WEIGHT-AGE GIVEAWAY

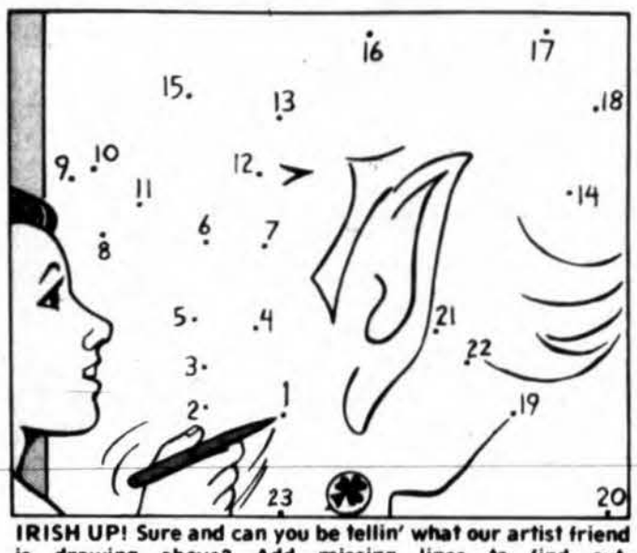
It is possible to determine a person's age and how much he or she weighs from the following computation. Try it first on yourself and then on a friend or friends.

Take your weight. Double it. Add five. Multiply by 50.

To the ensuing total, add a sum of 1735. Now, subtract the year of your birth.

The resulting amount reveals from left to right one's weight, and then his or her age.

It is a simple formula that is easy to put to memory.



IRISH UP! Sure and can you be tellin' what our artist friend is drawing above? Add missing lines to find out.

THERE'S TROUBLE IN PARADISE

But a gutsy prosecutor is on the case, fighting Hawaii's organized crime wave.

HEADLINERS

What do Dustin Hoffman, Tony Randall, Peter Falk, Gene Wilder and Jack Warden have in common? Easy: They've all worked with

PEYSER HEY, LOOK ME OVER

Penny Peyser. Penny Peyser? The name is not exactly a household word, and no one is more aware of that than Patricia, er, Paula, er, Penny, herself, currently co-starring in the new comedy detective series Crazy Like a Fox. "When I first came to Hollywood, I had no idea how things worked," she explains. "I did two shows in a row. Rich Man, Poor Man Book 2 and The Tony Randall Show.... You didn't know I was in them? See! That's exactly what I mean. I was so naive that I thought all I needed to do was get hired, know my lines, and let the rest take care of itself. Wrong! I had to stop hiding in corners and jump on the publicity bandwagon. Let's face it. There are more performers who are better known for what they do in their private lives than for what they do on screen."

Poor solitary Greta Garbo is forever being misquoted. She never actually said she wanted to be alone — simply that she wanted to be let alone. Small but subtle difference. "There was no question she was a loner," the late David Niven once noted of the actress. "Painfully shy with people she did not know and preferring her own company to that of most people." Therefore, it was a surprise to see the reclusive Swede as the centerpiece of a merry group dining at La Terrazza in L.A. Garbo, 79, was wearing her usual dark sweater and man-tailored trousers, but she relaxed enough to shed her sunglasses and to tap her feet in time to the dance music.

GARBO CANNOT BE ALONE

Peter Ustinov, the man once described as "Orson Welles rolled into one," certainly lives up to the billing. He is — take a good deep breath — an actor, humorist, producer, director, cartoonist, musician, critic, raconteur, playwright, screenwriter, novelist, essayist, goodwill ambassador to the United Nations, and university rector. "I try not to be more than 15 people," he says, "and never more than 12 at once, so as not to annoy." Ustinov, who was, as he puts it, "born in London but conceived in Leningrad," is back in the Soviet Union filming a six-part television series based on his 1983 book, My Russia. Not that the man of many talents plans to forsake his home in Switzerland to set up housekeeping in the motherland. For one thing, there's the food. "I should have been suspicious right away," noted Ustinov of a Leningrad restaurant. "The place had a list of the day's specialties — and one of them was bread."

USTINOV CANNOT LIVE BY BREAD ALONE

Jane Fonda, while in Canada recently filming the Broadway hit Agnes of God, could be counted on to start every day with her grueling workout, and if you were in her vicinity, you'd probably be invited to go for the burn along with her. But at the end of an arduous day of shooting, Fonda unwound by slipping Raquel Welch's yoga-based exercise cassette into the VCR. Not as taxing as her own program, perhaps. Then again, hatha workout is better than no workout at all.

It can be safely said that Burt Reynolds shoots from the lip, even though his projection is not what it used to be. ("When you do a movie with Clint Eastwood, you get to talk softly," he noted recently.) Reynolds demonstrated his ability at a recent Carnegie Hall tribute to Myrna Loy, who played his mother in the 1978 film The End. "When I met her," said Mr. R. with his best deadpan delivery, "I knew I was in the presence of a great all-time star — and she did, too. There is nothing wrong with knowing that you are good at what you do. An old pro like Myrna is the easiest to direct. It's the guy just getting off the motorcycle who gives you all the problems."

"Why is Suzanne Somers reluctant to talk about and be photographed with her son?" writes D.F. of Danbury, Conn. "I don't mind talking about him; in fact, I enjoy it, but pictures are another matter," says Somers. "I'm determined that Bruce, 18, won't have a place in the spotlight unless he earns it himself. I won't allow his picture to be used in my publicity. Not only for security reasons, but because I don't think a parent should make a choice about a child's face becoming famous."

THERE'S TROUBLE IN PARADISE

But a tough prosecutor is taking on Hawaii's organized crime wave

By Charles H. Turner

Charles F. Marsland Jr. is sitting on a volcano of his own making. His enemies and critics would like to see it erupt and destroy him. But Marsland, the public prosecutor for the city and county of Honolulu, has other ideas. He thinks any such eruption will wipe out both criminal and political corruption in Hawaii.

Marsland is the key figure in a major crackdown on organized crime in the Aloha state. With his clipped mustache, blue eyes and handsome features, Marsland could easily pass for a movie or TV star. But he has more important things on his mind than acting.

As the elected prosecutor since 1980, he has become a thorn in the sides of known criminals as well as some well-known Hawaiian politicians, including Gov. George R. Ariyoshi.

Marsland has a special reason for his crusade. In 1975, his only son, Charles F. Marsland III, was kidnapped while working at a Waikiki nightclub, taken to an isolated area on the windward side of Oahu, and riddled with bullets, gangland style. The reason for the killing hasn't been publicly revealed, but it is widely believed that young Marsland was about to tip police about organized crime inroads into the Honolulu resort district. Ironically, those inroads are now being exposed because of the killing.

Marsland, who denies that he is seeking revenge for his son's death, was working in the city's corporation counsel office, specializing in labor-management cases, when the murder occurred. "His loss was a total bomb. So unexpected," he said recently. "The kid was just 19. He'd made a commitment to go to school on a scholarship. So full of life."

In searching for answers to his son's death, Marsland uncovered a disturbing web connecting politicians, police and underworld figures.

The first signs that organized criminals were consolidating forces in Hawaii came a decade ago when the Hawaii Teamsters, probably the richest of all local unions, became embroiled in a bitter power struggle. Arthur A. Rutledge, unchallenged for 30 years as president of the 6,000-member Teamsters Local 996, got involved in a dog-bites-master situation when his former lieutenant, Josiah "Joe" Lii, decided he wanted Rutledge's job. Although Lii withdrew from the race before the election, he supported another candidate. In the end, Rutledge's victory was challenged in federal district court, where Rutledge then accused Lii of "attempting to take over the union syndicate-style." The Teamster leader also claimed that two of his business agents quit the union "because they want to live longer."

One of the witnesses called by Local 996 at the trial was business agent Eric Naone, a strapping 6-footer, who testified that Lii bragged to him of having connections with Alema Leota, a reputed underworld leader (who later became an unsuccessful candidate for governor).

Two years later, Lii was gunned down in the middle of the day in his office in the Seaman's Home near Honolulu's waterfront. Lii had left the Teamsters to work as the vice president of the Inland-boatmen's Union of the Pacific. For seven years, both the Lii and Marsland cases remained a mystery. But recently the police claim to have solved the crimes.

Ronald Ching, a former Teamster member serving a long federal sentence on various felonies, confessed last November to masterminding young Marsland's death. Under Ching's plea-bargaining agreement with the federal Organized Crime Strike Force, Ching implicated several others, including a former Honolulu police officer, Raymond Scanlan. Also implicated and indicted were Naone, named as the trigger man, and Gregory Nee, who voluntarily surrendered after learning he was wanted in the case. The three men have all pleaded innocent to murder charges and are awaiting trial.

As for the Lii case, Henry Huihui, 46, pleaded guilty, hoping for a lighter sentence, and admitted giving the orders to rub out the union official. Sources said he directed Lii's slaying because Lii had tried to thwart a plan to exploit Hawaii's unions as a base of operations. Huihui, who has also admitted to other murders, was an organizer for the Building Trades Council (AFL-CIO) and a staff member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (Local 1186).

Whatever the outcome of the criminal trials for Naone, Huihui and the others indicted in the Lii and Marsland murders, the bloodshed certainly aroused the anger of a man who was to become Honolulu's crusading prosecutor. Marsland, born in Hawaii, had been involved in criminal investigations while working with the Massachusetts state attorney general's office in the 1960s. He returned to Hawaii in 1967 after his marriage broke up.

After his son's death, Marsland left the counsel's office to devote more time to finding his son's killers, joining the Honolulu prosecutor's office to work with the Career Criminal Investigative Unit. But his no-nonsense attitude rubbed his superiors the wrong way, and he was dismissed. The tables were turned when the prosecutor's office, formerly appointive, was made elective, and in 1980 Marsland, running as a Republican against seemingly invincible Democratic opposition, won on a campaign to clean up government.

One of his targets, then as now, was Gov. George R. Ariyoshi, a Democrat who is serving the final two years of his administration (under the state constitution, he cannot seek another term). Marsland has attacked Ariyoshi for being what he calls "soft on crime" and for his close relationship with Larry Mehau, a former policeman who heads the state's largest private security company, the Hawaii Protective Association Ltd. Mehau was once dubbed the "Godfather" of organized crime in Hawaii by Marsland aide Rick Reed, when Reed was working as an editor of a small, outer-island newspaper in the 1970s. In response to the allegation, Mehau filed a $50 million libel suit.

Marsland has never referred to Mehau publicly as the "Godfather," but he has used some harsh words about the relationship between Mehau and Gov. Ariyoshi, who appointed Mehau to an important post on the state Land Board. When Mehau was charged with failing to report a contribution to Ariyoshi's 1982 campaign, Marsland tried mightily to get a conviction. But a state district court judge acquitted Mehau, causing Marsland to charge that the dismissal "underscores the absurdity of trying Larry Mehau and the Ariyoshi campaign committee before a judge appointed by the Ariyoshi machine." Warned that the Office of Disciplinary Counsel might come down hard on him for such remarks, Marsland said he would continue telling "the truth about atrocities in the courtroom."

Gov. Ariyoshi, who has been pressed repeatedly to reply to Marsland's charges, has remained aloof from most of them. However, he bristled when reporters asked him about the "Ariyoshi-Mehau machine," saying there was no such organization.

On Nov. 19, 1984, when the Hawaii Supreme Court gave a circuit judge power to examine confidential records of the non-partisan Hawaii Crime Commission, Marsland was elated. He already had seen the report, and says it contains evidence that "organized crime in Hawaii is expanding and thriving on extortion, gambling, drugs, prostitution, pornography, fencing, labor racketeering, murder-for-hire, protection, credit card fraud, collection and whatever else will turn a rotten dollar." He won't say if it mentions Mehau.

Marsland has also gone after admitted killer Huihui, who has long been associated with gambling activities in Hawaii. He was once arrested in a major police raid on a large cockfighting arena and charged with cruelty to animals. But he was not convicted, prompting Marsland to try a new tactic to shut down the cockfights. He sought a civil injunction in state court, only to be turned down, and before any other angles could be explored, the cockfighting arena was torn down.

Marsland got some satisfaction for his effort, however. Says he: "Until the people running the enterprise were able to relocate, the loss of the operation was estimated to be costing organized crime

Charles H. Turner is a staff reporter for the Honolulu Advertiser and has contributed to The New York Times.

$250,000 a month."

Narcotics trafficking is also a problem in Hawaii today. In a recent interview with Family Weekly, held in Marsland's fourth-floor office in a building in Honolulu next to the Cathedral of Our Lady of Peace, the prosecutor cited figures showing that — "by conservative estimate" — $40 million worth of narcotics moves through Honolulu International Airport every month, making it the third busiest heroin-smuggling entry point in the nation. "With a few more customs agents available to check even more closely for incoming traffickers, our statistics might actually add up to first in the nation," says Marsland.

Those are the kind of fighting words applauded by George Roberts, the district director for the U.S. Customs Service, whose thin line of inspectors, with the help of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, is struggling against the inflow of drugs. "I'm with Chuck Marsland 100 percent on his anti-crime and anti-drug campaign," says Roberts. He has seen his staff trimmed by budget cuts, despite the fact that much of the heroin and hashish that finds its way into the United States originates in Southeast Asia — and passes through Honolulu on its way to the mainland.

Marsland has also taken aim at a new crime target: the Yakuza, a Japan-based crime society whose members are distinguished by exotic tattoos and by missing fingertips. They began arriving in Hawaii in the 1960s, riding the boom of statehood. Some disguised themselves as innocuous tour operators, cooks and other low-paid workers. Though no precise figures have been given by authorities on the number of Yakuza operating in Hawaii, a member of the Honolulu Police Department's intelligence unit recently testified before a presidential commission in Washington that the Yakuza worked closely with Hawaii's underworld in extortion and prostitution rackets.

To date, Marsland's attack on the Yakuza has focused on suspected Yakuza ties in the extortion of protection money from a pornography shop in Waikiki. Marsland's deputies successfully brought Honolulu businessman Charles Y. Higa to trial on charges that he was a key figure in the extortion network. (He was convicted of conspiracy to extort in April 1984.) Higa, 51, formerly was a major officer in one of the state's biggest trucking and storage companies. He also was a vice president of the Hawaii Protective Association Ltd., headed by the governor's campaign contributor, Larry Mehau.

Higa's attorney, Eric Moon, accused Marsland of using the case to try to force Higa to reveal "something about Larry Mehau." But Circuit Judge Robert Klein cut off Moon's arguments and gave Higa a maximum 10-year prison sentence, without any connection being established between Higa and Mehau.

Moon, a Democrat, ran against Marsland in last November's general election and was beaten by a landslide. But Marsland barely had time to savor his victory before the Hawaii Paroling Authority decided to parole Higa after he had served the bare minimum sentence of 30 months.

The outraged Marsland's reaction: "What bothers me...is that the message sent to the underworld is, even if you're busted, prosecuted, convicted and sentenced, you still don't have to do that much time if you've got the right contacts." FW

WHY HAVE A RETIREMENT PLAN THAT'S SPECULATIVE, WHEN YOU CAN HAVE ONE THAT'S GUARANTEED?

If your IRA is in a mutual fund, you might actually end up with less than you put in.

That's because most mutual funds are based on the performance of the stock market. In other words, on speculation.

But the IRA's we offer are based on something stronger. Not only do we offer a guaranteed rate of return, but your IRA is federally insured up to $100,000.

So when you're opening a new IRA, or thinking about switching your current one, take the speculation out of your retirement with an IRA that's guaranteed.

After all, the date of your retirement is set.

The performance of a mutual fund isn't.

GETTING PERSONAL WITH

SAM WATERSTON

A FAMILY MAN WHO'S UP FOR AN OSCAR

Sam Waterston landed his first big role on Broadway only six months after coming to New York in 1962. Since then he's fed theater, film and television audiences a steady diet of great performances. In 1973 he co-starred with Katharine Hepburn in a TV production of Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie, and he played opposite Robert Redford in the 1975 film The Great Gatsby, earning two Golden Globe nominations. In 1984, Waterston pulled off his most important acting coup: the role of The New York Times war correspondent Sydney Schanberg in the powerful film The Killing Fields, for which he has since received an Academy Award nomination.

© 1983 Warner Bros. Inc.

Behind the scenes, Waterston, 44, has stuck steadfastly to the role of husband and father of four. Recently he chatted with writer Ellen Kunes for FAMILY WEEKLY.

Kunes: What difficulties have you faced in your career?
Waterston: Well, my own experience in the profession has been comparatively easy, but it is a war of nerves. You know, "Will I get a job?" "If I get a job, will I be any good?" "Will I be able to live on what they'll pay me?" and "What is going to come next?" There's a lot of insecurity and uncertainty. A long time ago I was on a television talk show with Henry Fonda. Fonda said that at the end of every job, he never, ever believed that he was going to work again.

