CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Shade is different. 2. Paper is moved. 3. Hair is different. 4. Santa is reversed. 5. Spaceship legs are missing. 6. Hassock is missing.

● TREE-LINED! Picture clues to the names of four well known trees are given at right. Name No. 1 has four letters, No. 2 has four letters, No. 3 has five letters, and No. 4 has eight letters.

How quickly can you identify each of the four trees?

1. Palm. 2. Pine. 3. Maple. 4. Chestnut.

● HO DOWN! How did Kriss Kringle land in the fireplace? With a Kriss-endo. Who goes "Ho, ho, ho; ha, ha, ha"? Santa being tickled. What did the hanky say to the nose? "Sneezin's greetings."

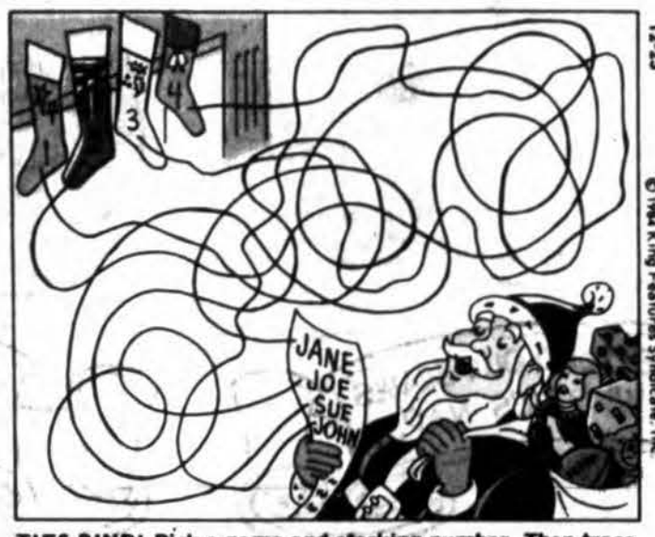

IT'S A MOVING EXPERIENCE

Arrange 10 coins in three straight lines of four coins each as in the diagram above. Now then, it is possible to remove one of the coins, move one other, and still have three straight lines of four coins each. How's it done?

Remember, the idea is to remove one coin, move another, and still have four coins in three lines.

Give up? The answer is ridiculously simple — when you know it, of course. Just remove coin 5, for instance, and move coin 9 one place to the left.

COBURN: PLAYING HARD TO GET

It's a fact of Hollywood that many established movie stars have the same disdain for TV work that Southern belles have for Yankees. Yet here is James Coburn, the latest film actor to go for the network TV gold; he'll star with Glynnis

CHARLES: AUTHORITY FIGURE

O'Conner in the TV movie Sins of the Father for a slightly sinful quarter of a million dollars. "It was tough to get him," says one insider. "On the other hand, there aren't too many movie studios looking for Jim Coburn vehicles."

When your first name is Prince and your last name is Charles, people tend to be very cooperative. Take the BBC, which is reportedly giving the heir to the British throne unprecedented script approval on the biography of the late Lord Louis Mountbatten, Charles' godfather and great-uncle. The prince was also given veto power on the casting of Mountbatten — and gave the royal nod to Nicol Williamson. Further evidence that the sun hasn't set on the British Empire: Princess Margaret prompted the BBC to cast Janet (Nicholas and Alexandra) Suzman as Mountbatten's wife, Edwina. Mountbatten: The Last Viceroy will air in the Colonies (America, that is) early in 1986.

First there was Superman, the Comic Book, and then there was Supergirl, the Comic Book. Then there was Superman, the Movie, and, box office smashes being more powerful than a locomotive, the sequels. Now there is Supergirl, the Movie, starring Helen Slater as the lady in the cape. Slater had to do more changing for her role than she could do in a telephone booth, however. "I was put on a crash weight-gain protein thing," she says, to add 15 extra pounds to her 5-foot-8, 112-pound frame. "If you look at the comic strips, Supergirl is quite buxom, and I was lacking a bit there." Asked if her costumes were padded to give her as mighty a female figure as the manly Christopher Reeve cut as Superman, she says, evasively, "They never padded Christopher's muscles." Slater also had to dye her hair, normally light brown, to screaming blond, a change so shocking that "I put towels over all the mirrors. Having blond hair you're definitely noticed more. It's not anything about being attractive, it's just that your head is like a lightbulb."

Bruce Springsteen attracts the WEIRDEST looking fans at his concerts. Why, at one stop on his recent tour, there was this dame in punky pants, leather jacket and a Day-Glo Dolly Partonesque wig styled in a mohawk spiked so high that fans seated behind her needed a periscope to see the stage. One concert-goer described this apparition as "either a Twisted Sister or a star of one of those punk rock videos." Well, close. It was Elizabeth Taylor, who was so caught up by the sounds of the boy from New Jersey that she remained on her feet swaying to the beat for the first two hours of the show. After an intermission repast of bologna and cheese sandwiches set up backstage for notable fans like Taylor and Debra Winger, it was back to the arena. But Liz decamped before the four-hour show was over. Perhaps the girl who WASN'T born in the U.S.A. just couldn't keep her wig up for another minute.

Hotel's Shea Farrell checked out politics before becoming an actor. (Funny, it usually happens the other way around.) Why the veto? "Politicians make so many promises that they must know they're not going to keep. When I was canvassing for president of the student body, I was making false promises, meeting people just for the sake of their vote, people I'd ignored for years." There was another reason, he admits: He didn't win.

SEARCHING FOR —AND FINDING— HOLIDAY MAGIC

By Dr. Robert Coles

The Christmas I always think about when December 25 approaches seemed at the time not to have the makings of a very happy one for the family in Alabama that had invited my wife and me to visit. "Come say hello to Jesus on His birthday" was the way the invitation was put to us. It was 1962, and we were living in Georgia, studying social change in the deep South. We had traveled widely through the region and were especially involved with rural families in Alabama and Mississippi, both black and white.

When we received the invitation, my wife and I were reluctant. We would be forsaking a rather pleasant (and plush!) series of Atlanta Christmas parties — for what? We knew how impoverished life can be in certain parts of rural America, and we wondered, too, whether our presence on a holiday (and Christmas especially) wouldn't be a source of discomfort all around; these Yankee city folk standing out like sore thumbs on a day meant to be intimately familial. Moreover, we were white, and our would-be hosts were black. Again, the year was 1962.

Nevertheless, we decided to say yes, and two days before Christmas we drove to Winfield, Ala., northwest of Birmingham, to a small farm operated against great odds by this family for generations. We checked into a motel and went to see the family each day, including Christmas. I suppose it can be said skeptically, if not cynically, that we were travelers in search of new sights and experiences, and maybe a pair of workaholics, unable to stop our "social observation" even at Christmas.

No matter our failings or blind spots, or unwitting condescension or arrogance, we were treated by this family with great tact, courtesy, patience and generosity. They fed us well. They gave us what they'd made: delicious preserves, jellies, jams. Most important, they took us with them to church, where we sat with them through long hours of happy and hard praying. On Christmas Day, when we drove up to their spartan quarters (an outhouse visible to the side, the electricity weak and unreliable), we saw an enormous extended family standing in front of the house in two circles, the grown-ups forming a large outer circle, the many children forming the inner one. They were singing hymns, praying, thanking the heavens that Christ had been born — and they welcomed us to their midst. Later there was a simple but filling and delicious dinner (lots of homemade bread the major fare, along with vegetables) and more singing and speaking in praise of God. Finally, the time had come for the exchange of presents. There was no Christmas wreath or tree, no Christmas lights, no tinsel. I had been wondering if there were any presents — none were in sight. My wife and I had kept the ones we brought in the trunk of our car, waiting to give them at the very end of our stay, to avoid the possible embarrassment of their obvious monetary value. (Oh, the difficulties we mortals of various backgrounds can have with one another as we try to become friends!)

"It's time for us to give our Christmas love to each other," the old, stocky, wheezing yet strong-voiced grandmother announced. And then, like a ballet corps suddenly energized and set to perform, the two circles again were formed, while my wife and I were tactfully invited to sit on a nearby swing — a tight squeeze — and watch. What we saw is what I still see in my mind every Christmas, what I will never forget: each adult moving to kiss each child, all done in a carefully arranged sequence, from oldest adult to youngest child, down to youngest adult and oldest child. They kissed loud and long; they hugged; they said "Merry Christmas"; they thanked God for the gift of the baby Jesus. They then repaired to the kitchen for Coca-Cola, bottles and bottles of it, and more bread, and, for the children, licorice.

I tell this reminiscence because the simplicity, the dignity, the joy, the moral sincerity of this family is what the Christmas holiday was originally meant to signify for all of us — a time of humble pleasure in keeping with the humble ecstasy of that endlessly rendered ancient manger scene. I have no wish to romanticize poverty, not that of the family mentioned above nor that of any other hard-struggling family. But I also think we owe it to ourselves to remember that the first Christmas was one celebrated by some exceedingly poor people who had no particular interest in showering one another with gifts and more gifts — but who were essentially immersed in God's grace, something that doesn't come wrapped in colored fancy paper and tied in big flowery knots of ribbon. In that Alabama home, a family had remembered their Lord rather in the manner, one imagines, his own family and its friends had celebrated His birth almost two millennia ago in Bethlehem, as obscure a place in Rome's empire as the Southern countryside is in relation to our capital city of Washington, D.C. Moreover, that poor Southern family's members showed no sign of the "holiday blues" that so many of us have learned to expect in late December. The air resounded to their hymns and prayers — even as they exchanged not one tangible gift, in our usual sense of that word. (My wife and I drove off with our presents; we were, somehow, embarrassed to offer them.)

I know as a doctor that men and women can be well-to-do and well-educated, can have everything in the world, it seems, and yet go into bad slumps at Christmas. Many of us psychiatrists have tried to figure out the reasons for those "holiday blues," and our explanations make some sense. We note that all the hype and hoopla tend to set the stage for a later feeling of disappointment or disenchantment (the gap between expectation and reality), and that for individuals who are alone, or whose family life is troubled, the public spectacle of Christmas as a time of parents and children happily together only serves to emphasize their own predicament. Still, over the years I've noticed (and learned from my patients) that even in intact families, nicely settled in fine neighborhoods, a spell of irritability can descend at Christmastime — not to mention bouts of drinking and explosions of anger, spite, meanness. I have heard children from such homes say how much they welcome the prospect of Christmas (presents and more presents, lots of tasty food), but how much they also dread the holiday season (arguments between their parents, the effects of all that spiked eggnog on their elders, and on and on). Soon enough, the children tire of the toys and put them aside. It is almost as if Christmas is "over with."

On the other hand, among the affluent, Christmas can be a period of truly sustained human fulfillment — as it was in the Alabama home. I am thinking of one quite wealthy family in which the parents would each give their four children a single (usually expensive) present, and with it a personal, hand-written letter, full of affection and with a thoughtful comment meant to show appreciation of an accomplishment achieved, a deed done, during the preceding year. The children, I learned, saved those letters and tied them together with colorful string — a collective statement that the letters meant more to them, obviously, than any material gift.

When they were about 10 years old, the children began writing similar letters to their parents — who saved them as carefully as their four children did. What this family had was not only money and influence, not only a tradition of family church-going, but a continuing attachment between mother and father, and between each of them and each of their children. The family had learned to consecrate all this at Christmastime. They affirmed it directly, and in the lasting manner of words on paper. I compare in my mind the embraces of the Alabama family to the letters of the Northern one — and I see similar, simple renderings of holiday love.

The Christmas season, even amid secular consumerism, is supposed to be a time for family members to turn toward one another in grateful acknowledgment. I believe that many families find Christmas especially enjoyable because it gives them sanction to declare, once more, their true and deep commitment to one another. In those families whose members aren't able to do that, the consequence is a letdown when the great hope of a true and memorable coming together dissolves (no matter the material gifts exchanged) in the sinking recognition that such a moment has not been realized. But, in any family, one can never be sure what this or the next Christmas will be like. Even in homes where there are difficulties, the real magic of the holiday season can arrive out of nowhere, it seems, and some would say out of God's grace: a family suddenly brought together, at least for a while, by the best side of the holiday season — with its traditional emphasis on the importance of generosity in our lives, and generosity not only of the material kind. FW

SPECIAL REPORT

EATING TOO MUCH THIS SEASON? MAYBE NOT

By Diane Cole

If, like many Americans, you've been on a perpetual diet, take heed. Researchers are weighing new evidence that suggests that your age and shape might, and should, have as much to do with determining your "ideal" weight as any prescriptive chart tacked up in your doctor's office.

In fact, the charts themselves are under continual review. Just two years ago, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company revised its authoritative height and weight tables upward, establishing normal weights for most people that are slightly higher than those in the previous table, published in 1959. The study on which Metropolitan based its new charts tracked the medical histories of 4 million people for up to 22 years and correlated their weights with how long they lived.

Be careful: the insurance company emphasizes that the new charts give weights that are still well below what most people actually weigh. Frederic Seltzer, the Metropolitan Life actuary who was responsible for developing the new guidelines, says the message is clear: "Even though the charts went up, people should keep their weight down."

One still wonders, though: Why did the insurance company's preferred weights rise at all?

"You can't pin down the reasons, but it seems that this is a different generation," Seltzer says, "and I don't think that one should be surprised if there are changes over a period of time." Medical advances and nutrition as well as new emphasis on fitness and exercise (muscle weighs more than fat) may all have played some part in the shift toward higher acceptable weights.

Indeed, ideal weight has meant many things to many people through the years. Certainly Rubens' 17th-century celebrations of chubby, buxom women differed from the well-proportioned figures of Renaissance art. And what would Leonardo da Vinci say if he had Twiggy for a model? There's no doubt that fashion is fickle, an observation that leads Joseph J. Vitale, M.D., Sc. D., professor of pathology and community medicine at the Boston University School of Medicine, to quip: "The blue jean is probably more responsible for thinness or fatness than any other gene."

But despite Metropolitan's cautious and responsible explanation of the meaning of its new charts, the American Heart Association (AHA) has strongly opposed them. They fear that many people will interpret the revised tables as permission to gain weight. "In a population in which obesity and cardiovascular disease are major health problems, it does not seem prudent to raise the limits for recommended weight until more data are available," advises W. Virgil Brown, M.D., chairman of the AHA's Nutrition Committee.

And so the question remains: What weight is a healthy weight, neither excessively fat nor excessively thin? What should the bathroom scale read?

Reubin Andres, M.D., the clinical director of the National Institute on Aging, believes that the most desirable weight should be adjusted for age rather than frame size. In fact, after analyzing the data on which Metropolitan Life based its guidelines, Andres found that the new charts fit 40-year-olds fine, but allowed too much weight for 20-year-olds and too little for 60-year-olds.

The reasons are unclear, Andres says, but the data speaks for itself. "The lowest mortality occurs at different degrees of obesity for different ages," Andres claims. "The surprising aspect is that it seems to be all right, or at least not inappropriate, to put on modest amounts of weight as we age."

Andres is currently preparing new tables to reflect his findings. Meanwhile, he offers good news: "This terrible anxiety about having put on some weight since you were 20 years old is needless. You really don't have to get your weight back to what it was."

It's not only your age but your shape, too, that may make a difference in how your weight affects your health. The location of body fat may be more important than the amount of fat, says Ahmed H. Kissebah, M.D., professor of medicine and director of the General Clinical Research Center at the Medical College of Wisconsin.

"It seems all right to put on modest amounts of weight as we age."

Kissebah has found that women who are stout from the waist up run a greater risk of developing diabetes — and possibly high blood pressure and heart disease as well — than women whose fat is localized in their hips and thighs.

Men, too, should beware: Swedish studies show that men with pot bellies run higher risks of stroke or heart disease than men whose fat resides in their hips. And in this country, at least, most men tend to grow from the waist out.

Where your fat is located will also affect your weight-loss pattern. While belly fat is relatively easy to lose, fat cells in the lower body are very difficult to shed, because they grow in number rather than in size, as those in the upper portion of the body do. Kissebah says: "It's almost like the battle of Waterloo. The battle of losing weight is lost at the hips."

Therefore, don't feel it's your "fault" if your best efforts to pare down those hips fail. "Don't push too far," Kissebah advises dieters, especially women. "I am worried that if a woman goes to extremes in dieting, she will begin to lose weight from the muscles, including the heart muscle, and that could lead to serious problems."

Dieters in general may have another reason to rethink their strategies. Researchers have now come up with the "set-point theory." C. Wayne Callaway, M.D., director of the Nutrition Consulting Services at the Mayo Clinic, reduces this fascinating theory to this simple equation: "Animals and humans tend to maintain a weight within a certain range."

Experiments in which subjects were forced to overeat as well as ones in which volunteers agreed to starvation diets showed the same results: After their respective experiments ended, the overeaters had trouble keeping the extra weight on, and the undereaters had little difficulty in putting weight back on. They tended to return to their original weights — their own set points.

Don't let the set point discourage you, though. Andres' theories of weight change over the years indicate that even the set point may change with age. And more than anything, regular exercise may be the key to resetting the set point. However, to change your weight "for keeps," you probably have to alter your diet and exercise habits for keeps, too.

But since proper diet and more activity will harm few people, you might well wonder, what do you have to lose? As Callaway says, "At either extreme, too fat or too thin, the risk of dying is increased statistically. If you're naturally lean, there's no point in trying to fatten yourself up just to get within the Metropolitan Life tables!" But if you're unhealthily overweight, he adds, and particularly if you have a family history of heart disease and diabetes, slim down. FW

HOLIDAY SPIRITS

HAVE A CUP OF CHRISTMAS CHEER

Americans love to celebrate Christmas. Heart-warming, convivial customs are still thriving in historic houses and restorations across our country today. A wonderful, beautifully illustrated cookbook has just been published that features these celebrations with detailed descriptions, Christmas sheet music, menus, recipes, and photographs in vivid color. Among the offerings you will find: An Early American Yuletide Feast, Christmas Dinner With Mark Twain, The Washington Dinner at Mount Vernon, Christmas at the Conner Prairie Settlement, and a Christmas Eve Reveillon, as celebrated at the Gallier House, New Orleans, La.

To help you get into a hospitable mood at your own house, here are a few cups of cheer — one of them non-alcoholic — from the pages of that cookbook: An Old-Fashioned Christmas (Harry N. Abrams Inc.)

EGGNOG

12 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 cup bourbon
1 cup cognac
3 pints whipping cream
½ teaspoon salt, or to taste
Nutmeg

1. Beat egg yolks with sugar until thick. Slowly add bourbon and cognac. Mix in cream and chill several hours.
2. Whip egg whites with salt until they stand in stiff peaks, then carefully fold into the egg yolk mixture. Top each serving with a grating of nutmeg. Makes 40 servings

MULLED CIDER

2 quarts cider
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
3 4-inch cinnamon sticks
2 teaspoons whole cloves
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Additional cinnamon sticks for garnish (optional)

1. In large saucepan, mix all ingredients except cinnamon stick garnish, and bring just to a boil. Cool and strain.
2. When ready to serve, reheat and pour into cups. Garnish with cinnamon sticks, if desired. Makes 16 (½-cup) servings

WASSAIL

1 cup sugar
4 4-inch cinnamon sticks
3 lemon slices
½ cup water
2 cups pineapple juice
2 cups orange juice
½ cup lemon juice
6 cups dry red wine
1 cup dry sherry
Additional lemon slices for garnish

1. Make a syrup by boiling sugar, cinnamon sticks, and 3 lemon slices in ½ cup water for 5 minutes. Strain.
2. Heat but do not boil juices and wines. Combine with syrup, garnish with lemon slices; serve hot. Makes 20 servings
Note: Wassailing is an ancient English custom that has been revived in Colonial Williamsburg. The master of the English household drank the health of those present with a bowl of spiced ale, and each in turn after him passed the bowl along and repeated the Saxon phrase Wass hael, "Be whole," or "Be well." — Marilyn Hansen

MORAL PERSPECTIVE

HOW TO WIN THE BATTLE BETWEEN GOOD AND EVIL

By Frank Herbert

Because of the religious themes in my "Dune" novels, the most common questions asked of me are:

"Are you starting a cult? And if so, what is your religion?"

Herbert (r.) with Dune director David Lynch

The answer to the question about starting a cult is a flat "No!" I will elaborate on this later. But first I would like to discuss "my religion."

In many ways, I consider myself a religious person — a believer in the Golden Rule. As I told a graduating class at Seattle University, "If only one person in all of this world chooses to live by that rule — treating others as you would wish to be treated yourself — then this is a better world."

Each person has to make a personal choice on this issue, and there's no avoiding it. The decision must be made frequently, and this "battle between good and evil" never ends. I doubt it ever will end as long as there are human beings in our universe.

The most common excuse is to say someone else shaves a moral corner, so what you're doing is diluted by numbers. My response to this cop-out is to say, "All it takes is two people, each using the other as an excuse, and your society can degenerate into moral chaos."

