SIX SHOT TO DEATH IN OKLAHOMA HEIST

Newport Poisoning a Mystery

Gunmen Kill 6 In Restaurant

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Six workers closing a steakhouse for the night were murdered by robbers who forced them at gunpoint into a walk-in freezer, then shot each of them through the head, authorities said today. Four of the victims were teen-agers.

Police said more than $1,000 was missing from the restaurant's safe.

Investigators said they believe more than one person was involved, but that there were no suspects and few clues in the slayings, which they called the worst mass murder in local memory.

The bodies were found late Sunday night by restaurant manager Mike Click, 25, who returned to the Sirloin Stockade restaurant in the Southern Hills Shopping Center to determine why the employees had failed to telephone with the nightly cash total.

Police Sgt. Tom Mundy said Click found the bodies piled in a heap where they had fallen after apparently being executed one-by-one.

The restaurant is near Interstate 240, an Oklahoma City by-pass route. Mundy said the assailants may have selected that restaurant because of its accessibility to the expressway.

Five male workers dead at the scene were identified by police as David Lindsay, 17; David Salzman, 16; Anthony Teu, 17; Isaac E. Freeman, 56, a janitor, and Louis Zacharias, 40, assistant manager.

The sixth person, Terri M. Horst, 16, was taken to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head and chest.

She never regained consciousness and died at about 12:15 a.m., Mundy said.

Police cordoned off the parking lot surrounding the restaurant. A dozen officers walked shoulder-to-shoulder to (See 6 KILLED, Page A2)

Crash Kills NB Woman

A 27-year-old Balboa woman was killed early today when the car she was driving spun off Pacific Coast Highway and crashed into a telephone pole.

A California Highway Patrol report said Mavis Sutton, who lived at 301 Fernando St., Apt. 411, Balboa, was killed about two miles north of Irvine Cove.

The report said the victim was driving south on Coast Highway at 2 a.m. when her small foreign car left the highway and smashed into the pole.

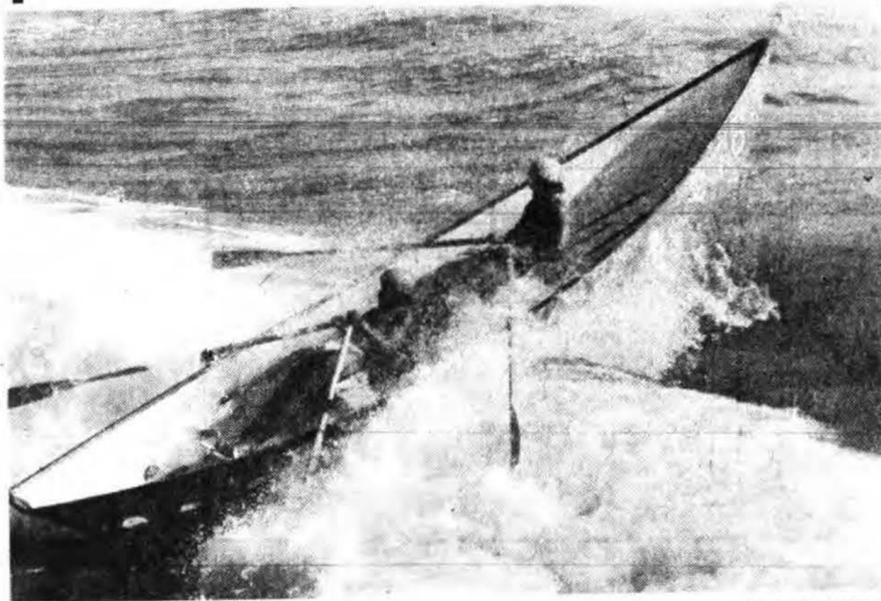

Investigators said the woman was alone in the car. They said the cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Viejo Cyclist, 23, Hits Tree, Killed

A motorcyclist who was killed in Mission Viejo late Saturday night was identified today as William J. Hoffman, 23, of Long Beach.

Hoffman was fatally injured at 11:40 p.m. near Crown Valley and Marguerite Parkways when his motorcycle went out of control and crashed into a palm tree.

Botulism Rejected As Cause

Puzzled State Health Department officials said today they have no idea what caused a food poisoning attack that hospitalized a Newport Beach man last week.

The 36-year-old man was originally thought to have been suffering from botulism, but Dr. Ben Warner, the state's chief epidemiologist, today said all tests of the victim's blood and the water chestnuts suspected of being tainted have proved negative.

"Frankly, we have no idea what the toxin is that would have produced the symptoms suffered by the patient," he said. He said no further tests are anticipated in the case.

Warner said the water chestnuts, imported from Taiwan, will not be removed from market shelves.

The patient, whose identity has not been revealed, was released from Hoag Memorial Hospital Friday after spending the first two days of his hospital stay in the intensive care unit.

Beaten Wives Said Covering Bruises

CHICAGO (AP) — Many wives whose husband beat them try to hide that fact from doctors by waiting days before seeking medical help and by inventing a false cause for their injuries, according to a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Beaten women often come to hospital emergency rooms a day or two after they are hurt, said the report in the July 21 Journal.

Mom Held in 4 Slayings Buffalo Youngsters' Bloodied Bodies Found

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Four young children were stabbed to death in their home here, and their mother was charged in the killings, police say.

Detectives said they found the bloodied bodies of the children in their apartment late Sunday night after being called to the scene by a neighbor who had heard "noises from upstairs."

Police identified the children as Kyliia Trait, 8, her sisters, Amina, 6, and Inez, 4, and her 2-year-old brother, Demario.

The mother, Gail, 26, was covered with blood and taken to a local hospital, but she was not injured, police said. Authorities said that after several hours of questioning, Mrs. Trait was charged with four counts of second-degree murder.

"We don't really know why she did it," said police Lt. John Rooney, "but family members told us she thought she was under a voodoo curse."

But Leo J. Donovan, chief of homicide, described the report of a voodoo curse as unfounded.

"So far we have no motive," he said. "All we now is there are four children dead."

At Mrs. Trait's arraignment today, Buffalo City Court Judge Alois Mazur advised her of her rights and the charges.

"Did you understand anything I said to you? Did you hear me?" he asked.

Mrs. Trait did not respond, and Mazur ordered her held without bail for a psychiatric examination.

Authorities said Mrs. Trait and her husband, Charles, had been separated for about two years.

Man Injures Neck In Newport Plunge

A Garden Grove youth who plunged 25 feet off the rocks near the Newport Harbor entrance into four feet of water this weekend suffered nothing more than a neck strain, according to police reports.

Police said they were uncertain whether Jason Matthew Lapan, 18, leaped or fell in the Friday afternoon incident reported from Pirate's Cove, adjacent to the Corona del Mar main beach.

After hitting the water, witnesses said the young man walked to shore and collapsed.

Paramedics and lifeguards rushed Lapan to Hoag Memorial Hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as "cervical strain," according to the police report.

The incident was the most serious to precede the weekend that lifeguards said was unaccountably quiet considering the summer heat and smog.

Lt. Logan Lockabey said 85,000 visitors came to Newport's beaches Saturday and 95,000 came on Sunday. There were a total of 229 people rescued.

Lockabey said there were no major problems.

"We were surprised that there weren't more people here," he commented. "The people who did come stayed much later than (See STRAIN, Page A2)

Broader Peace'

Dayan to Meet Egypt's Kamel

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan flew to London today for face-to-face talks with his Egyptian counterpart and told reporters in a troop-ringed airport lounge he hopes broader peace negotiations can resume within two weeks (Related story Page A4.)

Dayan added, however, that the two days of meetings scheduled to begin Tuesday in a storybook castle in the English countryside will get down to "basic issues." These discussions are not going to be talks about talks.

Egypt's foreign minister, Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel, was on his way from Cairo, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, host of the two-day meeting, was due to arrive later from the economic summit conference in Bonn, West Germany.

U.S. and British security agents sealed off the site of the meeting at the 9th-century Leeds Castle, 45 miles southeast of London.

The talks had been scheduled for the Churchill Hotel in London's Mayfair district. They were switched to the isolated, turreted fortress as a precaution against attacks by Arab terrorists who oppose peace with Israel. The Churchill was the target of an Irish terrorist attack in December 1974.

The three participants, who were expected to meet informally tonight, will try to lay the groundwork for resuming full-scale Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

They were to be taken by helicopter to the castle, built on two small islands in a 20-acre lake and accessible only by air or a drawbridge causeway.

Police sealed off the 485-acre park around the lake Sunday and special communications were installed for the delegations.

Among the security teams were agents of Scotland Yard's crack anti-terrorist squad and the A8 Diplomatic Protection Group.

HB Visitor Saved From Drowning

A Pico Rivera youth who was plucked from a rip current off Huntington State Beach Sunday remained hospitalized today following his dramatic sea rescue.

David Hathaway, 20, was delivered to the Orange County Harbor Department dock in Newport Beach by the Huntington State Beach Lifeguard Department rescue boat Surf Watch.

The vessel sped at up to 30 knots en route, with a brief and unusual stopover at the Newport Pier, where Newport Beach Fire Department paramedics Don Gray and Mike Miller leaped aboard.

Authorities said Hathaway was in such serious condition it was necessary to get sophisticated medical care immediately.

Hathaway was listed in fair condition today at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, where he was taken by ambulance upon arrival at the Harbor Department dock.

State Beach lifeguards said Hathaway became trapped in a rip current about 3 p.m. and was carried about 75 yards offshore before being rescued by the boat crew.

Jarvis Jury Needs Testimony Reread

OXNARD (AP) — The jury in tax reformer Howard Jarvis' drunken driving trial returned to their deliberations today and quickly sent word they want to hear some testimony again.

The seven-men and five women, who were unable to reach a verdict in 4½ hours of deliberation Friday, asked for a rereading of the testimony of the sheriff's deputy who stopped Jarvis on the Ventura Freeway last March 15.

Deputy Michael Kipp was the key prosecution witness in the one-week trial of Jarvis, the 75-year-old crusader who co-authored Proposition 13 tax cut bill.

Kipp alleged Jarvis was intoxicated when he was spotted weaving his car from lane to lane after midnight.

The deputy said Jarvis failed roadside sobriety tests — he didn't walk a straight line and couldn't recite the alphabet.

Jarvis was the defense's star witness, testifying he wasn't drunk and was driving erratically because he thought the pursuing sheriff's car was a political enemy chasing him.

Jarvis said he had a few drinks that night — a vodka and orange juice before dinner and "two or three cups" of coffee laced with liqueur after dinner.

He said he had trouble with his leg, which was the reason he refused to walk a straight line. As for the alphabet, Jarvis said he hadn't recited it since kindergarten.

International Pact

Economic Plan Unveiling Set

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Carter and leaders of six other major non-Communist nations are unveiling today an agreement on what U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal called a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

Conference sources said Carter agreed to increase oil prices to international levels in 1980, although it was not clear how he would accomplish this.

Current price controls expire in 1979 but could, under present law, be extended to 1981. The current price of U.S. oil ranges from $5.23 a barrel to $11.75 a barrel. The world price is approximately $13.50.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said West Germany had agreed to take action increasing its economic growth by the end of August. But they reported that West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had stricken from the draft of a final communiqué a specific increase of 1 percent beyond the anticipated increase.

That increase was expected to be significantly lower than the 4 percent growth forecast for the United States. West German growth could increase the markets for U.S. products.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's special representative for trade negotiations, said today the summit made "great progress on trade."

He predicted that international negotiations for a pact to reduce international trade barriers would be successful by the end of the year, although "agriculture is still a problem."

Carter told reporters Sunday night, after the first rounds of economic summitry, that "the final results of the deliberations will be good."

Schmidt said a separate statement to be issued today would include an agreement on "new approaches to terrorism." He offered no details.

Sources in key delegations said the statement would list anti-hijack measures, including the banning of commercial flights to nations harboring hijackers.

Today is the final day of the two-day conference attended by Carter, Schmidt, and the leaders of Canada, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan. Carter planned to return to Washington late tonight.

Backing Expected On Energy Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can return from the economic summit in West Germany assured that Congress will give him the tools he needs to reduce oil imports, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said today.

Byrd said the expected Senate passage on Tuesday of the first portion of the president's five-part energy plan will go a long way toward reducing U.S. reliance on oil imports, a central concern of the nation's overseas trading partners.

The legislation would prohibit burning of oil or natural gas in most new power plants and give the government the power to force many existing plants and businesses to convert to coal.

"This bill is more important from the standpoint of reducing oil imports than may appear on the surface," Byrd told reporters.

The Senate resumed debate on the measure today, the first compromise agreement on the energy plan to reach either chamber.

Backers of the legislation claim it can save up to one million of the eight million barrels of oil the United States imports daily.

Byrd said the combined effect of this bill and other relatively non-controversial parts of the energy plan will have "quite an impact on oil imports," even though these measures are not commanding the attention of the more unpopular parts, such as Carter's proposal for new energy taxes.

search the parking lot, but they found only a handful of coins, which they believe the robbers may have dropped after leaving through a rear door.

Mundy said each victim had been shot in the head with a small caliber weapon and that as many as 20 shots may have been fired.

The interior lights were dimmed when officers arrived, he said.

"It looks as though it was a last minute robbery — as they were closing," Mundy said.

"This is the worst I can remember in 18 years," Police Chief Tom Heggy said. "We've had killings of three, but not this many."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Delta Airlines jumbo jet ran into severe turbulence south of Richmond, Va. and 22 people received medical treatment after it landed in Philadelphia. TWO NAVY MEN LOST AT SEA

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Air and sea rescue units called off their search today for two San Diego-based naval officers reported lost at sea after their jet aircraft disappeared about 100 miles southwest of San Diego.

A spokesman for Miramar Naval Air Station identified the two as Lt. jg Patrick J. Kilcline, 25, of MacLean, Va., and the radar intercept officer, Lt. Cmdr. William C. Matthews, of Wantag, N.Y.

Both were on temporary duty aboard the aircraft carrier Constellation when their F-14 Tomcat jet fighter was lost about 9 a.m. Sunday on a routine training flight, the spokesman said.

Maintenance To Merge?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report recommends that the Army, Navy and Air Force consolidate their aircraft maintenance activities, which cost $2 billion annually.

The General Accounting Office said placing a single manager over aircraft maintenance would reduce duplication, increase efficiency and save money. The report did not offer an estimate of the projected savings.

Transport Chief Denies Quit Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams denies a published report that he might resign, a department spokesman said today.

The secretary scheduled a news conference after the New York Times reported today that he appears likely to be one of the first members of the Carter Cabinet to depart, possibly by the end of the year.

"Secretary Adams will deny he has any intentions to resign," spokesman Bob Holland said in discussing why Adams had scheduled the news conference.

"He doesn't believe there is any basis for the story," Holland added.

The Times attributed its report to government and industry sources.

Victims of Purse Snatchers

Older Women Easy Crime Targets

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Witnesses said it was dark at 8:10 p.m. Feb. 20, but there was enough light in the parking lot outside Reubens restaurant in the Laguna Hills Mall to see that the blond teen-ager wore no shoes.

He appeared from nowhere, gliding silently up behind three people approaching their car after dinner and a turn around the shopping center.

Mrs. Helene Cooper, 71, and her husband Sampson were showing their friend, Mrs. Bernice Weiner of Lake Tahoe, the areas surrounding their Leisure World home.

The mood was relaxed except for conversation about a poor meal at the restaurant — the only poor meal the couple had ever gotten at one of their favorite eating spots.

Mrs. Cooper felt her purse move. She looked down as the strap slipped from her shoulder and hung up on her elbow. She lost her balance, felt a hard push on her shoulder and reeled awkwardly, hitting hard against the black asphalt.

She felt no pain — at first. With Sampson Cooper in pursuit, the teen-ager ran toward a car with a vague figure hunched behind its wheel. Mrs. Cooper remembers calling for her husband to stop.

"He's 74 years old, you know." The car, the teen-ager and the purse — containing credit cards, driver's license, a checkbook, $64 in cash and everything else a woman carries in her bag — were gone in the roar of a motor and a stream of exhaust.

Then the pain began.

Mrs. Cooper would spend the next 10 days in a hospital bed and the following six weeks recuperating at home with a broken pelvis and a bruised arm that is still tender.

She was the sixth and last purse-snatch victim at the mall in a nine-month-long series of hit and run crimes against older women who are considered easy targets for fast-moving purse grabbers.

"He was experienced," Mrs. Cooper surmised of the youth who glided silently up behind her on bare feet and made off with her shoulder bag.

"He slipped the strap off, and I didn't even feel him touch me. It wasn't until I looked down and the bag caught that he shoved me."

Seven Nations Reach Accord on Economics

Japan, Germany To Grow

BONN, West Germany (AP) President Carter and the leaders of six other major non-Communist nations reached agreement at the economic summit conference today on tactics they hope will speed world economic growth and cut oil imports.

Their plan includes increased Japanese and West German growth, and a slower U.S. growth rate of about 4 percent, the 1978 figure already forecast by the Carter administration.

Carter told the other leaders that his administration would cut taxes and spending in the next two fiscal years — a pledge he has made frequently at home and would raise U.S. oil prices to world levels by 1980.

However, it was not immediately clear how the oil price increase would be achieved.

Current price controls expire in 1979 but could, under present law, be extended to 1981. The current price of U.S. oil ranges from $5.23 a barrel to $11.75 a barrel. The world price is approximately $13.50.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, discussing agreements before they were unveiled, described them as a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

The economic summit's communique, to be issued after the final session this afternoon, was expected to include specific targets for economic growth, employment, and inflation in each of the seven participating nations.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said West Germany had agreed to take action increasing its economic growth by the end of August. But they reported that West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had stricken from the draft of a final communique a specific increase of 1 percent beyond the anticipated increase.

Prop. 13 Prompts Reserve Spending

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Huntington Beach Union High School District has spent some $3 million in carryover reserve funds in recent weeks to avoid a reduction of state aid Proposition 13 "bailout" money.

Because it also has maintained large reserves, the Coast Community College District may receive $2 million less of the state aid.

Saddleback Valley Unified School District officials last week reported hurry-up spending of $750,000 to deplete reserves, paying off long-term contracts, to avoid similar forfeits.

Other coastal Orange County school districts have reported budget reserves of less than five percent of their total budgets — the cut-off point for the aid penalty rule.

The state "bailout" measure cuts allocated aid to individual school districts by one-third of the total the districts have left in reserves above five percent of the budget income.

Prior to passage of the measure, Huntington Beach school officials estimated the district would have 10.9 percent — $5 million — in reserves, in a total 1978-79 budget of $46 million.

During the past few weeks, school district officials began paying off lease purchases and other long-term financial commitments, to deplete the reserve.

Advance payments were made on the district's seven-year computer financing program, and a lease-option on air conditioners at newly built Ocean View High School, among others.

At stake in the money shuffle is about $900,000 of the estimated $18 million the district is to receive in state emergency aid.

By cutting back the reserve to at least $2.3 million — the 5 percent (See SPEND, Page A2)

2 Huntington Women, One More Robbed

Three women leaving a Costa Mesa bar early Sunday were accosted in the parking lot by a man who took their purses containing credit cards and a total of $145 in cash, police said today.

One of the victims of the strong arm robbery, Edith Helen Hayden, 40, of Huntington Beach, was slightly injured when the man struck her over the left eye with her purse during the brief struggle.

Police said the robbery occurred shortly before 2 a.m. in the parking lot near Sargent's Bar, 843 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa.

The women told police a black man wearing a blue and white bandana over his bushy afro approached them and announced, "This is a holdup."

Also victimized by the robber were Joan Robinson, 49, of Huntington Beach and Virginia May Romano, 40, of Santa Ana.

After grabbing the purses, the man fled on foot. A male witness chased him but was unable to keep up with the fleeing suspect, police said.

The robber, described as about six feet tall and in his mid-20s, did not display a weapon, police said.

Moves Rile Teachers

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Five teachers at Newport Harbor High have filed grievances with the Newport-Mesa Unified School District, claiming they have been placed in a transfer pool while teachers with less experience, or coaching duties, are being retained.

One of the instructors, Mike Marino, has been teaching history for eight years at Harbor High.

He said he has been placed in the transfer pool caused by declining enrollment while his former teaching assistant, a third year instructor who also coaches baseball, is assured a job next fall at Harbor High.

"We feel the school board should know about it," said Marino, who added that he believes his situation is a violation of his contract with the district.

However, district spokeswoman Jean Harmon defended the placement of certain teachers into the transfer or substitute pool today, saying "it's the district's privilege to decide who goes where."

"Because of the fact we are in a declining enrollment situation, the situation is to use the staff to its maximum ability," said Mrs. Harmon.

She said the district is looking for a "combination of skills" from teachers who will remain at Harbor High on a full-time basis. "If we need a coach for X" sport, he's also got to be able to teach other classes," she added.

Teachers who have been placed in the so-called "over-staffing pool" will become the first to be selected for full-time openings at other district schools in Fall.

However, some may eventually become full-time floating substitutes. Marino said this would mean "a lot of mighty expensive subs" because these teachers will receive full salaries.

Barbara Block, who has taught home economics at Harbor High for the past 11 years, is another teacher unhappy about her placement in the overstaffing pool.

"It's bad enough to be transferred," she said, noting the uncertainty that faces (See TEACHERS, Page A2) level — the district is protecting the wholepot.

Officials said they plan to maintain a $2 million reserve.

"We couldn't have used the money for our general fund next year, so we freed up the payment money and saved the interest," said school board President Zita Wessa.

"We have always had a large reserve. We felt it was justified, and not exorbitant for a $46 million business," she said.

She added, "It's not that big a reserve and it's money in the bank in case of catastrophe."

The Coast Community College District also has bankrolled large reserves. This year, according to Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for business affairs, there are an estimated $6.5 million in uncommitted reserve funds.

That's 9.3 percent of the total $70 million budget.

Thompson said the district probably will end up having to apply $2 million of its reserves against state bailout money, reducing by more than half the estimated $3.5 million previously scheduled for the district purse.

Thompson said exact figures aren't available because the district budget still is being calculated.

He claimed the community college district has done no quick spending to gain more state aid.

"If you're asking me if we've gone out to buy a computer or something, the answer is no," Thompson said.

Fountain Valley (elementary) School District officials reported they have no reserve, and only $339,153 in their 1977-78 ending balance.

Jack Mahnen, assistant superintendent, said there was no last-minute spending.

Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District reported similarly. The district's $513,000 in reserves is under the five percent line, according to Superintendent S.A. Moffett.

Huntington Beach's Ocean View School District, largest elementary system in Orange County, reported a tentative 4.6 percent reserve of $914,220 in a $20 million budget.

Neel Schmitt, director of fiscal services, said there was no quick spending. "We didn't find it necessary," he said.

Roy Barletta, business manager at Saddleback College, said he anticipates no penalty because his district's reserves will be under five percent.

The reserve is $800,000, in a budget of $21 million. Barletta said there's an additional $4 million in carryover funds not affected by the reserve rule, because they already are committed to construction projects.

Barletta said the projects were scheduled before Proposition 13 became a factor.

"We barely made it," said Sam Chicas, assistant superintendent of the Capistrano Unified School District.

EASY TARGETS...

The youth, Daniel Gary Stock, 19, of Mission Viejo eventually admitted the theft and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

He confided while in jail that he had lost his job because of an argument with his boss, a veterinarian, and was desperate for some "quick" money.

Stock, in trouble with authorities since he was 14 years old, said a friend told how easy purse-snatching was, that it paid well and had a low-capture-risk. He said he decided to "do an old lady, because she wouldn't run after me and might not remember what I look like," probation authorities reported later.

Young Stock was right. Mrs. Cooper couldn't identify her assailant. It all happened too quickly, the push, the fall, the surprise at finding herself flat on her back in a parking lot.

But witnesses saw the incident and described the getaway car, complete with license number.

The conviction of veterinary assistant Gary Stock and the subsequent arrest of another youth who allegedly preyed on older women at the mall has ended the plague of incidents that kept Orange County Sheriff's investigator Rich Matura busy for months trying to piece together patterns in search of youths who prey on oldsters.

Because of its proximity to the Leisure World retirement community, the Laguna Hills Mall and its environs are considered good hunting grounds for purse snatchers. Some have been known to reach out from moving cars to pull in a purse and speed from the scene, leaving their victim shaken and confused.

And men aren't entirely safe. Sheriff's investigators recall an incident in recent years in which an elderly gentleman was leaving a bank. He carried a money sack.

A hit-and-run expert shoved him, grabbed the bag and escaped easily in the confusion.

But the snatcher got only four savings account books. The man had deposited his cash.

Compared to most cities, the growing Laguna Hills area — especially the walled retirement community of Leisure World — is considered a low-crime area.

Purse snatching is the obvious exception. Costa Mesa police, for instance, report that over the same nine-month period during which Laguna Hills was plagued, only three such crimes were reported at the larger, busier South Coast Plaza.

Newport Beach investigators say only two purse snatchings occurred during that time at Fashion Island — primarily, they say, because of a Christmastime crackdown on parking lot crime.

Generally, experienced purse snatchers gear their operations to the first week of the month, investigators report. Social Security checks are received on either the first or third of each month, and the target is "fat."

A Santa Ana Social Security worker agreed. "During that first week, many of our recipients have their checks taken from them in that manner."

Speed, surprise and shock are the weapons used by the snatcher, law enforcement officers say. Their advice: let go of the purse as quickly as possible, try to get a good look at the assailant and scream.

Screams, said a sheriff's investigator, attract attention. Usually, witnesses other than the victim identify a criminal when he finally is caught.

"The victim is just trying to keep from falling or is trying to hang on to her valuables. Most of these older women live on relatively fixed incomes. The contents of their purses are very important to them."

Mrs. Cooper says she gladly would have let her assailant have her purse. "But I didn't even hear him. He moved silently, and from behind."

Physically, Mrs. Cooper is mending well, she says. Her pelvis was broken cleanly — in a straight line.

One probation officer might consider the former World Book Encyclopedia sales manager, who retired to Leisure World nearly 10 years ago, fortunate.

She had predicted Mrs. Cooper might suffer permanent disability as the result of her injuries.

"It has been observed in the course of limited personal geriatric study that such injuries often initiate the onset of a physical decline, resulting in premature death within two years in the elderly," the officer wrote.

And the attack that often results in falls for older women leaves more than physical scars.

"I don't think the watching over my shoulder will ever pass," says Mrs. Cooper. "It has left me with this sense of insecurity. Sam always walks beside me now. He doesn't wander off ahead."

"And I hang onto my purse like it is part of my skin. It's funny. I never was afraid of anything before. I was always very, very open...."

Hijacks Target Of Pact

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The seven-nation summit conference announced today an anti-terrorism agreement to cut off airline service to and from countries that harbor hijackers.

The leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan, West Germany and the United States called on other governments to join in the agreement.

"The heads of state and government, concerned over terrorism and hostage taking, declare that their governments will intensify their common undertaking to fight international terrorism," said a statement issued at the end of the conference which devoted most of its attention to world economic problems.

The terrorism statement was studied by legal experts to insure that it complied with world aviation agreements.

The statement said: "In cases in which a country refuses to extradite or legally prosecute airplane hijackers or to give back such airplanes, the heads of state and government are unanimously agreed through their governments to see to it immediately that all flights will be terminated into that country."

"At the same time their governments will implement steps to ban incoming flights from that country as well as flights by airlines of that country (flying from any other country)."

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's special representative for trade negotiations, said today the summit made "great progress on trade."

He predicted that international negotiations for a pact to reduce international trade barriers would be successful by the end of the year, although "agriculture is still a problem."

Collage Winner

Gloria Cholata of Costa Mesa captured first prize again this year for the nostalgic collage she entered in fine arts competition at the Orange County Fair. It's her second year as a winner. She uses old photos, bits of lace, greeting cards and other memorabilia to fashion her collages.

teachers as to their fall assignments.

Mrs. Block said she is second in seniority out of four home economics teachers, but the two teachers below her in teaching experience were not placed in the transfer pool.

Of the five teachers who have filed grievances, only Mrs. Block and Marino were willing to discuss the situation publicly.

The teachers' grievances will be handled by mediation meetings followed by advisory arbitration, which grants the school board the final say in ruling on such complaints.

The decisions as to which teachers should remain at Harbor and which should be placed in the transfer pool first came from Principal Tom Jacobsen. He is out of town and was unavailable for comment.

Nixon's Tapes to Archives

WASHINGTON (AP) — All the tape recordings and documents used in the Watergate prosecutions of former President Nixon's top aides have been turned over to the National Archives for eventual public scrutiny.

But it may take some time before the public has an opportunity to listen to the tapes or view the documents, an archives official said today.

The archives is still in a lawsuit with Nixon and is still processing and cataloging the materials turned over by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided at most of the trials.

After a recent Supreme Court ruling that the courts should not be charged with responsibility for deciding what materials should be released, Archivist James B. Rhoads petitioned Sirica for release of the materials to the archives.

On July 6, Sirica issued an order saying that all original and duplicate materials in his custody should be turned over. After a brief, unpublished hearing last week, he ruled that the step be carried out at once.

"We then went to the vault and the clerk of the court turned over to us all the materials that had been used in the trials," Richard Jacobs, acting director of the Nixon materials project at the archives, told a reporter.

Mesa Woman Recovering From Crash

A Costa Mesa woman underwent surgery at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital Sunday for leg injuries she received as a passenger on a motorcycle that went down on Meyer Place Sunday afternoon.

Hospital officials said 27-year-old Kristine Elizabeth Farrell, of 2026 Meyer Place, was "doing fairly well" today. She suffered a broken leg, lacerations and road burns.

The driver of the motorcycle, 33-year-old Terry Lee Perrault of the same address, escaped injury, police said.

