Coast Air Quality Acceptable Level

By DAVID KUTZMANN

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality (along the Orange Coast county)," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

BELLFLOWER (AP) — Robbery was the apparent motive in the murder of a 62-year-old jogger found shot to death, sheriff's homicide detectives said.

The victim, Clarence Temple, 62, was found Thursday by a passerby in front of a trailer park on Rosecrans Avenue. He had been shot in the neck, a Los Angeles County sheriff's spokesman said. "He had no money or wallet on him. The only motive right now is robbery," the spokesman said.

predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with anticipated pollution reading of .21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high-pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast.

War Foes Dispute Holdings

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran both claimed their troops were in control of Iran's major port of Khorramshahr today and Iran said it reopened a strategic railroad in the southern war zone that Iraq reported cutting last week.

Tehran radio said a train left the Iranian capital headed for Ahwaz as rail service resumed between these cities. The broadcast said the rail line had been closed because of a break in communications at the station at Andimeshk, a town just north of Dezful, which is 70 miles from the Iraq border where the war began 12 days ago. Early in the fighting, Iraq said its forces penetrated to near Dezful and cut the rail link from Abadan to Tehran.

Iraq said its forces took over the port and were digging in after achieving their main objectives along an invasion front stretching 300 miles to the north. "There is no trace of any Iranian soldier left in Khorramshahr," Baghdad radio said. "The town is under Iraq's firm control."

It labeled as "hallucination" Iran's claims it was crushing Iraqi troops in Khorramshahr and said: "What few so-called revolutionary guards are left in hiding are being flushed out and mopped up in Khorramshahr. That's all that's happening now."

But Iran's official Pars news agency said the Iraqi troops withdrew from Khorramshahr

Stuffy Nose Fatal to Ape

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 325-pound orangutan named Bob, who posed more often for pictures than any other animal in the San Diego Zoo, died on the operating table as doctors tried to open his stuffy nose.

At 26, the Borneo-born ape was patriarch of the zoo's orangutan family. Bob underwent his first sinus-draining operation last March.

The zoo plans to keep the huge body with its long, red hair under with glass. Cardiac arrest is blamed for Bob's death Thursday, zoo officials said.

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song. "Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1807 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began. This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1860s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Going Strong Kids' Show Marks 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just another day for the millions of kids in the audience, but for Bob Keeshan, today's broadcast was more than just another opportunity to encourage young children to learn, to feel good about themselves.

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered Oct. 3, 1955, and a quarter-century later is still going strong.

"I will keep it going, the good Lord and CBS willing," Keeshan said in an anniversary interview not long ago, "and I must say, I have never felt more support from the network than I do now."

The anniversary broadcast was marked on air by a stream of the show's regulars congratulating him. Captain Kangaroo, appearing perplexed by all the attention, was given the opportunity to say anything he wished.

"Good morning, Captain," he said into the camera.

Network TV's longest-running children's series began its 26th season less than a month ago, distinct in appearance from that premiere broadcast, but consistent in philosophy.

"The idea is," the 53-year-old Keeshan said, "if you can motivate a child, make the child feel good about herself, or himself, the child will learn."

Keeshan has seen his role change over the years, and is considered an authority on the relationship between children and television. He spends a good deal of his free time on the road, speaking to educators and parents, as well as broadcasters.

"It concerns me," Keeshan said, "when people say, 'Look at all the good things we've done with 'Captain Kangaroo' and 'Sesame Street' and the others. Now we don't have to spend all the money on teachers.'"

"We're here to aid the teacher," he said, "to back up the good that is being done for the child by others."

Keeshan began his career in television as Clarabell the Clown on the old "Howdy Doody" show. Five years later, he developed his own character, Corny the Clown, and was signed to do a show called "Time for Fun."

A year later, 1954, he created Tinker the Toymaker, and produced and performed in a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan has not been alone over the years. Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, has been a regular for years, and Cosmo Allegretti joined the show as Dennis, the apprentice, a short while later.

Allegretti also is the chief puppeteer, responsible for enduring characters like Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit.

There is a footnote to the "Captain Kangaroo" story. "The Mickey Mouse Club" premiered the same day in 1955 on ABC, and left the air four years later.

Elderly Man Dies Chasing Burglar

CHICO (AP) — An elderly man was found dead apparently after he had confronted a burglar in his garage, police said, Daniel Joseph Moses, 28, was arrested a short time later after a traffic accident in nearby Bidwell Park, and was booked for investigation of murder.

The Butte County Sheriff's Office said it got a phone call about 11:30 p.m. about a fight at the home of Leo Rosier, 76, on the edge of Bidwell Park. They arrived to find Rosier dead in the park. They said it looked like he had chased a burglar from his garage.

Beating Of Wife Result

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tucson apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife

HB Dump Scanned

State Pledges Assistance

By PATRICK KENNEDY
On the Daily Pilot Staff
State health officials have agreed to conduct physical examinations of local residents if an outbreak of illness occurs near an abandoned chemical dump site in Huntington Beach.

Dr. L. Rex Ehling, medical director of Orange County, said Thursday that officials of the state Department of Health Services have agreed to work with the county if numerous residents living near the dump should become ill. He said the action would include physical examinations and blood sampling.

The state health department has identified several toxic and cancer causing chemicals buried at the four-acre site. State officials have recommended the contaminated soil be excavated and removed to prevent future health hazards, such as contamination of the water table or explosive underground buildups of methane gas.

Ehling said, however, that currently the dump does not appear to pose a threat to human health.

Ehling discounted allegations that three persons are suffering from cancer and other serious illnesses because of exposure to toxic chemicals in the dump. He said the illnesses are not similar and appear unrelated.

The dump is located 700 feet southeast of the Bolsa Chica Street and Warner Avenue intersection. In the 1940s it was used for oil refinery wastes. In the 1960s it became the Boucher landfill.

Orange County Supervisor Harriett Wieder, accompanied by state, county and city officials, took a walking tour of the four-acre site Wednesday afternoon.

"We are here today to reassure the residents of this area that the county and the City of Huntington Beach are doing all that is within our capability to assess the health hazard, if any, posed by this landfill site."

The 2nd District supervisor said she ordered testing of the city's private and public water supply. She said the results will be in next week.

A recent study conducted by a consultant to the owner of the dump states that city and private well water near the dump contains low levels of toxic chemicals, but that the overall quality is good and the water is safe to drink.

Huntington Beach Mayor Ruth Bailey and city councilman Ruth Finley said they will ask the City Council to request the landowner to fence the area to prevent children from playing in the field.

Soft Drink Rivals Cool Suit

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Two archrivals for the nation's soft drink business reached an out-of-court settlement in a lawsuit filed by PepsiCo Inc. to prevent Coca-Cola Co. from finding out about Pepsi's top secret marketing strategy for 1981.

In the settlement reached Thursday, Donald Breen, 27, a former Pepsi associate marketing manager, agreed not to discuss with his new employer, Coca-Cola, the strategy developed during his tenure at Pepsi.

In return, Pepsi dropped its suit against Breen and Coca-Cola.

Pepsi, headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., said it has spent millions of dollars in the past nine months to develop "the Pepsi Challenge," a consumer taste comparison test of both colas that will be publicized in certain areas of the country next year.

Breen, who switched to Atlanta-based Coca-Cola on Sept. 9, "knows when and where it will be implemented," according to Pepsi lawyer, Elizabeth Head.

She told State Supreme Court Justice Vincent Gurahian at a hearing Thursday that Pepsi's rival was so delighted at winning Breen away that it flew him to a Coca-Cola bottlers' meeting in a company jet.

"He was personally toasted and greeted by Coca-Cola's president," Miss Head said.

Coca-Cola's lawyer Stuart Robinowitz denied receiving confidential information from Breen. Robinowitz said the company "has never been accused of anything like this."

"For the most part we know in advance through normal trade sources when the Pepsi Challenge campaign will be instituted," he said. "Our people are rarely surprised."

And Coca-Cola already has developed a counter-campaign — a series of advertising spots featuring comedian Bill Cosby in a "spoo" at testing drinks in this manner," he said.

Breen also has denied possessing what Pepsi says is a confidential marketing manual that is a blueprint of the Pepsi Challenge.

Escaped Pet Ape Attacks Woman, 19

NEWTOWN, Pa. (AP) — An escaped pet ape terrorized a Bucks County teen-ager by jumping inside her car and biting her after she pulled to a stop, authorities said.

Sophia Hadgimallis, 19, of Richboro, N.J. told police she was bitten again when she ran from the car to a truck that had stopped nearby.

Miss Hadgimallis had her wounds cleaned at a Langhorne hospital after Tuesday's attack and was released.

Mamu, a pet for 14 years, escaped from the yard of its owner, Saul Lefkowitz, police said.

Police said they were uncertain whether charges would be filed.

consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Miss D'Aiello lay comatose for about a week. When she finally regained consciousness, she had no memory of the attack, of being pregnant or of her past.

Prosecutor Cliff Harris said she still loved her husband as she recuperated slowly at her parents home, where the defendant helped care for her.

But as she recalled more of her past, as well as regaining her ability to speak, she realized Green was responsible for her injuries, the prosecutor said. It was then Green was arrested for the attack, which police at first speculated could have been the work of the unknown killer who had attacked other women in surrounding communities.

Harris said Green's story "defied common sense" and that Miss D'Aiello had no reason to lie about the attack because she once loved her former mate.

"I think she's a believable person," he said. Defense attorney Richard Curran argued that no blood was ever found on Green's key holder and that the defendant had spotted a suspicious looking man outside the apartment complex when he went out for his late-night trip for food.

McQueen's Cancer 'In Remission'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Steve McQueen, who waged a secret six-month battle against a rare and generally incurable form of cancer, is gradually improving under a nutrition-based treatment developed by a one-time dentist, doctors and spokesmen say.

McQueen, 50, who was not revealing his whereabouts, asked his fans and friends Thursday to "keep your fingers crossed" for a full recovery.

The screen star was told six months ago that he had terminal mesothelioma, a cancer of the lining of the lungs and other organs, according to a statement issued by his publicist, Warren Cowan.

McQueen, who appeared in such films as "The Great Escape" and "Bullitt," had been keeping the illness a secret so that he could keep his "sense of dignity" as he died, the statement said.

But six weeks ago, after a month of the nutrition-based treatment, he began to show improvement and has been gaining weight while the cancer, which had spread to his neck, chest and abdomen, has gone into remission, doctors said.

Most cases of mesothelioma have been associated with exposure to asbestos, a mineral fiber used in insulation, said Dr. Oscar Shorer, a Berkeley lung specialist. McQueen held a variety of jobs before becoming an actor, including that of a merchant seaman.

Asbestos insulation is used extensively in ships. Researchers have discovered that even a brief exposure to the material can sometimes result in lung disease and later mesothelioma.

Dr. William Kelley of the International Health Institute in Dallas, who is helping guide McQueen's treatment, said, "We have been able to prolong the patient's life beyond earlier expectations."

"I believe that Mr. McQueen can fully recover and return to a normal lifestyle," said Kelley.

A colleague at the center, Paul Whetstone, said Kelley developed his treatment after recovering himself from what had been diagnosed 18 years ago as a terminal case of cancer. He was a dentist at the time, but has since given up practice, Whetstone said.

Kelley's treatment, which supplements traditional medical care, tries to build up the body's immunity system so it can resist cancer. The method regulates diet and employs mental exercises to encourage "positive thinking," Cowan said.

"Our whole concept is not to treat the disease but to build health to the extent that disease cannot exist in the body," said Dr. Philip Johnston of the institute.

The treatment does not include use of Laetrile, the controversial drug made from apricot pits, he said.

In the statement, McQueen expressed "a sincere belief in my own recovery."

"I say to all my fans and all my friends, keep your fingers crossed and keep the good thoughts coming," McQueen said.

McQueen would not say where he was undergoing treatment.

"Hopefully, the cheap scandal sheets and curiosity seekers will not try to seek me out so I can continue my treatment," McQueen said.

as late as midnight Thursday after abandoning tanks and other equipment, that water and electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Iranian paratroopers were dropped into Khorramshahr on Thursday, that Iranian warplanes launched attacks to support them and that "enemy-crushing" operations were under way in the port, near the refinery city of Abadan at the head of the Persian Gulf in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Bani-Sadr said Iranian troops also routed Iraqi forces from Susangerd, 100 miles to the north, that the Iraqis were in retreat toward the border and that Iranian forces captured 70 Iraqi tanks and armored personnel carriers and "large numbers of Iraqi soldiers."

The Baghdad command said Thursday that "unless the scale of fighting warranted, there will be only one military communique daily since Iraqi forces have achieved their main objectives and will concentrate on consolidation of their achievements."

It also said its naval units "inflicted serious damage" on Iranian military positions at Abadan, several miles from Khorramshahr, and that Iraqi MiGs attacked the Dezful area, 150 miles north of Abadan.

However, it also said Iranian jets hit five Iraqi provinces, that five Iraqi civilians were wounded in air strikes on the southern Iraqi city of Amara and that two Iranian jets were shot down over Amara and Basra.

The radio station in Ahwaz, capital of Khuzestan province 70 miles north of Abadan, said Thursday that "the enemy has been defeated and is making dastardly efforts in only a few places." But the broadcast conceded "a number of feudalists are giving shelter to atheist forces," meaning some ethnic Arabs in Khuzestan were aiding Iraq's Arab soldiers. Another broadcast warned Iranian Arab tribesmen they would be "condemned to death" if they helped Iraqi soldiers.

At Alden's in recent years, our per unit sale has been more expensive carpeting, reflecting this fact. Consequently, we have the largest selection of finer qualities you will see anywhere, all at competitive prices.

Elderly Victim Tells of Beatings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An elderly witness testifying in the trial of four men accused in the brutal June 3 attack on residents of a San Francisco nursing home carried a message to Judge Robert Dossee.

Mayor Dianne Feinstein said to give them a long, long time," said Fritz Peterson, 77, after he testified how he was pistol-whipped during the orgy of violence that included the rape of a 67-year-old blind woman and the beating and robbery of five other home residents.

The trial continued today in San Francisco superior court.

Peterson, who is so hard of hearing that lawyers had to write out their questions during his testimony, told jurors about the attack on him by a "fella with a .38 caliber chrome pistol with an extra long barrel.

"He slugged me over the head and kicked me down the stairs. He said something to me that I couldn't hear, then he hit me and kicked me down the stairs," said Peterson.

But Peterson was unable to identify any of the defendants charged in the attack at the nursing home. The defendants, Bobby Ray Varner, 25, Franklin

White, 25, Tommy Hart, 26, and Larry Clary, 30, sat passively during the testimony of Peterson and three other nursing home residents. All the defendants are from San Francisco.

Since the incident, Margaret Torpey, the rape victim, has died of cancer and another victim, Claudia Chow, 42, also has died of cancer. A third victim, Paul Erickson, an elderly man with mental problems, dropped out of sight after the incident and could not be located to testify.

Constance Jacobs, 52, described how a man burst into her room while she was lying in bed, and without a word, slugged her across the forehead with a silver pistol and took $2 from her purse and walked out with her watch.

Another witness, Andrew McDonald, 76, testified that "They grabbed me by the back of the head and pulled me head-down while one kned me in the belly. That made me so sick I threw up."

The defendants are charged variously with rape, robbery and assault. If convicted, each face maximum prison terms of 28 years.

Coast Air Quality Much Better

By DAVID KUTZMANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality along the Orange Coast coast," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

Only one first-stage alert was predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with an anticipated pollution reading of .21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high-pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service

predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast.

Temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-90s today for inland valleys and low 70s along the coast.

"Little change in temperature is expected on Saturday," a weather service spokesman said.

Schools Receive $63,000

A federal grant of $63,000 earmarked for assessing the best skills that special handicapped youngsters should develop has been awarded to the Newport-Mesa Unified School District.

The money, disbursed from Public Law 94-142, which benefits afflicted students, is to be put to use within the next month.

Program Director Mark Hansen says about 200 district youngsters, who must cope with various difficulties that curtail or slow their learning ability, will be involved.

The funds will provide tests and counseling to develop vocational skills and explore possible job fields for those as trainable mentally retarded, physically handicapped, mildly retarded or having so-called learning disabilities.

The latter basically is a little-understood phenomenon that makes it particularly difficult for an individual to assimilate certain skills or knowledge.

An assessment center in which youngsters will be given chances to try out different types of occupational efforts such as carpentry, mechanics and others will be financed with the funds.

Muffin Laakso, program specialist for the handicapped students, will follow up their job preparation by helping them with job placement in the community.

9.5% Pay Increase Urged in Mesa Pact

Most Costa Mesa city employees will get pay and benefit increases averaging about 9.5 percent a year over the next two years under a proposal going to the City Council Monday night.

The plan, said City Manager Fred Sorsabal, calls for Employee Association employees to receive an 8 1/2 percent pay hike beginning Sunday, a 6 1/4 percent hike Nov. 1, 1981, and another 6 1/4 percent increase on May 3, 1982.

The plan also calls for the city to make full payment on employees' retirement plans beginning in July, 1981. Currently, employees contribute up to 7 percent of their salaries for retirement.

The proposal also calls for time-and-a-half pay, when such work is required, beginning in July of next year. The city currently pays regular rates for overtime work.

Sorsabal said the plan, if approved, will increase city salary and benefit payments by $253,000 this year. He said figures for 1981 are not yet available.

The council also will consider pay proposals that would increase about 30 executives' pay by about 6.7 percent and begin paying full retirement benefits out of city coffers beginning Jan. 1.

The total package, Sorsabal said, would total a 10.5 percent increase.

City administrators are still negotiating with the Police Association and the Firefighters Association over pay and benefit increases, the city manager noted.

Couple Take Store's Gems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A couple pretending an interest in a ring robbed a store of about $375,000 in jewels and fled, leaving the owner and a guard tied but unharmed.

The man and woman entered the Jewels by Jeffrey store Wednesday and said they were interested in buying a ring, Inspector Barry Johnson said.

The couple disarmed a security guard, took the guard and owner into a back room and tied them up. The retail value of the jewels was about $800,000, but the cost to the owner was about $375,000, authorities said.

Mesa Council Eyes Permit For Parlor

Costa Mesa City Council members will consider a permit Monday night for continued operation of a massage parlor that has been in business since 1973 but has changed ownership.

Operators of the Atlantic massage parlor at 2112 Harbor Blvd. are appealing an earlier decision by the city Planning Commission to deny a use permit allowing operation.

City staff reports recommend denial of the permit.

Facing a heavy agenda when they meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, council members also will rule on changes proposed in the Segerstrom family's plan for development at the Town Center on Bristol Street.

In addition to shifting proposed building space from the Music Center area to the commercial twin towers area, the developers seek approval for a movie theater, restaurant and commercial shops already given tentative approval.

The council also will consider raising towing service rates allowed to the firms which respond to police towing requests.

Bus Passes On Sale in N-M District

School bus passes giving youngsters in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District a ride to campus through Oct. 31 are now on sale and parents are urged to buy them by mail.

Fees are $15 per month per school child.

They go up to $30 for two youngsters and $40 for three or more children in the same family if they attend the same school, according to officials who say 1,832 passes were issued last month.

Transportation Supervisor Carolyn Stocker says monthly passes are generally put right back into the mail to families the same day their checks arrive.

Mail the fee with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Newport-Mesa USD, Box 1368, Newport Beach 92663. Full annual passes good through June also are available.

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song.

"Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1877 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began.

This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1860s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Marine Out For Nudity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can see 27-year-old Marine Corps reservist Sgt. Robert Jordan out of uniform in this month's Playgirl magazine. But you won't see him in the Marines.

The Marine Corps gave Jordan his marching papers for bringing "discredit" to the service by appearing nude in Playgirl's "Men of the Military" spread in the October issue, Jordan said Thursday.

Jordan said he was notified of his honorable discharge a week ago in a letter from the commander of his Marine Corps reserve unit in Long Beach.

U.S. Air Force Jets End Egypt Deployment Test

CAIRO WEST AIR BASE, Egypt (AP) — A dozen U.S. Air Force F-4E Phantom jets streaked off the desert runway of this Egyptian military field and headed for home today, capping a 90-day operation aimed at showing that American warplanes can carry their firepower to the oil-rich sands of the Middle East.

"This has been one of the most successful operations ever conducted by the Air Force," said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace as the 12 jets took off on a 15-hour flight to Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga. They are to make 12 in-flight refuelings and stop overnight in the Azores.

Wallace said the operation, dubbed Proud Phantom, proved that American planes can deploy quickly and operate smoothly in the harsh deserts of the Middle East.

100 Battle National Park Blaze

CEDAR GROVE (AP) — Fire officials here grew more hopeful today as a hot, stubborn blaze that has blackened 3,100 acres in Kings Canyon National Park appeared to be running out of brush to burn.

The 3-day blaze is being battled by a force of 400 firefighters, seven air tankers, three helicopters and a fire-spotting plane borrowed from the Forest Service, park spokeswoman Irma Buchholz said.

The firefighters' effort to halt the blaze has been hampered by record temperatures and the steep terrain of the Lewis Creek area, where the fire started.

Carter Refused Free 'Equal Time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is not entitled to free equal time to respond to commercials aired by independent groups supporting Ronald Reagan, the Federal Communications Commission ruled today.

With a crowd of attorneys, political organizers and network television crews looking on, the commission unanimously accepted the position of broadcasters who argued that the law requires only that they sell comparable time to a candidate or his supporters.

The decision was immediately hailed by such independent groups as Americans for Change as a victory for the right of free speech.

State Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported today that the California unemployment rate dropped from 7.3 percent in August to 6.9 percent in September.

Fresno Records 'Hottest October'

By The Associated Press

Fresno has recorded its hottest October day in history and hot, smoggy weather continued today in the San Joaquin Valley, the National Weather Service reported.

Fresno's high Thursday of 101 also was the highest temperature recorded this late in the year in Fresno, weather officials said.

Hot temperatures were reported throughout the valley Thursday, including highs of 102 in Bakersfield and 101 in Stockton.

electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Iranian paratroopers were dropped into Khorramshahr on Thursday, that Iranian warplanes launched attacks to support them and that "enemy-crushing" operations were under way in the port, near the refinery city of Abadan at the head of the Persian Gulf in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Bani-Sadr said Iranian troops also routed Iraqi forces from Susangerd, 100 miles to the north, that the Iraqis were in retreat toward the border and that Iranian forces captured 70 Iraqi tanks and armored personnel carriers and "large numbers of Iraqi soldiers."

The Baghdad command said Thursday that "unless the scale of fighting warranted, there will be only one military communique daily since Iraqi forces have achieved their main objectives and will concentrate on consolidation of their achievements."

It also said its naval units "inflicted serious damage" on Iranian military positions at Abadan, several miles from Khorramshahr, and that Iraqi MiGs attacked the Dezful area, 150 miles north of Abadan.

Newport Would Bar Adult Bookstore

The City of Newport Beach has filed suit in an attempt to prevent an adult bookstore from opening its doors next week.

The city is seeking a temporary restraining order in Orange County Superior Court to stop owner Thomas Wade from opening his Talk of the Town bookstore at 2930 W. Pacific Coast Highway.

The City Council passed an emergency four-month zoning moratorium Aug. 25 to prevent adult entertainment centers from locating in Newport Beach until zoning guidelines are drawn up.

The council is scheduled to consider a zoning ordinance on Oct. 27 to limit the commercial neighborhoods where adult businesses can be operated.

But in the suit, filed Thursday, assistant city attorney Robert H. Burnham contends that Wade refuses to heed the city's directives and plans to open his bookstore and video center Tuesday.

The city claims that letting the business begin will open a Pandora's box of evils to the community, including a likelihood of increased sexual offenses, depreciated property values and relocated homes and businesses.

The bookstore is scheduled to begin business in the former site of the Olympus Health Spa.

Newport Beach has never had an adult theater, although an adult theater, The Pussycat, was operated several years ago at the site of the Balboa Theater on the Balboa Peninsula.

The city Planning Commission is scheduled to review the proposed zoning ordinance next Thursday. It will make recommendations on the matter to the city council.

Mesa Church Loses Bid, Goes Higher

Calvary Chapel is continuing negotiations for the 2,800-acre Warner Hot Springs Resort even though the Costa Mesa-based church lost the property to a higher bidder.

Pastor Chuck Smith said today the church may offer $4.5 million to the San Francisco-based firm, A. Cal Rossi Co. Ltd., which purchased the resort for a reported $4.2 million.

Until its $4 million offer was refused last week the Costa Mesa church had planned to sell a retreat in Lake Arrowhead to help pay for the Warner resort near San Diego. It includes 96 cottages, a lodge, a golf course and a 5,000-foot air strip.

If the church is successful in its new negotiations for the resort, Smith said, a retirement community, college, campsite and rehabilitation center for teenagers will be established there.

The resort was sold Thursday, more than a year after its West German owner, American Ranch Ferian GmbH & Co. Analgen K.G. closed it.

Kids' Show Marks 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just another day for the millions of kids in the audience, but for Bob Keeshan, today's broadcast was more than just another opportunity to encourage young children to learn, to feel good about themselves.

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered Oct. 3, 1955, and a quarter-century later is still going strong.

"I will keep it, the good Lord and CBS willing," Keeshan said in an anniversary interview not long ago, "and I must say, I have never felt more support from the network than I do now."

The anniversary broadcast was marked on air by a stream of the show's regulars congratulating him. Captain Kangaroo, appearing perplexed by all the attention, was given the opportunity to say anything he wished.

"Good morning, Captain," he said into the camera.

Network TV's longest-running children's series began its 26th season less than a month ago, distinct in appearance from that premiere broadcast, but consistent in philosophy.

"The idea is," the 53-year-old Keeshan said, "if you can motivate a child, make the child feel good about herself, or himself, the child will learn."

Keeshan has seen his role change over the years, and is considered an authority on the relationship between children and television. He spends a good deal of his free time on the road, speaking to educators and parents, as well as broadcasters.

"It concerns me," Keeshan said, "when people say, 'Look at all the good things we've done with 'Captain Kangaroo' and 'Sesame Street' and the others. Now we don't have to spend all the money on teachers.'"

"We're here to aid the teacher," he said, "to back up the good that is being done for the child by others."

Keeshan began his career in television as Clarabell the Clown on the old "Howdy Doody" show. Five years later, he developed his own character, Corny the Clown, and was signed to do a show called "Time for Fun."

A year later, 1954, he created

Tinker the Toymaker, and produced and performed in a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan has not been alone over the years. Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, has been a regular for years, and Cosmo Allegretti joined the show as Dennis, the apprentice, a short while later.

Allegretti also is the chief puppeteer, responsible for enduring characters like Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit.

There is a footnote to the "Captain Kangaroo" story. "The Mickey Mouse Club" premiered the same day in 1955 on ABC, and left the air four years later.

Wife Beaten

Man Ruled Guilty In Beating Death

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tustin apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Conference For Business Women Set

A conference for women who own businesses or are considering opening one will be held Saturday in the Community Center at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

Entitled "Women: Minding Your Own Business," the conference will be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will feature experts on law, finance, advertising and management.

According to conference organizers, women make up 52 percent of the nation's population but only 4.6 percent own businesses.

A $2 materials fee will be charged for the conference, which is co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

What's What?

'Who's Who' Suit Fails

The San Clemente-based publishers of "Who's Who in California" have failed to convince an Orange County Superior Court judge to issue a court order barring a competitor from putting out a publication entitled the "Official Who's Who of Orange County."

JUDGE HARMAN Scoville denied the request of Donald and Sarah Vitale, owner of Who's Who Enterprises and publishers of numerous who's who books, that he issue a preliminary injunction against Robert W. Tompkins, president of the Official Corp. in Newport Beach.

The Vitales had filed a lawsuit earlier in the summer to stop Tompkins from going ahead with his publication, claiming infringement on their trademark.

THEY SAID THEY wanted a court order to stop Tompkins from using the trademark "Who's Who."

However, attorneys for Tompkins successfully argued that who's who type books are widespread throughout the nation and that the Orange County who's who would be substantially different from the California who's who.

This is contrary to popular belief, but makes good sense if you think about it. When you have to concern yourself with value and performance, you are likely to buy better quality.

At Alden's in recent years, our per unit sale has been more expensive carpeting, reflecting this fact. Consequently, we have the largest selection of finer qualities you will see anywhere, all at competitive prices.

Don't Tell George Cops Don't Care Behind the Badge There's a Heart

By JODI CADENHEAD
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Jim Weaver has been a cop in Huntington Beach for 10 years and until Wednesday night, he'd never come across a story like this one.

At 7 p.m. he was called to the Huntington Beach Convalescent Hospital, 18811 Florida St., where a former 74-year-old patient we'll call George sat silently in a cab.

OFFICER WEAVER knows George. They met last week after the hospital staff called the police department to report that George had wandered off. He was later found in another patient's room.

But that was the last straw. As Weaver explains it, the staff was tired of looking for the former war veteran and the family requested that he be transferred to the VA Hospital in Long Beach.

After only a day and a half there, he was sent back via taxi to the Huntington Beach hospital.

"The nurse wouldn't even let him get out of the car. They said it was a police problem because they had already dismissed the guy," Officer Weaver said.

For 30 minutes Weaver, the nurse, the cab driver and George sat discussing the situation. George told the officer that he wanted to go to his nephew's home in Huntington Beach.

"I CALLED THE FAMILY and they said they didn't want him. The woman told me, 'I don't want anything to do with him,'" the officer said.

"She asked me to call her back and tell her what I wound up doing," Weaver said. "I hung up."

Finally the officer took the old man to the police station, where he began calling a number of county agencies in an effort to find someone willing to help.

"I finally got a doctor at UCI mental health and he said that since I'm an officer that if I deemed he was gravely disabled, they would take him for a night."

ON THE WAY TO the hospital, Officer Weaver stopped and bought some hamburgers since George had been discharged from the Long Beach hospital before dinner and was hungry.

"He only had two bucks in his pocket and he wanted to give me money," Weaver said. "This guy really wants to pay his own way."

In the two and one-half hours before George eventually wound up at UCI Medical Center he told Weaver about his days of fighting in the Philippines.

"I guess that was the highlight of his life," Weaversaid.

"I CAN'T STAND NIGHT WATCH anymore," he told the policeman. "But I'm willing to work."

Because of state laws protecting patients rights and privacy, UCI Medical Center officials wouldn't comment on whether or not George was a patient there.

The Huntington Beach Convalescent Hospital said that it was up to the family to comment on the case.

"YOU START WONDERING, what's going to happen when you get like this," Officer Weaversaid.

"I'd hate to be sitting out there alone in a cab."

Roads Anger County

By GLENN SCOTT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County voters are becoming so fed up with inadequate and inaccessible freeways that they are likely to approve sales and gasoline tax increases — as long as they are guaranteed the money will go toward local road projects.

That was the message delivered Thursday by county government and business leaders, who pleaded the county's case to members of the state Senate Committee on Transportation at a hearing in the Santa Ana City Council chambers.

The reason for the hearing was to expose state representatives to local transportation problems. In Orange County, they learned, the problems are as plentiful as chuck holes on the Santa Ana Freeway.

To no one's surprise, the problem that seemed to stir the most shuffling of papers and looks of distress was how to come up with the estimated $13.5 billion necessary to keep Orange County traffic moving at its current rate by 1995.

Al Hollinden, Orange County Transportation Commission chairman, said the county has produced a study detailing ways in which the traffic can continue to flow in spite of the fact that population is expected to rise from 1.9 to 2.6 million.

But he said the state currently has no method to raise the funds necessary to make needed improvements, such as developing the San Joaquin Hills transportation corridor south from Irvine.

Hollinden, a UC Irvine transportation instructor, said the money to improve the system will have to be raised through sales and gas taxes. But he predicted voters, who have taken the initiative in recent years to limit taxes, won't approve measures unless they know the money will stay at home.

County Supervisor Ralph B. Clark told the senators that the state's funding methods are out of date.

Clark called for a funding method in which counties get at least 85 percent of gas taxes residents pay to the state.

Six senators were on hand for the hearing, including John Briggs, R-Fullerton, and John G. Schmitz, R-Newport Beach. They sat quietly through most of the lengthy hearing, although the two Orange County representatives occasionally interrupted speakers to ask for clarification of comments.

Briggs, at one point, told the audience of about 40 people that coming up with funds for just Orange County would be "almost an impossible task."

Alcoholism Told

Solon Denies Sex Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert E. Bauman, a leading conservative congressman, pleaded innocent today to a charge of sexual solicitation and agreed to enter a court-supervised rehabilitation program for alcoholism.

The Maryland Republican stood with his hands behind his back during a brief appearance in the District of Columbia Superior Court, saying almost nothing beyond the words, "Not guilty."

Bauman is one of the official Republican watchdogs assigned to study every piece of legislation for the Republican minority.

He avoided reporters at the courthouse but his lawyer, Thomas M. O'Malley, said the U.S. Attorney's office has agreed to drop the sexual solicitation charge if Bauman successfully completes the rehabilitation program.

News reports said the three-term congressman was accused of committing oral sodomy on a young boy but the lawyer said he did not know the details and said the charge was not that specific.

O'Malley read to reporters the charge printed on a form as being "sexual solicitation. Unlawfully invited, enticed, persuaded and addressed for the purpose of prostitution and an immoral and lewd purpose."

The words, "A person whose name is known to the defendant" were typed in after that.

The lawyer said the alleged offense occurred March 2 and was supposed to be with a person over the age of 16 but said he knew no other details.

Don Shields

Don Shields, president of Cal State Fullerton, has been named the new president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas subject to ratification by the SMU board of trustees.

The trustees meet Nov. 7 at their semi-annual meeting to consider the nomination by the university's presidential search committee.

Shields, 43, would become the school's eighth president, succeeding James Zumberge, who resigned in June to become president of USC.