Yes, there are people who will try to take advantage of you if you live this way. But they do more harm to themselves than they do to you. The real issue is personal happiness: that old cliche about looking at yourself in the mirror each morning. Are you happy with yourself? (Not self-satisfied! Never fall into that trap.)

It's my belief that humans are born with a natural curiosity. Watch a young child carefully, and you will see this natural curiosity at work in its most marvelous form. We are born questioning. Even if you presuppose a deity, curiosity came with the God-given egg and was designed to be used.

Behind my particular approach to the question of religion is a theory that we occupy a holographic universe. If you take a holographic photo plate and shatter it into bits, each bit projects the original photograph. According to this theory, every part of our universe contains the universe. An interesting implication arises from this:

It suggests that nothing is ever lost — no good nor evil, no joy nor pain, no happiness nor anguish. And that leads you directly back to the Golden Rule and the question of what you want to add to this cosmic hologram.

Now we come to the "cult" question.

An essential part of what I built into the "Dune" novels was the proposition: "Why do we follow charismatic leaders without question?" It seems obvious that the mistakes of the leader are amplified by the numbers who follow blindly. Why do we go to Jonestown?

This is a special pitfall in a democracy where demagogues can arise and tell you what you want to hear. The strength of democracy, however, is that we do have the right to question. That is a privilege we should guard with all of our might.

Certainly a major flaw of dictatorships, and especially of the Soviet Union, is that people are judged to be insane if they question their leaders.

The real issue is: How do we keep cool heads when we make our political decisions? And most essential: How do we provide ourselves with ways to make swift changes when we see that we have made hurtful mistakes?

You see, every time you raise a political or moral issue, you ask hard questions. And the answers are always up to you as an individual. FW

In 1965 Frank Herbert, a native of Tacoma, Wash., created a future universe in his novel Dune. The book's worldwide following has eagerly awaited this month's release of the film version of Dune. The sixth book in the series, Chapterhouse: Dune, will be published by G.P. Putnam's in April 1985.

Gentle Grace and Charm in a Unique Musical Doll

Mary Anne

As the Mary Anne figure rotates, a little girl and her doll are revealed. The doll is two-sided.

No batteries or keys—turn the inner base to wind "Mary Anne," then watch her graceful turning as the music plays.

Actual size 7½" tall

NOW EXCLUSIVELY FROM AMERICAN FAMILY THE UNIQUE MUSICAL DOLL, MARY ANNE, IN FINE HAND-PAINTED PORCELAIN

This genuine porcelain doll has a built-in musical movement. As it plays, the figure slowly rotates. Surprise! Mary Anne and her child are replaced by a little girl and doll, snuggled against the back of Mary Anne's gown. As the figures turn, the soft musical chimes play the well known song, "Turn Around"—a perfect match.

Hand Painted Porcelain

Each musical doll is individually hand painted. The porcelain itself is first quality, snowy white under the delicate painting. The rotating musical movement is designed to last for years. No batteries needed.

The FIRST Limited Edition Musical Doll

"Mary Anne" combines for the first time two of the most-wanted collector's treasures—a porcelain limited edition doll and a limited edition music box.

Limited to one single firing period. After that, the molds will be destroyed and no more Mary Anne dolls will ever be made.

Dolls have been in the forefront of collecting news since a bisque-headed doll sold at a sedate Christie's auction a few months ago for $7,700 and another at Theriault's for $8,250.

You should understand, however, that we cannot promise or even infer that the value of Mary Anne will increase.

The Aristocrats of Dolls and Music

Of all dolls, porcelain dolls are the aristocracy. They have the greates detail. They last the longest. Ultimately they have the most value.

Music boxes, similarly, have soared not only in value but in popular de mand. Music box makers have trouble meeting the quotas they allocat to eager buyers. When an old music box comes up at auction, it brings a fabulous price. A simple old Polyphone box, which sold for "novelty" prices a few years ago, now lists for more than $3,200.

Combining a limited edition doll with a music box is a collector's first

Adding to the uniqueness of "Mary Anne" is the music itself. The melody never has been heard in a musical movement; the gentle tones of the beautiful song are only in this one limited edition Musical Doll:

Mary Anne's Melody

Harry Belafonte's famous recording of "Turn Around," set in ¾ time has made it familiar to all:

Where are you going? My little one, Little one,
Where are you going? My baby, My own...
TURN AROUND, and you're tiny, TURN AROUND, and you're grown,
TURN AROUND, and you're a young wife, with babes of your own.

"Turn Around" has been played with one finger on the piano; it has been played by symphony orchestras. The clear notes of this beautiful waltz, from the built-in movement of the porcelain treasure, will have you humming and dancing in time to the music.

Certificate of Authenticity

Each doll includes a Certificate of Authenticity from the United State Gallery of Art.

WHIZ QUIZ

WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN JEALOUSY STRIKES

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How prone you are to jealousy depends chiefly on whether you are "the jealous type," as it is commonly termed.
2. When jealousy strikes, the symptoms are purely emotional.
3. An unhappily married man is more likely to be jealous than the guy who is satisfied with his relationship.
4. The notion that a habitually jealous spouse will suspiciously observe everything his or her partner does is largely a myth.
5. Most people who get very jealous feel their reaction is normal and even a positive characteristic.

ANSWERS

1. False. A team of behavioral scientists from Indiana University and Purdue University examined the responses of over 300 male and female subjects who were presented with four types of jealousy situations: romance (your spouse is having an affair); work: (someone gets the credit for your work); family relations (a brother or sister receives gifts and you don't); and social settings (a group does not include you in their activities). The scientists found that the details of one's involvement in relationships were much more important than personality characteristics in determining the intensity of jealous reactions. They also noted that subjects who were most deeply entangled in the relationships were most jealous.

2. False. Researchers at the University of California presented a series of jealousy-provoking situations to over 100 men and women who varied in both age and degree of sexual involvement. Their findings: the subjects claimed to have physical as well as emotional reactions to such situations. Most of the subjects associated extreme jealousy with feeling hot, nervous and shaky. They also reported experiencing a faster heartbeat and an empty feeling in the stomach. Typical emotional reactions included anxiety, fear of loss, pain, anger, vulnerability and hopelessness.

3. False. In a study titled, "Marital Satisfaction and Jealousy Among Men," researchers at the University of Southern Mississippi had 49 married men complete a questionnaire that measured a person's reaction to situations involving jealousy. They found that in all cases "higher marital satisfaction was associated with greater jealousy." The researchers reasoned that the more an individual values his marriage, the more protective he may be toward any perceived threats to that relationship.

4. False. Researchers at the National Institute of Mental Health found that people suffering from pathological jealousy tend to be preoccupied with the belief that their spouses are sexually unfaithful, and will meticulously look for any signs of the suspected infidelity. Such individuals also experience an alternating cycle of rage and remorse. The researchers noted that jealous people, when enraged, often take out their frustrations in a physical way — smashing objects and even assaulting their spouses.

5. True. Researchers at the University of California found that jealous types consider their emotions to be either a normal reaction accompanying love, or an instinctive reaction to a threat. They are less likely to perceive it as a sign of immaturity or as a personal defect. Instead, they tend to see jealousy as a positive characteristic, even preferring their own partners to be more jealous.

Beautiful Handmade Wood Decoys

If you've never tried sculpting in wood before then you're in for a real treat when you open the pages of Making Wood Decoys. Included are over 200 photos featuring 24 easy-to-follow scaled patterns (including 15 duck decoys in full color) that teach you step-by-step how to make beautiful handmade wood decoys—dramatic sculptures for your family and friends to treasure. After all, for centuries, people around the world have marveled at the artistic beauty and skill conveyed by the decoy maker. And now, you can see for yourself how easy it is to join the ranks of these gifted individuals.

In his new book, Making Wood Decoys, author Patrick Spielman does masterful job teaching the techniques of decoy making. Page-after-page presents helpful insider's tips plus clear, concise illustrations featuring individual patterns used for many classic decoys. You'll learn: Which woods make the best decoys; how to design, copy and stylize; what basic tools and equipment to purchase; how to begin by making rough blocks; carving techniques; plus tricks on detailing, painting and finishing.

Making Wood Decoys guides the beginning woodworker and sportsmanhobbist from the very beginning stages—from selecting wood and shaping it—right up to and including the basics of feather carving, finishing and painting simple decorative decoys. The more skilled woodworker will find a host of projects to challenge his ability, imagination and ingenuity.

And, since most of the old, authentic decoys have long been snatched up at flea markets, antique shows and auctions, a whole new market has developed as collectors seek out recently carved items. Therefore, for many people, a delightful hobby has become a profitable source of extra income.

LEWIS BERMAN'S MONTHLY COLUMN

HOW TO FIND THE RIGHT VET

I was a kid when I first decided to become a vet. It began when my Cocker Spaniel, Smokey, was sick from distemper, but after a visit to the doctor, he got better. In my eyes, that vet was magic. Today I'm considerably more humble about the veterinary profession.

As a pet owner, your job is to find a vet you can work with. For starters, don't wait to search for a vet when the animal is sick. My advice is to take it in for a general checkup as soon as you get it, even if it has already received its juvenile immunizations against such diseases as rabies and distemper.

In choosing a vet, look for quality care, and be just as demanding as if searching for a family doctor.

- Get at least two recommendations from your animal-loving friends and neighbors, or from your doctor, dentist or pharmacist — anyone whom you trust in the healing professions.
- Try to limit your search to a vet who practices in a convenient location.
- Check out the veterinarian's office carefully. Even before you get there, the phone manner of the receptionist or secretary will contain clues to the boss's personality: Is she friendly? Cooperative? Efficient? When you arrive, survey the waiting room: Is it clean and free of odors?
- Most important, do you find the vet easy to talk to? If not, move on.

New clients often come to me and complain, "My old vet didn't spend enough time with me and my pet." Don't feel cheated; you deserve a veterinarian who isn't always in a mad rush. And, crazy as this may sound, make sure he or she genuinely loves animals — at least as much as you do. One good test question: "Do you have pets of your own?" If the vet doesn't, ask, "Why not?" Does this person value peace, or privacy, more highly than pets? Then perhaps he or she isn't the vet for you.

Pets are generally proficient at sniffing out the vets they can work with. They're usually suspicious at first. Before beginning an exam, I try to touch the animal and talk to it in a friendly way. But a vet must be more than a nice guy. He also has to be available. When he's not, he must have excellent backup staffers. Most animal hospitals have round-the-clock phone answering services and a vet on duty for emergencies 24 hours a day.

What else should you get for your money? Even on a routine basis, you want your pet to receive the most thorough care. Every time you bring the animal in, the vet should give it a complete exam. He should look into the animal's eyes and ears, check its teeth, mouth and throat, clip its toenails if necessary, and record the animal's weight, skin and coat condition.

Frightened cats are generally more difficult to care for than dogs. Today, though, tranquilizers such as acepromazine can be safely administered, either orally or by injection, to help the cat relax. For people with a highly excitable pet, we hand out acepromazine pills to be administered by the owners at home so that by the time the animal arrives for its appointment, it has settled down.

There are no secrets to building up a good veterinary practice. You have to love your work. I'll never forget my first year of practice. Late one night I was called to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York City to examine a Schipperke named Pepe who had suddenly collapsed in a dead faint because, I discovered, he had epilepsy. Pepe's owner was Cole Porter.

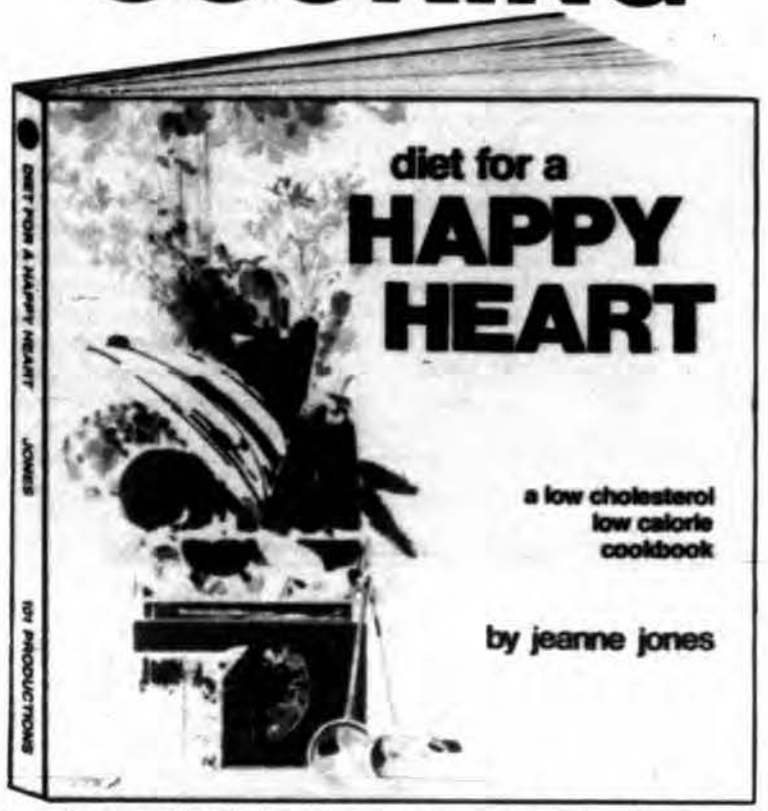

In Manhattan, where there are as many stars as there are potholes, my practice suddenly became glamorous as well as hectic. It was back in the '60s that a cute little Pekingese dog was brought to me by a hat designer at Bergdorf Goodman's named Halston Frowick — today known as the world-famous fashion designer "Halston." He's still my client. In 1966, Joanne Carson (Johnny's second wife) came in with her two Yorkies, Fluffy (the dog was in heat) and Muffin (a case of earmites).

But to my mind, the true stars are the pets. It's a challenge to try to gain their trust with patience and a pat on the head. But you know what's the most fun about being a vet? You get to hug your clients. FW

ADDING WEIGHT TO BEAUTY

You'll never see Robert Redford — or for that matter, Matt Dillon — riding off into the sunset with a 200-pound woman," observes Carole Shaw, editor in chief of Big Beautiful Woman (BBW), a fashion magazine for women size 16 or larger. "Nor do you ever see a large woman who is involved in a hot love affair or even has a flat tire in an 'interesting situation.' "

In order to dispel the myth of the big woman who "just sits around in a muumuu shoving candies into her face," the Southern California-based BBW has organized its own movie and TV production company, which will develop projects featuring large people in roles other than the usual neurotic or "funny fat person" stereotypes.

Shaw cites the 30 million large American women as the initial audience for BBW's projects. With numbers like that, BBW should pull some weight.

Here's a new one. Class Reunion Inc. of Skokie, Ill., founded by Shell and Judy Norris, is in the business of staging — and stocking — high school class reunions.

It seems that the ol' gang sometimes needs a gentle nudge to get together again. Sometimes a not-so-gentle nudge. The Norrises have managed to persuade folks to make the trip back home from as far away as Saudi Arabia and Israel.

What's in it for the Norrises? A cool $2.50 for each reunioneer that they recruit for the affair. But aside from the money, insist the Norrises, they love to get people back in touch. "Seeing people together again is like watching people greet friends at the airport," says Shell. You old softie, you.

In Russia, however, the VCR is used for more, uh, elevated purposes. According to Business Week, the USSR has begun to manufacture its own brand of the machines — at a rate of about 75 a month — and the first of the video tapes available to Soviet audiences will be "The White Sun of the Desert," a thrilling propaganda piece about the Red Army's struggle with Central Asian "counter-revolutionaries" in 1933. Football bowling you over

By LORENZO CARCATERRA

Some are named after fruit, some flowers. Others are given patriotic titles. One is named in honor of the sun, another is sugar coated.

They are the college bowl games, a confusing, never-ending, constant stream which TV viewers have been and will be subjected to through the holiday season. It began last week and it looks as if it will never end.

The Freedom Bowl (Wednesday on the syndicated TCS-Metro Network), played in Anaheim Stadium, starts off the grueling festivities. Thursday we'll move from Freedom to LIberty (on the ad hoc Katz Sports Network), from Anaheim to Memphis.

Friday we shift further south for the Gator Bowl as South Carolina takes on Oklahoma State in Jacksonville, Fla. (ABC). Saturday is daily double day for bowl lovers — first the Alhoa Bowl in Honolulu (ESPN) while WTBS will air something called the Hall of Fame Bowl under the lights in Birmingham, Ala., with Kentucky taking on Wisconsin. At last count there were 16 on the schedule.

And look at the schools we are asked to watch. We're not talking USC vs. Ohio State here. We're talking Toledo vs. Nevada-Las Vegas in the California Bowl for a $150,000 pot. Some of the players' parents didn't get excited about that one.

In the years before cable, bowl viewing was limited to the three or four major games carried by the networks, with one or two occasional strays thrown in for a few laughs and fewer ratings. Now, thanks to Ted Turner, the Katz network and ESPN, we can watch every bowl game. It's got to stop.

Cliff now a match for J.R.

Ken Kercheval gains recognition in role he didn't want at first

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — In the history of television, District Attorney Hamilton Burger is probably the only character to lead a more frustrating existence than Cliff Barnes on CBS' "Dallas."

Cliff, played by Ken Kercheval, lays elaborate plans to trap the slippery J.R. Ewing, but usually to no avail.

During nine years on the air, Raymond Burr as "Perry Mason" never lost a case in court. Or, to put it another way, Ham Burger got his teeth kicked in every week. But he was always back the next week, eager to go another round.

Cliff Barnes, out to avenge the real and imagined wrongs done to his father by the Ewings, hasn't had much better luck, although he recently got a big break.

"Cliff has enormous new-found wealth in offshore oil leases," says Kercheval. "He has wealth comparable to the Ewings. But, no, it doesn't satisfy him. He wants more. I don't know that he wants the money as much as he wants the demise of the Ewings."

The feud is an old one between the two families. Barnes contends that old Jock Ewing (played by Jim Davis until his death in 1981) cheated "Digger" Barnes out of his rightful share of the oil company partnership. After that, Barnes, in various official capacities and as a private citizen, has been the chief adversary of J.R. Ewing, played by Larry Hagman.

Ken Kercheval with new love Deborah Shelton on "Dallas."

Now, after seven years, Cliff Barnes is finally in a power position and can wage his vendetta against the Ewings on even terms.

"Cliff has become as shifty as J.R. He learned from the master. Cliff has become a worthy opponent for J.R. If ever there was a character whose theme song should be, 'Pick yourself up, Dust yourself off, Start all over again,' it's Cliff.

"He's got a blind spot. He's a bit obsessed. If he weren't, he'd just pack it in."

The interview with Kercheval came a few days after the announcement that Patrick Duffy is quitting his role as Bobby Ewing and that Lorimar Productions is not renewing the contract of Charlene Tilton, who plays Lucy Ewing Cooper.

"What it really comes down to is that while an actor would like to argue that his contribution is indispensible, the bottom line is that it isn't true," Kercheval says. "If the Raiders lose a quarterback it's not the end of the season.

"It's clear from the incredible response to the show that the audience wants 'Dallas.' They've accepted not having the Ewing patriarch here. Jim Davis brought an ingredient that was a real plus to the show. But his death didn't keep us from being No. 1. So, no actor is indispensible to the show, although, I'm not sure about Larry. I believe it would be impossible to carry on the show if he left."

When Kercheval was first called in to audition for "Dallas" he did not want the Cliff Barnes role.

"I wanted to play Ray Krebbs, the role that went to Steve Kanaly," he says. "I didn't want to play a lawyer. I said I was tired of playing doctors and lawyers. I wanted to play a cowboy. I read for the Cliff Barnes part, but my stipulation was that I could also read for the other role. I was sure that I could convince them that I was just right to play a ranch hand.

"I was glad they overruled me. I've had a lot of fun being Cliff."

'Restless' star always a woman

BY LYNDA HIRSCH

Q: Is it true that Eileen Davidson, who plays Ashley on "The Young and Restless," had a sex change? My friend said she heard this on a TV talk show. — P.B., Jacksonville, Fla.

A: Absolutely not. The gorgeous Eileen Davidson is, and has always been, very much a woman.

Q: Can you tell me if the character of Matt is ever going to return to "Capitol?" — Y.B., Wilmington, Del.

A: The character of Matt has been written out at this point, but that doesn't mean the athletic young McCandless son won't return. At this writing, there are no plans to bring the character back. However, soap operas are notorious for putting characters into the Twilight Zone and then bringing them back.

Q: Whatever happened to the actress who played Stephanie Wyatt on "Search for Tomorrow" for so many years? Who is portraying Stephanie now? — S.C. Trinity, N.C.