Q: I've read that you were on location in Bangkok for five months filming The Killing Fields. Did your wife travel with you?
Waterston: No. At the time, she was pregnant. My wife had the baby at home while I was on location.

Q: Are these kinds of separations tough on you and your wife?
Waterston: You bet. Especially this one.

Q: Have you found it hard, in general, to balance your career with your family life?
Waterston: Yeah . . . but I think it's a problem every parent who works for a living has. With my job — with all the traveling — there's the difficulty of my not being able, very often, to show up at important occasions, because I'm away. For example, I can't be there for father's night at my children's school. When everybody else's father is showing up, it makes it hard for my kids to understand. On the other hand — as I often repeat to my family — when I'm home, I'm home all the time. All day long. So I think that really, in terms of hours, we have as much time together as any family — maybe more — but we have to take it in lumps as opposed to little, bitty pieces. Sometimes that's wonderful — and sometimes that's a real problem.

Q: You've played all sorts of roles in theater, film and TV. Is there any one character that you wish you could be most like?
Waterston: I think in every character I've done successfully, there's always been something about the person that I really liked and, in some cases, envied or respected. It would be wonderful, though, to have Hamlet's brains and his way with words.

Q: Over the years, you've won all kinds of awards and critical acclaim for your work. But you've never really been hailed as a "star." Does this bother you at all?
Waterston: No. The only thing I want out of my career is to choose what I want to do and to make a living. The thing I want most of all is choice. PW

DON SHARP'S MONTHLY CAR CARE COLUMN

WHO NEEDS A FOUR-VALVE?

According to the adage, if some is good, more is better, and too much is just right. Recently, this principle has been applied to the valves in car engines — but the buyer should beware.

Production cars typically have two valves per cylinder — one to let the air-fuel mixture in and another to let exhaust gases out. Two serve well enough in ordinary circumstances, but higher speeds call for more.

As this column noted in regard to turbochargers, while air is pretty squishy stuff, it is still subject to the laws of inertia. When an engine turns at high speed, air can't flow into the cylinders fast enough to fill them completely. The volumetric efficiency of the engine falls. Its total output in terms of horsepower may go up with speed, but it would go even higher if each cylinder got a full supply of air with every piston stroke.

One way to overcome the loss of volumetric efficiency at high speed is to use a turbocharger to force-feed the engine with air. Another way is to double the number of valves; that is, double the number of passageways into the cylinder. Hence, the "four-valve" engine.

One hitch with a four-valve arises from the engine's cylinder head. The most complicated piece of metal in a car, it must have passages for air-fuel and exhaust, channels for cooling water, and conduits for oil; in addition, it must have mounting points for all the apparatus that opens and closes the valves. To build a cylinder head that accommodates twice as many valves obviously complicates the construction and raises the cost. What does the owner get for this extra cost and complexity? A small engine of amazing output — but only at high speeds.

Most cars are volumetrically efficient at up to about half the potential speed of the engine. In other words, the typical four-cylinder engine breathes nicely up to about 60 mph; the extra valves would do little or no good. But for quick acceleration from 60 to 90 mph and for extended driving at high speeds, four valves improve performance significantly. In all other situations, all the owner gets for the money is a lot of extra machinery that is hardly ever useful. Responsible people do not typically drag race away from every traffic light or drive in excess of 70 mph.

Also, four valves do not improve thermal efficiency, which extends fuel mileage. They simply allow the engine to suck in more air and, thus, develop more power at high speeds.

Yet with 55 mph speed limits and typical driving conditions, this extra power is superfluous for the great majority of drivers. What we need is not greater power but greater fuel efficiency in the low- to mid-ranges of speed. Instead of developing ultra-sophisticated, ultra-complex (and ultra-expensive) engines, we should be working on the optimum version of the old Chevrolet six-cylinder. FW

The scramble is on.

Get ready, mothers. Because for eight short weeks in early spring, something extraordinary appears. Something that fills the hearts (and the Easter baskets) of children everywhere. The Cadbury's Creme Egg. A glorious egg with a thick shell of Cadbury's Dairy Milk™ Chocolate and a unique, creamy center. Making it fun to eat as well as exceedingly delicious.

They're here now. But don't wait. Because once spring has fully sprung, the Cadbury's Creme Egg will disappear as quickly as the crocus.

SLED DOGS, SNOW AND SATISFACTION

Photos by Wide World/A.P.

By Melanie Menagh

Picture this: You are alone at the edge of a frozen meadow surrounded by forest. The only sound is the wind rushing the snow and an occasional thump as a pine tree unburdens itself of a branch-load of powder. Picture yourself in the middle of nowhere: nothing for miles but silence and solitude and stillness. Faintly, ever so faintly, a sound starts in low from far away: a rhythmic jangling and a voice that grow more distinct as they approach. Suddenly a pair of dogs, muzzles splattered with snow, sweeps into sight around an overhang of white birch. These are followed by two more dogs, straining their traces taut. Nine pairs in all pulling a sled with a man bundled up to his snow-encrusted whiskers. The team is charging past at 25 mph: 18 muzzles panting, 36 linehooks clashing, 72 padded paws grappling with loose snow, two sled runners whooshing through the powder. "Get on, Rowdie!" "Good dog," "Good boys," "Let's go, Sam, let's go!" They fly around the next turn and are gone, their traces chankling off into the distance. The meadow is returned again to the wind and the snow.

At the starting line, it's complete pandemonium — the crazed yelps of the dogs ready to run, the mournful howls of the dogs left behind, the loudspeaker counting down: "Driver, you have five. Four. Three. Two. One. Go, driver!" The scene is the seventh annual Alpo International Sled Dog Race in Saranac Lake, N.Y., the largest event of its kind. Over 160 drivers — or "mushers" — have brought 1,000 dogs from all over the United States, Canada and even Europe. Throughout the last weekend in January, the teams, starting one at a time, race against the clock; the winner is the team posting the lowest combined time for three heats. Six-dog sleds run heats of six miles each, eight-dog sleds run eight miles, and "unlimited" sleds — from eight to eighteen dogs — run twelve miles for a share of the $35,000 cash prize.

Pretty soon, however, you begin to realize that these people aren't in it just for the money ($35,000 divided by the 1,000 dogs at this race won't keep them in beefsteak for long). There's much more to this than cold cash. Why do these people train year-round and drive thousands of miles to attend races from Saskatchewan to New Hampshire? There are as many answers as there are mushers.

"I'm not sure; I never really thought about it," says Doug Butler, who has traveled from his farm in Middlebury, Vt., with brothers Earl and Tim. "There's something in the air — can you feel it?"

Chimes in Earl: "Our dad thinks we're crazy. We go out after work and run the dogs on sleds with wheels up Moosalamoo Mountain. We wear miners' hats with lights on them because we usually

Photos by Wide World/A.P.

By Melanie Menagh

Picture this: You are alone at the edge of a frozen meadow surrounded by forest. The only sound is the wind rushing the snow and an occasional thump as a pine tree unburdens itself of a branch-load of powder. Picture yourself in the middle of nowhere: nothing for miles but silence and solitude and stillness. Faintly, ever so faintly, a sound starts in low from far away: a rhythmic jangling and a voice that grow more distinct as they approach. Suddenly a pair of dogs, muzzles splattered with snow, sweeps into sight around an overhang of white birch. These are followed by two more dogs, straining their traces taut. Nine pairs in all pulling a sled with a man bundled up to his snow-encrusted whiskers. The team is charging past at 25 mph: 18 muzzles panting, 36 linehooks clashing, 72 padded paws grappling with loose snow, two sled runners whooshing through the powder. "Get on, Rowdie!" "Good dog," "Good boys," "Let's go, Sam, let's go!" They fly around the next turn and are gone, their traces chankling off into the distance. The meadow is returned again to the wind and the snow.

At the starting line, it's complete pandemonium — the crazed yelps of the dogs ready to run, the mournful howls of the dogs left behind, the loudspeaker counting down: "Driver, you have five. Four. Three. Two. One. Go, driver!" The scene is the seventh annual Alpo International Sled Dog Race in Saranac Lake, N.Y., the largest event of its kind. Over 160 drivers — or "mushers" — have brought 1,000 dogs from all over the United States, Canada and even Europe. Throughout the last weekend in January, the teams, starting one at a time, race against the clock; the winner is the team posting the lowest combined time for three heats. Six-dog sleds run heats of six miles each, eight-dog sleds run eight miles, and "unlimited" sleds — from eight to eighteen dogs — run twelve miles for a share of the $35,000 cash prize.

Pretty soon, however, you begin to realize that these people aren't in it just for the money ($35,000 divided by the 1,000 dogs at this race won't keep them in beefsteak for long). There's much more to this than cold cash. Why do these people train year-round and drive thousands of miles to attend races from Saskatchewan to New Hampshire? There are as many answers as there are mushers.

"I'm not sure; I never really thought about it," says Doug Butler, who has traveled from his farm in Middlebury, Vt., with brothers Earl and Tim. "There's something in the air — can you feel it?"

Chimes in Earl: "Our dad thinks we're crazy. We go out after work and run the dogs on sleds with wheels up Moosalamoo Mountain. We wear miners' hats with lights on them because we usually

Pat Siebold and her husband, Dean, got involved with sled dogs because at their home in Deltajet, Alaska, "all our neighbors were doing it, so we started too," says Pat. Five-year-old Forrest Siebold, entered in the "Kid and Mutt" race (one kid, one dog, one mile), has two dogs drive him to the school bus stop every morning.

A somewhat more seasoned competitor is Dr. Roland Lombard, a 72-year-old veterinarian from Wayland, Mass. "I started racing when I was 16 because I didn't know any better," he claims with a twinkle in his eye, "and I've been racing ever since."

Another old timer is Ed Moody, who no longer races, but builds what some people consider to be the best sleds around at his shop in Rochester, N.H. Moody's sleds are light, strong and flexible, built out of white ash and babeesh, a kind of rawhide. Moody fashioned his first sled when he was 12 years old. He later built sleds for Admiral Byrd in Little America on his historic expeditions to the South Pole. Moody notes, "There are very few things you can do to a sled; we perfected them years ago."

You're never too young to "mush."

Sled design may be set, but dog design is not. Mushers are constantly searching for the perfect animal. The dogs here look surprisingly small, and few are purebred husky. Harris Dunlap, of Bakers Mills, N.Y., raises and races sled dogs with his wife, Ginger, and their daughter, Kryia. Dunlap feels a good runner "is primarily a polar-type dog crossed with working dog breeds: fine boned, about 50 to 55 pounds. A hefty dog does not make for a fast dog."

Gary and Leanne Ediger, husband and wife racers from Kennon, Wis., say their dogs "have to love it; that's all they have on their minds. They are born to race." Gary and Leanne race because "we're outdoor people. Back in Wisconsin we hunt, we trap. This is the one sport where we can do what we do naturally."

For Doug McRae, 1984 Musher of the Year, "the best part of the sport is the people you meet. How many guys from Rhinelander, Wisconsin, know people from Alaska and California and Quebec? When I'm traveling, I've got friends all over the country who are driving dogs."

After the last race, Doug Butler is rewarding his team with a few tidbits of liver, giving special attention to one long-legged golden dog. "Rowdie was half the team today. He can run with the best here," Butler says, running his hands dreamily, almost reverently along the animal's fine bones. "He's the one that'll lead my winning team. He's the one that'll make me." Doug looks up, saying: "You know, I've been thinking about why I do it. I love the competition. I love to win. Once you race, you're hooked. I like working with a team: a man and his dogs and nature. It's the best sport in the world."

Every sled-dog racer has his or her reasons. But beyond reason, if you really want to understand why they do what they do, picture again that frozen meadow. But this time, instead of standing in the snow watching the sled scream past, picture yourself behind a team of 18 fine-tuned dogs. Dogs you have bred to live for running. Dogs you have raised from pups and trained over grueling miles and hours. Dogs that are some of the world's fastest, strongest athletes, that can only be controlled by the sound of your voice. Picture all this, and you begin to understand that the dogs aren't the only ones who are born to race. FW

CHICKEN FROM EAST TO WEST

BY MARILYN HANSEN

All over the country, chicken is just about everyone's favorite food these days. Whether it's roasted, barbecued, grilled or stir-fried, chicken is convenient, low in calories, and easy to prepare. Now, savvy poultry producers are coming up with some innovative and exciting ways to make it even more appealing to today's busy, quality-conscious consumers.

Frank Perdue, chairman of Perdue Farms Inc., says that "chicken today is a superior product, and we are very proud of our product. The industry has responded to the consumer demand for convenience. We are particularly proud of our pop-up timer. Also, we saw the immense popularity of broilers being sold in parts, and so now our roasters are being sold that way."

The shape of chicken is changing, too. William Rusch, director of marketing for Holly Farms Poultry Industries, says, "Consumers today are willing to pay a premium for convenience. Holly Farms is marketing fillet breast and fillet thigh in sectioned cartons of approximately 32 'nuggets' per pound. There's no waste, the small pieces cook quickly, and they're low in calories."

With versatile chicken in the marketing limelight today, we've put together a cookbook using various cuts of chicken in new and tempting ways.

STEAMED CHICKEN EAST WIND

1/16 oz. chopped tree ears (dried black mushrooms) or 1/4 cup fresh mushrooms
1 (1¾-lb.) boneless roaster chicken breast
1 tablespoon peanut or vegetable oil
⅓ cup chopped carrot, in ¼-inch dice
½ cup chopped fresh broccoli
½ cup chopped water chestnuts (about half an 8-oz. can)
½ cup thinly sliced scallions (about 4, white and tender green parts only)
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 tablespoon peeled, chopped fresh ginger (or ½ teaspoon powdered)
¼ teaspoon minced garlic (½ clove)
2 teaspoons soy sauce, divided
4 tablespoons dry sherry, divided
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons cornstarch, divided
1 egg, lightly beaten
¾ teaspoon salt, divided, or to taste
¼ teaspoon black pepper, divided
4 cups chicken stock or broth

1. Rinse tree ears and soak 10 minutes in hot water to reconstitute; drain. Place chicken, smooth-side down with edges overlapping, between 2 sheets of plastic wrap. Pound to an 8×12×¼-inch rectangle.
2. In a wok or medium-sized skillet over high heat, heat oil. Stir-fry carrot 2 minutes. Add broccoli and cook 1 minute longer. Add tree ears, water chestnuts, scallions, parsley, ginger and garlic. Transfer mixture to a bowl.
3. In cup, combine 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 2 tablespoons sherry. Stir in 2 teaspoons cornstarch until dissolved. Pour into skillet and bring to a boil, whisking as you cook. Toss together with vegetable mixture, egg, ½ teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper.
4. Sprinkle chicken with remaining ¼ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Spread vegetable mixture over chicken, leaving 1-inch border uncovered. Starting at narrow end, roll chicken jelly-roll style around filling, folding in edges to form a neat package. Wrap in dampened cheesecloth and tie with string at 1½-inch intervals to secure.
5. In bottom of wok or large basket steamer, bring stock to a boil. Place rolled chicken in steamer basket and place over liquid. Cover tightly and steam for 40 minutes. Remove chicken roll, allow to cool somewhat; remove cheesecloth. Place chicken roll on serving platter and keep warm.
6. To make sauce, in cup dissolve remaining 2 tablespoons cornstarch in 2 tablespoons sherry and 1 teaspoon soy sauce. Whisk into steaming liquid and boil. Pour into a sauceboat and serve over sliced chicken roll.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

Note: To make the clear East Wind sauce as in photo: In saucepan heat 2 cups chicken stock, 4 teaspoons soy sauce, 2 scallions, sliced, 3 ⅛-inch-thick slices ginger root, and 1 small clove garlic to boiling. In cup combine 2 tablespoons water and 4 teaspoons cornstarch until dissolved. Stir into boiling broth, cooking until mixture returns to boiling. Before serving, stir in ½ teaspoon Oriental sesame oil (optional). Makes 2 cups

BUFFALO CHICKEN WINGS WITH BLUE CHEESE SAUCE

- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 small garlic clove, minced
- ¼ cup minced fresh parsley
- 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- ½ cup sour cream
- ¼ cup finely crumbled blue cheese
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- Pinch of cayenne pepper
- ½ cup (1 stick) unsalted butter
- ¼ cup bottled hot pepper sauce
- 25 chicken wings (about 4½ pounds)
- About 1½ quarts vegetable oil or lard
- Celery sticks, for garnish

1. In medium bowl, combine the onion, garlic, parsley, mayonnaise, sour cream, blue cheese, lemon juice, vinegar, salt, black pepper and cayenne; whisk until blended. Cover and refrigerate until 30 minutes before serving.