Shields was named acting president of Cal State Fullerton in 1970 with his job becoming permanent less than a year later. He became at age 34 the youngest president of a state university in the nation.

A spokesman for the SMU search committee said Shields meets the university's criteria in the areas of education, financial responsibility, fund-raising and "appreciation of the university's relationship with the Methodist Church."

Shields characterized SMU as "one of the very good private universities in America today."

Engineer Raps Critics Over Onofre

By The Associated Press

Striking back at opponents to two new units at the San Onofre Nuclear plant, a power company engineer says the units can withstand more powerful earthquakes than critics claim.

Kenneth Baskin, manager of nuclear engineering and licensing for Southern California Edison Co., said Thursday the uncompleted facilities could withstand an earthquake in excess of magnitude 7 on the Richter scale.

Baskin also said the company is testing the uncompleted buildings for a magnitude 7.5 quake.

Environmental critics have said the new units would fail to withstand an earthquake bigger than magnitude 6.5.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

A 7.5 earthquake produces ground motions roughly 10 times greater than one of magnitude 6.5 and releases about 100 times

Up on the Roof Top

SIGH IN THE SKY: You may wonder why I was up on my roof yesterday. I'm glad you asked that. You can have multiple choices, like I was.

— COUNTING FLIGHTS out of Orange County's airport to see if Ozark Airlines has joined the crowd yet.

— WATCHING THE OCEAN to see if my ship came in.

— CONVERSING WITH the Newport helicopter cops, who are my new neighbors, because they're always directly overhead.

— SULKING.

Actually it was none of the above. You won't catch me going up on the roof on some lark. Listen, you get up on the roof and you may learn all kinds of things you didn't really want to know.

Like, for example, there are three burned-out bottle rockets up there from the last Fourth of July. You'll never know why they didn't burn the entire place to the ground.

Seven shingles are missing and you'd better do something about that before the next serious wetness. The plumbing air vent is stopped up by reverse action from seagulls. Better just ignore that.

Clearly, going up on the roof can give you things to lose sleep over. You'll begin to hear creaks and groans in the night that you paid no attention to before.

IN TRUTH, I WAS up on the roof to install a new television antenna. Earlier, I climbed up there to fix the old antenna. The daughter of our house went with me, figuring, probably, that at my advanced age I might totter around in peril of life and limb and thus need youthful assistance to continue breathing.

Okay, TV Neighbors, Who's the Wise Guy Over There?

She was most interested in my repair techniques. First I grabbed the old antenna. It fell apart in my hands. Several tubular pieces fluttered to earth two stories below. The rest was reduced to a heap of corroded aluminum tatters in my hand.

I just sat up there and glared at the rubble. Finally, the daughter asked:

"WHY DID YOU BREAK the antenna? Are you mad at it? Can you still fix it now? Do you have to break it into all those little pieces before you can fix it?"

I threw the rest of the junk off the roof and watched the pieces flutter over into the neighbor's back yard.

This had now become a task for an expert. Call the TV man and have him come around to install a new antenna. You make several calls. The TV man can come the day after New Year's. No, he won't make a specific appointment as to the hour. He'll arrive some time between 5 a.m. and midnight. Be sure to have three people at home to greet him and serve as witnesses.

THE CORDIAL CLERK at Radio Shack in downtown Costa Mesa had a very nice antenna at $29.25. It even came with directions written in English.

During installation, I explained to my wife the need to point the antenna toward all the signals from TV stations. This was very technical work, I noted.

"So how did you know which way to point it?" she asked. I just smiled smugly.

ACTUALLY, I POINTED the thing the same direction that all neighbors had theirs pointed.

If you're going to be wrong, it's nice to have a lot of company.

Prices Down, Jobs Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate declined for the second straight month and wholesale prices fell for the first time in 4½ years, the government said today in two reports that reflected an overall improvement in the nation's economy.

The Labor Department said the unemployment rate declined to 7.5 percent in September, down from 7.6 percent in August and the lowest since April, when it was 7 percent.

IT REPORTED separately that the wholesale prices were down 0.2 percent in September, a sharp turnaround from a 1.5 percent increase in August and the first decline since wholesale prices fell 0.3 percent in February 1976.

The two reports could help President Carter's re-election hopes as they reflect an improving economy. They also are the last employment and wholesale price statistics before the Nov. 4 election.

However, even as statistics show the economy improving, the president on Thursday criticized the Federal Reserve Board for pushing up interest rates, an action that many economists fear could choke off the recovery from the recession.

The prime lending rate for some banks was increased Thursday to 14 percent, which raises borrowing costs to business and consumers and could discourage business activity.

The Labor Department said an additional 200,000 workers found jobs in September, mostly in the construction industry and on the nation's farms.

TOTAL EMPLOYMENT was 97.2 million. Unemployment climbed by nearly 200,000 workers to 7.8 million.

Deborah Klein, a Labor Department analyst, said the drop in unemployment for the second consecutive month "might be indicating a turn" in the economy. Although unemployment had declined in August from 7.8 percent to 7.6 percent, she said a one-month drop was insufficient to establish a trend in the minds of economists but a two-month decline is more convincing.

The biggest job gains were among women, whose jobless rate dropped to 6.1 percent from 6.5 percent in August, and teenagers, whose jobless rate dropped to 17.5 percent from 19.1 percent in August.

IN ITS WHOLESALE price report, the Labor Department attributed the 0.2 percent decline in overall prices to a decline in food prices and a drop in price tags for new automobiles "as car and truck manufacturers closed out the 1980 model year with across-the-board discounts."

The department said there were also small declines for energy products, but prices for other finished goods rose 0.7 percent, about the same as in August.

'Warning' Strike In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Tens of thousands of workers across communist Poland staged a one-hour "warning strike" today in what union leaders called a test of strength of the fledgling independent labor movement.

Drivers of Warsaw city buses pulled to the curb at noon and let off their passengers. At 1 p.m., the drivers opened their doors and went back to work.

Union spokesmen in several cities said transportation, factories and some small shops also closed for the hour-long action to press demands for higher pay and access to the media for union leaders.

"IT ALL WENT exactly the way it had been planned," said a spokesman for the Warsaw branch of Solidarity, the national movement of new independent labor unions formed under agreements reached in August ending six weeks of strikes.

He said several plants in Warsaw, including the giant Ursus tractor factory, joined the action and dozens of supporters from non-striking enterprises brought letters of support and bouquets of flowers to the Warsaw headquarters.

Polish state radio reported the strike in its noon newscast, emphasizing that the union leaders had organized work stoppages "only at plants where production losses could be made up later," as promised by strike leaders.

"OUR AIM IS not to do damage but to show our strength," said Zigmunt Janas, head of the local branch of the Ursus tractor factory union.

Giving Thanks

Lawrence Merlino (left), Philip "Crazy Phil" Leonetti and Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo appear to be giving thanks Thursday as they hear jury forewoman in Mays Landing, N.J., court pronounce them innocent of slaying of Margate cement contractor Vincent Falcone. Carter Assails Reagan on SALT

By The Associated Press

President Carter says Ronald Reagan's plan to scrap the strategic arms treaty with the Soviet Union "would spell the end of any possibility" of harnessing the nuclear race between the superpowers.

Time and again, Carter attacked the Republican nominee's position on the pending SALT II treaty Thursday as yet another example of what he repeatedly has characterized as his opponent's simplistic and trigger-happy approach to global turmoil.

Reagan, meanwhile, stuck to his assault upon Carter's economic record, declaring in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin that the plight of the steel and housing industries can be resolved only by lower taxes and less government.

REAGAN DECLARED that the "dream of home ownership has been shattered for millions of Americans, shattered by soaring costs, high interest rates, and gross mismanagement of the economy by the present administration."

Carter lashed out at the Federal Reserve Board as ill-advised for paying too much attention to the money supply as the basis for regulating interest rates. "It's something I deplore very seriously," he declared.

CARTER TORE after Reagan in Dayton, Ohio, and later stops in Pennsylvania, over the SALT II issue. Reagan told The Associated Press in a recent interview that he would withdraw the treaty from Senate consideration, then "build up U.S. military strength in an attempt to win more favorable concessions from the Soviets in a future arms treaty."

Carter said Reagan's plan "is very serious in its consequences. If the American people get the idea, which is mistaken, that a nuclear arms race on our side is going to cause the Soviets to quit building nuclear weapons on their side, they are silly."

California

Relief from the worst attack of smog Los Angeles has suffered in more than two years was predicted today, ending four days of choking, eye-stinging haze.

A spokesman for the Southern California Air Quality Management District said the forecast for improved conditions does not mean skies will be clear.

"It will be touch and go," Jeff Schenkel said, "but we expect a break in the severe situation we've been having."

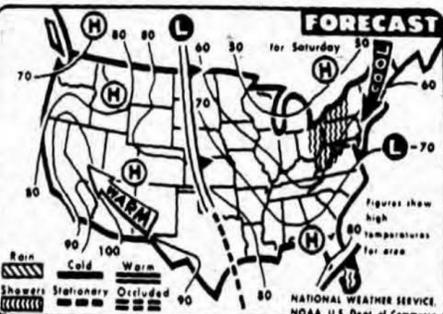

A 10-degree drop in the high temperature Thursday to 87 helped ease the spread of the brown pallor that created four concurrent second stage smog alerts Thursday afternoon, Schenkel said.

At 12 p.m. second stage alerts were in effect in Reseda, Pasadena, Arroyo and Riverside, the greatest number since six second-stage alerts were reported since in June 1978, he said.

The string of four consecutive days of second-stage smog alerts this week was the longest of the year. Last September, second-stage alerts were recorded eight days in a row, the longest stretch in more than 20 years.

Second-stage alerts also were recorded Thursday in Fontana and Pomona.

Smog even spread to the San Francisco area where it caused the first Bay Area smog alert since Oct. 2, 1978.

Actors Ready Back to Work Order Issued

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A back to work order by the Screen Actors Guild and a conditional return to work agreement by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists could lead to an earlier settlement in the musician's strike, an AFTRA spokesman predicts.

"If we are back at work it may even speed the musicians' settlement because there will be some product to score," AFTRA spokesman Dick Moore said Thursday. "The way things have been there hasn't been anything for them (the musicians) to work on."

SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner said the back to work order issued Thursday is effective Monday and means "as of Monday actors must be ready to go to work if called."

Appeals Hearing Moved Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Appeals in the emotional school desegregation case have been moved up almost a month under a revised schedule, fueling hope among mandatory busing opponents that the court will order a change in the plan before the second semester begins in February.

STATE

The 2nd District Court of Appeal, which has already overturned substantial segments of the desegregation plan designed by Superior Court Judge Paul Egly, on Thursday moved up the hearing date for appeals by the Board of Education from January to Dec. 8. (Related analysis, Page C13)

Blacks Protest TV Movie

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The chairman of a black activist organization, Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, has asked the FCC to ban the showing of "Beulah Land" on television.

"Beulah Land," scheduled for National Broadcasting Co. showing Monday, is a fictional story about slavery in America. It is based on Lonnie Coleman's trilogy of novels.

Black critics who have seen the film say it is as demeaning to blacks as "Stepin Fetchit and Aunt Jemima" type characters were in the 1920 and 1930s.

Bus Drivers Get Defenses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bus drivers will be allowed to carry chemical sprays for self-defense under a new policy adopted by the Southern California Rapid Transit District board of directors.

The board voted Thursday to give each driver the choice of whether to carry mace or tear gas canisters. The only requirement is that drivers undergo a two-hour training program certified by the U.S. Department of Justice.

6 Charged in Kidnapping

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — The father of a 20-year-old Church of Scientology member and five others have been charged with kidnapping the man in a deprogramming attempt, Riverside County sheriff's deputies report.

Jeff Cancilla of La Quinta was abducted Thursday from the Houston Lumber Co. in Palm Desert by five men who were later arrested at a motel in Palm Springs. Deputies said their investigation revealed Cancilla's parents allegedly arranged for the kidnapping.

Catholic Bishop Condemns KKK

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Comparing the Ku Klux Klan to "barbarians," a Roman Catholic bishop has issued a stern warning to Catholics against voting for congressional candidate and state Ku Klux Klan leader Tom Metzger.

In a letter published Thursday in the San Diego diocesan newspaper, "Southern Cross," the Most Rev. Leo T. Maher labeled Klan supporters as "accomplices in the sin of racism."

"THEIR ORGANIZATION ALLOWS' sinfulness to be anonymous, but all members and they who support them are responsible in varying degrees," Maher wrote.

Maher told the San Diego Union on Thursday that he considered the Klan "barbarians with whom St. Benedict had to cope 1,500 hundred years ago — the Huns and the Goths."

"In comparison, we have a certain type of barbarian loose among us today in the Klan," Maher told the newspaper.

Referring to "bald, crass, racial hatred in our own community," in his letter, Maher spoke out against "some people claiming to be Catholics who are championing the cause of the Klan."

METZGER, A BAPTIZED CATHOLIC who says he dropped out of the church three years ago, was not specifically mentioned in the three-page pastoral letter addressed to 345,600 Catholics in San Diego and Imperial counties.

The Klan no longer holds an anti-Catholic stance, Metzger said.

Delta 'Disaster Area'

Hundreds Battle to Save Fragile Railbed

STOCKTON (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers joined hundreds of workers struggling today to strengthen a fragile railroad embankment that stood between flood waters and a vital aqueduct stretched across below-sea-level farmland. (See related story, A14)

President Carter declared the San Joaquin River Delta a federal disaster area Thursday night, clearing the way for federal funds to help pay for the work.

Tons of rock and dirt were being heaped alongside the Santa Fe Railway embankment as authorities kept a watchful eye on a 1,000-foot-long crack that appeared Thursday between the railbed and the aqueduct, which supplies water to 1.1 million Oakland area residents.

THE CRACK FORCED OFFICIALS to evacuate some 50 people from the 45,000-acre Upper Jones Tract, which is separated from the flooded Lower Jones Tract by the railbed.

"The crack represents ground movement, and ground movement there is serious business," said David Vossbrink of the East Bay Municipal Utility District.

"We are working to keep the crack from widening," said Vossbrink, noting that the crack ran parallel to the railbed and was several inches wide. "More movement could lead to failure of the railroad embankment."

HE SAID THE SITUATION could change "very, very fast," and that "nobody really knows what to expect."

The five-mile long embankment was the only thing holding back waters that flooded the slightly larger Lower Jones Tract on Friday when an earth and stone levee gave way creating a 300-foot breach.

Losses to crops and property were expected to exceed $19 million, she said.

The evacuation, made as a precautionary measure, included school children and about a dozen families, said Cleo Janiw, coordinator of the San Joaquin County Office of Emergency Services.

ABOUT 200 RESIDENTS of Lower Jones Tract are homeless due to the flooding.

But delta residents say they'll be back.

"I don't think the flood will chase a one of them away," said Tye Martin, who lives on a river island and works as a grain dispatcher in Stockton, 10 miles to the east.

"I'm going to stay here the rest of my life. It's hot and dusty in the summer and cold and wet in the winter, but we're diehards. People here are closer together than they are in the city, and if something happens to one it happens to everyone," he said.

Grace Luetke, who runs a boat-rental business with her husband near the flooded tract, said, "We're going to have to operate on a shoestring, but we're not leaving. We love the river."

CALM WEATHER CONDITIONS prevailed today as 250 workers battled to save the embankment. Officials feared that wind would whip the waters against embankments and speed erosion. Water was seeping through the railbed in dozens of places, according to Ms. Janiw, but the seepages were being capped.

Officials said it could take up to two months to repair the levee, and another two to three months to pump out the water.

Strangler Case

'Copycat' Try Jails Actress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An actress who had been visiting confessed Hillside Strangler Kenneth Bianchi was arrested for allegedly attempting a similar version of the Bellingham, Wash. murders to which he admitted, authorities said.

Veronica Lynn Compton, 24, who had been visiting Bianchi in jail, was arrested Thursday at her residence in nearby Carson by Bellingham police with the help of Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department detectives.

SHE WAS CHARGED for investigation of attempting to strangle cocktail waitress Kim Breed in Bellingham.

Bellingham police said they became interested in Ms. Compton after several months of investigation into anonymous cassette recordings they obtained.

She was accused of sending these cassettes to investigators with the message that they had the wrong man and that the real Hillside Strangler would strike again.

Detectives suspect that Ms. Compton was acting at Bianchi's direction to make it appear the "real strangler" had not yet been captured.

IF THIS WAS TRUE, it could jeopardize the case against Bianchi's cousin, Angelo Buono, who faces trial in 10 of the 13 Hillside Strangler slayings.

In a plea bargain last year, Bianchi confessed to killing two college coeds in Bellingham and to being involved with Buono in the string of strangulations here. In return for his promise to testify against Buono, Bianchi was given a life sentence instead of facing the death penalty.

Bianchi's credibility is a key factor since the prosecution reportedly has very limited evidence beyond his testimony to link Buono to any of the stranger murders.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Roger Kelly, the Hillside Strangler prosecutor, was at the jail late Thursday talking to Bianchi and was not available for comment on Thursday's development.

Growing County Wins Recognition

We'll probably never know whether Gov. Brown signed the bill creating a new state transportation district for Orange County out of a sense of fairness, or in defiance of strong opposition from Los Angeles officials, or out of reluctance to offend the Orange County business community.

No matter. The signing was a welcome victory for the county, which conceivably could gain as much as $50 million in new highway construction funds in the five-year period beginning in 1983.

That's when Transportation District 12, Orange County's own, will be added to the state's existing 11 districts.

The measure, first suggested by Supervisor Ralph Clark, initially was greeted with cold skepticism. But when Fullerton Sen. John Briggs introduced a bill creating the new district, county business leaders launched an unprecedented lobbying effort in its favor.

An equal effort against it was undertaken by Los Angeles officials and, for a time, by other counties which feared they might lose highway funds if it passed.

Amendments to the bill took care of that worry by guaranteeing that funds allocated to the new district would come only out of the amount intended for District 7, which Orange County has shared with Los Angeles and Ventura counties.

It was the grossly unfair division of District 7 funds — Los Angeles receiving 85 percent and Orange and Ventura sharing the balance — that sparked the separate district move. Under the new setup, the Los Angeles raid on highway funds will end.

To the governor's credit, it should be noted that he overrode his own state Transportation Commission and his appointee, Caltrans Director Adriana Gianturco. Both opposed the Briggs bill because it threatened their control over highway funds.

The practical effect of the new district may be somewhere down the line because decreasing gasoline consumption, along with inflation, has reduced the availability of highway construction funds statewide. But this recognition of the importance of the state's second largest and fastest growing county is nonetheless a welcome victory.

Another Victory

Another plus for Orange County this week was congressional approval of the establishment of a federal court in the county.

Senate and House approval of a bill introduced by Rep. Jerry Patterson, D-Santa Ana, marked the end of an eight-year effort to obtain federal court services outside Los Angeles, which has served all of Southern California except San Diego County.

The new court will be a branch of the Los Angeles operation and will serve an estimated three million people in Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties. Details are to be worked out, but it is expected that up to three federal judges will hear cases in Santa Ana, in accommodations provided by the county.

In addition to reducing travel time for residents of the three counties involved in federal court matters, the move will enable more local lawyers to participate in federal cases and more residents to serve on federal juries.

Patterson is to be congratulated for his tenacity in overcoming opposition that had knocked down several previous attempts to win congressional approval for an Orange County-based court.

Retirement Trap

A strange aftermath of World War II that has been depriving several thousand survivors of the Holocaust of their rightful Social Security benefits has been corrected by Congress.

During the war it seems many Jews lied to the Nazis about their age, claiming to be younger than their actual years because young adults under 30 often were spared from death in Hitler's concentration camps and put to work.

After the war, when they applied for visas to come to the United States, they continued to lie so their applications would not conflict with camp records.

But after acquiring citizenship and living and working here for up to 35 years, some of the survivors, now actually past the age of 65, found they did not qualify for retirement benefits because their visa applications disputed their age claim.

Now Congress has passed legislation that permits Social Security examiners to accept the written statement of a Holocaust survivor explaining how and why the age was falsified and testifying to the actual birth date, if no other records are available.

It's believed as many as 20,000 persons may be affected by this simple, humanitarian act.

But there could be a lesson here for others who, for one reason or another, have lopped a few years off their true age. When it comes to retirement time, Social Security will want to see proof that you're as old as you claim to be — so hang on to that birth certificate.

Boyd/Monopoly

By L.M. BOYD
Charles Darrow invented the game of Monopoly. And sold it in 1934. He died a millionaire a few years back, and his family still collects royalties. But that's not the peculiar point. The peculiar point is he devoted the rest of his life after the Monopoly creation to the invention of other games. And none, not a one, was even remotely successful.

Quite customary around here to pad light dialogue by asking a man, "How's your wife doing these days?" Or words to that effect. But such a query would be extremely rude in Moslem countries, still.

Q. What was the first American newspaper of tabloid size?

Rowland Evans / Robert Novak

War a Liability For Carter

WASHINGTON — Mounting evidence that President Carter and the U.S. lack the power and the will to arrest crumbling of the Western position in the Persian Gulf is converting the Iraqi-Iranian war from an asset to a potentially crippling liability for Carter's re-election.

A week ago, shortly after the war broke out, a senior Carter political aide privately remarked that the crisis "is worth five points in the polls" in Carter's nip-and-tuck presidential race. That analysis fits the history and tradition of presidential campaigns; in time of danger abroad, voters tend to rally around their president rather than risk changing horses in midstream.

Political tradition may still hold as Carter enters the October stretch drive. But politicians on both sides are less certain than 10 days ago. A major reason is Carter's apparent inability to bring decisive American influence to bear on the low-grade war or, more importantly, its high-grade implications.

The first of these is the suddenly degraded prospect of the hostages returning before the election. Before the war, that prospect was far higher than admitted here; today it nears the vanishing point.

Other implications of the crisis are staggering. Senior Carter administration officials do not rule out an Arab-backed move against three little islands in the Strait of Hormuz, the choke point in the Persian Gulf, which were seized by the U.S.-backed shah when Iran ruled the gulf. American strategists believe that would trigger random attacks by Iran's badlydepleted air force on Arab Oman, the Arab gulf emirates and possibly Saudi Arabia.

THAT WOULD convert the war into an Arab-Iranian conflagration, poisoned by centuries of hostility between the Arabs and ancient Persia. It would force on Carter a more dangerous choice than any he has yet faced: Either oppose Arab seizure of the strategic islands, turning the entire Arab world including Egypt against the U.S.; or support the Arabs, inviting Soviet intervention on the side of Iran. Such a Hobson's choice would publicize American weakness and imperil Carter's political standing.

Sadat's appeal to Carter last week to encourage the overthrow of Ayatollah Khomeini's radical Islamic regime signalled the depth of feeling in the Arab world against Iran. Without tipping his hand ahead of time to the U.S., Sadat stunned Carter and the State Department with a proposal that the U.S. should ex-plot Iran's military defeat by pressing for an Iranian uprising against the ayatollah.

GIVEN THE intimate U.S.-Egyptian connection, Sadat's public plea was seen in Tehran as new evidence of U.S. complicity with the Arabs in the Iraqi invasion of Iran. But in point of fact, after nearly four years in office, Carter's power to influence public statements even by so trusted a friend as Anwar Sadat is negligible. Within hours of Sadat's statement to Hearst editor John Wallace, the U.S. Embassy in Cairo was privately beseeching him to say no more.

A more ominous signal of Carter's lack of influence with states potentially involved in the Persian Gulf and the surrounding Mideast came from Israel, angering policy-makers here. The deputy Israeli defense minister told the respected Israeli newspaper Maariv that Israel could send "substantial aid" to Iran to help it "continue its war against Iraq" if Khomeini were deposed.

ISRAEL HAS long been regarded as the closest U.S. Mideast ally. Such a pronouncement from a high Israeli official automatically translates in the Arab world as an order from Washington, raising the immediate — but ridiculous — prospect that the U.S. eyes Israel as an anti-Arab instrument in the Persian Gulf.

"We're close to helpless in this situation," one medium-level American official told us with only mild exaggeration. What seemed late last week to be shaping up as a self-contained mini-war between confident Iraq, bidding for Persian Gulf hegemony, and crumbling Iran, once the pivot of U.S. power, now threatens to impose truly frightening choices on the president.

Given the four-year decline of American will and power, one victim of the Persian Gulf crisis may be Jimmy Carter himself. That would show that the old "don't change horses" rule of presidential elections has no more validity today than America's influence in the world.

Special District Salaries Go Overboard

Jerry Brown receives a salary of $49,100. Ralph Crawford receives a salary of $48,672. You probably never heard of Ralph Crawford. You may wish you had never heard of Jerry Brown. Nevertheless he is governor of California. Crawford is fire chief of the Arcade Fire District.

You probably never heard of the Arcade Fire District. It is one of the several thousand special districts which have sprung up around the state to meet the needs of residential areas which blossomed outside of the incorporated cities in the post WW II population boom.

Most of these districts are single purpose districts concerned only with their own field such as fire protection, mosquito abatement, water supply, etc. They are governed by boards of directors theoretically "elected" at unseasonal elections when everybody is on vacation.

Actually, the boards, having the power to fill vacancies when a member resigns or dies, are made up mostly of appointees who later stand as incumbents in elections to retain their seats. Usually unopposed, most members have lifetime tenure. It is because of this unique system of selecting the governing boards that special districts have been called "special dynasties."

UNTIL PASSAGE of Proposition 13, which reduced property taxes and the taxing power of the state and local governments, the special districts were authorized to levy property taxes at will. The consequences of having units of government whose bosses served in perpetuity, their operations enjoying a visibility so low that the public had no awareness of what they spent or why, and the ability to levy taxes for whatever they desired, was, with some exceptions, loose management and loose spending.

Some of that was brought to an abrupt halt with passage of the Jarvis-Gann initiative in 1978. From that point on property taxes were limited to 1 percent of the 1975 assessed valuation with the total pot being shared by the cities, counties and special districts. As a result the special districts, aside from fees charged for actual services, have become totally dependent upon what the boards of supervisors in each county allocate to the districts within their counties.

THERE IS small doubt that many of these special districts providing necessary services for the public have suffered budget reductions. In some cases these cuts might have been harmful to the public had it not been for the magnanimity of a flaky governor who used the fruits of overtaxation of the people by the state to "rescue" the local governments with billions of dollars of surplus funds from the state treasury as "bail-out" money.

But, as the exorbitant salary paid Crawford by a special fire district testifies, many of the local entities, cities, counties and special districts are still rolling in fat and wasting the taxpayers' money.

To illustrate further, William Powell, fire chief of the city of Sacramento, supervises a department of 468 employees as against Crawford's 93 of whom 25 are volunteers. Although Powell's salary may also be considered exorbitant, he is paid $500 a year less than Crawford.

NEITHER OF the salaries is nearly as high as that paid many other minor local government officials around the state, some fire and police chiefs receiving upward of $70,000 a year, with city and county managers, school superintendents and what have you getting as much and more in many cases.

The fact is that excessive pay for those in the public trough has reached the state that no other description but "scandalous" is appropriate.

Nostalgic Reagan World Rightly Called Fantasy

President Carter says the world of Ronald Reagan is a "fantasy world." Right on, there. The actor's world is compact of comforting imagination and loving nostalgia. It bears as much cousinship to reality as the novels of Horatio Alger bore to the realities of corporate gigantism at the turn of the century. It is a world derived straight from the Norman Rockwell cover illustrations of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Post was the most influential weekly of its day, before it was done in by the Tube. Rockwell, who died at age 84 in 1978, portrayed a dreamy world of happy children (of all ages) for a great editor named Geogor Horace Lorimer. This editor's advice to his writers and illustrators was: "Is it Posty?" To make sure it was Posty, Lorimer read every line of every issue. "Posty" meant emollient, Accent the Positive, everybody is happy and God's in His Heaven, etc., etc. His readers loved the portrait of them he produced, as Reagan's followers love the world he so glibly describes. The Great Depression wasn't Posty, nor was it much mentioned.

REAGAN'S WORLD is described in the speech he has been giving since the '50s. Mostly it is centered around the postwar years, when America was "a nation of destiny," capable of anything and the unquestioned leader of what he continues to call "the free world." This was a time, as he remembers it, when anybody could get any amount of money by hard work and character.

If he is elected president, Reagan says, he can bring us back to those halcyon days, when Joe DiMaggio was really coming up, and Engine Charlie Wilson could tell a congressional committee, with unquestioned sincerity, that "what's good for General Motors is good for the country."

The bugaboo of communism, which haunted this country in the '50s, continues to haunt Reagan. Foreign affairs to him is getting the best of the godless leaders of the Soviet Union. He says our defense strength is "at its lowest ebb in a generation" and asks for more and more expensive arms. He does not say, since he does not believe, that arms races end up in wars, and that there is only one kind of real war today, and that is almost total mutual destruction.

AS AN OLD-TIME patriot, Reagan still thinks the return of the land around the Panama Canal is a "giveaway." He doesn't seem to understand the importance of our new detente with China, and what it means to our Soviet relations.

Again, as an old-line patriot he would give the generals and admirals of the Pentagon, who are his social buddies, everything they want, which always has been the moon and more. He favors building a new manned bomber. He is all for the development of the controversial MX missile.

The speech is the man, so far as I can see. A. Alan Post, the retired California legislative analyst and a Reagan-watcher of the highest credentials, offers this assessment.

"I'm scared to death that he'll get elected. What troubles me is that he's an actor. He goes around, making six or eight speeches a day, saying the same thing, reading from those note cards of his, with all those facts. It's like he has a conditioned response, like Pavlov's dogs."

PRESIDENT CARTER, who is a rotten president but still a damned adroit campaigner, quite rightly will focus his campaign on the resemblance of Reagan to Barry Goldwater of the early '60s. That resemblance, which certainly exists, could lose Reagan the White House as resoundingly as Goldwater did in 1964.

Speaking to veterans the other day Reagan defended our conduct in the only war we ever lost, Vietnam. "It is time," he said, "that we recognized that ours was, in truth, a noble cause." As Wellington said to the man who asked if he was Mr. Smith, "If you can believe that, you can believe anything."

Navy Testing 'Spy' Planes

PORTERVILLE (AP) — Ultralight sport aircraft are being tested here by China Lake Naval Weapons Station personnel for possible use as spy planes.

The tiny, low-power planes, bearing names like "Pterodactyl" and "Weedhopper" may prove ideal for covert operations, Navy officials said.

Cmdr. Dennis Becker, an F-4 fighter pilot, tested the Mitchell Wing 10B, which has a 34-foot wing span, a seven-quart fuel capacity and an 18-horsepower engine. The craft flies at 55 mph.

Pigeon Project Abandoned

MIAMI (AP) — In an attempt to cut costs, the Coast Guard says it is abandoning Project Sea Hunt, an innovative program that utilized trained pigeons as lookouts for search and rescue missions.

The program was dropped this week as the Coast Guard began its new budget year. Scientists emphasized the action was purely fiscal and had nothing to do with the birds' effectiveness.

"The pigeon is better suited to visual searches than man," said James V. Simmons, research scientist in charge of the project.

"It has a relatively small brain, but it is able to take all of the information the eyes record and process it swiftly."

Scientists say trained pigeons which have an 80-degree angle of acute vision, compared to 2 1/2 degrees for man, can see objects the size of a life vest floating in choppy water up to three-quarters of a mile away. The birds also can see floating objects faster and more consistently than Coast Guard lookouts, scientists say.

Pigeons that completed the Coast Guard program went through a year of training as Simmons taught them to peck an electrical switch at the sight of international orange, the widely used color of emergency equipment. For doing so, the birds were rewarded with a kernel of corn.

During rescue missions, three pigeons were stationed in separate compartments of a plexiglass bubble beneath a helicopter. The pilot learned the direction of an object by noting which pigeon was doing the pecking.

The Coast Guard used pigeons in a full-fledged search mission only once. Though the rescue effort was successful, the pigeons were killed when the helicopter lost power and made an emergency landing off the Kona coast of Hawaii.

A new set of pigeons was recruited, but it took another year to train them and money for the program has run out.

The Coast Guard maintains it will save money to cut the pigeon program, but not everyone familiar with the project is convinced.

"The development costs are cheap," says Cmdr. J.E. Foels, of the Barbers Point Air Station. "And where else are you going to get superior, expert searchers to work for chicken feed?"

Candidates on TV

74th in '80: What's Ahead?

By O.C. HUSTINGS

What do Burke Harrington, Ray Johnson, Robert D. Farrell, Frank Raczek, David Ascher, James F. Thorpe and Suanne Currie Lewis have in common?

All ran as Democrats for the state Assembly in the southeast Orange County district that is a Republican fiefdom. To say they ran unsuccessfully is to understate the case.

A Democrat, Ron Cordova, did capture the 74th Assembly District seat in 1976 when the Republicans fell to fighting among themselves and split their votes between car dealer Jim Slemons, the party's nominee, and write-in candidate Marian Bergeson.

Mrs. Bergeson reclaimed the seat for the GOP in 1978.

Okay, next question: What is the name of the Democrat who is running against Mrs. Bergeson this year?

Answer: Jack Baldwin of Mission Viejo.

And what about Sue Waltman? She's the Libertarian candidate.

ANYWAY, THE VOTERS will have a chance to see all three 74th District candidates tonight on Jim Cooper's "Election '80" program on KOCE-TV, Channel 50. It starts at 7:30 p.m.

Incumbent Democrat Dennis Mangers of West Orange County's 73rd Assembly District and his challenger, Republican Nolan Frizzelle, also are scheduled to be on the show.

Sharing the questioning of the candidates with Cooper will be Daily Pilot Editor Tom Keevil.

CHARLOTTE MOUSEL of Tustin has been named chairwoman of the Reagan Bush Committee for Orange County.

