speed scene, but the wife won't go along because she knows she can never free herself from the memory... it's beautiful. The college crowd will blubber up a storm soggier than 'Love Story'..."

At eventide, the moguls can be seen arrayed along the walls of the Polo Lounge or at the center tables in Chasens, always in the company of toothsome starlets. Instead of telephone talk, there is the cheerful banter of moguls swapping yarns of future successes and former wives and spin-offs yet to come.

"SHE CAUGHT ME WHEN MY manic defenses were down," lamented a weebegone mogul whose long flowing silver locks were done up in a bun.

"Who'd you get to direct that suds-free detergent thing?" asked a toupeed tycoon whose buckskin shirt lacked buttons down to his hand beaded cumberbund.

"Andre" replied a Pancho-Villa-type in double knits and a furlong of fine Havana cigar.

"Andre? Oh, Well, he's the best in the world at his type of thing. I didn't realize his type of thing was being done anymore."

Competition Designed for Inexperienced

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Tall ships with square-rigged sails and wooden hulls will race up the Atlantic Coast from Chesapeake Bay to Boston and from Hawaii to British Columbia this summer, the American Sail Training Association has announced.

The association, based in Newport, has scheduled races from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va., and on up the coast to Newport and Boston in June and July.

THE BOATS IN the East Coast race will be Class B vessels — sailboats over 30 feet long — but half a dozen brigantines and barkentines will sail along in company.

The association also is organizing races from Honolulu to British Columbia and down the Pacific Coast to Southern California. The West Coast races will include Class A — large, nationally owned ships — and Class B vessels. Between 40 and 50 tall ships are expected to participate in the races in June, July and August, the association said.

THE RACES ARE designed to teach young people to sail. The training association's regulations stipulate that 50 percent of the crews be inexperienced sailors between the ages of 16 and 25.

"The philosophy of sail training is character-building," said spokeswoman Sandy Fuhr. "We like to take people who have a drug problem, or some problem with their personal lives, and show them they can do something worthwhile in the world."

"They spend two weeks to three months swabbing the decks or making nets, learning about maritime heritage. They find out the only way that they are going to learn something is if they knuckle down to discipline," Ms. Fuhr said.

The young men and women can learn about the sailing program through yacht clubs, sailing magazines, their high schools and colleges or youth groups such as the Boy Scouts, she said. Some get high school or college credit for their work.

"We won't know until the end of June exactly who is coming," Ms. Fuhr said. "But we sent out dozens of invitations, including six to South America and two to Japan."

The dates for the East Coast races are: Baltimore to Norfolk, June 20; Norfolk to Newport, June 25; Cape Cod Canal to Boston, July 2.

REGATTAS AND HARBOR

festivals will be scheduled between the races.

The West Coast races will begin with a 2,300-mile trek from Honolulu to Victoria, B.C., starting June 24. On July 24, the ships will "cruise in company" from Victoria to Vancouver.

The second race will be July 29 from Vancouver to Seattle, Wash. Another cruise is scheduled Aug. 5 from Seattle to Swift Shore Bank, B.C.

The ships will race 700 miles from Swift Shore Bank to San Francisco Aug. 6 and from San Francisco 360 miles to Long Beach on Aug. 15.

58 Bombings

Terrorist Group Eludes Authorities

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Despite 58 bombings in 3½ years, an underground terrorist group calling itself the New World Liberation Front is eluding authorities like a wisp of smoke.

After five months of silence, the group made news last week claiming responsibility in a "communique" for the bombing of an electric utility's substation in a San Francisco suburb.

THE NORTHERN California bombings — so many that one FBI official called San Francisco "the Belfast of North America" — have caused more than $1 million worth of damage, the FBI says.

The group's prime target is the giant Pacific Gas & Electric Co., but office buildings, private homes of the wealthy and even the San Francisco Opera House have been hit.

But there have been no arrests.

"It's sheer, dumb luck on their part," said FBI bombings coordinator Frank Daniel.

HE IS STILL investigating

Tuesday's bombing of a PG&E transformer that cut off power for more than two hours to 75,000 homes in suburban Concord and Walnut Creek.

Like the others, this was followed by a communique delivered to the news media in which the NWLF took responsibility for the blast. The communiques nearly always claim the NWLF is acting on behalf of minorities and the poor.

That leads the FBI to believe its members are white, middle- or upper-class young people on what Daniel calls "a guilt trip for not being among the oppressed minorities."

Chamber To Honor HB Cops

The Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce has slated an April 12 luncheon to honor the city's outstanding police officers for valor and achievement during the past year.

The luncheon will be held at the Huntington Beach Inn, 21112 Pacific Coast Highway.

Judge Marvin G. Weeks is slated as the luncheon guest speaker. Tickets for the event are $6.

Cong Cup Standings Revised

Barney Flam, Long Beach Yacht Club, won two protests he lodged against opponents in the final races of the Congressional Cup Saturday and slightly revised the final standings.

The principal change was the moving of Flam from fifth to third place in the overall standings.

Final revised standings announced by the race committee:

1, Dick Deaver, Los Angeles Yacht Club, 9-0.

2, Scott Allan, Severn River, Md., 4-3.

3, Barney Flam, Long Beach YC, 6-3.

4, Dennis Durgan, Newport Harbor YC, 5-4.

5, Ted Turner, New York Yacht Club, 5-4.

6, Robbie Haines, San Diego YC, 4-5.

7, Tom O'Brien, Seattle Yacht Club, 2-7.

8, Noel Robins, Sun City, Australia, 2-7.

9, Graham Hall, U.S. Naval Academy, 2-7.

BCYC Hosts Regatta

Forty-nine boats in seven classes turned out Saturday and Sunday for Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club's St. Patrick's Day Regatta sailed on courses inside the bay. Trophy winners:

SNIPER (4) — 1, Jeff Case, ABYC; LIDO-14A (3) — 1, Jim Kerrigan, BCYC.

LIDO-14B (3) — 1, Brian Hench, BYC; SABOT A (7) — 1, Jon Pinkney, BCYC; 2, John Pernick, BCYC.

WILL YOU LIKE THEM? WILL YOU CHOOSE THEM? WE NEED TO KNOW.

In May we will make automatic safety belts available as an option on the Chevrolet Chevette. We're doing this now because we need to know how well you like them and whether you'll choose them.

Not enough people use the safety belts that are now standard equipment in every car. So the government has directed that some form of passive restraint, such as air cushions or automatic safety belts, be built into every car by 1984.

The automatic safety belt is very easy to use. When the door is opened, the safety belt automatically moves out of the way so that the passenger has room to sit down. As the door is closed, the safety belt automatically fits around the passenger. Knee bolsters are built into the instrument panel to help limit forward movement during an accident. In addition, regular lap belts can be fastened to supplement the automatic safety belts.

We also have plans to offer air cushions in some of our future cars, because they have advantages in convenience and appearance. And we are working hard to improve them.

On the other hand, automatic safety belts have these advantages: they are lighter, which helps gas mileage; their cost is relatively low, and they would be easy to replace.

We'd like you to try the new automatic belts and judge them for yourself. How many people order automatic safety belts, and what they think of them, will help us plan our cars for the 1980's.

That's why we're offering the option of automatic safety belts now, so you can tell us how to design these cars the way you want them.

This advertisement is part of our continuing effort to give customers useful information about their cars and trucks and the company that builds them.

Fund Limitation Blasted

Badham Claims GOP Coffers Worry Rivals

By O.C. HUSTINGS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

U.S. Rep. Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, says he believes a campaign fund limitation move in the House of Representatives is aimed at freezing large amounts already raised by Republican candidates in this year's elections.

Badham said he believes Democrats became concerned because Republicans had been raising more than three times as much money. He also charged that labor unions still could donate manpower to Democratic campaigns under the proposed limits.

Calling the move a threat to the two-party system, Badham said Democrats spent more money per candidate in 1976 but became concerned when the GOP picked up four seats in six special elections to fill seats left vacant by Democrats.

Badham said he is particularly concerned because Democrats hold 288 seats in Congress, compared with 147

Republican seats. He said he believes the proposed limitations would further imbalance the representation.

"It certainly is unfortunate that money is the key to sending good people to Washington . . . but there is no real substitute for reaching voters through mass mailings of literature and extensive use of newspapers, radio and television," Badham said.

ALL FIVE 74TH District assembly candidates in the Republican primary election have been invited to speak at a Town Meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The meeting, sponsored by Saddleback Republican Assembly, will be held in the community room of Peoples Federal Savings, 23688 El Toro Road, El Toro. The public is invited.

Candidates for the Republican nomination are Marian Bergeson and Lee Watkins of Newport Beach, Bob Wilks of Irvine, James Green of San Clemente and Anthony J. Matano of Laguna Beach.

JOHN SCHMITZ, A candidate for the Republican nomination for the 36th senatorial district seat, and Dr. Nolan Frizzelle, seeking the Republican nomination for the 73rd assembly district seat, will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Fountain Valley.

The meeting, sponsored by the Fountain Valley California Republican Assembly, will be held at 18762 Capense St. Republican voters are invited.

Schmitz also will speak at 10 a.m. Tuesday to Laguna Hills Republican Women, Federated, in Clubhouse 3 in Leisure World.

A CANDIDATES' night will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday by the Newport Democratic Club at the Great Western Savings Building in Newport Center.

Speakers will include two candidates for the 36th senatorial district, Greg Kuczynski and Assemblyman Ron Cordova, D-El Toro. Jim McGuy, a candidate for the 40th congressional district will speak.

Also invited to talk are James Parker, Mel Springer and John Harrison, all seeking the Democratic nomination for the 74th assembly district seat. The meeting is public.

OC Farmers Begin Assessing Damages

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County farmers have begun taking advantage of sorely needed sunny weather to begin harvesting and planting their crops, but they say they haven't yet been able to estimate the damage recent storms caused to their fields.

Jim Harnett, county deputy agricultural commissioner, said no dollar figures are yet available and probably no accurate estimates can be made until current crops are marketed.

One problem, he said, is that the wind caused scarring on some citrus fruit, which will therefore be sold at a lower price.

"THEY'RE WAY behind on their planting of corn, tomatoes, string beans and those kinds of things," Harnett said. "It's really a question mark as to how much actual damage there was."

Another factor was the unusually cool weather, which delayed the maturation of some crops, he said. Rotting also forced farmers to throw away some strawberries.

Damage varied from farm to farm, Harnett said, with growers on sandy soil suffering little damage and those on heavier soils more affected.

FRED KELLER, VICE president of agriculture for the Irvine

Co., said last week's clear weather gave company workers their first chance to examine the damage.

At one point, he said, half the strawberry crop had to be thrown away. In addition, lemons that got oversized and overcolored before they could be picked will be sold at lower cost for juice.

Also, Keller said, a heavy infestation of snails pockmarked some fruit, and silt around orange trees will have to be dug away to prevent rotting.

"I'M AFRAID WE don't even want to know what it's going to cost," he said.

Keller said early rains were welcomed, but after the ground got saturated, additional rain was damaging.

"Overall, they did a lot of good but it's offset with all this storm damage," he said.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Woman's Quest: A Few Good Men

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Just call the lady Sgt. Kerzman, and she's looking for a few good men.

The blonde in the trim blue uniform with gold sergeant's stripes has a disarming manner for a Marine.

"MOST PEOPLE I MEET don't know what service I'm in," said the young woman in her second month of recruiting for the corps in San Diego County.

"Many are not aware that women do serve in the Marines," she said.

Probably not unusual for an outfit whose recruiting slogan for years has been "The Marine Corps Builds Men."

THE 24-YEAR-OLD native of Coleharbor, N.D., is very feminine, blushes at the drop of a hat and flashes an engaging smile as she discusses duties as a saleswoman trying to interest young people in a stint in the Marines.

Officials at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot say she is the first woman to top a Recruiter's School class here. She was graduated in December with 94.01 percent average to become the honor student among 188 other Marines.

She volunteered for recruiting duty while stationed in San Francisco and appears before high school students, parents, shopkeepers and anyone showing an interest in the corps.

"WE STRESS A HIGH school education," she said, making it a point to "urge a kid to stay in school before going on active duty."

"I try to find out what a kid is interested in," the sergeant said, "and then try to relate those interests to the Marine Corps."

BUT SHE ADMITS the pugil stick death of a recruit at the depot several years ago and stories of recruit abuse by drill instructors do affect the programs.

"Kids are keenly aware of that kind of publicity," she said. "I try to explain there are risks no matter where we go. There's more danger in just crossing the street than in a boot camp."

Lamps Light Her Ire

DEAR PAT: I ordered two lamps last October from Carol Wright Gifts of Bergenfield, N.J. When they didn't arrive in time for Christmas, I wrote to the company and included proof of payment. I still have not even had the courtesy of a reply. I would like my order filled even though a long time has passed, and hope you can help me.

J.C., Corona del Mar

This firm's customer service spokesman says your order will be shipped immediately. Your letter of inquiry was not answered because the firm is running behind on its correspondence on this item. Apparently, more orders than anticipated were received.

Petfoods Not Harmful

DEAR PAT: I've noticed that animal by-products are often listed as an ingredient in canned pet food. What by-products are used and would it be harmful for a human being to eat such ingredients?

K.W., Fountain Valley

Animal by-products in pet foods are lungs, livers, spleens, kidneys, brains, stomachs, intestines and fat and lean trimmings. Not allowed are intestinal contents, hooves, bones, hides and horns. The Food and Drug Administration says that although aesthetically repugnant to many people, consumption of animal by-products isn't necessarily dangerous. All ingredients in canned pet food are processed and cooked to kill germs. However, the FDA does not cotton to consumption of pet foods by humans.

The major difference between pet food and food prepared for humans is that different sources of ingredients may be used. Meat and bone meal from animals that have died other than by slaughter are commonly used in Fido's foods, but not in human foods.

Center Directs Calls

DEAR PAT: Can you give me a rough estimate of how many federal departments and agencies are currently in existence? There must be a lot of them, and I would like to know how the average person can possibly tell one from another when it comes to getting information or asking for help.

K.W., Huntington Beach

There are more than 125 federal agencies and departments. It's hard to imagine that in 1800 when President Adams moved into the White House, there were only six federal agencies. The Federal Information Center (300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles 90012) is your best bet for help in determining which agency or department should be contacted for information or assistance. Write to the FIC or phone (213) 688-3800.

Classifications All Same

DEAR PAT: I am applying for a job and my prospective employer wants to know my draft classification. I am registered, but wonder if my classification has changed since the draft registration suspension.

P.R., Huntington Beach

The Selective Service System says that with the exception of a few registrants who may be violators of the Military Selective Service Act, registrants now are classified in Class 1-H regardless of any previous classification. Class 1-H is defined as "registrant not currently subject to processing for induction or alternative service."

Skating Coach Plays Important Role(s)

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When you have been a medal winner in the Olympic Games and then captured the U.S. championship in your favorite endeavor, is there anything else to look forward to when you have retired from actual competition?

Barbara Roles of Newport Beach and current coach of such budding young stars as Lisa-Marie Allen and John Carlow, Jr., thinks there is.

"I want a world champion," Roles says simply. "I will be as much a part of it as the skater when it happens and I think that would have to be as big a thrill as it was winning a medal in the Olympic Games."

She counts the bronze medal she won at Squaw Valley in 1960 as her biggest thrill in the world of figure skating. It ranks ahead of her U.S. title in 1962 and her three-year career with Ice Follies.

"It is a great privilege to even make the Olympic team," she says. "It only happens once every four years and to win a medal is a big thrill."

At the present time, she is teaching at the Ice Capades Chalet in Costa Mesa where she spends 10 hours, six days a week, on the ice.

Most of her students, however, are advanced and it is seldom that she takes a beginner under her tutelage.

"I was teaching in Glendora when Lisa's mother came to me and asked if I would take her," Roles recalls.

"I discouraged her for about two weeks but she kept coming back and insisting that I take her daughter and I finally relented. We laugh about it now but I almost didn't have Lisa."

Allen, runnerup in the U.S. figure skating championships this year to Linda Fratianne and seventh in her first world competition, took an interest in the sport after watching some competition on television at the age of nine.

Ironically, several years later, her coach had to keep her going when she would sit on the rail at the rink crying and complaining about being cold and not wanting to skate.

But that's all behind the 17-year-old protege of Roles who hopes to follow in her footsteps and win a medal at Lake Placid in 1980—perhaps the gold.

"Lisa is 5-8 where most figure skaters are from 5-2 to 5-5," Roles explains. "But she is very coordinated and her style complements her height. I told her that being that tall, she had better do something with it."

When a skater is in national and international competition, does Roles go along to give moral support or does she take a more active role?

"I'm right there on the ice during practice and during the warmup period, I'm by the rail," she says. "Once the competition is under way, I stay back and enjoy it."

"No, it doesn't make me nervous. If I got nervous, the skater would be twice as nervous."

As for Allen's attempt to overtake Fratianne and win the Olympic gold medal, Roles is somewhat philosophical.

"It's much easier climbing up to the top than getting there and trying to stay on top for several years," she says. "Linda has been about two years in front of Lisa even though they are both 17 but I think Lisa can get to the top in a year or two."

The timing is perfect for the next Olympic Games competition and with total dedication, her coach feels she can make it.

"I had total dedication to skating for about 12 years," Roles recalls. "I took some dance classes and ballet along with skating while I was growing up in Pasadena."

When Roles was in her prime as a competitor, the most daring maneuver was a double axel. Today it's a triple salchow and Allen ap-

Simple Victory For Duke

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Jim Spanarkel, despite playing with a heavily-taped sprained right ankle, sparked the fire under Duke's hot-shooting Blue Devils and put Villanova's NCAA title hopes in cold storage.

"We were looking for the fast break," the 6-foot-5 guard said after leading the Blue Devils into the national semifinals in St. Louis against Midwest winner Notre Dame next Saturday.

"We pushed the ball up the floor," Spanarkel said. "That was the turning point for us."

Duke's 90-72 victory over Villanova Sunday in the NCAA-East regionals at Providence Civic Center was just about that simple.

Villanova trailed by 11 points after the first six minutes and the rout was on.

Spanarkel, who led Duke's furious fast break, had 22 points. That, coupled with his 21 on Friday night in the Blue Devils' 84-80 victory over Pennsylvania in the regional semifinals, earned him the tournament MVP designation.

"We put everything together," said Duke coach Bill Foster. "They missed some shots early and we rebounded with a vengeance."

"We came out more fired up than we have been," said Spanarkel, the Duke captain who just about matched his season scoring average of 20.8 points a game.

Villanova coach Rollie Massimino saw the bad signs quickly. "Everything they shot went in," he said. "We don't get behind too often and make a big game of it. We had to play catch up. A couple of times we had a chance to get back in, but the ball just spurted away."

Duke led 46-32 at halftime, and in the second half, Duke's aggressive zone defense continued to force Villanova turnovers that led to Blue Devil fast break baskets.

Duke had a 20-point lead with 12:43 left in the game.

Foster said, "We didn't have to play scared."

Duke's 6-foot-11 center, Mike Gminski, who had 21 points, and 6-7 forward Gene Banks, who had 17, controlled the rebounding. Villanova got 20 points from forward Keith Herron but only a total of 11 rebounds from the team's front line.

The Wildcats' bright light was 6-4 guard Whitey Rigsby, who somehow had a game-high 13 rebounds to go with his 14 points.

Villanova, finishing with a 23-9 record, needed a basket with 13 seconds remaining to edge 13th-ranked Indiana, 61-60, on Friday night in the regional semifinals.

Seventh-ranked Duke, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, now 26-6, played just about well enough to beat the Ivy Leaguers in the Friday night game.

After 4-1 Win

Chile Next Foe For Americans

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — No matter the sagging fortunes of the Davis Cup in the United States, no matter that a total of only about 3,500 people watched this weekend's matches, the players say the old institution lives.

"Everybody loves it," Harold Solomon said after winning the pivotal match over South Africa's Bernie Mitton 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 Sunday. "Everybody dreams of playing the Davis Cup while they're growing up."

"It's very big now," he insisted. "But I think the prestige has slipped some. It hasn't been played up very well. It's just that the Davis Cup hasn't been able to find a spot in pro tennis."

The U.S. team took a 4-1 victory over the beleaguered South Africans with two victories apiece by Solomon and Vitas Gerulaitis. The only U.S. loss came when Fred McNair and Sherwood Stewart fell to the world's top-ranked doubles team, Frew McMillan and Bob Hewitt, on Saturday.

The Americans will face Chile in Santiago in the American zone final in September.

Gerulaitis didn't suffer a single service break Sunday as he beat Bryson Bertram 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

Solomon didn't have quite so easy a time. Leading 5-4 in the first set, Mitton had four break points but squandered them with backhand errors. The errors continued in the next game off his forehand and backhand, and Solomon had an easy break.

Mitton recovered a bit in the final game of the set and Solomon had to fight three set points.

"He had a lot of opportunities there in the first set," said Solomon. "Anytime you've got that many break points, you've got a good chance."

"Once he'd lost the first set, though, I think he knew he'd have to stay out there four sets," said Solomon. "I think that got to him psychologically."

Mitton, who played much of the match from the baseline as he'd promised he would, didn't think he should have played it any differently. "Solomon hits his passing shots with a lot of topspin, so I wouldn't like to come in any more," Mitton said.

The matches were free until Sunday of any on-court scenes stemming from the anti-apartheid protests going on outside against the South African presence. A lone man slipped on to the court unnoticed by a cordon of police.

He stood in the center, holding up a paper and pronounced, "These tennis matches are disgusting. There's blood on all your hands."

However, most players said neither that scene nor the demonstrations outside had bothered them at all.

Dantley's 31 Paces Lakers

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Adrian Dantley and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar combined for 57 points Sunday night in leading the Los Angeles Lakers to a 101-87 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Dantley had 31 points and Abdul-Jabbar 26 to spark the Lakers, who took the lead late in the second quarter and held the upper hand the rest of the way to snap a two-game losing streak.

The Hawks cut Los Angeles' advantage to five points at 82-77 early in the final period but Los Angeles responded with four straight points and wasn't threatened seriously after that.

Veteran guard Lou Hudson had 18 points for the Lakers, including his 17,000th career point, which came on a 15-foot jump shot mid way through the second quarter.

Boards the Difference

Irish Romp, 84-64; Branning Hits 15

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Notre Dame's roughhouse basketball team is two victories away from making the proud Irish the first school in major college history to bag national championships the same academic year in football and basketball.

"To make the final four is just unbelievable," said Digger Phelps, the only coach to take a Notre Dame squad this far in the NCAA tournament. "The rest is gravy. All we've been living for is this moment."

The Irish, powered by broad-shouldered freshman Kelly Tripucka, delivered a 22-8 knockout punch in the final 11 minutes Sunday and stormed past third-ranked DePaul, 84-64, to capture the NCAA Midwest Regional. The Irish (23-6) will meet Duke in the semifinals in St. Louis.

Former Marina High (Huntington Beach) standout Rich Branning had 15 points for the Irish and was selected the player of the game by NBC. It was the second straight week Branning had been accorded that honor.

Both Phelps and DePaul coach Ray Meyer proved prophetic as the game ended by its deceptive lopsided score.

Meyer, a 1938 Notre Dame graduate, had said the team that controlled the rebounding would control the game. Sure enough, the Irish wound up with 47 boards to DePaul's 36.