2. In a large skillet, melt the butter over moderately low heat and add the hot sauce; mix well and set aside. (This makes a medium-hot sauce. For a hotter or milder sauce, adjust ingredients accordingly.)
3. Cut the wings into three pieces at the joints; discard the tips or reserve for stock. Rinse and pat the chicken pieces dry.
4. In a deep fryer or a heavy, deep skillet, heat the oil to 385 F. Fry the chicken in batches for about 10 minutes, until brown and crisp. Drain on paper towels.
5. When all of the chicken has been fried, rewarm the hot sauce mixture in a large skillet. Add the chicken and toss to thoroughly coat each piece. Turn off the heat; cover and let stand for 5 minutes.
6. Serve chicken accompanied with celery and reserved blue cheese sauce for dipping.

¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt, or to taste
½ teaspoon cracked or freshly ground black pepper
Vegetable oil
4 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup dry red wine, preferably Burgundy
1 cup beef broth
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons brandy

2 tablespoons tomato paste
½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves

1. Cut chicken thighs into 1-inch cubes. Dredge in flour mixed with salt and pepper, reserving excess flour.

4. Add chicken and simmer, covered, about 20 minutes or until tender. Adjust seasoning, adding salt and pepper to taste. This dish may be made 2 days in advance, refrigerated and reheated to serve. Serve with rice or buttered fettucine.

GRILLED ORANGE-FLAVOR CHICKEN

1 medium-sized onion, finely chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon freshly grated orange rind
¼ cup fresh orange juice
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
6 (8-oz.-size) whole, boned, skinned chicken breasts, split

1. In shallow, non-corrodible container, combine onion, garlic, orange rind, orange juice, lemon juice, soy sauce, vinegar, brown sugar and Dijon mustard. Mix well.
2. Place chicken breasts in marinade, turning to coat both sides. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until ready to grill, preferably overnight. Turn once or twice during marinating time to permit flavors to penetrate evenly.
3. Prepare grill and heat well until glowing coals form. If grilling indoors, light broiler. Place drained chicken on lightly oiled grill, grilling about 7 minutes per side until lightly charred and cooked through. If using broiler, place chicken on oiled broiler rack and broil 7 minutes per side, 4 inches from heating element. To test for doneness, pierce chicken at thickest point. When juices run clear, chicken is done.

Makes 6 servings

Variation: Before grilling, wrap a strip of bacon lengthwise around each boneless, skinned chicken breast, grilling for 5-7 minutes on each side, turning several times during cooking time.

BOOK BEAT

LISA H.: THE BEAUTY WITHIN

Growing up, Lisa H. liked kittens, castles, a candy bar called "Peanut Chews," the Philadelphia Flyers, Bach and the Bay City Rollers. She read everything she could get her hands on, liked to climb a huge oak tree with the little girl next door, and was famous for her polished imitation of Ed Sullivan.

Lisa H., a pseudonym for a young woman who lives near Philadelphia, took great delight in the ordinary. That is, when she was allowed to enjoy it. Because she suffered from neurofibromatosis, a congenital disorder sometimes known as the Elephant Man's Disease (believed to occur in one in 3,000 births), there were people who would not permit her to live a normal life.

The school bus driver, for example, who took her face tenderly in his hands, saying, "My God, you are the ugliest thing I've ever seen." Or the woman in the department store who screamed, "They ought to put her in a cage."

Richard Severo, a reporter for The New York Times, chronicles this young woman's life in his book Lisa H. (Harper & Row, $13.95. Copies may be ordered by calling 800-638-3030 or 301-824-7300). Lisa was diagnosed as having "the most severe case of neurofibromatosis on record," resulting in tumors that completely disfigured her face and caused partial loss of her eyesight, but did nothing to harm the person behind the face. Only other people could do that.

Severo had been invited to observe the radical plastic surgery to be undertaken in an attempt to alleviate Lisa's disfigurement. The year was 1981, and Lisa was 21 years old. In interviews with Lisa and her friends, family, doctors and teachers, Severo found her to be bright and kind, with a wry sense of humor.

He also found her deeply loved by her family, most importantly her mother, Mary, who bore Lisa in a late and difficult pregnancy and who worked as a waitress to provide for her four children — and Lisa's sister Diane. The family felt Lisa should live as normal a life as possible: that she shouldn't attend special schools or live in isolation, even though she would have to brave stares, insults and even physical abuse. Diane took Lisa on dates with her, arranged for her to go to the junior prom, and once, when Lisa's head had to be shaved for one of her 16 operations, Diane shaved her own head and suggested that they race to "see who could grow hair back the fastest."

Lisa's relationship with her family has its ups and downs, of course, and as the book ends, there is a sense that adjustment to "normal" life, now that Lisa can better function in the outside world, may be the family's most difficult challenge.

Severo has told Lisa's story in a moving, thoughtful way. It is not just a story for people who have suffered discrimination, although they will certainly see themselves in it. It is a human story of love and courage, and it is a fable for our times, about the nature of beauty. Severo holds a mirror up to us, and we can't help but wince at what we see. Those people who ostracized Lisa "feared and hated because they might be her and she might be them," the author writes. Physical beauty has become so important that some use it as license to throw stones. But the book is also an examination of real beauty. Perhaps the most moving chapter describes the overwhelming response of people as they heard about Lisa through media reports. Gifts, letters and prayers poured in — from the rich, the poor, the young and the old. Wrote one little girl, "If I knew you real good, I would be your best friend."

Can you imagine? There are dogs and cats in this great land of ours who do not have their own pet car seat. HERE'S TO MARITAL MONOTONY

Do you ever long for one of those high-powered, high-profile bi-coastal marriages? Forget it, says Naomi Gerstel, a sociologist at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. She did a study on "commuter couples" — spouses who regularly travel great distances to maintain their marriage.

Gerstel found that what these commuter couples missed most were the seemingly mundane aspects of wedlock: "They missed coming home at the end of the day and saying, 'Guess what happened at work.' They missed trivial sharing. They missed shared silences. They missed the routine that was actually relaxing and soothing."

So next time you've a yen for greener pastures, be sure that you're not selling short the pleasures of your own backyard.

FEAR OF ENTERTAINING

Professional party-giver Willa Gelber of Custom Cuisine in New York City has observed countless cases of what she has come to refer to as pre-party phobia. "I see it happen all the time," Gelber reports. "A host is dead tired and grubby because his [preparation] time got cut short. By the time the evening is over, the host is so exhausted he hates everyone's guts."

Gelber's antidote? Advanced preparation. She suggests serving a meal that can be made ahead of time and heated on party day; getting a friend or hiring a professional, if you can afford one, to help you; and leaving enough time to get your own self in order.

Gelber says, above all, don't worry so much: "Most people are just pleased to be invited. They are not walking around with a clipboard evaluating the food and decorations." If they are, just take their names off your "A" list.

AND NOW: YOU CAN DRESS UP A NERD

It used to be you wore your heart on your sleeve; well, now you can wear your computer over your heart. How's that? Dreamweavers Needleworks, of Newport, R.I., has produced Wearable Software, a line of clothing and accessories emblazoned with computer logos and slogans. IBM PC T-shirts and Macintosh totebags are an obvious aid to computer users who want to interface with fellow enthusiasts.

Company spokesman Robert Jannelle says his wearer-friendly items appeal to a wide range of customers — from "kids in college to middle management types at seminars to senior executives on the golf course." Takes the "byte" out of all those little animal emblems, we'd guess.

Still not ready to order a polo shirt embroidered with your favorite logo? Consider this: You can't play Space Invaders on an alligator.

WHERE THE HEART IS

We wondered why people choose to live where they do. Here are two reports:

June Havoc, movie star, stage actress, Cannon Crossing, Conn.

"I live in a little antique village, in what used to be a mill on a waterfall, by a meadow where I can have my animals. I raise animals that are unadoptable. I have a burro, goats, a swan, 50 birds, 12 orphan dogs. If you want to ride horses, grow something, be on the water, it's all possible in Connecticut."

John Cusano, owner, A Thousand Words gallery, South Norwalk, Conn.

"I love Connecticut because I love Yankee ingenuity. Hard work, few complaints, the inventive, clever little ways common people solve their problems around here. And in its old buildings and the large greens in cities like New Haven and the way the roads run through the countryside, there's a memory of the Europeans who were here first."

Cosell tells it straight

By LORENZO CARCATERRA

It is the only show of its king — really. Each week it takes a serious look at sports, ignoring splashy graphics, slow-mo intros and quick camera pans, concentrating only on the basics.

The program is called "SportsBeat," airing Sunday afternoons on ABC and hosted by Howard Cosell. Conceived as a monthly newsmagazine when it was launched in August 1981, it went monthly six months later. Like a well-orchestrated dance, it has gotten better and better.

The program's range is, to quote a Cosell phrase, simply astounding. One week "SportsBeat" offered an honest, straightforward report about whether boxing should be abolished. "SportsBeat" also has done solid reports on drugs and Olympic athletes, the rights of owners to move their teams, and on Willie Stargell, the former Pittsburgh Pirates star, who calmly discusses the difficulties he had as a young black man trying to play baseball in the 1960s.

Cosell was at his best during a segment involving former New York Yankee slugger Roger Maris, who was bitter and angry at what he felt was an unappreciative Yankee administration. Then Cosell told him that the Yankees planned to place a plaque in his name next to those of Babe Ruth and Lou Gherig. It brought Maris to tears.

There are those who feel that Cosell just likes to hear himself talk, that he is pompous, arrogant and now knowledgeable about any facet of sport. They are wrong.

Cosell does his homework and "SportsBeat" reflects that. The show has won two Emmys. It could become the "60 Minutes" of sports.

His 'Search' led to 'Dallas'

en Kercheval with Debra lnger in a scene from "Dallas."

By LYNDA HIRSCH

Q: I just started watching "Dallas," and believe I've seen the actor who plays Cliff on a daytime show. Has he done daytime? — M.B., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A: Yes, he has. Ken Kerchival played Nick Hunter on "Search for Tomorrow" and also had a stint on "The Secret Storm."

Incidentally, Ken did a somewhat notorious scene on "Secret Storm" with Joan Crawford, who had agreed to fill in when her daughter Christina fell ill. We understand that while Ken and Joan were rehearsing a scene with a slap in it, Joan gave him a love pat on the face. However, when the show went on the air live, she gave Kerchival a slap that sent him reeling!

Q: Can you tell me if any other actress played Rachel on "Another World?" I can't believe anyone other than Victie Wyndham has had the role. — H.I., Rockville Center, N.Y.

A: While Victoria Wyndham has had the role for over nine years, Rachel was first played by Robin Strasser. In the beginning storyline Rachel was a conniving woman who wanted two things: a wealthy husband and a career. She married Russ Matthews but fell in love with Steven Frame. Her first child, thought to be Russ', was really Steven's. After Strasser left the soap scene to go to Hollywood with her then-husband Laurence Luckinbill, Marge Impert took over for Rachel. Impert is now seen in lots of prime-time shows. Victoria Wyndham took over for Impert. Before doing "Another World," Wyndham appeared as Charlotte Waring on "Guiding Light."

Q: Is it true that "Search for Tomorrow" is going off the air? My mother, who lives in Detroit, says it's already gone off the air, but I still continue to see it in my home town. What's going on? — L.Z., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: As Mark Twain once said, "The reports of my death are greatly exaggerated." That goes for "Search for Tomorrow," too. For several years doomsayers have been saying that "Search" will have no tomorrows. Once again, they're wrong. "Search" has just gotten a brand-new producer, Nick Nicholson, who served on "Edge of Night" in that capacity for 17 years, a brand-new head writer, Paul Mayer, one of the best in the business, and a brand-new studio.

As for not seeing the show in Detroit, lots of stations have stopped showing "Search" and opt for local programming — Detroit is one of them. But Procter & Gamble, which produces the soap, is hoping "Search's" new look will attract more affiliate stations.

Have a question about your favorite soap or soap star? Write to Lynda Hirsch, c/o News America Syndicate, P.O. Box 19620, Irvine, Calif. 92714. She will answer as many questions as she can in her column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

Returns aren't taxing with a VCR

JERRY BUCK
elevision Writer

OS ANGELES — Adults can now do r 1984 income taxes while sitting on ıt of the TV set, just like kids doing their nework.

wo video cassettes, produced for the rnal Revenue Service, are available to le taxpayers in preparing their returns. I got a call from Frank Boches of IRS' lic affairs office saying they were rested in producing two video tapes to people fill out the tax forms," said l Foster, president of RKO Home-eo.

KO's tape for the short forms (1040A 1040EZ) runs a half hour and sells for .95. The tape for the long form (1040 Schedules A & B) is one hour and sells $24.95.

Since the tapes were produced by the rnment they're in the public domain. nybody can take them and sell them," Foster.

oster said he wanted to take a look at apes before agreeing to handle them. "I seen government films before," he said. "But it was well done. It was made by an outside filmmaker."

The tapes take the taxpayer line-by-line through the tax forms. They explain what deductions are allowed, for instance, and which ones aren't. The narrator fills out a sample form as he goes along.

"You can stop the tape at any point, or you can go back and look at something again," said Foster.

Foster said he expects to sell only a few thousand of the tapes.

"It won't break down any doors," he said. "There are many problems built in. For one, it has to go through video stores and the people at the video stores don't know the meaning of the word 'sell.' All they know is 'rent.'

"Incidentally, you can take the cost of the cassette off your 1985 tax. And it's less than paying an accountant. If you forget to tell a tax preparer about a deduction, it doesn't go into the form. But the tape reminds you of every deduction and if you don't have the receipts at hand you can stop the tape while you go get them."

Foster said he looks upon the tapes this year as little more than an experiment.

"If we break even I'll consider it a success," he said. "I frankly am not interested in a profit this year. I want to see if the market will accept it. There are 17 million VCR owners. Next year, I would begin promoting it early so that people would be receptive. I think we could quadruple our sales next year.

"But if we don't sell several thousand this year I'll have to conclude that either we got to the market too late or people were not interested. In either case, I wouldn't do it next year."

The income tax tape is, of course, a perishable item — worthless once your return is done. But, Foster said, "You have a blank tape."

Foster's major business is distributing classic films and vintage television shows.

"The penetration of VCRs in the homes will surpass cable television within the next two years," said Foster. "The time is coming when original movies will be made just for cassette."

Mom finds daughter, but no joy

End of search forces adopted daughter to make a choice between two mothers

TONY SAAVEDRA
PERSPECTIVE

They met for the first time in the doorway of a Costa Mesa home.

Ringing the doorbell was the middle-aged woman who had placed her illegitimate baby up for adoption 34 years earlier, and had searched ever since for the child.

Answering was the daughter, conceived during a wartime fling and taught by her adopted parents to despise her genetic mother.

Nervous tears gave way to hugs and then to laughter. The years of searching had ended for Frieda Miller, who scoured through medical records, school yearbooks, court documents and even funeral guest lists for information on the girl known to her only as "Jan."

The trail led to Jan Long, the pampered adopted daughter of a wealthy Costa Mesa family. She had since married and was raising a daughter of her own.

It was an emotional, though somewhat awkward, reunion. But neither mother nor daughter knew what to do when the "hugs and hellos" ended. What comes next when the reunion is over?

Miller never considered that question during her determined search.

Maybe she should have.

Five years have passed since Miller and her husband, Bob, showed up on Long's doorstep. They will not likely return.

Their surprise visit set off a tremor within Long's adopted family, forcing the daughter to choose between the woman who gave her life, and the parents who sustained it.

"My birth mother wanted me to be her little baby and give her back the 34 years that she had lost. My other mother couldn't handle that," says Long, now 39. "One had to go, and it was the one who wasn't around the longest."

This time it was Long who severed the maternal ties that had been cut the first time by a hometown doctor in a hospital delivery room.

The "happy ending" was over.

Rejection has been rough on the Millers, who've spent their yearly vacations in Costa Mesa trailer parks — first trying to find Long and then trying to gain her acceptance.

"We can't figure out what happened. Jan just rejected her mother," says Bob Miller. His wife nods, her eyes red with tears behind her rimless glasses.

"All the time I was searchin' for her, I wasn't thinkin' of any future relationship," says Frieda.

It's a painful, guilt-laced story told openly by a mother seeking absolu-

Laguna center calls a halt to sea lions' rescue lessons

Facility's small size has compelled search for new training base

By LISA MAHONEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Friends of the Sea Lion Marine Mammal Center in Laguna Beach has learned that its facilities cannot be used for training sea lions for ocean rescues after all.