She is former state chairwoman of the Republican Women Federated and currently is president of the organization's Southern California Division. She has been a member of the GOP State Central Committee since 1969.

ORANGE COUNTY Registrar of Voters Al Olson notes that Monday is the last day to register to vote in the Nov. 4 election.

The Registrar of Voters office and other places throughout the county will have deputy registrars available Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., if you haven't registered yet.

The Registrar of Voters office is at 1300-C.S. Grand Ave., Santa Ana. Other places along the Orange Coast where deputy registrars will be available this weekend include:

- K-Mart, 400 Camino de Estrella, San Clemente.

- Orange Valley Real Estate, 31591 Camino Capistrano, San Juan Capistrano.

- Penney's, Huntington Center Mall, 7777 Edinger Ave., Huntington Beach.

- Sears, 24155 Laguna Hills Mall, Laguna Hills.

In addition, the Registrar of Voters office in Santa Ana will be open from 8 a.m. to midnight Monday.

THE 'NEW' DEMOCRATIC Women of Orange County is having a membership tea from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. It will be at 2605 N. Baker St., Santa Ana.

Democratic candidates are expected to attend.

Blue-ribbon Park Panel Set Senate Unit Due in County for Oct. 14 Hearing

By STEVE MARBLE

Plans for a Senate subcommittee hearing this month in Orange County have fired up hopes that a bill calling for creation of a national park on the Orange Coast could be passed before the end of the year.

Rep. Jerry Patterson, D-Santa Ana, said scheduling the Oct. 14 half-day hearing should go far toward increasing the bill's chances.

THE SANTA ANA hearing, aides from Patterson's office noted, was supported by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Washington, chairman of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. The bill currently is mired in that committee.

Jackson has designated Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., to chair the subcommittee hearing. Local politicians and park proponents will testify.

Patterson's aides said the hearing should re-focus attention on the proposed park during a time when the odds for the success of the bill, this year at least, are becoming long.

"We are confident that, given the broad base of support and the uniqueness of the park site, the hearing will help move the committee toward supporting the creation of the Irvine Coast National Park," Patterson said.

He added that Sen. Alan Cranston, D-California, likely will participate in the hearing. Cranston, up for re-election this year, authored the Senate version of the national park bill.

Aides for Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, R-California, said he'll also attend. THE ORIGINAL House bill calling for creation of the 11,000-acre park, envisioned as surrounding Laguna Beach and extending north toward Corona del Mar, was sponsored by Paterson and Rep. Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach.

A spokesperson for Patterson said it's now hoped the park bill can reach the Senate floor by late November. The Senate, on recess this month, reconvenes Nov. 12.

Park proponents had hopes raised a notch last month when President Carter promised to sign the park bill if and when it crosses his desk.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT was interpreted by local politicians as a big move toward knocking down roadblocks set up by the National Parks Service and the Office of Management and Budget, which gave the park bill and the park site itself negative reviews.

The subcommittee hearing will be held in the county Board of Supervisors hearing room in Santa Ana from 2 to 5:30 p.m.

LANDSCAPE EVIDENCE OF ERUPTION AS MOUNT ST. HELENS STEAMS IN BACKGROUND

Volcano Town 'Liberated'

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) — Four months after the first devastating blast of Mount St. Helens, the roadblocks isolating this tiny Washington town are down at last.

The "liberation" comes too late for the summer tourist trade, but Cougar's few residents are delighted to see some faces from the outside world.

"WE'RE LIBERATED! YOU DON'T know how good it feels not to have that hassle about going through the roadblock," said Dot Elmire, owner of the Cougar Store.

Gov. Dixy Lee Ray signed the order bringing down the roadblocks on the road to Cougar, allowing the general public access to the town for the first time since the volcano's May 18 blast.

"WE HAD A LITTLE FLURRY of business when they took the roadblock off at around 1 p.m.," Mrs. Elmire said.

The "flurry" consisted of about nine people, and that's an important number in Cougar these days.

The town, 12 miles southwest of the southwest Washington volcano, had 150 to 200 residents before the eruption, Mrs. Elmire says. The blast, and the subsequent isolation, left Cougar with about 50 people, she says.

'Understanding Taxes' Free

DEAR READERS: Students in more than 700 Southern California high schools will learn how to fill out an income tax return as part of their school curriculum this year. This Internal Revenue Service-sponsored course called "Understanding Taxes" is free. The course lasts two or three weeks with study guides, teachers' manuals, and other instructional materials supplied free by the IRS. Two films, "Money Talks" and "What Happened to My Paycheck?", also are available on a loan-out basis. Since the course is taught within the school's ongoing curriculum — often during a portion of a government or economics class — students earn credit for taking it. "Understanding Taxes" helps students prepare an accurate tax return through line-by-line instructions for Form 1040A and discussions of the regular 1940, itemized deductions, and other important return information. The emphasis is on the student's rights and responsibilities in our tax system. Interested teachers and school administrators should order the course material now for use during the 1981 filing season from Understanding Taxes Coordinator, P.O. Box 3151, Los Angeles 90053. Requests should include the school name, street address, phone number, and number of materials needed. Phone (213) 688-4574 for additional information.

Withdrawal Nixes Dividend

DEAR PAT: If you belong to a credit union which pays dividends quarterly, and you withdraw money before the end of a quarter, do you earn any dividends on the money you withdraw?
M.G., Huntington Beach
No. Dividends would be paid only on the money remaining in your account at the end of the quarter.

Early Passenger Bumped

DEAR PAT: A friend of mine told me that he arrived at the Los Angeles Airport more than an hour before his flight, but he was bumped because of overbooking. Does he have any rights in this kind of situation? He didn't check into it at the time and just left for home and rescheduled the flight on another airline.

L. P., Costa Mesa

In most cases, the bumped passenger is entitled to some money and transportation on the next available flight. The carrier is required to provide a written notice to the passenger explaining his or her rights. The oversale regulation doesn't cover small aircraft and doesn't apply to some foreign carriers on inbound international flights. In addition, the rule doesn't apply to flight cancellations or delays. If your friend did not receive written notice of his rights, immediate contact with the airline is in order.

Joint Owner Deducts All

DEAR PAT: I am buying property in joint tenancy with two other people. If I pay all of the interest and taxes, may I deduct the total amount paid or only one third on my federal income tax return?

K.W., Fountain Valley

Under California law, joint tenants are jointly and severally liable. Therefore, you can deduct all of the interest and taxes paid by you, according to the IRS.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every year, America's elderly spend millions of dollars on bogus medical treatments that claim to cure everything from failing eyesight to cancer.

"Some of these remedies are ridiculous and cause no harm," said Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., at a hearing. "Others are downright dangerous and may result in injury or death."

PEPPER, CHAIRMAN OF THE House Select Committee on aging, posed for photographers in front of a contraption committee staff members said was called a "spectro-chrome." It emits colored light, and staffers said its makers claimed that when a sufferer stands before it naked, facing north, with a full moon in the sky, the device will cure diseases ranging from arthritis to cancer.

The device sold for $250. Outrageous as the "spectro-chrome" was, committee members found Lena Rosenberg's story even more compelling.

Mrs. Rosenberg, 61, of Philadelphia told how she spent $2,000 for wheat grass, watermelon rind and other natural ingredients that an outfit named the Temple Beautiful in Philadelphia said would cure her husband's cancer. In fact, she said, it shortened his life.

He died last year, undernourished, "a walking skeleton," she said.

"I WAS LOOKING FOR magic," Mrs. Rosenberg told the committee. A number of scams and phony therapeutic devices were displayed for the panel by postal officials who investigate swindles involving the mails.

These included newspaper ads for a treatment that claimed to restore failing vision. Those who mailed away for instructions were told to stare directly at the sun. The promoter of that treatment fooled 66,000 people and collected $726,000, officials said.

Assistant Chief Postal Inspector Fletcher F. Acord told of another promoter whose direct-mail ads claimed his concoction of seaweed extract, when injected into the bloodstream, would cure cancer. But Acord said the product was found to contain poisonous bacteria.

Drugs at Sea Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed legislation aimed at closing loopholes in laws prohibiting possession or distribution of drugs at sea.

The law makes illegal the possession or distribution of drugs on the high seas. It applies to all U.S. citizens, to people aboard U.S. vessels, no matter what their nationality, to those who intend to unlawfully import a controlled substance and to anyone aboard vessels within the 12-mile territorial limits.

Funds Sought

Electric Car Passes Tests

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The EXAR-1 electric car, which backers call "the beginning of a revolution in American industry," exceeds test criteria provided by the federal government, backers say.

The city of Berkeley is seeking $8 million in private and government funds to build the battery-powered five-passenger vehicle, designed by Edmond X. Ramirez, president of American Ecological Transportation Co. of Dallas, Tex.

THE CAR, LICENSED TO THE California Electric Car Co. for production in California, was tested in July at the Ontario Motor Speedway. The tests were conducted by Dr. Richard Jenner, a city economist on the staff of the Private Industry Council, a group which advises the city on the use of federal unemployment funds.

The city hopes to provide 400 jobs in the manufacture of the car, according to Sean Gordon, an aide to Mayor Gus Newport. The city would receive 12.5 percent of pre-tax profits.

Gordon said the test criteria were provided by Dr. Carl Clark, an engineer with the Office of Passenger Vehicle Research at the Department of Transportation.

The criteria, Ramirez said, included several performance standards which the car easily surpassed.

DR. CLARK'S STANDARDS REQUIRED that the car reach 30 mph in 9 seconds, reach a maximum speed of at least 55 mph and have a range of at least 21 miles at 55 mph.

Ramirez said the car exceeded "by up to 300 percent" all those standards.

The car tested is a prototype which weighs about 2,000 pounds more than the expected weight of the production version and did not contain technological changes which would improve its performance in all areas, Ramirez said.

Despite that, according to Ramirez, it managed to reach at least one of the standards set for the production version range.

CITY PUBLICITY CLAIMS THE production version will accelerate to 60 mph in 12 seconds, reach a speed of between 85 mph and 100 mph and travel up to 100 miles on one charge.

Ramirez firm is being reorganized under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws and the actual results of the tests were withheld under court order as proprietary information, Ramirez said.

Ramirez said published statements that the test car did not perform up to city claims for production versions, attributed to Wally Rippel, an engineer with Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, were inaccurate. Rippel was asked by the city to report on the car as an individual, not as an employee of JPL.

"Rippel was not in charge of any testing and he did not appear at one single test that the car was involved in," Ramirez said.

IN A TELEPHONE INTERVIEW, Rippel said that he witnessed only one of the tests, although he had access to computer results on the testing procedures. Rippel termed the EXAR-1 "a very good use of off-the-shelf technology. It does not represent any breakthroughs, but is one of the best applications of present technology I have seen."

Medicine Package Change Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission has decided to drop the child-resistant packaging rule from some medications containing potassium.

The rule change, which took effect this week, allows sale of potassium supplements in the form of effervescent tablets each containing not more than 50 milliequivalents of potassium without the special packages.

Previously the child-resistant packages had been required for these products if they contained more than 25 milliequivalents of potassium.

These supplements are used to counter potassium deficiencies in the body caused by the use of diuretics, dietary deficiencies or other factors.

Overdoses can result in listlessness, confusion and muscle weakness.

The commission said a study indicated that children found the tablets "repulsive," and thus it approved the relaxation of the packaging rule requested by a manufacturer of the drugs.

Clown Dream Finally Came True

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. — From the time she was a girl, Midge Donovan had a fantasy that she shared with no one because no one else would understand.

In her secret heart, she always wanted to be a clown.

"It was a defense mechanism, I guess," she said. "When things get heavy, you smile to hide the hurt."

MIDGE'S MOTHER DIED WHEN she was 12. The family was not well off. She went to work at 17, married at 19. Heavy.

"When things were tough I smiled a lot on the outside," she said, "and I always had my clown fantasy to cling to. I never even told my husband about it. I never told my best friend. I never told a soul. But just thinking about clowns made me all tingly."

The hardest times were yet to come. Three years ago, Midge's husband, Bill, became totally disabled with emphysema.

"Well, I was 45 and had to go to work. With a friend, who was a recent widow, I opened a dress shop. It was a success, but it was a struggle, and I was a wreck.

"WITH THE SHOP TAKING UP all my time, and the situation at home needing my time, my life was a real mess, all downhill. I became a compulsive eater, gained about 40 pounds.

"As always, I hid my grief behind a laugh. Good old happy Midge, ever the cut-up. But I had never gone through worse times. Then, last year, I saw this ad in the paper that changed my life."

The ad said: Clown School. "I didn't hesitate. I sent an application. I didn't know what would come of it. I expected to be told that you had to be 20 and had to go off with a circus or something. Here I was, 48 years old, applying for clown school. Absurd.

"From the first day, it was just wonderful.

"THERE WERE 10 IN THE class. The youngest was 12 and the oldest was over 60. Most were in their 20s. I went for two hours every Friday night for 13 weeks. All week long, I looked forward to Friday night.

Bull in China Shop

LONDON (AP) — A bull escaped from a cattle auction at the northern English village of Otley and charged into a china shop, destroying lamps and china ornaments, according to the London Daily Telegraph.

Store manager Peter Jordan looked up to find a snorting 18-month-old bull in his china shop, trampling the displayed merchandise before it found its way out and was captured, the paper said.

"Then came the test, sort of the final exam — go out to the shopping mall and be a clown.

"I took as a character a woman all dolled up in satin who was really funny looking but thought of herself as gorgeous.

"Well, it didn't work. I went out in the shopping mall and nearly suffocated. I couldn't do it. Here I was, a lifelong extrovert trying to portray an introvert. Nobody laughed.

"I was crushed. As a clown, I was an absolute failure. So much for the dream of a lifetime.

"A few weeks later, I was at home listening to country-western music and suddenly it hit me. I would be a clown cowgirl, an outlandish extrovert — myself, but someone different.

"In 24 hours, I had my costume made. As soon as I started putting on my makeup I knew it would work. By the time I put on my purple wig I was no longer Midge Donovan. I was Maggie D. Clown. I went to the shopping mall and had a ball. Everybody laughed, including me.

"Now I clown every chance I get. It feels so great. I've knocked off 25 pounds. The world is not threatening. I've never been happier.

"I don't know where it will lead, but it's the biggest thing in my life. Maybe I could be a full-time clown, you know, like Ronald MacDonald or something. We'll just have to wait and see.

"The worst thing that can happen is that nothing will come of it, but I'll still have a great time doing it.

"Think of it. A clown saved my life, and the clown is me."

Husband Found Guilty

VISALIA (AP) — A jury has found a man guilty of seriously wounding his wife, who at the time headed Tulare County's battered women's shelter.

The panel deliberated almost six hours before convicting Tom Swallow, 45, of assault with a deadly weapon involving great bodily injury. That was a lesser included offense in the original charge of attempted murder.

SWALLOW WAS accused of firing a 12-gauge shotgun blast that struck Karen Swallow, 35, in the face at their home in Ivanhoe on Dec. 6.

The prosecution contended that the defendant deliberately pointed the gun at Mrs. Swallow during an argument and had previously threatened to kill her.

The defense maintained that the gun may have discharged accidentally while Swallow was drunk and upset about an alleged affair between Mrs. Swallow and a man with whom she worked. Mrs. Swallow denied the affair.

SHE TESTIFIED that Swallow beat her, dragged her into the bedroom and threw her on the bed, held the gun to her face and said she was going to die.

Big Houses a Problem

Affluent City Devising a New Ordinance

LOS ALTOS HILLS (AP) — How big should a house be? Planners in this city where a new house often costs more than $600,000 are trying to figure that out.

With a required minimum lot size of one acre per house, officials find that big houses sit too boldly on the land, especially when there is no landscaping to make the setting more appealing.

"WHEN YOU ADD a swimming pool and tennis court, as many people do, you have a lot of visual impact on the land," he says.

"We're hardly getting anything below 5,000 square feet," says planning engineer John Carlson, who notes that until a few years ago, 3,500 square feet was considered a big house.

Because larger houses cover more ground, there is less exposed ground to absorb water, and runoff problems can result in flooding during storms, he said.

It may be that a 5,000-square-foot house is not too big for a one-acre lot. But in the future maybe someone will have to give up the idea of a pool or the tennis court. We're working on those questions," he said.

Planners devised an ordinance to deal with the issue, but recently withdrew it and are working on one that is more sophisticated, he said. It may be ready for consideration by the City Council within a few months.

The trend toward bigger houses the past two years has largely economic origins, he said.

"IF YOU BUY a lot for $200,000, then you have to build a house of two or three times the value to get financing from the banks," he said.

It's not unusual to find a $675,000 price tag on houses here, he said.

Professionals and executives from the electronics industry which flourishes in the region comprise most of the city's population of 7,000.

Ban on Dancing Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A ban against topless and bottomless dancing in Santa Clara County was upheld by the state Court of Appeal.

The court, which backed a lower court's decision, said the county's law against nude dancing in restaurants, bars and other places was constitutional. A municipal court had ruled the law was "unconstitutional in the light of the First and Fourteenth Amendments," but a superior court later set aside the ruling.

On Thursday, the state Court of Appeal upheld the superior court's action.

The case involves Debra Jean Morris who was arrested while dancing at a tavern.

Convictions Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — The murder conviction of two teen-age brothers has been overturned by an appeals court on grounds that police refused to let them see their mother before they confessed to killing a grocer whom they robbed of $39.

The four-member panel of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court ruled that Emanuel Rivera, now 21, and his brother Candido, 22, be retried or released. They are serving sentences of 15 years to life at Rikers Island here.

4 Given Jail Terms

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Prison sentences have been handed to four men accused of trying to rob 150 elderly people at a card game in May.

Each of the four pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the incident at the Filipino Senior Citizens Club.

More than 100 warning shots were fired by the gunmen, and one card player died of a heart attack.

October's Gardening Tips

With the Milky Way high in the sky and the new moon introduced on October 8th, warm Indian Summer days are with us.

It's a great time to take the tribe on a picnic. And it's one of the best planting times of the year.

The reason: A prolonged growing cycle allows the rooting system to get a good start.

When replanting or planting for fall and winter, give your soil the essential nutrients it needs. Roger's Soil Activator will supply everything needed.

Roger's Reminders

October's a busy month for gardening and goblins. Here are a few points you might find helpful in tending your greenery:

- Lawns: It's an ideal time to plant cool-season lawns in the bluegrass family, either from seed or sod.
- Roses: Healthy roses should have enough vigor to bloom through December. Pick blooms, remove faded flowers, and feed with Ortho 3-Way Rose Food.
- Vegetables: Cool season crops such as beets, lettuce, broccoli, Brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, peas, and a host of others can be planted now.
- Garden Plants: Plants going into dormancy should be cut back and fed with Roger's Flower Food to replace nutrients used up during the blooming period.

The Plant Doctor Will Know

Q: My camellias have small blooms, sometimes none at all. What is wrong?

A: Camellias produce many more buds than can properly bloom. Pinch off all but a couple of the buds in each cluster.

Make sure you follow the right lighting, fertilizing and watering requirements for your climate zone.

Bring your own questions to our resident plant doctor.

Unique Farming Methods Used for 'The Islands'

STOCKTON (AP) Farming is a little different in the maze of reclaimed peat bogs and sediment soil west of here called 'the islands.'

The land would be under water if it weren't for miles of levees holding back tributaries of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta. That fact was reemphasized a week ago today when a levee broke, flooding 5,000 acres of prime cropland in one tract.

Farmers in the islands use different equipment and irrigation methods from most growers because their soil is so different.

"The soil type is very unique in that area, very fertile, very high in organic matter which is what makes up peat," said Doug Mattes, San Joaquin County agriculture inspector.

"It's very high in nitrogen and organic matter so crops do grow quite easily," Mattes said in a telephone interview. "However, it's tougher ground to farm because of the consistency of the soil. You have to work it at proper times or you'll compact the soil or have it blow away on you."

The softness of the peat soil, formed over millions of years from decomposing tules, requires specialized machinery because wheeled rigs "sink right down," said retired grower John Zuckerman.

In fact, the Caterpillar tractor was invented by Stockton blacksmith Benjamin Holt to provide treads to spread the tractor's weight for use in the islands, Zuckerman said. Holt got the idea from Oriental farmers on the islands who put tules on their horses' hooves so there would be fewer pounds per square inch.

"On the plus side, the soil is so porous you can sub-irrigate," added Zuckerman, 70, who farmed the islands for 42 years and whose father was the area's potato king in the early 1900s.

Sub-irrigation involves siphoning river water into irrigation ditches which flow to two-foot-deep holes called "spud ditches."

"By controlling the height of the water in those ditches, the water subs right across laterally because the ground is like a sponge," Zuckerman explained.

Salt from delta waters isn't a problem for growers who manage their irrigation properly, Zuckerman said.

"There is no salt intrusion except in very dry years in late summer, and then people just don't irrigate," he said.

Potatoes once were the islands' main crop, but many farmers switched to asparagus and corn over the years as potato production increased in other areas.

Not all the soil, reclaimed by Chinese workers in the 19th century, is peat, Mattes noted.

"What's amazing is that each island has a little different type of soil," he said. "Some islands have a mineral type called sediment soil that is brought in by rivers up above and deposited in the area."

But the blackish, fluffy peat is the area's best known soil, which people can see wafting away when a good wind rises. Most island growers don't live on their land and some people can't even live in Stockton because of the peat dust.

"If you have allergies, peat raises havoc because it's real fine particles of organic matter," Mattes said.

Alcohol-powered Cars Big in Brazil

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Automobiles that run on pure alcohol are beginning to catch on in Brazil — especially since gasoline went up to $2.61 a gallon and alcohol remained at $1.24.

Taxi driver Joao Paulo Goncalves wheels a new alcoholic Volkswagen Beetle around Sao Paulo, Brazil's biggest and most car-congested city.

"It's great. No problems," he said. "I don't get the same mileage, but alcohol is so much cheaper, it's worth it."

GONCALVES GETS 16.5 MILES to the gallon with alcohol and used to get 20 with gasoline in his old taxi.

A new alcohol VW Beetle costs the equivalent of $3,640 — just 3 percent more than the gasoline version. It is almost exactly the same as the gas-burning model, except that the engine and the fuel system have been treated to withstand the higher corrosiveness of alcohol.

Brazil is turning to alcohol as an alternative to gasoline because of the cost of importing petroleum — $10.5 billion this year. It also is studying the possibility of using vegetable oil as a substitute for diesel fuel.

ADAPTING ENGINES TO RUN on the pure alcohol is not difficult, and sales of pure alcohol cars are taking off, leaving a trail of would-be buyers behind on month-long waiting lists.

This country, with a population of 123 million in an area slightly larger than the continental United States, decided to exploit its tropical climate to grow petroleum substitutes. Already one of the world's top sugar producers, it opted to distill alcohol from sugar cane to use as fuel.

This year Brazil will produce 1 billion gallons of alcohol. In 1985, when total investment in the program will reach $6 billion, it aims to make 2.8 billion gallons.

Divorced Applicant Rates OK

NEW YORK (AP) — Being divorced generally doesn't pose problems for people looking for a management job. Sometimes it's even an advantage. But being in the process of getting divorced is a real disadvantage.

These are among the conclusions of a survey among heads of management-level personnel agencies across the United States and Canada.

The survey was taken by National Personnel Associates, a network of 237 personnel agencies that cooperate in filling jobs at the $18,000-$75,000 level.

SIXTY-ONE percent of the survey respondents believe a divorced job applicant is not at a disadvantage, while 31 percent believe there is a disadvantage. Eighty-four percent believe that being in a divorce process is a disadvantage while 10 percent disagree.

Many of these agency heads, who exchange thousands of resumes and employer job listings yearly in their cooperative efforts to fill jobs, expanded on their questionnaire comments.

"Divorced persons are hot employment candidates because they are independent of family. Employers feel they devote more to the job and career than married or single people," commented Phil Orlesky of Fort Garry Personnel Services Ltd., Winnipeg, Manitoba. "Unfortunately, people going through a divorce are considered somewhat unstable or unpredictable," he added.

"The divorced person is more apt to be apartment-oriented, so high mortgage interest costs on the purchase of a house are not a big factor, and this is an advantage," says Chuck Hankins of Hankins Personnel Services, Lima, Ohio.

"In the past, being divorced may have been a drawback. Now it indicates greater ease in relocation and that is one of the biggest pluses a management applicant can have," said Jerold E. Tompson of Bowman Associates Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Charles B. Delbridge of Associated Personnel, Decatur, Ill., says, "A female candidate who is in the process of getting a divorce is at a disadvantage because the employer might feel that she will go back to her husband and stop working."

"A divorce of less than two years is a complete red flag. If getting divorced is mentioned on one will talk to the applicant," comments Evelyn Thomas of Salesmen Only Inc., Rosemont, Ill.

ON THE OTHER hand, Helen Piers Browning, CPC of Mutual Personnel Service, Macom, Ga., feels, "A divorced female with children is highly prized for long-term management-oriented positions because she will have to work and will make the necessary life adjustments to succeed."

"A divorced man is often shunted aside in sales because he lacks the proper domestic base for entertaining clients and projecting a sense of long-term stability.

"We have some clients who will interview divorcee-in-progress people and the recently-divorced but will not interview long-term divorced males because 'something is probably wrong with them.'"

FRESNO (AP) — Independent packers will pay $1,200 per ton for the 1980 crop of Thompson seedless raisins, industry officials have reported. A record price of $1,600 a ton was paid in 1978 after early rains cut the crop by two-thirds.

Despite PSA Strike Air Travelers Unhampered

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The strike that shut down Pacific Southwest Airlines appeared on the horizon 10 months before it landed, like its big stretch jets that grow out of a tiny speck in the sky.

A week ago, when the 450 pilots and flight engineers walked out after 10 futile months of negotiations, everybody was ready.

Airlines up and down the coast, the biggest ones as well as the tiniest eight-seat commuter lines, grabbed up PSA's stranded 22,000 daily passengers instantly.

BUT AS THE STRIKE entered its second week, everyone but the travelers, who had expected to be hurt the most, was complaining. PSA was losing $1 million a day without any sign of an early resumption of talks to settle the contract dispute.

All but a handful of the 3,700 employees on PSA's payroll will be home by today, laid off and wondering how the bills will be paid.

And the airline that tried to help the most, Pan Am, finds itself with a 333-seat white Dumbo in the skies.

"WE WANTED TO help by putting up the DC-10," says Pan Am manager George Wilfert. "The passenger load is getting better, but after a week we're still averaging only 80 passengers. It's got to be half full to pay for itself."

The big strike special leaves at 7 a.m. for Los Angeles and San Francisco, coming back at night after shutting back and forth four times a day.

"If we don't do better, we'll have to drop it," said Wilfert.

THIS WAS THE SLACK season for air travel in California. Travelers scurried to other ticket counters for a few hours a week ago Thursday but they have reported little inconvenience since.

By prior agreement, other airlines have honored all unused tickets PSA had sold on its 200 daily flights to 13 major cities in California and Nevada as well as Phoenix, and cities in Mexico.

Western Airlines added two round trips to its San Diego-San Francisco and Los Angeles-Sacramento routes and a round trip between Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

DESPITE THAT, SPOKESWOMAN Linda Decker said most of Western's planes have been flying 15 to 20 percent empty.

A special desk in San Diego was set up by Western for PSA passengers but "we've never had more than 15 to 20 people in that line," she said. "Things were busy but there were seats available."

Julian Levine, a spokesman for Continental Airlines in Los Angeles, said there have been "a few more passengers" than usual on flights between Phoenix and Los Angeles because of the PSA strike.

JACK FRANCOIS, A SPOKESMAN for Los Angeles International Airport, said no problems have been caused by the strike even though PSA flew 70 percent of the travel between LA and San Francisco.

"It's less busy at Terminal Six, the PSA terminal, which used to be jammed up," Francois said.

But problems may develop if the strike is continued past Thanksgiving Day, Francois said.

A SPOKESMAN for Host International, operator of airport concessions throughout California, said business is down at San Diego, San Jose and Sacramento, all major PSA points. But Nelson Fitch said he was unable to say how much.

Sad and Pathetic 'Last Hurrah' for Ali

Holmes Batters Former Champion Into Submission in 11th Round

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Fireworks lit up the sky over the towering mountain range that surrounds this gaming capital of the country. But somehow, they seemed terribly out of place.

Instead of rockets and flares, it was a time for sadness. Boxing had reached the end of an era in the parking lot outside a gambling casino where a 38-year-old boxer took what should be his last desperate shot at sports' biggest prize.

THERE, IN A temporary ring, surrounded by hosts of high rollers and fistfuls of celebrities, Muhammad Ali sat in his corner, beaten once and for all by Larry Holmes, a former $500 a week sparring partner who graduated to the heavyweight championship of the world.

It is the most glamorous title in sports — a crown Ali wore for an unprecedented three times, a crown he wanted once more. So he thrust aside two years of retirement, punished his body down from a blubbery 254 pounds to a svelte 217½ and returned at age 38 to make his bid.

But it was not to be. When Ali reached into the well for one more miracle, he found it empty. In the autumn of his boxing life, there just were no more springtimes left.

Ali Wants Another Bout

IT ALL ENDED in his corner when longtime trainer Angelo Dundee refused to let him answer the bell for the 11th round. It was a decision constructed of compassion by a man who has been at Ali's side from the beginning.

The irony of the ending was that 16 years ago, Dundee pushed his fighter out of a corner to a seventh round knockout of Sonny Liston that made him champion. It marked the beginning of an amazing odyssey that weaved its way around the world, from Manila to Munich, from Zaire to Kuala Lumpur. And it ended as it began, with a boxing legend in his corner and Dundee working over him feverishly.

"We all come and we all go," said Holmes. "When you fight a friend, to me a brother, you can't get happiness. I fought a no win situation. I did what I had to do."

What Holmes did was pitch a shutout. He hit Ali almost at will from the beginning of the bout. Sometimes Ali would hang back on the ropes — recalling the rope-a-dope style that captured the championship from George Foreman in 1974. But Holmes found huge holes in the peek-a-boo style, tattooing Ali with a stinging left jab and scoring repeatedly.

THERE WERE moments when Ali moved as though in slow motion, almost a ghostly image of the man who once ruled the world of boxing.

Sometimes it seemed as if Ali was walking through a dream, fighting from memory, asking his body to do things it could no longer do.

"There were times when I was hitting him at will," said Holmes, a compassionate man who had a sense of what was happening before him and knew he was watching the disintegration of a once-great champion.

"I pulled back in one round. I didn't want to hit him a few times and I held back, but I did what I had to do."

IN THE NINTH round, Holmes jolted Ali with seven straight punches to the head as the ex-champion, clearly in trouble, reeled along the ropes and covered up. Holmes battered Ali completely around the ropes in that round. Only the

Four-game Streak

Dodgers Need That to Win NL West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was difficult to distinguish between the pennant contenders and the also-rans when the Giants concluded their season series with the Dodgers.

There was a euphoric glow in the Giants' clubhouse and dejection in the Dodgers' quarters after the Giants posted a 3-2 victory Thursday night.

The Giants probably didn't realize they had clinched fifth place, but they knew they had handed the Dodgers' pennant hopes a crushing blow — and that was all that mattered.

PERHAPS THE rivalry isn't what it used to be, yet the victory was especially sweet for the Giants' club which finished the season series 5-13 against the Dodgers and is 15-30 against them at Candlestick Park since 1976.

"This was more satisfying than a grand slam," said team captain Darrell Evans, whose two-out, two-run single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the eighth erased the Dodgers' 2-1 lead.

The game-winning blow, a bloop to right, knocked Los Angeles three games behind Houston entering a three-game series with the Astros beginning tonight at Dodger Stadium.

"We've got to win four in a row now," grumbled Dodgers' Manager Tommy Lasorda, mindful a series sweep would merely earn a tie and force a playoff game at Dodger Stadium Monday.

LOS ANGELES seemed to be in good shape when starter Dave Goltz entered the bottom of the eighth with a 2-1 lead, thanks to Steve Garvey's two-run homer.

PROMOTER ASKS

$151 MILLION

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A lawsuit by a Los Angeles-based promoter, which claimed to have the original rights to Muhammad Ali's comeback fight, was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court against Don King Productions Inc., seeking $151.5 million in compensatory and punitive damages.

Also named as defendants were Ali and Larry Holmes.

A spokesman for Prime Sports said the legal action was not an attempt to stop the fight but rather to seek redress from the current promoters, who "wrongfully conspired to exclude Prime Sports from promotion of the fight."

The lawsuit contends that Prime Sports spent $1.5 million to secure the rights to Ali's comeback attempt.

off Vida Blue in the first inning. Goltz had allowed the Giants only two earned runs in 32 innings this season, one of the runs coming in the fifth inning when Blue hit a sacrifice fly.

Pinch-batter Milt May singled with one out in the eighth, Max Venable beat out an infield hit and pinch-batter Jim Wohlford flied out. After the count went to 1-1 on Jack Clark, Goltz had to leave the game.

"My right calf cramped up," explained Goltz, 7-10. "I felt it on the first pitch to Clark. Then I had nothing on the second one. I couldn't push off the mound."

Reliever Bobby Castillo walked Clark, loading the bases. Steve Howe took over and Evans got around on Howe's inside 1-0 pitch for his 13th game-winning RBI of the season.

"IT'S AS BIG a hit as I've got all year," said Evans. "I've seen a lot of their hits do the same thing. This usually happens to us. I just got enough of the ball to lift it over the infield."

"It was the best pitch I could throw in that situation — a fast ball up and in," said Howe. "There's nothing else I could do."

Greg Minton, 4-6, was the winner in relief and Al Holland picked up his seventh save for the Giants, who begin a season-ending, three-game series with last place San Diego tonight.

THE DODGERS will rest their hopes tonight on the right arm of Don Sutton (12-5), who has easily been the team's most effective and consistent pitcher this season.

