HIS RESEARCH AIDED FIRST TEST TUBE BABY
Dr. Patrick Steptoe Has a Medical Breakthrough

Test Tube Birth Ends 12-year Test

OLDHAM, England (AP) Doctors say the five-pound, 12-ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition.

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in Oldham's red-brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter.

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs. Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's uterus to develop normally.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A

Police Seek Rapist in San Clemente

A 37-year-old San Clemente woman was raped early today by a man who entered her home through the front door and called her by name.

Police said today they are seeking a suspect described as 25 years old, five feet, 10 inches, weighing 150 pounds, with collar-length dark hair and a mustache in the 4 a.m. incident.

The victim said she did not know her attacker.

The victim told police her front door was locked but police could find no evidence of forced entry.

The woman sustained no injuries beyond the attack itself.

Cars Vandalized

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Twenty police cruisers parked at the station house were vandalized in the second such incident in a year-long dispute at the Coral Gables Police Department.

Tourists Leaving Japan

TOKYO (AP) — American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S. dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here.

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico, Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors. "Everything is too expensive."

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September.

Tourists today were getting 192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that."

Fat Nudist Loose In Huntington

A naked fat man eluded a police dragnet in downtown Huntington Beach Tuesday night, making a clean getaway in his tan compact car.

Shocked witnesses in the area of 14th Street and Walnut Avenue initially reported the obese nudist about 6:30 p.m., while it was still broad daylight, according to police.

Fido to Flush

Pet Potty to End Scooping?

MIAMI (AP) — Some cities and states, in an effort to combat dog and cat litter, have passed laws requiring owners to scoop up after their animals. Inventor Franklin Temel has come up with the second-generation device — a flush toilet for pets.

"When an idea like this hits you, you just light up like a firecracker," explained Temel, who spent eight years and $110,000 on his project.

The animal potty is a stall with a floor made of stainless steel slats. Underneath the floor are spray nozzles and a tank of water. It is surrounded on two sides by pipes, hoses and a fiberglass shell.

A bottled scent — a "terribly powerful stimulant" — attracts the animal to the toilet. Temel explained it took 18 months of observation, lab analyses and some personal sniffing to develop the right scent.

Temel estimates his animal toilet could be manufactured for under $250.

Battery Levy Set At $500

Laguna Beach Police Chief John Sparks, who returns to duty Monday, was fined $500 Tuesday for beating a fellow bar patron.

Sparks, who pleaded no contest (nolo contendere) to one count of battery, was sentenced in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

Sparks, 42, was involved in a bar fight June 29. He reportedly pushed a long-stemmed carnation into the face of a fellow bar patron before shoving a table against the man's chest and pounding him several times in the face.

Deputy District Attorny Ron Kreber said the plea of nolo contendere is the same as a lea of guilt, "but the legal effect of this plea means that the guilt admission cannot be used in a civil case."

That would presumably prevent Costa Mesa truck driver Delbert Mathieson, the victim in the bar fight, from using prior court testimony should he sue the police chief and city.

Kreber said he originally sought jail time for the then-suspended police chief, as well as a fine.

"But after review of similar (battery) cases which occurred in bars with only minor injuries sustained by the victims, we observed that the courts never sen-

'Knee Deep'

Swarming Mayflies Shut Down Bridge

PORTAGE, Wis. (AP) — Newly hatched mayflies swarmed "knee deep" onto a bridge over the Wisconsin River, forcing the structure to be temporarily closed while crews used a road-grading machine to clear the insects away.

"A couple cars got stuck. One had to be towed away," Ken Manthey, Portage police dispatcher, said today.

He said the car that was towed off "was completely covered up to the hood."

The trouble began Tuesday night after bridge lights which have not been used in recent days were inadvertently turned on, Manthey said. They apparently attracted the mayflies, which live only a short time after hatching in the water.

Manthey said the seasonal hatch of mayflies was considered the heaviest in years at Portage.

He said some insects landed

Nixon Says GOP Ready For Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon is quoted as saying the Carter administration "is lousing up on so many things that we (Republicans) ought to have a great chance to make a comeback" in 1980.

House Republican Whip Robert H. Michel of Illinois, who is recuperating from a beating he suffered in a mugging Friday, said Nixon made the political assessment during a get-well telephone call Tuesday.

Michel said that during the nine-minute conversation Nixon mentioned the case of Dr. Peter Bourne, who resigned as President Carter's health and drug abuse adviser last week. Bourne quit after admitting that he had written a fictitious name on a prescription for a widely abused sedative intended for his White House aide.

Michel quoted Nixon as saying:

"Gosh, how bad can it get when the very one you've got close to you in the White House to remedy the drug abuse situation is doing it himself?"

Mesa Model Arrested

Costa Mesa vice officers arrested a photo studio nude model Tuesday on prostitution charges after she allegedly offered sexual services to a policeman for $50.

It was the second consecutive day that Costa Mesa officers have made a prostitution arrest.

In Tuesday's case, Sherry Lynn Richie, 22, of Anaheim was held on a charge of solicitation. She is in Orange County Jail with bail set at $500.

Police said they requested her services as a nude model Tuesday afternoon at Sunshine Studios, 583 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa.

Undercover police paid $18 for a half hour photographic session, during which time they allege Miss Richie offered sexual extras.

A second undercover officer then entered the small room on the second floor of the studio and placed her under arrest, police said.

The Tuesday arrest followed a Monday evening incident in which police rented a room at a local hotel and phoned for the services of an employee of a local outcall massage parlor.

In that incident a 23-year-old Anaheim woman allegedly offered sex for $100. She was arrested on a charge of solicitation.

Tax Forms Rapped

Report Says They're Too Hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any taxpayer needed official confirmation, here it is, from the General Accounting Office: income tax forms are too difficult for a lot of Americans to understand.

Both the long and short 1040 forms are "written at a reading level beyond that of many taxpayers," the GAO said in a 118-page report released Tuesday.

The Internal Revenue Service, the GAO said, is more concerned with having its forms precisely reflect the tax laws than making language understandable to the average taxpayer.

"Certainly, the accuracy of the forms and instructions has no value unless people understand what is being said," according to the report prepared for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation.

Another stumbling block for many taxpayers, the GAO said, "is the disorganized and cluttered design of the forms and instructions."

The report, noting that the IRS is working on making the forms and instructions easier to read, added, "Even more can be done to improve readability without sacrificing technical accuracy."

The GAO panel of experts, which included a law professor, educators and a textbook publisher, recommended that the IRS establish a task force of writing and design experts to study improving the forms.

The IRS responded with a cautious endorsement, saying, "We agree that additional improvements can be made and that outside consultants may provide useful perspective and assistance . . . We will take all appropriate steps to achieve further simplification within a balanced tax administration program."

The report cited this question from a form sent in all tax packets to determine whether poor working families qualify for help in paying for educational costs:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S. in which you lived and which for the entire year (except for temporary absences for vacation, school, etc.) was also the home of (1) your child who was under 19 years of age or a full-time student OR (2) your dependent child who is disabled (see pages 7 and 8)?"

The GAO suggested the question could be broken into three simpler questions.

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S.?"

"Did you live in this home?"

"Was this also the home of your child for the entire year, except for short absences such as vacation or school?"

Nazi Guard 'A Victim'

Judge Rules Death Camp Torture Unproven

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge allowed Feodor Fedorenko to retain his U.S. citizenship today despite accusations that he whipped and shot Jews as a guard in a Nazi death camp during World War II.

Calling Fedorenko a "victim of Nazi aggression," U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger ruled that the prosecution had not proved the accusations against the native Ukrainian. He had been accused of lying on naturalization papers when he became a U.S. citizen in 1949.

"The record on Fedorenko's conduct 35 years ago is inconclusive," Roettger wrote in his opinion.

The judge did not show up in court; his ruling was read by the clerk.

Roettger released his 54-page opinion five weeks after an emotional trial during which six Israeli survivors of the infamous Treblinka death camp tearfully testified that they saw Fedorenko torture and kill Jewish prisoners.

But at least two of the elderly witnesses vacillated on their identifications, and at one point the judge said he wondered if some witnesses had been coached.

Fedorenko, 71, was never formally charged under U.S. law with atrocities at the prison camp. But had he been stripped of his citizenship, he could have been deported and forced to stand trial in Europe on war-crimes charges.

During the trial, Fedorenko admitted he lied to get U.S. citizenship by claiming to be a Polish farmer forced to work as a laborer for the Germans. He said he served as a guard at Treblinka but denied killing or torturing Jews. Defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy argued that Fedorenko lied because he didn't want to return to the Soviet Union.

Fedorenko is one of a number of persons recently charged by federal officials with falsely concealing Nazi pasts when they entered the United States.

A Polish immigrant, Frank Walus, was recently found guilty by a judge in Chicago of lying to U.S. authorities about activities as a Gestapo agent who took part in several murders. He has been stripped of citizenship and is subject to deportation proceedings, but he has appealed the conviction.

Schmit Opposed

County Day Care Needs Get Study

Disclaiming any part in "socialized child care," lame duck Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit cast the lone vote against further study of county aid to day care facilities Tuesday.

The subject was brought before supervisors in a report from the county's Commission on the Status of Women which charged that the county lags far behind in providing its residents with child care facilities.

The report noted, for instance, that in the 1976-77 fiscal year, San Diego County spent $2 million in aid to day care facilities while Orange County spent $52,000.

The report contained a list of 28 recommendations aimed at improving child care services for working single parents in Orange County. Supervisors referred it to a county committee studying youth services.

The list was gathered by the commission on women during a recent day-long seminar that drew 75 child care providers and interested citizens.

The suggestions range from calling upon supervisors to create a model day care center for the South County to having industry develop day care centers for employees to asking government to ease licensing rules and other restrictions for child care facilities.

"Orange County has lagged behind comparable counties in receiving its share of state and federal funds for child care and development programs," said Commission Chairwoman Pauline Rangel.

While child care services have increased statewide, the commission report said, Orange County agencies haven't contributed enough in local dollars to attract state and federal child care grants.

Data supplied by Nancy Claxton, coordinator of child care centers for the Orange County Department of Education, showed that statewide there are an average of 13 child care facilities per assembly district.

Yet, in Orange County, there are an average of just 3.83 per assembly district, she said.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit voted against sending the report on, however, contending it smacked of "socialized child care."

"It appears to me the bottom line here is to remove child care from the home and give it to the state," he said.

Supervisors Chairman Thomas Riley disagreed, noting many of the recommendations call on industry to help working mothers through flexible work schedules or on-site child care centers.

"Child care certainly provides an option to the parents who feel they want to work," Riley said.

The commission report noted that problems in fulfilling Orange County child care needs developed because the needs were not recognized for many years.

In addition, the report said, the role of child care in the total health of the economy and ability of mothers to enter the labor force has been ignored locally.

The commission recommended that school districts permit enrollment of youngsters outside their geographic attendance areas so mothers can make convenient arrangements for after-school care.

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two.

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Statistics released by the Japan Tourist Association indicate foreign visitors are spending fewer days in Japan. Tourists who spent nearly 14 days in this country in 1974 now stay about nine days, a survey showed.

The U.S. currency zigzagged in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market, dipping to 194.50 in the early afternoon and closing at 195.05. It closed at 195.525 Tuesday.

Volume was high at $870 million, with the central Bank of Japan accounting for possibly $200 million in an effort to brake the rise of the yen, bankers said.

The dollar plunged through the psychologically important 200-yen barrier Monday, and one trader at a Japanese bank commented today: "There aren't any psychological barriers left. The next level will be 190 yen."

In another development, the United States recorded the smallest trade deficit in more than a year last month as U.S. businesses sold a record $12.1 billion in products to other countries, the Commerce Department said today.

The June trade deficit of $1.6 billion was encouraging because the growing trade gap had contributed to inflation at home and the decline of the dollar overseas.

Power Bills Won't Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Edison has been granted an interim rate increase of $102 million a year by the California Public Utilities Commission.

However, the hike granted Tuesday will not necessarily mean higher consumer bills, at least not this year, because of an abundance of low-cost hydroelectric power that has lowered the utility's fuel costs.

Edison provides electric service to about 8 million people.

Boat Blast Injures Pair Off Newport

Two Pasadena brothers were injured Tuesday night when a boat they were aboard exploded at the dock in Newport Beach.

A spokesman for the Newport Harbor Patrol said the explosion was reported at 9:06 p.m. at the Lido Peninsula yacht anchorage.

The 16-foot motorboat, owned by Sheldon Foreman of 225 Via Genoa, Newport Beach, sustained $4,000 damage in the mishap, according to patrolmen.

The two youths, Jeff and Greg Assas, were the only people on board the boat at the time of the mishap. Greg was treated and released from Hoag Memorial Hospital where Jeff was admitted and is listed in good condition today.

A Harbor Patrol spokesman said exact cause of the flash explosion is not known but investigators suspect it was touched off because gas had collected in the boat's bilge.

Brown Cuts Not Enough?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Republican candidate for governor Evelle Younger says Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. "hasn't achieved any real significant cutbacks" in government in response to Proposition 13.

The attorney general said Brown has used the huge state surplus, which Younger says should never have been accumulated, to continue government "business as usual."

BABY. . .

hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after conception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

The Daily Mail, which paid $600,000 for exclusive rights to the Browns' story, reported the father gasped when given a brief glimpse of his child and said:

"It's incredible, incredible . . . I'm not a religious man, but I thank God that I heard our little girl cry for the first time. No one can realize what this means to Lesley and myself."

Brown has a 17-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

A hospital spokesman said the mother was "over the moon with joy." He said she and the baby would probably be able to go home to Bristol in about 10 days.

The doctors knew the baby's sex in advance from chromosomal tests, but Mrs. Brown told them not to tell her because "I don't want to be cheated of the final thrill."

The only problem that apparently arose in the latter stage of Mrs. Brown's pregnancy was a minor blood poisoning known as toxemia, but doctors said it was quickly brought under control.

The birth was expected to rekindle a fierce philosophical and ethical debate on the morality of conception outside a mother's body.

"So I felt a large fine was more in order."

He said he felt the $500 fine was unusually high, "but we wanted to be sure we weren't accused of making allowances for the fact he is a high-ranking police officer."

The action Tuesday in Judge Richard Orozco's Santa Ana courtroom, comes less than two weeks after South County Municipal Court judges asked that the case be transferred to the central court.

"It was their (the South Court judges) motion that the case be transferred to central," Kreber explained. "There was no known conflict, but the judges felt there might be some appearance of a conflict because of the small size of the community."

Mesa Reaction Disgusts Home Manager

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The manager of a Santa Ana home for mentally retarded adults reacted with disgust today about comments made Tuesday by eastside Costa Mesans protesting the county-approved transfer of the home to an apparent complex near Woodland School.

"One of our residents read the article and came home very upset," said Colin Ashling, a 59 year-old Laguna Beach resident who runs the home for retarded adults.

"The statements (by residents) are complete lies and absolutely vindictive in nature. Our people are completely harmless and very gentle," Ashling said today.

Ashling's reactions centered on fears expressed by eastside residents that allowing the retarded adults into the area could have an adverse effect on students at the elementary school.

One woman living near the school said she is concerned about potential sexual attacks by retarded residents of the 12-unit apartment complex at 362 W. 20th.

Other residents have expressed concern over lowered property values and possible fire hazards if the Orange County Planning Commission decision last week that allowed the transfer of the home to Costa Mesa is upheld.

Protesting homeowners, who have been circulating petitions as the "Costa Mesa Concerned Citizens Committee," say they will appeal the planning commission's decision.

The complex is on a narrow lot that fronts on 20th Street and extends to Woodland Place. The lot, which includes a separate three-bedroom house, is in a pocket of county territory at the edge of Costa Mesa.

"I think it's just disgusting that human beings would say such lies," said Ashling. "What are the parents of other children (in the area) thinking now?

"We have never had a violation issued, not even a parking ticket, let alone any sexual offenses," he added.

Ashling said the 36 adults (most in their 20s) who will occupy the apartment are "high functioning" people who have their own jobs and take care of much of their own financial needs.

All will either walk or use public transportation to get to and from the home. The program is designed to let retarded adults become independent in

Sheriff Arrests Rival's Worker

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators.

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18, whose last known home address was in Mission Viejo, and two juveniles: a boy, 17, and a girl, 16.

Gates said the 17-year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates opponent in the November election.

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas.

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' association or sheriff's department personnel.

Gates said the Omega firm has now been discharged from fund raising activities by the association and has no further connection with the Rusk campaign.

Bennett was lodged in the county jail on burglary and theft charges. Gates said the two juveniles were taken to juvenile hall to face arraignment on identical charges and, in the case of the girl, for violation of probation.

HIS RESEARCH AIDED FIRST TEST TUBE BABY
Dr. Patrick Steptoe Has a Medical Breakthrough

Girl's Birth Hailed Major Breakthrough

LONDON (AP) — The birth of the first baby conceived outside its mother's body was hailed today as a major medical breakthrough for women who cannot normally bear a child. But the arrival of the "test-tube baby" was also expected to open debate over the morals of reproducing human life in the laboratory.

The baby girl, nine days premature, was delivered Tuesday by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown, the wife of Bristol truck driver Gilbert John Brown, 38. The 5-pound, 12-ounce girl arrived "crying its head off," doctors said, and was described as normal and in "excellent" condition.

"We are not creating life," said Dr. Patrick Steptoe, 59, the leading British gynecologist who pioneered the procedure. "We have merely done what many people try to do in all kinds of medicine — to help nature. I cannot see anything immoral in trying to help the patient's problem."

Giles Ecclestone, secretary of the Board for Social Responsibility of the Church of England — Episcopalians in the United States — said he "welcomed the development because the birth represents an advance in meeting the problems of childlessness for married couples."

But Cardinal Gordon Grey, president of the Scottish Roman Catholic bishops, said, "I have grave misgivings about the methods and the possible implications for the future."

In Rome, a spokesman for the Vatican said the Roman Catholic Church considers artificial human insemination illicit.

Jewish and Moslem spokesmen saw no conflict with their religious laws, as long as the procedure involves married couples.

Medical authorities warned that the birth of an apparently

It was the second consecutive day that Costa Mesa officers have made a prostitution arrest.

In Tuesday's case, Sherry Lynn Richie, 22, of Anaheim was held on a charge of solicitation. She is in Orange County Jail with bail set at $500.

Police said they requested her services as a nude model Tuesday afternoon at Sunshine Studios, 583 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa.

Undercover police paid $18 for a half hour photographic session, during which time they allege Miss Richie offered sexual extras.

A second undercover officer then entered the small room on the second floor of the studio and placed her under arrest, police said.

Tourists Say 'Sayonara'

Yen-to-dollar Ratio Closes U.S. Pocketbooks

TOKYO (AP) — American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S. dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here.

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico, Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors. "Everything is too expensive."

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September.

Tourists today were getting 192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that."

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two.

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Statistics released by the Japan Tourist Association indicate foreign visitors are spending fewer days in Japan. Tourists who spent nearly 14 days in this country in 1974 now stay about nine days, a survey showed.

The U.S. currency zigzagged in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market, dipping to 194.50 in the early afternoon and closing at 195.05. It closed at 195.525 Tuesday.

Volume was high at $870 million, with the central Bank of Japan accounting for possibly $200 million in an effort to brake the rise of the yen, bankers said.

The dollar plunged through the psychologically important 200-yen barrier Monday.

Rose's Batting Streak Goes To 39 Games

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose extended his modern National League record consecutive game hitting streak to 39 games this afternoon with a double leading off the fifth inning of the Cincinnati Reds' game against the New York Mets. (Earlier story, Page B1)

Rose, who broke Tommy Holmes' NL record streak of 37 games Tuesday night with a third-inning single, is one game shy of the third-longest streak in modern major league history, Ty Cobb's 40-game string in 1911.

The record is Joe DiMaggio's 56-game streak in 1941. Second on the list is George Sisler, with 41 games in 1922.

Rose grounded out to third base in the first inning in his first time at bat against Mets starter Nino Espinosa and walked on four pitches in the third inning before hitting a line drive up the alley in right-center for his double in the fifth.

Tax Forms Rapped

Report Says They're Too Hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any taxpayer needed official confirmation, here it is, from the General Accounting Office: income tax forms are too difficult for a lot of Americans to understand.

Both the long and short 1040 forms are "written at a reading level beyond that of many taxpayers," the GAO said in a 118-page report released Tuesday.

The Internal Revenue Service, the GAO said, is more concerned with having its forms precisely reflect the tax laws than making language understandable to the average taxpayer.

"Certainly, the accuracy of the forms and instructions has no value unless people understand what is being said," according to the report prepared for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation.

Another stumbling block for many taxpayers, the GAO said, "is the disorganized and cluttered design of the forms and instructions."

The report, noting that the IRS is working on making the forms and instructions easier to read, added, "Even more can be done to improve readability without sacrificing technical accuracy."

The GAO panel of experts, which included a law professor, educators and a textbook publisher, recommended that the IRS establish a task force of writing and design experts to study improving the forms.

The IRS responded with a cautious endorsement, saying, "We agree that additional improvements can be made and that outside consultants may provide useful perspective and assistance . . . We will take all appropriate steps to achieve further simplification within a balanced tax administration program."

The report cited this question from a form sent in all tax packets to determine whether poor working families qualify for help in paying for educational costs:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S. in which you lived and which for the entire year (except for temporary absences for vacation, school, etc.) was also the home of (1) your child who was under 19 years of age or a full-time student OR (2) your dependent child who is disabled (See Pages 7 and 8).

The GAO suggested the question could be broken into three simpler questions:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S.?"

"Did you live in this home?"

"Was this also the home of your child for the entire year, except for short absences such as vacation or school?"

society.

"These people are far quieter than the average next door neighbor," said Ashling. "They react very well to a little kindness."

"This is a licensed premises and there is someone on (supervisorial) duty 24 hours a day. As far as fire hazard is concerned, another requirement is that somoke detectors be installed," said Ashling.

"We strongly advise people not to smoke and there is no smoking except at the dining room table or outside," he added.

Some residents have questioned the operation and condition of Ashling's current home in Santa Ana. He admits "it most definitely is rundown, we make no effort to gloss that over."

The crumbling condition of the Santa Ana facility is a major reason for the move to Costa Mesa, said Ashling.

He said fears that property values might go down "is a fantasy. The place will have exactly the same appearance," said Ashling.

He said he would be willing to discuss any concerns of residents if they would call him at 494-4459.

Ashling said he expects to occupy the Costa Mesa site in about two months.

BABY HAILED. . .

healthy girl to 30-year-old Lesley Brown does not guarantee an immediate solution to the one married woman in 10 who is said to be infertile because of reproductive problems.

"It is obvious this is not immediately available to everybody," said Steptoe.

But Dr. Robert Edwards, 52, a Cambridge University physiologist who worked 12 years with Steptoe to develop the method, said the implications would be felt by childless couples all over the world.

"I would hope that within a very few years . . . instead of this being a seven-day wonder, this will be a fairly commonplace affair," said Edwards.

The physician said 40 percent of the infertile women all over the world suffer from the cause of Mrs. Brown's infertility — malfunctioning Fallopian tubes.

"If the methods we have developed continue to be developed further, the whole approach to infertility will be changed," said Steptoe.

"The baby came out crying its head off," said Steptoe. "She is in a perfectly healthy state, although for the first few hours after the birth she was put into the hospital's special baby care unit which we do with all Caesareans. But then we transferred her to her mother."

The father was described by his cousins as "over the moon with joy."

"I have never seen a man so excited," said a hospital worker. "He was laughing and crying at the same time. Everyone in the hospital has a smile on their face today."

Although Steptoe and Edwards said the details of their technique wouldn't be published for a few months, other researchers said that the new "test tube" technique might be so far advanced that others can learn it quickly.

The baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of Mrs. Brown's ovaries with a specialized laparoscope, an instrument that allows the physician to see inside the abdomen and remove the delicate egg.

The egg was placed in a sophisticated piece of laboratory glassware where it was fertilized with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's womb to develop normally.

Mrs. Brown had undergone surgery in the past to attempt to remedy the cause of her infertility, which had been diagnosed as blocked Fallopian tubes. The tubes usually carry a fertilized egg to the uterus.

Schools' Food Fee To Rise

School lunches and a la carte foods will cost more this fall in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District.

Reacting to the post-Jarvis need to make the district's food services self-supporting, school trustees unanimously approved the food cost hikes Tuesday night.

High school students will now pay 70 cents for a hot lunch (an increase of 10 cents); middle school students, 60 cents (up 10 cents); and elementary students will pay a nickel more for what is now a 50-cent hot lunch.

A la carte sandwiches will increase by 10 or 20 cents as will "fast food specialties" like burritos, corn dogs and pizza.

The only items not affected by the price hikes are "frozen desserts" such as ice cream, juice bars and yogurt.

Last year the district's food services division operated on a budget of $1.9 million. However, the food services department will get about $200,000 less this year because of passage of Proposition 13, officials said.

This prompted a request for higher food prices to keep the food services department from taking a finanacial loss next school year.

Boat Blast Injures Pair Off Newport

Two Pasadena brothers were injured Tuesday night when a boat they were aboard exploded at the dock in Newport Beach.

A spokesman for the Newport Harbor Patrol said the explosion was reported at 9:06 p.m. at the Lido Peninsula yacht anchorage.

The 16-foot motorboat, owned by Sheldon Foreman of 225 Via Genoa, Newport Beach, sustained $4,000 damage in the mishap, according to patrolmen.

The two youths, Jeff and Greg Assas, were the only people on board the boat at the time of the mishap. Greg was treated and released from Hoag Memorial Hospital where Jeff was admitted and is listed in good condition today.

A Harbor Patrol spokesman said exact cause of the flash explosion is not known but investigators suspect it was touched off because gas had collected in the boat's bilge.

Marine Studies Lease Approved

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 50-year lease offering the Orange County Marine Institute the use of 3.8 acres of county land in Dana Point Harbor was approved on a 4-1 vote by county supervisors Tuesday.

The institute was created last year by supervisors and the county's four community college districts to develop a marine studies facility on the county site.

A 10,000-square-foot building is to be constructed on the harbor land with $400,000 in county tidelands funds and $50,000 each from the four community college districts.

Supervisors earlier withheld approval of the lease to make sure the college districts still would have funds to build the facility in light of financial cuts brought on by passage of Proposition 13.

Dr. Norman Watson, of the Coast Community College District, president of the institute's board of directors, reported Tuesday that the districts still intend to contribute their $50,000 shares.

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich cast the lone vote against the lease, saying he is worried about county funds going into a 10,000-quare-foot educational facility.

"I think the plan is perhaps more school-oriented than it is marine, museum or open space or park area and I just have some concerns," he said.

Supervisors Philip Anthony and Thomas Riley said the facility would be an asset to the county as a whole and deserved supervisors financial support.

'Nazi Guard' Will Retain Citizenship

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge allowed Feodor Fedorenko to retain his U.S. citizenship today despite accusations that he whipped and shot Jews as a guard in a Nazi death camp and failed to tell immigration authorities about it. He has denied committing any atrocities against Jews.

Calling Fedorenko a "victim of Nazi aggression," U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger ruled that the prosecution had not proved the accusations against the native Ukrainian. He had been accused of lying on naturalization papers when he became a U.S. citizen in 1949.

"The record on Fedorenko's conduct 35 years ago is inconclusive," Roettger wrote in his opinion.

The judge did not show up in court; his ruling was read by the clerk.

Roettger released his 54-page opinion five weeks after an emotional trial during which six Israeli survivors of the infamous Treblinka death camp tearfully testified that they saw Fedorenko torture and kill Jewish prisoners.

But at least two of the elderly witnesses vacillated on their identifications, and at one point the judge said he wondered if some witnesses had been coached.

Fedorenko, 71, was never formally charged under U.S. law with atrocities at the prison camp. But had he been stripped of his citizenship, he could have been deported and forced to stand trial in Europe on war-crimes charges.

During the trial, Fedorenko admitted he lied to get U.S. citizenship by claiming to be a Polish farmer forced to work as a laborer for the Germans. He said he served as a guard at Treblinka but denied killing or torturing Jews. Defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy argued that Fedorenko lied because he didn't want to return to the Soviet Union.

Fedorenko is one of a number of persons recently charged by federal officials with falsely concealing Nazi pasts when they entered the United States.

Rams Move Seen as Economic Boost

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

By the time the Anaheim City Council approved a pact Tuesday afternoon that will bring the Los Angeles Rams to Orange County in 1980, football had taken a back seat to high finance and real estate (Related story Page B1.)

The high finance involved an estimated $150 million worth of development in the Anaheim Stadium area as well as football tickets priced at $15 a head and game parking at $3 a car.

The real estate involved 95 city-owned acres surrounding the stadium, plans for eight-story office buildings, other commercial-retail development and a 475-room hotel.

From the city council's viewpoint, Anaheim is in a "can't lose" position.

The city will sponsor $22 million worth of municipal revenue bonds to provide the money needed to add 27,000 seats to Anaheim Stadium.

That bond debt will be repaid from the estimated $1.8 million annually the city will receive from the football enterprise at the stadium.

As a matter of fact, revenue estimates indicated the city will get $300,000 a year more in income than will be needed to retire the bonds.

Anaheim's Rams revenue will come from its 7½ percent share of gate receipts as well as its 50 percent of parking and concession income at the stadium.

According to the preliminary city-Rams agreement, football fans will pay $15 each for the best 42,000 stadium seats and $12 each for the 28,000 seats that aren't so choice.

No price was mentioned for the 60 to 80 special enclosed box suites that will be part of the expanded stadium.

Real estate became prominent in the council's unanimous approval of the preliminary agreement with plans for development of the city's 95 stadium-adjacent acres.

As the Boston based development firm Cabot, Cabot and Forbes develops the land, the city's lease take will be $8,000 an acre.

Or, the Rams-developer consortium can buy the land for from $80,000 to $100,000 an acre.

In either event, city revenue will be stepped up by virtue of having privately owned structures built on property that is not now on the tax rolls.

Mayor John Seymour also pointed out that city revenues will gain through the increase in commercial activity resulting from the development.

Seymour praised the agreement as "a step that moves this city ahead as well as something that will be of great benefit to all of Orange County and the county's economy."

He predicted the Ram move will add 6,000 permanent jobs to county payrolls.

Day Care Assailed By Schmit

Disclaiming any part in "socialized child care," lame duck Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit cast the lone vote against further study of county aid to day care facilities Tuesday.

The subject was brought before supervisors in a report from the county's Commission on the Status of Women which charged that the county lags far behind in providing its residents with child care facilities.

The report noted, for instance, that in the 1976-77 fiscal year, San Diego County spent $2 million in aid to day care facilities while Orange County spent $52,000.

The report contained a list of 28 recommendations aimed at improving child care services for working single parents in Orange County. Supervisors referred it to a county committee studying youth services.

The list was gathered by the commission on women during a recent day-long seminar that drew 75 child care providers and interested citizens.

The suggestions range from calling upon supervisors to create a model day care center for the South County to having industry develop day care centers for employees to asking government to ease licensing rules and other restrictions for child care facilities.

"Orange County has lagged behind comparable counties in receiving its share of state and federal funds for child care and development programs," said Commission Chairwoman Pauline Rangel.

While child care services have increased statewide, the commission report said, Orange County agencies haven't contributed enough in local dollars to attract state and federal child care grants.

Data supplied by Nancy Claxton, coordinator of child care centers for the Orange County Department of Education showed that statewide there are an average of 13 child care facilities per assembly district.

Yet, in Orange County, there are an average of just 3.83 per assembly district, she said.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit voted against sending the report on, however, contending it smacked of "socialized child care."

"It appears to me the bottom line here is to remove child care from the home and give it to the state," he said.

Supervisors Chairman Thomas Riley disagreed, noting many of the recommendations call on industry to help working mothers through flexible work schedules or on-site child care centers.

"Child care certainly provides an option to the parents who feel they want to work," Riley said.

The commission report noted that problems in fulfilling Orange County child care needs developed because the needs were not recognized for many years.

In addition, the report said, the role of child care in the total health of the economy and ability of mothers to enter the labor force has been ignored locally.

Deputy Sheriffs Win Vote in Bargaining

County supervisors and the Orange County Association of Deputy Sheriffs settled their differences out of court Tuesday.

Supervisors agreed that association members could select their own contract bargaining agent at an election in October.

The board's action, supported by Sheriff Brad Gates, ends a two-year-old controversy over who should represent the deputies — the deputies association or the Orange County Employees Association.

County officials contended the association violated county rules two years ago when they came in one month late with a request to create a new bargaining unit.

They took their case to Orange County Superior Court and won but the ruling was appealed by the county in the 4th District Court of Appaeal.

Now time has resolved the issue, county Personnel Director Bert Scott said Tuesday.

The two-year county contract covering deputies and most other county employees will expire next summer. And that means the deputies can begin the process of creating their own bargaining unit.

Gates said he supported the idea that "those who place their lives on the line" in the course of their work should be able to select their own contract bargaining representative.

Edison Strike Ends; Workers Ratify Contract

A 10-week strike at Southern California Edison Company power plants at Huntington Beach and San Onofre and at eight other Southern California locations was reported settled early today.

Edison spokesman Stanley Cann said that nearly 1,110 members of the Utility Workers Union of America, Local 246, ratified new terms of the contract this week.

He said that both union and Edison negotiators were still in the process of consummating the agreement this morning.

Cann said that terms of the new agreement were sketchy but that he expected the power station workers to return to their jobs later this week.

The striking workers maintain and repair power units. They went on strike May 10 when they balked at an Edison proposal to place them on a rotating seven-day work schedule in which they would work weekends without overtime pay.

The Edison spokesman said that it was his understanding that the strikers agreed to the new work schedule.

Trench Falls, Traps Worker

A construction worker was injured Tuesday when the 12-foot-deep trench he was digging in Yorba Linda caved in, trapping him up to his waist for 35 minutes, Orange County firemen said today.

Jerry Sackett, of 153 Cambridge St., Orange, suffered a fractured leg and numerous abrasions in the 11 a.m. accident, firemen said.

Sackett was freed by firemen after being trapped for 35 minutes. He was working for the Kennedy Pipeline Company, firemen said.

Laguna Chief Fined

Pleads No Contest to Battery

Laguna Beach Police Chief John Sparks, who returns to duty Monday, was fined $500 Tuesday for beating a fellow bar patron.

Sparks, who pleaded no contest (nolo contendere) to one count of battery, was sentenced in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

Sparks, 42, was involved in a bar fight June 29. He reportedly pushed a long-stemmed carnation into the face of a fellow bar patron before shoving a table against the man's chest and pounding him several times in the face.

Deputy District Attorny Ron Kreber said the plea of nolo contendere is the same as a plea of guilt, "but the legal effect of this plea means that the guilt admission cannot be used in a civil case."

That would presumably prevent Costa Mesa truck driver Delbert Mathieson, the victim in the bar fight, from using prior court testimony should he sue the police chief and city.

Kreber said he originally sought jail time for the then-suspended police chief, as well as a fine.

"But after review of similar (battery) cases which occurred in bars with only minor injuries sustained by the victims, we observed that the courts never sentenced anyone to jail on a first offense," Kreber said.

"So I felt a large fine was more in order."

He said he felt the $500 fine was unusually high, "but we wanted to be sure we weren't accused of making allowances for the fact he is a high-ranking police officer."

The action Tuesday in Judge Richard Orozco's Santa Ana courtroom, comes less than two weeks after South County Municipal Court judges asked that the case be transferred to the central court.

"It was their (the South Court judges) motion that the case be transferred to central," Kreber explained. "There was no known conflict, but the judges felt there might be some appearance of a conflict because of the small size of the community."

"They thought it would be better to have it transferred to a different jurisdiction."

Judge Orozco reviewed a police report on the evening-long activities leading to and after the altercation at the Ivy House restaurant and bar across the street from the Laguna Beach police department.

He also reviewed court transcripts from South County Court where Sparks pleaded not guilty earlier this month.

Sparks was suspended from duties without pay by City Manager Fred Solomon July 1, and reinstated as chief on July 17. He has been on vacation since, and is expected to return to work Monday.

He has contacted high ranking officers at the Laguna Beach police department, telling them he is coming back.

Power Bills Won't Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Edison has been granted an interim rate increase of $102 million a year by the California Public Utilities Commission.

However, the hike granted Tuesday will not necessarily mean higher consumer bills, at least not this year, because of an abundance of low-cost hydroelectric power that has lowered the utility's fuel costs.

Edison provides electric service to about eight million people.

Drunken Driving

Charge Dismissed Against Mardian

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Drunken driving charges filed against Dana Point restaurateur Robert Charles Mardian Jr. were dismissed Tuesday as the prosecution closed its case in his Orange County Superior Court trial.

Defense attorney Marshall Schulman successfully argued that the procsecution had offered no evidence to sustain the allegation that Mardian was drunk behind the wheel of his silver Ferrari on June 5, 1977.

He will continue to defend his client on the remaining charges of reckless driving.

Mardian, 30, of 3324 Atlantic Ave., Laguna Niguel, admitted that he was the driver of the car which skidded onto the sidewalk near the entrance to Doheny State Park and plowed into a 13-year-old boy who was wheeling his bicycle along the cycle path.

Michael Dawes of Dana Point suffered serious injuries, many of which will impair him for life. He remained in a coma for two months following the accident.

But Judge Kenneth E. Lae agreed with Schulman that he had not heard sufficient evidence in the non-jury trial to prove that Mardian was under the influence of drinks he allegedly consumed that morning at two Dana Point bars.

California Highway Patrolmen called to the accident scene admitted in court that they did not compel Mardian to undergo breath and blood tests at the accident scene.

They testified that they were under the impression that Mardian's passenger, Larry Hall, 23, was the driver of the car.

Hall, testifying as a prosecution witness, told Judge Lae that he was the passenger in the car that another witness said was traveling at about 60 m.p.h. when it passed his car on Del Obispo Street.

Nixon Says GOP Ready For Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon is quoted as saying the Carter administration "is lousing up on so many things that we (Republicans) ought to have a great chance to make a comeback" in 1980.

House Republican Whip Robert H. Michel of Illinois who is recuperating from a beating he suffered in a mugging Friday, said Nixon made the political assessment during a get-well telephone call Tuesday.

Michel said that during the nine-minute conversation Nixon mentioned the case of Dr. Peter Bourne, who resigned as President Carter's health and drug abuse adviser last week. Bourne quit after admitting that he had written a fictitious name on a prescription for a widely abused sedative intended for his White House aide.

Michel quoted Nixon as saying:

"Gosh, how bad can it get when the very one you've got close to you in the White House to remedy the drug abuse situation is doing it himself?"

Willie 'Endangered'

Split Vote May Bring Down Westminster Whale

Willie the Whale, a former World War II barrage balloon that is moored above the trees for advertising near the junction of the San Diego and Garden Grove freeways, faces an uncertain future today.

Willie, an airborne plug for Sunset Ford, is definitely on the endangered species list.

Westminster planning commissioners on a 2 to 2 split vote Tuesday night, refused a permit renewal for Willie to wallow 90 feet up there with his silly grin.

Sunset Ford officials will appeal the tacit denial at the Aug. 8 City Council meeting, which is certain to attract a crowd.

The city was divided a year ago by a petition drive that netted 1,200 signatures of opponents who wanted Willie harpooned out of the skies as an eyesore that makes Westminster look ridiculous to those passing through.

Willie went wallowing up into the air in 1974 when freeway frontage trees grew up enough to obscure the Sunset Ford sign.

"That whale is getting to be like a logo," agency manager Jim Hanson told the four planning commissioners present before their fateful vote.

"It's a beacon for motorists. We tell them where we are and they say, 'Oh, yeah, that's where the smiling whale is'," Hanson said.

One solution would be for CalTrans to cut down the trees blocking the view of the dealership's 70-foot sign, but Hanson considers that unlikely.

"People like trees. I like trees," Hanson declared.

Testimony concluded, commissioners Howard Newman and Charles Smith voted for Willie, while commissioners Marvin Huseth and Robert Whyte cast nay ballots. Commissioner Patricia Huntley was absent.

CALIFORNIA GOLD
it's still around

The gold fever that hit California in 1849 has cooled down over the years, but it has never gone away completely. Dozens of old mining claims in the Mother Lode country are still worked with varying degrees of success. All of them are almost as rich in history as they once were in gold.

One such place is Chili Bar on the American River, about an hour's drive from Sacramento. It takes its name from natives of Chile who came to the area 125 years ago to work in the mines. Vigilantes drove the foreigners out, but the name stuck. Later, a group of Chinese worked the claim. During the depression years, down-and-out families camped along the river and gleaned a meager living from Chili bar.

Now, with the price of gold going up, the old claims are seeing a resurgence of activity. At Chili Bar and dozens of other quaintly named claims in the Mother Lode, gold fever is catching on again.

They are helping other parts of the world answer an increased demand for the wonder metal.

BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY DEPT. — Sometimes you wonder if certain people aren't so in love with employment that they'd do their jobs just for the fun and never mind the money.

Consider a truck delivery person. After fighting traffic, pedestrians and irate customers for 10 hours during the day, would the driver enter a 24-hour truck race that night?

How about a waitress? Following a full night on her feet slinging hash, could she be convinced to enter a competition the next morning in sprinting from Costa Mesa to Newport Beach while carrying eight dishes on each arm?

Could bricklayers be convinced to get into a wall building race following their regular shift?

YOU FIND THESE NOTIONS outlandish. But then you'd better consider what our ocean lifeguard crews are going to be doing this Friday just after they get off work.

You guessed it. More than 400 guards, representing departments from Santa Barbara to San Diego, are going to show up at Niguel Beach Park (that's Salt Creek to you, old-timer) for the Second Annual Laguna Niguel Lifeguard Competition.

Thus after finishing duties such as thrashing through riptides to save swimmers, sprinting down beaches to break up trouble and giving first aid to hapless victims, these guys are going to try it all over Friday afternoon and evening just for fun.

The lifeguards will be competing in 10 events. There's really not much to it. One event, for example, is the four-mile run. In sand — all the way. Two miles up the beach and two miles back. Just a nice little warmup.

GUARDS CAN THEN TRY the Niguel Iron Man race. This little breather requires the contestants to swim 250 yards around a buoy and back, then switch to paddleboards for another 250 yards and back, and finish off by rowing dories the same distance.

And you wonder why they call the winner the Iron Man?

This is the second year that Avco Community Developers down at Laguna Niguel has sponsored the gathering of some of the top ocean athletes in the world who just can't get enough of what they do for a paycheck during the regular work week.

IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE this is going to happen, go see. Admission is free when it all gets under way Friday at 2:30 p.m. The competition goes on so long that the lifeguards will run out of daylight. So they'll finish up under floodlights.

The premier event, the Salt Creek Relay, goes on under the lights at 7:30 p.m. with 16-member teams of swimmers, paddlers and dory boat crews battling it out through the surf.

After all this, you'll never think your next-door neighbor, the bus driver, is odd when he takes his family out for a Sunday ride.

Sentence Suspended

Soviets Exile Jewish Activist

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet court gave Jewish activist Maria Slepak a three-year suspended sentence today on charges of "malicious hooliganism" and said she could join her husband in exile.

Mrs. Slepak, 51, emerged from the courtroom in tears in the arms of her brother and sister and told Western correspondents the suspended sentence took into account her recent hospitalization for stomach ulcers.

"I can't believe it, I can't believe it," she said.

"THIS IS THE RESULT because my people are supporting me," she told about a dozen supporters, who were being watched by a score of uniformed policemen.

She said that during the 5½ hour trial the prosecutor had recommended a sentence of three years internal exile, two years less than her husband received in his trial on June 21.

Mrs. Slepak, and her husband, Vladimir, a radio engineer, were arrested June 1 after they hung a sign from the balcony of their eighth-floor apartment on Moscow's central Gorky Street demanding exit visas to Israel.

SLEPAK WAS CONVICTED on June 21, but Mrs. Slepak did not stand trial with him because she was in a hospital with ulcers.

The five-page indictment did not mention the wording of the Slepaks' placard. She was charged with having the placard, attracting a large crowd, disrupting traffic and refusing to take it down.

Mrs. Slepak could have been sentenced to five years in a labor camp.

Man Charged In $5 Million Stock Heist

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island man described by police as an avid gambler was charged early today with a daring daylight robbery that allegedly netted him and a partner $5 million in stocks and negotiable securities two weeks ago.

Police said they arrested Anthony Lucido, 32, at 2 p.m. Tuesday and charged him with robbery, illegal possession of dangerous weapons and kidnapping in connection with the ambush and robbery of a station wagon carrying the securities on July 13. He was booked shortly after midnight.