Training activities with two young sea lions, Joyce and Faye, have been halted while their guardians look for a new home for the would-be "flippered lifeguards," curator Karin Wyman said.

The non-profit organization, which cares for sick and injured seals and sea lions, cannot play host to the experiment being conducted by three area marine mammal trainers because its facilities are too small to qualify for a federally required training permit, Wyman said.

The organization's non-profit status and its philosophy that rehabilitated sea lions should be returned to their ocean habitat are also at odds with the trainers' ultimate aim of using Joyce and Faye for commercial purposes, she said.

"The commercial use is totally against our philosophy. It's different when they're doing lifesaving tasks," Wyman said.

Wyman, the organization's only paid employee, was learning to work with the seals in an experimental program to see if they could be trained to save drowning swimmers.

Much swifter in the surf than humans, seals can zip up to 25 mph in the water compared to 2-3 mph for a

Irvine's Larry Agran hints at recall drive to seat new leaders

By SCOTT STODDARD
Daily Pilot Correspondent

A group fighting a plan to construct three freeways through south Orange County took steps Saturday toward forming a lasting organization it believes will make county government more responsive to the public.

Orange County Tomorrow, an unusual coalition of liberals and conservatives who say they are striving to preserve the quality of life in Orange County, met at the Balboa Bay Club on Saturday to form a steering committee responsible for organizing the citizens group.

At the meeting, part of which was off the record, members expressed displeasure with county supervisors, who they say have disregarded public sentiment by conceiving of a funding plan that would raise about $600 million for the $1 billion freeway project.

They point to last November's defeat of Proposition A, an initiative that would have raised the sales tax by a penny to construct the freeways. The measure failed by a more than 2 to 1 margin.

If county supervisors continue to ignore the public, Irvine city Councilman Larry Agran hinted, a recall drive may be in order.

"Not only do you need new leadership but you actually have to talk about recalling existing leaders ... and get people who will represent you in some reasonable way," Agran said. Agran, however, didn't say who would be targeted by a recall.

Supervisor Tom Riley, who faces re-election next year, has reportedly accused the activist group of conducting a political campaign against him.

Bandit answers ad, hauls off rare coins

By STEVE MARBLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A Fountain Valley woman advertising a rare and valuable coin collection in a newspaper was handcuffed, gagged and robbed at gunpoint Saturday afternoon by a prospective customer who turned out to be a bandit, police reported.

The robber fled with the $113,000 coin collection, made up of about 1,000 U.S. coins in mint condition, and with some jewelry, according to officers.

The woman, who wasn't identified, was unharmed and able to provide police with a detailed description of her assailant and his getaway car.

The robber, apparently armed with a handgun and a Taser weapon, which has an electronic dart that can temporarily paralyze a person, showed up at the woman's Currant Avenue residence near Mile Square Park at about 1 p.m.

"He asked to see the collection, she produced it and he viewed it like he was a prospective buyer," explained Lt. Dave Brokaw. "He looked at it for quite a while, then pulled out a gun."

The woman, alone in her house at the time, was handcuffed and gagged, said Brokaw. A family member apparently found her a short time later and called police.

The robber was described as being clean and neat, wearing a three-piece suit, a dress shirt, a maroon necktie and sporting gold-rimmed, aviator-style glasses. He was about 40 years old, cleanshaven, about 6 feet tall with brown, collar-length hair.

"She said he had a light Southern accent and perhaps a lisp," said Brokaw.

The car he was traveling in was a new silver Ford Thunderbird with Arizona license plates.

Alleged threats cause dismay

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Arguments raged over five mysterious and threatening telephone calls that school trustee Karen O'Bric said she received this week in the aftermath of a controversial decision to close Burke School.

O'Bric, a trustee in the Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District told the Daily Pilot that five anonymous callers threatened the safety of her four children unless she reversed her vote to close the school.

O'Bric holds school protest leader Ed Zschoche responsible for the calls although he didn't personally make them, she said.

But Zschoche and a woman who did talk to O'Bric at about the same time she reported getting the first phone threat denied making any threats.

"I can't believe it. I'm flabbergasted," said Norma Fletcher, who said she talked with O'Bric about 5:35 p.m. Monday.

"I didn't even know she had children. We had a very good conversation. At the very end I told her I didn't think many voters would vote for those on already on the board. But I wouldn't make any threats. Those

Private lifeguards take over city service

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The cities of Huntington Beach and Newport Beach have ended their longtime lifeguard services at county-owned beaches because city officials refused to accept the risk of paying for high-cost surfing injuries.

That means when ocean lovers flock to Orange Coast beaches during Easter Week festivities in less than three weeks, beaches at Sunset Beach and at the Santa Ana River mouth in Newport Beach will be guarded by a privately owned lifeguard company based in South Laguna.

Huntington Beach has provided lifeguard protection at the 2½ miles of Sunset Beach, south of Bolsa Chica State Beach, for 40 years.

Newport Beach lifeguards have saved lives on the 350 yards of beach at the river mouth for more than 30 years.

But the long and meritorious service came to an end this week when the Orange County Board of Supervisors awarded a three-year, $606,000 contract to the Lifeguard International Co.

The private lifeguards also will provide protection at a number of beaches in south Orange County.

Both Newport Beach and Huntington Beach officials were scared off by a recent Superior Court award of $6 million to a victim in a 1980 surfing injury near the Balboa Pier.

In that accident, Claremont resident John Taylor was paralyzed when he dived into the surf and crashed into an unseen sandbar.

Huntington Marine Safety Capt. Bill Richardson said the ocean floor is undergoing constant change and asserted that legal advisers refused to put the city out on a limb for accidents in a county jurisdiction.

Richardson, who said there's only been one death on Sunset Beach in the four decades it's been protected by local forces, said about 40 lifeguards will be laid off.

Richardson said conditions have worsened in recent years because of sand replenishment programs and 500 rescues were recorded on the beach last year.

He predicted that Lifeguard International will have a tough time in coping with the tricky conditions before its lifeguards become experienced at Sunset.

Orange County Supervisor Thomas F. Riley praised local lifeguard efforts, but said he has "unequivocal" confidence that the private company will also do a good job.

Drug developed in Irvine lab being tested on AIDS victims

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An antiviral drug developed by an Irvine laboratory is being tested on humans as a possible treatment for AIDS.

Earlier lab studies showed that ribavirin, also known as Virazole, reacts against the virus suspected of causing Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

A research team at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center in New York has launched a pilot project to monitor the drug's effects on 21 patients.

Ribavirin was developed in the early 1970s by Viratek Inc. of Irvine, a subsidiary of the Costa Mesa-based ICN Pharmaceuticals Inc.

The drug is considered to be effective against a broad range of viruses, including those causing respiratory diseases and certain forms of herpes. It may also help control the suspected AIDS retrovirus isolated by researchers in April 1983.

Dominic E. Liuzzi, vice president of ICN Pharmaceuticals, said escalating doses of the drug will be given to patients, who will be observed for changes in their plasma or cell levels. They will also be watched for toxic poisoning.

Liuzzi said the preliminary project, headed by Dr. Richard B. Roberts, could lead to more extensive studies.

"We won't have the results for several months, but we are very optimistic that the drug will help," he said, explaining that ribavirin has been shown to keep the virus from multiplying.

Federal Drug Administration approvals are pending for the use of ribavirin to battle respiratory syncytial virus, a form of pneumonia that attacks an estimated 800,000 children and elderly people annually in the United States, Liuzzi said.

The drug is used in Mexico, Korea, Portugal and Columbia to treat influenza and hepatitis. Liuzzi added that ribavirin has also been shown to inhibit growth of the virus that causes herpes genitalis.

In December, Dr. Joseph McCormick reported that the drug reacted against T-cell Leukemia, the suspected AIDS virus, in laboratory tests at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

150 guests evacuated in motel fire

About 150 guests at the Dana Point Marina Inn were evacuated from their rooms early Saturday when embers in a fireplace ignited a blaze that spewed smoke throughout the three-story motel, county firemen reported.

Two people, a sheriff's deputy and a 67-year-old Pacoima woman, suffered smoke inhalation and were treated at San Clemente General Hospital.

The injured were identified as Sheriff's Deputy Gilbert Ruiz and Murial Lazo, a motel guest. Both were released after being given oxygen at the hospital's emergency room.

The 5:20 a.m. evacaution came when most guests were still asleep and apparently unaware that smoke was drifting up stairwells and through the corridors, said county fire investigators.

Damage to the motel was held to $10,000.

County firemen said the the smoky blaze apparently started when some smoldering embers in a ground-level fireplace ignited a piece of furniture.

COALITION TO FIGHT FREEWAYS...
From A1

Despite denials from Orange County Tomorrow members, Riley has said the organization may be a platform from which to showcase candidates for office.

Agran is currently gathering signatures in Irvine for a citizens right-to-vote initiative that would give the public an opportunity to vote on plans to raise taxes for highways. Getting the initiative on the November ballot requires 7,000 signatures, Agran said.

"Proponents of this rather radical fee and roadway construction proposal are very uncomfortable with the notion of citizens voting on it," he added.

Skeptics argue that a new freeway system would encourage Orange County's rapid growth into a crowded metropolis. In addition, they say taxpayers would eventually pay for the freeways because the highway tax levied on developers would only result in higher prices for homes and consumer goods.

The three freeways include the Eastern, Foothill and San Joaquin Hills.

The San Joaquin Hills freeway would connect the Corona del Mar Freeway near John Wayne Airport with the San Diego Freeway near San Juan Capistrano. The proposed 17-lane corridor would extend through Costa Mesa, Newport Beach, San Clemente, Laguna Beach, Irvine and San Juan Capistrano.

In addition, the Eastern Freeway would link the Riverside and Santa Ana Freeways, while planners say the Foothill Freeway would parallel the San Diego Freeway and travel through undeveloped areas of southeastern Orange County.

The new freeway system, proponents argue, would relieve growing congestion on county freeways and prevent overflow traffic from spilling onto side streets.

But most cities have rejected the freeway plan outright, and the county's innovative funding idea appears to be the major roadblock to the project.

County officials expect developers who build in areas near the proposed freeways to foot about $630 million of the $1 billion price tag. Agran said developers would be charged about $1,200 for each single-family home, $700 per apartment unit and up to $3.80 per square foot for commercial buildings.

SEA LION TRAINING HALTED...

healthy lifeguard.

Virtually unaffected by riptides or strong seas, the seals might learn to tow buoys or lifeguards out to tired swimmers, Wyman said.

Jim Styers of Irvine initiated the training program with Craig Racicot and Deirdre Ballou.

Styers said he arranged to house Joyce and Faye at the mammal center through one of its directors, Bill Ford.

The center was convenient and appeared to be a good place for the training, he said.

Styers and the other trainers began teaching Wyman to work with the seals in November. The training, which Styers says was largely limited to accustoming Faye and Joyce to working with humans, was stopped last weekend, according to Wyman. That's when center officials learned Styers hadn't acquired the necessary training permit, she said.

Styers said he discovered the rehabilitation center's facilities were too small for his purposes when he applied to the National Marine Fisheries for a permit to train the animals.

The center, located next to the animal shelter on Laguna Canyon Road, doesn't have a tank large enough or deep enough for use in training the mammals, he said. Its current permit allows only rehabilitation activities geared toward returning the animals to the wild. Styers and Wyman said. If sea lions are to be trained they must have larger tanks and more space to swim, explained Styers, a former marine biologist.

As Faye and Joyce swam in endless circles in the center's tank this week, Styers said negotiations were under way to use space at Marineland in Rancho Palos Verdes. "It's a good possibility we'll be moving up to Marineland. I think it's probably going to work out."

The plan to teach seals to act as "lifeguards" was publicized in local newspapers last December. Styers said his overall aim — to use the seals in a variety of commercial enterprises including lifesaving — was obscured in favor of the latter angle because "that'll get us our PR (publicity)."

Styers said there is great potential in commercial use of seals for search and rescue operations around offshore oil rigs and tankers as well as on the beach.

But Styers said he believes previous attempts to use the animals commercially failed because people would not accept the idea. Emphasizing the "romantic side" of the coin — their potential as lifesavers — would give his project the exposure needed to educate the public, he said.

Styers said it should take about two years to teach Faye and Joyce once training begins in earnest. "In the next two years or so, it'll either be going or nonexistent," he said.

ADOPTED DAUGHTER CHOOSES...
From A1

tion and again by a daughter willing to forgive, but also wanting to forget. It is the story of a tug-of-war between two women, for the daughter who couldn't satisfy both their emotional needs without losing her own sanity.

The tale begins in 1945, a year that would see the death of Hitler, the atomic destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and finally the end of World War II.

Miller, a simple country girl from New Jersey, had found herself married to "an Air Force man," but in love with a sailor.

"I had married an Air Force guy that I only saw three times. Four days later, he went overseas," she says.

Miller journeyed to Southern California to met her in-laws and visit her boyfriend, who was also stationed here.

The relationship grew intimate and Miller soon became pregnant. It would be more than two decades before liberated women would be told that they had "come a long way, baby."

The sexual revolution was still behind drawn curtains, and girls were classified as "those that did" and "those that didn't."

"I was a country girl and desperate as to what to do. My brother told me I couldn't keep it, because I would disgrace our whole family," says Miller. "I believed him, although my heart ached to keep it."

Other pressures forced her to give the child up for adoption at birth.

Her regret was almost instantaneous.

"I was so trapped and desperate ... My grief never ended. My daughter was in my heart every second. I never let go; I never could," she says. "My life was so up and down and unstable."

The baby became the only child of a well-to-do family who lived only two blocks away from the Newport Beach boarding house where Miller had stayed.

"I was doted upon by my parents. I had everything anyone could ever want," says Long. "I'm still spoiled."

She grew into a teen-age socialite with all the trimmings. Trips to Europe, ballet lessons — the usual fare for a proper young lady.

All the while she was told that her "birth mother" was dead, until the truth was exumed during a family argument when Long was 14. Then she was told that the woman was an immoral tramp.

"At that point, I was raised to believe she was a harlot with all the sailors in town," says Long.

She was also reminded, on a routine basis, of a family friend who died in a snowstorm while trying to locate her birth parents.

"My parents were afraid of losing me; my (adopted) mother is still afraid. To her, I'm her flesh and blood," reasons Long, who was never compelled to search for Miller.

But little did she know that her birth mother had other plans.

Miller had since moved to Bakersfield, where she divorced her first husband after having two sons. She later married Bob and moved to Truckee, where they set up a trucking business and became devout members of the Seventh Day Adventist church.

Despite their other commitments, the Millers searched relentlessly for Jan.

"Bob promised me before we married that he would help me," says Miller, patting her husband on the back. "He kept his promise. What a good guy."

Bob shrugged off the praise, saying: "If you was sleepin' with her and heard her cryin' at night ..."

They hired a private detective, but continued their own hunt through adoption records.

They looked through the guest book from the funeral of Miller's former landlord, who orchestrated the adoption. The couple hoped they could find some mutual friends who would know of Jan's whereabouts.

All the tracks led to Newport-Harbor High School, where the couple dug through old yearbooks, flipping through scores of pictures for the child they had never seen.

"I had a feeling of what she looked like," remembers Miller. That hunch paid off when they found the senior photo of a pretty brunette whose father owned a store. Posing as friends, they went in and asked a clerk for the address and telephone number.

It wasn't long before Bob Miller was dialing from a telephone booth and breaking the news to Jan Long that "mom" was around the corner. In adoption circles, the call is what's known as the old "five-minute warning."

Long reacted like a chameleon on a kaleidoscope. She was shocked, panicked, angry, happy and finally confused.

She had expected to see a "woman with flaming red hair and a slit up her dress."

But standing on her doorstep was a frail woman with a high-neck collar and a halo of white hair. She spoke with a twang and was dressed as simply as a Sunday school teacher.

"I was happy to know that she cared enough to search," says Long. "But I was unhappy because I knew my life would never be the same."

She was painfully right. Her adopted parents soon issued an ultimatum, saying they could not share her love with another mother.

"I felt smothered. Frieda wanted her little baby back, but I couldn't be that. My other mother was having a fit," says Long. "Frieda kept saying, 'My baby this, my baby that.' With all the demands, I couldn't handle it."

For the next few years, Long kept throwing away or returning Miller's letters until the older woman stopped writing.

In the wake of the reunion, Long says she neither hates nor loves her birth mother, but feels numb and indifferent.

"It wasn't hard for me to let go because I never felt bonded to her," she says.

Frieda, on the other hand, calls herself "just another face in the crowd." But it ought to be easy to pick her out.

She's the one with the teary eyes.

WEATHER

It might rain — or it might not

Weather forecasters were making no promises today. They expected variable clouds over most of Southern California, but said those clouds might or might not contain rain.

