1977 Revisited: 4 Charged in Plot

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The cast was smaller and the setting slightly different.

But the script played out Friday in Central Municipal Court was only slightly different than the 1977 version that singed Orange County with scandal.

County Supervisors Philip Anthony and Ralph Diedrich stood before the bar of justice and heard themselves accused of political crimes.

Also charged in the criminal complaint filed by the state Attorney General's Office were Anaheim City Councilman William Kott and imprisoned political gadfly Gene Conrad.

When summed up, the complaint means The People have reason to believe the four defendants and two others conspired in 1976 to violate the Political Reform Act of 1974.

The county Grand Jury believed so July 1, 1977, when it indicted the six men on essentially the same charges.

But a Superior Court judge and later an Appellate Court found the indictment wanting and tossed it out of court.

Before that was done, however, two defendants had pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges, paid fines and agreed to serve three years on probation.

But the four defendants charged Friday stood where they did July 1, 1977—facing criminal charges that could oust the three elected officials from office if eventually convicted and possibly send them to prison.

He is scheduled to stand trial next week in San Diego Superior Court on bribery charges.

Should Diedrich be convicted at the end of what is expected to be a six- to eight-week trial, he will automatically be removed from office when sentenced.

Should he be found innocent, then the political corruption charges brought against him Friday will place him in the same jeopardy.

Welfare Jobs Debated

Orange County's System Seems Answer

A call to make able bodied welfare recipients work in public projects to earn their keep was muffled Friday when such a program was compared to what is done in Orange County.

In a report sent to Supervisor Ralph Clark, it was indicated Orange County does better by referring the able bodied to jobs in private industry.

The report came from the county's Human Services Agency and was signed jointly by HSA director Margaret Grier and director of social services Dennis Hart.

Touching off the study was a suggestion made by Supervisor Philip Anthony that the county might do well to copy the example of Midland County, Mich., and put its general relief "recipients to work on public projects.

In numbers, the comparison between the two systems was an uneven match.

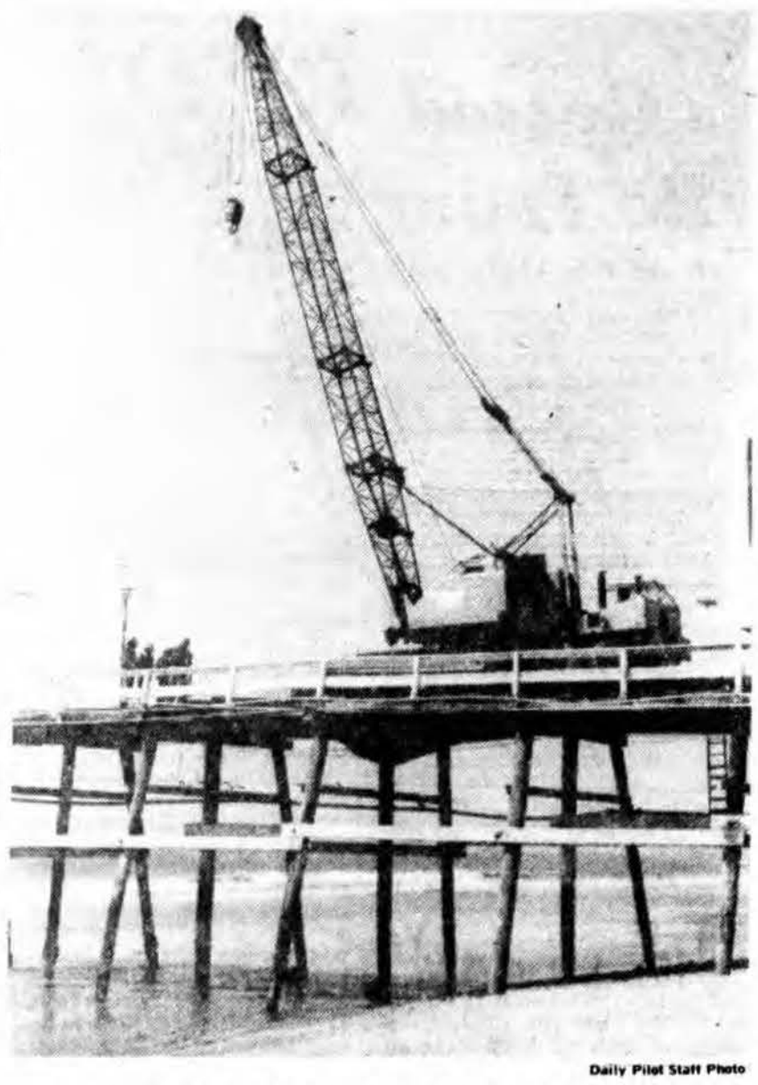

Midland County has a population of about 80,000 persons, an unemployment rate that hovers around 8 percent and roughly 250 general relief cases (about 3.1 cases per each 1,000 population).

In comparison, Orange County has a population of about 1.8 million persons, an unemployment rate closer to 4 percent and about 1,000 general relief cases (less than 1 case for each 1,000 population).

In Midland County, each general relief applicant capable of working is signed up for a program with the county acting as the employer of last resort.

When placed in a public work program, the welfare recipient

30-TON CRANE CRACKS SAN CLEMENTE PIER BEAM
Workmen Could Not Move Crane Friday Fearing Damage

Heavy Crane Cracks San Clemente Pier

A 30-ton crane used to replace pilings on the San Clemente pier cracked through a wooden cap beam and could not be moved Friday as fear mounted that more damage could result to the 64-year-old landmark.

"It's really rotten," said repair crew foreman Slim Yarborough who decided not to move the $50,000 crane from the rickety pier until more safety measures can be taken to prevent it from crashing to the beach.

The beam under the crane cracked and split shortly after noon about 150 feet from the pier base. No one was hurt.

The long-awaited $500,000 repair project to replace the decaying pier pilings and deck may have come a bit too late, Yarborough conceded. His crew began repairs Thursday.

City Engineer Howard Benson said the project will have to be postponed indefinitely—at least until the crane is removed.

Yarborough said his firm, Meeks Construction of Wilmington, had not planned to replace any of the 16-by-16-inch timbers like the one that cracked.

Repair crew workers worked past nightfall trying to move in safety supports to allow the crane to be moved. The workmen had to chase away some fishermen who wanted to catch their dinner from the pier.

The wooden fishing pier, originally built in 1925 by city founder Ole Hanson, was severely damaged in 1934 by a storm.

San Clemente City Council members approved a plan last year that would pay for 25 percent of the pier repair cost out of the municipal coffers. About 75 percent of the repair cost would be paid with federal and state funds.

Work crews are expected back today to try and safely remove the massive crane from the quarter-mile long pier which is one of the last such wooden structures along the California coast.

San Juan Teen-ager Stabbed

A 17-year-old San Juan Capistrano youth was seriously stabbed in the abdomen during a knife fight at a drive-in theater where "The Warriors," a film depicting gang violence, was screening Friday night.

Authorities refused to identify the boy but said he was still in surgery after midnight at Mission Community Hospital.

Orange County Sheriff's Sgt. Jack Luster said the stabbing occurred shortly after 10 p.m. near the snack bar at the Pacific Mission Drive-In, 32002 Del Obispo St., San Juan Capistrano.

Another youth was believed to have been cut in the melee but

Man Killed, Woman Hurt In Car Crash

A man died and his female companion was injured in a Corona del Mar smashup when the auto in which the couple was riding overturned on a winding road early today.

The names of the victims in the 12:50 a.m. crash were not available. The white sports car was upside down in a driveway at 2345 Bayside Drive when rescuers arrived at the scene.

Paramedics used the "Jaws of Life" cutting device to extract the lifeless body of the man from the auto. The woman was also freed from the wreckage and rushed to Hoag Memorial Hospital.

A condition report on the woman was not available. Police said they had not determined the cause of the crash.

Deputy City Attorney

O'Connor Facing Second 'Firing'

FACES SECOND FIRING
HB's John O'Connor

Huntington Beach Deputy City Attorney John O'Connor was given notice Friday by City Attorney Gail Hutton that she intends to fire him.

O'Connor was previously fired by former City Attorney Don Bonfa after the two got into a physical altercation in O'Connor's office in city hall in 1977.

Both O'Connor and Bonfa claimed at the time that each was attacked by the other. Both later produced polygraph tests to support their version of the altercation.

O'Connor was reinstated by Mrs. Hutton last July and received $27,000 in back pay and for legal fees incurred in fighting previous grievance cases.

Friday, Mrs. Hutton accused O'Connor of 16 instances of insubordination and one allegation of incompetence.

O'Connor, who said he was taken by complete surprise by the notice of firing, said that charges are a sham.

He claims the real reason for the dismissal notice is a disagreement he had with Mrs. Hutton at Monday's City Council meeting.

O'Connor said he will fight the firing and is confident he will prevail.

"I guess that it has become in vogue politically to fire John O'Connor," he said.

In elaborating on her action Friday, Mrs. Hutton said relationships with O'Connor had become intolerable because of "constant insubordination of both major and minor issues."

"He had the idea that he was an independent, autonomous attorney for the city who didn't have to answer to anyone," she said.

O'Connor claims the notice of firing was a retaliatory act that stems from a public disagreement with Mrs. Hutton over an interpretation of laws regarding zoning matters.

"I was giving an honest response as an attorney when requested to do so by a member

Man Pleads Guilty to Stab Death

A 26-year-old murder suspect has pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter for stabbing a Huntington Beach motorcyclist to death during a barroom fight over a woman.

Robert Leslie "Bobby" Jones, a former downtown Huntington Beach resident, entered the plea before Orange County Superior Court Judge William Lee and was sentenced to three years in state prison.

Jones had been charged with murder in the Sept. 8 stabbing of motorcyclist Gary Allen "Mad Dog" Fero, 41, during a brawl at the Main Street Saloon, 117 Main St., Huntington Beach.

Judge Lee allowed Jones to withdraw an earlier plea of innocent by reason of insanity. In addition, he dismissed a second charge of attempted murder against Jones.

Police said Jones and Fero were involved in a fight over a woman when Fero was fatally stabbed in the back near the doorway of the saloon.

The motorcyclist was on crutches at the time because of an earlier leg injury.

Fero's sister, 37-year-old Jude Negrini of Newport Beach, scattered her brother's cremated ashes in the bar five days after the stabbing, then lead a "funeral" processing down Pacific Coast Highway.

Mrs. Negrini also said she cast a "curse" on the saloon, a favorite hang-out for motorcyclists.

The now-dismissed attempted murder charge against Jones involved the alleged slashing of 41-year-old Delbert Ray Calvin of Fountain Valley, also during a quarrel over a woman. Calvin suffered knife wounds to the buttocks, police said.

Jets to Sound Off Over Toro

Residents in the vicinity of the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station can expect to hear increased jet noise for a five-day period beginning Monday, the Marine Corps has warned.

Officers said field carrier landing practices will be carried out from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. during that period.

Additionally, officers said, aircraft will be flying out of El Toro at 9 a.m. from March 28 to April 2 to practice landings at sea. They will return to the base between 11 p.m. and 2 a.m.

Performance Sold Out

116,000 Tickets to Pageant Gone First Day

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If you're not among the 4,000 lucky souls who hold membership in the Laguna Beach Pageant of the Masters, chances of picking up tickets for one of the 48 summer performances each year are slim.

In fact, it's sort of like betting on the horses, says Betty Linenkugel, head of the box office department at the festival grounds out Laguna Canyon Road.

And if you're thinking about buying tickets for this year's performance, you'll have to camp out each morning at the box office during festival time to buy returned tickets, or find a scalper who might sell you a $7 ticket for $25.

All 116,000 tickets available for this summer's performances were sold out the first day they went on sale.

"We let it be known that requests for tickets would be filled after Feb. 14, and it only took the mail from that first day to sell out," Mrs. Linenkugel said.

That amounts to requests for more than 60,000 admissions during the 48 nights — all in one day's mail.

And two batches of mail from that day were returned sans tickets and with a letter of apology.

Last year it took two and a half days to sell out the popular production, which re-creates famous works of art on stage using live models in tableau.

But the festival box office has sold every seat in Irvine Bowl every year for the past 14 seasons, says Sally Reeve, festival public relations official.

So, the obvious thing would be to get on the waiting list for those rare memberships to the pageant, which allow the holder a total of 16 tickets a year, right?

Wrong. The waiting list for membership in the Pageant of

Urges Rebellion

Radical Fired From Douglas

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A left-wing radical who stirred up the political pot at McDonnel Douglas Astronautics in Huntington Beach was fired Friday.

Scott McIntyre, a 28-year-old turret lathe operator, says he will appeal his dismissal based on "unsatisfactory conduct" charges.

"There should be a rebellion to overthrow this system," said McIntyre, who alleges that his radicalism has brought FBI agents to the aerospace facility recently.

McIntyre claims FBI agents have been questioning other workers about his activities.

"We are not going to be able to respond to any questions regarding this matter," Los Angeles FBI agent John Morrison said.

Earlier, however, an FBI agent in the bureau's Orange County office said the bureau "has no interest in this matter." The FBI spokesman would not give his name.

During his six-month tenure at Douglas, McIntyre passed out anti-capitalist literature and urged fellow workers to fight "political repression" at Douglas, he said.

Earlier this week, he stood up on a chair in the company cafeteria and spoke against "police murder of Chicanos in Houston."

The speech reportedly set off a shouting match between McIntyre and security personnel and other employees who demanded that he stop.

Although McIntyre claims his cause has drawn support for other employees, he said some Douglas workers greeted his speech with physical threats and demands "that I go back to Russia or China."

McIntyre was suspended from his job the next day, but says he refused to leave and was forcibly dragged from the machine shop he was working in by security personnel.

McIntyre, who lives in Whittier, was fired Friday morning.

"It was a management decision based on an infraction of company rules," said Douglas public relations representative Don Hanson. He refused to comment further.

A copy of company rules states that employees may be fired for "debating, agitating or soliciting during working hours. . .as to disturb others."

Douglas officials would not confirm if McIntyre's firing was linked to a violation of this rule. McIntyre says it was.

FIRED FOR RADICALISM? Machinist Scott McIntyre

"They told me if I didn't stop what I was doing, I'd be fired," McIntyre says.

"I was doing things the 'gray badges' (administration) didn't want inside their defense plant," he said. "They want people working their butts off and jumping at anything the company says."

McIntyre says his phampletering at Douglas included documents passed out to workers that supported the overthrow of the Shah of Iran and denounced the California visit of a delegation from mainland China.

is "monitored for compliance and performance" on a make work job that might last indefinitely and welfare payments that last for so long as the job is held.

In a program now in operation in the western portion of Orange County, such welfare applicants are referred to a vocational counselor and then on to a private employer.

When hired, the applicant is given aide until the first pay check is earned. Then all payments stop.

Applicants who do not cooperate in the job serch receive nothing. And if the welfare applicant is simply unemployable, the job search continues for a month before relief aide is stopped and the applicant referred to another kind of aide program.

One week early this month, 36 such applicants at HSA's west region were examined, referred to jobs or found to be ineligible for general relief.

No money was paid to any of the 36 applicants.

As a result, Miss Grier and Hart recommended to Clark that the county direct its efforts to expanding the west region program to other regions in the county.

"There does not appear to be a valid need for a county operated work program for general relief clients in Orange County at this time," Hart and Miss Grier concluded in their report to Clark.

PLOT . . .

Because of the upcoming trial in San Diego, the arraignment of the four defendants charged Friday won't resume until mid-June.

That arraignment, including pleas from the defendants, will be followed by a preliminary hearing at which a Municipal Court judge will decide if there is sufficient evidence to make the four men stand trial in Superior Court.

That means while Diedrich is preoccupied in San Diego, Anthony will be able to go about the business of being chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

Kott too can continue on in his dental practice as well as an Anaheim city councilman.

And Conrad will continue to languish in a federal prison in Lompoc until transported to Orange County to face the charges.

As was the case in mid-1977 when they were indicted, there was little comraderie among the three defendants who stood in court Friday.

Like he did when indicted, Anthony attempted to put as much space between himself and the Diedrich-Conrad duo as possible.

"Councilman Kott and I are being caught up by the powerful forces that appear bent on disrupting our personal and professional lives," Anthony said without naming the powerful forces.

He called the filing of the charges by the state Attorney General's Office "unfair" and said it was a "sad state of affairs" that he should be charged with crimes "for possible technical violations of a very complex group of laws."

Though his legal tormentor now was the attorney general's staff, Diedrich continued to bombast the Orange County District Attorney's office.

He complained that other similar cases in California had been handled through the Fair Campaign Practices Commission and in civil litigation.

"Had anyone really believed I violated the terms of the law, it would have been proper to settle the issue at that (commission) level," Diedrich said.

Nonetheless, by nightfall Friday he stood accused of five felony offenses and three misdemeanor violations. The count for Anthony was eight felonies and three misdemeanors.

Accumulated in the complaint were four felony charges against Conrad and two lodged against Kott.

The plot of the alleged conspiracy casts Diedrich in the role of political manipulator who funneled money to candidates through his one-time ally, Fullerton attorney Michael Remington.

of the City Council," he said.

"It is an unfortunate and tragic thing when a municipal employee can be fired for that reason."

Mrs. Hutton said O'Connor has until Tuesday to make a written or verbal response to the charges if he wishes.

She said it was possible that she could change her mind depending on O'Connor's response "but it is not likely."

After his previous firing, O'Connor was a candidate in last April's City Council elections. He finished fifth in the field in a year in which four new council members were elected.

O'Connor, 45, has been a deputy city attorney in Huntington Beach for six years.

Students Hit Jackpot in Trash Trek

Armed with plastic trash bags and no small amount of enthusiasm, about 50 of the school's sixth graders took off with instructor Dave Kramer after fueling up at lunch.

They swept down Landau Lane, scooping up all the litter in sight, before disappearing down Heil Avenue with many miles to go.

Kramer explained that the afternoon hike would serve a couple of purposes.

But the students also will get their reward for a tough day's work. Kramer said a number of parents sponsored individual students, promising to pay them a certain cash amount per mile turned in.

The funds, he expects, will add up to nearly $500. It will go into a kitty to help pay for the sixth graders' spring excursion to a camp operated by the county Department of Education in the nearby, litter-free mountains.

To Halt Disease

4,023 Birds Gassed By Newcastle Team

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Texas' Don Nielson is a transplanted Californian who has returned to his home state with the dubious task of explaining why a government team has gassed 4,023 exotic birds.

Nielson is information officer for the federal Department of Agriculture's Newcastle disease task force headquartered in a suite of offices in downtown Santa Ana.

As of Friday afternoon, the team had destroyed birds, ranging from rare pet finches to parrots and parakeets, in an expensive drive to snuff out an exotic Newcastle epidemic first reported with the death of a Stanton bachelor's pet parakeet in mid-February.

The federal and state team, composed of about 155 full and part-time workers, began filtering into Orange County in mid-February from regular government agricultural inspection and health service jobs throughout the state and nation.

Before the outbreak is squelched, the team could spend a total operations' fund near $2 million, officials believe. Much of that money will go to pay for birds exposed to the disease and gassed to halt its spread to other healthy flocks.

So far, Nielson says, the federal government will pay about $333,340 for California birds and equipment scrapped to halt the disease.

Most of the funds will go to bird owners in Los Angeles and Riverside counties, but $58,823 is earmarked for Orange Countians.

Bird fanciers and pet dealers alike don't always take kindly to the bird slaughter, Nielson admits. Part of his job is to explain why the action is considered necessary.

Veterinarians report only two known methods of eliminating the contagious disease. Elimiate the possible carriers or quarantine them.

Owners may quarantine their birds by filing forms with the government swearing their pets or flocks will not come in contact with other birds and submitting a periodic testing, Nielson says.

But because the quarantine period roughly corresponds to the life span of the bird, it could prove a problem, especially among dealers.

A bird exposed to Newcastle disease may carry the virus for more than 400 days before becoming sick.

The disease results in internal ulcers. Birds literally bleed to death when stricken, the Texan says.

It could be devastating to the annual $100 million California exotic bird industry and — if allowed — to $400 million annual state poultry and egg production.

"The United States is the only major disease free country in the world, therefore we have a fantastically productive exotic bird industry in Southern California," Nielson says.

"I hate to think what would happen if it gets into poultry. The U.S. and Canada are the only two countries in the world where poultry and eggs are the cheapest animal protein available to the consumer.

"Fryers are $5 each at a minimum in Mexico City for instance. What's the price here? Probably less than $2.

"We're doing our damnest to save the American public's standard of living.

"It's a worry. I get three calls a day from poultry publications asking if it is into poultry yet. If it got into the centers of broiler and fryer production, it would wipe out an industry."

Those centers, he adds, are in north-central California, the Delmarva Peninsula, the Chesapeake Bay area and the Missouri-Tennessee corridor.

the Masters is about 27 years.

That means if you get your name on the bottom of the list today, you might be able to get a membership for your child's wedding. If he isn't born yet.

So the trick is to get your letter and check in the mail on the first day tickets go on sale.

And, you should be flexible, setting aside several nights when you might be able to attend the festival — just in case the performance on your first choice is sold out.

A Point Hueneme woman who wanted four tickets last year didn't take any chances. She carefully typed out a list containing 144 combinations of dates and times she could attend.

Some ticket seekers are a bit presumptive.

One woman wrote in and asked for loge seats for the next 15 years, festival officials recall.

"We would like the same tickets we had last year," they write — then fail to reveal where in the Irvine Bowl they watched the show before.