Phelps had said the key to a Notre Dame victory was stopping Dave Corzine, DePaul's 6-foot-11, 250-pound center and career scoring champion. And sure enough, Corzine, who poured in 46 points in DePaul's double-overtime Midwest triumph over Louisville, managed just 17 points to finish his college career with 1,895. Corzine had played with a dislocated little finger on his left hand.

"This made it painful for him to catch the ball, but I thought he put on a courageous performance," said Meyer. "But the Notre Dame depth wears you down and I doubt if it would have made any difference."

At halftime, Corzine had six points and Notre Dame, with a last-minute spurt, held a four-point lead. Then, in the first four minutes after intermission, Corzine hit three field goals and a free throw in an 11-2 run that gave the Blue Demons a 44-39 lead.

Branning's 15-footer broke momentum and then the 6-7 Tripucka hit three straight baskets. His 20-footer gave the Irish the lead for good at 47-46 at the 11:48 mark. The Blue Demons hit a cold spl and were virtually shut out on the boards, going scoreless from 7:54 until 4:51.

DEPAUL (64) — Watkins 8, Ponsetto 8, Corzine 17, Ramsey 2, Garland 18, Bradshaw 6, Dize 5. Totals 28 8-11 64.
NOTRE DAME (84) — Tripucka 18, Patton 7, Flowers 15, Branning 15, Williams 14, Jackson 3, Handlik 4, Laimbeer 12, Carpenter 2. Totals 32 20-24 84.
Halftime — Notre Dame 37, DePaul 33. Fouled out — Ponsetto, Garland. Total fouls — DePaul 21, Notre Dame 16. A — 10,400.

Peculiar Victory

Nicklaus Primed For Masters Classic

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus now has his sights trained on Augusta, Ga., and the Masters.

"It's been a pretty good run," he said of the four-tournament string that ended with his strange victory Sunday in the Tournament Players Championship.

"I've won $155,000 in my last four starts and that's not all that bad. I'm playing well, obviously."

"I'm delighted with the schedule I've set for myself this spring. From the standpoint of confidence going into the Masters (his next start), things couldn't be better."

After a brief pause, he continued: "I can't remember a better start to a season."

It includes two victories and two seconds in his last four starts. It was capped by one of the most peculiar of all his 65 American golf triumphs, a no-birdie round of three-over-par 75 and a one-over-par 289 total that produced a one-shot victory in the annual championship of the touring players. It was the third time in the five-year history of the event he'd taken the title.

With the triumph came a $60,000 first prize, which boosted his season's earnings to $157,065 and put Nicklaus ahead of Tom Watson for the first time this year. Watson, who failed to make the cut for the second consecutive time, has $103,181.

Nicklaus recognized that the national television audience may have been less than thrilled by the extremely high scores produced by a frustrating, windswept, links-type course, the 7,174-yard Sawgrass layout.

"They don't need to watch someone shoot 80. They can do that themselves," he said. "There wasn't any excitement in my 75."

About the only excitement was generated by John Mahaffey's ace with a three-iron on the 201-yard 15th.

Little Nabs San Diego Golf Classic

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It took the best round of seven-year pro Sally Little's career to keep rookie Nancy Lopez from winning her third straight LPGA tournament.

Little fired a seven-under-par 65 in the final round of the San Diego Classic to force a playoff with Lopez. The two finished the 72-hole tournament with scores of 282.

On the first extra hole of the playoff, the 26-year-old Little made a two-foot par putt to capture the $22,500 first prize. Lopez had just missed a 15-footer for par.

The 21-year-old Lopez, who carded a 68 Sunday, wasn't upset about losing the playoff.

"Two wins and a second place isn't bad," said Lopez.

pears to have this mastered in her free skating routine where she has excelled in both the U.S. and world competition.

A triple salchow is a jump, taking off backwards, spinning three times in the air and landing going backwards.

"Triple jumps are fairly new, especially to the girls," Roles explains.

Routines for free skating and musical accompaniment take a great deal of time to put together.

"We spend about six weeks getting a routine in shape for each skater and then practice for the rest of the year before the next competition," Roles explains.

"A skater needs something fresh for impact, something new and different each year. It's always a challenge to come up with something suitable."

Roles feels that even though she gained a gold medal as No. 1 in the U.S. in 1962, she didn't become a complete skater until she joined an ice show.

Foster Key In Bruins' Spike Win

WESTWOOD—Greg Foster's triple sparked an 83-71 non-conference track and field victory for the UCLA Bruins over visiting Tennessee Sunday before 3,916 fans at Drake Stadium.

It was UCLA coach Jim Bush's 100th coaching victory and Foster was the key as he won the 100-meters, 200-meters and 110-meter hurdles. The 6-3 Foster won the high hurdles in 13.6, took the 100 in 10.39 (wind) and polished off the 200 in 20.6.

Still, it took a victory in the final event, the mile relay, to preserve the victory over talented Tennessee. And in that one, it didn't require a great deal of UCLA muscle as Tennessee lost it with false starts.

Three meet records were set during the afternoon, including a 278-4 effort in the javelin throw by Tennessee's Phil Olson.

become a more complete skater. Kids don't realize this even though they put in many hours of practice."

While Allen and Carlow of Costa Mesa are her two top performers at the moment, she has had others. Wendy Burge who finished fourth in the world competition in 1976 and is now preparing to join Ice Capades, preceded her two current stars.

When Roles was a competitor, her main interest was to win an Olympic medal and she accomplished that purpose, then set her sights on the U.S. championship.

Was she also interested in performing for an ice show? "I thought more of competing in the Olympics but when you get to the top, you get offers and I am not sorry I spent the time with the Ice Follies. It was a great experience," she says.

She is also at the top in her current pursuits, that of teaching others the fine art of figure skating. Most of her students are recommended to her by other teachers because of her reputation as well as the results obtained by her proteges.

But don't try to persuade her to take a son or a daughter who is just beginning to skate or follow the figure skating procedure. She doesn't have the time as she moves from one place to another on the ice with a smooth, easy skating motion to instruct her students.

Ontario Motor Speedway may not be the site of the opening USAC championship car race this year, but the postponement from March 5 when rains washed out the Twin-200, will give fans an opportunity to watch two of the top drivers compete.

A. J. Foyt and Mario Andretti were both added to the field for Sunday's race. Foyt missed the March 5 date with an injury and Andretti was busy on the Grand Prix circuit in South Africa.

Both have said they will be ready for the Easter Sunday show, Foyt in both the stock and the championship car events.

Andretti will drive for Roger Penske and will team with Tom Sneva on the starting grid. Rick Mears, a third member of the team, will sit this one out.

Carter Aims for Indy

One driver who won't be ready for the Ontario event is Duane "Pancho" Carter, a graduate of Marina High School in Huntington Beach.

Carter recently held a press conference in Indianapolis and stated that he would be driving a sprint car in April and will be at Indy when practice opens early in May.

Carter suffered multiple injuries in a crash of his new Cosworth Lightning at Phoenix Dec. 2 when a U-joint failed.

"I try to win every race I'm in," he told those in attendance. "You might consider this a race and I'm trying to win as fast as possible."

"I'm an active person and I can't stand to lay around. I want to be where I'm independent again and that's the main thing that drives me—I want to get back in a race car."

"I enjoy and love racing and I want to do that rather than sit around and mope and feel sorry for myself."

At present, Carter is undergoing therapy twice a day and his right elbow may need some additional surgery. His left wrist doesn't roll and the nerves to his right ankle are damaged, causing it not to lift properly.

Plans are under way to alter the throttle system in his race car. But Carter will be back and his goal is to be on hand for the entire month of May at Indianapolis.

LB Grand Prix Set April 2

Will Andretti and Ronnie Peterson are dueling each other for victory as well as the point lead in the world championship chase at the Long Beach Grand Prix April 2.

Can James Hunt's luck change at Long Beach and will Nicki Lauda get the checkered flag in his new Brabham?

These questions and others will be answered when the world's top grand prix drivers compete along the streets of Long Beach.

Peterson recently captured the South African Grand Prix despite the fact he held the lead for only one lap.

He raced with 37.5 gallons of fuel and Andretti tried to get through the race with 34.5. That was the difference.

Andretti, chasing Patrick Depailler for the lead, was forced to the pits for fuel, then Depailler ran short and Peterson won his first Grand Prix race since 1976, taking over for the final lap.

All of the top Grand Prix drivers are expected to compete in the race including defending world champion Lauda and former champions Hunt and Emerson Fittipaldi.

Five Miles of Concrete

THE GREEN FLAG — Preparation of the Long Beach course will cost $100,000 and it will be 2.02 miles in length. It will have 12 turns with a start on Shoreline drive in front of grandstand 24 this year. The finish will remain on Ocean Boulevard at the intersection of Long Beach Boulevard.

The streets bordering the course will be lined with nearly five miles of precast concrete barriers, 12-feet long and 34-inches high. Each weighs four tons.

Atop the barriers are five miles of chainlink safety fence, 10-feet high and at the turns and escape areas, approximately 25,000 tires will be lashed together in rows up to four feet deep.

Supplementing the tire barriers are 1,500 oil drums, each filled with 650 pounds of sand.

The race itself is 80 laps and will be telecast live outside the Los Angeles area by CBS. It will be shown by delay in this area.

One of the supporting features will be a 50-lap, 101-mile sprint for Formula Atlantic cars on Saturday. Among the contenders will be Cliff Hansen of Laguna Beach.

White Horse Races Again

It's the Year of the Horse in the Chinese calendar, which means you will be seeing and hearing more of White Horse Scotch.

THEY LUCKED OUT IN San Francisco when their four-tiered 45-foot-long float won the "best of parade" award and, on top of that, the lady they sponsored, Stephanie Lee, won the beauty contest.

Whether these triumphs will trickle into White Horse sales, either here or in China, is dubious — White Horse is not sold in China and sells poorly here — but the once every-12-years hoopla has become one of those traditions that's honored, no matter what.

If you're a Scotch drinker and a world traveler, you know White Horse runs a pretty good race. One of the prongs of the old British imperialism, White Horse is sold in 170 countries, give or take one or two, depending on the re-

And it ranks second only to Johnnie Walker as the pre-eminent brand in the world market.

The fact that Johnnie Walker outsells it doesn't bother the White Horse people too much since the two are stablemates, both racing under the colors of Britain's giant whisky house, Distillers Corp. Dewar's White Label and Vat 69 are two other Scotches that belong to this company, the largest whisky distiller in the world outside of Seagram's.

WHILE THEY HAVE THIS common parent in the mother country, the Scotches are funneled into the American market through different channels. Johnnie Walker is sold here by Norton Simon Inc. Dewar's is distributed by Schenley. Vat 69 is a National Distillers brand. And White Horse is marketed by Calvert Distillers, which peddles three other Scotch brands: Passport, Hudson's Bay and Logan De Luxe.

After climbing sharply during the 1960s, Scotch sales have settled into a no-growth pattern, with the big brands

siphoning off more and more of the market. Americans down about 19 million cases of Scotch a year. Five brands
— J&B, Cutty Sark, Dewar's, Johnnie Walker and Chivas
— account for eight million of those cases.

WAY DOWN THE LIST, ranking about 20th, is White Horse, selling about 250,000 cases a year. They drink more White Horse than that in Japan.

Since it's the Year of the Horse, White Horse will get an extra push this year. The Calvert pitch is "Not a Scotch in the world can run with White Horse," with the kicker: "a difference you can taste." But it's clear that no matter

Comic Studies Clowns — Vice Versa

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Van Dyke went to Florida to study the circus clowns and found they were studying him.

"They're all graduates of the Ringling training school, where they're shown a film — and it turns out to be a film of mine," said Van Dyke.

The film is "The Comic," written and directed by Carl Reiner, in which Van Dyke plays a slapstick silent screen comic in the tradition of Buster Keaton. It has now become virtually a cult film.

"I THOUGHT I was going to do some pratfalls, but those kids beat anything I've ever seen," he said. "They know every fall from every movie Keaton or Charlie Chaplin made and could do every one of them."

Van Dyke worked with the clowns during the taping of "Highlights of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus," which he hosted on NBC earlier this month. He donned makeup and costume to be a clown, swung from a trapeze and rode a unicycle with training wheels.

"I was surprised by the clowns," he said. "I always think of circus people as being European and over 65. I don't think there was a clown over 25."

CLOWNING AROUND
Dick Van Dyke

"YOU THINK OF running away to join the circus as a thing of the past, but they've got the bug bad. Most of them had thought of becoming clowns since they were kids."

Most of the taping was done during regular performances, but the tiger act was taped in the morning. "The tigers weren't used to working out in the morning," Van Dyke said. "They were very cranky. And you know how TV directors are, they want to do everything over and over. Finally, the tigers were getting so angry the tamer had to tell the director. The director said over the loudspeaker, 'Tell the tigers to relax.'"

Van Dyke, casually dressed and doing his own circus act balancing himself on a chair with a tendency to tip, said he may also be MC of the circus in Monte Carlo on another TV show in May.

HE LEFT "THE Carol Burnett Show" last year after only about 10 appearances. After starring in two comedy series and his own variety show, he had signed as a regular on the Burnett show in its 11th year.

"I left because of the problems it was a causing me in commuting to my home in Arizona," he said. "Carol shot her show on Friday night and all the years I commuted, I left on Friday night," he said. "So I wasn't getting home until Saturday noon at the earliest and I had to leave Sunday evening. I had no home life."

He admitted there were other reasons. He said, "It didn't quite work out as it should. I realized I was throwing the show off balance. I wasn't the straight man that Harvey Korman had been. I developed a lot of respect for Harvey. When you're thrown in during the 11th year of a show it's hard to adjust."

The Burnett show, a classic at its peak, did seem to be running out of steam.

VAN DYKE SAID, "They had that feeling. That they had covered everything in 11 years. I'd do to a production meeting and throw out something and they'd say, 'Oh, we did that in 1972.' There was nothing they hadn't done."

He said his time working with Carol Burnett couldn't have been more enjoyable. "I think the main thing was that there were just no directions left to go."

Shortly after Van Dyke's departure Miss Burnett said this would be her final season. CBS is expected to put Mary Tyler Moore's new comedy-variety show into that time slot next year.

VAN DYKE SAID he plans to do several specials next year, and might consider another try at a comedy-variety show. That is, providing he had a guarantee he wouldn't be kicked all over the schedule as he was last time.

"But the networks are cutting back on specials," he said. "The big thing is the mini-series."

'Roots' a Hit Again — in Germany

By ROBERT H. REID

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Despite some poor reviews, millions of West Germans tune in every week to watch Kunta Kinte and his descendants struggle from slavery to freedom in the first German airing of the TV series based on Alex Haley's book "Roots."

Station WDR, which reportedly paid $750,000 for the rights to the American series, claims that at least 20 million of the 62 million West Germans saw the first three installments.

To that can be added uncounted numbers of viewers in East Germany, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Austria and other neighboring countries where television sets pick up West German television.

TV's Pilot Shows In Production

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This time of the year means television pilots, and here are some in production:

First Artists has "California Girls," a contemporary comedy starring P. J. Soles and Robin Dearden. Karen Valentine is in "Go West Young Girl," a Western comedy from Columbia Pictures Television.

Paramount has three, "Legs," a comedy about Las Vegas show girls; "Spanner's Key," an underwater adventure created by Peter Benchley, author of "Jaws" and "The Deep"; and "True Grit," with Warren Oates and Lisa Pelikan in the roles created in the movie by John Wayne and Clint Darby.

Quinn Martin has "Colorado C.I.," a police show, and "Avengers USA," a romantic adven-

ABC TELEVISION IN New York estimated that 130 million Americans watched one or more segments of the series when it was shown in the United States in January 1977.

Some German critics contend the production paints a false picture of an African paradise and overstates cruelty to black slaves.

Writing in the magazine Stern, Hans Nogly said Haley's book had become "the Bible for U.S. Africans," and "television made a comic book out of the Bible."

The Frankfurter Allgemeine newspaper said Haley "loved the figures in his book," but for the TV writers they were "only raw material of possible entertainment value."

THE FIRST EPISODE WAS telecast Sunday, Feb. 26, and the rest are being aired in a primetime Monday night slot. Following the episodes, there is a brief documentary on the history of slavery in the Western Hemisphere.

"We never expected it to be the biggest hit of all times," said network spokesman Jochem Stinauer. "When we bought it, we knew that there wouldn't be the same amount of interest here as in the United States, where the interest is determined far more by the viewers' own involvement and experience with the subject."

He said the only viewer reaction had been a few calls from people who claimed the series fanned racial hatred.

The episodes are dubbed in German. Most viewers interviewed by The Associated Press in different parts of West Germany found the series good, gripping entertainment.

HANNELORE HATZENBERGER, a housewife in Bonn, said she was deeply shocked by the cruelty to the blacks.

"What happened to them was criminal," she said.

Peter Niedererly, 27, a teacher in Bonn, considered the show "pretty accurate," but added, "I know so little of the exact history of the era that I cannot judge it historically."

Ingrid Kautz, 37, a secretary in Hamburg, said she thought the episodes presented "more or less an accurate picture" of slavery in the United States but some of the characterizations were "very naive."

"All in all, 'Roots' is historie schmalz," she said.

Director Schrader Films Human Depravity

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He has the look of an over-age choirboy, yet in five years Paul Schrader has gained a reputation as a creator of corrosive studies of human depravity.

The latest is "Blue Collar" which looks at first like a funny-bitter movie about the frustrations of workers caught in the dehumanizing grind of an auto assembly line. Midway, the film takes a surprising turn as the three workers — Richard Pryor, Harvey Keitel, Yaphet Kotto — discover the folly of trying to combat their corrupt union.

Schrader is best known for writing "Taxi Driver," which deeply disturbed critics and filmmakers with its study of a would-be assassin, played by Robert DeNiro. Schrader's first film was "The Yakuza," a film of Japanese gangsterism that featured numerous killings. He also wrote a psychological thriller, "Obsession," and a story of Vietnam veterans, "Rolling Thunder."

THE 32-YEAR-OLD Grand

Rapids, Mich., native is now directing his script of "Hardcore" for Columbia Pictures. George C. Scott portrays a religious midwesterner who descends into the nether world of porno films to find his wayward daughter.

"Hardcore" was filming recently at a Western Avenue sex shop, where Scott first sees his daughter in a filmed orgy. During the lunch break, Schrader retired to his trailer and talked about directing his second film with the legendary Scott.

"It is intimidating to work with him," said Schrader. "Not because he's difficult; he isn't. But he never makes mistakes. So everyone else on the set, especially me, tries to get the scene right the first time."

"BEFORE WE DID the scene in which he breaks down at the sight of his daughter, he told my assistant, 'I don't want to do this twice.' He doesn't like to repeat himself at any time, and fortunately I've been able to get most of his scenes in one take. I'll do the scene a second time, but his performance is exactly the same."

"Hardcore" sprang from an incident of a missing teen-age girl Schrader had heard about in high school. "Blue Collar" also had its beginnings in his Michigan past.

"My friends' fathers worked in the Fisher Body plant, so I knew about assembly lines," the film maker remarked. The idea for the movie began with a suggestion from another young screen writer, Sydney A. Glass, whose father had been on a Detroit assembly line. Using Glass's source material, Schrader wrote the script with his brother, Leonard.

PAUL SCHRADER had decided he wanted to direct. His reasoning: "I hadn't been a writer; I was a screen writer. A screen writer is only half a filmmaker. I wanted to be in charge."

But how to make the break? He decided to "make my alliance with the talent," and he submitted the "Blue Collar" script to Pryor, Keitel and Kotto. All were enthusiastic. Next he interested the Norman Lear-Bud Yorkin company, TAT Communications, in partially financing the project.

Schrader then tackled his greatest challenge: Detroit.

"I DESCRIBED the script to the major auto companies and none would allow us to film inside their plants," he said. "We also had some troubles with the city, which is run by the major companies."

Two weeks before he was scheduled to start filming, Schrader lacked a factory location as well as the money to finish the film. Help came from Universal Pictures, which supplied financing, and the Checker Motor Company, which offered its plant.

"Checker had no problem with product identification, since it makes taxicabs," said Schrader. "Also, the workers were almost on strike, and the company thought a movie company in the plant might provide a diversion for them."

WHY DO SCHRADER'S films take such a baleful view of the human condition?

"If you are indoctrinated with the idea of total depravity and original sin from childhood, it's hard to shake later, even if you leave the religious life. I lived in a closed religious community — Dutch Calvinist — and if you didn't believe, you were in trouble."

British Laud 'Annie Hall'

LONDON (AP) — Woody Allen is scoring big in London. His motion picture "Annie Hall" swept top film honors at the 1977 British Academy Awards ceremony.

The semi-autobiographical movie about his love affair with co-star Diane Keaton took the best film, best direction and best actress awards presented annually by the British Academy of Film and Television Arts.

Allen was named best director and Miss Keaton best actress for their work in "Annie Hall." The awards were presented by Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, at a star-studded ceremony televised in Britain.

The Allen film also won the best screenplay and best film editing awards.

The best actor award went posthumously to British star Peter Finch for his performance in "Network."

Shirley: 'Hey, Marty, Why Not?'

MARTY, SHIRLEY AT WEDDING
She Popped the Question

Q: How did Marty Ingels happen to marry Shirley Jones? What I really mean is who proposed to whom? — M.J. Donner, Oxnard, Cal.

A: Shirley did, according to Marty. "After she was on an 11-week tour starring in 'The Sound of Music,'" the groom grinned, she popped the question. "She suddenly started talking to me about making room in her home for my office. Naturally I was stunned. Then, with sons Patrick and Ryan within hearing distance, she turned to me and said, 'Hey, Marty, why don't we get married?' So we did."

The reformed comic, who had a traumatic divorce, was a friend of the late Jack Cassidy and secretly adored Shirley for many years. But after she was free he was hesitant about asking her to be his wife.

"I realized," he said, "that I had not made it as a performer, a difficult thing to admit, especially while Shirl and two of her sons, David and Shaun, were earning an awful lot of money."

Meanwhile, Marty switched from being a performer to launching a personnel agency to book movie and sports superstars into doing lucrative TV commercials and tieups. "Just this last year," he told Paul Denis, "our firm, Ingels, Inc., made" (he probably meant grossed) "$6 million. In addition to booking top names for TV commercials, today we're doing film and TV production."

Q: When O.J. Simpson retires permanently from football, what does he plan to do? — Stacey Shaw, Key West, Fla.

A: The Juice already has diversified his business interests, leaping from Hertz car rental TV commercials to organizing and running a TV production firm. He undoubtedly will spend more time appearing in feature films. While making the "Cassandra Crossing," O.J. realized he still had a lot to learn. Playing poker with Sophia Loren, while the grips changed sets for the next scene,

'Glad You Asked That'

by Marilyn and Hy Gardner

O.J. suddenly discovered the actress had cleaned him out.

Q: The brilliant Met tenor, Luciano Pavarotti — to what does he attribute his ability to reach notes very few even attempt? — Mr. and Mrs. R.K.C., Red Bank, N.J.

A: To proper breathing! Making his American debut in Miami in 1965 with Joan Sutherland in "Lucia di Lammermoor," "The King of the High Cs" credits (in part) his ability to hit those high notes to feeling Sutherland's stomach (while on tour) "to see how she breathed." And his determination to overcome his papa's early criticism: "You have a good voice, son, but Gigli and Caruso sang better!"