Perrault told police that a car that passed them on the right hand side near the intersection of Beach Street may have bumped Miss Farrell's foot, causing his motorcycle to crash to the pavement.

Traffic investigators today said the case is not being handled as a hit and run, although the status of the case may change upon further investigation.

The accident occurred at 3:25 p.m. Sunday.

Tourist Treated

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Delta Airlines jumbo jet ran into severe turbulence south of Richmond, Va. and 22 people received medical treatment after it landed in Philadelphia. The L-1011 TriStar carrying 106 passengers and a crew of 10 from Houston on Sunday was not damaged and the landing was routine, according to a media representative for Delta.

PETER SARACENO SMILES AS HE WALKS DOWN AISLE
Linda Frachalla, Now His Bride, Still by His Side

Pair Married Walk to Altar Triumphant

CHICAGO (AP) — Peter Saraceno concentrated on one step, then the next, as he walked haltingly down the aisle at Our Lady of Pompeii Church. Linda Frachalla, his bride, who brought him back to life from a 3½-month coma, walked beside him, her arm linked in his.

His hands shaking slightly, Peter flashed a wide smile Sunday when he reached the end of the aisle and was helped into a waiting limousine.

"Chicago is my kind of town," he said when friends and neighbors gathered in the old Italian neighborhood broke into rousing applause.

Peter and Linda, both in their 20s, had planned to be married after he left the Marines in 1976. Then came the car crash.

Doctors at Westlake Hospital had pronounced Peter dead on arrival — until one groped for a pulse one last time and finally felt something.

"THREE OR FOUR TIMES they told us he had just a few hours left," said his mother, Louise Saraceno.

"But I didn't believe it and neither did Linda. Every night Linda was at his side, talking to him just as if it was any other night, as if they were on a date, as if nothing had happened."

On holidays at the hospital, Linda would decorate Peter's room. She told about her New Year's celebration.

"At midnight, I put a hat on him and I blew horns and told him the New Year was here. The nurses thought I was crazy, but I figured Peter could hear me," Linda said.

SHE REFUSED TO GIVE UP, even though doctors told her to forget about Peter, to go and have some fun because he never would be the same, never would walk again or talk again.

But finally he opened his eyes, and though he could not talk or even move a finger, "his eyes followed Linda around the room," a relative said.

Linda quit her job and took special training to care for Peter. When he was allowed to go home, she moved in with his widowed mother to give him round-the-clock attention.

With her savings, Linda had an outdoor swimming pool installed so he could exercise his legs and work at physical therapy.

"I'VE HAD TO LEARN A lot since the accident," Peter said. "I had to learn everything over again — how to eat and chew and drink and even tie my shoes. I kept trying, and tried 'tilt hurt — 'cause of Linda."

Today, though his speech is still garbled, he can talk, he can shake hands and, with the help of an aluminum walker, he can walk.

Peter had worked hard on his speech and last year spoke to Linda's father. "Mr. Frachalla," he said, "I'd like permission to marry your daughter."

"Peter," Jim Frachalla answered, "when you can walk down that aisle, she's all yours."

After one year of practice, Peter and Linda finally made it.

Cleaner Air Due In County

Cleaner air was predicted for today and Tuesday following heavy layers of smog that blanketed many parts of Orange County from Friday through the weekend, South Coast Air Quality Management District officials said today.

Generally smog free Costa Mesa had the worst air in the county Saturday as thousands of cars crept towards the sands of Newport Beach along the Costa Mesa Freeway (Route 55), officials said.

However, cooler marine breezes were expected to break the thick layer of unhealthy air and push the smog inland, air quality spokesmen said.

The first second-stage ozone alerts of the year were called Friday for parts of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Although the alerts were not called in Orange County, smog exceeded normal levels. Factories such as the Southern California Edison Company plant in Huntington Beach were required to use natural gas and other low-sulfur fuels to reduce emissions by 20 percent.

Second-stage smog alerts are announced when ozone, which is formed by the chemical changes in nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons, reaches about three and a half times the normal concentration.

Guards Save Visitor in Huntington

A Pico Rivera youth who was plucked from a rip current off Huntington State Beach Sunday remained hospitalized today following his dramatic sea rescue.

David Hathaway, 20, was delivered to the Orange County Harbor Department dock in Newport Beach by the Huntington State Beach Lifeguard Department rescue boat Surf Watch.

The vessel sped at up to 30 knots en route, with a brief and unusual stopover at the Newport Pier, where Newport Beach Fire Department paramedics Don Gray and Mike Miller leaped aboard.

Authorities said Hathaway was in such serious condition it was necessary to get sophisticated medical care immediately.

Hathaway was listed in fair condition today at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, where he was taken by ambulance upon arrival at the Harbor Department dock.

State Beach lifeguards said Hathaway became trapped in a rip current about 3 p.m. and was carried about 75 yards offshore before being rescued by the boat crew.

Viejo Cyclist, 23, Hits Tree, Killed

A motorcyclist who was killed in Mission Viejo late Saturday night was identified today as William J. Hoffman, 23, of Long Beach.

Hoffman was fatally injured at 11:40 p.m. near Crown Valley and Marguerite Parkways when his motorcycle went out of control and crashed into a palm tree.

STAN AND HELEN EMERY FIND HOME SWEET HOME ABOARD BOAT IN DANA POINT
With Less Than $5 a Year in Taxes, They've Found a Way to Beat the System

Good Boat to Be In Dana Harbor Folks Pay $5 Property Tax

By ANNE COOPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

You say you're one of those homeowners who's celebrating a Proposition 13 property tax reduction?

Then meet Stan and Helen Emery of Dana Point, who said their annual property tax bill for the past 10 years has come in at less than $5.

The Emerys live on a boat, anchored in the Dana West Marina.

Their $4.84 tax bill this year takes into account the homeowners' exemption to which Emery said they are entitled because they live on their boat.

"We're not sure we want to publicize how low our taxes are," said Mrs. Emery. "We're afraid the government will find a way to raise them."

The couple's other housing expenses are not bad either, especially for high priced Orange County. Emery said he and his wife, owners of a San Clemente health food store pay $132 a month to anchor their boat in slip 105.

With their 30-foot cabin cruiser paid for, the Emerys' only other housing expense comes every three years or so, when they pay about $200 to have the boat hauled out of the water for an inspection and painting of the bottom.

But before you sell your house to buy a boat to live on, better start looking for a berth for your new home. If you sign up now for a slip where the Emerys live, you will probably have to wait at least five years, they said.

Only five percent of the 1,000 slips in the marina can be occupied by people who live on their boats, according to county regulations established to protect the public's right to recreation at the county-owned harbor.

The Emerys made their move to a sea life 10 years ago, when their daughter was married and they found themselves alone, rattling around a Costa Mesa home, which had suddenly grown too big.

They spent five years anchored at the Lido Yacht Anchorage in Newport Beach, before "moving" to Dana Point, where they anchored two years in the east basin before switching to their present location in the west basin.

"Newport was crowded and dirty compared to the Dana Marina," said Mrs. Emery. "You would never consider slipping off your boat there for a swim, as we do here — the water was too dirty."

Deeply suntanned from their life at sea, the couple said they feel as if they have been on vacation for the past 10 years.

"Of course, it's not the life for everybody," said Mrs. Emery. "You have to be able to accept the bad with the good."

Among inconveniences of a shipboard life are fetching ice two or three times a week for the tiny galley icebox, never finding enough space to hang clothes and having to walk to the marina's land-locked "head" every morning for a shower, the Emerys said.

"And we've never been very successful with television on board," said Mrs. Emery. "But we find plenty to do. Whenever the water is right and the fish count is good, we go out fishing."

On a tour of the boat, Mrs. Emery said she will never enjoy making up the bunk, which is tucked under the bow.

"If you have never made a bed on your hands and knees, crawling over it and messing it up as fast as you straighten it out, you don't know how frustrating it can be," she said.

"But for us it's all worthwhile," she said, "for that constant holiday feeling. And we can't complain about our taxes."

Postal Emergency Measures Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal troops might be called in to sort mail. Some forms of mail temporarily could be forbidden. Deliveries might be stopped or cut back.

In addition, millions of retired people might have to pick up Social Security checks that normally come to their door.

These are some of the contingency plans federal officials have ready in case the U.S. Postal Service and three postal unions cannot agree on a new contract this week and a mail strike follows.

The current pact expires at midnight Thursday.

Despite lengthy bargaining sessions over the weekend, the Postal Service and the three unions involved in the talks remained far apart on major issues.

Federal mediators reported late Sunday that progress had been made on some differences but that all the major issues including wages remain unresolved.

While national union leaders have refused publicly to discuss possible strike actions, officials of some militant East Coast unions have threatened a repeat of the scattered strikes that followed bargainers' failure in 1970 to reach agreement on a contract.

Laguna Businessmen

Sparks Return Flayed

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Several Laguna Beach businessmen, seeking the ouster of Police Chief Jon Sparks, were called in to meet with new City Manager Fred Solomon today at city hall.

They left an hour later, with one of the businessmen saying he was disappointed with Solomon's decision to retain the police chief, suspended earlier this month after a bar fight in which Sparks allegedly punched a fellow bar patron in the face.

"I think the wrong decision has been made in regard to Sparks' reinstatement as chief," said an angry Joel Snyder, operator of Snyder's Cleaners in Laguna Beach.

The 33-year-old businessman, whose brother is a Laguna Beach police officer, said he began last Friday making calls to gather support for a petition drive calling for the resignation of Chief Sparks.

City Manager Solomon called for the meeting with Snyder and seven other local businessmen today, apparently after hearing of the group's plan to seek public support for Sparks' resignation.

Solomon could not be reached for comment, but Snyder said the city manager outlined the reasons for his decision in the hour-long meeting.

"I'm damn well mad," Snyder said after the meeting. "It's being handled from a political, administrative point of view, and it certainly doesn't reflect the feeling of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association, or the majority of residents and businessmen in this city."

Snyder, who has operated the cleaners on Gleneyre Street for the past 17 years, said he has nothing personal against Chief Sparks.

"But this thing is tearing the community apart and it won't end until he resigns," Snyder said.

Snyder said he did not know how the petition drive is going, but said he expects to hand in the signatures to the City Council Thursday night.

The petition reads in part, "We the residents and merchants of Laguna Beach are in full support of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association in urging that Jon J. Sparks resign from his position as Chief of Police in the best interest of our community."

The police association last week wrote a letter to Sparks urging that he step down.

"What really burns me up," Snyder said, "is that the city manager is setting a double standard. If the people in Sparks' department had pulled something like this (the bar fight) they would have been fired."

"The man has no credibility or respect from his own department."

When asked about a previous petition drive in support of the then-suspended police chief, Snyder said he did not feel the petition "reflected the feeling of the broad majority of Laguna Beach citizens."

More than 1,500 signatures were obtained in the previous petition drive, headed by Laguna Beach realtor Jay Murley. That petition lauded Sparks' past efforts as chief, and called for his reinstatement.

Was It Wrong Way?

ONCE UPON A TIME... Forty years ago today, a cocky little Irishman climbed into his aging, 1929 model Curtiss-Robin monoplane and took off from New York in what was ballyhooed as a non-stop transcontinental flight to Long Beach.

In 1938, that was the kind of a Depression-era stunt that drew attention from newspaper people wearied of reporting about soup kitchens and unemployment lines.

The weather was sticky when Corrigan jumped in his little plane in New York. There was heavy overcast and fog.

Corrigan never made it out here to Long Beach.

Twenty-eight hours and 10 minutes after he left New York, aviator Douglas Corrigan landed in Dublin, Ireland.

CORRIGAN

TO BAFFLED IRISH authorities, Corrigan asked if he were in Los Angeles. Informed that he'd just flown the Atlantic to the Emerald Isle, Corrigan replied, "Well now, I must have flown the wrong way."

Corrigan had just come up with his own nickname that has followed him the rest of his life — Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan.

News of his escapade reached the United States and the Depression-weary country went wild. At last they had a hero to take their minds off the soup lines. Something to cheer about. Corrigan got a ticker tape parade in New York.

Had Corrigan actually made this horrendous navigational mistake? Had he really flown the wrong way?

Well, it was true that before his announcement that he'd fly from New York to Long Beach, federal aviation authorities had denied him permission to fly the Atlantic. Corrigan had wanted to duplicate Charles Lindbergh's solo flight.

OVER THE YEARS, however, Corrigan stuck to his story. He claimed that if you got turned around 180 degrees on a supposed flight to Long Beach, you would indeed end up in Dublin, Ireland.

He explained his compass wasn't like the precision instruments of today. In an interview a few years back, he said, "I guess I followed the wrong end of the needle. I think I made a 180-degree mistake."

In that same interview with a Daily Pilot reporter, he came as close as he ever has to suggesting Wrong Way might have actually been the intended way. Corrigan quipped, "I must have been lost... what other kind of story could I use after all those government fellows denied me permission to cross the Atlantic?"

Corrigan was 31 when he made his famed reverse flight. He was such a national hero that the only punishment he got was that authorities lifted his pilot's license for five days and made him bring his little monoplane home by steamer.

DOUGLAS CORRIGAN IS 71 now and lives quietly out of the limelight at his home of 29 years on North Flower Street in Santa Ana. Tragedy has dogged him in later life. He lost his wife of 27 years back in 1966. Then in March of 1972, his youngest son, Roy, died when his airplane crashed on Catalina Island. He was just 22.

Wrong Way Corrigan is almost reclusive now. He has refused interviews on the anniversary of the flight when he was 6,100 miles off course. His famous plane is reportedly still locked up in his Flower Street garage.

But there will be no Irish celebration there today.

Egypt Offers New Peace Bid

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt has made new peace proposals to Israel, but Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says they will have no effect on his meeting in Britain with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel.

"As far as I can judge, they are not relevant to the London conference," Dayan said as he left for the two-day meeting.

Observers took this to mean that the proposals dealt with the return of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt and not with the deadlock over the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the future of Palestinians there and in the Gaza Strip.

UNATTRIBUTED REPORTS in Israeli newspapers Sunday said Sadat asked Israel to propose a new border for the occupied West Bank, an indication that Egypt would agree to Israel's retaining some of the territory. And the Jerusalem Post, which interviewed Sadat in Austria, said he "clearly indicated" Egypt would agree to "a strategic military presence remaining in the West Bank after a peace agreement."

But the newspaper Haaretz reported today that Sadat proposed Israel return half of the Egyptian territory it still occupies in the Sinai Desert at once as a demonstration of its sincerity in seeking a peace agreement.

SADAT MADE HIS proposal to Defense Minister Ezer Weisman when they met in Austria last week and the Israeli Cabinet took them up at its weekly meeting Sunday. But the cabinet took no action, announcing they would be discussed again next Sunday, "at which time they will be decided upon." The talks Tuesday and Wednesday in Britain, which Secretary of State Cyrus Vance also plans to attend, will determine whether negotiations will continue, probably in the Sinai Desert town of Al Arish.

Seeking Damages

John and Doris Del Zio of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. are seeking $1.5 million from Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York for "maliciously and arbitrarily" destroying a laboratory-fertilized embryo in 1973, just three days before it was to be implanted in Mrs. Del Zio's womb.

Study Knocks Carter Policy On Arms Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is finding its desire to establish a highly restrictive overseas arms-sale policy blocked by the realities of international affairs, a Brookings Institution study says.

The private research group released a study Sunday branding Carter's arms sales performance as "questionable" and saying it was doubtful his record would be much different from the Ford administration's because of a similar interpretation of U.S. interest.

THE MILDLY CRITICAL report notes that within a few months after President Carter said in May 1977 that U.S. arms transfers would be "an exceptional foreign policy instrument," the administration had sent to Congress 45 requests to authorize arms sales totaling $4.1 billion.

Less than a tenth of the sales were earmarked for countries not subject to Carter's policy of restraint: the NATO countries, Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

Egypt Bus Toll at 56

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A crowded city bus swerved to avoid a car on a bridge across the Nile River today and plunged over the side, killing at least 56 passengers and injuring 11 others, police said.

The driver of the bus leaped from the vehicle before it crashed through a guard rail and sank in about 25 feet of water, a police spokesman said.

"The reason so many died was because the water was deep and the passengers couldn't get out of the bus," he said.

Police said the legal capacity of the bus was 40 but the total number on it was 70.

"We are searching the river for more bodies," said the spokesman.

Prisoner Exchange Detailed by Rabbi

NEW YORK (AP) — An American rabbi, involved in a recent East-West prisoner exchange, says he has been taking part in negotiations to swap Anatoly Shcharansky for two Russian U.N. employees arrested on spy charges in New Jersey.

Rabbi Ronald Greenwald said Sunday night that the negotiations began several months ago and that he met with East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel on Tuesday in Europe to discuss a possible deal for Shcharansky.

THE SOVIET DISSIDENT was convicted of treasonous espionage and anti-Soviet agitation Friday and sentenced to 13 years at hard labor.

Greenwald also said he has had "limited" contact recently with the U.S. State Department on his negotiations and that he has been in contact with New York Congressman Benjamin Gilman.

Gilman, along with Greenwald, Vogel and the State Department, worked out a prisoner exchange in April involving Mozambique, East Germany and the United States. Vogel also played a key role in the 1962 swap of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

Greenwald would put no date on when he thought any deal might be reached, but he expressed optimism that one would be made.

"IT IS HARD TO SAY what Russia will want, but if there is someone in the Russian mind, as big as Shcharansky, he could be traded one for one," Greenwald said in a telephone interview from his home in Monsey, N.Y.

Mom Beaten, Locked Up; Son, 19, Held

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19-year-old Brooklyn man has been arrested for allegedly beating his mother and locking her in the bathroom.

Police said John Herron was arrested Sunday and charged with grand larceny, unlawful imprisonment and assault on his mother, Palmeri Herron, 42, Saturday afternoon.

HIS 17-YEAR-OLD brother, Brian, who also allegedly beat his mother, escaped arrest, police said.

The woman was battered on the face and head, according to police, who said she apparently had been locked in the bathroom since 11 a.m. Saturday.

Investigators said the brothers slugged their mother often, tore up her clothes and furniture, and threatened to throw her out a window of her sixth-story Flushing apartment.

In a first-stage alert, residents are urged to stay indoors if possible and to keep physical activity to a minimum. When a second-stage advisory is issued, businesses are required to implement emergency measures, including cutting back fuel consumption and encouraging employee carpools.

"It looks like it's going to start breaking," said National Weather Service meteorologist Don Boggs. He said today's temperature was expected to be even lower because a short-wave trough was weakening the upper-level high-pressure zone and allowing more cool, ocean air to move inland.

LNG Controversy

Panel Seeking Offshore Site

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Faced with a July 31 deadline for a decision on an application to build a liquefied natural gas terminal at Point Conception, the state Public Utilities Commission now confronts a report targeting the best site as one 12 miles offshore from Ventura.

A draft report issued by the California Coastal Commission said the offshore site is superior to the mainland site being eyed by utilities for the terminal because it would be unbothered by earthquake tremors, is further from populated areas and would have less impact on the environment.

THE COMMISSION'S selection of the offshore site was controversial because state law requires California's first LNG terminal to be on the mainland. But the PUC staff has warned the Point Conception site may not be approvable because of earthquake faults.

The commission released its report Saturday, saying it wanted to generate public comment before the PUC ruling on Point Conception.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Gas Co., which is involved in the Point Conception project, criticized the commission for selecting an offshore site. And, it said, "One cannot assume that putting an LNG terminal offshore will eliminate serious opposition to it, such as the possibility of lawsuits."

Despite its benefits, the Ventura Flats site chosen by the Commission would still require special safety measures, the report said. It warned of risks to public safety from a large unconfined oil spill "even eight miles from shore," but said the Ventura site 12 miles offshore would provide "a substantial safety zone."

AN OFFSHORE TERMINAL would receive LNG from tankers, vaporize it back into natural gas and pipe the gas to shore through underwater pipelines that would connect with the main gas distribution network for California.

The cost of an offshore terminal was estimated as about equal to a mainland terminal — about $400 million to $500 million.

Federal legislation pending before Congress would have to be approved before the terminal could be built on the Ventura offshore site, the report said, adding that passage seems likely.

PUBLIC HEARINGS on the report will be held Aug. 15-16 in Los Angeles, with workshops at Ventura, Los Angeles and San Clemente.

Ventura is a coastal city about 75 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

Funds to Buy Nixon House?

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon likes the idea — a $44,000 donation toward restoring his birthplace in Yorba Linda.

But a federal judge still holds the key to unlock the funds collected by Nixon loyalists during the height of the Watergate controversy.

CASSIUS DALY JR. and Nicholas Castronova, both of Leonia, have been looking for the past four years for ways to spend the leftover money which is earning interest in a bank. Their Committee to Save the President raised about $100,000 from more than 3,000 staunch Nixon supporters during the Watergate controversy.

The rest of the money was used to finance pro-Nixon projects such as mailings and rallies before the former president resigned Aug. 9, 1974.

AFTER MEETING WITH Nixon in May, Daly said they decided to donate the money to the Nixon Birthplace Foundation, which is collecting money to buy the house in Yorba Linda where Nixon was born.

The foundation plans to restore the home as a museum and library. "It's been done for every past president — his birthplace has been a national shrine," said Daly.

"WE DISCUSSED FORMING a chair for diplomatic study at a university, such as Harvard or Georgetown," Castronova said. "Nixon thought it was a worthwhile idea, but we felt the schools had too many radicals in them. So we suggested the Nixon library."

Nude, Strangled

Girl, 9, Found Dead

SANTA FE SPRINGS (AP) — The weekend search for a 9-year-old Santa Fe Springs girl ended when her nude, strangled body was found by picnickers in a recreational area several miles from where she was last seen.

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies said a coroner's autopsy performed Sunday on the body of Cheryl Kristy Gutierrez, found earlier in the day showed she had been sexually molested.

A 30-member search team and a helicopter participated in the search for the girl, who was reported missing Friday after she walked off from the swimming pool at Santa Fe Springs High School, about 10 miles southeast of Los Angeles, after an argument with her 11-year-old sister, Sylvia.

Seniors Protest Rent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hundreds of elderly persons crowded into a senior citizens center over the weekend to protest post-Proposition 13 rent increases of up to $150 a month. (Related story, Page C3).

"The renter is the one class of citizen who had absolutely nothing to gain by the passage of Proposition 13," City Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky told the angry crowd at the Fairfax Senior Citizens Center Sunday.

One woman, Mrs. Jack Polotnik, broke into tears as she told of receiving notice that her rent will increase from $135 to $285 a month in August.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California, its purse reduced by Proposition 13, will allow the federal government to operate three state redwood parks for 25 years starting this fall, state park officials say.

The state expects to save more than $500,000 a year that it would have spent to run Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park, Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park and Del Norte Coast Redwoods State Park.

'Free Patty' Push Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A committee that claims Patricia Hearst was "incorrectly jailed" says they've started a campaign to persuade President Carter to free the newspaper heiress from federal prison.

State Controls Reaching Down

One of arguments against Prop. 13 came as a warning that its drastic reduction of local property tax revenue would force the state to take over financing of many local programs — and that state money doesn't come without controls.

The prediction is coming true all too soon. Local agencies are rapidly finding out that the $5 billion state "bail-out" bill was entwined in strings.

Cities and counties with contracts guaranteeing employees specific annual cost-of-living pay increases have learned they will not qualify for state assistance unless they abrogate the contracts by cancelling the raises, thereby exposing themselves to legal challenges.

And those that have frugally set aside substantial reserve funds find they too will not qualify unless they hastily spend much of the reserve. The bail-out is contingent upon a reserve of no more than 5 percent of a total budget.

These strings already have persuaded several cities to reject the state aid. In Orange County these include Orange and Garden Grove, with Costa Mesa about to follow suit. Statewide some 20 to 30 cities are expected to reject the relief money and to join in a class action suit charging the state has no legal authority to force them to abrogate contracts or to dictate how their reserves are to be used.

School districts that chose to cancel summer school and adult education classes in order to stay afloat financially now find they'll get no state money unless they reinstate classes for high school graduation credits, English for foreigners and programs for the handicapped.

As predicted, the fact that the state surplus was accumulated from our income tax money doesn't mean we'll get it back without being told how we may, or may not use it.

And, next year, when more local governments and school districts will have depleted any surpluses, and inflation takes another bite, local control stands to be further eroded away.

A Poor Ambassador

Once again U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young has followed a mouthful of outrageous statements by complaining that his true meaning was misunderstood.

Perhaps he didn't mean that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in the United States, or that the government of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith may have been responsible for the massacre of 13 British missionaries.

Unfortunately that's what he said. And those are the statements the Soviet news agency Tass seized upon as "noteworthy since they come from a member of the Cabinet and therefore signify official admission that political persecution is widespread in the United States."

On the basis of his previous verbal catastrophes, Ambassador Young should by now have learned to control his tongue.

That he does not could lead one to suspect, at worst, that he does not choose to support the government he has been appointed to represent, or, at best, that he suffers from an incurable case of tunnel vision.

In either case, the United States would be better off with some other representation on the world platform.

Federal 'Economy'

Californians who are brooding about government extravagance at the state and local level will be less than amused to learn that Congress, for the first time, will be spending more than $1 billion on its own branch of government this year.

That's double the amount spent to keep Capitol Hill in business five years ago and 15 times the amount it cost 20 years ago.

The big bite is in congressional salaries and expenses. They average well over $500,000 per member per year.

On top of each lawmaker's salary of $57,500 plus retirement, health and life insurance, there's his allowance for a staff of up to 18 persons at a maximum individual salary of $47,500, maintenance of a Washington office plus rental of a district office, 33 free roundtrips home a year and mail to constituents.

The congressional budget also covers support of the Capitol Hill police force (two police officers for each of the 535 lawmakers) at $23 million a year and some 17,000 other assorted employees serving the Hill ("We've got people falling all over each other," said one economy-minded congressman.)

But Congress is not unaware of the need for tightening its collective belt. The House already has voted to ban free distribution of calendars and plants for office decoration and to try for a 5 percent overall cut in expenditures "not required by law."

Unfortunately there seems to be a law or regulation authorizing almost all of them.

Boyd / Gestures

By L.M. BOYD

What do you make of the fellow who repeatedly adjusts the tie when in the company of the opposite sex? He's sending an unconscious signal, according to those experts who like to read the significances of such gestures. What he's saying, they contend, is that the lady interests, intrigues, even excites him. Fascinating, if factual.

The original pumpernickel bread was so hard to digest it was said to create gas in the innards of Satan. And the word pumpernickel, in fact, comes from an early high German set of syllables that meant the Devil's gas, or something similar.

Q. "Where'd we get the word 'tycoon'?"

A. From the Orient. Japanese: "taikun" meaning shogun. Chinese: "t'ai kuan" meaning emperor.

Q. "What foreign city is most visited by U.S. travelers?"

A. Tijuana, Mexico. By far.

Egypt Sees Soviet Encirclement

CAIRO — A military map kept in a locked cabinet in the office of Gen. Abdel Ghany Gamasy, Egyptian defense minister, reveals more clearly than the words of politicians how far Soviet penetration of key African states has proceeded, which the U.S. plays by Marquess of Queensbury rules.

It shows that Soviet military advisers in Libya have doubled to 2,200 since Egypt gave Libya a swift blow last year in a bloody border dispute. It shows that these Soviet advisers are training Libyan troops down to the company level, with three to five "technicians" assigned each battalion.

Egypt today has little to fear from oil-rich but relatively powerless Libya, headed by the radical pro-Soviet leader, Col. Moammar Khadafy. But the legends on Gen. Gamasy's colored map point to this conclusion: while the U.S. flinches from any use of superpower power, the Soviet Union is penetrating key African countries with no such scruples, using money, propaganda, dirty tricks, guns and Cuba.

EGYPT is a principal target. "They want to get even with President Sadat," Gamasy said, for Sadat's expulsion of Soviet influence here in 1972.

Speaking with diplomatic restraint, Boutros Ghaly, Sadat's chief African specialist, expressed the same point differently. He told us that major African states south of Egypt, where for centuries Egypt has blocked potential enemies to protect its Nile River lifeline, fear that the U.S. has "drawn a Korean-type defense line" excluding Africa. Another high Egyptian official said that "the cold war has moved to Africa, and any idea that the continent can be ruled off bounds in the U.S. Soviet competition is an illusion."

Sadat was specific: Soviet pressure in Ethiopia, Chad, Sudan and Libya, with an eastern anchor in South Yemen at the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula, is "the first belt" of Soviet influence across Africa.

The "second belt" is targeted across southern Africa, from Angola to Mozambique. Neither belt has been buckled. In the north, for example, France is successfully contesting the Soviets in Chad, Sudan. Egypt's southern neighbor and close ally, has turned back Soviet ef-orts to exploit cultural, religious and racial differences between the Arab north and the black south. But the new Soviet presence in Ethiopia is a mounting threat to Sudan — and thus to Egypt.

THE PROBLEM for Sadat is the future, as the Soviet Union pushes its aggressive role and the U.S. keeps insisting that Africa is no place for East-West confrontation. During Vice President Mondale's brief stop in Alexandria to see Sadat, the Egyptian president warned that Moscow's free hand in Africa was shredding confidence in the U.S. and creating Soviet strong points throughout the continent for future opportunities.

Sadat's worry seems reasonable. Ever since he ordered 15,000 or more Soviet advisers out of Egypt, cut dependence on the Kremlin and edged toward the U.S., Moscow has threatened retaliation. Sadat claims that a dressing-down of then-Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow two years ago amounted to an "ultimatum."

He described this ultimatum to us as follows: "Tell Sadat we shall continue to have our plans in Africa and he will meet the consequences of trying to oppose us there."

The "first belt" across north-central Africa, if completed, would threaten Egypt with encirclement, yet neither Egypt nor any other anti-Soviet country can begin to muster adequate resources in response.