Others write, "Please seat us next to our neighbors." Whoever they are.

But the festival crew is sympathetic. Especially to those who lose out in the ticket chase.

"It's a department with a heart," says box office worker Karla Allen. "We listen to the sobs on the phone and tell them, 'Better luck next year,'" she said.

Kidnap, Rape

Seaman Guilty Of Ax Assault

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Merchant seaman Larry Singleton was convicted Friday of kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old girl and chopping off her arms with an ax.

A jury of nine men and three women found the 51-year-old defendant guilty of attempted murder in the first degree, mayhem, two counts of forcible oral copulation, sodomy and kidnapping.

After deliberating for 12½ hours over three days, the panel concluded that Singleton, of Sparks, Nev., did not use a deadly weapon or commit bodily harm in kidnapping Mary Vincent last Sept. 29. That finding removed the prospect that singleton would face the death penalty in sentencing scheduled for April 20.

Peanut Probe Powers Granted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell announced broader powers Friday for the special counse' investigating President Carter's family peanut business, and said the charges should provide the same degree of independence that Watergate prosecutors had.

IN SHORT

Bell had been under sharp attack from Republican members of Congress because he named Paul J. Curran, a New York Republican, to be special counsel rather than special prosecutor.

Under a formal charter issued by Bell's office Friday, Curran will have authority to seek indictments without clearing his decision with anyone in the Justice Department.

Pain Killer Linked to Cancer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A pain killer found in several common headache powders may be linked to urinary tract cancer, researchers at Bowman Gray Medical School report.

The drug, phenacetin, is found in both prescription and non-prescription preparations.

In a recent report in the medical journal Annals of Internal Medicine, Dr. Vardaman M. Buckalew says there is mounting evidence linking excessive use of phenacetin-based analgesics with cancer of the urinary tract.

Teamsters to Organize Hookers?

NEW YORK (AP) — The Teamsters leader who heads the city and state public employee lobbies wants to organize the city's prostitutes if the "oldest profession" is legalized here.

Barry Feinstein, president of Teamsters Local 237, put in the bid as organizer after stating in a taped broadcast that the labor movement supports legalization of both prostitution and casino gambling for the city.

Feinstein predicted casino gambling would be in operation here by 1981 or 1982, but offered no timetable for legal prostitution.

Marine Could Face Death Penalty

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, a Marine accused of collaborating with the enemy during the war in Vietnam, could be sentenced to death if convicted on preliminary charges pending against him, a Marine spokesman said Friday.

"Charges were brought on the basis of allegations by other returning prisoners of war," said the spokesman, Capt. Bob Bowen. "There will be formal investigations to see whether we can go ahead with court martial proceedings."

Garwood, 33, of Greensburg, Ind., flew to Bangkok Thursday on a regularly scheduled Air France flight from Ho Chih Minh City, formerly Saigon. He was transferred to a U.S. military aircraft and arrived at a U.S. Navy base on this Japanese island Friday.

He had stayed voluntarily in Vietnam after being captured by the Viet Cong in 1965.

Quake Jolts Domican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, (AP) — A sharp earthquake jolted the Dominican Republic on Friday afternoon and caused panic among some residents. One man broke his legs when he jumped from the third floor of a building, authorities reported.

The U.S. Geological Survey earthquake center in Golden, Colo., said the quake registered 6.2 on the Richter scale and was centered in the Mona Passage between Puerto Rico and Dominican Republic, which shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

Windows in Santo Domingo were reported broken, some walls were cracked and some electrical service was interrupted. The quake also was felt in Puerto Rico, 250 miles east, but apparently more lightly. No injuries were reported there.

Space Shuttle Arrives in Florida

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — Columbia, the craft destined to help Americans shuttle between Earth and space, arrived in Florida's Panhandle Friday on the next-to-last leg of a troubled cross country odyssey.

Shackled ungraciously to the back of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet, the 75-ton shuttle arrived to cheers of hundreds of spectators at this Air Force facility a few miles from Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

Here's Looking at You

"Bright Eyes", a 2-year-old beagle-shelty mix, has a pair of orbs that just won't quit and they could be doing a lot of looking into your eyes if you'll go down to the Newport Beach Animal Shelter at 6904 W. Coast Highway and tell the folks there you'd like to give him another chance. He sure hopes he'll be seeing you.

County Water Costs to Rise

Heavy rainfall last year has given Orange County more water to draw from its wells, but that water probably will cost residents more money this year.

Nereus Richardson, Orange County Water District engineer, reported this week that water in the basin which lies underneath the northern half of the county raised more than 16 feet during 1978.

But the three years of drought that preceded left the basin supplies deminished, he reported. It is still 235,000 acre feet below the filled level.

OCWD is responsible for managing the county's underground water supply and establishing rates for the well water piped to county homes through various districts.

In his report to OCWD directors on the basin's condition, Richardson hinted that those rates will increase because operating funds were lost through property tax cuts resulting from passage of Proposition 13 last year.

Water cost to districts is expected to go up $8 an acre foot for agricultural users and $3 a foot for domestic users, an OCWD spokesman projected.

The result, he said, would be an increase of about $3 a year for the average household.

OCWD's board is expected to establish water pumping rates and the amount of water to be taken from the basin when they meet at 7 p.m., April 18, in district headquarters in Fountain Valley.

District staff members recommend that only 55 to 65 percent of the county's water requirements come from the underground basin, the rest to be imported from northern California and the Colorado River through Metropolitan Water District.

2,000 Flee Flooding In Illinois

By The Associated Press

Residents along flooding rivers in Illinois and Iowa erected sandbag barricades to save their homes Friday while gale-force winds and blinding snows swept the Plains.

Communities along a 100-mile stretch of the Illinois River downstream from Peoria, Ill., were virtual ghost towns. More than 2,000 persons fled amid warnings of the area's worst flooding in history.

At the same time, an unexpected spring storm dumped up to 7 inches of snow on wide areas of Kansas and knocked out power in three-fifths of the state. Power lines laden with snow and slush snapped under the force of winds up to 55 mph.

Chuck Adams, a spokesman for the Kansas Electric Cooperatives, said 20 of the state's 36 electric cooperatives were out of service.

"We've got crews all over the place and we're borrowing crews from co-ops that weren't effected," he said. "I imagine it will take at least until tomorrow for things to start returning to normal."

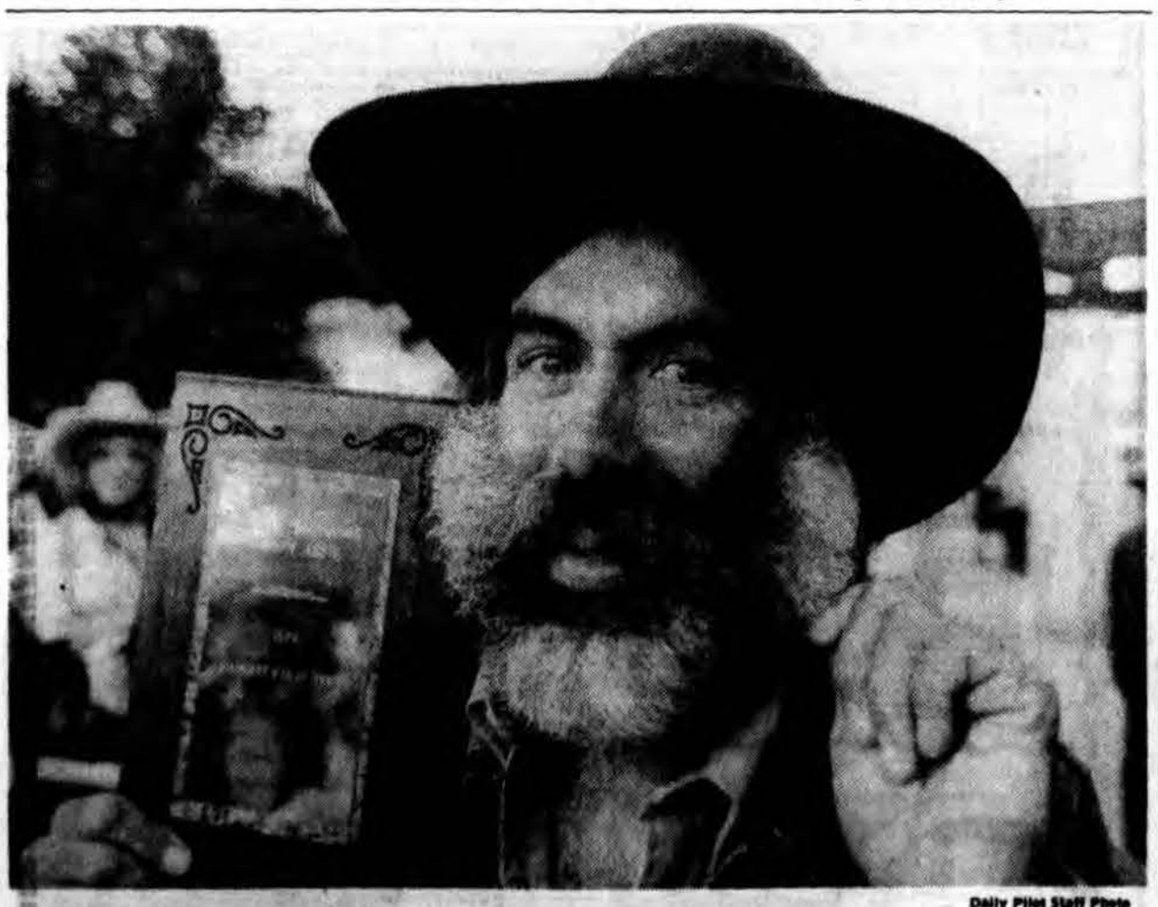

In communities along the Illinois River, the tops of empty houses were poking through on streets that were turned into muddy tributaries.

"You can fish right out the window," said Marilyn Worlow, an office manager of the Midwest Oil Co. in East Peoria, where the water got 4 feet deep in the streets.

In Iowa, the Big Sioux River, blocked by four major ice jams, was flooding, as were the Rock, Floyd and Little Sioux rivers, closing a number of roads.

At Cherokee, Iowa, seven downtown businesses were evacuated. Water surged into a power substation at Fonda, Iowa, knocking out electricity, and in Bedford the water caused serious damage to the city's sewage treatment plant.

He's the Hairiest

John Reinhardt was the first place winner in the San Juan Capistrano Fiesta de las Golondrinas "Hairiest Man" contest held Friday afternoon. Fiesta events today include a pancake breakfast at 7 a.m., the state's largest non-motorized parade at 1 p.m. and a rodeo at about 3 p.m. The rodeo will be featured again at 2 p.m. Sunday as the annual fiesta draws to a close.

Records Return to Capistrano

Early Mission San Juan Capistrano records prepared by Father Junipero Serra and his successors and dating back to 1779 found their way back to the mission this week thanks to a $19,000 donation by J. Robert Fluor, head of the Fluor Corp. Welcoming their return to the mission archives are, from left, Father Paul Martin, Fluor, Bishop William Johnson of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Orange and Father William Krekelberg, archivist for the diocese. The records were purchased from the early California collection of Jenme Crocker Henderson

Candidacy 'Closer'

Carter Trying to Hurt Brown?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., saying he was "closer" to declaring his candidacy for president, said Friday he "wouldn't discount" reports of a conspiracy by President Carter to embarrass him.

At a news conference, the 40-year-old Democratic governor said there were "a number of activities coming out of the White House" that seemed to be directed at him.

"OBVIOUSLY SUSPICIONS were raised, given the political speculations about my candidacy, and President Carter's candidacy.

"I don't have the hard evidence, but given what I know about politics, very little would surprise me."

Asked if recent events had moved him closer to being a candidate for president in the 1980 primaries, Brown replied: "I would say I'm getting closer."

AS EVIDENCE OF Carter's activities against him, Brown cited:

A White House "secret committee to beat the balanced budget."

A meeting of Energy Secretary James Schlesinger with the president of Sohio before that company announced it was pulling out of a California-Texas pipeline project.

A secret meeting with California legislators by a Carter aide who travelled with Rosalynn Carter — a "Mr. Francis" — on a visit to California last week.

"I THINK THERE'S a real move on which will heighten the interest in 1980," Brown said of Carter's activities.

Brown has endorsed a call for a constitutional convention to propose an amendment requiring balanced federal budgets. His proposal was defeated by the California Legislature.

Sohio announced recently it was dropping plans for a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil to Texas, citing bureaucratic red tape. It later said it was reconsidering the project if it could get governmental approval within six months.

BROWN ALSO SAID he will go to Washington on Tuesday at the invitation of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Washington, to testify about the project.

Clemente OKs Animal Pact

San Clemente will continue receiving county veterinary public health services the coming year after council approval of a contract renewal this week.

The county will continue to perform all animal control services within the city through June 30, 1980 under the new contract approved by councilmen.

In exchange for the service, county officials receive all animal licensing .ees from the city.

'Scenic Run' Set in Niguel

A "Spring Scenic Run" to benefit the Girls' Club of Laguna Beach is scheduled April 7 from the federal ziggurat in Laguna Niguel to the Laguna Niguel Regional Park.

The 6.25 mile race begins at the Ziggurat at 8:30 a.m. and the $5 pre-registraion cost includes a T-shirt, refreshments and awards and prizes for the winners.

Those who register the day of the race must pay $6. Applications are available at many local sports shops and the Girls' Club at 1470 Temple Terrace. For information, call 494-7630.

Defeat Turned 'Round

Sailor's Long-time Dream Came True in Win

By ALMON LOCKABEY
DP Boating Editor

Dennis Durgan, 25, has been "messing around" in sailboats since he started racing Sabots as a 7-year-old out of the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club.

Durgan, who now sails for Newport Harbor Yacht Club, is the 1979 Congressional Cup champion, a goal he has been dreaming of since he sailed in the famed match racing series as a crewman 10 years ago.

BUT THE CULMINATION of that dream didn't come easy for Durgan and his blue-ribbon NHYC crew. They started the series inauspiciously by being soundly beaten by the defending champion, Dick Deaver of the Balboa Yacht Club.

"That defeat was a blessing in disguise," muses Durgan. "It cut our chances in half but allowed the crew to relax and get our act together."

After Deaver was beaten by Richard Hackett of the Coyote Point Yacht Club in the second day of racing, it put Durgan and his crew back on an even basis with Deaver.

CAME THE FINAL day and Durgan and Deaver were tied with six wins and one loss each. Each had to win his final three matches — in which case Deaver would have his third Congressional Cup.

In Deaver's first match of the day, he was beaten by John Odenbach Jr., the only skipper who had not won a single race. That defeat supposedly handed the series to Durgan and his crew.

Maybe.

There was a little thing like a protest that Deaver lodged against Odenbach for allegedly tacking too close near the weather mark.

"WE KNEW AT that point," said Durgan, "that our fate was in the hands of the judges. If Deaver had won the protest he would have lost the Congressional Cup."

'EVERY MISTAKE' Winner Durgan

But the judges didn't agree with Deaver that Odenbach tacked too closely and Deaver had his second defeat.

About that loss to Deaver?

"We deserved to lose," said Durgan. "We made every mistake in the book. We lost the start (a very important part of match racing), we had a spinnaker foul up at the weather mark, and we dropped our chute in the water and ran over it at the leeward mark. You just can't make mistakes like that in a light weather race — especially against a skipper like Deaver."

WHAT ABOUT ALL those ripped genoa jibs in the second day of heavy weather racing? There were six altogether.

"It really alerted our crew. The sails seemed to be splitting in the seams, so we started inspecting our jib on the downwind runs and taping the seams to be sure it wouldn't happen to us."

Durgan says he learned a lot about boat organization and preparation from Deaver for whom he once worked. He also learned from such skippers as Bill Ficker and Dennis Conner for whom he sailed as tactician in the years they won the Congressional Cup.

"BUT WHEN IT comes down to the nitty-gritty, its the crew that deserves the credit in match racing," said Durgan. "The skipper is the one who steers the boat and ignites the crew."

Durgan's crew was made up of an eager quintet of young sailors who know their jobs and like to win. They were Lewie Wake, tactician; John Wake, sail trimmer; Duffy Duffield, sail trimmer; Bill Messenger, mid-deck, and Rex Banks, foredeck. All are engaged in the marine business in one capacity or another.

Messenger is president of Sparcraft Corp. where Durgan is employed as a rigger. Lewie Wake is in charge of research and development for Hobie Cat, and his cousin John works for him. Duffield is a yacht designer and builder with whom Durgan is associated in the Native Son syndicate. Banks is a yacht maintenance man and rigger with experience on some of the top racing yachts in the world.

DURGAN'S NEXT dream? To sail a 12-meter with an all-West Coast crew in America's Cup competition.

The 1979 Congressional Cup was Durgan's eighth since 1969 and his third as skipper. In addition, he has sailed as crew and skipper in some of the most prestigious races in the world, including the Transpac and the Southern Ocean Racing Conference. He also crewed on the 12-meter Mariner in the 1973 America's Cup trials.

Blizzard Hits Missouri

Five Inches of Snow Recorded Near Iowa Line

U.S. Summary

Missouri was the boundary state for poor weather in the nation Friday, with heavy snow in the northwest and thunderstorms with at least one tornado in the Southeast.

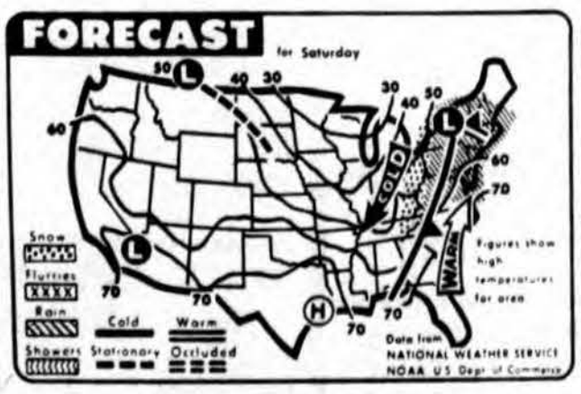

Blizzard conditions swept through northwest Missouri, with visibility near zero. Near the Iowa line, accumulations of up to five inches were recorded. The storm moved quickly and spread snow from central Missouri through Iowa and into the upper Great Lakes. Winds up to 50 miles per hour were recorded in the Northern Plains.

The thunderstorms that spawned a tornado moved to Illinois and Kentucky. Rain and a few thundershowers lingered in southern Missouri.

Rain and thunderstorms were scattered across the Southeast, with severe weather moving through the South Atlantic Coastal states. The storms produced damaging winds and three tornadoes. A tornado was seen near Anderson, South Carolina, and another knocked down trees and overturned trailers south of Atlanta, Georgia. Several injuries occurred when another twister struck northeast of Tampa.

The foul weather didn't reach the Northeastern states, where fair skies prevailed and temperatures were in the 50s. Cooler air pushed through Texas and Louisiana, ending the rain and bringing fair skies.

The Western states had partly cloudy skies. Temperatures were mild along the West Coast, with the Pacific Northwest in the 70s.

Surf Report

California

Local gusty winds in the mountain areas up to 20 mph today. Lows 28 to 36 and highs 48 to 56.

The desert areas will be mostly fair through Sunday with lows 36 to 44 in the high deserts and 42 to 48 in the lower desert valleys. Highs in the 60s in the high desert and in 70s in the low desert.

Mattel Hit

Parents File Suit in Death

ATLANTA (AP) — The parents of a 4-year-old boy who died when a toy missile lodged in his throat have filed suits totaling $14 million in federal court against Mattel Inc., manufacturer of the toy.

Attorney Wade Hoyt III of Rome, Ga., filed the suits Friday on behalf of John D. Warren and his wife, Doris Warren, of Gwinnett County near Atlanta.

THE WARRENS' SON, ROBERT Jeffery Warren, died Dec. 31, two days after he "either shot the red missile attachment down his throat or was attempting to load the missile" into a "Cyclon Raider" toy of the company's Battlestar Galactica product line, the suits said.

In one suit, Mrs. Warren seeks $3 million in damages for the "wrongful death" of her son and $10 million in aggravated damages "connected with the defendant's negligence."

In the second suit, the father seeks $5,995 in medical costs and $1 million in damages for the "pain and suffering" caused his son.

"WE HAVE NOT BEEN SERVED with that suit, so we will have no comment," Deanna Xavier, Mattel manager of corporate affairs, said from the firm's headquarters in Hawthorne, Calif.

The suits charge negligence on Mattel's part for failure to issue warnings about the toys' potential danger, saying the toy manufacturer "knew or should have known well in advance of the death of Robert Jeffrey Warren that the toy was dangerous and-or defective.. "

THE SUITS CITED AS AN EXAMPLE a toy-related injury of a 3-year-old New York child last November, which was reported to Mattel.

The suits also charge Mattel with designing a defective toy and with failing to initiate a voluntary program of attaching warning labels to its Battlestar Galactica toys.

Want Children in Apartments?

DEAR PAT: I've read that there's a bill before the state legislature that would prohibit discrimination in rental housing against families with children. What would this law do, and where can I write to express my support?

J.J., Irvine

SB 440 would make legislative findings and declarations that arbitrary discrimination in rental housing against families with minor children is detrimental and is a matter of high state interest.

It would declare that such discrimination is against public policy and provide, with certain exceptions, that any person or agent or employee of such person who rents or leases a housing accommodation, who discriminates in specified ways with regard to such housing based solely on the fact that a person has a minor child, will be liable to the person discriminated against for each and every offense in an amount not less than $250, plus attorney's fees. The bill would exclude mobilehome parks, senior citizen and retirement housing, single or unmarried student housing from the prohibition. It also would allow as an affirmative defense to a civil action based on the discrimination described, establishment of the fact that the accommodation is unsafe for the minor child because of his/her age.