PAVAROTTI

Footnote: Pavarotti, though interested in serious music, didn't make opera a career till he won a singing contest when still a struggling schoolteacher. A few months after he made his debut in 1969, La Scala invited him to understudy three roles. "I'll wait," he confidently said, "until you have a major part for me." He is now 42.

Q: I have never heard Liza Minnelli sing her mother's (Judy Garland's) "Over the Rainbow" or any other songs mom made famous. Any idea why? — Annie Carter, Indianapolis.

A: "Because I couldn't sing them as good as she would," Liza explains. Adding proudly, "neither can anyone else."

Worming In

The Usreys sell worms, pure and simple, to aerate Orange County soil and to dangle from fishing hooks.

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It isn't an easy subject to worm out of. If you try to cut it in half—to more manageable proportions—it just multiplies and you have twice as much.

Worms. You divide them and they double. Red worms. Amidst the tract houses in Orange County, red worms are being raised for soil improvement and bait.

If you thought farming in Orange County was all but gone because of the land values of suburbia, think again.

Those tract houses have driven away all the worms and now the homeowners have hard, compacted soil that could use a few worms to loosen it up.

B's Red Worm Farm in Huntington Beach has been growing worms for gardeners and fishermen for nearly 30 years.

Alan Usrey, son of the founders, Lloyd and Geraldine Usrey, is matter-of-fact about his family's unusual business.

"They're a natural soil enricher," he says of his "progeny." "They eat all the organic material and their waste product, the castings, is a rich plant food source."

The worms burrow into the soil during the daytime to escape the heat, Usrey said, and come back up at night to eat, thus naturally aerating the soil.

The worm castings also are used for an organic potting mix. A bag of the substance looks simply like good topsoil.

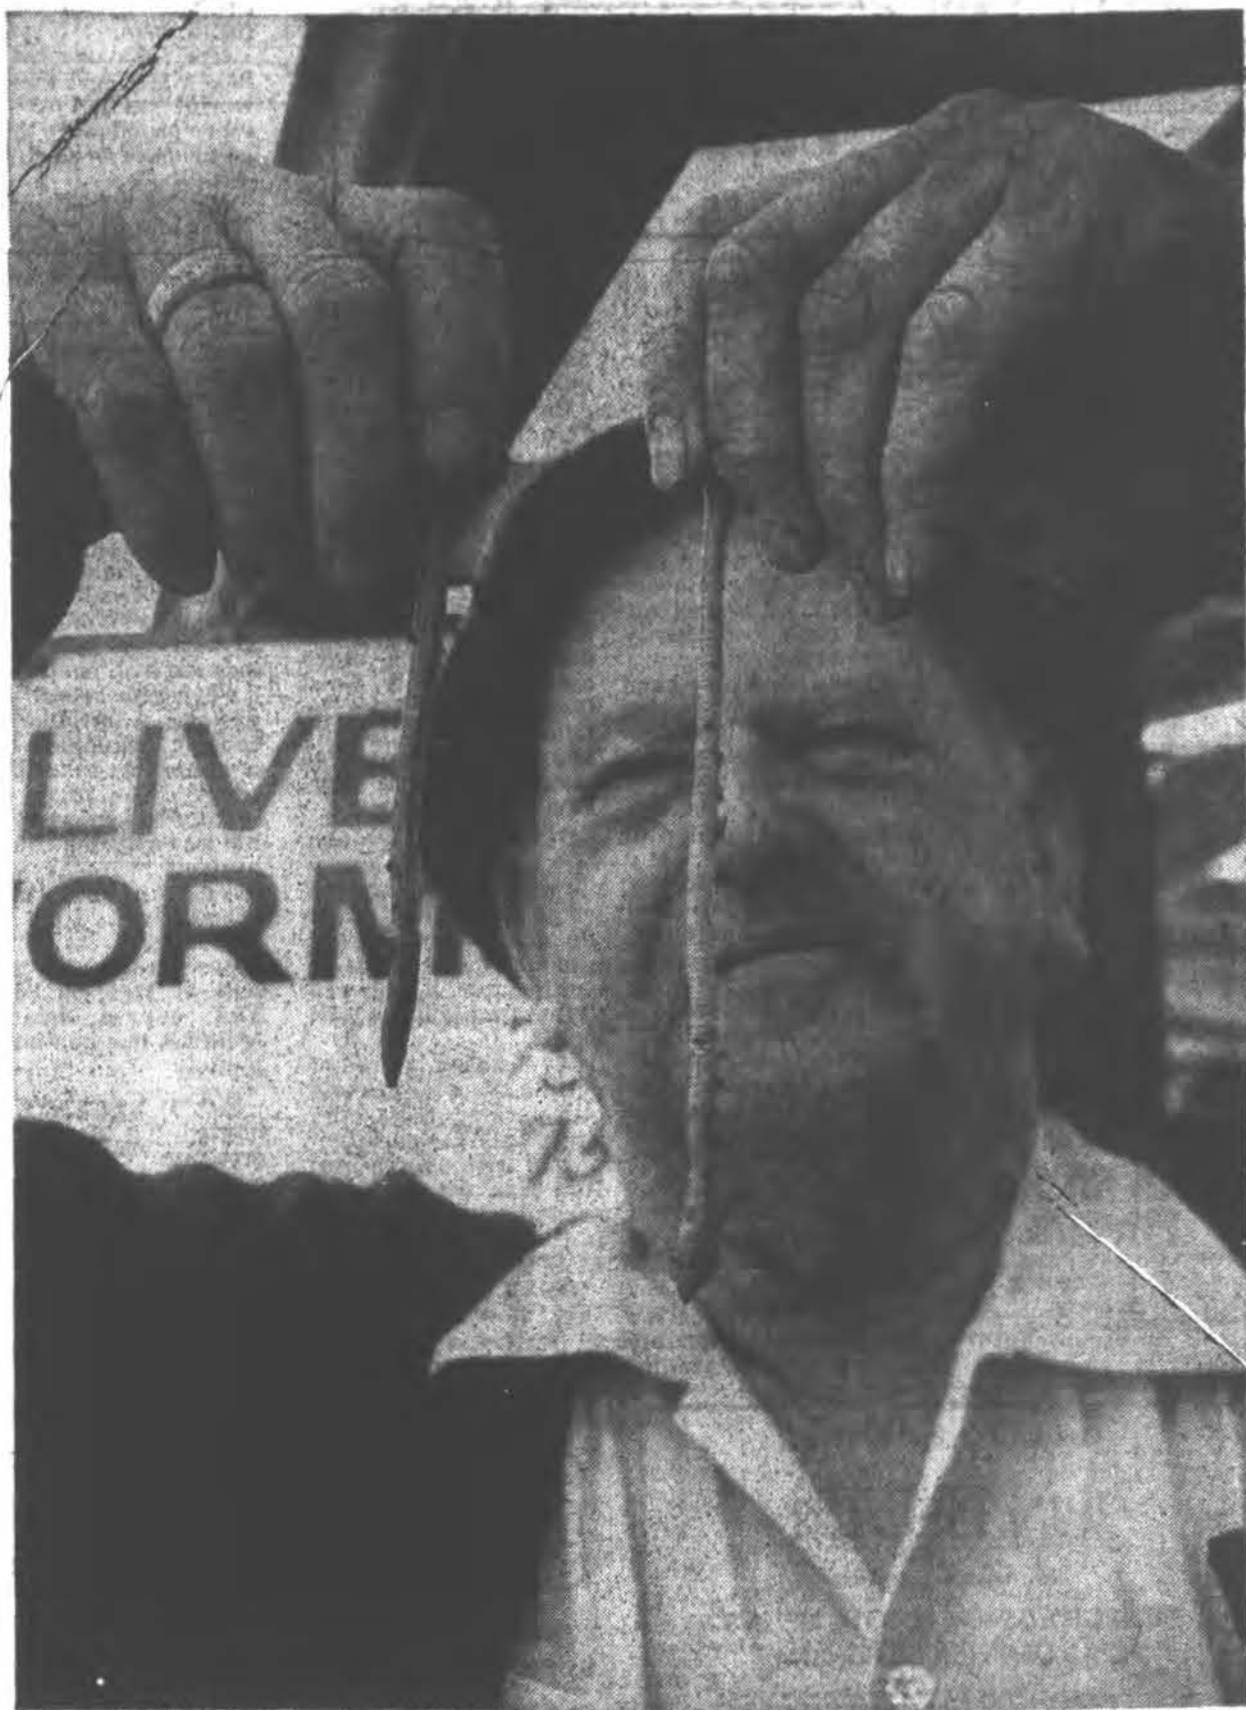

"Home" for the worm population at B's is a series of wooden boxes which are filled with manure and soil.

(See WORMS, Page C2)

Lloyd Usrey works on the farm. Each box contains more than 1,000 worms.

Lloyd Usrey holds up two friends. Worms, it turns out, are smart.

The Meeting of Brown and White

A new Indian warrior society is emerging on the horizon. It is educated in the ways of today's society and will rise to equality, many Indians believe.

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It is estimated that there are well over 66,000 American Indians residing in the Los Angeles-Orange county area, but for that large a number, a disproportionate few are enrolled in local colleges and universities.

Where are all the rest?

American Indian counselors from the University of California system got together in April of last year to ask themselves that question and found that Indian youths simply aren't motivated to go to college.

The group meeting at UCLA that day formulated a program to encourage junior high and high school students to begin thinking about college and career choices.

The program was given for the sixth time at UC Irvine recently and attracted several hundred students from Southernland schools.

Just why aren't Indian youths motivated to go to college?

After the day-long meeting, Arlene West, a Northern Paiute who is a school relations officer at UCLA, said she believes there are several reasons they don't go.

"A LOT OF them attend inner-city high schools and there is no motivation there," she said. "And a lot of American Indian parents went to Bureau of Indian Affairs boarding schools where graduation from high school was a feat in itself."

"They weren't motivated to go on to high school and they don't encourage their children."

The day-long program, which so far has been given in northern California and San Diego and is scheduled for Riverside next, includes a keynote speaker, workshops on various career areas and presentations by colleges, universities and financial aid officers.

At UCI the keynote speaker was Thomas Almojuela, a Squamish Indian who graduated from West Point, earned a master's degree from Stanford University and is an engineer and helicopter pilot.

Almojuela encouraged the stu-

Wood Niche

By CAROL MOORE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Some people panel their dens. And then there is William Andrecheck. Appropriately the Costa Mesa development where he lives is called The Woods. In his own words, his apartment is "a niche carved out of a lumberyard."

He designs cabin-like interiors for people whose idea of roughing it is turning off the electric blanket.

The natural, rough bawn wall treatments give a comfortable feeling, made even more so by the warm glow of lights in evening.

Any color in the rooms come from the texture and grain of the woods. This is especially true of his kitchen design, featuring a geometric pattern of cedar and redwood laths.

Nicely weathered plywood streaked with rain and old wire spools from the telephone company are fashioned into a customized bar with overhead glass rack.

Andrecheck's originality applies to function as well as design.

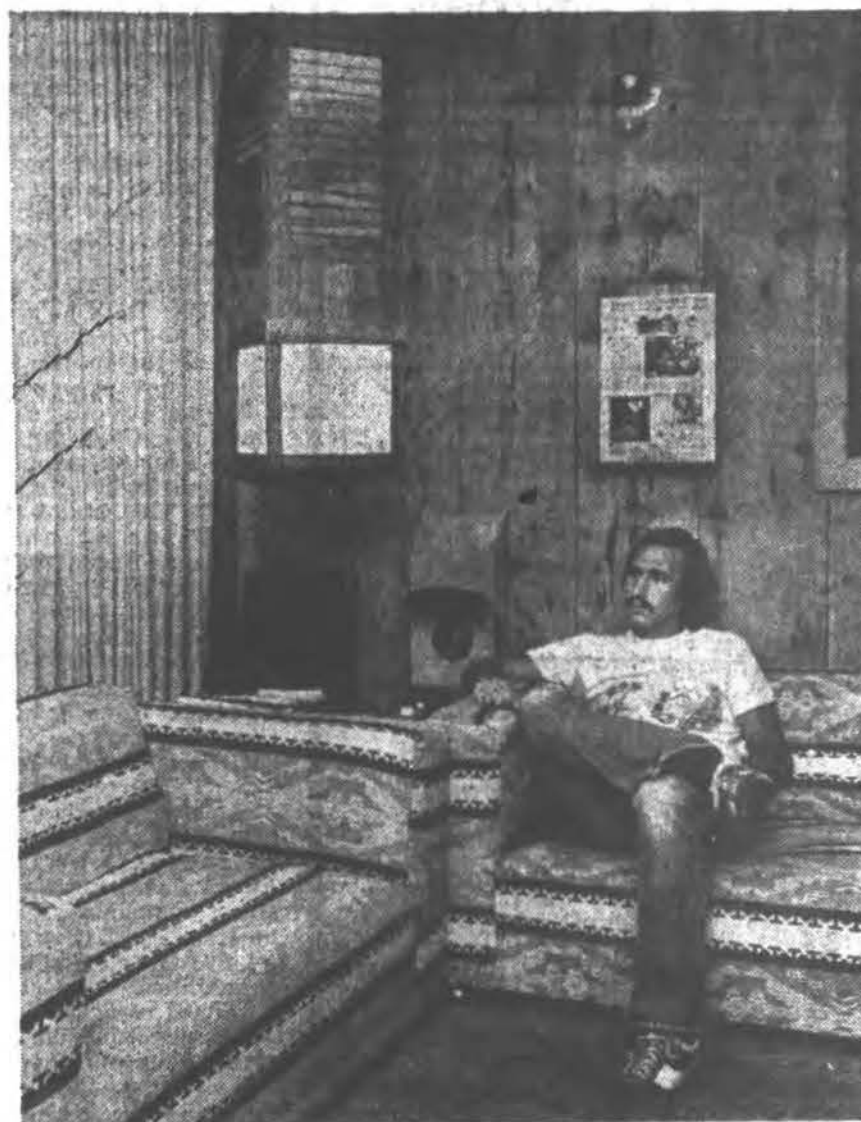

He figured lamps don't always need bases, so his louvered model has a trunk that goes to the ceiling. And a table folds into the wall, ideal for making the most of living space in an apartment.

He spent six years in industrial arts on the East Coast and has been out here six years.

"Californians are not all that handy; hardware stores mostly sell kits," he said. "Easterners do more things for themselves; it's a throwback to necessity."

He carries out the feel of old-fashioned woods with such decor items as brass sink fixtures, antique game machines and framed turn-of-the-century newspapers.

Money Does Talk...Indians

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, more in jest than anything else, you recommended to readers that if they have any Confederate money left to hang on to it. You said, "With what's happening to the U.S. dollar, Confederate money might be as good as the currency we are using today." We should be so lucky!

One Confederate Note is selling for $10.75 and the $5 Confederate Note is selling for $11.50. Thought you'd like to know what goes on in the world of finance. Money talks, you know. — R.S.K.

LANDERS: This may be hard to believe but I have been married for seven years to a man who is illiterate. Bob (not his real name) cannot read or write. When we began going together I asked him how much schooling he had. He said ninth grade. Bob can sign his name and address and that's about all. He tried to fool me but I caught on shortly after we married.

I have tried very hard to get Bob to go to night school, but he is not interested. We now have a four-year-old son who is as sharp as a tack. He keeps asking his dad to read to him. My husband says, "Go ask your mother." Before long the boy will catch on, too.

Bob has held the same job for 11 years. He is a good worker, but he'll never be able to advance unless he does something about his limitations. I love him. He's a fine person but the uncertainty about his future is making me nervous. What can I do to help him? — IN A DITHER which went undetected because he managed to bluff his way through and was passed from one grade to the next.

Contact a grade school principal and inquire about testing for learning disabilities. (Explain the person is an adult). Perhaps if your husband knew his inability to read was due to a neurological or emotional problem and not stupidity he would be much more amenable to help. Good luck, dear. I hope he follows through. His life and yours will be ever so much richer if he overcomes this handicap.

DEAR ANN: We are very friendly with a couple who live nearby, and we go out together often. We always use our car although theirs is just as comfortable. It's always "What time will you pick us up?"

My husband is tired of getting stuck for gas and oil, parking fees, etc., while they get portal-to-portal transportation. How can we turn this around without appearing cheap? — FREE LIVERY

DEAR LIV: Next time say, "How about picking us up for a change?" The time after say, "It's our turn to drive."

dents to have dreams and work to fulfill them.

His first dreams were to fly like a bird and travel around the world, "to find out what all those other people were thinking" and to go to space as an astronaut.

HE WENT TO public schools in Washington where he was "a member of the brown group" and never interacted with the white students.

When his family got electricity and a television set during his eighth grade year, he discovered that the world was much wider than he had thought.

Through sports, he "broke the barrier between brown and white," he said. "It was then that people realized I had a first name and started listening to what I had to say."

After seeing a film on West Point he decided he wanted to go. But he was a minority—an Indian at that—and had no money, so he crossed it off his list.

"My high school counselor suggested a military academy, though," Almojuela said. "So I got a chance to take the West Point test."

He didn't make it the first time but had a second chance and found himself only the second Indian ever to attend the prestigious school.

At West Point he fulfilled some more dreams. He played basketball at Madison Square Garden and realized, during parachute training, that he wanted to become a pilot.

MOST RECENTLY he was a finalist for the NASA astronaut program. Though he was disappointed at not making the final stage he said he was encouraged by the fact that women and blacks were selected for the first time.

"You women out there," he said to his audience at UCI, "realize that there's nothing you can't do today."

Almojuela said he still hasn't given up his dream of being an astronaut and plans to apply for the next class.

His challenge to the students was, "Find out what's available to fulfill your dream."

Later in the day some of the students talked about what it means to be an Indian in today's society.

Urban areas seem to offer little discrimination to them, according to Leslie Stanhoff, a Potawatomi, and Donna Gutierrez, an Aztec. Both attend Santa Fe High School in Santa Fe Springs.

"MY GRANDFATHER had his name changed and he had to go to an Indian school where he was taught menial work," she said. "But he's not bitter. He has had a chance to develop his mind."

Miss Stanhoff plans to study public health and work with Indians and Miss Gutierrez is interested in nursing.

Both said they are proud of their heritage and eager to learn as much about it as they can. Miss Stanhoff and her family attend tribal "sings" when they visit friends and relatives in Oklahoma and Miss Gutierrez performs Indian dances.

The University of California American Indian Counselors/Recruiters organization believes there still is a stigma to education which must be removed before Indians have a clear path to all the professions.

The organization notes that some Indians still believe that education will divert the Indian from accomplishing the goals of the people as a whole.

But there is no need to fear, the counselors say.

"It is understood that a new warrior society is emerging on the horizon," the association notes. These new warriors are "educated in the ways of today's society."

They are "armed with new weapons," and with the new weapons, Indians will "rise to their rightful place in the sun as equal partners to our brothers in this nation."

Horoscope

TUESDAY, MARCH 21
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Universal appeal is keynoted. You get finger on public pulse — you sense what to do and when to do it. Popularity increases. Love dominates.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Slow-and-easy approach brings constructive results, especially where home and family are concerned. Another Taurus — a Libra and a Scorpio — figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stick to principles, beliefs; some who claim to be religious may attempt to dominate your own views. Key is to preach your own sermon of "live-and-let-live."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on production, creativity, financial status, responsibility of entering a serious relationship. Capricorn is in picture — and so is another born under Cancer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle indicates right moves, decisions. Be independent in thought, action. Finish what you start — stress completion, leave no loose ends. Give full play to creative capabilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get new lease; what seemed out of reach is suddenly available. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure in scenario. Check areas marked "Restricted."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on friends, desires, ability to get point across in manner which gains allies. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You make right choice. Superior knows it and rewards you for it. Accent on duty, responsibility, authority, achievement. Goal is in clear sight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides with communication, learning process, long-range planning, distance, travel, spiritual revelation. Temporary delay should be considered an asset.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be analytical; refuse to be satisfied merely to know that something happened. Find out why it occurred. Piece together bits of information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family affairs, responsibilities are spotlighted. Contracts, partnerships, public relations and marriage command attention.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dig for facts — no one intends to hand you anything on silver platter. Know it and act accordingly. Moderate pace wins — avoid extravagance, extremes. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — figure in your personal scenario.

If March 21 is your birthday you are creative, artistic, quick, high-strung, fond of food and travel. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. April could be your most significant month of 1978.

...Worms

they leave their castings in return. "Every nine to 12 months the box fills up and the bottom two-thirds is castings," Usrey said.

When a box is filled the worms are transferred to an empty box and given more fertilizer and the process begins again.

Worms intended for fishing are fattened up with walnut meat, which is high in protein, or grape pumice.

"The population will double in 90 days," Usrey noted. "They have a 27- to 30-day gestation period. It takes seven days for them to mate and throw off egg capsules."

The odd creatures are bisexual, Usrey pointed out. "Both worms throw off egg capsules."

The "babies" are quarter-inch threads that have a red tint.

Though worms seem very simplistic creatures, they know some of the secrets of life that have evaded humans, Usrey indicated, such as body regeneration.

"You can cut it crosswise and both ends will live," he said. "But if you cut it lengthwise it will die."

One of the oldest living creatures on the earth, the worm comes in many sizes and shapes, Usrey said. Naturally, they grow 'em big in Texas and varieties up to a foot long are found there.

In Australia, however, worms can be found as big as three feet long," Usrey added.

The life span of a red worm is three to five years, depending on all conditions.

They are smart. "If the population becomes too dense they will stop breeding. They are on the verge of starvation," Usrey explained. "The population will go into a decline."

"They are alert to their system. They can't see or make a sound, but they have a good sense of smell. They can sense light and heat. They breathe through their skin."

How does a homeowner adapt them to his environment, once they are purchased from a farm?

"You rake them into your lawn and add organic fertilizer twice a year," Usrey said.

Or, you can put them in flower beds or vegetable gardens. The important thing is that they are fertilized twice a year.

It's not terribly expensive to begin a worm farm in your own soil given the benefits they bring. B's has rates of one box for $4 or three for $10.

That's a lot of wiggling, with about 1,100 worms a box.

...Wood

His masterpiece of timber art to date is a 10x6 foot sculpture of butted blocks in the office of UC Irvine's Director of Business Services Dennis Hampton.

A sunrise over a waterfall in the forest is depicted in about 24 shades of redwood, lacquered for various effects. The blocks extend outward from one to 13 inches for a three-dimensional scope.

"The carving took about 300 hours," Andrecheck said. "At $8 a square foot for the polished wood, I couldn't afford a mistake."

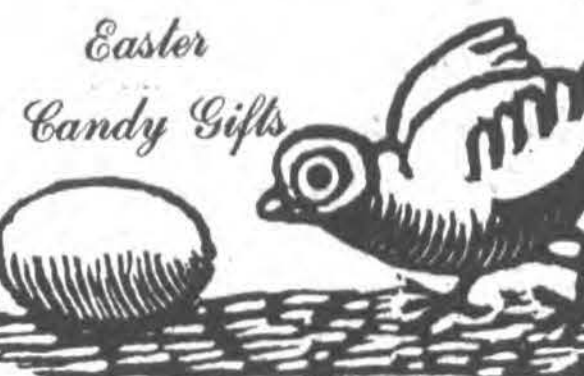

"And it's my biggest challenge so far. I had to crawl along and work on it horizontally. I didn't get the full impact until I saw it standing with everybody else."