IN FACT, however, Sadat knows that a U.S. counterstrategy of the kind envisioned by him is not today serious discussion in Washington. The fashionable talk among State Department political appointees is that, if given enough rope, the Russians will hang themselves in Africa.

Compounding Sadat's concern is the predictable turn to new anti-U.S. radicalism throughout the Arab world and across north Africa if the U.S. fails to win Israel's acceptance of a Mideast peace plan. "If the U.S. now shows that Israel can deafen its ears to the president of the U.S.," one official told us, "the future may belong to Moscow in this part of the world."

In short, evidence that the U.S. could not even deliver Israel for a Mideast settlement with the Arabs would reinforce skepticism here over Washington's dubious response to Soviet activism in Africa. The two — Middle East and Africa — are halves of the same whole, a political fact that Jimmy Carter should understand.

'Small' Landlords Aren't Getting Rich

To the Editor:

If it weren't sad it would be funny to see Senator Cranston trying to win brownie points with mobilehome owners by announcing his efforts to get them eligible for rent subsidy programs. He doesn't tell them it takes a year to get benefits. And the Republican Congressmen aren't doing anything to correct the situation either!

Now, re Prop 13. One of many who may take a beating from Prop 13 is the unselfish, "small" landlord who rents for low rates, doesn't have much money, and is a senior citizen or almost.

WE'RE SORRY for victims of rent-gouging landlords, but we hear little mention of the fact that some decent landlords are almost on senior citizen "fixed incomes."

So now, those of us who have small, plain but well kept apartments — maybe two to four units — are being told to refund rent, set rents back to June, etc.

We don't know how much our taxes will be reduced — if at all — and rent control really scares us, because we're barely making it.

Big business, and owners of huge rental groups, probably gain much by Prop. 13, but the handicapped, the retarded, the working mother wanting child care centers, senior citizens needing daily visits to "centers" to keep out of so-called "convalescent hospitals" because they can't be alone all the time, and many other unfortunates, will be victims of irresponsible Prop 13.

Hard Decisions

To the Editor:

On July 1, Prop. 13 became law, pending the outcome of several lawsuits challenging its constitutionality. Ten days after it became law, the governor is criticizing landlords for not passing along their profits.

I am curious to know where the landlords got all this money in ten days. It has also been said that the government is going to reap a big windfall from Prop. 13. Won't that cut the landlords' profit?

THE TAXES aren't due until way up in the fall. If Prop. 13 is found to be unconstitutional before that, the landlords may never receive anything from Prop. 13.

We are being threatened with a sewer charge. It's possible that if the politicians think up enough charges, Prop. 13 may have no meaning.

What worries me is, my mother rents a house from me. I furnish the water and gas and charge her $25. Should I lower her rent now or wait till fall? These hard decisions are too much for us landlords.

JAMES W. BOLDING

To the Editor:

We are very much concerned about the fate of the remaining veterans of World War I. 1978 is the 25th anniversary of the Veterans of World War I U.S.A. Inc. These veterans have continuously year after year vigorously endeavored to persuade our Washington government to provide via legislation an adequate pension for our membership and survivors.

THE last effort was contained in H.R. 9000. Unfortunately and pathetically this bill was superseded by H.R. 10173 which fails miserably to meet our government's obligation to World War I veterans, and it appears according to the record, none of the living veterans will receive a pension.

It has been said, "Time takes care of everything." Time is certainly on government's side in this instance. Sixty years since the end of World War I and no pension.

If our government cannot afford to take care of the World War I veterans, then the lavish living by our government should end including monetary and other methods of foreign aid to foreign countries, some communist and/or dictator governed.

Now is the time for Washington to act and make us love our government like we should. The original H.R. 9000 bill which provides for a reasonable pension of $150 per month without deteriorating amendments should be reintroduced.

It's Hard to Watch a Loved One Growing Old

You're a year older, dear America, a year fatter, a year more blowzy, a year more jaded. But, what the hell, so am I.

We grow old, America; we grow old, you and I. I see you now sprawled on the sofa, your hair in curlers, watching daytime television. In the evening you drink too much and fall asleep in your chair, leaving the lights ablaze. Don't you know you're running out of energy? Don't you know the lights will soon grow dim?

"DON'T NAG," you say, stifling a yawn. "Everything will work out somehow. It always does you know."

Any way, you'd rather talk about real estate values or love or high prices. Money. You love to talk these days about money. Ye, the place is such a mess. A flick of the duster is all you give it. That's not enough.

"I know, I know," you say with a shrug, "but what can I do?" And you sink back on your couch, fussing with the curlers in your hair.

We grow old, America — old and fat and careless and grasping and lazy. We grow old, you and I.

REMEMBER when we were young? How close we were. The Great Depression. Hard times, hard times. Oh, how we worked together to keep the wolf from the door. Together. Yes, we were together then, you and I.

And when the war came, THE War, you stepped out into the morning like a young girl in a white gossamer dress with stars shifting in your hair. How beautiful you were, how perfect! You were all that was good; they were all that was evil. How simple life was in those halcyon days.

How very young I loved you when we were young, you and I.

Remember the peaceful, prosperous times that followed? It was then that you first grew a trifle fat and began to throw your weight around. You became suspicious. You suspected everyone might be a Communist. I think you even suspected me. Nasty days.

YOU ALWAYS did have an irrational fear of communism. It was what swept you off into the fetid, pointless jungles of Vietnam. How I yelled at you: "You bloody fool!" I cried. "I know what I'm doing," you said contemptuously.

We were never further apart. I marched against you and cursed you and squished you. You would have vanquished me if you could. How bitterly we fought.

Yet we were alive, by God! — very much alive, you and I.

AND NOW Peace and prosperity ill become you, dear America. You grow old and fat and uncaring and a bit of a slovenly bore. I still love you. I love you the way a man loves a woman he's lived with and loved and hated all his life. It's an enduring love.

Yet I would almost wish you another crisis. For I wish I could see once again that beautiful girl in the white gossamer gown step forth into the morning with stars shining in her hair.

For I wish I could once again love you the way I loved you when we were young, dear America — when we were so very young, you and I.

Child Support Law: Equality for Divorced Dads

NEW YORK (AP) — Divorced fathers are collecting a dividend from the drive for women's equality: They have started to demand and get child support payments.

Consider Allan S. Carter, a New York City school teacher in his late 30s. His former wife, Carolyn R. Carter, also in her 30s, was a New York City school secretary until she remarried and moved to Texas.

THE FATHER HAD custody of their child, 7-year-old Kenneth.

Then, on July 25 of last year, a landmark ruling in New York

'Child support payments have been de-sexed.'

State appeals court gave Carter something else — $25 a week for child support from his former wife, even though she no longer works.

The ruling said, in effect, that her ability to work obligated her to help with the expense of raising her son.

SUCH A RULING would have been almost unheard of a few years ago. Divorce laws in most states had always placed the financial burden of child-rearing on the father, unless he was physically or otherwise disabled.

But today, an increasing number of divorced men with children are being granted child support from their ex wives. More and more, the important factor is which parent can best afford to pay for child-rearing, and less and less what sex that parent is.

Practically every state has adopted law changes in the past few years that make the financial support of children in divorce cases the responsibility of both parents, according to Dr. Doris Jonas Freed, chairman of the American Bar Association family law research committee.

AND MANY feminist groups aren't at all sorry to concede this gain to divorced men. They say it is a fair price for divorced women to pay for the freedom to pursue careers that divorced men have always had.

The trend is difficult to measure, because lawyers are reluctant to talk about the confidential terms of divorce settlements. Certainly, the great majority of divorce settlements still require men to pay the child support.

But divorce lawyers and other family court officials around the country assert the trend is there.

"IT'S A CLEAR movement, of recent origin, linked to the ERA (the proposed Equal Rights Amendment) and the whole process by which the former preference of women as the child's natural custodian has been held constitutionally unsound," says Joseph DuCanto, president of the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, based in Chicago.

"Child support payments have been de-sexed," says Dr. Freed.

"It's a phenomenon of the '70s but it's become increasingly true lately. I think this is definitely an outgrowth of so many more women in the workforce."

"IT'S NO LONGER a matter of sex, it's a matter of dollars," says Philip F. Solomon, a past president of the matrimonial lawyers academy.

Dr. Freed also says 37 states now make provisions for alimony to be awarded to either the man or the woman.

This seeming role reversal, in which divorced fathers want a larger part in child-raising, and career-minded women are increasingly willing to grant it, so far is most noticeable in urbanized states such as California, Illinois and New York.

THE FEDERAL government estimates there have been slightly more than one million divorces each year since 1975, and the number of children involved has been more than 1.1 million each year. Those figures are roughly double the levels of a decade earlier.

No one knows how many of those cases involved wives paying child support to the husband.

But in New York, for instance, following the Carter decision, there have been hundreds of cases in which men have won such claims from their divorced wives, according to Solomon.

A PSYCHOLOGIST for the Chicago conciliation service described in general terms a recent case in which the wife, a corporate attorney, had an income about three times that of the husband.

The man was granted custody of the couple's two young children and is getting child support payments from his former wife.

"It worked out very well because daddy played what is characteristically described as mommy in the household," the Chicago psychologist says.

"WE'RE FREQUENTLY seeing the whole business in divorced women of 'now I'm getting to do my thing,' and she is quite willing to give up the children."

The impetus for change in many states came when judges ruled old statutes unconstitutional, and not so much because advocates had lobbied in state legislatures. But feminist groups seeking the same career and family choices as divorced men did not oppose the changes.

And a growing array of "men's lib" organizations, claiming divorce laws put an unfair financial strain on men, supported the revisions.

SUCH GROUPS include Fathers United for Equal Rights, Male Equality Now, Inc., Men's Liberation, America's Society of Divorced Men, and the Committee for Fair Divorce & Alimony Laws.

"Men have begun to realize they can get custody of their children. I think the fact that the men's groups have been vocal has brought this along," she says.

And Susanne Duval of the Department of Health Education and Welfare's Office of Child Support Enforcement says, "Judges are awarding custody more and more to men. What follows is that women should have to help support the children. My own view as a feminist is that this is good."

'Enough!' He Says

MIAMI (AP) — Stuart Rado says he's had enough — enough to try to get others around the country to send that simple message to the White House.

Angered by what he considers waste in government and President Carter's failure to fulfill his promise to do something about it, Rado has started a one-man campaign to get people to mail postcards to Carter with one word — "enough" — written across the top.

The message refers to the money spent for government-funded research ranging from a $27,000 study to determine why inmates want to escape from prison to a $12,000 report on how alcohol causes aggression among sunfish.

Dial A Regulation

DEAR READERS: A "hot line to Washington" telephone linkage is available to Southern California residents who have questions about information published daily in the "Federal Register." This service is being offered by the U.S. General Services Administration through its Federal Information Center (FIC) in the Federal Building, 300 N. Los Angeles St.

The "Register" is a five-day-a-week publication which contains current presidential proclamations and executive orders, and federal regulations having general applicability and legal effect.

"Dial-a-Reg" services can be reached by phoning (213) 688-6694 for a day-in-advance synopsis of selected documents to be published in the "Register." The recorded message will be updated each working day.

Hot line telephone link-up between Los Angeles and Washington for FIC staffers also has been set up to provide answers to complex questions about regulations published in the federal "Register." Walk-in as well as phone service is being provided.

Cancelling C.O.D.?

DEAR PAT: C.O.D. the 30-day required delivery or option to cancel by the buyer apply to C.O.D. mail-order purchases as well as to merchandise that is paid for at the time the order is placed? I've heard you can't cancel C.O.D. orders which are delayed more than 30 days.

C.H., Costa Mesa
C.O.D. orders are not included in this Federal Trade Commission rule, but you already have the right to refuse merchandise sent, C.O.D. if an unreasonable amount of time has passed since you placed the order, and you are no longer interested in receiving the merchandise.

P.O. Boxes Tracked

DEAR PAT: Is there any way to get the street address of a business that uses a postal box number in its business address?

C.L., Costa Mesa
Yes. A 1973 postal bulletin instructs post office personnel to respond promptly by letter or phone to inquiries from persons requesting names, addresses and telephone numbers of box holders using a postal box number to do business with the public. When making such an inquiry, state the firm's name, its box number and the basic problem being experienced. If the box holder is no longer at the address listed when the box was rented, further inquiry will be undertaken through the U.S. Postal Service Regional Council in Washington, D.C., if requested.

I've Had Enough of Baseball--Knapp

From AP Dispatches
"I've had enough of baseball," pitcher Chris Knapp says of his decision to walk away from the California Angels — while the Angels are leading a pennant race, and he is second on the team with 10 victories.

"I will say that it isn't money. I just didn't like the way I was being treated," Knapp declared in an interview Sunday.

THE ANGELS SAY Knapp's agent, Alan Hendricks, told the team he thought Knapp was making a mistake, and Hendricks had tried to dissuade Knapp during a dinner meeting Saturday night.

The Angels have placed the tall righthander on the disqualified list, but if he doesn't come back to the squad by Aug. 1 he is out for the season.

The Angels, who lost to Detroit 4-0 Sunday, have a one-game margin over defending American League West Division champion Kansas City.

Knapp has a 10-6 record in his first year with the Angels. He was 12-7 as a rookie with the Chicago White Sox last year.

WHEN CONTACTED Sunday at his home in Mission Viejo, he indicated his dissatisfaction concerns the state of baseball in general, along with failure of the White Sox and Angels to communicate with him on the contract.

"I have my health. I have my life ahead of me. I'm going back to square one," Knapp said. "There were things that happened in Chicago, too. My relations with the Angels simply brought it to a head and served as a last straw."

A stalemate developed in the spring of this year with Knapp and his agent lowering their contract target from $100,000 to $70,000 for this season.

THE ANGELS REPORTEDLY offered $50,000, then unilaterally renewed Knapp for this season at $40,000. He earned somewhere between $22,000 and $27,000 with Chicago in 1977.

"It all comes down to money," California General Manager Buzzie Bavasi said Sunday. "If it isn't money, why was there such an urgency, an emphasis on the need to negotiate?"

Bavasi called the impasse with the 24-year-old pitcher "a sign of the times" that wouldn't have happened 20 years ago.

"YOU CAN'T OPERATE any business that was," Bavasi said. "We signed 39 of the 40 players on our winter roster. We must have been fair to some of them."

Angel Manager Jim Fregosi took down the nameplate on Knapp's locker at Anaheim Stadium Saturday, before a noon Sunday deadline for Knapp to report.

"I told him when he called Thursday that he was being foolish," Fregosi said of Knapp's decision. "That the players' association offered certain protection and all he had to do was get a second year in and he could then go to arbitration."

Fregosi said that if it's the baseball system he doesn't like, Knapp "shouldn't even think about coming back because the system isn't going to change."

Caneira Pitches Tonight

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A major leaguer less than 24 hours, John Caneira is on center stage tonight as he takes the mound against the Detroit Tigers at Anaheim Stadium.

Caneira is the California Angels' replacement for Chris Knapp, an angry young pitcher who deserted the club Thursday over a contract dispute. Knapp's future as a major leaguer now appears bleak (See related story).

Caneira, a 25-year-old called up from Salt Lake City (where he was 8-4 with a 3.73 ERA), will be trying to get the Angels back on beam after a 4-0 loss to Detroit Sunday before a crowd of 22,920 ($21,447 paid) at Anaheim.

ONE PLAYER who appears on the team is Angels pitcher Dave Frost, who drew the loss Sunday but has nonetheless been impressive in his four decisions this year.

Frost's 2-2 record is deceptive because both his losses came in games in which the Angels were shut out.

"I can't do anything about our run production. I'm just trying to do the best I can while I'm out there," Frost said. "As for sticking with the club now, it's not my decision. But I sure hope I have."

In Swim Meet MV's Goodell, Vassallo Star

By ERNIE CASTILLO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Like most swim meets, there was a monopoly on the gold medals at the Mission Viejo Championships that concluded a three-day run Sunday.

Though the sixth annual event drew nearly 800 entries, eight swimmers accounted for 19 of the 24 individual victories.

Two members of that elite group hail from the Mission Viejo Nadadores, the host club that won nine of the 30 events overall, including all three women's relays.

BRIAN GOODELL, a member of the Nadadores since he was nine, captured his third title Sunday by taking the 1,500-meter freestyle in 15:42.60. That shattered the meet record of 15:49.54 he set a year ago though it was far off the world record of 15:02.40 he set in 1976.

Jesse Vassallo, a native of Puerto Rico who has been with the Nadadores for three years, won his second event of the meet Sunday by taking a close 200 backstroke race in 2:06.59.

Goodell won the 200 free Saturday and the 400 free Friday while Vassallo captured the 400 individual medley Saturday.

LINDA JEZEK of Santa Clara was one of three women to earn a triple when she took the 200 back in 2:17.30. Noel Morar of Santa Clara won the 200 breast in 2:39.82 and Jane Abraham of Menlo Park took the 100 free in 57.68 to score doubles.

Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside failed in her bid to become the meet's only quadruple ple winner when she placed third in the 100 free.

There was one more double winner, Shigehiro Takahashi of Japan, who took the 200 breast in 2:20.57 and led his countrymen to another sweep of the breast. Takahashi had led a 1-2-3 Japan sweep in the 100 breast a day earlier.

JENNIFER HOOKER gave the Nadadores their only victory in an individual women's event when she took the 1,500 free in 16:45.36 ahead of teammate Dianne Griebel. Hooker swam anchor leg on the 400 free relay team that set a meet record of 3:56.95, teaming with Kelley See GOODELL, Page B2

Dodgers Out of Slump?

LA Gets Split Behind Big Plays

CHICAGO (AP) The Los Angeles Dodgers are in a serious hitting slump, so much that every hit loomed as the "Big One" Sunday when they defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-3 after having dropped the first game of a doubleheader 3-2.

"We scored only two runs in three games in St. Louis since the All-star break so we have to be in a slump," said Manager Tom Lasorda. "But we'll come out of it, we're too good a hitting club. All we have to do is get our hitting back."

MIKE KRUKOW, aided by Bruce Sutter, did a job on the Wednesday Los Angeles at Pittsburgh 4:30 p.m.

Dodgers in the first game as catcher Dave Rader drove in all three runs for the Cubs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly.

Krukow posted his fourth straight victory since coming up from Wichita late in June, but got into trouble when Davey Lopes doubled to open the eighth.

Sutter came on and retired six batters in a row, three on strikeouts, to earn his 15th save.

"SUTTER? He's tough," said Lasorda. "Just a helluva pitcher."

The Dodgers didn't have that kind of trouble in the second game when they jumped on Ray Burris for two runs in the first inning on a double by Reggie Smith, a triple by Steve Garvey and a single by Dusty Baker.

Baker hit his seventh home run in the third inning for a "big run," according to Lasorda, and after the Cubs had cut the lead to 3-2, pitcher Burt Hooton singled across what Hooton considered "a key hit, a turning point because the extra run at that time helped turn things around."

AS IT WAS, it turned out to be the winning run which helped Hooton boost his record to 9-7. He needed ninth-inning help from Lance Rautzhan to put down a Cub uprising which netted a run.

Another key play, according to Hooton, was Smith's great throw from right field on Steve Ontiveros' deep fly to double up Bobby Murcer, who tried to go from first to second after the catch in the sixth inning.

"Yes, I was surprised he tried it," said Smith, who has the reputation of a strong arm. "I wouldn't have tried it under the same circumstances."

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — It has taken women years to gain access to the locker rooms of men's professional teams, but one female soccer reporter in the Minneapolis area wasn't so happy to be admitted Saturday night.

Mary Buiuid, 30, was covering the Tulsa-Minnesota North American Soccer League contest at Metropolitan Stadium for Soccer America magazine.

After a warning by the Roughnecks' public relations man, she was allowed into the Tulsa locker room to talk with the coach. Few players bothered to cover up, however, and at least two made obscene sexual gestures

American League umpire Alan Clark works on his bubble blowing technique as he watches the action from first base during Sunday's Boston-Minnesota game.

No Cover Up for Woman Scribe

BUIUID CALLED the incidents "childish" and said she will write letters to the Tulsa management and NASL officials to complain about the players' attitudes.

Buiuid said she was busy talking to Coach Alex Skotarek and did not see the gestures. But she said she was "steaming mad" when informed of the incidents by another reporter.

"What bothers me the most is not knowing what was going on around me," she said. "I come from a big family and it doesn't bother me to see people without their clothes. But this upsets me."

"I WILL WRITE a personal letter to the president of the club and another to the league so they are aware of the problem. I think this kind of attitude must be partly encouraged by the management."

Tulsa General Manager Noel Lemon said he was unaware of the gestures.

"After that great win over Minnesota, I think the boys may have been a little excited. I thought most of them covered up but maybe a few were just coming out of the shower. I'll speak to the team."

TULSA EDGED Minnesota 1-0 to assume first place in the Central Division of the National Conference.

The players involved in the locker room incident were un-identified.

Many members of the team simply sat on their chairs with a towel draped across their midsection. One, however, was standing in front of a mirror wearing only a shirt. After Buiuid took a seat next to Skotarek, the player turned around and thrust his hips forward, less than five feet away from Buiuid and Skotarek.

"If I had actually seen what the players did, what a reliable source told me happened, I would have complained more at the time," Buiuid said. "I feel I have a right to be in the locker room to do my job."

GOODELL...

Beasecker, Robynn Masters and Michelle Amen.

Oddly enough, none of the three triple winners wound up as the high point athletes. That honor went to Vassallo, and Anne Tweedy of Santa Barbara, who were consistent placers in the six events they entered.

Vassallo, who was third in the 1,500 free Sunday and is ranked among the top 10 in the world in the event, will concentrate on the 100 and 200 back and the 400 IM at next month's nationals in Woodlands, Tex.

THOUGH HE HAS the world's fastest time in the 400 IM, Vassallo is worried about just placing high enough in the Aug. 2-6 meet at Woodlands to qualify for the World Championships later that month in West Berlin.

"I want to make the World Games first, then try to win," says Vassallo, who races against competitors, not the clock.

"It's more important to win, than swim good times," he says, adding that a fast non-winning time is "like nothing."

Reutemann Nabs British Grand Prix

From AP Dispatches
BRANDS HATCH, England — Argentina's Carlos Reutemann won Sunday's incident-packed British Grand Prix by yards from the Brabham Alfa of reigning world champion Niki Lauda of Austria.

The engines of the two JPS-Lotus racers, which dominated qualifying, both blew — Mario Andretti's when he was fighting to catch up after a pit stop and pole man Ronnie Peterson's after only six laps when lying second to Andretti.

But Andretti kept the lead in the 1978 title race and Peterson remained second because of the points they have piled up in winning five of the nine earlier races this season.

For the 35-year-old Reutemann, the victory was a welcome return to form for himself and the Ferrari team after a bad patch following his victories in Brazil and Long Beach this season.

Order of Finish

1. Carlos Reutemann, Argentina, Ferrari T.1, 1 hour 42 minutes, 12.39 seconds, average speed 116.61 mph; 2. Niki Lauda, Austria, Brabham Alfa BT46, 1:42:12.67; 3. HIS BLAST brought home Ron LeFlore, who got aboard on an infield single, and Lou Whitaker, who had walked.

Detroit's other run came in the eighth, as Frost finally tired and gave way to reliever Paul Hartzell. Frost had loaded the bases on a walk and two singles, then Hartzell took over and walked across a run before getting the final out.

The Angels netted 10 hits but had potential rallies killed with double plays in the fourth and fifth innings. California left 10 men on base.

ANGEL NOTES — The Angels have had sole possession or been tied for first place 20 days this season. Entering Sunday's game, California pitchers had allowed only two runs in 29 innings. Tonight is Family Night at the Big A. All box seats will be available at half price. Third baseman Carney Lansford's name is being mentioned more and more as a candidate for American League Rookie of the Year honors. Since recovering from a partial tear of ligaments in his left thumb, Lansford has hit .333 (8 for 24), scored six runs and driven in six runs. Lansford, with less than two out and a runner at third, has scored the runner eight times in eight attempts. Last season Lansford was playing AA ball, but he insists the jump to the majors didn't require a big adjustment. "I played winter ball with a lot of big league players and that helped a lot," Lansford says. "The biggest change was getting used to playing in front of big crowds, but after a few games it doesn't make you nervous anymore."

Strategy Pays Off For Carner

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — JoAnne Carner tried something new — scoreboard watching — to break a personal jinx of never defending one of her 19 professional golf titles in previous years.

It worked. "I normally don't watch the board at all, but I watched it all the way around today. I wanted to see how everybody stood, to make myself grind harder," said Carner.

There was one tense exception, at the last hole where she needed a par-four to salvage a one-shot victory over Pat Bradley and Betsy King Sunday in this Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I didn't look up at the board at 18 until after I hit my chip shot," said the 39-year-old strawberry blonde.

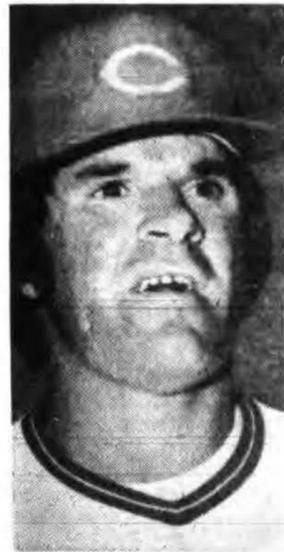

The strategy paid off. She lofted a wedge to within 18 inches of the cup for an easy tap-in putt that gave her a 71, a 7-under-par total of 209, her third 1978 triumph, and a $12,750 check.

Streak Reaches 29

Pressure Mounts, Says Cincy's Rose

From AP Dispatches
CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Reds third baseman Pete Rose admits the pressure he feels after hitting in 29 consecutive games is worse than before he collected the 3,000th hit of his career earlier this season.

"I knew I was going to get 3,000 hits someday with no trouble. This thing is a little different," said Rose after slugging a double in the seventh inning of Cincinnati's game with the Mets Sunday to extend his hitting streak.

"Right now this hitting streak is no big thing. If I can get to 34 or 35 games, then it will be."

Tommy Holmes holds the National League record for consecutive games with 37 and Joe DiMaggio maintains the all-time mark at 56 games.

"It's going to end someday for sure," said Rose of the streak. "That's the philosophy you've got to have."

Rose's double tied Cap Anson for 10th place on the all-time hit list at 3,081. He also passed Red Schoendienst for the lead in all-time consecutive games with at least one hit for a switch-hitter.

Quote of the Day

California Angel pitcher Frank Tanana, responding to an aftergame question as to why there were so many people still in the stands following Saturday night's victory: "They probably read the Register and they think there's a doubleheader."

Elsewhere in Sports . . .

BASEBALL — Manager Gene Mauch hurled more than a dozen bats out of the Minnesota dugout Sunday after being ejected from the second game of the Twins' doubleheader against the Boston Red Sox after losing an argument with Mike Cubbage when Cubbage poked an off first base. Mauch, after throwing the bats in bunches onto the field, stalked around the dugout in a rage, then left. . . The Red Sox's Fred Lynn had an RBI single in the first and a two-run homer in the sixth to carry Boston to a 3-2 victory over the Twins and a sweep of their doubleheader. His homer came with Huntington Beach High product Jack Brohamer aboard with a double. . . Red Sox players are to have blood samples taken after being exposed to hepatitis. . . Mike Sadek doubled home two runs in the second inning to help the San Francisco Giants beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-0, earning a split of their doubleheader. . . John Milner's bases-loaded single broke a 10th-inning tie to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres. Dave Parker rapped a triple in Pittsburgh's 10-6 nightcap win. . . Terry Crowley drove in the winning run with a two-out, 12th-inning single to give Baltimore a 2-1 victory over Texas. . . Amos Otis hit a two-run homer as the Kansas City Royals whipped the New York Yankees, 3-1. . . Dave Concepcion had four hits, including a two-run homer and a two-run double to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-2 win over the New York Mets.

HORSE RACING — "I was the most surprised person in the whole world when I found myself in front in the stretch," said jockey Bill Shoemaker of his five-length victory aboard light-weighted Afifa in the $133,000 Vanity Handicap at Hollywood Park Sunday. Afifa, carrying 113 pounds, set a stakes record of 1.46 2/5 for the 1/8-mile event, returning $21,000, 6.40 and 5.60. Favored Taisez Vous, carrying 130 pounds, finished fifth. . . Jockey Ron Turcotte remained in stable condition Sunday following a spill at Belmont Park Thursday. Turcotte was operated on Friday for nerve damage which has caused the loss of feeling in his legs. . . Apprentice jockey George Gomez, the leading rider at Miami's Calder Race Course, died Sunday from injuries he received in a spill nearly two months ago. He was 28.

MOTOR SPORTS — In quest of an unprecedented third straight national driving championship, Cale Yarborough finished two laps and 14 seconds ahead of his nearest rival in breezing to the Nashville 420 Grand National.

OTHER SPORTS — Cuban Alberto Juantorena and Mexican Bautista easily won gold medals Sunday in the 400 meters and walk events in the 13th Central American and Caribbean Games. Juantorena won in 44.27. Bautista won the 20-kilometer walk in 1:29.95. Both were meet records. The New York Giants have signed 6-6, 265-pound tackle Gordon King, their No. 1 draft choice. Tacoma's Jeff Mattingly leads the Tucson Open professional bowling tournament after 26 games by a margin of 181 pins. . . Wilt Chamberlain was named co-most valuable player in the International Volleyball Assn.'s second All-star game after leading the West to a 3-1 victory in El Paso.

An Itch in Time

Regalado Wins Golf Tourney

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Scratch can be what you do when you itch, and scratch can mean money in the bank. It's happened both ways for Victor Regalado at the Quad Cities Open.