SB 440 is scheduled to be heard in the Senate Local Government Committee March 26. You can write or call the following persons at: State Capitol, Sacramento, Calif. 95814. Author Sen. David A. Roberti's room number is 5122, phone: (916) 445-8390.

Committee members' room and phone numbers are: Milton Marks, chairman, Room 2070, (916) 445-1412; Rose Ann Vuich, Room 5091, (916) 445-4641; Ruben S. Ayala, Room 2048, (916) 445-4641; Robert G. Firm Hired

Clemente OKs Water Study

An Orange firm has been hired by San Clemente to complete an environmental impact report on a water reclamation project in the city.

Envista, Inc. was retained to complete an environmental report for the city to sell $4.2 million in waste water revenue bonds.

THE SALE WAS HELD UP LAST month when City Attorney Michael Bartlett startled councilmen with the announcement that the report was mandatory before sale of the bonds.

Envista is expected to draft an EIR within three months at a cost of $8,400, according to city public works director Howard Bensen.

It was a case of the chicken before the egg, councilmen were told. Receipt of matching state and federal funds for the total $15.5 million sewer project cannot take place until the EIR is completed.

VOTERS LAST NOVEMBER APPROVED sale of bonds for sewer and water reclamation projects withn the city.

Funds were to go for construction of sewer lines, renovation of the old pump station on El Camino Real, construction of a water reclamation system and storage facilities.

But the city's bond counsel, O'Melveny and Myers of Los Angeles, did not inform the city it would need the environmental reports until it was too late, city officials claim.

Last month the council voted to seek compensation for cost of canceling the bond sale from the counsel.

THE COUNCIL MUST AWAIT completion of the environmental impact report, and, following approval of the documents, initiate another bond sale.

City Manager Gerald Weeks said the delays, plus cost of preparing a new prospectus and reprinting, will cost the city approximately $10,000.

CHIEF INJURED
Laguna's Sparks

Laguna's Top Cop Injured

Laguna Beach Police Chief Jon Sparks will be off work for at least a month after suffering back injuries in an auto accident more than three months ago.

He returned to work several weeks after the crash, but said he has been plagued with back problems the past few months. He said his doctor recommended he take time off and receive therapy.

Audience Cheers

Pianist, 13, Subs for Soprano

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The guest soloist was Metropolitan Opera soprano Anna Moffo. But a few hours before the big concert, a cold forced her to cancel.

Did that mean a problem for the San Diego Symphony? Not with the grinning 13-year-old son of Ignacio Romero — the waiter in the wings.

IN CHULA VISTA, eight miles away, little Gustavo Romero finished school as usual and then climbed into his dark suit. In the hushed concert hall Thursday night, he performed Franz Liszt's "Hungarian" Fantasy for Piano and Orchestra to raves.

The audience responded by demanding two encores. Then the happy eighth grade pianist signed autographs.

HIS FATHER, WHO waits tables at the San Diego Country Club, moved with his wife from Guadalajara, Mexico, about 20 years ago.

Court Rulings Throwing Out Justice?

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — As he walked from his office to his automobile after a school board meeting, Oakland Public School Superintendent Marcus Foster was shot and killed from ambush. His nearby assistant, Robert Blackburn, was seriously wounded by a shotgun blast. Tips of the bullets removed from Foster's body had been hollowed out and filled with cyanide.

Two days later, on November 8, 1973, several Bay Area newspapers and a radio station received identical documents purporting to originate with the so-called Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA). The documents bore a drawing of a seven-headed cobra below which were the letters SLA, entitled "Communique No. 1." The documents ordered the execution of Foster and Blackburn by cyanide bullets.

IN THE EARLY morning of January 10, 1974, a Chevrolet van driven by Russell Jack Little, in which Joseph Michael Remiro was a passenger, was stopped for investigation by a police officer in Concord.

In a dramatic confrontation, Remiro fired several shots at the officer from a .380 automatic pistol and escaped immediate apprehension. Little was quickly arrested at the scene and the van seized. Inside the van were SLA documents. Later that morning, Remiro was arrested. He was armed with the Walther .380 automatic pistol which killed Foster.

In the early evening of January 10, 1974, firemen extinguished an arson at Concord house near where Little and Remiro had been stopped earlier.

AMONG THE ITEMS discovered in the house were firearms, ammunition, empty shells which had been fired from Remiro's .380 Walther automatic pistol and Little's .38 caliber Rossi revolver, pipe bombs, Molotov cocktails, several SLA "communiques" (including the original "Communique No. 1" from which the news media copies were duplicated), a typewritten list containing the names and addresses of the five news organizations to which "Communique No. 1" had been sent, a hand-drawn map of the Foster ambush-murder scene, Oakland School District publications from which Foster's photograph had been torn, a document containing the time and date of the school board meeting following which Foster had been killed, cyanide bullets similar to those which killed Foster and the materials with which they were made, and a shotgun shell which had been fired from or at least worked through the same shotgun which wounded Blackburn.

'Found in the ashes next to the outstretched hand of the dead Nancy Ling Perry was Little's .38 caliber Rossi revolver.'

Remiro and Little lived in the Concord house along with avowed SLA members Donald DeFreeze, Patricia "Mismoon" Soltysik, and Nancy Ling Perry. The Chevrolet van was registered to N. G. Ling, the maiden name of Nancy Ling Perry.

Besides DeFreeze, Soltysik and Perry, Remiro and Little were associated with other avowed SLA members during the previous two years, including Angela Atwood, Camilla Hall and Willie Wolfe. All but Remiro and Little were incinerated in the May, 1974, blaze which consumed the house from which they were engaged in a shootout with Los Angeles police.

FOUND IN THE ASHES next to the outstretched hand of the dead Nancy Ling Perry, was Little's .38 caliber Rossi revolver. Also found were a number of sawed-off rifles, the separated barrels of which had earlier been recovered from the Concord house, a shotgun which Remiro had purchased in Oakland in 1973 and various other guns and ammunition.

On March 28, 1974, Remiro and Little were indicted by the Alameda County Grand Jury. The proceedings took 3 days. Alameda County Superior Court Judge Harold Hove upheld the legality of that indictment on November 20, 1974. Month-long proceedings to suppress evidence in the case were conducted from January 22, 1975, to February 20, 1975. On February 27, 1975, Alameda County Superior Court Judge Gordon Minder refused to suppress any evidence. Finally, on November 15, 1974, Judge Hove granted a change of venue and ordered the case tried in Sacramento County.

On March 1, 1975, approximately one month before their Sacramento trial began, Remiro and Little attempted a forcible escape from the Alameda County jail. Before they were subdued, Remiro knocked a guard to the floor, gouged him in the eye, took his keys and tried to open a gun locker. Little knocked another guard to the floor, stabbed him in the throat with a pencil and battered him repeatedly as the guard struggled to reach an alarm to summon help.

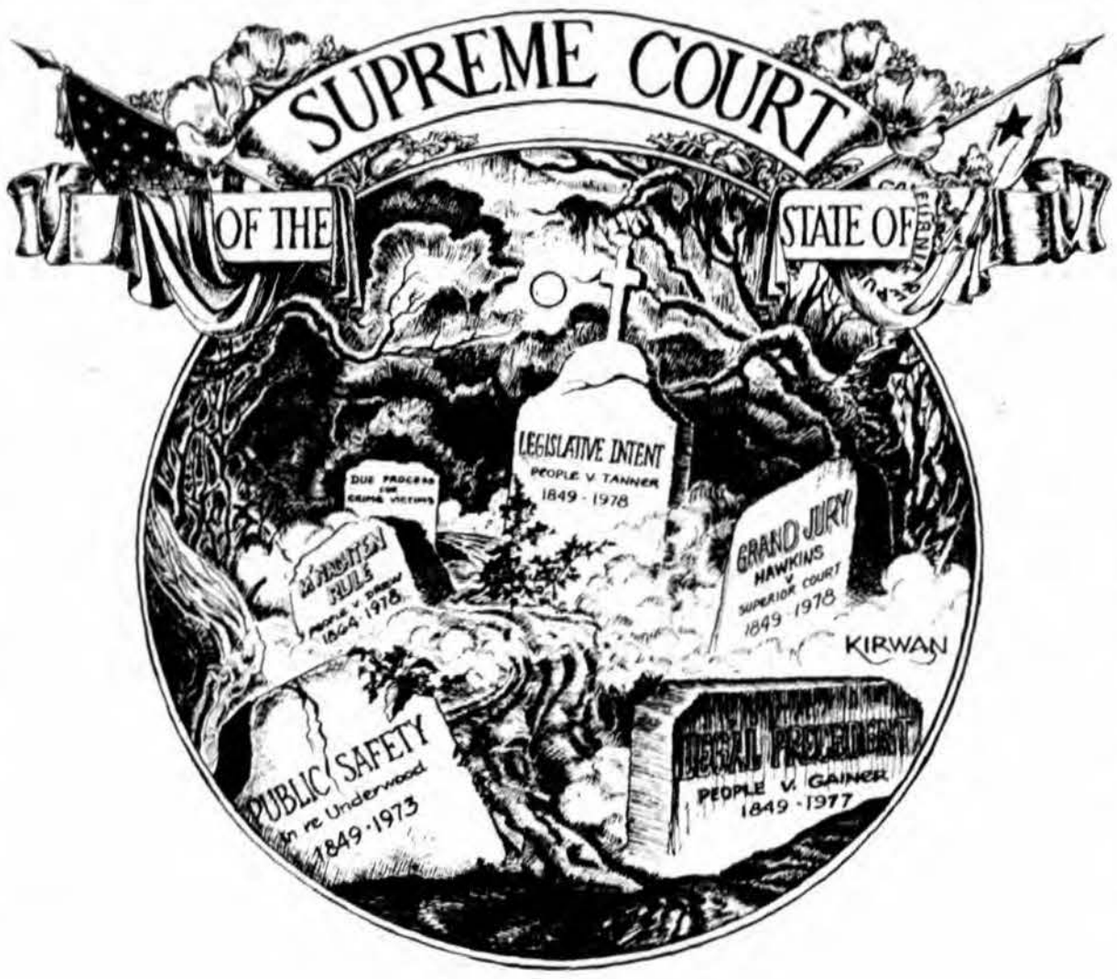

THE JURY TRIAL OF Remiro and Little began in Sacramento on March 30, 1975. The case was given to the jury on May 30, 1975. On June 8, 1975, the jury found Remiro guilty of first degree murder and attempted murder. Before deciding Little's guilt, the jury foreman told the trial judge, Sacramento County Superior Court Judge Evin J. Sheehy, the jury may have reached an impasse.

Based on 100 years of legal precedents, Judge Sheehy gave an "Allen" instruction to the jury. That "Allen" instruction, in the traditional, legal manner, directed jurors in the minority to reevaluate their positions in light of the views of the majority. The instruction also properly informed the jurors that the case at some time must be decided. On June 9, 1975, the jury found Little guilty of first degree murder and attempted murder.

Neither Remiro or Little testified. The trial consumed 46 court days spread over 71 calendar days in which 137 different witnesses were called and over 500 exhibits offered into evidence. The cost of the trial itself exceeded $330,000. When prosecution and defense expenses are added in, the total could exceed $500,000.

MORE THAN TWO YEARS after the trial was completed, the California Supreme Court decided a case called People V. Gainer which retroactively outlawed "Allen" instructions. The Gainer decision would eventually have a devastating impact on the case of one of the two SLA "soldiers." Another two years later, and more than six years after Foster was murdered and Blackburn wounded, that impact was finally felt.

Noting the jury had decided the case against Remiro before the "Allen" instruction was given to the jury, the Court of Appeal on February 27, 1979, upheld his conviction but reversed Little's by declaring, "Defendant Little will fortuitously reap the benefit of the Gainer decision, not because justice requires it but because chance has ordained it."

Press Gag Removal Needed

By FRED W. KLINE
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — For some reasons, for 117 years nobody challenged a section of the state penal code which can be used by a criminal case defendant to keep out the public and the press. All that has now changed.

It's about time such a statute came under judicial review, and that's what is happening now. The state Supreme Court has been asked to find the law unconstitutional.

THE PARTICULAR CASE in question involves two brothers, David and Kenneth Moore. David, 24, and Kenneth, 20, were indicted last year on charges of murder in the slaying of two Oakland women, eight sexual assaults and several burglaries and robberies.

Their attorney asked that the preliminary hearing be closed, fearing prejudicial pretrial publicity. Municipal Court Judge Howard Schwartz invoked the old statute and the hearing was closed.

The Oakland Tribune and the East Bay Press Club then asked Superior Court Judge Winton McKibben to reverse that action, and he did so on Feb. 7, holding that the law was unconstitutional.

When Kenneth Moore appealed, the judge reconsidered and recalled his order, allowing the hearing to go on behind closed doors.

The law in question requires a judge, if requested, to close the preliminary hearings.

By restraining the mandatory closure law, California is only one of four states to do so, joining Idaho, Montana and Utah.

In filing the petition, the newspaper and press club claim closing the preliminary hearing is "an absolute barrier to the free flow of information."

It states that the public has a right to know about a trial from the preliminary hearing until resolution of the case.

Last month, a state Court of Appeals refused to grant an order for the Alameda County Superior Court not to set aside the Feb. 7 ruling, but the appeals court refused in a 2-1 decision.

Now, the matter has been taken to the state's highest tribunal for resolution.

However, if the press loses this round, it should not give up. The State Legislature should be asked to review and change this archaic law.

EVEN THOUGH IT HAS been amended over the years, the fact that it remains on the books is an indication of how our Legislature still finds ways to coddle criminals and the criminally accused.

As has been mentioned before, there is no place for secret trials. They are no good for the accused and they are no good for the people, who have a right to know what kind of justice they are getting from the courts.

Little Logic Reflected by Stand-in Judge

Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — If courts don't "temper doctrinaire logic with a little practical wisdom, the constitution will be converted into a suicide pact."

That paraphrased observation by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Robert N. Jackson in 1949 applies with even greater force today, particularly when evaluating recent decisions rendered by Division Four of the Second District Court of Appeal in Los Angeles.

IN A SERIES OF cases, the Los Angeles appeals court was reversed by the California Supreme Court three times.

Justice Bernard Jefferson, as a member of that Los Angeles court, joined in each decision.

Citing but two of the cases in which Jefferson has participated as a Rose Bird-appointed fill-in Supreme Court justice confirms his staunch anti-law enforcement tilt. He wrote last year's infamous People v. Caudillo decision which declared forcible rape is not great bodily injury and joined in last month's People v. Belton decision which abolished the duty of defense attorneys to give their reasons for seeking judgments of acquittal. From now on, judges must guess at those reasons.

OF FOUR LOWER STATE appellate court cases, the most recent involved Melvin Maxwell, a well-known Los Angeles housebreaker who uses channel lock pliers to force entry into apartments.

One night, a police officer saw Maxwell quickly going from one apartment building to another. A few nights later, the same police officer saw Maxwell enter three more darkened apartment buildings carrying channel lock pliers while a look-out kept watch.

Maxwell came out of the third building five minutes later and stashed a TV set in some bushes. He went back inside, quickly returned and stuffed more property in the bushes.

While glancing around, Maxwell and his stooge loaded their loot into a car. Believing he had seen enough, the police officer summoned help and arrested the two burglars.

"FOUL," CRIED JEFFERSON, and his colleagues on the Los Angeles appeals court. The burglars' conduct, according to the court, was as consistent with innocent behavior as with criminal activity. Both arrests, the court declared, were illegal, all evidence should have been suppressed and first degree burglary convictions against these two confirmed housebreakers were ordered set aside.

Finally Jefferson and his colleagues overturned the rape conviction of Tony C. because eye-witness testimony was, they said, insufficient, without corroboration, to convict the juvenile rapist.

It is highly questionable whether the Chief Justice should continue to do what the governor has refused to do and that is appoint Jefferson to sit on the California Supreme Court, even as a fill-in.

Eenie Muni Minie More

By HERB CAEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Waiting for the Muni. Spent some of the best years of my life waiting for Muni bus at corner of Five and Mish', whereat is situated this pillar of veracity. It's like Richard Armour's catsup bottle — at first none will come and then a lot'll. Credited that couplet once to Ogden Nash, but I'm a fast learner on back burner. While waiting for Muni, must think about other things. Anything.

"They're doing the best they can," is okay thought. Also true. One thing you mustn't do, after, say, about 15 minutes, is step into street and look for buses that aren't there. Watched bus never boils into view. When you look up street for buses and don't see any, get very depressed. Wonder if a strike has been called and nobody mentioned it. You think about writing your District Supervisor, whoever he or she may be if at all. Kick mailbox, which is dumb.

Lot of people surprised that I ride Muni. Think I have a limo with driver played by Tony Curtis. He calls me "J.J.," I call him "Sidney," or didn't you see "Sweet Smell of Success"? I ride Muni to get closer to The People, who I wish would get closer to deodorants.

AS I MAY have confessed before, I browse through rich-fat Fortune magazine regularly to see what the real Movers & Shakers are up to, and I always find something that restores my faith in the system . . . In the latest issue, it's a full-page ad for the Falcon 50 personal trijet, which sells for $7.55 million and may be the answer to this country's energy problems.

In the stop-and-go sentences so dear to the hearts. And minds. Of advertising copy writers. We read: "Size? Intelligent. Carries 10-12. Cuts your fuel bill. Substantially. It conserves precious energy. Smart. And patriotic, too."

But. The ad doesn't tell the full story. This patriotic fuel-saving airplane is made by the Falcon-Mystere Company. In France. Zut. 'Ave nize day, cheri.

LUNCHED AT World Trade Club with Mover & Shaker. Charlie Mover, Irving Shaker. Beautiful room, pleasant service. Spectacular view of Bay spoiled by two gray and white gulls seated on railing just outside window, staring at me. Waiting for handout. Tried to explain by sign language that I couldn't feed them through plate glass.

Gulls unmoved, kept watching me eat prawn salad. Glad I hadn't ordered squab. Looking past gulls, noticed that million-dollar restaurant now being built atop BART ventilation shaft. Place has no name yet, but Top o' the BART is no good. Will open in November. With BART boob tube having so much trouble with ventilation, will restaurant help? You want cooking odors in your tube? Decided on cheese for dessert. Camembert. "Is it runny?" I asked waiter. "Oh NO sir," he assured me. Alas.

IN NEXT FEW hours, did any number of mad things. At "Splendors of Dresden" in Legion of Honor, saw a Crocker (Charles), a Flood (James) and a Hearst (Catherine) in same room. Splendors of San Francisco history.

Hi girls and boys.

There were boatloads of drawings entered in this week's contest in which the top prize is an inflatable rubber boat.

The boat, eight feet by four feet, six inches, seats three to four and the winner will get a pump and oars with it.

It was difficult to select a winner. Uncle Len wishes each who entered could get the boat.

But the winner is — the envelope please — Ruth Howorth, 12, of Huntington Beach, for her beautiful rendering of a schooner silhouetted in front of a setting sun. Congratulations Ruth.

You will be contacted on where and when to pick up your boat. Uncle Len hopes you and your family and friends have many enjoyable hours with the craft.

David McFarland, 10, of Costa Mesa, gets runner-up prize of $5.

The boat is being given away in conjunction with the 11th Annual Western National Boat & Marine Show starting next Saturday and running through April 8 at Anaheim Convention Center. It's supposedly the most complete power boat show West of the Rocky Mountains.

The exhibit will open each weekday at 3 p.m., noon on Saturdays and Sundays.

Actor Alan Hale, who was seen in the "Gilligan's Island" television series, will make appearances throughout the Anaheim run.

Other drawings Uncle Len liked were by Ann Farrow, 14, of Newport Beach; Chad Nelson, 9, Costa Mesa; Paul Kandell, 11, Fountain Valley; Scott Whitcher, 12, Huntington Beach; Glenn Gallacher, 10, Costa Mesa; John Woodruff Jr., 10, Costa Mesa; Sharon Feldman, 11, Huntington Beach; and Debbie Wong, 12, Huntington.

Spring is here.

Thursday afternoon was pleasant, sunny and clear and a bit on the warm side. It was a nice preview of what hopefully is better weather ahead.

Spring, for many, means being outdoors as much as possible.

WHAT IS YOUR favorite springtime activity? Is it playing baseball, bicycling, surfing, throwing Frisbee, sailing or another favorite outdoor pursuit?

Uncle Len, for next week, invites you to do a drawing of your most popular springtime activity. It should be done on white paper four inches by four inches. Use black ink as blue or other colors do not reproduce.