Sutton, who will be opposed by Houston's Ken Forsch (12-12), leads the National League in earned run average at 2.21. Ironically, this could be the 15-year veteran's last performance in Dodger Blue, as he is currently on the option year of his contract and a settlement doesn't appear to be in sight.

"I'd rather have him in tomorrow's game than anyone," expressed batterymate Joe Ferguson. "That's no slight on any of the other pitchers."

Miracles Gone

Nothing Was Left But Ghost of Ali

By WILLIAM GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

LAS VEGAS (AP) — It was, as advertised, "The Last Hurrah," the eulogy for a great ring champion.

And it was a poignant, heart-rending scene.

There was Muhammad Ali, sitting on his corner stool, his puffed eyes expressionless, staring off to the right and his arms hanging limply over rubbery legs.

HE WAS JUST a ghost of the fat-faced, fast-talking kid who had delighted the world for two decades with his fistic prowess and his puckish charm. Now nothing was funny any more.

Witness showed in the eyes of Angelo Dundee, the gifted little trainer from Miami Beach who had choreographed his boxing fortunes ever since he turned pro in 1960. His other aides were paralyzed with disbelief. Bordini Brown, the court jester, wept convulsively.

The sport's most magnetic figure of all-time tried to pull one more miracle out of his hat. His fingers came out empty. He was the easy victim of the younger, stronger Larry Holmes, winner in 11 and still the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion of the world.

IT WAS THE first time in all of his 60 pro fights that he had failed to answer a bell.

It was tragic and it was unnecessary.

How much better it would have been if we could have remembered him in another way — the sleek Louisville youngster waving his Olympic gold medal at Rome, the 15-1 shot who crushed an awesome Sonny Liston to win his championship for the first time in 1964, the rope-a-dope disappearing artist who stopped a favored George Foreman in the Congo in 1974 and the superb battler who won over Smokin' Joe Frazier in their third bout in "The Thrilla in Manila."

The latter was Ali's finest hour — a 14th round victor over Frazier in a fierce slugfest that critics called perhaps the best heavyweight fight of all time.

THAT'S WHEN he should have quit. He had climbed every mountain. He had avenged every loss, beaten every foe — the army, the Supreme Court, the fight establishment, an antagonistic public.

But he couldn't quit. His ego had been inflated by the unending cheers of his adoring followers all over the world: "Ali! Ali! Ali!" It was a stimulant, a drug that forced him on.

Money didn't drive him — he earned some $50 million and, by his own admission, had limousines, mansions and rolling farms. His pride fed on the chants. They were like shots of dope in his arm.

Astros', Yankees' Magic Number — 1

From AP Dispatches

The Houston Astros can clinch the National West championship with one more victory after handing the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 loss Thursday night, but Manager Bill Virdon says it won't be easy.

"I am confident we can win one of three games," Virdon said of the Astros' pivotal series with the Dodgers which begins tonight at Dodger Stadium. "But that one victory won't be easy. The game we win will be tough."

The roar of 45,022 Astrodome fans increased Thursday night as the game ended, and about half of them remained for a sendoff pep rally following the game.

Houston got a six-hitter from Joe

Niekro, and Joe Morgan delivered a two-run single to help the Astros move to within one game of clinching the West title.

Meanwhile, in the National League East, Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green says he has the gut feeling his team is going to win.

Green spoke after the Phillies, aided by rookie Keith Moreland's run-scoring single in the seventh, beat the Chicago Cubs, 4-2 Thursday night and moved into a tie for first place with the Montreal Expos.

The Phillies left after the game for Montreal, where they meet the Expos in the final three games of the season, starting tonight.

"It's no different than I felt all along.

I felt that we're going to win," says Green who admits that it would be no easy task winning two out of the three from high-flying Montreal on the Expos' field.

"But we have to do to them what they did to us," he says, referring to the Expos, winning two out of the three in Philadelphia last weekend.

What does Green think will spell the difference in the three-game set at Olympic Stadium in Montreal?

"Pitching will decide the series," he says. "We got decent pitching last weekend but no offense. I'm more worried about our offense than our pitching. We've got to score runs."

In New York, meanwhile, the Yan kees scored three runs and that was enough to beat the Detroit Tigers, 3-2 and clinch a tie for the American East title.

Oscar Gamble and Reggie Jackson blasted consecutive fourth-inning homers to spark the Yankee victory.

New York can wrap up its fourth division crown in five years by winning one of three regular-season ending games with the Tigers or if second-place Baltimore drops one of its three against Cleveland. The Orioles, idle Thursday night, trail by three games.

Ron Guidry and Rich Gossage teamed up on a seven-hitter Thursday night against Detroit to reduce the Yankees' magic number to 1.

Edison Defense Gunning for Griffin

MIKE WOMACK LEADS GOLDEN WEST DEFENSE.

Courtney Griffin, a 5-10, 180-pounder, and his Millikan High teammates battle the Southern Section's No. 1 defense tonight with Edison supplying the opposition.

Edison, going for its 12th straight victory, has allowed an average of 32 yards rushing per opponent this season, keyed by linebackers Troy Seurer and Rick DiBernardo, who back up a front five consisting of ends Rob Warden and Bryce Malavasi, tackles Rick Ponder and Bill Thomas and nose guard Jim McClure.

Only DiBernardo, at 6-3, 206, is in the 200-pound range on Edison's defense, which thrives on quickness.

Griffin ran for 218 yards on 24 carries and three touchdowns against Newport Harbor, but was held to 71 yards on 16 carries a week ago by Warren.

Edison answers offensively with D.J. Bell (5.7 average and five TDs) and hard-running fullback Dave Geroux.

In another blue ribbon game the Barons of

PREP FOOTBALL

Fountain Valley travel to Cerritos College where Angelus League power Servite awaits.

These two have met three times in the past two seasons and Fountain Valley has won them all — although two were not decided until the final seconds.

Matt Stevens is the big gun for the Barons at quarterback, but the Barons' offense has yet to really show itself. Each is 2-1 on the field, but Servite enters 0-3 because of two forfeits forced by an ineligible player.

Aside from Edison, two others put up unbeaten records tonight — Marina enters with a 3-0 record against Estancia (2-1) and Laguna Beach (2-0) is at Irvine (0-3).

Huntington Beach goes for its second straight victory and Costa Mesa and San Clemente are trying to get out of losing skids.

Huntington Beach vs. Cypress at Western

Early polls oftentimes are misleading, and this year could be no exception, but from all indications, Irvine High may replace perennial powers Newport Harbor, Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach at the top of the Orange Coast area volleyball contingent.

Irvine has already defeated Laguna Beach and is rated third in the latest poll, with Laguna fourth.

Defending CIF champion Newport is listed in eighth place and CDM isn't even in the top 10. The only other area team in that elite group is Mater Dei, a fifth place choice.

COACH MARK MCKENZIE'S Irvine squad has 6-1 Kim Oden, a junior, back in the lineup. She was an all-league player as a sophomore and MVP of the Costa Mesa tournament. She is a hitter and middle blocker.

Suzu Boggess (6-0), was a second team all-league choice last year and is a setter. Other starters for the Sea View League Panthers include Lynnda (5-8) and Lynn (6-0) Kelley, Dana Shaw (5-4) and Flicka Locke (5-6).

Coach Maggie Buchan at Mater Dei has seven returning players from a team that went to the 4-A semifinals a year ago.

ELSEWHERE ALONG the prep front, coaches are generally optimistic.

10-K, 5-K Runs Set

Run your art out. That's the slogan of the Newport Harbor Art Museum when it holds its second annual 10-kilometer and five-kilometer runs Sunday, Oct. 12.

Runners can pre-register through Oct. 8 for a $7.50 entry fee which includes a T-shirt. Late registration is $5, but does not include the shirt.

The courses follow a scenic, level course along Newport Beach's Back Bay. The five-kilometer run begins at 7:30 a.m., while the 10-K follows at 8.

All proceeds from the race benefit the art museum. The races have been planned to coincide with the month-long celebration of the museum's 18th anniversary.

Participants should pick up their entry packets at the Newporter Inn's lower parking lot. For additional information, phone 546-3663.

"We are undefeated in our first two practice matches and in a scrimmage including 1979 CIF 3-A champion Gahr High," says Rick Evans at Fountain Valley.

"Marina should contend for the Sunset League title," says Barbara Creighton. "The addition of some excellent players from last year's JV team and more sophisticated training and development programs is producing a very good team."

"This will be the strongest team we have had," says Westminster High coach Dave Lindquist.

"This year's team is the hardest working and most cohesive of any team I've coached at San Clemente," says Jack Iverson at San Clemente.

ON THE JUNIOR COLLEGE front, conference championships have been the rule rather than the exception. Lou Ann Terheggen's Golden West Rustlers are defending state champions and Jane Hilgendorf's Orange Coast Pirates won the title two years ago. Saddleback has captured two consecutive Mission Conference titles.

All three figure to be among the top teams in their respective circuits and one could emerge once again as state title winner.

Sophomores returning at Golden West include Gina Howerton, Tamara Lauderdale, Linda Obers, Tina Herreas, Kim Nutter and Johnette Tarango.

At Orange Coast, returnees include Laura Bandel, Julie Gergdahl, Sue Habecker, Wendy Hooper, Jolene Huffman, Nancy Ruzicka and Mary Platfoot.

Nancy Bessette's Saddleback Gauchos have Kim Carroll, Renee Huffman, Milla Kubr and Molly O'Hanlon as sophomores. Kubr is a transfer and the others are lettermen.

AT UC IRVINE, new head coach Mike Puritz will have six returning lettermen including Tari Cody and Marilyn Horn. Both were all-SCAA choices last year, Cody on the first unit and Horn on the second.

Other returnees include Sue Gregory, Jean Longfield, Kelly Figueroa and Michelle Kelley. It figures to be another banner season for Orange Coast area teams.

PIECE OF GRANITE — Edison High linebacker Troy Seurer is part of the Chargers' stone wall defense which has limited three opponents to 32 yards rushing per game.

Rustlers Host Tough Pierce

By CURT SEEDEN

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Golden West College football coach Ray Shackelford goes after his 100th career coaching victory tonight when his Rustlers host LA Pierce in a pre-season battle at LeBard Stadium (7:30).

The Rustlers hope to brand a loss on the visiting Brahmas who carry a very deceiving 0-2 record into the contest. Shackelford says his main concern tonight is stopping a potentially explosive Pierce offense.

At the same time, he's downplaying the milestone that will be reached with a victory. "I guess I'll be more excited when I win my 100th community college game," he says. "To be honest, I haven't thought about it the slightest."

Tenth-year coach Jim Pendleton and his Brahmas have encountered two tough foes in Santa Monica and College of the Canyons. The Corsairs handed Pierce a 31-0 setback in the 1980 opener thanks mainly to some sloppy ball handling by the Brahmas.

In their second outing, the Brahmas were stunned in the final minutes by College of the Canyons, 18-14.

GWC, meanwhile, is 1-0-1 and coming off another solid defensive effort in last week's 30-0 romp over Orange Coast College.

The Rustlers have two premiere defensive linemen in Mike Womack (6-3, 230) and Lindsey Grey (6-3, 255). The two were instrumental in holding the Pirates to just 18 yards rushing last week.

Tonight, they'll have to contend with Pierce quarterback Babe Laufenberg, a transfer from Stanford and tailback Don Marziani, one of 16 returning lettermen for the Brahmas.

OCEAN VIEW HIGH QB JOHN HEINLE (14) SPLITS WESTMINSTER'S DEFENDERS.

Hawks Stun Lions

Ocean View Triumphs, 21-14

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Maybe it's getting a little monotonous for Ocean View High football coach Ken Moats.

His Seahawks had just come through with their third straight come-from-behind victory Thursday night, but the veteran mentor was taking it in stride following a 21-14 non-league victory over Westminister, easily their most impressive of the three verdicts.

In their first venture ever against a Sunset League opponent, the Seahawks showed poise, a class veer attack with remarkable balance and clutch defense before 3,800 at Huntington Beach High. Moats' reaction? "We're pretty complete when we're together," offered Moats, who seems to find himself in a pressure cooker on a weekly basis.

PRETTY COMPLETE. That's like the time Estancia High football coach Ed Blanton called Kerwin Bell a "pretty good back."

The Seahawks put together an offensive thrust which included Doug Irvine's 62 yards on 11 carries, including a 12-yard touchdown scamper in the third quarter despite an ankle injury that is still keeping him well below his capabilities.

Rick Moser added 49 yards on 20 carries as the Seahawks' workhorse and Rex Brown added 50 yards on eight carries, highlighted by his 42-yard scoring scamper in the first period.

Junior quarterback John Heinle added 76 yards on a dozen carries, including a one-yard scoring burst, and added 130 yards through air with a half dozen completions on 14 attempts — with no interceptions.

TOPPING IT OFF were two big defensive plays — interceptions by Lance Gilbert and Glen Kotler.

"Lance and Kotler made two big plays for us," said Moats. "The kids showed a little bit of character and played tough enough to win."

It was a sweet victory for Moats and his assistants, especially Roy Brummett, whose play selections had the Lions on the run. Moats and Brummett are former Huntington Beach coaches, and each absorbed more than one lump from Westminister in the past.

Westminister, slipping to a 1-3 record, was its own worst enemy. Although the Lions were under their average of 95 yards in penalties per game, two of the eight infractions for 73 yards proved killers.

The Lions marched at the outset of the third quarter behind the powerful running of Eric Willingham, only to see a potential first down at the Ocean View 11 nullified by a major penalty, killing the drive.

OCEAN VIEW'S second touchdown was a direct result of a penalty, which kept Ocean View in possession after punting.

And, after marching behind Willingham's impressive bursts to the Ocean View 41 and 15 in the fourth quarter, the Lions disbanded the ground attack and were promptly burned by interceptions from Kotler and Gilbert.

"I'm tired of excuses," said Westminister Coach Barry Waters. "I'm a little bit at loss for words right now."

The Lions appeared to have things in hand in the early going, with Willingham's three-yard scoring run among his 149 yards on 27 carries and a 21-yard pass play from Dave Harris to Bob Cairn shoving the count to 14-7.

BUT OCEAN VIEW kept it close on Heinle's one-yard scoring run, which capped a 72-yard march (thanks to Westminister's penalty on a punt return), then got rich at the end of the third period.

Ocean View's winning 52 yard drive was highlighted by Heinle's 31-yard pass to Fred Tuttle, Heinle's 10-yard dash to the 12 and Irvine's untouched scamper over the left side for the final 12 yards.

Up by a 19-14 count, the Seahawks got the final margin when Heinle kept to his left, was hit short of the goal line, then pitched to the trailing Irvine, who took it in for the two-point conversion.

Borg-McEnroe Match

Some Consolation

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — It may be tough to accept defeat, but the loser of so-called "Tie-Breaker" showdown between Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe will have $600,000 as his consolation prize.

They will meet Dec. 6 in the South African bush country with the winner to take home $750,000, according to the general manager of a South African hotel chain.

The site is the Sun City resort hotel, reachable by car after a two-hour drive north from Johannesburg. Its remote location is not expected to be a deterrent, however.

In fact, General Manager Sol Kerzner said the chain that owns the hotel is constructing a 14,000-seat sports stadium for events such as the match and the Oct. 25 World Boxing Association heavyweight title bout between champion Mike Weaver and South African challenger Gerrie Coetzee.

Haryung's Stellar Game

Keys 28-6 Cougar Win

By CRAIG RUSSELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Undefeated Capistrano Valley High came into its non-league football meeting against Corona del Mar with a high powered offense that featured the running of Eric Fox and Steve Lanham and an offensive line that averaged 223 pounds.

But in the end it was quarterback Josh Haryung who stole the spotlight as he passed the Cougars to a 28-6 victory over the Sea Kings Thursday night at Davidson Field.

Haryung, son of former Laguna Beach head coach and now Cougar assistant coach Dennis Haryung, completed 13 of 21 passes for 253 yards, including a 29-yard touchdown pass to Dan Westerfield.

HE ALSO SCORED one touchdown on the ground, a one-yard run that culminated an 80-yard drive at the close of the first half. Even though it was officially an 80-yard march, Haryung actually accounted for 94 yards on the drive, completing four passes for 93 yards and then running it in from a yard out.

"Capistrano Valley is a very good football team," said Corona del Mar Coach Dick Morris. "As a matter of fact, they are the best team we've faced this year."

Statistically, the game was one-sided — 407 total yards for Capistrano Valley to 221 for the Sea Kings. Cougar passing alone accounted for more yardage than Corona del Mar could muster with rushing and passing combined.

But the difference in the game was the big play. For instance:

— With fourth-and-six at the Sea King 22-yard line, Haryung hit Cam Bryant for a first down at the seven. Three plays later it was 7-0.

— ON THE 80-YARD drive at the end of the first half, Haryung hit Bryant for 35 yards and a first down after a holding penalty had put the Cougars back at the 37. Two plays later it was 14-0.

— Following the second half kickoff, Capistrano Valley ran the ball successfully but it was a 29-yard touchdown pass that culminated a 55-yard drive. Following the conversion it was 21-0.

— On third and 21 at the Sea King 46, Haryung passed to Eric Fox for 37 yards and a first down. Then on fourth-and-goal at the seven, Corona del Mar was guilty of pass interference in the end zone. Two plays later it was 28-0.

"THEIR ABILITY to convert on third down and our inability to make the big play really made a difference," explained Morris. "But they are very physical and very talented and we hung in there, but it wasn't nearly enough."

Corona del Mar averted a shutout when quarterback Clay Tucker scored from one yard out. Tucker finished the night with 165 yards in total offense — 122 yards passing and 47 rushing.

Next up for Corona del Mar (now 2-2) is one more preleague game against Kennedy next Saturday. The Sea View League season opens the following week.

AND WHAT DOES Corona del Mar have to do to turn things around prior to league? Get back to basics.

"We just have to go back to the fundamentals," said Morris. "We have to pretend it's the very beginning of the season in every practice this week and hope that by stressing the fundamentals, we can turn things back around."

Ali Won't Quit:

'I Shall Return'

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Muhammad Ali, subdued and hiding his puffy eyes behind dark sunglasses, said today he "shall return," perhaps to go after World Boxing Association heavyweight title held by Mike Weaver.

Ali spoke from ringside on ABC's "Good Morning, America," the morning after being stopped after 10 rounds against Larry Holmes in an unsuccessful attempt to win the heavyweight crown a fourth time.

He said he had intended to go on TV without the brown-tinted glasses but said, "I'm just too pretty to look like this," referring to his face, battered by Holmes.

He blamed the loss on losing so much weight so quickly — he dropped from about 260 to 217 in a couple of months — and said he was tired after the first round of the World Boxing Council title fight.

"I'm not one for excuses and never look for cop-outs, but something was wrong; I wasn't myself," Ali said. "I threw no punches. I couldn't get away from punches and I'm convinced that coming down from 260 to 217 was a little too quick. I was just too weak. I just wasn't right ... I was tired. After the first round I was tired. My strength was gone. My reflexes ... There just wasn't nothin' working."

Ali said he knew he was in trouble "after the first round. When I saw I couldn't land any punches, my reflexes were off, my timing, I was weak, I could feel the weight loss; I knew then I was in trouble."

He said he wasn't happy at the time that the fight was stopped, but looking back on how much punishment he took, "I could have probably been hurt. Me being so proud, I wouldn't fall. So probably I would've gotten hurt. I'm glad it was stopped."

Duran-Leonard Set For Super Fight II

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Promoter Don King announced Thursday night a rematch between Roberto Duran, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, and Sugar Ray Leonard Nov. 25 at the New Orleans Superdome.

King made the announcement from the ring at the Caesars Palace sports arena just before Larry Holmes defended the WBC heavyweight title against Muhammad Ali following several preliminary bouts.

J.J. Relaxes

To say that Rams rookie Johnnie Johnson has had a skittish beginning in the NFL would be a euphemism.

The Rams' million dollar baby has been scrutinized, analyzed and criticized by his coaches, players and members of the media.

It hasn't been until just recently that this No. 1 draft choice out of the University of Texas began feeling comfortable.

"It got to a point where I was afraid to do anything. I was even afraid to walk," admits Johnson. "Things were difficult because I put a lot of pressure on myself. I felt I had to do well because of all the publicity I'd received."

It's tough having to play under a microscope, which Johnson was doing. Everyone had their eyes on him — from the coaches to the players to the media and, yes, even to the fans.

"I HELPED CREATE the pressure because I felt I had to prove something to myself, the coaches and my teammates," J.J. admits. "They were expecting big things from me. I felt I was satisfied and the coaches were satisfied and my teammates were satisfied, then the fans would be satisfied, too."

Acceptance didn't come easy. The coaching staff didn't start Johnson during the preseason, opting instead for Jeff Delaney. Many of the players openly and quietly resented the rookie's bulging contract. And the fans, well, they were fans, expecting nothing less than the best from a player of his lofty draft status.

The learning process was painfully slow and Johnson, admittedly, had trouble finding patience.

"I had a tendency to press to do good," he says. "It was difficult learning the system. You can only get by so long in the NFL on natural ability."

THE REST MUST COME from knowledge, and that's only attained through experience. Most of your better defensive backs in the NFL have four or five years behind them. Johnson has been pressed into performing immediate results.

"I'm starting to play with more confidence," says Johnson. "I feel it every week. The more experience I get the more I see and the better I feel. It's been hard because I've been unable to concentrate on the important things like football, rather than contracts, money and all the press I've gotten."

"It seems every place I go I'm known as the 'Trouble Child' of the Rams. Don't get me wrong, I'm not complaining. I wouldn't trade my position for anything. At least I'm starting."

Johnson is not only starting, but beginning to perform as his critics hoped he would.

"I'll always feel like I'm in the proving stage, but I'm gaining more and more confidence in my ability to field my position," says the strong safety. "I'm feeling better."

SPEAKING OF FEELING better, both Pat Haden and Wendell Tyler participated in practices this week.

Each performed gingerly as Haden is coming off a broken finger on his right hand, and Tyler is recuperating from a serious hip injury

JOHNSON HADEN TYLER

Tyler ran a few straight-ahead patterns during the workouts, staying away from any juke moves that could prove costly.

Tyler, who can be activated at any time, is still probably a month away from action.

Haden, on the other hand, is hoping to be activated for the St. Louis contest Sunday Oct. 12, which brings us right back into another quarterback controversy.

Apparently, now, the job is Vince Ferragamo's, which puts an unhappy Haden on the sidelines. Coach Ray Malavasi doesn't need any more problems, but that's what he's got again.

It's apparent one of them has to go. Stay tuned.

The NFL trading deadline is Oct. 14. Look for one, possibly two moves to be made by the Rams.

Keep one thing in mind, though Haden can't be traded until February because he finished the '79 campaign on the disabled list and wasn't one of the three designated players announced by the Rams that could be traded.

John Cappelletti, Ron Jessie and Willie Miller were the designates, and only Miller remains.

Still, watch for Haden to become a Tampa Bay Buccaneer sometime this winter.

DOES ANYBODY REALIZE that Ray Malavasi's contract expires this season? Wonder if he's going to stage a walkout soon?

ADD JOHNSON: The Rams rookie has noticed he's not the only defensive back going through a hardship.

Rookie Mark Haynes of the New York Giants and Roland James of New England, both drafted before Johnson, are having their problems, too.

Haynes is going so bad, in fact, that he was benched in the third quarter of the Giants' game with the Rams.

Says Johnson: "I went over and talked to him (Haynes) after the game. I saw the fans booing him and I realized I wasn't the only guy under the gun."

"I told him to keep his head to the sky; that things had to get better. I know he was disappointed."

Johnson added that Pat Thomas and Rod Perry have made a concerted effort to comfort him.

"Thomas told me not to worry and just learn the system—the dos and don'ts," says Johnson. "The complexities and talent in the NFL has made that hard to do, though."

College Like Home

By JOEL C. DON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A queue of students registering for classes and filling out other forms at Christ College Irvine marking the first academic quarter of the new decade.

There were 159 students in all, spending a leisurely morning registering for classes and filling out other forms at Christ College Irvine.

But the quaint, four-year liberal arts college is unlike its neighboring UC Irvine with more than 10,000 students, or the more distant Cal State Fullerton at about 22,000 strong.

WHEN YOU TALK about a throng of students at Christ College, you count the group in two or three rather than 2,000 or 3,000.

Christ College students do not share the same collegiate initiation rite with peers at other campuses. There are few, if any, lines to be tolerated, endured and bemoaned.

There was, however, plenty of academic officialdom at registration. Yet the ambiance suggested more of a family reunion than a prelude to term papers, cramming for tests and long, weary hours spent trying to unravel seeming puzzles that lie in the pages of textbooks.

At 159 students, Christ College is a family of sorts, since most of the students, faculty and administrative staff share a few less-than-grandiose buildings on the 113-acre hilltop site.

"ONE OF THE advantages of the campus is the family atmosphere," says the Rev. D. Ray Halm, newly appointed president of the college. "We can devote more time to the student so that the student has more opportunities to develop his goals."

"And an advantage of coming here now is we have a 9-to-1 student to faculty ratio."

Halm succeeds founding president the Rev. Charles Manske, who stepped down from his administrative post to continue as professor of religion and chairman of the college's religion department.

When Manske opened the campus to students in fall 1976, only one building was completed on the barren site. The first building was appropriately dubbed the Living-Learning Center, housing faculty offices, administrative staff and apartment-like dormitories for the school's first class of 35 students.

OCCASIONALLY, notes college publicist Louise Wagner, you'd find a bathrobe-clad student wandering about staff offices.

"It was built as a multipurpose building and believe me it has everything," she muses.

For a few years, the building was an oasis surrounded by sagebrush, sharing ground with jack rabbits, coyotes and other wildlife.

In January 1979, the college, owned and supported by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, completed two additional buildings: Founder's Hall, containing classrooms, a chapel and a small campus library and a student residence hall.

LAST SUMMER, a second residence hall building was completed, a carbon copy of its elder neighbor with 13 apartment units that can house four students in each unit. Most of the students live on campus.

Also, the college just finished pouring cement for two tennis courts. The courts, a soccer field and a makeshift weight-training room provide the only official athletic facilities on the campus.

"We recognize that we need greater physical facilities — more classrooms, a gymnasium and that sort of thing," says Halm. "One of my goals will be to continue to build."

CHRIST COLLEGE once was slated for 3,000 students by the turn of the century. But officials are less optimistic about that figure, trimming it down to a more likely number of about 600 students.

A land development problem also may hamper college expansion. The campus site was once the home for three Indian villages which have not been completely excavated by University of California archeologists.

Although still too young to be suffering growing pains, Christ College is attracting 10 to 15 percent more students each year, Halm notes. The Lutheran Church already has 14 other well-established colleges and seminaries, located mainly in the Midwest.

Halm says the Irvine campus offers more tolerable weather and an intimate faculty-student atmosphere. Half of the faculty hold doctorate degrees.

AND STUDENTS have access to UCI's extensive library services and extension education program. The proximity to UCI was part of the reason the Lutheran Church chose the Irvine site in the mid-'60s. The church closed its West Coast campus location in Oakland, moving it to Irvine in 1972.

A majority of the students come from California.

ALTHOUGH THE COLLEGE offers a variety of course selections, from English literature to plant biology as well as a required religious curriculum, officials estimate about 80 percent of the students will pursue careers as pastors or in church-related teaching or administrative work.

With the first class of students graduated last spring with bachelor of arts and associate of arts degrees, the college is looking forward to sprucing up to a January 1981 visit by representatives of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. A five-year accreditation will open the campus to donations from private foundations.

The association officials probably will find a pioneering spirit among the faculty and staff of the infant in the Lutheran Church's education system. And, for better or worse, they'll find students who feel more like adopted siblings than names and numbers in a file cabinet.

"I know my professors, it's not just like I'm a student," says sophomore Kerrie Jarrett. "They professors do care and that makes me feel good."

What's it like to be an editorial cartoonist? How much plugging does it take to be a racquetball promoter? Do stock account executives really get up at the crack of dawn? And could an extravert handle the bookwork of an accountant?

STUDENTS AT California State University, Long Beach — and anyone considering a job change — can get such information about more than 60 careers simply by dialing a Long Beach number (213-498-5509) and requesting a specific career tape.

The information is provided by CSULB graduates and is available through the Dial an Alum service of the Career Planning and Placement Center.

A brochure lists all the tapes by field and all the caller has to do is ask for the number he wishes to hear.

The brochure also gives the names of all the speakers, the years they graduated and the fields their degrees are in.

THE TAPES ARE updated once a year, according to Jean Winder, a career counselor, and all the old tapes are kept in a permanent archive.

"The tapes are renewed when we feel the information is outdated," Ms. Winder said.

It is a year-round, ongoing project with interviews conducted on a random basis by the career placement center's six counselors.

The alumni are referred through a "resource network," Ms. Winder added. "It's purely a phone network. When the alumni affairs office hears about an interesting person they call us."

ALL ALUMNI are free to express their own views on the tapes and most give phone numbers where they can be contacted for further information.

The idea was copied from the medical information tapes available at many hospitals and clinics, according to H. Edward Babbush, director of the center.

Fields represented are agriculture, home economics, arts and letters, business, education, welfare, engineering, architecture, government, law, health, science and industrial and trade services.

SPEAKERS INCLUDE editorial cartoonist Bill Schorr (B.A. Art Illustration, 1973); news reporter Bob Gore (B.A. Journalism, 1972) symphony manager Mitchell Berman (B.A. Music, 1974); and racquetball promotion director Joy Fujimoto (B.S., Physical Education, 1976).

Others are therapist Marilyn Fithian (B.A. Sociology, 1967), police sergeant Louis Ochoa (B.S. Criminal Justice, 1975); TV producer Stu Rosen (B.A. Speech, 1962) and plant manager Dr. Evort Knights (B.S. Chemistry, 1964).

The service is available Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Banking By Machine American Way

By LOUISE COOK

Millions of Americans are doing their banking by machine these days, and people who use the automated tellers have to take extra steps to protect themselves and their money.

There are an estimated 14,000 machines across the country in locations ranging from bank lobbies to apartment complexes, from shopping centers to airports. The terminals dispense cash, accept deposits and let you check your balance — 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Before you start pushing buttons, you'll have to learn some new words and phrases.

Begin with "electronic funds transfer," usually abbreviated as EFT. The phrase covers the whole field of automatic banking and payments. It not only includes the increasingly familiar bank-operated terminals, but also applies to the relatively new "debit cards," which look like credit cards, but are used instead of cash or checks to make purchases.

Next, there's "access device." That's the card you use in an ATM — an automated teller machine. When you insert your access device in an ATM, you'll also have to use your PIN — your personal identification number, a secret code, without which the machine won't work.

Users of the EFT system are protected by "Reg E," a regulation issued by the Federal Reserve Board to implement legislation passed by Congress in 1978.

"Reg E" limits the amount of money you can lose if your card is used without your authorization. As long as you notify the issuing bank, savings and loan association, etc., within two business days, you cannot be charged more than $50 — no matter how many transactions are made with your card. The notification can take the form of a personal visit, a letter or a telephone call. The longer you wait to report a lost or stolen card, the greater your liability.

People Kill People

DEAR READERS: Every time I print something about gun control, I am bombarded with angry mail promoted by the National Rifle Association. But here I go again. Maybe, just maybe, I can save a few lives.

The National Rifle Association is a highly sophisticated organization with one of the strongest and richest lobbies in Washington. But they need new phrases. I am bored with "Guns don't kill people. . . people kill people." (We know people kill people. Who else? Monkeys?)

Thousands of people who now are dead would be alive today if some hothead hadn't had access to a gun. Nearly 70 percent of this country's gun victims are shot, not by burglars, but by people they know — relatives, neighbors, friends. Often the shooting is unplanned. If that person had no gun, he would have used his fist or a baseball bat.

Hunters, please note. I am not trying to spoil your sport. Rifles are okay. It's those handguns, the little "Saturday night specials," that ought to be outlawed by federal legislation.

I would like to share with you something received in the mail from "the other side" — Handgun Control, Inc., based in Washington, D.C.

Ann Landers

During the Vietnam war, thousands of young people died in combat. Fathers and mothers throughout America lived in fear that their children might be listed among the victims. Although that war is over, their children are still not safe. Every day the American Handgun War kills somebody's son or daughter. Among those who died in the month of May:

Brooklyn, N.Y.: Kelly Bowman, 11, was shot in the head by a handgun wielded by two teen-agers across the street. They were arguing about a record player.

Omaha, Neb.: Patrick Rhodes, 2, son of Mrs. Judy Rhodes, found a loaded pistol in the bedroom of his babysitter's mother. The toddler shot himself in the forehead and died a few hours later.

Cleveland, Ohio: Mark Hintz, 13, was killed by a 14-year-old youth whom police have described as "a little John Dillinger." The accused murderer had made up a hit list with Hintz's name already crossed out.

Houston, Tex.: Gregory Dupree, 13, son of McKinny Dupree, was killed in a vacant lot when three youths found a handgun and fired it.

Grand Coulee, Wash.: Teresa Ybette, 15, was killed as she slipped on some rocks while carrying a loaded .22-caliber revolver. She had been given the pistol by two companions who instructed her to fire it in the air if she needed anything.

Queens, N.Y.: Stephen Zwickert, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zwickert, was murdered near his home in an attempted robbery as he returned home from a prom. It was the first night he had been permitted to stay out so late.

There are thousands more, but I think by now, you have the idea.

Test drive the most remarkable car of the decade today, at Nabers Cadillac.

No other car offers you an engine that automatically goes from 8 to 6 to 4 cylinders.

Only Cadillac 1981 — Available Now at Nabers Cadillac

It's American technology in action.