LUCIDO HAD BEEN a messenger in the Teaneck, N.J., branch office of the Bradford Securities Processing Service, the firm which lost the stocks and bonds.

Lucido had continued working for the company "until this afternoon when he was arrested south of Canal Street," near City Hall, said Lt. Edward O'Connor.

POLICE DESCRIBED Lucido as uncooperative and said they had no good leads to his alleged partner. They also said none of the stolen securities had been recovered.

The holdup occurred in front of 110 Maiden Lane, the rear entrance to Bradford's Pine Street Branch. Very quickly and efficiently the men abducted two messengers who were putting the just-received securities in an unmarked company car for delivery.

They hijacked the company station wagon with the two men inside, and after a brief ride, the robbers left the car and fled on foot.

$50,000 For Death Of King?

NEW YORK (AP) — A St. Louis man claims that he was offered $50,000 by two Missouri businessmen to arrange the murder of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. more than a year before he was assassinated, the New York Times reported today.

The man, identified as Russell G. Byers, 46, a former auto parts dealer, told the Times he turned down the offer and later informed the FBI.

THE HOUSE SELECT Committee on Assassinations, which is probing the King death, is investigating the allegation because of "circumstantial connections" leading from Byers to the prison where James Earl Ray was incarcerated at the time, the newspaper said.

"At the prison, it was widely rumored in 1966 and 1967 that a conservative business group was willing to pay a large sum of money to anyone who would murder Dr. King," the Times said.

KING WAS ASSASSINATED in Memphis on April 4, 1968. Ray, who is serving a 99-year sentence in Tennessee for the murder, initially pleaded guilty but in recent years has sought a new trial.

According to the Times, Byers said the offer was made to him "in late 1966 or early 1967" by John R. Kauffmann and patent attorney John H. Sutherland.

Judge Disapproves Forced Transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The cousin of a dying man, whose diseased bone marrow will not produce blood cells, cannot be required to submit to a transplant, a judge ruled today.

"This would defeat the sanctity of the individual," Allegheny County Judge John P. Flaherty said from the bench.

"It would require forcible submission to the medical procedure. Forcible extraction of bodily tissues causes revulsion to the judicial mind," he added.

ROBERT McFALL, 39, a former asbestos worker, filed suit to compel his cousin, David Shimp, 43, a crane operator, to donate the marrow if further tests reaffirm the two men are biologically compatible.

Flaherty said he had no other option in the ruling under Pennsylvania law.

Shimp reportedly underwent one test that indicated compatibility, but reneged on a commitment for further tests.

DOCTORS HAVE FAILED to find a suitable donor among McFall's other relatives or the numerous people who have responded to local news accounts of his plight.

"It's rare for a complete recovery if no transplant or chemical treatment is performed," Dr. Louis Pietragallo told Flaherty during oral arguments Tuesday. "But there is some chance of indefinite survival."

U.S. Funds Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government funds could not be used to finance Mexico's program of spraying marijuana fields with the herbicide paraquat, under a measure passed by the Senate.

The Senate attached the restriction to the $2.8 billion foreign military aid bill by voice vote Tuesday. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., its sponsor, said the ban would end "a proven health risk to millions of Americans."

Some medical authorities have said that paraquat can cause severe lung damage to smokers of marijuana.

The amendment approved Tuesday prohibits the spending of federal funds to finance any foreign country's use of herbicide to eradicate marijuana if they were likely to cause serious harm to users.

Pipeline Approval Granted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio has been granted permission by the federal government to build a pipeline on federal land to take Alaskan oil from Long Beach to Midland Texas for distribution to the Midwest.

Approved Tuesday, the permit will allow construction of about 50 miles on federal land in California, Arizona and New Mexico, according to Jack Lahr of the Bureau of Land Management here.

ACCORDING TO LAHR, the completed project could "alleviate the glut of oil on the West Coast" by making it available by way of the Midland to the Midwest.

SOHIO eventually plans to construct a 1,026-mile pipeline to Texas. The firm's next step is to reach agreement with El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Southern California Gas Co. for SOHIO to operate 800 miles of existing pipeline.

Both federal and state approval is then necessary for SOHIO to convert the existing natural gas pipeline to crude oil.

THE FIRM APPLIED for the federal permit in September 1975, and Robert Schaadt, a SOHIO representative in Long Beach, said, "This underscores the long lead time involved in getting these permits, and I think it raises serious questions about how the entire process could be shortened."

What Goes Up...

Two sleek $1.7 million Tomahawk cruise missiles shot skyward Tuesday from San Clemente Island . . . then plunged into the Pacific Ocean before the eyes of Defense Secretary Harold Brown (right). "This demonstrates what happens in a test program," was all Brown had to say by way of explanation to reporters about the embarrassing misfires. They were the second and third failures of the Tomahawk, which has undergone 32 tests.

Welfare Suspect 'Innocent'

COMPTON (AP) — A 33-year-old mother of four who allegedly collected nearly $300,000 in welfare payments after claiming to have more than 34 children has pleaded innocent to 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of fraud.

Superior Court Judge William Clay Tuesday ordered Barbara Jean Williams to appear for a pre-trial hearing Sept. 5.

BUT HER ATTORNEY, Carl Jones, said he would attempt to have the fraud charges dropped. Under a recent state Supreme Court ruling, prosecutors must try to obtain restitution before filing formal charges, Jones said.

Deputy District Attorney Ronald L. Wheeler said Mrs. Jones was not home when investigators went to ask for restitution.

"The information we had was that she was in flight," Wheeler said. "We left a demand letter for payment with her husband at her residence."

MRS. WILLIAMS is accused of bilking Los Angeles County out of about $290,000 since 1971. Authorities say she received $239,588 in welfare checks and as much as $50,000 in food stamps and medical aid.

Gas Plan a 'Lemon'?

Emergency Rationing Draws Criticism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials have taken their standby gasoline rationing plan for its first test run in car-crazy Southern California and have been told it may be a lemon.

Under terms of the rough draft, composed by the U.S. Department of Energy, motorists would receive an allotment of 45 gallons per month for each passenger car they own. Other vehicles would receive allotments proportionate to their mileage. Only "large recreational vehicles" — a still undefined-term — would get no allotment.

Reaction to the plan came at a hearing Tuesday — the first on a national tour of 12 cities before the final proposal is decided in September. The panel was expected to hear more testimony here today.

Tram Won't Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Squaw Valley ski resort will not be issued a new permit to operate its tram until an exact cause is determined for an accident that killed four persons and injured 30 others, although a preliminary report blames violent blizzard winds.

The preliminary report, issued Tuesday, discounts mechanical failure as the cause for the April 15 tragedy, in which a cable sliced into the tram.

Pardon Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst should be pardoned, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has urged in a telegram to President Carter.

"Given the peculiar circumstances of her case, she has surely served sufficient time. It escapes me what purpose could be served by further incarceration," Dymally said in the telegram which was released Tuesday to the press.

STATE

Lawyer Rehired

YUBA CITY (AP) — Attorney Ronald F. Fahey, one of the original prosecutors in the Juan Corona murders case, was rehired Tuesday to work on the team that will handle Corona's retrial.

Corona, 44, was convicted in 1973 on charges of killing 25 farmworkers and burying their bodies in orchards near this city in Sutter County. But the conviction was overturned and a new trial was granted May 8 by the State Court of Appeal. A pretrial hearing for the new proceedings was scheduled for Aug. 3.

Plea Changed

PASADENA (AP) — Lori Andersen, convicted of murdering her tennis coach in a three-woman love triangle, now says she was not insane at the time of the killing and wants to be sentenced rather than face a sanity hearing.

Miss Andersen, 21, of Granada Hills, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity but withdrew that plea Tuesday, leaving Superior Court Judge Daniel L. Fletcher free to sentence her. Otherwise, the judge would have set a hearing date to determine her sanity.

Sentencing will take place Aug. 14.

Cliff Climber Dies in Fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man apparently slipped while trying to climb down steep cliffs to Blacks Beach and fell about 40 feet to his death, authorities say.

The coroner's office identified the victim Tuesday as Richard L. Powell, 36.

A Huntington Beach lifeguard who was surfing in the area notified police after he spotted the body on a ledge in an area known as Box Canyon and went to investigate.

Police and lifeguards brought the body down to the beach.

Jet Drops Fuel, Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan Am jumbo jet carrying 333 passengers to London lost power in an engine on takeoff from San Francisco International Airport and had to dump about 100,000 pounds of jet fuel before it turned around and landed safely.

OFFICIALS SAID the maneuver Tuesday night was not an "emergency landing." Although passengers were shook up, none were hurt, officials said.

The Boeing 747, bound nonstop for London, lost one of its four engines moments after takeoff at 8:45 p.m. It flew over land, dumped part of its full load of fuel in order to make it light enough to land, then touched down back at the airport.

THE PASSENGERS were taken back to the terminal, fed dinner and left just after midnight for London on another plane. Two of the passengers on the original flight changed their minds and did not board the second time, officials said.

Election Due in Beach Nudity Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The City Council is being asked to authorize a special election to restore legal nudity to Black's Beach.

A supporter said backers of the move have gathered 38,000 signatures on petitions, more than enough to get the measure on the November ballot.

In a vote last September, San Diegans rescinded a city ordinance allowing people to swim and sunbathe in the nude along the municipal beach below the cliffs of UC San Diego.

They still do by the thousands but quickly pull on swimming suits when officers with citations drive by.

Proposition 13 to Boost Home Prices?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Proposition 13 will not have a major effect on California's economy in the near future but may eventually put upward pressure on home prices, Crocker Bank said Tuesday.

"Proposition 13 is not going to be the dominant force in shaping our economy over the next two years," Crocker Chief Economist Harold C. Werner Jr. told reporters. "The general business cycle will be much more important."

WERNER SAID Proposition 13 would actually stimulate the state's economy over the next 12 months as individuals and businesses begin to spend some of their property tax savings.

That spending, coupled with the disbursement of the state's budget surplus, will increase overall income in the state over the next year, Werner said.

The economist said Proposition 13 may put upward pressure on home prices by slowing sales of existing homes, thus limiting supply.

Annex Can Help City and County

Few problems can be seen in Costa Mesa's drive to annex about 64 acres of county territory between Victoria Street and the site for Fairview Regional Park on the city's west side.

A similar move to bring a pocket of county territory into Newport Beach city boundaries is now under way, and in both cases a relaxed attitude by county officials over high density development is among the reasons.

In Costa Mesa's case, the annexation will assure more rigid control over encroaching developments on the bluffline that overlooks the Santa Ana River.

Future developments would require added setbacks and would be kept to two stories instead of three now allowed by the county.

The county will benefit by being able to remove sheriff patrols that now service the county island. Fire protection already is provided by Costa Mesa.

The annexation will cost the city in increased city services, but most of the cost will be recovered by property tax revenues, even at the 1 percent level in the wake of Prop. 13.

The city stands to benefit by adding the island to current city boundaries.

Consider the Merits

Plans to convert a 12-unit Costa Mesa area apartment building into a home for the mentally handicapped don't deserve the anger generated by some adjacent property owners.

Orange County planning commissioners last week approved a proposal to use the complex, at 362 E. 20th St., as a home for up to 36 mentally retarded adults.

All residents would have outside jobs and would call the apartments home while they are taught cooking, money management and other skills leading to independent living.

Alcoholic beverages wouldn't be allowed, bedtime would be by 11 and since the residents don't drive, the complex would generate little traffic.

Adjacent property owners contend the complex isn't adequate for the handicapped and the facility would add to an already congested neighborhood. They said they would appeal the commission decision to supervisors.

These neighbors might do well to weigh the facility's merits. The home operators would train the retarded so they can become independent, rather than a public burden. The facility offers those less fortunate the chance to live what some like to call normal lives.

And with its rules on bedtime, alcohol and autos, the facility would seem less a neighborhood imposition than the existing apartment complex.

Neighbors also should bear in mind that use permits can always be revoked if problems arise later on.

Cuts Need Balance

Budget priorities are the name of the game for Newport-Mesa Unified School District trustees the next two months as they face financial cutbacks forced by passage of Prop. 13.

Already, there have been some interesting contrasts.

Busing for high school students is out (perhaps with more cutbacks to come) and last week trustees decided to do away with free towels for gym students. This will save an estimated $62,000 and cause no substantial problem for students and parents.

Also, five top administrators voluntarily decided to give up their lease cars that are part of their contracts with the district.

But these benevolent gestures, in essence pay cuts, were substantially reversed by trustees' approval of a "transportation allowance" that will provide four of the administrators with $250 to $300 a month.

While it may be unfair to advocate a pay cut for administrators while teachers apparently remain on current salary schedules, there's something unsettling about giving transportation allowances to administrators and cutting transportation for students.

Boyd/'Tip'

By L.M. BOYD

Edward O'Neill, a baseball player in the 1880s, was so adept at hitting foul tips to force pitchers to walk him that his cohorts nicknamed him "Tip." It was in allusion to him that later nicknames likewise identified Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill as Tip.

The church building of old usually had a small door on its north side, the Devil's door it was called. It was left open during baptisms and communions to let the Devil out.

Jet lag affects you less when you fly west than when you fly east, and less than either when you fly north or south.

Q. "What breed of dog has the best eyesight?"

A. The greyhound.

Q. "What's the fastest possible rate of reading speed?"

A. About 900 w.p.m.

Q. "Why is the Soviet Union's 'Kremlin' so called?"

A. Means "fortress" in Russian.

The quaint conversationalists now refer to junk food as "kiddie litter."

In the speech of Tahiti, says our Language man, there is no word for orphan. And there are no orphanages there. If youngsters lose their parents, those children are taken in immediately by another family. They are so uncivilized, those Tahitians.

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each swam by its coloring. The perpendicular specimens, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, all swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

U.S. 'Secrets' on Soviet Ships?

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16, to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

The preliminary findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas . . . have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc country merchant ships."

INDUSTRY sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government," the memo suggests, "that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 percent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 percent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

MOST SCOTCH whisky, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia," the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that . . . precludes shipping by the U.S.S.R."

TOP COMMERCE Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

Official Car Policy Still Too Generous

To the Editor:

In my mind the practice of providing public officials (city, county, school district, etc.) with cars has always been a questionable one. With the passage of Proposition 13 there should no longer be any question about the practice. Public officials should use their own cars and be reimbursed for mileage only when they are on official business.

AS A teacher who must travel between schools during the day I am reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile. County supervisors are eligible for a $390 per month car allowance, or $4,680 a year. They would have to drive their personal car 27,529 miles per year at 17 cents a mile to justify this expense.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit's contention that cars have always been considered part of supervisor's salaries is interesting, but hard to accept in the light of Proposition 13. It is just as difficult, however, to accept the idea of a $390 monthly car allowance.

Supervisors should either have access to a pool car when on official business, or be reimbursed for use of their personal car while on official business on a mileage basis only (such as 17 cents per mile).

Facility Needed

To the Editor:

On July 18 a front page story told of the Orange County Planning Commission's decision to approve an apartment building on Costa Mesa's east side for use as a home for mentally retarded adults.

Today I found on my doorstep a reprint of that article, prefaced by a message from the Costa Mesa Concerned Citizens Committee, and closing with a statement from the same group.

This page on my doorstep begins with these words, "Our neighborhood is being threatened . . ." and at the bottom of the page are found the following words: "We the undersigned residents of an area near 362-366 East 20th Street, Costa Mesa, strongly object to the proposed facility in our midst on the grounds that it will destroy our strictly residential status and will adversely affect our peace of mind and our feeling of safety in our neighborhood." The page ends with a plea that the permit for this facility be denied.

MY REACTION to the article and the copy of the petition could easily be the same as that of the Costa Mesa Concerned Citizens Committee. Mentally retarded people are "different." It is a basic human instinct to shun that which is different in nature. There is a fear of the unknown or of the imagined worst that causes us to react in a very defensive way.

One small magazine article ("Like Normal People," Family Circle, Aug. 7, 1978) read earlier in the week caused me to look at this situation in an entirely different light. The lives of the two people in the article had been profoundly affected by a program such as the one the Ashlings wish to run here in Costa Mesa.

Learning what can be and is being done by mentally retarded individuals has abated much of my fear of these people whom my society has labeled "different." Not only does a program like the Ashlings' give the participants a sense of self-respect and self-worth, it has also given me a respect for these people and a realization that they have worth and integrity and a right to attain their full potential.

I am pleased to learn that work such as this is occurring right here in my own area, and I hope that the Daily Pilot will take advantage of every opportunity to educate the community about the very real accomplishments of the mentally retarded members of today's society. Removing the barriers of misunderstanding and ignorance could be one of the greatest public services this newspaper could perform.

Transfer Rules

To the Editor:

In regard to your article of July 7, "Move Riles Teachers," it would greatly behoove district spokeswoman Jean Harmon to familiarize herself with the district's contract with the teachers before she comments about the district's privilege to decide who goes where.

The contract lists seven factors to be considered when the question of involuntary transfers arises (section 8.3.3).

It further states that the "provisions of 8.3.3 shall determine who is to be transferred in an overstaffing situation," and not the unilateral whim of the principal or district.

Mesa and Jury

To the Editor:

This is in response to your editorial of June 28 entitled "Our Mistakes." I agree with your statement that "Costa Mesa, by comparison with other cities, has been underrepresented on the Orange County Grand Jury . . ." One juryman in over 25 years is a pathetic record which should be remedied by the judges being more sensitive to the need to have county-wide representation on the juries. One suggestion to correct the situation in the future which you apparently endorse, is to have the City Council suggest likely candidates to the judges. I would like to respectfully suggest that the idea of packing the grand juries with friends of city councils would be a very poor policy.

At last count, Orange County and its cities had 40 odd politicos either in jail, on trial, under indictment, awaiting sentence or just released. That suggests to me that there's an unseemly and intolerable level of political corruption in Orange County. One of the most important jobs of the grand jury — at least potentially — is to root out political malfeasance. Therefore, the grand jury selection process should not be tainted with the possibility that cronyism would undermine the jury's effectiveness. That would be the case if the candidates for service were not absolutely independent of the individuals and institutions whose activities the juries are being selected to oversee.

I WOULD not be unhappy to see the next Orange County Grand Jury focus some attention on the recent activities of the Costa Mesa City Council, especially those involving the expenditure of public funds and the use of public employees' time to oppose the recent land-use initiative passed in Costa Mesa.

Whether the next grand jury would be more or less inclined to review activities of the Costa Mesa City Council if there were citizens of Costa Mesa included among its number one can only speculate.

MICHAEL T. McLAUGHLIN

Speed Problems

To the Editor:

We have a problem more critical than a freeway to old Costa Mesa.

Our 35 mph speed limit on residential streets is intolerable. How would you like to live on the sidewalk on E. 17th or W. 19th? That is the approximate position of those who live on heavily traveled residential streets. In the case of W. Hamilton it is more like living at the drag races as most of the vehicles are rapidly accelerating through short distances.

Being forced to submit to the torture of the noise and shock waves of 35 mph traffic 24 hours a day is not only a violation of our human rights, it is an abridgement of our constitutional rights. If a private citizen were disturbing the peace to the degree that some of those vehicles are they would be jailed. Reducing the speed to 25 mph would reduce the hazard and noise and eliminate the shock waves. It would gentle the traffic.

TRAFFIC engineers, afflicted with tunnel vision, regard our homes as nothing more than traffic islands. Property values are destroyed; neighborhoods deteriorate. Should not the City Council's concern be the common good? Let's take a giant step in redevelopment by lowering the speed from 35 to 25 on Hamilton with other residential streets to follow. Reducing the speed will cost a single driver seconds per block out of his day, but it will shield hundreds of suffering residents from thousands of bombardments 24 hours per day.

Our speed limits are out of line with comparable streets in other areas. Please don't throw away old Costa Mesa. It is the best part, albeit maligned and neglected.

Teacher Tribute

To the Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to pay tribute to a group of outstanding Newport-Mesa school teachers who are providing a great summer school program for our district children with less-than-fair compensation.

These teachers were scheduled to work at Paularino School and, after public programs were cancelled, voted unanimously to continue the full program privately at Southern California College rather than disappoint the community and leave the children with no place to go. By continuing to offer the full program, these teachers sacrificed the opportunity to maintain a reasonable salary with reduced staff.

Our children are experiencing an excellent skills program along with many special, exciting and fun classes that build physical, artistic and creative abilities. In addition, the staff voted to maintain an afternoon session for the benefit of working parents, again at their own cost. These teachers have also supplied all of their own materials and prizes.

Pill Ban Remains Strong

AP Wirephoto

VATICAN CITY (AP) — On the 10th anniversary of his "Humanae Vitae" encyclical, Pope Paul VI is holding the line on his ban on artificial birth control despite widespread flouting by the world's 540 million Roman Catholics. He is urging intensified research to improve the church-sanctioned rhythm method.

A Gallup poll survey of 1,405 Catholic households in the United States in March found that 73 percent believe the church should allow contraception.

EARLIER THIS YEAR THE pope acknowledged that his encyclical imposed "difficult demands" on Roman Catholics and asked for "special attention" for those who have not been able to obey his directives.

On Tuesday, the pope sent his second message in three days to an American prelate emphasizing the validity of his prohibition of the pill and other artificial means of birth control.

In a message to Cardinal John Carberry of St. Louis, Mo., the pope lauded a 10th-anniversary symposium on his encyclical and said he hopes it would "be of particular assistance to married couples in the worthy exercise of responsible parenthood."

ON SATURDAY, IN A NOTE to Archbishop John Quinn of San Francisco, the pope had stressed "scientific research promoting natural family planning. . .and to perfect natural methods."

The two messages and others sent recently are seen by Vatican sources as an indication that the ban is unlikely to be eased in years, even by popes to come, regardless of whether it is widely disregarded by Roman Catholics.

Addressing his cardinals last month, on the 15th anniversary of his reign, the pope made specific mention of the decade of Humanae Vitae — On Human Life — and said, "This is an opportunity to restate those important principles."

OBSERVERS NOTE THAT FREQUENT reaffirmations of the ban are likely to influence future popes even if they were to have different thoughts on the subject.

The Vatican feels that, despite lingering controversy, the encylical has survived criticism and history would judge it as a cornerstone of what the pope calls "correct ethical norms and Christian principles."

The Rt. Rev. Moerira Neves, vice president of the Pontifical Commission for the Laity, wrote in the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano on Tuesday that "scientists of serious competence are giving reason to the pontifical teaching that one is far away from measuring all the grave consequences of artificial methods."

Flying Cow Dies

Pet Milker Buried in Orchard

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Fawn The Flying Guernsey the luckiest cow in Scott County, is dead at 25.

She died Saturday and was buried Monday in the orchard on the Chris Lohse farm north of Davenport.

"WE JUST PUT HER to rest in the orchard where she liked to graze," Mrs. Lohse said tearfully. "She had a very good life."

After two brushes with death, Fawn died of old age.

Twice — in 1962 and 1967 — Fawn was swept off the ground by tornadoes and carried through the air. Both times she escaped unharmed. That was how she got to be the luckiest cow in Scott County. That also was how she got pregnant.

Fawn was presumed lost after she disappeared in the first tornado May 9, 1962. But a few days after the wind picked her up, she wandered back to the Lohse farm.

She apparently had spent some time on neighbor's farm about a half mile away because she later gave birth to a calf sired by the neighbor's Holstein bull.

IN 1967, DURING a freakish January tornado, Fawn was swooped into the air, blown across the road and once again escaped unharmed.

The event was witnessed by a busload of startled travelers who saw the cow fly by.

Mrs. Lohse said Fawn gave birth to "five wonderful calves" during her 25 years and produced milk so rich "you could stick your finger in it and not reach the bottom of the cream."

IN HER LATER years, she was a treasured family pet who spent her time grazing in the orchard with one eye on the sky.

"She knew her storms. Whenever a storm came, she always wanted to get out of the yard and into the barn," said Mrs. Lohse. "She could tell when one was coming."

Rebuilt Face Leaves Puzzle

DeKALB, Ill. (AP) — To Betty Gatliff, reconstructing faces from pieces of bone is like putting together a puzzle — satisfaction comes from identifying the picture.

But no one has attached a name to the face she pieced together last year of a woman who had been shot to death. Today, DeKalb officials buried their "Jane Doe" in an unmarked grave almost two years after her skeleton was found in a farmer's field.

WILLIAM SULLIVAN, DEKALB County coroner, said he took the remains to Miss Gatliff, a medical illustrationist for the Federal Aviation Administration in Oklahoma City, to see if reconstructing the face would help identify the woman and, possibly, her slayer.

Miss Gatliff, 47, has rebuilt 30 faces from bones in 12 years, and 23 have been identified after pictures were displayed on police bulletin boards or in newspapers.

DeKalb's "Jane Doe" was the first Illinois case she had worked on.

"Somebody should have recognized her before now," said Miss Gatliff, a 20-year FAA veteran. "All the ones that have been identified looked quite like the people. You wonder when a person isn't identified if there's an error somewhere."

SULLIVAN SAID FORENSIC pathologists who examined the skeleton determined the victim was Caucasian, about 19, 5 foot to 5-foot-2, between 100 and 110 pounds, and probably smoked heavily. She also had a slight overbite and extensive dental work.

Miss Gatliff reconstructed her face by measuring facial bones to determine the width and aperture of the mouth, eyes, ears and nose. She contoured the face with a "map" of a human face showing normal skin thicknesses at various points.

She said she attached tissue thickness blocks to the skull and connected the blocks with strips of clay and then filled in the spaces. Once a complete clay model was made, she made a plaster cast which the police can keep and photograph.

SULLIVAN SAID HE HAS HAD more than 500 inquiries about the woman from parents looking for a runaway daughter or other missing person.

Some residents of this college town of about 30,000 criticized Sullivan for searching so long for the woman's identity. But he defends the time and money spent, saying as long as the woman remains a mystery so will her killer. The murderer is free to strike again, Sullivan said.

"Even if we didn't solve the crime, I'd feel better if we could identify her," he said. "I'd like to be able to tell a family, 'I'm sorry, but this is your daughter.' Sometimes, just the agony of not knowing kills them."

Although the woman has no known family, strangers volunteered to sing at the graveside. Ten local funeral directors donated a casket. The Fairview Cemetery donated a burial plot.

Thief Gets False Teeth

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Police are looking for a robber who left his victim toothless.

Officers said a man armed with a pistol entered the St. Joseph Terminal Railroad office and demanded an employee's eyeglasses. Police said he then made her hand over her false teeth — both uppers and lowers.

The gunman fled on foot.

Will Julie Christie Be Next Scarlett O'Hara?

By HANK GRANT
The Hollywood Reporter

Now it's Julie Christie as fave choice to pick up where Vivien Leigh left off with the Scarlett O'Hara role in the Zanuck/Brown sequel to "Gone With the Wind." The Rhett Butler role is still up for grabs, but David Brown would be happy with either Burt Reynolds, Jack Nicholson or Sean Connery to pick up the orig Clark Gable role.

Jesse White & Marlene Selden zilched their six-year romance, but on the friendliest terms. Could be that frustrated telly pitchman Jesse finally got to repair a Maytag washer or two . . . Now it's Peter Sellers & bride Lynne Frederick planning to have a baby after they wrap Petre's "Prisoner of Zenda" pic in Europe. Yep, Lynne has a role in it, too . . . My London spy reports that thrush Dorothy Squires caused a bit of a stir by attending the British preem of the "Wild Geese" pic. Asked if she made the preem because it stars ex-hubby Roger Moore, Dotty demurred, "No, in spite of. I never miss any of Richard Burton's pictures!" And no one argued the point, since her admiring escort was British boxing champ Mark Rowe . . . And no one argued when tyro actor Aldo Sambrell joined Claudine Auger and Chris Mitchum in the starring cast of "Blood and Blue Jeans," filming in Madrid. Aldo is also the producer-director of the pic . . . Karen Valentine & bridegroom Gary Verna get a belated honeymoon to England and Ireland, all expenses paid. Karen mixes a bit of business with her pleasure in London by starring in the "Bonkers" telemovie and picking up some extra change guesting a "Muppets" series seg.

SELLERS

The Rat Pack is reassembling for charity purposes, if you can believe the Holmby Hills rumors. Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra are assembling softball teams to play charity games, with Frank's team being Old Blues, and Dino's Old Booze. Now if they get Paul Newman's team, they'll have Old Brews. Understand Frank and Dino are also lining up Sammy, Joey, etc.

Maybe Mama Jackie O won't thumb it down this time. Am told that Robert Stigwood is offering John-John Kennedy a half-million bucks to play his late famed father as a young man in a projected biopic.

Bob Fosse's zeroing in on Shirley MacLaine to costar with Roy Scheider in his "All That Jazz" movie, which is said to be based on the happier days of Fosse with then-wife Gwen Verdon.

My London spy reports that Gayle Hunnicutt & longtime b.f. Simon Jenkins, editor of the London Evening Standard, have finally set a wedding date for September. . . . Also in London, actress Sian Phillips, who's divorcing Peter O'Toole, is forgetting Pete's new love for Melinche Verdugo with a new love of her own, 27-yr.-old Robin Sachs, who's quite a few years her junior. And tennis champ Vitas Gerulaitis not only trounced Ilie Nastase at Forest Hills to win 100Gs, but also seems to have won the heart of—Matgaret Trudeau!

American Regains Race Lead

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — American yachtsman Philip Weld regained the lead in the Round Britain sailing race and reached Lowestoft on England's east coast Tuesday more than two hours ahead of his nearest rival.

Weld's 60-foot trimaran Rogue Wave, which excels in heavy weather, was helped by a choppy patch at the beginning of the 470-mile leg from Lerwick in the Shetland Islands to Lowestoft.

"It was blowy and choppy at the beginning of the leg from Lerwick," the 63-year-old newspaper publisher from Gloucester, Mass., said by telephone from Lowestoft.

Weld and his crewman, Briton David Cooksey, arrived at Lowestoft at 4:14 a.m. local time, and the 54-foot trimaran Great Britain IV, skippered by British yachtsman Chay Blyth arrived at 6:32 a.m. This was a triumph for Weld, who had left Lerwick two hours and two minutes behind Blyth.

Herrschoft Wins Santana Regatta

Bill Herrschoft, representing the Marina del Rey Fleet, outscored 29 rivals to win the Santana-20 fleet championship in a best five of six-race regatta sailed out of the Richmond Yacht Club.

The Santana-20 is a 20-foot keel boat designed by Shad Turner of Newport Beach and produced by the W.D. Schock Company of Santa Ana.

THE REGATTA, FIRST national event for the class, was sailed in winds ranging from 15-25 knots that had the boats planing on a broad reach. Races were sailed over a modified Olympic course.

Herrschoft recorded finishes of 1-1-2-5-1 for a total of 9¼ points to 11 for his nearest rival Chuck Bonovich of Richmond.

BESIDES CALIFORNIA, entries were on hand from Salt Lake, Washington, Oregon, Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe.

Third place went to Bruce Golison, Long Beach; fourth was Keith Simon, Redwood City, and fifth was Mike Oliva, Berkeley.

Jr. Sabot Title Races To Begin

More than 200 junior Sabot sailors are expected to compete in the national championships at Mission Bay, San Diego, starting Thursday.

Most of the young skippers will be from Southern California with a large contingent from Newport Beach yacht clubs. Out of the 84 sailors competing in the local eliminations, there were 11 qualifiers from the Lido Isle Yacht Club alone.

LIYC Sabot sailors going to Mission Bay are Matt Tingler, David Franco, Graham Tingler, Ned Shelton, Trevor Benedict, John Simpson, Charlie Tippet, Scott Read, Pat Gaynor, Megin Tingler and Susie Ross.

Correction

Results of the Sabot B class in Monday's report of the Newport Harbor Yacht Club's Summer Gold Cup Regatta were incorrectly reported. Winner in the class was Trevor Benedict of the Lido Isle Yacht Club. Second was Brad Aarvold, LIYC, and third was John Drayton, NHYC.

Catamaran Challenge Race Set

U.S. selection trials for the International Catamaran Challenge Trophy, a best of seven match race for C Class catamarans, begins Aug. 26 off Long Island Sound, New York.

The trophy, which has been dubbed the Little America's Cup because conditions for conducting the competition are patterned after the 12-meter America's Cup, was won last year by Tony DiMauro of Rowayton, Conn., with Patient Lady III against an Australian challenger.

The 1977 series was held at Cabrillo Beach, Los Angeles Harbor, after Alex Kozloff of Irvine had been the first American to win the cup the previous year in Australia. DiMauro was the second American to win it.

The score of wins from 1961 through 1977 are Great Britain, eight times; Australia, three; Denmark, one and the U.S., two.

This year's 15th ICCT series is hosted by the trophy-holding club, the Roton Sailing Association, Rowayton, Conn.

Russian Wins Dinghy Crown

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Michael Kordjavtsev of the Soviet Union has won the European 470 Dinghy Sailing Championship. He placed sixth in the sixth and final race.

Murray Jones, the New Zealander who has led the scoring all week, finished ahead of Kordjavtsev but wasn't eligible to win the title. While entries were accepted from New Zealand, Brazil and Israel, only Europeans could capture the championship.

The health professions programs include registered and vocational nursing, human services, psychiatric technician and operating room technician training.

NB Woman Wins Award

Ilma Cunningham of Newport Beach has been awarded the 1978 Orange County Fair purchase award of $500 in the semi-professional category for a watercolor of the Balboa Fun Zone.

She is an exhibitor in the Art-A-Fair summer festival in Laguna Beach and belongs to the Costa Mesa Art League.

DEAR PAT: Will you explain the technique used in "drownproofing" posture? I understand this can help a non-swimmer survive in deep water.

J.J., Corona del Mar

Drownproofing was invented by Navy swimming coach Fred Lanoue. During World War II, his technique is reported to have saved many downed U.S. fliers. Extensive training, practice and common sense also are required for success.

Begin on dry land. Assume the correct drownproof position — head bent slightly forward, arms held downward and away from the body, legs close together. Hold this position until your muscles memorize it.

Enter shallow end of pool with a friend — never alone — and kneel on the bottom as your friend supports you. Tilt your head above water and inhale through your mouth. Dip your head into the water and exhale through your nose.

In deeper water (not over your head and with a friend present) assume the drownproof position and repeat the breathing process until you feel comfortable exhaling under water.

Now float in a "stand up" position. Raise arms to shoulder level and tilt your head until just your nose and mouth are above water. Natural bouyancy brings most people to the water's surface.

If you're still below the surface, gently press your arms down, do a scissors kick with your legs at the same time. Tilt your head back and inhale as you surface.

Surface only when you really need a breath. Then sink back into the drownproof position. Conserve your energy with minimum movement. Don't panic. Practice until you can float for an hour.

An illustrated drownproofing survival chart can be ordered for $1.95 ppd. from Drownproofing/The Travel Advisor, P.O. Box 31056, Washington, D.C. 20031.

Orange County Superior Court reporter Burgess "Virg" Titus has been elected a Fellow of the Academy of Professional Reporters.

The declaration accompanying the award to Judge Kenneth E. Lae's reporter notes that only 55 reporters in the U.S. have achieved such recognition.

Titus served as president of the Orange County Superior Court Reporters Association, as editor of Caligrams, the official publication of the California Court Reporters Association and as a council representative, board member and secretary of CCRA.

National Initiative Eyed

Bill Farris, a candidate for Congress in the 39th Congressional District, has announced that he supports a constitutional amendment establishing a national initiative process similar to the one in California.

Under the process, petitions could be circulated to place an issue on the national ballot, to be decided by a majority of voters.

Farris said that, if elected, he will work for the amendment sponsored in the Senate by James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and in the House by James Jones, D-Okla., and Harold Sawyer, R-Mich.

CONGRESSMAN ROBERT Badham, R-Newport Beach, reports that a law professor has advised the House Judiciary Committee of his findings regarding the proposed extension of the ratification deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment.

The professor reportedly said that if the deadline were extended beyond the original seven years, 24 states' ratifications would be invalidated. The reason is that 12 of these made their ratification conditional on the seven-year deadline and other required language that might require re-ratification.

Dental Hints

by Duayne D. Christensen, D.D.S.

Parents who believe it's not important to fill baby teeth — because they're going to fall out anyway — will find the following facts worthy of consideration:

The deciduous teeth or primary teeth serve many worthy functions that cannot be taken lightly. (1) They provide the child with "tools" to properly chew food and also have a direct bearing on his ability to learn proper speech formation, at a time in life when important eating/speaking habits are being established that will last for years to come. (2) The psychological affect of avoiding smiling because of "bad teeth," can be a detriment to the youngster's emotional development. (3) Retaining primary teeth as long as possible helps to guide permanent teeth into proper positioning; premature loss can allow nearby teeth to stray out of their intended alignment in the jaw bone, blocking proper position-eruption of the permanent teeth to follow. (4) Other serious problems in permanent teeth can result when needed care of the primaries is ignored.

Does proper care of baby teeth double your dental bills for each of your children? Not really! It will usually cost much less to give regular and proper professional care to the primaries, than to wait until permanent teeth have erupted and then have to make amends for poor positioning through orthodontic care. (Of course, this does not guarantee there will be no need for orthodontia later.)

Look at it this way: giving proper care to baby teeth is "insurance" against the potential of greater costs later, and at the same time assures the child of every advantage that good dental care can provide in the other areas mentioned.

In today's world, children need every break you can give them!

Rose: I've Got Half The Building Built

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Next please. Mr. Cobb? Step right up, sir. There's no waiting on this line. Mr. Rose will be glad to take care of you, now that he's through with Mr. Holmes.

What's that, Mr. Sisler? Don't forget you? Don't be silly. Mr. Rose knows all about you and Mr. Keeler, too. He may have overlooked Mr. Dahlen, but you can be certain he's well aware of Mr. DiMaggio.

DAY-BY-DAY, game-by-game, Pete Rose advances through the dusty pages of baseball history with a monumental hitting streak that now is the fourth best in modern major league history. He has hit safely in 38 straight games. Say that slowly, thirty-eight straight games and the man refuses to stop.

"I'm just starting now," he said Tuesday night after shattering Tommy Holmes' modern record of 37 games. "I've got half the building built, I've got to build the rest of it now."

The first half ended when he ripped a third-inning single — the first of his three hits against New York Mets right-hander Craig Swan — to push his streak to 38 games. That erased Holmes from the record books and left the path clear to some of baseball's biggies — Ty Cobb's 40-game streak in 1911 and the 41-game string pieced together by George Sisler in 1922.

"I'm glad Cobb's 40 and Sisler's 41 are in reach now," Rose said. "That gives me something to shoot for."

THOSE TWO STREAKS sit like guardians at the gate of one of baseball's most cherished marks — the amazing major league record 56-game streak set by Joe DiMaggio in 1941. In between are two pre-1900 players — Willie Keeler, who hit in 44 straight games in 1897 and Bill Dahlen, who had a 42-game streak in 1894, but those two are more or less shrugged off by baseball statisticians, who prefer to begin their serious counting with the turn of the century.

Rose has given fair warning to the legendary names that lie ahead. "I'm swinging the bat good," he said. "I'll let you know when I'm not."

The streaks aren't the only things on Rose's mind these days as he commands the attention of the entire baseball world.

"I want to keep hitting the ball good and getting on base," he said. "I'm 10 points from the batting lead now, it would be nice to win the batting title at 37 then nobody could say I'm old."

ROSE HAS A plan to reach his goals. "I have to stay aggressive at the plate, get the bat out in front," he said. "That's the secret of hitting. That and bearing down. I try to get a hit every time I come to bat. I think I bear down more than anybody. I have to. Sometimes when the score is

Rams Attract Full House

More Than 100 Press Members Assemble

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Los Angeles Rams owner and president Carroll Rosenbloom smiled broadly as he entered the Anaheim Room at the Big A Tuesday morning.

Rosenbloom arrived 17 minutes late for the 11 o'clock conference, but the more than 100 members of the press which had assembled didn't seem to mind. All they wanted was an opportunity to fire questions at the controversial owner, and the media got their chance.

Rosenbloom's opening remarks were anything but earth-shattering as he proclaimed the Rams "intention" to move to Anaheim Stadium by 1980. It was an announcement the press had been made aware of 24 hours earlier, but Rosenbloom continued anyway.

"I needed to use Disneyland stationery to put my thoughts down on paper," he jokingly started.

"I HAD RECEIVED a lot of proposals but had never taken them seriously until I learned the people involved were dead serious in submitting them.

"When the city of Anaheim made their proposal on June 28 you can't begin to imagine the magnitude or enormity of the decision I faced on whether I should move or not.

"It was a traumatic experience for me," he said in a more serious vein.

"It wasn't until last night (Monday) we agreed in principle to come to Anaheim in 1980."

Rosenbloom also talked about his present and soon-to-be former residence — the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"IT'S WITH DEEP REGRET we have to leave the Coliseum But if you know anything about life you know the last chapter is never written, and it is now time where we must move forward.

"With the playing site, training facilities and enclosed stadium, we will have the ultimate complex for the fans.

"We feel this move will give the Rams a winning edge, and we owe that much to the fans."

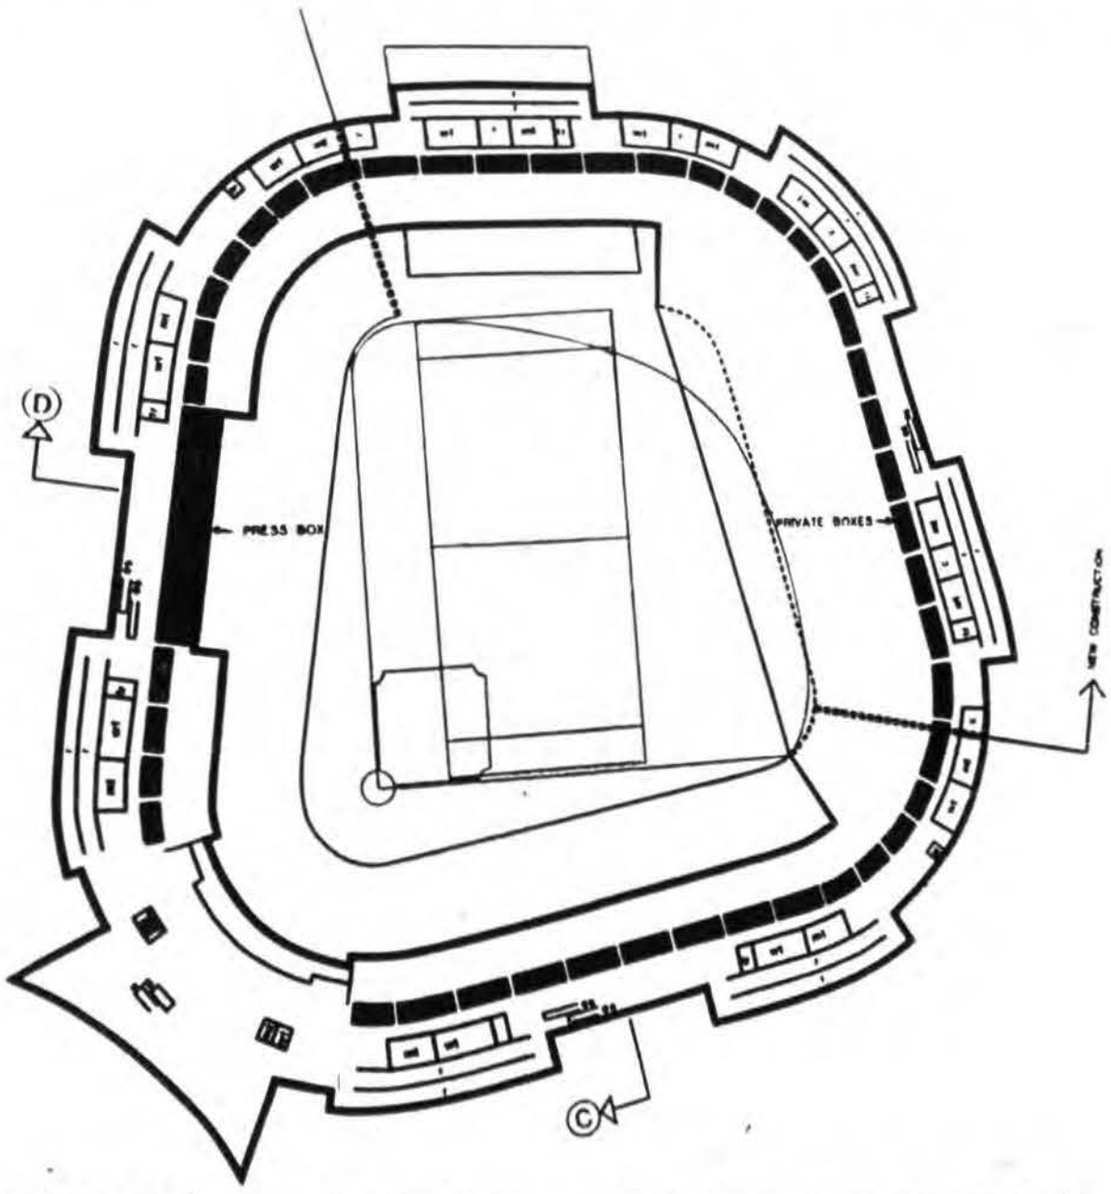

Rosenbloom then concluded his opening statements, introduced all the parties involved in preparing the proposal, and opened the floor to questions from the media.