Introducing—
KIM PIERCE

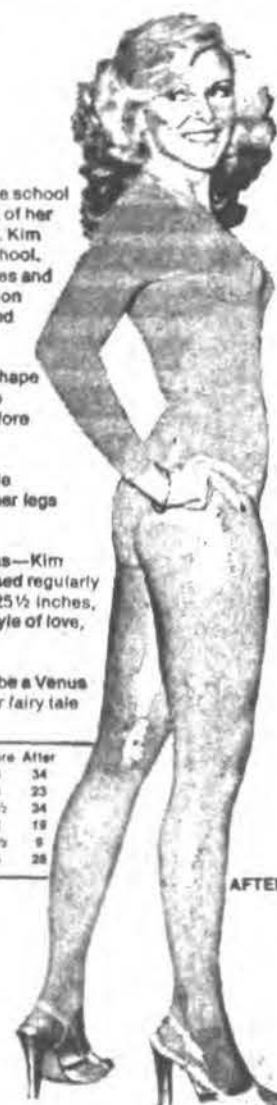

Kim wore chubby clothes in grade school and relatives and friends thought of her as just naturally chunky (not fat!). Kim remained chubby even in high school. She had a hard time buying clothes and separates seemed her only solution because she wore larger pants and smaller tops.

Kim was so depressed with her shape she finally started to diet and she actually lost nineteen pounds before she joined Venus. However, her shape was still a problem. She had huge thighs for her petite little figure—and the bouncing fat on her legs reminded her of cottage cheese!

And—as fairy tale stories progress—Kim joined Venus de Milo. She exercised regularly — she lost another 9 pounds and 2 1/2 inches, and gained a beautiful new life style of love, health and happiness.

Kim is convinced she will always be a Venus girl and she's anxious to share her fairy tale story with you all.

Not Just a Face Bernadette Peters Versatile

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Bernadette Peters is aptly described as "all bubble and bounce" on stage — an image that doesn't seem to fit her soft-spoken, relaxed manner off stage.

But whether the blonde from Ozone Park, N.Y., is doing her showman act or giving a low-key description of what makes it tick, the message is clear — she does her best to leave audiences and critics smiling.

"I THINK THAT IN PERFORMING, the main thing is to be entertaining in many different ways," Ms. Peters, 29, said in an interview while headlining here at the Sahara-Tahoe hotel-casino.

In her act, she sings ballads and standards, tap dances, does a comic take-off on country-western singer Dolly Parton, and mixes with her audience.

Performing in showrooms is what she likes best now because "if anything happens, it happens immediately with the audience. You find out right away how things are going. It's the closest you get to an audience."

To make it work, "you bring the best of yourself, if you can, to the stage," she says. "What I think about most is refining myself, working on myself, so I become better and better."

Her goal in the entertainment world, says the 5-foot-3-inch entertainer, is "be an original if I can. Not everybody is, but all the good people are."

BESIDES THE STAGE ACT, SHE is also preparing for an album. And she's also hoping to do more movie roles in the future.

HOT JEWELRY ITEM REPLACING THE CHAIN
Stickpins Displayed at Tiffany's, New York

Stickpins Prove Fashion Hit

By The Associated Press
They're popping up all over the place. On collars, on suits, on coats. And they're destined to be as big a fashion hit this year as they were last year. Stickpins are in.

Once an ornament reserved for securing a cravat, the currently hot jewelry item is fast replacing the chain as the big trend-setting accessory for the fashion-conscious.

OBSERVERS OF THE EVER-CHANGING fashion scene say the stickpin owes its re-emergence to a renewed popularity in shawls and scarves. And what better way to secure these often immense garments than with an elegant pin.

"It is a rage," said a salesperson at New York's Bergdorf Goodman, as she displayed a spider stickpin with rubies and diamonds for $155 and enamel butterflies for $105. "They're reselling big. We get calls for them all day long."

In Chicago at Marshall Field and Co., the prices are somewhat lower for gold plated and gold-filled stickpins. But the popularity is the same. Initials, love knots and hearts, ranging in price from $5 to $15, are selling well.

THE BIG SELLERS at Tiffany and Co. in New York are stickpins with diamonds. Prices range from $55 for a plain round gold circle to $995 for a tennis racquet surrounded by diamonds.

"People are coming in and talking about getting their grandmother's stickpins out and making repairs," said Sally Burrell of Tiffany. "We started selling them last fall and had a tremendous Christmas season with them."

Cartier has several new stickpin designs planned for the future, according to gold buyer Jeannie Schaffer.

"WE'RE DEFINITELY IN THE stickpin business, but we want to do more important and more exclusive items," she said. "There are too many people in the market. Our clients are special and we want to do something a little bit different."

One plan calls for converting already popular Cartier diamond pendants to stickpins. The oval, teardrop and round diamond designs range from $1,500 to $3,000. Clusters of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires set in 18k gold will run from $850 to $1,200.

The 1977 annual business survey of the Retail Jewelers of America, which represents 11,000 stores around the nation, reports that last year was indeed the year of the stickpin.

STORES IN IOWA, FOR EXAMPLE, reported that "factories couldn't supply them fast enough." Georgia stores said stickpins "led fashion."

Forecasts for 1978 seem to indicate that the fashion world will have a long way to go before it can stickpin itself.

Bernadette has acted in several movies, but says some of the roles have been as "a hooker" and that's not quite what she had in mind.

The kind of movie role she envisions for herself is "a person with sort of a kid's mentality, kind of like a purity in her mind. There are certain people who go through life and no matter what happens, they're always untouched."

PORTRAYING A MODERN-DAY version of a character like George Bernard Shaw's Joan of Arc might fit that category, she thinks.

"I would like to do something like that," she says. "It's more interesting than someone who is just sexy or dumb, or someone who is mean, or some nice girl which is kind of boring."

Bernadette started her entertainment career at 5 on a televised children's show in New York. In her teens, she starred in an off-Broadway comedy, "Dames at Sea," and other shows and later acted on Broadway in "La Strada," "On the Town," and "Mack & Mabel."

She also got into television, with dozens of appearances on talk shows, specials, variety shows and others.

HER MOVIE ROLES HAVE included parts in Mel Brooks' "Silent Movie," "W.C. Fields & Me," "Vigilante Force," and others.

Her club shows have ranged from hotel-casinos in Stateline and Las Vegas to clubs in Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York.

The pace is hectic. "I go home to Los Angeles and there's that damn suitcase," she says. "I want to unpack it, but I have a 'suitcase' room where I just drop it."

Been There

Singer Backing Farmers' Strike

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Cal Smith, born and raised on a farm in Oklahoma, has emerged as an active supporter of the farmers' strike.

Smith, best known for his 1974 hit, "Country Bumpkin," is appearing at farmers' rallies and has released a single, "I'm Just a Farmer."

"I DON'T THINK THE PUBLIC has taken a good look at the farmer," Smith said in an interview in the office of business associate Conway Twitty. "Anybody who came from the farm can sympathize with the farmers."

"I'd like to see the farmers get what they want," he said. "They are the backbone of the nation. We'll be in awfully bad shape if they don't."

"The farmers are talking about planting half the crops and not buying any more equipment if they can't make a profit. They are not trying to starve us out, but this will put people out of food and put people out of work and will affect everybody. It will be bad."

In his song, a mythical small farmer sings "the parity blues" before he is elected to Congress. While in Washington, he finds it easy to "drink the lobbyists' blues" and ends up owning half the state while farmers are heavily in debt.

The song was written by Nashville songwriter Sonny Throckmorton a year ago — before farmers began dramatizing demands for more profits. Smith recently got hung up in traffic because of a "tractorcade" and decided now would be a good time to release the song.

SMITH, RAISED ON A 40-ACRE farm in Gans, Okla., appears with his four-member band at rallies free of charge and emphasizes that he's sincere in wanting to help farmers and not out to make a fast buck.

"I hope the record goes to No. 1, but it won't make me much more money than I'm making now. I've already had several No. 1 records and this won't up my concert price."

"As far as making a fast buck, it's the farthest thing from my mind. You don't make a fast buck in this business anyway. I hope the record does well mainly to shed light on what the farmers are doing."

HE DESCRIBES THE SONG AS "a tell-it-like-it-is song, not a protest song. I'd like to see the song played on radio because it will help the farmers. I don't think it's controversial."

It's not the first country music record about the farmers. Red Sovine recently released a song entitled "The Farmers and the Miners." Joel Matthis recorded "The Farmer's Song — We Ain't Gonna Work for Peanuts" and Larry Trider of Lubbock, Tex., had "The Farmer Feeds Us All."

Giscard Defeats Leftists

PARIS (AP) — French voters decisively rejected the leftist bid for power in the National Assembly runoff elections and gave President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's center-right coalition a majority of 91 seats in the National Assembly.

Final returns Sunday gave the pro-government coalition 291 seats to 200 for the leftists in the 491-seat assembly. The government's total was only seven less than in the last assembly.

Robert Fabre, whose tiny Leftist Radical Movement won 10 seats, said he no longer felt bound by the leftist pact of alliance, an indication that he might add his votes to Giscard's majority.

Pope Stricken

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, suffering from a prolonged bout of the flu and a persistent fever, has canceled most of his Easter Week activities, the Vatican announced today.

The 80-year-old pontiff is taking antibiotics to overcome the illness, said the Rev. Romeo Panciroli, the Vatican's spokesman.

Trial Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court cleared the way today for a new trial in a $46 million lawsuit against Ohio officials over the deaths of four Kent State University students during a 1970 anti-war demonstration.

The justices let stand a ruling by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the civil rights damage suit must be heard again because a juror had been threatened during the 1975 trial clearing Gov. James Rhodes and others of all liability.

The controversy returns to a federal trial judge in Cleveland.

Cloud Passes

SEATTLE (AP) — With little official attention or concern, a radioactive cloud from last week's nuclear bomb explosion in China is passing over Alaska and the Pacific Northwest.

Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Bob Jacobson said Sunday night that monitoring devices in Alaska, Washington, Oregon and Idaho were measuring radioactivity but measurements would not be read until sometime today. "If it is measurable, it will be barely detectable and insignificant as far as health impact," he said.

Carter Returns

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — President Carter returns to the White House tonight, ready for a busy week of international diplomacy after three days of fishing and relaxing at this coastal resort.

Carter will meet Tuesday and Wednesday with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and will confer with British Prime Minister James Callaghan on Thursday.

Flynt Improves

ATLANTA (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt is continuing to show improvement in his recovery from a gunman's attack and has been removed from the critical list, doctors said today.

Emory University Hospital said Flynt's breathing was improving and his abdominal wounds continued to heal. He is still on a respirator and doctors have said he has less than a 50-50 chance of regaining use of his paralyzed legs. Police say they have made little progress toward finding whoever shot Flynt and an attorney outside a Lawrenceville, Ga., courthouse on March 6.

Israel Drives Deeper in Lebanon

Sewage Flow Halted

Beaches Open In Most Areas

Portions of beaches in Huntington Beach and Newport Beach which have been off limits because of sewage contamination were declared safe for public use today by Orange County Health Department officials.

Health workers had quarantined beaches from 38th Street in Newport to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach after a 30-inch sewage main broke in the Santa Ana River on March 12.

Sanitation workers today stopped the flow of sewage which had been pouring into the river at the rate of four to five million gallons a day for the past week.

Robert Stone, director of Environmental Health for the county Health Department said some of the beaches on either side of the river mouth will remain restricted, but those beaches could be re-opened as early as Tuesday.

Stone's staff today opened the beach from 38th Street to 52nd Street in Newport Beach and the strand between Beach Boulevard and Brookhurst Street in Huntington Beach.

Stone said tests will be taken this afternoon of the waters between 52nd Street and Brookhurst Street to determine when those strands can be opened to public use.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts said this morning that repairs to the broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

The 30-inch main broke when rain water flowing down the normally dry river bed eroded the pipe's protective covering. The flowing river carried the sewage to sea, contaminating beaches on both sides of the river that forms the city line between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach.

Miss Baker said district officials will decide today whether to do more work on the pipe or let it remain as repaired.

She said they don't anticipate any further problems from river water eroding the pipe's protective covering.

Easter Beach Crowd Dips In Huntington

Beach crowds in Huntington Beach on the first weekend of Easter Vacation were less than normal because of fears of sewage contamination, lifeguard spokesmen said.

The turnout at the state beaches was only about 6,000 for each day. Huntington State Beach is affected by a break in a sewer line between Beach Boulevard and Newport Beach.

A lifeguard said today that swimming is prohibited in that stretch but that the entire beach is open.

About 20,000 bathers turned out at the city beach during the two days.

Firefighters Avert Blast

OCEANSIDE (AP) — Firefighters say they stopped the spread of a storage shed fire before it reached propane, gasoline and diesel fuel storage tanks.

The fire broke out Sunday night in the Vista Sales strawberry and tomato packing company. By the time 15 firemen were on the scene, the storage building was in flames.

The shed was used to store boxes and unused equipment. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

Man Dies in Leap

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 65-year-old man who left a suicide note in his car leaped to his death from the Golden Gate Bridge, authorities reported. A coroner's investigator said Lawrence McCarthy, of San Francisco, was spotted floating under the bridge by a Coast Guard vessel on routine patrol early Sunday.

The Way They Were

Gary McAdams (top) and Brian Dimick of the Buena Park Fire Department demonstrate the use of 130-year-old fire equipment at Knott's Berry Farm. Firemen from Los Angeles and Buena Park wore themselves out on the arduous pumping devices, then got a good spray themselves to cool off. The demonstration was part of the Buena Park amusement area's Country Fair, which runs through March 26. Additional fire equipment demonstrations are scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

McFadden Hearing To Draw Opponents

The Huntington Beach City Council tonight will consider a second attempt to close McFadden Avenue to through traffic in the northwestern section of the city.

Homeowner leaders have informed the City Council that they will resist total closure and will make their positions known when the meeting opens at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers.

City officials initiated action in 1976 to close the western tip of the street because of fears for children who have to cross the busy street to get to Robinwood Elementary School.

But residents who otherwise would be hemmed into their homes by the closure obtained a court order blocking the move after a petition drive that netted more than 700 signatures.

The city backed down in the face of the legal challenge and instituted several measures designed to reduce traffic to an adjacent industrial park.

These measures haven't been successful, city officials indicated.

A spokesman for protesting homeowners said that rerouting traffic on Bolsa Chica Street would create even more of a traffic hazard.

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar scored early gains against most European currencies in nervous trading when the money market opened today, but it dropped heavily against the rising French franc and came under pressure from the Japanese yen.

Guilt Assumed 4 in 10 Doubt Innocence

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly four in every 10 people in the United States believe a person accused of a crime must prove his innocence, contrary to the most fundamental principle of American justice — that a person is innocent until proven guilty.

In a random sample of 1,831 adults, 37 percent thought an accused person was guilty until proven innocent, according to the survey commissioned by the National Center for State Courts and conducted by Yankelovich, Skelly & White Inc.

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army, driving northward despite a U.N. call for withdrawal, claimed control of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River today. The government declared that any settlement of the conflict must ensure that Palestinians do not return to the area.

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "the first steps were taken this morning" to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution on southern Lebanon and "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in the area.

Talking to reporters outside Prime Minister Menachem Begin's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herzog said he understood the U.N. chief of Middle East services, Lt. Gen. Enso Siilasvuo, met at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem to make "the necessary arrangements."

"It's a big human problem," Herzog said. "Christian villagers are pleading with us not to leave."

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization denied that all of Lebanon south of the Litani, 15 miles north of the Israeli border, had fallen to the invasion force. The PLO said guerrilla "suicide squads" were counter-attacking "in many embattled locations."

The Israeli military command reported no heavy fighting, however. It said its forces reached positions dominating the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward.

The Israelis said they went around Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the border, and cut it off. They said their line of control extended eastward to a point north of Abasiya and to a position dominating the Akiya Bridge over the Litani.

The Israeli advance indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wanted to flush out the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. force authorized by Security Council resolutions Sunday.

The council called for an Israeli pullout "forthwith" from the region.

The Cabinet, meeting in special session without Begin, who was in the United States, issued a statement saying any settlement must be in accordance with (See ISRAEL, Page A2)

Auto Death Cause Sought By HB Police

Huntington Beach police today still don't know the cause of death of a La Puente man whose body was found in the back seat of his auto at the Murdy Recreation Center parking lot early Saturday morning.

The dead man was identified as Andrew Rodriguez Duarte. He had apparently died Friday evening, officials said.

Orange County Coroner's investigators said toxicology tests are now under way to determine if the death is drug-related.

Police Sgt. Luis Ochoa said today the death does not appear to be a homicide.

Bandit Sought By HB Police

Police were searching today for a bandit who ordered a pizza at a Huntington Beach delicatessen, flashed a handgun and made off with $274 in loot late Saturday night.

Police said the holdup occurred at 10:30 p.m. at Mama Lucia's Deli, 16122 Beach Blvd. The bandit was described as a husky male with brown, bushy hair and a semi-automatic weapon.

Witnesses said the gunman fled on foot before his pizza arrived.

Man Given 99 Years in Rape Case

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years.

"The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment. The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

They portrayed Bannister as a sick man who knew only trauma, rejection and failure — a ninth-grade dropout who was in and out of trouble with police and had no success with women.

Three psychiatrists testified for the defense that Bannister was legally insane, suffering from schizophrenia so that he couldn't tell right from wrong or understand what he was doing.

"There is a circus going on in his head," Slaughter told jurors. "What you have seen is a modern-day American tragedy. There are two victims, Charlotte Grosse and Rusty Bannister. . . we ask that you forgive Rusty Bannister because he is sick and did not know right (See KIDNAP, Page A2)

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP) — Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the Brittany coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after running on the rocks early Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

Maj. Gen. Quilter

Military graveside services will be held Tuesday for Maj. Gen. Charles J. Quilter, USMC-ret., a resident of Emerald Bay who died Saturday of cancer. He was 63.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach.

General Quilter first moved to Laguna Beach in 1957 and was president of the Emerald Bay Community Association from 1970-1972. He was a member of the Parish Council of St. Catherine's Church.

The University of Rochester, N.Y., graduate earned his Naval Aviator wings and a commission in the Marine Corps in 1937. He served as a fighter pilot flight leader at Midway Island and Guadalcanal during World War II.

General Quilter served in Korea and commanded the 3rd Marine Air Wing at the El Toro Marine Air Station from 1966 to 1968. He received some 14 U.S. and foreign personal decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth Quilter; sons Christopher M. Quilter of New York City and Patrick H. Quilter, Matthew M. Quilter and Charles J. Quilter II of Laguna Beach. General Quilter is also survived by brothers, Adm. Joseph Quilter, USN-ret., of Portola Valley; Capt. Edward S. Quilter, USN-ret., of Irvine; and Brendan T. Quilter of Michigan; and sisters Patricia Quilter, Elizabeth Quilter and Mary Louise Quilter of Binghamton, N.Y. and Frances Donovan of Montrose, Penn.

Speeder's
Death Report
Exaggerated

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Kim Yoder is apparently one of those people who will go to any length to get out of a speeding ticket — even having himself declared dead.

The 24-year-old Goshen, Ind., man was caught speeding on Interstate 70 near here and ordered to pay a $40 fine or appear in court Feb. 10.

Although he failed to show up at his hearing, the state's attorney's office received a letter from Alfredo Girardo, who identified himself as Yoder's stepfather.

"I regret to inform you that my stepson, Kim Yoder, was killed in a hunting accident January 5th," Girardo said in the letter.

He asked that the speeding ticket be dismissed.

Investigator Ronald Numaker agreed the case should be dismissed but only after a death certificate was produced.

A few days later, the state's attorney's office received another letter, but this time from Yoder himself.

"A couple of weeks ago, being broke and of lesser mind, I took the liberty of reporting my death," Yoder wrote.

Thief Steals
Idling Car

Balboa Island resident Tim Ryan Kinney told police he was surprised to find his car gone from the parking space where he'd left it while stopping by an island restaurant early Sunday.

Kinney reported his 1971 yellow Pinto two-door stolen from Marine Avenue near the Village Inn at about 2 a.m.

Police noted that the thief may have been attracted to the older car because Kinney said he left the engine running while he spent an hour in the night spot.

HB Gets Use
Of Saddleback
Pool Plans

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees have agreed to allow the City of Huntington Beach to use their plans for El Toro High School's Olympic-size swimming pool.

Robert Ferguson, director of facilities and services, said the plans could be sold but it is common practice to let other government agencies use them for no charge.

He said he wanted to reuse the El Toro pool plans because the city has a limited budget of $430,000 for the pool.

Norm Worthly, director of Huntington Beach's Recreation, Parks and Human Services Department, said the city is planning to build a similar public pool on the Ocean View High School campus.

SIGN...

The ban apparently was not dealt with in a new sign ordinance.

Last December, the city attorney's office issued an opinion which said that banning of political signs on public rights-of-way was a violation of the freedom of speech.

Belsito said that it is his recommendation to let the signs be unless they pose a traffic hazard.

"They'll be here only for a short period of time and we don't have the manpower to police the signs," he said.

Church Raid
Held Legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court let stand today a lower court's decision upholding the validity of an FBI raid last July on offices of the Founding Church of Scientology here.

The justices turned down an appeal by the Scientologists that the FBI raid and confiscation of documents was based on an unconstitutional search warrant.

The raid, conducted the same day as two related raids on Scientology offices in Los Angeles, was part of an FBI investigation into alleged conspiracies by Scientology officials to intercept government information through various covert operations.

AMERICANA: 500 PORTABLE TOILETS FOR CONCERT
Promoter J. Pierce Van Hoy Prepares for CrowdsPickin's Fine
Host Works for Comfort

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP) — J. Pierce Van Hoy, a rotund, white-haired retired farmer in red sneakers, is a most hospitable man. Look out over his land — see the rolling hills, see the 500 portable toilets.

Those cubicles will accommodate thousands of bluegrass music lovers and good-time seekers expected to converge on Van Hoy's farm this weekend for the 54th annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention.

"IT'S AS COUNTRY AS the wilderness and open plains. It's Americana," Van Hoy, who relishes his role as promoter, says of the three-day festival that begins Thursday.

His father started the affair to raise money for a nearby one-room school. From humble beginnings in 1924 with a few banjo pickers and a listener or two, the convention has caught on in recent years like blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Last year, according to the local sheriff's department and state Highway Patrol, some 125,000 people planted themselves on 500 acres here about 50 miles north of Charlotte.

SCATTERED ABOUT WERE VETERAN string music lovers, but most of the fans were too young to remember when, for folks outside the South, "bluegrass" meant merely a hearty vegetation.

"The timing in the spring and the setting of the convention is conducive to the young at heart," says Van Hoy, a robust 60 himself. "After you pass 50, you're not going to get Grandma and bivaouac in the woods for three days."

Each Easter weekend this crossroads town of 125, marked by the tiniest dot on the road map, becomes one of the largest population centers in the state.

TENTS SPROUT LIKE SPRING flowers, a communal spirit settles on the land and the hills echo with bluegrass music.

Big-name musicians are rare, but spirited bands vie for trophies and cash ranging from $25 to $1,000 for the best fiddler. Judging is based on categories such as accurate tuning and "how good does it sound."