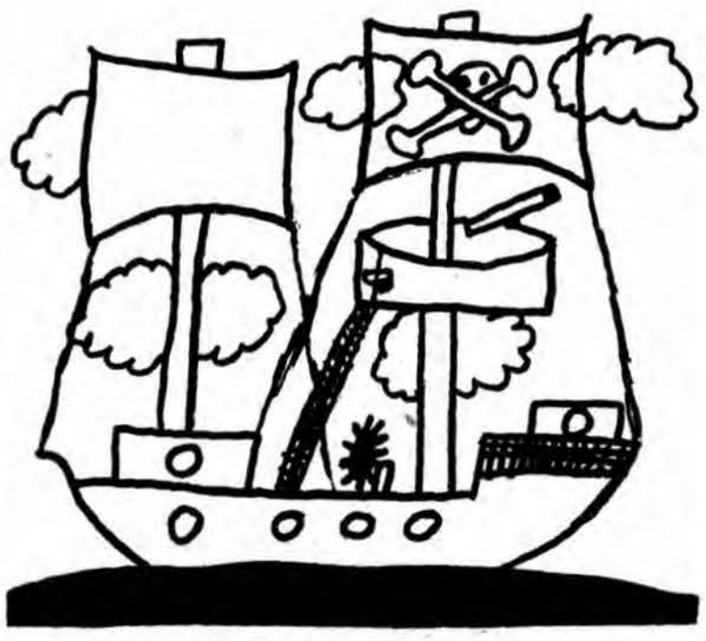

Drawings should be mailed by noon Wednesday to Uncle Len, P.O. Box 1560, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626.

Prizes for next week will be $5 for the winner, $2 runner-up.

Have fun drawing and until next Saturday goodbye.

Troposphere Has 3 Jet Streams

Strong Currents Affect Aircraft; Earth's Weather

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Laura Pratt, age 9, of Salt Lake City, for her question:

CAN YOU EXPLAIN THE JET STREAM?

Our earth would become hotter and hotter if the atmosphere could not get rid of some of the stored-up heat. Winds carry excess heat from the equator to the cold polar regions.

Warm air at the equator weighs less than the cooler air to the north and south. As the cool polar air moves toward the equator, it pushes underneath the warm air and forces it into the upper atmosphere.

The jet stream is a band of fast-moving air currents that can be found at high altitudes over the earth. Jet streams flow in wave-like fashion around the Northern and Southern hemispheres. They change position constantly and move both vertically and horizontally.

A JET stream's core of strongest winds measures about 60 miles wide and about one mile thick. The length of the core can vary greatly, but it usually averages about 3,000 miles.

The winds in a jet stream move at speeds greater than 65 mph and may exceed 200 mph.

There are three main jet streams in the earth's upper troposphere, the name given to the layer of atmosphere nearest the earth. They are found at altitudes of 10 to 15 miles above the ground. These three jet streams are the polar jet, the subtropical jet and the equatorial jet.

THE POLAR jet moves from west to east. In the Northern Hemisphere, its position varies so much that it is difficult to chart. The subtropical jet also travels in an easterly direction. Both the polar jet and the subtropical jet weaken during the summer and move farther north.

The equatorial jet flows from east to west. Unlike the polar and subtropical jets, it does not circle the earth. The equatorial jet occurs only over Southeast Asia and Africa, and only in summer.

Other jet streams occur at higher altitudes than those found in the troposphere. The polar night jet, for example, is found in the stratosphere, the atmospheric layer above the troposphere. It moves in an easterly direction and occurs only during the winter.

JET STREAMS were not known until World War II when American and German pilots encountered them at high altitudes. These strong winds can significantly affect the speed of aircraft flying in or near them.

Jet streams also influence the earth's weather. These air currents are often associated with storms and even tornadoes.

Andy sends the 1979 World Book Science Year Annual to Todd Lefelt, age 10, of Highland Park, N.J., for his question:

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WEATHER AND CLIMATE?

Weather is the state of the atmosphere with respect to wind, temperature, cloudiness, moisture and pressure.

Climate, on the other hand, is the composite or generally prevailing weather conditions of a region, including temperature, barometric pressure, humidity, precipitation, sunshine, cloudiness and winds.

To accurately describe the climate of an area, the above conditions are recorded throughout the year, and then averaged over a series of years.

Local weather plays an important part in all of our lives. How often do we say, "Isn't it a beautiful day?" Although we can't change our local weather, we do good jobs of adjusting to it. We wear our heavy clothing on days when we know it will be cold and dress lightly on hot days.

The 22-volume World Book Encyclopedia, Andy's own reference library, is sent as an award to the writer of the question of the month, and a two-volume World Book Dictionary goes to the writer of the question of the week. Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of P.O. Box 1560, Costa Mesa 92626, include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Hog Named For Skin

Wart-like Formation Protects Animal

Dear Ellie,

How did wart hogs get such a name?

Carrie S.

Dear Carrie,

Wart hogs have thick formations of skin under each eye that give them their name. Males have another pair of these on the nose. We are not sure what these wart-like formations are for but believe that they might help to protect the fact as these animals grub through the rough earth for roots. Certainly, they add to the fierce appearance of the males who also have a pair of tusks that curve upward and outward.

These members of the pig family live in family groups. They are active by day and spend the night in burrows that they have taken over from some other animal and enlarged.

They eat grass but spend a lot of time digging in the earth for roots and bulbs. Like most pigs, they have sparse hair and as a result like to take mud baths to protect their rather tender skin from sunburn and insect bites. Often they lie in the mud and wallow with all four feet in the air.

Wart hogs have great numbers of young, but many of them fall prey to lions. This, however, is part of the balance of nature and enough survive to keep the species strong.

Ellie

Dear Ellie,

Are there any animals other than marsupials that are native to Australia?

K.B.

Dear K.B.,

Remember that the term "animal" covers all creatures, so we will limit your question to "mammal" types. The opposite of marsupial is placental, meaning mammals whose young are nourished before birth by a placenta that connects them to the mother's blood source. There are only two such mammals native to Australia: some small rodents and some bats.

The species known as the false vampire bat is fairly large, having a two-foot wing span. For a long time people believed that it sucked blood from other animals, but this is false. (The only true vampire bats live in South America.) The one in Australia feeds on small mammals and reptiles. There are a number of species of small bats found here also, much like those in other parts of the world.

A number of small rodent species live in the grasslands. An unusual one is the long-haired rat. Another is the stick-nest rat which has fluffy hair like a hamster and rather long ears like a rabbit. But it has the characteristic rat tail. These live in colonies and pile up sticks to make a nest for safety. Such dwellings are sometimes five feet across and are usually built around a bush or against a rock.

The dingo or wild dog of Australia is not native but was introduced by man.

Ellie

Dear Ellie,

I have a Jackson's chameleon that I keep in a terrarium. How can I tell if it is a male or female? Also, what is the largest chameleon?

Ted C.

Dear Ted,

It is very easy to tell the sex of the Jackson's chameleon: males all have the fierce-looking facial "horns," and the females never have them. Be sure you mist the plants daily so the chameleon can sip water from the drops that collect on the leaves.

In the jungles where these reptiles live, water collects in the leaf funnels of plants called bromeliads from which many small tree dwellers drink. Remember, too, that the best food for this animal is live crickets, flies, spiders and moths.

The largest chameleon is from Madagascar and grows to about two-feet in length. It has a very fierce face with a protruding nose appendage and a plate-like head crest. The natives tend to fear this reptile because of its appearance, but actually it is quite harmless and feeds on small rodents and birds. Like your small chameleon, it catches its food by stunning it with the long sticky tongue that it shoots out with lightening speed and amazing accuracy.

Dog's Paw Aids Hitchhiking Owner

Garrison lives in Wenatchee with his wife and Trixy, a 4-year-old mongrel, but he describes himself as a "fruit tramp" and a "travelin' man."

"One man said, 'I never would have stopped for you if that dog hadn't had her hand up,' " said Garrison. "She just holds her hand up and flags."

Death: It's Not When or Why You Go, But How

By AVERY D. WEISMAN

Death is inevitable, but how one dies is not necessarily beyond human control or influence. Some deaths, like some lives, are better and more acceptable than others.

Patients, families, and physicians, as well as others who must share the burden of a patient's dying, can learn to work together and strive for a suitable arrangement of circumstances that provide a decent death.

FOR THE DYING patient with whom I am primarily concerned, the prospect of death is seldom pleasurable. Most people want to live, but to live well or at least with a semblance of what they were like at their best.

Stripped of the traditional terror and fears that cluster around thoughts about death, there are certain principles which can promote a better milieu for a patient for whom death is inescapable. Not only is a better dying fostered, but also bereavement of survivors is apt to be shorter and less painful, while just as sincere.

Heeding these essentials will encourage a more harmonious demise. So far as one can tell, as reported by dying patients themselves, the experience of dying becomes what it should be in the first place: the last part of being alive, but being alive as a person.

WHAT IS IT LIKE to be dying? What can devoted families and friends do when cure is out of the question, and the only remaining question is, When?

Dying can be lonely, but, if one is lucky or prudent enough, very fulfilling. Recently, men and women, professionals and volunteers alike, have reached out to beleaguered patients and families, offering compassion, companionship, consolation, practical assistance, and terminal nursing care.

Care for the dying should be seen as a privilege, not a duty imposed by guilt. Unfortunately, death in this country is often associated with poverty, debilitation, and indignity, even when a dying patient has sufficient means.

There is an impoverishment of spirit that accompanies dying which threatens all but the most unusual patient. Better dying would recognize that family and friends are sometimes eager to do something tangible besides lamenting.

PATIENTS HAVE different personal needs, and no formula fits all. The central principal is that someone is there to share and care during the final phase of life. Dying itself requires a certain forethought, preparation, even rehearsal, to be done well.

Here are a few general principles:

CARE AND CHOICE

A dying patient should not hesitate to ask for help or relief.

DYING CAN BE MADE BEARABLE WITH CARE

This may mean more analgesics for pain, sleeping medicine, or whatever else is useful in easing distress.

Self-assertion challenges the passive compliant wish for death and replaces it with a more active and courageous attitude.

Nevertheless, some patients are reticent about asking for anything, lest they be considered lacking in character or be refused. Many patients have been observed waiting until their pain is unbearable before notifying the nurse.

AT THE SAME TIME, some doctors withhold pain medication for fear their patients will become addicted — a most unlikely outcome. Such doctors are either afraid of death themselves, or unable to recognize reality.

To ask for help in controlling pain is a good way for patients to control their comfort and clarity of mind, an option that is not insignificant at a time when choices are few. Dying patients need to feel a sense of control over at least part of their plight. Otherwise, if control is completely gone, the disease takes over completely.

COMMUNICATION

Silent reverie — a chance to reflect upon who one is, and was — is important, but so is communication with others. A dying person needs to talk about the individuality of impending death — what it is like, what is expected, what has been left undone.

HEALTHY PEOPLE ARE uneasy in the presence of death and often find it difficult to communicate with the dying person. They find it hard to tolerate the seemingly relaxed attitude of patients who should, according to popular expectation, be distraught.

But the patients' apparent attitude is not one of indifference or apathy. Indeed, it is acceptance of death, which survivors need to cultivate themselves.

However, it is unnecessary to dwell constantly on death, as if one were afraid to be afraid. Most dying patients are apprehensive and still accept their fate. Some patients accept death with less anxiety than they do a surgical operation.

THUS, A BRIEF but authentic exchange between friends, even without many words, usually communicates more than does a lengthy and melancholy conversation. A caring presence may be more comforting than eloquent words.

CONTINUITY

Even though he or she cannot take part in the ordinary activities that healthy people take for granted, a dying patient still resents being shut off from the daily flow of life. Friends and family members who feel guilty about being well, taking vacations, buying new clothes, and so on, are doing the patient a disservice when they pretend that they, too, have ceased living.

Long-winded talk that fills up anxious space only isolates the patient further. But one should not have qualms about reporting life events to a dying person who has only this way of participating.

COMPOSURE

A good death is spoiled by emotional extremes. Naturally, one likes to be missed, but does not wish to be the cause of someone else's suffering. If a dying person preserves poise in word and manner, even at great effort, such composure will be remembered, and perhaps emulated by others, when their time comes.

Individual differences matter much in how composed one is and in the means used to reach emotional equilibrium. For some, a mist of medication offers a comfort that should not be denied. For others, consciousness is a boon that is not given up willingly.

TELLING THE TRUTH

Most dying patients know they are dying long before doctors tell them. It is impossible to pretend in the presence of treatments that fail, gloomy expressions, and gathering symptoms of decline.

That one will soon die is seldom a crucial question, even among children.

"Nothing more can be done" is a phrase spoken by doctors and families, not patients.

The truth that cannot be told only because words are inadequate is often conveyed by the presence of people who care.

A FAMILY THAT supports a dying patient and accepts the impending death is better off than one which merely bemoans a prospect that cannot be changed. Breast-beating and blame have no place.

Dying patients who die a good death leave a legacy for survivors in that mourning is shorter, less painful, with fewer recriminations, and much relief. Remembrance is then a tribute, not an emotional burden.

The dying patient can also help others. Candor with compassion, combined with tolerance for candor, means preparing survivors for bereavement.

TRUE, FEW PEOPLE are without fears as the threat of death emerges. But the most fearful time is not at the next-to-last moment. Help for the patient and survivor consists of whatever measures best fortify morale. Hope does not always mean hope for unlimited survival, but instead for survival with reasonable calm and significance, just as long as possible.

CLOSURE

Healthy people can scarcely imagine the reality of a good death. For the dying patient, it is within reach, regardless of the distress endured during earlier periods when treatment and recovery were uppermost goals. A good death always seems to happen at the right time, perhaps because mundane matters have been left behind.

Death becomes acceptable and a curtain is drawn across suffering when one realizes that to surrender life is to give up what is not ours to keep.

NEXT WEEK: George E. Williams, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Minnesota, presents insights on teaching children about death.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh in a series of 15 articles exploring "Death and Dying: Challenge and Change."

Avery D. Weisman, a professor of psychiatry, identifies the elements of a "good" death. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, UC, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

117,000 Firestones Recalled

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Firestone Tire and Rubber Company has announced the recall of 117,000 tires produced in Sweden. The tires look like some produced in the United States and Canada that were the subject of a massive recall announced last year.

The latest recall extends to the Swedish-made tires the same terms offered buyers of the 7.5 million steel-belted radial Firestone 500 tires recalled by Firestone in October.

THE TIRES IN THE NEW RECALL were manufactured in Sweden prior to May 1, 1976 for use in the United States and Canada. They were used primarily as original equipment on imported Volvo automobiles.

Firestone said it was sending recall notices to owners of Volvos with the affected tires, as well as to registered purchasers of replacement tires.

A Firestone spokesman, James Strandberg, said the Swedish tires "look identical" to the U.S. and Canadian-made 500s, and that a customer looking at the tire on his car would not be able to tell where it was produced.

STRANDBERG SAID HE COULD NOT estimate the cost of the latest recall. However, the company had said the 7.5 million tire recall would cost as much as $230 million before taxes. At that rate, the recall of 117,000 tires could cost Firestone up to $3.6 million.

Terms of both recall announcements were similar. Firestone said it will provide free replacements for 500s produced before May 1, 1976, and purchased in the United States after Sept. 1, 1975.

Purchasers of the tires who have already received adjustments and who now are eligible for free replacements can receive refunds, the company said.

Owners of the tires bought before Sept. 1, 1975, are eligible to buy replacements at half price until next Aug. 1. The replacements will be the steel-belted radial 721 or comparable tires, Firestone said.

Author Pioneer In Death Study

He is principal investigator for Project Omega, a research group studying coping and vulnerability in cancer patients.

Widely recognized as a pioneer in the study of death, he is the author of several books, including "On Dying and Denying: A Psychiatric Study in Terminality."

Mesans To Honor Minister

The Rev. Lothar V. Tornow, longest resident protestant minister in Costa Mesa, will be honored Sunday for 25 years as pastor at Christ Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Oswald Waech, administrative assistant to the president of Southern California District of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, will be guest speaker at the 4 p.m. service.

The Rev. Tornow moved to the pulpit of Christ Lutheran in October, 1953 when the congregation worshiped on the campus of Southern California College.

SERVICE HAILED
Rev. Lothar V. Tornow

THE FIRST church building was constructed in 1957 and a Christian Day School opened in 1958. There are presently 218 students and 10 teachers. The church building program at 760 Victoria St. was completed in 1978. The congregation now numbers 1,150.

The Rev. Tornow served as pastor at Plumas Manitoba, Canada, and Lily, Wis. before moving to Costa Mesa in 1953.

He has served as assistant to the chaplain at Fairview State Hospital, Costa Mesa, since it opened in 1959.

Ex-addict Spreads Word

Broadcaster Aids Religion Station

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A young broadcastrer is off to Guam this spring to realize an ambition nearly a decade old, conceived at the end of a four-year bout with drugs.

Ed Flanagan, 28, a newscaster for WDOD in Chattanooga, is going to work for Transworld Radio, an inter-denominational organization that broadcasts fundamentalist religious messages throughout the world.

Flanagan says a Transworld broadcast from the Netherlands Antilles was "the first Christian fellowship I had" after a conversion to Christianity helped him lick the drug habit.

REARED IN West Palm Beach, Fla., Flanagan says he came from a family "where we didn't go to church much," and started using marijuana in high school.

"I said I would never take LSD because I didn't want to mess up my chromosomes. But after two years, in my first year in college, there was no grass to be had and I did get some acid and I tried it and I kept doing it for two more years," Flanagan says.

"For a total of four years, I was on drugs and every day, I mean with rare exceptions, I was stoned every day."

Then, while a student at Oglethorpe University in Atlanta, he says, "I was kind of coming to the end of my rope and I started reading the Bible," he recalls. "I began to pray and to ask God that if He was real to please show Himself to me."

It still took him a while to kick the habit. After a two-year tour in the Navy during which he was Protestant lay leader on his ship, Flanagan came to Tennessee Temple, a religious college in Chattanooga, and graduated in broadcasting in 1977. He has been on the news staff at WDOD for three years.

Flanagan says he heard a Transworld broadcast while "tuning across the AM band" in Florida, shortly after he kicked the drug habit. After entering Tennessee Temple, he says, he and his wife began raising support for their work in Guam.

Transworld, with headquarters in Chatham, N.J., was founded 25 years ago with a station in Tangiers, which was moved to Monte Carlo in 1960. It now operates stations in Bonaire in the Netherlands Antilles, Swaziland, Cyprus, Guam and Sri Lanka.

"The total purpose is to broadcast the word of God to people throughout the world who otherwise would not have an opportunity to hear it," says Roger Groff, a Transworld official in New Jersey.

GROFF SAYS Transworld's beams cover 80 percent of the globe, with a combined total of 5 million watts on AM and shortwave.

Transworld's AM broadcasts are on a specified frequency (800 kilohertz) in Bonaire, with a range into Florida, with shortwave frequencies variable depending on atmospheric conditions.

Groff says Transworld's budget is about $10 million a year — all of it raised through contributions from churches and church members throughout the world.

AMERICAN employees, like Flanagan, arrange for their support by visiting churches and obtaining donations for their work, Groff says.

Most of Transworld's employees are natives of the countries in which the stations are located, he says, and broadcasts are in 75 languages.

Why Guam for the Flanagans? Transworld's main target is China, Flanagan says, and "there is a special place in my heart for the people."

Pope John's Poetry Due Publishing

NEW YORK (AP) — In a poetic mood 12 years ago, Pope John Paul II wrote of man, history and death.

"The human body in history dies more often and earlier than the tree.

"Man endures beyond the doors of death and catacombs and crypts.

"Man who follows endures in those departed.

"Man endures beyond all coming and going in himself and in You."

Excerts from three of the former Karol Wojtyla's works, written under the pen named Andrzej Jawien, appear in the April issue of Ladies' Home Journal with special permission from the Vatican.

Wojtyla wrote poety regularly in secret from 1950 to 1966. He was named a cardinal in 1967.

Mom, Widow Takes Vows As Sister

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Fulfilled as a wife, mother and grandmother, Sister Mary Madonna Boysko has now completed a five-year preparation to spend the rest of her life as a nun.

The 70-year-old widow made her final religious profession in the Visitation Sisters, a Roman Catholic cloistered community in Toledo, then stood behind a gold-colored grille and greeted about 30 family members and some friends.

Her four sons, two daughters, most of her 18 grandchildren and others took turns visiting with Sister Madonna in a small reception room after the ceremony.

SISTER Madonna said she first decided to enter the religious life as a young girl, but met resistance from her father.

Following the death about seven years ago of Michael Boysko, her husband of 37 years, her interest in becoming a nun was renewed.

Red Wagon Wrapped in History

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — The Little Red Wagon. Kids collected scrap metal in them for the war effort in the 1940s. For years, they've been used to haul newspapers and the like. Even today, you'll see one racing lickety-split down a hillside, a screaming youngster aboard.

At one time or another, almost every child has yearned for one.

IT REMAINED IN that box all that time, untouched by a child's hands. It was in the store's basement until the shop went out of business last year, and it was turned over to a church for sale.

There, the Little Red Wagon was purchased for $5, probably about what it would have cost in the Christmas season of 1948.

Most of its kind built then have long since rusted away.

Out of the box, each solid steel part, painted red or black, was wrapped in sheets of the Omaha Evening World-Herald of April 25, May 1, May 5 and May 14, 1948, and the Chicago Sun Times comics section of May 2, 1948.

THE NEWSPAPER wrapping was a history of this Little Red Wagon's earliest days.

In Washington, the newspaper said, the House approved an appropriation of $55,859,690 "containing an anti-communist provision affecting an estimated 1,600 workers in the government printing office."

In Boston, CIO steelworkers voted to let their executive board decide whether to obey a federal law requiring union officers to swear they were not communists.

IN LONDON, FOREIGN Secretary Ernest Bevin told Parliament, "There is little chance for a final settlement with Russia as long as the Soviet government persists in trying to spread communism throughout the world."

Beyond the front page, a reader of the day would learn that beef packers were on strike in Omaha, and a company had offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of those involved in strike violence.

At Brandeis department store, undershirts and shorts cost $1 each. The same store advertised women's shoes remarkably similar to some of the disco styles being pushed today.