Three years ago Regalado got into poison ivy here and by his own account "was off the tour five weeks and made only about $1,000 the rest of the year."

He made up for that by holding off Fred Marti's charge Sunday for a one-stroke victory to claim the $30,000 first-place check in his first tour championship since the 1974 Pleasant Valley Classic.

"I won like the Mexico Masters and some others," said Regalado, 30, of San Diego. "I've finished second the last three years on the tour and you wonder if you will win again in the United States."

Regalado was 11 before he started playing golf, late by some standards, especially when you consider that Jack

Renner began when he was two and started playing competitively at the age of six.

"I was living with my grandfather two blocks from the golf course," said Regalado. "I started playing with a friend at the Tijuana Country Club."

Final round scores in the Quad Cities Open Golf Tournament at the 6,561 yard, par-71 Oakwood Country Club:

Tennis Roundup

Gerulaitis Rolling

From AP Dispatches
NEW YORK — Vitas Gerulaitis continues his climb toward the top of the tennis world.

Gerulaitis, currently ranked fourth behind Bjorn Borg, Jimmy Connors and Guillermo Vilas, took another giant step Sunday when he routed Romania's Ilie Nastase 6-2, 6-0 to win the inaugural $300,000 Forest Hills Invitational at the West Side Tennis Club.

"My goal is to become No. 1," said Gerulaitis, who pocketed a first prize of $100,000, bringing his official earnings for 1978 to $327,495. "I can't really measure it, I don't have any timetable, but I think I'm close. I've improved the past couple of years, and will keep on improving for four or five more."

Gerulaitis has been a Wimbledon semifinalist the past two years. He won the Italian and Australian Opens in 1977, plus the World Championship Tennis Finals and its $100,000 paycheck earlier this year. He's the top ranking men's singles player in World Team Tennis as a member of the New York Apples.

The next step is a victory in one of the big tournaments, Wimbledon or the U.S. Open.

What must he improve to achieve that?
"There's no one thing I can pinpoint," replied Gerulaitis, who will be 24 later this month. "I'm just going to try to improve every phase of my game."

Gerulaitis was in complete command of the finals of this WCT event, created to fill a void at the West Side Tennis Club caused by the departure of the U.S. Open for a new tennis complex in Flushing Meadow.

Mitton Scores

NEWPORT, R.I. — Lanky Bernie Mitton of South Africa pulled off a 6-1, 3-6, 7-6 victory over Australian John James Sunday to win the $75,000 Hall of Fame tennis championship, 6-1, 3-6, 7-6.

The victory marked the first win for the 23-year-old Mitton on the Grand Prix circuit. He had beaten three seeded players, including top-ranked Arthur Ashe, en route to the finals.

Mitton was in complete control of the first set in the grass court final at the Newport Casino. However, he appeared to tire in the second set and James' game started to improve.

The champion's exhaustion stemmed in part from having to play a semi-final match Sunday morning in which he handily eliminated seventh-seeded Bob Giltinan of Australia 6-3, 6-0.

Vilas Victorious

GSTAAD, Switzerland — Guillermo Vilas beat Jose Luis Clerc 6-3, 7-6, 6-4 in a thrilling duel between the hard-hitting Argentinians in the finals of the Swiss International Tennis Championship Sunday.

Crown to Dibbs

CINCINNATI — Top-seeded Eddie Dibbs defeated Mexican Raul Ramirez 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 Sunday to take the singles title in the $125,000 Western Tennis Championships.

In the doubles final, Ramirez and Gene Mayer defeated Ismail El Shafei and Brian Fairlie 6-3, 6-3.

Sweden Wins

BASTAD, Sweden — Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg beat Jose Higuera 6-1, 6-4, 6-2 to give Sweden a 3-2 victory over Spain in the European zone Group B Davis Cup semifinals Sunday.

In the first singles match of the day, Manuel Orantes of Spain defeated Kjell Johansson of Sweden 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 to even the best-of-five competition at 2-2.

Hungary Advances

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Underdog Hungary, defeated Italy 4-1 in the 1978 in the Davis Cup European zone Group B semifinals Sunday. The victory advanced the Hungarians into the Group B zone finals where they will meet Sweden.

In the second singles of the day, Hungarian ace Balazs Taroczy, seeded 27th in the world rankings, defeated Italian Corrado Barazzutti, seeded eighth, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Britain Triumphs

PARIS — Britain defeated France 3-2 in the Group A European zone Davis Cup semifinals Sunday as Buster Mottram posted a 7-5, 6-4, 6-1 singles victory over Eric Deblicker at Roland Garros Stadium.

The triumph gave Britain the decisive 3-1 edge in the best of five event. The margin later was narrowed to 3-2 when France's Cameroon-born Yannick Noah beat Britain's John Lloyd 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

Hobie Cat Moving to Oceanside

Hobie Cat, manufacturer of the famed Hobie Cat line of sailing catamarans, has officially announced plans for the development and construction of a new factory and office facility in Oceanside.

The announcement is the culmination of a long-term corporate plan to consolidate the two existing plants in Irvine and San Juan Capistrano into one integrated factory, office and warehouse complex.

There will be three main buildings with approximately 205,000 square feet. The buildings will be situated on the property in such a manner that supplies and raw materials enter the facility at one end of the factory and flow through the buildings in a straight line by the shortest route possible, officials said.

The completed boats will be packed at the end of the production line and warehoused on site pending shipment by rail, truck, steamship and air to customers throughout the world.

The new facility will employ a total work force of about 300 with approximately 90 sales, administrative and engineering personnel and 200 plus factory production workers. It is expected that the payroll will be in the vicinity of $6 million a year.

The Hobie Cat sailboats are world-renowned for their speed and durability. From the first manufactured boat in June, 1968 to the present time, over 60,000 of the speedy cats have been manufactured and are sailing worldwide.

The Hobie Cat was the brainchild of young Hobie Alter of San Juan Capistrano, who got his start as a surfboard builder.

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — Unifying the Municipal and Superior Court system into a single tier of courts has been recommended by the 1977-78 Los Angeles County Grand Jury.

To Guadalupe Island

Scotch Mist Leading Race

Light winds as far as 100 miles off the California coast have scrambled the four-boat Guadalupe Island race fleet.

The 600-mile race started Saturday out of Balboa Yacht Club in a five-knot southerly wind at the Sunday roll call, the smallest boat in the fleet, Don Anderson's 32-foot Scotch Mist, had covered the greatest distance with 141 miles logged.

THE 54-FOOT SLOOP Triumph, sailed by Richard Haller, Scottsdale, Ariz., got off to an early lead, but after 20 hours of sailing had logged only 108 miles. Bob Sodaro's 35-foot sloop Andiamo had covered 101 miles. There was no report from Ruel Cameron's 36-foot sloop Tahuna.

The racers will circumnavigate Guadalupe Island, a rugged uninhabited rock off the Baja California coast, and will return nonstop to the starting point.

TROPHY FOR FIRST to finish is a model of Donald Douglas' famed racing schooner Endymion, which won the first Guadalupe Island race out of Los Angeles Yacht Club in the early 1940s.

Top award for the handicap winner is the Orange Coast Daily Pilot Trophy, a bronze bas-relief of the island on a mahogany plaque. All four of the yachts are sailing under the Performance Handicap Racing Fleet handicap system.

At Balboa Club

90 Boats Vie In Regatta

Light winds, calm seas and smog plagued the 90 boats in 12 classes which turned out Saturday and Sunday for Balboa Yacht Club's Midsummer Regatta.

There were 52 boats in seven classes competing over courses inside the bay and 38 starters in five classes sailing ocean courses. Trophy winners:

- SHNPE (6) — 1, Earl Corp, PVSA.

Merlin Tops In Transpac

Another Transpacific duel between the two ultralight displacement yachts Merlin and Drifter is in the record books with Merlin defeating her rival by about six hours in the 2,300-mile Victoria to Maui race.

MERLIN, OWNED by Bill Lee of Santa Cruz, was skippered in this race by Doug Fryer, Corinthian Yacht Club, Seattle. The win gave Merlin another elapsed time record of 10 days, two minutes and 37 seconds. The previous record was 12 days 17 hours, 53 minutes set by the 61-foot sloop Joli in 1974.

Drifter, owned by Harry Molosheo, Long Beach, was under charter and skippered by Warren Hinton, Lahaina Yacht Club. Drifter came within 22 miles of overhauling Merlin on the eighth day of the race, but a change in course caused her to fall farther astern.

BRAVURA, A 48-foot sloop sailing under the colors of the Lahaina Yacht Club, was expected to be the corrected time winner.

Decision Protested

TORONTO (AP) — The Royal Hamilton Yacht Club is protesting a decision not to allow an American citizen to steer its entry in the Canada's Cup sailing competition this September in Detroit.

Donald Green, owner of the yacht Evergreen, says the Royal Canadian Yacht Club (RCYC) in Toronto has changed the rules and disqualified Tim Stearn of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., the man who was to be helmsman for the Hamilton club's entry.

Michigan Race

Yachts Becalmed

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — Led by Ted Turner's Tenacious, more than 200 sleek racing yachts were strung across Lake Huron Sunday as they headed toward the finish of the 54th annual Port Huron to Mackinac race.

Dozens of vessels were adrift near the Cove Island buoy in the northeastern corner of the lake, racing officials here reported late Sunday afternoon, after winds died to a calm.

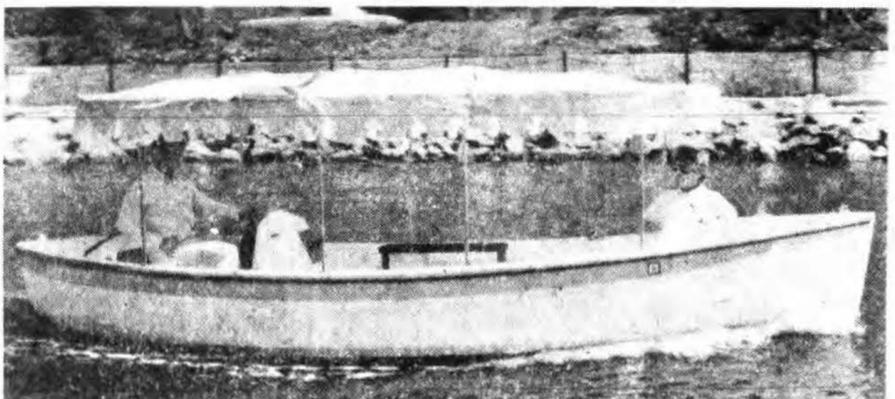

SEVERAL VESSELS had dropped out of the race, including a top contender, Heritage, owned by Don Wildman of Chicago, which turned back for Port Huron after breaking a mast late Saturday, officials said.

Following close behind Tenacious whose skipper, the flamboyant Atlanta Braves owner, won the America's Cup in 1977 — were Sassy, Encounter, Wind Dancer and Bonaventure.

TRAILING THE pack was Compromise, out of the Bay View Yacht Club in Port Huron.

The first yachts were expected to cross the finish line here early today.

Edison-18 Launched

Duffield Marine of Costa Mesa has announced the introduction of a new double-ended, all electric launch called the Edison-18, a modified version of the Edison-20 which Duffield has produced since 1972.

The all-fiberglass boat is powered by six 244-amp Trojan batteries providing the boat's motor

Cal-20 Series Ready

Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club will be host to the Cal-20 national championship which begins with an elimination series on Thursday in Los Angeles Harbor.

The elimination series will divide the 60-boat fleet into two flights, the championship flight and consolation flight which will begin competition for the title on Friday.

The regatta for the junior championship will be sailed on Sunday. The championship contenders include four skippers and crews from Hawaii and two from British Columbia.

with 21½ horsepower which propels the craft at about six knots.

THE 20-FOOTERS HAVE LONG been popular as a bay cruising boat. There is no fuel necessary. Travel time on a full charge of the batteries is five to six hours. Recharging is by an automatic charger installed in the forward compartment which plugs into any dockside 110-volt outlet.

The Edison 18 is constructed of heavy gauge fiberglass and trimmed in teak. Options include a sunroof or Bimini top, clear inglass enclosure for adverse weather, padded cockpit cushions, carpet bar, four speaker stereo and a comfortable helmsman's chair.

THE BOAT IS 17 FEET 10 inches long, 6 feet 5 inches wide, with a draft of 18 inches. It weighs 1,500 pounds. The battery-powered engine propels the boat on a one-inch shaft with a top speed capacity of 6.2 knots or a cruising speed of 3½ knots. Speed selection is made by a lever which provides two forward speeds, neutral and reverse. Stability is provided by 800 pounds of built-in ballast plus the weight of the six batteries. Tests have shown that it takes four to seven husky men standing on the rail to swamp the boat.

Jet-setting Host Tireless

Hugh Downs Laboring From Coast to Coast

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES — It's a bit odd for someone to appear each week both on public and commercial TV.

But Hugh Downs, 57, the urbane former "Today" host, is doing just that these days.

NOT only that, he's laboring for PBS and ABC opposite ends of America.

In San Francisco, where he lives, he's hosted a nightly series on aging, KQED's "Over Easy," since last fall. He'll resume that show, now in repeats, when its second season starts next November.

Since June, he's flown to New York each week to anchor ABC's new Tuesday news-magazine show, "20-20." He says he plans to continue doing that as well as his "Over Easy" chores.

TRUE, IT SEEMS unusual to work in public and commercial TV simultaneously, but ABC brass didn't regard his PBS work as a conflict when they talked with him about hosting "20-20," he says.

"They seemed very supportive of PBS ideas, and it wasn't as if I were working for CBS or NBC," added the man hastily installed as the sole anchor of "20-20" on June 13.

It happened a week after the show — now serious in tone made its flashy, critically assailed debut with hosts Harold Hayes and Robert Hughes, two ex-magazine editors who now are ex-hosts.

THE DAY AFTER the disastrous debut, Downs, then subbing for David Hartman on ABC's "AM America," was called by ABC News chief Rooney Arledge regarding a permanent berth on "20-20."

"I'll say this for him," he said of Arledge.

"He took the rap for the premiere, but he's somewhat like Churchill: He doesn't stubbornly cling to something just to vindicate his ego.

"WHEN HE SEES that something's wrong, he cuts his losses pretty fast."

The first "20-20" mixed sad, serious and silly news segments in rapid-fire style. Downs' theory on what went wrong? "They put things together that just didn't emulsify."

And maybe there was just too much for an audience to assimilate.

THEY OBVIOUSLY were trying not to imitate CBS' "60 Minutes," he added, "but I said to them, 'Don't be so afraid of imitating.'"

"It's like saying, 'This magazine uses paper and ink, so let's do something different.' You've got to do a lot that '60 Minutes' does, but we should do it our way and do it well."

Downs, who spoke by phone from his KQED office in San Francisco, won't have to constantly jet back and forth from "Over Easy" there to "20-20" in New York, as might be expected.

HE SAID THE ABC show will air each week until mid-September, then just once a month from October through December, before resuming a weekly run in January.

And he won't start work on a new 10-week batch of "Over Easy" shows for next season until mid-September.

He could become a serious jet-setter if KQED lands an underwriter for still more "Over Easy" shows on which work would start in January, the same month "20-20" returns to weekly status.

THE "20-20" ratings haven't been high. Has ABC talked about dropping the show if the program's Nielsens don't improve?

"Oh, no," Downs said. Before he took the anchor job, "I wanted to know if they were committed to the show."

"I told them I had no intention of coming aboard just to preside over its demise."

"They assured me they were committed to it. And I think they are. I think they'll want to do just what CBS did with '60 Minutes.'"

Executive Turns Actor

'Empty Life' Led to Space Series Stardom

By The Associated Press

Most actors claim they began emoting while still tykes.

Not Gil Gerard, star of an NBC version of the famed 1939 "Buck Rogers" space serial that starred Buster Crabbe.

HE'S ONLY BEEN acting nine years. To do it, he checked a career as a chemical company executive in his native Little Rock, Ark., at the fairly advanced age of 26.

The reason for the chucking, Gerard says, is that while he was succeeding in business, he felt his life was empty, that there should be more to it than chemical and memos.

"At about the same time, I heard Peggy Lee's 'Is That All

Chevy Chase Series Host

Chevy Chase will host an upcoming segment for Home Box Office's "On Location" series.

The 90-minute special was shot in Los Angeles at the Comedy Store and will debut on the network in August.

Chase hosts the program, interacting with the audience and trading ad-libs with a number of young comics who then will have a chance to do 12 to 15 uncensored minutes of their own nightclub acts.

There is, and it really hit home," he grinned.

"SO I STARTED thinking about what I'd enjoyed most when I was younger."

It proved to be the memories of the amateur acting he'd done in elementary, high school and college plays. So he decided to quit business and give emoting a whirl.

HE SAID NONE of the four pilots became series, but one, "Killing Stone," led to his new Buck Rogers project for NBC.

That 25th century caper will air as a six-hour miniseries later this season, says NBC, which also has Flash Gordon, Crabbe's oldie, "Flash Gordon," being remade for the 1979-80 season.

Gerard isn't worried that if his show hits he'll get type-cast.

"I LOOK forward to it taking off," he said. "Because the name of the game in this business is a power base." He meant a hit show gives an actor considerable clout in lining up other projects.

Be that as it may, the businessman-turned-actor was advised to keep his Buck Rogers ray gun handy for errand agents.

Redford Set for Saga

Star Awaiting 'Thorn Birds' Script

By HANK GRANT
 Robert Redford has a pen poised to sign as star of the film version of "The Thorn Birds" bestseller, pending a few script changes. Also, RR is finally latching an agent, and it looks like Wm. Morrisman Stan Kamen will grab him.
 My no-relation buddy Cary Grant once asked me not to link him romantically with any dool without confirmation, so we lost out in a scoop we'd been holding pending his return. It's now common knowledge that Cary has a new gleam in his eye for Los Angeles Her-Ex society editor Wanda McDaniel.
 The Blighty sheets are also making a big thing about Richard Dreyfuss and Carrie Fisher being a New Two You Thesp Tom McFadden tied the knot with Nancy Tod. It started when Tom walked into her Topanga Mercantile shop to buy a new broom and she swept him off his feet.

REDFORD

MY HIP ORTHOPEDIST will be happy to know that Ann Turkel and hubby Richard Harris are hatching plans for a first Celebrity Roller Derby. Richard won't compete, but he's a good skate, anyway.
 Getting back to Richard Dreyfuss, won't his defection as star of Bob Fosse's "All That Jazz" pic see Roy Scheider inheriting the role? My Oslo spy Harda Herring reports that sex symbol Julie Ege is really settling down. She's expecting a baby in September, courtesy of her Norwegian b.f. Anders Bye. Will they possibly name the tot "Bye Bye"?
 And my London spy Sir Lee Smirk reports that Jack Nicholson hadda take to his bed in England after trying and failing to jump a garden wall in Chelsea. Injured but didn't fracture his ankles. As consolation, Bianca Jagger's been bringing him champagne which is much better than liniment for bruised ankles.

My British spy Lord Halpus tells me that though the London preem of the "Evita" musical on the West End is an unqualified smash, it may be the last production for the team of Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber. Lotsa bitter friction has developed between the pair, who had nothing but sweet thoughts for each other when their "Jesus Christ, Superstar" catapulted them to international fame.
 My studio spy Onda Lotalot tips that Universal henchos are prayin' that their screen version of "The Wiz" becomes a boxoffice smash. Just a hit isn't good enough, since the production tab for "The Wiz" skyrocketed to about $35 million, virtually the same tab for "Jaws II."

NEW TWO YOU: Jessica Lange, now free of "King Kong's" embrace, has Mikhail Baryshnikov on his toes over her. And my New York spy Freyda Muggers reports further that just when it seemed Liza Minnelli had settled down to a new romance, Al Pacino is cutting in on Gower Champion's time with her.
 Olivia Hussey, who couldn't wait to get divorced from Dino Martin — oops, Dean Paul Martin — so she could tie the knot with singer-songwriter Paul Ryan, has called off both the romance and the wedding.
 Peter O'Toole, Hank Fonda and Richard Burton comprise the parlay wanted by Roger Corman for his "Battle Beyond the Stars" sci-fi pic to pop to the tune of over $5 million. Thanksgiving is a long way off, but singer Roger Miller is giving thanks to all who'd prayed for him. The polyp on his throat proved benign and he'll be back to concert action end of this month.

NEW TWO YOU: thespes Leif Garrett and Kristy McNichol. Still Steady As They Go: Sarah Miles and Harris Yulin. Ditto: producer Jim Brynes and thrush Carol Chase.
 Proof that David Frost has a freeze on fiancee (?) Caroline Cushing goes beyond his dating of his old flame Carol Lynley. He reunited in Las Vegas with Diabhan Carroll, who once left him waiting at the church, remember? BevHills realtor Mike Silverman made his biggest deal of the year by selling Joan Cohn Harvey's two-acre estate in BevHills to Mike Douglas for $2,300,000! Mike, of course, is moving his syndie teleseries from Philly to Hollywood. My New York spy Freyda Muggers tips that Liza Minnelli will relax before hitting the niter trail by sharing a summer beach home on Fire Island with Bianca Jagger and Studio 54 disco honcho Steve Rubell. TV Screens Go Blank SEATTLE (AP) — Will Susan seduce Dan in the nation's capital? Will Don find that Joyce's baby isn't his? Will Jay accept responsibility for his child so Carol can raise the baby?

 THOUSANDS OF SEATTLE soap opera fans were deeply engrossed in the gripping problems of "As The World Turns" when viewers suddenly found themselves staring at blank screens.
 The soap had been on for 16 minutes when a vehicle apparently struck a utility pole, leaving KIRO-TV and some 2,500 other business and homes without power.
 THE TELEVISION STATION was deluged with hundreds of calls, mostly from women.
 "Every time I really get into an episode, something seems to happen, like a power outage, or else they put the president on" one fan grumbled.

New National Smoker Study:

Tar/Taste Gap Bridged.

Smokers rate taste of low tar MERIT equal to—or better than—leading high tar brands.

Low tar MERIT, with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco, has shattered the myth of "low tar, low taste."

In a new national smoker study conducted with high tar smokers, MERIT was proven to deliver the flavor of leading high tar brands.

Results Endorse MERIT Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

Detailed interviews were also conducted with current MERIT smokers.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first major alternative to high tar smoking.

Putting Pianos In Tune

'Many people have been listening to out-of-tune pianos so long they're not aware of it.'

By DENNIS McLELLAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Every year an estimated 700,000 pianos are sold around the world.

Many new owners, however, are unaware that their piano will not always sound as good as it did when they first brought it home.

The piano—built of 12,000 wood, iron, steel, ivory and felt parts—is sensitive to a variety of factors that will throw it out of tune: temperature changes, too much playing or playing too heavily.

When this happens it is time to call on the services of the piano tuner.

Referred to today as piano technicians, they are trained craftsmen who have mastered a precise profession, which requires a keen sense of hearing and a high mechanical aptitude.

Paul Monroe, a Santa Ana piano technician, was asked how often the average person gets his piano tuned.

"Not often enough," he said. "We recommend a minimum of two a year."

HE ADDED THAT a new piano needs to be tuned at least four times the first year to increase its stability.

"Unfortunately," he said, "many people have been listening to out-of-tune pianos so long they're not aware of it."

Obvious exceptions are concert pianists. They not only have their pianos tuned before a performance but before they practice. Concert halls like the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion have resident piano technicians.

Monroe, 49, got interested in the business in the late '50s after listening to his own piano tuner.

"It sounded easy," he recalled. "But that was an erroneous assumption. It requires great craftsmanship and an ability to be good at what you're doing."

He began piano tuning part-time, then went to work in the aerospace industry. In the early '70s he went back to tuning and several years ago started McCall and Monroe Services with Ray and Ruth McCall.

MONROE, WHO TEACHES piano

Steven Sherlock of Irvine: Putting things on the right note technology through adult education at Cypress College, notes: "I tell people that you never quit learning."

Much of the ongoing education is held at the monthly meetings of the Orange County chapter of the Piano Technicians Guild. About half of the estimated 60 piano technicians in Orange County belong.

Members hold technical discussions and pass along new knowledge. "We like to share our information to help somebody improve," says Monroe, past president.

In the fall the Guild, which meets the fourth Monday of each month in the First Baptist Church of Santa Ana, will begin an educational program for members and anyone else interested in the profession.

Monroe said the majority of piano tuners today learn through correspondence school courses.

"IT'S A VERY GOOD way to begin and that's all at it," he said. "You must associate with craftsmen so you can learn. This is where the Guild comes in."

Steven Sherlock of Irvine is a proponent of learning the business in school. He is a 1975 graduate of the piano technology program of Western Iowa Tech, a trade school where he spent a year learning piano rebuilding, refinishing and tuning.

"When I went to school I got different opinions, plus lectures and different technicians," he said. "Whereas if you learn from one technician, that's the only way you learn how to do it."

A former piano major at Cypress College, his interest in piano tuning evolved when he discovered the pianos there weren't "quite up to snuff."

After graduation from the trade school Sherlock, 24, got a job at Humboldt State University where he tuned the school's pianos for six months.

HE MOVED TO Orange County three years ago and was fortunate to purchase a veteran Newport Beach piano technician's clientele.

Still, he said, "the only way you can advance in this business is by word of mouth."

Monroe, in fact, said it takes about five years before someone can build up enough business to make a living. It helps to have a working wife or a part-time job. "It's slow in starting and a lot of hard work," he said.

On a typical day Monroe will work from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. And it's not uncommon for him to work five and a half to six days a week.

Despite the long hours Monroe sums up the feeling of most in the profession.

"I totally and thoroughly enjoy what I'm doing. No two pianos are the same—every piano has a different personality—so it's a constant challenge."

Questionable Future

Since its inception, the Commission on the Status of Women has been the subject of controversy.

By CHERYL ROMO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Orange County Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) is among the groups claiming to feel the hot breath of Proposition 13.

Since its inception two-and-a-half years ago, the 15-member advisory board, comprised of volunteers appointed by the County Board of Supervisors, has been the subject of controversy and heated debates between feminist and anti-feminist factions.

Originally organized to insure that the concerns of the county's women (who make up 50.44 percent of the population) were expressed and protected, the commission has acted as a liaison between the community and the board of supervisors.

The group's only paid staff member, Karen Klammer, 34, was hired in January to act as coordinator for the group and to put a work plan together.

She is a former teacher who lives in Laguna Beach with her family and who holds a master's degree in education. Before accepting the CSW position, she was the coordinator for the Orange Coast College Women's Center, another body which may be in jeopardy because of the proposed budget cuts.

Ms. Klammer is not overly optimistic about the future of the commission—or her own job.

"At this point, like everyone else, we know nothing. We will have to wait until the July 20 county budget hearings . . . We have submitted, along with everyone else, 20, 30 and 40 percent budget cuts.

"If we are eliminated it will be because of the supervisors."

In the meantime, the coordinator is spending the commission is actively trying to spend its time on projects "we can finish." Most of these are the fruition of work started last October.

A child care conference was recently held at Santa Ana College for interested parents and others. A roster on where to obtain self-defense instruction and a statistical profile of Orange County are two other projects pushed to the finish.

Another project the commission is attempting "to hold onto," says the coordinator, is a master calendar of events of interest to women which was to be available to all residents in the county.

Pauline Rangel, chairperson of the commission, a Fountain Valley resident, said before the passage of Proposition 13, that she felt the group has not yet lived up to its potential, but should eventually become a place where women of all philosophies "should be able to come and get any information they desire."

Mrs. Rangel felt abolition of the commission because of budget cuts would be drastic and would, in the long run, hurt the low-income woman with a family who the group is trying to assist with child care information and educational seminars.

The Rev. Gary Barmore 'Jesus enjoyed life.'

Pastoring

A Costa Mesa pastor believes 'the Good News is the most needed message in the world' and it doesn't matter how it's dispensed.

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

What's a good way for a pastor to show a little extra love for his congregation?

Beat the tar out of them in tennis. Gary Barmore, a Costa Mesa pastor who moonlights as a tennis instructor for his flock, doesn't always win but he gives every game his best. And his congregation follows suit.

Tennis is part of Barmore's unusual style. He believes, in his work at Fairview Community Church, that "the Good News is the most needed message in the world" and it doesn't matter how it's dispensed.

"Jesus enjoyed life," Barmore contends. "The New Testament showed the earthy, human side of Jesus' life. He really cared about other people."

So, commitment to others includes, at Fairview, an annual all-church tennis tournament, a weekend in the fall where the whole congregation goes to the mountains together to hike and square dance, and "share-and-care" sessions in members' homes where people discuss what is happening in their lives.

THE INFORMALITY spills over into the Sunday worship service. Barmore may appear in jeans or a suit and he may or may not expect to wear a stole. The pews are placed in a square formation around the pulpit, which is in the center of the church.

The young pastor, who has been at the church a little over two years, said the congregation is "still in the process of defining what we are all about."

"Our differences (between Fairview and other churches) are not in vocabulary or refreshment style but I hope we are different. More open toward racial harmony, the possibilities of peace and caring about others."

The journey of the church parallels Barmore's own inquiry into his faith.

He started out as the son of a teacher who influenced him to seek a people-oriented profession.

"Somewhere in college I made the decision to work toward a graduate theology degree."

After earning a degree in psychology from the University of Redlands, Barmore attended the American Baptist Seminary of the West.

Unusual Lawyer Helps Indians

By TIM HARPER
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Phyllis Girouard is a non-traditional lawyer from Boston working hard to return the Menominee reservation to a traditional Indian legal system, one that doesn't have to rely much on the white man's courts.

Ms. Girouard, 32, toils 70 to 80 hours a week at her unusual law practice. Unlike many lawyers practicing in that much time and energy, she's not exactly getting rich. "My personal income," she says, "is zero."