A weak, upper level disturbance was spotted on tracking maps about 650 miles southwest of Los Angeles. It could weaken and leave the south half of the state dry, or it could bring brief showers this afternoon, said spokesmen for the National Weather Service.

They were only slightly surer of a weak, high pressure system off the coast drifting slowly toward Southern California.

It is bringing with it a chance of showers Sunday night and Monday.

For lack of a definite prognosis, forecasters are predicting variable clouds throughout the region. Temperatures in coastal areas are expected to reach the mid-60s and dip as low as 45 both days.

Fletcher, whose two children at Burke school would be transferred if trustees hold firm in their decision to close Burke in June, said she would take a lie detector test and she challenged O'Bric to take one, too.

But O'Bric concurred with Fletcher Thursday, declaring that the two had had a civil conversation and that no threats were lodged in that discussion. The threatening calls, she said, came from people who didn't identify themselves.

Another telephone caller, Pat Thiel, said she called the O'Bric residence at 7:45 p.m. Monday and engaged in a pleasant conversation with O'Bric's husband, Michael.

"He told me that Joan wasn't home when I called," said Thiel. "I know one thing, that I wouldn't have left the phone on the hook if I had just received some threatening phone calls about my children."

O'Bric said that Zschoche organized the telephone campaign in which 20 Burke school volunteers called O'Bric and the other four trustees at their homes in 15-minute intervals Monday and Tuesday evenings.

"He (Zschoche) is the self-proclaimed leader giving instructions to make calls every 15 minutes. If he can give these kind of instructions, he can give another set of instructions," O'Bric said.

Zschoche denies his group participated in the harassment calls. "In fact, we instructed the callers to stay to the issues," he said. "Only she (O'Bric) knows if she got the calls or not."

O'Bric said she's learned from her attorney that harrassment of a public official in an attempt to get a public official to change his or her mind is a violation of the state penal code.

She plans to pursue the matter through legal channels, she said.

1 million turn out in NY for St. Paddy Day parade

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — An estimated 1 million people, most of them wearing a smile and something green, turned out Saturday for the St. Patrick's Day Parade, the world's largest march in honor of Ireland's patron saint. About 200,000 marchers, many urging Britain to get out of Northern Ireland, walked up Fifth Avenue in sunny skies and crisp temperatures to the lilting melody of fifes, bagpipes and drums and music from 185 marching bands. The spectators for the 224th annual parade were five to eight deep in places.

Governor, banking officials talk

CLEVELAND — Gov. Richard Celeste met with banking officials at Federal Reserve offices Saturday as he and and the state's financial leaders sought a way to prevent runs on deposits at state-chartered savings and loan associations. The 71 thrift institutions remained closed Saturday under an executive order declaring a three-day holiday that was issued Friday morning by Celeste. In a proposal before the Federal Reserve on Friday, Celeste called for some of the state's major commercial banks to take over the privately insured institutions. In Washington, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board on Friday granted conditional approval for Columbia Savings and Loan Co. of Cincinnati to receive Federal Savings Loan Insurance Corp. deposit insurance and membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank system.

Reagan heads for Quebec

WASHINGTON — President Reagan was to fly to Quebec today for two days of talks with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney in a personal effort to forge a more harmonious partnership with America's northern neighbor. Disputes that have festered in the past over trade, superpower relations and acid rain will be dealt with, but are expected to be overshadowed by expressions of hearty goodwill and cooperation between the allies, the world's two largest trading partners. Reagan, giving an upbeat preview of the visit in his Saturday radio address, said he and his wife Nancy were going to Canada "for one simple reason — no other country is more important to the United States."

Woman in coma gives birth

ALBANY, N.Y. — A 26-weeks pregnant woman, paralyzed since she was improperly injected with a cancer-treatment drug last month, gave birth to a baby girl by Caesarean section Saturday, medical officials said. Doctors at Albany Medical Center Hospital said the 1-pound, 15-ounce girl has a 60 percent chance of surviving. The decision to induce the birth was made Saturday morning after Lillian Cedeno, 21, developed breathing difficulties overnight and X-rays confirmed her lungs had been injured by her brain damage.

Soviets said deploying mobile missiles

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union appears to have started to deploy long-expected mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles, and American officials are divided over how to respond, the Washington Post reported in Sunday editions. The Soviets also are destroying older, silo-based missiles, suggesting to some U.S. officials that Moscow may be prepared to remain within the limits provided by the SALT II arms control agreement, the Post said.

McMartin parents dig for evidence

MANHATTAN BEACH — Parents of alleged victims of sexual abuse at the Virginia McMartin Pre-School on Saturday dug up a yard next to the school and said they uncovered evidence supporting the children's tales of molestations. "We had a dig today to prove a few things and we proved all of them and we've even found some additional evidence to substantiate the kids' stories about turtles being killed," said Robert Currie, a McMartin parent. Two investigators with the Los Angeles County district attorney's office were on hand to watch the work and check any evidence unearthed.

Study says Super Bowl made $113 million

SAN FRANCISCO — Super Bowl XIX, held this year at Stanford Stadium, brought an estimated $113.5 million to the economy of the San Francisco Bay area, according to an economic survey commissioned by the Super Bowl Task Force. San Francisco Supervisor Quentin Kopp, who led the task force, had predicted the game would bring $100 million to the Bay area economy. "I'm not surprised," Kopp said of the estimate released this week.

Financial Corp. deposits withdrawn

LOS ANGELES — Financial Corp. of America, which has projected losses of between $500 million and $700 million for 1984, said it lost about $160 million in deposits in the past week. But a company spokeswoman, Layna Browdy, said it was impossible to determine how much of the deposits were withdrawn because of unease over the projected 1984 loss and how much resulted from FCA's decision last month to reduce rates on jumbo certificates.

LA holds its 2nd St. Patrick's Day Parade

LOS ANGELES — Green and gray were the colors of the day in downtown Los Angeles on Saturday, as the second annual St. Patrick's Day Parade stepped out behind schedule and under cloudy skies. Police estimated 7,000 people turned out for the seven-block pageant from Seventh and Spring streets to City Hall, and mounted officers had little trouble controlling the sparse but enthusiastic crowd. Last year an estimated 10,000 spectators showed up for the festivities. The theme for multi-ethnic Los Angeles was "Everyone's Irish on St. Patrick's Day."

Customs officials step up searches

SAN YSIDRO — Customs officials are increasing their searches for narcotics, fearing that Mexican traffickers may be trying to move larger quantities of drugs into the United States than in the past. Authorities have begun searches of commercial vehicles along the 1,700-mile U.S.-Mexico border, examining all cargo and camper vehicles, ocean-going vessels and air and rail transportation, customs spokesman Jerome Hollander said Friday. The recent stepped-up searches at the border forced drug traffickers to stockpile their goods. Those searches, coupled with increased anti-drug activity by Mexican authorities, "are putting pressure on smugglers to move their drugs into the United States as soon as possible," Hollander said.

Angolan rebels free 27 foreigners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Anti-Marxist rebels in Angola on Saturday freed 27 foreigners, including two Americans, who were flown by the Red Cross from a guerrilla camp to Johannesburg. They appeared tired but healthy. The two Americans are Alan Bongard, 56, of Pleasanton, Calif., and Gerhard Opel, 54, of Redmont, Wash. Opel was the pilot and Bongard the engineer of a transport plane hired by the Angolan government that was ambushed by the rebels as it landed at an isolated diamond-mining center in northeastern Angola on Dec. 29. They said co-pilot William Reed of Chico was killed in the attack.

Thousands boycott in S. African port

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa — Tens of thousands of blacks boycotted work and shops Saturday at the start of a three-day "stayaway" to protest increases in bus fares and gasoline prices. Police spokesman Lt. Cecil Vermaak said there were minor incidents of stone-throwing and arson, but no major violence in the work stoppage by residents of Port Elizabeth's black townships. Police barred whites from entering the township.

Contadora Group to resume talks

BRASILIA, Brazil — The Contadora Group of nations trying to mediate peace in Central America and five nations involved in the regional crisis announced Saturday that stalled peace talks would be renewed in April. A prepared statement said Contadora member nations Venezuela, Colombia, Mexico and Panama met Friday night in the modern capital of Brasilia with officials from Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Nicaragua.

It said all agreed to meet April 12 in Panama.

7 charged in Camarena murder

MEXICO CITY — Authorities charged two police officers Saturday with the kidnap-murder of a U.S. drug administration agent and said four other policemen and a former officer were charged with lesser offenses in the case. The attorney general's office said it also had issued warrants for "six or seven" other people implicated in the murder of Enrique Camarena Salazar, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent. Authorities arrested 13 people last week, including the seven charged Saturday, for questioning in the deaths of Camarana and his Mexican pilot.

AP reporter abducted in Beirut

Terry Anderson

Photographer watches as three men shove victim into car and drive away

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped Saturday morning in west Beirut by armed men who forced him inside a car and sped off.

Late Saturday, Anderson's whereabouts remained unknown.

No group claimed responsibility immediately.

AP photographer Donald Mell saw the abduction. He said three men, two of them armed with pistols, shoved Anderson, 37, into a green Mercedes Benz sedan with no license plates and drove off.

"I suppose the whole thing took 20 seconds from the time they got out of the car to the time they sped away," said Mell, 22, of Wilmington, Del. "None of them said anything."

Mell said the men were in their early or mid-20s, that two of them had beards and that the third was clean shaven. He said a fourth man drove the car but could not been seen clearly.

It was the third kidnapping of a foreigner in mostly Moslem west Beirut in three days. The two previous victims were British. Five other Americans were kidnapped in Beirut since February 1984 and all but one still are missing. Jeremy Levin, the Cable News Network bureau chief, escaped his captors on Feb. 15.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Vivienne Ascher would say only of Anderson's kidnapping, "We're working on it."

A shadowy group believed made up of Shiite Moslem extremists and calling itself Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, has claimed in anonymous telephone calls it holds the other four.

Nate Polowetzky, foreign editor of The Associated Press, said in New York: "We are deeply concerned about the events in Beirut, and are seeking all possible information regarding the welfare of Associated Press correspondent Terry Anderson. We will, of course, pursue all avenues for his release and safe return."

Davis runs hard for Cranston seat

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

State Sen. Ed Davis expects the crowd of Republican hopefuls eyeing Alan Cranston's U.S. Senate seat to drop to four by the primary election in June 1986.

And Davis, who has already declared he is running for the seat, said he and Rep. Bobbi Fiedler of Northridge will probably be in for the duration.

Davis, also of Northridge, and Fiedler are considered the frontrunners in the early stages of the race for the GOP nomination.

In the wake of a dismal presidential campaign, Cranston is considered by some to be especially vulnerable, despite his 16-year tenure as a Washington lawmaker. His seat has lured a glance from actor Charlton Heston and prompted about a dozen hopefuls to begin surveying the field.

"If Heston's in the race, he will be the man to beat," said the 68-year-old former Los Angeles police chief during an early campaign swing through Orange County. "And Fiedler sounds like she's going to go for broke."

Davis criticized Cranston for being a "switch hitter in politics," generally voting liberal and then leaning to the right under the pressure of an upcoming election.

"He does what he has to do to survive," charged Davis. "He's going to help whomever can help him."

For instance, he said, Cranston once labeled the space defense program as a "Star Wars fantasy." However, the California senator now supports funding for research on the program.

Cranston has explained his position by saying that he favors spending some money to explore the strategic defense initiative, but not the amount proposed by President Reagan.

Davis doesn't buy that.

"You don't spend any research money to develop a 'fantasy'," he countered. "His whole history has been one of changing positions to suit the political climate of the moment."

Labeling Cranston "wily and tough," Davis said the veteran legislator probably hasn't faltered among hardline supporters, but may be losing ground with Democratic fence-sitters who are capable of voting Republican.

Davis described himself as a conservative on matters of defense and economics, and praised Reagan's policies in both areas.

The administration has brought about an "honest-to-God reduction" in taxes, he said. "Those things for the average working person are great benefits."

Davis added, "I would not tolerate any cuts in any weapons programs."

He also compared Reagan's intervention policies in Central America to former President John Kennedy's handling of the Cuban missile crisis.

Davis was elected to the state Senate in 1980, after serving as chief of the Los Angeles Police Department from 1969 to 1977.

Blast victim

Rescuers remove a man's body from the rubble of the Goldminer's Daughter ski resort in Alta, Utah, Saturday. Two people died in a Friday afternoon explosion believed caused by a propane leak from a 10,000-gallon basement tank. At least five people were injured, one critically.

Schroeder reaches milestone 112 days

'In really good spirits' even though he missed his son's wedding, hospital spokesman says

JASPER, Ind. (AP) — William Schroeder missed his son's wedding Saturday, but it was a historic and happy day for the second artificial heart recipient, who equaled the 112 days' survival of his predecessor.

"He's in really good spirits today," said Larry Hastings, clinical director at Humana Hospital Audubon in Louisville, Ky., where Schroeder remained Saturday.

Doctors had decided the 90-mile trip to Jasper for his son Terry's wedding would have been too much stress for him. Instead, the hospital took the wedding party to Louisville on Friday for a dress rehearsal and dinner which Schroeder attended.

"That was real special for him," Hastings said.

No mention of Schroeder was made at the wedding of Terry Schroeder, 25, and Julie Schnarr, 22, at St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church.

But before leaving for a reception after the wedding, the newlywed said his father "really enjoyed the dress rehearsal. I think last night was just as special as today." The reception, at a nearby community center, was closed to the news media.

The wedding, which was performed by William Schroeder's uncle, the Rev. Sylvester Schroeder, marked only the second return to Jasper for Schroeder's wife, Margaret, since the implant Nov. 25. She has remained by his bedside.

Robert Jarvik, inventor of the plastic-and-metal pump sustaining Schroeder's life, flew from his Salt Lake City home for the wedding.

Jarvik said it was the effects of Schroeder's strokes, suffered Dec. 13, that kept him from the wedding and not the artificial heart.

He noted that it had been Schroeder's goal since the operation to attend the wedding and that he had been deeply disappointed when told he couldn't go.

But Jarvik said the event was still a "happy milestone for the patient."

"He has far more than he could have had without the treatment," the inventor said.

Schroeder's predecessor, dentist Barney Clark, lived 112 days with a Jarvik-7 heart.

Missiles arrive in Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Sixteen U.S.-made cruise missiles arrived at Florennes air base less than three hours after Parliament was told they would be deployed, and the defense minister said Saturday they are now operational.

"Friday, at 6:26 p.m., a first transport plane landed with the nuclear warheads on board," Defense Minister Freddy Vreven said in a radio interview. A second cargo plane landed four hours later with "the engines, which means the missiles, on board," he added.

Vreven was asked if the medium-range missiles had already been deployed, and he said they are "operational."

Both planes, the first of which arrived less than three hours after Prime Minister Wilfried Martens told Parliament that Belgium would deploy the missiles, "arrived directly from the United States," the minister said.

The Florennes air base is 40 miles south of Brussels.

Reservoir to close

Sign marks the closure of the polluted Kesterson reservoir in Fresno County. The Interior Department decided to close it Friday because selenium in irrigation water drained from farmland is blamed for killing and deforming waterfowl. Growers who farm 42,000 acres of land charge the water shutoff will put them out of business.

Karpov: U.S. changing thrust of talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The chief Soviet negotiator at the Geneva arms talks said Saturday he believes the United States is trying to "revise the understanding" reached on the issue of space-based weapons.

"Some statements made in Washington by officials in connection with the talks cannot help but put one on his guard," Victor Karpov said in an interview on Moscow's evening television news program Vremya.

"One can feel in them the ambition to revise the understanding on the subject, tasks and objectives of the talks, which was reached in the course of the meeting on Jan. 7-8 between (Foreign Minister) Andrei Gromyko and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, for example, on outer space," Karpov said.

It was the first substantive Soviet comment on the talks since they began Tuesday in the Swiss city.

The American delegation is led by Max M. Kampelman.

Karpov said, "There is an impression that the American side would like to discuss at the talks not the question of ensuring peaceful outer space, not to prohibit the deployment of strike space weapons, but to lecture on the alleged benefits of the American 'Star Wars' concept, which is in its essence directed at making outer space a source of military threat to mankind."

The Soviets have repeatedly said the Reagan administration's Strategic Defense Initiative, known as the "Star Wars" plan threatens the success of the arms talks.

They have insisted an accord on preventing the militarization of space must be reached before any agreement on long- and medium-range nuclear weapons.

Moscow also has said Shultz and Gromyko agreed that the issues of space and earth-based weapons be interrelated in the negotiations.

"The Soviet side will press ahead at the talks for the understanding of Jan. 8 to be in its entirety a basis for a serious discussion of space and nuclear weapons," Karpov said.