A: Marie Cheatham, who played Stephanie, recently married and is busy with her own production company. Her replacement is Louise Schaffer. Louise has appeared on several soap operas, including a turn on "Search for Tomorrow" as Emily Hunter, the daughter of Dr. Rogers. At that time, her soap-opera husband was played by Ken Kercheval, now seen as Cliff on "Dallas."

Q: Can you tell me why Dorian LoPinto was written out of "One Life to Live?" I really loved her storyline with Rafe. — P.S., Ashtabula, Ohio.

A: When the husband-and-wife writing team of the Corringtons took over, they decided to get rid of some characters in order to introduce some new ones. They thought the character of Samantha, played by Dorian, had had just about every problem known to mankind and that it was time to end her storyline. Sam Hall, who really liked the character of Samantha, has returned to head scripting duties, but alas, cannot bring Samantha back.

Pair in 'Hot Pursuit' of elusive TV ratings

By LYNDA HIRSCH

Kerrie Keane and Eric Pierpoint are the perfect married couple except that they aren't married to each other — not in real life, anyway. But the chemistry is obvious when they are together and in their portrayals of Kate and Jim Wyler on NBC's "Hot Pursuit."

Right now Keane and Pierpoint are in hot pursuit of a renewal and ratings. To that end the two are crisscrossing the country in an attempt to get people to watch.

"It's amazing," says Pierpoint, "but research shows hardly anyone knows we're out there. The people who do really like the show. It's quality work; our crew is amazing but bewildered. It's puzzling to us that the show has done so poorly, with all that goes into it."

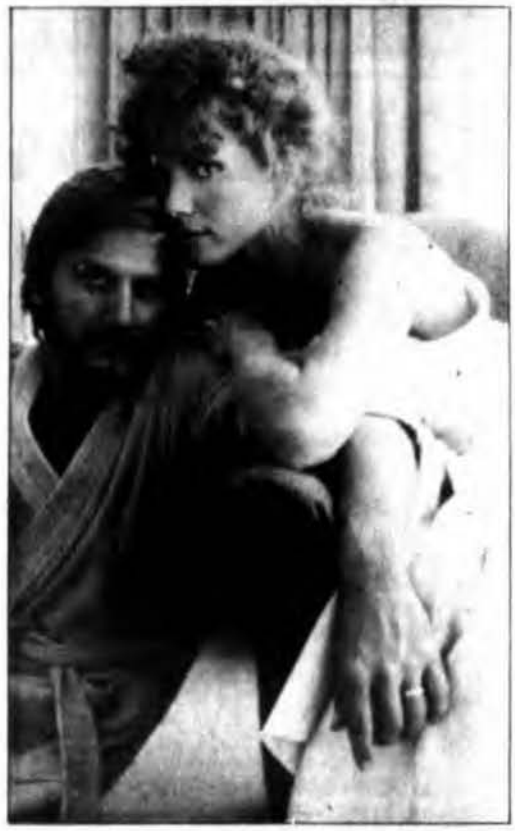

Why, indeed? The show has two attractive stars and topical storylines (drug abuse, delayed stress syndrome, women's rights), lush scenery (it's filmed on location)... and a lousy time slot.

Kerri, now raven-haired (during "Hot Pursuit" she's been a blonde, brunette and now a redhead) hated the original time slot. "The show should be a midweek, early-evening show. With a lead-in — oh, I'm not fussy — like 'The A-Team,' it could really be a hit."

NBC, which produces the show, agrees the original time slot (10 p.m. Saturday) was poor, so they're changing it. "And what did they give us?" asks Pierpoint, eyebrow arched. "Ten p.m. Friday against 'Falcon Crest.'"

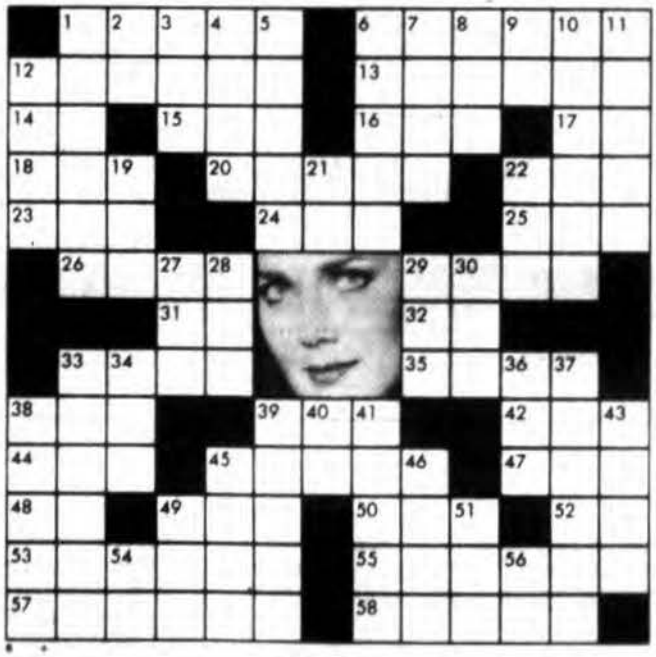

Like the characters on the show — a couple trying to clear themselves from phony charges — the two plan to go down or up in the ratings fighting.

From the beginning, the show's been compared to "The Fugitive." Says Pierpoint, "What's so bad about that? The show was a good production, a hit. But we're really not a chase story. We're about a couple who really love each other, even when everything is against them."

Pierpoint, Keane in 'Pursuit.'

Tension building on CM council

Tempers growing short as newcomers continue campaigning against growth

Like a rubber band being stretched taut, the tension is building among members of the Costa Mesa City Council who continue to haggle over the city's growth.

Although the new council has met only three times since the Nov. 6 election, the mold is beginning to harden and the rubber band appears ready to snap.

Three times, council members have voted on high-density apartment projects that will bring a total of 1,781 units to Costa Mesa.

Three times, they disagreed, voting 4-1, 3-2 and 3-2. Always on the losing end is fledgling Councilman David Wheeler, who was joined in the last two votes by newcomer Councilwoman Mary Hornbuckle.

TONY SAAVEDRA
FOCUS ON THE NEWS

That's not surprising. Both Wheeler and Hornbuckle were overwhelmingly elected after campaigning to stop any residential and commercial developments that they believe will damage existing neighborhoods.

Moreover, both were backed by a coalition of homeowner groups that are hostile to the old council's plans to turn Costa Mesa into a metropolis of cultural and commercial activity.

Hornbuckle and Wheeler are newcomers joining a trio of council veterans who have labored years over the plans for apartment projects, high-rise office complexes and multi-tiered hotels that are now coming before the council.

Mayor Norma Hertzog as well as council members Arlene Schafer and Donn Hall say they are not ready to let years of hard work and negotiations go down the drain. Costa Mesa, they say, needs the large-scale commercial projects to broaden its tax base. And it needs more housing for the workers attracted to the city by these office parks and commercial centers.

Wheeler and Hornbuckle, meanwhile, argue that the traffic, noise, smog, crowding and other environmental problems that could be generated by these projects may outweigh the benefits.

On with the parade

This boat with its gaily colored balloons is just one of the sights to be seen along the route of the 65th annual Christmas Boat Parade of Lights around Newport Harbor. Tonight is your last chance to see the parade this year. The Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce has set up a viewing area at the Sea Scout base on West Coast Highway.

Water eludes OC's reach

Officials bewail lost opportunity to preserve liquid

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fresh water was rushing down normally dry sections of the Santa Ana River Friday and slipping away into the ocean between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach.

For Orange County Water District officials, that flow to the ocean represented a lost opportunity to save some of the precious wet stuff for a non-rainy day.

District officials, who manage the Santa Ana River in Orange County, normally try to divert the flow into percolation areas where it can soak into the large natural storage basin that exists beneath much of the county.

This week, however, the river has been carrying a double load — runoff from the storms that drenched the county earlier this week and surplus water dumped by officials far upstream in San Bernardino County.

Neil Cline, general manager of the Orange County Water District, said the resulting rush of water has washed away the sand dikes used to divert the flow into percolation channels and ponds.

"We're distressed when water gets away from us at any time," Cline said. "But because of the nature of the storms, there was little we could do about it."

The district official said the sand dikes are able to divert river water to the percolation areas when the flow is less than 500 cubic feet per second. Beyond that rate, the water-saving process breaks down.

He said the flow toward the oceans Friday was at roughly 1,000 cubic feet per second.

One reason is a water-dumping effort in the San Bernardino area. (The Santa Ana River originates in the San Bernardino Mountains, flows through Riverside County and the Prado Dam, then runs through Orange County to the ocean.)

Cline said the ground in San Bernardino is saturated with water

Van driver now facing murder rap

From staff and wire reports

Murder charges have been filed against the man who allegedly sped a stolen van through a stop sign during a police pursuit, killing two Costa Mesa teen-agers.

Deputy District Attorney Richard King said his office filed an amended complaint adding the two murder charges to two counts of vehicular manslaughter filed earlier against Ruben Mayorga Valle, 22, who is being held in lieu of $250,000 bail at the Orange County Jail.

Valle faces arraignment Wednesday on the murder and manslaughter counts, in addition to a felony auto theft charge, King said Friday.

William Dearing and Roy Williamson, both 17, died Dec. 12 when Dearing's Volkswagen was struck broadside at a Costa Mesa intersection. Police said Valle ran a stop sign as police pursued him after spotting the van, which had been stolen a day earlier in Santa Ana.

Valle was uninjured in the crash, while Williamson and Dearing were both ejected from the Volkswagen. Dearing was pronounced dead at the scene, while Williamson was dead on arrival at Fountain Valley Community Hospital.

King said Valle's driving clearly "elevated the case from gross negligence (a legal element in the lesser manslaughter charges) to implied malice" necessary for a second-degree murder conviction.

Costa Mesa police said Valle mostly kept within the speed limit while leading three patrol units on a winding, four-mile chase that began at Fair Drive and Harbor Boulevard. However, the suspect suddenly accelerated after turning from Harbor onto 19th Street, said police. The

Newport legislator Ferguson may lose home to repay loan

$4.1 million default may cost lawmaker 2 separate properties

From staff and wire reports

State Assemblyman Gilbert W. Ferguson concedes that he may lose his Balboa Island home and a second investment house in Newport Beach's Spyglass Hill tract after missing payments on a $4.1 million loan.

However, Ferguson said Saturday night that he will fight attempts by Provident Central Credit Union in Burlingame to make him pay the difference should revenue from the sale of the houses be less than the value of the loan.

The Newport Beach Republican was elected last month to the 70th District Assembly post.

Ferguson said he may file a countersuit to block Provident Central, which holds the legislator's promissory note for the loan. The company filed suit last month in Orange County Superior Court against Ferguson and his wife, Anita, for defaulting on the $41,000 monthly mortgage payments stipulated in the note.

The credit union obtained a court order Friday for a Jan. 23 hearing on whether a receiver should take charge of the properties until the loan dispute is resolved.

Ferguson said he had agreed to put up the family's home on Balboa Island as collateral to secure a loan on the investment house, one of several $2 million to $3 million luxury homes built and marketed by his wife.

Ferguson said he already had a buyer for the investment property.

Family tradition lights up little bridge

Once-neglected Little Balboa Island bridge no longer overlooked during yuletide season

By ROBERT HYNDMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

For years the Little Balboa Island bridge was unadorned during Christmas while its big brother connecting the island with the mainland displayed a wealth of yuletide trimmings.

Every December the big bridge would get all the decorations, all the ornaments and all the attention. The little bridge would only get overlooked.

But 10 years ago, Pat Holmberg and her husband Joel decided to change that.

The new residents on Abalone Place took the cut boughs from Joel's father's pine tree and wired them to the lampposts — just a little sprucing up in time for the Christmas season.

But those humble beginnings gave birth to a tradition that has continued every year since with ever-increasing lights, decorations and help from their Little Balboa Island neighbors.

This year, the bridge features lights, giant candy canes and other decorations that tell visitors to Little Balboa Island that the Christmas spirit is alive and well among the local residents.

"It's just slowly grown over the years and has become a tradition now," Pat Holmberg says. "The city put in an electrical outlet under the bridge that we hook the lights up to."

With the help of neighbors including Geof Wickett, who designed the electrical system and accommodated it this year to a restructured bridge, the overcrossing is decorated in early December and stays dressed up through New Year's Day.

It takes the Holmbergs and their neighbors about four hours on a

Holiday traffic claims 144

By The Associated Press

More than 140 people were killed in traffic accidents in the first 28 hours of the long Christmas weekend as millions of people took to the highways.

The death toll at 1 this morning Eastern Standard Time was 144.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 370 and 470 people could die in traffic accidents during the holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and continues to midnight Tuesday.

Council statisticians said 430 traffic deaths could be expected during a non-holiday weekend of similar length at this time of the year.

Last year, there were 238 highway deaths during the three-day Christmas weekend.

The worst Christmas holiday traffic toll was in 1965, when there were 720 fatalities during a three-day observance.

In California, there were 64 traffic deaths during the Christmas holiday and a record 72 during the New Year's holiday in 1980, the last time the holidays occurred on a four-day weekend.

James E. Smith, California Highway Patrol commissioner, said he hopes the use of sobriety checkpoints will cut the accidents.

Transient dies in OC jail

A 60-year-old transient apparently died of a heart attack Saturday while in custody at Orange County Jail, about 17½ hours after being arrested on drunk charges, police reported.

J.C. Vandever was found "in cardiac arrest" by jailers in his cell around noon, said Sgt. Joe Davis, reading from a prepared statement.

Vandever was booked into the jail Friday after being arrested by Garden Grove police around 6:30 p.m. on charges of being drunk in public.

The county Sheriff's department and the district attorney's office are investigating the death, said Davis, adding that an autopsy is pending. No further information was available late Saturday.

DEFAULT ON LOAN...

He and his wife merely took the loan, using their family home as collateral, to pay off construction bills while the buyer went through escrow. However, the deal fell through and the Fergusons were faced with double mortgages.

He argued, however, that the initial lender — Pacific Union Bank & Trust — agreed that, if he couldn't meet his payments, it would only take title to both properties. He said Provident, which later bought the note from Pacific, now contends he also must make up any difference between the homes' value and the $4.1 million.

Ferguson said both properties combined are appraised at around $5 million. However, he probably would not be able to get full market value on the homes if the court orders him to sell the properties and sets a deadline.

stolen van was reportedly traveling at 80 mph when it broadsided the Volkswagen at 19th Street and Placentia Avenue.

Deputy Public Defender Michael Giannini called the murder charges inappropriate.

A recent appellate court ruling said murder charges in connection with traffic fatalities can only be lodged against drivers under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

A blood test conducted on Valle after the accident showed he was not intoxicated. But more extensive tests are needed to determine whether the suspect had taken any drugs.

WATER SLIPS OUT TO SEA...
From A1

because of rainfall, melting of mountain snow and the storage of Northern California water purchased during drier periods. Concerned that swampy conditions might undermine structures in downtown San Bernardino, officials there have been pumping excess water into the Santa Ana River.

The water is not being stored behind the Prado Dam, Cline said, because of the policies of the Army Corps of Engineers, which manages the dam. As a result, it has continued flowing into Orange County.

The Orange County Water District has agreed to pay about $10 per acre-foot to San Bernardino water management officials to offset pumping costs. But Cline said that will only be paid for surplus San Bernardino water that Orange County manages to divert from the river and percolate into the ground.

That rate is a bargain compared to the $155 per acre-foot the Orange County District pays to the Southern California Metropolitan Water District for water originating in Northern California or the Colorado River.

But Cline said Orange County hasn't been able to save much of the surplus Santa Ana River water because of the rapid flow and the washed-out dikes.

Now that the weather is clearing, he said, district workers hope to rebuild the dikes and begin diverting water again as soon as possible. The only positive result of the current conditions, Cline said, is that the rapid flow has helped wash silt and debris out of the river channel.

"It isn't necessarily all bad," he said. "But on the other hand, we don't know when it's going to rain again. When the water's here, we hate to lose any of it."

TENSION BUILDS ON COUNCIL...
From A1

That's where the new council began when it first met Nov. 19, and a month later that's where it remains, with members at opposite extremes of the growth issue.

"We don't seem to be getting any closer to the middle," said Hornbuckle. "I think the voters really did speak in the (recent) election and I don't see them (veteran council members) listening."

Council meetings so far have not erupted into shouting matches, although tempers are rising in the form of curt exchanges and polite sarcasm. More times than not, Wheeler is the catalyst.

He is chided, quite politely, by council members for his courtroom manner while questioning, or rather grilling, developers over projects.

Wheeler says he is just doing his job.

And he says the "controlled heat" at council meetings will soon be blazing red hot.

"I think this division is permanent. I've tried to work with them, but they're not working with me," says Wheeler. "Now the gloves are off."

He also warns of the recall threats issued last fall by Mesa Action, the political committee formed by the coalition of homeowner groups.

"For people in a politically precarious position, they (other council members) don't seem very astute," he says.

Mayor Hertzog blames the activist homeowner group for the dissension on the five-member council, speculating that Hornbuckle and Wheeler might be manipulated by "outside" forces and are not making independent decisions.

"I don't know whether they're voting or someone else is voting for them," says Hertzog.

"You talk about whether we will become a cohesive council. Well, at this point I don't know how many are on the council — it's more than five," she says. "And I'm certainly not going to bring the city to a screeching halt."

Councilman Hall says Hornbuckle and Wheeler are looking at developments with the blinders of campaign rhetoric blocking their view. And he says experience is the best cure for this so-called tunnel vision.

"They're new in this role, and I really don't think they understand the impacts of all the decisions they must make," says Hall.

He concedes the situation is tense, but remains hopeful that council members can work together. Yet, Hall's optimism is balanced on whether Hornbuckle and Wheeler become assimilated with the old guard and not the other way around.

Councilwoman Schafer maintains it is too early to begin reviewing the new council.

"Every time the council is reformed, you have an unsettling feeling. I don't think we should react or overreact to each other right now," says Schafer.

She adds that Hornbuckle, Wheeler and Hall, who was re-elected after serving six years on the council, are still nursing "the bruises" from a rigorous campaign.

"Being a council member means learning to roll with the punches; you don't always get your way," she says.

2,000 mourn slain officer

By The Associated Press

A Los Angeles policeman killed in a shootout in the city's Chinatown was buried in Brea Saturday after a full-honors funeral at a Fullerton church.

Some 2,000 mourners, including his pregnant wife, hundreds of officers wearing black ribbons on their badges, and Police Chief Daryl Gates attended the funeral.

Los Angeles police Officer Duane C. Johnson, 27, was shot in the head and neck during a gunfight Wednesday at the Jin Hing Co. jewelry shop. Two robbers were killed, and Johnson's partner, and the son of the jewelry store owner were wounded. Three men later were arrested and booked for investigation of Johnson's murder.

"He has died not in vain, but in service to (God) and his fellow man," Pastor Daniel A. Storvick said of Johnson during services at the Evangelical Free Church.

Mrs. Johnson is expecting the couple's first child in three weeks.

About 400 police motorcycles and the Los Angeles police mounted unit with a riderless horse led the mile-long funeral procession from the church down Brea Boulevard to Memory Garden Memorial Park in adjacent Brea.

The funeral included full officer-military rites. A helicopter squad, with one aircraft missing from the formation, flew overhead during the interment, which concluded at 1:45 p.m.

The police department flew in members of Johnson's family for the funeral. He has two brothers who also serve as officers.

Couple critically hurt in collision

An elderly Corona del Mar man and his wife were critically injured Saturday when their car slammed into a tree after being broadsided in a Costa Mesa intersection.

George Wilbert Driscoll and his wife Mildred Ruth, both 71, were in the intensive care unit at Fountain Valley Community Hospital following the 2:30 p.m. collision at Anaheim Avenue and 19th Street.

Police Lt. Tom Lazar said the Driscolls, traveling north on Anaheim Avenue, entered the intersection apparently intending to make a left turn onto 19th Street. Their car was hit broadside by another vehicle heading east on 19th Street.

The second car, driven by Brandon Alfred Derek Blust, 19, of Anaheim, swerved but failed to avoid the other vehicle. After the initial collision, the Driscolls' car caromed into a tree along Anaheim Avenue.

Police believe one of the drivers may have run through a stop sign.

'Star Wars' must await talks with Soviet Union

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan agreed Saturday that the United States will not deploy its controversial "Star Wars" missile defense system before holding negotiations with the Soviet Union, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said. Reporting on 3½ hours of talks with Reagan at Camp David, Thatcher endorsed research on the Star Wars program but stopped short of blessing its eventual deployment. Attempting to scotch suggestions of discord within the Western alliance on Star Wars, Thatcher said she assured the president the Soviet Union would not be able to drive a wedge between the United States and Britain on arms issues.