THE WAGON ITSELF had a shiny red body and wheels and no plastic whatever. It was assembled with relative ease, with only a screw driver, a pair of pliers and one or two curses.

Emily, 10, was delighted and wanted to take the wheeled object outside at once. That was forbidden.

Catherine, at 20 months, chattered unintelligibly and climbed aboard. She laughed and smiled as she was towed around the room.

At last, the Little Red Wagon was doing what it was supposed to do, after 30 years and the Red Scare, Korea, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Carter, Vietnam and now the Middle East.

Brothers Sentenced On Heroin Charges

Two brothers, convicted of drug sales in what police believe was a longtime Central Orange County heroin-dealing ring, have been sentenced to state prison terms.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Lloyd Blanpied sentenced the alleged "kingpin" of the Stanton and Anaheim operation, 36-year-old Tony Sandoval, to seven years in prison.

HIS 30-YEAR-OLD brother, Jesus "Choey" Sandoval, is to serve a six-year term, Judge Blanpied ordered.

The two, along with a third brother, Pete, 32, were convicted early this year on multiple counts of heroin sales after a three-month jury trial.

BUT THEIR EFFORTS to infiltrate the drug peddling ring failed, investigators complained, because the brothers were careful to deal only with close friends and only in places they couldn't be easily observed.

Evidence presented during the trial came chiefly from agents who watched the brothers from August 1977 until February 1978 and on testimony from a 21-year-old Buena Park drug user who said she purchased drugs from the brothers.

Transmission Failures Told By Consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four million General Motors cars made since the 1976 model year are subject to costly automatic transmission failures, a consumer group charges.

GM, in a statement issued in Detroit, denied the charge made by the Center for Auto Safety, which consumer advocate Ralph Nader helped found.

THE CENTER SAID, in a letter to Federal Trade Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk, complaints it has received from consumers indicate "a massive design problem" in GM cars using the Type 200 transmission.

The center said it received complaints from 256 owners of cars with transmissions that have failed.

CLARENCE DITLOW, the center's director, said the reports indicate a major problem with manufacturing smaller GM models to meet fuel economy standards.

Ditlow said some consumers have been reimbursed for repair costs, which he said shows GM has established a warranty on the transmissions for consumers who complain loud enough.

How To Deal With An Unhappy Marriage

Many persons may agree that an unhappy marriage is better broken up, but how many are strong enough to face divorce? This week one woman shares the fears, questions, doubts and learning processes that take place after divorce. Her experience taught her that being alone is really an adventure in getting to know oneself and that separation is far better than imprisonment in a bad marriage. Learn about the life-changing revolutions a divorce can bring in this week's Family Weekly.

Spring's Sprung

Gardens Need Shot in Soil

It's a cliche, to be sure, but spring has sprung, summer's just a few sunrises away, and you're probably itching to get out in the garden right now!

But wait! If the weather has given you a shot in the arm, your garden could probably use one too. So before you plant that bed of summer annuals, the vegetable garden, new shrubs, trees or groundcovers, be sure the soil fertility is what it should be for optimum growth.

SOILS ARE RARELY fertile enough to supply all the nutrients required for the best growth of plants. However, it is equally rare for a soil to be deficient in several of the mineral nutrients plants need, especially in California.

In general, gardeners have a tendency to either under or over fertilize. Follow package instructions of garden fertilizers or consult your nurseryman for advice. Fertilizers are labeled to show the percent of each nutrient supplied by weight. A lawn fertilizer might read 20-10-10 meaning 20% nitrogen, 10% phosphorus and 10% potassium, respectively.

TO APPLY commercial fertilizers, three methods can be used:

1. Broadcast and mix into the soil before planting, or broadcast over established lawns.

2. Band applications of a phosphate or phosphate-containing fertilizer at planting time are especially effective when phosphorus is needed. Apply the band of fertilizer two or three inches to one side and slightly below the seed at planting time.

3. Sidedressing with nitrogen fertilizer is especially effective for young plants; the nitrogen is easily moved into the root zone by subsequent watering.

Whenever you fertilize be sure to water thoroughly to prevent damage to foliage or roots. If after fertilizing you suspect a mineral deficiency, the problem may be iron, sulphur or zinc deficiency which you can easily remedy.

Bonsai Society Schedules Show

Descanso Bonsai Society will hold its eighth annual show, March 31-April 1, on the main lawn of Descanso Gardens, La Canada.

Several hundred bonsai will be on display and awards will be given in 18 different categories such as rock plantings, forests, fruiting and flowering trees and cascades. Some of these trees are over 100-years-old and have been trained for decades.

This is the largest outdoor bonsai show in the U.S., and this year, for the first time, a few young, trained bonsai will be for sale. There will also be demonstrations and information on growing and training bonsai and where classes are conducted.

Descanso Gardens is located at 1418 Descanso Drive, La Canada. The show will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., both days. Demonstrations will be held at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. daily and Japanese dancers will perform at 3 p.m.

Weekend Gardening Checklist

- Before temperatures rise much more, it's time to start new lawns — and now is when you fertilize established lawns.

- Notice to all good cooks — perk up your kitchen and garden by starting an herb garden for fresh chives, basil, dill, parsley, sage, rosemary and thyme — and, of course, anything you like to cook with.

- Vegetable gardeners, watch out for weeds and eliminate them now. They are heavy competitors for water, nutrients and light.

- Feed camellias after the bloom season with a garden fertilizer recommended for acid-loving plants such as azaleas and rhododendrons.

- Roses need fertilizing, starting this month, with a balanced garden fertilizer.

Orchid Gardens Tour Set

Harbor View Hills Garden Club will meet Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at Paul Brecht Orchid Gardens, Costa Mesa.

Brecht will conduct a tour of the gardens and present a talk on the growing of orchids.

Butterfly Theme Set

"Take a Butterfly to Lunch" is the conservation topic to be presented Wednesday to Irvine Garden Club members at 10 a.m. at University Park Community Bldg., 1 Beechtree Lane, Irvine.

Mrs. Robert Harmon of Glendale will present illustrative materials and exhibits to demonstrate the role the butterfly plays as a resource for gardens.

Special guests at this meeting will be the combined third grade classes from University Park Elementary School.

Punch

Annuals Enhance Shaded Sections

The most attractive garden landscapes are those with a lot of contrast — varying foliage, bright colors, monotones, and both sunny and shaded areas. The latter can be brightened considerably by growing annuals in the shady or filtered light sections of the garden, and you save the sunny spots for your vegetable garden.

Providing color in the shade is easy with cinerarias, begonias, lobelia and impatiens, to name a few. Primroses are also excellent and provide good color and low foliage. The daisylike flowers of cinerarias light up the areas under shade trees with intense shades of blue, rose and purple.

AS FOR BEGONIAS, there are enough kinds to fill the entire garden, including fibrous rooted begonias, excellent for border plantings in pink and white with bronze or green foliage, and a myriad of tuberous begonias in many flower forms and colors.

Lobilia hugs the ground with blue, white or mauve flowers — a perfect companion planting with impatiens, whose bright, delicate flowers provide color from spring to fall.

BEFORE YOU SELECT plants for your shade garden, however, check what type of soil you have. That which is too sandy loses unnecessary amounts of water by evaporation and quick penetration of the water beyond the root zone of the plants.

Too much clay in the soil does not allow the water to percolate properly through the soil and results in water ponding on the surface and running off.

Planning a New Lawn?

Success Assured If Basic Tips Followed

At the very suggestion of planting a new lawn, most people immediately remark on the difficulties. However, success will be assured without a hitch if a few basic lawn planting steps are followed carefully.

To begin, lay a good foundation for your lawn by cleaning up and grading the lawn area. Lawns grow best in sandy loam and loam soils, since they are fertile, hold moisture well and drain well, in addition to pulverizing easily.

Clay and silt loams do not make good lawn soils and should be replaced or thoroughly amended at the direction of your nurseryman. If the top soil is good, you may start right away with rototilling. Be sure to grade away from your house.

AFTER CLEANING the lawn area and rototilling to a depth of 6 to 8 inches, rake and roll the entire area with a roller which you may obtain from most nurseries on a rental or loan basis. Work commercial fertilizer and organic matter into the surface of the soil — the fertilizer serves as a food for the young grass and the organic matter helps to retain moisture and keeps the surface soil from drying and baking. Roll and rake again to assure a smooth, level surface where water won't collect in puddles.

If you plan on installing an irrigation system, set it in now. Next comes the planting of the lawn seed or the installation of sod grass. Seeding a new lawn is less expensive than sodding but requires some attention at first to keep the lawn area moist at all times while the seed is germinating. Sod lawns require the same soil preparation steps but do provide you with an instant green carpet.

EITHER WAY, be sure to select a lawn variety that is right for your climate and use requirements. Some, such as Kentucky blue grass, prefer cool climates. Others are excellent for foot traffic — Fescues, for example. The amount of sun or shade is also a critical factor.

To broadcast the seed evenly, use a spreader which is available for your use at most nurseries. Water with a fine spray and continue to water once or twice a day until the lawn is well established. If you follow these steps, Your lawn will be a green, growing success.

Gardening Aids Health

Many people shy away from gardening because they feel it is too difficult and tiring. Actually, nothing could be further from the truth, for of the many degrees of gardening, you need not choose the more rigorous forms. Gardening offers so many diversified activities that the amateur or spare-time gardener can easily select that program which will afford him the exercise and enjoyment he seeks.

A View From Roger's Gardens

KENTIA PALM
(howeria forsteriana)

In the loveliest of homes, the Kentia is used in place of furniture to add a touch of warmth and contrasting texture.
LIGHT: Direct eastern or filtered southern light is ideal. An extremely low light will be tolerated with minimal growth.
AIR: Minimum 36 degrees to a maximum of 100 degrees makes this an ideal plant for any home.
WATER: Success depends on proper watering. Several applications of water are necessary to saturate the soil area. Keep your plant moist at all times and use Oxygen Plus at each watering. Inconsistent watering causes yellowing of the fronds.
INSECTS: Occasionally mealybug, spidermites and scale can be a problem. For convenience and control use Chacon Indoor Plant Spray (pre-mixed). For best results, two applications at seven day intervals are necessary.

MEDICAL AUTHORITIES CONCERNED OVER SIMILARITY OF FERTILIZER DISPENSER

Pisces: Take Initiative

SUNDAY, MARCH 25
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on prophetic dreams, hospitals, clubs, institutions. What had been hidden will be revealed. Sagittarius — and another Aries — could figure prominently. You make valuable, new contact.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow through on hunch — learn, teach, regain sense of direction. Aquarius, Cancer individuals figure in scenario. You're able now to win friends, persuade people and to conclude successful business transaction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on advancement, ambition, deciding whether to give or receive orders. Diversify. Display adaptability. Refuse to be painted into corner. Sagittarian plays key role.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Evaluate prospects, perceive potential. Break through red tape — find ways of utilizing legal nuances for your own benefit. Individual who inspired you in past may reappear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Bring forth powers of analyses — dig beneath surface, come up with vital answers, conclusions. Financial status of one close to you figures prominently. Member of opposite sex is "serious."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on partnership, sales, public relations, harmonizing domestic situation. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. Defer to desires of those who mean much to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message — go slow, be sure of rules, regulations. Keep resolutions concerning diet, health and work. See in light of reality, not through haze of wishful thinking. You learn what you need — and ways to obtain it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Imprint style, express feelings, create and originate. Finish rather than begin, deal with Aries, Libra individuals. Lunar aspect is good — favors following your heart. Affection, love, your individuality — these are accented.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You win! You're vindicated! You complete task, assignment, special project. You receive unique offer, possibly related to teaching and education. You get stamp of approval.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take a more independent stance in dealing with neighbors, relatives. You have choice now between "subjugation" and freedom. Display originality, versatility and humor. Welcome new contacts, projects.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on security, locating needed material and your income potential. Cancer, Capricorn individuals could play key roles. Follow through on hunch. Get money's worth and count your change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain valid hint from Capricorn message. Stress self-reliance, confidence in your own capabilities. Take initiative, lead rather than follow, at your own pace. Make personal appearances — wear bright colors.

Pharmacologist Flays Fertilizer Dispenser

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Medical authorities are worried about a plastic, spoon-like dispenser being marketed with a house plant fertilizer because, they say, it is nearly identical to a device used to feed medicine to small children.

"When I saw that fertilizer display, I was really shocked," said Phillip Wade, a Marin County doctor of pharmacology.

WADE SAID HE and other pharmacists and doctors around the country have been giving nearly identical devices to parents for the last 10 years to ensure accurate dosages of medicine for children.

"Here's a dispenser that's specifically designed for a child, so they can drink out of it like a spoon," Wade said. "Children really associate with this spoon. I'm afraid the fertilizer will be stored with other toxic substances, and if children get to it, the implications could be far-reaching."

HE SAID HE and two pediatricians, Drs. Bill Manson and Kathy Sexton, wrote a letter a month ago to the fertilizer company, Stern's Garden Products of Geneva, N.Y., asking that it immediately remove the dispenser from the packages of Miracle-Gro plant food.

Wade said he has received no response from the firm. The company also failed to respond to a request from The Associated Press for comment.

The 5-inch-long spoon has a hollow handle marked to allow specific measuring. The fertilizer box and bottle each contain a warning in small type: "Keep out of reach of children."

THE ISSUE ALSO was brought to the attention of the San Francisco office of the federal Consumer Products Safety Commission, which said it forwarded the complaint to its New York office.

Lois Van Guilder of the San Francisco office said: "We don't think there's anything illegal about it. Most products in the class of the fertilizer would make you nauseated if you drank it, but that's the extent — it's not lethal."

BUT DR. TED Fong, a poison expert at the University of California Medical Center, said the spoon should be removed from the Miracle-Gro package. "There is a dangerous association of something that can be consumed with something that shouldn't," he said.

"The problem is a mixup in a child's mind," Fong said. "One of our major problems with accidental ingestion has to do with confusion. We are very concerned about it."

African Violet Society Slates Show and Sale

Orange County African Violet Society will conduct a judged show and plant sale April 7 and 8 at the Civic Center, 8200 Westminster Ave., Westminster.

Held in conjunction with the Westminster Spring Festival, the show will have as its theme "Snow White and the Seven Violets."

A NEW SERIES of African Violets, hybridized by Orange County resident Art Hill and named for Orange County cities, will be introduced.

Society members from all parts of the county will be competing for top awards in horticulture, arrangements, terrariums, artistic plantings and crafts.

GROWING TIPS and techniques will be presented during the show. Plants and supplies will be offered for sale.

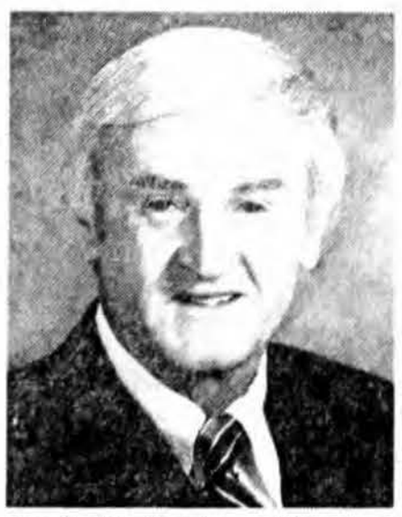

Show hours will be from 1 to 8 p.m., April 7, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., April 8.

The society meets the second Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at Glendale Savings and Loan, 320 N. Harbor Blvd., Fullerton. Visitors are welcome.

Add Amendments To Hungry Soil

Annuals, perennials and vegetable crops make heavy demands on the soil. If organic matter is not added to the soil from time to time, tired, depleted soils will develop.

Where gardens once flourished, less than spectacular results can be expected. To build up soils, add amendments such as fir bark or compost — and bask in the results.

Too Much of Everything

Holmes Wins With Seventh-round KO

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Larry Holmes smashed young Ossie Ocasio to the canvas four times in the seventh round and stopped the Puerto Rican challenger at 2:38 of the round to retain the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship Friday night.

IT WAS SIMPLY a matter of too much size, too much power and, most importantly, too much experience. Ocasio, making only his 14th pro fight, tried with all he had but he was never really in the fight before a crowd of 5,376 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion and a national television audience.

The gate was estimated at $345,000.

The victory by Holmes sets up a title match with Earnie Shavers in September, although Holmes is expected to defend against Mike Weaver of Los Angeles in June, possibly in New York's Madison Square Garden.

"MY MAN, HELL OF A FIGHT," the champion said to the outgunned Ocasio a few moments after the fight had been stopped.

Holmes, who weighed 214 pounds to 207 for Ocasio and who enjoyed a 3½-inch height advantage and a four-inch reach advantage, came out at the opening bell looking to land a big punch.

But Ocasio hung tough, crouching and bobbing and weaving, and keeping Holmes' timing off just enough to escape disaster. In the fifth and sixth rounds, however, the 6-3, 29-year-old champion began finding the range to both the head and the body.

THEN, IN THE SEVENTH, Holmes wrote an end to the 23-year-old Ocasio's title dreams in the same arena in which Leon Spinks stunned the world on Feb. 15, 1978, when he outpointed Muhammad Ali.

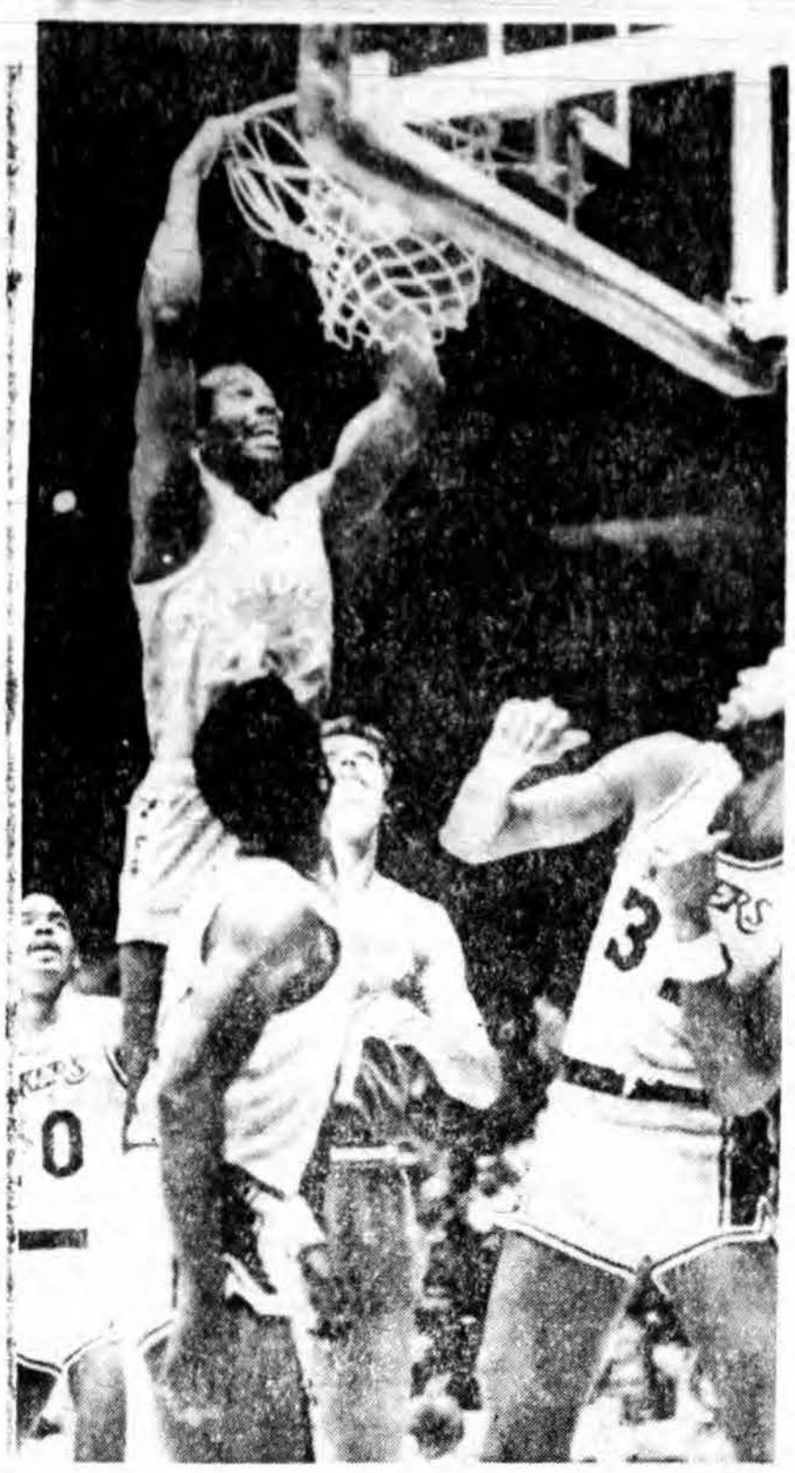

Holmes scored his first knockdown with three straight left jabs. It was a jab that wasn't meant to be pretty; it was meant to do the job, which it did.

Ocasio struggled up and Holmes moved in for the kill. Two jabs and a right sent the Puerto Rican to the floor.

Once again Ocasio struggled to his feet. Referee Carlos Padilla looked into Ocasio's eyes and shouted: "Are you all right?" The challenger nodded yes and Padilla waved Holmes in again.

KERMIT WASHINGTON DUNKS IT FOR SAN DIEGO.

Lakers Roll, 156-119

Romp Doesn't Impress West

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

INGLEWOOD — It's been two months since the Lakers enjoyed a rout like the one they got Friday night. They were beginning to forget what it felt like.