Trust Cadillac to lead the way with the new 1981 models. Motor cars right on the cutting edge of a new automotive technological revolution. A revolution that utilizes materials, techniques and advancements of the U.S. space program.

Remarkable V8-6-4 Fuel Injection is like three engines in one.

It works like this: As you start out, all 8 cylinders are in operation. As your power needs lessen, the car automatically goes to 6 cylinders . . . and then to 4 cylinders. When you need it, the system instantly reverts to 8 cylinders again.

It could literally teach a person to become a more efficient driver.

Push a button and Cadillac's MPG sentinel displays how many engine cylinders are active at that moment. Push another button to see your average mileage and instantaneous MPG.

Using this information you can help yourself to become a more efficient driver. MPG Sentinel is standard equipment along with the V8-6-4 Fuel Injection engine on all 1981 Cadillacs.

No other car offers you this choice in engines.

Along with the revolutionary V8-6-4 Fuel Injection, Cadillac Fleetwood Broghams and DeVille models are available with a 4.1 liter V6 engine combined with a newly designed four-speed automatic transmission that incorporates overdrive.

Both the front-wheel-drive Eldorado and Seville are available with a V6 engine that utilizes a three-speed automatic transmission.

Standard on Seville and available on all other models is an improved Diesel engine.

Unlike foreign Diesels, the engine used for Cadillac is a V8.

A significant advancement for 1981 is an extension of the recommended mileage for an oil change from 3,000 to 5,000 mile intervals.

The Electronic Car is here.

Cadillac's state-of-the-art Digital Instrumentation is available for precise driving information.

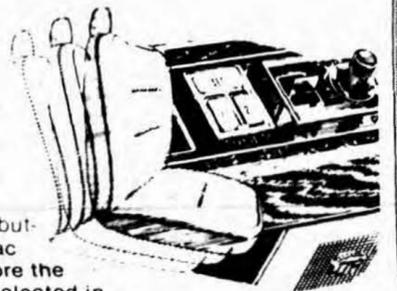

With everything from your exact speed to gallons of fuel remaining. From estimated driving range to average MPG. And more. Even the temperature setting is displayed to the exact degree!

No other car offers you a self-diagnostic system this sophisticated.

Cadillac On-Board Computer Diagnostics — a spin-off of the U.S. space program — helps take the guesswork out of servicing. It enables a service technician to find and correct possible problem areas quickly. Simply by punching buttons in the car, referring to a code book, and taking corrective action needed for repairs. The system will also show when the problem is properly resolved.

Even a seat that remembers "His" and "Hers".

Simply adjust the six-way power seat to a comfortable driving position. Press the set button and then one of the two numbered recall buttons. This Cadillac exclusive will store the position you've selected in its memory bank. Then, whenever you touch the appropriate recall button, Memory Seat will automatically return to that same comfortable position.

Don't Go Out Without a Cowboy Hat

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Open shirts, gold chains and disco music appear to have been run out of Orange County by cowboy hats, boots and country tunes.

Most disco watering holes in these parts appear to be drying up.

Disco fashions and lifestyles are lying in the dust as the trend has turned to boots and jeans. Even the vocabulary doesn't seem the same. The occasional yalls or dadgummit attest to that.

AN EXAMPLE of the recent trend is the California Sun Disco that opened in Huntington Beach last February.

Two months later, the management dropped the last word from its name. Now it's a country western dancehall.

The mirrors and chrome decor still there are reminiscent of a disco establishment, but leather saddles, old pitchforks and reins hang from rusty nails in the wall.

HAY BALES are strategically situated to capture the western motif.

The disc jockey station has been removed and behind the new band stand is an enclosed, padded room with large windows.

In there waits the bull—a headless contraption that is always ready to buck urban cowboys from its saddle.

It costs one dollar a ride and the speed and ferocity of the beast is controlled by a brakeman.

THE MECHANICAL bull was popularized by the film "Urban Cowboy."

That movie is largely seen as the catalyst for the western craze in Orange County, just as "Saturday Night Fever," also starring John Travolta, is recognized as the major motivator of the disco scene.

But John Kaylor, part owner and manager of the California Sun, says nightclub owners back East have seen the cowboy trend coming for several years.

He said that besides "Urban Cowboy," there have been 12 western movies released this year, including "Bronco Billy," starring Clint Eastwood, and "Honeysuckle Rose," featuring country singer Willie Nelson.

MOST OF THE persons in the nightclub crowd, Kaylor says, are in their late 20s. With new cowboy hats, jeans and boots, they come to hear country music.

"That's all we play here," Kaylor said. "No rock and no disco."

"Disco music easily became irrelevant," commented Bob Estrada, manager of Crazy Horse in Santa Ana. "It catered to a certain age group who didn't mind paying money for the disco fashions. People who were into it, got into it all the way."

"But in here," he said, "all you have to do is put on a cowboy hat and you're part of the group."

AND FOR MOST people, Estrada says, putting on a cowboy hat and boots, in the traditional dress of the pioneer west, is nothing new.

"Almost all the guys pretended to be cowboys as children," he said. "And nearly everyone watched the 'Lone Ranger' or 'Lash LaRue' on television."

Estrada said that, by his count, 47 nightclubs in Orange County have opened with or changed to the country western theme this year.

He said he expects the trend to last at least six years, and adds that it caters to a wider age group of clientele.

PROBABLY THE largest country nightclub in Orange County is the Cowboy in Anaheim with its capacity for 1,000 people. It was the Crescendo, a disco nightclub the past five years.

Complete with a mechanical bull, cowboy hats for sale and colorfully dressed saloon girls available, for a price, to shine your boots, the club presents little semblance of its former disco lifestyle.

Many of the wall mirrors have been replaced by wood paneling. And, as in many clubs, on certain nights western dancing lessons are offered.

Gordie BeMello, publicity agent for the club, says that disco just burned out, and that the country star will shine brightly for several years.

"DISCO WAS just a phase," he said. "The dance style was complicated and the dress expensive. Here, it's more relaxed. Everybody wears a cowboy hat, boots and Levis."

"If you would have walked into a disco like that last year," he said, "people would have laughed at you."

Illusions Slightly Amazing

Lee Edwards, considered by his prestigious peers as one of the world's foremost illusionists, brings his "Slightly Fantastic" show to Orange Coast College Saturday. He'll appear at 8 p.m. (and later vaquish) in the Auditorium.

Tickets, priced at $3 for general admission and $2 for OCC students, Gold Card holders (senior citizens) and children under 12, may be purchased in the OCC Ticket Office in the college's Administration Building, from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday.

THEY ALSO will be sold at the door before the performance at 2701 Fairview Road, Costa Mesa.

Edward's magic includes the graceful and bewildering sleight-of-hand; ethereal mentalism; amazing animal presentation; confusing card manipulation; and the awesome performance of the giant and classical stage illusions.

His vast classical and modern collection of mysteries includes many developed and used by the legendary Dante, of whom Edwards was a protege.

EVER SEE A woman trisected and repaired in front of your eyes? How about hundreds of gallons of water cascading from out of half a coconut shell with no hoses attached?

Edwards can produce women from empty trunks, levitate them and have them disappear at the apex of their ascension. Or he can materialize himself from an armature of sticks to make an elephant disappear.

That's only the beginning.

The casualness of western music and dress appeals to all ages. Stephanie Jean Bredon teaches Stephen Newland some cowboy dancing steps during a class at Parkwest Apartment's recreation room in Irvine. Such sessions help participants round up the footwork to show off at new cowboy bars. Brian Kindred, 5, wishes he were old enough to tag along.

Symphony Surging

'Ode to Joy' Underscores Optimism

By CAROL MOORE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Ode to Joy," the subtitle of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, not only opens the Pacific Symphony Orchestra's fourth season but also epitomizes the spirit of the group.

"It's obvious from a poll we took at our last concert last spring that there's a large audience ready to sustain major orchestral performances," said PSO music director Keith Clark. "We expect to flourish."

TO JUDGE THEIR progress to date, consider the caliber of selections and guest artists for the 7:30 p.m. concert Sunday in Plummer Auditorium, at the corner of Lemon and Chapman avenues in Fullerton.

For the giant Beethoven masterpiece, Clark will conduct the 87 musicians in collaboration with the 110-voice Irvine Master Chorale, directed by John Alexander.

Well known Southern California singers will comprise the solo quartet in the finale, which is challenging in its dramatic demands.

Soprano Delcina Stevenson has performed with the Detroit, San Francisco and National symphonies and the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Mezzo soprano Kathleen O'Brien has distinguished herself in six roles with the Hawaii Opera Theater as well as solos with the San Diego Opera and La Jolla Symphony.

KEITH CLARK

Marvin Hayes has appeared internationally as a bass-baritone soloist, won the International Music Competition in Geneva, Switzerland and taught at the California Institute of the Arts. Tenor Robin Reed, who has sung with the Pasadena Symphony, was this year's National Winner of the Metropolitan Opera Auditions.

THE CHORALE HAS shared numerous concert stages with PSO while becoming one of the Southland's finest organizations of its type.

Other works in the program will include the overture and ballet music to Beethoven's "Creatures of Prometheus" and Schoenberg's "Survivor From Warsaw."

Clark described the latter as "a dramatic seven minutes for orchestra, chorus and actor Paul Bergen, known for his roles at Lincoln Center and the San Diego Opera. It's less familiar but meaningful music that deserves to be heard."

THE SUNDAY EVENING series will continue at Plummer Auditorium on Nov. 23, Feb. 8, 1981; March 15 and April 26 with violinist Eugene Fodor, pianists Leonard Pennario and Cecile Licad, cellist Ronald Leonard and organist Marvel Jensen as soloists.

Individual tickets for each concert are $10.50, $8.50 and $6.50 when available. Seasonal subscriptions are discounted 10 percent.

Aiming to provide symphonic music by and for Orange Countians, PSO has increased its outreach and audience support each year since 1977 when Clark came from Vienna to direct the Pacific Chamber and Cal State, Fullerton orchestras.

THEN THE SYMPHONY-IN-FORMATION consisted of 45 professional musicians, mostly from the faculties of CSUF, Chapman College and UC Irvine. Clark auditioned most of those veterans and almost 100 others this summer to reach the present complement of 87.

"From the beginning we've insisted on paying professional wages," Clark said. "It's expensive (about $20,000 per concert) but worth it."

"Our maximum box office is $8,000; the university provides rehearsal facilities and secretarial assistance; our community board of directors and women's guilds raise the additional funds."

THE FINANCIAL PICTURE will improve as concert dates and locations increase, Clark predicted, because most of the expense is for four rehearsals preceding each performance. The goal is to repeat a concert three times.

Besides its masterpiece season in Fullerton, PSO will appear four times in Santa Ana High School, twice at UC Irvine and serve as the residential orchestra of the Festival of American Music in Los Angeles during 1980-81.

This summer the group made its first recording and was filmed for a British Broadcasting Corp. TV documentary to be aired this winter featuring three American symphonies.

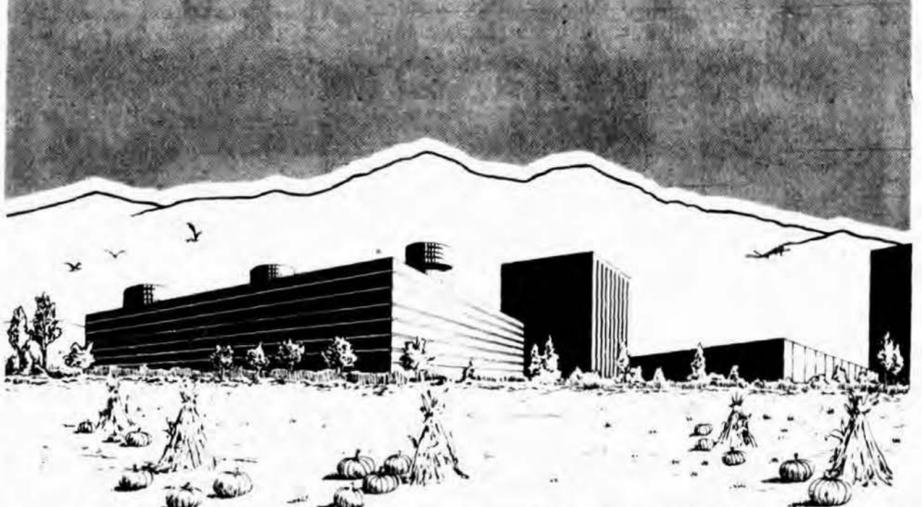

"NEXT YEAR WE WANT to present each performance on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights in three halls throughout the county although proper facilities are at a premium," said Clark whose ambition and enthusiasm is shared by his musicians.

He, in turn, credits several maestros for "great years of conductor apprenticeship."

After earning a doctorate in musical composition at UCLA, Clark accepted a Fulbright Fellowship and went to Europe for 10 years where he studied at the Vienna and Chigiana academies and assisted with orchestras in many capitals. He still travels overseas and just returned from conducting Beethoven's monumental Missa Solemnis in the Vienna Konzerthaus.

Sample Fare at German Fest, Mexican Feasts

Few folks, unfortunately, will be able to board a plane for Germany this month in order to tip a tankard or two at the world's biggest beer bust. But there probably isn't one among us who wouldn't like to so indulge at Oktoberfest, that annual tribute to the hops in rollicking Munich.

Lucky Orange County residents can make a substitute (and much shorter) journey. Just harken to the din of clanking steins right off the San Diego Autobahn — excuse me — Freeway. All the fall madness and merrymaking of Oktoberfest can be found at Huntington Beach's Old World Village.

Befuddled Beau

Jack Worthing is exasperated when Gwendolyn Fairfax and Cecily Cardew decide to "preserve a dignified silence" until he divulges his identity in "The Importance of Being Earnest," being staged at 8 tonight and Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday at Cal State, Fullerton's Little Theater. Tickets at box office.

Since the celebration's kick off a couple of weeks ago there's been an almost nonstop round of colorful activities. One notable exception, sorry to say, is the absence of outdoor beer drinking so characteristic of the German festivities; the ABC decrees that a no-no in Huntington Beach.

The high jinks will have a longer run at Old World Village, though, continuing through Sunday, Nov. 16. Munich's Oktoberfest runs only three weeks.

It originated by way of celebrating the time when brewers bring out their new beers. Now the custom holds stronger than ever, and hundreds of thousands of natives and visitors are on hand each year to welcome the autumn offerings.

Two great oom-pah-pa bands flown in from Germany are providing the musical entertainment at Old World's mini-Oktoberfest. From now through Sunday, Oct. 26, "Pfaelzer Buam" will be on stage, Nov. 1 through 16 "Deutsch Meister Kapelle" will be featured.

On Wednesday and Thursday the band appears at the Old World restaurant's Festival Hall from 6:30 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday the hours are 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. and on Sunday from 2 to 10 p.m.

Admission is free on Wednesday and Thursday. Weekends — Friday through Sunday — there's a $3 entrance fee.

Selections from the authentic German menu and accompaniments include bratwurst, hot potato salad, sauerkraut, barbecue chicken, pretzels, wine, cocktails and — you guess it — German beer.

IN THE OUTSIDE STREETS of the Village itself, Oktoberfest attractions include an arcade, folkdancers, kiddie rides, strolling musicians and a large variety of contests.

Old World — complete with cobblestone streets, lantern lampposts, window flower boxes, sparkling fountains, murals on the housewalls — is a bona fide replica of an old European town.

More than 50 specialty shops sell imported merchandise and — for another European touch — most of the shops have second-story living quarters for the owners.

Out 'N About Norman Stanley

You'll come by Old World Village and the Oktoberfest activities at 7561 Center Drive — behind Huntington Center and adjacent to the San Diego Freeway — Huntington Beach. Phone numbers are 897-1470 and 894-7669.

MARK YOUR FUTURES CALENDAR for the Orange Coast's newest restaurant that opened just last Tuesday. It's Carmelo Manto's stunning La Strada, 3520 E. Coast Highway, Corona del Mar.

Northern Italian cuisine is featured, and dinner will be served from 5:30 every evening. The executive chef is Mario Zanetti — formerly with the Princess Lines and, most recently, with the La Strada restaurant on Los Feliz Boulevard in Los Angeles.

Highlighted by an elegant 18th Century-Italian decor, the new Corona del Mar La Strada also houses a cocktail bar and facilities for private parties. I certainly intend to check it out at the earliest opportunity — on the basis of the solid reputation enjoyed by the parent Los Angeles spot, if for no other reason.

In the meantime you might want to be among the very first to sit down to dinner at this promising establishment. They're on all major credit cards and the number for reservations is 675-1922.

KEEPING GOVERNMENT out of one's business obviously isn't the catchword of everyone in Orange County. Just ask Paul Rossi and Joseph Vieillemaire, owners of La Brasserie restaurant in Orange.

To celebrate La Brasserie's upcoming third birthday they've invited top-ranking government officials as honored guests. That's their way, the owners report, of saying "thank you" to the county for the outstanding support the restaurant has enjoyed since it opened.

A special dinner will be presented by Chef Joseph to mark the occasion on Monday, Oct. 20.

TOGETHER WITH SPOUSES, those heading the "government brass" invitation list include Supervisors Thomas Rileley, Harriett Wieder, Philip Anthony, Edison Miller and Ralph Clark, Assessor Bradley Jacobs and Auditor V.A. Heim.

Also: County Clerk Lee Branch, District Attorney Cecil Hicks, Sheriff Brad Gates, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Robert Peterson, Public Administrator James Heim and Tax Collector Robert Citron.

But that august body of dinner guests poses a question. Somewhere along the line will some opponents have to be given equal eating time?

ONE THING'S FOR SURE: there's certainly no shortage hereabouts of new restaurants to satisfy a sudden whim for Mexican food.

Perhaps because it has been around the longest, the only one of these places where we've sampled the food (as noted here in glowing terms a few months back) is Manana, which took up where Amelia's took off at 3300 W. Coast Highway, Newport Beach.

Other purveyors of tostadas and enchiladas opening in recent weeks — all of which we'll be visiting as soon as time permits — include Eugenio's, 547 W. 19th St., Costa Mesa. It has taken the place of the former Mitla's.

FRENCH FOOD IS NO more with the closing of La Provencale in South Laguna. Now occupying the premises at 31676 Coast Highway is Paco's Cafe Mexico.

Into the void left by the departure of the old Derby restaurant in Costa Mesa has come the latest edition in a popular chain of Mexican restaurants. This is Acapulco, located at 1262 S.E. Bristol, between Newport Boulevard and Redhill Avenue.

Sam's Seafood continues at its long-time location in Huntington Beach (16278 Pacific Coast Highway), but closed the doors some time back at its Corona del Mar site, 3901 E. Coast Highway. Now off and running at that address is La Selva Mexican restaurant.

'Friends' Easygoing To a Fault

It's difficult to imagine James Elward's "Best of Friends" as anything more than a left over from the days of the generation gap comedies of the late Sixties and early Seventies, no matter how effective a production is derived from it.

At the Costa Mesa Civic Playhouse, where the play is making its first Orange County appearance (though it was done in Long Beach a decade ago), director Pati Tambellini has mounted a pleasing interpretation of this lightweight vehicle. That it is not more arresting and involving is basically the fault of the raw material rather than its implementation.

ELWARD'S CHARACTERS are fraught with inconsistency, changing their moods and motivations as easily as they change their costumes. There are no sharp turns in "Best of Friends," only a series of slight bends in the road.

The central characters are a Brooklyn family, the head of which (a noted novelist) has just been reported lost in a plane crash — a piece of news which doesn't elicit any great outpourings of grief, since he hadn't been that much of a father and husband. Things become a bit stickier when he shows up, quite alive, with his latest in a long line of young ladyfriends.

The ensuing action takes the viewer on a

Patricia Corbett and Fred Marsh argue over the type of slipper she wears while Jane Nigh tries to separate them in the Irvine Community Theater production of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," opening Oct. 10 for three weekends at Turtle Rock Community Park. Southwest Paintings Often Bizarre

JOE BAKER OF OKLAHOMA has absorbed the drama of southwest cultures and added a touch of craziness. Forsaking the dictate that a painting must look like something, he often opts for bizarre renderings of the imagination — unrestrained, puzzling, intimidating but always amusing. An exhibition of his oil paintings with silver leaf will open with a reception from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday at Abraxas Gallery, 2815 Villa Way, Newport Beach. Viewing hours are 11 to 5 Wednesdays — Sundays until Oct. 26.

HEADLESS PAINTING BY JOE BAKER 'Starla, Cowgirl, Has Naughty Thoughts'

"COMPUTER FANTASY" is one example of how Art Hopkins takes everyday symbols and transforms them into geometric, abstract patterns, executed in precise hard-edge style with bold colors. His current series, combining graphic art images with those from primitive sources, opens Saturday at Challis Galleries, 1390 S. Coast Highway.

Laguna Beach. Gallery hours are 11 to 5 Wednesdays through Sundays until Oct. 25.

THE LARGER-THAN-LIFE painted wood "sculptoons" by Leonard Glasser have Thurberesque qualities. That is, they hold truths about the human condition. By reducing certain situations to symbolism, Glasser is able to communicate on an emotional level, rather than asking the audience for a heavy intellectual involvement. He will be honored at a 7 p.m. reception Saturday at Collector's Choice Gallery, 666 N. Coast Highway, Laguna Beach, where his works will be displayed this month. Also being shown are new "drawings" by Myrna Shiras, made by sewing heavy threads through layered, handmade paper.

BRING YOUR GRANDMA AND GRANDPA to "Mural Madness for Seniors" from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at Newport Harbor Art Museum, 850 San Clemente Drive, Newport Beach. Ling Chung will direct the making of a 15-foot mural. No previous art experience is necessary for this free project.

IF YOUR CONCEPT OF PAPER is limited to 8 1/2 x 11 white sheets, the "True Paper" exhibition opening Monday at Golden West College's Fine Arts Gallery will be revealing. Handmade paper is a richly textured concoction made of grass, palm bark, flower petals, silk fibers, lint or twine. Thirteen artists who have rediscovered this lost art are represented in the show that starts with a 7 p.m. reception in the gallery, on the corner of the Huntington Beach campus near Gothard and Center streets. Regular hours are 9 to 3 Mondays through Thursdays and 7 to 9 Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

AN EXHIBITION REFLECTING "Southwestern Art and Influences" starts at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Arts and Crafts Center in Irvine's Heritage Park and continues through Oct. 27. On display will be Indian basketry and Hopi Kachina dolls on loan from Bowers Museum, tribal lithographs from Galleria Capistrano, permanent sandpaintings by Paul Apodaca and recent fiber designs by weaver Helen Siegel who describes her art as a "visual code that can be applied to emotional experiences." Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Lectures and demonstrations are planned for Oct. 14-16 during Native American Culture Week.

Whimsical Whirlwind

Among the off-beat characters Bette Midler creates — and performs — in "Divine Madness," is the magic lady, a whimsical old woman with a bag of tricks that never work. The divine Miss M sings with the Harlettes and throws out one-liners like bridal bouquets in the screen version of her hit Broadway revue now showing at local movie theaters.

'Stunt Man' Outrageous

By BOB THOMAS
For The Associated Press

"THE STUNT MAN" is a brilliant feat of cinematic legerdemain, creating an illusory world in which nothing is as it seems. Richard Rush, who directed and co-wrote the script with Lawrence Marcus, has created a thought-provoking entertainment that defies description — part black comedy, part action movie, part drama. The story takes place on a movie location run by an egomaniacal director, Peter O'Toole. He manipulates everyone, especially the lead actress (Barbara Hershey) and a fugitive-turned-stunt man (Steve Railsback). The intricate plot is combined with outrageous stunts, and not merely the mindless car crashes of the endless movie summer. O'Toole is perfection as the brutal autocrat, and Railsback proves a worthy adversary. Rated R, with an outpouring of expletives and some nude scenes.

Oids for a Porsche and to have a fling with a Dallas cheerleader. Director John Trent and writer Carl Kleinschmitt have done a slick job of concocting a bitter comedy that is in reality a modern morality play. After experiencing the fleshly pleasures, the husband realizes that his old life wasn't so bad after all. Dern gives the best performance of his career, and Ann-Margret is ideal as his perplexed wife. The film's only drawback is an uneven tone, perhaps because locations were shot in Houston and interiors in Canada under tax-shelter financing. The rating is R, with strong language, a nude go-go dancer and pervasive sexual themes.

Ray Sharkey (Phil) are winning personalities, but the revelation is Margot Kidder as their amour. Hers is an Academy nomination performance, far, far removed from her Lois Lane of "Superman." The rating is R with a degree of nudity and expletives, some acid and pot, lots of talk about sex and some action. Still, it is a good-hearted movie, the kind that Mazursky always makes.

"THE GREAT SANTINI" is a profoundly affecting and superbly wrought tale of a boy coming of age despite a quagmire psychopath of a father. Robert Duvall is a "warrior without a war," a Marine Corps flier who believes his family can be run with the same fierce discipline he applies to his squadrons. The result is catastrophic, yet the family learns from the experience and grows. Writer-director Lewis John Carlino tells the story with the leisurely pace of a well-crafted novel, allowing members of the cast to register as unforgettable characters. The leading players are magnificent: Duvall as the demonic father, Blythe Danner as the wife who loves him despite everything, Michael O'Keefe as the tormented son. All have earned Academy Award nominations. Rated PG because of language and dramatic intensity.

"MIDDLE AGE CRAZY" is based on the Sonny Throckmorton song about a man "40 years old, going on 20." He's Bruce Dern, a successful Houston contractor with a wife who pumps up their sex life to keep him satisfied. But that isn't enough. His concern over aging prompts him to trade in his

"WILLIE AND PHIL" is another study in human relationships by astute Paul Mazursky. Two young men and a woman who love each other deeply, the males platonically. Their mutual romances take them from New York to Kentucky, Malibu, Maui and India and through many relationships during nine years. Mazursky is a master of dialogue and comic situations; his only trouble is with the finish. The one he chose causes a massive letdown, like being on an adventurous journey that leads to nowhere. Michael Ontkean (Willie) and

Chapman Rolls Out Rock Review

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH

The enfante terrible of art forms, rock 'n' roll is growing up. Or old for that matter. The Platters, Presley, Dylan and the Doors shape only a portion of the legacy. Which is why Chapman College's onstage production, "25 Years of Rock 'n' Roll," seems an overly ambitious, indeed impossible, attempt at capturing the essence of the aging brat.

BUT THE MUSICAL retrospective clicks, surprisingly so, and tickets for tonight and Saturday's closing performance (8 p.m.) are probably the best bargain in town.

In less than three and a half hours, Director Paul Frizler and a college cast that includes 16 musicians, 19 dancers and countless costumed performers come close to saying it all. It's an education with exuberant energy.

Act one leads off with the Platters' "Great Pretender" and runs through the late '50s era with solid sendups of Presley, Sam Cooke and Little Richard.

BY NO MEANS IS it satire, however. From costumes to musical execution, the young performers and backstage personnel do their best to make the show a memorable recreation of the early days.

A definite highlight of the opening act comes when singers portraying the late Big Bopper, Richie Valens and Buddy Holly appear onstage in homage to the old rock 'n' roll road show.

The announcement that they'll be leaving right after the show to catch a (final) flight is one of the show's most touching moments.

American Influence Production's Focus

THE OVERALL PLOT line is fittingly thin, handled by so-so portrayals of Ed Sullivan, George Putnam and Dick Clark for time and scene transitions. A few token take-offs of TV commercials (Ralph Williams, Kitchen Magician) provide added history.

But "25 Years" is above all a musical and the pace is upbeat and never tiring despite 26 tunes in the first act alone.

Brad Carter drew cheers every time he opened his mouth with his perfectly off-key nasal interpretation of Sonny in "I Got You Babe."

Sliding nicely through the Beach Boys ("I Get Around"), Temptations and Supremes, the entire cast assembled for a medley from "Hair" to close Act one.

THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN enough reality, but Frizler and cast proved more than up to the ambitious task.

The second half opens with a recreation of the heyday of the Fillmore and the Jefferson Airplane and Janis Joplin.

The unsung heroes of the play, the musicians, finally get a chance to stretch out on a fine remake of the Doors' "Light My Fire." Guitarist Mike Zaret turns in a stellar solo.

TIMESWISE, THE AFFAIR gets a bit jumpy from here, combining Carly Simon, Alice Cooper and The Blues Brothers in a somewhat shallow attempt to capsulize the '70s.

Outside of David Bowie and Fleetwood Mac, there is little reference to British music that shaped the times.

Granted, had Frizler attempted to include the Stones, Hendrix and the Beatles (beyond a clip from "Yellow Submarine"), audiences would be facing a show that would take three days.

What is left is a decidedly American retrospective featuring solid singing, dancing and technical effects. Even the usually cynical college crowd was on its feet when the cast members sang their way into the lobby with a closing number from "Fame."

SO TAKE THE KIDS, grandpa, anyone, to the campus auditorium before this little gem closes.

Tickets range from $3 to $5, but call 997-6856 first to make sure seats are still available. This is a show that deserves to be a sell-out.

Chicago Keeps Hits Numerical

By LISA ROBINSON
Despite all the problems with the economics of the record industry, there are some bands who seem to be able to go on and on, drawing crowds and maintaining superstar status.
Such a band is Chicago, currently in the midst of a very healthy U.S. tour.

CALLING FROM THE city of Chicago was Walter Parazaider (woodwinds, vocals, songwriter), who said, "We've only been out three days and we've had great crowds. Last summer too, we didn't experience any difficulties. So far, we've been lucky."

So far, Chicago, who have released their 14th LP, titled "XIV," has been successful. Why have they always numbered their albums?

"Well, we called the 12th one 'Hot Streets,' we thought we'd try it for a change. But then we went back to the numbers. The thought behind the whole thing was that someone would be able one day to go into a music library and go from 'Chicago' straight through to '50'."

"THAT WAY, YOU WOULD be able to catalog certain periods of time, not only in our career but what other music was happening at the time."

"We've always cared about the music first," insists Parazaider. "We don't jump around; we don't do cartwheels; we don't do splits. We concentrate on doing the best possible music that we can, and then that becomes the show."

"This time, we're pulling some things out from older albums that will be a surprise, and we're also not using a warm-up act. It's just two and a half hours of solid music."

"WE FIGURED THAT if we wanted to play the things that people wanted to hear—which are the hits—and we also wanted to play the things we want to play, like new material from the new album, then this was the best way."

"We also wanted to include some songs that perhaps weren't hits, but were strong album cuts from past albums."

This new album marks the first time that the band has worked with producer Tom Dowd.

Talking about the album, Parazaider said, "We had 17 tracks for the album, and only 10 could get on." What did they decide to do with the seven tunes that didn't make it?

"WE HAVE A FEW in the can that we will consider when we start thinking of 'Chicago XV.'"

"It wasn't that our songs weren't good enough for the album, it just turned out that we gave total control to our producer, Tom Dowd, who's done everybody from Aretha Franklin to Ray Charles and Rod Stewart."

"We told Tom to forget mincing words, and not to worry about feelings, because everybody writes in the group, and there was no way we could get all the material on."

"Being a democratic group, like we've been in the past, sometimes it doesn't always work. You need someone to come in and say this is the way it is."

Out Standing In Their Field

Nathan Hensley is happy at sight of sweet corn in Storybook Farm at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. The farm includes "living nursery rhymes" including the "Three Little Pigs," "Henny Penny" and "The Purple Cow." A replica of an early California farmhouse and a home garden are other features. The fair, with its livestock exhibits, carnival rides and top name entertainment nightly in the grandstand, continues through Oct. 12. Tickets are $2 for youths aged 6 to 12 and $3.50 general admission.

PS Tram Opening Delayed

The Palm Springs Aerial Tramway's scheduled re-opening Saturday has been delayed for a week until Oct. 11, David W. Pence, general manager of the tourist attraction, has announced.

"The Dry Falls fire and the tramway's involvement in transporting fire-fighting men and equipment has caused the delay in our annual maintenance schedule," Pence explained.

"WE WOULD have started our program on Sept. 2. However, the Forest Service did not release us until the end of that week. Hence, the delay."

Re-opening weekend will feature the tramway's Hooray for Kids Day.

All children (3-11) accompanied by adults will receive a free tram T-shirt, with the purchase of regular tram tickets.

THE OFFER will be in effect from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Further information may be obtained by calling (714) 325-1391.

FCC Review

13 Stations Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has voted to designate for review the licenses of 13 radio and TV stations owned by RKO General Inc., raising the possibility the company could ultimately lose all 16 of its broadcast stations.

By a 6-1 vote behind closed doors, however, the FCC agreed to delay the start of its review until all court appeals of a January decision stripping RKO of three TV licenses are completed.

General Tire & Rubber Co. is RKO's parent firm.

THE JANUARY RULING, MADE final in a written opinion issued June 6, found RKO and General Tire unfit from a character standpoint to continue operating TV stations in New York, Los Angeles (KHJ, Channel 9) and Boston. The FCC cited findings that RKO stations engaged in improper advertising and reciprocal trade campaigns, and that top General Tire officials had been involved in an overseas bribery scandal.

The decision, approved by only a 4-3 margin, stunned the broadcast industry because the finding of unfitness meant RKO could not even try to sell the three stations to recoup its investment.

RKO has since filed a court appeal here. But that process is expected to take years. In the meantime, the commission had to decide whether the finding of unfitness should be applied to the company's other broadcast properties.

THE 16 STATIONS TOGETHER are thought to be worth more than $400 million.

RKO sought to protect its remaining stations by pleading with the FCC for permission to create a new company with an independent board and management that would take control of them.

Although a formal application for such a transfer has not been filed, RKO said the FCC should signify its willingness to consider such an application because the loss of TV stations in the nation's first-, second- and fifth-largest markets was sufficient punishment.

The commission's majority, however, accepted a staff finding that the last operating licenses issued to the 13 stations were identically conditioned on the outcome of the earlier case, meaning there was no basis for treating them differently.