She is the only fulltime lawyer on the Menominee Legal Defense-Offense Committee, a group she helped form to deal with Indian legal matters when she came to the forests of northeastern Wisconsin from Boston three years ago.

In that time the committee has won several civil rights suits and started others, pushed for a return of some tribal legal remedies and given lots of informal advice — all on a shoestring.

Two of the biggest victories, she says, were winning the right of Indian inmates at the Fox Lake correctional institute to wear long hair for religious reasons, and obtaining 32 injunctions against Menominee County sheriff's deputies who had been serving without proper qualifications.

Still pending is a class action suit in federal court over alleged financial waste by the operators of the reservation sawmill.

Also unsettled is the committee's suit alleging unfair voting practices during ratification of the new tribal constitution. It was adopted recently when the area was restored to reservation status after a decade as a Wisconsin county — the state's poorest.

Depending on the outcome of that case, Ms. Girouard may stay on the reservation up to four more years. If she does, there will be plenty of legal work. The issues range from mining taxes and development and hunting and fishing rights to white property owners on reservation land and reclamation of treaty lands.

The committee helps in some civil matters like stipulated divorces, but Ms. Girouard prefers to give informal advice on how Indians can represent themselves in reservation courts.

"A lot of times people end up handling their own cases," she says. "They shouldn't need lawyers."

She and the volunteer law students on the committee also are working to revamp the reservation court system set up under federal law to handle civil and criminal cases involving tribe members.

"We would like to see a return to the traditional remedies," she says.

For instance, under the traditional Indian system, a couple wanting a divorce would merely appear before the tribal elders who married them, rather than pay a white lawyer from nearby Shawano several hundred dollars to handle the matter in state court.

Or someone convicted of violating a criminal ordinance on the reservation — assault or burglary could be sentenced to some type of labor for the community or victim.

"Jail should be the ultimate remedy," she says. "For criminal offenders, the idea should be not to punish the wrongdoing, but to rectify it within the community. There would be much more restitution involved than in white courts."

Fines on the poverty-plagued reservation "could be paid in kind, as with beads."

Ms. Girouard says the three reservation judges, all Indians who have been to state judge's schools but have no formal legal education, would still preside over cases in the manner of white courts. But proceedings would be less rigid.

Changes like these will be slow in coming, she says, but there's been progress in some minor areas, such as using the reservation rather than the state courts to drop a white name and assume a traditional Menominee name.

The hub of this activity is her four-room apartment-law office, and it's busy seven days a week.

"It's almost impossible to do any serious legal work in the office. The phone is always ringing and people are always in and out with questions or complaints or just to talk," Ms. Girouard says.

Office expenses come to about $200 a month and "there is no money left over. We ask people to pay what they can. We never take a case on the ability to pay."

Payments tend to the unusual.

"We might get a free place to stay, services or donations in kind like food. Clients who are good with cars repair our car. We are trying to be creative in coming up with other ways to get income."

Ms. Girouard became interested in Indian law during law school when she was a defense aide in the Wounded Knee trials. She first got involved in Wisconsin during the trials of Menominee Warrior Society members arrested in the 1975 occupation of a former novitiate near Gresham. Some day she hopes to work with Indians in the Southwest.

Horoscope

By SYDNEY OMARR
TUESDAY, JULY 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on climbing over obstacles to attain goal. Capricorn helps clear a path. Family will back you, once convinced of sincerity. Money is involved — gift in picture. Being flattered also is part of scenario. Be diplomatic, state aims in calm, cool, charming manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with travel, bridging language, age barriers. Know that being alone is not same as being lonely. You have marvelous opportunity to get second wind, emotionally and in spiritual sense.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Reject frills, superficiality. Get to heart of matters. Get beneath the surface and you strike pay dirt. You get accurate information concerning benefits, responsibilities. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on getting legal papers in order, completing tasks, getting recognition due, permitting partner or mate to speak, express needs. Pisces, Virgo figure in scenario. Be patient, observant; avoid self-deception.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New approach to work and health is indicated. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could be in picture. Emphasis on well being, steady pace, employment and diet. You've learned some "hard lessons." Now is time to apply them!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Children, speculative ventures and love dominate. Emotions tend to lead logic; key is to obtain balance. Teaching, the learning and creative processes command attention. Significant changes and adventure are part of exciting scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Collect data — make use of it. The time for procrastination is past. Know it and act accordingly. Emphasis on rebuilding, reinforcing — get roof over head and be sure it's solid. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Libra message, develop, nurture ideas, concepts. You can build for security. Avoid the flimsy. Stick to quality. Refuse substitutes. If thorough, you win. Read between the lines — be frank about needs, aspirations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on costs, earning potential, ability to make the most of assets. Element of timing is on your side. Know it and be confident. Member of opposite sex cares — and proves it. Yes, celebrate!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take advantage as "pieces fall into place." Greater degree of security exists than in recent past. What missed the mark is now likely to be on target. Trust your own judgment — imprint style, personality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check behind the scenes; mystery exists and you are right in the middle of it. Romance, glamour, clandestine meetings are a part of panorama. Work with material at hand. Dare to dream, but avoid wishful thinking. You are on brink of major revelation!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on illusions transformed into actualities. Friendship becomes deep involvement. You get moribund project moving. You inspire, irritate — and get results. Older individual, originally an adversary, becomes an ally.

'Legally' Dead Speaks ... Tennis

DEAR ANN: After reading that letter from the guy who signed himself Sitka Sentinel (he said 50 percent of the female bed partners in this world could be declared legally dead) I'd like to say a few words to Sitka.

I have read too many articles entitled, "How to Keep Your Man Interested in Sex," "How To Satisfy Your Husband," etc. I'm sick of corny suggestions like "change your hairdo," "take a bubblebath," "buy a new nightgown," "invest in some fancy perfume," and "stay off subjects that irritate him." How about a few suggestions that really make sense? I am addressing myself to the men who feel they are getting short-changed between the sheets.

Take a bath. Use a little cologne. Brush your teeth. Lose some weight. (A stomach that sticks out like a bay window isn't much of a turn-on.) Say a kind word BEFORE you get into bed. It could work wonders. — NOT LEGALLY DEAD, JUST FED-UP

DEAR FED: That thundering applause you hear is the reaction of millions of women who could be declared 'legally dead.' My comment: Amen, Sister.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was pleased to read your answer to the young girl who felt obligated to marry the guy because he had told her, "If you don't marry me, I will quit college and become a bum." You replied, "Don't let him blackmail you, honey. He could graduate from college and become a bum anyway."

Twenty-two years ago I was sent on a similar guilt trip. His words were stronger: "If you break up with me I will kill myself." Like a fool I married him. We now have two unstable children. I've been getting therapy which, had I had it earlier, might have saved me from this terrible marriage.

Every marriage is responsible for himself. When someone says, "If I don't get what I want I'll jump in the lake or shoot myself," the answer should be "Sorry. I must live my life for ME. You can do whatever you want with yours."

Some people need to read it again. Please print my letter but my name. — PAYING A BIG PRICE

DEAR BEV: Here's your letter and my thanks to you for having written it. The lesson is well worth repeating.

DEAR ANN: This letter is in regard to the woman who wrote concerning the safety of the modern school bus. First of all, if she is looking to Detroit for better buses, she's looking in the wrong direction. Detroit manufactures the engines and the chassis. The bodies are made by a separate coach company, which buys the frames from the manufacturer.

Since 1973, school buses no longer have those "treacherous bars" on the backs of the seats. The newer buses also have padding around the bars located directly behind the driver. Seat belts are out because they are impractical. A busload of 30 screaming kids would not use them.

The lady who wrote to you undoubtedly lives in a city where they are using pretty old buses. — BEVERLY HILLS FAN

DEAR BEV: Are parents there are a great many more old buses in use than new ones — and that's the problem. Many readers wrote to make the same points you made in your letter — and they are valid. Obviously, we need to replace the old equipment with new since it is unquestionably safer. Thanks for writing.

HE GREW UP in a home that was "cool and unemotional" in its approach to religion and found himself seeking a more fundamental style of worship to both establish his own independence and experience more feeling.

In the "fervent fundamentalism" toward which he gravitated, he found that "that kind of approach to life and faith didn't make sense to me."

His religious parameters were knocked a bit further when he took classes in religion at Redlands which had a more academic point of view then he was accustomed to. "I became more open and tolerant," Barmore said.

Membership in Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship gave him more new viewpoints on religion and he was on the way to becoming Gary Barmore, pastor-tennis teacher.

HIS CHURCH, he believes strongly, "has a place in the umbrella of the kingdom of God that's unique."

It appeals, he says, to people who "cannot be satisfied with easy answers, people who aren't comfortable with a right-wing stance and people who don't want rules."

The 125 members, he noted, have "a commitment of faith that there is value for their lives and an opportunity to give in a meaningful way to others."

His emphasis is on celebration, both in his personal life and the life of the church.

He plans to explore more use of liturgy in the services (Fairview is affiliated with the American Baptist Churches) and place more emphasis on the church calendar year.

"We're trying to see what we can do as a small church in the city center. We want to offer justice, love, peace and joy to the community. We want to be a lighthouse where we can share warmth from."

And a good game of tennis.

Meeting Due

Retired American diplomat W. Averell Harriman, an adviser to President Carter, is expected to meet Hungarian leaders informally this week while on a five-day visit.

Young Assailed By Byrd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd says Andrew Young is down to his last strike.

One more "irresponsible statement" by Young, says Byrd, and the U.N. ambassador should be fired by President Carter.

Appearing on a television interview program Sunday, Byrd called Young's comment last week that there were "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in the United States "the most serious in a series of irresponsible statements" by the ambassador.

IN SHORT

10 Killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police report 10 people were killed and 150 injured in the second tragedy within a week resulting from a propane tanker truck out of control.

One hospital director predicted at least 20 of the injured would die. Authorities said it appeared the tanker skidded on a rain-slick highway north of Mexico City, overturned, hit a rampart, exploded and burst into flame.

Study Ending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee is wrapping up a secret year-long study into whether former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and one-time CIA Director William E. Colby misled Congress about CIA activities in the 1975 Angolan civil war.

Committee spokesman Spencer Davis said Sunday that the committee expects to conclude its study shortly.

Rejection Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it knows of no foreign country that has rejected U.S. mail bearing the orange first-class stamp that does not list a value.

In a Van Nuys apartment, 54 tenants had their rents raised $95 per month, rents were up $25 per month at another 15-unit complex and at one Buena Park building rents jumped as much as $35.

In Anaheim, rent went up $45 a month at a complex of about 200 units. Like the other rent hikes, this came after Proposition 13 was approved.

"SOMEBODY BOUGHT the place," said tenant Ralph Piercy. "I thought maybe they wouldn't raise the rent because of Proposition 13, but they did."

Match Opens

Carne in London

LONDON (AP) — Actress Judy Carne, troubled by a string of drug charges in the United States, flew home to London from New York Sunday night and was carried from a Concorde supersonic airliner on a stretcher.

Proposition 13

Most Landlords Take Wait-and-see Attitude

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Proposition 13 campaign promised renters a share of benefits reaped by their landlords if the tax-slashing initiative was approved.

But many disgruntled tenants believe it was no more than a quickly forgotten campaign promise.

DESPIE PLEAS BY government officials, protests by tenants and threatened laws forbidding rent increases, many landlords say they want to wait and see what happens before cutting rents to share with tenants the 57 percent property tax cut they are supposed to be getting under Proposition 13. Many even raised rents.

"There may have been some plausible, rational reasons for some to have made rent increases," said Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley,

"but by and large what we are seeing in the way of complaints is a matter of greed."

Bradley endorsed a proposed six-month rent freeze at June 1 levels. Gov. Edmund G. Brown put landlords on notice that he plans to "vigorously press" for rent reductions in proportion to their gains from Proposition 13.

AND ATTORNEY General Evelle Younger, Brown's Republican opponent in November, urged landlords to cut rents in the state's estimated 3.5 million rental units.

Tenant-rights activists had predicted the landlords would simply keep the benefits. Shortly after Proposition 13 passed, Syd Rose of Santa Monica said, "If renters expect any money back, they'll soon recognize they've been duped."

Landlords say increased municipal fees and uncertainty over their final savings from Proposition 13 make immediate rent reductions premature, although some promise rent cuts if savings materialize.

The initiative itself said nothing about rent relief.

A FEW LANDLORDS, like the L.B. Nelson Property Management Corp. of Menlo Park, are cutting rents immediately. The San Francisco Bay Area firm sent notices to 1,000 tenants pledging an across-the-board 8 percent rent cut on Aug. 1.

"We feel rent reductions are in the spirit of Proposition 13," said Les Nelson, whose firm operates apartment complexes in Alameda, Walnut Creek and Mountain View. But he added:

"This adjustment cannot preclude future increases in your rent which may become necessary because of increased operating costs or continuing inflation."

OTHER LANDLORDS are less equivocal, saying only that they will raise the rent because it's too low, hasn't been upped in more than a year, because business is business, not charity. Many give no explanation.

And if a reporter calls, many landlords just hang up. The tenants tell their story, though. A Santa Barbara woman who shares a two-bedroom apartment with her daughter said her rent went up $50 a month last year and was raised another $50 after Proposition 13 passed.

"I CALLED THE landlady and asked her about the latest raise," the woman explained, "and she said that what she was charging is market value. So few places allow children so moving isn't easy. Is there no compassion?"

In a Van Nuys apartment, 54 tenants had their rents raised $95 per month, rents were up $25 per month at another 15-unit complex and at one Buena Park building rents jumped as much as $35.

In Anaheim, rent went up $45 a month at a complex of about 200 units. Like the other rent hikes, this came after Proposition 13 was approved.

"SOMEBODY BOUGHT the place," said tenant Ralph Piercy. "I thought maybe they wouldn't raise the rent because of Proposition 13, but they did."

The sale of rental property is the biggest single reason for rent increases. When a building is sold it must be appraised at current market value, not at the substantially cheaper 1975-76 levels Proposition 13 resurrected.

However the new property tax would still represent a savings for landlords under Proposition 13 in that it would be limited to 1 percent of the appraised value and subsequent increases in assessments would be limited to only 2 percent a year.

PBC3 Property taxes used to account for about 20 percent or about $50 of a typical $850-a-month rent, apartment owners groups have said. Under Proposition 13, however, that $50 should drop to about $20, unless other costs increase dramatically.

But many landlords hesitate to cut back because it might decrease the value of the property. If they are contemplating selling apartments, a buyer would be attracted to a place that collects higher rents and more income.

Huntington Schools Spend to Avoid Cut

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Huntington Beach Union High School District has spent some $3 million in carryover reserve funds in recent weeks to avoid a reduction of state aid Proposition 13 "bailout" money.

The state aid. Saddleback Valley Unified School District officials last week reported hurry-up spending of $750,000 to deplete reserves, paying off long-term contracts, to avoid similar forfeits.

Other coastal Orange County school districts have reported budget reserves of less than five percent of their total budgets — the cut-off point for the aid penalty rule.

The state "bailout" measure cuts allocated aid to individual school districts by one-third of the total the districts have left in reserves above five percent of the budget income.

During the past few weeks, school district officials began paying off lease purchases and other long-term financial commitments, to deplete the reserve.

At stake in the money shuffle is about $900,000 of the estimated $18 million the district is to receive in state emergency aid.

'Fat' May Be in Fire

Huntington Council to Scuttle Budget?

Final adoption of a $57.6 million Huntington Beach city budget may be scuttled tonight by City Council members who believe there is too much fat in government operations.

And Bob Mandic says that he is not keen on the spending but hasn't decided which way to vote "because I am not sure what the alternatives will be."

not expected to be present. Last Wednesday Council members gave temporary approval to the budget that is $1.7 million higher than last year despite passage of Proposition 13.

The general fund portion of the budget, which relies on local taxes and offers direct services to citizens, is $32.6 million. The general fund budget in 1977-78 was $30.9 million.

The City Council previously approved raising more than $3 million in revenue by increasing charges on oil operations and imposing a community enrichment tax and other user fees.

Mayor Pro Tempore Richard Siebert and Councilwoman Ruth Bailey said today that they will vote against the budget proposal.

Four affirmative votes are required but they may be hard to come by because Mayor Ron Shenkman is on vacation and is not expected to be present. Last Wednesday Council members gave temporary approval to the budget that is $1.7 million higher than last year despite passage of Proposition 13.

The City Council previously approved raising more than $3 million in revenue by increasing charges on oil operations and imposing a community enrichment tax and other user fees.

Officials said they plan to maintain a $2 million reserve. "We couldn't have used the money for our general fund next year, so we freed up the payment money and saved the interest," said school board President Zita Wessa.

HB Visitor Saved From Drowning

A Pico Rivera youth who was plucked from a rip current off Huntington State Beach Sunday remained hospitalized today following his dramatic sea rescue.

David Hathaway, 20, was delivered to the Orange County Harbor Department dock in Newport Beach by the Huntington State Beach Lifeguard Department rescue boat Surf Watch.

The vessel sped at up to 30 knots en route, with a brief and unusual stopover at the Newport Pier, where Newport Beach Fire Department paramedics Don Gray and Mike Miller leaped aboard.

Authorities said Hathaway was in such serious condition it was necessary to get sophisticated medical care immediately.

Hathaway was listed in fair condition today at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, where he was taken by ambulance upon arrival at the Harbor Department dock.

State Beach lifeguards said Hathaway became trapped in a rip current about 3 p.m. and was carried about 75 yards offshore before being rescued by the boat crew.

Purse Snatchers Pegged

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Witnesses said it was dark at 8:10 p.m. Feb. 20, but there was enough light in the parking lot outside Reubens restaurant in the Laguna Hills Mall to see that the blond teen-ager wore no shoes.

He appeared from nowhere, gliding silently up behind three people approaching their car after dinner and a turn around the shopping center.

Mrs. Helene Cooper, 71, and her husband Sampson were showing their friend, Mrs. Bernice Weiner of Lake Tahoe, the areas surrounding their Leisure World home.

The mood was relaxed except for conversation about a poor meal at the restaurant — the only poor meal the couple had ever gotten at one of their favorite eating spots.

Mrs. Cooper felt her purse move. She looked down as the strap slipped from her shoulder and hung up on her elbow. She lost her balance, felt a hard push on her shoulder and reeled awkwardly, hitting hard against the black asphalt.

She felt no pain — at first.

With Sampson Cooper in pursuit, the teen-ager ran toward a car with a vague figure hunched behind its wheel. Mrs. Cooper remembers calling for her husband to stop.

"He's 74 years old, you know."

The car, the teen-ager and the purse — containing credit cards, driver's license, a checkbook, $64 in cash "and everything else a woman carries in her bag" — were gone in the roar of a motor and a stream of exhaust.

Then the pain began.

Mrs. Cooper would spend the next 10 days in a hospital bed and the following six weeks recuperating at home with a broken pelvis and a bruised arm that is still tender.

She was the sixth and last purse-snatch victim at the mall in a nine-month-long series of hit and run crimes against older women who are considered easy targets for fast-moving purse grabbers.

"He was experienced," Mrs. Cooper surmised of the youth who glided silently up behind her on bare feet and made off with her shoulder bag.

"He slipped the strap off, and I didn't even feel him touch me. It wasn't until I looked down and the bag caught that he shoved me."

The youth, Daniel Gary Stock, 19, of Mission Viejo eventually admitted the theft and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

He confided while in jail that he had lost his job because of an argument with his boss, a veterinarian, and was desperate for some "quick" money.

Stock, in trouble with authorities since he was 14 years old, said a friend told how easy purse-snatching was, that it paid well and had a low-capture-risk. He said he decided to "do an old lady, because she wouldn't run after me and might not remember what I look like," probation authorities reported later.

Young Stock was right. Mrs. Cooper couldn't identify her assailant. It all happened too quickly, the push, the fall, the surprise at finding herself flat on her back in a parking lot.

But witnesses saw the incident and described the getaway car, complete with license number.

The conviction of veterinary assistant Gary Stock and the subsequent arrest of another youth who allegedly preyed on older women at the mall has ended the plague of incidents that kept Orange County Sheriff's investigator Rich Matura busy for months trying to piece together patterns in search of youths who prey on oldsters.

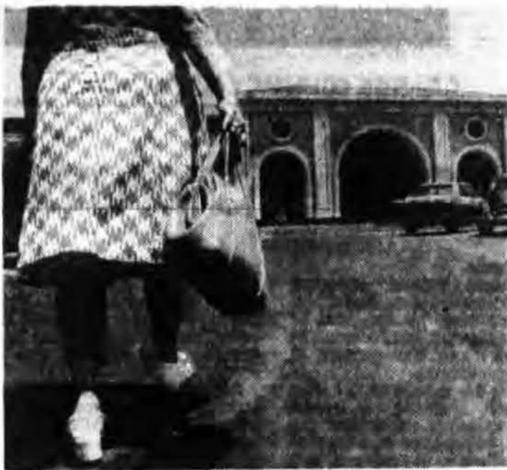

Because of its proximity to the Leisure World retirement community, the Laguna Hills Mall and its environs are considered good hunting grounds for purse snatchers. Some have been known to reach out from moving cars to pull in a purse and speed from the scene, leaving their victims shaken and confused.

And men aren't entirely safe. Sheriff's investigators recall an incident in recent years in which an elderly gentleman was leaving a bank. He carried a money sack.

A hit-and-run expert shoved him, grabbed the bag and escaped easily in the confusion.

But the snatcher got only four savings account books. The man had deposited his cash.

Compared to most cities, the growing Laguna Hills area — especially the walled retirement community of

INVITING TARGET FOR CASH-HUNGRY YOUTHS

Leisure World — is considered a low-crime area.

Purse snatching is the obvious exception.

Costa Mesa police, for instance, report that over the same nine-month period during which Laguna Hills was plagued, only three such crimes were reported at the larger, busier South Coast Plaza.

Newport Beach investigators say only two purse snatchings occurred during that time at Fashion Island — primarily, they say, because of a Christmastime crackdown on parking lot crime.

Generally, experienced purse snatchers gear their operations to the first week of the month, investigators report. Social Security checks are received on either the first or third of each month, and the target is "fat."

A Santa Ana Social Security worker agreed. "During that first week, many of our recipients have their checks taken from them in that manner."

Speed, surprise and shock are the weapons used by the snatcher, law enforcement officers say. Their advice: get go of the purse as quickly as possible, try to get a good look at the assailant and scream.

Screams, said a sheriff's investigator, attract attention. Usually, witnesses other than the victim identify a criminal when he finally is caught.

"The victim is just trying to keep from falling or is trying to hang on to her valuables. Most of these older women live on relatively fixed incomes. The contents of their purses are very important to them."

Mrs. Cooper says she gladly would have let her assailant have her purse. "But I didn't even hear him. He moved so silently, and from behind."

Physically, Mrs. Cooper is mending well, she says. Her pelvis was broken cleanly — in a straight line.

One probation officer might consider the former World Book Encyclopedia sales manager, who retired to Leisure World nearly 10 years ago, fortunate.

She had predicted Mrs. Cooper might suffer permanent disability as the result of her injuries.

"It has been observed in the course of limited personal geriatric study that such injuries often initiate the onset of a physical decline, resulting in premature death within two years in the elderly," the officer wrote.

And the attack that often results in falls for older women leaves more than physical scars.

"I don't think the watching over my shoulder will ever pass," says Mrs. Cooper. "It has left me with this sense of insecurity. Sam always walks beside me now. He doesn't wander off ahead."

"And I hang onto my purse like it is part of my skin. It's funny. I never was afraid of anything before. I was always very, very open...."

large reserves. This year, according to Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for business affairs, there are an estimated $6.5 million in uncommitted reserve funds.

That's 9.3 percent of the total $70 million budget.

Thompson said the district probably will end up having to apply $2 million of its reserves against state bailout money, reducing by more than half the estimated $3.5 million previously scheduled for the district purse.

Thompson said exact figures aren't available because the district budget still is being calculated.

He claimed the community college district has done no quick spending to gain more state aid.

"If you're asking me if we've gone out to buy a computer or something, the answer is no," Thompson said.

Fountain Valley (elementary) School District officials reported they have no reserve, and only $339,153 in their 1977-78 ending balance.

Jack Mahnken, assistant superintendent, said there was no last-minute spending.

Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District reported similarly. The district's $513,000 in reserves is under the five percent line, according to Superintendent S.A. Moffett.

Huntington Beach's Ocean View School District, largest elementary system in Orange County, reported a tentative 4.6 percent reserve of $914,220 in a $20 million budget.

Neel Schmitt, director of fiscal services, said there was no quick spending. "We didn't find it necessary," he said.

Roy Barletta, business manager at Saddleback College, said he anticipates no penalty because his district's reserves will be under five percent.

The reserve is $800,000, in a budget of $21 million. Barletta said there's an additional $4 million in carryover funds not affected by the reserve rule, because they already are committed to construction projects.

Barletta said the projects were scheduled before Proposition 13 became a factor.

"We barely made it," said Sam Chicas, assistant superintendent of the Capistrano Unified School District.

Chicas said his district recorded a $1.4 million starting reserve, out of a total revenue of about $29 million, a 4.8 percent reserve.

Irvine Unified School District came in even closer to the limit. Business Superintendent Gene Hartline reported a $1.2 million reserve, of a $24.8 million budget — 4.97 percent.

Four Kids Stabbed By Mom

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Four young children were stabbed to death in their home here, and their mother was charged in the killings, police say.

Detectives said they found the bloodied bodies of the children in their apartment late Sunday night after being called to the scene by a neighbor who had heard "noises from upstairs."

Police identified the children as Kyria Trait, 8, her sisters, Amina, 6, and Inez, 4, and her 2-year-old brother, Demario.

The mother, Gail, 26, was covered with blood and taken to a local hospital, but she was not injured, police said. Authorities said that after several hours of questioning, Mrs. Trait was charged with four counts of second degree murder.

"We don't really know why she did it," said police Lt. John Rooney, "but family members told us she thought she was under a voodoo curse."

But Leo J. Donovan, chief of homicide, described the report of a voodoo curse as unfounded.

"So far we have no motive," he said. "All we now is there are four children dead."

At Mrs. Trait's arraignment today, Buffalo City Court Judge Alois Mazur advised her of her rights and the charges.

"Did you understand anything I said to you? Did you hear me?" he asked.

Mrs. Trait did not respond, and Mazur ordered her held without bail for a psychiatric examination.

Authorities said Mrs. Trait and her husband, Charles, had been separated for about two years.

Huntington Woman, Two More Robbed

Three women leaving a Costa Mesa bar early Sunday were accosted in the parking lot by a man who took their purses containing credit cards and a total of $145 in cash, police said today.

One of the victims of the strong arm robbery, Edith Helen Hayden, 40, of Huntington Beach, was slightly injured when the man struck her over the left eye with her purse during the brief struggle.

Police said the robbery occurred shortly before 2 a.m. in the parking lot near Sargent's Bar, 843 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa.

The women told police a black man wearing a blue and white bandana over his bushy afro approached them and announced, "This is a holdup."

Also victimized by the robber were Joan Robinson, 49, of Huntington Beach and Virginia May Romano, 40, of Santa Ana.

After grabbing the purses, the man fled on foot. A male witness chased him but was unable to keep up with the fleeing suspect, police said.

The robber, described as about six feet tall and in his mid-20s, did not display a weapon, police said.

EL CAJON (AP) — Arson is suspected in a $114,000 fire that destroyed the New Life Center Church early Sunday. There were no injuries.

Soviets Plan More Flights

MOSCOW (AP) — Despite the strain on U.S.-Soviet ties from the dissident trials, Moscow has proposed more joint space flights.

Cosmonaut Valery Kubasov, who took part in the first joint flight in 1975, said in a Tass interview that more joint missions would benefit both countries. He suggested joint missions to the Soviet Salyut space stations and American space shuttles.

Tass published the interview to mark the third anniversary of the Apollo-Soyuz flight.

Choppers Shot

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Soviet artillery shot down two Iranian army helicopters that strayed across the border in a heavy fog June 21, killing all the men aboard one of the aircraft, the official Iranian news agency Pars disclosed today.

From Page A1 BUDGET...

Under the proposed spending plan, there would be no cuts in the police department. Three positions would be eliminated in the fire department.

Both departments would receive more money than they did last year.

Siebert said today that he knows there is fat in the higher echelons of city government and none of it has been trimmed.

"All we have done is to impose a freeze on hiring and salaries and cut about 25 permanent people from the public works department," he said.

Mrs. Bailey said that she is "really unhappy."

"We didn't cut anything. I don't see how we can justify a $2 million increase in light of Proposition 13."

She said that she wouldn't vote for a budget until studies are made to consolidate city services and to reorganize administrative and supervisory personnel.

On the other hand, Councilman Don MacAllister said that he sees no problems with the proposed budget.

He said that a 10 to 12 percent reduction in spending has been made when considering inflation factors.

Only about 25 permanent city employees are not funded in the budget.

The council will deliberate at 7:30 o'clock in City Council chambers.

Brooke, Wife, End 31 Years

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The 31-year marriage of Sen. Edward W. Brooke, 56 and his estranged wife, Remigia, has ended after a long, harrowing divorce case when a probate judge accepted the couple's latest property settlement.

Brooke, a Massachusetts Republican, said as he emerged from the courtroom, "I am pleased that my personal and family ordeal has been resolved."

Coastal Food Poison Case Still Mystery

Puzzled State Health Department officials said today they have no idea what caused a food poisoning attack that hospitalized a Newport Beach man last week.

The 36-year-old man was originally thought to have been suffering from botulism, but Dr. Ben Warner, the state's chief epidemiologist, today said all tests of the victim's blood and the water chestnuts suspected of being tainted have proved negative.