Showing no signs of a slump that has plagued them of late, the Lakers ripped San Diego, 156-119, for their biggest winning margin (37 points) of the season.

LOS ANGELES shot a stunning 64 percent from the floor and dominated the game from start to finish, but Coach Jerry West was not impressed.

"I honestly don't think we played that well," West said to a group of disbelieving reporters. "San Diego played poorly in the first half and got itself in a big hole. We got a lot of easy baskets."

Easy or not, the baskets were coming in abundance. After gradually pulling away to a 21-14 lead, the Lakers went on a 10-0 binge and buried San Diego.

THEY LED BY 34 points early in the third quarter and got their 100th point with more than 16 minutes left in the game.

Los Angeles had lost five of its last seven going in and slipped to third place in the NBA's Pacific Division. Suddenly, a playoff berth didn't look so certain.

"We're really concerned," says Adrian Dantley, the Laker forward who finished with 25 points. "If we don't play well we might not even make the playoffs. That's how close it is."

And a game like this is just what the doctor ordered.

"It helps our confidence a lot because we've been struggling," Dantley said.

"FROM A CONFIDENCE standpoint," added West, "everyone got a chance to play and everyone played well, and that's good."

Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who shared team-high honors with Dantley by scoring 25 points in 33 minutes of work, disagrees.

"A win is a win, and that's the most important thing. I'm pretty confident we'll get to the playoffs, and we'll do well in the playoffs," Abdul-Jabbar says. "If we can start putting 'em down like we did tonight we'll be all right."

WHILE THE LAKERS were "putting 'em down" to the tune of 65 percent in the first quarter, San Diego was shooting a miserable 28 percent.

"After the game I told the team how good we really are and not to get down," Clippers Coach Gene Shue said. "It was our worst game of the year. This is what I call a law-of-averages game."

A somewhat bored crowd of 11,362 watched at the Forum as eight Lakers scored in double figures. Much of the crowd was on its way home early in the fourth quarter.

THE ATTENDANCE is significant because on this night Los Angeles recorded its 10 millionth fan through the turnstiles in 19 years.

While playing to a 43-30 record (nine games remain), the Lakers have averaged 11,705 fans per home game, disappointing in view of the nearly 14,000 LA has averaged over the past 10 years.

The Lakers scored season highs for most points in a quarter (44) and a half (88). Every Laker in uniform scored, and only three failed to reach double figures.

Louganis Leads

CLEVELAND (AP) — Greg Louganis of the University of Miami, Fla., who won the one-meter diving event, leads qualifiers in tonight's three-meter diving finals with 253.10.

Second in the qualifying field was Indiana's Rob Bollinger with 237.60, followed by Brent Bordson of Minnesota with 236.20 and Matthew Chellich of Michigan with 231.30.

Spartans, Bird, Big Favorites

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Smiling and confident, the favored Michigan State Spartans pranced through their final tuneup for today's NCAA semifinal against Penn, considered by far the least likely to succeed.

Michigan State, the odds-on favorite to take home the 1978-79 collegiate basketball championship, meets the Penn Quakers, the surprising winners of the East Regionals, at 11:45 a.m. PST.

Thirty minutes after they finish, top-ranked Indiana State puts its 32-0 record on the line against a quick but depth-thin DePaul team that may be without premier forward Curtis Watkins, hobbled with a knee injury.

COACH RAY MEYER of DePaul said Watkins would start and they will stay with him as long as he's effective.

Watkins, Meyer said, will guard Indiana State All-American forward Larry Bird.

"We'll start Curtis Watkins and go as far as we can go with him," Meyer said. "He is a senior and he will start."

Should Watkins falter, Meyer said sophomore Dennis McGuire would be substituted and the burden of guarding Bird would fall to freshman Mark Aguirre.

"I FEEL GOOD," Watkins said, "but a little on defense I felt my leg dragging behind a bit." Watkins' first practice since injuring his knee came Friday afternoon.

"I think we have an excellent club, and we are playing well at the present time," said Spartan Coach Jud Heathcote, who says he's surprised at being the favorite.

The Spartans will not be at full strength. Center Jay Vincent, who averaged almost 14 points a game this year, is nursing a foot injury.

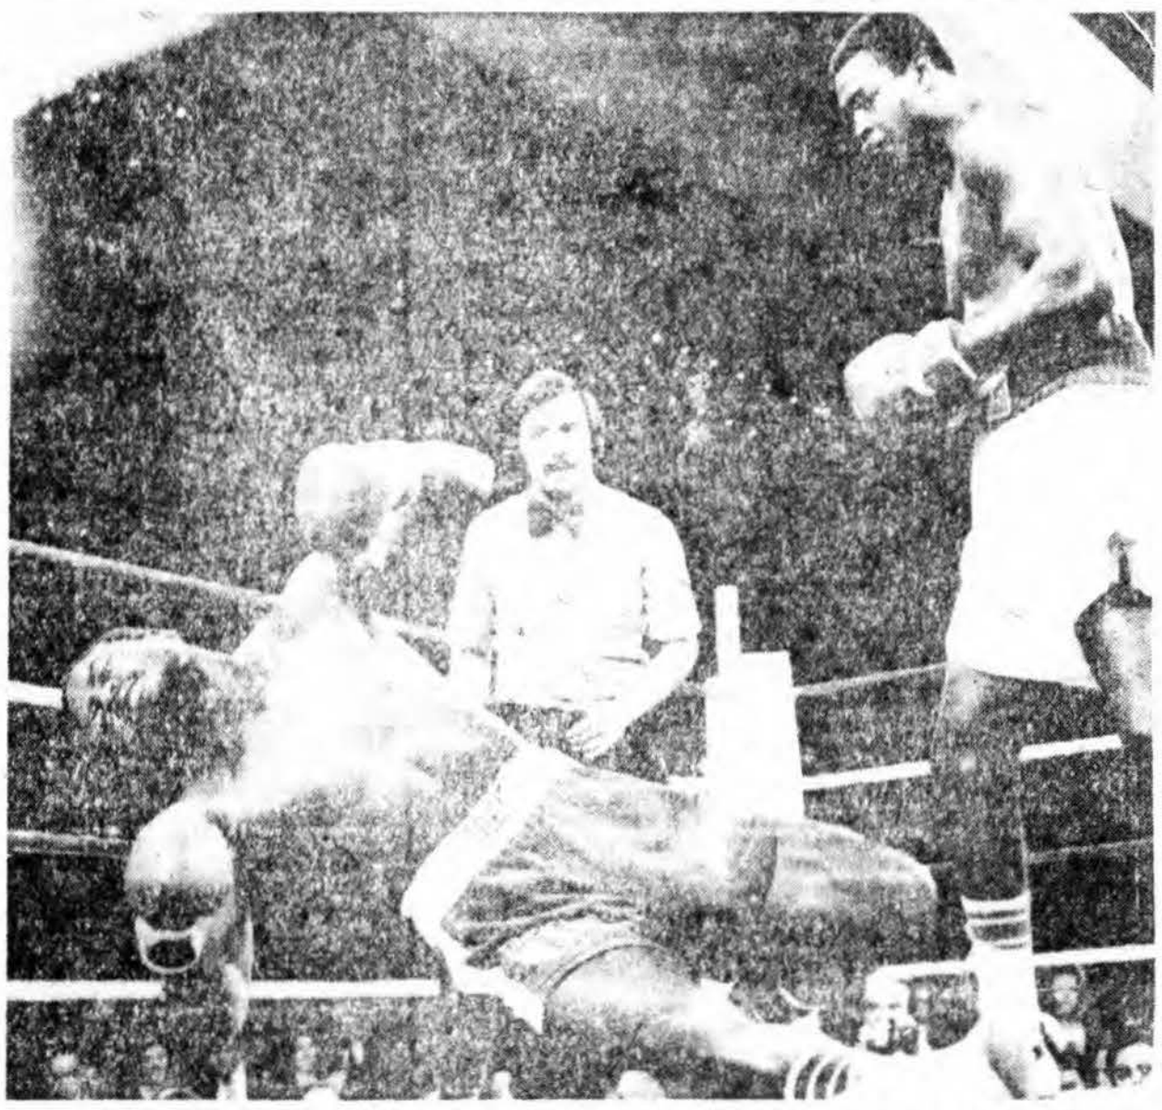

"HE'S MOVING AROUND better and he can play," Heathcote said. "His will be a limited capacity. He definitely will not start."

Heathcote insisted he feels less pressure being in the Final Four than everybody seems to think he should feel.

"I don't see how the No. 1 team, who is 32-0, isn't favored, but if the media wants to make us the favorite, we will accept whatever extra pressure that might put on us."

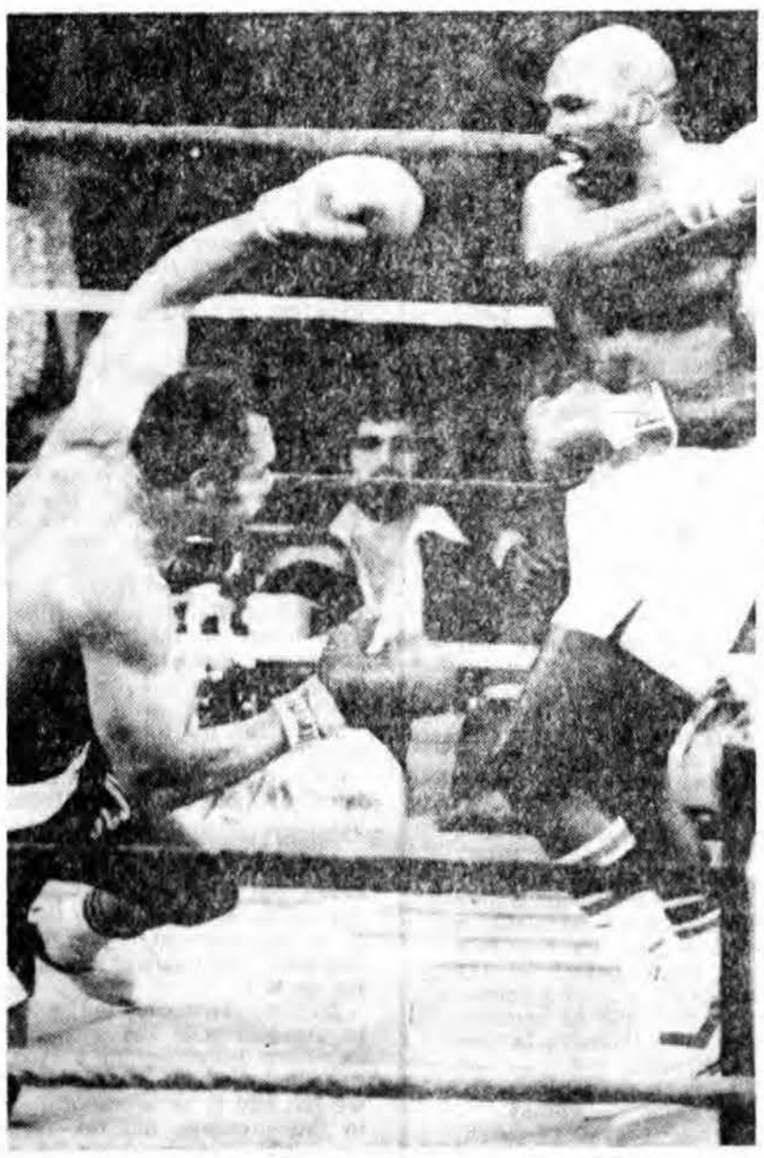

"The pressure is there," agreed Earvin "Magic" Johnson, Michigan State's All-American point guard. "But I grew up with pressure and I thrive on it."

THE QUAKERS have been thriving on being overlooked. They never were listed in the Top 20 during the season and seem to be getting used to the tag "Cinderella" and underdog.

OSSIE OCASIO GOES DOWN FROM A PUNCH FROM LARRY HOLMES.

It's Quick: Shavers Blasts Foe

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Earnie Shavers knocked down Ken Norton twice and stopped him in the first round of a scheduled 12-round heavyweight fight Friday night that was stunning in its fury.

Shavers blasted his way into line for a championship fight by stopping Norton at 1:58 of the first round as the crowd of about 5,400 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion roared its disbelief.

The shocker came in a preliminary to World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes' title defense against Ossie Ocasio, and the victory put Shavers into line for a WBC title shot in September.

WITH NORTON on the floor for the second time, referee Miles Lane reached the count of seven and then signalled the fight was over. Norton's trainer, Bill Slaton, had signalled the referees to halt it just a moment before he did.

When Norton got to his feet, it was obvious that the referee had made the right decision.

UPON RECOVERING his senses, Norton said to Shavers before leaving the ring: "Way to go, babe. Nice shot."

The 34-year-old Shavers had said before the fight that he was not going to worry about going the distance, but that he was going to come out bombing in an effort to end it fast. Norton had said he expected Shavers to come out gunning, but when Earnie did, there was nothing Norton could do about it.

AFTER A FEW SECONDS of feinting, the two men went at each other in Norton's corner and Norton had the best of it, landing three head shots while Shavers' punches bounced off Norton's shoulders.

But then Shavers bulled Norton to the ropes and the two went toe-to-toe. Suddenly, Shavers landed a left hook, followed by a right upper cut, and Norton was in serious trouble.

Goodell Snaps American Mark

CLEVELAND (AP) — Brian Goodell of UCLA and Tennessee's Andy Coan raced to American records in the finals of the NCAA national swimming and diving championships at Cleveland State University Friday night.

COAN LED ALL THE WAY in setting a new standard of 1:35.62 in the 200-yard freestyle. Goodell, defending champion in the 400-yard individual medley, won that event in the record time of 3:50.8.

Ambrose Gaines of Auburn, who pulled an upset to win Thursday's 50-yard freestyle, was second in the 200. Defending champion Bruce Furniss of the University of Southern California finished fourth behind Southern Methodist's Greg Kraus.

GOODELL, A SOPHOMORE product of Mission Viejo High, bettered the record of 3:51.69 set by Jesse Vassallo of Mission Viejo High last year and knocked 2.81 seconds off his own 1978 NCAA record.

Goodell started off slowly, trailing in third place on the butterfly leg, but went ahead to stay on the backstroke leg.

University of California's Jim Johnson stayed close on the breaststroke leg but could not catch Goodell on the freestroke leg. Johnson was clocked in 3:53.61.

Parr Arvidsson of the University of California-Berkeley set a new mark of 47.76 seconds in the 100-yard butterfly as records continued to fall on the second night of the meet. Arvidsson's time lowered the standard of 47.77 set by Joe Bottom of Southern California last year.

From AP Dispatches

TAMPA — A paternity suit filed in Ohio by a Florida woman against Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies also has been filed in court here.

Teryl Rubio, 25, brought suit claiming her daughter Morgan Erin, 1, is the product of a 22-month romance with the baseball player. The affair ended in 1977, she said.

A civil suit seeking support was filed initially in Cincinnati because Florida law stipulates that no valid paternity claim exists if the woman was legally married to another man at the time. Rubio, at the time of conception, was married to a musician named Ted Baker. At the time she was getting a divorce, which later was granted.

ROSE

A spokesman for Rubio said a 1976 Florida Supreme Court ruling has come to the plaintiff's attention which declared the paternity restriction discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional.

The new case was filed in Hillsborough Circuit Court Wednesday.

Rubio wants the court to find that Rose is the father of the child, and order him to contribute support and maintenance payments for the little girl who celebrates her first birthday today.

Rubio says she has no income since Rose cut off voluntary payments to her in December.

Rose said he has been instructed by his lawyers not to discuss the case.

Dogs Get More $$ Than Ump

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A major league umpire testified in federal court Friday that he hired an agent to get him a raise after looking at the money the players make.

"There are dogs, marginal ball players making $150,000 working 40 to 50 games a year," said Dave Phillips, an American League umpire for the past eight seasons. "I'm working 162 games and not making near that. I saw they had agents."

Phillips, who has turned down an offer of $29,750 plus expenses for the 1979 season, is one of 51 major league umpires who have refused to sign contracts and report to spring training.

THEY HAVE OBTAINED Richie Phillips, a Philadelphia lawyer, to represent them in their rhubarb with both the American and National leagues.

Umpire Phillips testified that over the years he had been unsuccessful in getting more money out of American League President Lee MacPhail. "It was fruitless for me to go to him," he said. "Nothing ever came of the talks. So I called Richie."

Attorney Phillips testified about a meeting earlier this month at which umpire Bruce Froemming has asked National League President Chub Feeney to up his salary to $43,000 a year.

"I'M BROKE, CHUB, I don't have a dime," Phillips quoted Froemming as saying. "After 22 years in baseball I can't send my son to college. I only have $1,200 in the bank. He started crying then and I did too."

Lawyers for both leagues have asked U.S. District Court Judge Joseph McGlynn to find the umpires in violation of a preliminary injunction he issued last September preventing a work stoppage pending resolution of the dispute. They also have asked for $10,000 fines against the officials for every day they remain off the job.

Umpire lawyers argue the injunction should be dissolved — it being no longer applicable because it's a new season and because they claim collective bargaining is not involved now, as it was last fall.

The dispute has been brewing since last spring. It came to a head Aug. 25 when the umpires called a one-day strike affecting ball games in 13 major league cities.

Reality Near For Hockey Merger

CHICAGO (AP) — Merger talks between the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association recessed Friday, but NHL President John Ziegler said his league was closer than ever to admitting four of the six WHA clubs.

A source close to the talks had said earlier Friday that the WHA had accepted the NHL's offer to put New England, Edmonton, Quebec and Winnipeg in the NHL starting next season and folding the WHA, which also includes Birmingham and Cincinnati.

Problems developed and blocked an effort to achieve final agreement on the words and conditions of the NHL proposal. Neither side would reveal the difficulties.

After the marathon two-day meetings Friday, Ziegler said, "We're closer than we ever have been . . . but we're not there yet."

"Both sides, at this point, feel that we have identical problem areas, but the mention of problem areas does not mean there is a disagreement," said Bob Caporale, general legal counsel for the WHA.

Ziegler, discussing the delay in acceptance of the proposal, explained difficulties had arisen, "because we had certain things we felt had to be accomplished in this proposal, but we were working in something of a vacuum in framing the proposal because we had not been negotiating directly with some of the 1979 teams."

Secrist, Libell Pace GW

Cindee Secrist and Kim Libell saw to it that Golden West College didn't have any problems getting by the first and second rounds of its women's softball invitational Friday.

Secrist raised her pitching record to 8-0 by firing a four-hitter that lifted the Rustlers to a 5-2 win over West Valley in an opening round game.

Libell hurled a two-hitter as Golden West won its second round game, 6-0 over El Camino. In that one, Secrist went three-for-four at the plate, including a two run double.

Bridgett Cross drove in three runs, two with a second inning double, that pushed the Rustlers' season record to 15-1. Libell was in full control, striking out two and walking just one.

In the first game, Golden West snapped a scoreless dual with a four-run barrage in the fourth inning that disposed of the defending tourney champions.

The pair of victories advanced Golden West to the third round of the double elimination tournament. The Rustlers will face Chabot College of Haywood at 7 p.m. tonight with the winner gaining a berth in the finals.

In other action today, Mesa (Ariz.) takes on Moorpark at 1 o'clock and LA Valley meets El Camino at 3. Losers are eliminated with the winners squaring off at 8:30.

Meanwhile, Orange Coast College got a pitching gem of its own in downing Cerritos, 3-0, in a non-league game.

Sandi Allen hurled a one-hitter for the Pirates while Pat Shaw provided all the offense she needed with a three-for-three batting performance that included a home run.

4th Straight For Angels

TEMPE (AP) — Two-run singles by Rick Miller and Lance Mulliniks lifted the California Angels to a 6-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners Friday for their fourth straight exhibition baseball triumph.

The Angels managed only seven hits off three Seattle pitchers, but were aided by a total of 10 walks given up by Greg Biercevicz and Mike Parrott.

California overcame an early 2-0 Mariner lead in the fourth when Dan Ford and Bobby Grich walked and later scored on Miller's single. Miller scored the go-ahead run moments later when Carney-Lansford singled and Seattle left fielder Mike Potter committed a throwing error.

NOLAN RYAN worked the first six innings for California, limiting Seattle to five hits, while Mark Clear finished up for the Angels. Seattle's run off him in the ninth was the first run against Clear in 11 innings pitched this spring.

Ryan allowed only one walk and struck out just two. He held the Mariners hitless during his final four innings of work after giving up a run in each of the first two innings.

In five starts this spring, Ryan has a 2-0 record, allowing 14 hits and six runs in 14 innings, walking six and striking out seven.

The Angels scored what proved to be the deciding run Friday in the sixth inning. Tom Donohue walked, stole second and scored on a single by Rod Carew, giving California a 4-2 lead.

Once again, Ocasio came up, like a man climbing an invisible rope. Once again Padilla asked if he was all right, and again came the affirmative nod of the head.

"They're all mismatches when it comes to me," Holmes said after the fight. I fight for the people, I fight for your little ones. "They need someone to look up to.

"I'm good. I'm going to be the best heavyweight in the world and you guys are going to have to work with me for the next five years," he said.

"I don't see myself running from any fights. I will fight all comers. If you give me a contract, next week I'll fight Scott Ledoux."

In September, he meets Shavers, possibly here. Holmes scored a unanimous decision over Shavers at their last fight — also in Las Vegas — on March 25, 1978.