"I THINK EVERYBODY WANTED to avoid this but there's just no way to do it in a legally sound manner," said a top official who asked not to be identified. "We bit the bullet on the big decision earlier this year and we have to do the same thing here, or you jeopardize your position in defending against RKO's court appeal."

The FCC also agreed, though, that it made no sense to launch a renewal hearing before the court had upheld the January decision.

The decision to designate the 13 licenses for a renewal hearing could ultimately present RKO with some difficult choices. While it does prevent other would-be broadcasters from filing competing applications, it also means RKO must somehow prove there are mitigating reasons — such as meritorious programming on the 13 stations — to outweigh the previous finding of misconduct.

The company's only other option is to make use of the FCC's distress sale policy. Under that option, RKO can sell each of the stations to a minority-controlled company for up to 75 percent of market value.

IF RKO ELECTS DISTRESS sales, then the license renewal hearing is canceled. If the firm decides to fight for the stations in the hearing, then it loses the opportunity to elect distress sales.

If it wins in hearing, RKO gets to keep the stations. If it loses, however, it must surrender the licenses without trying to find any type of buyer.

Paper Creations To be Exhibited

An exhibit of hand-made paper created from materials such as grass, palm bark, flower petals, silk fiber, rags, lint and twine will open Monday at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

The exhibit, entitled "True Paper," will be on view from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Fine Arts Gallery at the corner of Gothard Street and Center Drive.

Artists from Costa Mesa, Laguna Beach and other Orange County cities will be represented in the exhibit.

Death Claim Denied

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The widow of a man who committed suicide is getting back $160 which her husband paid in advance for life insurance, but her death claim for $50,000 has been denied.

A Superior Court jury found that the man, whose name is being withheld, killed himself 10 months after taking out an Allstate Insurance Co. policy that precludes a payoff for suicide within the first two years.

Norvin Grauf, the widow's attorney, argued that the man lacked the mental capacity to carry out his suicide on any special date.

Gardening

Weed, Rseed

Fall Is Time For Lawn Care

By the end of summer, our lawns have suffered to one degree or another from neglect. Summer's extended dry spells and compaction from heavy foot traffic are two problems which wary gardeners can avoid, but this is not easily done.

Fortunately, the time is ripe to do something for that needy lawn not so much for immediate effect but for the spring when your lawn will once again start to grow.

THE FIRST STEP is to use a mechanical sweeper or wire rake and clear the lawn of summer's collected chippings and other debris which might smother the roots during a wet winter. When raking, work the lawn over thoroughly. Rough it up and don't be timid about it. Now, mow it closely.

If you have weeds, and who doesn't have a few, take the easy way out by applying a commercial weed control.

If you have a dichondra lawn or one with clover in it, spot control is recommended.

BADLY RUNDOWN lawns should be rseeded this month, as should Bermuda grass lawns if you want them green over the winter months. Caution: depending on the weed killer wait 10-30 days before sowing seed; broadcast it over bare spots in the same quantity you would use in planting a new lawn. After this top dress these areas with humus to cover the seeds and sprinkle with a fine spray of water. Keep the seedbed moist at all times, even if it means three sprinklings a day until the seeds sprout.

Bermuda grass lawns should be renovated by stiff crossraking as described previously and by a close cropping of the mower. Then overseed with annual ryegrass which sprouts quickly. This will give you the green lawn you want during the winter months when Bermuda grass is brown and dormant.

AS ALWAYS, your most trusted ally to help you efficiently attack those lawn weeds is your local nurseryman. He will be able to give you the best advice for your particular weed problem as he is the most familiar with your local soil and climatic conditions.

Once you've waged the war against weeds, follow-up with two applications of fertilizer spaced about a month to six weeks apart this fall. Your lawn will be happier this spring and so will you!

Scent of Spring

One of nature's most generous gifts is the hyacinth. The heady fragrance announces the arrival of spring, delighting all who detect the scent. Plant bulbs now near walks and entrance ways for most enjoyment in the spring.

California Has Color Year-round

Fall color in the garden needn't be lacking in California gardens. There are shrubs and trees that will give brilliant displays of color and become splendid additions to the garden year-round.

It's always a pleasure to discover certain shrubs and trees that do put on a seasonal show and it should be the aim of the gardener to use them where he can.

IN THE ORDER of trees you can try the Liquidambar or sweet gum. In October and November, its maple-shaped leaves become a montage of yellow and reds complementing the slender, angular branches. Or maybe you'd like the effect of the Ginkgo biloba, maidenhair tree, in the fall when the leathery, light green leaves of spring and summer suddenly turn into gold. There are also some members of the well-loved maple family that are natural for fall color and grow well in California except in the extremely warm climates. Red flowers adorn the red maple before the leaves turn a glorious red in the fall. The Japanese maple has leaf interest all year round. Young spring growth is a glowing red, summer's is a soft green and the foliage turns scarlet, orange or yellow in the fall.

IN SHRUBS YOU will find the Oregon grape which is perhaps better adapted to Northern California but those in the southern part of the state can plant the very similar California grape. Either is a year-round performer with glossy, holly-like leaves, bright yellow flowers in early spring, blue summer berries and richly red foliage tones in the fall.

Oregon grape is an excellent shrub in borders or foundations and California grape is ideal for coastal climates.

Weekend Gardening Checklist

- Scatter snail and slug bait around newly planted annuals. In this dry year, they're even hungrier for tender new plants.

- Keep leaves removed from your lawn. They can pack down excluding light and air from the grass which creates unhealthy conditions.

- Camellias are setting buds now and most set too many. Thin them for bigger and better flowers.

- Prune evergreen vines like star jasmine, honeysuckle, purple trumpet vine and ivy to keep them well shaped. Prune evergreen clematis very lightly as it blooms early in the spring on wood grown this last summer.

- Select early flowering sasanqua camellias for an even longer camellia blooming season.

Grove Branch Meets Tuesday

Garden Grove Branch of the National Fuchsia Society will meet Tuesday in Garden Grove Community Center, 11300 Standford Ave., Garden Grove.

Guest speaker will be Paul Kraft, president of the North Long Beach Branch of the National Fuchsia Society, who will present a pruning clinic.

Members are asked to bring a fuchsia plant and Kraft will furnish the expertise in pruning tips.

Cop Guards Cornstalk, Single Ear

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The 6-foot cornstalk with its single ear of corn may not yet stand as high as an elephant's eye, but it's the pride of Gene Barton's eye.

"That's a good stalk of corn. Maybe it only has one ear, but what do you expect?" he asked.

Indeed, the cornstalk took root in a most unlikely place — in gravel outside a window at the Roanoke Courthouse.

Barton, a sergeant in the city Sheriff's Department, found three kernels of corn some weeks ago on a courtroom bench. He tossed the kernels out a window and onto the gravel surrounding a parking area as he tidied up the courtroom.

Weeks later, "when I opened the window again to let some air in on a hot day, there was this shoot of corn," he said.

He says he'll watch the ear another couple of days — and then eat it.

Trees Colorful

Transplanted easterners who miss the lovely autumn color of their homes will be glad to learn that a few of the deciduous trees with lovely fall colors can be grown successfully in California.

Such trees are the Sweet Gum (Liquidambar), Chinese Pistache (Pistacia chinensis), Raywood Ash (Fraxinus ornus 'Raywood') and the Maidenhair (Ginkgo biloba).

Scales Most Destructive

Sucking Insects Attack Variety of Plants

You may think they are bumps on a branch. They don't look or act like typical insects. But scales are among the most destructive plant feeding insects, says Demetrios G. Kontaxis, public service pest management farm adviser of University of California Cooperative Extension.

They attack a variety of plants including fruit and forest trees, woody ornamentals, and houseplants. He adds that scale-infested plants may be stunted, weak, drop fruit and leaves, lose branches or die. The UC specialist explains about the pests and how to control them.

SCALES GIVE THE APPEARANCE of tiny bumps or bits of scabby or waxy material. They may be white, gray, brown, red or black. These small insects vary in size according to species. They spend most of their lives without moving, fastened to the plant, which makes them difficult to recognize.

Most mature scale females lay eggs directly beneath their body. The eggs hatch into crawlers which move about until they find a suitable place to settle and insert their mouthparts into the plant. They suck nutritional juices and remain in the same place. Wind, insects, birds and people disseminate the crawlers from one plant to another.

WHEN THEY BECOME numerous they may completely cover stems and leaves of infested plants. Scales can injure plants directly by sucking juice and secreting toxic substance into them. Or they can harm plants indirectly by excreting large amounts of honeydew (a sticky liquid which collects on leaves and objects below the plant). A black sooty mold often grows on honeydew that impairs photosynthesis.

To control these insects, keep in mind that their natural enemies have a main part in destroying 90 to 95 percent of them. So protecting beneficial insects is important. Some scales greatly increase in number because they are well suited to the plant and environment and because natural controls are less effective.

Use chemical spray to control scale when a plant is heavily infested, its parts look unhealthy, or large quantities of honeydew or sooty mold are present. To apply insecticide carefully follow directions on the label. The plant must be thoroughly covered with the spray solution.

WHILE A PLANT is dormant (late winter or before bud swelling - January to mid-February) you can spray with winter oil alone (never spray conifers - cone bearing plants - with oil) or in a combination with insecticides such as Carbaryl (Sevin), Diazinon, Malathion, or Orthene. Do not apply Orthene on plants grown for food. If Carbaryl is used, watch for spider mite build-up.

You can also spray during the plant's growing season when scales are tiny or no eggs are under the scale. Apply summer oil and/or insecticides such as those mentioned.

Or in late spring-early summer use a multi-spray program (three sprays with one of the aforementioned materials at 3-week intervals).

At any time of the year multiple sprays can offer effective scale control on house plants: Remove as many adult scales as possible before treating. Place houseplants outdoors, spray thoroughly, and bring back inside only when they are dry. Never use oils on houseplants for insect control.

Ferns are sensitive to many chemicals. It may be best to discard such plants when scale infestations develop.

LA Busing: City Shame?

By THOMAS D. ELIAS
When school opened this fall, integration plans continued without incident and without headlines in a dozen cities from the San Francisco Bay Area to the Mexican border.

But not in Los Angeles, the second largest school district in America and by far the largest in California. A flurry of last-minute court appeals and program changes caused massive confusion and white flight there, as the nation's largest desegregation program headed into its third year in expanded form.

What's so different about Los Angeles?

THE ANTI-BUSING MAJORITY ON the city's school board says it is distance, that the sheer size of the district makes school busing impractical. Parents don't want their children bused long distances, the board majority contends. That's why, the district says, it has lost about one third of its white Anglo pupils since busing started.

Yet the same school board is more than willing to bus minority children as much as 50 miles in the "permit with transfer" program which allows formerly all-white schools to be integrated without forcing Caucasian children to travel.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FOCUS

Virtually all parties to the Los Angeles school integration dispute agree that court busing orders haven't achieved their aims. Private schools have proliferated in the area and real estate prices in close-in suburbs with separate school districts have climbed even faster than the California norm.

The reasons for the decimation of the Los Angeles district, which has a white enrollment of barely 20 percent, are disputed. The board majority, three of whom are former officers of the Bustop anti-busing community organization, points to the Superior Court judge assigned to supervise the California Supreme Court's school busing order.

THEY SAY JUDGE PAUL EGLY of Laguna Beach has far exceeded his authority to order "reasonable and feasible" busing. But others finger the school board itself. For one thing, they point at the constant discord on the board, whose president called her lone minority colleague a "bitch" on the radio on this fall's first day of school. That same board president advised white parents at least once to take their children out of the public schools rather than go along with busing.

Since the anti-busers took control of the board two years ago, they have filed a constant stream of futile appeals of the busing order. Even U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, the most conservative justice to serve on the high court in decades, refused twice to stay the integration order. But the board majority continues its efforts, filing an appeal every time Egly issues an order.

BY CONTRAST, IN CITIES where busing has worked and white flight has been kept to a minimum, school boards have finally bowed gracefully, even when they fought busing all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court level.

Not so in Los Angeles. The result has not been of the sort once seen in Southern cities, in Boston and Pontiac, Mich.

Instead, there has been a quiet but massive exodus of Anglo children, leaving the public schools largely to blacks and Hispanics.

Why has the school board not bowed to the inevitable? For one thing, its lawyers have advised it that busing might not be inevitable, or at least that the phrase "reasonable and feasible" is open to varying interpretation.

For lawyers and school board members, then, the Los Angeles integration situation has been far from a total loss.

But for the children? They've lost teachers and classroom time because money has been appropriated to busing rather than educational purposes. And their parents have lost faith in the school system and the people running it.

All those other cities where integration programs are proceeding smoothly need look no farther than Los Angeles to see what might have happened to them if they hadn't been careful.

(Elias is a columnist based in Santa Monica.)

On the Job

Business ground to a halt as Rep. William Natcher (D-Ky.) cast his 12,000th consecutive roll call vote in the U.S. House of Representatives. A bipartisan parade of speakers paid tribute to Natcher, who hasn't missed a day of work in his 26 years in Congress.

Teens Disagree On 'Sexy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-age girls may think wearing tight jeans and no bra simply is the height of fashion, but adolescent guys think those clothes are a sexual come-on, according to a California survey.

The survey by four researchers at UCLA found that boys read more sexual connotations into girls' behavior than the girls intended.

Both sexes agreed that a see-through blouse on a girl probably was a come-on, according to the survey of 14- to 18-year-olds published in the October issue of Psychology Today.

But the boys were likely to interpret a low-cut top, shorts, tight jeans or no bra as deliberately enticing as well, the survey of 432 young people indicated.

None of the teenagers, however, said they thought a guy's open shirt, tight pants or tight swim trunks were much of an indication of his interest in having sexual relations.

Blind Helped

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Classes for 112 students of the state School for the Blind will begin by Nov. 1 at the old School for the Deaf in Berkeley. The state planned to move the students to a new school in Fremont, but the move was blocked by a court suit filed by parents who contend the Fremont facility is too rural.

'SHE KNOWS ME CLEAR DOWN TO MY TOENAILS' Glen Campbell With Bride-to-be Tanya Tucker

Tanya, Potato Soup Make Glen New Man

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (P) — As Glen Campbell recalls it, he said a little prayer that he'd be happy again. Soon thereafter, Tanya Tucker and her mother showed up with potato soup for him.

That's the way the romance began for country boy Campbell, 44, who has been married three times, and Miss Tucker 21. The singers plan to marry next year, probably in Los Angeles, to climax one of the most highly publicized romances in the entertainment business.

"I SAID A PRAYER because things in my life were tearin' me up," the bearded Campbell said in an interview with Miss Tucker beside him. "I wanted to go with someone in this business so she'd understand where I'm at. Pretty soon, Tanya called, and she and her mother brought me some potato soup. That lifted my spirits."

They began dating seriously in March, and it didn't take a Wichita lineman to send the message through. He proposed Aug. 14.

Miss Tucker, who met Campbell in 1972 when she was 13, said she never expected romance to blossom so suddenly.

"I FIGURED I'D get married about age 26, then wait a few years to have kids," said Miss Tucker, whose records have returned to the country music mold recently after a brief fling with rock 'n' roll and a sexpot image.

"But this worked out differently. I always figured I'd find someone to marry, but not this quickly."

"I've been raised with the basic teaching that you should marry someone who honors you and respects you and believes in you," Miss Tucker said. "A lot of people in this business haven't got their feet on the ground, but Glen has the same ideas about life that I do."

"At first I didn't want to get involved with anyone in this business because we'd be too much alike. But for outside interests I have my horses and he has his golf."

THE AGE DIFFERENCE means little to either one. "If she dies, she dies," Campbell said, laughing.

Turning serious, he said, "In my prayer, I said I don't care if she is 15, 40 or 60."

Said Miss Tucker, "I don't think about it, but I guess others do. I've never been attracted to men my own age."

Besides, they said, they know each other as well as they know their songs.

"SHE KNOWS ME clear down to my toenails," Campbell said, chuckling. The two plan to record an album together. They already sing together on two songs on her album, "Dream Lovers."

"I don't know a better singer

Navy District Now a 'Base'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego, already with a number of naval bases, has a new one over the others, its name is simply "U.S. Naval Base, San Diego."

It replaces the 11th Naval District, which has been headquartered in San Diego since 1921.

Across the nation, the Navy has abolished districts except for Washington, D.C., in an ad-than Tanya," Campbell said. She's not one-dimensional like some other singers I could name, but won't. Her phrasing is outstanding and she sings the notes so true."

He said he has a lot to accomplish in his career, which already includes hits like "Rhinstone Cowboy," "Southern Nights," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," "Galveston," "Wichita Lineman" and "Gentle on My Mind."

"God's not done with me yet," Campbell said. "I haven't even scratched the surface on what I want to do. I want to paint pictures in my music and change the world from fighting. Right now, life feels so good."

Hanging In Demoted Judge Now Janitor

HOWARD, KAN. (AP) — Judge J.L. Roberts was the law in this tiny Kansas town for seven years.

Then he fined the mayor for letting his dog run loose. And a city councilman's relative was slapped with a bill for disorderly conduct.

Today, old Jess Roberts is the City Hall janitor. And frankly, the resilient 85-year-old prefers holding a broom to holding a gavel. The hours are better; so is the pay.

"I'VE GOT everything paid for, a nice house, two cars and a regular Social Security check," he said. "I don't have to do this. But I like it."

"And besides, I'm not going to give them (City Council members) the satisfaction of saying they got rid of Jess."

Roberts has nipped at the heels of the community's leadership for years. Born on a farm nearby, he landed his first job washing dishes at Howard's Metropolitan Hotel. Later, he owned restaurants, dance halls and theaters, worked in carpentry, autosalvage and tire repair.

He eventually settled on the furniture business his father owned. When he retired in 1972 at 77, he was elected justice of the peace.

BUT TWO DAYS after he started, the state abolished the position. So Roberts was appointed municipal judge for the town of 900.

Armed only with a voracious appetite for books, Roberts deftly interpreted the city and state codes, dishing out fines for everything from drunkenness to speeding.

At first the city let him pocket the $9 in court costs he assessed violators. But the state stepped in and abolished court costs in the mid-1970s. The city put Roberts on a $50-a-month salary.

The wardway were taken to Robert's home at all hours. A man picked up for drinking in public appeared before Roberts and was fined before he could drain the evidence.

A TOUGH JUDGE, some said. But a fair one.

That was before city officials and their relatives began making appearances in court. Roberts fined the mayor $20 for violating a leash law the mayor helped enact.

"I didn't make the laws, I just

Clammer Hopes to Recoup

DAMARISCOTTA, Maine (AP) — Clam dealer Bob Elliott lost a third of his yearly income and exhausted his winter savings when "red tide" contamination shut down most of Maine's shellfish industry last month.

Today, clamming is under way again, but Elliott worries that news of the poisoning would make sales sluggish.

"You can't really tell," he said. "We're just going to have to start buying and see who puts orders in."

DURING BUSY summer months, Elliott handled up to 600 bushels of clams a week, paying diggers $18 to $28 a bushel and pocketing up to $8 on each bushel he sold to restaurants and other customers.

But on Labor Day, the state closed the meandering, 3,500-mile coastline to most shellfish harvesting, shutting business for hundreds of diggers and dealers.

The contamination — paralytic shellfish poisoning — is caused by a swimming microscopic plant that tinges water red. It affects the respiratory system and can be fatal. At least 16 people were hospitalized after eating tainted Maine shellfish before the closure was ordered.

SEPTEMBER'S contamination was one of the worst red tides here in recent memory — not since 1972 had the entire coastline been closed — with an estimated loss of more than $7 million to the state's shellfishing industry.

The shellfishing ban affected mussels, clams, oysters and quahogs. Lobsters, crabs and scallops were not affected.

Most clam flats got a recent clean bill of health from the state, but a few isolated areas still are off-limits to clam diggers. Mussel harvesting still is prohibited along the entire coast.

President Carter last month declared the coast a disaster area, opening the door for Small Business Administration loans to dealers and special unemployment benefits for full-time diggers. As of last week, fewer than 550 of the estimated 1,440 full-time diggers had filed claims.

enforced them," Roberts explained. "Those dummies up at City Hall thought I should turn them loose 'cause they were big guys."

Soon the council appointed a new judge. But Roberts wasn't through at City Hall. He took the job as janitor — at $10 a month more.

"THE ONLY REASON I'm here is because they can't get anyone else to work this cheap," says Roberts, who looks more like judge than janitor with his slicked-back silver hair and proper bowtie.

But from his new position, Roberts again can offer his unsolicited commentary on the affairs of this farming community.

"It's kinda nice to sit back and tell 'em all where to go — and I don't mind doin' it."

Tooth Implant Study Target

BOSTON (AP) — The Harvard School of Dental Medicine will begin a five-year, $800,000 study to compare implanted teeth with dentures conventionally used to replace missing teeth.

Dentists have been implanting teeth for about 10 years, but there are questions about how efficient the implants are and how long they last.

Some patients are inappropriately given implants, said Dr. Paul Schnittman, who will conduct the study with Dr. Leonard Shulman.

HB Employees Rap 'Tattle-phone' Use

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The largest city employee group in Huntington Beach has condemned a telephone disclosure hotline recently set up to report official wrongdoings.

"The hotline is reminiscent of a totalitarian government," officers of the Municipal Employees Association declared in a statement Thursday.

The hotline was put into operation during recent contract negotiations involving the Huntington Beach Police Officers Association.

Mark Reid, chief negotiator for the association, previously said the hotline was established on behalf of the association so that other employees could anonymously disclose alleged misconduct and waste by city officials.

He also previously said that complaints would be forwarded to the California Attorney General, Orange County District Attorney and the press.

Police spokesmen were unavailable for comment today but the hotline number, 934-7233, was still in operation this morning.

Eric Charlone, president of the 500 member municipal employees association, said the hotline could be compared to events of the McCarthy era,

"where persons couldn't meet their accusers."

The statement drafted by the association's board of directors said that procedures already exist in which employees can report political wrongdoings.

"The hotline will serve no legitimate service. To the contrary, it is a vehicle subject to tremendous abuse," the statement said.

"We are shocked that a fellow employee association and union could become involved with such a program."

The police association ratified a one-year contract Wednesday.

Complaints Roll In

Cable TV Official Leaves Under Fire

A top official of the newly formed cable television system for west Orange County has left the company under pressure from a board of elected officials of three cities, it was learned today.

Tim Mullennix, 28, the marketing director of Dickinson Pacific Cablesystems, was dismissed last week after numerous complaints from residents of Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Westminster concerning the company's installation policy.

Huntington Beach City Councilman Don MacAllister said residents weren't being notified that the streets in front of their homes and their yards were to be dug up to install the cable.

He said the directors of the Public Cable Television Authority, which include a councilman from both Fountain Valley and Westminster, demanded that the company take some action to improve the situation.

"Bad public relations was the main problem," MacAllister said. "Also sales have not been that great. The problem was that workers would show up and start digging in someone's front yard and no one had gone out and told them what was happening."

"We demanded that something be done. It was up to the company to take whatever action they deemed necessary," he said.

Dickinson general manager David Edwards confirmed that Mullennix was let go last week.

However, he denied that Mullennix was fired because of the controversy.

"It was a mutual decision," Edwards said. "We just agreed he would pursue his interests in San Diego and that's all. I'm not even admitting he was fired. Fired is not the word."

MacAllister said he received about eight complaints from residents surprised to find workmen digging up their yards. Westminster City Councilman Eldon Gillespie said he'd received about a dozen such complaints in the past few weeks.

Fountain Valley Councilman Ben Nielsen, the other director of the authority, said he'd only received one such complaint.

The $16 million cable television system began its first broadcasts last June. It is expected to be fully operational in the three cities by the end of 1982.

Dump Site Concern Brings Aid Pledge

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

State health officials have agreed to conduct physical examinations of local residents if an outbreak of illness occurs near an abandoned chemical dump site in Huntington Beach.

Dr. L. Rex Ehling, medical director of Orange County, said Thursday that officials of the state Department of Health Services have agreed to work with the county if numerous residents living near the dump should become ill. He said the action would include physical examinations and blood sampling.

The state health department has identified several toxic and cancer causing chemicals buried at the four-acre site. State officials have recommended the contaminated soil be excavated and removed to prevent future health hazards, such as contamination of the water table or explosive underground buildups of methane gas.

Ehling said, however, that currently the dump does not appear to pose a threat to human health.

Ehling discounted allegations that three persons are suffering from cancer and other serious illnesses because of exposure to toxic chemicals in the dump.

He said the illnesses are not similar and appear unrelated. The dump is located 700 feet southeast of the Bolsa Chica Street and Warner Avenue intersection. In the 1940s it was used for oil refinery wastes. In the 1960s it became the Boucher landfill.

Orange County Supervisor Harriett Wiedef, accompanied by state, county and city officials, took a walking tour of the four-acre site Wednesday afternoon.

Coastal Air Breathable Again Today

By DAVID KUTZMANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality (along the Orange County coast)," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

Only one first-stage alert was predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with anticipated pollution reading of .21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high-pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast.

Temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-90s today for inland valleys and low 70s along the coast.

"Little change in temperature is expected on Saturday," a weather service spokesman said.

Budget Padding Charged

Teacher association officials today accused the Huntington Beach Union High School District of padding its budget to avoid giving teachers a substantial raise.

David Chapel, president of the District Educators Association, said the district should reorganize its budget and give instructors a 15 percent pay increase.

Currently, the district's best offer is for an 8 percent raise this year. School board president Doris Allen said that raise for the system's 3,800 teachers would exhaust the district's $2.2 million contingency fund.

But Chapel claims the $50 million general fund is top heavy in many areas, including allocations for supplies and instructional aids.

The negotiations are currently at impasse and a state-appointed mediator has been called in.

The district says it has made its final offer.

The teachers want improved medical benefits and more than an 8 percent raise.

Bank Teller Dead

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song.

"Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1807 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began. This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1860s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Conference For Business Women Slated

A conference for women who own businesses or are considering opening one will be held Saturday in the Community Center at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

Entitled "Women: Minding Your Own Business," the conference will be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will feature experts on law, finance, advertising and management.

According to conference organizers, women make up 52 percent of the nation's population but only 4.6 percent own businesses.

A $2 materials fee will be charged for the conference, which is co-sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

FV Trustees, Nix Block Parent Role

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Concerned about liability problems, Fountain Valley School District trustees Thursday unanimously voted against sponsoring a district-wide Block Parent program.

The trustees did, however, praise the concept and offered to cooperate with a Block Parent program that may be set up under the supervision of local police.

Several Parent-teacher Organizations within the district have organized Block Parent programs for their individual schools. Adults who live near the schools are designated to provide help to youngsters away from their homes.

Such help can range from summoning medical aid to calling police for children who are approached by flashers.

District staff members recently drew up a list of guidelines that would standardize Block Parent progress throughout the district and provide for the direct involvement of school principals.

The district's legal consultants, however, found that the district could be held liable for

Marine Out For Nudity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can see 27-year-old Marine Corps reserve Sgt. Robert Jordan out of uniform in this month's Playgirl magazine. But you won't see him in the Marines.

The Marine Corps gave Jordan his marching papers for bringing "discredit" to the service by appearing nude in Playgirl's "Men of the Military" spread in the October issue, Jordan said Thursday.

Jordan said he was notified of his honorable discharge a week ago in a letter from the commander of his Marine Corps reserve unit in Long Beach.

U.S. Air Force Jets End Egypt Deployment Test

CAIRO WEST AIR BASE, Egypt (AP) — A dozen U.S. Air Force F-4E Phantom jets streaked off the desert runway of this Egyptian military field and headed for home today, capping a 90-day operation aimed at showing that American warplanes can carry their firepower to the oil-rich sands of the Middle East.

"This has been one of the most successful operations ever conducted by the Air Force," said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace as the 12 jets took off on a 15-hour flight to Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga. They are to make 12 in-flight refuelings and stop overnight in the Azores.

Wallace said the operation, dubbed Proud Phantom, proved that American planes can deploy quickly and operate smoothly in the harsh deserts of the Middle East.

100 Battle National Park Blaze

CEDAR GROVE (AP) — Fire officials here grew more hopeful today as a hot, stubborn blaze that has blackened 3,100 acres in Kings Canyon National Park appeared to be running out of brush to burn.

The 3-day blaze is being battled by a force of 400 firefighters, seven air tankers, three helicopters and a fire-spotting plane borrowed from the Forest Service, park spokeswoman Irma Buchholz said.

The firefighters' effort to halt the blaze has been hampered by record temperatures and the steep terrain of the Lewis Creek area, where the fire started.

Carter Refused Free 'Equal Time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is not entitled to free equal time to respond to commercials aired by independent groups supporting Ronald Reagan, the Federal Communications Commission ruled today.

With a crowd of attorneys, political organizers and network television crews looking on, the commission unanimously accepted the position of broadcasters who argued that the law requires only that they sell comparable time to a candidate or his supporters.

The decision was immediately hailed by such independent groups as Americans for Change as a victory for the right of free speech.

State Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported today that the California unemployment rate dropped from 7.3 percent in August to 6.9 percent in September.

Fresno Records 'Hottest October'

By The Associated Press

Fresno has recorded its hottest October day in history and hot, smoggy weather continued today in the San Joaquin Valley, the National Weather Service reported.

Fresno's high Thursday of 101 also was the highest temperature recorded this late in the year in Fresno, weather officials said.

Hot temperatures were reported throughout the valley Thursday, including highs of 102 in Bakersfield and 101 in Stockton.

2 Foes Claim Iran City

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran both claimed their troops were in control of Iran's major port of Khorramshahr today and Iran said it reopened a strategic railroad in the southern war zone that Iraq reported cutting last week.

Tehran radio said a train left the Iranian capital headed for Ahwaz as rail service resumed between these cities. The broadcast said the rail line had been closed because of a break in communications at the station at Andimeshk, a town just north of Dezful, which is 70 miles from the Iraq border where the war began 12 days ago. Early in the fighting, Iraq said its forces penetrated to near Dezful and cut the rail link from Abadan to Tehran.

Iraq said its forces took over the port and were digging in after achieving their main objectives along an invasion front stretching 300 miles to the north.

"There is no trace of any Iranian soldier left in Khorramshahr," Baghdad radio said. "The town is under Iraq's firm control."

It labeled as "hallucination" Iran's claims it was crushing Iraqi troops in Khorramshahr and said: "What few so-called revolutionary guards are left in hiding are being flushed out and mopped up in Khorramshahr. That's all that's happening now."

But Iran's official news agency said the Iraqi troops withdrew from Khorramshahr as late as midnight Thursday after abandoning tanks and other equipment, that water and electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani Sadr said Iranian paratroopers were dropped into Khorramshahr on Thursday, that Iranian warplanes launched attacks to support them and that "enemy-crushing" operations were under way in the port, near the refinery city of Abadan at the head of the Persian Gulf in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Barry Pulliam, assistant superintendent for business services, said several large claims could make it difficult for the Fountain Valley district to continue to obtain liability insurance.

Trustee Sheila Meyers said she supports the Block Parent concept, but added, "Our accepting the liability doesn't give anyone a fair shake."

Board president Betty Mignaneli said the district staff has been instructed to consult Fountain Valley city officials about organizing a Block Parent program under police supervision. After doing so, the staff may return to the trustees with new guidelines for such a program.

Mrs. Mignaneli also said the Block Parent Program is a good topic for discussion at future joint meetings of the school district trustees and the Fountain Valley City Council.

Going Strong Kids' Show Marks 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just another day for the millions of kids in the audience, but for Bob Keeshan, today's broadcast was more than just another opportunity to encourage young children to learn, to feel good about themselves.

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered Oct. 3, 1955, and a quarter-century later is still going strong.

"I will keep it going, the good Lord and CBS willing," Keeshan said in an anniversary interview not long ago, "and I must say, I have never felt more support from the network than I do now."

The anniversary broadcast was marked on air by a stream of the show's regulars congratulating him. Captain Kangaroo, appearing perplexed by all the attention, was given the opportunity to say anything he wished.

"Good morning, Captain," he said into the camera.

Network TV's longest-running children's series began its 26th season less than a month ago, distinct in appearance from that premiere broadcast, but consistent in philosophy.

"The idea is," the 53-year-old Keeshan said, "if you can motivate a child, make the child feel good about herself, or himself, the child will learn."

Keeshan has seen his role change over the years, and is considered an authority on the relationship between children and television. He spends a good deal of his free time on the road, speaking to educators and parents, as well as broadcasters.

"It concerns me," Keeshan said, "when people say, 'Look at all the good things we've done with 'Captain Kangaroo' and 'Sesame Street' and the others. Now we don't have to spend all the money on teachers."

"We're here to aid the teacher," he said, "to back up the good that is being done for the child by others."

Keeshan began his career in television as Clarabell the Clown on the old "Howdy Doody" show. Five years later, he developed his own character, Corny the Clown, and was signed to do a show called "Time for Fun."

A year later, 1954, he created

BIRTHDAY BOY Capt. Kangaroo

Tinker the Toymaker, and produced and performed in a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan has not been alone over the years. Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, has been a regular for years, and Cosmo Allegretti joined the show as Dennis, the apprentice, a short while later.

Allegretti also is the chief puppeteer, responsible for enduring characters like Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit.

There is a footnote to the "Captain Kangaroo" story. "The Mickey Mouse Club" premiered the same day in 1955 on ABC, and left the air four years later.

Actor's Cancer Bout

Nutrition-based Treatment Helps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Steve McQueen, who waged a secret six-month battle against a rare and generally incurable form of cancer, is gradually improving under a nutrition-based treatment developed by a one-time dentist, doctors and spokesmen say.

McQueen, 50, who was not revealing his whereabouts, asked his fans and friends Thursday to "keep your fingers crossed" for a full recovery.