No electric instruments are allowed — indeed, there are no electric outlets on the stage of the 12,000-seat amphitheater Van Hoy built two years ago.

Agency to Probe
5.3 Million Fords

DETROIT (AP) — Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves from wrong."

The state agreed Bannister was ill.

"He's sick but sane," argued State Attorney James Gardner.

"You can call this man misguided and pitiful. You can say he's got bats in his belfry. But you can't call him insane."

Bannister didn't testify. He showed no emotion as his mother sobbed the story of his early years and Miss Grosse pointed him out as her abductor.

Miss Grosse's father, Richard Grosse of Nokomis, said the verdict was "all right with me. I like to win."

16 Teens
Cited in Shoplifts

Sixteen teen-agers, most of them girls, were arrested for stealing from Saddleback Valley stores over the weekend, according to a spokesman for the sheriff's south county substation which is gearing up for a surge of Easter vacation shoplifting.

Twelve of the youths were arrested at stores within the Laguna Hills Mall, said a sheriff's patrol sergeant. Eight of them were girls.

Four were arrested at K-Mart in Saddleback Plaza, he added. Three of them were girls.

The sergeant said a deputy will be stationed at the mall to handle the anticipated increase in shoplifting during the week-long vacation period. Most shoplifters, he said, are detained by security personnel in the larger stores and turned over to deputies for booking.

Clothing, jewelry and phonograph records are the items most often taken at Easter time, said the sergeant, who said the shoplifter's Christmas list usually is even longer.

He said it appears the teen-agers take mostly for themselves at Easter while stealing everything from pipes to housewares as Christmas gifts.

During last Christmas vacation, he said 68 teen-agers were arrested for shoplifting.

tlement of the Lebanon crisis "must ensure southern Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks."

The statement reiterated that Israel does not intend to occupy southern Lebanon.

Two more Israeli soldiers were reported killed, bringing the admitted Israeli death toll to 20 in six days as the invasion force expanded the "security belt" to a depth of some 15 miles above the border.

The PLO in Beirut claimed it inflicted "heavy casualties" on the Israeli soldiers. The Lebanese government reported 1,168 Lebanese and Palestinian soldiers and civilians killed in the fighting, which began Wednesday.

The guerrillas Sunday said 144 of their fighters had been killed and that 450 Israelis had been killed or wounded.

Woman Shuns
Blood, Dies

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Carlos Millette, 45, a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses, died after he was struck by a car and refused a blood transfusion, police said Sunday.

Lorraine Barbarino, supervisor of St. Joseph's Hospital, said Millette, of East Bridgewater, was "alert and coherent" when brought into the hospital's emergency room. She said he cited religious beliefs in refusing the transfusion and died before the hospital could reach a relative and enlist help in persuading him to reconsider.

Boy Charged In Slaying

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A 16-year-old boy is to be charged with murder in the death of a Clovis woman whose body was found near here, police report.

They said the boy is the same one who was sought in Davis March 9 after a high speed chase on Interstate 80.

The Sacramento County coroner's office said Doris A. Ramirez, 46, was found dead Friday by an off-duty deputy sheriff in a gully east of Sloughhouse. She had been bludgeoned and raped.

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — "I'd hate to think what would happen if it rains hard in the near future."

With that comment, Horacio de la Cruz watched as families below Rodriguez Dam were moved to higher ground.

In the wake of heavy rains the past several weeks, the dam is holding back more water than at any time since 1941, says De la Cruz, in charge of its operation. An American company built it in 1937 at a cost of $1 million to stop the Tia Juana River for domestic and irrigation use.

At 350 feet, it is one of the highest and the largest earthen dams in Mexico.

Mexican soldiers worked last week to move families from squatter homes in the floodplain of the river valley.

A vast tent city has risen on Otay Mesa, which would be out of the way of a flood if the dam located 12 miles east of Tijuana should break.

De La Cruz said about 4,000 refugees were resettled, getting free food and care, by last weekend. Another 5,000 may have joined them by next Friday.

Many were reported unhappy despite the flimsy quality of their homemade houses.

Orlando Garcia said the squatters, within sight of tourists, were "an eyesore — but you can't fight the government."

State Orders
Amtrak to Cut
Train Fares

Amtrak riders on the Los Angeles-San Diego route through Orange County will get a break on their round-trip tickets from April 30 to June 30.

A recent compromise between Amtrak and the California Department of Transportation over proposed fare increases has resulted in a temporary promotional discount on the line, which is heavily subsidized by the state and other local agencies, including Los Angeles County.

While fares nationwide will increase 2.5 percent, San Diego to Los Angeles riders will be able, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, to buy a round-trip ticket for the price of a one-way ticket plus $1.

So, while the one-way fare between Los Angeles and Santa Ana will be hiked from $3.10 to $3.28, on three days a week a rider can travel there and back for $4.28.

The fare between Los Angeles and San Diego will go from $9 to $9.25, but the same discount will apply.

In addition, a second promotional fare will extend the present 20 percent discount on a round-trip ticket Monday through Thursday to include Fridays. This offer also will end June 30.

CalTrans has opposed the overall fare increases, saying low fares are needed to attract riders, and threatened to cut off its subsidies unless a compromise was reached. The promotional fares were agreed on as an interim measure.

Longterm CalTrans-Amtrak contracts are still being worked out, according to Adriana Ganturco, CalTrans director.

Waddill Claims Baby Already Dead

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dr. William Baxter Waddill told an Orange County Superior Court jury today that a baby he is accused of strangling in the Westminster Community Hospital nursery was dead when he reached the hospital on March 2, 1977.

Waddill testified in his own defense that the baby which the prosecution claims survived his attempt to abort the mother was "pale and cold and lifeless" when he reached the nursery.

Waddill told defense attorney Charles Weedman that the nursing staff and a doctor he found in the nursery were "doing nothing, just standing around."

And he expressed his belief that the nurse who told him over the telephone that she saw the baby move shortly after it was expelled from the womb "simply misinterpreted signs of life."

"It was lifeless and dead," he said. "Anyway, I've never had a live birth after a saline abortion."

Members of the Westminster hospital staff and two doctors have testified that the baby delivered by Waddill's 18-year-old patient showed signs of life and had a discernible heart beat and respiration after it was rushed to the nursery.

Nurses have testified that Waddill halted their efforts at resuscitating the infant, sent them out of the nursery and ordered them not to return.

Weedman asked Waddill today to explain that action.

"Well, no one was doing anything," Waddill said. "Some of the staff seemed pretty tense and upset and I had tried to calm them. There was no point in having them stand around in the nursery doing nothing."

Weedman then asked his client why he summoned Dr. Ronald Cornelisen, an Orange pediatrician, to the hospital "if, as you say, the baby was dead and beyond help."

"I wanted to have him there to calm people down," Waddill explained. "I thought he would verify the death of the baby and that his presence there with me would help to calm the hospital staff."

"Did you send the staff from the nursery so that you could strangle this baby to death, Dr. Waddill?" Weedman asked the witness.

Some Beaches Reopen

Portions of beaches in Huntington Beach and Newport Beach which have been off limits because of sewage contamination were declared safe for public use today by Orange County Health Department officials.

Health workers had quarantined beaches from 38th Street in Newport to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach after a 30-inch sewage main broke in the Santa Ana River on March 12.

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP) — Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the Brittany coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after running on the rocks early Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

He moves like the blades of grass he says he can hear bending to the wind, unhurried, silken and yielding.

Swaying, dipping, his hands lead the motion of the rest of his reed body with balletic grace.

He learned to move that way in Macao, in China, in a monastery where a student of T'ai Chi Ch'uan was made to practice a single breathing exercise for months, to prove his devotion, before he was allowed to learn anything else of this, the most meditative of the martial arts.

Dominic Cheung, who today is a professor of Chinese and comparative literature at USC and who teaches T'ai Chi and the philosophy from which it springs, Taoism, doesn't make his students wait so long.

In the UC Irvine Extension course he begins Saturday, his students will have only 10 Saturdays to learn all the 81 basic movements of the exercise (9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Crawford Hall Stage on campus, $69 fee).

Agency to Probe 5.3 Million Fords

DETROIT (AP) — Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Torinos, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTDs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lincolns; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 351 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army, driving northward despite a U.N. call for withdrawal, claimed control of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River today. The government declared that any settlement of the conflict must ensure that Palestinians do not return to the area.

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "the first steps were taken this morning" to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution on southern Lebanon and "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in the area.

Talking to reporters outside Prime Minister Menachem Begin's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herzog said he understood the U.N. chief of Middle East services, Lt. Gen. Enso Siilasvuo, met at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem to make "the necessary arrangements."

"It's a big human problem," Herzog said. "Christian villagers are pleading with us not to leave."

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization denied that all of Lebanon south of the Litani, 15 miles north of the Israeli border, had fallen to the invasion force. The PLO said guerrilla "suicide squads" were counter-attacking "in many embattled locations."

The Israeli military command reported no heavy fighting, however. It said its forces reached positions dominating the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward.

The Israelis said they went around Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the border, and cut it off. They said their line of control extended eastward to a point north of Abasiya and to a position dominating the Akiya Bridge over the Litani.

The Israeli advance indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wanted to flush out the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. force authorized by Security Council resolutions Sunday.

The council called for an Israeli pullout "forthwith" from the region.

The Cabinet, meeting in special session without Begin, who was in the United States, issued a statement saying any settlement of the Lebanon crisis "must ensure southern Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks."

The statement reiterated that Israel does not intend to occupy southern Lebanon.

Two more Israeli soldiers were reported killed, bringing the admitted Israeli death toll to 20 in six days as the invasion force expanded the "security belt" to a depth of some 15 miles above the border.

Man Given 99 Years in Rape Case

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years.

"The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment. The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

Review Of Libel Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether public officials suing for libel may force journalists to tell what their thoughts, opinions and conclusions were while preparing a news story.

The justices will review an unprecedented ruling handed down by a federal appeals court last November in a pending lawsuit by former Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert against CBS and others.

The lower court said reporters and editors sued for libel do not have to disclose such information. The justices' eventual decision could carry tremendous impact for all future libel suits filed by public officials or public figures.

Herbert, eventually stripped of his command in the 173rd Airborne Brigade, was propelled to national prominence in 1971 when he formally charged superior officers with covering up war crimes in South Vietnam.

He claimed in documents filed with the Army's Criminal Investigations Division that he witnessed and reported numerous atrocities but that superiors showed no interest in investigating the incidents.

Herbert, a 24-year service veteran, said he was relieved of his command after persisting in pressing his charges. Officially, his removal from command was attributed to a lack of "ambition, integrity, loyalty or will for self-improvement."

Press reports of Herbert's dispute with the Army made him a national personality. He appeared on television talk shows and eventually collaborated in the writing of a best-selling book, "Soldier."

Barry Lando, a producer of the CBS program "60 Minutes," decided to investigate the controversy. The ensuing research led to a Feb. 4, 1973 telecast called "The Selling of Colonel Herbert" in which the truth of Herbert's charges was called into question.

Lando also wrote an article for the Atlantic Monthly magazine about his findings in the matter. Herbert filed a $44.7-million libel suit against Lando, CBS, "60 Minutes" correspondent Mike Wallace and the Atlantic Monthly, charging that the program and article "falsely and maliciously" depicted him as a liar "and as a person who used the war crimes charges as an excuse for his relief from command."

Herbert said his reputation was destroyed by the program and that he suffered severe financial loss.

Those cubicles will accommodate thousands of bluegrass music lovers and good-time seekers expected to converge on Van Hoy's farm this weekend for the 54th annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention.

"IT'S AS COUNTRY AS the wilderness and open plains. It's Americana," Van Hoy, who relishes his role as promoter, says of the three-day festival that begins Thursday.

His father started the affair to raise money for a nearby one-room school. From humble beginnings in 1924 with a few banjo pickers and a listener or two, the convention has caught on in recent years like blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Last year, according to the local sheriff's department and state Highway Patrol, some 125,000 people planted themselves on 500 acres here about 50 miles north of Charlotte.

SCATTERED ABOUT WERE VETERAN string music lovers, but most of the fans were too young to remember when, for folks outside the South, "bluegrass" meant merely a hearty vegetation.

"The timing in the spring and the setting of the convention is conducive to the young at heart," says Van Hoy, a robust 60 himself. "After you pass 50, you're not going to get Grandma and bivaouac in the woods for three days."

The 24-year-old Goshen, Ind., man was caught speeding on Interstate 70 near here and ordered to pay a $40 fine or appear in court Feb. 10.

Although he failed to show up at his hearing, the state's attorney's office received a letter from Alfredo Girardo, who identified himself as Yoder's stepfather.

"I regret to inform you that my stepson, Kim Yoder, was killed in a hunting accident January 5th," Girardo said in the letter.

He asked that the speeding ticket be dismissed.

Investigator Ronald Numaker agreed the case should be dismissed but only after a death certificate was produced.

A few days later, the state's attorney's office received another letter, but this time from Yoder himself.

"A couple of weeks ago, being broke and of lesser mind, I took the liberty of reporting my death," Yoder wrote. "I know now the seriousness of those actions and am prepared for reconciliation."

"I am very much alive, thank you, and hope you accept my apology," Yoder added.

Attached to the letter was a check for $40.

Stone said tests will be taken this afternoon of the waters between 52nd Street and Brookhurst Street to determine when those strands can be opened to public use.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts said this morning that repairs to the broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

The 30-inch main broke when rain water flowing down the normally dry river bed eroded the pipe's protective covering. The flowing river carried the sewage to sea, contaminating beaches on both sides of the

Faulty Pump Cause Of SC Sewer Leak

A faulty backup system was blamed today for a San Clemente sewer leak Saturday.

The year's first sewer spill in San Clemente was caused by a malfunctioning electric pump and a leaky bypass line, City Engineer Howard Benson said today.

The faulty pump at the San Gabriel pumping station forced sewage through an emergency bypass line under high pressure. A leak in the line sent raw sewage spilling into Alessandro Canyon, Benson said.

Repairs were made within about 45 minutes, activating a reserve pump, Benson said.

The spilled sewage was treated with chlorine as a health measure, he said. The amount spilled was not sufficient to reach city beaches at the end of

Employment In County At New High

Total employment in Orange County reached a record 913,400 jobs in February as the county's unemployment rate dipped to 5.2 percent.

According to figures released today by the State Employment Development Department (EDD), total employment rose by 7,900 jobs between January and February to reach the new county employment high water mark.

A year earlier, total jobs stood at 887,500, meaning there was an 8.6 percent gain over the past 12 months.

That was reflected in Orange County's 5.2 percent unemployment rate, a decline from 6.5 percent in February 1977.

EDD labor analysts last week predicted a continuing rosy picture for the coming few months as tourist oriented businesses begin hiring for the summer season.

They also said manufacturing plants moving to Orange County in the next few months are expected to add more jobs to the county's total payroll.

Gas Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phased deregulation of natural gas prices and taxes on accompanying windfall gas profits for energy companies were endorsed Sunday by the League of Women Voters. Basing its position on a two-year study, the organization also called for federal policies that would reduce the rate of energy growth in this country.

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army, driving northward despite a U.N. call for withdrawal, claimed control of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River today. The government declared that any settlement of the conflict must ensure that Palestinians do not return to the area.

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "the first steps were taken this morning" to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution on southern Lebanon and "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in the area.

Talking to reporters outside Prime Minister Menachem Begin's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herzog said he understood the U.N. chief of Middle East services, Lt. Gen. Enso Silasvuo, met at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem to make "the necessary arrangements."

"It's a big human problem," Herzog said. "Christian villagers are pleading with us not to leave."

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization denied that all of Lebanon south of the Litani, 15 miles north of the Israeli border, had fallen to the invasion force. The PLO said guerrilla "suicide squads" were counter-attacking "in many embattled locations."

The Israeli military command reported no heavy fighting, however. It said its forces reached positions dominating the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward.

The Israelis said they went around Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the border, and cut it off. They said their line of control extended eastward to a point north of Abasiya and to a position dominating the Akiya Bridge over the Litani.

The Israeli advance indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wanted to flush out the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. force authorized by Security Council resolutions Sunday.

The council called for an Israeli pullout "forthwith" from the region.

The Cabinet, meeting in special session without Begin, who was in the United States, issued a statement saying any settlement of the Lebanon crisis "must ensure southern Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks."

The statement reiterated that Israel does not intend to occupy southern Lebanon.

Two more Israeli soldiers were reported killed, bringing the admitted Israeli death toll to 20 in six days as the invasion force expanded the "security belt" to a depth of some 15 miles above the border.

The guerrillas Sunday said 144 of their fighters had been killed and that 450 Israelis had been killed or wounded.

SC Girl, 15, Raped by Trio in Car

A 15-year-old San Clemente girl was forced into a car Saturday night by three men and driven to a remote area near Tustin, where she was sexually assaulted, San Clemente police reported today.

The young woman was walking north along El Camino Real in the area of Avenida de la Grulla about 5:30 p.m. Saturday, police said, when three men in a green sedan forced her into their car.

The girl told police the men drove north out of the city on the San Diego Freeway. During the ride, she was struck in the face and forced to take off her clothes, police said.

In an uninhabited area near Tustin, the girl was sexually assaulted by the three men. She was then allowed to dress and dropped off near the scene of the assault, police reported.

The girl made her way to a nearby residence, where the county sheriff's department was notified and her family called.

San Clemente police said they are looking for three men, possibly of Mexican origin, who have a "military type" appearance.

The car they were driving was described as a very clean late model two-door dark green sedan with a damaged right front windshield.

Police have asked that anyone in the Avenida de la Grulla area Saturday who may have seen a girl forced into a car contact Investigator Hawley or Goodwin at the San Clemente Police Department, 492-5101.

LAST RITES SET
Maj. Gen. Quilter

Final Rites Set for Gen. C.J. Quilter

Military graveside services will be held Tuesday for Maj. Gen. Charles J. Quilter, USMC-ret., a resident of Emerald Bay who died Saturday of cancer. He was 63.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach.

General Quilter first moved to Laguna Beach in 1957 and was president of the Emerald Bay Community Association from 1970-1972. He was a member of the Parish Council of St. Catherine's Church.

The University of Rochester, N.Y., graduate earned his Naval Aviator wings and a commission in the Marine Corps in 1937. He served as a fighter pilot flight leader at Midway Island and Guadalcanal during World War II.

General Quilter served in Korea and commanded the 3rd Marine Air Wing at the El Toro Marine Air Station from 1966 to 1968. He received some 14 U.S. and foreign personal decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth Quilter; sons Christopher M. Quilter of New York City and Patrick H. Quilter, Matthew M. Quilter and Charles J. Quilter II of Laguna Beach. General Quilter is also survived by brothers, Adm. Joseph Quilter, USN-ret., of Portola Valley; Capt. Edward S. Quilter, USN-ret., of Irvine; and Brendan T. Quilter of Michigan; and sisters Patricia Quilter, Elizabeth Quilter and Mary Louise Quilter of Binghamton, N.Y., and Frances Donovan of Montrose, Penn.

Niguel Boy Bitten While Petting Seal

A Laguna Niguel boy who was petting a harbor seal this weekend was bitten on both legs, an Orange County Harbor Patrol spokesman at Dana Point said today.

He said he didn't know the extent of injuries suffered by the boy, Jerry Tucker.

Many of the seals have been turning up on coast beaches and in harbors recently, exhausted by storms at sea. Injured ones are cared for by Laguna Beach lifeguards and then released.

The spokesman said efforts are under way to transport the seals out of the harbor. He said they are receptive to being fed fish but sometimes turn nasty when a hand comes down with no fish in it.

MOTIONS OF T'AI CHI CH'UAN ARE SLOW, SMOOTH, BALLETIC
Dr. Dominic Cheung Learned Exercise in Chinese Monastery

Daily Pilot Staff Photos

T'ai Chi Course Offered

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

He moves like the blades of grass he says he can hear bending to the wind, unhurried, silken and yielding.

Swaying, dipping, his hands lead the motion of the rest of his reed body with balletic grace.

He learned to move that way in Macao, in China, in a monastery where a student of T'ai Chi Ch'uan was made to practice a single breathing exercise for months, to prove his devotion, before he was allowed to learn anything else of this, the most meditative of the martial arts.

Dominic Cheung, who today is a professor of Chinese and comparative literature at USC and who teaches T'ai Chi and the philosophy from which it springs, Taoism, doesn't make his students wait so long.

In the UC Irvine Extension course he begins March 25, his students will have only 10 Saturdays to learn all the 81 basic movements of the exercise (9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Crawford Hall Stage on campus, $69 fee).

Cheung says the course is just a beginning; it will take years of daily practice before most of his students will discover the meaning behind the movements.

"I wanted to learn the martial arts," he recalls of his own beginnings. "But my father was very reluctant to let me learn the hard fighting styles of the Bruce Lee type."

"Through a friend, I saw the abbot of the monastery, and learned T'ai Chi from an expert living there. I've studied since 13."

"In the beginning I was simply practicing the forms, without knowing what it meant. I practiced in the morning. Every evening I went back to the monastery to talk with the monks about the meaning."

"I'm still learning."

Cheung came to the United States in 1967. He is 34.

Ford 'Shifts' Probed

114 Accidents in 5 Years Related?

DETROIT (AP) — Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said

Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Taurus, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTDs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lincolns; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 351 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined that half the fatal accidents involved FMX transmissions, the investigation was expanded.

Ford faces several lawsuits concerning the allegedly faulty transmissions.

State Orders

Amtrak to Cut Train Fares

Amtrak riders on the Los Angeles-San Diego route through Orange County will get a break on their round-trip tickets from April 30 to June 30.

A recent compromise between Amtrak and the California Department of Transportation over proposed fare increases has resulted in a temporary promotional discount on the line, which is heavily subsidized by the state and other local agencies, including Los Angeles County.

While fares nationwide will increase 2.5 percent, San Diego to Los Angeles riders will be able, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, to buy a round-trip ticket for the price of a one-way ticket plus $1.

So, while the one-way fare between Los Angeles and Santa Ana will be hiked from $3.10 to $3.28, on three days a week a rider can travel there and back for $4.28.

The fare between Los Angeles and San Diego will go from $9 to $9.25, but the same discount will apply.

In addition, a second promotional fare will extend the present 20 percent discount on a round-trip ticket Monday through Thursday to include Fridays. This offer also will end June 30.

CalTrans has opposed the overall fare increases, saying low fares are needed to attract riders, and threatened to cut off its subsidies unless a compromise was reached. The promotional fares were agreed on as an interim measure.

Longterm CalTrans-Amtrak contracts are still being worked out, according to Adriana Gianter, CalTrans director.

Laguna Youth Service Gets State Honor

An award for outstanding youth services has been made to the Laguna Beach Police Department by the California Youth Authority, Police Chief John Sparks announced today.

The Laguna Beach Youth Services Program was called "probably the most successful in the State of California" by state director Peral West, who presented a plaque to Sparks in Sacramento on Wednesday.

Of the 295 juveniles who went through the Laguna Beach program in 1977, 70 percent were diverted to counseling or some other referral agency, rather than being sent to the county's juvenile hall, said Sparks.

A county-run youth shelter in the city, which provides temporary shelter and counseling for youths and their families in crisis, was credited by Sparks with playing a leading role in the city's successful youth services program.