Navy aiding science, math education

PENSACOLA, Fla. — The Navy, responding to distress signals from state and national leaders, is trying to help public schools overcome shortages of mathematics, science and computer teachers. The Navy Math-Science Initiative program puts civilian and military volunteers into classrooms as aides or tutors and provides courses leading to teaching certificates for Navy personnel nearing retirement. The program, which started here during the 1983-84 school year, expanded this fall to Orlando, Jacksonville and Norfolk, Va., and is to begin next month in North Chicago, Ill.

Reagan orders airlift to Ethiopia

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has ordered the Air Force to fly emergency supplies to refugee camps in eastern Sudan today for thousands of Ethiopians who have fled the famine in their homeland, M. The first airlift, from AID disaster stockpiles in Leghorn, Italy, was to arrive at Kassala, Sudan this morning with eight 3,000-gallon water tanks, six large medical tents and 4,500 blankets. Other airlifts, to include vaccine and sorghum, will follow.

Budget officials seek student loan limits

WASHINGTON — Reagan administration budget officials are reportedly proposing that guaranteed student loans and certain federal education grants be denied to families with incomes over $30,000 a year. One administration official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, indicated Saturday that the proposals were included in a draft budget sent this past week to the Department of Education as part of the budget review process. Under current law, families earning more than $30,000 can qualify for the loans by showing they could not otherwise afford to pay college costs.

Jury picked in Justice official's trial

SACRAMENTO — A six-man six-woman jury has been selected to hear the case of a top state Justice Department official charged with sexually molesting a 9-year-old girl. Brian F. Taugher, special assistant to state Attorney General John Van de Kamp, allegedly molested the girl during his daughter's birthday-slumber party in July. He has denied the charge. The trial is scheduled to begin Wednesday in Sacramento County Superior Court.

Palm Springs tram back in operation

PALM SPRINGS — The Palm Springs Aerial Tramway began carrying people up the steep face of Mt. San Jacinto on Saturday, more than three months after it was closed for major repairs, an official said. The shutdown cost the tram an estimated $1.3 million in lost revenue and cost of repairs, a spokeswoman said. It was originally scheduled to be reopened 10 days after undergoing routine maintenance, but remained closed when an auxiliary cable broke and caused severe damage to the tram's track cables.

Convicted financier maintains TVs in jail

SAN DIEGO — C. Arnholt Smith, a one-time financier and former San Diego Padres baseball team owner, checks television sets and does light clerical work as he serves a jail term for theft and fraud convictions. Smith, 85, convicted in 1979 of grand theft and state tax fraud, was sentenced to a one-year term in the downtown jail Nov. 26 by Superior Court Judge Kenneth A. Johns. As a trusty, Smith is given more freedom to move around than other inmates.

Soviet gas leak claims 100 victims

MOSCOW — A natural gas leak caused an explosion in a nine-story apartment building in Tbilisi, the Georgian capital, killing or injuring at least 100 people, a British reporter who spoke to a witness said Saturday. Martin Walker of the Guardian, who was in Tbilisi last week, quoted a witness as saying the explosion occurred at 7 a.m. on Dec. 1 and the building looked "as if a giant axe had smashed into the center of it."

Sokolov appointed to succeed Ustinov

MOSCOW — Marshal Sergei L. Sokolov, for 52 years a career soldier in the Soviet mold, was appointed Saturday to succeed the late Dmitri F. Ustinov as the Soviet Union's defense minister. Diplomats said the speedy appointment indicated that the 73-year-old Sokolov, a World War II combat commander and a first deputy defense minister since 1967, had been selected well before Ustinov's death Thursday. The diplomats, speaking on condition they not be further identified, also said the grooming process during Ustinov's long illness suggested Sokolov would make little immediate change in Soviet military policy.

Malta's long-time prime minister resigns

VALLETTA, MALTA — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff, one of Europe's longest ruling heads of government, resigned Saturday, saying there was "now someone capable" of taking his place. Mintoff, 68, and the leader of this former British colony since 1971, was succeeded by Carmelo Mifsud Bonnici, who had been education minister and the deputy leader of Mintoff's socialist Labor Party. Mifsud Bonnici, a 51-year-old attorney, was sworn in immediately after Mintoff's announcement in a ceremony at the House of Representatives that was broadcast on state-run television.

Iran dashes hopes for war settlement

SANAA, North Yemen — Iran on Saturday rebuffed hopes that the Islamic Foreign Ministers Conference had made significant progress in its effort to end the Iran-Iraq war. "A cease-fire is out of the question," Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati told a news conference. "We will continue the war until we achieve victory." He dismissed as untrue a statement by the conference spokesman, Habib Chatti of Tunisia, that Iran had approved an appeal by the 45-member conference for an "immediate cessation" to the fighting in the 51-month-old war.

Rescue mission 'almost over'

Trapped miners' relatives gather as officials report air in tunnel clearing

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — Relatives of 14 miners trapped in a burning coal mine were called to company headquarters late Saturday, and an official said the rescue mission "is almost over."

Emery Mining Co. spokesman Robert Henrie refused to confirm or deny more bodies had been found in the tunnel where 13 bodies were found Friday, and only would say an announcement would be made late Saturday.

"The rescue mission is almost over. It is nearly resolved," Henrie said.

Deputies escorted the relatives, some of whom were in tears, past reporters at the company offices in Huntington. Emery Mining operates the Wilberg Mine for Utah Power & Light.

Officials said earlier that rescuers advancing rapidly in the tunnel had found the air clearing, reviving hopes that 14 other trapped miners might still be alive.

"We've made more progress in two hours than (we've) made in two days," Henrie said earlier. "They're nearly 1,600 feet into the tunnel and have found no bodies. The air is clear is from 50 to 75 feet and getting better. They could be to the end of the tunnel in a very short time."

The miners — 26 men and one woman — were trapped Wednesday when fire broke out as they tried to break a one-day production record.

Henrie said if the miners made it to the chamber, "then we still have very real optimism that we will have some survivors in this operation."

He speculated that clear air farther into the tunnel at the Wilberg Mine has been there all along and was not necessarily the result of efforts to bore air holes into a "safe retreat" chamber 2600 feet from the tunnel entrance. The chamber, 20 feet square and 10 feet high, could be an oasis of clear air that could save the remaining 14 miners.

A flareup of the fire that trapped the 27 miners Wednesday night had driven rescuers back through a mile of smoky tunnels earlier Saturday. Fans cleared most of the smoke, but visibility was about 30 feet Saturday afternoon.

Late Friday, Henrie had said officials had "some hope (the miners) got to a safe place. But clearly, as we get deeper and as more bodies are found, our hopes are dimmed."

Subway gunman shoots 4 people

Said he was robbed, then opened fire on 4 travelers inside train

NEW YORK (AP) — A gunman who claimed he was being robbed opened fire inside a subway train Saturday, seriously wounding four passengers before he fled up the track, authorities said.

One victim was in critical condition, two were seriously injured and the fourth was in stable condition, hospital officials said.

Authorities said a motorman halted the southbound subway train just before it reached the Chambers Street station in lower Manhattan after shots were fired around 1:45 p.m.

A Transit Authority porter riding in the subway car told police that a slim blond man had entered the car, approached the four and opened fire, said Capt. John Kelly of the Transit Police. "It was not an indiscriminate thing. He picked out these four guys and shot them," Kelly said.

He said a motorman entered the car and spoke with the gunman, who "told him he was being robbed." The gunman fled as the motorman told the conductor to stop the train, Kelly said.

Transit Police Detective Melvin Skinner said all four victims carried large screwdrivers.

Kelly said the gunman was described as a thin, blond, about 45, wearing a light blue jacket and eyeglasses. Port Authority police picked up a man fitting the gunman's description as he left a commuter train in New Jersey, but he was later released, officials said.

Two victims were in serious condition at Bellevue Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Robin Cohen. The other two victims were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where one was in stable condition and one was in critical condition, said spokesman Peter Ghiorse.

Man-made comet to shine in Christmas morning sky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first man-made comet will glimmer high above Earth early Christmas Day, tracked by an armada of satellites, airplanes and ground observatories as scientists herald "the year of the comets."

The artificial comet will be created by chemicals to be ejected from a West German satellite 70,160 miles above the Pacific Ocean at 4:18 a.m. PST Tuesday. It should be visible in the southern or southeastern sky from the Midwest to Hawaii and Tahiti, and from southwestern Canada and most of northern Mexico west of a line from Hudson's Bay to near Chicago through Mexico City.

It is part of a $78 million, U.S.-British-West German study of how the solar wind interacts with Earth's magnetic field. The solar wind is the hot, electrically charged gas or "plasma" that speeds away from the sun at nearly 1 million mph. Its interaction with the Earth's magnetic field creates the Northern Lights.

The choice of Christmas Day for the comet was not meant to elicit comparisons with the Star of Bethlehem, scientists insist. They say it is simply the best day this year for ground and satellite observations, with skies dark thanks to a new moon.

Scientists said the study lacks immediate practical application, but could provide insight into how space plasmas collide with dust and gases to help form comets, planets and stars; how plasma might be contained to harness fusion energy; how solar winds disrupt satellite and Earth communications and power lines; and how they influence Earth's weather.

The man-made comet also will help astronomers fine-tune an array of sophisticated instruments for the appearance of Comet Giacobini-Zinner next fall and Halley's Comet during the winter of 1985-86.

The biggest uncertainty is how bright the comet will be. Scientists said it should be visible to the naked eye for up to 10 minutes, to people using 7x50 binoculars for about 20 minutes and to astronomers using telescopes for an hour or more.

"If you expect this to exceed Fourth of July fireworks, you'll be disappointed," said physicist Morris Pongratz of Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico.

New suits filed as gas conversion ends

'Normalcy' gradually returning to Bhopal where 2,000 died as result of poison gas leak

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Scientists completed safety treatments of deadly methyl isocyanate at the Union Carbide plant here and "normalcy" continued to return to the area where 2,000 people died from a poison gas leak, the government said Saturday.

In the United States, meanwhile, yet another multimillion-dollar lawsuit was filed against Union Carbide.

Union Carbide specialists, working under the supervision of Indian scientists, a week ago began treating the tons of methyl isocyanate stored in underground tanks at the plant to convert it into pesticide.

A leak from one tank spread a killer fog over the city on Dec. 3, and medical officials are still trying to fix precisely the number of dead. About 60,000 were injured, and doctors said they are still treating 200 people a day for minor gas-related illnesses and injuries.

A government announcement did not say when the conversion of the methyl isocyanate had been completed or how many tons of the chemical had been processed, but the United News of India said the operation ended Friday night with 24 tons turned into pesticide.

An estimated 200,000 people fled the slum-ridden areas around the plant when the scientists began the conversion process, called "Operation Faith," but the government said most of them had returned amid reassurances of no further danger.

Streets were once again teeming in the city of 900,000.

"Normalcy is returning fast," N.P. Choubey, a government spokesman, said.

Officials of the Central Bureau of Investigation were still probing the cause of the gas leak. No official announcement of their findings has been made.

During Operation Faith, officials said, the tank that leaked was opened for examination, and the other two were cleared of the toxic chemical and washed out by Union Carbide experts under the supervision of Indian scientists.

In Philadelphia, lawyers for Indian gas leak victims on Friday filed the third multimillion-dollar lawsuit against Union Carbide in U.S. courts.

The lawsuit was filed in Philadelphia, attorney Rohit Sabharwal explained, because Union Carbide has a plant in nearby Southampton, Bucks County.

This diskette will go into hacker's mouth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A moderately successful computer software company is now offering stocking stuffer for the discriminating hacker who has an appetite for the latest in computer innovations — "Chocolate Bytes."

Warning: This diskette should melt in your mouth and not in your drive.

Chocolate Bytes, a 4.8-ounce chocolate bar in the shape of a 5¼-inch software diskette, is the latest product offered by Software Toolworks of Sherman Oaks. It retails for $9.95 and comes with a "byte" out of one corner.

Software Toolworks, which does business mostly by mail order and is known for its innovative programs, is billing Choclate Bytes as the "perfect gift for computer users who love chocolate and chocolate lovers who use computers."

The computer chocolate is an offspin of the company's "Chocolate Bytes" computer cookbook program. The program features more than 100 recipes from the pages of the publication "Chocolate News."

"Retailer reaction was 'We'll take the cookbook, but can you get us that chocolate diskette in time for Christmas?'" said Software Toolworks executive vice president Joe Abrams.

The company also sells three other computer cookbook programs — "Computer Chef," "What's for Dinner" and "The Best of Wok Talk" — all which allow a user to look up a recipe by ingredient, name or key word for printout or display on a monitor. The programs are priced from $19.95 to $29.95.

Experts cite design flaws in B-1 crash

Dispute Air Force report that blames human error in crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Aerospace experts are disputing an Air Force report that blames human error, rather than design problems, for the fatal desert crash of a B-1 bomber prototype last summer.

The Air Force probe concluded that the Aug. 26 crash, which killed one man and seriously injured two others, was caused by the crew's failure to flip a switch that would have transferred fuel from the rear to the front of the $325 million bomber.

But the experts say changes being made in later versions of the bomber prove their contentions that the simple failure to set a switch should not have caused an accident without the crew's being warned a mistake had been made.

"Yes, there was crew error, but did the system lead them into it? Yes," said Calvin Shoemaker, a former McDonnell Douglas Corp. test pilot who works as an Air Force contract administrator.

"I can see design deficiencies myself," said Tom Smith, executive director of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots. "What happened should have been designed out of the airplane before (the crash) ever happened."

Critics also say the bomber's automatic flight control system, the Stability Control Augmentation System, maintained its stability until it was too late to recover.

Air Force officials say the modifications are minor improvements in a satisfactory system, and Brig. Gen. John P. Schoeppner Jr., president of the Air Force board that investigated the accident, defended its finding.

The B-1's streamlined wings swing forward for maximum lift. Just before the accident, the crew pivoted them forward, which also brought the center of gravity forward. But they neglected to balance the aircraft by transferring the fuel. The fuel system, which has both an automatic and a manual setting, was on manual when the B-1 crashed.

Schoeppner said the crew had adequate warning because a caution light came on in the cockpit. For unknown reasons, however, the crew apparently never responded to the light.

Lt. Gen. William Thurman, program manager of the B-1, said the light may have been blocked by one of the aviators' knees because it is positioned low in the cockpit.

Thurman said the warning light will be moved to eye level in the cockpit — one of several design changes the Air Force is making as a direct result of the accident. It also is considering installing a warning horn.

Changes sought in math training

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national organization of math teachers says schools should routinely make calculators available to kindergarten and grade school children, including during tests.

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics says that elementary schools should rethink the traditional focus on developing children's skills in working with fractions, decimals and percentages.

"Since computers and calculators can perform such operations more quickly and accurately ... the traditional goals of elementary school mathematics must be re-examined," the council said in a policy paper.

In grades kindergarten-to-4, it said, "calculators should routinely be available to students in all activities associated with mathematics learning, including testing."

The students must know enough basic facts to be able to do arithmetic and estimation in their heads, but they should not spend a large amount of class time learning "algorithms for multiple-digit calculations," the report said.

It added that simple computer programming can start as early as kindergarten.

In grades 5-8, the math curriculum "should emphasize the development of 'number sense' — the intuitive feeling for the relative sizes of numbers that is essential in skillful estimation, approximation, mental arithmetic and the interpretation of results for reasonableness."

In high school, the courses for college-bound students "should no longer be governed solely by preparation for calculus." It said statistics and other math courses may be the most important for many students.

"Computing is changing calculus and its traditional prerequisite subjects," said the report. "Computer symbolic systems, graphics and numerical analysis software make student mastery of manipulative procedures less important and, at the same time, offer dynamic tools for the illustration of fundamental concepts and processes."

Laura X says convictions for marital rape are on climb.

Rape of spouse only now being treated as crime

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Deborah was making a call from a pay telephone when a man held a knife to her throat and demanded money. When she got home, the same man was waiting. He raped her at gunpoint.

A man hiding in the shadows confronted Brenda, held a razor to her throat and forced her into her house, where he raped her.

After a party, Rita accepted a ride home from a man she knew. He held her captive, tore her clothes, raped her, choked her and dangled her body from a secluded bridge, telling her, "I'd drop you if I didn't love you."

All these violent crimes against women share another trait: Each victim was attacked by her husband.

Until recently, marital rape was not viewed as a crime. Prior to 1979 only five states — Iowa, Nebraska, Oregon, New Jersey and Delaware — had laws allowing prosecution of husbands for raping their wives.

During the past five years, however, 17 more states — including California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois and Massachusetts — as well as the District of Columbia, have been added to the list. Campaigns are under way in 13 other states to change rape statutes.

Legislation to make marital rape a federal crime died in Congress this year, but sponsors say they'll introduce the bill again in January.

In states such as New York, Michigan, Ohio, Texas and Indiana a woman still has no legal recourse against her husband if he rapes her.

Studies in Boston and San Francisco indicate that between 10 percent and 14 percent of married women have been raped by their husbands. Frequently, the rapes are part of a pattern that includes other abuse.

The legal foundation for excluding husbands from prosecution for rape dates to the 17th century, when Sir Matthew Hale, a chief justice of England, wrote: "The husband cannot be guilty of a rape commited by himself upon his lawful wife, For by their mutual consent and contract, the wife hath given up herself in this kind."

That sentiment was echoed by John Rideout, who went on trial in 1978 for allegedly raping his wife, Greta. "You're my wife, you do what I want," Rideout said.

Greta Rideout of Salem, Ore., became the first woman in the nation to press prosecution of her husband for rape that allegedly occurred while they were living together. Although John Rideout was acquitted, the publicity resulting from his trial caused several states to change their rape laws.

In another case that concluded last September, William Rider was found guilty in Miami of sexual battery and kidnapping of his wife, Marion.

Although the Rider verdict was widely reported as the first time a husband was convicted of raping his wife while they lived together, many such decisions already were on the books, according to Laura X, director of the National Clearinghouse on Marital Rape in Berkeley, Calif.

The conviction rate among husbands accused of marital rape is about 85 percent, compared with between 2 percent and 5 percent in cases of rape by strangers, she said.

The women's rights activist, who tracks cases of marital rape, said she is aware of 99 cases of husbands convicted of raping their wives — 21 when they were living together and 78 when they were separated.

Laura X, who changed her name in the tradition of black revolutionary Malcolm X, monitors court decisions and legislation and works to change laws so that husbands can be prosecuted.

"Rape laws were written to protect man's property," she said. "What we want is a woman's basic right to consent."

"There is this impression that marital rape is a tiff between husband and wife, that it's not a serious crime. Marital rape can have all the brutality that we normally associate with stranger rape," said David Finkelhor, associate director of the Family Violence Research Program at the University of New Hampshire in Durham.

Case studies show weapons and other foreign objects often are used in marital rape, either as a threat or as part of the rape, he said.

A book by Finkelhor and Kiersti Willo, "License To Rape: Sexual Abuse of Wives," will be published in March, he said. In a study he conducted of 335 women in Boston, he reported, 10 percent of women who had been married said they had been raped by their husbands, and 40 percent of those women said they had never told anyone.

In a study published in 1975, Professor Diana E.H. Russell of Mills College said she found that among 930 women in San Francisco, 14 percent of those who had been married said they had been raped by their spouse. Most of those in the study said they also were beaten.

Many women who are raped leave their husbands, but many others stay because they believe the men will change or because they cannot support themselves or want to keep families intact.

Separation and divorce provide no easy answer because retribution is frequent. In fact, experts say the period of separation prior to divorce is one of the most dangerous times for women who have been raped by husbands.

Besides the physical brutality of marital rape, the trauma can be psychologically damaging, experts agree.

'MADSKIPPER' PARKS BARQUE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — There's just one reason why the captain of an old-fashioned three-masted barque has brought his boat to this Lake Ontario city as the cold weather sets in.

"People said I was mad: 'Why don't you go to the Caribbean?' " said David Summerskill, the British captain and owner of the T.S. Merkur. "The answer is, I'm mad."

When the Merkur sailed into Rochester's Charlotte harbor on Dec. 9, Summerskill said he would spend at least two weeks here and perhaps stay the winter.

For as long as it stays, 161-foot ship is open for tours at a cost of $1 a person. The harbor is normally home to 21 tall ships, all of which have gone south for the winter.

The square-rigged Merkur was designed by Summerskill and built in Sweden in 1969 according to traditional shipbuilding standards. Its hull is solid oak and there are few modern conveniences such as electric winches.

Summerskill, from Dartmouth, England, shares the ship with a small crew and his family: his wife, Marjan, the co-owner, and their children, Rupert, 9, and Kim, 8.

New Year's Day amid the sharks

California scientist will meet the beast off 'Dangerous Reef'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A scientist plans to spend his New Year's holiday in Australia studying great white sharks, hoping to learn more about the lethal beasts that have turned Northern California coastal waters into a "Red Triangle."

"I'll leave Dec. 28th and will be in the water on New Year's (day)," said Dr. John McCosker.