The screen star was told six months ago that he had terminal mesothelioma, a cancer of the lining of the lungs and other organs, according to a statement issued by his publicist, Warren Cowan.

McQueen, who appeared in such films as "The Great Escape" and "Bullitt," had been keeping the illness a secret so that he could keep his "sense of dignity" as he died, the statement said.

But six weeks ago, after a month of the nutrition-based treatment, he began to show improvement and has been gaining weight while the cancer, which had spread to his neck, chest and abdomen, has gone into remission, doctors said.

Most cases of mesothelioma have been associated with exposure to asbestos, a mineral fiber used in insulation, said Dr. Oscar Sherer, a Berkeley lung specialist. McQueen held a variety of jobs before becoming an actor, including that of a merchant seaman.

Asbestos insulation is used extensively in ships. Researchers have discovered that even a brief exposure to the material can sometimes result in lung disease and later mesothelioma.

Dr. William Kelley of the International Health Institute in Dallas, who is helping guide McQueen's treatment, said, "We have been able to prolong the patient's life beyond earlier expectations."

"I believe that Mr. McQueen can fully recover and return to a normal lifestyle," said Kelley.

A colleague at the center, Paul Whetstone, said Kelley developed his treatment after recovering himself from what had been diagnosed 18 years ago as a terminal case of cancer. He was a dentist at the time, but has since given up practice, Whetstone said.

Kelley's treatment, which supplements traditional medical care, tries to build up the body's immunity system so it can resist cancer.

The 2nd District supervisor said she ordered testing of the city's private and public water supply. She said the results will be in next week.

A recent study conducted by a consultant to the owner of the dump states that city and private well water near the dump contains low levels of toxic chemicals, but that the overall quality is good and the water is safe to drink.

Huntington Beach Mayor Ruth Bailey and city councilman Ruth Finley said they will ask the City Council to request the landowner to fence the area to prevent children from playing in the field.

Good Habit To Acquire

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — "It's a great way to keep up with inflation," said Arthur Hoener of Northampton, a $1 million Massachusetts lottery winner who has added $100,000 to his good fortune.

Hoener, 51, who teaches at Hampshire College, won $100,000 in the lottery drawing Wednesday night. Three years ago, he won $50,000 a year for 20 years.

Lottery officials say the odds of winning $1 million are 10 million to one. Hoener, who has three children in college and 14-year-old twin daughters, is the lottery's first repeat big money winner.

Victim, 77, Tells Of Brutal Beating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An elderly witness testifying in the trial of four men accused in the brutal June 3 attack on residents of a San Francisco nursing home carried a message to Judge Robert Dossee.

Mayor Dianne Feinstein said to give them a long, long time," said Fritz Peterson, 77, after he testified how he was pistol-whipped during the orgy of violence that included the rape of a 67-year-old blind woman and the beating and robbery of five other home residents.

The trial continued today in San Francisco superior court.

Peterson, who is so hard of hearing that lawyers had to write out their questions during his testimony, told jurors about the attack on him by a "fella with a .38-caliber chrome pistol with an extra long barrel."

"He slugged me over the head and kicked me down the stairs."

He said something to me that I couldn't hear, then he hit me and kicked me down the stairs," said Peterson.

But Peterson was unable to identify any of the defendants charged in the attack at the nursing home. The defendants, Bobby Ray Varner, 25, Franklin White, 25, Tommy Hart, 26, and Larry Clary, 30, sat passively during the testimony of Peterson and three other nursing home residents. All the defendants are from San Francisco.

Since the incident, Margaret Torpey, the rape victim, has died of cancer and another victim, Claudia Chow, 42, also has died of cancer. A third victim, Paul Erickson, an elderly man with mental problems, dropped out of sight after the incident and could not be located to testify.

Man Ruled Guilty In Beating Death

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tustin apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna

D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Miss D'Aiello lay comatose for about a week. When she finally regained consciousness, she had no memory of the attack, of being pregnant or of her past.

Prosecutor Cliff Harris said she still loved her husband as she recuperated slowly at her parents home, where the defendant helped care for her.

PRUDENT BUYING

This is contrary to popular belief, but makes good sense if you think about it. When you have to concern yourself with value and performance, you are likely to buy better quality.

At Alden's in recent years, our per unit sale has been more expensive carpeting, reflecting this fact. Consequently, we have the largest selection of finer qualities you will see anywhere, all at competitive prices.

Despite PSA Strike Air Travelers Unhindered

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The strike that shut down Pacific Southwest Airlines appeared on the horizon 10 months before it landed, like its big stretch jets that grow out of a tiny speck in the sky.

A week ago, when the 450 pilots and flight engineers walked out after 10 futile months of negotiations, everybody was ready.

Airlines up and down the coast, the biggest ones as well as the tiniest eight-seat commuter lines, grabbed up PSA's stranded 22,000 daily passengers instantly.

BUT AS THE STRIKE entered its second week, everyone but the travelers, who had expected to be hurt the most, was complaining. PSA was losing $1 million a day without any sign of an early resumption of talks to settle the contract dispute.

All but a handful of the 3,700 employees on PSA's payroll will be home by today, laid off and wondering how the bills will be paid.

And the airline that tried to help the most, Pan Am, finds itself with a 333-seat white Dumbo in the skies.

"WE WANTED to help by putting up the DC-10," says Pan Am manager George Wilfert. "The passenger load is getting better, but after a week we're still averaging only 80 passengers. It's got to be half full to pay for itself."

The big strike special leaves at 7 a.m. for Los Angeles and San Francisco, coming back at night after shuttling back and forth four times a day.

"If we don't do better, we'll have to drop it," said Wilfert.

THIS WAS THE SLACK season for air travel in California. Travelers scurried to other ticket counters for a few hours a week ago Thursday but they have reported little inconvenience since.

By prior agreement, other airlines have honored all unused tickets PSA had sold on its 200 daily flights to 13 major cities in California and Nevada as well as Phoenix, and cities in Mexico.

Western Airlines added two round trips to its San Diego-San Francisco and Los Angeles-Sacramento routes and a round trip between Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

DESPITE THAT, SPOKESWOMAN Linda Dozier said most of Western's planes have been flying 15 to 20 percent empty.

A special desk in San Diego was set up by Western for PSA passengers but "we've never had more than 15 to 20 people in that line," she said. "Things were busy but there were seats available."

Julian Levine, a spokesman for Continental Airlines in Los Angeles, said there have been "a few more passengers" than usual on flights between Phoenix and Los Angeles because of the PSA strike.

JACK FRANCOIS, A SPOKESMAN for Los Angeles International Airport, said no problems have been caused by the strike even though PSA flew 70 percent of the travel between LA and San Francisco.

"It's less busy at Terminal Six, the PSA terminal, which used to be jammed up," Francois said.

But problems may develop if the strike is continued past Thanksgiving Day, Francois said.

A SPOKESMAN FOR Host International, operator of airport concessions throughout California, said business is down at San Diego, San Jose and Sacramento, all major PSA points. But Nelson Fitch said he was unable to say how much.

Also hurt have been airport parking lots, restaurants and the rental car businesses.

Irvine Hotel Job Needs Zone Change

The Koll Co. must follow a two-stage zoning process in order to develop a 500-room hotel on the northeast corner of Van Karman Avenue and Michelson Drive, the Irvine Planning Commission has decided.

The commission action Thursday means that the company must seek an amendment to the city's General Plan and a zone change.

City planner Paul Ireland explained this morning that the city's General Plan, the document that sets the broad outlines for Irvine's growth, states that the Koll Co. land is to be used for industrial development.

Ireland said that the company's land use request will probably come before the City Council in the spring of 1981.

In addition to the hotel matter, the Planning Commission also considered plans for the Irvine Company's massive Irvine Center project.

The commercial development, including hotels, department stores and office buildings, is to be built on a 470-acre triangle of land formed by the Laguna, San Diego and Santa Ana freeways.

The Planning Commission won't rule on the Irvine Center plans until later this month when the Irvine Company completes a study saying how much the project will cost the city.

However, at the meeting, the subject of building height was identified as one of the major is-suces involved in the project. Representatives of the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, located north of the project, said that buildings there should be limited to 13 stories in height. The Irvine Company, on the other hand, wants to be able to build 20-story buildings.

Breathe Freely

Coast Air Quality Much Better

By DAVID KUTZMANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality (along the Orange County coast)," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

Only one first-stage alert was predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with anticipated pollution reading of .21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast.

Temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-90s today for inland valleys and low 70s along the coast.

"Little change in temperature is expected on Saturday," a weather service spokesman said.

Collision Victim Assaulted

A Laguna Beach woman driving home on El Toro Road early this morning was struck from behind by a motorist who subsequently sexually assaulted her.

Police said the 19-year-old victim was abducted by the motorist, raped in a rural area of Irvine, and later escaped her assailant by jumping from his moving car near Jeffrey Road and Walnut Avenue in Irvine.

Laguna Beach police said the young woman was returning to Laguna Beach on El Toro Road at about 12:40 a.m. when her car was bumped from the rear by a white sedan.

When she stepped from her vehicle to exchange license numbers, the other motorist reportedly slugged her in the face and dragged her into his own car, leaving her automobile in the middle of the street with lights on and the engine running.

The victim said she was driven to a rural area where she was sexually assaulted in the automobile.

The suspect then drove toward Irvine where the woman said she leaped from the moving vehicle and ran to a nearby shopping center.

Irvine police, alerted by neighbors who heard the woman's cries for help, found her at the center at about 1:30 a.m.

Police are seeking a clean-shaven black male in his 20s, 5-foot 10 inches tall with short hair. The vehicle was described as a white sedan with a dark top.

Iran, Iraq Both Claim Port Control

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran both claimed their troops were in control of Iran's major port of Khorramshahr today and Iran said it reopened a strategic railroad in the southern war zone that Iraq reported cutting last week.

Tehran radio said a train left the Iranian capital headed for Ahwaz as rail service resumed between these cities. The broadcast said the rail line had been closed because of a break in communications at the station at Andimeshk, a town just north of Dezful, which is 70 miles from the Iraq border where the war began 12 days ago. Early in the fighting, Iraq said its forces penetrated to near Dezful and cut the rail link from Abadan to Tehran.

Iraq said its forces took over the port and were digging in after achieving their main objectives along an invasion front stretching 300 miles to the north.

"There is no trace of any Iranian soldier left in Khorramshahr," Baghdad radio said. "The town is under Iraq's firm control."

It labeled as "hallucination" Iran's claims it was crushing Iraqi troops in Khorramshahr and said: "What few so-called revolutionary guards are left in hiding are being flushed out and mopped up in Khorramshahr. That's all that's happening now."

But Iran's official Pars news agency said the Iraqi troops withdrew from Khorramshahr as late as midnight Thursday after abandoning tanks and other equipment, that water and electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Iranian paratroopers were dropped into Khorramshahr on Thursday, that Iranian warplanes launched attacks to support them and that "enemy-crushing" operations were under way in the port, near the refinery city of Abadan at the head of the Persian Gulf in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

School Unit Meets

The Irvine School trustees will consider the subject of minimum proficiency standards for high schoolers when they meet Monday. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Lakeside Middle School, 3 Lemongrass St., Irvine.

Bani-Sadr said Iranian troops also routed Iraqi forces from Susangerd, 100 miles to the north, that the Iraqis were in retreat toward the border and that Iranian forces captured 70 Iraqi tanks and armored personnel carriers and "large numbers of Iraqi soldiers."

The Baghdad command said Thursday that "unless the scale of fighting warranted, there will be only one military communication daily since Iraqi forces have achieved their main objectives and will concentrate on consolidation of their achievements."

It also said its naval units "inflicted serious damage" on Iranian military positions at Abadan, several miles from Khorramshahr, and that Iraqi MiGs attacked the Dezful area, 150 miles north of Abadan.

However, it also said Iranian jets hit five Iraqi provinces, that five Iraqi civilians were wounded in air strikes on the southern Iraqi city of Amara and that two Iranian jets were shot down over Amara and Basra.

The radio station in Ahwaz, capital of Khuzestan province 70 miles north of Abadan, said Thursday that "the enemy has been defeated and is making dastardly efforts in only a few places." But the broadcast conceded "a number of feudalists are giving shelter to atheist forces," meaning some ethnic Arabs in Khuzestan were aiding Iraqi Arab soldiers. Another broadcast warned Iranian Arab tribesmen they would be "condemned to death" if they helped Iraqi soldiers.

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song. "Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1807 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began.

This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1800s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Irvine Bank Hit Again by Robber

In the second holdup there this year, an Irvine bank branch has been robbed of $1,400 by a man in a three-piece, pinstriped suit, authorities said.

The man calmly walked up to a teller Thursday, pretended to have a gun and told her to give him all the money in her drawer, Irvine police Detective Ron Veach said today.

He said the robber then ran into the bank's parking lot and sped away in a two-door Ford. The culprit is described as having dark hair, weighing 135 pounds and being about 5-foot-5.

The same Walnut Village Branch of Security Pacific National Bank, 14477 Culver Drive, was robbed of $1,200 last April by a 6-foot gunman.

Bank president Stacey Martin said today the man who committed the first robbery was arrested and pleaded no contest to robbery charges.

The latest robbery isn't connected to the holdup last week of California First Bank in Irvine, Detective Veach said. He explained that the person who robbed that bank was taller and operated differently.

Veach said police and the FBI are working on the case.

Marine Out For Nudity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can see 27-year-old Marine Corps reserve Sgt. Robert Jordan out of uniform in this month's Playgirl magazine. But you won't see him in the Marines.

The Marine Corps gave Jordan his marching papers for bringing "discredit" to the service by appearing nude in Playgirl's "Men of the Military" spread in the October issue, Jordansaid Thursday.

Jordan said he was notified of his honorable discharge a week ago in a letter from the commander of his Marine Corps reserve unit in Long Beach.

U.S. Air Force Jets End Egypt Deployment Test

CAIRO WEST AIR BASE, Egypt (AP) — A dozen U.S. Air Force F-4E Phantom jets streaked off the desert runway of this Egyptian military field and headed for home today, capping a 90-day operation aimed at showing that American warplanes can carry their firepower to the oil-rich sands of the Middle East.

"This has been one of the most successful operations ever conducted by the Air Force," said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace as the 12 jets took off on a 15-hour flight to Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga. They are to make 12 in-flight refuelings and stop overnight in the Azores.

Wallace said the operation, dubbed Proud Phantom, proved that American planes can deploy quickly and operate smoothly in the harsh deserts of the Middle East.

100 Battle National Park Blaze

CEDAR GROVE (AP) — Fire officials here grew more hopeful today as a hot, stubborn blaze that has blackened 3,100 acres in Kings Canyon National Park appeared to be running out of brush to burn.

The 3-day blaze is being battled by a force of 400 firefighters, seven air tankers, three helicopters and a fire-spotting plane borrowed from the Forest Service, park spokeswoman Irma Buchholz said.

The firefighters' effort to halt the blaze has been hampered by record temperatures and the steep terrain of the Lewis Creek area, where the fire started.

Carter Refused Free 'Equal Time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is not entitled to free equal time to respond to commercials aired by independent groups supporting Ronald Reagan, the Federal Communications Commission ruled today.

With a crowd of attorneys, political organizers and network television crews looking on, the commission unanimously accepted the position of broadcasters who argued that the law requires only that they sell comparable time to a candidate or his supporters.

The decision was immediately hailed by such independent groups as Americans for Change as a victory for the right of free speech.

State Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported today that the California unemployment rate dropped from 7.3 percent in August to 6.9 percent in September.

Fresno Records 'Hottest October'

By The Associated Press

Fresno has recorded its hottest October day in history and hot, smoggy weather continued today in the San Joaquin Valley, the National Weather Service reported.

Fresno's high Thursday of 101 also was the highest temperature recorded this late in the year in Fresno, weather officials said.

Hot temperatures were reported throughout the valley Thursday, including highs of 102 in Bakersfield and 101 in Stockton.

Wife Beaten

Man Ruled Guilty In Beating Death

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tustin apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife

consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Miss D'Aiello lay comatose for about a week. When she finally regained consciousness, she had no memory of the attack, of being pregnant or of her past.

Prosecutor Cliff Harris said she still loved her husband as she recuperated slowly at her parents home, where the defendant helped care for her.

But as she recalled more of her past, as well as regaining her ability to speak, she realized Green was responsible for her injuries, the prosecutor said. It was then Green was arrested for the attack, which police at first speculated could have been the work of the unknown killer who had attacked other women in surrounding communities.

Harris said Green's story "defied common sense" and that Miss D'Aiello had no reason to lie about the attack because she once loved her former mate.

"I think she's a believable person," he said.

Defense attorney Richard Curran argued that no blood was ever found on Green's key holder and that the defendant had spotted a suspicious looking man outside the apartment complex when he went out for his late-night trip for food.

College Line-up

Students at Christ College in Irvine lined up for fall registration recently. It was one of the few lines they'll have to stand in during their college careers because the four-year liberal arts school has an enrollment of just 159 students this year. The college, located on a 113-acre hilltop site, graduated its first class last spring. See today's Featuring section, Page B8.

Victim, 77, Tells Of Brutal Beating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An elderly witness testifying in the trial of four men accused in the brutal June 3 attack on residents of a San Francisco nursing home carried a message to Judge Robert Dossee.

"Mayor Dianne Feinstein said to give them a long, long time," said Fritz Peterson, 77, after he testified how he was pistol-whipped during the orgy of violence that included the rape of a 67-year-old blind woman and the beating and robbery of five other home residents.

The trial continued today in San Francisco superior court.

Peterson, who is so hard of hearing that lawyers had to write out their questions during his testimony, told jurors about the attack on him by a "fella with a .38-caliber chrome pistol with an extra long barrel."

Mesa Church Loses Bid, Goes Higher

Calvary Chapel is continuing negotiations for the 2,800-acre Warner Hot Springs Resort even though the Costa Mesa-based church lost the property to a higher bidder.

Pastor Chuck Smith said today the church may offer $4.5 million to the San Francisco-based firm, A. Cal Rossi Co. Ltd., which purchased the resort for a reported $4.2 million.

Until its $4 million offer was refused last week the Costa Mesa church had planned to sell a retreat in Lake Arrowhead to help pay for the Warner resort near San Diego. It includes 96 cottages, a lodge, a golf course and a 5,000-foot air strip.

If the church is successful in its new negotiations for the resort, Smith said, a retirement community, college, campsite and rehabilitation center for teenagers will be established there.

The resort was sold Thursday, more than a year after its West German owner, American Ranch Ferien GmbH & Co. Analgen K.G. closed it.

"He slugged me over the head and kicked me down the stairs. He said something to me that I couldn't hear, then he hit me and kicked me down the stairs," said Peterson.

But Peterson was unable to identify any of the defendants charged in the attack at the nursing home. The defendants, Bobby Ray Varner, 25, Franklin White, 25, Tommy Hart, 26, and Larry Clary, 30, sat passively during the testimony of Peterson and three other nursing home residents. All the defendants are from San Francisco.

Since the incident, Margaret Torpey, the rape victim, has died of cancer and another victim, Claudia Chow, 42, also has died of cancer. A third victim, Paul Erickson, an elderly man with mental problems, dropped out of sight after the incident and could not be located to testify.

But the prosecution is basing its case on the residents who can testify.

Constance Jacobs, 52, described how a man burst into her room while she was lying in bed, and without a word, slugged her across the forehead with a silver pistol and took $2 from her purse and walked out with her watch.

Another witness, Andrew McDonald, 76, testified that "They grabbed me by the back of the head and pulled me head-down while one kned me in the belly. That made me so sick I threw up."

The defendants are charged variously with rape, robbery and assault. If convicted, each face maximum prison terms of 28 years.

Going Strong Kids' Show Marks 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just another day for the millions of kids in the audience, but for Bob Keeshan, today's broadcast was more than just another opportunity to encourage young children to learn, to feel good about themselves.

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered Oct. 3, 1955, and a quarter-century later is still going strong.

"I will keep it going, the good Lord and CBS willing," Keeshan said in an anniversary interview not long ago, "and I must say, I have never felt more support from the network than I do now."

The anniversary broadcast was marked on air by a stream of the show's regulars congratulating him. Captain Kangaroo, appearing perplexed "by all the attention, was given the opportunity to say anything he wished.

"Good morning, Captain," he said into the camera.

Network TV's longest-running children's series began its 26th season less than a month ago, distinct in appearance from that premiere broadcast, but consistent in philosophy.

"The idea is," the 53-year-old Keeshan said, "if you can motivate a child, make the child feel good about herself, or himself, the child will learn."

Keeshan has seen his role change over the years, and is considered an authority on the relationship between children and television. He spends a good deal of his free time on the road, speaking to educators and parents, as well as broadcasters.

"It concerns me," Keeshan said, "when people say, 'Look at all the good things we've done with 'Captain Kangaroo' and 'Sesame Street' and the others. Now we don't have to spend all the money on teachers.'"

"We're here to aid the teacher," he said, "to back up the good that is being done for the child by others."

Keeshan began his career in television as Clarabell the Clown on the old "Howdy Doody" show. Five years later he developed his own character, Corny the Clown, and was signed to do a show called "Time for Fun."

A year later, 1954, he created

Tinker the Toymaker, and produced and performed in a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan has not been alone over the years. Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, has been a regular for years, and Cosmo Allegretti joined the show as Dennis, the apprentice, a short while later.

Allegretti also is the chief puppeteer, responsible for enduring characters like Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit.

There is a footnote to the "Captain Kangaroo" story. "The Mickey Mouse Club" premiered the same day in 1955 on ABC, and left the air four years later.

Soft Drink Firms Settle Lawsuit

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Two archrivals for the nation's soft drink business reached an out-of-court settlement in a lawsuit filed by PepsiCo Inc. to prevent Coca-Cola Co. from finding out about Pepsi's top secret marketing strategy for 1981.

In the settlement reached Thursday, Donald Breen, 27, a former Pepsi associate marketing manager, agreed not to discuss with his new employer, Coca-Cola, the strategy developed during his tenure at Pepsi.

In return, Pepsi dropped its suit against Breen and Coca-Cola.

Pepsi, headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., said it has spent millions of dollars in the past nine months to develop "the Pepsi Challenge," a consumer taste comparison test of both colas that will be publicized in certain areas of the country next year.

Breen, who switched to Atlanta-based Coca-Cola on Sept. 9,

"knows when and where it will be implemented," according to Pepsi lawyer Elizabeth Head.

She told State Supreme Court Justice Vincent Gurahian at a hearing Thursday that Pepsi's rival was so delighted at winning Breen away that it flew him to a Coca-Cola bottlers' meeting in a company jet.

"He was personally toasted and greeted by Coca-Cola's president," Miss Head said.

Coca-Cola's lawyer Stuart Robinowitz denied receiving confidential information from Breen. Robinowitz said the company "has never been accused of anything like this."

"For the most part we know in advance through normal trade sources when the Pepsi Challenge campaign will be instituted," he said. "Our people are rarely surprised."

Where 22 Died Widening of Road Urged in Laguna

By DON CHAPMAN Of the Daily Pilot Staff. Laguna Beach City Council members Tuesday will receive recommendations from city officials for widening Laguna Canyon Road, where 22 people have died in traffic accidents since 1975. The $4 million project would include widening the road to four lanes from Canyon Acres Drive to the San Diego Freeway. By approving the recommendation, the council would be endorsing an approach favored by the Policy Advisory Committee for Laguna Canyon Road. The committee includes representatives from Laguna Beach, Irvine, the Orange County Transportation Commission and Caltrans. Widening of the road had previously been estimated to cost about $7 million. But the policy committee — for cost reasons — rejected construction of a raised landscaped median separated from the roadway by concrete or asphalt curbing. City Manager Ken Frank, in a report to council members, said that the committee was interested in the city's position on improvement of the road.

SC Eyes Transit Terminal

San Clemente has hired a Newport Beach consulting firm to study the feasibility of putting all transportation services within the city at one terminal.

The terminal would serve passengers of Amtrak, Orange County Transportation District buses, two private bus lines, and taxi companies.

Council members approved a $25,000 contract with Basmacyan-Darnell, Inc. of Newport Beach to complete the study for a "multi-modal transportation terminal" to be located somewhere within the city.

The study would identify a site for the proposed facility, said City Manager George Carvalho.

One location under consideration is near the North Beach Clubhouse.

"The railroad tracks are there and it's close to El Camino Real for the bus lines and taxis," Carvalho said.

The advantage of such a terminal, Carvalho said, would be to tie together the various means of transportation by put-

McQueen's Cancer 'In Remission'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Steve McQueen, who waged a secret six-month battle against a rare and generally incurable form of cancer, is gradually improving under a nutrition-based treatment developed by a one-time dentist, doctors and spokesmen say.

McQueen, 50, who was not revealing his whereabouts, asked his fans and friends Thursday to "keep your fingers crossed" for a full recovery.

The screen star was told six months ago that he had terminal mesothelioma, a cancer of the lining of the lungs and other organs, according to a statement issued by his publicist, Warren Cowan.

McQueen, who appeared in such films as "The Great Escape" and "Bullitt," had been keeping the illness a secret so that he could keep his "sense of dignity" as he died, the statement said.

But six weeks ago, after a month of the nutrition-based treatment, he began to show improvement and has been gaining weight while the cancer, which had spread to his neck, chest and abdomen, has gone into remission, doctors said.

Most cases of mesothelioma have been associated with exposure to asbestos, a mineral fiber used in insulation, said Dr. Oscar Sherer, a Berkeley lung specialist. McQueen held a variety of jobs before becoming an actor, including that of a merchant seaman.

Asbestos insulation is used extensively in ships. Researchers have discovered that even a brief exposure to the material can sometimes result in lung disease and later mesothelioma.

Dr. William Kelley of the International Health Institute in Dallas, who is helping guide McQueen's treatment, said, "We have been able to prolong the patient's life beyond earlier expectations."

"I believe that Mr. McQueen can fully recover and return to a normal lifestyle," said Kelley.

A colleague at the center, Paul Whetstone, said Kelley developed his treatment after recovering himself from what had been diagnosed 18 years ago as a terminal case of cancer. He was a dentist at the time, but has

Subdivision Hearing Set In Laguna

Non-injury Crash Blocks SD Freeway

Three persons escaped injury this morning when two vehicles with trailers collided on the San Diego Freeway north of the Ortega Highway and blocked commuter traffic for about an hour.

California Highway Patrol officers said a truck pulling a trailer and semi-trailer and a jeep towing a trailer collided at about 6:40 a.m. while both were headed south on the freeway.

The jeep, officers said, was demolished in the accident, but a man driving the vehicle and a woman passenger weren't injured. Their names were not available this morning, officers said.

The driver of the truck also escaped injury, according to officers.

The accident occurred after the jeep went out of control in front of the truck, officers said.

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song.

"Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1877 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began.

This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1850s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Coast Air Quality Acceptable Level

By DAVID KUTZMANN

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality (along the Orange Coast county)," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

Only one first-stage alert was predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with anticipated pollution reading of .21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high-pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast.

Temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-90s today for inland valleys and low 70s along the coast.

"Little change in temperature is expected on Saturday," a weather service spokesman said.

U.S. Air Force Jets End Egypt Deployment Test

CAIRO WEST AIR BASE, Egypt (AP) — A dozen U.S. Air Force F-4E Phantom jets streaked off the desert runway of this Egyptian military field and headed for home today, capping a 90-day operation aimed at showing that American warplanes can carry their firepower to the oil-rich sands of the Middle East.

"This has been one of the most successful operations ever conducted by the Air Force," said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace as the 12 jets took off on a 15-hour flight to Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga. They are to make 12 in-flight refuelings and stop overnight in the Azores.

Wallace said the operation, dubbed Proud Phantom, proved that American planes can deploy quickly and operate smoothly in the harsh deserts of the Middle East.

The decision was immediately hailed by such independent groups as Americans for Change as a victory for the right of free speech.

Dr. Stuart Myers, the vet, said the ape had "the classical symptoms of strychnine poisoning" when brought to his office. "But none of that can be proven because the owner of the animal did not want an autopsy performed."

Man Ruled Guilty In Beating Death

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tustin apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna

D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Miss D'Aiello lay comatose for about a week. When she finally regained consciousness, she had no memory of the attack, of being pregnant or of her past.

Prosecutor Cliff Harris said she still loved her husband as she recuperated slowly at her parents home, where the defendant helped care for her.

Iran, Iraq Claim Control of Port

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran both claimed their troops were in control of Iran's major port of Khorramshahr today and Iran said it reopened a strategic railroad in the southern war zone that Iraq reported cutting last week.

Tehran radio said a train left the Iranian capital headed for Ahwaz as rail service resumed between these cities. The broadcast said the rail line had been closed because of a break in communications at the station at Andimeshk, a town just north of Dezful, which is 70 miles from the Iraq border where the war began 12 days ago. Early in the fighting, Iraq said its forces penetrated to near Dezful and cut the rail link from Abadan to Tehran.

Iraq said its forces took over the port and were digging in after achieving their main objectives along an invasion front stretching 300 miles to the north.

"There is no trace of any Iranian soldier left in Khorramshahr," Baghdad radio said. "The town is under Iraq's firm control."

It labeled as "hallucination" Iran's claims it was crushing Iraqi troops in Khorramshahr and said: "What few so-called revolutionary guards are left in hiding are being flushed out and mopped up in Khorramshahr. That's all that's happening now."

But Iran's official Pars news agency said the Iraqi troops withdrew from Khorramshahr as late as midnight Thursday after abandoning tanks and other equipment, that water and electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Business Raps Prop. 10

Smoking Ban Said to Hurt Factories, Bars

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Businessmen are complaining that the new anti-smoking measure on the state ballot would hurt factories and bars.

The measure, Proposition 10, would require posted smoking and no-smoking sections in most work places and buildings open to the public. It would ban smoking in the public areas of retail stores, except tobacco shops. Violators could be fined $15.

OPPOSITION ATTACKED Proposition 10 at a news conference here by the state Chamber of Commerce, the California Manufacturers Association, the National Federation of Independent Businesses and other business groups.

Said the manufacturers' lawyer, Al Libra, "We would have a tremendous complication in attempting to designate smoking and no-smoking areas in manufacturing plants."

Ed Salyer, of a bar in suburban North Highlands, said, "Beer and cigarettes . . . have gone together since alcohol was first invented."

SALYER SAID 90 percent of his customers smoke, and since smoke circulates around the bar, a no-smoking section wouldn't work. Many of the customers would leave if they couldn't smoke.

The measure, to be on the Nov. 4 ballot, is a somewhat restricted version of a 1978 initiative that the voters rejected after a record $6.5 million campaign against it by tobacco companies.

The companies have made relatively modest contributions to the No-on-10 campaign, but their involvement is increasing.

No-on-10 spokesman Jack Johnson said that the campaign spent $250,000 since Sept. 23 on radio and television advertising.

JACK McDOWELL, whose firm managed the campaign against the 1978 initiative, said the tobacco companies "have decided to support the campaign even at this late time." He said he had just been hired to run another advertising campaign.

McDowell said radio advertising began Tuesday, and television would start in three or four days.

Proposition 10's sponsor, San Francisco lawyer Paul Loveday, accused the tobacco companies of "an attempt to defraud the public" by delaying contributions until after Sept. 23, the last public reporting date. The next reporting date is Oct. 23, 12 days before the election.

On Sept. 23, the No-on-10 campaign reported raising $384,000, mostly from four tobacco companies, and spending $304,000 between July 1 and Sept. 23.

THE YES-ON-10 campaign reported raising $410,000 and spending $344,000. But about two-thirds of the effort went to qualify the measure for the ballot.

Loveday predicted that bars such as Salyer's would be exempted under a provision letting the state Health Services Department decide where smoking limits would be "inappropriate."

He said some bars are dinner clubs and could have separate sections.

Carter Says He's Not Superstitious

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — President Carter says he is aware of a bizarre historical pattern in which presidents elected in years ending in zero die in office but he is willing to risk death because being president is the "ultimate achievement."

"The American people have given me an honor that I never dreamed of (when he was a child) and I think it would be worth it even if I knew it would end in some kind of tragedy," he said during a question and answer session Thursday with citizens gathered here in a convention hall.

The president, never saying he disbelieved that such a thing would happen, declared he was "not afraid. If I knew it was going to happen I would go ahead and be president and do the best I could."

"I am willing to take the chance. I still say that in a silly way—even if I knew I would die in office if I were president, I would still run for the office because I think it's the most exciting and challenging and important position in the free world . . . In politics it's the ultimate achievement."

Wins Round

Rep. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., has won a preliminary decision against a charge that he leaked classified information about Soviet missile operations, but he may face further investigation.

Crash Death Award Given

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Superior Court jury awarded $150,000 to the 13-year-old son of a New York engineer who was killed in the 1978 Pacific Southwest Airlines air disaster.

The award to Michael S. Tetelman of Orinda came after PSA attorney William Fitzgerald suggested a $90,000 settlement as compensation for the death of Alan S. Tetelman.

Tetelman's divorced wife and the boy's mother, Ellen Wright Watzlawick, told the jury the father was obligated to $150 child support but was paying $500 a month voluntarily.

RDF Unit No 'Paper Tiger'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commander of America's Rapid Deployment Force says his new unit is able "to go to war today" and is "not a paper tiger."

But, Marine Lt. Gen. Paul X. Kelley told the House Budget Committee, "the strategic airlift capability we have today, while significant, is not sufficient to put a capital 'r' in 'rapid.'"

The unit was formed this year to give the American military the capability to respond quickly to crises anywhere in the world — particularly the Persian Gulf.

1906 SF Quake Measured Anew

PASADENA (AP) — Scientists who tracked down and rebuilt two antique instruments that measured the great San Francisco earthquake say the 1906 killer apparently was not much stronger than a 1971 quake that rumbled through the San Fernando Valley.