IT WAS LIKE VULTURES fighting over a desert rat.

"Why did you move and what do you think the reaction of the Coliseum fans will be?" began one reporter.

"We have moved across town (35 miles) for obvious reasons," answered Rosenbloom, "and we

STADIUM PLANS — The dotted lines in the diagram show where new construction at Anaheim Stadium will be taking place. The field will run parallel to the left field line with the south end stopping at the right field line. The Rams plan to resod the portion of the dirt infield that comes in contact with the playing surface.

Indians Win

Brewers Next For Tanana

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Paxton isn't into the psychology of pitching, but the young Cleveland Indians right-hander knows when he's doing the job.

Paxton, 8-6, gave up eight hits in 7⅓ innings Tuesday night as he picked up his second straight victory, a 5-1 verdict over the California Angels. Dan Spillner, gaining his second save of the season, finished up with a one-hit relief job.

The Angels open a two-game series at Milwaukee tonight with Frank Tanana, 13-5, opposing Bill Travers, 7-4.

For Paxton, who came to the Indians during spring training as part of a six-player deal with Boston, his latest streak of strong pitching has buoyed a once-sagging spirit.

"FOR A WHILE, everybody was telling me to try different things and it all got too confusing," the stocky 24-year-old explained. "Finally, Jeff (manager Jeff Torborg) just told me to relax and throw the ball.

"I feel good and relaxed now, and I'm throwing the ball well. I may get my brains knocked out next time out, but I feel good. I'm not into the psychology of pitching, either. I just pitch.

"I know when I'm pitching good and when I'm pitching bad. I don't always know why. One thing, I do know, though, is that I've been getting runs, and that makes it a lot easier," he added happily.

BERNIE CARBO provided the first run, and put the Indians ahead to stay, by leading off the second inning with his second homer of the season and first since the Indians purchased him from Boston in June.

Cleveland bunched three hits around a walk and a sacrifice in the third, moving ahead 2-0 on Andre Thornton's two-run single. After the Angels picked up a run in the seventh on three singles — ending Paxton's string of 15⅔ scoreless innings — the Indians added two more in the

Will Knapp Apologize To Angels?

From AP Dispatches

Pitcher Chris Knapp's retirement from baseball at the age of 24 is over. Also ended are some opportunities for Knapp and the California Angels in a tight American League West Division pennant race.

Knapp requested and was granted reinstatement with the Angels Tuesday, 13 days after he had been put on the disqualified list by the Angels for refusing to take his scheduled pitching turn.

When Knapp left the Angels he had a 10-6 record, the team led the AL West by one game, and early in his absence the Angels moved out to a two-game edge over defending division champion Kansas City. But the Angels have had a mediocre record since then and Kansas City has been nearly unbeatable, with the Royals opening up a three-game edge over the Angels.

HE HAD LEFT the team saying he "had had enough of baseball while playing under contract terms dictated by the Angels.

"I will say it isn't money. I just didn't like the way I was treated," he said. He claimed his dealings with management began to turn sour in Chicago last year, when he was 12-7 as a rookie, and he said more problems arose after being deal to California over the winter.

"My relations with the Angels simply brought it to a head and served as a last straw," Knapp said shortly after his decision on quitting the game.

"BY MONDAY he should be ready to throw and we should know more about what we're going to do with the roster," said Angel General Manager Buzzie Bavasi.

"He'll have to be in playing shape before I put him on the roster and I also think he should apologize to the club," Manager Jim Fregosi said in Cleveland, where the Angels lost to the Indians 5-1 Tuesday night.

John Gets Save

Dodgers Come Up With New Relief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The scoreboard in Dodger Stadium flashed word of another last-minute victory 400 miles away by the San Francisco Giants, while the Los Angeles Dodgers kept trying to escape from a tough one with the Chicago Cubs.

The Dodgers needed a left-handed reliever, but their ace lefty fireman had been getting too much work lately. Instead they worked a surprise on the Cubs, bringing in starter Tommy John for only his second relief appearance in five years. He quieted the Cubs on three ground outs to preserve a 3-1 Dodger victory.

LEFTY JOHN, a 20-game winner in 1977 who is 11-7 as a starter this year, got the first save of his 14-year career in the major leagues.

"Since Terry Forster pitched about four times in five days I volunteered to pitch to a batter or two. I normally would pitch for about 20 minutes anyway," John said.

The victory allowed the Dodgers to keep pace with Giants, who had beaten St. Louis 3-2 minutes earlier. The Giants lead the National League West by two games over Cincinnati and 2½ over Los Angeles.

"TOMMY VOLUNTEERED. It was a big situation for us because of all their left-handed hitters," Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda said. "It's no reflection on Charlie Hough or anyone else in the bullpen. It was a situation where I wanted Tommy John to pitch."

Surf Battles Oakland

In terms of won-lost records, the California Surf ranks 12th in the North American Soccer League. But in terms of promotions, the Anaheim-based team is up near the top with the best of them.

Consider, for example, tonight's star-studded soccer tripleheader at Anaheim Stadium.

Chronologically—but not necessarily in order of importance—the three-for-one deal includes: a) a pre-game soccer clinic which begins at 5:30; b) the regularly scheduled 7:30 NASL game between the Surf and the Oakland Stompers; c) a halftime celebrity soccer game between the Penny Lane Centerfolds and the Hollywood Squares All-stars.

The added attractions boast the top names. Signed for the celebrity game are rock star Linda Ronstadt, comedy artists J.J. Walker, Joan Rivers and Maclean Stevenson and, possibly, Rod Stewart and Barbi Benton.

The clinic will feature Kyle Rote, Jr., three-time winner of the television Superstars competition and Shep Messing, a famed goal keeper who played for the NASL champion Cosmos last year and is reportedly the first $100,000 American soccer player in the NASL.

Rote plays for the Dallas Tornado but Messing, the league's top goalie in 1975, will be in action with the Stompers who are chasing the Surf for second place honors in the American Conference, West.

California is 12-14 for 103 points while Oakland is 11-15 with 89 points. A win by the Surf would virtually kill Oakland's playoff hopes.

Charlie Mrosko, an import from West Germany, has been virtually the whole Stompers offense. With 11 goals and two assists, he has had a hand in 13 of the 18 goals scored by Oakland, the lowest scoring team in the NASL.

California ranks 16th in scoring with 35 goals but is seventh in defense. However, the Surf may be without defenders George Graham and Andy McBride, who were injured in Saturday's 2-1 loss to Detroit.

Vets Walk Out

New Experience For Rams' Allen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Allen likes to coach experienced players, so mos' rookies are not likely to stay long in the training camp of the Los Angeles Rams. But it's been another kind of experience for Allen this summer.

Four talented Ram veterans have decided on their own it was time to go. Because of contract disputes and other concerns, the four Ram starters walked out of the Rams' training camp in the first five days of preseason workouts for the National Football League team's veteran players.

"THIS IS VERY disappointing. I might say it's a unique experience for me," said Allen. He is returning for his second round of coaching at Los Angeles after spending 1971-1977 with the Washington Redskins, where he nurtured a reputation as a man who likes to see rookies on other people's football teams.

Doug France, 25, a 275-pound offensive tackle, was the latest to leave the Rams, on Monday, reportedly because of a contract dispute. Contract renegotiation also is behind 30-year-old wide receiver Ron Jessie's decision to leave. All the absentees face fines of $500 per day.

Linebacker Isiah Robertson, 28, and cornerback Monte Jackson, 25, also are gone. Robertson was quoted as saying he needed "to get my head together" when he was last seen Monday at the Rams' training quarters at California State University, Fullerton.

THE RAMS SAID they sent Robertson to see a doctor about some headaches, and the Los Angeles Times reported the doctor prescribed a week's rest. Coach George Allen said Tuesday he still hadn't heard from team doctors concerning Robertson.

Jackson left last Friday, and the Rams reported he was considering quitting football, although he might be seeking a trade.

"In seven years at Washington, no one walked out," Allen said, "No question about it. This isn't healthy."

ALLEN SAID THE Rams will have "a good football team with or without them," but he added, "All I have to say it's hard to build a cohesive team this way."

and three victories. He had worked in four of the five previous games.

Tonight is the final meeting of the season between Los Angeles and Chicago. Burt Hooton, 10-7, will start for the Dodgers opposing Dave Roberts, 4-4.

LOS ANGELES, which has won four of its last five games, built an early lead on Dave Lopes' first inning homer, his 11th of the year to match his career high. With an unearned run in the second, and a run-scoring double by Reggie Smith in the sixth the Dodgers were on top 3-1.

It was Smith's 16th RBI of the last nine games. Dodger hurler Rick Rhoden had given up a run in the third when Bill Buckner of the Cubs singled home Rodney Scott.

ROSENBLOOM. . .

would like to think our fans are not Coliseum fans but Ram fans.

"We hope our fans will follow us here. We'd regret losing one fan."

"How do you think the fans will react this year?" asked another.

"I CAN'T PROGNOSTICATE that. If we win and play exciting football our fans will be there in droves," he answered.

Why were other facilities, like the Rose Bowl, dropped from the competition?

"The Rose Bowl seats too many people," he said bluntly. "It's a great place for one event, but the seats are too close together and there are no chairbacks on them. We'd have to tear up the stadium to put in chairbacks."

Could the Coliseum have done anything to save themselves and keep the Rams in LA?

"LET ME SET the record straight," said Rosenbloom as he started to show signs of strain concerning the questioning. "At no time since the Rams have moved to the Coliseum have we asked them to do anything there. Any proposal on what work should be done was proposed by the Coliseum Commission.

"We didn't want to use tax money to fix up the stadium. We felt that money could go to better use, like for schools, firemen, etc.

"The Coliseum didn't have the funds or ways to do anything, and didn't want to do it anyway."

Will the Los Angeles Rams change their name?

"I'M OPPOSED to changing the name right now, but like I said the final chapter is never written. Who knows, I may call the team 'Carroll's Angels'."

Finally, it seemed Rosenbloom had wilted. He'd had enough, yet, he graciously answered another.

Are there any guilt feelings on the part of the Rams that they have invaded the sacred territory of the Orange County Rhinos (a semi-pro football team)?

Rosenbloom seemed relieved by the question and smiled, "No, but maybe we could put them on our preseason schedule."

ROSE BREAKS RECORD. . .

Rose believes in goals and that's why he likes the idea of Cobb and Sisler sitting up there ahead of him. Before Holmes and the NL mark, the goal was to keep his hitting streak alive at the All-star break.

"I made it to the All-star game," he said. "That's good. Even Howard Cosell couldn't mess that up."

Once that was accomplished, there was Holmes to deal with. Now Rose looks ahead to Cobb. He's like a barber, welcoming new customers to his chair.

DIMAGGIO'S RECORD IS 18 games away now that the schedule is on the soft side, with only a four-game series against Philadelphia interrupting a steady diet of Atlanta and San Diego following today's game against New York. Weather and opposing pitchers permitting, he could tie DiMaggio Sunday, Aug. 13 in San Diego and break it the following night in Pittsburgh.

You're next, Mr. Cobb. Just a trim yousay? Why certainly sir.

ANGELS TUMBLE. . .

eighth on a leadoff homer by Johnny Grubb, his 11th, and Gary Alexander's sacrifice fly.

CLEVELAND PICKED on rookie Dave Frost, 2-4, for all five runs, although former Indian Al Fitzmorris, making his first mound appearance for the Angels, gave up Alexander's sacrifice fly.

"They didn't hit him (Frost) hard," noted California Manager Jim Fregosi. "We just didn't get him any runs. He's pitched all right."

Cleveland second baseman Duane Kuiper added to the big night by extending his hitting string to 16 consecutive games with a single in the seventh inning. But there was some gloom for the Indians, too, as third baseman Buddy Bell took himself out of the game in the sixth because of tightness in his lower back.

Bell, leading the Indians in hitting at .303, missed 10 days of action earlier this month because of muscle spasms in the same area.

Albacore Tourney Begins

198 Fishermen Vie in Annual Event

By DICK ROBINSON
Daily Pilot Outdoor Writer

SAN DIEGO —An armada of 66 yachts manned by 198 of the premier anglers on the west coast sets sail tonight and Thursday morning to compete in the gruelling 31st Inter Club Albacore Tournament.

According to the boat speed and where the elusive long fin will be found is causing the skippers to closely calculate just how far they can chase the schools of fish and yet make the weigh-in deadline each day of the contest by 8:30 p.m.

Scouting trips have revealed there are albacore near the 60 mile bank 210 degrees out of San Diego and as far as 120 miles on the same general compass heading from that port.

GEORGE WILLIAMS of Newport Beach reported by radio early Tuesday morning he had five fish on deck and was 97 miles from San Diego.

George Garrett of Newport Beach reported he had 28 long fin aboard and was fishing between 50 and 60 miles on a 215 degree course from San Diego.

Eric Garland, skipper of El Zagal, feels the schools moved rapidly westerly this past week, have scattered, and are in small schools of big fish that have settled on the seamount banks stretching from the 60 mile bank and beyond.

The commercial fishermen are working seaward of these locations as far as 150 to 200 miles out of San Diego which puts these fish out of range of the tournament fleet.

THE CONSENSUS is the big bite will be in an area between courses of 205 degrees to 225 degrees 50 to 120 miles out of San Diego.

Using a single hook per lure and trolling three lines of 20-pound test, these tournament fishermen represent the best the 11 competing angling clubs can put to sea in this most prestigious fishing tournament of the year.

For the past two years, Tuna Club has topped the field.

With three men to a boat, the teams will fish from 5 a.m. Thursday for a maximum limit of 30 albacore per yacht, before the lines are required to be removed from the water at 2 each day.

Boats limiting out with 30 fish prior to 2 p.m. will be awarded bonus points of five percent of the total weight of their catch for each 30 minutes they save on time before the daily deadline.

ON FRIDAY, the teams will take the day off. They will complete the competition fishing Saturday afternoon.

Triple Plays Recorded

From AP Dispatches

LODI — A rare instance of two triple plays in the same game by the same team was sparked Tuesday by third baseman H.P. Drake and shortstop Don Ruzek, who helped the Lodi Dodgers defeat the Fresno Giants 11-6 in California League baseball

In the first inning, Jim Rothford hit a line drive to Ruzek, who threw to John Shoemaker at second, forcing out Tom Anthony. Shoemaker then threw to George Kaage, who forced Bob Brenly out at first base.

In the fifth inning, Drake picked up a ground ball hit by Bill Young and stepped on third to put Brenly out. Drake threw to Shoemaker at second, to force out Rothford. Shoemaker then threw to Kaage, retiring Young at first.

According to records, no major league team has had two triple plays in the same game, although in 1908 the Detroit Tigers had triple plays in two successive games

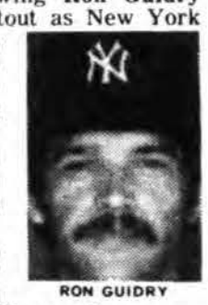

The last known case of two triple plays in the same game by a minor league team was in 1905, by Kansas City in the American Association

THIS $35,000 FUNNY CAR WILL HAVE THE FORCE WITH IT THIS WEEKEND AT ORANGE COUNTY INTERNATIONAL RACEWAY.

The Force Is With This Dragster

By ERNIE CASTILLO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

In the gimmicky realm of promotion that is as much a part of drag racing as burning tires and sponsors' decals, one driver has a natural attention grabber for a name.

He is John Force of Fullerton, who races a funny car appropriately dubbed Brute Force and whose theme is—you guessed it—may the force be with you.

Only, in the case of the 28-year-old former truck driver, the tags are more than hype.

FOR ONE THING, his 40-gallons-to-the-mile Corvette with a $35,000 price tag has turned the quarter-mile in 6.18 seconds, a speed of 237 miles per hour in less time than it takes most cars to go from 0 to 60. For another, he feels some type of force is with him after surviving three fires, including a spectacular blaze two summers ago at Orange County International Raceway in Irvine, where he returns this weekend to run in the 12th annual PDA championships.

"I was lucky," he says in recalling the incident. "When the tires blew, the car changed direction and that helped put out the blaze."

Now, fires are to dragsters what Darth Vader was to the heroes in Star Wars—a feared enemy. Especially considering the metallic suits that make racers look like one of the soldiers in the blockbuster science fiction epic.

"FIRES MAKE YOU do things you wouldn't want to do— like jumping out of a car at 200 miles an hour," Force laughs. "If you do that, you're history.

"I still dream about it occasionally. But for the first month, I dreamed of fires every night. Everything but the marshmallows."

It was at the 900-feet mark, nearing the lights at a speed of 220 mph, that Force remembers his engine blowing. With the intense heat generated by the burning of nitro-methane, the oil in the crankcase didn't simply burn, it exploded.

Luckily, because his tires blew and the fire crew was on the scene in seconds, Force was rescued in time. A difference of a matter of seconds might have changed the verdict.

"ALL I GOT was singed eyelashes because my goggles melted," he says. "Plus, I was burnt between my toes and my fingers. That's because the sweat boiled. With the tin foil suits, you're almost like a baked potato. They can keep you from burning, but not from boiling."

The element of danger, Force says, not only compels racers to compete but fans to watch as well.

"Face it," he says matter-of-factly. "When you go to a bull fight, you don't go to see a bull get stabbed. You go to see the matador get stabbed. When you watch a race, there's always that danger element. It's like a guy on a high wire. You watch to see if he'll make it or see if maybe he falls."

Coming from a racing family, Force was exposed to the track early. "In my high school days, I used to drain oil pans," he says with a bit of pride. "I began racing for hobby but it became expensive. So I got more involved and picked up a few sponsors. The money was poor but it's getting better."

FORCE IS THE MAN in the spotlight but says racing, like any other sport, requires a team effort.

"It's a combination of four or five people trying to make a car perform for six seconds—five if you're lucky—trying to put an act together," he says. "There's more effort putting the motor together and such than just driving ability.

"If I had a choice, I'd take a good mechanic over a good driver."

The trick to drag racing, he says, is combining confidence with coordination and reflexes with response.

"AT THE TREE, you're thinking just reflexes. The people around you, the men in front and back, are getting the car ready. The first 200 feet, you have to react to what your car does. Up to 600 feet, there's little reaction. At 900 feet, just below the light, you're just watching.

"If your opponent's chute opens in front of you, you know you've lost another one."

JOHN FORCE

So why did he invest $100,000 into racing?

"I just love it, I guess," he shrugs. "I drove trucks for six years and I never got anywhere. I raced cars for for years and I seem to be getting somewhere. I never met a truck driver who was interviewed, for instance.

"I guess you could say I'll be a rising star if I can keep from having those fires. Either that, or a sinking ship."

In all probability, it will be the former. At least as long as the force stays with him.

Once Up, Will Fliers Return?

Low-cost Fares Can Overload Planes, Leave Some Stranded

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Discount fares have sent millions of Americans up, up and away, but the arrival of the summer vacation season has made the biggest bargains harder to find.

The ads warn — in fine print — that the availability of seats at low-cost fares is limited, but the traveler may not realize how limited until he or she tries to buy a ticke'

AIRLINES GENERALLY set aside a maximum of 20 percent to 30 percent of their seats for sale at the lowest prices; if they can fill some of the seats with passengers paying higherfares they will

This means that the number of seats available at the cheapest rates varies from day to day and carrier to carrier

Shopping for the best deal means repeated calls to ticket agents — if you can get through the busy signals — and trying to "guesstimate" which carrier of fers the best odds for success

THE SURGE IN promotional fares, particularly to Europe, began last fall when Laker Airways started no-frills, no reservations Skytrain service between New York and London.

Other carriers rushed in with new fares offering a little more service at a slightly higher price. (Related commentary, Page B5).

The cheapest New York-London fare is still Laker at $248 round trip. The price goes to $299 on the other airlines for standby round trip (no advance reservation) and budget (you select the week you want to fly, the airline picks the day)

Other promotional fares range from $399 to $631 round trip. Regular New York-London economy fare is $764; first-class is $1,378; and British Airways' Concorde is $1,666.

THERE ARE NO comprehensive figures available on what percentage of passengers on international flights travel on discount fares.

Each airline breaks down its statistics differently but a check of some major carriers provides some clues.

CONSUMER

Bruce Haxthausen of Pan American World Airways said that from Oct. 1, 1977, to May 31, 1978, 26.1 percent of all passengers flew at budget or standby rates. Sixty-one percent of the passengers used some kind of discount fare, up from 44.7 percent in the same period a year earlier.

ANGUS McCLURE of Trans World Airlines said travelers on discount fares are expected to account for 70 percent of the carrier's passengers during the summer's peak season of June, July and August, up from 65 percent last year.

On a domestic basis, the Civil Aeronautics Board reports that, based on passenger miles, discount fares accounted for 35.74 percent of all travel during April, the latest month for which figures are available.

Monthly statistics are not available for April 1977, but in July, at the height of the vacation season, discount fares represented 33.99 percent of the total.

NO FIRM FIGURES are available for the current peak season, but there are indications that travel is booming and the lowest-cost fares are scarce, particularly for those who don't plan ahead.

Margie Newman of Laker Airways, which has 3,738 seats available on New York to London flights each week, said the flights are "completely sold out. They have been for the past month."

British Airways, Pan Am and TWA reserve a maximum of 2,450 seats a week each on New York to London flights for standbys and budget passengers.

DURING THE BUSY season, however, the maximums are far from reality. The number of budget and standby passengers combined during one recent week on Pan Am, for example, was only 1,400.

"Typically, we've had 10 to 20 standby seats per flight," said Haxthausen.

The problem of the availability of promotional fares was highlighted recently when a group of European travelers who had taken advantage of a special Boston-Amsterdam low-cost fare on Pan Am found themselves stranded in Boston.

FOR THE confused, but budget-conscious traveler, the experts offer this advice:

Be flexible in your travel plans, be persistent in your questioning, and be prepared to wait.

Calls Mount Up

Wiring Hazards Spark Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that its hotline recorded more than 15,000 calls in June, the highest volume in its five-year history.

The 24-hour toll-free service had been averaging 6,000 calls a month. Officials attributed the increase to reports of the hazards of aluminum home wiring.

The hotline provides information to consumers and serves as a means of receiving complaints about hazardous products. Plans are under consideration for expanding the hotline to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The toll-free hotline number is 800-638-2666. Deaf people using teletypewriter equipment can call 800-638-2690.

FOR THE SIX MONTHS of this year, net earnings reached $6,040,000, or $1.92. This is ahead of the $4,323,000, or $1.37 reported for the like 1977 period.

Favorable earnings performance was attributed to record loan production, savings gains and an increase in earning assets.

'Funny Business' Revives Movie Laughs

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Better close that slow leak under your nose before I vulcanize it," the guy snarls. He's told: "I'll put so many lumps on you, you'll think you've got a skin full of teabags."

Yes, it's a film clip of Jack Benny and Fred Allen, close friends, in their famous "feud." And it's one of the best bits in "Funny Business," an oddly uneven CBS special airing tonight at 8 on Channel 2.

Narrated by Walter Matthau, made by film critic Richard Schickel, it uses some 100 film clips in its two-hour tour of the greats of movie comedy in the 1930s and 1940s.

IT DISPLAYS THE MARX Brothers, Mae West, W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, and samples of two ace comedy directors, Ernst Lubitch and Preston Sturges.

What it tries to show, in Matthau's words, is that with the advent of talk in movies, word-fun erupted in films and "the result was the richest comic era in the history of the movies."

Alas, the trouble with any look-back show like this is you often find yourself grumbling at the maker's use of choice of old film clips. We plead guilty to such grumbling here.

A few excerpts simply run too long, such as one, with a proper gentleman and a proper lady, that seeks to show how Lubitch satirized amour but "always honored the romantic spirit."

IT'S SLOW AND ONLY mildly funny. You may wish Schickel had dropped it and opted from a shorter, livelier segment.

No problem, though, with his Mae West study. The venerable sexbomb was thought quite racy in the '30s. But as Matthau notes, she "blew away a lot of the old Victorian attitudes about sex."

A fine sample of her famed one-liners is exhibited. Such as when a fortune teller predicts "a change of position" for her. She raises an eyebrow and inquires, "Sitting or reclining?"

The Abbott-Costello piece, including their "Who's On First" bit, features a mild defense of their broad style. The case is weak.

BUT THERE'S GRAND fun throughout the show's look at W. C. Fields as boozer, con man, card cheat, pool shark and victim of tots.

Watch for the clip in which Fields, as a store owner, gamely tries to cope with an old blind man who bumbles about, breaking things. It sounds cruel, but isn't. It's only mighty, mighty funny.

So is the clip where Fields, his neck in a noose, is asked if he has any last wishes. And drawls: "Yasss, I'd like to see Paris before I die."

THE HOPE-CROSBY segment, with bits from their "Road" films, is okay, but runs too long, and not all the best bits are in.

And I wish there'd been more than a wild Jack Benny broadcast, his too-brief "feud" scene with Allen, and a lengthier study of Hope in the show's examination of radio's impact on movie comedy.

Oh, well, even though flawed, "Funny Business" has enough guaranteed bellylaughs to make it a fun time for viewers tonight.

TV Film Scheduled For Bionic Woman

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lindsay Wagner, late of "The Bionic Woman," is returning to television in a three-hour movie, "The Outlander."

The Emmy winner will star for Columbia Pictures Television as a woman doctor in the West Virginia mountains during the late 1920s.

The CBS movie portrays Dr. Meg Laurel, who gives up her doctor husband and a promising career to minister to the people of impoverished Appalachia.

Mike Ends East Coast TV Career

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Douglas tapes the final Philadelphia broadcast of his nationally syndicated talk show tonight before heading for the West Coast where guests are more plentiful.

The Mike Douglas Show moved here from Cleveland in 1965, and has grown to a 90-minute Westinghouse Broadcasting Company program that is seen in 120 U.S. cities.

And Douglas, a low-key host who once was a $125 a week singer, has prospered with the show and is now a millionaire.

"LIVING IN Philadelphia, I've learned a lot of things other than show business," he recalled recently before the move to Los Angeles was announced in May. "Because in Philadelphia, while I'm in it, I'm not really into it. And I'm glad.

"There have been suggestions that we move the show to New York or Hollywood. But I like Philadelphia," he added.

'One Day' Leads TV Ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ten of the nation's most-watched evening television shows, including a "One Day at a Time" rerun, were on CBS last week, according to the latest A.C. Nielsen Company ratings.

ABC's hit "Laverne and Shirley" and "Happy Days," now also in reruns, made the top 20, but the former emerged 11th and "Happy Days" 15th in ratings for the week ending July 23.

THE FIGURES SHOW that on a nightly average, CBS shows last week were seen in 10.6 million homes. ABC and NBC each averaged 9.3 million homes.

CBS' "One Day at a Time," in topping the Nielsen list of 60 rated shows, was seen in an estimated 16.9 million homes.

Four other CBS shows followed "One Day at a Time" in top ratings: "M-A-S-H," 16.5 million homes; "All in the Family," 16.2 million; "Lou Grant," 15.6 million; and the canceled "Switch," 14.6 million.

THE NEXT TOP FIVE shows were NBC's "Quincy," 14.2 million homes; ABC's "Three's Company" and "Starsky and Hutch," 13.8 million and 13.2 million, respectively; "CBS Tuesday Movie," 13.1 million; and NBC's "Rockford Files," 12.8 million homes.

The next 10 shows were: "Laverne and Shirley" and "Charlie's Angels," both ABC; "Alice," CBS; "Carter Country," "Happy Days" and "Barney Miller," all ABC; "Hawaii Five-O" and "Good Times," CBS; "ABC Thursday Movie"; and "60 Minutes," CBS.

Mehta in Bowl Encore

The Hollywood Bowl became Old Vienna for three enchanting hours last weekend and a near capacity audience revelled in a splendidly arranged program of waltzes, marches and polkas.

Viennese Night brought Zubin Mehta to the Bowl podium for one of his last engagements with the Los Angeles Philarmonic Orchestra and "Zooby" happily entered into the spirit of relaxation that prevails at the Bowl by presiding over colorful renditions of Strauss waltzes.

MEHTA WAS IN TOP form and so was soprano Carol Neblett, whose clear high voice is so utterly suited to the Viennese arias she offered us. Her bittersweet rendition of Lehar arias made us again realize what an admirable choice she would be for the lead role in "Merry Widow" — no great test for an operatic soprano of Miss Neblett's caliber but an admirable utilization of that essentially Germanic voice. The LAPO was in fine form, the amplification system was all that the Bowl brass cracks it up to be, the hovering aircraft didn't hover for once and the chicken and champagne were delightful.

SUMMER NIGHTS AT THE Bowl. Old Vienna never had it so good.

Actress' Drug Trial Delayed

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The drug-related trial of actress Judy Carne and her former husband, Robert A. Bergmann, was postponed to Oct. 2 to allow Los Angeles Superior Court to rule on a plea of illegal evidence.

The trial was scheduled to begin Monday in Santa Monica Municipal Court but the request for postponement was granted by Judge Joseph W. Chandler.

Miss Carne, the sock-it-to-me girl of the old television series, "Laugh-In," and Bergmann have been charged with two counts of possession of a controlled substance and one count of possession of less than an ounce of marijuana. They were arrested in Santa Monica last February.

'Swarm' Film Lacks Sting

By ARTHUR KNIGHT
The Hollywood Reporter

Just when we thought it was safe to go back in the water, Irwin Aller warns us to keep out of the garden.

It's all because of those African killer bees, millions of them, that Allen has rounded up for Warner Bros.' "The Swarm," the latest of his all star disaster movies (and apparently intended to divert our attention from that meteor that is roaring this way).

The plain fact is that "The Swarm" is not another "Poseidon Adventure" or "Towering Inferno" and certainly not another "Jaws," although it is apparent that Allen and scriptwriter Stirling Silliphant studied all of them in their determination to come up with another winner.

UNFORTUNATELY, IT DOESN'T really work. Despite numerous closeups of the insects at work and play, whenever we go into long shots of them trailing out over Southeast Texas en route to Houston, the fine hand of the special effects artist is all too evident. Under the circumstances, it's difficult to work up a sweat.

Movie Review

As a matter of fact, nobody in the film works up much of a sweat either, which hardly adds to the excitement. Michael Caine, playing a world famous entomologist, literally plods through his part, maintaining much the same expression whether snarling at Air Force Gen. Richard Widmark or giving aid and comfort to nurse Katharine Ross.

Widmark, of course, plays one of those crusty military types who just doesn't trust civilians. Even after Caine has been cleared by Washington, he still orders Maj. Bradford Dillman to keep an eye on him.

WHILE EVERYONE ON the base, including immunologist Henry Fonda (inexplicably confined to a wheelchair), is plotting the course of the bees and planning ways to eliminate them, we switch to nearby Marysville, directly in the path of the swarm.

There school principal Olivia de Havilland is being courted simultaneously by Fred MacMurray and Ben Johnson; Patty Duke Astin is awaiting a baby, and Lee Grant arrives on the scene, briefly, as a TV newscaster. As a matter of fact, none of them is around for very long.

Because they have been so thinly drawn and indifferently directed, they aren't really missed. They may light up the marquee, but not this movie. Indeed, only that venerable trouper, Henry Fonda, gives anything that resembles a performance.

SUCH NORMALLY CAPABLE actors as Richard Chamberlain and Jose Ferrer are whisked on and off the screen almost before one has a chance to recognize them. It's hardly a directorial triumph for Allen.

A new comedy thriller from the creators of "Silver Streak."

NUREYEV, PATRICIA RUANNE IN ROMEO
An Energetic Staging of Familiar Ballet

Rudy's 'Romeo' Stirring Ballet

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev displayed his own energetic "Romeo and Juliet" — if those two kids took off their toe shoes they'd go out disco dancing — as the London Festival Ballet began a two-week season

This appearance at the Metropolitan Opera by the Festival troupe, the second major ballet company in England is its first in this city since 1954

Nureyev has choreographed to the music, by Prokofiev, that generally is used for a full-length "Romeo and Juliet" But Juilet especially has a different character than the usual gentleness. This Juliet is no doll-clutching child who has to be coaxed to go to a party which marks her adulthood. She's eager to go and delighted to dance with her suitor, Paris. When she and Romeo fall in love at first sight there, she doesn't tremble She dances to show off for him

THE BALCONY DUET is always the most romantic of the evening, and Nureyev has not betrayed it. It is radiant But instead of softness and lyricism, Nureyev and Patricia Ruanne, his Juliet, dance with the energy of healthy teenagers plus the bursts of adrenelin caused by their exploding emotions

They're obviously nice kids and they're dancing beautiful balletic movements. But they're doing them in a whirl And if he decided to swim a moat, or start dancing disco she'd be right beside him

Later, Juliet makes it clear that she has always been the darling of her parents and had her way When they get tough about her marrying Paris, she has a fierce tantrum

THIS "ROMEO AND Juliet" is quite busy, always something going on. We liked most of it, like the acrobats waving flags in the market square We didn't care for several acted-out dreams in act three

The Capulets were all in dark red, the Montagues in green, a good theatrical touch

The British Royal Ballet, the Royal Danish Ballet and the Stuttgart Ballet have often done "Romeo and Juliet" evenings here. Those three versions are more similar to each other than this is to them Nureyev has made many changes in the story, such as the way both Mercutio and Tybalt die

'Star Wars' Gems Stir Legal Fight

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The movie "Star Wars" has touched off a legal battle over royalties in Rhode Island The conflict centers on the manufacture of novelty jewelry depicting characters from the highly successful science-fiction movie

Officials of Associated Big Productions contend they are not getting the five percent royalties they said they were promised by Weingeroff Enterprises Inc for coming up with the idea for the jewelry

Daniel Altman and William T Hall Jr charge that Weingeroff has refused to account for its sales and has not paid any royalties. They have asked a state court to order the firm to ma e an accounting of the sales revenues and pay the royalties

Rip Torn No Phony Name

Q: Of all the strange or unreal names in the wacky world of showbiz. I think the "unrealist" is that of a fine actor who calls himself "Rip Torn." What is his real name? — Mrs. Dolores Safie, Columbus, Ga.

'Glad You Asked That'

by Marilyn and Hy Gardner

A: "I was born Rip Torn," the actor insists. "It's my real name and I am adamant about not changing it because it's been used by every male in my family for four generations."

TORN

Q. When was Bob Hope's theme song, "Thanks for the Mrmory," first heard, and did Bob write it himself? — S.T. Henry, Tulsa, Okla.

A: No. Bob just helped to popularize it when Leon Robin and Ralph Rainger wrote the words and music for Paramount 40 years ago. Introduced in "The Big Broadcast of 1938," the song won an Oscar that year as the best (and most memorable) of the year

Q: I hear there's a move on to honor the memory of actor George M. Cohan by printing his portrait on one of the new 15 cent stamps. Anything to this? — Benny Davis, Miami.

A: Yes. The celebrity stamp was issued on the Yankee Doodle Dandy's birthday — July 4 — in Providence, R.I., with a group of public officials and members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers present.

Q: Is it true that when Israeli foreign minister Moshe Dayan's book is made into a movie, the heroic general will be played by himself? — Milton Greenbaum, New York.

A: No. Dayan is too shrewd a person for self-aggrandizement. His role may be played by Jack Nicholson, who won an Oscar for his sterling performance in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Super Sandwich Suppers

The hamburger may be the all-American favorite, but you never saw or savored one like the Blue Ribbon, recently named one of the best recipes of the year in the National Sandwich Idea Contest. Other winners are great ideas for summer suppers.

BLUE RIBBON HAMBURGER SANDWICH
(6 sandwiches)

¾ cup (3 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
1 tablespoon minced chives
1 teaspoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon curry powder
Salt and pepper to taste
3 tablespoons sour cream
1½ pounds lean ground beef
12 slices enriched white bread
½ cup butter, softened
9 slices bacon
2 bananas
¼ cup lemon juice

Combine cheese, chives, parsley, curry, salt and pepper; blend in sour cream. Shape ground beef into 6 patties; grill to desired degree of doneness. Toast bread and butter. Place 1 patty on each of 6 slices of toast. Cook bacon until brown but not crisp; cut each slice in half. Place 2 half slices on each patty. Cut each banana into 6 diagonal slices. Dip in lemon juice and arrange 2 slices on each patty. Top each sandwich with one rounded tablespoon of cheese mixture and broil 3 to 4 minutes or until cheese begins to melt. Top with remaining half slice of bacon. Cut remaining slices of toast into 4 triangles; place one on each side of sandwich, points facing out.

TUNA ORIENTO

For sure-fire entertainment, flaming sauce over ice cream.

Perfect Pourovers

For sure-fire entertainment, a summer meal can have no better conclusion than a flaming fruit sauce spooned over ice cream. And, there's nothing easier to prepare and serve when convenient, ready-to-use jams, jellies and preserves are used as the foundation for the sauces.

The technique is simple. Just heat the jam, jelly or preserves of your choice in a chafing dish, fondue pot or small saucepan until melted. If you like, add an aromatic or tangy flavoring – then blaze the mixture with a complementary spirit such as rum, brandy or a liqueur.

Whatever is used for the flaming leaves its fragrance and flavor behind as the alcohol burns off. To be successful in setting the sauce aflame, the secret is to heat the spirit in a long-handled ladle, then ignite it and, while flaming, stir it into the sauce mixture.

Following are a few slightly more elaborate versions of flaming fruit pourovers for ice cream. The first suggests the addition of pecan halves, the second calls for coconut-covered ice cream balls and the third combines fresh strawberries and toasted almonds with strawberry jelly.

BRANDIED PEACH-WALNUT POUROVER

1 jar (12 ounces) peach jam or preserves
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup brandy
1 cup walnut halves

Combine peach jam, lemon juice and 6 tablespoons of the brandy in a small saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring, until jam melts. Add walnut halves. Heat remaining brandy in a large ladle; ignite with a match. While flaming, stir into sauce. When flame dies out, spoon sauce over scoops of ice cream in individual serving dishes.

Makes about 2½ cups sauce.

TROPICAL GRAPE POUROVER

2 jars (10 ounces each) grape jam or preserves
Grated peel of 1 lime
Juice of 1 lime
½ cup dark rum
Coconut ice cream balls

Combine grape jam, lime peel, lime juice, and 6 tablespoons of the rum in a small saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring, until jam melts. Heat remaining rum in a large ladle; ignite with a match. While flaming, stir into sauce. When flame burns out, spoon sauce over Coconut Ice Cream Balls*.

Makes about 2½ cups sauce.

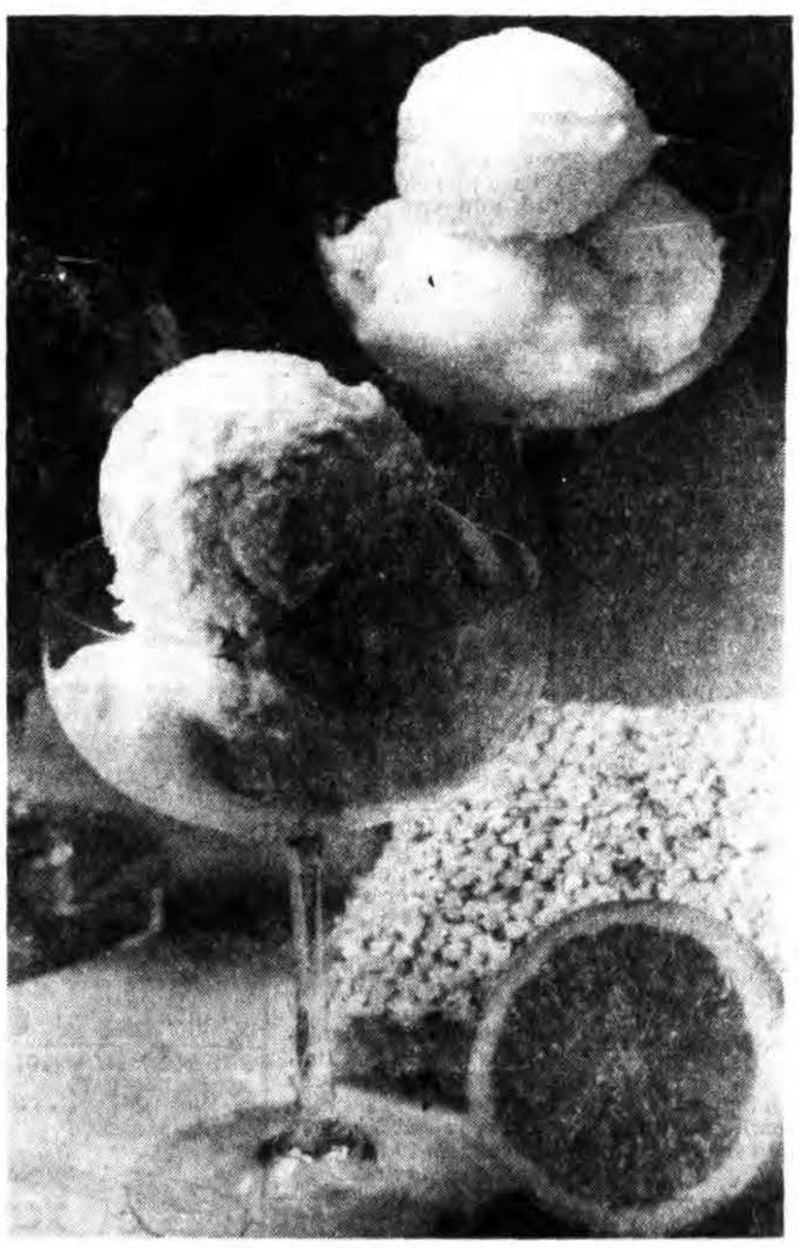

*Note: For 6 Coconut Ice Cream Balls, toast contents of 2 cans (3½ ounces each) flaked coconut in a 350 F. oven for 10 minutes or until golden brown, stirring occasionally. Shape 6 ice cream balls from 1 quart vanilla ice cream; roll in toasted coconut. Freeze.

STRAWBERRIES JUBILEE POUROVER

1 jar (10 ounces) strawberry jelly
1 pint fresh strawberries, hulled and halved
⅓ cup sliced toasted almonds
¼ cup Cointreau or other orange-flavored liqueur

Heat strawberry jelly in a small saucepan until it melts. Add strawberries and almonds; heat to simmering. Heat liqueur in a ladle; ignite with a match. While flaming, stir into sauce. When flame burns out, spoon sauce over scoops of ice cream in individual serving dishes.

Makes about 2½ cups sauce.

A Trio Of Gelato Desserts

In sunny Italy, where much of the cuisine is on the rich and heavy side, the ice cream, called 'gelato,' actually has a sherbert-like consistency. These Americanized gelati desserts are made with unflavored gelatine which gives them a smooth, airy texture. Add your favorite flavoring: honey, mocha or lemon. The desserts are easy to prepare and an average serving has 140 calories. For the recipes, see Page C2.

Marzipan Pineapple Cake

A three-tiered cake, covered with a thin layer of matzipan, combines lady fingers sprinkled with rum, a cream filling and canned pineapple chunks. For the recipe, turn to Page C2.

Italian Gelato Is Americanized

Are you perhaps lucky enough (if you're willing to admit it!) to have been born into that generation that remembers those sweet lazy days and the hours spent on the back porch patiently turning an old hand-cranked freezer to make ice cream for Sunday dinner? How rich and heavy that cream was — reward enough for the hard turning!

Most Americans think pretty seriously today about eliminating fattening foods from their daily diets, but ice cream remains a dessert only the most rigid wills can resist.

In sunny Italy — where much of the cuisine is on the rich and heavy side — the ice cream, called "gelato," actually has a sherbet-like consistency. These Americanized gelati desserts are made with unflavored gelatine which gives them a smooth, airy texture.

This honey of a dessert is actually three desserts, and not one of them is made with cream. The ingredients of each are pretty basic: unflavored gelatine, dry milk powder, skimmed milk, and egg whites. You add whatever flavoring your fancy dictates: honey, mocha or lemon. The desserts are prepared from the same basic instructions, too, so when you've mastered one you've mastered three.