McCosker, director of San Francisco's Steinhart Aquarium, will be making his third trip to Australia to study sharks, which are becoming increasingly plentiful off the coast of Northern California.

A section of ocean, dubbed the "Red Triangle" for the number of bloody assaults on swimmers, surfers and divers, has become the world capital of great white attacks on humans.

For decades, Australia led in the number of attacks by sharks. Then, increases in the number of seals and sea lions lured hungry sharks to Northern California coastal waters.

Historically, an attack by a great white took place once every several years along the West Coast. Now, McCosker says, about two attacks per year are taking place, including one this year that killed an abalone diver.

So why go all the way to Australia?

For one thing, while attacks are increasing here, there acutely are more sharks to observe in Australian waters, the scientist said.

"The water is also clearer than off California and the area is so remote it's a relatively pure environment," said McCosker, who's heading to the part of south Australia known as Dangerous Reef.

McCosker and other scientists will be accompanied by a television crew making a shark documentary for NBC-TV.

"Scientists couldn't afford this research without the help of television," said McCosker, who appeared in a similar documentary on public television's Nova series.

"We will learn a great deal, and much of it will have a bearing on California," he said.

Among other things, McCosker plans to feed a shark an electronic device that will keep tabs on eating habits and body temperature, as well as tagging it with a speedometer.

"This will be a first and should prove a great help in understanding the living patterns of sharks," said McCosker, adding that a similar plan to tag a shark off the California coast this year fell through.

"The waters off California are much rougher, and you can sit in a boat a long time before you even see a shark," said McCosker."This won't be the case in Australia."

Dummies will also be used to find out more about the way a shark attacks a victim.

Carry-on luggage gains in passenger popularity today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You can take it with you — and are more likely than ever to find room for it on the plane — as airlines rush to accommodate a growing passenger preference for carry-on luggage.

"It just seems to be a phenomenon of modern air travel — passengers increasingly want to carry on more and more baggage," said TWA spokesman Jerry Cosley.

The carry-on trend is most apparent in short hops. Commuter carriers such as PSA and AirCal say as many as 70 percent of their passengers carry all their luggage with them.

An International Airline Passenger Association study done two years ago indicated that 47.7 percent of all passengers on flights of two hours or less rated carry-on package compartments as the most important in-flight service.

PSA was so eager to provide room for carry-on luggage that it asked British Aerospace to leave as much space as possible below seats on a new fleet of BA3-146 planes.

The plane manufacturer complied by raising seats a few inches. But the seats had to be re-ordered because short people's feet didn't reach the floor.

A more obvious — and popular — solution has been to increase the size of overhead compartments. Federal regulations place no limits on the number of carry-on pieces, but says they must fit either under seats or in overhead compartments.

Western Airlines is replacing existing compartments in its 727s with new ones 50 percent larger. Similar replacements are being installed by United and American as part of general fleet refurbishing.

"We're just meeting consumer demand," said United spokesman Chuck Novak.

This week, USAir introduced its new Boeing 737-300, a stretched version of the 737 with more seats than the 737-200 and a 757-like interior that features bigger overhead bins.

"Putting in larger overhead bins gives the planes a neater look, gets bags off the floor and actually makes for a safer flight, said Delta's Bill Berry. "No straps or buckles to get your foot caught in."

Delta has been installing larger bins in its planes for about a year, Berry said.

He said the larger bins address some of the fears voiced by flight attendants who claim excessive carry-on lugagge delays boarding and deplaning. The flight attendants also say heavy bags could fall out of the overhead compartments during turbulence or hard landings, but Berry said the new bins all meet Federal Aviation Administration standards and are quite secure when closed.

The 21,000-member flight attendents association has filed a petition asking the FAA to require that gate agents measure carry-on luggage to make sure it will fit on board.

Some tips for passengers with carry-on luggage:

- Make sure the baggage is small enough to fit either under the seat or in an overhead bin; flight attendants will check oversize items.
- Carry-on luggage should be consolidated where possible into one or two bags.
- Pack gifts in a suitcase and then check the case, which can be used to carry gifts on the return flight.
- Don't wrap gifts that will look suspicious in X-ray security checks — toy laser guns or drills, for example. Security workers will order them unwrapped.

Economist Laffer set as chamber speaker

Economist Dr. Arthur Laffer will be the keynote speaker at the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce's 78th annual installation dinner Jan. 18.

The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Hotel Meridien, 4500 MacArthur Blvd. in Newport Beach.

Laffer, a member of President Reagan's Economic Policy Advisory Board, will discuss the economic outlook for the coming year.

A full professor of business economics at USC, Laffer is also founder and chairman of A.B. Laffer Associates, an economic research and financial consulting firm based in Rolling Hills Estates.

Laffer served on the executive committee of the Reagan-Bush '84 campaign and was Southern California chairman for the 1984 Senate Republican Political Action Committee.

The chamber's 1985 officers will be installed by James Roosevelt, eldest son of President Franklin Roosevelt and president of a Newport Beach business consulting firm.

The new officers to be installed include: Ralph Rodheim, president; Bill Ficker, vice president; Barbara Roppolo, secretary; and Steve Rabago, chief financial officer.

Bill Lusk will serve as Commodores Division president. Barbara de Boom will serve as president of the Dolphins Division. Clark Graves will be the Marine Division president. Jim Hunnemeyer will serve as Civic Affairs Division president and Ted Fuller will serve as president of the Organizational Affairs Division.

A Citizen of the Year award will also be presented at the dinner.

Tickets to the installation dinner are $35 per person. For more information and reservations, call the chamber at 644-8211.

Prof. joins HB planners

Dr. Richard Rowe, an instructor of American history at Golden West College, has been appointed to the Huntington Beach Planning Commission by City Councilman Peter Green.

Rowe, 38, replaces Frank Higgins who was the appointee of former Councilman Ron Pattinson. Pattinson stepped down from the council in November and Higgins followed suit.

Green, an instructor of ecology and zoology at Golden West, was elected to the council in November. Green said Rowe is a resident of the downtown area and a surfer.

"This will allow him to watch the beaches and the downtown area, two of the most critical areas in the city," Green said.

Rowe, who served this fall on Green's successful City Council campaign, has been on the Golden West College faculty for 16 years. His specialty is the Eisenhower Administration, Green said.

PET POINTERS

by Tom Sholseth, DVM

TIS THE SEASON

The Christmas and New Year's holidays are an exciting time. In all the excitement, it is easy to overlook some things only to find that the new Christmas puppy has just eaten Aunt Anne's homemade fruit cake or that the kitty just made short work of that pointsetta or mistletoe. Rich foods and ornamental plants can be harmful and even poisonous.

It is wise to be alert to these potential problems!

If the staff at Bal-Mesa can be of any help, just call. We will be glad to answer your questions or help in any way we can.

A public service to promote better pet health from the Bal-Mesa Veterinary Hospital, 1542 Newport Blvd, Costa Mesa, 642-2100.

Chalet wins chamber beautification award

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Eric Gundel and Susanne Thierfeldt have done everything, except maybe dump snow on Harbor Boulevard, to make their Costa Mesa restaurant look like a mountaintop chalet.

And their efforts have won the attention of Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce officials, who presented Gundel and Thierfeldt this week with the chamber's first beautification award.

The award will be presented monthly to local businesses beautifying their facilities.

The Chalet restaurant, with red hearts painted on green shutters and deer antlers mounted on the roof, has come come a long way since the days when it was a car dealership at 1969 Harbor Blvd.

Gundel and Thierfeldt said they were shopping for a restaurant site nearly two years ago and were enchanted by the sloping shape of the dealership's roof. It reminded them of a Swiss chalet.

But that's where the resemblance stopped.

The showroom was glass-walled, perfect for a car dealership, but not adequent for a chalet.

The walls were rebuilt, a few German knick-knacks added, and the restaurant was complete. Gundel and Thierfeldt had created a "homey" atmosphere — that is, if you live in Germany.

Southern Californians may find The Chalet more like a skiing lodge, with everything except snow.

The menu features what Gundel and Thierfeldt call "homestyle" cooking — dishes like Jager Schnitzel, Roulade a la Strasbourg and Bayrischer Sauerbraten.

"These are dishes every German housewife knows how to make," says Thierfeldt. The Chalet is open weekdays for lunch, from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Mondays and Saturdays for dinner, from 6 p.m.

Nichole's Grill will open in NB

The Newport Beach Marriott and Tennis Club, as part of an expansion program under way at the Newport Center-based hotel, has announced the opening of Nicole's Grill specialty restaurant.

According to Newport Beach Marriott General Manager Ray Kovacs, the new restaurant reflects a new "California grill" concept, featuring oversized steaks and fresh seafood served in a lively dining atmosphere.

Fair electrician wins award

Orange County Fair Electrician James Smith of Huntington Beach recently received the Southern California Edison Energy Management Award for the energy conservation program he helped install at the Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa.

"This is something the Edison Company does that it really doesn't have to do," said Smith. "I believe it is nice of them to give recognition to those in the community who make an effort to save money during the year."

The award was given to Smith and the Fairgrounds for the replacement of 57 large wattage incandescent lamps with 26 high pressure sodium lamps that resulted in an annual savings of 38,033 kilowatt hours.

In addition, various energy conservation actions for indoor and outdoor lighting have been implemented at the Fairgrounds. These amounted to an annual savings of 243,312 kilowatt hours and 153 kilowatts in demand. In all, the Fairgrounds saved a total of 281,345 kilowatt hours.

"I believe this is the Edison Company's way of saying thank you," said Smith. "When the Fair saves money and electricity, it helps Edison because they don't have to build more power plants."

The Fairgrounds' conservation measures were achieved through the joint efforts of Smith and Carol Croy, Edison Energy Services Representative. Smith started the energy conservation program at the Fairgrounds in December of 1982 when the Edison Company came to do an energy audit. Company representatives told him what lights were the most abusive energy-wise. They were replaced with more efficient lights. "I got interested in energy-saving methods when I attended night school and studied lighting devices," he said. "I find lighting to be very interesting."

Smith started working at the Fairgrounds in September, 1982.

OC to hire more middle managers

A new national survey shows that middle management employment in the Pacific region including Orange County will increase slightly in the first half of 1985.

The survey, conducted by Management Recruiters International, Inc., Laguna Hills, the country's largest search firm, asked nearly 2,000 executives in companies across the country to project their hiring plans for the next six months.

A total of 43.5 percent of those surveyed in the Pacific region indicated they were planning to expand their middle management and/or their professional staff during the next three months. Another 46.8 percent in the region said they would maintain present staff levels and only 8.4 percent were considering reductions. This is a 7.1 point increase in new hire projections from last quarter while staff reduction plans had decreased 7.7 points.

By comparison, 42.1 percent of those polled throughout the country were planning to increase staff size; 49.9 percent said they would maintain staff size; and 7.4 indicated possible staff reductions.

Thomas J. Toole, of Management Recruiters of Laguna Hills, viewed the analysis to be more confident for 1985.

"This forecast is indicative of the cautious optimism that we are seeing in the economy for 1985. We experienced a slight lull in projections for the last quarter of 1984. That may have been caused by employers taking a wait and see attitude. Apparently, most are convinced that the new year will see a continuation of a growth economy, at least for the first six months."

Management Recruiters asked the question: Will an economic slowdown occur in the next two years? If so, when?

In the Pacific region, 44.2 percent strongly stated that no slowdown would occur in the next two years. Of the 44.8 percent who said "yes," 15.9 percent said the economy's decline would start in the first half of 1985, while 44.9 percent indicated second half 1985 and the remaining 30.4 percent said a slowdown would occur sometime in 1986.

These figures compare to the national averages of 37.0 percent who thought a slowdown would occur and 49.0 percent who said a slowdown would not happen. The rest, 14 percent were undecided.

According to Toole, "this question and response again confirms the feeling in our region that the economy will remain strong during the first part of 1985. Now that we see a slight downturn in interest rates also and a start by government in controlling the deficit, the economy may be able to sustain itself even beyond the first six months.

Servicemen head home for holidays on the bus

PHOENIX, Ariz. — It's said an army travels on its stomach.

But don't tell Greyhound that. Thousands of military personnel are traveling home by Greyhound bus this Christmas, according to the company.

Terry Underwood, Greyhound Lines vice president-marketing, said, "Based on regional reports, military traffic is up significantly throughout the country."

He noted for example that at Fort Knox, Ky., 84 busloads of military personnel left Thursday morning for various points. "That's over 3,400 passengers," Underwood said. At Fort Leonard Wood near St. Louis, the story was the same. Greyhound used 62 buses to take 2,468 soldiers home to the cities of Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

"We expect a record number of military passengers this holiday time," Underwood said.

The world's largest bus company recently signed an agreement with the military offering special discount Ameripass tickets to active and retired military personnel and their dependents. The price of a 15-day Ameripass is $119 and the 30-day Ameripass is $169 — more than a 50 percent reduction.

Bridging the gap

This pedestrian bridge connecting UC Irvine with the new Marketplace shopping center is scheduled for completion in February. The $1.1 million bridge — which spans Campus Drive — is a joint project of the university and The Irvine Co. The retail complex is expected to be finished next summer.

Irvine reprographic firm expands

Universal Reproductions South Inc., a reprographic firm headquartered in Irvine, is expanding its operations to Cathedral City in Riverside County.

The 2,400 square foot facility will be located at the City Hall complex, with a grand opening celebration planned for Jan. 7.

According to Barry Gerson, president of Universal, the expansion is the result of a 200-hour survey conducted by the company on building industry support services currently available in Riverside County. "Our survey showed that the growing needs of architects, engineers, and builders in the Coachella Valley were not being met by existing resources," said Gerson.

"Because of our 15 years experience in Orange County, we feel strongly that we will be able to supply this growing area with the reprographic services needed. We selected Cathedral City for our new operations because it is central to the entire Coachella Valley, and is particularly convenient to the cities of Palm Springs, Rancho Mirage, Palm Desert, and Indio."

In addition, Universal is planning to open a new branch in the city of Riverside in 1985.

"What to do, when you don't know what to do? The Bible comes up with the correct formulation: There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

LB can reduce legal costs by severing law firm ties

To the Editor:

Laguna's Quagmire — attorney fees. It has been a controversial issue in Laguna Beach for years and it is now out of control. Our legal costs for 1984-85 could easily exceed $500,000. This by far exceeds the funds allocated in our budget. Strong counter-action must be applied now or our future legal costs could exceed $1 million annually. The thought is shocking, the possibility real and, as usual, the victims are the Laguna Beach taxpayers.

It raises the following profound questions: Why did it happen? How did it happen? Who is responsible for this happening? What is the solution? What is the prudent thing to do now? A thought comes to mind. It is the late President Harry Truman's famous quote: "THE BUCK STOPS HERE." People respected him and his philosophy, and it was successful.

Now is the time for the Kenney administration to "pull a Harry Truman." Save the taxpayers over $500,000 in legal fees for 1984-85 and end the political, unorthodox, expensive and unnecessary agreements with the law firms.

Concerned citizens believe that Laguna will benefit from this action because these law firms' services have been counter-productive and detrimental for Laguna Beach taxpayers. Their so-called services are overrated, overpriced and very inadequate. They may also be responsible for an undue amount of cases going to court when settlement was the prudent thing to do.

Because of this, there is no way to know what amount of taxpayers' money may have been wasted. What a shame! Bear in mind Laguna Beach is now the defendant in well over 250 cases, and the total amount of the law suits exceed $60 million. THAT REALLY BLOWS THE MIND!

There is a way to correct this legal quagmire in Laguna. Laguna Beach should hire our own full-time attorney at law — preferably a young, capable hard-working individual at a reasonable salary of about $50,000 per year. This will result in saving Laguna Beach taxpayers in excess of $500,000 a year. This would indeed be good news — start the New Year off on a positive note and help end some of the negativism that now prevails in Laguna Beach.

Commendation to LB council

To the Editor:

The Laguna Beach City Council, City Manager Ken Frank and the city staff are to be commended for the way they have been dealing with the Carma-Sandling project.

It is never easy to establish reasonable limits. It is often even more difficult to stand by them later. Limits to control speed, building height, or flow of traffic are thoughtfully set to protect.

In the case of Carma-Sandling, the Temple Hills Community Association — historically concerned about exceeding the established limits for traffic on our neighborhood hills — could not support the 110 homes as requested by this Canadian firm. The council has offered to approve 70 homes, a reasonable compromise for both the local community and the out-of-town developers.

The current City Council, elected by the citizens of Laguna Beach, has listened to us, those most affected by the decision to be made. They have listened to the people who elected them and have been representing them ably. That is how a democracy is supposed to work.

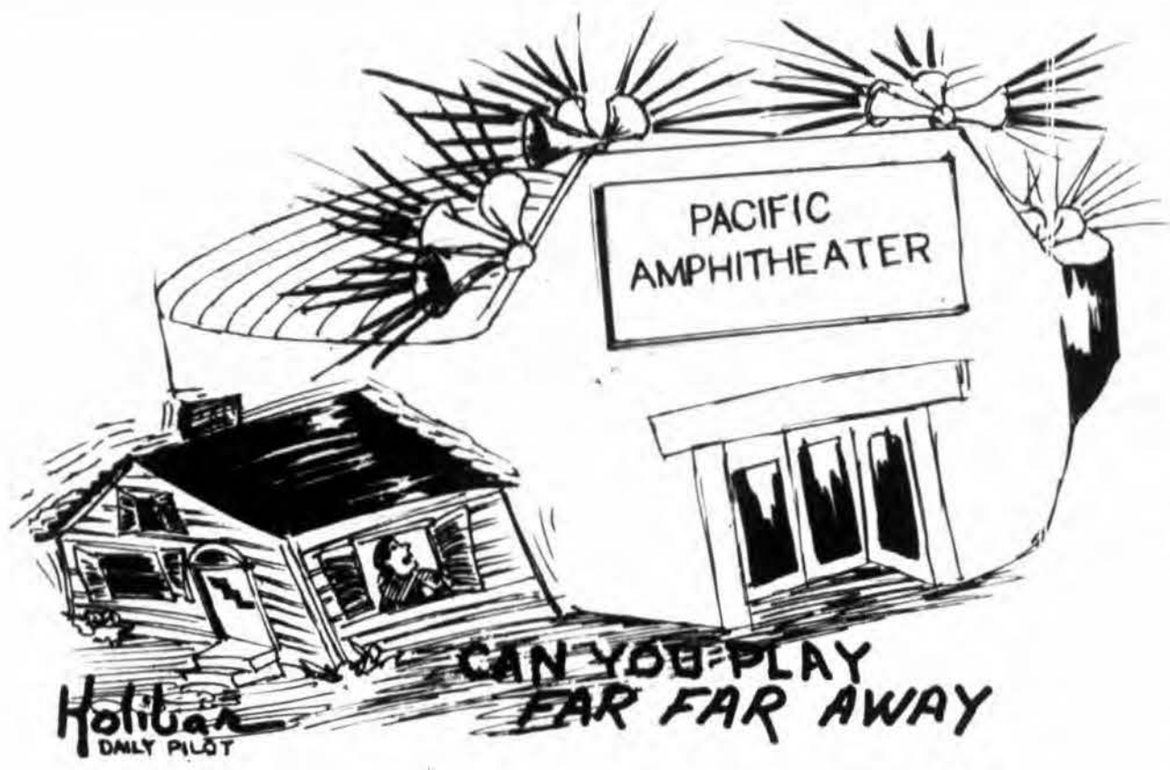

It's not always been this way. Some of the past councils have not been as responsible or responsive to their electorate. Who can forget the pleading in vain to previous councils to take a stand against county planners or out-of-town developers? Who can forget the pressure and hard work it took to get past councils to act on our behalf to:

1. Delete Alta Laguna extension from the county arterial map.
2. Establish a fire road between Arch Beach Heights and Top of the World neighborhoods, for emergency vehicles only.
3. Revise the General Plan with elements drawn up by the citizens themselves.

These past councils would probably not take a stand opposing the San Joaquin Corridor, or adopt land-use designations for our hillsides appropriate to the terrain and surrounding community.

As concerned residents of Temple Hills we wish to thank the present Laguna Beach City Council for its strong leadership, and to publicly proclaim our ongoing support.

Bhopal incident will fade in memory as others have

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY

At one of those round-table talkfests at which one is asked what will stand out in history as the great event of 1984, a seasoned and bright journalist said that the tragedy of Bhopal in India would probably emerge as the distinguishing feature, or scar, of that year. That probably won't, in fact, be the case.

One heated week after the event of Sept. 1, 1983 (remember?), a guest on Ted Koppel's nightly television show predicted that the event in question would be the enduring nightmare of the postwar era. A second guest (me) predicted that the event, however inflammatory, would not stay in the memory more than three months. Fifteen months later we of course remember the shooting down by the Russians of the Korean airliner, but we need to scratch our head just a little to do so.