Engineering professor Paul Jennings of Caltech said the data — the first to measure the impact of the devastating tremor — does not affect the validity of the estimated Richter scale magnitude of 8.25 usually assigned to the 1906 quake.

"What we've done is provide another measure of the earthquake that wasn't available before," he said.

BY RE-EXAMINING old records and the antique devices which made them, Jennings and geophysicist Hiroo Kanamori put the "local magnitude" of the quake at 6.9 on the Richter scale of ground motion.

Local magnitude is a measure of ground shaking near the earthquake fault and "that's particularly important when you're designing structures so they won't be damaged," Jennings said.

The larger 8.25 figure is the surface wave magnitude, the overall size of the quake but not necessarily the degree of local shaking.

THE TWO measurements are about the same for most small to moderate earthquakes. But, because of the way they're obtained, they begin to diverge in major tremors.

The differences can be substantial, since each increase of one number of the magnitude scale — for example, an increase of 4.0 in the Richter scale as compared to 5.0 — represents a tenfold increase in magnitude.

The San Francisco quake, which killed 600 and left $500 million in damage, occurred before magnitude scales existed. But it was the first major American quake to be recorded on scientific instruments — the predecessors of modern seismographs.

TO DEVELOP a mathematical formula for reading local magnitude from vintage records, the scientists had to hunt two early devices that had recorded the 1906 event. When the quake hit, one device was about 40 miles from San Francisco, while the other was 175 miles away in Carson City, Nev.

The Nevada instrument, broken and dusty, was found at the University of Nevada-Reno. Caltech technicians repaired the device and fashioned replacements for missing parts.

"It was a real detective hunt to actually find these things and build them back up and then to see them to work," said Jennings.

Local shaking in the San Francisco quake, it turns out, wasn't much stronger than that which rattled the San Fernando Valley near Los Angeles in 1971. That tremor, which measured about 6.5 on both scales, killed 65.

'Male Sexuality' Seminar Saturday

A free seminar entitled "Male Sexuality and Male Mid-Life Crisis" will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday in Forum 1 at Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

Topics to be discussed include the process by which men learn about their sex roles, the influence of the mass media on male sexuality, and how to cope with mid-life changes.

Selection Far Off

23 States Combed For Nuclear Dump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-three states are being studied in search for a site for an underground dump for highly radioactive wastes, the Energy Department says.

But department officials emphasized Thursday that the review is in its preliminary stages and it will be four years before the site is selected.

SIXTEEN STATES IN THE EAST and Great Lakes regions were picked because a consultant's study said they offered the most promising granite formations.

The states named were Connecticut, Georgia, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

States already under study are Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Washington.

Salt dome formations are being studied in Mississippi, Louisiana and east Texas, and bedded salt formations in the Texas Panhandle, eastern New Mexico and eastern Utah. The area under study in Utah is the Nevada Test Site at Jackass Flats and in Washington it is the low-level nuclear storage site at Hanford.

FROM ALL THESE SITES AND possibly more which will be added later, the department hopes to pick the four or five best candidates for detailed exploration. That will consist of sinking shafts costing between $150 million and $200 million to determine whether the location would be a safe location for the thousands of years that high-level nuclear wastes remain dangerous. Construction and licensing of the final site is expected to take until the end of the century.

President Carter announced the timetable in February when he unveiled the government's first comprehensive plan for handling this country's nuclear garbage.

Gardening

Weed, Reseed

Fall Is Time For Lawn Care

By the end of summer our lawns have suffered to one degree or another from neglect. Summer's extended dry spells and compaction from heavy foot traffic are two problems which wary gardeners can avoid, but this is not easily done.

Fortunately the time is ripe to do something for that needy lawn. Not so much for immediate effect but for the spring when your lawn will once again start to grow.

THE FIRST STEP is to use a mechanical sweeper or wire rake and clear the lawn of summer's collected clippings and other debris which might smother the roots during a wet winter. When raking, work the lawn over thoroughly. Rough it up and don't be timid about it. Now, mow it closely.

If you have weeds, and who doesn't have a few, take the easy way out by applying a commercial weed control.

If you have a dichondra lawn or one with clover in it, spot control is recommended.

BADLY RUNDOWN lawns should be reseeded this month, as should Bermuda grass lawns if you want them green over the winter months. Caution: depending on the weed killer wait 10-30 days before sowing seed; broadcast it over bare spots in the same quantity you would use in planting a new lawn. After this top dress these areas with humus to cover the seeds and sprinkle with a fine spray of water. Keep the seedbed moist at all times, even if it means three sprinklings a day until the seeds sprout.

Bermuda grass lawns should be renovated by stiff crossraking as described previously and by a close cropping of the mower. Then overseed with an annual ryegrass which sprouts quickly. This will give you the green lawn you want during the winter months when Bermuda grass is brown and dormant.

AS ALWAYS, your most trusted ally to help you efficiently at such lawn care is your local nurseryman. He will be able to give you the best advice for your particular weed problem as he is the most familiar with your local soil and climatic conditions.

Once you've waged the war against weeds, follow up with two applications of fertilizer spaced about a month to six weeks apart this fall. Your lawn will be happier this spring and so will you!

Scent of Spring

One of nature's most generous gifts is the hyacinth. The heady fragrance announces the arrival of spring, delighting all who detect the scent. Plant bulbs now near walks and entrance ways for most enjoyment in the spring.

California Has Color Year-round

Fall color in the garden needn't be lacking in California gardens. There are shrubs and trees that will give brilliant displays of color and become splendid additions to the garden year-round.

It's always a pleasure to discover certain shrubs and trees that do put on a seasonal show and it should be the aim of the gardener to use them where he can.

IN THE ORDER of trees you can try the Liquidambar or sweet gum. In October and November, its maple-shaped leaves become a montage of yellow and reds complementing the slender, angular branches. Or maybe you'd like the effect of the Ginkgo biloba, maidenhair tree, in the fall when the leathery, light green leaves of spring and summer suddenly turn into gold. There are also some members of the well-loved maple family that are natural for fall color and grow well in California except in the extremely warm climates. Red flowers adorn the red maple before the leaves turn a glorious red in the fall. The Japanese maple has leaf interest all year round. Young spring growth is a glowing red, summer's is a soft green and the foliage turns scarlet, orange or yellow in the fall.

IN SHRUBS you will find the Oregon grape which is perhaps better adapted to Northern California but those in the southern part of the state can plant the very similar California grape. Either is a year-round performer with glossy, holly-like leaves, bright yellow flowers in early spring, blue summer berries and richly red foliage tones in the fall. Oregon grape is an excellent shrub in borders or foundations and California grape is ideal for coastal climates.

Cop Guards Cornstalk, Single Ear

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The 6-foot cornstalk with its single ear of corn may not yet stand as high as an elephant's eye, but it's the pride of Gene Barton's eye.

"That's a good stalk of corn. Maybe it only has one ear, but what do you expect?" he asked. Indeed, the cornstalk took root in a most unlikely place — in gravel outside a window at the Roanoke Courthouse.

Barton, a sergeant in the city Sheriff's Department, found three kernels of corn some weeks ago on a courtroom bench. He tossed the kernels out a window and into the gravel surrounding a parking area as he tidied up the courtroom.

Weeks later, when I opened the window again to let some air in on a hot day, there was this shoot of corn," he said.

He says he'll watch the ear another couple of days and then eat it.

Trees Colorful

Transplanted easterners who miss the lovely autumn color of their homes will be glad to learn that a few of the deciduous trees with lovely fall colors can be grown successfully in California.

Such trees are the Sweet Gum (Liquidambar), Chinese Pistache (Pistacia chinensis), Raywood Ash (Fraxinus ornus 'Raywood') and the Maidenhair (Ginkgo biloba).

Weekend Gardening Checklist

• Scatter snail and slug bait around newly planted annuals. In this dry year, they're even hungrier for tender new plants.

• Keep leaves removed from your lawn. They can pack down excluding light and air from the grass which creates unhealthy conditions.

• Camellias are setting buds now — and most set too many. Thin them for bigger and better flowers.

• Prune evergreen vines like star jasmine, honeysuckle, purple trumpet vine and ivy to keep them well shaped. Prune evergreen clematis very lightly as it blooms early in the spring on wood grown this last summer.

• Select early flowering sasanqua camellias for an even longer camellia blooming season.

Grove Branch Meets Tuesday

Garden Grove Branch of the National Fuchsia Society will meet Tuesday in Garden Grove Community Center, 11300 Standford Ave., Garden Grove.

Guest speaker will be Paul Kraft, president of the North Long Beach Branch of the National Fuchsia Society, who will present a pruning clinic.

Members are asked to bring a fuchsia plant and Kraft will furnish the expertise in pruning tips.

Scales Most Destructive Sucking Insects Attack Variety of Plants

You may think they are bumps on a branch. They don't look or act like typical insects. But scales are among the most destructive plant feeding insects, says Demetrios G. Kontaxis, public service pest management farm adviser of University of California Cooperative Extension.

They attack a variety of plants including fruit and forest trees, woody ornamentals, and houseplants. He adds that scale-infested plants may be stunted, weak, drop fruit and leaves, lose branches or die. The UC specialist explains about the pests and how to control them.

SCALES GIVE THE APPEARANCE of tiny bumps or bits of scabby or waxy material. They may be white, gray, brown, red or black. These small insects vary in size according to species. They spend most of their lives without moving, fastened to the plant, which makes them difficult to recognize.

Most mature scale females lay eggs directly beneath their body. The eggs hatch into crawlers which move about until they find a suitable place to settle and insert their mouthparts into the plant. They suck nutritional juices and remain in the same place. Wind, insects, birds and people disseminate the crawlers from one plant to another.

WHEN THEY BECOME numerous they may completely cover stems and leaves of infested plants. Scales can injure plants directly by sucking juice and secreting toxic substance into them. Or they can harm plants indirectly by excreting large amounts of honeydew (a sticky liquid which collects on leaves and objects below the plant). A black sooty mold often grows on honeydew that impairs photosynthesis.

To control these insects, keep in mind that their natural enemies have a main part in destroying 90 to 95 percent of them. So protecting beneficial insects is important. Some scales greatly increase in number because they are well suited to the plant and environment and because natural controls are less effective.

Use chemical spray to control scale when a plant is heavily infested, its parts look unhealthy, or large quantities of honeydew or sooty mold are present. To apply insecticide carefully follow directions on the label. The plant must be thoroughly covered with the spray solution.

WHILE A PLANT is dormant (late winter or before bud swelling — January to mid-February) you can spray with winter oil alone (never spray conifers — cone bearing plants — with oil) or in a combination with insecticides such as Carbaryl (Sevin), Diazinon, Malathion, or Orthene. Do not apply Orthene on plants grown for food. If Carbaryl is used, watch for spider mite build-up.

You can also spray during the plant's growing season when scales are tiny or no eggs are under the scale. Apply summer oil and/or insecticides such as those mentioned.

Or in late spring-early summer use a multi-spray program (three sprays with one of the aforementioned materials at 3-week intervals).

At any time of the year multiple sprays can offer effective scale control on house plants. Remove as many adult scales as possible before treating. Place houseplants outdoors, spray thoroughly, and bring back inside only when they are dry. Never use oils on houseplants for insect control.

Ferns are sensitive to many chemicals. It may be best to discard such plants when scale infestations develop.

Soft Drink Rivals Settle Lawsuit

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) Two archrivals for the nation's soft drink business reached an out-of-court settlement in a lawsuit filed by PepsiCo Inc. to prevent Coca-Cola Co. from finding out about Pepsi's top secret marketing strategy for 1981.

former Pepsi associate marketing manager, agreed not to discuss with his new employer, Coca-Cola, the strategy developed during his tenure at Pepsi. In return, Pepsi dropped its suit against Breen and Coca-Cola. Pepsi, headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., said it has spent millions of dollars in the past nine months to develop "the Pepsi Challenge," a consumer taste comparison test of both colas that will be publicized in certain areas of the country next year. Breen, who switched to Atlanta-based Coca-Cola on Sept. 9, "knows when and where it will be implemented," according to Pepsi lawyer, Elizabeth Head.

She told State Supreme Court Justice Vincent Gurahian at a hearing Thursday that Pepsi's rival was so delighted at winning Breen away that it flew him to a Coca-Cola bottlers' meeting in a company jet. "He was personally toasted and greeted by Coca-Cola's president," Miss Head said.

Coca-Cola's lawyer Stuart Robinowitz denied receiving confidential information from Breen. Robinowitz said the company "has never been accused of anything like this." "For the most part we know in advance through normal trade sources when the Pepsi Challenge campaign will be instituted."

And Coca-Cola already has developed a counter-campaign — a series of advertising spots featuring comedian Bill Cosby in a "spooft" at testing drinks in this manner," he said. Breen also has denied possessing what Pepsi says is a confidential marketing manual that is a blueprint of the Pepsi Challenge.

Breathe Freely

Coast Air Quality Much Better

By DAVID KUTZMANN

Low clouds and fog helped purify Orange Coast air quality again today with pollution readings expected to stay within breathable limits perhaps through Saturday.

"There's pretty good air quality (along the Orange County coast)," a spokesman for the Air Quality Management District said.

Only one first-stage alert was predicted for the Santa Ana Canyon area today with anticipated pollution reading of 21 parts per million.

By contrast, the coastal communities of Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach and Laguna Beach should have pollution readings of no more than .09 ppm, the spokesman said.

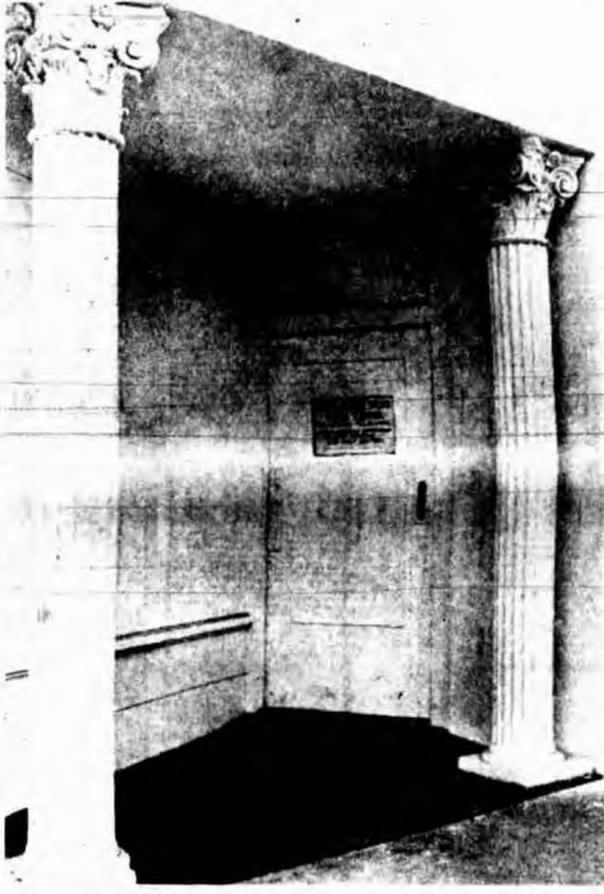

Contributing to the improvement in air quality Thursday and today were lower temperatures, fog and clouds that helped lift an inversion layer that had previously been trapping contaminants close to the ground.

No high-pollution, second-stage alerts were predicted for anywhere in the sprawling South Coast Air Basin today, the AQMD said. First-stage alerts, however, were called for inland valleys in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

The National Weather Service

predicted sunny weather would continue throughout most of Southern California through Saturday with early morning and late night clouds and fog along the coast. Temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-90s today for inland valleys and low 70s along the coast. "Little change in temperature is expected on Saturday," a weather service spokesman said.

Schools Receive $63,000

A federal grant of $63,000 earmarked for assessing the best skills that special handicapped youngsters should develop has been awarded to the Newport-Mesa Unified School District.

The money, disbursed from Public Law 94-142, which benefits afflicted students, is to be put to use within the next month.

Program Director Mark Hansen says about 200 district youngsters, who must cope with various difficulties that curtail or slow their learning ability, will be involved.

The funds will provide tests and counseling to develop vocational skills and explore possible job fields for those as trainable mentally retarded, physically handicapped, mildly retarded or having so-called learning disabilities.

The latter basically is a little-understood phenomenon that makes it particularly difficult for an individual to assimilate certain skills or knowledge.

An assessment center in which youngsters will be given chances to try out different types of occupational efforts such as carpentry, mechanics and others will be financed with the funds.

9.5% Pay Increase Urged in Mesa Pact

Most Costa Mesa city employees will get pay and benefit increases averaging about 9.5 percent a year over the next two years under a proposal going to the City Council Monday night.

The plan, said City Manager Fred Sorsabal, calls for Employee Association employees to receive an 8 1/2 percent pay hike beginning Sunday, a 6 1/4 percent hike Nov. 1, 1981, and another 6 1/4 percent increase on May 3, 1982.

The plan also calls for the city to make full payment on employees' retirement plans beginning in July, 1981. Currently, employees contribute up to 7 percent of their salaries for retirement.

The proposal also calls for time-and-a-half pay, when such work is required, beginning in July of next year. The city currently pays regular rates for overtime work.

Sorsabal said the plan, if approved, will increase city salary and benefit payments by $253,000 this year. He said figures for 1981 are not yet available.

The council also will consider pay proposals that would increase about 30 executives' pay by about 6.7 percent and begin paying full retirement benefits out of city coffers beginning Jan. 1.

The total package, Sorsabal said, would total a 10.5 percent increase.

City administrators are still negotiating with the Police Association and the Firefighters Association over pay and benefit increases, the city manager noted.

Iraq, Iran Claim Major Port Control

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran both claimed their troops were in control of Iran's major port of Khorramshahr today and Iran said it reopened a strategic railroad in the southern war zone that Iraq reported cutting last week.

Tehran radio said a train left the Iranian capital headed for Ahwaz as rail service resumed between these cities. The broadcast said the rail line had been closed because of a break in communications at the station at Andimeshk, a town just north of Dezful, which is 70 miles from the Iraq border where the war began 12 days ago. Early in the fighting, Iraq said its forces penetrated to near Dezful and cut the rail link from Abadan to Tehran.

Iraq said its forces took over the port and were digging in after achieving their main objectives along an invasion front stretching 300 miles to the north.

"There is no trace of any Iranian soldier left in Khorramshahr," Baghdad radio said. "The town is under Iraq's firm control."

Music Charms Iran Plays 'Stars, Stripes'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A half hour after playing an Iranian revolutionary song called "Death to America," Tehran radio today broadcast "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of the most patriotic U.S. military march tunes.

Iranian broadcasters, who have repeatedly denounced the United States as "the great Satan" behind the Iraqi invasion of Iran, appeared unaware of the significance of the song.

"Stars and Stripes Forever," named for the stars and stripes in the American flag, was composed in 1877 by John Philip Sousa, former leader of the U.S. Marine Band.

Tehran radio has been interspersing its newscasts and sermons with martial music since the Iran-Iraq war began.

This week in a broadcast monitored here, Tehran radio played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a song written during the U.S. Civil War in the 1860s and used by Northern troops as they marched off to battle against the Confederate army.

Newport Would Bar Adult Bookstore

The City of Newport Beach has filed suit in an attempt to prevent an adult bookstore from opening its doors next week.

The city is seeking a temporary restraining order in Orange County Superior Court to stop owner Thomas Wade from opening his Talk of the Town bookstore at 2930 W. Pacific Coast Highway.

The City Council passed an emergency four-month zoning moratorium Aug. 25 to prevent adult entertainment centers from locating in Newport Beach until zoning guidelines are drawn up.

The council is scheduled to consider a zoning ordinance on Oct. 27 to limit the commercial neighborhoods where adult businesses can be operated.

But in the suit, filed Thursday, assistant city attorney Robert H. Burnham contends that Wade refuses to heed the city's directives and plans to open his bookstore and video center Tuesday.

The city claims that letting the business begin will open a Pandora's box of evils to the community, including a likelihood of increased sexual offenses, depreciated property values and relocated homes and businesses.

The bookstore is scheduled to begin business in the former site of the Olympus Health Spa.

Newport Beach has never had an adult bookstore, although an adult theater, The Pussycat, was operated several years ago at the site of the Balboa Theater on the Balboa Peninsula.

ADULT BOOK STORE VIDEO CENTER NO MINORS ALLOWED IF YOU WOULD BE OFFENDED BY ADULT MATERIAL DO NOT ENTER

The city Planning Commission is scheduled to review the proposed zoning ordinance next Thursday. It will make recommendations on the matter to the city council.

Couple Take Store's Gems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A couple pretending an interest in a ring robbed a store of about $375,000 in jewels and fled, leaving the owner and a guard tied but unharmed.

The man and woman entered the Jewels by Jeffrey store Wednesday and said they were interested in buying a ring, Inspector Barry Johnson said.

The couple disarmed a security guard, took the guard and owner into a back room and tied them up.

U.S. Air Force Jets End Egypt Deployment Test

CAIRO WEST AIR BASE, Egypt (AP) — A dozen U.S. Air Force F-4E Phantom jets streaked off the desert runway of this Egyptian military field and headed for home today, capping a 90-day operation aimed at showing that American warplanes can carry their firepower to the oil-rich sands of the Middle East.

"This has been one of the most successful operations ever conducted by the Air Force," said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace as the 12 jets took off on a 15-hour flight to Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga. They are to make 12 in-flight refuelings and stop overnight in the Azores.

Wallace said the operation, dubbed Proud Phantom, proved that American planes can deploy quickly and operate smoothly in the harsh deserts of the Middle East.

100 Battle National Park Blaze

CEDAR GROVE (AP) — Fire officials here grew more hopeful today as a hot, stubborn blaze that has blackened 3,100 acres in Kings Canyon National Park appeared to be running out of brush to burn.

The 3-day blaze is being battled by a force of 400 firefighters, seven air tankers, three helicopters and a fire spotting plane borrowed from the Forest Service, park spokeswoman Irma Buchholz said.

The firefighters' effort to halt the blaze has been hampered by record temperatures and the steep terrain of the Lewis Creek area, where the fire started.

Carter Refused Free 'Equal Time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is not entitled to free equal time to respond to commercials aired by independent groups supporting Ronald Reagan, the Federal Communications Commission ruled today.

With a crowd of attorneys, political organizers and network television crews looking on, the commission unanimously accepted the position of broadcasters who argued that the law requires only that they sell comparable time to a candidate or his supporters.

The decision was immediately hailed by such independent groups as Americans for Change as a victory for the right of free speech.

State Unemployment Rate Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported today that the California unemployment rate dropped from 7.3 percent in August to 6.9 percent in September.

Paris Bomb Blast Kills 1

PARIS (AP) — A powerful bomb exploded in front of a synagogue on the Jewish Sabbath today, killing at least four and injuring 16 others in the latest outbreak of anti-Semitism in Paris, officials said.

Police said the bomb had been placed in a parked car outside the synagogue, located in the city's fashionable 16th district and not far from the Arc de Triomphe monument.

It was the sixth attack against a Jewish institution in Paris within a week.

Victim, 77, Tells Of Brutal Beating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An elderly witness testifying in the trial of four men accused in the brutal June 3 attack on residents of a San Francisco nursing home carried a message to Judge Robert Dossee.

"Mayor Dianne Feinstein said to give them a long, long time," said Fritz Peterson, 77, after he testified how he was pistol-whipped during the orgy of violence that included the rape of a 67-year-old blind woman and the beating and robbery of five other home residents.

The trial continued today in San Francisco superior court.

Peterson, who is so hard of hearing that lawyers had to write out their questions during his testimony, told jurors about the attack on him by a "fella with a .38-caliber chrome pistol with an extra long barrel.

"He slugged me over the head and kicked me down the stairs. He said something to me that I couldn't hear, then he hit me and kicked me down the stairs," said Peterson.

But Peterson was unable to identify any of the defendants charged in the attack at the nursing home.

Loot Taken From Home

Newport Beach police searched a house in the Baycrest area early Thursday after the owner returned from work and discovered her garage and back doors wide open.

After police determined nobody was inside the Santiago Drive residence, the owner determined $5,300 worth of property was missing.

She told officers the burglars grabbed her television set, stereo equipment, a pair of sterling silver statues of doves and 25 record albums.

Laundromat Tenant Cries Dirty Deal

By STEVE MARBLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sue Chavanette says she hopes to leave her landlord, the Irvine Company, knee-deep in dirty clothes when she shuts down her Newport Beach laundromat this December.

The blonde Balboa Island resident, battling to keep her washers and dryers spinning, contends the Irvine Company has her on the ropes and is preparing to deliver the knockout blow.

"At first my lease wasn't going to be renewed," she explains, "now they offered me a new lease — one year at about an 80 percent rent increase."

She says that's too much. "They just don't give a damn, they don't want people hauling dirty clothes into their nice little center," the angered owner went on.

Irvine Company officials claim they have nothing against dirty clothes, it's just that property values and rents at the Bayside Center make the laundromat an unlikely tenant.

But the development firm, at first unwilling to renew the lease, offered the one-year extension after being swamped with petitions from laundromat customers.

"This is a prestigious center and it's not that we don't believe in clean clothes," remarked Irvine Company spokesman Jerome Collins, "it's just that we don't believe private enterprise should subsidize a laundromat in a high rent district."

Collins said the proposed rent hike from $625 to $1,122 a month would still leave the laundromat paying far below other rents at the center.

Mrs. Chavanette, who says her husband, a television producer, bought her the place last year as a Christmas present, claims it was a mess when she took over.

She says she went to work fixing it up, decorating it with plants and even hanging quilted curtains in the window.

"Now they've put me in a position where I have no choice but to close my doors," she said. "The Irvine Company is out to destroy me and my customers — my people."

Her husband, Ed, says he's also angry. What started months ago as a battle for a new lease, he said, now has turned into a personal crusade.

"I honestly believe closing the laundromat will hurt a lot of people, a lot of senior citizens," he argues. "When we go, our customers will wind up with a cut crystal shop or something like that."

To underscore his concern for his customers and his desire to keep the machines humming, Chavanette says he has a counter-offer for the Irvine Company.

"I'm willing to sell my equipment, all my machines to them if they promise to step in and run the laundromat," he suggests. "I wonder if they'll go for that?"

Iran's claims it was crushing Iraqi troops in Khorramshahr and said: "What few so-called revolutionary guards are left in hiding are being flushed out and mopped up in Khorramshahr. That's all that's happening now."

But Iran's official Pars news agency said the Iraqi troops withdrew from Khorramshahr as late as midnight Thursday after abandoning tanks and other equipment, that water and electricity were cut off and that "the customs building and some other parts of the city set on fire by the Iraqis were burning out of control."

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Iranian paratroopers were dropped into Khorramshahr on Thursday, that Iranian warplanes launched attacks to support them and that "enemy-crushing" operations were under way in the port, near the refinery city of Abadan at the head of the Persian Gulf in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Going Strong Kids' Show Marks 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just another day for the millions of kids in the audience, but for Bob Keeshan, today's broadcast was more than just another opportunity to encourage young children to learn, to feel good about themselves.

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered Oct. 3, 1955, and a quarter-century later is still going strong.

"I will keep it going, the good Lord and CBS willing," Keeshan said in an anniversary interview not long ago, "and I must say, I have never felt more support from the network than I do now."

The anniversary broadcast was marked on air by a stream of the show's regulars congratulating him. Captain Kangaroo, appearing perplexed by all the attention, was given the opportunity to say anything he wished.

"Good morning, Captain," he said into the camera.

Network TV's longest-running children's series began its 26th season less than a month ago, distinct in appearance from that premiere broadcast, but consistent in philosophy.

"The idea is," the 53-year-old Keeshan said, "if you can motivate a child, make the child feel good about herself, or himself, the child will learn."

Keeshan has seen his role change over the years, and is considered an authority on the relationship between children and television. He spends a good deal of his free time on the road, speaking to educators and parents, as well as broadcasters.

"It concerns me," Keeshan said, "when people say, 'Look at all the good things we've done with 'Captain Kangaroo' and 'Sesame Street' and the others. Now we don't have to spend all the money on teachers.'"

"We're here to aid the teacher," he said, "to back up the good that is being done for the child by others."

Keeshan began his career in television as Clarabell the Clown on the old "Howdy Doody" show. Five years later, he developed his own character, Corny the Clown, and was signed to do a show called "Time for Fun."

A year later, 1954, he created

BIRTHDAY BOY

Tinker the Toymaker, and produced and performed in a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan has not been alone over the years. Hugh "Lumpy" Brannum, as Mr. Green Jeans, has been a regular for years, and Cosmo Allegretti joined the show as Dennis, the apprentice, a short while later.

Allegretti also is the chief puppeteer, responsible for enduring characters like Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit.

There is a footnote to the "Captain Kangaroo" story. "The Mickey Mouse Club" premiered the same day in 1955 on ABC, and left the air four years later.

Man Ruled Guilty In Beating Death

Marine Cpl. Kevin Lee Green was convicted of second degree murder Thursday in the death of his unborn child that resulted from injuries his wife suffered from a beating in their Tustin apartment last year.

An Orange County Superior Court jury, which deliberated about 10 hours Wednesday and Thursday, also found Green guilty of attempted murder for the crippling attack on his wife during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1979.

The couple's child died at Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital, where Green's wife lay comatose with brain injuries.

Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas scheduled sentencing for Green on Oct. 27. The defendant faces a 15-years-to-life state prison term.

The six-man, six-woman jury, faced with conflicting stories during the trial, chose to believe the testimony of Dianna D'Aiello, Green's now-divorced wife.

Miss D'Aiello, 20, told jurors Green smashed her in the head with a metal key holder after she spurned his sexual advances following an evening of intermittent arguing about his leaving her alone. She was nine-and-a-half months pregnant at the time.

Green testified that his wife consented to having sex that evening, that he later went to a fast-food restaurant and returned home to find her critically injured on their blood-spattered bed.

Marine Out For Nudity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can see 27-year-old Marine Corps reserve Sgt. Robert Jordan out of uniform in this month's Playgirl magazine. But you won't see him in the Marines.

The Marine Corps gave Jordan his marching papers for bringing "discredit" to the service by appearing nude in Playgirl's "Men of the Military" spread in the October issue, Jordan said Thursday.

Jordan said he was notified of his honorable discharge a week ago in a letter from the commander of his Marine Corps reserve unit in Long Beach.

What's What? 'Who's Who' Suit Fails

The San Clemente-based publishers of "Who's Who in California" have failed to convince an Orange County Superior Court judge to issue a court order barring a competitor from putting out a publication entitled the "Official Who's Who of Orange County."

JUDGE HARMAN Scoville denied the request of Donald and Sarah Vitale, owner of Who's Who Enterprises and publishers of numerous who's who books, that he issue a preliminary injunction against Robert W. Tompkins, president of the Official Corp. in Newport Beach.

The Vitales had filed a lawsuit earlier in the summer to stop Tompkins from going ahead with his publication, claiming infringement on their trademark.

THEY SAID THEY wanted a court order to stop Tompkins from using the trademark "Who's Who."

However, attorneys for Tompkins successfully argued that who's who type books are widespread throughout the nation and that the Orange County who's who would be substantially different from the California who's who.

PRUDENT BUYING

Throughout our 85 years of carpet retailing, one fact becomes quite evident — that when money is less plentiful, people buy better quality.

This is contrary to popular belief, but makes good sense if you think about it. When you have to concern yourself with value and performance, you are likely to buy better quality.

At Alden's in recent years, our per unit sale has been more expensive carpeting, reflecting this fact. Consequently, we have the largest selection of finer qualities you will see anywhere, all at competitive prices.

The end result is customer satisfaction, pride and recommendations which provide our overwhelming source of new business.

Despite PSA Strike Air Travelers Unhindered

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The strike that shut down Pacific Southwest Airlines appeared on the horizon 10 months before it landed, like its big stretch jets that grow out of a tiny speck in the sky.

A week ago, when the 450 pilots and flight engineers walked out after 10 futile months of negotiations, everybody was ready.

Airlines up and down the coast, the biggest ones as well as the tiniest eight-seat commuter lines, grabbed up PSA's stranded 22,000 daily passengers instantly.

BUT AS THE STRIKE entered its second week, everyone but the travelers, who had expected to be hurt the most, was complaining. PSA was losing $1 million a day without any sign of an early resumption of talks to settle the contract dispute.

All but a handful of the 3,700 employees on PSA's payroll will be home by today, laid off and wondering how the bills will be paid.

And the airline that tried to help the most, Pan Am, finds itself Dumbo in the skies.

"WE WANTED TO help by putting up the DC-10," says Pan Am manager George Wilfirt. "The passenger load is getting better, but after a week we're still averaging only 80 passengers. It's got to be half full to pay for itself."

The big strike special leaves at 7 a.m. for Los Angeles and San Francisco, coming back at night after shuttling back and forth four times a day.

"If we don't do better, we'll have to drop it," said Wilfirt.

THIS WAS THE SLACK season for air travel in California. Travelers scurried to other ticket counters for a few hours a week ago Thursday but they have reported little inconvenience since.

By prior agreement, other airlines have honored all unused tickets PSA had sold on its 200 daily flights to 13 major cities in California and Nevada as well as Phoenix, and cities in Mexico.

Western Airlines added two round trips to its San Diego-San Francisco and Los Angeles-Sacramento routes, and a round trip between Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

DESPITE THAT, SPOKESWOMAN Linda Dozier said most of Western's planes have been flying 15 to 20 percent empty.

A special desk in San Diego was set up by Western for PSA passengers but "we've never had more than 15 to 20 people in that line," she said. "Things were busy but there were seats available."

Julian Levine, a spokesman for Continental Airlines in Los Angeles, said there have been "a few more passengers" than usual on flights between Phoenix and Los Angeles because of the PSA strike.