"Frankly, we have no idea what the toxin is that would have produced the symptoms suffered by the patient," he said. He said no further tests are anticipated in the case.

Warner said the water chestnuts, imported from Taiwan, will not be removed from market shelves.

The patient, whose identity has not been revealed, was released from Hoag Memorial Hospital Friday after spending the first two days of his hospital stay in the intensive care unit.

Kris' Aide Faces Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-singer Kris Kristofferson's road manager, Cleveland Dupin, has been booked for investigation of drug possession, say sheriff's officials.

The 33-year-old South Laguna man, of 31833 Florence Ave., was booked at the West Hollywood sheriff's substation after narcotics officers, carrying a search warrant, entered his West Hollywood hotel room and arrested him Friday night, said sheriff's Lt. Howard Walk. He was later released on $1,500 bail, said Walk.

Sheriff's deputies said narcotics officers allegedly found about $800 worth of cocaine and marijuana in the room.

Police cordoned off the parking lot surrounding the restaurant. A dozen officers walked shoulder-to-shoulder to search the parking lot, but they found only a handful of coins, which they believe the robbers may have dropped after leaving through a rear door.

Mundy said each victim had been shot in the head with a small caliber weapon and that as many as 20 shots may have been fired.

Maintenance To Merge?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report recommends that the Army, Navy and Air Force consolidate their aircraft maintenance activities, which cost $2 billion annually.

The General Accounting Office said placing a single manager over aircraft maintenance would reduce duplication, increase efficiency and save money. The report did not offer an estimate of the projected savings.

Victims of Purse Snatchers

Older Women Easy Crime Targets

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Witnesses said it was dark at 8:10 p.m. Feb. 20, but there was enough light in the parking lot outside Reubens restaurant in the Laguna Hills Mall to see that the blond teen-ager wore no shoes.

He appeared from nowhere, gliding silently up behind three people approaching their car after dinner and a turn around the shopping center.

Mrs. Helene Cooper, 71, and her husband Sampson were showing their friend, Mrs. Bernice Weiner of Lake Tahoe, the areas surrounding their Leisure World home.

The mood was relaxed except for conversation about a poor meal at the restaurant — the only poor meal the couple had ever gotten at one of their favorite eating spots.

Mrs. Cooper felt her purse move. She looked down as the strap slipped from her shoulder and hung up on her elbow. She lost her balance, felt a hard push on her shoulder and reeled awkwardly, hitting hard against the black asphalt.

She felt no pain — at first. With Sampson Cooper in pursuit, the teen-ager ran toward a car with a vague figure hunched behind its wheel. Mrs. Cooper remembers calling for her husband to stop.

"He's 74 years old, you know." The car, the teen-ager and the purse containing credit cards, driver's license, a checkbook, $64 in cash "and everything else a woman carries in her bag" — were gone in the roar of a motor and a stream of exhaust.

Then the pain began. Mrs. Cooper would spend the next 10 days in a hospital bed and the following six weeks recuperating at home with a broken pelvis and a bruised arm that is still tender.

She was the sixth and last purse-snatch victim at the mall in a nine-month-long series of hit and run crimes against older women who are considered easy targets for fast-moving purse grabbers.

"He was experienced," Mrs. Cooper surmised of the youth who glided silently up behind her on bare feet and made off with her shoulder bag.

"He slipped the strap off, and I didn't even feel him touch me. It wasn't until I looked down and the bag caught that he shoved me."

Economy Eyed

Carter Pledges Spending Cuts

BONN, West Germany (AP)

President Carter and the leaders of six other major non-Communist nations reached agreement at the economic summit conference today on tactics they hope will speed world economic growth and cut oil imports.

Their plan includes increased Japanese and West German growth, and a slower U.S. growth rate of about 4 percent, the 1978 figure already forecast by the Carter administration.

Carter told the other leaders that his administration would cut taxes and spending in the next two fiscal years — a pledge he has made frequently at home and would raise U.S. oil prices to world levels by 1980.

However, it was not immediately clear how the oil price increase would be achieved.

Current price controls expire in 1979 but could, under present law, be extended to 1981. The current price of U.S. oil ranges from $5.23 a barrel to $11.75 a barrel. The world price is approximately $13.50.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, discussing agreements before they were unveiled, described them as a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

The economic summit's communiqué, to be issued after the final session this afternoon, was expected to include specific targets for economic growth, employment, and inflation in each of the seven participating nations.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said West Germany had agreed to take action increasing its economic growth by the end of August. But they reported that West German (See SUMMIT, Page A2)

Youth Cheats Injuries in Cove Plunge

A Garden Grove youth who plunged 25 feet off the rocks near the Newport Harbor entrance into four feet of water this weekend suffered nothing more than a neck strain, according to police reports.

Police said they were uncertain whether Jason Matthew Lapan, 18, leaped or fell in the Friday afternoon incident reported from Pirate's Cove, adjacent to the Corona del Mar main beach.

After hitting the water, witnesses said the young man walked to shore and collapsed.

Paramedics and lifeguards rushed Lapan to Hoag Memorial Hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as "cervical strain," according to the police report.

The incident was the most serious to precede the weekend that lifeguards said was unaccountably quiet considering the summer heat and smog.

Lt. Logan Lockabey said 85,000 visitors came to Newport's beaches Saturday and 95,000 came on Sunday. There were a total of 229 people rescued.

Lockabey said there were no major problems.

"We were surprised that there weren't more people here," he commented. "The people who did come stayed much later than usual, though."

Dayan Meets Egypt Aides in London

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan flew to London today for face-to-face talks with his Egyptian counterpart and told reporters in a troop-ringed airport lounge he hopes broader peace negotiations can resume within two weeks. (Related story Page A4.)

Dayan added, however, that the two days of meetings scheduled to begin Tuesday in a storybook castle in the English countryside will get down to "basic issues." These discussions are not going to be talks about talks.

Egypt's foreign minister, Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel, was on his way from Cairo, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, host of the two-day meeting, was due to arrive later from the economic summit conference in Bonn, West Germany.

U.S. and British security agents sealed off the site of the meeting at the 9th-century Leeds Castle, 45 miles southeast of London.

The talks had been scheduled for the Churchill Hotel in London's Mayfair district. They were switched to the isolated, turreted fortress as a precaution against attacks by Arab terrorists who oppose peace with Israel. The Churchill was the target of an Irish terrorist attack in December 1974.

The three participants, who were expected to meet informally tonight, will try to lay the groundwork for resuming full-scale Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

They were to be taken by helicopter to the castle, built on two small islands in a 20-acre lake and accessible only by air or a drawbridge causeway.

Police sealed off the 485-acre park around the lake Sunday and special communications were installed for the delegations.

Pharaoh Fight Beach Boys Outdraw King Tut

SEATTLE (AP) — King Tutankhamun went up against the Beach Boys in Seattle. The surfers won.

Authorities said a concert by the rock group attracted larger crowds Sunday that the first public showing in Seattle of artifacts from the Egyptian king's tomb.

"It's dead," said John Pugel, one of several people selling programs for the Tut exhibit at the Seattle Art Museum.

The estimated 3,000 people who arrived early for the Tut show got their tickets within an hour, and by 8:30 a.m., the 200-yard-long line had dissipated.

But authorities said morning crowds for the Beach Boy rock concert in an adjoining stadium outnumbered the Tut crowd several times over.

The Huntington Beach Union High School District has spent some $3 million in carryover reserve funds in recent weeks to avoid a reduction of state aid Proposition 13 "bailout" money.

Because it also has maintained large reserves, the Coast Community College District may receive $2 million less of the state aid.

Saddleback Valley Unified School District officials last week reported hurry-up spending of $750,000 to deplete reserves, paying off long-term contracts, to avoid similar forfeits.

Other coastal Orange County school districts have reported budget reserves of less than five percent of their total budgets — the cut-off point for the aid penalty rule.

The state "bailout" measure cuts allocated aid to individual school districts by one-third of the total the districts have left in reserves above five percent of the budget income.

Prior to passage of the measure, Huntington Beach school officials estimated the district would have 10.9 percent — $5 million — in reserves, in a total 1978-79 budget of $46 million.

During the past few weeks, school district officials began paying off lease purchases and other long-term financial commitments, to deplete the reserve.

Advance payments were made on the district's seven-year computer financing program, and a lease-option on air conditioners at newly built Ocean View High School, among others.

At stake in the money shuffle is about $900,000 of the estimated $18 million the district is to receive in state emergency aid.

By cutting back the reserve to at least $2.3 million — the 5 percent level — the district is protecting the whole pot.

Officials said they plan to maintain a $2 million reserve.

"We couldn't have used the money for our general fund next year, so we freed up the payment money and saved the interest," said school board President Zita Wessa.

2 Waders Save Irvine Boy in Lake

A 3-year-old Irvine boy was saved from drowning in Woodbridge Lake Sunday when two other children wading in shallow, clouded water stepped on him, pulled him out and yelled for help.

The boy, Christopher Carlin of 17 Woodhollow, was unconscious and had stopped breathing when the children Kelly-Malott, 8, and Tammy Vaughn, 7, a Woodbridge resident found him.

A Woodbridge Lake lifeguard, Cheryl Auchmoody, and an off-duty sheriff's deputy, Bruce MacAfee, resuscitated the child.

He still was unconscious when county paramedics took him to Tustin Community Hospital. Fire Capt. Marc Higgins said, "He was spitting up a lot of water — lots and lots of water."

He was reported in good condition today at Children's Hospital of Orange County, where he later was transferred after doctors revived him.

Irvine police said the boy had wandered from his mother into the water unseen, slipped under the surface and began to drown in about three feet of water.

The wading girls happened upon him by chance, police said, with the murky water obscuring his form.

Irvine Street Widening Plans Aired

Irvine Mayor Bill Vardoulis has called a special meeting of the City Council to hear objections of College Park residents to a proposed widening of a section of Harvard Avenue for a parking lot.

The lot would serve Harvard Athletic Park.

Residents, who have formed a committee to oppose the action, fear the action is the first step toward a general widening of the road, with increased traffic.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. at city hall, 17200 Jamboree Blvd.

It apparently will pre-empt a meeting among the homeowners and city staff, which had been scheduled for 7:30 tonight.

Councilman Larry Agran is siding with the residents. He said, "We're really building four more lanes of road which, on a temporary basis, are going to be used as a parking lot."

Jarvis Jury Asks Repeat Of Testimony

OXNARD (AP) The jury in tax reformer Howard Jarvis' drunken driving trial returned to their deliberations today and quickly sent word they want to hear some testimony again.

The seven men and five women, who were unable to reach a verdict in 4½ hours of deliberation Friday, asked for a re-reading of the testimony of the sheriff's deputy.

Deputy Michael Kipp was the key prosecution witness in the one-week trial of Jarvis, the 75-year-old crusader who co-authored Proposition 13 tax cut bill.

Kipp alleged Jarvis was intoxicated when he was spotted weaving his car from lane to lane after midnight.

The deputy said Jarvis failed roadside sobriety tests — he didn't walk a straight line and couldn't recite the alphabet.

Jarvis was the defense's star witness, testifying he wasn't drunk and was driving erratically because he thought the pursuing sheriff's car was a political enemy chasing him.

Trustees Eye More Cuts For Budget

Capistrano Unified School District trustees will continue discussions tonight aimed at cutting another $2.5 million from post Proposition 13 budget figures.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the district's education center, 32972 Calle Perfecto, in San Juan Capistrano.

Trustees pared $1.1 million last week from a proposed $35 million 1978-79 school year budget.

Items that remain to be considered for cuts include school athletic, transportation and counseling services.

Superintendent Jerome Thornsley has recommended a 25 percent reduction in Senior and Junior High School athletic programs.

Sparks Return Hit in Laguna

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Several Laguna Beach businessmen, seeking the ouster of Police Chief Jon Sparks, were called in to meet with new City Manager Fred Solomon today at city hall.

They left an hour later, with one of the businessmen saying he was disappointed with Solomon's decision to retain the police chief, suspended earlier this month after a bar fight in which Sparks allegedly punched a fellow bar patron in the face.

"I think the wrong decision has been made in regard to Sparks' reinstatement as chief," said an angry Joel Snyder, operator of Snyder's Cleaners in Laguna Beach.

The 33-year-old businessman, whose brother is a Laguna Beach police officer, said he began last Friday making calls to gather support for a petition drive calling for the resignation of Chief Sparks.

City Manager Solomon called for the meeting with Snyder and seven other local businessmen today, apparently after hearing of the group's plan to seek public support for Sparks' resignation.

Solomon said he was not reached for comment, but Snyder said the city manager outlined the reasons for his decision in the hour-long meeting.

"I'm damn well mad," Snyder said after the meeting. "It's being handled from a political ad."

Archives

Gets Nixon Documents

WASHINGTON (AP) All the tape recordings and documents used in the Watergate prosecutions of former President Nixon's top aides have been turned over to the National Archives for eventual public scrutiny.

But it may take some time before the public has an opportunity to listen to the tapes or view the documents, an archives official said today.

The archives is still in a lawsuit with Nixon and is still processing and cataloging the materials turned over by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided at most of the trials.

After a recent Supreme Court ruling that the courts should not be charged with responsibility for deciding what materials should be released, Archivist James B. Rhoads petitioned Sirica for release of the materials to the archives.

On July 6, Sirica issued an order saying that all original and duplicate materials in his custody should be turned over. After a brief, unpublished hearing last week, he ruled that the step be carried out at once.

"We then went to the vault and the clerk of the court turned over to us all the materials that had been used in the trials," Richard Jacobs, acting director of the Nixon materials project of the archives, told a reporter.

EASY TARGETS...

The youth, Daniel Gary Stock, 19, of Mission Viejo eventually admitted the theft and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

He confided while in jail that he had lost his job because of an argument with his boss, a veterinarian, and was desperate for some "quick" money.

Stock, in trouble with authorities since he was 14 years old, said a friend told how easy purse-snatching was, that it paid well and had a low capture-risk. He said he decided to "do an old lady, because she wouldn't run after me and might not remember what I look like," probation authorities reported later.

Young Stock was right. Mrs. Cooper couldn't identify her assailant. It all happened too quickly, the push, the fall, the surprise at finding herself flat on her back in a parking lot.

But witnesses saw the incident and described the getaway car, complete with license number.

The conviction of veterinary assistant Gary Stock and the subsequent arrest of another youth who allegedly preyed on older women at the mall has ended the plague of incidents that kept Orange County Sheriff's investigator Rich Matura busy for months trying to piece together patterns in search of youths who prey on oldsters.

Because of its proximity to the Leisure World retirement community, the Laguna Hills Mall and its environs are considered good hunting grounds for purse snatchers. Some have been known to reach out from moving cars to pull in a purse and speed from the scene, leaving their victim shaken and confused.

And men aren't entirely safe. Sheriff's investigators recall an incident in recent years in which an elderly gentleman was leaving a bank. He carried a money sack.

A hit-and-run expert shoved him, grabbed the bag and escaped easily in the confusion.

But the snatcher got only four savings account books. The man had deposited his cash.

Compared to most cities, the growing Laguna Hills area — especially the walled retirement community of Leisure World — is considered a low-crime area.

Purse snatching is the obvious exception. Costa Mesa police, for instance, report that over the same nine-month period during which Laguna Hills was plagued, only three such crimes were reported at the larger, busier South Coast Plaza.

Newport Beach investigators say only two purse snatchings occurred during that time at Fashion Island primarily, they say, because of a Christmastime crackdown on parking lot crime.

Generally, experienced purse snatchers gear their operations to the first week of the month, investigators report. Social Security checks are received on either the first or third of each month, and the target is "fat."

A Santa Ana Social Security worker agreed. "During that first week, many of our recipients have their checks taken from them in that manner."

Speed, surprise and shock are the weapons used by the snatcher, law enforcement officers say. Their advice: let go of the purse as quickly as possible, try to get a good look at the assailant and scream.

Screams, said a sheriff's investigator, attract attention. Usually, witnesses other than the victim identify a criminal when he finally is caught.

"The victim is just trying to keep from falling or is trying to hang on to her valuables. Most of these older women live on relatively fixed incomes. The contents of their purses are very important to them."

Mrs. Cooper says she gladly would have let her assailant have her purse. "But I didn't even hear him. He moved so silently, and from behind."

Physically, Mrs. Cooper is mending well, she says. Her pelvis was broken cleanly in a straight line.

One probation officer might consider the former World Book Encyclopedia sales manager, who retired to Leisure World nearly 10 years ago, fortunate.

She had predicted Mrs. Cooper might suffer permanent disability as the result of her injuries.

"It has been observed in the course of limited personal geriatric study that such injuries often initiate the onset of a physical decline, resulting in premature death within two years in the elderly," the officer wrote.

And the attack that often results in falls for older women leaves more than physical scars.

"I don't think the watching over my shoulder will ever pass," says Mrs. Cooper. "It has left me with this sense of insecurity. Sam always walks beside me now. He doesn't wander off ahead."

"And I hang onto my purse like it is part of my skin. It's funny. I never was afraid of anything before. I was always very, very open..."

ministrative point of view, and it certainly doesn't reflect the feeling of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association, or the majority of residents and businessmen in this city."

Snyder, who has operated the cleaners on Gleneyre Street for the past 17 years, said he has nothing personal against Chief Sparks.

"But this thing is tearing the community apart and it won't end until he resigns," Snyder said.

Snyder said he did not know how the petition drive is going, but said he expects to hand in the signatures to the City Council Thursday night.

The petition reads in part, "We the residents and merchants of Laguna Beach are in full support of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association in urging that Jon J. Sparks resign from his position as Chief of Police in the best interest of our community."

The police association last week wrote a letter to Sparks urging that he step down.

"What really burns me up," Snyder said, "is that the city manager is setting a double standard if the people in Sparks' department had pulled something like this (the bar fight) they would have been fired."

"The man has no credibility or respect from his own department."

When asked about a previous petition drive in support of the then-suspended police chief, Snyder said he did not feel the petition "reflected the feeling of the broad majority of Laguna Beach citizens."

More than 1,500 signatures were obtained in the previous petition drive, headed by Laguna Beach realtor Jay Murley. That petition lauded Sparks' past efforts as chief, and called for his reinstatement.

Thief Gets Purse From Store Clerk

A sales clerk at the Tucker Bag, 295 Forest Ave., told police someone stole her purse containing more than $1,000 in jewelry sometime Saturday.

Peggy Evelyn Mulvey, of Laguna Beach, said she last saw the purse in an unlocked cabinet at the store. The purse contained several watches, and rings, valued at $1,000.

7 Seeking Positions On Laguna Board

Laguna Beach city councilmen will interview seven people seeking positions on the city's Planning Commission and Board of Adjustment when it meets Tuesday at 6 p.m. in council chambers.

Architect Daniel McMann, whose term on the Planning Commission expired at the end of last month, is seeking another four-year term on the commission.

His seat, and that of former Planning Commissioner Betty Freeman, are currently vacant. Also seeking one of the two seats is Arthur Casebeer, a retired Lockheed California Company manager; Maggie Meggs, former City Council candidate and housewife, H.L. Hampton, an environmental science instructor at Fullerton College; Ronnie Rogers, Avco Coastal Properties director; and Adena Gay, former council candidate and advertising company owner.

Michael Chambers, an architect, is seeking a seat on the Board of Adjustment. Meggs, Hampton, Rogers and Gay also have expressed an interest in that position, should they not be selected to the Planning Commission.

Laguna Says One Taxi Firm Enough

Checker Cab operators say there's not enough room in town for two taxi companies.

And the majority of the Laguna Beach City Council agreed recently, after hearing what one councilman described as "horror stories" regarding Yellow Cab and the local Checker Cab Company.

The issue arose at a City Council meeting when Rick Scott, manager of Checker Cab, appealed an earlier decision by city administrators that allowed rival Yellow Cab to operate within the Art Colony.

Checker Cab, operated by bail bondsman Ronald Kaufman, has been operating in the city for the past year, having purchased Courtesy Cab Company from Arthur Flores.

Flores was back this month, seeking to operate a new Yellow Cab franchise in Laguna Beach.

But Checker's manager Scott lambasted Flores' former operation, calling his cabs "similar to those you might find in an auto salvage yard."

He said the physical appearance of Flores' cabs were so bad, "people at times were afraid to enter them fearing the cab might break down."

Scott said his information was accurate. "I used to drive one of the junk heaps he calls taxicabs."

But Flores brought his own "horror stories" to the council in the form of a witness.

A woman said she called Checker to deliver her children from Top of the World school to the Boys Club, but found out when she returned home the taxi had not arrived.

Her twin second-graders had to walk three quarters of a mile home alone, she said, and break into the house.

She also criticized Checker's rates, saying she called to find out how much it would cost to take a cab to Orange County Airport from Laguna.

"I was told $20, which is ridiculous," the woman said, adding that Flores' outfit offered to come from El Toro, drive her to the airport for only $11.

"I think there's a need for an alternative taxi service, just like there's a choice between grocery stores and service stations," she said.

But councilmen with the exception of Mayor Jack McDowell and Councilman Kelly Boyd — voted to keep Laguna a one-taxi firm town.

The council vote came after Checker Cab's Scott said his company is having enough trouble breaking even without the competition.

"They (Checker) have only been in town a year, and other sources say they appear to be going in the right direction," said Councilman Wayne Baglin. "I don't think we should jeopardize their chances by allowing Yellow Cab in."

Officers were called to the sumptuous Boyd Jefferies home at 100 Rockledge by a neighbor who became suspicious of the trio.

When officers Fred Martino, Greg Bartz and Jerry Linenkuhl arrived, they said then spotted the three teens hiding near a sliding glass door.

Arrested was James Edward Butler, 19, of 735 Paularino Ave., Costa Mesa. Also detained were two 16-year-old Costa Mesa youths.

Gunmen Slay 6 Workers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Six workers closing a steakhouse for the night were murdered by robbers who forced them at gunpoint into a walk-in freezer, then shot each of them through the head, authorities said today. Four of the victims were teen-agers.

Police said more than $1,000 was missing from the restaurant's safe.

Investigators said they believe more than one person was involved, but that there were no suspects and few clues in the slayings, which they called the worst mass murder in local memory.

The bodies were found late Sunday night by restaurant manager Mike Chek, 25, who returned to the Sirloin Stockade restaurant in the Southern Hills Shopping Center to determine why the employees had failed to telephone with the nightly cash total.

Police Sgt. Tom Mundy said Chek found the bodies piled in a heap where they had fallen after apparently being executed one-by-one.

The restaurant is near Interstate 240, an Oklahoma City by-pass route. Mundy said the assailants may have selected that restaurant because of its accessibility to the expressway.

Five male workers dead at the scene were identified by police as David Lindsay, 17; David Salzman, 16; Anthony Teu, 17; Isaac E. Freeman, 56, a janitor, and Louis Zacharias, 40, assistant manager.

The sixth person, Terri M Horst, 16, was taken to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head and chest.

She never regained consciousness and died at about 12:15 a.m., Mundy said.

Air Traffic Aids Aliens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service predicts that, within a decade, undocumented aliens from Mexico will be less of a problem in the United States than illegal aliens from other countries.

Leonel J. Castillo told the fourth annual Immigration and Naturalization Symposium here Saturday that decreased international transportation costs are largely responsible for the shift.

"I look for a tremendous increase in air traffic, so we will have a growing problem of 'overstays,' such as Europeans who look like the Americans surrounding them and can melt into the population," Castillo told the 100 lawyers at the meeting sponsored by the Los Angeles County Bar Association.

Victims of Purse Snatchers

Older Women Easy Crime Targets

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Witnesses said it was dark at 8:10 p.m. Feb. 20, but there was enough light in the parking lot outside Reubens restaurant in the Laguna Hills Mall to see that the blond teen-ager wore no shoes.

He appeared from nowhere, gliding silently up behind three people approaching their car after dinner and a turn around the shopping center.

Mrs. Helene Cooper, 71, and her husband Sampson were showing their friend, Mrs. Bernice Weiner of Lake Tahoe, the areas surrounding their Leisure World home.

The mood was relaxed except for conversation about a poor meal at the restaurant — the only poor meal the couple had ever gotten at one of their favorite eating spots.

Mrs. Cooper felt her purse move. She looked down as the strap slipped from her shoulder and hung up on her elbow. She lost her balance, felt a hard push on her shoulder and reeled awkwardly, hitting hard against the black asphalt.

She felt no pain at first. With Sampson Cooper in pursuit, the teen-ager ran toward a car with a vague figure hunched behind its wheel. Mrs. Cooper remembers calling for her husband to stop.

"He's 74 years old, you know." The car, the teen-ager and the purse — containing credit cards, driver's license, a checkbook, $64 in cash "and everything else a woman carries in her bag" — were gone in the roar of a motor and a stream of exhaust.

Then the pain began.

Mrs. Cooper would spend the next 10 days in a hospital bed and the following six weeks recuperating at home with a broken pelvis and a bruised arm that is still tender.

She was the sixth and last purse-snatch victim at the mall in a nine-month long series of hit and run crimes against older women who are considered easy targets for fast-moving purse grabbers.

"He was experienced," Mrs. Cooper surmised of the youth who glided silently up behind her on bare feet and made off with her shoulder bag.

"He slipped the strap off, and I didn't even feel him touch me. It wasn't until I looked down and the bag caught that he shoved me."

Owner of Newport Hotel Fights City

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Barbara Humphreys, the Balboa Island real estate agent who owns the Palisades Hotel, says Newport Beach city officials are trying to shut her down.

City officials say they're doing nothing of the kind. They just want to find out what's going on in the turn of the century building in old Corona del Mar.

The dispute is over use of seven rooms on the third floor of the building located at Carnation and Sea View avenues. That's the section of the building that Mrs. Humphreys refurbished and is renting on a weekly basis.

The remainder of the building has been operated on a monthly rental basis and Mrs. Humphreys says she intends to keep it that way.

The problem, according to Community Development Director Dick Hogan, is that the zoning for the neighborhood doesn't allow a hotel use.

"The zoning will allow a motel, but a variance must be granted by the city council for such an operation to go into the neighborhood," he said.

Hogan said that at present, the city isn't interfering with the rental of the third floor rooms. "We just want to see what the situation is there so we can discuss this matter intelligently," he said.

Hogan said a member of his staff has been assigned to research the past and present uses of the property, calculate parking spaces and find out where the building's operation conforms to city codes and where it doesn't.

He indicated that he believes Mrs. Humphreys may run into trouble over a lack of parking spaces for her hotel or motel.

"The code requires one space per room," he said.

But Mrs. Humphreys says she doesn't see it that way. She said she believes weekly rentals don't require special treatment.

Mrs. Humphreys says she hasn't decided how to react to the situation.

"First I'm gonna yell and scream," she said.

But Hogan said it's probably premature for the businesswoman to protest.

"At this point, we're just investigating the situation based on some complaints from residents of the neighborhood.

West's Nations Reach Accord on Economics

Japan, Germany To Grow

BONN, West Germany (AP) President Carter and the leaders of six other major non-Communist nations reached agreement at the economic summit conference today on tactics they hope will speed world economic growth and cut oil imports.

Their plan includes increased Japanese and West German growth, and a slower U.S. growth rate of about 4 percent, the 1978 figure already forecast by the Carter administration.

Carter told the other leaders that his administration would cut taxes and spending in the next two fiscal years — a pledge he has made frequently at home and would raise U.S. oil prices to world levels by 1980.

However, it was not immediately clear how the oil price increase would be achieved.

Current price controls expire in 1979 but could, under present law, be extended to 1981. The current price of U.S. oil ranges from $5.23 a barrel to $11.75 a barrel. The world price is approximately $13.50.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, discussing agreements before they were unveiled, described them as a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

The economic summit's communique, to be issued after the final session this afternoon, was expected to include specific targets for economic growth, employment, and inflation in each of the seven participating nations.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said West Germany had agreed to take action increasing its economic growth by the end of August. But they reported that West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had stricken from the draft of a final communique a specific increase of 1 percent beyond the anticipated increase.

That increase was expected to be significantly lower than the 4 percent growth forecast for the

Moves Rile Teachers

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Five teachers at Newport Harbor High have filed grievances with the Newport Mesa Unified School District, claiming they have been placed in a transfer pool while teachers with less experience, or coaching duties, are being retained.

One of the instructors, Mike Marino, has been teaching history for eight years at Harbor High.

He said he has been placed in the transfer pool caused by declining enrollment while his former teaching assistant, a third year instructor who also coaches baseball, is assured a job next fall at Harbor High.

"We feel the school board should know about it," said Marino, who added that he believes his situation is a violation of his contract with the district.

However, district spokeswoman Jean Harmon defended the placement of certain teachers into the transfer or substitute pool today, saying "it's the district's privilege to decide who goes where."

"Because of the fact we are in a declining enrollment situation, the situation is to use the staff to its maximum ability," said Mrs. Harmon.

She said the district is looking for a "combination of skills" from teachers who will remain at Harbor High on a full-time basis. "If we need a coach for 'X' sport, he's also got to be able to teach other classes," she added.

Teachers who have been placed in the so-called "over-staffing pool" will become the first to be selected for full-time openings at other district schools in Fall.

However, some may eventually become full-time floating substitutes. Marino said this would mean "a lot of mighty expensive subs" because these teachers will receive full salaries.

Barbara Block, who has taught home economics at Harbor High for the past 11 years, is another teacher unhappy about her placement in the overstaffing pool.

"It's bad enough to be transferred," she said, noting the uncertainty that faces

Coastal Food Poison Case Still Mystery

Puzzled State Health Department officials said today they have no idea what caused a food poisoning attack that hospitalized a Newport Beach man last week.

The 36-year-old man was originally thought to have been suffering from botulism, but Dr. Ben Warner, the state's chief epidemiologist, today said all tests of the victim's blood and the water chestnuts suspected of being tainted have proved negative.