Six years ago when I learned that 900 men, women and children, at the prompting of a demented zealot, had, in their little American enclave in the jungles of Guyana, committed mass suicide by drinking Kool-Aid with cyanide in it, I doubted that that melodramatic event would ever be far from memory. But even Jonestown tends to fade.

So will Bhopal, and it is worth reflecting on just why this is so.

It was the largest industrial accident in the history of the world, killing 2,000 people and maiming we know not how many more. The question that comes to mind is: Was there evil intent? What the lawyers call "mens rea"? — in the absence of which you are dealing with an entirely different phenomenon, as different as the accident caused by a drunken driver and the accident caused by the murderer who intentionally runs his victim down.

There will be years of legal talk on the matter, but sensible people will immediately conclude that it can hardly have been the intention of the managers of Union Carbide Corp., Indian Division, let alone Danbury, Conn., HQ, to bring on such tragedy. The loss of lives apart, the very future of the corporation is threatened. We don't have here a demented leader persuading his hypnotized followers to commit suicide, or a bloodless leader in the Kremlin commiting 269 innocent travelers to a horrible death from 35,000 feet over the Sea of Japan. It was an "accident."

The question will now arise: Was it an accident that reasonable safeguards would have prevented (that, of course, will be the plaintiffs' allegation) or was it an accident in the sense that the pilot who ran his plane into the Empire State Building had an accident?

It will not be easy to ideologize the tragedy of Bhopal. Jane Fonda completely forgot to warn us about methyl isocyanate, which in India has killed 2,000 more people than have died from any accidents caused by a nuclear plant. Moreover, the poisonous ingredients in question were developed for the purpose of controlling the insect population. If we hadn't encouraged the development of insecticides in the course of the last 50 years, we would be dying by the thousands and hundreds of thousands of malaria, typhus, the plague, yellow fever and whatever.

It isn't hard to understand the fury of the Indian people. Fury is fueled by impotence. Relatives of the afflicted desire to punish Union Carbide, but so does all of India, it seems. Never mind that the management of Union Carbide is convincingly traumatized by what happened. When its chairman, Warren M. Anderson, went to Bhopal he was arrested: a gesture designed exlusively for public consumption, and in a few hours he was out. What to do, when you don't know what to do? The Bible comes up with the correct formulation: There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

But the episode will fade from memory. Unquestionably the regulations for storing methyl isocyanate will be made tougher. If it transpires that they were met by Union Carbide at Bhopal and even so the gas escaped, then obviously they were never tough enough to begin with and it is merely luck that kept others before from suffering the same fate. If they were sufficiently tough but insufficiently supervised, then we have human error.

Human error is something the world will always be afflicted with. A report last week was of a half-dozen airplanes that actually ran out of fuel in midair. In some cases, the fuel gauges were inaccurate; in others, pilots whose own lives were put at stake had not checked the gauges. There isn't ever going to be an end to that kind of thing, so that 1984 will not likely be the Year of Bhopal.

THE DIVIDING LINE

U.S. choice: Arms control or national security

Reagan can have Star Wars system or an arms agreement — but not both

PAT BUCHANAN

MOSCOW — When Andrei Gromyko returns to Geneva, it will be with a single objective: abort the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative known as "Star Wars."

Not a meeting passes here, with Russian diplomats, with the party liners at Georgi Arbatov's USA Institute, even with Communist "youth" cadres, without denunciation of President Reagan's program for a strategic defense of the United States.

What alarms Moscow is this. As a result of SALT I, SALT II and the ABM Treaty, the Soviets have acquired the capacity to place five nuclear warheads on every SAC and submarine base, every missile silo and major city in the West. This is what the Soviets call stability. And it is a measure of how deeply the appeasement reflex is rooted in Western thinking that so many American intellectuals and politicians agree that to impede in any way the Soviet Union's capacity to destroy our civilization represents an intolerable provocation of Moscow.

While insisting America remain forever naked to nuclear attack, however, the Soviets accept no such constraint upon themselves.

This vast nation, spanning 11 time zones, is blanketed by the thickest bomber defense system ever devised. New Soviet fighters are equipped with look-down, shoot-down radars to cope with U.S. cruise missiles. The ABM system around Moscow is constantly tested and upgraded. In violation of the ABM Treaty, Moscow has tested anti-missile missiles and constructed a huge battle management radar at Krasnoyarsk in Central Asia. At the USA Institute, they do not even bother to deny the existence of the ABM radar, but denounce Westerners for poisoning the atmosphere for future agreements by bringing it up.

In their foreign affairs article, "The President's Choice: Star Wars or Arms Control," Messrs McNamara, Bundy, et al. argue that Reagan must choose. They are probably right. But, ultimately, the choice is national security or arms control. Either Reagan can begin a land- and space-based defensive system for America's deterrent against Soviet first-strike weapons, or he can have an arms agreement. He cannot have both. And if he subordinates national security to arms control, the price of his agreement will be his place in history.

To describe the Western politicians, businessmen and diplomats, flocking to Moscow for Detente II, one word comes to mind: pathetic. Like the woman who married full of romantic hope, only to discover her mate a liar, a cheat and a brutalitarian, the West is returning, resignedly, to the marriage, because she does not know what else to do. Henry Kissinger is right; rhetoric aside, the Reagan administration appears to have no alternative to detente.

At the U.S. Embassy where hopes fluttered in the early '70s, a sense of realism pervades. It is matter of factly reported that the Soviets have smashed the Helsinki monitoring groups, that Russian artists and dissidents are routinely rounded up, without apology or explanation. Britain may welcome Gorbachev as the harbinger of a bright new era; the word here is that the younger generation of Communists is no less militant or bloody-minded than the Brezhnev crowd, with an equal stake in their wretched system.

"They simply outlasted us," said one official. Which pretty well sums it up. Though the Red Army is entering its sixth year of genocidal war against the Afghan people, former President Carter's grain embargo was long ago lifted. We are again a "reliable supplier," says Secretary Block. Though Solidarity lies in ruins, Reagan is lifting the last of his sanctions. In a betrayal of Polish workers, the Warsaw regime is being admitted to the IMF. Americans, now paying off Western bankers for the loans on which General Jaruzelski defaulted, will soon begin providing the credit for the general to go shopping in the industrial malls of Western businessmen.

Why? The answer appears to be that the West simply does not know what else to do.

Yet, even in the absence of a strategy to prevail in the war declared by Lenin and pursued by his successors, the Americans could, at least, fall back upon the tradition of the Yankee trader.

Before negotiating a single new agreement, insist upon full compliance with the old. If the Soviets refuse to meet their commitments in the Helsinki Final Act, Reagan could fairly withdraw the major U.S. concession to achieve it: i.e., de-recognize the Soviet Empire in East Europe. If the Soviets refuse to bring their offensive weapons into numerical compliance with SALT II, Reagan should cease dismantling Poseidon submarines in compliance with its terms.

It is not a provocation to insist Moscow live up to past agreements before we sign new ones. Not to do so only justifies the contempt for the West that Soviet officialdom today has such difficulty disguising.

Maine crusader rocks the boat

WASHINGTON — Tom Dunn is a big, tough-looking man, a 48-year-old former Army intelligence officer and Baltimore cop who has ignited a forest fire of controversy in Maine with his self-appointed campaign as a citizens' rights advocate.

Depending on who you believe, Dunn is either a champion of the little guy or a self-promoting crackpot.

Even the torching of his house five years ago is the subject of controversy. Some officials in Maine say they think Dunn set the fire himself to get publicity. They view with equal suspicion his report a year later that he was shot twice by a pair of assailants. Neither the arson nor the shooting has been solved.

Far from being silenced by the official hostility and skepticism, Dunn continues his crusade with unabated zeal. Last month, he made a respectable showing in his losing race for sheriff of Kennebec County, which includes the state capital of Augusta.

Dunn told my associate Corky Johnson his troubles began in the mid-1970s, when he volunteered to look into complaints from county residents that they had been bilked in real-estate transactions. They came to him, he said, because they knew his background as an investigator.

Dunn investigated and concluded that perhaps two dozen persons had been unfairly treated. He forwarded his findings to the state attorney general. According to accounts by the people Dunn tried to help, the state real-estate commission also referred some of the cases to Maine's attorney general for action.

Former state Assistant Attorney General Cheryl Harrington said her office didn't have enough evidence for a prosecution. She also said Dunn's material was not reviewed.

But in a report filed by a state consumer rights group, three independent experts agreed that Dunn's charges deserved "more thorough investigation."

The real estate cases were only the start. Dunn soon began rattling even bigger cages by charging that state and federal funds may have been misused by the state transportation department.

Documents and other sources support many of Dunn's charges that Maine's transporation department was engaging in at least some questionable practices.

For example, sources in the department told my reporter that bridges were built on roads that led only to the front doors of local officials or onto land owned by big timber companies.

A former state representative said that when he tried to blow the whistle on some dubious bridge constructions, the windows of his business were shot out. One bridge, the former representative said, led directly to a lumber company's land — and nowhere else. It cost the taxpayers $350,000. "It is a real dirty mess up here," he said.

There were other reports of questionable practices in the department, including charges of overpayment to favored employees, and the use of department fuel and equipment for employees' personal benefit.

While investigating the real estate and transportation department charges, Dunn says he discovered the screws on his car's carburetor had been loosened, posing the risk of explosion. He also says the windows of his pickup truck were shot out. Then the attic of his home burst into flames in what the state fire marshal said was a case of arson. A year later, Dunn was shot in the back and neck.

District Attorney David Crook said he has been told by police that Dunn shot himself. But state police investigators say that claim is "reckless." Crook said Dunn's supporters "contain every nut in the state," and he claimed that a check with Baltimore police would reveal that Dunn was fired for mental disability.

Baltimore records, however, show that Dunn was retired because of duty-related back injuries. They clearly indicate he had no mental problem.

Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., the subcommittee chairman, was heard to say it was. But as an aide acknowledged, "Unless Wolpe is 200 years old, there's no way of confirming that." In fact, one veteran congressional staffer recalled that other House committees gave standing ovations to Coretta Scott King and to entertainer Stevie Wonder. But it may have been a first for the Foreign Affairs members.

A wild wild-card game today?

Giants' bumbling 33-12 loss to Rams is now ancient history says Robinson

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The New York Giants found very little amusing about their last trip to Anaheim Stadium.

Even when the Rams presented them with a gift touchdown on the opening kickoff, the Giants left town quite grumpy.

They're back again today (12:30) to take on the Rams with the cirumstances somewhat different. On the line is a date in Washington to meet the Redskins in the NFC playoffs (if the Rams win) or a matchup at San Francisco with the 49ers (if the Giants win).

Today's NFC wild-card game is a rematch of a Sept. 30 contest at Anaheim Stadium in which the Rams set an NFL record by recording three safeties in the same quarter against the Giants.

In that game, New York quarterback Phil Simms was sacked five times, the Giants gained a total of eight yards on the ground and the Rams blocked two Giants punts.

To top it all off, the goal posts fell over and delayed the game 15 minutes.

But the follies are expected to be at a minimum today.

The Giants readily admit their 33-12 defeat back on that day was their worst performance of the season. New York's regular-season-ending 10-3 loss to New Orleans was a close second.

"If anybody on the team wishes they could replay one game," said Giants' running back Rob Carpenter, "that would be it. We didn't play well at all, so it's lucky we'll get a chance to redeem ourselves.

"Usually when you lose a football game and end up getting embarrassed it's more than one thing," he said. "It's usually a combination of things. In that game, it was a lot of things."

"I think we just had a bad day," Simms said. "Some things went against us, a lot of penalties, a lot of everything that day. We were a good team when we played them that day, but things went wrong and they took advantage of it."

The first Giants-Rams matchup was also notable because it marked Jeff Kemp's first start of the season at quarterback for the Rams. One week earlier, Vince Ferragamo suffered a broken bone in his right hand.

Ironically, Rams running back Eric Dickerson had one of his poorer efforts of the regular season, gaining only 120 yards — only in the respect that it was his sixth lowest output on the ground this season.

Although Dickerson didn't kill the Giants last time, New York Coach Bill Parcells said his team will have their hands full with the running back and the rest of the Rams.

"They have a great running game and a lot of firepower on the outside," said Parcells.

Rams Coach John Robinson said the Rams will play their usual game, based on Dickerson's running with an occasional pass by Kemp.

"The most important thing in games like this is not to lose them by making mistakes, not give the game to the other team," Robinson said. "We just hope to do what we do efficiently."

Robinson said the Sept. 30 regular-season meeting with the Giants is a moot issue these days.

"That was a long time ago," he said. "It feels like six years ago.

"The Giants over the course of the

Seattle grinds out 13-7 win over Raiders

Seahawks stick to ground game and eliminate LA

SEATTLE (AP) — The defending Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders' playoff season is over — almost as quickly as it began.

The Seattle Seahawks, playing an ultra-conservative game in which they threw only 10 passes, took care of that Saturday by beating the Raiders, 13-7, in the AFC wild-card game.

"I thought we were ready," said Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores, who directed the Raiders to Super Bowl victories in 1981 and 1984.

"It's a disappointing loss because we don't get to come back. We haven't been very productive offensively all season. Today, we just didn't pull it out of the barrel."

Dave Krieg teamed with fleet rookie Daryl Turner for a 26-yard touchdown strike in the first half and Norm Johnson had field goals of 35 and 44 yards in the second half for Seattle.

The win in the opening game of the National Football League playoff derby moved the Seahawks on to Miami for a playoff game with the AFC East champion Dolphins next Saturday, a rematch of a game in which the Seahawks upset the Dolphins last year.

While their lone touchdown came through the air, it was virtually an all-running show for the conservative Seahawks, who had passed 88 times in lopsided regular season-ending losses in Kansas City and at home against Denver.

But this time, Krieg attempted the brunt of the attack fell on Dan Doornink, who carried the ball 29 times for 126 yards as the Seahawks rushed 51 times for 205 yards.

And the Seahawks' defense, which surrendered 34 and 31 points to Kansas City and Denver, returned to the form that it showed in turning in three shutouts this season.

"We just felt we had to run the ball against these people," said Seahawks' Coach Chuck Knox. "The game plan was to run the football.

"We felt like we could run it if we were patient and stayed with it. There was execution, we blocked well and we tried to run the ball."

Doornink, a seven-year pro from Washington State who is a medical student studying to be a physician at University of Washington, also

Rudolph nose he's been deer to our hearts

It goes to show there are things a lot worse in this world than a red schnozz

BUD TUCKER
SPORTS COLUMNIST

Once upon a time there was this reindeer named Rudolph.

Rudolph was a cool little dude who liked to get it on and have a ball like any normal reindeer. The thing was, though, Rudolph wasn't altogether normal.

He had a red nose. As a matter of fact, he had a very shiny nose and if you ever saw it, you would even say it glows.

The other reindeer didn't dig red noses. They were all the time jiving around and getting down and having fun but when Rudolph made the scene, they laughed and called him names. They wouldn't let poor Rudolph join in any reindeer games.

Not being able to join in any reindeer games is no joke. They have swinging bashes. But the other reindeer would have not truck whatever with Rudolph and his red bugle and kept telling him to take a hike.

Anyway, where Rudolph lived there was this pappy guy named Santa Claus. Santa Claus was a groovy old gent who had a big round belly which shook when he laughed like a big bowl of jelly. It had to be jelly 'cause jam don't shake like that.

Santa Claus had this thing for kids. He was into making things for them. He had these little dudes called elves helping him and all year they made things for kids. They'd make dolls and tin soldiers and toy drums that went rum-te-tum-tum and all sorts of things.

Once a year, like at Christmas time, Santa Claus would put all this stuff into a bag and put the bag on his sleigh. A sleigh is like an economy car without wheels. Santa Claus' sleigh would fly through the air and land on rooftops and didn't need emission control and . . . like that.

With all the toys and goodies on his sleigh, Santa Claus would take off and split and go all over the place delivering stuff to kids. Nobody every said why he was into this but maybe that's the way the old guy got his jollies and, besides, he would slide down chimneys which isn't easy to figure either.

Anyhow, the reason the reindeer were around was that they pulled the sleigh.

Getting to help pull the sleigh was a big deal. It was like making the first team at college or going to the Super Bowl or getrting to spend and evening listening to Bowie Kuhn tell jokes.

There were some pretty big names on the varsity, guys like Donner and Blitzen and Dancer and Prancer.

Naturally, Rudolph never dreamed of making it. I mean, not with his scarlet schnozz and all. If you ever told Rudolph he would one day help pull the sleigh, he would have looked at you like you had been smoking something out of your own backyard.

Now, one Christmas Eve it came up foggy. Like pea soup, man. Santa Claus couldn't see the mitt in front of his face, let alone the hood ornament on his sleigh.

"We've had it, baby," Santa Claus said. "No way we can go out in this stuff."

Then the old guy spotted Rudolph sitting in a corner digging on the centerfold in Penthouse. Santa Claus boogied over to Rudolph and laid this on him:

"Rudolph with your nose so bright, won't you guide my sleigh tonight?"

"You're putting me on," Rudolph said.

"No jive, man," said Santa Claus. "I'm coming at you straight."

Well, one thing led to another and, sure enough, Rudolph got right up front and away they went all over the place delivering stuff to kids.

It goes without saying that when they got back, Rudolph was a very fat cat. In fact, he was a hero and all the reindeer loved him and they shouted out with glee:

"Rudolph the red-nosed reindeer, you'll go down in history."

And everybody lived happily every after including Gene Autry who made a phonograph record and enough money to buy a whole stable of free agents.

That about cools it except to mention the moral of the story which is pretty obvious.

There are things in this world a lot worse than a red nose.

Hawkeyes, Longhorns settle in

Judging by ticket sales, there hasn't been a great deal of interest in Wednesday's inaugural Freedom Bowl at Anaheim Stadium.

But if you are interested, the two participants — Texas and Iowa — have arrived in Orange County and have already begun preparing for the 5 p.m. contest.

Some 25,000 tickets have been sold for the game pitting the 7-4-1 Hawkeyes against the 7-3-1 Longhorns. Not helping the matter is the fact KTLA, Channel 5, is going to televise the game live.

The Iowa delegation, led by Coach Hayden Fry, arrived late Friday night and is holding closed practices at UC Irvine at 10:30 a.m. and again "around 4 p.m.," according to a team spokesman. The Hawkeyes are camping out at the Newport Marriott.

The spokesman said Iowa always holds closed practices, whether they be for a bowl game or a regular-season game.

Texas arrived Saturday morning and has set up house at the Disneyland Hotel. The Longhorns will hold open practices at Orange Coast College each day at 9:30 a.m.

The Freedom Bowl needs a crowd of 26,400, based on Anaheim Stadium's 66,000 seats, to meet an NCAA requirement that 40 percent of the tickets available must be sold if a bowl game is to be sanctioned again.

It was estimated that between 25,000 and 27,000 tickets had been sold through Wednesday, according to Robbie Moyles, director of media relations for the Freedom Bowl. She said an exact ticket count would not be available until late today.

The bowl game needs 42,000 of 69,000 tickets to be sold to break even, said Tom Starr, the executive director of the Freedom Bowl.

When it appeared that the game was in trouble last week, there were some questions concerning Anaheim's future as a site of a bowl game.

"If Anaheim can't make it go this year, they probably won't be certified in the future," said Mike Lude, chairman of the National

SCC stays perfect, 105-62

Continuing its best start in the school's history, the Southern California College basketball team made it 10 straight without a loss Saturday night by beating visiting Cal State Stanislaus, 105-62.

It was the biggest scoring output for the Vanguards this season.

Earlier, SCC had topped the Warriors (1-5), 95-79, in the Chapman Tournament, but Saturday's victory was far more convincing.

Utilizing its running game early, the Vanguards sprinted to a 65-35 lead at intermission and kept building the lead to its final margin. In the first meeting between the two teams, SCC owned only a one-point advantage at the half.

Greg Ward enjoyed his top scoring effort of the season with 22 points and was also a force on the boards. Meanwhile, Golden West College product Sherwin Durham did a fine job running the offense and finished with 11 points.

Six Vanguard players reached double figures and everyone in uniform played and scored.

Winnipeg explodes for 6-2 win over Kings

WINNIPEG, Alberta (AP) — Bengt Lundholm and Thomas Steen scored two goals and got two assists apiece to help the Winnipeg Jets to a 6-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings in a National Hockey game Saturday night.

The Jets, who led 2-1 after two periods, scored four times in the final period.

Doug Smail, who plays on the same line as Lundholm and Steen, scored a goal and got an assist as the trio accounted for 10 points during the night.

Brian Mullen, who was checked midway through the third period and carried off the ice with an undetermined leg injury, scored the winning goal for Winnipeg in the middle period.