"The problem is," Cheung said, "I don't have a killing instinct. With the hard styles, you have to develop certain combinations. You have to know when to hit, when to kick, when to tear your opponent apart."

"T'ai Chi is non-competitive, non-violent."

"It doesn't train you to be stronger than other people. It teaches you to yield even when you're stronger. That's the most difficult thing—to ask strong people to yield in order to win."

"Our human nature is so difficult to yield, because through the ages we have trained ourselves to believe we have to conquer in order to survive."

"T'ai Chi tells you how to slow down, because it's a continuous, slow movement of forms. In this society we move too fast. People want to go fast. I am the fastest man. I am the fastest runner. But how would you be able to look around if you go fast? How would you be able to feel if you go fast?"

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP) — Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the Brittany coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after running on the rocks early Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

Seniors Get Dance Class

The Senior Citizens Program, sponsored by San Juan Capistrano's recreation department, will offer Polynesian dancing for seniors on Friday afternoons from 2 to 3 p.m.

Instructor LaVon Thorp will discuss Polynesian culture, language and history. She will demonstrate and teach the use of Polynesian rhythm implements and exhibit different Polynesian costumes.

For more information call the city offices at 493-1171 or the senior center, 830-1400 between 2 and 5 p.m.

Boy Charged In Slaying

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A 16-year-old boy is to be charged with murder in the death of a Clovis woman whose body was found near here, police report.

They said the boy is the same one who was sought in Davis March 9 after a high speed chase on Interstate 80.

The Sacramento County coroner's office said Doris A. Ramirez, 46, was found dead Friday by an off-duty deputy sheriff in a gully east of Sloughhouse. She had been bludgeoned and raped.

Rapist Given 99 Years

Man Convicted in Kidnap, Rape of 15-year-old

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years.

"The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment.

The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

They portrayed Bannister as a sick man who knew only trauma, rejection and failure — a ninth-grade dropout who was in and out of trouble with police and had no success with women.

Three psychiatrists testified for the defense that Bannister was legally insane, suffering from schizophrenia so that he couldn't tell right from wrong or understand what he was doing.

"There is a circus going on in his head," Slaughter told jurors. "What you have seen is a modern-day American tragedy. There are two victims, Charlotte Grosse and Rusty Bannister. . . we ask that you forgive Rusty Bannister because he is sick and did not know right from wrong."

The state agreed Bannister was ill.

"He's sick but sane," argued State Attorney James Gardner. "You can call this man misguided and pitiful. You can say he's got bats in his belfry. But you can't call him insane."

Bannister didn't testify. He showed no emotion as his mother sobbed the story of his early years and Miss Grosse pointed him out as her abductor.

Miss Grosse's father, Richard Grosse of Nokomis, said the verdict was "all right with me. I like to win."

Laguna Slates Applicants' Interviews

Interviews for positions on a half-dozen committees and the Board of Adjustment will be conducted by the Laguna Beach City Council Wednesday.

The new council will interview applicants for the city's cultural, cable television, human needs and parks and recreation committees when they meet at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers.

They will also hear applicants for positions on the parking, transportation and circulation committee, the housing panel and the pet responsibility committee.

Applicants for the Board of Adjustment should submit a resume of qualifications to City Clerk Verna Rollinger by Wednesday morning. Those seeking seats on other panels must fill out an application prior to the interviews.

Church Raid Held Legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court let stand today a lower court's decision upholding the validity of an FBI raid last July on offices of the Founding Church of Scientology here.

Guilt Assumed 4 in 10 Doubt Innocence

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly four in every 10 people in the United States believe a person accused of a crime must prove his innocence, contrary to the most fundamental principle of American justice — that a person is innocent until proven guilty.

In a random sample of 1,931 adults, 37 percent thought an accused person was guilty until proven innocent, according to the survey commissioned by the National Center for State Courts and conducted by Yankelovich, Skelly & White Inc.

Waddill Claims Baby Already Dead

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dr. William Baxter Waddill told an Orange County Superior Court jury today that a baby he is accused of strangling in the Westminster Community Hospital nursery was dead when he reached the hospital on March 2, 1977.

Waddill testified in his own defense that the baby which the prosecution claims survived his attempt to abort the mother was "pale and cold and lifeless" when he reached the nursery.

Waddill told defense attorney Charles Weedman that the nursing staff and a doctor he found in the nursery were "doing nothing, just standing around."

And he expressed his belief that the nurse who told him over the telephone that she saw the baby move shortly after it was expelled from the womb "simply misinterpreted signs of life."

"It was lifeless and dead," he said. "Anyway, I've never had a live birth after a saline abortion."

Members of the Westminster hospital staff and two doctors have testified that the baby delivered by Waddill's 18-year-old patient showed signs of life and had a discernible heart beat and respiration after it was rushed to the nursery.

Sewage Flow Halted

Beaches Open In Most Areas

Portions of beaches in Huntington Beach and Newport Beach which have been off limits because of sewage contamination were declared safe for public use today by Orange County Health Department officials.

Health workers had quarantined beaches from 38th Street in Newport to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach after a 30-inch sewage main broke in the Santa Ana River on March 12.

Sanitation workers today stopped the flow of sewage which had been pouring into the river at the rate of four to five million gallons a day for the past week.

Robert Stone, director of Environmental Health for the county Health Department said some of the beaches on either side of the river mouth will remain restricted, but those beaches could be re-opened as early as Tuesday.

Stone's staff today opened the beach from 38th Street to 52nd Street in Newport Beach and the strand between Beach Boulevard and Brookhurst Street in Huntington Beach.

Stone said tests will be taken this afternoon of the waters between 52nd Street and Brookhurst Street to determine when those strands can be opened to public use.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts said this morning that repairs to the broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

The 30-inch main broke when rain water flowing down the normally dry river bed eroded the pipe's protective covering. The flowing river carried the sewage to sea, contaminating beaches on both sides of the river that forms the city line between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach.

Miss Baker said district officials will decide today whether to do more work on the pipe or let it remain as repaired.

She said they don't anticipate any further problems from river water eroding the pipe's protective covering.

Dam Eyed As Families Evacuate

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — "I'd hate to think what would happen if it rains hard in the near future."

With that comment, Horacio de la Cruz watched as families below Rodriguez Dam were moved to higher ground.

In the wake of heavy rains the past several weeks, the dam is holding back more water than at any time since 1941, says de la Cruz, in charge of its operation.

An American company built it in 1937 at a cost of $1 million to stop the Tia Juana River for domestic and irrigation use.

At 350 feet, it is one of the highest and the largest earthen dams in Mexico.

Mexican soldiers worked last week to move families from squatter homes in the floodplain of the river valley.

A vast tent city has risen on Olay Mesa, which would be out of the way of a flood if the dam located 12 miles east of Tijuana should break.

De La Cruz said about 4,000 refugees were resettled, getting free food and care, by last weekend. Another 5,000 may have joined them by next Friday.

Many were reported unhappy despite the flimsy quality of their homemade houses.

Orlando Garcia said the squatters, within sight of tourists, were "an eyesore — but you can't fight the government."

"I think it would be a real disaster if those people were not moved out of that area," said De la Cruz in an interview.

Car Sprayers Sought in NB

Newport Beach police today are looking for the occupants of an old, light-colored pickup truck who apparently doused eight cars in Corona del Mar with corrosive chemicals early Saturday.

Police reported eight cars parked in the 400 block of Fernleaf Avenue were damaged by the chemical which they said appeared to be concentrated swimming pool chlorine.

Officers said the truck and its four occupants were seen in the area and that the witnesses detected a strong odor of chlorine at the time.

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli troops backed by air and naval bombardment rolled northward along a broad front today to tighten their grip on southern Lebanon, pounding away at Palestinian guerrillas clinging to their last positions below the Litani River.

An Israeli official said later in New York a cease-fire was in effect in the region. But independent observers at the scene reported continued Israeli shelling and air attacks on guerrilla holdouts.

It appeared, nevertheless, that the Israelis had largely achieved their objective of establishing a "security belt" south of the strategic Litani, 15 miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border.

U.N. officials in New York said it might be weeks or months before Israel heeds a U.N. Security Council resolution and withdraws from southern Lebanon. But a small "symbolic" U.N. peace force might move into the area as early as Tuesday.

The invaders, using helicopter-borne commandos to leapfrog toward the Litani, hemmed in the Palestinian seacoast bastion of Tyre and dug in on the bluffs overlooking the river, the Israeli military command said.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said that "for reasons of population and to avoid more destruction" his troops would not try to occupy Tyre. He said a Litani River bridge linking Tyre with the north would not be seized "so the people of Tyre won't feel encircled."

In Tyre, Associated Press correspondent Aly Mahmoud reported that by later afternoon the guerrillas remained in tenuous control of only a coastal strip stretching nine miles from Rashidieh to the Litani and encompassing Tyre and the hills to the east.

Israeli warships had been observed firing on guerrilla positions near Rashidieh, an abandoned Palestinian refugee camp, and in the hills. Guerrillas claimed to have sunk one gunboat with a rocket but this was not confirmed.

The intensity of the fighting around Tyre diminished noticeably during the day, Mahmoud reported, but independent observers and refugees (See ISRAEL, Page A2)

8 Escape After Boat Hits Beach

Eight people aboard a 20-foot power boat escaped serious injury Sunday night when the boat missed the Newport Harbor entrance returning from Catalina Island and slammed into the beach at 9th Street.

Sgt. Richard Olson of the harbor patrol said the boat's operator, Rose Byrn and another woman, Virginia Pullman, both of Venice, were taken to Hoag Memorial Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries and released.

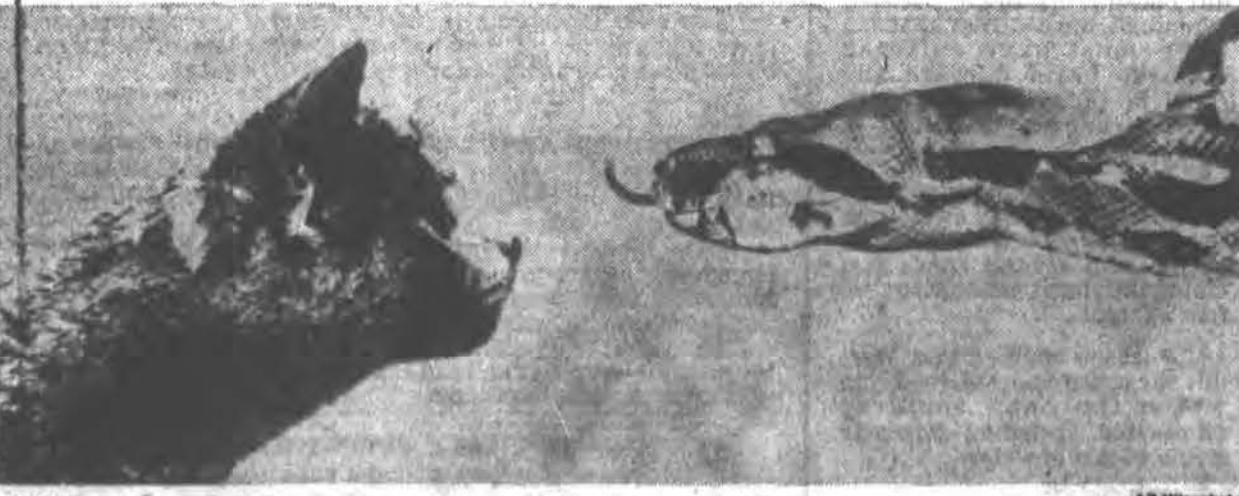

According to Olson, the boat is owned by Donald L. Green of West Covina, who was also on board at the time of the mishap.

According to Harbor Patrol reports, the eight occupants of the $13,500 Glastron, including an eight-year-old girl, were thrown into the surf when the boat went on the beach shortly after 7 p.m.

Lifeguards swam the partially submerged vessel back out through the surfline and harbor patrolmen towed it to their headquarters. They estimated damage to the craft at about $3,000.

MOTIONS OF T'AI CHI CH'UAN ARE SLOW, SMOOTH, BALLETIC
Dr. Dominic Cheung Learned Exercise in Chinese Monastery

Daily Pilot Staff Photos

Grace Marks T'ai Chi

Meditative Martial Arts Course Begins at UCI

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

He moves like the blades of grass he says he can hear bending to the wind, unhurried, silken and yielding.

"Swaying, dipping, his hands lead the motion of the rest of his reed body with balletic grace."

He learned to move that way in Macao, in China, in a monastery where a student of T'ai Chi Ch'uan was made to practice a single breathing exercise for months, to prove his devotion, before he was allowed to learn anything else of this, the most meditative of the martial arts.

Dominic Cheung, who today is a professor of Chinese and comparative literature at USC and who teaches T'ai Chi and the philosophy from which it springs, Taoism, doesn't make his students wait so long.

In the UC Irvine Extension course he begins Saturday, his students will have only 10 Saturdays to learn all the 81 basic movements of the exercise (9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Crawford Hall Stage on campus, $69 fee). Cheung says the course is just a beginning; it will take years of daily practice before most of his students will discover the meaning behind the movements.

"I wanted to learn the martial arts," he recalls of his own beginnings. "But my father was very reluctant to let me learn the hard fighting styles of the Bruce Lee type."

"Through a friend, I saw the abbot of the monastery, and learned T'ai Chi from an expert living there. I've studied since 13."

"In the beginning I was simply practicing the forms, without knowing what it meant. I practiced in the morning. Every evening I went back to the monastery to talk with the monks about the meaning."

"I'm still learning."

Cheung came to the United States in 1967. He is 34. Enigmatic as the opposing movements of the exercise, he is a poet and professor of literature who believes language is inadequate to express what is in the mind.

He never became as fond of the Northern Shaolin schools of the "Bruce Lee" type of martial art, as he is of T'ai Chi and its physical expression of the mind, the spirit.

"The problem is," Cheung said, "I don't have a killing instinct. With the hard styles, you have to develop certain combinations. You have to know when to hit, when to kick, when to tear your opponent apart."

"T'ai Chi is non-competitive, non-violent."

"It doesn't train you to be stronger than other people. It teaches you to yield even when you're stronger. That's the most difficult thing—to ask strong people to yield in order to win."

"Our human nature is so difficult to yield, because through the ages we have trained ourselves to believe we have to conquer in order to survive."

"T'ai Chi tells you how to slow down, because it's a continuous, slow movement of forms. In this society we move too fast. People want to go fast. I am the fastest man. I am the fastest runner. But how would you be able to look around if you go fast? How would you be able to feel if you go fast?"

It is much harder to go slow. But when you do, you know the wind is blowing, the air is moving. You can even hear the grass growing. If you can do that, then you know what's happening in the universe. It's the sound of the blooming flower.

"I can feel the grass growing."

"If you want to listen to the grass grow, don't listen with your ear, listen with your mind. But if you want to feel the grass growing, don't listen with your mind, listen with your spirit."

"You can feel the movement of the universe. You can even feel the breathing of the earth."

"In T'ai Chi, it is not your arm that moves, but your spirit that moves."

Severed Twin Allowed Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Little Matthew Myers, separated from his Siamese-twin brother in an intricate, seven-hour operation March 3, is home today with his parents in Bucyrus.

His 3-month-old brother, Mark, will remain at Children's Hospital here another month for completion of skin grafts.

The youngsters, who were joined from their chests to the abdomen, weighed a combined 13 pounds, 1 ounce at birth. On Friday, Matthew weighed 10 pounds, 2 ounces, and Mark was 9 pounds, 3 ounces.

Israeli jets also drew anti-aircraft fire from the vicinity of a Palestinian base at Souq el-Gharb, south of Beirut. But there was no evidence any jets were hit.

Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization rejected the idea of a cease-fire and vowed to wage "endless war" to keep Israel from consolidating control of the 15-mile-deep security belt north of the 62-mile border. But guerrillas in Tyre said their defensive operations had been reduced mainly to hit-and-run raids to slow the Israeli advance.

Lebanese authorities reported a total of 1,168 Lebanese and Palestinians were killed since the Israelis launched their invasion Wednesday with an estimated 25,000 troops.

The PLO said Sunday 144 of its fighters had been killed and 450 Israelis had been killed or wounded. Israel has reported only 20 deaths among its troops.

Woman Shuns Blood, Dies

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Carlos Millette, 45, a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses, died after he was struck by a car and refused a blood transfusion, police said Sunday.

Lorraine Barbarino, supervisor of St. Joseph's Hospital, said Millette, of East Bridgewater, was "alert and coherent" when brought into the hospital's emergency room. She said he cited religious beliefs in refusing the transfusion and died before the hospital could reach a relative and enlist help in persuading him to reconsider.

Rapist Sentenced

Gets 99 Years for Attack on Girl, 15

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I don't think it's the right verdict," Wilfred "Rusty" Bannister protested in a near-whisper as he was sentenced to 99 years in prison for kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl.

"I'm not guilty by reason of insanity, as we plead," added the ex-Alaska pipeline worker.

It was his only statement in the weeklong trial.

The jury deliberated one hour and 25 minutes Saturday night before convicting Bannister, 34, of kidnapping Charlotte Grosse from a tent in a state park campground June 29, holding her captive 53 hours, and raping her twice.

Circuit Judge Vincent Hall sentenced Bannister to 99 years on the kidnapping charge and 15 years on sexual battery, to be served concurrently at a state institution where he can receive psychiatric help. He can be expected to serve at least 30 years.

"The verdict was as expected," said defense attorney Harrison Slaughter, who said he would appeal.

Jurors refused comment.

The 57 hours of testimony centered on the sanity issue. Bannister's lawyers never contested the allegations against him.

They portrayed Bannister as a sick man who knew only trauma, rejection and failure—a ninth-grade dropout who was in and out of trouble with police and had no success with women.

Three psychiatrists testified for the defense that Bannister was legally insane, suffering from schizophrenia so that he couldn't tell right from wrong or understand what he was doing.

"There is a circus going on in his head," Slaughter told jurors. "What you have seen is a modern-day American tragedy. There are two victims, Charlotte Grosse and Rusty Bannister. . . we ask that you forgive Rusty Bannister because he is sick and did not know right from wrong."

The state agreed Bannister was ill.

"He's sick but sane," argued State Attorney James Gardner. "You can call this man misguided and pitiful. You can say he's got bats in his belfry. But you can't call him insane."

Bannister didn't testify. He showed no emotion as his mother sobbed the story of his early years and Miss Grosse pointed him out as her abductor.

Miss Grosse's father, Richard Grosse of Nokomis, said the verdict was "all right with me. I like to win."

Opinions Involved?

Court to Review Libel Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether public officials suing for libel may force journalists to tell what their thoughts, opinions and conclusions were while preparing a news story.

The justices will review an unprecedented ruling handed down by a federal appeals court last November in a pending lawsuit by former Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert against CBS and others.

The lower court said reporters and editors sued for libel do not have to disclose such information. The justices' eventual decision could carry tremendous impact for all future libel suits filed by public officials or public figures.

Herbert, eventually stripped of his command in the 173rd Airborne Brigade, was propelled to national prominence in 1971 when he formally charged superior officers with covering up war crimes in South Vietnam.

He claimed in documents filed with the Army's Criminal Investigations Division that he witnessed and reported numerous atrocities but that superiors showed no interest in investigating the incidents.

Herbert, a 24-year service veteran, said he was relieved of his command after persisting in pressing his charges. Officially, his removal from command was attributed to a lack of "ambition, integrity, loyalty or will for self-improvement."

Press reports of Herbert's dispute with the Army made him a national personality. He appeared on television talk shows and eventually collaborated in the writing of a best-selling book, "Soldier."

Barry Lando, a producer of the CBS program "60 Minutes," decided to investigate the controversy. The ensuing research led to a Feb. 4, 1973 telecast called "The Selling of Colonel Herbert" in which the truth of Herbert's charges was called into question.

Lando also wrote an article for the Atlantic Monthly magazine about his findings in the matter.

Herbert filed a $44.7-million libel suit against Lando, CBS, "60 Minutes" correspondent Mike Wallace and the Atlantic Monthly, charging that the program and article "falsely and maliciously" depicted him as a liar "and as a person who used the war crimes charges as an excuse for his relief from command."

Herbert said his reputation was destroyed by the program and that he suffered severe financial loss.

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP) — Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the Brittany coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after running on the rocks early Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

Kentucky Bans Laetrile Use

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Legislature has killed a bill that would have legalized the use of Laetrile in the state.

The Senate voted just before the session's constitutionally imposed deadline Sunday to conclude its business while a conference committee was trying to resolve differences between Senate and House versions of a bill carrying a Laetrile legalization amendment.

Laetrile is found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Some claim it is a cure for cancer while others say it is worthless.

"No, I didn't," Waddill said. "Anyway, that baby was dead. It never had life."

Cornelison testified as a prosecution witness that Waddill told him in the nursery: "this baby can't live."

Cornelison said he saw Waddill choking the infant after the defendant warned him that the baby must have suffered massive brain damage and could be the cause of lawsuits totalling millions of dollars in damages.

Cornelison testified that he ordered Waddill to stay away from the baby but saw Waddill return to the crib several times and clamp his hand around the infant's throat.

Cornelison testified that Waddill suggested four other ways in which the baby could be eliminated, including drowning it in a bucket of water.

AMERICANA: 500 PORTABLE TOILETS FOR CONCERT
Promoter J. Pierce Van Hoy Prepares for Crowds

Pickin's Fine Host Works for Comfort

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP) — J. Pierce Van Hoy, a rotund, white-haired retired farmer in red sneakers, is a most hospitable man. Look out over his land — see the rolling hills, see the 500 portable toilets.

Those cubicles will accommodate thousands of bluegrass music lovers and good-time seekers expected to converge on Van Hoy's farm this weekend for the 54th annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention.

"IT'S AS COUNTRY AS the wilderness and open plains. It's Americana," Van Hoy, who relishes his role as promoter, says of the three-day festival that begins Thursday.

His father started the affair to raise money for a nearby one-room school. From humble beginnings in 1924 with a few banjo pickers and a listener or two, the convention has caught on in recent years like blue jeans and cowboy boots.

Last year, according to the local sheriff's department and state Highway Patrol, some 125,000 people planted themselves on 500 acres here about 50 miles north of Charlotte.

SCATTERED ABOUT WERE VETERAN string music lovers, but most of the fans were too young to remember when, for folks outside the South, "bluegrass" meant merely a hearty vegetation.

"The timing in the spring and the setting of the convention is conducive to the young at heart," says Van Hoy, a robust 60 himself. "After you pass 50, you're not going to get Grandma and Bivouac in the woods for three days."

Each Easter weekend this crossroads town of 125, marked by the tiniest dot on the road map, becomes one of the largest population centers in the state.

TENTS SPROUT LIKE SPRING flowers, a communal spirit settles on the land and the hills echo with bluegrass music.

Big-name musicians are rare, but spirited bands vie for trophies and cash ranging from $25 to $1,000 for the best fiddler. Judging is based on categories such as accurate tuning and "how good does it sound."

No electric instruments are allowed — indeed, there are no electric outlets on the stage of the 12,000-seat amphitheater Van Hoy built two years ago.

Israel Drives Deeper in Lebanon

Beaches Open In Most Areas

Portions of beaches in Huntington Beach and Newport Beach which have been off limits because of sewage contamination were declared safe for public use today by Orange County Health Department officials.