"I'm going to knock him out. I'm not Kenny Norton," Holmes said of Shavers stunning first-round knockout over Norton in the preceding fight.

THE VICTORY, worth $1.2 million, was Holmes' 30th in as many pro fights, and it was his 21st knockout.

For Ocasio, who has 19 brothers and two sisters, it was his first defeat in a pro career that started Feb. 20, 1976, when manager Bill Bailey saw him shadow boxing in his laundry room and asked: "You want to be a fighter?"

Ocasio was a fighter Friday night, but an overmatched fighter. He occasionally scored with sweeping left hooks, but Holmes caught most of his punches on his arms and also kept the challenger too busy on defense to concentrate on offense.

Ocasio earned $250,000 and, at this stage of his career and at his age, the performance could actually be a boost to his boxing future.

Pirates Bag 5-4 Decision

SAN DIEGO—The Orange Coast College Pirates regained first place in the South Coast Conference Friday afternoon with a 5-4 baseball decision over San Diego Mesa.

The Pirates, 3-1 in conference, 12-4 overall, jumped on Mesa for five runs in the first two innings and Gary Brahs and Larry Hicks made them stand up.

Brahs, who improved his record to 4-2 for the year, pitched the first seven innings before giving way to Hicks in the eighth. Hicks surrendered a run in the eighth and ninth before putting Mesa to bed.

Offensively, the Pirates were led by Mike Sodders, who had a two-run single in the first, and Don Hill, who added another two-run base hit in the second.

Appell, David, Sidler Shine

BRIAN APPELL set an Orange Coast record in the 5,000-meter run with a 4:01.3 clocking that helped the Pirates top Santa Ana, 73-72.

FRANK VENCLIK took the 800 in 1:55.9, Wayne Kasparek captured the 400 in 49.7 and John Hogan clipped the 400 intermediate hurdles in 54.9.

Golden West's Greg DeHeras turned in a season best in winning the 1,500 (4:04.0). David Moon paced the Rustlers by tripling in the high (16.0) and intermediate (58.8) hurdles and winning the javalin (169-1).

The Rustlers won 11 events and tied for first in another.

Announcers: Dick Enberg, Al McGuire, Billy Packer.

All the preliminaries are out of the way and they are down to the final four in the NCAA playoffs. Pennsylvania's surprising Quakers (25-5) upended St. John's last week and will face the Big 10 representative, Michigan State (24-6) and Earvin Johnson today. All-American Johnson enjoys passing high to teammate Greg Kelser under the basket for dunk shots as much as he does scoring. Tony Price is the scoring leader for Penn.

1:30 p.m., Channel 13 ✓ ✓

Announcers: Dick Enberg, Al McGuire, Billy Packer.

Indiana State's No. 1 rated and undefeated (32-0) Sycamores with All-American Larry Bird, will face a stiff test against DePaul (25-5) in today's other NCAA semifinal game. Veteran Coach Ray Meyer has taken DePaul to the final four for the first time in his long and illustrious coaching career. Curtis Watkins and Gary Garland pace DePaul in scoring.

GOLF: Tournament Players Championship.
Announcers: Vince Scully, Pat Summerall, Jack Whitaker, Ben Wright, Frank Glieber, Jim Thacker Ken Venturi.

Lanny Wadkins will try to protect a three-shot lead as the third round of the Tournament Players Championship gets under way at Jacksonville, Fla.

Wadkins is nine strokes under par after fashioning a four-under par 68 Friday, moving through the course without a bogey.

Announcers: Gil Stratton and Willy Keo.

Anaheim-based Surf opens the North American Soccer League season at San Diego Stadium against the Sockers. The game will be tape-delayed by a half hour. San Diego won the Western Division of the American Conference last season. The revitalized Surf has added some new players including two former Sockers — Alex Neumann and Frank Krauthausen.

Track Standouts Vie Today

By ERNIE CASTILLO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Who's No. 1 on the Orange Coast prep track and field scene? That issue will be temporarily decided today when the 14th annual Beach Cities Invitational gets under way at Newport Harbor High.

With every team in the Orange Coast area entered with the exception of Mater Dei, and nearly all 19 of them primed and ready for the season's first major invitational, today's meet should establish early-season supremacy on both the individual and team level.

And Edison, behind the 1-2 sprint tandem of Mike Dotterer and Kerwin Bell plus the 1-2 distance duo Mike Lansdon and Jon Butler, appears to be the area's strongest.

IF ANYBODY can stop the Chargers, it would be Newport Harbor, two-time defending champions. The sailors are especially tough on their home track.

"Looking at everything, it's pretty close," says Newport Harbor Coach Bob Hailey, who also doubles as the meet director. "We've got to counteract their strengths with our field events."

EDISON'S STRENGTH is a pair of transfers, Dotterer (Mater Dei) and Bell (St. Francis). Dotterer ran a legitimate 9.9 100 last year and had a wind-aided 9.7 mark. Bell was clocked in 9.6 last year as a sophomore.

Lansdon, the Sunset League cross country champion, ran 4:18.3 in the mile last year and highlights a field that is the meet's finest.

Also in the elite four-lap event are Matt Blaty of Marina, who ran brilliantly indoors this winter, Mission Viejo's Jeff Vandereems and Corona del Mar's Mike Bruggeman.

VANDEREEMS, Lansdon and Blaty are scheduled to meet again in the two-meet.

The top name in the field events is University's John Ortman, who has already gone 171 feet in the discus and 56 feet in the shot put. Dennis Cowan of Fountain Valley will defend his triple jump crown.

Field events and running prelims begin at 11 a.m. Finals are scheduled to begin at 1:20 and the meet should conclude at 5:10 if it runs on schedule.

JOHN SEVANO

Time to Eat Crow

It's a crime it had to take 32 games to prove to the skeptics and the rest of the JC basketball world that Orange Coast College belonged up there with the best of them.

Although the Pirates were ranked third in the state for most of the season, no one quite believed Tandy Gillis could pull off his miracle in the playoffs.

IT'S TRUE, WITH the exception of American River, that almost every other team in the quarterfinals had more talent than the Bucs. But what people forgot is that a team, with togetherness and the proper coaching, will beat a club with nothing but individual talent most of the time.

THE TRAVESTY TO ALL this is that the players, who worked so hard to gain recognition, were never given their dues by opposing coaches or fans.

Maybe it's easy to overlook teamwork when an individual is scoring 30 points and his team is losing by 15. I don't know what the reason is for the lack of recognition. Maybe somebody can tell me.

The injustices that have befallen the OCC players are a crime. And I've got three major peeves that have to be said.

FIRST, I'D LIKE the coaches of the South Coast Conference to explain how they could leave Paul Akin off one of the two all-conference teams.

Second peeve.

HOW CAN THE conference representatives, and the people up north who put together the all-state team, ignore a team that eventually becomes the state champion?

It's amazing that not ONE individual at Orange Coast could crack either of the state's two teams. Only ONE person—Orgill—was even given any consideration. . .and that was a token honorable mention spot.

How the representatives can even pick a team before the playoffs is beyond me. Because it's there that the men are separated from the boys.

ORGILL PLAYED THE playoffs like he played all season — steady, unselfish and with enthusiasm. It wasn't any surprise to this reporter he was accorded state tournament MVP honors for his work. He had performed that way throughout the year, winning MVP trophies in two prior tournament appearances.

ORGILL AKIN

I'm not saying Orgill should have been voted MVP of the state. Ron Davis of Cypress was the best choice anybody could make. I am saying, though, that Orgill should have been placed on one of the first two teams, and the individuals responsible really missed the boat when they didn't.

I guess it was just another clear case of individual effort taking precedent over team play . . . what a shame.

Third peeve.

HOW COULD THE state tournament officials leave Pete Neumann off the all-tourney team? Especially after his final game where he scored 17 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and was one of the principal reasons Kevin Magee of Saddleback didn't play up to Kevin Magee's capabilities.

The people who voted had the foresight to recognize Akin's contributions on defense, but somehow overlooked Neumann's contributions offensively and defensively.

Maybe it worked out better for the Pirates in the long run. Maybe they felt they had to prove something to silence the critics once and for all.

Well, the Bucs did go out and prove what they wanted — they won the state championship, defying all odds in the process.

Freeman Paces Sailors With Five RBI

Round one of the Sea View League baseball race goes to Corona del Mar.

The Sea Kings, who survived the first of three sets of round robin play unscathed, relied on the two-hit pitching of Chris Johnston to beat visiting Irvine, 3-2, Friday afternoon.

Johnston struck out six and didn't surrender a base hit past the third inning when Mark Swancoat homered and Kirk Hahlbeck singled. It was Swancoat's third home run of the week.

CdM combined a walk, two stolen bases, two Irvine errors and an RBI single by Jim Hall for a pair of runs in the second inning.

Costa Mesa 2, Estancia 1

The game featured 16 hits, all singles. Andy Goldberg and Dave Pelichowski of Costa Mesa and Roy Santa Maria and Kent Soper of Estancia colleted two singles apiece.

El Toro 2, University 0

Newport 10, Fountain Valley 8

Freeman drilled a three-run homer in the fourth inning that put the Sailors back in the ball game after they had trailed 5-0. In the fifth inning, Freeman ripped a two-run single to higlight a four-run inning that put Newport Harbor on top to stay.

Bill McTeir hit a three-run homer in the third inning for Fountain Valley which collected 10 hits off Kirk Hubbard but couldn't chase him from the mound.

Chris Johnson also helped the Sailors' cause, hitting a two-run single in the sixth frame. The victory left Newport Harbor 2-3 in the Sunset League and 5-4 overall. Fountain Valley saw its league mark fall to 2-2.

Huntington Beach 12, Marina 6

After a shaky start, Shawn Cisco settled down to throw a four-hitter, striking out eight, as the Oilers captured a game that wasn't over until nearly 11 p.m.

As it stands, Huntington Beach has a 1½-game lead over Fountain Valley and Edison. The latter was idle Friday but takes on Westminster today at noon at Westminster.

San Clemente 7, Laguna Hills 0

Roy Palacios hurled his second shutout in league competition, limiting visiting Laguna Hills to just three hits, as the Tritons raised their South Coast League mark to 3-1.

Scott Lich hit a third-inning home run to support Palacios, who struck out six and walked three. Lich finished with three hits in four at-bats as San Clemente evened its season record at 4-4.

Cypress 5, Ocean View 3

Just when the Sea Hawks seemed out of their Empire League game against Cypress, they got right back in it. And just when it looked like they were in control, they fell out of it.

Down 5-0 in the seventh, Ocean View rallied for three runs and had the bases loaded with no outs. But when Cypress changed pitchers, so did the momentum swing and Ocean View had its last three batters retired in a row.

UCI Faces Oregon

Track Meet Set Sunday

But the Anteaters do figure to give the Ducks a battle in several key events of a top-notch meet that begins at noon with the field events. The first running event is at 1:15.

Oregon, which finished fourth in the 1978 NCAA finals, figures to be stronger than a year ago. The Ducks are particularly deep in the distance races, a perennial stronghold for UCI.

TOPPING OREGON'S distance corps is Rudy Chapa, the NCAA 5,000 meter champion who will run the 1,500 Sunday; Alberto Salazar, the NCAA cross country champion who will run the 5,000 against UCI; and Don Clary, the fifth place finisher in the NCAA steeplechase who is pencilled in to run the 5,000.

UCI counters with Davis Schriver (14:14.7), Don Moses (14:22.8) and Jeff Webb (14:36.2) in the 5,000. Ralph Serna (3:47.3), Joe Young (3:52.9) and Joe Avila (3:53.8) are slated to run the 1,500 while Dave Daniels (8:47.0) is entered in the steeplechase.

Another Easy Win For Rustlers, 94-60

WHITTIER—Golden West College got 50 points from Pam Banks and Meledey Bland and easily walked over host Rio Hondo, 94-60, in a women's basketball game here Friday.

Bland scored 22 points to become the all-time scoring leader at Golden West, which hasn't lost this year. Bland has scored 723 points in 1½ seasons.

Banks hit on 11 of 24 shots from the field, grabbed eight rebounds and had eight steals for the Rustlers. Kim Eisenhart added 10 rebounds and 14 points as Golden West ran its season recore to 17-0.

Winter Olympics Museum Scheduled

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state Board of Regents has granted a provisional charter to a museum which is being set up to house memorabilia from the 1980 Winter Olympics.

The museum, to be called the Olympic and Winter Sports Museum, would be located somewhere in the Lake Placid area and be run by a board composed of prominent residents of the area.

But staff workers in the Education Department, which recommended that the Regents grant the charter on Thursday, said that most of its financial and other details had yet to be worked out. A regular charter will be considered once they are, according to Robert Maurer, a deputy commissioner in the department.

DONNA C. YOUNG

Hot Clubs For Young At Sahara

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Donna C. Young carded a four-under-par 69 at the Las Vegas Country Club Friday, giving her a 36-hole score of 135 and a two-stroke lead at the midway point of the Sahara National Pro-Am.

Second at 137 after a 73 Friday was first-round leader JoAnne Carner, shooting for her second straight Ladies Professional Golf Association victory. Carner had a course-record 64 on Thursday.

PENNY PULZ carded her second straight 69 at the par-71 Sahara Country Club course, putting her alone in third place at 138. Tied at 139 were Nancy Lopez, Amy Alcott, Chako Higuchi and Judy Rankin. Next at 141 was Dot Germain.

Two courses were being used in the 72-hole tournament, which winds up Sunday. The winner will collect $15,000. During the first two rounds, all entries played 18 holes at each course.

The original field of 72 was cut to low 62 for the final two rounds, which will be played at Sahara. A score of 152 was necessary to make the cut.

CARNER, WHO FINISHED strong to capture the LPGA event at Rancho Bernardo, Calif., last week, had two birdies and two bogeys Friday. She had seven birdies and no bogeys in her seven-under-par round of 64 Thursday.

Young birdied all four of the par-five holes Friday as she took the lead. The 34-year-old veteran is seeking her first LPGA victory of 1979.

Lopez, who won nine tournaments last year and captured the Sunstar Classic in Los Angeles earlier this month, had a six-under-par 67 while playing the tougher Las Vegas Country Club course Friday. Included in her round was an eagle on the 426-yard, par-five eighth hole and four birdies.

"I WASN'T PUTTING too well until I got hot," said the 22-year-old Lopez.

"I used 35 putts today, 11 more than Thursday," she said. "It's always hard to follow a really low round."

Wadkins Rolls Up Big Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, boldly attacking the pins despite whipping winds that raked the course, cut out a four-under-par 68 and established a three-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the Tournament Players Championship.

Wadkins, bubbling with confidence, put together a 36-hole total of 135, nine strokes under par on tough Sawgrass. The course, toughened by the prevailing winds, regained its unforgiving nature and sent such standout performers as Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Lon Hinkle and Seve Ballesteros down the road to the next event.

WADKINS PLAYED when the gusty winds were at their toughest. He didn't make a bogey in his remarkable effort that gave him firm command of the event that is billed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros.

Under the conditions, Wadkins said, "it's maybe the finest round of golf I ever played."

The statement would be difficult to dispute. He escaped without a bogey and called that "maybe a greater accomplishment than the score."

Meeting the Twain in Middle West

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

PERRY, Mo. — The climb to Chester Davis' office is up a narrow staircase between dingy walls lit by a single yellow bulb, each step sculpted deep and smooth.

He works at a roll-top desk. Its every pigeonhole is in active service. The room is drafty, with a bare wood floor. The view from the window is of the village print shop, across the street. The room itself is located over the village post office.

GOING ON 30 YEARS now, Davis has toiled at what he calls his labor of love, which, he confesses, has consumed his life to the exclusion of nearly all other interests.

"You can lose touch with reality if you really get absorbed in this subject," he said. "It grips you."

His subject is the life and work of a fellow Missourian whose touch with reality was never in jeopardy, Mark Twain. Davis edits, for the benefit of a handful of acolytes and scholars similarly caught in Twain's irresistible grip, a pithy little publication called The Twainian.

"MANY PEOPLE believe that everything Mark Twain wrote that was worthwhile has been published," Davis said.

"Far from it. His daughter gave our group an enormous amount of material to be published after her death, mostly letters and other personal writings.

"I try to include something new in every issue of The Twainian. It mails every two months. I print 500 copies, 400 for our members and the rest to keep on file. I get a lot of requests for back issues from researchers and the like."

THE TWAINIAN GOES to members of the Mark Twain Research Foundation, a group that began as a luncheon club for Twain buffs back in the 1930s. At that time, Davis was working as a patent lawyer in Washington.

"At cocktail parties, people would ask me where my home was and I would say, 'Perry, Mo., a little town about 40 miles from Hannibal.' They would say, 'Oh, where Mark Twain was born.'

"I would say, 'No, he was born in Florida, Mo., an even smaller town, about six miles from Perry.'

AMERICA

"THAT WAS ALL I really knew about Mark Twain, though, and being from Perry I felt it was expected of me to know more. So I read everything I could get my hands on. As it turned out, while I was getting Mark Twain, Mark Twain was getting me."

Davis returned to Perry in 1947 and, at age 44, devoted his life to studying Twain and presenting his memory.

Largely through Davis's efforts Twain's birthplace, a weathered cabin miraculously intact after 125 years, was brought indoors, in 1960, to a new Mark Twain Memorial building.

THE MEMORIAL, WITH its Twain artifacts, is fascinating — but no more so than Davis's musty old room over the post office where all those back issues of The Twainian reside.

No telling what little-known pearl you will find in The Twainian. Here, for instance, from last December's issue, is Mark Twain's 1890 Christmas prayer:

"It is my heart-warm and world-embracing Christmas hope and aspiration that all of us — the high, the low, the rich, the poor, the admired, the despised, the loved, the hated, the civilized, the savage — may eventually be gathered together in a heaven of everlasting rest and peace and bliss — except the inventor of the telephone."

SINGER DONNA FARGO KEEPS SMILING
She'll Fight Multiple Sclerosis

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Donna Fargo vows to battle multiple sclerosis the way she fought off a flustered mugger last year.

Miss Fargo, 35, was diagnosed last year as having multiple sclerosis — a neurological disease often called "the mysterious crippler of young adults."

ABOUT THE SAME time, a mugger confronted her in a motel hallway in Ohio and demanded her purse. She refused, they scuffled and he fled.

"I'm going to treat this disease just like I did that man," Miss Fargo said in an interview. "I'm not going to let it get me if I can help it."

"It's a disease that has varied symptoms and outcomes," said Miss Fargo, best known for her 1972 hit "Happiest Girl in the Whole USA." "It can cause blindness, paralysis or loss of speech. There's no way to know who's going to get it or what causes remission. It's all a big question mark.

NASHVILLE SOUND

"YOU JUST HAVE to do things day by day, take care of yourself and hope for the best. It hits everybody differently. Some persons are immobilized early by it, but others live and manage very well with it.

"I'm going to continue looking on the bright side, take it easy and not overdo it. I'm thankful that I'm walking and talking. I'm fighting it spiritually. The fear of it will scare you to death. I hope and pray a lot. But it's depressing, and I've had a lot of discomfort."

Nevertheless, she's continued her career. She taped her syndicated television show and continued to make records and do concerts. She'll know in April if the television show will be renewed for the coming season.

HER SYMPTOMS WERE numbness, stiffness and spasms.

"People should be sensitive to their bodies," she said. "People know their bodies better than anybody else. They should try to read their bodies.

"People always complain about being tired, but this was a different kind of tired. It's very hard to describe. Some days you just can't get up.

"I just don't have the energy I used to. I can't get as much done as fast."

SHE AND ACTRESS Lindsay Wagner are national co-chairwomen of the multiple sclerosis READ-a-thon program. Under the program, school children volunteer to read books and enlist sponsors who pledge a certain amount to multiple sclerosis for each book read during a defined period.

A former high school English teacher who reads incessantly, she knows the value of reading.

"It's invaluable. Television and the movies have taken away some of the things we can get from books. This program is a good motivator for the kids and it makes people feel good about helping a worthy cause."

Sally Field Far From the 'Flying Nun'

By BOB THOMAS

Just as Fonda's later performances wiped out the memory of "Hurry Sundown" and "Barabarella," so Field is making us forget that she was Gidget and the Flying Nun.

FIELD

Sally Field is starring in "Norma Rae," which continues the 20th Century Fox policy of providing strong roles for women. She meets the challenge, brilliantly portraying a southern mill worker who awakens intellectually, becoming a union militant. Beau Bridges plays her bewildered husband and Ron Leibman is the labor organizer who opens her mind to a broader world.

The husband-wife writing team of Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank Jr. wrote the script, which was inspired by real-life experiences of women whose personal lives were reviled when they tried to help organize the mills. Martin Ritt, an old hand at social causes, directed.

THE CHARACTER OF NORMA Rae was crucial for the film's success, since the events whirl around her. Miss Field, 32, proves totally believable.

How was she able to submerge her own personality into the work-weary Norma Rae?

"I prepared for it the same way I prepare for everything, whether it's 'Sybil,' (for which she won an Emmy) or a comedy," she said during a brief visit at her Laurel Canyon home.

"I take certain steps in analyzing the character: I figuring who she is and where she comes from. I sift through the script, absorbing anything that might be of help. I apply all the facts and logic that I can muster.

"WITH NORMA RAE, SHE started to take focus when I actually visited the mill where she worked and the house that she probably lived in. I talked to the people she worked and lived with, and by osmosis the character started to jell.

"Fortunately, we had two weeks of rehearsal, which is unusual for a movie. Wearing Norma Rae's clothes and talking to the townspeople, I became so much the character that I dreamed like her in my sleep. I walked and talked like her. In fact, the southern accent is so persistent that it was two months before I got rid of it."