The trio will help keep you looking pretty, too; none is over 140 calories per ½-cup serving.

HONEY GELATO

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup nonfat dry milk powder
2 cups skimmed milk
½ cup honey
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 egg whites

In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine and milk powder; blend in milk. Stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves, 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in honey and lemon juice. Pour into freezer tray or shallow pan and freeze until firm.

Turn into chilled bowl and add egg whites. Beat at high speed of electric mixer until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Return to freezer tray; freeze. Makes about 5½ cups, approx. 90-100 calories per ½-cup serving.

MOCHA GELATO

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
½ cup nonfat dry milk powder
⅓ cup unsweetened cocoa
2 cups skimmed milk
¼ cup coffee liqueur
2 egg whites

In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine, sugar, milk powder, and cocoa; blend in milk. Stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves, 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in coffee liqueur. Pour into freezer tray or shallow pan and freeze until firm.

Turn into chilled bowl and add egg whites. Beat at high speed of electric mixer until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Return to freezer tray; freeze.

Makes about 5½ cups, approx. 80-90 calories per ½-cup serving.

LEMON GELATO

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
½ cup nonfat dry milk powder
2 cups skimmed milk
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
2 egg whites

In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine, sugar, and milk powder; blend in milk. Stir over low heat until gelatine dissolves, 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat; cool. Stir in lemon rind and juice. Pour into freezer tray or shallow pan and freeze until firm.

Turn into chilled bowl and add egg whites. Beat at high speed of electric mixer until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Return to freezer tray; freeze.

Makes about 5½ cups, approx. 130-140 calories per ½-cup serving.

Cake Hints Of Hawaii

A spectacular, three-tiered cake, developed by the executive chef of a famed New York hotel, won top honors in the first nationwide Professional Pineapple Cooking Contest in Hawaii.

It can be served as a dessert either for a large social gathering or for a small birthday party involving only a few persons.

Each layer is covered with a thin sheet of marzipan. Between rows of lady fingers, moistened with rum, is a rich creamy filling topped with canned pineapple chunks. The cake can be decorated with miniature pineapple leaves and marzipan wrapped macadamia nuts.

The dessert, "Hawaiian Plantation Cake", was selected as the best-of-contest winner by a distinguished panel of professional chefs representing all areas of the food service industry.

HAWAIIAN PLANTATION CAKE

Marzipan
6 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1½ cups sweet butter (3 cubes), softened
1 (20 oz) can pineapple chunks
1 (8¼ oz) can pineapple chunks
4 dozen lady fingers
1 tablespoon light or amber rum
1½ teaspoons milk
6 to 8 macadamia nuts
Powdered cocoa
Powdered sugar for decoration

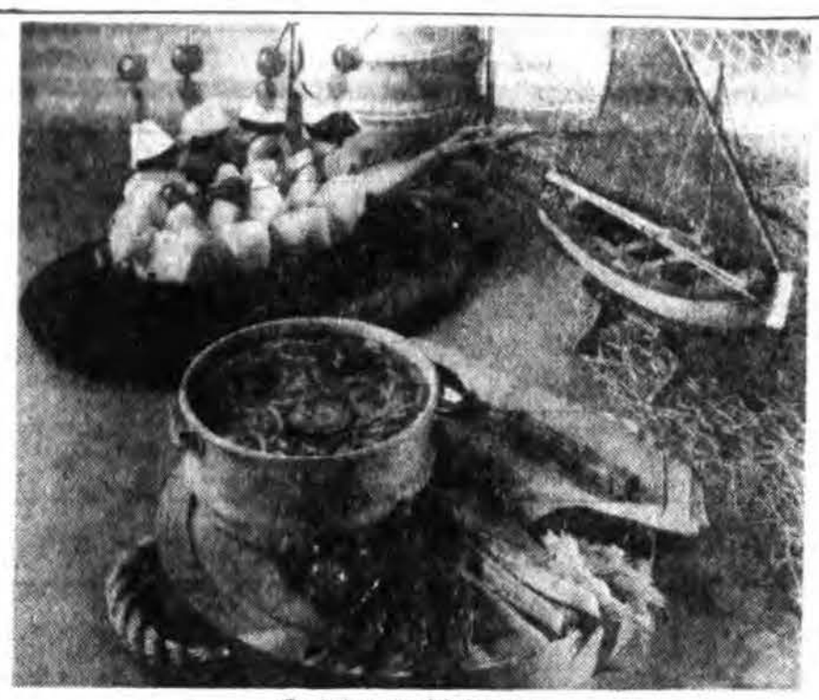

Prepare Marzipan, and place in plastic bag until needed. Beat egg yolks in top of double boiler. Stir in cream and ½ cup powdered sugar. Set over boiling water, and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon and is thickened. Remove from heat and chill. When custard is cold, cream butter with remaining ½ cup powdered sugar. Gradually beat in cold custard. Chill

When ready to assemble cake, drain pineapple thoroughly. Line bottom of 8-inch spring form pan with waxed paper. Arrange a layer of lady fingers in bottom of pan, placing close together spoke fashion. Cut some lady fingers diagonally to form wedges to fit between the whole lady fingers at outer edge of pan. Mix rum and milk, and sprinkle lady fingers in pan lightly with the mixture, using about ⅓. Spread half the pineapple layers, and top with more lady fingers, moistening with remaining rum mixture. Chill cake thoroughly. When ready to decorate cake, roll marzipan between sheets of waxed paper or heavy plastic to a circle large enough to cover top and sides of cake. Remove cake from ring form, and invert onto serving plate. Cover with the marzipan, gently easing sides against cake. Trim edges even with bottom of cake.

Return to refrigerator while preparing decorations. Use trimmed marzipan for decorations. Wrap macadamia nuts in marzipan, and roll in dry cocoa. Work 1 tablespoon dry cocoa into about ½ cup marzipan, kneading until evenly mixed. Roll between sheets of waxed paper, and cut in leaf shapes with small sharp knife, making 16 to 20 leaves. Mark veins of leaves with tip of knife. If desired, shape a small pineapple from remaining white marzipan

When ready to serve cake, set macadamia nuts on outer edge of cake top, and arrange leaves beside nuts and around sides of cake. If small pineapple is used, center on top of cake. Sprinkle entire cake very lightly with powdered sugar, shaking it through a wire strainer. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

Marzipan: Combine 1 pound almond paste, 1 pound powdered sugar (sifted) and 2 tablespoons egg white, and knead until smooth and no longer sticky.

#1 BRAND GLOBE "A1" SPAGHETTI

Bagels with tuna (when you can't find lox).

Operation Waterbagel

What do New Yorkers seem to miss most when they leave for out-of-town colleges or jobs? Right. Bagels!

For the uninitiated, bagels are those unique doughnut-shaped bread rolls.

To be acceptable to bagel mavens (connoisseurs), bagels should be satisfying, chewy of texture with a firm, thin crust that yields crisply and lovingly to the teeth.

Now, after several clandestine conferences on off-hours with unnamed bagel bakers — Operation Waterbagel — a recipe (below) has been discovered for bagels that can be easily produced at home or even in college dorms with modest (very modest) kitchen facilities.

However, a bagel served unadorned is like a pancake without syrup, like corned beef without mustard, like pizza without cheese. And many thinking bagel lovers will not allow any spread prime time on their toasted bagel halves, other than cream cheese and lox (smoked salmon).

There seems to be no difficulty obtaining cream cheese around the country. The problem is the lox. Where it's sold, prices are out of sight. But aficionados can take heart. A little goes much further when you combine these traditional ingredients, some scallions, some chopped radishes, with — you guessed it — canned tuna Yes, tuna! And you know what else? This combo is terrific. Maybe better than the cheese and lox alone. What's more, you can even dispense with the lox and come out smiling, because tuna and cream cheese are a delectable duet by themselves.

Recognizing there are untold numbers who prefer tuna as a sandwich spread anyway, here's another winner: Tuna Cheddar Filling.

BAGELS

5½ to 6 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1⅓ cups warm water
⅓ cup salad oil
2 eggs, slightly beaten
4 quarts water
2 tablespoons sugar

In medium bowl mix 5½ cups flour and salt. In small bowl dissolve yeast in water. Make a well in dry ingredients, add yeast, oil and eggs. Mix until dough forms a ball, working in the extra ½ cup flour, if necessary, to make a stiff dough. On lightly floured surface knead dough 10 minutes or until smooth. Cover and let rise for 45 minutes. Divide dough in 12 parts and form into rope-like lengths not more than ¾ inch thick. Pinch ends together to make bagels. Handle dough as little and as quickly as possible. In large kettle, bring water and sugar to rolling boil. Add half of bagels and boil 15 minutes. Remove bagels and place on ungreased baking sheet. Repeat with reamining bagels. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 35 to 45 minutes or until bagels are brown and sound hollow when tapped with hand. Cool on wire rack. YIELD: 12 bagels.

TUNA, LOX AND CREAM CHEESE FILLING

1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
¼ pound lox, cut in small pieces
½ cup chopped scallions (1 bunch)
½ cup chopped radishes (4 medium radishes)
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

In medium bowl flake tuna with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. YIELD: 1¾ cups.

TUNA CHEDDAR FILLING

1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
¾ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup mayonnaise

In medium bowl flake tuna with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. YIELD: 2½ cups filling.

How to Defat Soups

Special Diets
By June Roth

Soup lovers know that soup has a hospitality all its own, whether ladled from a tureen at the table or served from pot to bowl. It's an auxiliary course that is both soothing and filling. When it has globules of floating fat however, it can be a lethal weapon against those who suffer from gallbladder trouble and those who must be on a low cholesterol regime.

Recent reports reveal that the often-joked-about Jewish mother's chicken soup does have therapeutic effects, providing important nutrients in liquid form for those who have high fever, or require liquid feeding. It's not enough to skim the fat off the top of the soup pot though, the fat-free broth can only be achieved by chilling the completed soup until all fat rises to the top. Then remove all of it and use what is left as a clear broth or as a base for other soup combinations.

If you are cooking for someone who is fond of soup but must avoid fat or just saturated fats, a good trick is to make a large pot of chicken broth and freeze in in ice cube trays. Then remove the soup cubes and store them in plastic bags in the freezer. When you need a fast soup base, just reach in for a few soup cubes and pop them in a pot. Heat and add any pureed leftover vegetable, such as cooked broccoli, asparagus, spinach, season with salt (if allowed) and a sprinkling of dried dill weed or other compatible herb, and you have a lovely little fat-free soup.

Tomato juice can also serve as a good fat-free base for soup. It can be combined with clam juice and served hot in mugs with a sprinkling of chopped chives over the top. Or it can be the base of a cold gazpacho when blended with fresh tomatoes (using a food processor or electric blender) with a balance of lemon juice and sugar for flavor and a dash of powdered garlic for tang.

Cooked vegetables can also be blended with skim milk and delicate herbs, turning dabs of complimentary refrigerator roundups into a treat for the fat-free dieter.

Here are some recipes to help you to prepare delicious fat-free soups.

CHICKEN SOUP (DEFATTED)

1 soup chicken, about 4 pounds
2 quarts water
1 whole onion, peeled
2 whole carrots, scraped
4 stalks celery, including tops
1 parsnip root, cleaned (optional)
2 sprigs parsley
2 sprigs dill
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon white pepper

Clean chicken, place in a deep pot and add water and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil, then simmer covered until chicken is tender, about 2 hours. Remove chicken and strain soup. Chill for several hours until soup has a soft gelatin-like consistency and all fat has solidified on the top. Remove all fat. Heat as needed. Soup will keep in the refrigerator for several days. Freeze extra portions. Makes 8 servings.

ORIENTAL SPINACH SOUP

1 package (10-ounce) frozen whole-leaf spinach
1 quart defatted chicken broth
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
2 teaspoons soy sauce

Cook spinach as directed on package; drain. Pour defatted chicken broth into a saucepan. Stir cornstarch with just enough water to make a smooth mixture; stir into soup. Add celery, green onion, and soy sauce. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Add cooked spinach and serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

GAZPACHO

2 cups tomato juice
2 tomatoes, cut up
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspopoon on sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, peeled
½ cucumber, peeled
½ green pepper, seeded
Dash Worcestershire sauce

Place all ingredients in an electric blender or in a food processor. Process until vegetables are chopped but not liquified. Chill mixture. Serve in chilled bowls with additional chopped cucumber for topping.

Live It Up With Lobster for Low-Calorie Dinner

Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

If you're feeling sorry for yourself because your "fat genes" put pizza, hot dogs and french fries on the forbidden list . . . why not "pig out" with class: Live it up with lobster. Right now, when your self-pity level is at its peak! It's hard to feel deprived while eating lobster. Lobster is the ultimate indulgence for those of us who can't afford (the calories) to indulge in anything else.

But who can afford to buy lobster!

One way to modify the high cost of a lobster orgy is to enjoy it in private . . . at home. Private lobster is only half as expensive as lobster in public, and a lot more relaxed. There's no neat way to eat lobster, but in a restaurant most of us feel compelled to try, often at the price of leaving behind the best parts!

Since lobster is easier to eat on home grounds, why don't more people do it? The real reason is the deadly deed that must be done. There you are, poised over a bubbling pot, wriggling lobster in hand, reflecting on the practicality of keeping it in the bathtub as a pet.

There's a way out of all this, and that's to let your friendly fishmonger play "hitman." Do your lobster-shopping just before dinner. "Finger" the (live) ones you want and ask the counterperson to have them split for broiling. Splitting the lobster does the deed instantly, by severing the spinal cord. Then run home quick as you can, and cook your lobsters as qualm-free as if they were steak. But suppose you don't want them broiled? You prefer them steamed (that's the best way) or boiled.

It's a convention that only lobsters for broiling or baking are killed before cooking (it wouldn't do to have them hot-footing around the grill or oven) while steamed or boiled lobsters must be cooked alive.

Is there really any reason why lobsters have to enter the pot kicking and screaming (They really don't scream!)?

No reason whatsoever, according to Thomas McPartland of the New England Fresh Fish Council. We had never head of a reason and neither had he. The point of boiling a lobster live is to maximize freshness, he said, but a lobster killed and promptly steamed will be no different from one that's promptly broiled.

Steaming split lobsters has advantages for calorie-watchers. You can steam them in just a few cups of water instead of the whole pot-ful that most timid souls find necessary in order to hasten the lobsters' demise. Many Maine residents steam live lobsters in small amounts of water.)

The few cups of water — steaming liquid — will be a richly flavored base for a low-calorie dipping broth, instead of all that melted butter.

TO STEAM 1 OR 2 SPLIT LOBSTERS — Choose small lobsters, about 1 and one-quarter pounds each and have them split as if for broiling. Use a large, covered pot. Add 1 and one-half to 2 cups water to the pot for each lobster. Heat water to boiling. Add the lobsters. Cover the pot and steam about 10 to 12 minutes. Strain the broth and use it as a base for a low-fat dipping sauce:

LOBSTER DIPPING BROTH

1 cup simmered-down liquid from steaming lobsters

2 tablespoons butter (or substitute margarine or diet margarine)

Juice of 2 fresh lemons

Optional: salt, pepper and paprika (to taste)

1 teaspoon minced fresh parsley

Rapidly boil the steaming liquid in the uncovered pot until reduced to only one cup. Stir in butter or margarine until melted. Stir in lemon juice and seasoning to taste. Pour liquid into two glass cups and sprinkle with parsley. Dip hot morsels of lobster into the broth. Makes two servings, 115 calories each (65 calories with diet margarine). Each 1 and one-quarter pound lobster, about 135 calories.

LOBSTER BASTING SAUCE FOR BAKING OR BROILING

For 2 servings:

2 tablespoons melted butter (margarine or diet margarine may be substituted)

¼ cup boiling water

Juice of 2 lemons

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Salt and pepper to taste

Optional: dash of Tabasco or Red Cayenne pepper

Optional: 1 teaspoon minced onion or ¼ teaspoon minced garlic (or a shake of onion or garlic powder)

Melt butter in boiling water. Combine with remaining ingredients and brush on split fresh lobsters as they broil or bake. Sauce is 115 calories per serving with butter or regular margarine, 65 with diet margarine.

If you'd like to bake a cake without a lot of excess calories . . . think blueberries! The time to "think blueberries" is now, when they're making their first appearance in the markets. There's no better way to add flavor.

CINNAMON BLUEBERRY CAKE

1 and ½ cups sifted cake flour

2 teaspoons baking powder

¾ teaspoon salt

Summer Chicken And Vegetables

There's something about summer that seems to suggest good health. Sunshine and fresh air. More outdoor activity. An abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables.

And fitting right into this wholesome seasonal scene is chicken, the highly nutritious, versatile source of quality protein that has become a basic in the diets of health-conscious Americans.

According to the National Broiler Council, a minimum portion of just three ounces of broiled chicken (without bone) supplies 23 grams of complete protein. The average adult male needs 70 grams a day and the healthy adult female, 60 grams. Every cell in the body must be supplied daily with fresh amounts of protein to function normally and to stay in constant repair.

Protein is composed of substances known as amino acids — 22 of them all together. Of these, eight have been designated as absolutely necessary for adults to eat every day to stay healthy. Protein sources containing all eight of these essential amino acids — such as chicken — are called "complete" proteins.

Chicken also supplies the body with other important nutrients but it is low in fat content and in calories. It combines well with the fresh fruits and vegetables which are now in plentiful supply. Because chicken is so versatile and can be prepared in a seemingly endless variety of ways, there are many interesting combinations for simple, balanced meals that will keep the family going at peak efficiency all summer long.

"Chicken With Fresh Vegetables" is a colorful skillet dish made with breast quarters, zucchini, green onions and fresh tomatoes. "Chicken Fruit Salad Refresher" is a deliciously different main course to serve cold on a hot summer day. Both contain a minimum of calories and a maximum of energy-producing protein.

CHICKEN WITH FRESH VEGETABLES

4 broiler-fryer chicken breast quarters
3 tablespoons butter
3 large zucchini squash
3 large fresh tomatoes
1 cup chopped green onions
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

In large fry pan, melt butter over medium-high heat. Add chicken and brown on all sides for about 30 minutes. Slice zucchini lengthwise and cut in 1-inch pieces; cut tomatoes into 1-inch chunks. Stir in green onions, zucchini and tomatoes. Reduce heat to low; add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Cook uncovered for about 20 minutes or until chicken can easily be pierced with fork. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN FRUIT SALAD REFRESHER

2 cups chopped, cooked broiler-fryer chicken
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup seedless green grapes, halved
½ cup broken pecans
2 tablespoons sour cream
2 teaspoons lime juice
2 cantaloupes halved

Salt and pepper chicken. Chill chicken, grapes and cantaloupes. At serving time, mix together chicken, grapes, pecans, sour cream and lime juice. Mound chicken salad in cantaloupe halves and garnish with sliced lime. Serve cold. Makes 4 servings.

VEAL ITALIAN

1 lb. veal round steak, ¼-inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ cup cooking oil
1 small clove garlic
⅔ cup white cooking wine
1 jar (1 lb.) sliced carrots, drained
14 cherry tomatoes, halved
Chopped parsley

Cut veal into 2-inch pieces; roll in flour mixed with salt, pepper and thyme. Heat oil in large skillet; add veal and garlic and cook, stirring, until meat is browned. Remove and discard garlic. Add wine; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Add carrots and tomatoes; simmer 10 minutes more.

Shrimp En Croute Tastes Elegant

Wheat germ shrimp "en croute" sounds like something on the menu of a chic restaurant. With its elegant puff pastry, delicate wheat germ filling and aromatic wine sauce it looks and tastes very impressive. The big surprise is that it's actually EASY to make Using several convenience foods including toasted wheat germ this gourmet entree can be assembled and cooked in less than half an hour. It's appetite satisfying yet not too heavy.

Wheat germ is a beautiful food to enjoy in combination with other basic foods. An excellent way to begin each day is with ¼ cup wheat germ — a one ounce serving — topped with milk. If you like a lightly sweetened cereal choose wheat germ with sugar and honey. Wheat germ has appealing texture and great flavor. For a heartier breakfast combine wheat germ with cereal flakes or shredded wheat.

WHEAT GERM AND SHRIMP EN CROUTE

4 frozen patty shells, thawed
8 ounces small cooked shrimp (about 2½ cups)
¼ cup butter melted
¾ cup vacuum packed wheat germ, regular
3 tablespoons chopped green onion
½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
⅛ teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 slices monterey jack cheese (2½-inch squares)
Wine Sauce
Parsley sprigs

Spoon about ¾ cup filling onto each pastry square. Top with cheese slice. Fold two opposite sides of pastry over filling overlapping slightly Fold remaining edges to center to make a 3¼-inch square. Place seamside down on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 400 degree oven 15 to 18 minutes until pastry is golden. Serve with hot Wine Sauce Garnish with parsley Makes 4 servings. WINE SAUCE: Melt 3 tablespoons butter. Add 2 tablespoons flour, stirring until smooth. Stir in ½ cup milk. Cook stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and boils gently. Add ½ cup dry white wine, ¼ cup grated parmesan cheese and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Heat until cheese melts. Stir in reserved shrimp.

Pre-priced items aren't priced low enough for Lucky!

One step further, one price lower.
Many items come into Lucky with a price already imprinted on them. We're referring to items such as razor blades, cosmetics, household items and toys And many supermarkets in town will continue to sell those items at those same recommended prices. But not Lucky! To us, the manufacturers' low prices just aren't low enough to satisfy our way of doing business. So we immediately place our own lower price onto these items. Besides the previously mentioned items, that list also includes bread, potato chips, stationery, party goods, sewing notions, gum and candy. And when you buy a magazine, paperback or greeting cards we'll automatically give you a discount when you're at the checkstand. Our own label products (Lady Lee and Harvest Day) are the only products that are already marked with our everyday low prices. So when we say we're a discount supermarket, we really mean we're a discount supermarket.

We keep a low profile on profit.
Although we can't control wholesale prices, we do have some say when it comes to our own margin of profit. And we intend to keep that down. You see, we're not used to taking a big profit, it's just not the way we do things here. In 1977 we went on record as taking an overall net profit of only 1.3%. That comes out to just 13c from every $10 you spend. So when we get in any merchandise that already has a manufacturer's suggested price on it, we automatically discount it to keep it in line with our overall profit structure

It gets to be very habit forming.
Day in and day out, we make it a point to take a low profit on all our products. And it's that discount pricing philosophy that extends into every department throughout the entire store. That means you'll find low discount prices on our Bonded meats, fresh produce, canned goods, dairy products, in fact, everything we carry ... everytime you shop. For prices that are really lower overall, come to Lucky .. and see what discount is all about.

How to Tenderize Those Cheaper Cuts of Meat

By DOROTHY WENCK
Orange County Home Advisor

Have your food bills been higher the last few months? The skyrocketing price of beef might be one reason. You can trim your spending by using more of the less expensive cuts.

The most expensive beef cuts come from the muscles along the backbone. These muscles get little exercise and so remain tender. Some examples of tender cuts are tenderloin and rib roasts and steaks; sirloin, T bone, porterhouse and New York steaks.

Cheaper cuts are from the muscles that the animal uses for walking, and are generally tougher. Chuck, round steak, brisket, and flank are some less tender cuts.

A cheaper cut of beef can be just as tender and juicy when you eat it as the more expensive cuts if you use the proper cooking method. Key factors are time, temperature, and presence of moisture.

If any cut of meat is cooked at a temperature that is too high or is cooked for too long a time without moisture it will dry out and get tough. Meat shrinks during cooking from fat losses and evaporation of water on the meat's surface. The longer you cook it, the drier it gets.

Roasting is a dry heat cooking method used for tender cuts of beef. Place the beef on a rack in a shallow roasting pan and cook uncovered in a 325 degrees F oven to the desired degree of doneness.

Less tender cuts are made tender by slow cooking at low temperatures with moist heat such as steam or hot liquid.

Simmering in a crock pot is another easy way to cook less tender cuts. Combine chunks of stewing beef and vegetables with liquid and seasonings, and let them cook all day at a low temperature setting. By dinnertime the beef will be tender and juicy.

You also can improve the tenderness of cheaper cuts by using meat tenderizers. These are made from an enzyme called papain that is extracted from the juices of the papaya.

Tough tissue of the beef is broken down by papain during cooking. At low cooking temperatures papain is activated; then it is activated by higher temperatures before the meat has finished cooking.

Some meats that you might tenderize with papain include flank steak, stew, chuck, and round steak. Tenderizer is more successfully used on thin cuts of meat, rather than large, thick roasts.

The number of ways to prepare less tender cuts is endless. Why not surprise your family and serve them a new beef dish that you've created? Your family will love the change and your wallet will too.

Q&A

Q. When I cook chuck roast wrapped in foil it forms lots of juice which would make good gravy. But it's so full of fat. Is there some quick way to remove this fat? I don't have time to wait while the juice chills in the refrigerator.

A. Pour your juice into a saucepan and add about 10 to 15 ice cubes. The melting ice will quickly chill the juice and cause the fat to harden on the surface. Remove the fat plus the remaining ice and proceed with your gravy making. Or heat the defatted juice without thickening and serve as "au jus."

Q. I recently had dinner at a seafood restaurant and was going to try Mahimahi until my husband told me it's dolphin. Is this true?

A. Mahimahi is not the mammal we think of as dolphin. It is, however, a dolphin fish. These fish, weighing up to 40 pounds and reaching lengths of 3 to 3½ feet, are found in the waters around Hawaii, Mexico, and Central America. Mahimahi steaks may be broiled, poached, or baked. They have a bland flavor and a texture similar to swordfish.

Q. I love the rich flavor and creamy texture of real ice cream, but I'm trying to cut down on my calories. Is imitation ice cream less fattening?

A. The caloric value of imitation ice cream is no different from that of real ice cream. A half-cup serving of either imitation or regular ice cream contains about 130 calories. Both must contain at least 10 percent fat according to State of California standards. The difference is that regular ice cream must contain milk fat (butterfat) while imitation ice cream contains other types of fats — usually a vegetable fat such as coconut oil. The substitute fats are no lower in calories but are cheaper so that imitation ice cream costs less than regular ice cream.

State law also regulates the amount of milk solids in ice cream; they must be at least 20 percent (including fat) — while imitation ice cream is not required to have milk solids at all.

The only way to enjoy the taste of ice cream and cut calories is to eat less — either smaller portions or fewer servings.

Peaches Romanoff

CALIFORNIA PEACHES ROMANOFF

Fresh sliced California peaches sweetened
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
Grated rind of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup rum
Whipped cream

Cook ¾ cup sugar and water to 240°, or until thick syrup forms. Add lemon rind and juice. Beat egg yolks with remaining sugar. Add hot syrup gradually. Return to heat and continue cooking over low heat 5 minutes. Add butter and rum and reheat until butter is melted, but do not cook. Cool, then chill.

Just before serving, whip cream and add rum sauce to suit your taste. Spoon sauce into bottom of sherbert glass or hollow stem glass, add layer of sliced peaches. Alternate layers of peaches and sauce, ending with fresh peach slice for garnish.

A Grape Cream Puff

In France, where pastries are considered an essential to life, the local pastry shop is a centuries-old tradition. The French baker dreams up countless numbers of mouth-watering confections to entice any pastry lover.

The French attribute their totally irresistible desserts to a basic pastry, "pate a choux." We know it as cream puff pastry. It's surprisingly simple to prepare and the results are grand. Versatile too, the rich dough can be shaped for small appetizers, individual serving-size desserts, or one family-sized pastry.

You can bring a bit of this refined French tradition of pastry-making into your own kitchen with Grapes Parisienne, a flaky puff pastry, filled with sweet, juicy California grapes and a vanilla filling. Crisp, tangy California table grapes make this dessert extra special. They're the perfect contrast — in flavor, color and texture — to the smooth rich filling (made from a mix, though you'd never guess). The result is impressive — and refreshingly satisfying.

When shopping for grapes for this recipe or for out-of-hand snacking, be sure to select plump, ripe grapes that cling tightly to pliable green stems. Crisp California grapes are available almost year 'round, and right now blue-black Ribiers, Red Cardinals, beautiful black Exotics and Red Malagas are being featured in local markets, as well as the favorite Thompson seedless. Try a medley of grape varieties in Grape Parisienne for colorful (and yummy!) results.

GRAPES PARISIENNE

½ cup water
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup flour
Dash salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 package (3¾ ounces) instant vanilla pudding and pie filling
3 cups California seedless grapes (if seeded varieties are used, halve and seed)
Powdered sugar

In heavy saucepan, bring water and butter to boil. Quickly stir in flour, salt and sugar. Cook and stir batter until it leaves sides of pan and forms a ball. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Outline a 7-inch circle on greased baking sheet. Spoon batter around outline shaping with back of spoon to form a 1-inch thick ring, 1½-inch wide. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees, and bake 5 to 10 minutes more, or until golden. Turn off oven, open door and let cool 10 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare filling: pour milk and cream into mixer bowl. Add pudding mix; beat at low speed until blended, about 2 minutes. To assemble: with sharp knife, carefully cut a slice off top of ring. Spoon half the filling into hollow. Sprinkle half the grapes over filling. Repeat with remaining filling and grapes. Replace top of ring. Dust with powdered sugar. Place on serving plate and refrigerate until serving time. Cut into wedges.

Quick Grape Desserts:

Star-rated desserts with California table grapes needn't take great amounts of planning or preparation. Superb desserts can be as simple as the following ideas:

Fruited Rice: Into cold cooked rice, fold whipped cream or whipped dessert topping, peach slices, grapes. Sweeten to taste.

Fruit and Cream: Fill pretty goblets or wine glasses with frosty green seedless grapes. Spoon dollops of sour cream atop grapes; sprinkle with brown sugar and dust with cinnamon, allspice or nutmeg.

Rosy Grapefruit Cup: Flavor fresh grapefruit sections with grenadine to taste. Serve in individual bowls or cups and decorate with a cluster of seedless green grapes.

Grape-y Punch

Plan a family outing to a nearby driving range after dinner during the summer months and save dessert for the 19th hole . . . after your round is over. Suggested here is a refreshing raspberry grape beverage to serve with Concord Sherbet after your trip to the driving range. Both recipes combine store bought and convenience foods with a little imagination.

COUNTRY CLUB PUNCH

1 can (6 ounces) frozen Concord grape juice concentrate, thawed
1 pint raspberries, fresh or frozen
1 quart club soda or ginger ale

Pour reconstituted grape juice over raspberries in large pitcher. Add soda and ice cubes.

Opt for Adoption

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: You were right. Your advice to the pregnant 15-year-old to give up her baby was excellent. I know.

I became pregnant at 16 and was married. The first seven months of our marriage were filled with terror of being alone, which I was almost all the time because my husband had to hold down two jobs. My "friends" shunned me. I was plagued with morning sickness and my parents were ashamed to have me in their home.

When the baby was born, it was a nightmare of pain and fear. No one told me anything about pregnancy or childbirth — not my mother and not the doctor. I didn't even know that having a baby hurt. The nurse in the labor room kept telling me to shut up and quit screaming. I couldn't believe the way I was treated.

The next two years were bottles, colic, diapers, and being stuck at home. My husband smoked dope, drank, and beat me up. We had no money and no friends.

I resented my child and felt that she had ruined my life. I lost my figure and hated myself, but I kept eating. Can you imagine all this happening to a girl who was considered "popular" and "smart" in high school?

Our terrible marriage ended after 3½ years. I was lucky to meet a fine man who married me and was willing to accept my daughter. She is now 13 years old, in junior high, and I'm working hard to be a good mother.

Just keep telling those teen-agers that very few are equipped to cope with pregnancy, motherhood and marriage. As much as I love my daughter, I still feel adoption would have been better for all concerned. — BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: You and so many others. I was amazed at the heavy response from teen-agers who wrote to tell stories similar to yours. My thanks to all who wrote. Let's hope someone listens.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just took the "Prospective Parents Test" which appeared in your column and I'm glad it wasn't composed by you. It's off the wall, Annie.

I got a 63, which is pretty low but then I'm only 15 years old. My mom who is 50 took the test and got a 33! She has five children from 12 years of age to 18. Then my little sister took the test and scored higher than my mom — a 53! This letter is to warn you to be prepared for a load of buckshot. You're sure to get it. — SHOOK-A-PLENTY

DEAR SHOOK: You are so-ooo-ooo-o right. That test generated a lot of complaints. Many people wrote to say the questions were goofy, others said that the wording was unclear, still others criticized the scoring. In any event, forget it, folks. It wasn't one of my better efforts and for lunch today I am eating a large hunk of humble pie, thank you.

ARE YOU PHOTOSENSITIVE?
No, we do not mean allergic to taking pictures but rather a person who reacts severely to even a short exposure to strong sunlight. If you are fair skinned you should be aware of this particular danger. It could result in a rash, in the form of tiny blisters, commonly called sun poisoning.
More lotions and potions are sold for the treatment of sunburn than all other summer hazards combined. So be careful, take precautions and enjoy the sun without the consequences.

Rams Move Seen as Economic Boost

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

By the time the Anaheim City Council approved a pact Tuesday afternoon that will bring the Los Angeles Rams to Orange County in 1980, football had taken a back seat to high finance and real estate

The high finance involved an estimated $150 million worth of development in the Anaheim Stadium area as well as football tickets priced at $15 a head and game parking at $3 a car.

The real estate involved 95 city-owned acres surrounding the stadium, plans for eight-story office buildings, other commercial-retail development and a 475-room hotel.

From the city council's viewpoint, Anaheim is in a "can't lose" position.

The city will sponsor $22 million worth of municipal revenue bonds to provide the money needed to add 27,000 seats to Anaheim Stadium

That bond debt will be repaid from the estimated $1.8 million annually the city will receive from the football enterprise at the stadium.

As a matter of fact, revenue estimates indicated the city will get $300,000 a year more in income than will be needed to retire the bonds.

Anaheim's Rams revenue will come from its 7½ percent share of gate receipts as well as its 50 percent of parking and concession income at the stadium.

According to the preliminary city-Rams agreement, football fans will pay $15 each for the best 42,000 stadium seats and $12 each for the 28,000 seats that aren't so choice.

No price was mentioned for the 60 to 80 special enclosed box suites that will be part of the expanded stadium

Real estate became prominent in the council's unanimous approval of the preliminary agreement with plans for development of the city's 95 stadium-adjacent acres.

As the Boston-based development firm Cabot, Cabot and Forbes develops the land, the city's lease take will be $8,000 an acre.

Or, the Rams developer consortium can buy the land for from $80,000 to $100,000 an acre

In either event, city revenue will be stepped up by virtue of having privately owned structures built on property that is not now on the tax rolls.

Mayor John Seymour also pointed out that city revenues will gain through the increase in commercial activity resulting

Power Bills Won't Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) Southern California Edison has been granted an interim rate increase of $102 million a year by the California Public Utilities Commission.

However, the hike granted Tuesday will not necessarily mean higher consumer bills, at least not this year, because of an abundance of low-cost hydroelectric power that has lowered the utility's fuel costs.

Edison provides electric service to about eight million people

Walkout At Edison Settled

A 10-week strike at Southern California Edison Company power plants at Huntington Beach and San Onofre and at eight other Southern California locations was reported settled early today

Edison spokesman Stanley Cann said that nearly 1,110 members of the Utility Workers Union of America, Local 246, ratified new terms of the contract this week

He said that both union and Edison negotiators were still in the process of consummating the agreement this morning

Cann said that terms of the new agreement were sketchy but that he expected the power station workers to return to their jobs later this week

The striking workers maintain and repair power units. They went on strike May 10 when they balked at an Edison proposal to place them on a rotating seven-day work schedule in which they would work weekends without overtime pay.

The Edison spokesman said that it was his understanding that the strikers agreed to the new work schedule.

The union posted pickets at Huntington Beach, San Onofre, two Long Beach stations, Ormand Beach, Mojave, El Segundo, Redondo Beach, Oxnard and Mandalay near Ventura

About 500 members of the Edison supervisory personnel worked 12-hour shifts to maintain the power plants in the absence of the utility worker union members.

A series of mischievous attacks directed against non-strike Edison employees was reported last month

There were 125 members of the striking union at San Onofre and another 66 at Huntington Beach.

The facility in Huntington Beach has a capacity of producing 990 megawatts of electricity and can serve a population of about 750,000

Ocean View Opens Handicap School

Assurance of aid funds from Sacramento has led Huntington Beach's Ocean View School District to reopen its curtailed summer school for mentally retarded and physically handicapped children.

Classes will resume Aug. 2 at Nueva View School and run though Sept. 1, with an enrollment of an anticipated 240 pupils.

Burglaries Charged

Deputy Fund Suspects Held

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18, whose last known home address was in Mission Viejo, and two juveniles: a boy, 17, and a girl, 16

Gates said the 17-year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates' opponent in the November election.

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas.

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' association or sheriff's department personnel.

Gates said the Omega firm has now been discharged from fund raising activities by the association and has no further connection with the Rusk campaign

Bennett was lodged in the county jail on burglary and theft charges. Gates said the two juveniles were taken to juvenile hall to face arraignment on identical charges and, in the case of the girl, for violation of probation

Oil Tax Collection Postponed

Even though some city officials aren't sure it's legal, Huntington Beach City Councilmen have put off the collection date for controversial new oil taxes until Sept. 30.

Councilwoman Ruth Bailey said Tuesday that the three-month rollback of the collection date should be taken by oil producers as a signal that the city is willing to negotiate with them about lowering the controversial new taxes.

Representatives of the city's independent oil producers and its two largest oil producers, Aminoil USA Inc. and Chevron USA Inc., were to meet with city officials today to discuss the new taxes, which were to go into effect July 1.

The City Council adopted the oil tax increases June 29, shortly before a July 1 deadline for establishing new taxes imposed by Proposition 13. The new oil taxes are designed to raise $1 million in municipal revenues during fiscal 1978-79 to replace property tax revenue lost under Proposition 13.

Oil producers have protested the increases and have threatened to take the city to court to block them.

The hikes include an increase in fees for each oil well in the city from $50 to $200 a year and a new charge of $500 a year for each above-ground tank. The City Council also raised the municipal tax on each barrel of oil produced in Huntington Beach from eight to 10 cents.

Some city officials said there is doubt in their minds that the rollback in the collection date is legal in light of the June 29 ordinance approved by the council.

Potted Plant Not So Lucky

A police Special Weapons and Tactics squad member arrested a 17-year-old Huntington Beach youth Tuesday afternoon when the officer spotted the teen-ager carrying a can with a three-foot marijuana plant growing in it.

The police SWAT team was practicing tactics at 5 p.m. near the police heliport off of Ellis Avenue when Officer Dave Gammell saw the youth emerging from a nearby gravel pit.

Police confiscated the five-gallon can with the illegal plant thriving inside it.

HIS RESEARCH AIDED FIRST TEST TUBE BABY
Dr. Patrick Steptoe Has a Medical Breakthrough

Medical Success Hailed

OLDHAM, England (AP) Doctors say the five-pound, 12-ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition.

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in Oldham's red brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs. Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's uterus to develop normally.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A

Soil in Huntington Tested for Damage

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Soil samples were being taken from a petroleum production waste disposal site at Aminoil USA Inc. in Huntington Beach today to determine if the materials threaten pollution of Bolsa Chica wildlife preserve waters.

Ron Bates, of the Orange County Department of Solid Waste Management, said a chemical analysis of the soil will not likely be ready before Friday.

"It appears it's a fairly clean operation," he said.

Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach) raised the issue of possible pollution after a helicopter flight over the Aminoil property with City Councilman John Thomas last Thursday

Aminoil says its dumping of oilfield production waste and general refuse from its operations on its land is done legally under county permit.

Aminoil USA Public Relations Manager John Ryan defended the permitted dumping, pointing out the legality and denying any environmental damage.

Permits issued allow the oilfield sludge — provided it contains no toxic chemicals — to be spread over an area of 45 acres to dry in the sun and then be disked to a depth of no more than six inches.

Other trash and refuse from oilfield operations such as broken concrete may be disposed of at a regular dumpsite on the premises, and Ryan points out that location is out of public view.

He also said Aminoil USA uses only 11 acres although it has a permit for 45 acres.

Assemblyman Mangers said he learned this shortly after his demand for an investigation last week, but he still wants to be certain the wetlands won't be polluted.

Core samples of soil were being collected at the site this morning to be analyzed for any toxic chemicals.

Aminoil's Ryan said he is attempting to arrange a meeting with the assemblyman to explain more about the firm, which produces about two-thirds of the oil pumped from Huntington Beach fields.

"One of the problems is that people don't really know what we're doing," Ryan said.

He says the idea of toxic wastes percolating into the soil is impossible under Aminoil's operation and the underlying geology of the region.

Motion Defeated

JERUSALEM (AP) Prime Minister Menachem Begin's governing Likud coalition easily defeated a no-confidence motion in Parliament today. The motion was introduced by the opposition Labor Party which has criticized Begin's conduct of peace negotiations with Egypt.

Fat Nudist Loose In Huntington

A naked fat man eluded a police dragnet in downtown Huntington Beach Tuesday night, making a clean getaway in his tan compact car.

Shocked witnesses in the area of 14th Street and Walnut Avenue initially reported the obese nudist about 6:30 p.m., while it was still broad daylight, according to police.

Willie 'Endangered'

Split Vote May Bring Down Westminster Whale

Willie the Whale, a former World War II barrage balloon that is moored above the trees for advertising near the junction of the San Diego and Garden Grove freeways, faces an uncertain future today.

Willie, an airborne plug for Sunset Ford, is definitely on the endangered-species list.

Westminster planning commissioners on a 2 to 2 split vote Tuesday night, refused a permit renewal for Willie to wallow 90 feet up there with his silly grin.

Sunset Ford officials will appeal the tacit denial at the Aug 8 City Council meeting, which is certain to attract a crowd.

The city was divided a year ago by a petition drive that netted 1,200 signatures of opponents who wanted Willie harpooned out of the skies as an eyesore that makes Westminster look ridiculous to those passing through.

Willie went wallowing up into the air in 1974 when freeway frontage trees grew up enough to obscure the Sunset Ford sign

"That whale is getting to be like a logo," agency manager Jim Hanson told the four planning commissioners present before their fateful vote.

"It's a beacon for motorists. We tell them where we are and they say, 'Oh, yeah, that's where the smiling whale is'," Hanson said.

One solution would be for CalTrans to cut down the trees blocking the view of the dealership's 70-foot sign, but Hanson considers that unlikely.

"People like trees. I like trees," Hanson declared

Testimony concluded, commissioners Howard Newman and Charles Smith voted for Willie, while commissioners Marvin Huseth and Robert Whyte cast nay ballots. Commissioner Patricia Huntley was absent.

On 3 Proposals

Mile Square Report Asked

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Supervisor Philip Anthony has called for preparation of an environmental impact report (EIR) on three alternate development proposals for Mile Square Park in Fountain Valley

Anthony, in a letter to fellow supervisors, suggested the EIR be completed before the proposals for 86 undeveloped park acres are presented to the county Harbors, Beaches and Parks Commission or to supervisors.

He plans to seek support for the EIR from fellow board members at a meeting next Tuesday.

The Fountain Valley City Council earlier asked that an EIR be completed before supervisors consider development plans.

A county consultant has proposed that the 86-acre area include a skateboard course and moto-cross facility, while Johnny Mann Sports World officials have asked to develop the area at no county cost for soccer and softball fields.

The Fountain Valley City Council and residents surrounding the county regional park have asked that the undeveloped region be used for passive recreation and open space, like most of the remaining park acres.

Anthony said officials in the county Environmental Management Agency (EMA) would need about six months to complete an EIR on all three alternate plans.

In the meantime, Anthony said, he would seek comments from city officials in communities neighboring Fountain Valley concerning their desires for the undeveloped park area.

Mile Square is located between Edinger and Warner Avenues and Brookhurst and Euclid Streets. The undeveloped portion is at Brookhurst and Edinger

Huntington To Dispute Job Order

The Huntington Beach Personnel Board has been ordered by an Orange County Superior Court judge to cut the punishment for a police sergeant who was fired after being charged with misconduct in 1976.

But Deputy City Attorney James Georges said Superior Court Judge Robert Green's order to reduce the suspension time of Sgt. James Dahl from 10 months to two months is not proper Dahl was fired after an investigation into his relation with a Garden Grove woman who was charged with burglaries at a local department store.

The city personnel board reinstated Dahl who appealed his firing but refused to grant him 10 months in back pay.

Judge Green ruled that the 10-month suspension should be reduced to just two months because the alleged misconduct was not that severe.