George Matish

At 81, he's the oldest prisoner in the state

Convicted killer claims innocence; but he's philosophical about it: 'Jail is jail'

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP) — With his flowing, white beard and stern visage, 81-year-old George Matish is the unlikely patriarch of California's prison inmates, behind bars for murdering his live-in girlfriend four years ago in a summertime rage.

Described by Corrections Department authorities as the oldest of California's 43,000 state prisoners, Matish's life resembles a made-for-television movie: native of the Ukraine, a graduate of Soviet schools, a member of the Red Army, a toiler in a wartime German factory, a world traveler, an American auto worker, a ladies' man, a killer.

"This guy," said Oxnard homicide detective Bob Elder, "is really something."

Matish's current address is the San Luis Obispo Men's Colony, a sprawling medium-security prison housing 4,000 inmates. He wears glasses and neat prison denims, walks with a cane "because of my bad leg and a bad back," and drifts through the prison yard, keeping to himself. "I do not have many friends here," he says.

But the cane belies his strength. His unlined brow and vigorous manner, strong hands and clear-eyed alertness give him a demeanor of someone far younger than his 81 years. A handsome man with a Neptune-like beard, he speaks English haltingly with a thick Ukrainian accent.

Prison guards and the prosecutors who convicted him are skeptical of Matish's lack of English. "I think George has got some cards he's not showing," one guard said.

"My English not good," Matish said. And during a lengthy interview his sentences were often jumbled and difficult to follow as he struggled to express himself.

Matish, who celebrated his 81st birthday on Feb. 25, was sentenced to life for the July 1981 murder of 67-year-old Rose Combs, found stabbed to death in the Oxnard condominium she shared with Matish. Matish, who reported the crime, steadfastly declared his innocence.

"I am innocent," Matish said. His conviction was "the same thing like a shot of poison in my body." Now, he added, he feels detached from life, "like my body is not my body."

"It was a case of circumstantial evidence...it was no slam-dunk case," said Peter Kossoris, the Ventura County deputy district attorney who prosecuted the case. "There were no eyewitnesses, no admission of guilt. He made a very poor witness." But Kossoris said the jurors were convinced Matish killed Combs for her money, and that he had a fierce temper.

At the time of the slaying, Kossoris said, there was $105,000 in Matish's bank account. He was living on Social Security and a pension from General Motors.

"He hung around with a few Ukrainians," Kossoris said. "We interviewed witnesses who met him at an over-50s club. He'd go to these dances and meet women. He was out on bail at the time, and he'd go up to women and ask them to dance. They would get pretty upset, they didn't know what to do — they knew he was charged with murdering his girlfriend."

"He was a hell of a ladies man," Elder said.

OLDEST CONVICT IN THE STATE PRISON SYSTEM...

From A4

In 1979, at 75, Matish was shot in the stomach by an enraged former girlfriend jealous of his relationship with Combs. He had many women friends, authorities said, who claimed he tried to convince them to invest money with him. One San Francisco woman claimed he burglarized her home.

Matish was born in the Ukraine in 1904, "in a town close to Odessa, close to Nikolayev," the son of a Ukrainian father and a Slovakian mother. He obtained a "12th-grade equivalency" degree in the Soviet Union in 1927, then went to work in factories.

After June 1941, when the German Army invaded the Soviet Union, Matish was called into the Red Army, but served only a 40-day hitch.

He did not explain how or why he left the army, saying only that Ukrainians traditionally "don't like communism (and) I'm a factory man, not a military man."

In the fall of 1941, Matish arrived in Munich, Germany, worked in a factory, and remained in Germany throughout World War II and the post-war years, obtaining permission to emigrate to the United States in 1949. Despite his Soviet and Ukrainian background, he says he "never had any trouble" with the wartime Nazi authorities in Germany.

He settled in Detroit and worked in various auto factories, finally landing a long-term job with Geneal Motors. He retired in 1971, and came to California the next year.

Before settling in Oxnard, he visited San Diego, Los Angeles, Palm Springs and San Francisco. He liked Oxnard, he said, because it's "not too big, not too small."

His 81st birthday passed quietly in the prison, he said. "I had a celebration here...two boys congratulated me."

Larry Kamien, acting associate warden, said Matish is an easily-managed inmate.

"We'd like to have a whole prison of (inmates like) him," Kamien said. "Lifers, once they get past 30 years of age, are very stable. A man like this is a real treat to have."

As a convicted first-degree murderer, Matish was automatically sent to Folsom, one of the prison system's maximum-security institutions. On Feb. 19, because "he was not a problem there and his lack of criminal sophistication," Matish was transferred to San Luis Obispo, the most tranquil prison in the state system, Kamien said.

Matish will be eligible for parole when he is 91, in 1995.

"I don't miss visiting outside," Matish said. "I not have many friends in California. In Detroit, where I lived many years, I have many friends. Jail is jail."

TALK ABOUT YOUR BASIC FAITHFUL CAT

SARREBOURG, France (AP) — When Alphonse Bodry suddenly became sick and was taken to the hospital, he had no doubt that his cat, Misele, would join him.

Misele dashed nine miles through stone quarries, fields and forests to St. Nicolas de Sarrebourg hospital. Ignoring visiting hours, she instinctively found Bodry's room, pushed the door open, and walked in.

"So, here you are," Bodry, 82, said matter-of-factly, as if he had expected his little friend to show up.

A nursing supervisor, who said she could not give her name, confirmed the story this week to The Associated Press.

Bodry and Misele live in the Moselle countryside outside Sarrebourg in northeastern France. They share their modest farm with some chickens and cows.

Misele arrived Tuesday and the hospital administration is closing its eyes to the violation of the rule against animals.

The nursing superviser said Bodry was seriously ill and it appeared doubtful he would leave the hospital soon.

Anti-poison olympics today

The first "poison prevention hospital olympics" is planned today to raise funds for the Orange County Regional Poison Center at UC Irvine Medical Center. The event, sponsored by Pacific Mutual, begins at noon at the Champman College Track, Walnut Avenue and Orange Street, in Orange.

Teams of 10 will participate in a series of track-and-field events emphasizing fun more than athletic powers.

These will include the Hurry Up and Scrub Relay, Bedmaking, Wheelchair Shamrock Relay, the Mummy Wrap, the Potato Sack Crutch Sprint, Water Pitcher Pitch and Gurney Relays.

Each team must have a sponsorships of $300, either in individual or institutional donations. Other funds will be raise through the sale of T-shirts and "cheerleader" tickets.

Proceeds will support the emergency information services and educational programs of the Regional Posion Center, a 24-hour hotline for help professionals and services.

Coast students at Valley Forge

Twelve Orange County students were selected to attend a three-day Freedom and Leadership Youth Conference at Valley Forge, Pa. this month.

The studens are: Mark Andersen and David Campatelli, Mater Dei High School; Bryan Byun Sunny Hills School; John Ingwersen, St. Michael's School; Wesley Nishiyama and Christine Graham, Los Amigos School; Tom Triggs, Sonora School; Robert Wimbish and Patricia Leggett Huntington Beach School; Gretchen Geiger, La Habra School; Renee Raithel, Pacifica School; and Andrea Sparks, Lutheran School.

Eagle Scout

Jay M. Williams, 15, of Huntington Beach recently earned the rank of Eagle Scout. For his eagle project, he organized the collection and refurbishing of toys and clothing and other needed items for the Interval House for battered women and for the handicapped children at Nueva View school and for the abandoned or abused children at the Albert Sitton Home. He's the son of John and Sandra Williams.

Let's discuss cost without embarrassment.

At time of loss family feelings are difficult enough for you to cope with. There is no need to increase your discomfort by reluctance to fully discuss funeral costs. There is often the practical necessity to do so.

At Harbor Lawn the family's choice of a casket is the factor which most often determines funeral cost. For this reason, we have caskets available in all price ranges.

Pre-need funeral arrangements are encouraged by Harbor Lawn, because when there is no emotional stress costs are discussed in a more businesslike manner. But, prior to need or at time of loss, our understanding counselors will offer you every opportunity to know and control funeral costs. We care.

Cable TV installations 'blight on neighborhood'

LETTERS

To the Editor:

We have owned the property at 1105 Pembroke Lane, Newport Beach since 1968. Until this past week our major concerns revolved around the danger, noise, pollution, property devaluation and general decline in the quality of living caused by the jet traffic from the John Wayne airport.

Now it seems we have another attack on the integrity of the Westcliff area! We strongly object to the fact that Group W Cable TV has been allowed to install above-ground console boxes throughout the neighborhood.

Most are about a foot high; however, my parkway now sports a 3-foot-high metal box. How lucky can I get!

My contacts with Ken Delano, assistant to the city manager, and Charlie Roman with Group W have been a prime example of bureaucratic double-shuffle; each person referring me to the other as being "accommodating" but with absolutely no results!

May I respectfully suggest that Mayor Philip Maurer with at least one other councilman take a ride from Mariners School down Pembroke Lane and along Cornwall to view these unsightly and potentially hazardous installations. I'm sure several questions will come to your mind, such as:

1. Isn't there an ordinance or building code or regulation that prohibits such installations?

2. Is the council really aware of what is going on between your city manager's office and Cable W?

3. Who will be liable? The city, Group W or the homeowner when someone exits his vehicle at night and trips over one of these boxes? Or if a neighbor's child is injured?

4. How much trouble will the city face when someone inadvertently opens a car door against an installation and damages his vehicle? It doesn't have to be a Mercedes to be expensive.

5. Is there a 3-foot-high metal console in front of Mr. Delano's home? The mayor's home? Council members' homes?

6. Why was cold mix used to fill the holes Group W dug? They have already turned into "pot holes."

7. Is the council aware that only two homes on Pembroke Lane subscribe to cable service and that this blight on the neighborhood was accomplished to satisfy Mr. Delano's demand for improved service to them with no regard for all the other homeowners?

We were never notified of the city manager's intent to proceed with this installation.

If, by now, you detect that I am incensed over the situation, you are indeed correct! Had you seen me Thursday, February 28, you would have seen someone who was really upset; for it was on that morning that I caught one of the workmen about to relieve himself against my block wall on the side of my home.

But then again, that incident is somewhat typical of the entire operation and attitude I faced while trying to resolve this fiasco!

May I respectfully suggest City Council take up this issue as an agenda item for its next meeting.

Genocide treaty goes too far

To the Editor:

The U.S. Senate will soon hold hearings on the Genocide Convention Treaty.

If later ratified, it will eliminate personal constitutional protections and be aimed at individuals rather than nations for the crime of genocide — meaning here, killing, combat killing (Korea and Vietnam), ethnic slurs and jokes, offensive statements by citizens, veterans, politicians, comedians, news media and ministers sharing the gospel, as perceived by offended ethnic, racial, and national groups or parts thereof: Art. 2 GCT — "causing serious bodily or 'mental harm' to members of the group."

Such genocidal grievances may be addressed to the World Court or other International Tribunal if located in the country of the accuser, or the United Nations (Art. 6 GCT); and after extradition (Art. 7 GCT). If ratified it will become the supreme law of the land — indeed, more supreme, as all other laws and court decisions are inferior in that they must conform to the Constitution to be lawful; however, the ratified treaty is equivalent and supreme with the Constitution.

Extradition: (Art. 7), upon ratification our government is obliged to extradite "any citizen" charged with genocide to the jurisdiction of a foreign court: "Genocide and other acts — shall not be considered as political crimes for the purpose of extradition... contracting parties pledge themselves in such cases to grant extradition.." Political execution is not defined here as genocide, thus enabling wholesale murder by Soviet block nations who have signed the treaty. The normal defense against extradition is to claim it is politically motivated and thus non-extraditable, but GCT removes this defense from shielding communist block refugees from forceable extradition as well as Americans.

No rights or protections follow such individuals for they are subjects of the World Court; having 15 judges, with only one per country except the Soviet Union which may appoint up to three, it establishes its own jurisdiction, and rules of procedure with no appeal. With GCT ratification, this court can void our laws, court decisions, neutralize law enforcement and any reservations the U.S. Senate writes into the GCT, as this document gives the World Court the right to interrupt it. Inform President Reagan and Sen. Cranston and Sen. Wilson of your disapproval.

Regarding public officials, Art. 4, GCT states: "Persons committing genocide shall be punished whether constitutionally responsible rulers, public officials or private individuals," and well to remember, should we be snared with this albatross and its great "mental harm" potential.

How The Small Farmer Can Survive Under Reagan Policy

ON THE RIGHT

It's conservatives' turn to be mainstream party

Reagan says GOP has become new 'party of ideas.'

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY

I do think it a pity that so many critics of Mr. Reagan decline to investigate that which truly animates this extraordinary president and the constituency that, after all, made him president of the United States, notwithstanding that our intelligentsia had told us, and taught our children, that conservatism — as it is called — was quite dead in America. Killed by the New Deal, and decadent by reason of its lack of intellectual and spiritual BTUs.

Well, campfire meetings are worth looking into — I contend — if they are addressed by the man who is also president of the United States, and such a thing happened recently in Washington when Mr. Reagan addressed the 12th Conservative Political Action Conference.

Ronald Reagan said to the throng there assembled the kind of thing one yawns over if spoken by, oh, Jerry Falwell in Lynchburg, Va., or Arthur Schlesinger Jr. to the Harvard Law School Forum. But here was Reagan saying: "In 1980, for the first time in 28 years, a Republican Senate is elected. And so, may I say, is a conservative president."

What! Richard Nixon was not really "a conservative president"? Well, that is what he said, is it not? Such an evaluation of Mr. Nixon coming in from hard-line critics of statism is not newsworthy. Coming from a Republican president it is at least that.

One does not disavow Richard Nixon's administration as less than conservative without saying a great deal about the policies with which Nixon is identified.

Reagan then went on to use rhetoric in one sense Marxist — Marxist in the sense that the Marxists have co-opted the language of inevitability: the class struggle "inevitably" means the end of capitalism, individualism, the Bill of Rights. Reagan said: "Conservative thought is no longer over here exclusively on the right. It's the mainstream now. And the tide of history is moving irresistibly in our direction." You can't understand what that does to you if, throughout your adult life, you have been taught to believe that the anemia of political liberalism is the irreversible wave of the future.

More! Much more! "In fact, in the past decade, all of a sudden, quietly, mysteriously ... the Republican Party has become the party of ideas. We became the party of the most brilliant and dynamic young minds." This, given what came before in two generations of textbooks, 50 years of Democratic domination of politics, what seems like a millennium of entrenched Eastern seaboard liberal domination of academic thought, is something that hits you as the conversion of Constantine to Christianity must have hit the pagans. The notion that young conservatives were coming up with the ideas was, well — inconceivable.

A very few, very bright liberals gave the idea surreptitious attention. Professor John Kenneth Galbraith once whispered that in fact the most innovative social mind of the age was that of Milton Friedman. But his purpose was mischievous: He intended to compliment Friedman for coming out for the negative income tax.

What Friedman did, however, was to help to release a series of planted economic and social axioms from their ideological placenta. And the result was that literate Americans began questioning the morality of the progressive income tax, wondering whether the minimum wage made any social sense, doubting the notion that the more time spent in school automatically meant the great advance toward social intelligence, questioning whether the welfare state helped, rather than hurt, those it was designed to help. This kind of iconoclasm, pre-Reagan, was the kind of thing conservatives whispered to one another on their tablets.

Reagan was not leaving any of those placid ideological stones unturned. American blacks? "Part of being a revolutionary is knowing that you don't have to acquiesce to the tired old ideas of the past. One such idea is that the opposition party has black America and minority America locked up; that they 'own' black America. Well, let me tell you — they own nothing but the past."

And so he asked this concentration of literate conservatives to help him to spread the message. What message? That the welfare state doesn't necessarily work. That high taxes damage the economy. That mutual assured destruction is no substitute for a gradual turn toward strategic defense. But what he emanates is the kind of idealistic self-assurance that gave what seemed like everlasting life to the movement of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and it is time everyone recognized that this is what Ronald Reagan is up to.

Be chary of doctors who double as pilots

Among private pilots, physicians are the deadliest, according to the statisticians. One study shows medical doctors have been involved in four times as many fatal crashes as any other professionals. No explanation?

Here's an answer you can rely on no matter how many times the question occurs to you in your daily routine: A robin has just about twice as many feathers as a hummingbird.

Canal diggers of The Netherlands divided the city of Amsterdam into about 90 islands connected by 400 bridges.

It was the French who first dreamed up that thing called compulsory military training.

Q. What did Francis Scott Key, who wrote the words to "The Star-Spangled Banner," do for a living?

A. Practiced law. And practiced. And practiced. And wound up as District Attorney in Washington, D.C.

There are still a few people around who as children never played that game called Monopoly. It turns age 50 this year.