The Jets, winners of eight of their last 11 games, broke the game open when the Steen line scored four times in the third period.

Goaltender Brian Hayward played well for the Jets, keeping them in front with several sharp saves before Winnipeg erupted.

Marcel Dionne scored for the Kings on a power play goal at 14:02 of the second pweriod which got the Kings even. Anders Hakansson scored the Kings' other goal at 18:29 of the third period when the game had already been decided.

The first period was played sloppily — pucks jumping off sticks or sliding under them — and only Lundholm's pretty goal at 6:45 gave the fans at least a few moments of excitement.

Steen crossed the Kings' blue line, drawing two defenders with him, and back-handed a pass to Lundholm, who was skating in the faceoff circle to Janecyk's left.

The slick Swede fought off another defender, skated around Janecyk and behind the net before sweeping the puck back into the goal crease and hooking it into the net for his seventh goal of the season.

The Kings tied it with a power-play goal by Dionne at 14:02.

Dave Taylor moved into the slot unmolested and Hayward blocked his shot, but Dionne back-handed the rebound into the net for his 21st goal of the season.

Sailors fifth in tourney; Conquerors fall

Newport Harbor goes 3 for 4 at San Dieguito; Morgan gets 20 in Newport Christian's loss

Newport Harbor High and Newport Christian wrapped up basketball tournament play in contrasting fashion Saturday as the Sailors ended San Dieguito action on a successful note while the Conquerors were falling in their own tournament.

Here's what took place:

Newport Harbor 61, Torrey Pines 44: The Sailors won three out of four in the San Dieguito Tournament but the best they could come home with was fifth place in the eight-team tournament.

Saturday, Coach Jerry DeBusk went to what he calls his "bull elephant line" featuring 6-7 Mike Beech, 6-6 Alan Fraser, 6-6 Dean Sorensen, 6-4 Rob Mase and 6-1 Chuck McGavran when his team let a 10-point halftime lead slip to six.

The Sailors quickly opened a 17-point lead and Torrey Pines couldn't recover.

McGavran led the Sailors (6-2) with 20 points while Fraser added 19. Rob Mase chipped in 13.

The Sailors' lone defeat in the tournament was a 71-57 loss at the hands of Poway, the CIF San Diego Section 4-A defending champion.

Newport Harbor returns to action Thursday in the Capital City Classic in Carson City, Nev. The Sailors open against Douglas High of Nevada.

Valley Christian 66, Newport Christian 57: The Conquerors fell to 1-7 despite another fine performance from Robbie Morgan.

Morgan had 20 points against Valley Christian, the third time in the tournament he has reached that figure.

Ther performance earned Morgan a place on the all-tournament team. The tourney's Most Valuable Player honors went to Clint Rieber of Orange Lutheran, which finished second to Maranatha, 54-41.

Valley Christian outscored the Conquerors by five points in each of the first three quarters before the hosts chopped the final margin to nine.

Newport Christian will be off until January.

Flutie has one Christmas wish: Return of helmet

From AP dispatches

BOSTON (AP) — Boston College quarterback Doug Flutie, who received an early holiday gift in the form of the Heisman Trophy, has a Christmas wish. He wants the grinch who stole his helmet to return it, please.

"The helmet is special to me," Flutie said. "It's something I would have liked to keep for myself after my career was over. And I'd appreciate it being returned."

Flutie

Flutie's $81 helmet was taken from his locker at Boston College Thursday night after practice, the Boston Herald reported.

"It's a pretty low thing to do," said Flutie. "That's the helmet I've worn here for four years."

The helmet heist was just the latest in a series of thefts of Flutie property. His gym bag, containing a T-shirt, socks, shorts and a towel, has been pilfered six times. Thieves have made off with his knee pads three times, hip pads twice, the name plate above his locker twice, and his chin strap more times than he can remember.

"And now the helmet," Flutie sighed. "Everybody is trying to get a piece of me."

IOC chief vows safe Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, says he has no fear for the personal safety of the athletes who will be competing in the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea.

"The fact that Seoul is situated in a sensitive geographic area does not alter our perspective," Samaranch said Friday in a letter to Kim Yu Sun, chairman of the North Korean Olympic Committee. "Unfortunately, the risks of tension and conflict are today present on every continent.

"In this respect, the Korean peninsula represents a microcosm of a divided world. Friendly cooperation in the arena of sports could help reduce these risks."

NEW ORLEANS — The Pritzker family of Chicago has offered to buy the National Football League's New Orleans Saints from owner John Mecom Jr., but a spokesman for the family won't say how much was offered.

And, said Defizil Skinner, the Pritzkers' representative in the purchase negotiations, it's going to take time to close the deal. Speaking from his Washington, D.C., office on Friday, Skinner said he would be surprised if any deal could be completed within 30 days.

"You don't do this kind of transaction overnight," he said. "A lot of things have to take place. We just now got a handle on their assets. Everything is on track."

Terps rally in Sun Bowl

Maryland recovers from 21-0 deficit to defeat Tennessee

From AP dispatches

EL PASO, Texas — Junior fullback Rick Badanjek ran around right end with 2:28 remaining in the game to score his second touchdown of the day and climaxed No. 12 Maryland's comeback from a 21-0 halftime deficit to give the Terrapins a 28-27 victory over Tennessee in Saturday's 51st annual Sun Bowl.

On Nov. 10, the Terps had set an NCAA Division I-A record by coming back from a 31-0 deficit to beat Miami (Fla.), 42-40.

Badanjek had 20 carries for 90 yards and was named the Most Valuable Player in the game.

On third-and-one, Badanjek took a hand-off from Maryland quarterback Frank Reich and easily scampered into the end zone for the Terp win.

The victory, which Maryland is hoping will boost it into the Top 10, improved the Terps' season record to 9-3.

Tennessee, which fell to 7-4-1, threatened to score within the final minutes of the game, but a fumble by quarterback Tony Robinson halted the Vols' hopes.

Junior Al Covington recovered Robinson's bobble for the Terps on their own 30-yard line, and Maryland held onto the ball to the end.

Maryland held Tennessee's all-time leading rusher, Johnnie Jones, to 69 yards on the ground.

The game was a rematch of last year's Citrus Bowl, which Tennessee won, 30-23.

Seminoles tie on blocked punt

ORLANDO, Fla. — With its high-powered offense shackled, 15th-ranked Florida State used a 49-yard blocked punt return by Joe Wessel with 3:58 to play and a two-point conversion to gain a 17-17 tie with Georgia in the 39th Florida Citrus Bowl.

Georgia, which once led 14-0, was attempting to run out the clock in the waning minutes when Lenny Chavers blocked Chip Andrews' punt, smacking it toward the the goal where Wessel scooped it up on the 13. Darrin Holloman then scored the 2-point conversion on a reverse to gain the tie.

Georgia's Kevin Butler was just short on a 70-yard field goal attempt on the final play of the game.

Freshman Lars Tate had given Georgia a 14-0 lead when he scored on runs of 4 and 2 yards within a span of 4:18 in the second quarter.

Kevin Butler, fourth on the NCAA's all-time scoring list, gave the Bulldogs a 17-9 lead with 12:10 remaining when he drilled a 36-yard field goal.

Florida State, stymied by critical penalties and three turnovers, cut into a 14-0 halftime deficit when freshman Derek Schmidt kicked a 32-yard field goal early in the third quarter.

The Seminoles then cut the lead to 14-9 on Tony Smith's 1-yard run with 14:21 left in the game, but Eric Thomas' keeper on a 2-point attempt was foiled.

First bowl success for Army

PONTIAC, Mich. — Army quarterback Nate Sassaman rushed for 136 yards, halfback Clarence Jones scored on a 4-yard run and Craig Stopa kicked a 38-yard field goal to help the Black Knights grind out a 10-6 victory over Michigan State in the Cherry Bowl.

Army, making the first bowl appearance in its long and fabled football history, improved its record to 8-3-1 while the Spartans, making their first bowl appearance since 1966, closed out their season at 6-6.

Sassaman, directing Army's wishbone offense, carried the ball 28 times in topping the 100-yard mark for the seventh time this season. The 5-11, 177-pound senior from Portland, Ore., was named the most valuable offensive player of the game.

RAIDERS . . .

caught a Krieg pass for 14 yards.

"It's just great to beat the Raiders," Doornink said. "Any time you beat the Raiders, it's sweet. They're such a good team."

Jim Plunkett, the Raiders' 14-year NFL veteran quarterback, made his first start since the sixth game of the Los Angeles regular season but couldn't get anything going until he drilled a 46-yard touchdown pass to Marcus Allen with 5:05 to go in the game. The deepest previous Raiders' penetration was to the Seahawks' 41-yard line in the second quarter.

The Raiders got the ball back on their own six-yard-line with 45 seconds left, but Kenny Easley intercepted a desperation heave by Plunkett to clinch the game.

The Seahawks, who finished in second place behind Denver one spot ahead of the Raiders in the AFC West, led 7-0 at halftime on a 93-yard, nine-play touchdown drive. It was climaxed by Krieg's pinpoint second-quarter 26-yard slant-in pass to Turner, who beat the Raiders' Lester Hayes and Odis McKinney.

The march started on the Seattle 7-yard line after the Raiders' Ray Guy strategically booted a 36-yard punt out of bounds. It was kept alive by a 23-yard pass interference penalty against Hayes while defending the Seahawks' Steve Largent.

David Hughes had a 12-yard run and caught a 10-yard pass from Krieg while Doornink had a 10-yard run in the drive.

The touchdown came with 4:19 left in the half and the Seahawks almost scored again after getting the ball back on the Los Angeles 46 two minutes later. But 14-year NFL veteran defensive end Lyle Alzado powered over Doornink's block to sack Krieg, who was back to pass, for an 11-yard loss on a third-and-four situation from the Raiders 40.

The Seahawks, who lived on takeaways in recording a 12-4 regular-season record, finally got a Los Angeles turnover 10:58 into the second half. They converted it into their first field goal.

Vikes, Oilers split at tourney

Top-ranked Rolling Hills slips past Marina, 2-1

TORRANCE — Marina High's boys soccer team dropped a tough 2-1 decision to CIF powerhouse Rolling Hills Saturday, dashing the Vikings' chances of capturing the 32-team South Torrance soccer tournament.

Huntington Beach, meanwhile, was eliminated from the same tournament as the Oilers dropped a 3-1 contest to Santa Monica High.

Marina won its first game of the day on penalty kicks after the Vikings and Palos Verdes battled to a 1-1 tie. Tom McClane tallied for Marina.

The victory propelled the Vikings into the championship semifinals against the CIF's No. 1 team, Rolling Hills.

Marina got on top first as Ben Le Francois tallied early in the second half, but Rolling Hills battled back with two goals to gain the victory.

The Oilers, meanwhile, had opened the day with 2-1 triumph over Long Beach Wilson, winning the contest on penalty kicks.

In the first game, the Oilers needed just two minutes to get on the scoreboard as Vince Duke beat Wilson goalie Oscar Torrez. The Bruins countered 12 minutes later as Rick Villatoro scored when his shot deflected off a defender and past goalkeeper Alex Tipolt.

The Oilers then one during the penalty kick phase of the game as Huntington Beach Coach Randy Chambers put Jason Martinez in goal. Martinez stopped three of the Bruins' shots.

The victory sent the Oilers into the consolation semifinals where a strong Santa Monica squad awaited.

John Whitley, Juan Rivera and Jose Zambrano scored for Santa Monica, while Duke again was the goal scorer for Huntington Beach.

The split left the Oilers with a 3-4-1 record.

The Oilers will be the host beginning Thursday for the opening of the sixth annual Huntington Beach Tournament begins on four different fields.

Highly-regarded Esperanza will be out to defend its title against Notre Dame to highlight first-round action, while Sunset League powerhouses Huntington Beach and Ocean View tangle with Tustin and University, respectively, also in first-round play.

Other area teams involved in the tournament include Saddleback, Newport Harbor and Estancia from the Sea View League, Marina and Westminster from the Sunset and Mater Dei from the Angelus League.

Gauchos avenge earlier setback

RIVERSIDE — Saddleback College, behind a combined 47 points by Eric Cornly and Alexander Hamilton, avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of Grossmont with a 79-75 victory over the Griffins Saturday.

The win helped the Gauchos earn fifth place in the Riverside City College Holiday Tournament.

In an earlier 84-53 loss to Grossmont at Saddleback, the Gauchos (11-4) were without the services of Cornly and Alexander but the pair made the difference Saturday. Cornly had 26 points and Hamilton 21.

Down 73-71 in the last 2½ minutes, Hamilton helped Saddleback even the score with a steal and slam dunk. After a missed shot by the Griffins, Cornly duplicated Hamilton's slam and the Gauchos had the lead they would not relinquish.

It marks the best start for Saddleback in three years.

"We didn't pump up the revenge factor, but this is the happiest I've been with the way we've played this year," said Saddleback Coach Bill Brummel.

The Gauchos will be off until the start of South Coast Conference play at Mt. San Antonio Jan. 5.

Huntington Beach goes 4-4 in wrestling meet

Huntington Beach High wrestlers Ken Beck and Doobie Escobedo took first place in their respective weight divisions Saturday at the Valencia High 10-Way Meet.

Beck, competing at 112 pounds, compiled a 7-0-1 cumulative mark, including three pins and a draw in Saturday's second day of the competition.

Escobedo also was 7-0-1 at 145 pounds, going 4-0 Saturday.

At 191, Oiler John Loftis posted a 6-2 overall mark, good for third place, while Eric Budwig was third at 7-1 at 119 pounds.

Huntington Beach was 4-4 in the competition, splitting four matches on Saturday. The Oilers beat Corona and Rancho Alamitos, but lost to Westminster and El Dorado.

Huntington Beach won't wrestle again until Jan. 10 with the opening of league competition against Marina.

Louisville is stunned by Chaminade, 67-65

Titans, 49ers, Trojans earn wins; UCLA thumped

From AP dispatches

HONOLULU — Senior guard Mark Rodrigues hit an eight-foot jumper with no time remaining as Chaminade upset 12th-ranked Louisville for the second consecutive year, 67-65, Saturday at the Chaminade Basketball Classic.

It was the third year in a row the Silverswords, rated eighth the NAIA, knocked off a nationally-ranked Division I opponent. Then-number one Virginia was the victim in 1982.

In the first game, sixth-ranked Southern Methodist remained unbeaten with an 85-76 over 11th-ranked Oklahoma.

Rodrigues finished with eight points. Teammate Keith Whitney scored a game-high 17 points, while Tony Randolph added 13.

The injury-plagued Cardinals, without three of their top four scorers, led 33-24 with four minutes remaining in the first half. The Silverswords then ran off 12 straight points to take a 36-33 lead into the locker room.

Elsewhere:

Cal State Fullerton 81, Pepperdine 75: In Titan Gym, Saddleback College product Kevin Henderson scored 21 points and Kerry Boagni added 18 to lead the Titans over Pepperdine.

Fullerton (3-4), which trailed by as many as nine points in the first half, rallied to take its first lead 44-43 on a dunk by Tony Neal with 19:08 left in the game.

Neal's basket triggered a 10-2 spurt for Fullerton, which built a 52-45 lead with 13:47 to play. Fullerton led the rest of the way, by as many as 10, with Pepperdine cutting the lead once to just three.

Long Beach State 61, Cal State Bakersfield 58: Forward Darrell Patterson scored 17 points as the host 49ers won their first game of the season.

Long Beach State led the entire way but Bakersfield cut the 49ers' advantage to one, 59-58 on a lay-in by Michael Bryant with 12 seconds left to go.

Long Beach's Billy Walker was fouled on the ensuing play but missed the front end of a one-and-one. However, freshman Morlon Wiley grabbed the rebound for Long Beach, was fouled, and made two free throws to ice the victory.

USC 78, Utah 65: At the Sports Arena, El Toro High product Ron Holmes scored 21 points and former Ocean View High star Wayne Carlander and Clayton Olivier each added 15 to lead the University of Southern California to its third straight victory.

Southern Cal scored the first seven points of the game and opened a 44-19 advantage in the first 15 minutes of the contest. Utah never got closer than 10 points after that.

Derrick Dowell added 11 points for Southern Cal, 5-2. Carlander led the Trojans with 12 rebounds.

St. John's 88, UCLA 69: Walter Berry had a career-high 23 points as eighth-ranked St. John's rebounded from its only loss of the season to outclass UCLA at Madison Square Garden.

Four other Redmen hit double figures as St. John's ran its record to 6-1 in its first game since being upset at Niagara a week ago. The Bruins fell to 2-5.

St. John's broke the game open early, as Willie Glass' seven points led a a 15-3 spree early in the first half that produced a 24-13 lead that was never in danger the rest of the way.

Georgetown 69, New Mexico 61: Junior forward David Wingate scored 16 points and No. 1-ranked Georgetown survived a furious second-half rally by unheralded New Mexico to post a victory over the Lobos.

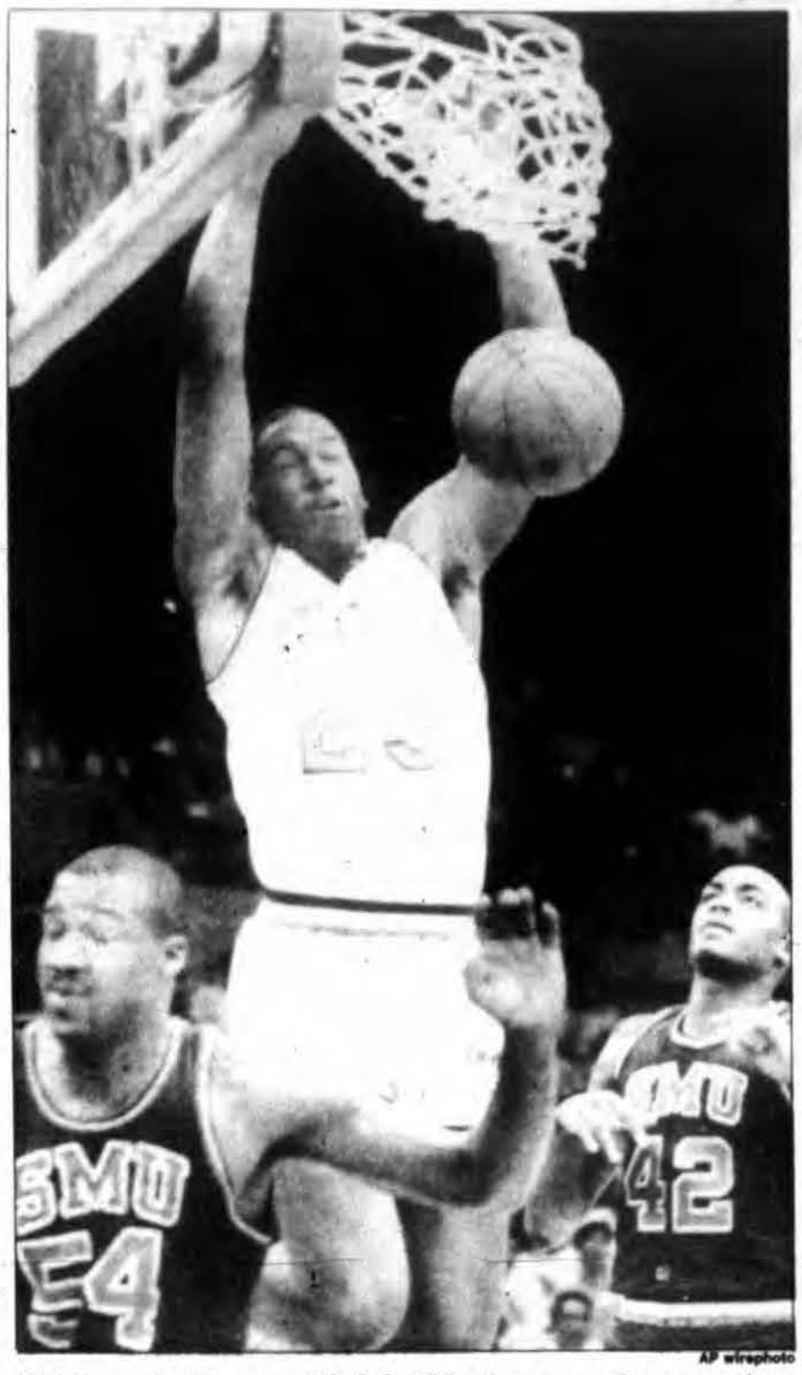

The triumph improved the defending national champion Hoyas' record to 9-0, while host New Mexico, a major underdog coming into the game, is now 5-3.

Injuries couldn't stop Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — For the better part of three seasons in Chicago, Coach Mike Ditka raged and lectured, pleaded and preached to his players about "Bear character," suggesting the club's once-proud tradition of sacrifice and success had gone the way of small salaries.