"I guarantee 100 percent that he (Green) has overstepped his power — he does not have the power to do that," said Huntington Beach attorney Georges.

Georges said the state civil procedure code allows the judge to recommend a reduction in Dahl's suspension but does not allow him to specify the punishment.

Georges said he will ask the personnel board to appeal the judge's ruling at the Aug. 16 meeting of the Huntington Beach unit.

Dahl said today he is pleased with the judge's ruling. But Dahl admitted that the judge's action may not be binding on the city personnel board.

Trench Falls, Traps Worker

A construction worker was injured Tuesday when the 12-foot-deep trench he was digging in Yorba Linda caved in, trapping him up to his waist for 35 minutes, Orange County firemen said today.

Jerry Sackett, of 153 Cambridge St., Orange, suffered a fractured leg and numerous abrasions in the 11 a.m. accident, firemen said.

Sackett was freed by firemen after being trapped for 35 minutes. He was working for the Kennedy Pipeline Company, firemen said.

BABY. . .

hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after conception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

The Daily Mail, which paid $600,000 for exclusive rights to the Browns' story, reported the father gasped when given a brief glimpse of his child and said:

"It's incredible, incredible . . . I'm not a religious man, but I thank God that I heard our little girl cry for the first time. No one can realize what this means to Lesley and myself."

Brown has a 17-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

A hospital spokesman said the mother was "over the moon with joy." He said she and the baby would probably be able to go home to Bristol in about 10 days.

The doctors knew the baby's sex in advance from chromosomal tests, but Mrs. Brown told them not to tell her because "I don't want to be cheated of the final thrill."

The only problem that apparently arose in the latter stage of Mrs. Brown's pregnancy was a minor blood poisoning known as toxemia, but doctors said it was quickly brought under control.

The birth was expected to rekindle a fierce philosophical and ethical debate on the morality of conception outside a mother's body.

When Steptoe and Edwards successfully fertilized a human egg and produced a fetus in 1969, the Roman Catholic Church condemned it as an extension of "immoral" artificial insemination.

But amid talk that their work heralded an age of selective tive breeding along the lines of Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," Steptoe said: "I'm not a wizard or a Frankenstein tampering with nature. All I want to do is to help women whose childbearing mechanism is slightly faulty."

The British Medical Association's Ethics Committee also approved.

The committee's secretary, Dr. John Dawson, said this month, "Used responsibly, this technique offers no ethical difficulties for doctors. If Mr. Steptoe succeeds, it will be a valuable addition to the treatment for infertile women."

Trustees Discard School Pay Cuts

A five percent across-the-board pay cut for all employees in the Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District was scrapped Tuesday night by the Board of Trustees.

The action to rescind the salary slash, which would have amounted to more than $400,000, was taken after the district learned that it would receive more than $4 million in state rescue funds.

Earlier reports from the state indicated that the district would lose $5 million with the passage of Proposition 13.

The new money from the state means that the district will have about $900,000 less revenue than it would have received prior to the passage of Proposition 13.

Trustees also approved an extended summer school program for educationally and emotionally handicapped youngsters at Clapp School from Aug. 14 through Aug. 31.

The program had been eliminated previously when the district cut out all summer school sessions.

Eleven teachers also were reinstated to teach the August special education program at Clapp School.

Trustees also approved the reinstatement of 18½ non-teaching positions that had been previously terminated.

Those being reinstated include 11 instructional aides at Clapp School, a food service delivery man, a maintenance worker, a workshop aide, a half-time purchasing clerk and four part-time bus drivers at Clapp School.

About 275 part-time non-teaching employees had been laid off by previous board action.

Three New Principals Appointed

New faces will be seen in three Ocean View School District elementary schools this fall, with the appointment of three new principals.

Vacancies will be filled at Harbour View School by Patricia Brokamp, at Oak View School by Joan Mills and at Glen View School by Gayle Bowles.

Brokamp, 32, has been an acting principal, as has Bowles, 43, while Ms. Mills, also 43, advanced from administrative assistant to acting principal at her school.

District Superintendent Dr. Dale Coogan said four principals will be switched around for the fall term.

George Nettleman goes from Meadow View to Spring View School. Pat Monahan moves on to Hope View School, whose previous principal Charles Arnold transfers to Haven View School.

Sam Landes, who just finished a year's leave of absence, will take over the principalship at Meadow View School.

He predicted the Ram move will add 6,000 permanent jobs to county payrolls.

Laguna Chief Fined

Laguna Beach Police Chief John Sparks, who returns to duty Monday, was fined $500 Tuesday for beating a fellow bar patron.

Sparks, who pleaded no contest (nolo contendere) to one count of battery, was sentenced in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

Sparks, 42, was involved in a bar fight June 29. He reportedly pushed a long-stemmed carnation into the face of a fellow bar patron before shoving a table against the man's chest and pounding him several times in the face.

Deputy District Attorny Ron Kreber said the plea of nolo contendere is the same as a lea of guilt, "but the legal effect of this plea means that the guilt admission cannot be used in a civil case."

That would presumably prevent Costa Mesa truck driver Delbert Mathieson, the victim in the bar fight, from using prior court testimony should he sue the police chief and city.

Kreber said he originally sought jail time for the then-suspended police chief, as well as a fine.

"But after review of similar (battery) cases which occurred in bars with only minor injuries sustained by the victims, we observed that the courts never sentenced anyone to jail on a first offense," Kreber said.

"So I felt a large fine was more in order."

He said he felt the $500 fine was unusually high, "but we wanted to be sure we weren't accused of making allowances for the fact he is a high-ranking police officer."

The action Tuesday in Judge Richard Orozco's Santa Ana courtroom, comes less than two weeks after South County Municipal Court judges asked that the case be transferred to the central court.

"It was their (the South Court judges) motion that the case be transferred to central," Kreber explained. "There was no known conflict, but the judges felt there might be some appearance of a conflict because of the small size of the community."

Pastor's Child Funeral Held

Graveside funeral services were held Tuesday for Elizabeth Ann Purdue, daughter of Calvary Chapel associate pastor Steven Purdue and his wife, Joan, following the infant's death Sunday.

Elizabeth Ann, four days old, succumbed at Children's Hospital of Orange County and was buried at Good Shepherd Cemetery in Huntington Beach.

Ocean View Board Seeks New Member

A replacement for resigned Ocean View School District trustee Dr. Margaret "Maggie" Stark will be sought among citizens who must apply by Aug. 4, it was announced Tuesday.

Resumes listing qualifications for holding the office may be mailed to District Superintendent Dale Coogan, 7972 Warner Ave., Huntington Beach.

Interested citizens must be registered voters living within district boundaries and willing to work without pay, meeting the first and third Mondays of the month and sometimes more often.

Board members voted committee of members of various community organizations such as the League of Women Voters to survey the field of candidates.

Screening committee members will be convened if more than five candidates apply and the top five among them selected.

The board must appoint Dr. Stark's successor by Aug. 14, since the vacancy must be filled within 30 days of resignation under state law.

County Day Care Needs Get Study

Disclaiming any part in "socialized child care," lame duck Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit cast the lone vote against further study of county aid to day care facilities Tuesday.

The subject was brought before supervisors in a report from the county's Commission on the Status of Women which charged that the county lags far behind in providing its residents with child care facilities.

The report noted, for instance, that in the 1976-77 fiscal year, San Diego County spent $2 million in aid to day care facilities while Orange County spent $52,000.

The report contained a list of 28 recommendations aimed at improving child care services for working single parents in Orange County. Supervisors referred it to a county committee studying youth services.

The list was gathered by the commission on women during a recent day-long seminar that drew 75 child care providers and interested citizens.

The suggestions range from calling upon supervisors to create a model day care center for the South County to having industry develop day care centers for employees to asking government to ease licensing rules and other restrictions for child care facilities.

"Orange County has lagged behind comparable counties in receiving its share of state and federal funds for child care and development programs," said Commission Chairwoman Pauline Rangel.

While child care services have increased statewide, the commission report said, Orange County agencies haven't contributed enough in local dollars to attract state and federal child care grants.

Data supplied by Nancy Claxton, coordinator of child care centers for the Orange County Department of Education, showed that statewide there are an average of 13 child care facilities per assembly district.

Yet, in Orange County, there are an average of just 3.83 per assembly district, she said.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit voted against sending the report on, however, contending it smacked of "socialized child care."

"It appears to me the bottom line here is to remove child care from the home and give it to the state," he said.

Supervisors Chairman Thomas Riley disagreed, noting many of the recommendations call on industry to help working mothers through flexible work schedules or on-site child care centers.

"Child care certainly provides an option to the parents who feel they want to work," Riley said.

The commission report noted that problems in fulfilling Orange County child care needs developed because the needs were not recognized for many years.

In addition, the report said, the role of child care in the total health of the economy and ability of mothers to enter the labor force has been ignored locally.

The commission recommended that school districts permit enrollment of youngsters outside their geographic attendance areas so mothers can make convenient arrangements for after-school care.

Syrians Ease Bombardment

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces eased their night-long bombardment of Christian militia strongholds in southeast Beirut at daybreak today. Christian spokesmen said 30 Christians were killed and more than 50 wounded.

After about 12 hours of fighting tapered off, the neighborhood of Hadass remained shuttered and people were huddled in basement shelters. Syrian tanks blocked all approaches to the area, preventing residents from fleeing.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said about 1,000 rockets caused "colossal property damage" and left the neighborhood's estimated 17,000 residents without water and electricity.

Pipeline Approval Granted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio has been granted permission by the federal government to build a pipeline on federal land to take Alaskan oil from Long Beach to Midland Texas for distribution to the Midwest.

Approved Tuesday, the permit will allow construction of about 50 miles on federal land in California, Arizona and New Mexico, according to Jack Lahr of the Bureau of Land Management here.

ACCORDING TO LAHR, the completed project could "alleviate the glut of oil on the West Coast" by making it available by way of the Midland to the Midwest.

SOHIO eventually plans to construct a 1,026-mile pipeline to Texas. The firm's next step is to reach agreement with El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Southern California Gas Co. for SOHIO to operate 800 miles of existing pipeline.

Both federal and state approval is then necessary for SOHIO to convert the existing natural gas pipeline to crude oil.

THE FIRM APPLIED for the federal permit in September 1975, and Robert Schaadt, a SOHIO representative in Long Beach, said, "This underscores the long lead time involved in getting these permits, and I think it raises serious questions about how the entire process could be shortened."

What Goes Up...

Two sleek $1.7 million Tomahawk cruise missiles shot skyward Tuesday from San Clemente Island . . . then plunged into the Pacific Ocean before the eyes of Defense Secretary Harold Brown (right). "This demonstrates what happens in a test program," was all Brown had to say by way of explanation to reporters about the embarrassing misfires. They were the second and third failures of the Tomahawk, which has undergone 32 tests.

Welfare Suspect 'Innocent'

COMPTON (AP) — A 33-year-old mother of four who allegedly collected nearly $300,000 in welfare payments after claiming to have more than 34 children has pleaded innocent to 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of fraud.

Superior Court Judge William Clay Tuesday ordered Barbara Jean Williams to appear for a pre-trial hearing Sept. 5.

BUT HER ATTORNEY, Carl Jones, said he would attempt to have the fraud charges dropped. Under a recent state Supreme Court ruling, prosecutors must try to obtain restitution before filing formal charges, Jones said.

Deputy District Attorney Ronald L. Wheeler said Mrs. Jones was not home when investigators went to ask for restitution.

"The information we had was that she was in flight," Wheeler said. "We left a demand letter for payment with her husband at her residence."

MRS. WILLIAMS is accused of bilking Los Angeles County out of about $290,000 since 1971. Authorities say she received $239,588 in welfare checks and as much as $50,000 in food stamps and medical aid.

Gas Plan a 'Lemon'?

Emergency Rationing Draws Criticism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials have taken their standby gasoline rationing plan for its first test run in car-crazy Southern California and have been told it may be a lemon.

Under terms of the rough draft, composed by the U.S. Department of Energy, motorists would receive an allotment of 45 gallons per month for each passenger car they own. Other vehicles would receive allotments proportionate to their mileage. Only "large recreational vehicles" — a still undefined term — would get no allotment.

Reaction to the plan came at a hearing Tuesday — the first on a national tour of 12 cities before the final proposal is decided in September. The panel was expected to hear more testimony here today.

Tram Won't Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Squaw Valley ski resort will not be issued a new permit to operate its tram until an exact cause is determined for an accident that killed four persons and injured 30 others, although a preliminary report blames violent blizzard winds.

The preliminary report, issued Tuesday, discounts mechanical failure as the cause for the April 15 tragedy, in which a cable sliced into the tram.

Pardon Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst should be pardoned, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has urged in a telegram to President Carter.

"Given the peculiar circumstances of her case, she has surely served sufficient time. It escapes me what purpose could be served by further incarceration," Dymally said in the telegram which was released Tuesday to the press.

Lawyer Rehired

YUBA CITY (AP) — Attorney Ronald F. Fahey, one of the original prosecutors in the Juan Corona murders case, was rehired Tuesday to work on the team that will handle Corona's retrial.

Corona, 44, was convicted in 1973 on charges of killing 25 farmworkers and burying their bodies in orchards near this city in Sutter County. But the conviction was overturned and a new trial was granted May 8 by the State Court of Appeal. A pretrial hearing for the new proceedings was scheduled for Aug. 3.

Plea Changed

PASADENA (AP) — Lori Andersen, convicted of murdering her tennis coach in a three-woman love triangle, now says she was not insane at the time of the killing and wants to be sentenced rather than face a sanity hearing.

Miss Andersen, 21, of Granada Hills, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity but withdrew that plea Tuesday, leaving Superior Court Judge Daniel L. Fletcher free to sentence her. Otherwise, the judge would have set a hearing date to determine her sanity.

Sentencing will take place Aug. 14.

Cliff Climber Dies in Fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man apparently slipped while trying to climb down steep cliffs to Blacks Beach and fell about 40 feet to his death, authorities say.

The coroner's office identified the victim Tuesday as Richard L. Powell, 36.

A Huntington Beach lifeguard who was surfing in the area notified police after he spotted the body on a ledge in an area known as Box Canyon and went to investigate.

Police and lifeguards brought the body down to the beach.

Jet Drops Fuel, Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan Am jumbo jet carrying 333 passengers to London lost power in an engine on takeoff from San Francisco International Airport and had to dump about 100,000 pounds of jet fuel before it turned around and landed safely.

OFFICIALS SAID the maneuver Tuesday night was not an "emergency landing." Although passengers were shook up, none were hurt, officials said.

The Boeing 747, bound nonstop for London, lost one of its four engines moments after takeoff at 8:45 p.m. It flew over land, dumped part of its full load of fuel in order to make it light enough to land, then touched down back at the airport.

THE PASSENGERS were taken back to the terminal, fed dinner and left just after midnight for London on another plane. Two of the passengers on the original flight changed their minds and did not board the second time, officials said.

Election Due in Beach Nudity Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The City Council is being asked to authorize a special election to restore legal nudity to Black's Beach.

A supporter said backers of the move have gathered 38,000 signatures or petitions, more than enough to get the measure on the November ballot.

In a vote last September, San Diegans rescinded a city ordinance allowing people to swim and sunbathe in the nude along the municipal beach below the cliffs of UC San Diego.

They still do by the thousands but quickly pull on swimming suits when officers with citations drive by.

Proposition 13 to Boost Home Prices?

LOS ANGELES (AP) Proposition 13 will not have a major effect on California's economy in the near future but may eventually put upward pressure on home prices, Crocker Bank said Tuesday.

"Proposition 13 is not going to be the dominant force in shaping our economy over the next two years," Crocker Chief Economist Harold C. Werner Jr. told reporters. "The general business cycle will be much more important."

WERNER SAID Proposition 13 would actually stimulate the state's economy over the next 12 months as individuals and businesses begin to spend some of their property tax savings.

That spending, coupled with the disbursement of the state's budget surplus, will increase overall income in the state over the next year, Werner said.

The economist said Proposition 13 may put upward pressure on home prices by slowing sales of existing homes, thus limiting supply.

Paramedic Fees Threaten Elderly

Members of the Huntington Beach City Council have run into a buzz saw while trying to come up with new taxes and user fees to take the place of vanishing property taxes.

A decision to raise more than $1 million in oil well permits, above-ground tanks and increased oil barrel taxes was the first to run into a challenge.

Independent oil producers say that the new charges would drive them out of business. They threaten to file a lawsuit if the charges are not modified.

And then a so-called community enrichment fee has come under fire. It would place a 15-cent charge for each new square foot of residential, commercial and industrial building with money going to the library and related services.

It, too, has been challenged.

But recently, most of the criticism has been directed at a plan to charge an $80 paramedic fee to patients who are treated and then taken to hospitals. Costs for ambulance service would be additional.

This charge is repugnant because it would affect the senior citizen — the person most apt to need paramedics and the least able to pay for their service.

As speaker after speaker told a public hearing, the elderly citizens would think twice before calling for help and may be prevented from doing so because of stiff charges.

Besides all this, the paramedic charges would bring in only about $150,000 annually to the city. The council could easily make up that difference by some judicious cutting in other areas.

Fireworks Tragedies

Beleaguered firefighters in all of Orange County and Huntington Beach in particular this year are experiencing a phenomenal number of incidents involving illegal and even home-made fireworks.

Huntington Beach so far has suffered a property damage loss of $238,785 and at least two young men have sustained vision damage from injuries due to fireworks. One hit on the city pier by an illegal skyrocket was blinded in one eye.

Data compiled by Deputy Fire Marshal Capt. Roger Hosmer shows the city this year has suffered worse than all of Orange County which in 1977 recorded a $202,710 loss.

Four families were left homeless when a model hobby rocket which had been altered by a 13-year-old boy shot skyward, then hurtled down onto the wooden shake roof of a fourplex.

No pun intended, the county toll for 1978 has also skyrocketed, but county firemen tally only fireworks incidents that occur during a six-day period ending with the Fourth of July.

Huntington Beach Fire Chief Ray Picard says at times his citywide manpower was taxed to the crisis point by simultaneous calls.

And, he says, unless a countywide fireworks ban is imposed, it is unlikely a city prohibition such as that which is rarely enforced in Newport Beach would solve part of the problem.

Perhaps it is time to consider a cooperative effort to prohibit fireworks in the entire county.

Maybe it might not help 100 percent, but it surely wouldn't hurt in an effort to save property and lives or injuries tragically inflicted in the name of dangerous fun.

Protect Bolsa Chica

The fragile environment of the Bolsa Chica marshlands has long been the battleground between environmentalists and developers.

On one side, those favoring development have urged annexation of the 1,600 acres of marshlands which are surrounded by Huntington Beach boundary lines.

Those favoring preservation of the area for a wildlife sanctuary have opposed annexation. They have said that the annexation would drive up the purchase price of about 924 acres that the state is seeking to acquire.

But a helicopter flight over the area last week by City Councilman John Thomas and Assemblyman Dennis Mangers may cause a sharp change in attitudes.

Mangers reported that he saw oil wastes being dumped in the preserve. He observed that the county apparently has permitted the dumping of waste materials. He is not happy.

Mangers said that now indicates annexation by the city may not be such a bad idea after all.

We think so, too, especially if the county is permitting the land to be spoiled with oil dumps.

Bolsa Chica is in the city's sphere of influence. It would appear that the best means of protecting this wildlife preserve lies in city hands.

Boyd/'Tip'

By L.M. BOYD

Edward O'Neill, a baseball player in the 1880s, was so adept at hitting foul tips to force pitchers to walk him that his cohorts nicknamed him "Tip." It was in allusion to him that later nicknames likewise identified Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill as Tip.

The church building of old usually had a small door on its north side, the Devil's door it was called. It was left open during baptisms and communions to let the Devil out.

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each swam by its coloring. The perpendicular specimens, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, all swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

U.S. 'Secrets' on Soviet Ships?

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16 to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

The preliminary findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas ... have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc-country merchant ships."

INDUSTRY sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government," the memo suggests, "that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 percent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 percent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

MOST SCOTCH whisky, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia," the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that precludes shipping by the USSR."

TOP COMMERCE Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

Official Car Policy Still Too Generous

To the Editor:

In my mind the practice of providing public officials (city, county, school district, etc.) with cars has always been a questionable one. With the passage of Proposition 13 there should no longer be any question about the practice. Public officials should use their own cars and be reimbursed for mileage only when they are on official business.

AS A teacher who must travel between schools during the day I am reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile. County supervisors are eligible for a $390 per month car allowance, or $4,680 a year. They would have to drive their personal car 27,529 miles per year at 17 cents a mile to justify this expense.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit's contention that cars have always been considered part of supervisor's salaries is interesting, but hard to accept in the light of Proposition 13. It is just as difficult, however, to accept the idea of a $390 monthly car allowance.

Supervisors should either have access to a pool car when on official business, or be reimbursed for use of their personal car while on official business on a mileage basis only (such as 17 cents per mile).

Boat Taxes

To the Editor:

Gary Granville's quandary, July 16th, about the rate of taxation on boats and airplanes is nothing to quander about. Proposition 13 clearly states a 1 percent tax limitation on property. Boats and planes are property just like homes and business property. And the California Constitution states that all property must be taxed equally. That makes it very clear.

I hope auditor-controller Vic Heims understands this because B.O.A.T., Boat Owners Associated Together, are already planning a lawsuit if taxes are not applied equally to boats. Heims' admission that, "It's a very serious issue and the wrong move can be very costly to both the taxpayers and the (taxing) agencies," seems to neglect the admission that the taxing agencies are also the taxpayers agencies that they support through their taxes. So a wrong move by the agencies costs the taxpayers twice.

The seriousness of the issue deserves a serious investigation of how the law is to be applied.

Making Points

To the Editor:

Gov. Brown is a political opportunist who was telling us a few weeks ago that it would be disaster time if Prop. 13 passed. So were most publications including the Daily Pilot which I read religiously.

Now Gov. Brown is calling for landlords to pass on a so-called tax saving to tenants. Obviously he is doing this to make points with the renter voter group. In no uncertain terms he told us to vote for Prop. 8 along with the other bureaucrats.

I OWN four units in addition to the one I live in and it costs me over $200 a month out of pocket even with the Prop. 13 savings.

Our governor and his political crony advisors realize now how far unattuned they were to the pulse of the voters regarding taxes in Prop. 13. Now this milk toast individual we have for a governor is trying to make points for his political future and remedy the mistakes of his advisors by coming up with ridiculous suggestions of how money from Prop. 13 should be used by private individuals. Our group which is nonpartisan is gravely disappointed with this man's actions. He lacks the status and the stature in our opinion to be re-elected.

No 'Gouger'

To the Editor:

Why must decent, fair landlords be penalized with rollbacks, rent freezes, etc. because of the deeds of rent gougers?

People like me, a 61-year-old widow. My husband used to make low rents possible by doing most of the repairs and improvements on our little one-bedroom triplex.

My tenants both have larger incomes than I. I work part-time due to ill health problems and pay large medical bills. They get everything on Medicare.

But they are good tenants. They've been here a long time and I have tried to keep the place nice, with low rents.

I SPENT quite a bit this year on improvements, expecting to raise rents in about September or October. The rents would still be low, but I will take a loss.

We hear only about the Irvine Company and other big landlords. I can't even compare with the senior citizen couple down the street that has five units. They too say it will be a hardship to return any money or have rollbacks.

Will the businesses who may have a tax saving (they don't know yet how much, as most of us don't know either), have a rollback in prices for consumers?

The Wrong People Are Locked Up

Something is wrong with this picture: You are locked up and criminals run loose.

You law-abiding Americans are barring your windows and bolting your doors and huddling, frightened, inside. Meanwhile, outside the sickies and the malicious and the vicious take over the street your taxes paid for.

There's something bad wrong with that!

Now there is a doorknob for your house which howls like a siren if somebody tries to break in.

That, as they say, is a Band-Aid on a cancer.

Have you heard what hotels and motels are having to do to keep their rooms safe from rapists and robbers?

THE AMERICANA Hotel in New York City tried a system in which you were given a key to the door and a coded card for the TV set at the time of check-in.

When you opened your door you had to run to the TV set and insert that coded card — within 20 seconds — or else an alarm would go off and police would converge.

That system was abandoned after too many false alarms. But it indicates the frightful problem of trying to make public accommodations safe for private guests.

Keys never were good enough. One New York hotel has only 1,500 rooms — but loses 10,000 keys every year. Some are taken for souvenirs. Some are taken innocently by mistake. But how do we know? And how do you justify it to the insurance company when you have 15 keys for every room floating around out there somewhere?

AND DESPITE the best efforts by hotels to insure your safety and to shush up their failures — there was no way to hide it when singer Connie Francis was raped in her motel room. Or when a Brazilian businessman was murdered in his hotel room. Nobody has an accurate tally on how many of the some two million hotel and motel rooms in this country are robbed each day, but judging from soaring insurance rates the total exceeds a thousand a day.

The luxury Fontainbleau Hotel on Miami Beach employs a full-time security force of 36 guards, 6 detectives and 4 supervisors.

Burns Security Services reports its "hotel security business" increased 44 percent last year.

Guardsmark, Inc. — another security company — reports demand for investigators up 122 percent in nine months.

All of this security inevitably adds to the higher prices of hotel rooms.

SIMILARLY, the now conspicuous and the additional inconspicuous guards stationed in most department stores add to the prices of everything we purchase.

Americans are trying to rescue themselves. There are now 2,000 crime prevention programs in operation across our nation helping to safeguard citizens against burglars and muggers.

Stanford University coeds are attending classes in which they are taught to "gouge, kick, crush and render senseless."

Though you girls may be sued if you do.

Our recent years preoccupation with the rights of wrongdoers has tended to put the law on the side of the lawless.

Child Ban Riles Irvine Homeowners

By PHILIP ROSMARIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A vote by an Irvine homeowners association to bar juveniles from the neighborhood has caused some families who already live there to charge they are being forced to move.

Carlos Roman, a resident of the Orange Tree Patio Homes in north-central Irvine, says he wants to marry and have children.

He took his case before the Irvine City Council today. "Does this mean I can't live there anymore?" he asked.

Another resident, Lee Harpst, claimed he has put his house up for sale over the dispute between the majority homeowners and what he said are about 30 families with minor children.

"People have screamed to me to get out," Harpst told a reporter, "that my kind are not wanted." His child is less than a year old.

Harpst, an attorney, is threatening to sue the homeowners association for moving costs. He says he won't live there anymore because of the majority attitude toward children.

Homeowners association attorney David B. Dimitrvk told the council to mind its own business. He claimed the vote of the association was a private matter dealing with corporate by-laws not subject to outside regulation.

Dimitrvk said disgruntled families should take their case to court, not to the council.

However, the council ordered City Attorney James Erickson to explore what regulatory role the city might play in the matter.

Erickson told the council Dimitrvk's arguments "are not particularly impressive. I do not think it is a private matter."

But, because the council in 1974 agreed the Orange Tree homes would be adult-oriented, it asked Erickson to look at possible liability involved. In a lawsuit, the city might find itself named as a codefendant.

Mayor Bill Vardoulis said the city agreement was made with the understanding that the developer would advertise that the community was adult-oriented.

Part of the reasoning was that no school can be built there because of noise regulations. The homes are beneath flight paths of El Toro marine base aircraft.

October 15, 1974, minutes of the City Council show that Presley Homes, developer of Orange Tree, indicated the condominiums would be restricted

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators.

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18, whose last known home address was in Mission Viejo, and two juveniles: a boy, 17, and a girl, 16.

Gates said the 17 year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates' opponent in the November election.

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized

Election Balloting Approved

Irvine voters will have a chance to decide whether they'd rather elect their city councilmen in March or June.

Tuesday the City Council voted 3-2 to place a charter amendment on the November general election ballot. If approved, city elections would move from March to June of even numbered years.

Council elections would be administered by the county Registrar of Voters and candidates would appear on consolidated countywide ballots.

The city now conducts its own elections.

The proposal was fostered by Robert Moore, a candidate for the city council who was defeated in March.

Moore said a June election would guarantee greater voter turnout and cost less than an independent city election.

City Clerk Raye Kingsbury said a consolidated election would cost about two-thirds of

LIBRARY CARD FEE TO START

SAN DIEGO (AP) — City libraries are suddenly busier than ever. In September, readers must start paying $6 to borrow books.

The end to free borrowing, approved by the City Council, left many people unhappy.

Officials describe it as a means to help libraries pay their way.

Irvine Withdraws Water Suit

The Irvine City Council voted unanimously early today to withdraw its opposition to an Irvine Ranch Water District plan to import water from a Yorba Linda treatment plant.

The action, subject to approval by the IRWD board Monday, removes the Diemer pipeline project, for which the district plans to sell $30 million in bonds, from a lawsuit brought by the city against the district.

The Diemer pipeline would carry water from the Yorba Linda plant 15 miles to tie in with the water district's Irvine Lake pipeline.

The Diemer pipeline will be tapped by several cities and agencies.

The city still is questioning in the court action the district's right to sell bonds for more than $960 million in other water and sewer projects without prior environmental assessment of impacts on development.

The settlement, which Mayor Bill Vardoulis said today already has been approved by the Irvine Company, precludes the district or the company from using the water project as an excuse for development.

Vardoulis said the Irvine Company involved itself as codefendant in the lawsuit as a method to participate in settlement discussions. The company appoints five of seven directors of the water board.

Mesa Police Arrest Model On Sex Rap

Costa Mesa vice officers arrested a photo studio nude model Tuesday on prostitution charges after she allegedly offered sexual services to a policeman for $50.

It was the second consecutive day that Costa Mesa officers have made a prostitution arrest.

In Tuesday's case, Sherry Lynn Richie, 22, of Anaheim was held on a charge of solicitation. She is in Orange County Jail with bail set at $500.

Police said they requested her services as a nude model Tuesday afternoon at Sunshine Studios, 583 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa.

Undercover police paid $18 for a half hour photographic session, during which time they allege Miss Richie offered sexual extras.

A second undercover officer then entered the small room on the second floor of the studio and placed her under arrest, police said.

The Tuesday arrest followed a Monday evening incident in which police rented a room at a local hotel and phoned for the services of an employee of a local outcall massage parlor.

In that incident a 23-year-old Anaheim woman allegedly offered sex for $100. She was arrested on a charge of solicitation.

Rise of Yen Driving Out U.S. Tourists

TOKYO (AP) — American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S. dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here.

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico, Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors. "Everything is too expensive."

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September.

Test-tube Birth Hailed

Doctors Celebrate Major Medical Breakthrough

OLDHAM, England (AP) — Doctors say the five-pound, 12-ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition.

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in Oldham's red-brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter.

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs. Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's uterus to develop normally.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after con-

Trustees Mull Irvine Spending

Trustees of the Irvine Unified School District are scheduled to debate a near-final version of the 1978-79 district budget tonight that includes $26.1 million expenditures and a $1.3 million reserve.

The proposed budget, despite Proposition 13 losses in property tax revenues, is seven percent richer than last year's spending allowance.

The reserve—an emergency bank account not allocated for any expenditure—is about five percent of the total budget.

District general purpose tax rate, $4.52 per $100 assessed property valuation, is expected to drop because of Proposition 13 to about $4 per $100 AV. Of that, the district gets about 45.3 percent, or $1.81 per $100 AV.

The overall tax rate also includes bond rates which, according to Gene Hartline, district business superintendent, have yet to be calculated.

Because of changes in AV, Hartline said, the district could suffer a 150 percent increase in the bond tax rates.

Trustees meet at 7:30 p.m. at district ofices, 2941 Alton Ave.

Tonight's budget hearing is the first of two during which trustees examine the document. A public hearing is scheduled for Sept. 6, after which the budget is to be adopted.

Vegas Bingo Pot $35,000

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A religious organization based in San Marcos, a northern San Diego County community, has announced plans for a $35,000 bingo game tonight.

The Serbian Orthodox Monastery of St. Petka, trying to raise funds for a church, will charge a $20 admission price tag for 11 game cards and a $5-per-card additional charge.

Jeanne Jacoby, a Las Vegas publicist hired to promote the game, said Tuesday four church members mortgaged their homes to raise the $35,000 prize.

Tax Forms Rapped

Report Says They're Too Hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any taxpayer needed official confirmation, here it is, from the General Accounting Office: income tax forms are too difficult for a lot of Americans to understand.

Both the long and short 1040 forms are "written at a reading level beyond that of many taxpayers," the GAO said in a 118-page report released Tuesday.

The Internal Revenue Service, the GAO said, is more concerned with having its forms precisely reflect the tax laws than making language understandable to the average taxpayer.

"Certainly, the accuracy of the forms and instructions has no value unless people understand what is being said," according to the report prepared for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation.

Another stumbling block for many taxpayers, the GAO said, "is the disorganized and cluttered design of the forms and instructions."

The report, noting that the IRS is working on making the forms and instructions easier to read, added, "Even more can be done to improve readability without sacrificing technical accuracy."

The GAO panel of experts, which included a law professor, educators and a textbook publisher, recommended that the IRS establish a task force of writing and design experts to study improving the forms.

The IRS responded with a cautious endorsement, saying, "We agree that additional improvements can be made and that outside consultants may provide useful perspective and assistance . . . We will take all appropriate steps to achieve further simplification within a balanced tax administration program."

The report cited this question from a form sent in all tax packets to determine whether poor working families qualify for help in paying for educational costs:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S. in which you lived and which for the entire year (except for temporary absences for vacation, school, etc.) was also the home of (1) your child who was under 19 years of age or a full-time student OR (2) your dependent child who is disabled (See Pages 7 and 8).

The GAO suggested the question could be broken into three simpler questions:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S.?"

"Did you live in this home?"

"Was this also the home of your child for the entire year, except for short absences such as vacation or school?"

Death Camp Charge Ruled Inconclusive

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge allowed Feodor Fedorenko to retain his U.S. citizenship today despite accusations that he whipped and shot Jews as a guard in a Nazi death camp and failed to tell immigration authorities about it. He has denied committing any atrocities against Jews.

Calling Fedorenko a "victim of Nazi aggression," U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger ruled that the prosecution had not proved the accusations against the native Ukrainian. He had been accused of lying on naturalization papers when he became a U.S. citizen in 1949.

"The record on Fedorenko's conduct 35 years ago is inconclusive," Roettger wrote in his opinion.

The judge did not show up in court; his ruling was read by the clerk.

Roettger released his 54-page opinion five weeks after an emotional trial during which six Israeli survivors of the infamous Treblinka death camp tearfully testified that they saw Fedorenko torture and kill Jewish prisoners.

But at least two of the elderly witnesses vacillated on their identifications, and at one point the judge said he wondered if some witnesses had been coached.

Fedorenko, 71, was never formally charged under U.S. law with atrocities at the prison camp. But had he been stripped of his citizenship, he could have been deported and forced to stand trial in Europe on war-crimes charges.

During the trial, Fedorenko admitted he lied to get U.S. citizenship by claiming to be a Polish farmer forced to work as a laborer for the Germans. He said he served as a guard at Treblinka but denied killing or torturing Jews. Defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy argued that Fedorenko lied because he didn't want to return to the Soviet Union.

Fedorenko is one of a number of persons recently charged by federal officials with falsely concealing Nazi pasts when they entered the United States.

A Polish immigrant, Frank Walus, was recently found guilty by a judge in Chicago of lying to U.S. authorities about activities as a Gestapo agent who took part in several murders. He has been stripped of citizenship and is subject to deportation proceedings, but he has appealed the conviction.

DOLLAR. . .

192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that."

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two.

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Statistics released by the Japan Tourist Association indicate foreign visitors are spending fewer days in Japan. Tourists who spent nearly 14 days in this country in 1974 now stay about nine days, a survey showed.

The U.S. currency zigzagged in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market, dipping to 194.50 in the early afternoon and closing at 195.05. It closed at 195.525 Tuesday.

Volume was high at $870 million, with the central Bank of Japan accounting for possibly $200 million in an effort to brake the rise of the yen, bankers said.

The dollar plunged through the psychologically important 200-yen barrier Monday, and one trader at a Japanese bank commented today. "There aren't any psychological barriers left. The next level will be 190 yen."

In another development, the United States recorded the smallest trade deficit in more than a year last month as U.S. businesses sold a record $12.1 billion in products to other countries, the Commerce Department said today.

The June trade deficit of $1.6 billion was encouraging because the growing trade gap had contributed to inflation at home and the decline of the dollar overseas.

BABY. . .

ception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

The Daily Mail, which paid $600,000 for exclusive rights to the Browns' story, reported the father gasped when given a brief glimpse of his child and said:

"It's incredible, incredible . . . I'm not a religious man, but I thank God that I heard our little girl cry for the first time. No one can realize what this means to Lesley and myself."

Brown has a 17-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

A hospital spokesman said the mother was "over the moon with joy." He said she and the baby would probably be able to go home to Bristol in about 10 days.

The doctors knew the baby's sex in advance from chromosomal tests, but Mrs. Brown told them not to tell her because "I don't want to be cheated of the final thrill."

what it costs to hold independent elections.

The most recent city election cost about $15,000.

The November charter election will cost the city about $3,800.

Council members Larry Agran and Mary Ann Gaido opposed the election change.

Agran said a positive vote in November would result in lowering the quality of city elections. Local issues would be lost in the plethora of candidates and issues appearing on a consolidated June primary ballot, he said.

Agran also argued the county is less efficient at counting votes than is the city.

Mrs. Gaido agreed, and said the charter amendment itself will be swamped in November by being on the same ballot with state Sen. John Briggs' gay rights amendment and the governor's race.

Councilman Arthur Anthony contended that, despite councilmen's feelings, the issue ought properly to be decided by the voters themselves.

And Mayor Bill Vardoulis thought of a reason why June would be the better time to vote.

"It's more likely to rain in March," he said.

to adults.

And, according to Jon Sharnborg, president of the homeowners association, the majority of families who moved in thought the development was to be just that.

That's why, he told the council, the association recently polled 226 homes in a vote to restrict residence to people 18 or older, and to bar use of recreational facilities by juveniles.

Of 193 responses, he said, 108 voted to restrict the community to adults, and 114 voted to restrict the recreational facilities.

Sharnborg said the rules are to become effective Aug. 1. People currently living at Orange Tree, he said, are exempted from the residency rule.

However, he said, even children living there now won't be able to use the association's common recreational facilities, including four swimming pools, Jacuzzi, tennis courts, weight rooms and a sauna.

That's a problem for the families, who claim the real estate salesmen, Walker and Lee, never told them the condominiums were supposed to be restricted to adults.

Mayor Bill Vardoulis said, "obviously, somebody misled somebody."

Attorney William Heitman, who is representing homeowner Harpst, claimed the new rules will have "a chilling effect" on families and force them to move.

He told the council the rules mean no child could play on common grass areas, since park areas are recreational facilities.

No child, he said, could be visited by a juvenile friend, because that, too, is restricted by the rules.

homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas.

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' association or sheriff's department personnel.

Gates said the Omega firm has now been discharged from fund raising activities by the association and has no further connection with the Rusk campaign.

Bennett was lodged in the county jail on burglary and theft charges. Gates said the two juveniles were taken to juvenile hall to face arraignment on identical charges and, in the case of the girl, for violation of probation.

Bomb Figure Recovering

MIAMI (AP) — A 66-year-old man, who the FBI says took a taxi to pick up the $3 million ransom demanded for the safety of a United Airlines jumbo jet, remained in stable condition today after swallowing poison during his arrest.

Arthur J. Mogilner of suburban Miami Beach lapsed into unconsciousness Tuesday as FBI agents tried to wrestle a bottle containing "an unidentified pink liquid" from his lips.

FBI agents, posing as United Airlines officials, said Mogilner was arrested in the back seat of a cab at a drop-off point specified by a caller who warned two hours earlier that he would blow up a Boeing 747 with 371 persons aboard if the ransom demand was not met. The plane was in Los Angeles preparing for departure to Hawaii.

Clemente 'Head Shop' Recalls Flowery '60s

By WILLIAM HODGE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A fortyish man in plaid Bermuda shorts and tennis shoes pauses on a San Clemente sidewalk and eyes a copy of "High Times" magazine — a journal for marijuana smokers — in the shop window.

Curious at what he sees within minutes of former president Richard Nixon's house, the man continues his hesitant gait, pauses again and stares into the shop door at black-light posters, exotic tapestries and incense racks.

A sweet fragrance of strawberry musk greets his nostrils.

"Can I help you, sir," asks a younger, conservative looking man from the store's interior.

"No. . .," the man in shorts mumbles as though interrupted from deep thought. "Just looking."

The man turns and continues walking north on San Clemente's main drag, El Camino Real.

"We get those kind of people coming by here all the time," says Mike Benefit, clerk of the Cat's Eye. "The majority of people who come in here are curiosity seekers."

And people might well be curious about Benefit's shop located between a vacant lot and the former headquarters of a spiritual reader.

That's because the Cat's Eye is a throwback to the flower-power notions of the 60s. Benefit's establishment is a "head shop," so dubbed in the 1960s because of its specialization in apparatuses used mostly for marijuana and hashish smoking.

The psychedelic markets were representative of a lifestyle, a new way of thinking for America's young.

Head shops flourished everywhere in the 1960s; in the 1970s few can be found, primarily because the paraphernalia business has been absorbed by gigantic record store chains that include pipes, papers and other smoker's incidentals.

And young people's lifestyles have changed.

But the Cat's Eye does not sell records.

"We sell smoking accessories," the 34-year-old Texas native says. "What kind of tobacco people put in those accessories is up to them.

"We can't govern moralistic values," Benefit insists. "But we don't condone it (marijuana smoking) in any way."

Glass cases hold various models of pipes and so-called "roach clips," used for holding the tiny butt of a marijuana cigarette.

One feature is a "Saturday Night Special," an attachment for pipes that resembles a revolver's cylinder and provides six bowls instead of one.

Shelves showcase other hand-blown glass pipes carrying names like U.S. Bongs, with a cartoon of Uncle Sam on them.

"It takes a lot of time to make these things — they're artistic like paintings," Benefit says of the paraphernalia. "We buy some of these from local artists."

The shop also carries underground comic books like the "Fabulous Furry Freak Brothers," a spinoff from San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury days.

The establishment appears to have been caught in a time warp, suddenly finding its location in post-1960 San Clemente.

But despite the common belief that only young people would avail themselves of the shop's services, Benefit said the clientele of the Cat's Eye is varied.

"We get lawyers, doctors and other professionals," Benefit said. "You have to constantly change your way of thinking because people who come in here are on different levels."

Music of the Kinks, a circa-1964 rock and roll band, floats out from two speakers in the store.

"Don't want to spend my life living in a rock and roll fantasy
Don't want to spend my life living on the edge of reality . . ."

Benefit is defensive about questions that imply the shop is engaging in an illegal business.

A National Federation of Independent Businesses plaque hangs near a "Stoned Again" black-light poster in the shop. Benefit points out that the business is also a member of the local chamber of commerce.

"We don't do anything illegal," he says. "It's like selling stationery.

"They're (the customers) getting their services here just as though they were going down to Thrifty's."

Sparks Fined $500 for Tavern Brawl

Laguna Beach Police Chief John Sparks, who returns to duty Monday, was fined $500 Tuesday for beating a fellow bar patron.

Sparks, who pleaded no contest (nolo contendere) to one count of battery, was sentenced in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

Sparks, 42, was involved in a bar fight June 29. He reportedly pushed a long-stemmed carnation into the face of a fellow bar patron before shoving a table against the man's chest and pounding him several times in the face.

Deputy District Attorny Ron Kreber said the plea of nolo contendere is the same as a lea of guilt, "but the legal effect of this plea means that the guilt admission cannot be used in a civil case."

That would presumably prevent Costa Mesa truck driver Delbert Mathieson, the victim in the bar fight, from using prior court testimony should he sue the police chief and city.

Kreber said he originally sought jail time for the then-suspended police chief, as well as a fine.

"But after review of similar (battery) cases which occurred in bars with only minor injuries sustained by the victims, we observed that the courts never sentenced anyone to jail on a first offense," Kreber said.

"So I felt a large fine was more in order."

He said he felt the $500 fine was unusually high, "but we wanted to be sure we weren't accused of making allowances for the fact he is a high-ranking police officer."

The action Tuesday in Judge Richard Orozco's Santa Ana courtroom, comes less than two weeks after South County Municipal Court judges asked that the case be transferred to the central court.

"It was their (the South Court judges) motion that the case be transferred to central," Kreber explained. "There was no known conflict, but the judges felt there might be some appearance of a conflict because of the small size of the community."

"They thought it would be better to have it transferred to a different jurisdiction."