Health workers had quarantined beaches from 38th Street in Newport to Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach after a 30-inch sewage main broke in the Santa Ana River on March 12.

Sanitation workers today stopped the flow of sewage which had been pouring into the river at the rate of four to five million gallons a day for the past week.

Robert Stone, director of Environmental Health for the county Health Department said some of the beaches on either side of the river mouth will remain restricted, but those beaches could be re-opened as early as Tuesday.

Stone's staff today opened the beach from 38th Street to 52nd Street in Newport Beach and the strand between Beach Boulevard and Brookhurst Street in Huntington Beach.

Stone said tests will be taken this afternoon of the waters between 52nd Street and Brookhurst Street to determine when those strands can be opened to public use.

Hilary Baker, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sanitation Districts said this morning that repairs to the broken sewer main in Garden Grove have been completed and "the sewage is flowing through the pipe like it's supposed to."

16 Teens Charged in Shoplifting

Sixteen teen-agers, most of them girls, were arrested for stealing from Saddleback Valley stores over the weekend, according to a spokesman for the sheriff's south county substation which is gearing up for a surge of Easter vacation shoplifting.

Twelve of the youths were arrested at stores within the Laguna Hills Mall, said a sheriff's patrol sergeant. Eight of them were girls.

Four were arrested at K-Mart in Saddleback Plaza, he added. Three of them were girls.

The sergeant said a deputy will be stationed at the mall to handle the anticipated increase in shoplifting during the week-long vacation period. Most shoplifters, he said, are detained by security personnel in the larger stores and turned over to deputies for booking.

Clothing, jewelry and phonograph records are the items most often taken at Easter time, said the sergeant, who said the shoplifter's Christmas list usually is even longer.

He said it appears the teen-agers take mostly for themselves at Easter while stealing everything from pipes to housewares as Christmas gifts.

During last Christmas vacation, he said 68 teen-agers were arrested for shoplifting.

Saddleback OKs Elderly Lunch Plan

The Saddleback Valley's first government-sponsored lunch program for senior citizens has been approved and is expected to begin in May.

"I'm really super-pleased about it," said Elaine Carter, food services supervisor for the Saddleback Valley Unified School District. "It's a program that's needed down here."

She explained that there are senior citizens living in the area alone or with an income of less than $3,000 a year.

Hot lunches will be prepared and served to as many as 120 older residents in the district's new central kitchen in Mission Viejo.

The program will be funded with $75,000 in federal money. Although 10 percent must be provided by the school district, the program won't cost the district any money, Mrs. Carter said. She explained that the district's contribution will take the form of the facility and some administrative time.

15 Hurt in Explosion

Barge Ablaze at Getty Oil Refinery; One Dead

DELAWARE CITY, Del. (AP) — A barge exploded and caught fire during loading operations at the Getty Oil Co. refinery here today, and police said one person was killed, another was missing and as many as 15 persons were injured.

About 25 fire units were called to the refinery, just south of Wilmington near the mouth of the Delaware River, where a two-alarm blaze was reported out of control.

At the refinery, a company spokeswoman said the barge was reported sinking in the middle of a shipping channel with a flaming oil slick spreading from its hull.

"It's on fire," said the spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified. "I can see billows of black smoke. My office is 1½ miles away."

The Delaware State Police barracks in New Castle said the explosion occurred about 9:10 a.m. PST. Between 10 and 15 persons were injured in the accident, they said.

Authorities said the victims were being taken either to Delaware Division or St. Francis hospitals in Wilmington.

At St. Francis, Paul King, vice president of the hospital, said one person had been brought in from the refinery with apparent heart problems.

At Delaware Division, officials said they had received no patients from the explosion, but reported that a state police helicopter was at the refinery to transport victims.

It was not immediately known what caused the explosion or what type of fuel the barge was receiving.

Authorities said fire and rescue units from New Castle County were on the scene.

U.N. Call For Halt Pondered

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli army, driving northward despite a U.N. call for withdrawal, claimed control of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River today. The government declared that any settlement of the conflict must ensure that Palestinians do not return to the area.

Israel's U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "the first steps were taken this morning" to implement the U.N. Security Council resolution on southern Lebanon and "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in the area.

Talking to reporters outside Prime Minister Menachem Begin's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herzog said he understood the U.N. chief of Middle East services, Lt. Gen. Enso Siilasvuo, met at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem to make "the necessary arrangements."

"It's a big human problem," Herzog said. "Christian villagers are pleading with us not to leave."

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization denied that all of Lebanon south of the Litani, 15 miles north of the Israeli border, had fallen to the invasion force. The PLO said guerrilla "suicide squads" were counter-attacking "in many embattled locations."

The Israeli military command reported no heavy fighting, however. It said its forces reached positions dominating the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward.

The Israelis said they went around Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the border, and cut it off. They said their line of control extended eastward to a point north of Abasiya and to a position dominating the Akiya Bridge over the Litani.

The Israeli advance indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wanted to flush out the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. force authorized by Security Council resolutions Sunday.

The council called for an Israeli pullout "forthwith" from the region.

The Cabinet, meeting in special session without Begin, who was in the United States, issued a statement saying any settlement of the Lebanon crisis "must ensure southern Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks."

The statement reiterated that Israel does not intend to occupy southern Lebanon.

Two more Israeli soldiers were reported killed, bringing the admitted Israeli death toll to 20 in six days as the invasion force expanded the "security belt" to a depth of some 15 miles above the border.

Press Ban Plea Due in Top Court

The state Supreme Court is scheduled to consider a new petition Wednesday in the matter of a juvenile charged with killing an El Toro housewife.

Supreme Court justices are to decide whether they will rehear arguments to bar the press from a Los Angeles County hearing to determine if the 17-year-old boy who allegedly killed Rachel Sparling should be tried as an adult.

On Feb. 15, the high court upheld a Los Angeles Superior Court decision allowing the press to attend the juvenile hearing.

Attorneys acting for the boy, identified only as Brian W., petitioned March 2 for a rehearing on the matter before the high court in San Francisco.

If the court decides that enough new material has been presented to reconsider its decision, a Los Angeles County deputy district attorney opined, it could be another year before the adult-trial hearing is scheduled.

Brian W. is suspected of kidnapping and murdering Mrs. Sparling, 36, of the Lake Forest area of El Toro, shortly after she visited her Pasadena psychiatrist on March 14, 1977.

Police claim the youth was driving her auto, a distinctive bronze Corvette with the license WUV YOU, when it was involved in an accident in the San Fernando Valley the morning after Mrs. Sparling disappeared. Officers said the boy fled the scene on foot but was captured later at his home.

Police said they found Mrs. Sparling's jewelry and other effects at the boy's house.

The body of the mother of four was found four days later in the mountains above the valley. She had been shot twice in the head at close range.

Proceedings leading to Brian's trial were interrupted in April when his attorneys sought to bar the press from the hearings to determine if he should be tried (See PRESS, Page A2)

Odds Say She Didn't

School's Young da Vinci Produces 3 Babies

Authorities say the odds against it are one in 1,000 or higher.

But don't make any bets because it's happened already.

A two-month-old guinea pig, named da Vinci, at Montevideo Elementary School, recently gave birth to three different types of guinea pigs. The rare mixed litter included an American, an Abyssinian and a Teddy.

The three little guinea pigs surprised students and teachers alike but not just because of their uncommon variety.

It all started last fall when Virginia Hooker's second grade class decided to do a simple science project on "Guinea Pig Family Life."

Mr. Squeaky and Mrs. Elly, two Abyssinian guinea pigs, were brought into the class and did what was expected. They produced three normal Abyssinians.

The family lived happily together for four weeks until one of the offspring, da Vinci, was given to Shelley Crossman's second-third grade as a pet. Then, unexpectedly one morning, they had four pets.

"She was so small when we had her, we didn't even realize she was pregnant," Mrs. Crossman said.

"It was all an accident. It really was," she said.

Mrs. Hooker had been following "the book" which promised the baby guinea pigs couldn't get pregnant for four weeks. But apparently no one told Mr. Squeaky.

Mrs. Crossman said it is not unusual for guinea pigs to give birth to an American and an Abyssinian. But three different types of offspring is rare.

"We think Squeaky probably had a trace of a Teddy way, way back," she said.

The class has kept the four pets but they've separated them. And, students and teachers alike are hoping their unplanned lesson in multiplication and percentages makes it in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Schools OK New Summer School Policy

A third of the Saddleback Valley Unified School District's elementary schools will now be headed by intern principals during the summer session.

In the past, the regular principals have automatically continued administering the summer session.

Although the superintendent and principals recommended that this past procedure be continued, district trustees have voted to establish the intern training schools.

Trustee George Henry said the new policy will help qualified people who hold administrative credentials gain needed experience. "Internally, you can improve your lot," he said.

Trustees agreed that the interns will be paid their regular teacher's salary, an average of about $1,200, plus a stipend of about $120.

Ford 'Shifts' Probed

114 Accidents in 5 Years Related?

DETROIT (AP) — Dozens of motorists have been run over, dragged and crushed against buildings by their Ford cars, trucks and vans. Six were killed, 39 others injured. Federal safety investigators want to know why.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said

Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Torinos, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTDs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lincolns; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 351 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined that half the fatal accidents involved FMX transmissions, the investigation was expanded.

Ford faces several lawsuits concerning the allegedly faulty transmissions.

State Orders Cut In Amtrak Fares

Amtrak riders on the Los Angeles-San Diego route through Orange County will get a break on their round-trip tickets from April 30 to June 30.

A recent compromise between Amtrak and the California Department of Transportation over proposed fare increases has resulted in a temporary promotional discount on the line, which is heavily subsidized by the state and other local agencies, including Los Angeles County.

While fares nationwide will increase 2.5 percent, San Diego to Los Angeles riders will be able, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, to buy a round-trip ticket for the price of a one-way ticket plus $1.

So, while the one-way fare between Los Angeles and Santa Ana will be hiked from $3.10 to $3.28, on three days a week a rider can travel there and back for $4.28.

The fare between Los Angeles and San Diego will go from $9 to $9.25, but the same discount will apply.

In addition, a second promotional fare will extend the present 20 percent discount on a round-trip ticket Monday through Thursday to include Fridays. This offer also will end June 30.

CalTrans has opposed the overall fare increases, saying low fares are needed to attract riders, and threatened to cut off its subsidies unless a compromise was reached. The promotional fares were agreed on as an interim measure.

Longterm CalTrans-Amtrak contracts are still being worked out, according to Adriana Gian-turco, CalTrans director.

HB Gets Use Of Saddleback Pool Plans

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees have agreed to allow the City of Huntington Beach to use their plans for El Toro High School's Olympic-size swimming pool.

Robert Ferguson, director of facilities and services, said the plans could be sold but it is common practice to let other government agencies use them for no charge.

He said he wanted to reuse the El Toro pool plans because the city has a limited budget of $430,000 for the pool.

Norm Worthy, director of Huntington Beach's Recreation, Parks and Human Services Department, said the city is planning to build a similar public pool on the Ocean View High School campus.

the district's kitchen will be to the taxpayers' advantage, she said. "It uses it to its full production value and it gives us additional purchase power," she said.

She said the grant should be effective and a project coordinator and staff for the program should be hired on April 1. The coordinator will plan the program and round up volunteers to serve the meals.

Initially, she said, the program will include only the meals and the socializing that naturally comes in a group.

Later, she said, nutrition information and speakers of interest to senior citizens will be offered.

"The people we're encouraging (to come) are those who either live alone or financially need it and those who would like the social aspect of it," she said.

The program will be open to anyone over the age of 62 in the area. A 75-cent donation for the meal will be requested.

Eventually, she expects the program will be overcrowded. Then, she said, reservations will be required and people may be limited to coming three times a week until another facility is found.

Kentucky Bans Laetrile Use

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Legislature has killed a bill that would have legalized the use of Laetrile in the state.

The Senate voted just before the session's constitutionally imposed deadline Sunday to conclude its business while a conference committee was trying to resolve differences between Senate and House versions of a bill carrying a Laetrile legalization amendment.

Laetrile is found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Some claim it is a cure for cancer while others say it is worthless.

Gas Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phased deregulation of natural gas prices and taxes on accompanying windfall gas profits for energy companies were endorsed Sunday by the League of Women Voters. Basing its position on a two-year study, the organization also called for federal policies that would reduce the rate of energy growth in this country.

T'ai Chi Course Offered

By PHILIP ROSMARIN

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

He moves like the blades of grass he says he can hear bending to the wind, unhurried, sullen and yielding.

Swaying, dipping, his hands lead the motion of the rest of his reed body with balletic grace.

He learned to move that way in Macao, in China, in a monastery where a student of T'ai Chi Ch'uan was made to practice a single breathing exercise for months, to prove his devotion, before he was allowed to learn anything else of this, the most meditative of the martial arts.

Dominic Cheung, who today is a professor of Chinese and comparative literature at USC and who teaches T'ai Chi and the philosophy from which it springs, Taoism, doesn't make his students wait so long.

In the UC Irvine Extension course he begins Saturday, his students will have only 10

Saturdays to learn all the 81 basic movements of the exercise (9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Crawford Hall Stage on campus, $69 fee).

Cheung says the course is just a beginning; it will take years of daily practice before most of his students will discover the meaning behind the movements.

"I wanted to learn the martial arts," he recalls of his own beginnings. "But my father was very reluctant to let me learn the hard fighting styles of the Bruce Lee type."

"Through a friend, I saw the abbot of the monastery, and learned T'ai Chi from an expert living there. I've studied since 13."

"In the beginning I was simply practicing the forms, without knowing what it meant. I practiced in the morning. Every evening I went back to the monastery to talk with the monks about the meaning."

"I'm still learning," Cheung came to the United States in 1967. He is 34. Enigmatic as the opposing movements of the exercise, he is a poet and professor of literature who believes language is inadequate to express what is in the mind.

He never became as fond of the Northern Shaolin schools of the "Bruce Lee" type of martial art, as he is of T'ai Chi and its physical expression of the mind, the spirit.

"The problem is," Cheung said, "I don't have a killing instinct. With the hard styles, you have to develop certain combinations. You have to know when to hit, when to kick, when to tear your opponent apart."

"T'ai Chi is non-competitive, non-violent."

"It doesn't train you to be stronger than other people. It teaches you to yield even when you're stronger. That's the most difficult thing—to ask strong people to yield in order to win."

"Our human nature is so difficult to yield, because through the ages we have trained ourselves to believe we have to conquer in order to survive."

"T'ai Chi tells you how to slow down, because it's a continuous, slow movement of forms. In this society we move too fast. People want to go fast. I am the fastest man. I am the fastest runner. But how would you be able to look around if you go fast? How would you be able to feel if you go fast?"

It is much harder to go slow. But when you do, you know the wind is blowing, the air is moving. You can even hear the grass growing. If you can do that, then you know what's happening in the universe. It's the sound of the blooming flower.

"I can feel the grass growing."

"If you want to listen to the grass grow, don't listen with your ear, listen with your mind. But if you want to feel the grass growing, don't listen with your mind, listen with your spirit."

"You can feel the movement of the universe. You can even feel the breathing of the earth."

"In T'ai Chi, it is not your arm that moves, but your spirit that moves."

Services Tuesday For Gen. Quilter

Military graveside services will be held Tuesday for Maj. Gen. Charles J. Quilter, USMC-ret., a resident of Quilter Bay who died Saturday of cancer. He was 63.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach.

General Quilter first moved to Laguna Beach in 1957 and was president of the Emerald Bay Community Association from 1970-1972. He was a member of the Parish Council of St. Catherine's Church.

The University of Rochester, N.Y., graduate earned his Naval Aviator wings and a commission in the Marine Corps in 1937. He served as a fighter pilot flight leader at Midway Island and Guadalcanal during World War II.

General Quilter served in Korea and commanded the 3rd Marine Air Wing at the El Toro Marine Air Station from 1966 to 1968. He received some 14 U.S. and foreign personal decorations, including the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star.

Survivors include his widow, Elizabeth Quilter; sons Christopher M. Quilter of New York City and Patrick H. Quilter, Matthew M. Quilter and Charles J. Quilter II of Laguna Beach. General Quilter is also survived by brothers, Adm. Joseph Quilter, USN-ret., of Portola Valley; Capt. Edward S. Quilter, USN-ret., of Irvine, and Brendan T. Quilter of Michigan; and sisters Patricia Quilter, Elizabeth Quilter and Mary Louise Quilter of Binghamton, N.Y., and Frances Donovan of Montrose, Penn.

SBVUD Panel Sets Fee for Swim Classes

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees have agreed to charge $5 for summer swimming classes offered through their recreation program.

Since 1975, these lessons have been offered free at El Toro and Mission Viejo High schools.

Although the schools have collected state aid for the instructional classes, Dr. Robert Ford, director of secondary education, said the district could earn an additional $4,000 with the fees.

The fees for lessons offered by other community organizations range from $5 to $18. Community recreational swimming at the pools will continue to be free of charge.

Klan Leader Held

LEEDS, England (AP) — Bill Wilkinson, an American Ku Klux Klan leader who entered England illegally, was arrested Sunday and faces deportation, officials said. Wilkinson, 34, of Denham Springs, La., was banned from entering Britain a month ago.

Tanker Oil Still Flows

BREST, France (AP) — Salvage experts say it will be at least four or five days before they can start pumping oil from the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz.

The vessel already has spilled at least 14.7 million gallons of crude oil onto an 80-mile stretch of the British coast and the rich fishing grounds off it after running on the rocks early Friday in a storm when its towline broke.

The tanker was carrying 67.6 million gallons of oil in its 15 tanks, and officials do not know how many of them were broken.

Reporting Of Aliens Assailed

Cadet 'Chewee' Dogs Put Bite on Officer

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Medical students and some faculty at UCI Medical Center say they object to a county policy that involves them in reporting illegal aliens to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for eventual deportation.

"This policy violates our medical duty to care for and treat the entire patient," the students said in a press release.

"It will quickly destroy the doctor-patient relationship of trust and confidentiality with future patients," the statement continued.

The students' words were backed by support from four faculty members as well as UCI Medical School Dean Stanley van den Noort.

County supervisors invoked the controversial reporting policy last year in an attempt to cut down on the expense of providing medical care to indigent illegal aliens.

It calls for medical personnel to summon an eligibility worker to complete Medi-Cal forms for those who cannot either pay or provide insurance forms to cover their bills.

In cases where residence is an issue, that fact is reported to immigration authorities.

The students said that policy sometimes ends up costing more taxpayer dollars because fearful indigent aliens avoid having minor ailments treated.

And frequently those minor ailments develop into major care cases that eventually run up the medical care tab, the UCI Medical students said.

They also contended that undocumented aliens sometimes avoid treatment of communicable diseases because of their fear of deportation.

The students also made reference to recent studies that show illegal aliens do pay sales, income and other forms of taxes that exceed in amount the tax dollars consumed for their care.

The calm words of protest to the county policy are expected to be repeated Wednesday when the Board of Supervisors will reconsider the medical payment policy.

The board's deliberation will include consideration of an illegal alien task force report that called for an end to the existing policy.

Jeff Nelson just may be the world's only six-foot, two-inch, 250-pound doggie chew toy, but he isn't made of plastic or latex rubber and he's more likely to bellow than squeak.

Cadet Nelson, 20, is the senior man among 16 Huntington Beach Police Department cadets and the straight man in a special new act starring two policemen and two police dogs.

Officers Bob Archey and Bill Mamalli are supporting actors in the program now playing occasionally at Huntington Beach schools.

Cadet Nelson is the chewee.

"Chew toy" or "antagonist" is as good as anything," says the stocky, muscular young man who plays the bad guy in campus shows demonstrating how a policeman-handler and his canine partner work together.

Normally, he is assigned to work in the Personnel Department.

"The idea that everybody seems to have is that they're just attack dogs. But they're actually trained in everything," says the former La Quinta High School varsity football lineman.

Patrolmen Mamelli and Archey will be demonstrating that again April 11 at Peterson Elementary School and April 27 at Huntington Beach High School.

"The new dogs are very intelligent and highly trained," says Cadet Nelson, who wears a thick, protective strap-on sleeve into which they sink their teeth when demonstrating an attack situation.

Wolfgang and Pasha, the third and fourth dogs employed by the department, have been on the job only a few months.

The late Ulli, who died of cancer and Barry, now retired due to injuries suffered in the line of duty, were trained in Germany, while Wolfgang and Pasha learned their jobs in a new program here in the U.S.

"The older dogs were a little more out of control," Cadet Nelson says drolly. "They had a tendency not to differentiate between the protective sleeve and your arm."

"When you take off the sleeve, the newer dogs know the game is over."

Aspiring policeman Nelson has come to deeply admire the dogs, which can severely maul an attacker or tenderly find and protect a lost child.

They are taught to search out specific objects or track a lost or perhaps ill or injured person incapable of self-help and patiently lie down to mark and point out the location for their handler.

Protection of the uniformed man with whom they spend their lives also is ingrained in the dogs.

Any hint of violence toward his master will bring an instant lunge and 85 pounds of ferocity crashing into the antagonist.

Some training days when City Hall is closed, Cadet Nelson hides on one of its six floors and Pasha or Wolfgang methodically tracks him down floor by floor, just as they would in searching a department store for a cornered burglar.

"If he corners someone, he barks. If he finds an object, he lies down beside it," says Cadet Nelson, whose work has pointed his future direction in the field of law enforcement.

He wants to be what men in the trade call a Dog Cop, a lawman whose on-duty partner is frequently more reliable and predictable than a human being.

"If I become a Dog Cop, I'll have to get a home," says Nelson, a bachelor who still lives at his parents' residence.

Police dogs always live with their masters.

"I would certainly like to give it a try," he adds.

Swallows Come Back

San Juan Celebrates—To No One's Surprise

One of nature's best-known phenomena drew crowds this weekend to San Juan Capistrano to see the swallows come back just as legend says they have done every March 19 but one for the past 200 years.

And, while the sky was far from darkened with their little bodies, spokesmen for the mission said the swallows did indeed come back to Capistrano Sunday. At least, a few of them were reported.

The rest are expected to trickle in during the next week or so. The legend of their punctuality (they were late in 1935, say Mission spokesmen, because of bad weather) has made the city into a once-a-year tourist mecca and, while crowds were down somewhat from last year, a festive mood still prevailed.

The celebration began on Saturday with a parade. Orange County Sheriff's deputies said about 15,000 persons turned out, half the number who attended last year's parade. There were seven arrests, mostly for drunkenness, a spokesman said.

On Sunday, traffic jams forced the closure of the Ortega offramp on the southbound 405

Freeway five or six times, a sheriff's spokesman said.

He estimated that as many as 7,000 to 10,000 people were in San Juan Capistrano at any one time and that the total attendance may have gone as high as 50,000.

The swallows, whose reported return to Mission San Juan Capistrano every St. Joseph's Day has been the subject of a popular song, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano," usually stay until Oct. 23. Then they head back to Argentina, where seasons are the reverse of those in the northern hemisphere.

Mush, Then Arctic Air

Weather Plagues Race

NOME, Alaska (AP) — The racers were plagued with warm weather and soggy snow at the start. At the end, it was all some of them could do to find the finish line in the world's longest sled dog race.