And he didn't back off until this year's club found ways to win games instead of lose them, showing its backbone by limping home to a 10-6 record and the Central Division title despite enough injuries for its own hospital wing.

But as Chicago prepares for its first National Football League playoff appearance since 1979 with a handful of key players still hobbled by injury and its front-line quarterback on the sideline, Ditka is dusting off his notes.

"It took me a long time to collect the kind of guys I wanted and enjoy the kind of success we had this season," he said. "And I'd be lying if I said it didn't bother me to have it come down to a single game with so many missing or hurting.

"But it's a challenge and we've learned how to meet those. We believe deeply enough now to feel we can win with who we have," he said. "We've got to play Bear football, get a fair share of the breaks and avoid getting into a certain kind of contest."

Lazers fall, 5-2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Laurie Abrahams scored two goals, including the game-winner in the third period, Saturday night to give the Cosmos a 5-2 Major Indoor Soccer League victory over the Los Angeles Lazers.

With the score tied 2-2, Abrahams scored his second goal of the night at 8:36 of the third period for the Cosmos, who also got second-half goals from Andrew Parkinson and Chance Fry.

UCI, Ocean View win tournaments

MVP Graham lifts Anteaters past host Boise State

It was a very productive evening for area women's basketball teams as UC Irvine and Ocean View High secured tournament triumphs Saturday.

The Anteaters topped host Boise State, while the Seahawks edged Oakland Tech in a pair of four-point verdicts.

Here's how it happened:

UC Irvine 58, Boise State 54: It was the second tournament title of the season for the Anteaters, who earlier won the four-team event at San Jose.

Tournament MVP Cheri Graham notched 16 points and all-tourney selection Dorothy Lewis tallied 15 before fouling out to spearhead the Anteaters' attack.

UCI hit half of its 50 shot attempts from the field in annexing their seventh win of the season against two setbacks. Boise State (6-3) held a 32-28 halftime lead before the Anteaters rallied.

Vicki Simpson had nine rebounds to go with her eight points. Boise State, which defeated Santa Clara Friday to reach the finals, was held to 39 percent from the field by the UCI defense.

Ocean View 65, Oakland Tech 61: In Livermore, the Seahawks rallied from a 59-55 deficit with 2½ minutes to play to earn their fifth straight victory and the Granada Tournament title.

Teri Zanelli hit a pair of free throws to put Ocean View ahead and Michelle Chomicz sealed the decision with two of her own with less than 20 seconds left. Oakland Tech fell to 9-2.

Chomicz led the Seahawks with 17 points, Trina Vlachos had 13, Zanelli 11 and Laura Simek 10. Chomicz and Simek were saddled with early foul trouble.

can't stop crying

It can happen to anyone. Too much stress and someone close to you could lose control. Every situation is different. That's why there are different ways to help. The Information Center at Capistrano by the Sea Hospital has a free booklet on mental crisis. It outlines the many options you have available. Hospitalization is only one of them.

Call (714) 831-1787. You'll receive your booklet in absolute confidence. We understand. We've helped people cope with the problems of today's society for over 25 years.

ENSEMBLE FOR LARGER SIZES—SMART, SLIMMING, VERY SIMPLE

PRINTED PATTERN
M 189
SIZES 34-50

A FRESH SNAP OF CONTRAST, so flattering next to the face, accents the turnback lapels of the jacket over a basic blouse of the same color. Lopez designs this versatile three-piece ensemble with easy lines that do the most slimming things for larger sizes. If you wish, consider a small print for jacket facing and blouse. The skirt is smooth and side-zipped. This all-seasons design is ideal for a wide variety of fabrics: wool, linen, rayon crepe, shantung, faille or a knit.

Printed Pattern M189 is available in Women's Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50. Size 36 (bust 40) jacket and skirt require 2¾ yards 60-inch fabric; blouse and jacket facing take ⅓ yards.

Please send $1.00 for each Pattern to (Name of your Newspaper), Reader Mail, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10113. (Add 50¢ for each pattern for postage and handling.) Print plainly YOUR NAME, ADDRESS, ZIP, STYLE NUMBER, SIZE.

LOOKING GOOD

Take the Executive Express for fast grooming

VIDA DEAN

It's a fast paced life these days. Just try setting up lunch with two or three busy people if you don't believe it. Everybody's schedule seems to be filled weeks in advance.

Klara Korvin, who owns the salon with the same name at 2711 E. Coast Highway in Corona del Mar, realizing how pressed everyone is for time, has come up with a solution — at least one for people wanting to stay well-groomed in a minimum amount of time.

She has what she calls "Executive Express." In just one and a half hours, a busy executive (or anyone else for that matter) can get a facial, manicure and pedicure simultaneously. That's a savings of another hour and a half.

"The service is for males and females." However, says Korvin, men, especially, are not taking time for grooming services.

"The manicurist does the hands and feet, while I do the facial. So there are only two people in the room with the patron. It's very quiet and relaxing.

"I do a European type facial. That's one with more hand manipulation that concentrates on deep cleaning. The skin is exfoliated with papaya enzymes. That step is so important because it removes all of the dead flaky skin. Then the third step is deep moisturizing." The cost for all three services is about $85.

A person who wants to spend more time could have extra facial treatments. "I do collagen treatments to help firm facial tissues.

"If people take good care of their skin at home every day, a once-a-month professional facial would be adequate."

Korvin has specialized in European skin care for more than 14 years in the U.S., seven of which have been in Orange County with the last two at her current address.

Other services she offers besides the key ones in the "Executive Express" are those of a massage therapist (all over body massage for men and women), makeup and eyelash tint, especially for blondes and redheads. (The person who does the pedicure is also a reflexologist).

Now a purse space saving tip — Pupa offers a mirrored compact, "Prelude" that is only four by two and a half inches in size. It contains 11 beauty products and four beauty tools.

It is ideal for those tiny evening bags (or as a last-minute Christmas gift for someone who has everything else). Would also be great for the pocket of a windbreaker, in a beach bag or any small place you want to stash makeup essentials.

The shiny red Prelude includes six eye shadows, eyeliner pencil, mascara, blusher with a little brush, a comb, lip cream and lip gloss.

The word compact takes on a new meaning when you see this little kit. It's a masterful feat in design.

It's available at better department stores in two color palettes; Fashion, incorporating the current season's top shades and Multi Color which combines popular hues with intense colors.

If you're looking for an exciting way to wear your hair New Year's Eve, a look back to the flash of the '50s styling trends might give you a clue.

"My favorite hairstyle for this holiday season might be called "The French Fifties Twist," says Dennis Bullock, L.A.-based stylist to such famous personalities as Zsa Zsa Gabor, Lauren Tewes and Shari Belafonte-Harper. "First the back hair is rolled into a twist that creates a very seductive 'seam' that can be enhanced with sparkling jeweled pins or bits of greenery. For a very modern flavor, the bangs are gelled into an explosion of spiky curls."

For added drama, he applies highlighter mousse in front to add an '80s punk look. "Burgundy mousse is particularly fun for blondes and adds excitement to darker shades as well."

Stylist Rahn McDow, whose clients include Barbara Mandrell, Morgan Fairchild and Victoria Principal, has this suggestion for a short, sophisticated hair fashion (that works even on baby fine hair).

Bend over so that gravity pulls the hair away from the scalp, then spray the hair with a firm holding spray and fluff it with your fingers until the spray dries. Keep spraying and fluffing to build up the spray, then toss your head back and you'll have a full style that will stand up to even the hardiest wind.

"Today's woman can make a definite statement about herself with a bold hairstyle that attracts attention. Limp, soft drooping hair is definitely out for the '80s."

FAMILY CIRCLE...

From C1

But, Christmas Day is an at-home affair.

The Armstrong residence has been festively decorated with the traditional tree bearing colorul ornaments, one very special, a little red horse bought for Keri even before she was born.

Garlands of cedar are draped throughout the home for the nice smell of Christmas. Floral designer Chris Lindsay added touches of cranberry color to the decor with moire and lame bows. Votive candles twinkle in the midst of rubrum lilies mixed with succulents.

Father Christmas sits on a living room table in his own greenery and pine cone setting awaiting the family's entrance Christmas morning.

Joining the family around the tree will be Cindy's parents Mr. and Mrs. John Statz of Escondido and an aunt Betty Freeland. Also, Grandmother Marguerite Atkinson will be there in the afternoon for the big dinner.

Blair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Somerville of La Mesa made their holiday visit three days before Christmas.

Cindy is an Orange County native, Blair was born in Kentucky and Mrs. Atkinson, who built Five Crowns restaurant, is originally from England. A lot of traditions from different corners of the world all come together for the Armstrongs on Christmas Day.

Nikki Armstrong, above, takes a closer look at Father Christmas' finery, while Keri Armstrong gets ready to hang the welcoming wreath.

"Newport Center Fashion Island put fun back in holiday shopping!"

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING IS ACTUALLY FUN THIS YEAR—STARTING WITH CONVENIENT PARKING AT FASHION ISLAND

I remember last Christmas. I tried another mall, but it took me forever to get near the parking lot! Then, I remembered Fashion Island—getting there was easy, and, with over 5,000 parking spaces, there wasn't a hassle finding one close to the stores. This Christmas, I'm not wasting any time. I'm doing all of my shopping at Fashion Island, and the ease continues...

MY NEW CHARGE CARD MAKES IT SIMPLE, TOO

There's so much happening during the holidays, who's got the time to juggle credit cards? My Newport Center Fashion Island charge card is all I need for most of the stores. And, the application was a snap—I called 800-641-6411.

Something else that's made shopping wonderful has been Fashion Island's extended holiday hours:

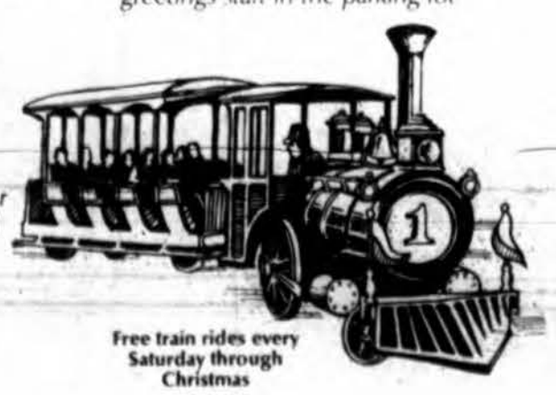

MONDAY-FRIDAY 10 a.m.-9 p.m.
SATURDAY 10 a.m.-6 p.m.
SUNDAY Noon-5 p.m.

My family and I can use the extra time to visit the six new stores open for the holiday season:

The Original Christmas Store • Roger's Gardens Christmas Fantasy Annex • Once Upon A Christmas • Sobriquet • House of Almonds • Mailbox, Etc.

BEST OF ALL, THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS SURROUNDS FASHION ISLAND THIS YEAR

The traditional joys of Christmas can be found everywhere at Fashion Island, and it's making shopping entertaining. From Santa and that magnificent tree to caroling and decorations—Fashion Island is where Christmas has come alive for us...and the season's greetings start in the parking lot!

Wife's surgery diminishes sex satisfaction

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been happily married for seven years and our sex life was always terrific.

Several months ago I had a hysterectomy. Since the operation, my husband says sex with me feels different and he doesn't get the satisfaction he once did. It is ironic that I am enjoying sex more (no chance of getting pregnant) and my husband is enjoying it less. I am afraid if the old excitement doesn't return he may seek fulfillment elsewhere.

Ann, can a man actually tell the difference between a woman who has had a hysterectomy and one who has not? I have asked several who have had the operation and they say their husbands have never complained.

Our marriage has been so solid that I find this problem extremely difficult to cope with. The thought that I am not fulfilling my husband's needs is making a nervous wreck out of me. Please, Ann, check this out with one of your experts and give me some help. — DEPRESSED IN DAYTONA

DEAR DAYTONA: Dr. George B. Malkasian, chief of obstetrics and gynecology at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., says that if the hysterectomy was performed to correct a problem that had nothing to do with a malignant tumor, there should be no perceptible difference in sexual pleasure for either the man or woman.

If, however, a malignant tumor was removed, the diameter and the depth of the vagina might be altered in a way that could reduce the satisfaction for one or both partners.

Dr. Malkasian said in a few select cases, a surgical procedure might be beneficial. In others, hormonal treatment may help.

If you did not have a malignant tumor and your husband continues to be dissatisfied, he should make an appointment with your surgeon. When he hears from an authority that there is no rational basis for his complaint, he just might get rid of that bee in his bonnet.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed several letters from readers who explained why a man wears an earring in his left ear. Everyone who wrote was mistaken. Here are the correct historical facts:

Years ago when the windjammers and the barkentines sailed the oceans, the sailors who had crossed the 180th meridian wore an earring in the left ear to signify they had accomplished this feat. In those days there were no homosexuals.

I served in World War II, in the Korean War and in Vietnam. I have crossed the 180th meridian many times, but I don't wear an earring because I do not wish to attract attention. I thought you might want to give your readers the correct information from a real authority. — JOE IN METAIRIE, LA.

DEAR MET: Homosexuals have been around since biblical times. Your ignorance in this area makes me question the other "facts" in your letter, but thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You've reprinted many readers' favorites — here's mine. It's a classic.

When I read it many years ago I thought it was funny. Now that I have teen-agers of my own, I see a great deal of good, old-fashioned common sense in your response. Let's see it again, Ann. — PENNSYLVANIA PARENT

DEAR P.: Thanks for asking. I like it, too. Here it is:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 16-year-old girl who is a nervous wreck from getting yelled at. All I hear from morning till night is "Stop smoking, get off the phone, hang up your clothes, do your homework, clean up your room." How can I get them off my case? — SICK OF PARENTS

DEAR SICK: Stop smoking, get off the phone, hang up your clothes, do your homework and clean up your room.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Santa drinks his yule spirit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Comedian Billy Elmer's takeoff on merry St. Nick is for adults only. His rude Santa, who smokes cigars and wears sneakers, thinks Christmas spirit is something to drink and reindeer are messy.

"I want to dispel the myth about this jolly old elf. Nobody can be that happy. I think it's more realistic to think of him as a grumpy old uncle," said Elmer, 29, a standup comic who lives in suburban Pittsburgh.

Elmer has been an opening act for Connie Stevens, Gladys Knight, the Fifth Dimension, the Four Tops and other groups at clubs around the country.

During the holidays, he brings out his crabby Claus, which is "sort of a Don Rickles in a Santa suit." He plays the boorish Santa at comedy clubs, office parties and private gatherings.

"I don't work with kids anywhere. It's geared to an adult crowd. It's a fun thing at parties when Santa is just a little cranky. It's all in fun," Elmer said in a telephone interview.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

The Ten of Hearts looked forlorn as he sat in the barber's chair having his magnificent red beard trimmed. He was complaining of the tribulations that had befallen him.

"All of the other cards have magnificent stories to tell. But my finest hour went unreported, because the scoresheet simply showed that there was no swing on the hand.

"It was in the early days of my career, when I was just beginning to compete on the international scene. We had reached the final of the team event at the big tournament in Monte Carlo.

"At the other table, our opponents also had reached six clubs. After a trump lead, declarer drew a second round of trumps. He then cashed three hearts and, when the suit split evenly, he discarded a diamond from the table and was able to try the diamond finesse for an overtrick.

"At our table West led a sneaky ten of spades, covered by the jack and queen and ruffed in the closed hand. There was a temptation to draw trumps, lead the king of spades for the 'marked' ruffing finesse and then use the eight of spades to throw West on lead with the nine he 'had to have' for his opening lead. As you can see, that line would have failed miserably.

"Fortunately, I realized that, after my spade cue-bid, I could not rely too heavily on an honest lead. I found another line which would guarantee the contract even if East had started with four hearts to the jack.

"I crossed to the queen of trumps, ruffed another spade, then entered dummy with the king of trumps to ruff the king of spades. I cashed the ace-queen of hearts and led the remaining heart from the table. When East followed low, I used myself for a finesse.

"Had the hearts been 4-2, I would have won that trick and then discarded a diamond from the board on the king. As it was, there were some impolite snickers when I lost to the jack of hearts. But West was end played. If he returned a spade, I would ruff in hand while discarding a diamond from dummy, get rid of another diamond on the king of hearts and make the rest of the tricks. If West returned a diamond, I would score both the ace and queen, discard my losing diamond on the king of hearts and again make the rest.

Director weathers 'Dune' storm

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — More than a decade ago, young art student David Lynch spent $200 to make a one-minute film, and it almost kept him out of moviemaking forever.

"I thought this would be the last film I'd ever do. It was just too expensive," said Lynch, who directed the $40 million "Dune." It opened earlier this month to negative reviews: Critics called it a disaster.

Lynch

The Montana-born Lynch appeared before the film's opening earlier this month at London's National Film Theater to discuss a career marked by a notable increase in budgets: from the experimental films of his art student days and the cult favorite, "Eraserhead," to the critically acclaimed "The Elephant Man," to "Dune."

But the soft-spoken, wavy-haired Lynch seemed unperturbed by the escalating costs of his projects.

"'Dune' really did take that much time and that much money to do," said Lynch, who has spent 3½ years adapting Frank Herbert's 1965 science-fiction classic for the screen.

Set in the year 10,991 on four different planets, "Dune" reportedly required 70 sets and 20,000 extras to tell its epic tale of savior Paul Atreides's defeat of the evil Harkonnens.

Max Von Sydow, Linda Hunt, Sting and newcomer Kyle MacLachlan head the cast — along with the giant, man-eating sandworms designed by "E.T." creator Carlo Rambaldi at a cost of $2 million.

"Every part of 'Dune' was complicated and expensive, because there were so many people involved doing so many things," Lynch said.

"Material dictates cost," he said. "If I fell in love with something else that cost this much, I would do it."

Some reports peg the film's cost at $60 million, but the producers give the cost at $40 million.

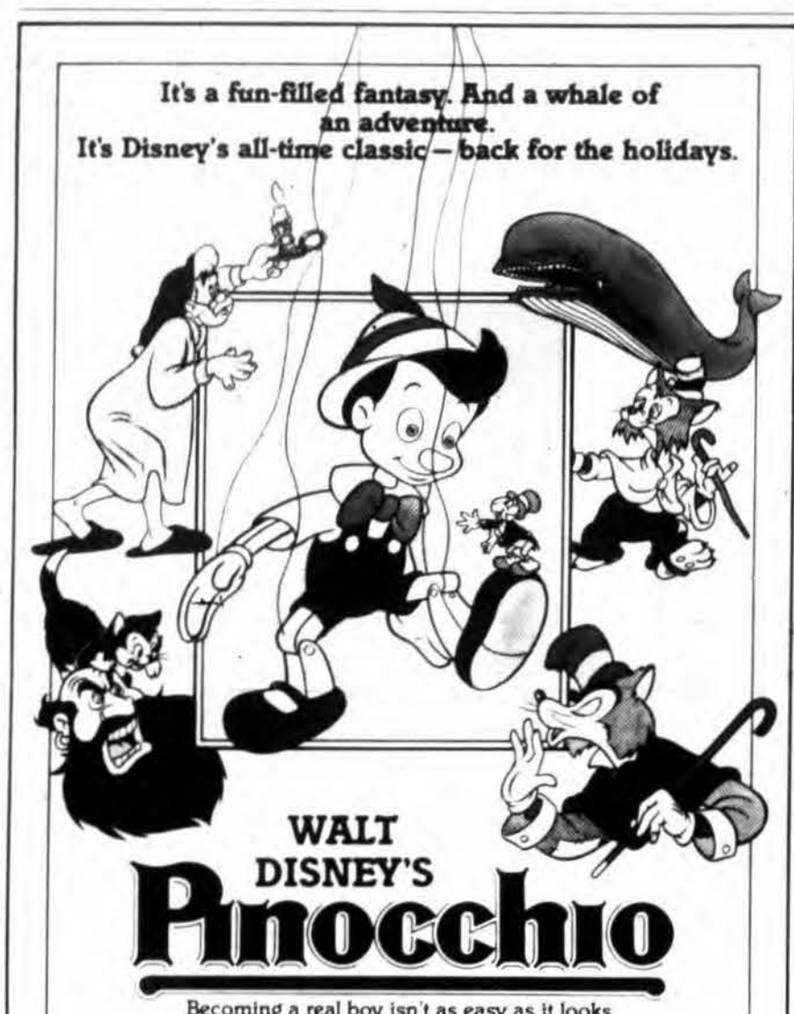

Lynch, known for the offbeat, often disturbing tone of his earlier films, insists that a big budget hasn't blunted his idiosyncratic style.

"'Dune' was my interpretation," he said, adding that he had turned down an offer to direct "Return of the Jedi" for producer George Lucas because he didn't think he'd have any leeway.

"He had already designed three-quarters of it," Lynch said.

It's a fun-filled fantasy. And a whale of an adventure.
It's Disney's all-time classic — back for the holidays.