Judge Orozco reviewed a police report on the evening-long activities leading to and after the altercation at the Ivy House restaurant and bar across the street from the Laguna Beach police department.

He also reviewed court transcripts from South County Court where Sparks pleaded not

Theft Suspects Nabbed

Sheriff Jails Rival's Fund-raiser

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators.

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18, whose last known home address was in Mission Viejo, and two juveniles: a boy, 17, and a girl, 16.

Gates said the 17-year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates' opponent in the November election.

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas.

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' as

'Test Tube' Girl, Mother Both Fine

OLDHAM, England (AP) Doctors say the five-pound, 12-ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition.

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in Oldham's red-brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter.

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's uterus to develop normally.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after conception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

The Daily Mail, which paid $600,000 for exclusive rights to the Browns' story, reported the father gasped when given a brief glimpse of his child and said:

"It's incredible, incredible

Americans Tell Japan 'Sayonara'

TOKYO (AP) — American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S. dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here.

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico, Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors. "Everything is too expensive."

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September.

Tourists today were getting 192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that."

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two.

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Fido to Flush

Pet Potty to End Scooping?

MIAMI (AP) — Some cities and states, in an effort to combat dog and cat litter, have passed laws requiring owners to scoop up after their animals. Inventor Franklin Temel has come up with the second-generation device — a flush toilet for pets.

"When an idea like this hits you, you just light up like a firecracker," explained Temel, who spent eight years and $110,000 on his project.

The animal potty is a stall with a floor made of stainless steel slats. Underneath the floor are spray nozzles and a tank of water. It is surrounded on two sides by pipes, hoses and a fiberglass shell.

A bottled scent — a "terribly powerful stimulant" — attracts the animal to the toilet. Temel explained it took 18 months of observation, lab analyses and some personal sniffing to develop the right scent.

Temel estimates his animal toilet could be manufactured for under $250.

Child Care Study Wins County OK

Disclaiming any part in "socialized child care," lame duck Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit cast the lone vote against further study of county aid to day care facilities Tuesday.

The subject was brought before supervisors in a report from the county's Commission on the Status of Women which charged that the county lags far behind in providing its residents with child care facilities.

The report noted, for instance, that in the 1976-77 fiscal year San Diego County spent $2 million in aid to day care facilities while Orange County spent $52,000.

The report contained a list of 28 recommendations aimed at improving child care services for working single parents in Orange County. Supervisors referred it to a county committee studying youth services.

The list was gathered by the commission on women during a recent day-long seminar that drew 75 child care providers and interested citizens.

The suggestions range from calling upon supervisors to create a model day care center for the South County to having industry develop day care centers for employees to asking government to ease licensing rules and other restrictions for child care facilities.

"Orange County has lagged behind comparable counties in receiving its share of state and federal funds for child care and development programs," said Commission Chairwoman Pauline Rangel.

Police Seek Rapist in San Clemente

A 37-year-old San Clemente woman was raped early today by a man who entered her home through the front door and called her by name.

Police said today they are seeking a suspect described as 25 years old, five feet, 10 inches, weighing 150 pounds, with collar-length dark hair and a mustache in the 4 a.m. incident.

The victim said she did not know her attacker.

The victim told police her front door was locked but police could find no evidence of forced entry.

The woman sustained no injuries beyond the attack itself.

Woman Dies In SC Suicide

A 35-year old San Clemente woman took her own life with a .38-caliber revolver Tuesday afternoon, police said.

Susan Fletcher Scott of 3721 Calle Casino died at about 4:30 p.m. of a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the chest.

Authorities said the woman had been in failing health since an automobile accident in 1962 that left her in a coma for 30 days

School Group Sues Over Laguna Cuts

A charge of unfair labor practices has been filed against the Laguna Beach Unified School District following a school board decision to cut back hours of about 45 classified school employees for the summer.

The action was filed last week with the State Public Employment Relations Board by the California School Employees Association, said CESA deputy field director Ken Metzger.

School trustees reduced the work schedule last month for 45 classified employees including custodians, maintenance workers, educational services personnel and workers in the superintendent's office. Many of the classified employees had their work hours reduced to four a day and some were laid off until the fall.

The move was intended to save the district more than $60,000 and was made in response to Proposition 13.

"We feel there has been a violation of the Rodda Act as it relates to good faith bargaining," CESA's Metzger said.

He said the school board might have violated the government code by its move to "change employment conditions" during negotiations between the district and the employees association.

But district Superintendent Robert Sanchis said the move to reduce hours for some employees was necessary.

Non-teachers Lose Jobs

90 Cut; Capo Schools Hope to Rehire Some

More than 90 non-teachers will be laid off from the Capistrano Unified School District as a result of Proposition 13-imposed cutbacks, but some employees may be reinstated if funds become available over the next school year.

Most personnel cutbacks centered on part-time or classified employees. So-called certificated employees — administrators, teachers and counselors, for example — suffered a loss of some supplementary pay in the round of budget reductions.

Largest cutbacks involved 34 part-time teacher aides, 31 regular aides and three connected with senior high school opportunity classes that were eliminated.

The District's custodial ranks were reduced by 20 positions, some of which are not filled now.

Eight groundskeepers also were eliminated under the budget cuts.

According to district officials, some custodians could be reinstated depending on income received through community use of school facilities.

Clerical assistants, about half of them part-time, also felt the brunt of post-Jarvis spending cutbacks.

Fifteen full-time clerical positions will be eliminated while 14 part-time positions will not be funded next year.

Teachers affected by program cutbacks, such as elimination of opportunity classes, will be placed back into regular classroom teaching.

An extra six administration positions, recommended by a study for enlarging the district's administrative staff, will not be included next year as originally anticipated.

Some teachers could receive less pay next year due to the slashing of so-called supplementary pay for additional jobs, such as driver training and serving as department chairman.

LIBRARY CARD FEE TO START

SAN DIEGO (AP) — City libraries are suddenly busier than ever. In September, readers must start paying $6 to borrow books.

The end to free borrowing, approved by the City Council, left many people unhappy.

Officials describe it as a means to help libraries pay their way.

Water, Sewer Fees Up

The South Coast County Water District board of directors has approved increases in water and sewer rates that will mean an average $13 increase per two-month billing period.

The new rates recently approved by the board include a hike from 38 cents to 47 cents per 100 cubic feet and from $4 to $9.80 per month increase in sewer service charges.

The increase will offset losses the district says it will realize as a result of the passage of Proposition 13, according to district general manager Ray Miller.

"A substantial portion of the operating and maintenance costs of both services (water and sewer) have been paid for in the past from tax revenues," Miller said.

The new rates for an average homeowner will increase from about $25 per two months to nearly $39.

The South Coast County Water District provides water and sewer services to areas north and west of Dana Point, including South Laguna, Three Arch Bay, Monarch Bay and Monarch Bay Terrace, and Niguel Shores. It provides water service only in the northeastern portion of Dana Point.

Miller said the increase would not be that much when the property tax figures that went into the total service are taken away.

"It's actually a five percent increase if you combine what the taxpayer was paying in both taxes and his water and sewer bill," he explained.

Users will notice the new increases on their bi-monthly bills sent out after Aug. 31.

Nixon Says GOP Ready For Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon is quoted as saying the Carter administration "is lousing up on so many things that we (Republicans) ought to have a great chance to make a comeback" in 1980.

House Republican Whip Robert H. Michel of Illinois, who is recuperating from a beating he suffered in a mugging Friday, said Nixon made the political assessment during a get-well telephone call Tuesday.

Michel said that during the nine-minute conversation Nixon mentioned the case of Dr. Peter Bourne, who resigned as President Carter's health and drug abuse adviser last week. Bourne quit after admitting that he had written a fictitious name on a prescription for a widely abused sedative intended for his White House aide.

Michel quoted Nixon as saying:

"Gosh, how bad can it get when the very one you've got close to you in the White House to remedy the drug abuse situation is doing it himself?"

Laguna Fire Damages Deck

Laguna Beach firemen responded to a structure fire at 591 Temple Hills Drive early this morning, discovering a small area of patio deck ablaze.

A redwood planter had caught fire at the home of Carl Rankin, 591 Temple Hills Drive, at about 4:20 a.m., burning a small hole in the wooden patio deck.

Fire investigators said cause of the fire, which caused $500 damage, is still being probed.

Bubble Trouble

Dancer Patricia Rozow, rehearsing for Cincinnati's summer opera, almost got into a sticky situation when she blew a giant bubble gum bubble.

Niguel Kidnap-rape Suspect Arrested

State officers arrested a 25-year-old New York man Tuesday who was sought by Orange County Sheriff's officers following the kidnap-rape of a Laguna Niguel woman.

Booked into Orange County Jail later Tuesday was Richard Del Ostia, described by Sheriff's investigators as a transient, also known as Richard Davidson and Richard Kirsch.

Del Ostia is charged with kidnapping, burglary, auto theft and rape and is being held in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Sheriff's officers said the man was arrested when he emerged from a Department of Motor Vehicles office in South Los Angeles.

They said state law enforcement officers originally cited the illegally parked car allegedly driven by Del Ostia and then checked reports to determine that it was stolen.

The car was reported stolen when a man entered the apartment of a 23-year-old woman late Monday, allegedly took $27 from her, forced her into her roommate's car and drove her to Laguna Beach where the rape occurred.

CHIEF...

guilty earlier this month.

Sparks was suspended from duties without pay by City Manager Fred Solomon July 1, and reinstated as chief on July 17. He has been on vacation since, and is expected to return to work Monday.

He has contacted high ranking officers at the Laguna Beach police department, telling them he is coming back.

"The word has come down from the top that our superiors are to get the troops in order," said one police officer, who said he did not want to be identified.

Earlier this month the then-suspended police chief was supported by petitions for his reinstatement. They contain nearly 1,600 signatures.

Shortly thereafter, the Laguna Beach Police Employees Association, along with other officers, issued a letter asking that Sparks resign "for the good of the community."

And a third group, comprised of local merchants and businessmen, gathered more than 400 signatures asking that the chief step down.

City Manager Solomon has stood fast by his decision to retain the chief.

Sparks supporters lauded his innovative approach to the varied lifestyles in Laguna Beach, pointing out his policy of openness with members of the gay community, among others.

Not long after assuming the position of chief 2½ years ago, Sparks set up seminars for his officers and members of the gay community.

He also has been lauded for rape prevention and other programs.

Power Bills Won't Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Edison has been granted an interim rate increase of $102 million a year by the California Public Utilities Commission.

However, the hike granted Tuesday will not necessarily mean higher consumer bills, at least not this year, because of an abundance of low-cost hydroelectric power that has lowered the utility's fuel costs.

Edison provides electric service to about eight million people.

Lifeguard Tower Target of Thieves

Thieves broke into a lifeguard tower at Main Beach Park in Laguna Beach during the night Monday, taking equipment valued at $103.

Lifeguards discovered the tower had been broken into Tuesday morning. Taken were a telephone, first aid kit, aluminum chair, beach umbrella and a rescue buoy.

'Knee Deep'

Swarming Mayflies Shut Down Bridge

PORTAGE, Wis. (AP) — Newly hatched mayflies swarmed "knee deep" onto a bridge over the Wisconsin River, forcing the structure to be temporarily closed while crews used a road-grading machine to clear the insects away.

"A couple cars got stuck. One had to be towed away," Ken Manthey, Portage police dispatcher, said today.

He said the car that was towed off "was completely covered up to the hood."

The trouble began Tuesday night after bridge lights which have not been used in recent days were inadvertently turned on, Manthey said. They apparently attracted the mayflies, which live only a short time after hatching in the water.

Manthey said the seasonal hatch of mayflies was considered the heaviest in years at Portage.

He said some insects landed on the middle portion of the two-lane Wisconsin 33 bridge, but most gathered at either end of the structure, "knee deep in a lot of places."

Police officers were called to the scene, and traffic in both directions was halted while the cleanup efforts got under way. One lane of traffic was soon opened, but it was two hours before officers left the scene, with city workers still cleaning up, Manthey said.

At the nearby Columbia County Fair, "most of the people left early" as the insects moved into the brightly lit fairgrounds, Manthey said the fair closed earlier than scheduled.

Mayflies clung to buildings and electrical signs were covered by a layer of the insects today.

Laguna Wins Grant

City to Develop Local Coastal Plan

Laguna Beach has been awarded nearly $30,000 by the South Coast Regional Coastal Commission to prepare a modified Local Coastal Plan work program that will eventually give control of coastal development back to the city.

Monday coastal commissioners approved the city's proposed plan, which will look into recreation and visitor-serving facilities, public access to the city's 4½ miles of beaches, and new development in the Art Colony.

The action by the commission came after an hour-long public hearing during which several Laguna Beach residents discussed their pet projects in the city.

Commissioners lauded the city's work program, calling it "more than complete." In fact, the city listed 14 acres of study and asked for nearly $158,000 to complete the 20-month report.

The work program, which precedes completion of the city's Local Coastal Plan, is intended to identify issues where a conflict may exist between city policies and those of the coastal commission.

When both programs are brought into conformity, the intention is for the coastal commission to turn all permit planning powers back to the city.

All coastal county cities in California are required to prepare such a planning document.

The completed draft must now go to the State Coastal Commission for its review.

Commissioners also applauded the city's existing public access to the shoreline, but asked that the planning department look into the constraints and benefits of public access to currently closed areas such as Rockledge in the south of town and Irvine Cove at the north end.

San Clemente Faces Building Permit Suit

Lawyers for the Taconic Corp. have gone to court in a bid to force the city of San Clemente to allow the firm to build a two-story office building in the Spanish Village sector.

Their Orange County Superior Court lawsuit seeks $250,000 in damages and accuses the City Council of unlawfully blocking a building permit for the $145,997 structure after it was approved by planners.

The delay in the permit, the lawsuit states, was ordered because of the possibility that the property might be included by eminent domain action in the proposed Downtown Parking District.

The lawsuit accuses the City Council of failing to lift its ban on the Taconic building despite the fact that the parking district issue failed to win approval when the council met last April 5.

Court officials have not yet scheduled a date for a hearing at which the assigned judge will be asked to order the city to allow building to commence.

Lagunan Helen Pines spoke before the commission over access to Crescent Bay Park, telling the commissioners the City Council last week voted to end efforts to acquire a lot for public use on the blufftop park area.

The city has received $152,550 in federal funds and another $41,000 from the 1974 Park Bond Act to acquire the parcel, and would need matching funds to buy the $350,000 lot.

Mrs. Pines said the council action, coming at the end of a council meeting, was a surprise to her group, which is attempting to acquire the parcel for public use.

Commissioners said they were concerned by the surprise council action, and asked if there was some reason why the panel acted so hastily on the matter.

Commissioner Hank Doersling, a Hermosa Beach city councilman, suggested the commission support Mrs. Pines' efforts for city acquisition of the land, and ask the Laguna Beach city council to reconsider its move.

"It sounds as if the council is rejecting this thing out of hand," Doersling said.

"It seems if they have a couple of years to come up with the money, they should look into fund-raising projects," he said.

The commissioner suggested looking into Coastal Conservancy funds, adding the residents could hold fund raisers.

"Rejecting it out of hand was a mistake," he said, moving that the commission urge the city to reconsider.

The commission vote was unanimous to ask the Laguna Council "to keep its options open."

BABY...

I'm not a religious man, but I thank God that I heard our little girl cry for the first time. No one can realize what this means to Lesley and myself."

Brown has a 17-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

A hospital spokesman said the mother was "over the moon with joy." He said she and the baby would probably be able to go home to Bristol in about 10 days.

The doctors knew the baby's sex in advance from chromosomal tests, but Mrs. Brown told them not to tell her because "I don't want to be cheated of the final thrill."

The only problem that apparently arose in the latter stage of Mrs. Brown's pregnancy was a minor blood poisoning known as toxemia, but doctors said it was quickly brought under control.

The birth was expected to rekindle a fierce philosophical and ethical debate on the morality of conception outside a mother's body.

When Steptoe and Edwards successfully fertilized a human egg and produced a fetus in 1969, the Roman Catholic Church condemned it as an extension of "immoral" artificial insemination.

But amid talk that their work heralded an age of selective tive breeding along the lines of Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," Steptoe said: "I'm not a wizard or a Frankenstein tampering with nature.

Walkout At Edison Settled

A 10-week strike at Southern California Edison Company power plants at Huntington Beach and San Onofre and at eight other Southern California locations was reported settled early today.

Edison spokesman Stanley Cann said that nearly 1,110 members of the Utility Workers Union of America, Local 246, ratified new terms of the contract this week.

He said that both union and Edison negotiators were still in the process of consummating the agreement this morning.

Cann said that terms of the new agreement were sketchy but that he expected the power station workers to return to their jobs later this week.

The striking workers maintain and repair power units. They went on strike May 10 when they balked at an Edison proposal to place them on a rotating seven-day work schedule in which they would work weekends without overtime pay.

The Edison spokesman said that it was his understanding that the strikers agreed to the new work schedule.

The union posted pickets at Huntington Beach, San Onofre, two Long Beach stations, Ormand Beach, Mojave, El Segundo, Redondo Beach, Oxnard and Mandalay near Ventura.

About 500 members of the Edison supervisory personnel worked 12-hour shifts to maintain the power plants in the absence of the utility worker union members.

A series of mischievous attacks directed against non-strike Edison employees was reported last month.

There were 125 members of the striking union at San Onofre and another 66 at Huntington Beach.

The facility in Huntington Beach has a capacity of producing 990 megawatts of electricity and can serve a population of about 750,000.

Pipeline Approval Granted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio has been granted permission by the federal government to build a pipeline on federal land to take Alaskan oil from Long Beach to Midland Texas for distribution to the Midwest.

Approved Tuesday, the permit will allow construction of about 50 miles on federal land in California, Arizona and New Mexico, according to Jack Lahr of the Bureau of Land Management here.

ACCORDING TO LAHR, the completed project could "alleviate the glut of oil on the West Coast" by making it available by way of the Midland to the Midwest.

SOHIO eventually plans to construct a 1,026-mile pipeline to Texas. The firm's next step is to reach agreement with El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Southern California Gas Co. for SOHIO to operate 800 miles of existing pipeline.

Both federal and state approval is then necessary for SOHIO to convert the existing natural gas pipeline to crude oil.

THE FIRM APPLIED for the federal permit in September 1975, and Robert Schaadt, a SOHIO representative in Long Beach, said, "This underscores the long lead time involved in getting these permits, and I think it raises serious questions about how the entire process could be shortened."

What Goes Up...

Two sleek $1.7 million Tomahawk cruise missiles shot skyward Tuesday from San Clemente Island . . . then plunged into the Pacific Ocean before the eyes of Defense Secretary Harold Brown (right). "This demonstrates what happens in a test program," was all Brown had to say by way of explanation to reporters about the embarrassing misfires. They were the second and third failures of the Tomahawk, which has undergone 32 tests.

Welfare Suspect 'Innocent'

COMPTON (AP) — A 33-year-old mother of four who allegedly collected nearly $300,000 in welfare payments after claiming to have more than 34 children has pleaded innocent to 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of fraud.

Superior Court Judge William Clay Tuesday ordered Barbara Jean Williams to appear for a pre-trial hearing Sept. 5.

BUT HER ATTORNEY, Carl Jones, said he would attempt to have the fraud charges dropped. Under a recent state Supreme Court ruling, prosecutors must try to obtain restitution before filing formal charges, Jones said.

Deputy District Attorney Ronald L. Wheeler said Mrs. Jones was not home when investigators went to ask for restitution.

"The information we had was that she was in flight," Wheeler said. "We left a demand letter for payment with her husband at her residence."

MRS. WILLIAMS is accused of bilking Los Angeles County out of about $290,000 since 1971. Authorities say she received $239,588 in welfare checks and as much as $50,000 in food stamps and medical aid.

Gas Plan a 'Lemon'?

Emergency Rationing Draws Criticism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials have taken their standby gasoline rationing plan for its first test run in car-crazy Southern California and have been told it may be a lemon.

Under terms of the rough draft, composed by the U.S. Department of Energy, motorists would receive an allotment of 45 gallons per month for each passenger car they own. Other vehicles would receive allotments proportionate to their mileage. Only "large recreational vehicles" — a still undefined term — would get no allotment.

Reaction to the plan came at a hearing Tuesday — the first on a national tour of 12 cities before the final proposal is decided in September. The panel was expected to hear more testimony here today.

Tram Won't Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Squaw Valley ski resort will not be issued a new permit to operate its tram until an exact cause is determined for an accident that killed four persons and injured 30 others, although a preliminary report blames violent blizzard winds.

The preliminary report, issued Tuesday, discounts mechanical failure as the cause for the April 15 tragedy, in which a cable sliced into the tram.

Pardon Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst should be pardoned, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has urged in a telegram to President Carter.

"Given the peculiar circumstances of her case, she has surely served sufficient time. It escapes me what purpose could be served by further incarceration," Dymally said in the telegram which was released Tuesday to the press.

Lawyer Rehired

YUBA CITY (AP) — Attorney Ronald F. Fahey, one of the original prosecutors in the Juan Corona murders case, was rehired Tuesday to work on the team that will handle Corona's retrial.

Corona, 44, was convicted in 1973 on charges of killing 25 farmworkers and burying their bodies in orchards near this city in Sutter County. But the conviction was overturned and a new trial was granted May 8 by the State Court of Appeal. A pretrial hearing for the new proceedings was scheduled for Aug. 3.

Plea Changed

PASADENA (AP) — Lori Andersen, convicted of murdering her tennis coach in a three-woman love triangle, now says she was not insane at the time of the killing and wants to be sentenced rather than face a sanity hearing.

Miss Andersen, 21, of Granada Hills, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity but withdrew that plea Tuesday, leaving Superior Court Judge Daniel L. Fletcher free to sentence her. Otherwise, the judge would have set a hearing date to determine her sanity.

Sentencing will take place Aug. 14.

Proposition 13 to Boost Home Prices?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Proposition 13 will not have a major effect on California's economy in the near future but may eventually put upward pressure on home prices, Crocker Bank said Tuesday.

"Proposition 13 is not going to be the dominant force in shaping our economy over the next two years," Crocker Chief Economist Harold C. Werner Jr. told reporters. "The general business cycle will be much more important."

WERNER SAID Proposition 13 would actually stimulate the state's economy over the next 12 months as individuals and businesses begin to spend some of their property tax savings.

That spending, coupled with the disbursement of the state's budget surplus, will increase overall income in the state over the next year, Werner said.

The economist said Proposition 13 may put upward pressure on home prices by slowing sales of existing homes, thus limiting supply.

Cliff Climber Dies in Fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man apparently slipped while trying to climb down steep cliffs to Blacks Beach and fell about 40 feet to his death, authorities say.

The coroner's office identified the victim Tuesday as Richard L. Powell, 36.

A Huntington Beach lifeguard who was surfing in the area notified police after he spotted the body on a ledge in an area known as Box Canyon and went to investigate.

Police and lifeguards brought the body down to the beach.

Jet Drops Fuel, Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan Am jumbo jet carrying 333 passengers to London lost power in an engine on takeoff from San Francisco International Airport and had to dump about 100,000 pounds of jet fuel before it turned around and landed safely.

OFFICIALS SAID the maneuver Tuesday night was not an "emergency landing." Although passengers were shook up, none were hurt, officials said.

The Boeing 747, bound nonstop for London, lost one of its four engines moments after takeoff at 8:45 p.m. It flew over land, dumped part of its full load of fuel in order to make it light enough to land, then touched down back at the airport.

THE PASSENGERS were taken back to the terminal, fed dinner and left just after midnight for London on another plane. Two of the passengers on the original flight changed their minds and did not board the second time, officials said.

Election Due in Beach Nudity Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The City Council is being asked to authorize a special election to restore legal nudity to Black's Beach.

A supporter said backers of the move have gathered 38,000 signatures on petitions, more than enough to get the measure on the November ballot.

In a vote last September, San Diegans rescinded a city ordinance allowing people to swim and sunbathe in the nude along the municipal beach below the cliffs of UC San Diego.

They still do by the thousands but quickly pull on swimming suits when officers with citations drive by.

No Justification For Speaker Curb

Laguna Beach city councilmen are considering a policy that would prevent members of city commissions and committees from speaking their mind before other governmental bodies.

The policy proposal is the result of several incidents where members of Laguna Beach committees addressed county supervisors and members of another city council without first checking with the Laguna City Council.

And while those committee members identified themselves as individuals, some members of the Laguna council believe they should be informed of the committee members' intentions before they speak.

But a policy such as this tends to muzzle people who volunteer to serve the city. It is not fair to those public servants to be silenced when any other segment of the community can speak out freely.

And on those rare occasions where a committee member might step out of line and address another governmental agency on behalf of the city, that incident should be dealt with after the fact.

Prior restraint in freedom of speech is not the way this country operates. The council should discard any notion of such a policy.

Trustees Did Well

On Monday, Capistrano Unified School District trustees completed most budget cuts made necessary by following passage of Prop. 13.

The months-long round of regular board meetings, special meetings and public hearings was a grueling track for trustees, administrators, teachers, workers, parents and students to run.

The decisions weren't easy. Athletic advocates wanted no cuts in organized sports. Music program supporters opposed cuts in their programs. Busing and work experience programs were items of concern.

And no one wanted to damage the schools' basic educational program.

The trustees did a fine job in an almost impossible situation.

They made every effort to secure extensive public opinion and, even though public comments were sometimes meager, they followed those recommendations pretty well.

Practically all elements of the school district administration, teachers, classified employees and students are going to feel the bite of Jarvis.

But trustees have done a good job of relieving the pain of reduced programs as much as possible.

Unwelcome Visitors

Summertime in most communities means vacations, visits to the beach, and suntans. In Laguna Beach it also means an increase in residential burglaries.

This summer is no exception, with more than 70 home burglaries reported in the Art Colony since the beginning of June.

That's more than two a day in the town of 16,000. Police blame several factors for the summer increase.

There are more transients in Laguna Beach during the summer months. And homeowners are more careless, leaving doors and windows unlocked when they "dash down to the beach for an hour."

That's all the time a burglar needs to get in, collect up valuables, and depart.

It doesn't have to be that way. Laguna Beach has an efficient Crime Prevention Team that can offer helpful advice to residents.

The team has hints on how to make houses burglarproof. Police will visit homes and offer brochures and other information.

The city also has equipment to permanently mark valuables so they can be traced easily.

Give crime preventers a call at 497-3311 if they can help you.

Boyd/'Tip'

By L.M. BOYD

Edward O'Neill, a baseball player in the 1880s, was so adept at hitting foul tips to force pitchers to walk him that his cohorts nicknamed him "Tip." It was in allusion to him that later nicknames likewise identified Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill as Tip.

The church building of old usually had a small door on its north side, the Devil's door it was called. It was left open during baptisms and communions to let the Devil out.

Jet lag affects you less when you fly west than when you fly east, and less than either when you fly north or south.

Q. "What breed of dog has the best eyesight?"

A. The greyhound.

Q. "What's the fastest possible rate of reading speed?"

A. About 900 w.p.m.

Q. "Why is the Soviet Union's 'Kremlin' so called?"

A. Means "fortress" in Russian.

The quaint conversationalists now refer to junk food as "kiddie litter."

In the speech of Tahiti, says our Language man, there is no word for orphan. And there are no orphanages there. If youngsters lose their parents, those children are taken in immediately by another family. They are so uncivilized, those Tahitians.

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each swam by its coloring. The perpendicular specimens, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, all swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

U.S. 'Secrets' on Soviet Ships?

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16, to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

The preliminary findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas . . . have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc country merchant ships."

INDUSTRY sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government," the memo suggests, "that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 percent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 percent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

MOST SCOTCH whisky, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia," the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that . . . precludes shipping by the U.S.S.R."

TOP COMMERCE Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

Official Car Policy Still Too Generous

To the Editor:

In my mind the practice of providing public officials (city, county, school district, etc.) with cars has always been a questionable one. With the passage of Proposition 13 there should no longer be any question about the practice. Public officials should use their own cars and be reimbursed for mileage only when they are on official business.

AS A teacher who must travel between schools during the day I am reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile. County supervisors are eligible for a $390 per month car allowance, or $4,680 a year. They would have to drive their personal car 27,529 miles per year at 17 cents a mile to justify this expense.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit's contention that cars have always been considered part of supervisor's salaries is interesting, but hard to accept in the light of Proposition 13. It is just as difficult, however, to accept the idea of a $390 monthly car allowance.

Supervisors should either have access to a pool car when on official business, or be reimbursed for use of their personal car while on official business on a mileage basis only (such as 17 cents per mile).

Canyon Mess

To the Editor:

As a resident of Laguna Beach for over nine years, who uses the Canyon Road twice daily, the road which once was a rustic thing of beauty is now just a debris ridden highway. I've been looking at the same discarded mattress alongside the road for four weeks, the same toilet paper-laden fence for three weeks, abandoned cars have been left for two weeks and vagrants make the roadside their home during the summer.

I'm afraid it's time to move with the times. The beauty is no longer — the need for greater access is!

LES MARKS

Visitor 'Ripoff'

To the Editor:

I am paying my fine, not because I feel that I have broken any law, but because I know I cannot fight the system.

I had 45 minutes remaining on the meter in a parking lot on Glenneyre when I was given a ticket. When I asked the young lady why I was being given a ticket, she replied that it was against the law to feed the meter. When I asked her where this law was specifically stated, she pointed to a small decal on the meter with some ambiguously worded gobbledygook (intentional?) that does not easily translate into "No Meter Feeding" which would have been concise, intelligible, and undoubtedly cheaper to print.

MY WIFE and I arrived in Laguna from Mission Viejo a little after 10 a.m. Saturday morning. We had breakfast in the coffee shop of the Laguna Hotel, spent several hours shopping, and then returned to the hotel for lunch. Total spent while in Laguna: $84.78. Now we must pay an additional $5 for having stayed more than two hours in this fair city! What must a person do to spend more than two hours in Laguna, keep moving one's car?

Frankly, I think the whole thing is a ripoff and I do not intend to spend another penny in this friendly city until this ordinance has been rescinded.

JOHN N. LACY

Repairs Needed

To the Editor:

So the canyon road has a newly designed lane for a temporary parking lot. What about the "permanent" repairs needed on the city's streets such as Temple Hills where the holes cause many motorists to swerve on already tedious curves?

ERIC SCOTTS

Road Rules

To the Editor:

At the June 27 Laguna Beach City Council meeting, Jack McDowell, Howard Dawson and Kelly Boyd voted to initiate steps necessary to place Alta Laguna Road and Temple Hills Drive back on the city map. Nothing has come before the City Council in recent years that could more adversely affect Laguna Beach than this issue.

Mayor McDowell stated his only objective is to qualify the city for certain county gas tax funds for which we have been ineligible since our maps do not conform with the county maps.

Certainly, no one can argue against the council investigating all avenues for alternative funds to supplement our tax losses through Proposition 13. But the facts indicate that more is at stake than simply getting additional county funds. Consider the following:

1. Conformity to the county maps reclassifies both Temple Hills and Alta Laguna Roads as secondary arterial highways, thereby increasing the maximum allowable width to 100 feet or four lanes.

2. The city will lose jurisdiction over these roads to the county.

3. The most recent county map (dated March, 1978) shows Alta Laguna Road extended as a county arterial highway to the San Diego Freeway with on and off ramps on the proposed San Joaquin Corridor Freeway.

4. County officials have openly stated they want this additional access to Laguna Beach to help alleviate traffic on Coast Highway and Laguna Canyon Road and they must have the Alta Laguna linkup to make this access road possible.

AND WHAT does the city get in return?

1. County gas tax funds which must be matched dollar for dollar by city funds.

2. These funds can only be used for specific improvement projects (road widening, lengthening, etc.) on county arterial highways within the city limits.

3. Mayor McDowell suggested these funds be used on Laguna Canyon Road. But, as a state highway, improvement money for Laguna Canyon Road is available through CalTrans.

4. The city has already made an application to CalTrans for 22 specific improvements on Laguna Canyon Road (which will go well beyond the limited matching funds we could expect to get from the county, estimated at $50,000 to $150,000).

5. The CalTrans money does not require any matching funds from the city.

All of these facts were brought out at the city council meeting through the staff report, comments by Ken Smith from the County Planning Department and by the citizens who packed the council chambers and were unanimous in their opposition to McDowell's proposal. I suggest that Mayor McDowell and Councilmen Dawson and Boyd reconsider their position.

GRANT B. COOPER, Jr.

Making Points

To the Editor:

Gov. Brown is a political opportunist who was telling us a few weeks ago that it would be disaster time if Prop. 13 passed. So were most publications including the Daily Pilot which I read religiously.

Now Gov. Brown is calling for landlords to pass on a so-called tax saving to tenants. Obviously he is doing this to make points with the renter voter group. In no uncertain terms he told us to vote for Prop. 8 along with the other bureaucrats.

I OWN four units in addition to the one I live in and it costs me over $200 a month out of pocket even with the Prop. 13 savings.

Our governor and his political crony advisors realize now how far unattuned they were to the pulse of the voters regarding taxes in Prop. 13. Now this milk toast individual we have for a governor is trying to make points for his political future and remedy the mistakes of his advisors by coming up with ridiculous suggestions of how money from Prop. 13 should be used by private individuals. Our group which is nonpartisan is gravely disappointed with this man's actions. He lacks the status and the stature in our opinion to be re-elected.

No 'Gouger'

To the Editor:

Why must decent, fair landlords be penalized with rollbacks, rent freezes, etc. because of the deeds of rent gougers?

People like me, a 61-year-old widow. My husband used to make low rents possible by doing most of the repairs and improvements on our little one-bedroom triplex.

My tenants both have larger incomes than I. I work part-time due to ill health problems and pay large medical bills. They get everything on Medicare.

But they are good tenants. They've been here a long time and I have tried to keep the place nice, with low rents.

I SPENT quite a bit this year on improvements, expecting to raise rents in about September or October. The rents would still be low, but I will take a loss.

We hear only about the Irvine Company and other big landlords. I can't even compare with the senior citizen couple down the street that has five units. They too say it will be a hardship to return any money or have rollbacks.

Will the businesses who may have a tax saving (they don't know yet how much, as most of us don't know either), have a rollback in prices for consumers?

U.S. Tourists Leave Costly Japan

TOKYO (AP) American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors "Everything is too expensive"

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September

Tourists today were getting 192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that"

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Statistics released by the Japan Tourist Association indicate foreign visitors are spending fewer days in Japan. Tourists who spent nearly 14 days in this country in 1974 now stay about nine days, a survey showed.

The U.S. currency zigzagged in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market, dipping to 194.50 in the early afternoon and closing at 195.05. It closed at 195.525 Tuesday.

Volume was high at $870 million, with the central Bank of Japan accounting for possibly $200 million in an effort to brake the rise of the yen, bankers said.

The dollar plunged through the psychologically important 200-yen barrier Monday, and one trader at a Japanese bank commented today: "There aren't any psychological barriers left The next level will be 190 yen."

In another development, the United States recorded the smallest trade deficit in more than a year last month.

Sheriff Arrests Rival's Worker

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators.

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18 whose last known home address was in Mission, Viejo, and two juveniles a boy, 17, and a girl, 16

Gates said the 17-year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates' opponent in the November election

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' association or sheriff's department personnel.

Gates said the Omega firm has now been discharged from fund raising activities by the association and has no further connection with the Rusk campaign

Bennett was lodged in the county jail on burglary and theft charges. Gates said the two juveniles were taken to juvenile hall to face arraignment on identical charges and, in the case of the girl, for violation of probation.

HIS RESEARCH AIDED FIRST TEST TUBE BABY
Dr. Patrick Steptoe Has a Medical Breakthrough

'Test-tube' Girl, Mother Both Fine

OLDHAM, England (AP) Doctors say the five pound, 12 ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m Tuesday in Oldham's red-brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs Brown's uterus to develop normally.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick

Controversy Bubbles Up

Newport to Consider Water Woes Under Bluffs

Every year, the equivalent of 18 swimming pools worth of water flows through the ground under the Bluffs

The source of that water and the financial responsibility for getting rid of it are adding up to a headache for the city of Newport Beach

City councilmen are just beginning to study the problem in detail

But homeowners already have reached a few conclusions of their own They say:

The water was there long before the first home was ever built

The problem is caused by water that comes from outside the Bluffs

The homeowners don't think they should have to pay for the drains that are supposed to solve the problem

Councilmen currently are contemplating the second report they've commissioned in two years on the problem

The first report, made in 1976 by USC water geologist Horace Mann, was ordered when ground water caused erosion of the bluff line above the Upper Newport Bay, endangering a sewer line

Mann's report concluded that the problem might be controlled if landscape watering was reduced in the housing area

However, the seepage on the bluff line and around some homes continued Last December, councilmen ordered a more comprehensive study from the James Montgomery consulting engineering firm

That $26,200 report was paid for with $21,800 of city money and $4,400 from Holstein Industries, developers of the Bluffs The developer was included because the firm wants to put 14 more units in the area

According to the latest report, 250 acre feet of water flow through the area between Eastbluff Drive and the Upper Bay every year.

Bob Ramsey, the consultant who prepared the report, said about 50 acre feet come from the Bluffs itself The rest comes from the east side of Eastbluff Drive. He did not pinpoint the source of that water

An acre foot of water is 325,900 gallons, or the amount of water spread one foot deep over an acre

An average residential swimming pool holds 18,000 gallons.

Ramsey's report recommended that the city continue to monitor the water problem and that the homeowners in the area hire an irrigation specialist to further modify their plant watering habits

The report also recommended installation of a series of drains. A spokesman for homeowners indicated that they would not be willing to pay for the drains.

The spokesman, Robert Fox contends that the ground water problem has always existed in the Bluffs and that development plans were approved in spite of the problem.

Boat Blast Injures Pair Off Newport

Two Pasadena brothers were injured Tuesday night when a boat they were aboard exploded at the dock in Newport Beach.

A spokesman for the Newport Harbor Patrol said the explosion was reported at 9:06 p.m. at the Lido Peninsula yacht anchorage.

The 16-foot motorboat, owned by Sheldon Foreman of 225 Via Genoa, Newport Beach, sustained $4,000 damage in the mishap, according to patrolmen.

The two youths, Jeff and Greg Assas, were the only people on board the boat at the time of the mishap. Greg was treated and released from Hoag Memorial Hospital where Jeff was admitted and is listed in good contition today.

A Harbor Patrol spokesman said exact cause of the flash explosion is not known but investigators suspect it was touched off because gas had collected in the boat's bilge.

Tax Forms Rapped

Report Says They're Too Hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any taxpayer needed official confirmation, here it is, from the General Accounting Office: income tax forms are too difficult for a lot of Americans to understand.

Both the long and short 1040 forms are "written at a reading level beyond that of many taxpayers," the GAO said in a 118-page report released Tuesday.

The Internal Revenue Service, the GAO said, is more concerned with having its forms precisely reflect the tax laws than making language understandable to the average taxpayer.

"Certainly, the accuracy of the forms and instructions has no value unless people understand what is being said," according to the report prepared for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation.

Another stumbling block for many taxpayers, the GAO said, "is the disorganized and cluttered design of the forms and instructions."

The report, noting that the IRS is working on making the forms and instructions easier to read, added, "Even more can be done to improve readability without sacrificing technical accuracy."

The GAO panel of experts, which included a law professor, educators and a textbook publisher, recommended that the IRS establish a task force of writing and design experts to study improving the forms.

The IRS responded with a cautious endorsement, saying, "We agree that additional improvements can be made and that outside consultants may provide useful perspective and assistance . . . We will take all appropriate steps to achieve further simplification within a balanced tax administration program."

The report cited this question from a form sent in all tax packets to determine whether poor working families qualify for help in paying for educational costs:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S. in which you lived and which for the entire year (except for temporary absences for vacation, school, etc.) was also the home of (1) your child who was under 19 years of age or a full-time student OR (2) your dependent child who is disabled (See Pages 7 and 8).

The GAO suggested the question could be broken into three simpler questions:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S.?"

"Did you live in this home?"

"Was this also the home of your child for the entire year, except for short absences such as vacation or school?"

Death Camp Charge Ruled Inconclusive

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge allowed Feodor Fedorenko to retain his U.S. citizenship today despite accusations that he whipped and shot Jews as a guard in a Nazi death camp and failed to tell immigration authorities about it. He has denied committing any atrocities against Jews.

Calling Fedorenko a "victim of Nazi aggression," U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger ruled that the prosecution had not proved the accusations against the native Ukrainian. He had been accused of lying on naturalization papers when he became a U.S. citizen in 1949.

"The record on Fedorenko's conduct 35 years ago is inconclusive," Roettger wrote in his opinion.

The judge did not show up in court; his ruling was read by the clerk.

Roettger released his 54-page opinion five weeks after an emotional trial during which six Israeli survivors of the infamous Treblinka death camp tearfully testified that they saw Fedorenko torture and kill Jewish prisoners.

But at least two of the elderly witnesses vacillated on their identifications, and at one point the judge said he wondered if some witnesses had been coached.

Fedorenko, 71, was never formally charged under U.S. law with atrocities at the prison camp. But had he been stripped of his citizenship, he could have been deported and forced to stand trial in Europe on war-crimes charges.

During the trial, Fedorenko admitted he lied to get U.S. citizenship by claiming to be a Polish farmer forced to work as a laborer for the Germans. He said he served as a guard at Treblinka but denied killing or torturing Jews.

Rose's Batting Streak Goes To 39 Games

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose extended his modern National League record consecutive game hitting streak to 39 games this afternoon with a double leading off the fifth inning of the Cincinnati Reds' game against the New York Mets. (Earlier story, Page B1)

Rose, who broke Tommy Holmes' NL record streak of 37 games Tuesday night with a third-inning single, is one game shy of the third-longest streak in modern major league history, Ty Cobb's 40-game string in 1911.

The record is Joe DiMaggio's 56-game streak in 1941. Second on the list is George Sisler, with 41 games in 1922.

Rose grounded out to third base in the first inning in his first time at bat against Mets starter Nino Espinosa and walked on four pitches in the third inning before hitting a line drive up the alley in right-center for his double in the fifth.

BABY. . .

Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after conception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

The Daily Mail, which paid $600,000 for exclusive rights to the Browns' story, reported the father gasped when given a brief glimpse of his child and said:

"It's incredible, incredible . . . I'm not a religious man, but I thank God that I heard our little girl cry for the first time. No one can realize what this means to Lesley and myself."

Brown has a 17-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

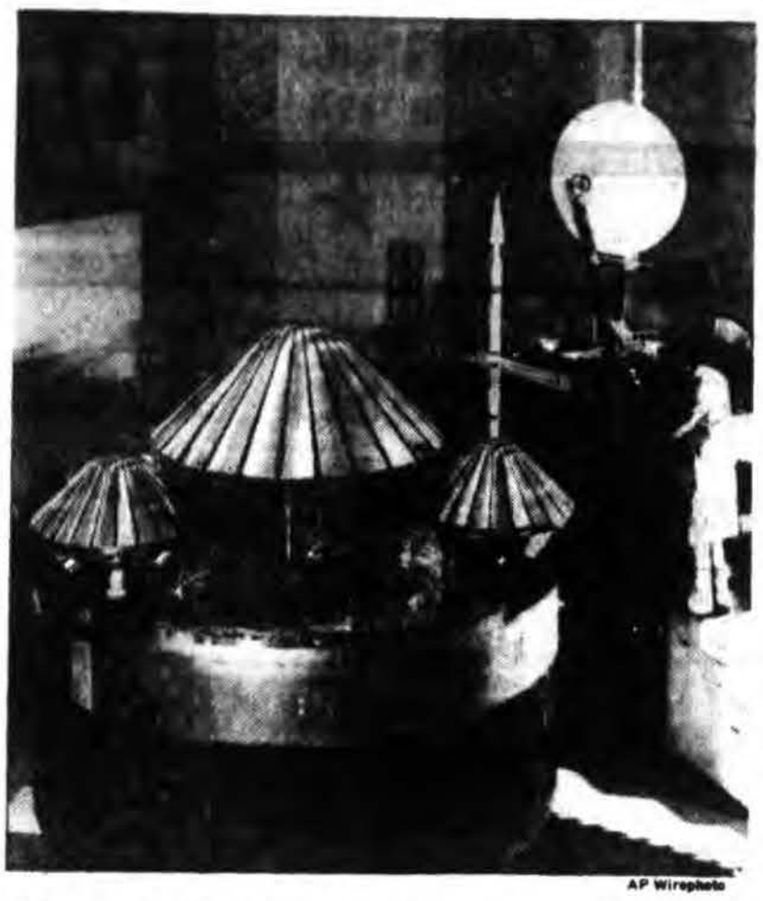

A hospital spokesman said the mother was "over the moon with joy." He said she and the baby would probably be able to go home to Bristol in about 10 days.