Q. How does the honeybee know which direction the scent of blossoms is coming from?

A. He doesn't. All the honeybee knows is "upwind." He zigzags thataway.

Says here 75 percent of the women in the United States at any given time are on some sort of diet. Could that be right?

In ceremonies to turn symbolic power over to monarchs, Great Britain and The Netherlands do it differently. Englanders crown their queen — they put the crown on her head. Hollanders enthrone theirs — they put the queen on the throne. Ritualists in both nations think it matters.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

GAO acknowledges folly in Pentagon expenditures

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon will get a few more lumps next week on the extravagant way it throws money around.

The General Accounting Office will release its long-awaited review of the Grace Commission report on waste in government.

I have joined forces with the report's principal author, J. Peter Grace, in a nationwide campaign against mismanagement in the federal government — a grass-roots effort called Citizens Against Waste.

The GAO has spent nine months reviewing the commission's recommendations. Sen. William Roth, R-Del., plans to introduce a comprehensive package of legislation based on the commission's work; Roth requested the GAO review to help him prepare the bills.

The 1,312-page GAO review, which was analyzed by my associate Tony Capaccio, generally supports the Grace Commission's criticism of Pentagon spending, but questions the commission's claim that $115 billion could be saved by changing procedures.

"Although a majority of the issues (raised by the commission) have merit, we agree with only a small percentage of the savings estimates," the GAO says, explaining that it used a "different methodology."

"Much of our disagreement stems from the way the Grace Commission handled inflation in its estimates," the GAO added.

The GAO experts concluded that 101 of the commission's 130 defense-related recommendations, or 78 percent, "had overall merit and should be considered," adding, "We disagreed with 19 issues and had insufficient information on which to develop a position on 10 issues."

In the area of weapons procurement, the GAO found that 31 issues had merit and two did not; in the logistics area, 31 of the 34 issues raised by the commission had merit.

Here are some of the simple, everyday ways the GAO and the Grace Commission agree the Pentagon could save money:

- Military parts should be designed to meet commercial standards whenever possible. "The use of military standards and specifications should be challenged" by contractors where exclusively military parts are not necessary.
- Ammunition purchasing procedures should be tightened. Though the Army buys commonly used ammo for the entire Defense Department, the other armed services have built up great layers of paper-shufflers to pass along requests to the Army, defeating the whole purpose of the combined purchasing arrangement.
- Some $20 million a year could be saved by using fiberboard containers and other cheap packaging for ammunition fired in training, where the rigors of combat storage don't exist. For example, bandoliers, stripper clips and load adaptors would be eliminated from training ammo.
- The GAO agreed with the commission's finding that the military spends too much to feed the troops. Compared with other large-scale feeding operations, the military chow lines cost 30 cents more a day per person — a potential saving of $167.3 million in three years.
- The solution to the spare parts horror stories, the GAO and the Grace Commission agree, is adoption of a "breakout" system — allowing the Pentagon to buy its spare parts directly from the subcontractors that manufacture them, instead of having to go through the prime contractor. Under the existing system, the prime contractor tacks on a handling charge, administrative overhead and profit for every part it buys from the maker and resells to the Pentagon.

Time to liberate our pets

Why should dogs and cats have to prey upon mice?

I was washing the dishes, as a liberated male should, when I heard my wife shriek. Fearing that John Wayne Gacy was climbing in the window, I asked what was wrong. "There's a mouse!" she screamed. Thus, modern sex roles: men labor to throw off oppressive customs, while women continue to shriek at the sight of a mouse.

But my wife wasn't the real disappointment. After all, I'd always suspected that Gloria Steinem calls a man when there's a spider to be killed and that Alan Alda is helpless when he loses a button. Under stress, tradition asserts itself.

In any case, I was prepared for the mouse. It was not for nothing that I had fed, housed, exercised and generally pampered two four-legged fighting machines, namely a dog and a cat. It was to their tireless vigilance and undoubted savagery that I had credited the absence of rodents in my house.

No doubt the pets would take this incursion as a deep personal affront. I summoned them, savoring the chance to teach the local mice a good lesson.

Consider our principals. In this corner, we have a sinewy, large-fanged canine, brother to the timber wolf, known to crash into fences in his fearless pursuit of assorted suburban prey. Also in this corner, a hard-eyed feline, cousin of Bengal tigers, the terror of sparrows for miles around. In the other corner, a mouse.

By the time I arrived on the scene, the mouse had taken refuge behind the couch. Reporting for duty, the dog and cat waited as I slid it out from the wall. Its hideout exposed, the rodent made a break for the space behind the bookcase. I braced myself for the slaughter.

But the mouse made it with time to spare. The dog paid him no attention at all, being occupied with scratching himself. The cat perked up, but then wheeled around, hissed at me and sprinted out of the room. The two behaved, in short, exactly as they do when there is no mouse around.

This was disturbing news. I moved the bookcase, behind which the offending pest cowered in a corner. Cursing the cat under my breath — I always said cats were worthless — I pulled the dog over to confront the invader. Pleased by the attention, the excitable hound jumped up and licked my face. I directed his attention to the corner. He gazed up at me adoringly, his tongue lolling out.

Here was the result of my generosity. For years I had attended to my pets' every need. All I expected in return was that they indulge their predatory instincts when the opportunity arose. Instead, their ferocious (though, significantly, always fruitless) pursuit of birds and squirrels had been exposed as a fraud, meant purely to deceive the landlord.

I fumed and stewed, but after awhile the truth dawned: It was I who was at fault. Heedless of their distinctive personalities, I had tried to confine my pets in hopelessly hidebound notions of how four-legged creatures are supposed to behave. My thinking was as antediluvian as Phyllis Schlafly's.

Where, after all, is it written that dogs and cats should be overwhelmed by bloodlust every time a rodent appears? Why should those pets which think mice are cute and cuddly have to live up to my obsolescent prejudices?

It now became clear to me. I was the one who had to change — not just by granting my animals the space they need to find themselves, but also by coming to terms with the beastly elements in myself. Too long had I treated them as a sign of weakness, to be ruthlessly suppressed, lest I be called an animal. Just as I had learned to live with a new idea of masculinity, I should be able to revise my notions of humanness.

The animals agree, and already I'm making progress. The mouse didn't taste so bad, and after a few days I hardly noticed the flea collar. But my wife doesn't like me scratching my head with my foot, and she sometimes complains when I nap on the TV set. Some people just can't cope with liberation.

LOOKING GOOD

Shadows, sponges and bubbles chase troubles

VIDA DEAN

Some women do such a great job with their eye makeup! It looks so well blended — as if it had been applied by a professional makeup artist.

Those cute clerks behind the counter (with their perfect makeup) selling you the eye shadow usually suggest you need at least three shades ... one for the lower lid, one for the crease of the eyelid and one for a highlighter.

When you get home and apply them, the result is often three color slashes that seem to vie for attention. Unless you have a practiced hand with blending, it can be a disaster.

Estee Lauder introduces a collection of shadows, "Color Transparencies", with a tip for using them that she calls "color overlays."

The method is very simple: You apply the sheer colors so they lay on top of one another, blending beautifully and producing a gradation of color and no defined edges.

How about Crystal Mint applied with Clearlit Pink and Rainsilver combined with a grey pencil liner or Video Violet, Clearly Turquoise and Glowing Grape with an aqua liner to go with new spring clothes in gauze, voiles, batiste or crepe de chine?

Or for your fashions in linen, poplin and polished cottons try outdoor colors of Copper Sun, Sunrise Yellow and Camouflage with and Amber gleam liquid eyeliner.

It's really fun to see the combinations you can create.

We've been hearing about exfoliation for some years now and several companies offer "scrub sponges" to help you speed up the removal of dead skin cells for a glowing skin.

Now, the 3M Personal Care Products Department offers a new twist: disposable facial sponges with a built-in conditioning cleanser. No need to wash them out, save or store them. Use and toss.

The cleanser in the new sponge is mild and fragrance-free and the claim is that it contains emollients that soften and smooth the skin. Water activates the cleanser to provide a rich, creamy lather.

Forty of the Buf-Puf Single sponges are packaged in a dispenser which retails for $3.39 at drug and grocery stores.

Ylang ylang, jasmine and tuberose combined with muguet des bois and marigold, sandalwood, amber and musk...

The fragrances are in Le Bain Bleu, Niki de Saint Phalle's new foaming blue gel bath formula.

As you would expect, a product of this type cleans. But a bath can do so much more for you. A shower can be exhilarating if you need extra pep or the tub bath can be relaxing.

Everybody seems to have such busy schedules these days, so let's take a closer look at relaxing when you've run out of exhilaration and want to get some needed beauty sleep.

Squeeze a dollop of Le Bain Bleu or your favorite bath preparation into running water in the tub. Have the water comfortable to the touch, step in, stretch out and try these exercises.

BREATHING: Deep even breathing is one of the best ways to reduce stress. So place a plastic pillow behind your neck, close your eyes and breathe in deeply through your nose, expanding your chest to the maximum, then exhale through your mouth. Repeat six times and notice how the tension begins to disappear.

CALMING: Close your eyes and think of your favorite place in the world — a place where you have found happiness and relaxation. (Imagination gives me an inexpensive trip to Switzerland with another look at the Alps.) Picture all the beautiful details of the scene in your mind and feel the happiness you experienced in the past flow through your body.

TENSION RELEASE: To help release tension, especially if you're prone to headaches, once again close your eyes and raise your eyebrows as far as you can. You'll feel your forehead tighten as well as your scalp and the area around the eyes. If you then lower the brows slowly, when they're once again in a natural position, you'll feel the beginnings of a wonderful sense of relaxation and release.

You can do these exercises in about one minute without rushing. Bathe your troubles away.

tweed jacket which can be worn for all occasions. A blend of polyester and silk, it is unconstructed and has dolman sleeves for freedom of movement and a graceful line.

Pattern and texture figure prominently in the outfits. There are oversized plaid and menswear-inspired stripes, twill weaves, satin stripes, jacquards and crinkle finishes. Wright also has paid a great deal of attention to silhouette, with clothes cut a little fuller and freer.

The shoes Wright has designed for his premiere collection carry through the theme of easy, modern dressing. They are flat sandals and espadrilles with open sides — again in the curry, teal and fuchsia scheme.

The collection is geared to the updated junior customer and her clothing budget. Cotton sweaters will retail for about $35, woven jackets for $65 and pants for $40.

The goddess Athena is often described in poetry and literature as the embodiment of wisdom, reason and the arts — a symbol of excellence and distinction.

She and Pat Cox have a lot in common ... the Newport Harbor Panhellenic was so impressed by the Santa Ana Heights woman's accomplishments that it presented her its annual Athena Medallion for outstanding service.

Cox's numerous social welfare causes include serving as a board member of Planned Parenthood (the organization which sponsored the award), Big Brothers/Big Sisters (she was the first female member) and Childrens Hospital of Orange County.

The former deacon and Sunday School teacher at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church also has served on the board of Newport Harbor Art Museum.

Cox is a YWCA member with a special interest in its homeless women program, works with Sheep Fold, a support group for battered women, was a charter patron for the Volunteer Center and volunteers with FISH, supports Stop Polluting Newport, Friends of the Upper Bay, SOS, Chapman College Town and Gown, Sophisticates of Assessment and Treatment Services Center and Children's Home Society.

She was instrumental in founding South Coast Organization of Planned Parenthood (SCOOP) and "Talents??," a no-meeting auxiliary of Big Brothers/Big Sisters. In 1978 she was chosen the first queen of the Spastic League's King Neptune Ball. She is also an advisory board member of Sherman Library and Gardens, a member of the Silver Circle of South Coast Repertory and a member of Bowers Museum Foundation.

Last year's recipient, Dot Clock, presented Cox with her medallion at the Panhellenic's "Dollars for Scholars" luncheon held at the Registry Hotel under the chairmanship of Myrna Wright.

"I knew I had been nominated, but I was absolutely floored when they called my name," said the recipient when we chatted a few days after the ceremony. (Pat who is fighting for her own home in Santa Ana Heights had been out trying to find homes for homeless cats.)

"God has blessed me with a lot of energy to do all the things I do. The first thing I did after getting the award was to visit the first recipient Irene Daninger. I was so proud to be in the group with her. She and (the late) Hazel Burrows were double winners in 1965. Irene got out her medallion ... she's very proud of it. (Other recipients have included Jean Lucas, Jean Aldrich and Carole Brown.)

"The luncheon was beautifully organized with a fashion show (Florence Smales) and Vick Knight (emcee) is just marvelous," Cox added.

Others assisting with arrangements were Jo Vandervort, Charlotte Starege, Suzanne Leslie, Kristine Hoffman, Helen Gumbinger, Charlotte Wood, Margo Butte, Larrie Burgenbaugh and Jeanne Ungerland.

Lillian Leslie is president of Newport Harbor Panhellenic, a non-profit organization of university women who joined national sororities during their college years. Proceeds from the luncheon will provide funds for the group's philanthropies.

"If you know the difference between your left foot and your right foot, I can teach you to dance and you can be in the show," Bob Gregory told the group gathered at TeWinkle School.

More than 120 were trying out for the third annual Bear Revue being presented March 22 and 23 at Orange Coast Auditorium by the Punch and Judy Guild of Childrens Hospital of Orange County.

Bill is with von Hemert Interiors in Newport Beach) announced rehearsal times to the mostly professional amateurs and promised to have them all looking like pros when the 8 p.m. curtain rises on show night. Twenty tried out for solos with others going for the chorus line and other roles.

Las Reinas Auxiliary of Newport Beach Assistance League promised "A Day of Elegance" and 440 women showed up at the Newport Beach Marriott for the event.

Chairman Beth Curtis and her luncheon committee worked out details for this annual fund-raiser since May. Proceeds will go to the Children's Dental Center and Child Day Care Center.

"I work at the Dental Center," said member Sara Lee McMillen. "It's great to see the work the dentists do to straighten the children's teeth. We pay the dentist and the children's families pay a small fee for the work. The families are happier if they pay something."

(Since opening in 1953, the center has provided dental care and orthodontia for more than 10,000 children).

Sitting at the pink-covered tables centered with blooming potted plants, McMillen and Lorraine Butcher noted the number of women wearing hats and recalled taking hatmaking classes when wearing a hat was a must.

Before viewing the show of spring fashions by Bullock's South Coast Plaza when hats would add a smart touch, guests dined on breast of chicken with sweet and sour sauce, vegetables and rice pilaf plus ice cream and raspberry sherbet.

Carol Humphries of Bullock's narrated the show accompanied by the 12-piece orchestra of James Christensen. It all started with swimsuits followed by colorful attire for every occasion.

"I loved that pink dress," said member Nora Jorgensen. "I love anything that's pink."

Prizes galore were awarded to the enthusiastic crowd including a mink jacket won by Penny Thompson, a guest visiting from San Diego.

Assisting with committee details were Claudia Baltzer, Betty Deits, June Donovan, Marie Eggstaff, Dorothy Fribourg, Helen Hartley, Daisy Koler, Marti Tilden, Kay Wasserburger, Katie Wilker and Charlotte Wood.

Others were Virginia Bice, Margaret Corkett, Wilma Davis, Clementine Dombrow, Marian Evans, Faith Garman, Kay Hoffman, Virginia Hudlow, Mary Koehler, Beth Kraus, Betsy Krause, Bonnie Stauffer and Elmorene Miles.

Golden date marked

Gerry and Dick Dittmar celebrated their 50th wedding anniverary at a party at Carmelo's Old Italy restaurant hosted by John and Donna Crean. Among the celebrants honoring the long-time Newport Beach shipbuilder and his wife were business partner Donald S. Donaldson and his wife Mary, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Colstadt.

Fosnights' 50th feted

Don and Hazel Fosnight of Newport Beach celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary aboard the Queen Mary at a gala dinner party. They were married March 9, 1935 at Trinidad, Colo.

Sharing the spotlight with the Fosnights were her sister Edith Green and husband Afton Green of Lancaster who were married eight days before them in La Junta, Colo.

The party for 175 was hosted by sons of the golden couples, Rick Fosnight of Newport Beach, Don Fosnight Jr. of Huntington Harbour and Ron Green of Lancaster.

Both honored couples are McDonald's restaurant owner-operators.

Don and Hazel came to Southern California in 1965 and have lived in their Big Canyon home since 1971. The active twosome, who have nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren, start each day running on the Corona del Mar Beach. They play golf, enjoy square dancing, gardening and travel.

On the eve of the shipboard celebration, the Fosnights entertained out-of-state guests in their home and were renewing old acquaintances.