Several mushers lost the trail and some dogs lost their will to move during the last 50 miles as 50 knot winds from Siberia blew snow into a blinding fury. Wind chill dropped the temperature to 60 below.

Emmitt Peters, who holds the record time in the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race, crossed the finish line in third place and went straight to a hospital for treatment of a walnut-sized lump on his jaw from frostbite. He was later released.

The winner of the race, Dick Mackey, 45, of Wasilla, credited the second-place finisher's lead dog, Obie, with leading them through the storm along the Bering Sea coast.

Fifteen days and 1,000 grueling Alaska miles after starting the race near Anchorage, Mackey and Rick Swenson of Eureka crossed the finish line within one second of each other.

It was the closest finish in the six years the race has been run. Some spectators thought Swenson—the 1977 champion—had won and rushed to congratulate him.

The confusion occurred when Mackey collapsed as his dogs went over the ramp at the finish line, which lay under a spruce burl arch. He stopped before his sled went over the ramp. Swenson's sled cleared, but he and race officials agreed Mackey was there first.

Mackey, a contractor and dog breeder, and Swenson, 28, had "never been more than 50 feet apart" during the last 800 miles of the race, said Mackey.

The pair were neck-and-neck as they entered town.

"I passed Rick in front of the Board of Trade saloon," Mackey said.

Mackey, who has raced in all six Iditarod races, had had only 10½ hours sleep in six days and said at the finish he would never run the race again. But Swenson, who would have become the first two-time winner if he had edged Mackey, urged him to defend his title next year.

Mackey's winning time was 14 days, 18 hours, 52 minutes and 24 seconds. Peters' record, set in 1975, was 14 days, 14 hours, 43 minutes and 45 seconds.

Three other racers had arrived by Sunday, leaving 34 others on the trail, some as far back as Nulato, 400 miles away.

Opinions Involved?

Court to Review Libel Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether public officials suing for libel may force journalists to tell what their thoughts, opinions and conclusions were while preparing a news story.

The justices will review an unprecedented ruling handed down by a federal appeals court last November in a pending lawsuit by former Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert against CBS and others.

The lower court said reporters and editors sued for libel do not have to disclose such information. The justices' eventual decision could carry tremendous impact for all future libel suits filed by public officials or public figures.

Herbert, eventually stripped of his command in the 173rd Airborne Brigade, was propelled to national prominence in 1971 when he formally charged superior officers with covering up war crimes in South Vietnam.

He claimed in documents filed with the Army's Criminal Investigations Division that he witnessed and reported numerous atrocities but that superiors showed no interest in investigating the incidents.

Herbert, a 24-year service veteran, said he was relieved of his command after persisting in pressing his charges. Officially, his removal from command was attributed to a lack of "ambition, integrity, loyalty or will for self-improvement."

Press reports of Herbert's dispute with the Army made him a national personality. He appeared on television talk shows and eventually collaborated in the writing of a best-selling book, "Soldier."

Barry Lando, a producer of the CBS program "60 Minutes," decided to investigate the controversy. The ensuing research led to a Feb. 4, 1973 telecast called "The Selling of Colonel Herbert" in which the truth of Herbert's charges was called into question.

Lando also wrote an article for the Atlantic Monthly magazine about his findings in the matter.

Herbert filed a $44.7-million libel suit against Lando, CBS, "60 Minutes" correspondent Mike Wallace and the Atlantic Monthly, charging that the program and article "falsely and maliciously" depicted him as a liar "and as a person who used the war crimes charges as an excuse for his relief from command."

Herbert said his reputation was destroyed by the program and that he suffered severe financial loss.

Severed Twin Allowed Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Little Matthew Myers, separated from his Siamese-twin brother in an intricate, seven-hour operation March 2, is home today with his parents in Bucyrus.

His 3-month-old brother, Mark, will remain at Children's Hospital here another month for completion of skin grafts.

The youngsters, who were joined from their chests to the abdomen, weighed a combined 13 pounds, 1 ounce at birth. On Friday, Matthew weighed 10 pounds, 2 ounces, and Mark was 9 pounds, 3 ounces.

Copters Save 33 Fishermen

NEW BALTIMORE, Mich. (AP) — The ice fishermen of Anchor Bay are a determined lot.

Looking for one final catch, 33 of them ignored rising temperatures and high winds Sunday to venture out on the ice and wound up stranded on an ice floe.

In what has become a familiar chore, Coast Guard helicopters plucked them from the floating ice about a mile offshore in Lake St. Clair.

"Something like this happens twice a year," said Lt. j.g. David Zazzali.

Train Hits Auto

CITY OF INDUSTRY (AP) — One person was killed and eight others sustained injuries Sunday when the car they were riding in was struck by a freight train, Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies reported.

Valley Tot Killed

Laura Holman, a two-year-old Fountain Valley girl, died Saturday night in a head-on traffic crash on Interstate 5 near Coalinga that left her mother and four-year-old brother in serious condition, officials reported.

The mother, Victoria Holman, 32, of 16325 Livingstone St., and her son, Greg, were reported in serious condition today at Valley Medical Center in Fresno with injuries they suffered in the 5:35 p.m. crash, officials said.

Funeral services are pending for the young Holman girl who was pronounced dead at 6:15 p.m., authorities said.

California Highway Patrol officials said Armando Gonzalez, 23, of Bakersfield, was booked on felony drunken driving charges and suspicion of vehicular manslaughter in connection with the Saturday crash that took the young girl's life.

CHP officials asserted that Gonzalez' auto was traveling on the wrong side of the freeway when the collision occurred.

Deaf Teen Shot, Killed

NEW YORK (AP) — Christian Septimo, 13, was shot to death as he clambered down a Manhattan fire escape, but never heard a shot or warning.

The boy was deaf.

Police said Paul Monaco, 33, was charged with murder Sunday night. Septimo had been shot in the left eye and fell two stories to an alley.

Monaco told police he had spotted the boy and a companion entering a vacant apartment in a building he owns, after hearing a noise upstairs.

Horse VD Probed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's agriculture commissioner says a statewide moratorium on thoroughbred horse breeding will be lifted next week while officials continue efforts to combat a venereal disease that has threatened a multimillion-dollar industry. Six stallions and 68 mares are suspected of having the disease.

Gobbledegook Falls

WASHINGTON CALLING: You must have a certain admiration for one Joseph R. Fogarty, a member of our all-powerful Federal Communications Commission. Fogarty, you see, has a sense of humor. He can poke josh at his own bureaucracy.

Consider when the FCC went into session at the capital just the other day, pondering one of the greatest vexations ever visited upon its regulatory powers.

That hex is called Citizens Band Radio, better known across the land and upon our highways as CB Radio. The CB radio craze has grown like topsy in the last few years. It's become so popular that some automotive manufacturers are even building in the little transmitter-receivers into autos at the factory.

HELLO, MARS

ENTHUSIASTS OF CB Radio, however, do have some communication hurdles to clear. They need to know three languages.

First is English, which isn't used much on the CB airwaves. Second is CB slant ("10-4, good buddy. Mobile easy. Keep the shiny side up and the dirty side down.") which is used a lot. Third, the CBER should be able to understand the bureaucrat-ese with which the FCC regulations are written.

Since the bureaucrats struggle to understand their own lingo, the FCC's rules for Citizen Band radio are almost universally ignored.

So that was what the commission was meeting about the other day. Two young FCC employees had been ordered to re-write the CB rules into plain English. The results looked good.

THESE TWO WORKERS, for example, took the FCC directions on how to apply for the CB license and reduced the gross verbiage from 39 lines of gobbledegook to just nine lines of plain, ordinary words. There were also 33 lines of directions on just how to sign a CB license application. They cut that down to nine lines too.

The simplification effort absolutely thrilled FCC Commissioner Fogarty. Pushing his tongue far into cheek, Fogarty enthused:

"THIS ENDEAVOR has proven to be a salutary and laudatory exercise in efficacious re-regulation designed to bring government to a more symbiotic and empathetic inter-relationship with its mass democratic constituency."

Fogarty meant this was a good re-write job and regular people would understand it.

Then he added, "In a word, this item marks the ascendancy of semantic simplicity over obfuscatory verbiage inimical to the common weal. I am gratified that this collegial body today gives approbation to the felicitous regulatory enterprise concluded herein."

WHAT FOGARTY MEANT was that plain language had won a victory for the people over gobbledegook and he was glad the commission agreed.

I'm almost sure that's what he said. I think.

Democrat Plan

Tax Increase Trim Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on a congressional study committee said today that upcoming Social Security tax increases should be cut by $33 billion even before the tax boost takes effect next year.

Majority members of the Joint Economic Committee said in their annual report on presidential economic programs that the Federal Reserve should ease money supplies to counteract growing interest rates. They also called for government spending of at least the $500 billion President Carter has called for in his 1979 budget.

BUT MINORITY Republicans on the committee disagreed sharply on major points. They said easing money supplies would not work to lower interest rates but instead might increase them with heightened fears of growing inflation.

The Republicans agreed, however, that the Social Security tax increase should be moderated to avoid disproportionate burdens on middle-income families.

The Republicans by and large have opposed the Social Security tax increases from the start and have joined that with criticism of Carter's proposed income tax cut to offset its effects. Their minority opinion said, "At best, we must expect 1978 and 1979 economic activity to do well in spite of the government and not because of it."

THE CALL BY Democrats for the $33 billion cut in the Social Security tax increases would shift to general income tax revenues the cost of disability and Medicare benefits, programs borne by the Social Security system.

Such a move could substitute for Carter's proposed $25 billion income tax cut, the majority members said.

The congressional report comes only five days after House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill called for Carter to initiate a plan to rescind part of the upcoming increase. He said failure by the White House to propose the cut would force the House to take its own initiative.

O'NEILL AND many others in Congress say the public will not stand for the increase and that its discontent will show at the polls this November.

Congress is backing away from the law that it passed just last December to prop up the financially troubled system. The measure is designed to raise an additional $27 billion for the program over the next decade.

Continuing their criticism, minority members called for Congress to lower individual income tax rates and to review the tax code annually. They also suggested that businesses be allowed to deduct depreciation based on current equipment cost rather than on the pre-inflation price, the present policy.

Kicking at 66

Ginger Rogers, famed dancer of Hollywood's golden years and Fred Astaire's partner in 10 screen appearances, proves that, at 66, she still can do her thing. She tops the bill of a "super-nostalgia" show opening today at London's Palladium.

Miners Study Contract

Need, Not Approval, May Settle Strike

By The Associated Press

After scuttling one settlement and ignoring a government order to get back to work, the independent-minded rank and file of the United Mine Workers union gets its first look today at a contract that could finally end their 105-day strike.

Local UMW leaders were briefed on the pact at district meetings throughout Appalachia Sunday.

TODAY, THE LOCAL leaders began taking the pact to the membership in meetings at local union halls and civic buildings throughout the coalfields.

The meetings are being held through Wednesday, with voting scheduled Friday.

The district meetings were calmer than when the local leaders were briefed on the last proposal three weeks ago, and many local leaders emerged saying they thought this pact had a better chance of acceptance by the membership.

BUT MANY OF those who were optimistic also said they had reservations about the terms in the pact, and there were some who said they thought it was not acceptable.

One commonly-heard comment was that the miners can live with this pact. But another was that if miners ratify it, it will be primarily because they are broke by now.

"If it's ratified, it'll be because of billfolds," said George Thomas, president of Local 7224 in Lebanon, Va.

"IF IT'S APPROVED it won't be because it's a good contract, but it'll be because the men have been out so long they feel like they're beating their heads against the wall," added Thomas. "The men (union negotiators) in Washington have lost contact with the men here."

George Frampton, president of a 300-member local near Indiana, Pa., used almost the same words in predicting narrow ratification.

"I think it will be passed because the miners are hurting, not because it's a good contract," he said.

TWO PROPOSED contracts between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association have already been rejected. The first never got past the union's bargaining council and was not voted on by the rank and file.

Truck Crash Kills
Four Evangelists

MONTEAGLE, Tenn. (AP) — A truck rented in Louisiana by a band of vacationing evangelists tumbled over a 75-foot cliff, killing four people and injuring all 18 others.

"I was sitting in the passenger's side," Peter Thomas, 25, of New Orleans, the group leader, said Sunday night. "We hit a soft shoulder, and then soft rock. There were trees and then that was it. I thought we only fell about two feet. It all happened so quick."

Judy Shelton, spokeswoman at Coffee County Hospital in Manchester, Tenn., said three victims — a woman, a man and baby boy — were dead on arrival. Another woman in her mid 40s was dead on arrival at Warren County Hospital in McMinnville, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Identities of victims were withheld until relatives were contacted.

Sgt. Joe Sons of the Grundy County Sheriff's office said the 12-foot, one-ton U-Haul truck ran off Tennessee 50, a two-lane road, between Altamont and Pelham on Old Pelham Mountain.

"It happened on a curve," said Sgt. Webb of the Highway Patrol.

Anita Bryant
Blames Gays
For Failure

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Claiming homosexuals have scored a victory, singer Anita Bryant says her show business career is apparently over.

Miss Bryant, a former Miss Oklahoma and first runnerup in the 1959 Miss America beauty pageant, appeared Sunday in this central Illinois city of 90,000 as part of the national "Revival Fires Crusade," an evangelical group organized by the Rev. Cecil Todd of Joplin, Mo.

She blamed her sagging concert schedule on an unfair national press coupled with what she called a conspiracy by gay activists to torpedo her singing career.

"I believe in human rights," Miss Bryant said in a news conference before her appearance at a local high school gymnasium. "But I don't believe in special rights for radical groups that would take away the constitutional rights of others."

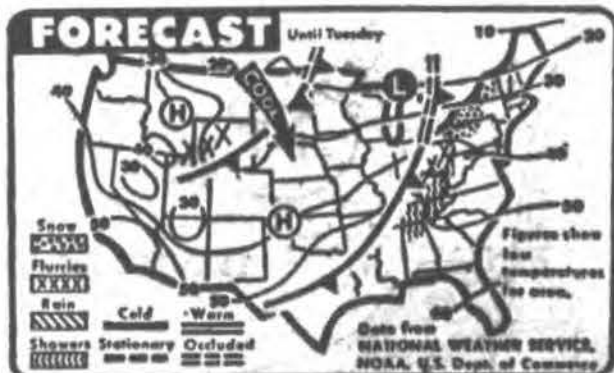

About 4,000 attended Sunday's performance.

Every 12 Years

White Horse Races Again

It's the Year of the Horse in the Chinese calendar, which means you will be seeing and hearing more of White Horse Scotch.

The Year of the Horse comes up every 12 years. And every 12 years the White Horse Scotch folks try to do something to tie their 136-year-old brand into the celebration. Last month they were busy sponsoring floats in the Chinese New Year's parades in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

THEY LUCKED OUT IN San Francisco when their four-tiered 45-foot-long float won the "best of parade" award and, on top of that, the lady they sponsored, Stephanie Lee, won the beauty contest.

Whether these triumphs will trickle into White Horse sales, either here or in China, is dubious — White Horse is not sold in China and sells poorly here — but the once-every-12-years hoopla has become one of those traditions that's honored, no matter what.

If you're a Scotch drinker and a world traveler, you know White Horse runs a pretty good race. One of the prongs of the old British imperialism, White Horse is sold in 170 countries, give or take one or two, depending on the revolutions occurring.

Money Tree

The fact that Johnnie Walker outsells it doesn't bother the White Horse people too much since the two are stablemates, both racing under the colors of Britain's giant whisky house, Distillers Corp. Dewar's White Label and Vat 69 are two other Scotches that belong to this company, the largest whisky distiller in the world outside of Seagram's.

WHILE THEY HAVE THIS common parent in the mother country, the Scotchies are funneled into the American market through different channels. Johnnie Walker is sold here by Norton Simon Inc. Dewar's is distributed by Schenley. Vat 69 is a National Distillers brand. And White Horse is marketed by Calvert Distillers, which peddles three other Scotch brands: Passport, Hudson's Bay and Logan De Luxe.

It's even more incestuous than that. Calvert is a subsidiary of Seagram's, which has two other Scotches, Chivas Regal and 100 Pipers.

After climbing sharply during the 1960s, Scotch sales have settled into a no-growth pattern, with the big brands siphoning off more and more of the market. Americans down about 19 million cases of Scotch a year. Five brands — J&B, Cutty Sark, Dewar's, Johnnie Walker and Chivas — account for eight million of those cases.

WAY DOWN THE LIST, ranking about 20th, is White Horse, selling about 250,000 cases a year. They drink more White Horse than that in Japan.

Since it's the Year of the Horse, White Horse will get an extra push this year. The Calvert pitch is "Not a Scotch in the world can run with White Horse," with the kicker: "a difference you can taste." But it's clear that no matter which Scotch you bet on, Distillers Corp. will be the big winner. It has the largest stable.

Countians Win Job Promotions

Edward L. Gorman, Huntington Beach, has been appointed chief harbor engineer for the Port of Los Angeles. He fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Lawrence L. Whitneck.

Gorman, 55, held various positions with the Los Angeles Public Works Department, bureau of engineering, from 1948 to 1963. Transferring to the Harbor Department in 1963, he worked as a civil engineer in charge of survey, inspection and construction until 1968, when he was promoted to the position of chief of design, which he has held for the past nine years.

A University of Southern California alumnus, he received his master of arts degree in civil engineering in 1958 and his bachelor of arts degree in 1948. From 1942 to 1945 he served in the U.S. Army Engineers in the European theatre of operations.

Mark J. Arato and Michael G. Lesch have joined Southwest Bank-El Toro as loan officers. Before joining Southwest Bank, Arato spent two years as operation officer for Bank of America in Orange.

Comic Studies Clowns — Vice Versa

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Van Dyke went to Florida to study the circus clowns and found they were studying him.

"They're all graduates of the Ringling training school, where they're shown a film — and it turns out to be a film of mine," said Van Dyke.

The film is "The Comic," written and directed by Carl Reiner, in which Van Dyke plays a slapstick silent screen comic in the tradition of Buster Keaton. It has now become virtually a cult film.

"I THOUGHT I was going to do some pratfalls, but those kids beat anything I've ever seen," he said. "They know every fall from every movie Keaton or Charlie Chaplin made and could do every one of them."

Van Dyke worked with the clowns during the taping of "Highlights of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus," which he hosted on NBC earlier this month. He donned makeup and costume to be a clown, swung from a trapeze and rode a unicycle with training wheels.

"I was surprised by the clowns," he said. "I always think of circus people as being European and over 65. I don't think there was a clown over 25."

CLOWNING AROUND Dick Van Dyke

"YOU THINK OF running away to join the circus as a thing of the past, but they've got the bug bad. Most of them had thought of becoming clowns since they were kids."

Most of the taping was done during regular performances, but the tiger act was taped in the morning.

"The tigers weren't used to working out in the morning," Van Dyke said. "They were very cranky. And you know how TV directors are, they want to do everything over and over. Finally, the tigers were getting so angry the tamer had to tell the director. The director said over the loudspeaker, 'Tell the tigers to relax.'"

Van Dyke, casually dressed and doing his own circus act balancing himself on a chair with a tendency to tip, said he may also be MC of the circus in Monte Carlo on another TV show in May.

HE LEFT "THE Carol Burnett Show" last year after only about 10 appearances. After starring in two comedy series and his own variety show, he had signed as a regular on the Burnett show in its 11th year.

"I left because of the problems it was a causing me in commuting to my home in Arizona," he said. "Carol shot her show on Friday night and all the years I commuted, I left on Friday night," he said. "So I wasn't getting home until Saturday noon at the earliest and I had to leave Sunday evening. I had no home life."

He admitted there were other reasons. He said, "It didn't quite work out as it should. I realized I was throwing the show off balance. I wasn't the straight man that Harvey Korman had been. I developed a lot of respect for Harvey. When you're thrown in during the 11th year of a show it's hard to adjust."

The Burnett show, a classic at its peak, did seem to be running out of steam.

VAN DYKE SAID, "They had that feeling. That they had covered everything in 11 years. I'd go to a production meeting and throw out something and they'd say, 'Oh, we did that in 1972.' There was nothing they hadn't done."

He said his time working with Carol Burnett couldn't have been more enjoyable. "I think the main thing was that there were just no directions left to go."

Shortly after Van Dyke's departure Miss Burnett said this would be her final season. CBS is expected to put Mary Tyler Moore's new comedy-variety show into that time slot next year.

VAN DYKE SAID he plans to do several specials next year, and might consider another try at a comedy-variety show. That is, providing he had a guarantee he wouldn't be kicked all over the schedule as he was last time.

"But the networks are cutting back on specials," he said. "The big thing is the mini-series."

'Roots' a Hit Again — in Germany

By ROBERT H. REID

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Despite some poor reviews, millions of West Germans tune in every week to watch Kunta Kinte and his descendants struggle from slavery to freedom in the first German airing of the TV series based on Alex Haley's book "Roots."

Station WDR, which reportedly paid $750,000 for the rights to the American series, claims that at least 20 million of the 62 million West Germans saw the first three installments.

To that can be added uncounted numbers of viewers in East Germany, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Austria and other neighboring countries where television sets pick up West German television.

TV's Pilot Shows In Production

First Artists has "California Girls," a contemporary comedy starring P. J. Soles and Robin Dearden. Karen Valentine is in "Go West Young Girl," a Western comedy from Columbia Pictures Television.

Paramount has three, "Legs," a comedy about Las Vegas show girls; "Spanner's Key," an underwater adventure created by Peter Benchley, author of "Jaws" and "The Deep"; and "True Grit," with Warren Oates and Lisa Pelikan in the roles created in the movie by John Wayne and Kim Darby.

Quinn Martin has "Colorado C.I.," a police show, and "Avengers USA," a romantic adventure.

ABC TELEVISION IN New York estimated that 130 million Americans watched one or more segments of the series when it was shown in the United States in January 1977.

Some German critics contend the production paints a false picture of an African paradise and overstates cruelty to black slaves.

Writing in the magazine Stern, Hans Nogly said Haley's book had become "the Bible for U.S. Africans," and "television made a comic book out of the Bible."

The Frankfurter Allgemeine newspaper said Haley "loved the figures in his book," but for the TV writers they were "only raw material of possible entertainment value."

THE FIRST EPISODE WAS telecast Sunday, Feb. 26, and the rest are being aired in a primetime Monday night slot. Following the episodes, there is a brief documentary on the history of slavery in the Western Hemisphere.

"We never expected it to be the biggest hit of all times," said network spokesman Jochen Stinauer. "When we bought it, we knew that there wouldn't be the same amount of interest here as in the United States, where the interest is determined far more by the viewers' own involvement and experience with the subject."

He said the only viewer reaction had been a few calls from people who claimed the series fanned racial hatred.

The episodes are dubbed in German. Most viewers interviewed by The Associated Press in different parts of West Germany found the series good, gripping entertainment.

HANNELORE HATZENBERGER, a housewife in Bonn, said she was deeply shocked by the cruelty to the blacks.

"What happened to them was criminal," she said.

Peter Niederere, 27, a teacher in Bonn, considered the show "pretty accurate," but added, "I know so little of the exact history of the era that I cannot judge it historically."

Ingrid Kautz, 37, a secretary in Hamburg, said she thought the episodes presented "more or less an accurate picture" of slavery in the United States but some of the characterizations were "very naive."

"All in all, 'Roots' is historic schmalz," she said.