The doctors knew the baby's sex in advance from chromosomal tests, but Mrs. Brown told them not to tell her because "I don't want to be cheated of the final thrill."

The only problem that apparently arose in the latter stage of Mrs. Brown's pregnancy was a minor blood poisoning known as toxemia, but doctors said it was quickly brought under control.

The birth was expected to rekindle a fierce philosophical and ethical debate on the morality of conception outside a mother's body.

When Steptoe and Edwards successfully fertilized a human egg and produced a fetus in 1969, the Roman Catholic Church condemned it as an extension of "immoral" artificial insemination.

Marine Studies Lease Approved

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 50-year lease offering the Orange County Marine Institute the use of 3.8 acres of county land in Dana Point Harbor was approved on a 4-1 vote by county supervisors Tuesday.

The institute was created last year by supervisors and the county's four community college districts to develop a marine studies facility on the county site.

A 10,000-square-foot building is to be constructed on the harbor land with $400,000 in county tidelands funds and $50,000 each from the four community college districts.

Supervisors earlier withheld approval of the lease to make sure the college districts still would have funds to build the facility in light of financial cuts brought on by passage of Proposition 13.

Dr. Norman Watson, of the Coast Community College District, president of the institute's board of directors, reported Tuesday that the districts still intend to contribute their $50,000 shares.

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich cast the lone vote against the lease, saying he is worried about county funds going into a 10,000-quare-foot educational facility.

"I think the plan is perhaps more school-oriented than it is marine, museum or open space or park area and I just have some concerns," he said.

Supervisors Philip Anthony and Thomas Riley said the facility would be an asset to the county as a whole and deserved supervisors financial support.

In addition to the county's $400,000 contribution, the lease calls upon the county to pay for maintenance of the facility and janitorial expense. The institute is to finance the rest of its operation without county help.

Youth Jailed On Newport Burglary Rap

A San Dimas youth was jailed in Newport Beach early this morning after he allegedly tried without success to break into three ocean front homes.

Robert Steven Alexander, 20, is being held on suspicion of burglary, a charge that carries $10,000 bail.

Sgt. Darryl Youle said he and officer Jeff Roark were summoned to the 1700 block of West Ocean Front by residents reporting a prowler.

Youle said he surprised Alexander as he allegedly was trying to burglarize the home at 1722 W. Ocean Front. Youle and Roark captured Alexander after a two-block chase on foot.

Youle said an Ocean Front resident identified Alexander as the man she had ordered off her property just before calling police.

Schools' Food Fee To Rise

School lunches and a la carte foods will cost more this fall in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District.

Reacting to the post-Jarvis need to make the district's food services self-supporting, school trustees unanimously approved the food cost hikes Tuesday night.

High school students will now pay 70 cents for a hot lunch (an increase of 10 cents); middle school students, 60 cents (up 10 cents); and elementary students will pay a nickel more for what is now a 50-cent hot lunch.

A la carte sandwiches will increase by 10 or 20 cents as will "fast food specialties" like burritos, corn dogs and pizza.

The only items not affected by the price hikes are "frozen desserts" such as ice cream, juice bars and yogurt.

Last year the district's food services division operated on a budget of $1.9 million. However, the food services department will get about $200,000 less this year because of passage of Proposition 13, officials said.

This prompted a request for higher food prices to keep the food services department from taking a finanacial loss next school year.

WATER. . .

He was also critical of the priority listing of the drainage projects and with the fact that Ramsey included no cost estimate on the drains.

The drains were recommended for installation first at the source of leaks near homes, then underneath the greenbelts to capture irrigation water, then on the bluff face to halt erosion. The last priority was given to a drain along Eastbluff Drive to interrupt the source of 80 percent of the water that flows under the Bluffs.

Fox said the Eastbluff drain should be the first priority and suggested that once the flow was stopped from that area, "irrigation wouldn't be a problem."

He also made it clear that homeowners think the cost of any drains ought to be borne by the Irvine Company, as the original landowners, Holstein Industries and the city.

City Manager Robert Wynn said city staff members will prepare a report recommending future courses of action for councilmen.

"I suspect that whatever is going to be done is going to be expensive," Wynn commented.

$4,000 Taken In Newport

Newport Beach police today were investigating weekend burglary of two rooms at the Newporter Inn in which cash and jewelry worth nearly $4,000 were taken.

The break-ins were reported just before midnight Saturday by guests Nancy Dusthimer of Saratoga, Calif., and Sheralyn Hofstaiter of Florida.

Fido to Flush

Pet Potty to End Scooping?

MIAMI (AP) — Some cities and states, in an effort to combat dog and cat litter, have passed laws requiring owners to scoop up after their animals. Inventor Franklin Temel has come up with the second-generation device — a flush toilet for pets.

"When an idea like this hits you, you just light up like a firecracker," explained Temel, who spent eight years and $110,000 on his project.

The animal potty is a stall with a floor made of stainless steel slats. Underneath the floor are spray nozzles and a tank of water. It is surrounded on two sides by pipes, hoses and a fiberglass shell.

A bottled scent — a "terribly powerful stimulant" — attracts the animal to the toilet. Temel explained it took 18 months of observation, lab analyses and some personal sniffing to develop the right scent.

Temel estimates his animal toilet could be manufactured for under $250.

Pipeline Approval Granted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio has been granted permission by the federal government to build a pipeline on federal land to take Alaskan oil from Long Beach to Midland Texas for distribution to the Midwest.

Approved Tuesday, the permit will allow construction of about 50 miles on federal land in California, Arizona and New Mexico, according to Jack Lahr of the Bureau of Land Management here.

ACCORDING TO LAHR, the completed project could "alleviate the glut of oil on the West Coast" by making it available by way of the Midland to the Midwest.

SOHIO eventually plans to construct a 1,026-mile pipeline to Texas. The firm's next step is to reach agreement with El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Southern California Gas Co. for SOHIO to operate 800 miles of existing pipeline.

Both federal and state approval is then necessary for SOHIO to convert the existing natural gas pipeline to crude oil.

THE FIRM APPLIED for the federal permit in September 1975, and Robert Schaadt, a SOHIO representative in Long Beach, said, "This underscores the long lead time involved in getting these permits, and I think it raises serious questions about how the entire process could be shortened."

What Goes Up...

They were the second and third failures of the Tomahawk, which has undergone 32 tests.

Welfare Suspect 'Innocent'

COMPTON (AP) — A 33-year-old mother of four who allegedly collected nearly $300,000 in welfare payments after claiming to have more than 34 children has pleaded innocent to 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of fraud.

Superior Court Judge William Clay Tuesday ordered Barbara Jean Williams to appear for a pre-trial hearing Sept. 5.

BUT HER ATTORNEY, Carl Jones, said he would attempt to have the fraud charges dropped. Under a recent state Supreme Court ruling, prosecutors must try to obtain restitution before filing formal charges, Jones said.

Deputy District Attorney Ronald L. Wheeler said Mrs. Jones was not home when investigators went to ask for restitution.

"The information we had was that she was in flight," Wheeler said. "We left a demand letter for payment with her husband at her residence."

MRS. WILLIAMS is accused of bilking Los Angeles County out of about $290,000 since 1971. Authorities say she received $239,588 in welfare checks and as much as $50,000 in food stamps and medical aid.

Gas Plan a 'Lemon'?

Emergency Rationing Draws Criticism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials have taken their standby gasoline rationing plan for its first test run in car-crazy Southern California and have been told it may be a lemon.

Under terms of the rough draft, composed by the U.S. Department of Energy, motorists would receive an allotment of 45 gallons per month for each passenger car they own. Other vehicles would receive allotments proportionate to their mileage. Only "large recreational vehicles" — a still undefined term — would get no allotment.

Reaction to the plan came at a hearing Tuesday — the first on a national tour of 12 cities before the final proposal is decided in September. The panel was expected to hear more testimony here today.

Tram Won't Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Squaw Valley ski resort will not be issued a new permit to operate its tram until an exact cause is determined for an accident that killed four persons and injured 30 others, although a preliminary report blames violent blizzard winds.

The preliminary report, issued Tuesday, discounts mechanical failure as the cause for the April 15 tragedy, in which a cable sliced into the tram.

Pardon Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst should be pardoned, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has urged in a telegram to President Carter.

"Given the peculiar circumstances of her case, she has surely served sufficient time. It escapes me what purpose could be served by further incarceration," Dymally said in the telegram which was released Tuesday to the press.

Lawyer Rehired

YUBA CITY (AP) — Attorney Ronald F. Fahey, one of the original prosecutors in the Juan Corona murders case, was rehired Tuesday to work on the team that will handle Corona's retrial.

Corona, 44, was convicted in 1973 on charges of killing 25 farmworkers and burying their bodies in orchards near this city in Sutter County. But the conviction was overturned and a new trial was granted May 8 by the State Court of Appeal. A pretrial hearing for the new proceedings was scheduled for Aug. 3.

Plea Changed

PASADENA (AP) — Lori Andersen, convicted of murdering her tennis coach in a three-woman love triangle, now says she was not insane at the time of the killing and wants to be sentenced rather than face a sanity hearing.

Miss Andersen, 21, of Granada Hills, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity but withdrew that plea Tuesday, leaving Superior Court Judge Daniel L. Fletcher free to sentence her. Otherwise, the judge would have set a hearing date to determine her sanity.

Sentencing will take place Aug. 14.

Cliff Climber Dies in Fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man apparently slipped while trying to climb down steep cliffs to Blacks Beach and fell about 40 feet to his death, authorities say.

The coroner's office identified the victim Tuesday as Richard L. Powell, 36.

A Huntington Beach lifeguard who was surfing in the area notified police after he spotted the body on a ledge in an area known as Box Canyon and went to investigate.

Police and lifeguards brought the body down to the beach.

Jet Drops Fuel, Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan Am jumbo jet carrying 333 passengers to London lost power in an engine on takeoff from San Francisco International Airport and had to dump about 100,000 pounds of jet fuel before it turned around and landed safely.

OFFICIALS SAID the maneuver Tuesday night was not an "emergency landing." Although passengers were shook up, none were hurt, officials said.

The Boeing 747, bound nonstop for London, lost one of its four engines moments after takeoff at 8:45 p.m. It flew over land, dumped part of its full load of fuel in order to make it light enough to land, then touched down back at the airport.

THE PASSENGERS were taken back to the terminal, fed dinner and left just after midnight for London on another plane. Two of the passengers on the original flight changed their minds and did not board the second time, officials said.

Election Due in Beach Nudity Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The City Council is being asked to authorize a special election to restore legal nudity to Black's Beach.

A supporter said backers of the move have gathered 38,000 signatures on petitions, more than enough to get the measure on the November ballot.

In a vote last September, San Diegans rescinded a city ordinance allowing people to swim and sunbathe in the nude along the municipal beach below the cliffs of UC San Diego.

They still do by the thousands but quickly pull on swimming suits when officers with citations drive by.

Proposition 13 to Boost Home Prices?

LOS ANGELES (AP) Proposition 13 will not have a major effect on California's economy in the near future but may eventually put upward pressure on home prices, Crocker Bank said Tuesday.

"Proposition 13 is not going to be the dominant force in shaping our economy over the next two years," Crocker Chief Economist Harold C. Werner Jr. told reporters. "The general business cycle will be much more important."

WERNER SAID Proposition 13 would actually stimulate the state's economy over the next 12 months as individuals and businesses begin to spend some of their property tax savings.

That spending, coupled with the disbursement of the state's budget surplus, will increase overall income in the state over the next year, Werner said.

The economist said Proposition 13 may put upward pressure on home prices by slowing sales of existing homes, thus limiting supply.

County Island Annex in Motion

A couple of weeks ago, Newport Beach city councilman Don McInnis had some pretty harsh words for his colleagues. He accused them of being unconcerned about county control of a 52-acre island near Hoag Memorial Hospital while planning to fight the county over control of the county owned Dunes Aquatic Park.

McInnis, a resident of west Newport near the so-called county island, implied that his colleagues were dragging their feet on the issue located in his backyard while charging ahead with the problems at the Dunes.

No one can dispute that the county-controlled triangle near the hospital is a major source of problems because of the high density apartments county officials are allowing to go in there. But McInnis would appear to be guilty of a bit of grandstanding.

Councilmen haven't exactly been dragging their feet on the issue. Earlier this year, they initiated staff level talks between the city and county to set the stage for annexation of the island.

If those talks have dragged out, it's because the county's been moving at a leisurely pace. It appears likely now that councilmen will move ahead with annexation proceedings without the county's participation.

Should councilmen subsequently delay annexation efforts, we'd say McInnis' charges would be justified. But for now they seem a trifle premature.

Traffic Roadblock?

Monday, the Newport Beach City Council agreed to delay action on the administrative procedures to support the so-called traffic phasing ordinance.

Councilmen may be looking forward to their Aug. 14 meeting when they expect to finish the series of measures that have produced the new law. They also ought to be looking over their shoulders.

What they might see is the specter of litigation that has dogged previous city council efforts to make major changes in the way the city operates.

One recent memorable case involved the city and its efforts to reduce the density of the Versailles — then an apartment complex — that was going up near Hoag Memorial Hospital.

It was no coincidence that the attorney who successfully handled that case — the developer was hired by the Irvine Company to represent the firm in an appearance before the council earlier this month.

Whether the Irvine Company chooses to pursue the implied threat of litigation, or whether it's some other developer, it seems likely that councilmen can expect to find their traffic ordinance the subject of a lawsuit.

Cuts Need Balance

Budget priorities are the name of the game for Newport-Mesa Unified School District trustees the next two months as they face financial cutbacks forced by passage of Prop. 13.

Already, there have been some interesting contrasts.

Busing for high school students is out (perhaps with more cutbacks to come) and last week trustees decided to do away with free towels for gym students. This will save an estimated $62,000 and cause no substantial problem for students and parents.

Also, five top administrators voluntarily decided to give up their lease cars that are part of their contracts with the district.

But these benevolent gestures, in essence pay cuts, were substantially reversed by trustees' approval of a "transportation allowance" that will provide four of the administrators with $250 to $300 a month.

While it may be unfair to advocate a pay cut for administrators while teachers apparently remain on current salary schedules, there's something unsettling about giving transportation allowances to administrators and cutting transportation for students.

Boyd/'Tip'

By L.M. BOYD

Edward O'Neill, a baseball player in the 1880s, was so adept at hitting foul tips to force pitchers to walk him that his cohorts nicknamed him "Tip." It was in allusion to him that later nicknames likewise identified Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill as Tip.

The church building of old usually had a small door on its north side, the Devil's door it was called. It was left open during baptisms and communions to let the Devil out.

Jet lag affects you less when you fly west than when you fly east, and less than either when you fly north or south.

Q. "What breed of dog has the best eyesight?"

A. The greyhound.

Q. "What's the fastest possible rate of reading speed?"

A. About 900 w.p.m.

Q. "Why is the Soviet Union's 'Kremlin' so called?"

A. Means "fortress" in Russian.

The quaint conversationalists now refer to junk food as "kiddie litter."

In the speech of Tahiti, says our Language man, there is no word for orphan. And there are no orphanages there. If youngsters lose their parents, those children are taken in immediately by another family. They are so uncivilized, those Tahitians.

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each swam by its coloring. The perpendicular specimens, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, all swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

U.S. 'Secrets' on Soviet Ships?

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16, to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

The preliminary findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas . . . have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc-country merchant ships."

INDUSTRY sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government," the memo suggests, "that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 percent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 percent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

MOST SCOTCH whisky, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia" the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that precludes shipping by the U.S.S.R."

TOP COMMERCE Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

Official Car Policy Still Too Generous

To the Editor:

In my mind the practice of providing public officials (city, county, school district, etc.) with cars has always been a questionable one. With the passage of Proposition 13 there should no longer be any question about the practice. Public officials should use their own cars and be reimbursed for mileage only when they are on official business.

AS A teacher who must travel between schools during the day I am reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile. County supervisors are eligible for a $390 per month car allowance, or $4,680 a year. They would have to drive their personal car 27,529 miles per year at 17 cents a mile to justify this expense.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit's contention that cars have always been considered part of supervisor's salaries is interesting, but hard to accept in the light of Proposition 13. It is just as difficult, however, to accept the idea of a $390 monthly car allowance.

Supervisors should either have access to a pool car when on official business, or be reimbursed for use of their personal car while on official business on a mileage basis only (such as 17 cents per mile).

Transfer Rules

To the Editor:

In regard to your article of July 7, "Move Riles Teachers," it would greatly behoove district spokeswoman Jean Harmon to familiarize herself with the district's contract with the teachers before she comments about the district's privilege to decide who goes where.

The contract lists seven factors to be considered when the question of involuntary transfers arises (section 8.3.3).

It further states that the "provisions of 8.3.3 shall determine who is to be transferred in an overstaffing situation," and not the unilateral whim of the principal or district.

Council Secrecy

To the Editor:

Congratulations on your July 19 editorial about the seeming secrecy surrounding certain matters at the Newport Beach City Council. The Newport Center business community has watched the style of the new council unfold and shares your concern that the council's business be remembered as being the public's business.

We are also concerned that many facets of the new directions being taken by the council seem so orchestrated that they must be being pre-determined, even as to who is to introduce what thought.

OBVIOUSLY, the Newport Center Association is interested in the welfare of the business community in Newport Center. However, we are also interested in the welfare of residents of Newport Beach as they are affected by decisions made by their elected officials. We hope that the decisions made by the council will be prudent, fiscally sound, and respectful of the rights of all taxpayers.

The association salutes your responsible journalism and hopes you continue to express opinions that will hold the elected officials accountable to citizens and taxpayers.

Boat Taxes

To the Editor:

Gary Granville's quandary, July 16th, about the rate of taxation on boats and airplanes is nothing to quander about. Proposition 13 clearly states a 1 percent tax limitation on property. Boats and planes are property just like homes and business property. And the California Constitution states that all property must be taxed equally. That makes it very clear.

I hope auditor-controller Vic Heims understands this because B.O.A.T., Boat Owners Associated Together, are already planning a lawsuit if taxes are not applied equally to boats. Heims' admission that, "It's a very serious issue and the wrong move can be very costly to both the taxpayers and the (taxing) agencies," seems to neglect the admission that the taxing agencies are also the taxpayers agencies that they support through their taxes. So a wrong move by the agencies costs the taxpayers twice.

The seriousness of the issue deserves a serious investigation of how the law is to be applied.

Teacher Tribute

To the Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to pay tribute to a group of outstanding Newport-Mesa school teachers who are providing a great summer school program for our district children with less-than-fair compensation.

These teachers were scheduled to work at Paularino School and, after public programs were cancelled, voted unanimously to continue the full program privately at Southern California College rather than disappoint the community and leave the children with no place to go. By continuing to offer the full program, these teachers sacrificed the opportunity to maintain a reasonable salary with reduced staff.

Our children are experiencing an excellent skills program along with many special, exciting and fun classes that build physical, artistic and creative abilities. In addition, the staff voted to maintain an afternoon session for the benefit of working parents, again at their own cost. These teachers have also supplied all of their own materials and prizes.

Making Points

To the Editor:

Gov. Brown is a political opportunist who was telling us a few weeks ago that it would be disaster time if Prop. 13 passed. So were most publications including the Daily Pilot which I read religiously.

Now Gov. Brown is calling for landlords to pass on a so-called tax saving to tenants. Obviously he is doing this to make points with the renter voter group. In no uncertain terms he told us to vote for Prop. 8 along with the other bureaucrats.

I OWN four units in addition to the one I live in and it costs me over $200 a month out of pocket even with the Prop. 13 savings.

Our governor and his political crony advisors realize now how far unattuned they were to the pulse of the voters regarding taxes in Prop. 13. Now this milk toast individual we have for a governor is trying to make points for his political future and remedy the mistakes of his advisors by coming up with ridiculous suggestions of how money from Prop. 13 should be used by private individuals. Our group which is nonpartisan is gravely disappointed with the man's actions. He lacks the status and the stature in our opinion to be re-elected.

No 'Gouger'

To the Editor:

Why must decent, fair landlords be penalized with rollbacks, rent freezes, etc. because of the deeds of rent gougers?"

People like me, a 61 year-old widow. My husband used to make low rents possible by doing most of the repairs and improvements on our little one-bedroom triplex.

My tenants both have larger incomes than I. I work part time due to ill health problems and pay large medical bills. They get everything on Medicare.

But they are good tenants. They've been here a long time and I have tried to keep the place nice, with low rents.

I SPENT quite a bit this year on improvements, expecting to raise rents in about September or October. The rents would still be low, but I will take a loss.

We hear only about the Irvine Company and other big landlords. I can't even compare with the senior citizen couple down the street that has five units. They too say it will be a hardship to return any money or have rollbacks.

Will the businesses who may have a tax saving (they don't know yet how much, as most of us don't know either), have a rollback in prices for consumers?

U.S. Tourists Leave Costly Japan

TOKYO (AP) — American travelers, their wallets shrinking with the latest record low today in the value of the U.S. dollar, are saying "sayonara" to expensive Japan after spending fewer and fewer days here.

"I'm just not buying anything here," said Mrs. Peggy Steel, of Chico, Calif., echoing the plight of most American visitors. "Everything is too expensive."

Americans were being forced to ration spending money and give up meals and movies as the dollar hit another record low closing price of 195.05 yen — a 26 percent decline in value since last September.

Tourists today were getting 192.90 yen at major hotels for cash dollars, a 2 percent decrease in 48 hours.

While Tokyo has long been rated one of the world's most expensive cities the continuing decline of the dollar has proven an added blow to American travelers.

"The price of food is the thing that amazes us," said William Jackson, a tourist from Alameda, Calif. "You really have to budget when a cup of coffee costs $3. And steak at $75 for two, we can't afford that."

Even a traditional-style sushi dinner — raw fish — can cost $60 or more for two.

Single rooms at hotels used by foreign travelers range between $34 and $46.

Statistics released by the Japan Tourist Association indicate foreign visitors are spending fewer days in Japan. Tourists who spent nearly 14 days in this country in 1974 now stay about nine days, a survey showed.

The U.S. currency zigzagged in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market, dipping to 194.50 in the early afternoon and closing at 195.05. It closed at 195.525 Tuesday.

Volume was high at $870 million, with the central Bank of Japan accounting for possibly $200 million in an effort to brake the rise of the yen, bankers said.

The dollar plunged through the psychologically important 200-yen barrier Monday, and one trader at a Japanese bank commented today: "There aren't any psychological barriers left. The next level will be 190 yen."

In another development, the United States recorded the smallest trade deficit in more than a year last month.

Theft Suspects Nabbed

Sheriff Jails Rival's Fund-raiser

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three suspects who allegedly collected checks promised to an Orange County Deputy Sheriff's Association fund-raising campaign and at the same time picked up the contributors valuables have been jailed by sheriff's investigators.

Sheriff Brad Gates, announcing the arrests today, identified the suspects as Michael Bennett, 18, whose last known home address was in Mission Viejo, and two juveniles: a boy, 17, and a girl, 16.

Gates said the 17-year-old suspect was an employee of Omega, Inc., a Laguna Beach company used by the deputy sheriffs group to raise funds for the campaign of Sheriff's Lt. Lauren Rusk, Gates' opponent in the November election.

He alleged that Bennett masterminded the burglary ring from his camper truck which was halted July 12 in the Laguna Hills area in what officers believed was a stolen vehicle situation.

Officers said they found cameras and jewelry hidden throughout the truck, mostly in the lining of the vehicle, while they were verifying that Bennett did indeed own the truck.

At this point, Gates said, it is believed that the trio and another suspect who is being sought today committed 17 south county burglaries involving $15,000 in property.

Gates said about $10,000 of that property was stolen while the trio pursued leads given them by Omega. He said property valued at $5,000 was taken from homes which had not responded to the Omega campaign.

Gates said all the burglarized homes were in the Laguna Hills and El Toro areas.

He said a number of Leisure World residents were among the victims and that one elderly lady lost a diamond ring valued at $6,000 after the trio visited the premises.

Gates said the connection of the alleged burglars to a campaign mounted in support of his November opponent had nothing to do with his calling a press conference today.

And he said he hoped that publicity stemming from the arrests would not reflect unfavorably on the deputies' as-

'Test Tube' Girl, Mother Both Fine

OLDHAM, England (AP) — Doctors say the five-pound, 12-ounce British girl believed to be the world's first test-tube baby is "quite normal" and that mother and daughter are in excellent condition.

The baby, nine days premature, was delivered by Caesarean section to 30-year-old Lesley Brown at 11:47 p.m. Tuesday in Oldham's red-brick general hospital.

The father, 38-year-old truck driver Gilbert John Brown, chain-smoked in a waiting room outside the fourth-floor operating room. Hospital officials said he was close to tears when told he had a daughter.

British specialists hailed the birth as a major medical breakthrough for women unable to have children because of irreparable defects in their physical makeup.

But they cautioned that the safe birth of Mrs. Brown's daughter does not guarantee an immediate solution to the problems of infertile women.

Because a blockage in Mrs. Brown's fallopian tubes prevented normal conception, the baby was conceived by removing an egg from one of her ovaries and fertilizing it in a laboratory with her husband's sperm. After five days of nourishment in the test tube, it was planted in Mrs. Brown's uterus to develop

Laguna's Police Chief Fined $500

Laguna Beach Police Chief John Sparks, who returns to duty Monday, was fined $500 Tuesday for beating a fellow bar patron.

Sparks, who pleaded no contest (nolo contendere) to one count of battery, was sentenced in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

Sparks, 42, was involved in a bar fight June 29. He reportedly pushed a long-stemmed carnation into the face of a fellow bar patron before shoving a table against the man's chest and pounding him several times in the face.

Deputy District Attorny Ron Kreber said the plea of nolo contendere is the same as a plea of guilt, "but the legal effect of this plea means that the guilt admission cannot be used in a civil case."

That would presumably prevent Costa Mesa truck driver Delbert Mathieson, the victim in the bar fight, from using prior court testimony should he sue the police chief and city.

Kreber said he originally sought jail time for the then-suspended police chief, as well as a fine.

"But after review of similar (battery) cases which occurred in bars with only minor injuries sustained by the victims, we observed that the courts never sentenced anyone to jail on a first offense," Kreber said.

"So I felt a large fine was more in order."

He said he felt the $500 fine was unusually high, "but we wanted to be sure we weren't accused of making allowances for the fact he is a high-ranking police officer."

The action Tuesday in Judge Richard Orozco's Santa Ana courtroom, comes less than two weeks after South County Municipal Court judges asked that the case be transferred to the central court.

Fido to Flush

Pet Potty to End Scooping?

MIAMI (AP) — Some cities and states, in an effort to combat dog and cat litter, have passed laws requiring owners to scoop up after their animals. Inventor Franklin Temel has come up with the second generation device — a flush toilet for pets.

"When an idea like this hits you, you just light up like a firecracker," explained Temel, who spent eight years and $110,000 on his project.

The animal potty is a stall with a floor made of stainless steel slats. Underneath the floor are spray nozzles and a tank of water. It is surrounded on two sides by pipes, hoses and a fiberglass shell.

A bottled scent — a "terribly powerful stimulant" — attracts the animal to the toilet. Temel explained it took 18 months of observation, lab analyses and some personal sniffing to develop the right scent.

Temel estimates his animal toilet could be manufactured for under $250.

Child Care Study Wins County OK

Disclaiming any part in "socialized child care," lame duck Orange County Supervisor Laurence Schmit cast the lone vote against further study of county aid to day care facilities Tuesday.

The subject was brought before supervisors in a report from the county's Commission on the Status of Women which charged that the county lags far behind in providing its residents with child care facilities.

The report noted, for instance, that in the 1976-77 fiscal year, San Diego County spent $2 million in aid to day care facilities while Orange County spent $52,000.

The report contained a list of 28 recommendations aimed at improving child care services for working single parents in Orange County. Supervisors referred it to a county committee studying youth services.

The list was gathered by the commission on women during a recent day-long seminar that drew 75 child care providers and interested citizens.

The suggestions range from calling upon supervisors to create a model day care center for the South County to having industry develop day care centers for employees to asking government to ease licensing rules and other restrictions for child care facilities.

"Orange County has lagged behind comparable counties in receiving its share of state and federal funds for child care and development programs," said Commission Chairwoman Pauline Rangel.

Lake Mission Viejo Finally Filling Up

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Water is flowing through a new, $5 million Mission Viejo Co. pipeline from San Juan Capistrano this week to "top off" Lake Mission Viejo.

The 11-mile-long pipeline, under construction since last fall and delayed because of heavy rains, was planned originally to fill the entire 125-acre recreational lake when state officials cut off supplies of northern California water during the recent three-year drought.

Following heavy rains and snows in northern California, the state re-evaluated the filling project in February and ruled that the lake could be filled with Colorado River water without interruption of service to other southern California water customers.

Subsequently, 1.2 billion gallons of water has been pumped into the private Mission Viejo community lake, which opened to area residents in June, according to Bill Knitz, Santa Margarita Water district manager.

Water being pumped through the new pipeline from the San Juan (underground) basin will fill the last six inches of the lake — about 222,000 gallons — and be used in testing the line before it is turned over to the water district by the Mission Viejo Company, Knitz said.

That operation, he added, is expected to be completed by the middle of next week.

The Mission Viejo Company and the San Juan Basin Authority agreed last year to the pipeline project which is to pump 23 million gallons of low-quality water from beneath the San Juan Capistrano area to Mission Viejo.

Basin Authority officials view the project as the first step toward a news usable water supply by allowing rain flows to filtrate into the partially emptied basin, Knitz said.

When Lake Mission Viejo is filled, Knitz said this morning, the San Juan water will be directed into Santa Margarita

Anaheim Envisions Windfall From Rams

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

By the time the Anaheim City Council approved a pact Tuesday afternoon that will bring the Los Angeles Rams to Orange County in 1980, football had taken a back seat to high finance and real estate. (Related story Page B1.)

The high finance involved an estimated $150 million worth of development in the Anaheim Stadium area as well as football tickets priced at $15 a head and game parking at $3 a car.

The real estate involved 95 city-owned acres surrounding the stadium, plans for eight-story office buildings, other commercial-retail development and a 475-room hotel.

From the city council's viewpoint, Anaheim is in a "can't lose" position.

The city will sponsor $22 million worth of municipal revenue bonds to provide the money needed to add 27,000 seats to Anaheim Stadium.

That bond debt will be repaid from the estimated $1.8 million annually the city will receive from the football enterprise at the stadium.

As a matter of fact, revenue estimates indicated the city will get $300,000 a year more in income than will be needed to retire the bonds.

Anaheim's Rams revenue will come from its 7½ percent share of gate receipts as well as its 50 percent of parking and concession income at the stadium.

Budget Meet Set Tonight

Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees will conduct a special budget study session at 7 o'clock tonight in district offices at 25631 Diseno Drive in Mission Viejo.

Members of the public and district interest groups will be able to address trustees on all proposed budget items in the $33.7 million spending package.

Trustees must approve a final budget by Aug. 10.

Non-teachers Lose Jobs

90 Cut; Capo Schools Hope to Rehire Some

More than 90 non-teachers will be laid off from the Capistrano Unified School District as a result of Proposition 13-imposed cutbacks, but some employees may be reinstated if funds become available over the next school year.

Most personnel cutbacks centered on part-time or classified employees. So-called certificated employees — administrators, teachers and counselors, for example — suffered a loss of some supplementary pay in the round of budget reductions.

Largest cutbacks involved 34 part-time teacher aides, 31 regular aides and three connected with senior high school opportunity classes that were eliminated.

The District's custodial ranks were reduced by 20 positions, some of which are not filled now.

Eight groundskeepers also were eliminated under the budget cuts.

According to district officials, some custodians could be reinstated depending on income received through community use of school facilities.

Clerical assistants, about half of them part-time, also felt the brunt of post-Jarvis spending cutbacks.

Fifteen full-time clerical positions will be eliminated while 14 part-time positions will not be funded next year.

Teachers affected by program cutbacks, such as elimination of opportunity classes, will be placed back into regular classroom teaching.

An extra six administration positions, recommended by a study for enlarging the district's administrative staff, will not be included next year as originally anticipated.

Some teachers could receive less pay next year due to the slashing of so-called supplementary pay for additional jobs, such as driver training and serving as department chairman.

Edison Walkout Settled

A 10-week strike at Southern California Edison Company power plants at Huntington Beach and San Onofre and at eight other Southern California locations was reported settled early today

Edison spokesman Stanley Cann said that nearly 1,110 members of the Utility Workers Union of America, Local 246, ratified new terms of the contract this week

He said that both union and Edison negotiators were still in the process of consummating the agreement this morning.

Cann said that terms of the new agreement were sketchy but that he expected the power station workers to return to their jobs later this week

The striking workers maintain and repair power units. They went on strike May 10 when they balked at an Edison proposal to place them on a rotating seven-day work schedule in which they would work weekends without overtime pay

The Edison spokesman said that it was his understanding that the strikers agreed to the new work schedule

The union posted pickets at Huntington Beach, San Onofre, two Long Beach stations, Ormand Beach, Mojave, El Segundo, Redondo Beach, Oxnard and Mandalay near Ventura

About 500 members of the Edison supervisory personnel worked 12-hour shifts to main tain the power plants in the absence of the utility worker union members.

A series of mischievous attacks directed against non-strike Edison employees was reported last month.

There were 125 members of the striking union at San Onofre and another 66 at Huntington Beach

The facility in Huntington Beach has a capacity of producing 990 megawatts of electricity and can serve a population of about 750,000

Tax Forms Rapped

Report Says They're Too Hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any taxpayer needed official confirmation, here it is, from the General Accounting Office: income tax forms are too difficult for a lot of Americans to understand.

Both the long and short 1040 forms are "written at a reading level beyond that of many taxpayers," the GAO said in a 118-page report released Tuesday

The Internal Revenue Service, the GAO said, is more concerned with having its forms precisely reflect the tax laws than making language understandable to the average taxpayer.

"Certainly, the accuracy of the forms and instructions has no value unless people understand what is being said," according to the report prepared for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation.

Another stumbling block for many taxpayers, the GAO said, "is the disorganized and cluttered design of the forms and instructions."

The report, noting that the IRS is working on making the forms and instructions easier to read, added, "Even more can be done to improve readability without sacrificing technical accuracy."

The GAO panel of experts, which included a law professor, educators and a textbook publisher, recommended that the IRS establish a task force of writing and design experts to study improving the forms.

The GAO suggested the question could be broken into three simpler questions:

"Did you pay more than half the cost of keeping up a home in the U.S.?"

"Did you live in this home?"

"Was this also the home of your child for the entire year, except for short absences such as vacation or school?"

Nazi Guard 'A Victim'

Judge Rules Death Camp Torture Unproven

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge allowed Feodor Fedorenko to retain his U.S. citizenship today despite accusations that he whipped and shot Jews as a guard in a Nazi death camp and failed to tell immigration authorities about it. He has denied committing any atrocities against Jews.

Calling Fedorenko a "victim of Nazi aggression," U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger ruled that the prosecution had not proved the accusations against the native Ukrainian. He had been accused of lying on naturalization papers when he became a U.S. citizen in 1949.

"The record on Fedorenko's conduct 35 years ago is inconclusive," Roettger wrote in his opinion.

The judge did not show up in court; his ruling was read by the clerk.

Roettger released his 54-page opinion five weeks after an emotional trial during which six Israeli survivors of the infamous Treblinka death camp tearfully testified that they saw Fedorenko torture and kill Jewish prisoners.

But at least two of the elderly witnesses vacillated on their identifications, and at one point the judge said he wondered if some witnesses had been coached.

Fedorenko, 71, was never formally charged under U.S. law with atrocities at the prison camp. But had he been stripped of his citizenship, he could have been deported and forced to stand trial in Europe on war-crimes charges.

During the trial, Fedorenko admitted he lied to get U.S. citizenship by claiming to be a Polish farmer forced to work as a laborer for the Germans. He said he served as a guard at Treblinka but denied killing or torturing Jews. Defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy argued that Fedorenko lied because he didn't want to return to the Soviet Union.

Fedorenko is one of a number of persons recently charged by federal officials with falsely concealing Nazi pasts when they entered the United States.

A Polish immigrant, Frank Walus, was recently found guilty by a judge in Chicago of lying to U.S. authorities about activities as a Gestapo agent who took part in several murders. He has been stripped of citizenship and is subject to deportation proceedings, but he has appealed the conviction.

Trustee At SVUSD Harassed?

Spraying of an obscene phrase on the family car is the latest episode in what Loa Young sees as harassment resulting from positions she has taken as a trustee of Saddleback Valley Unified School District.

The incident happened about 11:45 p.m. Friday, the trustee said. A man in his mid-fifties drove up and waited while a teen-age boy sprayed the words on the hood of her husband's car with shaving cream. Mrs. Young's son chased the two but was unable to identify them, she said.

Mrs. Young said she reported the incident to the Sheriff's Department but was told no action could be taken because no damage was done.

"I do attribute it to my being on the school board and the positions I've taken," she said.

The trustee also said she has been receiving about five anonymous phone calls daily on her private work line. The caller waits until she answers and then hangs up.

Mrs. Young has supported a recall move directed against three other board trustees and has been an ardent supporter of Superintendent Richard Welte, who has been strongly criticized by the board majority.

RAMS. . .

According to the preliminary city-Rams agreement, football fans will pay $15 each for the best 42,000 stadium seats and $12 each for the 28,000 seats that aren't so choice.

No price was mentioned for the 60 to 80 special enclosed box suites that will be part of the expanded stadium.

Real estate became prominent in the council's unanimous approval of the preliminary agreement with plans for development of the city's 95 stadium-adjacent acres.

As the Boston-based development firm Cabot, Cabot and Forbes develops the land, the city's lease take will be $8,000 an acre.

Or, the Rams-developer consortium can buy the land for from $80,000 to $100,000 an acre.

In either event, city revenue will be stepped up by virtue of having privately owned structures built on property that is not now on the tax rolls.

Mayor John Seymour also pointed out that city revenues will gain through the increase in commercial activity resulting from the development.

Seymour praised the agreement as "a step that moves this city ahead as well as something that will be of great benefit to all of Orange County and the county's economy."

He predicted the Ram move will add 6,000 permanent jobs to county payrolls.

Niguel Kidnap-rape Suspect Arrested

State officers arrested a 25-year-old New York man Tuesday who was sought by Orange County Sheriff's officers following the kidnap-rape of a Laguna Niguel woman.

Booked into Orange County Jail later Tuesday was Richard Del Ostia, described by Sheriff's investigators as a transient, also known as Richard Davidson and Richard Kirsch

Del Ostia is charged with kidnapping, burglary, auto theft and rape and is being held in lieu of $25,000 bail

Sheriff's officers said the man was arrested when he emerged from a Department of Motor Vehicles office in South Los Angeles.

They said state law enforcement officers originally cited the illegally parked car allegedly driven by Del Ostia and then checked reports to determine that it was stolen.

The car was reported stolen when a man entered the apartment of a 23-year-old woman late Monday, allegedly took $27 from her, forced her into her roommate's car and drove her to Laguna Beach where the rape occurred

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two men described as prospective members of Hell's Angels motorcycle club have been sentenced to state prison.

The state said Tuesday they plotted to kill an investigator for the district attorney, but a conspiracy charge was dropped.

Water Bonds Sale Given State Okay

The Santa Margarita Water District has received permission from the state to sell $4.2 million in bonds to provide a water system for the Coto de Caza community southeast of O'Neill Park.

Bill Knitz, district manager, said he expects the bonds to sell Aug. 1. The bonds were authorized by voters in Improvement District 2W earlier this year and approved for sale by the Secretary of State's office last week.

Coto de Caza Company, a subsidiary of Great Southwest Corp., plans 2,000 homes on 5,500 acres.

The water district already supplies water to 400 lots in the community. Knitz said about 200 single-family homes have been built, are under construction or are awaiting plan approvals.

increased statewide, the commission report said. Orange County agencies haven't contributed enough in local dollars to attract state and federal child care grants.

Data supplied by Nancy Claxton, coordinator of child care centers for the Orange County Department of Education, showed that statewide there are an average of 13 child care facilities per assembly district.

Yet, in Orange County, there are an average of just 3.83 per assembly district, she said.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit voted against sending the report on, however, contending it smacked of "socialized child care."

"It appears to me the bottom line here is to remove child care from the home and give it to the state," he said.

Supervisors Chairman Thomas Riley disagreed, noting many of the recommendations call on industry to help working mothers through flexible work schedules or on-site child care centers.

LAKE. . .

Water District's irrigation system for watering most of Mission Viejo's roadside slopes, golf courses and parks.

Eventually, the water will be mixed with fresh Metropolitan Water District water and effluent from the water district's new $3 million sewage treatment plant for irrigation uses, Knitz said.

The treatment plant, now in its testing phase, is expected to begin operation in October when the $5 million Oso Dam is completed on Oso Creek to form a holding basin, he said.

Surprisingly, said Knitz, the water being pumped from beneath San Juan Capistrano is of better quality than earlier tests indicated. He said the water is rated at 1,000 TDS (Total Disolved Solids), rather than the original 1,300 TDS.

State regulations require water to be rated no higher than 750 TDS for domestic use.

The birth was the culmination of 12 years of experimentation and research by Dr. Patrick Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge University physiologist. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brown wants to name the baby Patricia, after Steptoe.

The British government's Medical Research Council said as far as it knows, the Brown baby is the first born after conception outside the mother's body. A spokesman said there has never been any substantive proof of reports that three test-tube babies are alive, two in Britain and one in Italy. And the medical profession put no credence in the claim of an Italian doctor in 1961 that he developed 27 test-tube children.

'Knee Deep'

Swarming Mayflies Shut Down Bridge

PORTAGE, Wis. (AP) — Newly hatched mayflies swarmed "knee deep" onto a bridge over the Wisconsin River, forcing the structure to be temporarily closed while crews used a road-grading machine to clear the insects away.

"A couple cars got stuck. One had to be towed away," Ken Manthey, Portage police dispatcher, said today.

He said the car that was towed off "was completely covered up to the hood."

The trouble began Tuesday night after bridge lights which have not been used in recent days were inadvertently turned on, Manthey said. They apparently attracted the mayflies, which live only a short time after hatching in the water.

Manthey said the seasonal hatch of mayflies was considered the heaviest in years at Portage.

He said some insects landed on the middle portion of the two-lane Wisconsin 33 bridge, but most gathered at either end of the structure, "knee deep in a lot of places."

Police officers were called to the scene and traffic in both directions was halted while the cleanup efforts got under way. One lane of traffic was soon opened, but it was two hours before officers left the scene, with city workers still cleaning up, Manthey said.

At the nearby Columbia County Fair, "most of the people left early" as the insects moved into the brightly lit fairgrounds, Manthey said the fair closed earlier than scheduled.

Mayflies clung to buildings and electrical signs were covered by a layer of the insects today.

Army Grows Pot Garden

KING CITY, Calif. (AP) — Nearly 2,000 three-foot-tall marijuana plants were discovered growing on a well-tended plot here, right under the nose of the Army.

Agents of the Army's Criminal Investigation Detachment began a ground search of Fort Hunter Liggett's 166,535 acres Tuesday in hopes of sighting more of the illicit greenery, according to Sumner Wilson, public information officer for Fort Ord, which administers Hunter Liggett.

Army agents figured the street value of the grass at $108,000.

Mike Benefit (right) Runs the Cat's Eye, a Throwback to 1960s Head Shops

Cat Thrives on Curiosity

Clemente 'Head Shop' Recalls Flowery '60s

By WILLIAM HODGE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A fortyish man in plaid Bermuda shorts and tennis shoes pauses on a San Clemente sidewalk and eyes a copy of "High Times" magazine — a journal for marijuana smokers — in the shop window.

Curious at what he sees within minutes of former president Richard Nixon's house, the man continues his hesitant gait, pauses again and stares into the shop door at black-light posters, exotic tapestries and incense racks.

A sweet fragrance of strawberry musk greets his nostrils.

"Can I help you, sir," asks a younger, conservative looking man from the store's interior.

"No. . . ." the man in shorts mumbles as though interrupted from deep thought. "Just looking."

The man turns and continues walking north on San Clemente's main drag, El Camino Real.

"We get those kind of people coming by here all the time," says Mike Benefit, clerk of the Cat's Eye. "The majority of people who come in here are curiosity seekers."

And people might well be curious about Benefit's shop located between a vacant lot and the former headquarters of a spiritual reader.