"Norma Rae" was filmed in and around Opelika, Ala. The Alabama Film Commission helped the producers find the location, which had a working (and unionized) clothing mill that proved all too realistic for the actors.

"THE NOISE IS UNBELIEVABLE," Miss Field recalled. "The workers have to wear ear plugs, which are made of a liquid plastic that hardens inside the ear. Without the plugs, you would become temporarily deaf within a half-hour. The sound is of the frequency of a jet airplane taking off.

"I'm a girl from Encino, and I never totally realized that most of America works hard for a living. It was startling and sad for me to see young people who have a dead feeling. They work so hard with no hope of it getting any better that they grow old very fast."

Show Wins Cheers

LONDON (AP) — "Ain't Misbehavin," the anthology of Fats Waller music fresh from a hit run on Broadway, got a standing ovation after its opening performance in London.

Critics for London's morning newspapers generally praised the performance at Her Majesty's Theater Thursday night, particularly the sinous "Viper's Drag" number by Andre de Shields.

"To put it as mildly as possible, this strident display of jumping and jiving, hollering and hooting, crooning and carousing turned the big playhouse into a cheerful party," John Barber wrote in the Daily Telegraph.

Oz Memory

Munchkin Days Recalled

SHELLEY, Idaho (AP) — Far from the Land of Oz, in this two-drug store southeastern Idaho town, lives a Munchkin.

Lewis Croft, once part of the merry-go-round world of vaudeville and movies, now lives quietly in a white frame house in the middle of Idaho's potato country.

But once a year he gathers his family around the television set and relives his past, becoming a Munchkin again.

Croft was a guitarist who joined a vaudeville troupe of 14 midgets that played throughout the country. The troupe went to Hollywood in 1938 after they were told of MGM's search for midgets for an unspecified production the studio was planning.

CROFT PLAYED A marching soldier, in a brilliantly colored costume — one of the group that greeted the bewildered Dorothy upon her arrival from Kansas.

After the filming, Croft turned down a part in another film and went to Chicago where he married his fiance Dolores. They moved to Shelley where he now works for a potato processing plant and watches over two sons and two grandchildren.

Richard Pryor —Off Camera He's Mellow

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Richard Pryor: a study in contrast.

The public Pryor is on view in the nation's theaters with an 80-minute tape-to-film record of a concert he gave in Long Beach late last year. Television can never to him justice; the big screen does. He roams the stage like a madman sage, erupting with outragious verities. He is profane, some say obscene, but irresistably funny.

Then take a look at Pryor behind the desk of his second floor office at his compound in Northridge, a far reach of the San Fernando Valley. The wildness is gone from the eyes. He is subdued, introspective, employing scarcely a word that couldn't be uttered in a tea room.

WHY DID HE MAKE "Richard Pryor, Live in Concert"?

He contemplates, then replies, "Money."

"Money?"

"That's right. Pure greed. Also, to have my art etched in celluloid and shown 'round the world. Most of all, greed."

He's probably not serious, but you never can tell about Pryor. He did remark that he felt he had done good work and he was pleased with the results. The material was new, he said — "my audience wouldn't stand for repeating old stuff." The monologue covers a wide spectrum, including such matters as the difference between black and white funerals and the ring performance of Leon Spinks.

PRYOR CAN EVEN find comedy in personal mishap — his own heart attack and his arrest after shooting up the unoccupied car of his estranged wife. He also makes graphic reference to male-female relationships. The film has no rating, but producer Will Sargent has appended the message in ads:

"WARNING: This picture contains harsh and very vulgar language and may be considered shocking and offensive. No explicit sex or violence is shown."

"I think that's a good idea to have that warning," said Pryor. "I have a vision of little old ladies coming into the theater by mistake and having coronaries." In fact, there was one little old lady at the matinee I attended and she seemed to be enjoying herself immensely.

SHOWS FLIP SIDE
Comic Richard Pryor

PRYOR EXPLAINED why he seemed laid back: "I just finished five months on the road with concerts. I enjoyed it, but now I am taking two months off — and I haven't taken two months off in my life.

"I need some time for my own feelings. A lot has happened to me in the last year; I lost my grandmother, I had a lot of personal problems. Now I want to relax and find out what I want to do with my life. Trouble is, I don't know how to relax. People tell me, 'You ought to just lie on the beach and close your eyes.' I can't do that. I gotta keep one eye open out of fear that somebody is gonna sneak up and hit me with a board."

BESIDE THE concert film, Richard Pryor is currently available to moviegoers in "California Suite," as a Chicago doctor on a disaster-filled vacation, and "The Wiz," playing the title role. He is proud of both. Despite critical knocks for "The Wiz," he thought the musical was a triumph, especially for Diana Ross — "I didn't know she was supposed to be 15 years old."

"The problem was a lack of communication," he explained. "I had to maintain my artistic integrity. There was no vulgarity in what I did; that wasn't the issue. It's just that my point of view is illegal."

'China' Splendid

Fonda, Lemmon in 'Scare' Movie

By ARTHUR KNIGHT
The Hollywood Reporter

MOVIE REVIEW

What television people refer to as "happy news" are those sidebar tidbits of heartwarming human interest that keep the nightly newscasts from becoming an hour-long recital of death and disaster, plus sports and the weather.

The happy news about Columbia's "The China Syndrome," however, is that it manages to puncture the glib, superficial facade of TV journalism and shows us what can happen when a "happy news" reporter manages to sink her teeth into a hard news story. It makes for tense, tingling drama, especially since the "story" is one that fills all of us with dire forebodings — the threat of an accidental nuclear holocaust.

ONE OF THE strengths of this Michael Douglas production (in which he also stars) is that, unlike "Network," it attempts no expose of the power struggle in television's higher echelons. Instead, its characters are simply doing their jobs to the best of their ability and conscience.

THE CHINA SYNDROME
(Columbia)

Producer ..... Michael Douglas
Director ..... James Bridges
Screenplay Mike Gray, T.S. Cook, James Bridges
Panavision/Metrocolor
Cast: Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Michael Douglas, Scott Brady, James Hampton, Peter Donat, Wilford Brimley, Richard Herd, Daniel Valdez, Stan Bohrman, James Karen.
Running time — 122 minutes
MPAA rating: PG

When conflicts arise, as they do with great frequency, they are based on what might be termed editorial judgment — should a station break a sensational story before all the facts are in, dare it run news film that has been illegally obtained, how far can it protect its sources of information?

Only one of the conflicts is on a lesser (although no less contemporary) plane — the conflict between newscaster Jane Fonda, who yearns for more significant assignments, and her station manager (Peter Donat), who refuses to consider such a switch in view of the sharp rise in ratings since she took over the "happy news."

ON A ROUTINE visit to a nuclear-driven power plant, a walk-through smoothly guided by public relations man James Hampton, Fonda and her cameraman (Douglas) feel a sudden tremor, a shiver in the huge installation. Although it is strictly against regulations to do so, Douglas surreptitiously films the ensuing panic in the control room until the reactor is once more under control.

Meanwhile, in northern California, a public hearing is trying to determine whether a similar plant, to be built by the same utility firm, might endanger the life and/or environment of the people in that area. Douglas swipes his footage, shows it to some scientists, and discovers that there is the distinct possibility of both human error and mechanical failure. At the hearing, the attempts at a cover-up are almost too apparent.

SEARCHING FOR Douglas and the missing reels, however, Fonda encounters the chief engineer at the installation (Jack Lemmon), the man whose panic she had observed in the control room. At the hearing, he had provided a routine explanation for the incident. When Fonda opens his eyes to the possibility that a mechanical failure in his supposedly fail-safe operation could endanger the people of the entire state, Lemmon sets out on a fact-finding mission of his own and learns that, through criminal negligence and corporate greed, such a danger does indeed exist.

Miss Fonda, without the showiness of some of her more recent roles, creates a strong central character out of the intelligent, ambitious, feisty newshen, a woman who grows in stature and determination as she recognizes the implications of the story she has stumbled onto. Douglas is, as always, intense and dynamic in the role of her hot-headed news cameraman, and Wilford Brimley contributes a telling portrait of a company man whose loyalties are gradually divided by his friendship for Lemmon.

Lemmon conveys with full intensity the mental anguish of a man who risks forfeiting his life's work — and eventually life itself — as a matter of conscience. Enter the first candidate for "Best Performance by a Leading Actor" in the 1979 Academy sweepstakes.

Town's Staff Ousted?

Voters Defeat Referendum to Pay Salaries

VICTORY GARDENS, N.J. (AP) — Voters in this tiny borough may have given the heave-ho to the community's full-time municipal employees by rejecting a $50,000 referendum to pay their salaries.

Mayor Willim Gratacos said he is notifying municipal employees they will be laid off at the end of the month if the Town Council agrees.

BUT THE COUNCIL could decide to retain some employees, or it could offer the town's 1,400 residents a second chance to pass the referendum. The city, located about 25 miles northwest of Newark, has $75,000, and hopes state aid might make up the difference.

Townspeople rejected the referendum 136 to 29 Tuesday night. A large portion of the funds, said Gratacos, would go toward borough compliance of state regulations requiring a full-time police force, necessary because of its size. It has had three full-time patrolmen since last year.

The mayor said a clerk's error resulted in the borough's losing about $55,000 in federal Comprehensive Employment and Traiping Act funds, which had been used to pay some employee salaries. A deadline in applying for the funds was missed, officials have said.

THE REFERENDUM was called in an effort to replace the lost CETA funds.

Before the referendum, the mayor threatened to "close the doors and terminate everyone who works for the municipality" if voters rejected his financial demands.

And after the vote, he said, "Yes, I am going to close things up as I promised. But I'll have to be fair about it and give everyone two week's notice to relocate first. These people have family obligations and things like that."

HE MAILED LAYOFF notices to police officers, violations clerk, borough clerk, welfare director, tax collector and treasurer. He also recommended that he and the town's six councilmen not receive their salaries for the rest of the year. That would save $3,600.

But the mayor said he would recommend to the council that the borough clerk and the policemen be kept. Under borough law, the mayor can only vote if the council balloting Wednesday ends in a tie.

Gratacos said if the borough's employees are dismissed, he will ask Gov. Brendan Byrne if the town's charter can be declared void, thereby shifting the responsibility of police protection for Victory Gardens to a neighboring town.

JOHN LAEZZA, DIRECTOR of local government services in the state's department of community affairs, said the town "can't go out of business, that would be illegal."

If Gratacos won't do it, the state will write a new pared-down budget for Victory Gardens and force the mayor to work within it, he said.

Body Discovered

YUCCA VALLEY (AP) A young woman who apparently was kidnapped from her home in Valinda has been found dead in a Johnson Valley cabin 18 miles north of here. San Bernardino County authorities say they have booked Diane Susan Shaffer's former boyfriend, Steven Braunwalder, for investigation of murder in the 20-year-old woman's death.

MOMS HAILED AS DAY NEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter, designating May 13 as Mother's Day, took note of dramatic recent changes in "the activities and aspirations of many American women."

Regardless of these changes, Carter wrote, "the fundamental commitment of mothers to the welfare, development and future opportunities of their children remains as strong as that of mothers in past generations."

Designer Sued

Fashion designer Oscar de la Renta is being sued by Russian Baroness Aino de Bodisco for half his earnings since 1956. She claims he promised her the money after she helped him become a designer.

Corps Eliminated

SACRAMENTO (AP) Liberal members of an Assembly Ways and Means subcommittee have voted to eliminate one of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s pet projects — the California Conservation Corps — in a showdown with the governor over welfare increases.

Laguna to Protest Offshore Drilling

Laguna Beach Councilman Kelly Boyd and Mayor Jack McDowell hope to convince Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. that drilling for oil off the Art Colony's shores isn't such a hot plan.

The two are traveling to Sacramento Monday to keep an appointment with CalTrans Chief Adriana Gianturco in hopes of pressuring her to assign a higher priority to improving tradedy-plagued Laguna Canyon Road.

BUT LAST week's federal Department of the Interior's announcement that three sectors off Laguna's beaches would be available for exploratory drilling clearly has diverted their attention.

"We don't need offshore oil drilling in Laguna Beach," Boyd said this week. "We're just trying to get 10 minutes with the governor to discuss the issue."

The top official's opinion is important because the federal plan has been forwarded to him to see if he has any objections to it.

THE PLAN would include three sites off Laguna and one off Newport Beach for exploratory drilling. Sites off Dana Point, Huntington Beach and Seal Beach were eliminated by federal authorities.

Boyd hopes to get to Brown while he and McDowell are keeping their appointment with Mrs. Gianturco. They hope to convince the CalTrans chief to take a ride down the dangerous canyon road.

Boyd asked residents circulating petitions to improve Laguna Canyon Road to return them to the City Clerk's office by 5 Friday afternoon so they could be presented to the transportation official.

Food Sought For Needy In Santa Ana

Donations of canned goods and staples are needed by officials of Santa Ana's Southwest Community Center, an agency providing emergency help for needy families.

Geri Rice, acting director of the agency, said donations of food supplies have been running lower than normal in recent months, and the center's cupboards now are nearly bare.

The center, at 1601 W. Second St., Santa Ana, provides emergency aid to families in the predominantly low-income Santa Ana neighborhood, along with transportation for seniors and supervised recreation for area children.

In addition, local church groups serve hot lunches to more than 150 people daily in the center's facilities. Ms. Rice said.

Gas Pump Switching To Liter?

SACRAMENTO (AP) A California state agency says that when gasoline reaches a dollar a gallon, it would be time to switch to 26.5 cents per liter.

The reason is that 100,000 of the state's 140,000 gasoline pumps can't calculate prices of more than 99 cents per gallon, or liter, or whatever.

THE STATE Food and Agriculture Department said it will present its metric switchover plans to the state Metric Conversion Council on Friday.

The alternative would be the replacement of price computers on the pumps, said Darrell Guensler, assistant director of the measurements standards division.

THAT WOULD cost the industry $200 per pump or $20 million. But Guensler said it would cost only $5 million to convert all 140,000 pumps to liters.

Jim Campbell, executive director of the California Service Station Association, told the San Francisco Examiner that he thought Guensler's proposal "is a reasonable approach," but that his association hasn't taken a stand.

Film Set On Whales

The South Coast Audubon Society will present a whale-watching film April 3 in San Clemente narrated by Doug Thompson who directs expeditions to Baja.

The film and lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. upstairs in the Laguna Federal Savings and Loan building, 601 North El Camino Real.

Crossing Gate Has Rhythm

CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (AP) — A railroad crossing gate has been tapping its crossing bar to the beat of country music tunes.

But while the gate may seem happy, motorists are not. They're irritated because the gate randomly bounces up and down — mostly during morning rush hours.

THE PROBLEM began in January, when signals from radio station WSLR, which features country-western music, started the gate hopping.

No one, including the Chessie System engineer who spent almost two months tracking down the musical tastes of the gate's radio-controlled switches, knows exactly why, though it may have something to do with unusual atmospheric conditions.

FRANCIS GARY, in charge of signals for the Chessie System in Akron, thinks he may have solved the problem. Gary has used some electronic gear to screen the music, and has been checking the gate daily ever since. The equipment appears to be working.

But Deputy Law Director Robert Hunt says that if the crossing bar continues to act up, the city again will charge the railroad with violating an ordinance limiting to five minutes the length of time a train can block a public roadway.

Little Known

Ben Fernandez In the Running

By THOMAS D. ELIAS

Gov. Brown and former Gov. Ronald Reagan are almost certainly in the 1980 presidential derby, but there's a third Californian in the running.

He's not well-known, but Benjamin Fernandez is convinced he will be more than the answer to future trivia questions.

THE FIRST HISPANIC-AMERICAN TO run for president, Fernandez feels the odds against him are no worse than others he has overcome and about the same as those which confronted Jimmy Carter in 1975.

"He knows he's spitting in the wind," said Larry Peck, communications director of the California Republican Party, when Fernandez declared, "Twenty years from now, we might really have a Mexican-American president."

FERNANDEZ

Besides being Hispanic, Fernandez brings one other oddity to the race: As a Chicano Republican, he's a rarity.

"SURE, MOST Mexican Americans who are registered to vote are Democrats," he said in an interview. "But as soon as they hear my name, they'll register Republican wherever it matters in the primaries. There is not an Hispano in the U.S. who can touch me when it comes to contributions to our community."

The son of illiterate migrant workers, Fernandez worked his way through the University of Redlands and earned a graduate business degree at New York University. Later, he became a millionaire consultant to banks and savings and loan associations and built a large, hacienda-style home in the Los Angeles suburb of Calabasas.

"I feel my story will become an inspiration to the poor people of the nation," he says.

"I HAPPEN TO BE THE BEST man to lead the United States during the 1980s," he said. "We need a president who can inspire us. I want to get back to fundamentals: the work ethic, freedom of choice, unlimited opportunity and free enterprise."

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FOCUS

Fernandez lines up in the ultra-conservative wing of his party, favoring private enterprise over government programs to solve social problems. His Republican pedigree includes a stint as a fund-raiser for Richard Nixon and an appearance before the Senate Watergate Committee.

"I'm the only person to come out of Watergate with better standing than when I went in," he says.

HE BELIEVES TAX INCENTIVES to private builders and government-backed loans with extremely small monthly payments are potential keys to the rebuilding of slums like Watts and the South Bronx.

"Give the people a paper that says they own the place and you would restore their dignity and self-respect," he said.

Like other candidates, Fernandez looks on next winters's New Hampshire primary as a key to his hopes.

"I need at least a third-place finish there to gain credibility," he said.

To that end, he's traveled there eight times in three months, hoping to build an organization around the Latin heritage of New Hampshire voters, about half of whom have Hispanic or French Canadian backgrounds.

"THERE ARE OTHER STATES, LIKE Texas and California, where my background should give me an advantage," he says. "But on the whole, mine is an uphill battle and I recognize it."

68 Hurt In Paris Rioting

PARIS (AP) — At least 68 policemen were injured and 30 rioters arrested in a looting and window-smashing spree in Paris following a mass demonstration against job cutbacks in the steel industry.

The violence erupted Friday after the lead contingent of a march by tens of thousands of steelworkers began dispersing at the Place de l'Opera.

ABOUT 100 masked and helmeted youths began smashing windows and looting stores. Riot police moved in, the protesters unleashed a hail of bolts, steel bars and firebombs, and police fired tear gas.

The clash lasted 45 minutes, the police cleared the square and arrested 30 rioters. The youths then scattered, began breaking windows in adjacent areas and setting up barricades.

AS NIGHT FELL, bands of youths continued roaming the streets in the center of Paris harassing police, who trailed them on foot and in specially equipped police buses.

Several hundred rioters mobbed Paris' east side railway station, where the steelworkers were boarding homeward-bound trains, smashed windows, set automobiles on fire and kept the trains from leaving.

THE MARCH, called by the Communist-led General Labor Confederation, the nation's biggest union, was to protest unemployment, particularly in the sagging steel industry.

Part-time Employment

Teens: Eye Careers

CAREERS

By JOYCE L. KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: As a high school student, I need ideas for a part-time job other than those at fast-food places.
— S.J.M., Chicago, Ill.

Why do you want a job? Is it because you want to sample work to help you make a career decision? Because you've already made a tentative decision and want to test it? To capitalize on a hobby or interest? To beef up a puny work history with any kind of job? Desperate for money? Parents hammering at you to get a job?

Understanding your motivation can help map a part-time job hunt. It's easier if you have some idea of where you're headed.

GRETCHEN KAUFFMAN is an example of how to tie youth work experiences with career aims. A 16-year-old student who recently began work in my office as a part-time mail assistant, Gretchen is eyeing a career in journalism, law or politics.

Previously, she worked at a fast-food place, which, at first blush, would not seem to be connected with her future aspirations. When you think about it, though, her counter work enriched her experience in dealing with people, a characteristic of each of the three fields she's considering.

In Gretchen's new job, she adds another dimension to the same characteristic. Through one of her tasks — helping sort and screen letters each month — she'll gain insight to the concerns of a range of individuals from every walk of life, knowledge she can parlay later in any people-oriented career.

ONE OF GRETCHEN'S supervisors, Nancy Baker, is a college student weighing a variety of career options, from executive secretary to airline reservation agent to personnel specialist. Along with mail handling, which relates to the personnel field, Nancy operates an electronic typewriter — a useful experience for office or reservation work.

Suppose you're interested in becoming an automotive engineer or mechanic? Wouldn't a gas station be an obvious place to look for experience? A business manager? — even babysitting offers supervisory and decision-making experience.

Sometimes you can't get near the field of your interest: as a teen-ager, you can't, for instance, become a part-time assistant astronaut. Maybe you can't even find a job operating computer equipment at a company.

BUT PERHAPS YOU can land a job selling home mini-computers at an electronics store, which is closer to your long-range goal of astronaut than, say, being a lifeguard.

Taking any job you can get is better than no job, but if you're resourceful, you'll have options.

Kennebunkport?
Isn't that the boat that won The America's Cup in '75?

If you're not sure who (or what) Kennybunkport was, don't feel bad—you're not alone.
A perfect blend of nature and living—nestled in a forest with babbling brooks and quiet ponds, cooled by natural ocean breezes. Add to that tennis courts, swimming pools, a jacuzzi and a convenient location near shopping and employment and you've got a place anyone would proudly call home. (Even Kennybunkport!)
One and two bedroom, one and two bath adult apartments from $315.00