"Frankly, we have no idea what the toxin is that would have produced the symptoms suffered by the patient," he said. He said no further tests are anticipated in the case.

Warner said the water chestnuts, imported from Taiwan, will not be removed from market shelves.

The patient, whose identity has not been revealed, was released from Hoag Memorial Hospital Friday after spending the first two days of his hospital stay in the intensive care unit.

Pharaoh Fight Beach Boys Outdraw King Tut

SEATTLE (AP) — King Tutankhamun went up against the Beach Boys in Seattle. The surfers won.

Authorities said a concert by the rock group attracted larger crowds Sunday than the first public showing in Seattle of artifacts from the Egyptian king's tomb.

"It's dead," said John Pugel, one of several people selling programs for the Tut exhibit at the Seattle Art Museum.

The estimated 3,000 people who arrived early for the Tut show got their tickets within an hour, and by 8:30 a.m., the 200-yard-long line had dissipated.

But authorities said morning crowds for the Beach Boy rock concert in an adjoining stadium outnumbered the Tut crowd several times over.

Crash Kills Balboa, 27, On S. Coast

A 27-year-old Balboa woman was killed early today when the car she was driving spun off Pacific Coast Highway and crashed into a telephone pole.

A California Highway Patrol report said Mavis Sutton, who lived at 301 Fernando St., Apt. 411, Balboa, was killed about two miles north of Irvine Cove.

The report said the victim was driving south on Coast Highway at 2 a.m. when her small foreign car left the highway and smashed into the pole.

Investigators said the woman was alone in the car. They said the cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Gunmen Slay 6 Workers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Six workers closing a steakhouse for the night were murdered by robbers who forced them at gunpoint into a walk-in freezer, then shot each of them through the head, authorities said today. Four of the victims were teen-agers.

Police said more than $1,000 was missing from the restaurant's safe.

Investigators said they believe more than one person was involved, but that there were no suspects and few clues in the slayings, which they called the worst mass murder in local memory.

The bodies were found late Sunday night by restaurant manager Mike Click, 25, who returned to the Sirolo Stockade restaurant in the Southern Hills Shopping Center to determine why the employees had failed to telephone with the nightly cash total.

Police Sgt. Tom Mundy said Click found the bodies piled in a heap where they had fallen after apparently being executed one-by-one.

The restaurant is near Interstate 240, an Oklahoma City by-pass route. Mundy said the assailants may have selected that restaurant because of its accessibility to the expressway.

Five male workers dead at the scene were identified by police as David Lindsey, 17, David Salsman, 16; Anthony Tew, 7; Isaac E. Freeman, 56, a janitor and Louis Zacharias, 40, assistant manager.

The sixth person, Terri M. Horst, 16, was taken to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head and chest. She never regained consciousness and died at about 12:15 a.m., Mundy said.

Police cordoned off the parking lot surrounding the restaurant. A dozen officers walked shoulder-to-shoulder to search the parking lot, but they found only a handful of coins, which they believe the robbers may have dropped after leaving through a rear door.

Mundy said each victim had been shot in the head with a small caliber weapon and that as many as 20 shots may have been fired.

The interior lights were dimmed when officers arrived, he said.

"It looks as though it was a last minute robbery — as they were closing," Mundy said.

"This is the worst I can remember in 18 years," Police Chief Tom Heggy said. "We've had killings of three, but not this many."

Jarvis Jury Needs Testimony Reread

OXNARD (AP) — The jury in tax reformer Howard Jarvis' drunken driving trial returned to their deliberations today and quickly sent word they want to hear some testimony again.

The seven men and five women, who were unable to reach a verdict in 4½ hours of deliberation Friday, asked for a rereading of the testimony of the sheriff's deputy who stopped

Jarvis on the Ventura Freeway last March 15.

Deputy Michael Kipp was the key prosecution witness in the one-week trial of Jarvis, the 75-year-old crusader who co-authored Proposition 13 tax cut bill.

Kipp alleged Jarvis was intoxicated when he was spotted weaving his car from lane to lane after midnight.

The deputy said Jarvis failed roadside sobriety tests — he didn't walk a straight line and couldn't recite the alphabet.

Jarvis was the defense's star witness, testifying he wasn't drunk and was driving erratically because he thought the pursuing sheriff's car was a political enemy chasing him.

Jarvis said he had a few drinks that night — a vodka and orange juice before dinner and "two or three cups" of coffee laced with liqueur after dinner.

The cost for three hours of baby sitting is $2 per child. For further information call 673-3343.

Man Injures Neck In Newport Plunge

A Garden Grove youth who plunged 25 feet off the rocks near the Newport Harbor entrance into four feet of water this weekend suffered nothing more than a neck strain, according to police reports.

Police said they were uncertain whether Jason Matthew Lapan, 18, leaped or fell in the Friday afternoon incident reported from Pirate's Cove, adjacent to the Corona del Mar main beach.

After hitting the water, witnesses said the young man walked to shore and collapsed.

Paramedics and lifeguards rushed Lapan to Hoag Memorial Hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as "cervical strain," according to the police report.

The incident was the most serious to precede the weekend that lifeguards said was unaccountably quiet considering the summer heat and smog.

Lt. Logan Lockabey said 85,000 visitors came to Newport's beaches Saturday and 95,000 came on Sunday. There were a total of 229 people rescued.

Lockabey said there were no major problems. "We were surprised that there weren't more people here," he commented. "The people who did come stayed much later than usual, though."

EASY TARGETS...

The youth, Daniel Gary Stock, 19, of Mission Viejo eventually admitted the theft and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

He confided while in jail that he had lost his job because of an argument with his boss, a veterinarian, and was desperate for some "quick" money.

Stock, in trouble with authorities since he was 14 years old, said a friend told how easy purse-snatching was, that it paid well and had a low-capture-risk. He said he decided to "do an old lady, because she wouldn't run after me and might not remember what I look like," probation authorities reported later.

Young Stock was right. Mrs. Cooper couldn't identify her assailant. It all happened too quickly, the push, the fall, the surprise at finding herself flat on her back in a parking lot.

But witnesses saw the incident and described the getaway car, complete with license number.

The conviction of veterinary assistant Gary Stock and the subsequent arrest of another youth who allegedly preyed on older women at the mall has ended the plague of incidents that kept Orange County Sheriff's investigator Rich Matura busy for months trying to piece together patterns in search of youths who prey on oldsters.

Because of its proximity to the Leisure World retirement community the Laguna Hills Mall and its environs are considered good hunting grounds for purse snatchers. Some have been known to reach out from moving cars to pull in a purse and speed from the scene, leaving their victim shaken and confused.

And men aren't entirely safe. Sheriff's investigators recall an incident in recent years in which an elderly gentleman was leaving a bank. He carried a money sack.

A hit-and-run expert shoved him, grabbed the bag and escaped easily in the confusion.

But the snatcher got only four savings account books. The man had deposited his cash.

Compared to most cities, the growing Laguna Hills area — especially the walled retirement community of Leisure World — is considered a low-crime area.

Purse snatching is the obvious exception.

Costa Mesa police, for instance, report that over the same nine-month period during which Laguna Hills was plagued, only three such crimes were reported at the larger, busier South Coast Plaza.

Newport Beach investigators say only two purse snatchings occurred during that time at Fashion Island — primarily, they say, because of a Christmastime crackdown on parking lot crime.

Generally, experienced purse snatchers gear their operations to the first week of the month, investigators report. Social Security checks are received on either the first or third of each month, and the target is "fat."

A Santa Ana Social Security worker agreed. "During that first week, many of our recipients have their checks taken from them in that manner."

Speed, surprise and shock are the weapons used by the snatcher, law enforcement officers say. Their advice: let go of the purse as quickly as possible, try to get a good look at the assailant and scream.

Screams, said a sheriff's investigator, attract attention. Usually, witnesses other than the victim identify a criminal when he finally is caught.

"The victim is just trying to keep from falling or is trying to hang on to her valuables. Most of these older women live on relatively fixed incomes. The contents of their purses are very important to them."

Mrs. Cooper says she gladly would have let her assailant have her purse. "But I didn't even hear him. He moved so silently, and from behind."

Newport Panels Joined

Eight Newport Beach residents will be sworn in this month as members of the city boards and commissions, following their appointments by the City Council.

Six of the appointments were to four-year terms, filling terms that expired on the Board of Library Trustees, the City Arts Commission, the Civil Service Board, and the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission.

The other two appointments were made to the planning commission to fill the unexpired terms of council members Jackie Heather and Paul Hummel who were elected to the City Council in April.

Appointed by councilmen were:

— Planning Commission: Alan Beek, 2120 16th St., to fill Mrs. Heather's term which expires June 30, 1979, and Helen McLaughlin, 544 Seaward Road, Corona del Mar, to fill Hummel's term which expires June 30, 1980.

— Library Trustees: David Henley, 2662 Circle Drive.

Coastal Panel Weighs Funds For Newport

Members of the State Coastal Commission meeting in Los Angeles are slated to discuss a $50,000 grant to the City of Newport Beach Wednesday.

The money would help defray the city's costs in preparing a Local Coastal Program (LCP) a planning document required by state law as part of the process of handing coastal controls from the commission to local governments.

The allocation has been recommended for approval by the regional commission.

Preparation of the LCP is expected to take about 18 months during which city regulations on land uses in the coastal area are to be brought into conformance with commission procedures and policies.

The hearing on the proposal is one of the last items on the commission's agenda. Commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Airport Marina Hotel in Los Angeles.

Victims of Purse Snatchers

Older Women Easy Crime Targets

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Witnesses said it was dark at 8:10 p.m. Feb. 20, but there was enough light in the parking lot outside Reubens restaurant in the Laguna Hills Mall to see that the blond teen-ager wore no shoes.

He appeared from nowhere, gliding silently up behind three people approaching their car after dinner and a turn around the shopping center.

Mrs. Helene Cooper, 71, and her husband Sampson were showing their friend, Mrs. Bernice Weiner of Lake Tahoe, the areas surrounding their Leisure World home.

The mood was relaxed except for conversation about a poor meal at the restaurant — the only poor meal the couple had ever gotten at one of their favorite eating spots.

Mrs. Cooper felt her purse move. She looked down as the strap slipped from her shoulder and hung up on her elbow. She lost her balance, felt a hard push on her shoulder and reeled awkwardly, hitting hard against the black asphalt.

She felt no pain — at first. With Sampson Cooper in pursuit, the teen-ager ran toward a car with a vague figure hunched behind its wheel. Mrs. Cooper remembers calling for her husband to stop.

"He's 74 years old, you know." The car, the teen-ager and the purse — containing credit cards, driver's license, a checkbook, $64 in cash "and everything else a woman carries in her bag" — were gone in the roar of a motor and a stream of exhaust.

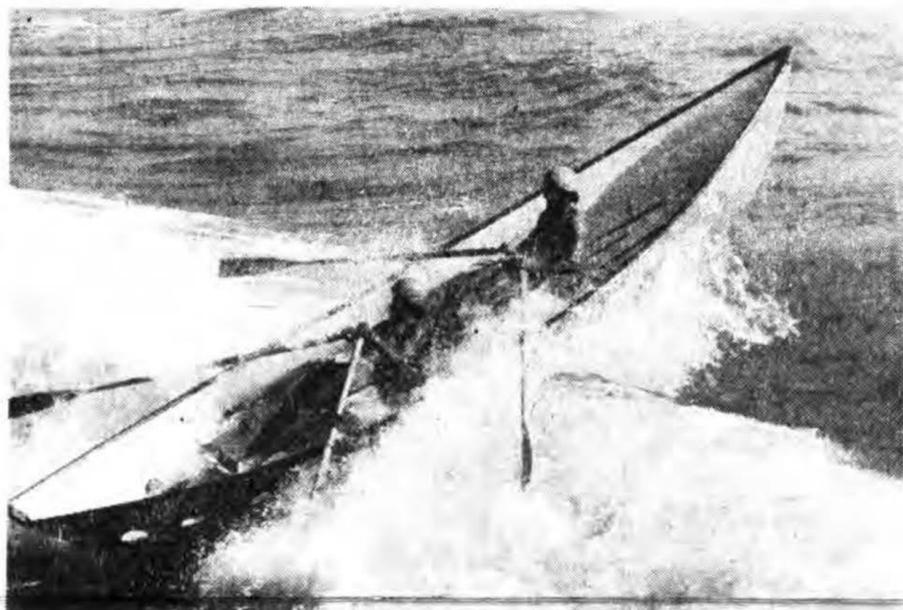

Then the pain began. Mrs. Cooper would spend the next 10 days in a hospital bed and the following six weeks recuperating at home with a broken pelvis and a bruised arm that is still tender.

She was the sixth and last purse-snatch victim at the mall in a nine-month-long series of hit and run crimes against older women who are considered easy targets for fast-moving purse grabbers.

"He was experienced," Mrs. Cooper surmised of the youth who glided silently up behind her on bare feet and made off with her shoulder bag.

"He slipped the strap off, and I didn't even feel him touch me. It wasn't until I looked down and the bag caught that he shoved me."

Run on Reserve
State 'Bailout' Poses Problem

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Huntington Beach Union High School District has spent some $3 million in carryover reserve funds in recent weeks to avoid a reduction of state aid Proposition 13 "bailout" money.

Because it also has maintained large reserves, the Coast Community College District may receive $2 million less of the state aid.

Saddleback Valley Unified School District officials last week reported hurry-up spending of $750,000 to deplete reserves, paying off long term contracts, to avoid similar forfeits.

Other coastal Orange County school districts have reported budget reserves of less than five percent of their total budgets — the cut-off point for the aid penalty rule.

The state "bailout" measure cuts allocated aid to individual school districts by one-third of the total the districts have left in reserves above five percent of the budget income.

Prior to passage of the measure, Huntington Beach school officials estimated the district would have 10.9 percent $5 million in reserves, in a total 1978-79 budget of $46 million.

During the past few weeks, school district officials began paying off lease purchases and other long-term financial commitments, to deplete the reserve.

Advance payments were made on the district's seven-year computer financing program, and a lease-option on air conditioners at newly built Ocean View High School, among others.

Valley Trustees

Recall Petition
Misses Deadline

A group seeking to recall three Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees failed to meet the July 11 filing deadline which would have placed the initiatives on the November Ballot, a Registrar of Voters spokeswoman said.

Recall movement leaders would have had to file petitions bearing at least 9,200 signatures to qualify for the fall election, Registration Supervisor Charline Jagers said.

The recall is directed against trustees George Henry, Mary Phillips, and Carole Neustadt. Charges against them include alleged secret meetings, and promoting friends within the district.

Registrar officials said recall petitioners still have until September 21 to gather signatures and place the recall initiatives on a later election ballot.

Recall leaders Preston Howell and Rick Bohay could not be reached for comment Monday morning. Last month, however, Bohay said if the group failed to qualify the recall for the November ballot, it would not pursue the ouster of the three trustees from office.

Also, last week, Howell refused to disclose exactly how many signatures had been gathered but did say the recall committee was aiming for the November ballot.

Archives

Gets Nixon Documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — All the tape recordings and documents used in the Watergate prosecutions of former President Nixon's top aides have been turned over to the National Archives for eventual public scrutiny.

But it may take some time before the public has an opportunity to listen to the tapes or view the documents, an archives official said today.

"The archives is still in a lawsuit with Nixon and is still processing and cataloging the materials turned over by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided at most of the trials.

After a recent Supreme Court ruling that the courts should not be charged with responsibility for deciding what materials should be released, Archivist James B. Rhoads petitioned Sirica for release of the materials to the archives.

On July 6, Sirica issued an order saying that all original and duplicate materials in his custody should be turned over. After a brief, unpublished hearing last week, he ruled that the step be carried out at once.

"We then went to the vault and the clerk of the court turned over to us all the materials that had been used in the trials," Richard Jacobs, acting director of the Nixon materials project at the archives, told a reporter.

Economic Tactics
Mapped at Summit

BONN, West Germany (AP) President Carter and the leaders of six other major non-Communist nations reached agreement at the economic summit conference today on tactics they hope will speed world economic growth and cut oil import prices.

Their plan includes increased Japanese and West German growth, and a slower U.S. growth rate of about 4 percent, the 1978 figure already forecast by the Carter administration.

Carter told the other leaders that his administration would cut taxes and spending in the next two fiscal years — a pledge he has made frequently at home — and would raise U.S. oil prices to world levels by 1980.

However, it was not immediately clear how the oil price increase would be achieved.

Current price controls expire in 1979 but could, under present law, be extended to 1981. The current price of U.S. oil ranges from $5.23 a barrel to $11.75 a barrel. The world price is approximately $13.50.

U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, discussing agreements before they were unveiled, described them as a "concrete and concerted action program" to deal with global economic problems.

The economic summit's communiqué, to be issued after the final session this afternoon, was expected to include specific targets for economic growth, employment, and inflation in each of the seven participating nations.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said West Germany had agreed to take action increasing its economic growth by the end of August. But they reported that West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had stricken from the draft of a final communiqué a specific increase of 1 percent beyond the anticipated increase.

That increase was expected to (See SUMMIT, Page A2)

Police Chief
Foes Meet
City Manager

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Several Laguna Beach businessmen, seeking the ouster of Police Chief Jon Sparks, were called in to meet with new City Manager Fred Solomon today at city hall.

They left an hour later, with one of the businessmen saying he was disappointed with Solomon's decision to retain the police chief, suspended earlier this month after a bar fight in which Sparks allegedly punched a fellow bar patron in the face.

"I think the wrong decision has been made in regard to Sparks' reinstatement as chief," said an angry Joel Snyder, operator of Snyder's Cleaners in Laguna Beach.

The 33-year-old businessman, whose brother is a Laguna Beach police officer, said he began last Friday making calls to gather support for a petition drive calling for the resignation of Chief Sparks.

City Manager Solomon called for the meeting with Snyder and seven other local businessmen today, apparently after hearing of the group's plan to seek public support for Sparks' resignation.

Solomon could not be reached for comment, but Snyder said the city manager outlined the reasons for his decision in the hour-long meeting.

"I'm damn well mad," Snyder said after the meeting. "It's being handled from a political, ad- (See SPARKS, Page A2)

Capistrano Unified School District trustees tonight aimed at cutting another $2.5 million from post-Proposition 13 budget figures.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the district's education center, 32972 Calle Perfecto, in San Juan Capistrano.

Trustees pared $1.1 million last week from a proposed $35 million 1978-79 school year budget.

Items that remain to be considered for cuts include school athletic, transportation and counseling services.

Superintendent Jerome Thornsley has recommended a 25 percent reduction in Senior and Junior High School athletic programs.

The boy, Christopher Carlin of 17 Woodhollow, was unconscious and had stopped breathing when the children — Kelly Malott, 8, and Tammy Vaughn, 7, a Woodbridge resident — found him. A Woodbridge Lake lifeguard, Cheryl Auchmoody, and an off-duty sheriff's deputy, Bruce MacAfee, resuscitated the child.

He still was unconscious when county paramedics took him to Tustin Community Hospital. Fire Capt. Marc Higgins said, "He was spitting up a lot of water — lots and lots of water."

Jarvis Jury Needs
Testimony Reread

OXNARD (AP) — The jury in tax reformer Howard Jarvis' drunken driving trial returned to their deliberations today and quickly sent word they want to hear some testimony again.

The seven-men and five-women jury, who were unable to reach a verdict in 4½ hours of deliberation Friday, asked for a rereading of the testimony of the sheriff's deputy who stopped Jarvis on the Ventura Freeway last March 15.

Deputy Michael Kipp was the key prosecution witness in the one-week trial of Jarvis, the 75-year-old crusader who co-authored Proposition 13 tax cut bill. Kipp alleged Jarvis was intoxicated when he was spotted weaving his car from lane to lane after midnight.

The deputy said Jarvis failed roadside sobriety tests — he didn't walk a straight line and couldn't recite the alphabet.

Jarvis was the defense's star witness, testifying he wasn't drunk and was driving erratically because he thought the pursuing sheriff's car was a political enemy chasing him.

Jarvis said he had a few drinks that night — a vodka and orange juice before dinner and "two or three cups" of coffee laced with liqueur after dinner.

He said he had trouble with his leg, which was the reason he refused to walk a straight line. As for the alphabet, Jarvis said he hadn't recited it since kindergarten.

ministrative point of view, and it certainly doesn't reflect the feeling of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association, or the majority of residents and businessmen in this city.

Snyder, who has operated the cleaners on Glenneyre Street for the past 17 years, said he has nothing personal against Chief Sparks.

"But this thing is tearing the community apart and it won't end until he resigns," Snyder said.

Snyder said he did not know how the petition drive is going, but said he expects to hand in the signatures to the City Council Thursday night.

The petition reads in part, "We the residents and merchants of Laguna Beach are in full support of the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association in urging that Jon J. Sparks resign from his position as Chief of Police in the best interest of our community."

The police association last week wrote a letter to Sparks urging that he step down.

"What really burns me up," Snyder said, "is that the city manager is setting a double standard. If the people in Sparks' department had pulled something like this (the bar fight) they would have been fired."

"The man has no credibility or respect from his own department."

When asked about a previous petition drive in support of the then-suspended police chief, Snyder said he did not feel the petition "reflected the feeling of the broad majority of Laguna Beach citizens."

More than 1,500 signatures were obtained in the previous petition drive, headed by Laguna Beach realtor Jay Murley. That petition lauded Sparks' past efforts as chief, and called for his reinstatement.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's special representative for trade negotiations, said today the summit made "great progress on trade."

He predicted that international negotiations for a pact to reduce international trade barriers would be successful by the end of the year, although "agriculture is still a problem."

Carter told reporters Sunday night, after the first rounds of economic summitry, that "the final results of the deliberations will be good."

Sources in key delegations said the statement would list anti-hijack measures, including the banning of commercial flights to nations harboring hijackers.

Crash Kills NB Woman

A 27-year-old Balboa woman was killed early today when the car she was driving spun off Pacific Coast Highway and crashed into a telephone pole.

A California Highway Patrol report said Mavis Sutton, who lived at 301 Fernando St., Apt. 411, Balboa, was killed about two miles north of Irvine Cove.

The report said the victim was driving south on Coast Highway at 2 a.m. when her small foreign car left the highway and smashed into the pole.

Investigators said the woman was alone in the car. They said the cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Leisure World's Elderly People Alerted to Danger

EASY TARGETS...

The youth, Daniel Gary Stock, 19, of Mission Viejo eventually admitted the theft and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

He confided while in jail that he had lost his job because of an argument with his boss, a veterinarian, and was desperate for some "quick" money.

Stock, in trouble with authorities since he was 14 years old, said a friend told how easy purse-snatching was, that it paid well and had a low-capture-risk. He said he decided to "do an old lady, because she wouldn't run after me and might not remember what I look like," probation authorities reported later.

Young Stock was right. Mrs. Cooper couldn't identify her assailant. It all happened too quickly, the push, the fall, the surprise at finding herself flat on her back in a parking lot.

But witnesses saw the incident and described the getaway car, complete with license number.

The conviction of veterinary assistant Gary Stock and the subsequent arrest of another youth who allegedly preyed on older women at the mall has ended the plague of incidents that kept Orange County Sheriff's investigator Rich Matura busy for months trying to piece together patterns in search of youths who prey on oldsters.

Because of its proximity to the Leisure World retirement community, the Laguna Hills Mall and its environs are considered good hunting grounds for purse snatchers. Some have been known to reach out from moving cars to pull in a purse and speed from the scene, leaving their victim shaken and confused.

And men aren't entirely safe. Sheriff's investigators recall an incident in recent years in which an elderly gentleman was leaving a bank. He carried a money sack.

A hit-and-run expert shoved him, grabbed the bag and escaped easily in the confusion.

But the snatcher got only four savings account books. The man had deposited his cash.

Compared to most cities, the growing Laguna Hills area — especially the walled retirement community of Leisure World — is considered a low-crime area.

Purse snatching is the obvious exception.

Costa Mesa police, for instance, report that over the same nine-month period during which Laguna Hills was plagued, only three such crimes were reported at the larger, busier South Coast Plaza.

Newport Beach investigators say only two purse snatchings occurred during that time at Fashion Island — primarily, they say, because of a Christmastime crackdown on parking lot crime.

Generally, experienced purse snatchers gear their operations to the first week of the month, investigators report. Social Security checks are received on either the first or third of each month, and the target is "fat."

A Santa Ana Social Security worker agreed. "During that first week, many of our recipients have their checks taken from them in that manner."

Speed, surprise and shock are the weapons used by the snatcher, law enforcement officers say. Their advice: let go of the purse as quickly as possible, try to get a good look at the assailant and scream.

Screams, said a sheriff's investigator, attract attention. Usually, witnesses other than the victim identify a criminal when he finally is caught.

"The victim is just trying to keep from falling or is trying to hang on to her valuables. Most of these older women live on relatively fixed incomes. The contents of their purses are very important to them."

Mrs. Cooper says she gladly would have let her assailant have her purse. "But I didn't even hear him. He moved so silently, and from behind."

Physically, Mrs. Cooper is mending well, she says. Her pelvis was broken cleanly — in a straight line.

One probation officer might consider the former World Book Encyclopedia sales manager, who retired to Leisure World nearly 10 years ago, fortunate.

She had predicted Mrs. Cooper might suffer permanent disability as the result of her injuries.

"It has been observed in the course of limited personal geriatric study that such injuries often initiate the onset of a physical decline, resulting in premature death within two years in the elderly," the officer wrote.

And the attack that often results in falls for older women leaves more than physical scars.

"I don't think the watching over my shoulder will ever pass," says Mrs. Cooper. "It has left me with this sense of insecurity. Sam always walks beside me now. He doesn't wander off ahead."

"And I hang onto my purse like it is part of my skin. It's funny. I never was afraid of anything before. I was always very, very open..."

Transport Chief Denies Quit Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Brock Adams denies a published report that he might resign, a department spokesman said today.

The secretary scheduled a news conference after the New York Times reported today that he appears likely to be one of the first members of the Carter Cabinet to depart, possibly by the end of the year.

"Secretary Adams will deny he has any intentions to resign," spokesman Bob Holland said in discussing why Adams had scheduled the news conference.

"He doesn't believe there is any basis for the story," Holland added.

The Times attributed its report to government and industry sources.

TARAWA, Gilbert Islands (AP) — Workmen excavating for a sewer on this World War II battlefield have unearthed the skeletons of five soldiers including those of an American and a Japanese side by side.

Bill Bencke, an Australian who heads the project, said one of the skeletons had a GI army boot still in good condition on a foot and a Swiss watch on one wrist.

Alongside was the lower half of a Japanese skeleton near a shoe. No identification tags were found he said. The Japanese bones were to be sent to Japan. The American's remains were to be buried in a local cemetery.

Mideast Talks Due?

Dayan, Egyptians Meet in London

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan flew to London today for face-to-face talks with his Egyptian counterpart and told reporters in a troop-ringed airport lounge he hopes broader peace negotiations can resume within two weeks. (Related story Page A4.)

Dayan added, however, that the two days of meetings scheduled to begin Tuesday in a storybook castle in the English countryside will get down to "basic issues These discussions are not going to be talks about talks."

Egypt's foreign minister, Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel, was on his way from Cairo, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, host of the two-day meeting, was due to arrive later from the economic summit conference in Bonn, West Germany.

U.S. and British security agents sealed off the site of the meeting at the 9th-century Leeds Castle, 45 miles southeast of London.

The talks had been scheduled for the Churchill Hotel in London's Mayfair district. They were switched to the isolated, turreted fortress as a precaution against attacks by Arab terrorists who oppose peace with Israel. The Churchill was the target of an Irish terrorist attack in December 1974.

The three participants, who were expected to meet informally tonight, will try to lay the groundwork for resuming full-scale Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

They were to be taken by helicopter to the castle, built on two small islands in a 20-acre lake and accessible only by air or a drawbridge causeway.

Police sealed off the 485-acre park around the lake Sunday and special communications were installed for the delegations.

Among the security teams were agents of Scotland Yard's crack anti-terrorist squad and the A8 Diplomatic Protection Group.

Pharaoh Fight Beach Boys Outdraw King Tut

SEATTLE (AP) — King Tutankhamun went up against the Beach Boys in Seattle. The surfers won.

Authorities said a concert by the rock group attracted larger crowds Sunday than the first public showing in Seattle of artifacts from the Egyptian king's tomb.

"It's dead," said John Pugel, one of several people selling programs for the Tut exhibit at the Seattle Art Museum.

The estimated 3,000 people who arrived early for the Tut show got their tickets within an hour, and by 8:30 a.m., the 200-yard-long line had dissipated.

But authorities said morning crowds for the Beach Boy rock concert in an adjoining stadium outnumbered the Tut crowd several times over.

RESERVE FUNDS...

is about $900,000 of the estimated $18 million the district is to receive in state emergency aid.

By cutting back the reserve to at least $2.3 million — the 5 percent level — the district is protecting the whole pot.

Officials said they plan to maintain a $2 million reserve.

"We couldn't have used the money for our general fund next year, so we freed up the payment money and saved the interest," said school board President Zita Wessa.

"We have always had a large reserve. We felt it was justified, and not exorbitant for a $46 million business," she said.

She added, "It's not that big a reserve and it's money in the bank in case of catastrophe."

The Coast Community College District also has bankrolled large reserves. This year, according to Correllan Thompson, executive vice chancellor for business affairs, there are an estimated $6.5 million in uncommitted reserve funds.

That's 9.3 percent of the total $70 million budget. Thompson said the district probably will end up having to apply $2 million of its reserves against state bailout money, reducing by more than half the estimated $3.5 million previously scheduled for the district purse.

Thompson said exact figures aren't available because the district budget still is being calculated.