That's because the Cat's Eye is a throwback to the flower power notions of the 60s. Benefit's establishment is a "head shop," so dubbed in the 1960s because of its specialization in apparatuses used mostly for marijuana and hashish smoking.

The psychedelic markets were representative of a lifestyle, a new way of thinking for America's young.

Head shops flourished everywhere in the 1960s; in the 1970s few can be found, primarily because the paraphernalia business has been absorbed by gigantic record store chains that include pipes, papers and other smoker's incidentals.

And young people's lifestyles have changed.

But the Cat's Eye does not sell records.

"We sell smoking accessories," the 34-year-old Texas native says. "What kind of tobacco people put in those accessories is up to them.

"We can't govern moralistic values," Benefit insists. "But we don't condone it (marijuana smoking) in any way."

Glass cases hold various models of pipes and so-called "roach clips," used for holding the tiny butt of a marijuana cigarette.

One feature is a "Saturday Night Special," an attachment for pipes that resembles a revolver's cylinder and provides six bowls instead of one.

Shelves showcase other hand-blown glass pipes carrying names like U.S. Bongs, with a cartoon of Uncle Sam on them.

"It takes a lot of time to make these things — they're artistic like paintings," Benefit says of the paraphernalia. "We buy some of these from local artists."

The shop also carries underground comic books like the "Fabulous Furry Freak Brothers," a spinoff from San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury days.

The establishment appears to have been caught in a time warp, suddenly finding its location in post-1960 San Clemente.

But despite the common belief that only young people would avail themselves of the shop's services, Benefit said the clientele of the Cat's Eye is varied.

"We get lawyers, doctors and other professionals," Benefit said. "You have to constantly change your way of thinking because people who come in here are on different levels."

Music of the Kinks, a circa-1964 rock and roll band, floats out from two speakers in the store.

"Don't want to spend my life, living in a rock and roll fantasy . . . Don't want to spend my life living on the edge of reality . . ."

Benefit is defensive about questions that imply the shop is engaging in an illegal business.

A National Federation of Independent Businesses plaque hangs near a "Stoned Again" black-light poster in the shop. Benefit points out that the business is also a member of the local chamber of commerce.

"We don't do anything illegal," he says. "It's like selling stationery.

"They're (the customers) getting their services here just as though they were going down to Thrifty's."

Dana Harbor

Marine Studies Lease Approved

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 50-year lease offering the Orange County Marine Institute the use of 3.8 acres of county land in Dana Point Harbor was approved on a 4-1 vote by county supervisors Tuesday.

The institute was created last year by supervisors and the county's four community college districts to develop a marine studies facility on the county site.

A 10,000-square-foot building is to be constructed on the harbor land with $400,000 in county tidelands funds and $50,000 each from the four community college districts.

Supervisors earlier withheld approval of the lease to make sure the college districts still would have funds to build the facility in light of financial cuts brought on by passage of Proposition 13.

Dr. Norman Watson, of the Coast Community College District, president of the institute's board of directors, reported Tuesday that the districts still intend to contribute their $50,000 shares.

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich cast the lone vote against the lease, saying he is worried about county funds going into a 10,000-quare-foot educational facility.

"I think the plan is perhaps more school-oriented than it is marine, museum or open space or park area and I just have some concerns," he said.

Supervisors Philip Anthony and Thomas Riley said the facility would be an asset to the county as a whole and deserved supervisors financial support.

In addition to the county's $400,000 contribution, the lease calls upon the county to pay for maintenance of the facility and janitorial expense. The institute is to finance the rest of its operation without county help.

Truck Kills Coast Man

FRESNO (AP) — A Seal Beach man has died of injuries suffered when he was struck by a tow truck last month in Yosemite National Park, park authorities reported.

The Fresno County coroner's office identified the victim as Alexander Mazen, 81, of 1602 Monterey Road. He died Tuesday.

The Yosemite Park and Curry Co. tow truck struck Mazen June 27 when he stepped into a crosswalk at the east end of Wawona tunnel on State Route 41, said Herbie Sansom, park spokesman.

Drunken Driving

Charges Dismissed Against Mardian

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Drunken driving charges filed against Dana Point restaurateur Robert Charles Mardian Jr. were dismissed Tuesday as the prosecution closed its case in his Orange County Superior Court trial.

Defense attorney Marshall Schulman successfully argued that the procsecution had offered no evidence to sustain the allegation that Mardian was drunk behind the wheel of his silver Ferrari on June 5, 1977.

He will continue to defend his client on the remaining charges of reckless driving.

Mardian, 30, of 3324 Atlantic Ave., Laguna Niguel, admitted that he was the driver of the car which skidded onto the sidewalk near the entrance to Doheny State Park and plowed into a 13-year-old boy who was wheeling his bicycle along the cycle path.

Michael Dawes of Dana Point suffered serious injuries, many of which will impair him for life. He remained in a coma for two months following the accident.

But Judge Kenneth E. Lae agreed with Schulman that he had not heard sufficient evidence in the non-jury trial to prove that Mardian was under the influence of drinks he allegedly consumed that morning at two Dana Point bars.

California Highway Patrolmen called to the accident scene admitted in court that they did not compel Mardian to undergo breath and blood tests at the accident scene.

They testified that they were under the impression that Mardian's passenger, Larry Hall, 23, was the driver of the car.

Hall, testifying as a prosecution witness, told Judge Lae that he was the passenger in the car that another witness said was traveling at about 60 m.p.h. when it passed his car on Del Obispo Street.

It was alleged that Mardian had several drinks at two bars, including shots of 90 proof rum, before he headed in the direction of Doheny State Park with Hall in the passenger seat.

Judge Lae's ruling means that the maximum conviction available now to the prosecution is on the charges of reckless driving.

If convicted, Mardian could be sent to the county jail for six months.

The Dawes family has sued Mardian, who is the son of Watergate figure Robert Mardian, for $1 million in damages. Representatives of their law firm are attending the criminal trial.

Deputy Sheriffs Win Vote in Bargaining

County supervisors and the Orange County Association of Deputy Sheriffs settled their differences out of court Tuesday.

Supervisors agreed that association members could select their own contract bargaining agent at an election in October.

The board's action, supported by Sheriff Brad Gates, ends a two-year-old controversy over who should represent the deputies — the deputies association or the Orange County Employees Association.

County officials contended the association violated county rules two years ago when they came in one month late with a request to create a new bargaining unit.

They took their case to Orange County Superior Court and won but the ruling was appealed by the county in the 4th District Court of Appaeal.

Now time has resolved the issue, county Personnel Director Bert Scott said Tuesday.

The two-year county contract covering deputies and most other county employees will expire next summer. And that means the deputies can begin the process of creating their own bargaining unit.

Gates said he supported the idea that "those who place their lives on the line" in the course of their work should be able to select their own contract bargaining representative.

Dogs Attack 3 Kids in LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three young children were bitten on the legs when two Doberman pinschers escaped through an open gate and attacked them, sheriff's deputies said.

Two youngsters — Darryl Buchanan, 5, and Glenn Ford, 2, were hospitalized after the attack Tuesday. The third, La Shone Bonam, 8, was bitten on the ankle but wasn't hospitalized.

Sheriff's Sgt. Larry Wilson said the children's parents tried to shoot the dogs during the attack. The animals were taken to the county pound. Their owner was not held or cited, Wilson said.

Vegas Bingo Pot $35,000

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A religious organization based in San Marcos, a northern San Diego County community, has announced plans for a $35,000 bingo game tonight.

The Serbian Orthodox Monastery of St. Petka, trying to raise funds for a church, will charge a $20 admission price tag for 11 game cards and a $5-per-card additional charge.

Jeanne Jacoby, a Las Vegas publicist hired to promote the game, said Tuesday four church members mortgaged their homes to raise the $35,000 prize.

His Home's a Real Zoo

350 Animals in Yard; City Raising Stink

CONCORD (AP) — The roars, growls, grunts, cheeps, coos and bleats coming from Duane Ripley's backyard zoo — along with the flies and the smells — have sent this quiet suburban city to court to have him move his 350-critter menagerie or shut it down.

But the 38-year-old Ripley says simply, "I want a zoo. It is my sole purpose for existing."

Besides, he said Tuesday, Contra Costa County has no other zoo but his, and he vowed to defend it.

Believe it or not, Ripley's pet collection includes two African lions named Norman and Rainy Day, two leopards, four alligators, three ostriches, a bear, a llama, seven deer, four sheep, 48 quail, 26 pigeons, a score of monkeys and other animals not yet censused.

The county health department, its Mosquito Abatement District and some neighbors insist that Ripley's acre lot on Rose Lane is a breeding place for flies and rats.

They complain that animal excrement drains onto neighboring property and that some of the animals occasionally break loose from their cages and roam Concord's otherwise sedate streets.

On Monday, the city filed a complaint against Ripley in Superior Court, charging him with violating municipal codes dealing with sanitation and the kinds of animals that can be kept on residential property. The gist of those codes is dogs and cats, yes; lions and leopards and bears, no.

Concord Deputy City Attorney Mark Commerford said he will ask the court to order Ripley to move his non-domestic animals to a non-residential area, and reduce the rest of his collection to keep his property "clean and sanitary."

Ripley says he has kept non-domestic animals as pets since he was a boy in rural New York. He moved to this San Francisco suburb about 15 years ago, when he had only a few parrots, a bobcat and some dogs.

He began purchasing other animals, boarding them in cages he constructed on the land next to his small white house, and on the lot he rented next door.

He says he spends $2,000 a month feeding the animals. Neighborhood youngsters are paid to help him clean the cages.

His zoo-keeping funds come from profits off his animal grooming shop in Concord. On the side, he sells baby goats and Persian kittens.

This is not the first time Ripley's zoo has been pitted against the law. A formal complaint filed against him earlier was dismissed because he had the animals on his land before it was annexed to the city.

CALIFORNIA GOLD
. . . it's still around

The gold fever that hit California in 1849 has cooled down over the years, but it has never gone away completely. Dozens of old mining claims in the Mother Lode country are still worked with varying degrees of success. All of them are almost as rich in history as they once were in gold.

One such place is Chili Bar on the American River, about an hour's drive from Sacramento. It takes its name from natives of Chile who came to the area 125 years ago to work in the mines. Vigilantes drove the foreigners out, but the name stuck. Later, a group of Chinese worked the claim. During the depression years, down-and-out families camped along the river and gleaned a meager living from Chili bar.

Now, with the price of gold joing up, the old claims are seeing a resurgence of activity. At Chili Bar and dozens of other quaintly named claims in the Mother Lode, gold fever is catching on again.

They are helping other parts of the world answer an increased demand for the wonder metal

BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY DEPT. — Sometimes you wonder if certain people aren't so in love with employment that they'd do their jobs just for the fun and never mind the money.

Consider a truck delivery person After fighting traffic, pedestrians and irate customers for 10 hours during the day, would the driver enter a 24-hour truck race that night?

How about a waitress? Following a full night on her feet slinging hash, could she be convinced to enter a competition the next morning in sprinting from Costa Mesa to Newport Beach while carrying eight dishes on each arm?

Could bricklayers be convinced to get into a wall building race following their regular shift?

YOU FIND THESE NOTIONS outlandish. But then you'd better consider what our ocean lifeguard crews are going to be doing this Friday just after they get off work.

You guessed it. More than 400 guards, representing departments from Santa Barbara to San Diego, are going to show up at Niguel Beach Park (that's Salt Creek to you, old-timer) for the Second Annual Laguna Niguel Lifeguard Competition.

Thus after finishing duties such as thrashing through riptides to save swimmers, sprinting down beaches to break up trouble and giving first aid to hapless victims, these guys are going to try it all over Friday afternoon and evening just for fun.

The lifeguards will be competing in 10 events. There's

really not much to it. One event, for example, is the four-mile run. In sand — all the way. Two miles up the beach and two miles back Just a nice little warmup

GUARDS CAN THEN TRY the Niguel Iron Man race. This little breather requires the contestants to swim 250 yards around a buoy and back, then switch to paddleboards for another 250 yards and back, and finish off by rowing dories the same distance.

And you wonder why they call the winner the Iron Man?

This is the second year that Avco Community Developers down at Laguna Niguel has sponsored the gathering of some of the top ocean athletes in the world who just can't get enough of what they do for a paycheck during the regular work week

IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE this is going to happen, go see. Admission is free when it all gets under way Friday at 2:30 p.m. The competition goes on so long that the lifeguards will run out of daylight. So they'll finish up under floodlights

The premier event, the Salt Creek Relay, goes on under the lights at 7:30 p.m. with 16-member teams of swimmers, paddlers and dory boat crews battling it out through the surf

After all this, you'll never think your next-door neighbor, the bus driver, is odd when he takes his family out for a Sunday ride

U.S. Funds Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government funds could not be used to finance Mexico's program of spraying marijuana fields with the herbicide paraquat, under a measure passed by the Senate

The Senate attached the restriction to the $2.8 billion foreign military aid bill by voice vote Tuesday. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., its sponsor, said the ban would end "a proven health risk to millions of Americans"

Some medical authorities have said that paraquat can cause severe lung damage to smokers of marijuana

The amendment approved Tuesday prohibits the spending of federal funds to finance any foreign country's use of herbicide to eradicate marijuana if they were likely to cause serious harm to users

Sentence Suspended

Soviets Exile Jewish Activist

MOSCOW (AP) A Soviet court gave Jewish activist Maria Slepak a three-year suspended sentence today on charges of "malicious hooliganism" and said she could join her husband in exile.

Mrs. Slepak, 51, emerged from the courtroom in tears in the arms of her brother and sister and told Western correspondents the suspended sentence took into account her recent hospitalization for stomach ulcers.

"I can't believe it, I can't believe it," she said.

"THIS IS THE RESULT because my people are supporting me," she told about a dozen supporters, who were being watched by a score of uniformed policemen.

She said that during the 5½ hour trial the prosecutor had recommended a sentence of three years internal exile, two years less than her husband received in his trial on June 21

Mrs. Slepak, and her husband, Vladimir, a radio engineer, were arrested June 1 after they hung a sign from the balcony of their eighth-floor apartment on Moscow's central Gorky Street demanding exit visas to Israel.

SLEPAK WAS CONVICTED on June 21, but Mrs. Slepak did not stand trial with him because she was in a hospital with ulcers.

The five-page indictment did not mention the wording of the Slepaks' placard. She was charged with having the placard, attracting a large crowd, disrupting traffic and refusing to take it down.

Mrs. Slepak could have been sentenced to five years in a labor camp.

Man Charged In $5 Million Stock Heist

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island man described by police as an avid gambler was charged early today with a daring daylight robbery that allegedly netted him and a partner $5 million in stocks and negotiable securities two weeks ago.

Police said they arrested Anthony Lucido, 32, at 2 p.m. Tuesday and charged him with robbery, illegal possession of dangerous weapons and kidnapping in connection with the ambush and robbery of a station wagon carrying the securities on July 13. He was booked shortly after midnight.

LUCIDO HAD BEEN a messenger in the Teaneck, N.J., branch office of the Bradford Securities Processing Service, the firm which lost the stocks and bonds.

Lucido had continued working for the company "until this afternoon when he was arrested south of Canal Street," near City Hall, said Lt. Edward O'Connor.

POLICE DESCRIBED Lucido as uncooperative and said they had no good leads to his alleged partner. They also said none of the stolen securities had been recovered.

The holdup occurred in front of 110 Maiden Lane, the rear entrance to Bradford's Pine Street Branch. Very quickly and efficiently the men abducted two messengers who were putting the just-received securities in an unmarked company car for delivery.

They hijacked the company station wagon with the two men inside, and after a brief ride, the robbers left the car and fled on foot.

$50,000 For Death Of King?

NEW YORK (AP) — A St. Louis man claims that he was offered $50,000 by two Missouri businessmen to arrange the murder of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. more than a year before he was assassinated, the New York Times reported today.

The man, identified as Russell G. Byers, 46, a former auto parts dealer, told the Times he turned down the offer and later informed the FBI

THE HOUSE SELECT Committee on Assassinations, which is probing the King death, is investigating the allegation because of "circumstantial connections" leading from Byers to the prison where James Earl Ray was incarcerated at the time, the newspaper said.

"At the prison, it was widely rumored in 1966 and 1967 that a conservative business group was willing to pay a large sum of money to anyone who would murder Dr. King," the Times said.

KING WAS ASSASSINATED in Memphis on April 4, 1968. Ray, who is serving a 99-year sentence in Tennessee for the murder, initially pleaded guilty but in recent years has sought a new trial.

According to the Times, Byers said the offer was made to him "in late 1966 or early 1967" by John R. Kauffmann and patent attorney John H. Sutherland.

Judge Disapproves Forced Transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The cousin of a dying man, whose diseased bone marrow will not produce blood cells, cannot be required to submit to a transplant, a judge ruled today.

"This would defeat the sanctity of the individual, "Allegheny County Judge John P. Flaherty said from the bench.

"It would require forcible submission to the medical procedure. Forcible extraction of bodily tissues causes revulsion to the judicial mind," he added.

ROBERT McFALL, 39, a former asbestos worker, filed suit to compel his cousin, David Shimp, 43, a crane operator, to donate the marrow if further tests reaffirm the two men are biologically compatible.

Flaherty said he had no other option in the ruling under Pennsylvania law.

Shimp reportedly underwent one test that indicated compatibility, but reneged on a commitment for further tests.

DOCTORS HAVE FAILED to find a suitable donor among McFall's other relatives or the numerous people who have responded to local news accounts of his plight.

"It's rare for a complete recovery if no transplant or chemical treatment is performed," Dr. Louis Pietragallo told Flaherty during oral arguments Tuesday. "But there is some chance of indefinite survival."

Pipeline Approval Granted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio has been granted permission by the federal government to build a pipeline on federal land to take Alaskan oil from Long Beach to Midland Texas for distribution to the Midwest.

Approved Tuesday, the permit will allow construction of about 50 miles on federal land in California, Arizona and New Mexico, according to Jack Lahr of the Bureau of Land Management here.

ACCORDING TO LAHR, the completed project could "alleviate the glut of oil on the West Coast" by making it available by way of the Midland to the Midwest.

SOHIO eventually plans to construct a 1,026-mile pipeline to Texas. The firm's next step is to reach agreement with El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Southern California Gas Co. for SOHIO to operate 800 miles of existing pipeline.

Both federal and state approval is then necessary for SOHIO to convert the existing natural gas pipeline to crude oil.

THE FIRM APPLIED for the federal permit in September 1975, and Robert Schaadt, a SOHIO representative in Long Beach, said, "This underscores the long lead time involved in getting these permits, and I think it raises serious questions about how the entire process could be shortened."

What Goes Up...

Two sleek $1.7 million Tomahawk cruise missiles shot skyward Tuesday from San Clemente Island . . . then plunged into the Pacific Ocean before the eyes of Defense Secretary Harold Brown (right). "This demonstrates what happens in a test program," was all Brown had to say by way of explanation to reporters about the embarrassing misfires. They were the second and third failures of the Tomahawk, which has undergone 32 tests.

Welfare Suspect 'Innocent'

COMPTON (AP) — A 33-year-old mother of four who allegedly collected nearly $300,000 in welfare payments after claiming to have more than 34 children has pleaded innocent to 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of fraud.

Superior Court Judge William Clay Tuesday ordered Barbara Jean Williams to appear for a pre-trial hearing Sept. 5.

BUT HER ATTORNEY, Carl Jones, said he would attempt to have the fraud charges dropped. Under a recent state Supreme Court ruling, prosecutors must try to obtain restitution before filing formal charges, Jones said.

Deputy District Attorney Ronald L. Wheeler said Mrs. Jones was not home when investigators went to ask for restitution.

"The information we had was that she was in flight," Wheeler said. "We left a demand letter for payment with her husband at her residence."

MRS. WILLIAMS is accused of bilking Los Angeles County out of about $290,000 since 1971. Authorities say she received $239,588 in welfare checks and as much as $50,000 in food stamps and medical aid.

Gas Plan a 'Lemon'?

Emergency Rationing Draws Criticism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials have taken their standby gasoline rationing plan for its first test run in car-crazy Southern California and have been told it may be a lemon.

Under terms of the rough draft, composed by the U.S. Department of Energy, motorists would receive an allotment of 45 gallons per month for each passenger car they own. Other vehicles would receive allotments proportionate to their mileage. Only "large recreational vehicles" — a still undefined term — would get no allotment.

Reaction to the plan came at a hearing Tuesday — the first on a national tour of 12 cities before the final proposal is decided in September. The panel was expected to hear more testimony here today.

Tram Won't Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Squaw Valley ski resort will not be issued a new permit to operate its tram until an exact cause is determined for an accident that killed four persons and injured 30 others, although a preliminary report blames violent blizzard winds.

The preliminary report, issued Tuesday, discounts mechanical failure as the cause for the April 15 tragedy, in which a cable sliced into the tram.

Pardon Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst should be pardoned, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has urged in a telegram to President Carter.

"Given the peculiar circumstances of her case, she has surely served sufficient time. It escapes me what purpose could be served by further incarceration," Dymally said in the telegram which was released Tuesday to the press.

Lawyer Rehired

YUBA CITY (AP) — Attorney Ronald F. Fahey, one of the original prosecutors in the Juan Corona murders case, was rehired Tuesday to work on the team that will handle Corona's retrial.

Corona, 44, was convicted in 1973 on charges of killing 25 farmworkers and burying their bodies in orchards near this city in Sutter County. But the conviction was overturned and a new trial was granted May 8 by the State Court of Appeal. A pretrial hearing for the new proceedings was scheduled for Aug. 3.

Plea Changed

PASADENA (AP) — Lori Andersen, convicted of murdering her tennis coach in a three-woman love triangle, now says she was not insane at the time of the killing and wants to be sentenced rather than face a sanity hearing.

Miss Andersen, 21, of Granada Hills, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity but withdrew that plea Tuesday, leaving Superior Court Judge Daniel L. Fletcher free to sentence her. Otherwise, the judge would have set a hearing date to determine her sanity.

Sentencing will take place Aug. 14.

STATE

Proposition 13 to Boost Home Prices?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Proposition 13 will not have a major effect on California's economy in the near future but may eventually put upward pressure on home prices, Crocker Bank said Tuesday.

"Proposition 13 is not going to be the dominant force in shaping our economy over the next two years," Crocker Chief Economist Harold C. Werner Jr. told reporters. "The general business cycle will be much more important."

WERNER SAID Proposition 13 would actually stimulate the state's economy over the next 12 months as individuals and businesses begin to spend some of their property tax savings.

That spending, coupled with the disbursement of the state's budget surplus, will increase overall income in the state over the next year, Werner said.

The economist said Proposition 13 may put upward pressure on home prices by slowing sales of existing homes, thus limiting supply.

Cliff Climber Dies in Fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego man apparently slipped while trying to climb down steep cliffs to Blacks Beach and fell about 40 feet to his death, authorities say.

The coroner's office identified the victim Tuesday as Richard L. Powell, 36.

A Huntington Beach lifeguard who was surfing in the area notified police after he spotted the body on a ledge in an area known as Box Canyon and went to investigate.

Police and lifeguards brought the body down to the beach.

Jet Drops Fuel, Lands Safely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan Am jumbo jet carrying 333 passengers to London lost power in an engine on takeoff from San Francisco International Airport and had to dump about 100,000 pounds of jet fuel before it turned around and landed safely.

OFFICIALS SAID the maneuver Tuesday night was not an "emergency landing." Although passengers were shook up, none were hurt, officials said.

The Boeing 747, bound nonstop for London, lost one of its four engines moments after takeoff at 8:45 p.m. It flew over land, dumped part of its full load of fuel in order to make it light enough to land, then touched down back at the airport.

THE PASSENGERS were taken back to the terminal, fed dinner and left just after midnight for London on another plane. Two of the passengers on the original flight changed their minds and did not board the second time, officials said.

Election Due in Beach Nudity Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The City Council is being asked to authorize a special election to restore legal nudity to Black's Beach.

A supporter said backers of the move have gathered 38,000 signatures on petitions, more than enough to get the measure on the November ballot.

In a vote last September, San Diegans rescinded a city ordinance allowing people to swim and sunbathe in the nude along the municipal beach below the cliffs of UC San Diego.

They still do by the thousands but quickly pull on swimming suits when officers with citations drive by.

Summer Programs Warrant Support

Mission Viejo's Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) is recommending that County Service Area (CSA) 9 cease funding after-school and summer recreation programs in conjunction with Saddleback Valley Unified School District.

Although the county Board of Supervisors administers CSA 9, it almost always follows recommendations by the local MAC.

MAC members originally proposed spending $16,000 for the joint recreation program this fiscal year but trimmed the funds in an attempt to manage area services within lower tax allocations resulting from voter approval of Prop. 13.

Included was $6,700 for the summer recreation program under way at Montevideo Elementary School. That program will be cut about Aug. 16 with two more weeks of summer vacation lying heavy on participating children.

Mission Viejo families who cannot afford the $17 a month required to join privately operated Mission Viejo recreation centers are the ones to suffer.

Perhaps MAC members could as originally proposed cut back on the number of secretary-clerk hours required to staff its office.

When they cut into the recreation fund, MAC members simultaneously boosted those staff hours to help assure a MAC identity in the community by keeping its office open longer each week.

Cuts in this area certainly are preferable to halting the program.

That Expensive Inch

Some swimmer probably discovered it before the engineers did when he bumped his head on a turn: The errant inch, the 25.4 missing millimeters in the city of Irvine's splashing new 50-meter Olympic-size swimming pool.

City officials surely must have felt as if they'd taken a bath on the project, when came the news that their $650,000 water baby was born premature, undersized.

Seems the AAU doesn't count records set in almost-an-Olympic-size pool. Unless the city could stuff an extra inch into it, the city was about to glug $650,000 down the Olympian drain.

That's an expensive inch. Even the Six-Million Dollar Man is worth only $83,333 an inch. Why, a six-million dollar midget stands, at four feet, a paltry $125,000 an inch.

So that's some inch, a near-record inch.

Of course, now that city engineers apparently have managed to stretch out the pool, we can all have some fun with this kind of tomfoolery calculation.

We'd hate to mention that some experts we know say that if you stretch an aluminum pool at the ends, it's bound to bow in some at the sides; it would take all the fun out of it.

So, we won't.

Recall Poorly Timed

It is time for the committee seeking recall of three Saddleback Valley Unified School District trustees to call off their efforts.

The group recently missed the deadline to place the initiatives against trustees George Henry, Mary Phillips and Carole Neustadt on the November ballot.

County officials said the committee still has until Sept. 21 to gather the 9,200 required signatures, but the recall would not be on the November ballot. Instead, it would require an expensive special election.

The committee has chosen to pursue the recall despite the cost. Attempting to justify this decision, a committee spokesman said the board majority's actions will cost the district more than the special election cost if the three are allowed to pursue their alleged $60,000 buyout of SVUSD's superintendent.

The committee should take a closer look at its own calendar.

If recall proponents do meet their deadline, a special election cannot be called until January or February of next year, Registrar of Voters officials said.

A few weeks later, three trustee seats will be up for grabs in the regular March election. Two open seats belong to two of the trustees targeted for recall Henry and Ms. Neustadt and Henry already has announced he will not seek re-election.

Recall proponents could cause SVUSD less disruption and possibly save taxpayers several thousand dollars if they would focus on supporting candidates for the March election, and drop pursuit of a costly, unnecessary process which local voters seem reluctant to support anyway.

Boyd/'Tip'

By L.M. BOYD

Edward O'Neill, a baseball player in the 1880s, was so adept at hitting foul tips to force pitchers to walk him that his cohorts nicknamed him "Tip." It was in allusion to him that later nicknames likewise identified Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill as Tip.

The church building of old usually had a small door on its north side, the Devil's door it was called. It was left open during baptisms and communions to let the Devil out.

Say a dozen different kinds of fish are laid out side by side in the display counters at the seafood market. You can tell how each swam by its coloring. The perpendicular specimens, like salmon, and the flatfish, like flounder, all swim with their dark sides up toward the light and their silvery sides down toward the seabed. This comes to mind because a client asks if there's such a thing as a "left handed" fish. So to speak, there is. The flounder that swims on its wrong side might be so described. It's called a fluke.

U.S. 'Secrets' on Soviet Ships?

WASHINGTON — Lurking in the dockyards of America's port cities may be a spy story, with a James Bond twist. Out of pure greed, American defense contractors may be exposing the Air Force's most secret fighter plane, the celebrated F-16, to Soviet scrutiny.

The startling story is told in hushed tones on the docks and inside maritime union halls, but word of the disturbing allegations has leaked to congressional investigators. They have been quietly tracking down reports that F-16 parts may have been shipped to our NATO allies in Soviet ships.

The preliminary findings are contained in a confidential memo prepared for House Merchant Marine Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y. The memo states ominously that "U.S. maritime unions and rank-and-file dock workers in Houston, Texas . . . have knowledge that the classified F-16 parts are already being shipped on Soviet or bloc-country merchant ships."

INDUSTRY sources, the investigators add, are also "convinced" that classified parts for the F-16 are being transported on Soviet ships. These ships allegedly stop in Cuba where the hot cargo could be examined. "It's most certainly known to the government," the memo suggests, "that Soviet ships arriving or leaving the U.S. East Coast make a port of call in Cuba."

Security for the F-16 shipments is supposed to comply with stringent Air Force and NATO secrecy requirements. An "eyes only" agreement with the four NATO allies, who are helping the United States produce the fighter planes for mutual defense, strictly forbids the "release of information to non-participating states."

But the Soviets have lured American businessmen to use their merchant ships by offering drastic, cut-rate prices. Huge Russian cargo ships roam the Western shipping lanes and take shipments out from under the hobbled U.S. maritime fleet.

By slashing rates up to 40 percent, the Soviet cargo hunters have been able "to make phenomenal inroads on American shipping."

At least 37 percent of all cargo coming to the United States from West Germany, for example, is first hauled eastward 6,000 miles across Russia where it is "picked up by Soviet merchant carriers at inferior rates and shipped to the U.S."

MOST SCOTCH whisky, distilled in Scotland, also "takes a 6,000 mile ride across Russia," the memo reports, before it "tickles the American palate." The Soviet merchant fleet obviously is losing money on these shipments, but the Kremlin makes up the difference in order to strengthen the fleet.

In fairness, the major F-16 contractor, General Dynamics, vigorously denies that any Soviet ships have been used to transport F-16 parts. "It hasn't happened. There's no chance," a General Dynamics spokesman told our associate Jack Mitchell.

But behind closed doors, General Dynamics officials conceded to congressional investigators that "there is nothing in the contract that . . . precludes shipping by the U.S.S.R."

TOP COMMERCE Department experts have also acknowledged in secret testimony that Russian carriers could be transporting "completely classified equipment" for the fabulous F-16.

Footnote: The alarmed Murphy is preparing special legislation that would prohibit the transport of F-16 parts aboard Soviet ships.

Official Car Policy Still Too Generous

To the Editor:

In my mind the practice of providing public officials (city, county, school district, etc.) with cars has always been a questionable one. With the passage of Proposition 13 there should no longer be any question about the practice. Public officials should use their own cars and be reimbursed for mileage only when they are on official business.

AS A teacher who must travel between schools during the day I am reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile. County supervisors are eligible for a $390 per month car allowance, or $4,680 a year. They would have to drive their personal car 27,529 miles per year at 17 cents a mile to justify this expense.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit's contention that cars have always been considered part of supervisor's salaries is interesting, but hard to accept in the light of Proposition 13. It is just as difficult, however, to accept the idea of a $390 monthly car allowance.

Supervisors should either have access to a pool car when on official business, or be reimbursed for use of their personal car while on official business on a mileage basis only (such as 17 cents per mile).

Boat Taxes

To the Editor:

Gary Granville's quandary, July 16th, about the rate of taxation on boats and airplanes is nothing to quander about. Proposition 13 clearly states a 1 percent tax limitation on property. Boats and planes are property just like homes and business property. And the California Constitution states that all property must be taxed equally. That makes it very clear.

I hope auditor-controller Vic Heims understands this because B.O.A.T., Boat Owners Associated Together, are already planning a lawsuit if taxes are not applied equally to boats, Heims' admission that, "It's a very serious issue and the wrong move can be very costly to both the taxpayers and the (taxing) agencies," seems to neglect the admission that the taxing agencies are also the taxpayers agencies that they support through their taxes. So a wrong move by the agencies costs the taxpayers twice.

The seriousness of the issue deserves a serious investigation of how the law is to be applied.

Making Points

To the Editor:

Gov. Brown is a political opportunist who was telling us a few weeks ago that it would be disaster time if Prop. 13 passed. So were most publications including the Daily Pilot which I read religiously.

Now Gov. Brown is calling for landlords to pass on a so-called tax saving to tenants. Obviously he is doing this to make points with the renter voter group. In no uncertain terms he told us to vote for Prop. 8 along with the other bureaucrats.

I OWN four units in addition to the one I live in and it costs me over $200 a month out of pocket even with the Prop. 13 savings.

Our governor and his political crony advisors realize now how far unattuned they were to the pulse of the voters regarding taxes in Prop. 13. Now this milk toast individual we have for a governor is trying to make points for his political future and remedy the mistakes of his advisors by coming up with ridiculous suggestions of how money from Prop. 13 should be used by private individuals. Our group which is nonpartisan is gravely disappointed with this man's actions. He lacks the status and the stature in our opinion to be re-elected.

No 'Gouger'

To the Editor:

Why must decent, fair landlords be penalized with rollbacks, rent freezes, etc. because of the deeds of rent gougers?

People like me, a 61-year-old widow. My husband used to make low rents possible by doing most of the repairs and improvements on our little one-bedroom triplex.

My tenants both have larger incomes than I. I work part-time due to ill health problems and pay large medical bills. They get everything on Medicare.

But they are good tenants. They've been here a long time and I have tried to keep the place nice, with low rents.

I SPENT quite a bit this year on improvements, expecting to raise rents in about September or October. The rents would still be low, but I will take a loss.

We hear only about the Irvine Company and other big landlords. I can't even compare with the senior citizen couple down the street that has five units. They too say it will be a hardship to return any money or have rollbacks.

Will the businesses who may have a tax saving (they don't know yet how much, as most of us don't know either), have a rollback in prices for consumers?

The Wrong People Are Locked Up

Something is wrong with this picture: You are locked up and criminals run loose.

You law-abiding Americans are barring your windows and bolting your doors and huddling, frightened, inside. Meanwhile, outside the sickies and the malicious and the vicious take over the street your taxes paid for.

There's something bad wrong with that!

Now there is a doorknob for your house which howls like a siren if somebody tries to break in.

That, as they say, is a Band-Aid on a cancer.

Have you heard what hotels and motels are having to do to keep their rooms safe from rapists and robbers?

THE AMERICANA Hotel in New York City tried a system in which you were given a key to the door and a coded card for the TV set at the time of check-in.

When you opened your door you had to run to the TV set and insert that coded card — within 20 seconds — or else an alarm would go off and police would converge.

That system was abandoned after too many false alarms. But it indicates the frightful problem of trying to make public accommodations safe for private guests.

Keys never were good enough. One New York hotel has only 1,500 rooms — but loses 10,000 keys every year. Some are taken for souvenirs. Some are taken innocently by mistake. But how do we know? And how do you justify it to the insurance company when you have 15 keys for every room floating around out there somewhere?

AND DESPITE the best efforts by hotels to insure your safety and to shush up their failures — there was no way to hide it when singer Connie Francis was raped in her motel room. Or when a Brazilian businessman was murdered in his hotel room. Nobody has an accurate tally on how many of the some two million hotel and motel rooms in this country are robbed each day, but judging from soaring insurance rates the total exceeds a thousand a day.

The luxury Fontainbleau Hotel on Miami Beach employs a full time security force of 36 guards, 6 detectives and 4 supervisors.

Burns Security Services reports its "hotel security business" increased 44 percent last year.

Guardsmark, Inc. — another security company — reports demand for investigators up 122 percent in nine months.

All of this security inevitably adds to the higher prices of hotel rooms.

SIMILARLY, the now conspicuous and the additional inconspicuous guards stationed in most department stores add to the prices of everything we purchase.

Americans are trying to rescue themselves. There are now 2,000 crime prevention programs in operation across our nation helping to safeguard citizens against burglars and muggers.

Stanford University coeds are attending classes in which they are taught to "gouge, kick, crush and render senseless."

Though you girls may be sued if you do.

Our recent years' preoccupation with the rights of wrongdoers has tended to put the law on the side of the lawless.

Mike Ends East Coast TV Career

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Douglas tapes the final Philadelphia broadcast of his nationally syndicated talk show tonight before heading for the West Coast where guests are more plentiful.

The Mike Douglas Show moved here from Cleveland in 1965, and has grown to a 90-minute Westinghouse Broadcasting Company program that is seen in 120 U.S. cities.

And Douglas, a low-key host who once was a $125 a week singer, has prospered with the show and is now a millionaire.

"LIVING IN Philadelphia, I've learned a lot of things other than show business," he recalled recently before the move to Los Angeles was announced in May. "Because in Philadelphia, while I'm in it, I'm not really into it. And I'm glad.

"There have been suggestions that we move the show to New York or Hollywood. But I like Philadelphia," he added.

CBS Scores

'One Day' Leads TV Ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ten of the nation's most-watched evening television shows, including a "One Day at a Time" rerun, were on CBS last week, according to the latest A.C. Nielsen Company ratings.

ABC's hit "Laverne and Shirley" and "Happy Days," now also in reruns, made the top 20, but the former emerged 11th and "Happy Days" 15th in ratings for the week ending July 23.

THE FIGURES SHOW that on a nightly average, CBS shows last week were seen in 10.6 million homes. ABC and NBC each averaged 9.3 million homes.

CBS' "One Day at a Time," in topping the Nielsen list of 60 rated shows, was seen in an estimated 16.9 million homes.

Four other CBS shows followed "One Day at a Time" in top ratings: "M-A-S-H," 16.5 million homes; "All in the Family," 16.2 million; "Lou Grant," 15.6 million, and the canceled "Switch," 14.6 million.

THE NEXT TOP FIVE shows were NBC's "Quincy," 14.2 million homes; ABC's "Three's Company" and "Starsky and Hutch," 13.8 million and 13.2 million, respectively; "CBS Tuesday Movie," 13.1 million; and NBC's "Rockford Files," 12.8 million homes.

The next 10 shows were: "Laverne and Shirley" and "Charlie's Angels," both ABC; "Alice," CBS, "Carter Country," "Happy Days" and "Barney Miller," all ABC; "Hawaii Five-O" and "Good Times," CBS; "ABC Thursday Movie"; and "60 Minutes," CBS.

Old Comics Never Die

'Funny Business' Revives Movie Laughs

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Better close that slow leak under your nose before I vulcanize it," the guy snarls. He's told: "I'll put so many lumps on you, you'll think you've got a skin full of teabags."

Yes, it's a film clip of Jack Benny and Fred Allen, close friends, in their famous "feud." And it's one of the best bits in "Funny Business," an oddly uneven CBS special airing tonight at 8 on Channel 2.

Narrated by Walter Matthau, made by film critic Richard Schickel, it uses some 100 film clips in its two-hour tour of the greats of movie comedy in the 1930s and 1940s.

IT DISPLAYS THE MARX Brothers, Mae West, W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, and samples of two ace comedy directors, Ernst Lubitch and Preston Sturges.

What it tries to show, in Matthau's words, is that with the advent of talk in movies, word-fun erupted in films and "the result was the richest comic era in the history of the movies."

Alas, the trouble with any look-back show like this is you often find yourself grumbling at the maker's use of choice of old film clips. We plead guilty to such grumbling here.

A few excerpts simply run too long, such as one, with a proper gentleman and a proper lady, that seeks to show how Lubitch satirized amour but "always honored the romantic spirit."

IT'S SLOW AND ONLY mildly funny. You may wish Schickel had dropped it and opted from a shorter, livelier segment.

No problem, though, with his Mae West study. The venerable sexbomb was thought quite racy in the '30s. But as Matthau notes, she "blew away a lot of the old Victorian attitudes about sex."

A fine sample of her famed one-liners is exhibited. Such as when a fortune teller predicts "a change of position" for her. She raises an eyebrow and inquires, "Sitting or reclining?"

The Abbott-Costello piece, including their "Who's On First" bit, features a mild defense of their broad style. The case is weak.

BUT THERE'S GRAND fun throughout the show's look at W. C. Fields as boozer, con man, card cheat, pool shark and victim of tots.

Watch for the clip in which Fields, as a store owner, gamely tries to cope with an old blind man who bumbles about, breaking things. It sounds cruel, but isn't. It's only mighty, mighty funny.

So is the clip where Fields, his neck in a noose, is asked if he has any last wishes. And drawls: "Yasss, I'd like to see Paris before I die."

THE HOPE-CROSBY segment, with bits from their "Road" films, is okay, but runs too long, and not all the best bits are in.

And I wish there'd been more than a wild Jack Benny broadcast, his too-brief "feud" scene with Allen, and a lengthier study of Hope in the show's examination of radio's impact on movie comedy.

Oh, well, even though flawed, "Funny Business" has enough guaranteed bellylaughs to make it a fun time for viewers tonight.

A Grape Cream Puff

In France, where pastries are considered an essential to life, the local pastry shop is a centuries-old tradition. The French baker dreams up countless numbers of mouth watering confections to entice any pastry lover

The French attribute their totally irresistible desserts to a basic pastry, "pate a choux." We know it as cream puff pastry. It's surprisingly simple to prepare and the results are grand. Versatile too, the rich dough can be shaped for small appetizers, individual serving-size desserts, or one family-sized pastry.

You can bring a bit of this refined French tradition of pastry-making into your own kitchen with Grapes Parisienne, a flaky puff pastry, filled with sweet, juicy California grapes and a vanilla filling. Crisp, tangy California table grapes make this dessert extra special. They're the perfect contrast — in flavor, color and texture — to the smooth rich filling (made from a mix, though you'd never guess). The result is impressive — and refreshingly satisfying.

When shopping for grapes for this recipe or for out-of-hand snacking, be sure to select plump, ripe grapes that cling tightly to pliable green stems. Crisp California grapes are available almost year 'round, and right now blue-black Ribiers, Red Cardinals, beautiful black Exotics and Red Malagas are being featured in local markets, as well as the favorite Thompson seedless. Try a medley of grape varieties in Grape Parisienne for colorful (and yummy!) results.

GRAPES PARISIENNE

½ cup water
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup flour
Dash salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 package (3¾ ounces) instant vanilla pudding and pie filling
3 cups California seedless grapes (if seeded varieties are used, halve and seed)
Powdered sugar

In heavy saucepan, bring water and butter to boil. Quickly stir in flour, salt and sugar. Cook and stir batter until it leaves sides of pan and forms a ball. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Outline a 7-inch circle on greased baking sheet. Spoon batter around outline shaping with back of spoon to form a 1-inch thick ring, 1½-inch wide. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees, and bake 5 to 10 minutes more, or until golden. Turn off oven, open door and let cool 10 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare filling: pour milk and cream into mixer bowl. Add pudding mix; beat at low speed until blended, about 2 minutes. To assemble: with sharp knife, carefully cut a slice off top of ring. Spoon half the filling into hollow. Sprinkle half the grapes over filling. Repeat with remaining filling and grapes. Replace top of ring. Dust with powdered sugar. Place on serving plate and refrigerate until serving time. Cut into wedges.

Quick Grape Desserts:

Star-rated desserts with California table grapes needn't take great amounts of planning or preparation. Superb desserts can be as simple as the following ideas:

Fruited Rice: Into cold cooked rice, fold whipped cream or whipped dessert topping, peach slices, grapes. Sweeten to taste.

Fruit and Cream: Fill pretty goblets or wine glasses with frosty green seedless grapes. Spoon dollops of sour cream atop grapes; sprinkle with brown sugar and dust with cinnamon, allspice or nutmeg.

Rosy Grapefruit Cup: Flavor fresh grapefruit sections with grenadine to taste. Serve in individual bowls or cups and decorate with a cluster of seedless green grapes.

Grape-y Punch

Plan a family outing to a nearby driving range after dinner during the summer months and save dessert for the 19th hole . . . after your round is over. Suggested here is a refreshing raspberry grape beverage to serve with Concord Sherbet after your trip to the driving range. Both recipes combine store bought and convenience foods with a little imagination.

COUNTRY CLUB PUNCH

1 can (6 ounces) frozen Concord grape juice concentrate, thawed
1 pint raspberries, fresh or frozen
1 quart club soda or ginger ale

Pour reconstituted grape juice over raspberries in large pitcher. Add soda and ice cubes.