He claimed the community college district has done no quick spending to gain more state aid.

Police Sgt. Tom Mundy said Click found the bodies piled in a heap where they had fallen after apparently being executed one-by-one.

The restaurant is near Interstate 240, an Oklahoma City by-pass route. Mundy said the assailants may have selected that restaurant because of its accessibility to the expressway.

Five male workers dead at the scene were identified by police as David Lindsey, 17; David Salsman, 16; Anthony Tew, 7; Isaac E. Freeman, 56, a janitor, and Louis Zacharias, 40, assistant manager.

The sixth person, Terri M. Horst, 16, was taken to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head and chest.

She never regained consciousness and died at about 12:15 a.m., Munday said.

BOLINAS (AP) — Two chartered fishing boats collided near here and one of the vessels sank, but only after all 17 passengers aboard were safely evacuated to the other boat.

Irvine Unified School District came in even closer to the limit. Business Superintendent Gene Hartline reported a $1.2 million reserve, of a $24.8 million budget 4.9 percent.

PETER SARACENO SMILES AS HE WALKS DOWN AISLE
Linda Frachalla, Now His Bride, Still by His Side

Pair Married Walk to Altar Triumphant

CHICAGO (AP) — Peter Saraceno concentrated on one step, then the next, as he walked haltingly down the aisle at Our Lady of Pompeii Church. Linda Frachalla, his bride, who brought him back to life from a 3½-month coma, walked beside him, her arm linked in his.

His hands shaking slightly, Peter flashed a wide smile Sunday when he reached the end of the aisle and was helped into a waiting limousine.

"Chicago is my kind of town," he said when friends and neighbors gathered in the old Italian neighborhood broke into rousing applause.

Peter and Linda, both in their 20s, had planned to be married after he left the Marines in 1976. Then came the car crash. Doctors at Westlake Hospital had pronounced Peter dead on arrival — until one groped for a pulse one last time and finally felt something.

"THREE OR FOUR TIMES there they told us he had just a few hours left," said his mother, Louise Saraceno.

"But I didn't believe it and neither did Linda. Every night Linda was at his side, talking to him just as if it was any other night, as if they were on a date, as if nothing had happened."

On holidays at the hospital, Linda would decorate Peter's room. She told about her New Year's celebration.

"At midnight, I put a hat on him and I blew horns and told him the New Year was here. The nurses thought I was crazy, but I figured Peter could hear me," Linda said.

SHE REFUSED TO GIVE UP, even though doctors told her to forget about Peter, to go and have some fun because he never would be the same, never would walk again or talk again.

But finally he opened his eyes, and though he could not talk or even move a finger, "his eyes followed Linda around the room," a relative said.

Linda quit her job and took special training to care for Peter. When he was allowed to go home, she moved in with his widowed mother to give him round-the-clock attention.

With her savings, Linda had an outdoor swimming pool installed so he could exercise his legs and work at physical therapy.

"I'VE HAD TO LEARN A lot since the accident," Peter said. "I had to learn everything over again — how to eat and chew and drink and even tie my shoes. I kept trying, and tried 'tilt hurt — cause of Linda."

Today, though his speech is still garbled, he can talk, he can shake hands and, with the help of an aluminum walker, he can walk.

Peter had worked hard on his speech and last year spoke to Linda's father, "Mr. Frachalla," he said, "I'd like permission to marry your daughter."

"Peter," Jim Frachalla answered, "when you can walk down that aisle, she's all yours."

After one year of practice, Peter and Linda finally made it.

Cleaner Air Due In County

Cleaner air was predicted for today and Tuesday following heavy layers of smog that blanketed many parts of Orange County from Friday through the weekend. South Coast Air Quality Management District officials said today.

Generally smog-free Costa Mesa had the worst air in the county Saturday as thousands of cars crept toward the sands of Newport Beach along the Costa Mesa Freeway (Route 55), officials said.

However, cooler marine breezes were expected to break the thick layer of unhealthy air and push the smog inland, air quality spokesmen said.

The first second-stage ozone alerts of the year were called Friday for parts of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Although the alerts were not called in Orange County, smog exceeded normal levels. Factories such as the Southern California Edison Company plant in Huntington Beach were required to use natural gas and other low-sulfur fuels to reduce emissions by 20 percent.

Second-stage smog alerts are announced when ozone, which is formed by the chemical changes in nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons, reaches about three and a half times the normal concentration.

Judge Rejects End of Strike By Firemen

By The Associated Press

A judge struck down today an order directing Louisville's 600 union firefighters to end a strike that has closed all but eight of the city's 23 fire stations.

Louisville is one of seven cities around the country plagued by walkouts and other labor problems with municipal employees.

Philadelphia is without garbage collectors, prison guards and health care workers.

Police in New York; Memphis, Tenn.; and Cleveland are butting heads with city officials over contracts or work orders.

Officers in Sedalia, Mo., ended one-day "sickout" on a judge's order and New Bern, N.C., is being protected by outside law enforcement officers until its 34-member police force is reformed.

In Louisville, about 500 people, including strikers and their wives and children, cheered outside the courthouse after Jefferson Circuit Judge George Ryan dissolved a temporary restraining order he had issued Friday when the strike began.

Ryan said the order was invalid because Mayor William Stansbury had signed the request for it in advance and was out of town when it was filed.

COOL HAND LUKE STRIKES AGAIN?

There were at least two free parking spaces in crowded Laguna Beach over the weekend after thieves made off with a double-headed parking meter worth $200.

City officials reported the loss of the meter from the sidewalk in front of 556 Cliff Drive. The meters were pulled from the ground sometime between midnight and 2 a.m. Saturday.

1 Dead, 2 Feared Lost in Boat Mishap

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — One woman is dead and the search continued today in the deep waters of Lake Champlain for two other people lost and feared drowned in a boating accident early Sunday morning.

The 22-foot sailboat, carrying 11 people on a midnight cruise from the Plattsburgh Air Force Base, capsized and sank in the lake, authorities said.

Dead on arrival at a local hospital was Monique Cable, 21, of Plattsburgh. Still missing are Capt. Gerald D. Luallin, 32, from Oakland, a navigator assigned to a training squadron at the base, and Ellen Hanson, of Plattsburgh.

The boat, carrying six Air Force officers, the daughter of Lt. Col. Joe Williams, and four women from Plattsburgh, left the base marina shortly after midnight Sunday. It went down off Cumberland Head more than a mile offshore sometime between then and 3 a.m., Clinton County Sheriff's deputies said.

Two of the women swam to shore and summoned help from a farmhouse, while the others, none of whom was wearing a life jacket, attempted to keep afloat, Under-sheriff William Kennedy said. Miss Hanson was found with an inflatable cushion tied to her wrist, he said.

A small flotilla of boats from the sheriff's department, other police agencies, the air base and local marinas pulled nine people from the haze-shrouded waters. But the sunken boat has yet to be found.

Air Force spokesmen said the survivors included five Air Force officers and Diane Williams. The officers were identified as Maj. Charles Robertson, 31; Capt. Phillip Donovan, 29; Capt. Michael Kenny, 32; Capt. Brett Kriger, 32, and 2nd Lt. Edward Dixon.

Three other civilians, as yet unidentified, were treated at the hospital and released.

Lake Champlain, one of the deepest lakes in the state, is near the Canadian border between New York state and Vermont.

STAN AND HELEN EMERY FIND HOME SWEET HOME ABOARD BOAT IN DANA POINT
With Less Than $5 a Year in Taxes, They've Found a Way to Beat the System

Good Boat to Be In Dana Harbor Folks Pay $5 Property Tax

By ANNE COOPER

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

You say you're one of those homeowners who's celebrating a Proposition 13 property tax reduction?

Then meet Stan and Helen Emery of Dana Point, who said their annual property tax bill for the past 10 years has come in at less than $5.

The Emerys live on a boat, anchored in the Dana West Marina.

Their $4.84 tax bill this year takes into account the homeowners' exemption to which Emery said they are entitled because they live on their boat.

"We're not sure we want to publicize how low our taxes are," said Mrs. Emery. "We're afraid the government will find a way to raise them."

The couple's other housing expenses are not bad either, especially for high-priced Orange County. Emery said he and his wife, owners of a San Clemente health food store, pay $132 a month to anchor their boat in slip 105.

With their 30-foot cabin cruiser paid for, the Emerys' only other housing expense comes every three years or so, when they pay about $200 to have the boat hauled out of the water for an inspection and painting of the bottom.

But before you sell your house to buy a boat to live on, better start looking for a berth for your new home. If you sign up now for a slip where the Emerys live, you will probably have to wait at least five years, they said.

Only five percent of the 1,000 slips in the marina can be occupied by people who live on their boats, according to county regulations established to protect the public's right to recreation at the county-owned harbor.

The Emerys made their move to a sea life 10 years ago, when their daughter was married and they found themselves alone, rattling around a Costa Mesa home, which had suddenly grown too big.

They spent five years anchored at the Lido Yacht Anchorage in Newport Beach, before "moving" to Dana Point, where they anchored two years in the east basin before switching to their present location in the west basin.

"Newport was crowded and dirty compared to the Dana Marina," said Mrs. Emery. "You would never consider slipping off your boat there for a swim, as we do here — the water was too dirty."

Deeply suntanned from their life at sea, the couple said they feel as if they have been on vacation for the past 10 years.

"Of course, it's not the life for everybody," said Mrs. Emery. "You have to be able to accept the bad with the good."

Among inconveniences of a shipboard life are fetching ice two or three times a week for the tiny galley icebox, never finding enough space to hang clothes and having to walk to the marina's land-locked "head" every morning for a shower, the Emerys said.

"And we've never been very successful with television on board," said Mrs. Emery. "But we find plenty to do. Whenever the water is right and the fish count is good, we go out fishing."

On a tour of the boat, Mrs. Emery said she will never enjoy making up the bunk, which is tucked under the bow.

"If you have never made a bed on your hands and knees, crawling over it and messing it up as fast as you straighten it out, you don't know how frustrating it can be," she said.

"But for us it's all worthwhile," she said, "for that constant holiday feeling. And we can't complain about our taxes."

Postal Emergency Measures Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) Federal troops might be called in to sort mail. Some forms of mail temporarily could be forbidden. Deliveries might be stopped or cut back.

In addition, millions of retired people might have to pick up Social Security checks that normally come to their door.

These are some of the contingency plans federal officials have ready in case the U.S. Postal Service and three postal unions cannot agree on a new contract this week and a mail strike follows.

The current pact expires at midnight Thursday.

Despite lengthy bargaining sessions over the weekend, the Postal Service and the three unions involved in the talks remained far apart on major issues.

Federal mediators reported late Sunday that progress had been made on some differences but that all the major issues including wages remain unresolved.

While national union leaders have refused publicly to discuss possible strike actions, officials of some militant East Coast unions have threatened a repeat of the scattered strikes that followed bargainers' failure in 1970 to reach agreement on a contract.

Meanwhile, a private group that opposes unionization of

Infant Girl Abandoned

SPRINGVILLE (AP) — A baby girl only about two hours old was found abandoned in bushes along a road near here, Tulare County sheriff's office reported.

The infant bore abrasions as if she had been thrown from a passing vehicle, deputies said.

The child was found Sunday when her cries were heard by Maria Leal of Delano and others in the area. The baby was taken into protective custody by the Tulare County Welfare Department.

Was It Wrong Way?

ONCE UPON A TIME... Forty years ago today, a cocky little Irishman climbed into his aging, 1929 model Curtiss-Robin monoplane and took off from New York in what was ballyhooed as a non-stop transcontinental flight to Long Beach.

In 1938, that was the kind of a Depression-era stunt that drew attention from newspaper people wearied of reporting about soup kitchens and unemployment lines.

The weather was sticky when Corrigan jumped in his little plane in New York. There was heavy overcast and fog.

Corrigan never made it out here to Long Beach.

Twenty-eight hours and 10 minutes after he left New York, aviator Douglas Corrigan landed in Dublin, Ireland.

CORRIGAN

TO BAFFLED IRISH authorities, Corrigan asked if he were in Los Angeles. Informed that he'd just flown the Atlantic to the Emerald Isle, Corrigan replied, "Well now, I must have flown the wrong way."

Corrigan had just come up with his own nickname that has followed him the rest of his life — Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan.

News of his escapade reached the United States and the Depression-weary country went wild. At last they had a hero to take their minds off the soup lines. Something to cheer about. Corrigan got a ticker tape parade in New York.

Had Corrigan actually made this horrendous navigational mistake? Had he really flown the wrong way?

Well, it was true that before his announcement that he'd fly from New York to Long Beach, federal aviation authorities had denied him permission to fly the Atlantic. Corrigan had wanted to duplicate Charles Lindbergh's solo flight.

OVER THE YEARS, however, Corrigan stuck to his story. He claimed that if you got turned around 180 degrees on a supposed flight to Long Beach, you would indeed end up in Dublin, Ireland.

He explained his compass wasn't like the precision instruments of today. In an interview a few years back, he said, "I guess I followed the wrong end of the needle. I think I made a 180-degree mistake."

In that same interview with a Daily Pilot reporter, he came as close as he ever has to suggesting Wrong Way might have actually been the intended way. Corrigan quipped, "I must have been lost... what other kind of story could I use after all those government fellows denied me permission to cross the Atlantic?"

Corrigan was 31 when he made his famed reverse flight. He was such a national hero that the only punishment he got was that authorities lifted his pilot's license for five days and made him bring his little monoplane home by steamer.

DOUGLAS CORRIGAN IS 71 now and lives quietly out of the limelight at his home of 29 years on North Flower Street in Santa Ana. Tragedy has dogged him in later life. He lost his wife of 27 years back in 1966. Then in March of 1972, his youngest son, Roy, died when his airplane crashed on Catalina Island. He was just 22.

Wrong Way Corrigan is almost reclusive now. He has refused interviews on the anniversary of the flight when he was 6,100 miles off course. His famous plane is reportedly still locked up in his Flower Street garage.

But there will be no Irish celebration there today.

Israelis Firm

Egypt Offers New Peace Bid

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt has made new peace proposals to Israel, but Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says they will have no effect on his meeting in Britain with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel.

"As far as I can judge, they are not relevant to the London conference," Dayan said as he left for the two-day meeting.

Observers took this to mean that the proposals dealt with the return of the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt and not with the deadlock over the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the future of Palestinians there and in the Gaza Strip.

UNATTRIBUTED REPORTS in Israeli newspapers Sunday said Sadat asked Israel to propose a new border for the occupied West Bank, an indication that Egypt would agree to Israel's retaining some of the territory. And the Jerusalem Post, which interviewed Sadat in Austria, said he "clearly indicated" Egypt would agree to "a strategic military presence remaining in the West Bank

But the newspaper Haaretz reported today that Sadat proposed Israel return half of the Egyptian territory it still occupies in the Sinai Desert at once as a demonstration of its sincerity in seeking a peace agreement.

SADAT MADE HIS proposal to Defense Minister Ezer Weisman when they met in Austria last week and the Israeli Cabinet took them up at its weekly meeting Sunday. But the cabinet took no action, announcing they would be discussed again next Sunday, "at which time they will be decided upon."

The talks Tuesday and Wednesday in Britain, which Secretary of State Cyrus Vance also plans to attend, will determine whether negotiations will continue, probably in the Sinai Desert town of Al Arish.

Study Knocks Carter Policy On Arms Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is finding its desire to establish a highly restrictive overseas arms-sale policy blocked by the realities of international affairs, a Brookings Institution study says.

The private research group released a study Sunday branding Carter's arms sales performance as "questionable" and saying it was doubtful his record would be much different from the Ford administration's because of a similar interpretation of U.S. interest.

THE MILDLY CRITICAL report notes that within a few months after President Carter said in May 1977 that U.S. arms transfers would be "an exceptional foreign policy instrument," the administration had sent to Congress 45 requests to authorize arms sales totaling $4.1 billion.

Less than a tenth of the sales were earmarked for countries not subject to Carter's policy of restraint: the NATO countries, Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

THE STUDY SAYS Carter is under pressure to continue past patterns of arms sales.

The administration "has found itself supporting arms sales in furtherance of treaty commitments (to South Korea), to retain good relations with countries holding important assets (Iran), to fulfill commitments made in return for base rights (Spain) and to support Israel."

Seeking Damages

John and Doris Del Zio of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. are seeking $1.5 million from Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York for "maliciously and arbitrarily" destroying a laboratory-fertilized embryo in 1973, just three days before it was to be implanted in Mrs. Del Zio's womb.

Prisoner Exchange Detailed by Rabbi

NEW YORK (AP) — An American rabbi, involved in a recent East-West prisoner exchange, says he has been taking part in negotiations to swap Anatoly Shcharansky for two Russian U.N. employees arrested on spy charges in New Jersey.

Rabbi Ronald Greenwald said Sunday night that the negotiations began several months ago and that he met with East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel on Tuesday in Europe to discuss a possible deal for Shcharansky.

THE SOVIET DISSIDENT was convicted of treasonous espionage and anti-Soviet agitation Friday and sentenced to 13 years at hard labor.

Greenwald also said he has had "limited" contact recently with the U.S. State Department on his negotiations and that he has been in contact with New York Congressman Benjamin Gilman.

Gilman, along with Greenwald, Vogel and the State Department, worked out a prisoner exchange in April involving Mozambique, East Germany and the United States. Vogel also played a key role in the 1962 swap of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

Greenwald would put no date on when he thought any deal might be reached, but he expressed optimism that one would be made.

"IT IS HARD TO SAY what Russia will want, but if there is someone in the Russian mind, as big as Shcharansky, he could be traded one for one," Greenwald said in a telephone interview from his home in Monsey, N.Y.

Mom Beaten, Locked Up; Son, 19, Held

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19-year-old Brooklyn man has been arrested for allegedly beating his mother and locking her in the bathroom.

Police said John Herron was arrested Sunday and charged with grand larceny, unlawful imprisonment and assault on his mother, Palmeri Herron, 42, Saturday afternoon.

HIS 17-YEAR-OLD brother, Brian, who also allegedly beat his mother, escaped arrest, police said.

The woman was battered on the face and head, according to police, who said she apparently had been locked in the bathroom since 11 a.m. Saturday.

Investigators said the brothers slugged their mother often, tore up her clothes and furniture, and threatened to throw her out a window of her sixth-story Flushing apartment.

U.S. Summary
Rain battered the East Coast, with northeastern North Carolina and New England getting most of it, and thunderstorms rumbled over areas from South Dakota to Florida. Meanwhile, temperatures soared enough to prompt first-stage advisories in several inland valleys.

And with temperatures in the inland areas expected to rise into the 90s as the week progresses, district officials say there is a good chance that more second-stage alerts will be issued.

In a first-stage alert, residents are urged to stay indoors if possible and to keep physical activity to a minimum. When a second-stage advisory is issued, businesses are required to implement emergency measures, including cutting back fuel consumption and encouraging employee carpools.

"It looks like it's going to start breaking," said National Weather Service meteorologist Don Boggs. He said today's temperature was expected to be even lower because a short-wave trough was weakening the upper-level high-pressure zone and allowing more cool, ocean air to move inland.

Coastal Weather

Extensive low clouds tonight and Tuesday morning.

Xerox Woes Rivals Make Inroads

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ
Let me introduce you to a company that's under the gun. Xerox Corp.
How, you may ask, can a company be anywhere near trouble when it has sales of $5 billion a year, thereby ranking as the 39th largest industrial corporation in the land, and when it earns $406 million after taxes, thereby ranking as the 24th largest profit maker on the Fortune 500 list?

OR IF IT DOES HAVE troubles with a cash flow like that, how can we get some of them?
It is possible to have problems even if you are as big and fat as Xerox. The problems may even be a function of the company's size. Xerox Grew so rapidly in so short a time that it set up expectations that can no longer meet.

Money Tree
It was also relatively easy to do when you had a patented process that virtually gave you a stranglehold on the market for plain-paper copies. That's no longer true. The Japanese have entered the field with efficient plain-paper copiers. Sophisticated copiers have been introduced by IBM and Eastman Kodak.

AS A RESULT, XEROX HAS lost some market share. It holds 60 percent of a market that it once monopolized. But the market is much bigger than it once was. On a worldwide basis it's more than $7 billion, compared to less than $2 billion in 1970. Copying has become a mania.

Holding 60 percent of a plus-$7 billion market is nothing to cry about. But that's not the way the business world operates. It wants to know: what will you do this year to top last year? If you can't, you're a loser.

Recognizing that it can't rest on its copying laurels, Xerox has expanded into other areas via acquisitions. It makes electronic word processors, digital printing systems, computer disc drives. And it looks forward to becoming a major factor in the automated office of tomorrow.

"YOU SEE, XEROX DOESN'T just copy information anymore," the company said in a recent ad directed at business people. "We help you manage it."

The trouble is, Wall Street analysts who follow the company don't believe Xerox can pull it off. They recall the $84 million write-off Xerox took three years ago in Scientific Data Systems, a maker of small computers, they know that Xerox has never been able to make much money outside of copying and duplicating machines. And they see that the direction Xerox is taking will bring the company into a head-to-head battle with IBM.

In that kind of fight, the smart money will be bet on IBM. Xerox used to be the darling of Wall Street. Now the institutions that bought it so heavily in earlier years are unloading it. In the first quarter of this year Citibank of New York sold 420,000 shares of Xerox.

Xerox common has been trading on the New York Stock Exchange at $50 a share. Five years ago it traded as high as $170. Ten years ago it traded no lower than $75.

When you take that kind of pounding, you're in trouble — no matter what your performance as a company is. Xerox is a victim of its past success.

Jersey Wineries No. 4, Try Hard

EGG HARBOR TOWNSHIP, N. J. (AP) — On the sandy soil at the shore and in the industrial north, 11 "little old winemakers" call New Jersey home, making the Garden State the nation's fourth largest wine producer.

The winemakers are mostly automated private concerns, annually producing 4.5 million gallons in 60 varieties — 1 percent of the nation's total wine output.

CALIFORNIA LEADS THE NATION in wine output, producing 306 million gallons annually. New York is second with 30 million gallons and Illinois third with 8.5 million gallons, according to figures from the state Department of Labor and Industry.

"People have to be educated to New Jersey wines," said Barbara Muller, hospitality manager for the Renault Winery here. "Americans were brought up thinking you can't make good wine in America."

Many of the New Jersey wineries have their origins in Europe. Louis Nicholas Renault left Rheims, the champagne capital of France, in 1864 and established what it is now the state's largest winery.

FRANK TOMASELLO, WHO learned winemaking in Italy, founded Tomaseello's winery in 1933. Krumm Winery in Linwood and Gross' Highland Winery in Absecon Highlands were founded by German-instructed winemakers.

"I don't think it's just New Jersey wines," said Edward Moulton, winemaker at Gross' Highland Winery. "The Eastern winemaker has to gain the acceptance of the consumer."

New Jersey wines are produced predominantly in New Jersey grapes and are sold primarily in New Jersey.

THE COST OF RAISING grapes has resulted in a drop in wine production in the Garden State, said Scott McGlasson, spokesman for the State Department of Labor and Industry.

Costs also include a $3,000 fee for the license required by the state Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

The South Jersey vintners, for the most part, grow their own grapes. The winemakers in North Jersey import their grapes from Atlantic or Burlington counties or outside the state.

NEW JERSEY FARMERS GREW 1,100 tons of grapes last year on 352 acres. All but 200 tons of the grapes were sold for processing, state agriculture officials said.

It takes about five years for a vine to produce good wine grapes. The pressing and fermentation process takes about eight weeks and then Renault ages its wines for four years in oak casks 80 to 120 years old, Mrs. Muller said.

ALTHOUGH SHE DECLINED to comment on how much wine Renault produced annually, McGlasson said his 1972 figures show 300,000 gallons flowed forth from the winery.

Several vintners conduct taste tours, giving prospective customers a glance at the winemaking operations and a sip of the product. "We're allowed to give tastes, but we cannot give bottles," Mrs. Muller said.

'SURPRISE HOST' OF ABC'S NEW TUESDAY SHOW '20-20' Hugh Downs Now Appears on Public and Commercial TV

Jet-setting Host Tireless

Hugh Downs Laboring From Coast to Coast

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES — It's a bit odd for someone to appear each week both on public and commercial TV.
But Hugh Downs, 57, the urbane former "Today" host, is doing just that these days.
NOT only that, he's laboring for PBS and ABC opposite ends of America.
In San Francisco, where he lives, he's hosted a nightly series on aging, KQED's "Over Easy," since last fall. He'll resume that show, now in repeats, when its second season starts next November.
Since June, he's flown to New York each week to anchor ABC's new Tuesday news-magazine show, "20-20." He says he plans to continue doing that as well as his "Over Easy" chores.
TRUE, IT SEEMS unusual to work in public and commercial TV simultaneously, but ABC brass didn't regard his PBS work as a conflict when they talked with him about hosting "20-20," he says.
"They seemed very supportive of PBS ideas, and it wasn't as if I were working for CBS or NBC," added the man hastily installed as the sole anchor of "20-20" on June 13.

It happened a week after the show — now serious in tone — made its flashy, critically assailed debut with hosts Harold Hayes and Robert Huges, two ex-magazine editors who now are ex-hosts.
THE DAY AFTER the substituting for David Hartman on ABC's "AM America," was called by ABC news chief Rooney Arledge regarding a permanent berth on "20-20."
"I'll say this for him," he said of Arledge.
"He took the rap for the premiere, but he's somewhat like Churchill: He doesn't stubbornly cling to something just to vindicate his ego."
"WHEN HE SEES that something's wrong, he cuts his losses pretty fast."

The first "20-20" mixed sad, serious and silly news segments in rapid-fire style. Downs' theory on what went wrong "They put things together that just didn't emulsify."
"And maybe there was just too much for an audience to assimilate."
THEY OBVIOUSLY were trying not to imitate CBS' "60 Minutes," he added, "but I said to them, 'Don't be so afraid of imitating.'
"It's like saying, 'This magazine uses paper and ink, so let's do something different.' You've got to do a lot that '60 Minutes' does, but we should do it our way and do it well."
Downs, who spoke by phone from his KQED office in San Francisco, won't have to constantly jet back and forth from "Over Easy" there to "20-20" in New York, as might be expected

HE SAID THE ABC show will air each week until mid-September, then just once a month from October through December, before resuming a weekly run in January.
And he won't start work on a new 10-week batch of "Over Easy" shows for next season until mid-September.
He could become a serious jet-setter if KQED stands an underwriter for still more "Over Easy" shows on which work would start in January, the same month "20-20" returns to weekly status.
THE "20-20" has been high. ABC hasn't had about dropping the show if the program's Nielsen don't improve?
"Oh, no," Downs said. Before he took the anchor job, "I wanted to know if they were committed to the show."
"I told them I had no intention of coming aboard just to preside over its demise."
"They assured me they were committed to it. And I think they are... I think they'll want to do just what CBS did with '60 Minutes.'"

Executive Turns Actor

'Empty Life' Led to Space Series Stardom

By The Associated Press
Most actors claim they began emoting while still tykes.
Not Gil Gerard, star of an NBC version of the famed 1939 "Buck Rogers" space serial that starred Buster Crabbe.
HE'S ONLY BEEN acting nine years. To do it, he chucked a career as a chemical company executive in his native Little Rock, Ark., at the fairly advanced age of 26.
The reason for the chucking, Gerard says, is that while he was succeeding in business, he felt his life was empty, that there should be more to it than chemical and memos.
"At about the same time, I heard Peggy Lee's 'Is That All'...
Chevy Chase Series Host
Chevy Chase will host an upcoming segment for Home Box Office's "On Location" series.
The 90-minute special was shot in Los Angeles at the Comedy Store and will debut on the network in August.
Chase hosts the program, interacting with the audience and trading ad-libs with a number of young comics who then will have a chance to do 12 to 15 uncensored minutes of their own nightclub acts.

There is, and it really hit home," he grinned.
"SO I STARTED thinking about what I'd enjoyed most when I was younger."
It proved to be the memories of the amateur acting he'd done in elementary, high school and college plays. So he decided to quit business and give emoting a whirl.
He says the whirl began in New York.
There, he drove a cab by night and studied acting by day at the American Musical and Dramatic Academy, his tutor Philip Burton, stepfather of Richard Burton.
IN 1970 HE GOT his first paying job, an Old Milwaukee Beer commercial. Not high art, but it paid the rent and led to more commercials and 2½ years in an NBC soap opera, "The Doctors."
He left that series, he says, "because I felt I'd learned all I could there and I didn't want to get stuck in that security rut. "I wanted the top, and the only way I could do it was to let go of that security and move on."
HE SAID THE letting-go was aided by producer Bernie Kowalski, who hired him to come to Hollywood — where he now lives — to test for a part in a TV pilot that never made it to series status.
He returned to Fun City to star in "Hooch," a low-budget film about moonshiners. Produced by a company he formed in 1975, the movie is playing in the South, Gerard said.

The rugged, easy-going actor's credits include four other TV pilots, "Airport '77" and appearances on "Barretta," "Hawaii Five-O," and "Little House on the Prairie."
HE SAID NONE of the four pilots became series, but one, "Killing Stone," led to his new Buck Rogers project for NBC.
That 25th century caper will air as a six-hour miniseries later this season, says NBC, which also has another Buster Crabbe remake, "Flash Gordon," being remade for the 1979-80 season.
Gerard isn't worried that if his show hits he'll get type-cast.
"I LOOK forward to it taking off," he said. "Because the name of the game in this business is a power base. "He meant a hit show gives an actor considerable clout in lining up other projects.
Be that as it may, the businessman-turned-actor was advised to keep his Buck Rogers ray gun handy for errand agents.
"Yeah," laughed Gil Gerard. "I'll dissolve his commission."