Musicals, children's shows open

TOM TITUS

Two dinner theater musicals, two college dramatic comedies and two plays by and for the younger set comprise the new selections on Orange County's theatrical menu this week.

First to arrive will be "Sweet Charity," opening Tuesday at the Grand Dinner Theater, while "Our Town" launches a brief, four-evening run at Chapman College Wednesday. The vintage musical "Anything Goes" settles into Sebastian's West Dinner Playhouse Friday.

Also opening Friday evening will be the two children's plays — "Winnie the Pooh" at the Costa Mesa Civic Playhouse and "The Prince and the Pauper" by the Fountain Valley Community Theater. Rounding out the newcomers is "The Hot L Baltimore," bowing in the same night at Santa Ana College.

"Sweet Charity" is being directed by Jack Bunch and stars Patti Columbo and Kirk Wall. Performances will be given nightly except Mondays at varying curtain times through June 16 at the Grand, 1 Hotel Way, Anaheim, and reservations are available at 772-7710.

At Sebastian's, "Anything Goes" features a Cole Porter score in a revival of a 1930s musical, under the direction of Bill Rafferty, with Denise Dales choreographing. Joy Mathews, Jeff Schlichter, Lynn Dove, Richard Kleber and Dennis Berg are featured in the show, which plays Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 1 and 7 p.m. through May 19.

Playhouse founding director Pati Tambellini is staging the children's comedy "Winnie the Pooh" with a cast headed by Adam Martz, Bryan Rasmussen and Tammy Ames. Others in the show are Ilene Claudius, Leah Florence, Rachel Anderson, Nathalie Pepper, Alexandra Carter, Jennifer Waddell, Robby Worthing, Julie Fielder and Aphasia Peters. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and March 30 and 31 at the playhouse, 661 Hamilton St., Costa Mesa. Reservations 650-5269.

"The Prince and the Pauper" for the Fountain Valley Community Theater plays a similar schedule — Fridays at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. through March 31 in the Golden West College Forum II. The cast includes Steven DeBenedet, Jimmy Sillasen, Robbie Brandon, Brandon Douglas and J. Chad Evans under the direction of Karen Caroe. Call 895-8378 for tickets.

Santa Ana College will stage Lanford Wilson's "The Hot L Baltimore" for seven performances in the Phillips Hall theater on the SAC campus, 17th at Bristol, Santa Ana, with Thomas Timm Brucks directing. Performances will be given Friday, Saturday and March 28-30 at 8 p.m., Sunday and March 31 at 3 p.m. Reservations 667-3163.

Ron Thronson is directing Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" at Chapman College, 333 N. Glassell St., Orange. The Pulitzer Prize winner will be staged Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and tickets are available at 997-6812.

Ringing down their curtains this weekend will be "Tribute" at the Gem Theater, "Barefoot in the Park" at the Buena Park Civic Theater and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" at Fullerton College.

"Tribute" will be on stage Wednesday through Sunday at 8 p.m., tonight and next Sunday at 7:30 at the Gem, 12852 Main St., Garden Grove (636-7213). Final performances of "Whorehouse" will be given Thursday through Saturday at 8 and Sunday at 2:30 at the college, 321 E. Chapman Ave., Fullerton (871-8101). "Barefoot" winds up Thursday through Saturday at 8 at Sullivan Center, 7631 W. Melrose Ave., Buena Park (523-0351).

Continuing their respective engagements around the county are:

—"The Importance of Being Earnest" on the main stage and "Salt Water Moon" on the Second Stage of South Coast Repertory, 655 Town Center Drive, Costa Mesa (957-4033). "Earnest" plays Tuesdays through Fridays at 8, Saturdays at 2:30 and 8, Sundays at 2:30 and 7:30 until March 31, while "Moon" runs Tuesdays through Fridays at 8:30, Saturdays at 3 and 8:30 and Sundays at 3 and 8 until April 7.

Why give to celebrities when so many others go hungry?

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have decided there is something desperately wrong with society's values and common sense. Please hear me out.

Recently a photo of a glamorous actress appeared in a well-known magazine. The star was making an appeal for funds (a worthy cause, I should add). In the background was a shelf that held at least 100 stuffed animals sent by fans to the star's daughter. Just yesterday I heard that the Salvation Army in our city (Detroit) had to close one of its shelters for the homeless because of insufficient funds.

This says a great deal about the sad state of our priorities. Why do people send gifts to movie stars, rock heroes, TV personalities, the president of the United States and his wife, members of the royal family and other celebrities who need them least?

The news stories and photos of the gifts lavished on the firstborn of Princess Di and Prince Charles made me sick. (Almost all of them ended up in children's hospitals.)

The public should know that the recipients of these gifts consider them a nuisance.

I realize the gift-givers mean well but somebody needs to tell them they are throwing out their money. It would be a public service. Will you be the one? — Love You In Mount Pleasant, Mich.

Dear M.P.: I didn't have to be the one. You were. Your letter reflects good sense. I applaud your candor.

And now to answer the question, "Why do people send celebrities gifts?" Because it makes them feel closer to those they admire. It puts them (for a moment) on an intimate level with these people. The points you have made, however, are valid. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My life is a living nightmare brought on by myself. What I did has affected every member of my family.

Early last year, I embezzled a large sum of money from my employer. I was crazy to think I could get away with it. Of course, I lost my job. I also lost everything I owned. As a first-time offender, I was put on probation and ordered to repay the money.

Several days ago I approached a very wealthy relative for financial help. She refused, saying I should solve my own problems since I created them. I pray every night that she will have a change of heart, but as each day passes, I become more discouraged.

I have received both psychological and religious counseling, but suicide is on my mind constantly. I'm sure my permanent absence would be a relief for my family and death would release me from this living hell.

The moral of my story: No matter how tempting, never, never take anything that does not belong to you. You may have to pay for it with your life. — Sticky Fingers In S.C.

Dear S.C.: I feel terribly sorry for you. Your letter sounds like a veiled threat to your rich relative. Your message, however, is a good one, especially from one who has learned the hard way. Meanwhile, keep up the counseling. I'm sure your family loves you more than you know.

THE TALE OF THE SEVEN OF DIAMONDS

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

East-West vulnerable. East deals.

	NORTH
	♠ A K 8 3
	♡ 9 8 6 3
	◇ A 7
	♣ A 9 6
WEST		EAST
♠ Q J 7 6		♠ Void
♡ 7 4		♡ Q J
◇ K 10 9 5 3		◇ Q J 6 4
♣ Q 8		♣ K J 10 7 4 3 2
	SOUTH
	♠ 10 9 5 4 2
	♡ A K 10 5 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
3 ♠	3 ♡	Pass	6 ♡
Dble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ◇.

"All conventional bids should be barred," stated the Seven of Diamonds emphatically. "Now it's not that I don't believe that some of them have their uses. However, as far as I am concerned they all fall into the category of giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Had the Seven of Diamonds been an ordinary player, his outburst might have been treated with scepticism. But he was a many times world champion, so we wondered what gave rise to these thoughts. He quickly jotted down the following hand on the tablecloth.

"My partner was regarded as one of the world's great players," he continued, "and if you follow his play on this hand you will see why. I can't say that I am enamored of his three heart overcall, and you certainly can't fault my jump to six hearts. East made a Lightner double to tell his partner that he wanted an unusual lead, not the suit he had bid.

"Luckily for his side, West could not visualize that his partner was void in spades, so he led from his longest suit. With a spade lead, my partner would simply have covered any card led and, after East's ruff, he would have no problem picking up the suit and getting a diamond sluff from the table on the long spade. After the diamond lead, however, my partner did not fancy his chances. Even with an even trump distribution, he still had a diamond and a spade loser to worry about. But he did have the auction to guide him.

"He won the ace of diamonds and drew two rounds of trumps. It was obvious that East's Lightner double had been for spades, so he had to be void in that suit. My partner cashed the ace of clubs, ruffed a club in hand and then led the ten of spades. West covered and the king won. Declarer ruffed dummy's last club, then finessed the eight of spades to bring about this position:

	♠ A 3 ♡ 9 8 ◇ 7 ♣ —
♠ Q 7 ♡ — ◇ K 9 5 ♣ —		♠ — ♡ — ◇ Q J ♣ K J 10
	♠ 9 5 4 ♡ 10 ◇ 8 ♣ —

Now declarer launched me into battle, and he didn't care which defender won the trick. If it was East, he would have to return a minor suit, allowing declarer to ruff in hand while discarding dummy's losing spade. If West won the trick, he too would have to yield a ruff sluff, or else lead a spade away from his Q-7 into declarer's combined A-9 tenace. The spade loser had vanished."

Heed her advice if you don't want to be a divorce statistic

ERMA BOMBECK

When psychologists and therapists speculated on the gloomy future of marriage, they always figured it would be a time when couples stopped saying, "I do."

That hasn't been the case at all. More couples than ever are saying, "I do." But they're saying it often.

The drip-dry wedding dress is a reality. Better or for worse is a comparison of Wife No. 1 and Wife No. 2. The symbol of a first anniversary is no longer paper . . . it's a milestone.

Fifty percent of marriages today will end in divorce. Of that number 60 percent will remarry within five years. About 34 of these will go on to marry for a third and even a fourth time. They're called Serial Marriages and their numbers will make a big difference in society.

If you can stand any more Future Shock, here's what you can expect.

In the year 2,000, the ruling class will be lawyers. They will drive around in big cars, live in mansions, and have kidneys shaped like swimming pools. Many of them will enter politics. One will be elected King.

Some enterprising entrepreneur will come out with a videocassette on how to get your own divorce. It will be choreographed with Prince singing in the background. It can be rented, or if you're someone who is in and out of the marital state, you may find it cheaper to buy one.

Open House for parents will have to be held on three nights to accommodate double and triple sets. The Parent-Teacher Association will become one of the largest and richest organizations in the country on sheer numbers alone. They will eventually buy CBS and Dan Rather will be putty in their hands.

The logistics of so many children who are offspring of so many unions will have to be resolved by computers. In addition to blood tests before a marriage, names will have to be run through a computer to make sure you are not marrying someone to whom you are related through divorce.

A more efficient way for "singles" to meet new mates will have to be devised. In California, at present, several dating services are being used. One is a Tail Dater that has a bumper sticker indicating you're interested, and another is called "The Freeway Singles Club," where you flash a numbered decal in the car window if you like what you see at the traffic light.

In the future, look for "drive-ins" where you honk if you love pot roast and blondes.

Serial marriages will bring about a lot of social changes in the year 2,000. Greeting cards will read, "Merry Christmas to Dad and Whatshername." The IRS will have group rates. And a child of divorce will have enough Advantage Hours in the air to own the airplane.

So how will you know if you're one of the 50 percent who can make a lifetime commitment?

Easy. Before the two of you take your vows, (1) pick out a carpet together, (b) hang a picture, (c) play Monopoly.

It could save you from becoming a statistic.

Be ready for holiday medical emergency

The last thing anyone expects on a vacation is a medical emergency. But accidents do happen, especially among a nation of travelers that have made the weekend trip a national tradition.

Americans take more than 300 million airline trips a year and the average American takes a trip more than 100 miles from home once every two weeks.

That is in addition to the numerous car trips people take each week to locations outside of their counties. As Americans have increased the frequency and distance of their travels, the chance of getting sick or having an emergency out of town has also increased.

Every day, nearly 220,000 Americans make an unscheduled visit to an emergency room. Because many of these emergency patients are out of town on a trip or errand, they are treated at a hospital they have never been to before. More important is the fact that emergency personnel treating out of town patients do not have easy access to a patient's medical history, particularly if the patient is unable to speak at the time.

One way to prevent vacation emergencies from turning into major health problems is to be prepared. Prospective vacationers should actually plan for an emergency, says Richard Wilbur, M.D., chairman of the board of directors for the Medic Alert Foundation, the world's foremost emergency medical identification service.

"People plan their itineraries and make hotel reservations to avoid unnecessary problems so they can enjoy their vacation," says Wilbur. "Before leaving on your vacation, think about what might happen if you became unconscious or were hospitalized away from home. Making sure emergency personnel will know about any medical conditions you might have gives you a sense of security."

Wilbur says the fear of an emergency shouldn't stop people from traveling, if the proper precautions are taken. Frequent travelers and the millions of Americans with a special medical condition, such as diabetes, heart trouble or allergies, should be aware of the benefits of joining an emergency medical identification service, he says.

The nonprofit Medic Alert Foundation operates an international emergency medical identification system recognized by medical personnel. The Medic Alert system is based on three components: an identification bracelet or necklace, a wallet card and a 24-hour "hotline" to a computerized emergency medical information data bank.

There is a $15 charge for a lifetime membership. The foundation has been able to keep its fee at a modest level because of donations from individuals and contributions from corporations and foundations.

Individuals, corporations and organizations interested in Medic Alert can call 800/344-3226 (in California, 800/468-1020), or write: Medic Alert, P.O. Box 1009, Turlock, 95381.

McLain's Wimbledon Glen offers apartments on Coast

One popular plan aims for those who enjoy entertaining

One of the more popular apartment plans now available for rent at McLain Development Co.'s Wimbledon Glen (next to South Coast Plaza) is the Plan C, a one-bedroom-plus-den unit designed for singles and couples who enjoy entertaining.

An L-shaped entertainment salon features a living room with cozy fireplace conversation area and sliding glass doors opening to a patio or deck. An adjacent den enlarges the living space, or may serve as temporary quarters for overnight guests. Finally, a formal dining room is also included.

The kitchen, open to the living room via a breakfast bar, is equipped with a range and dishwasher. In addition, the refrigerator area has been plumbed for an ice-maker.

The master bedroom features a walk-in closet, plus dressing area with pullman sink. The master bath itself is also accessible from a hallway area. Master suites in ground-level units open onto patios via sliding glass doors.

Additional units still available include one- and two-bedroom floor plans. The two-bedroom is a two-story arrangement with dual master bedroom suites, in-home laundry facilities, and a microwave oven in the kitchen.

Decorator-selected carpeting and draperies are standard, along with air conditioning, forced-air heating, and prewiring for cable TV. All units also feature patios and/or decks.

A carport is assigned each unit, and residents will have access to four laundry rooms within the complex.

Some units offer direct access to one of two pool and spa recreation areas at Wimbledon Glen. Landscaping features winding walkways and night-lighting, and the community has a security gate.

Built on the C.J. Segerstrom Ranch, Wimbledon Glen Apartments offer Tudor styling. Rents start from $675 per month.

Wimbledon Glen's rental office and models are open daily, with hours from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Located at 1142 Buckingham Drive in Costa Mesa, Wimbledon Glen may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway and exiting north on Fairview Road. Turn right on South Coast Drive and follow the signs to the complex. Further information may be obtained by phoning the rental office at 241-0500.

Buyers should bone up on adjustable mortages beforehand

By SIMON SYKES

The growing popularity of adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) has brought the possibility of home ownership to many who otherwise would not qualify for fixed-interest loans.

The qualifying payments, which will rise later to keep pace with a selected index rate, are initially affordable.

ARMs seem sure to be a significant factor in real estate lending so long as interest rates remain deregulated.

However, would-be homeowners should know that all ARMs are not alike. Ignorance is not bliss. The differences make different ARMs attractive to different folk.

Before agreeing to a loan, the borrower should determine the following:

How much (and why) the qualifying payment will rise. The qualifying payment is always artificially low.

How (and how often) the note rate is determined. (The note rate is the sum of the index plus the lender's fixed profit "margin.")

How payment caps are set, and how they affect amortization (loan payoff).

How other ARM terms, such as convertibility, assumability, and prepayment penalty requirements, may affect the property's short-term and long-term resale prospects.

Despite the low initial payments of many ARMs, borrowers may not realize the lender is actually earning interest at the note rate — and the "come-on" or "teaser" payments are not even keeping pace with accruing interest.

This means the borrower owes more than when the loan was originated.

When shopping for an ARM, would-be borrowers have the right to insist on full disclosure, not only of the dry small-print terms, but their potential practical effect over the life of the loan.

Silver Sands resort owners partake of tennis, food, fun

McLains host annual tennis tournament followed by Fiesta

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McLain — of Newport Beach-based McLain Development Co. — played hosts once again to residents of Silver Sands Racquet Club at the 3rd Annual Homeowners Tennis Tournament and Mexican Fiesta held recently at the Palm Desert resort community.

Following day-long rounds of scramble tennis, where players randomly selected partners' names from a hat for both men's, women's and mixed doubles sets, guests were treated to a south-of-the-border feast. A gaily decorated tent provided the cantina setting for the make-your-own-tostada buffet as a band of strolling troubadors supplied mood-setting Mexican tunes.

McLain awarded engraved picture frames to winners of the day's tennis tournament: Eve Kimball and Jeanette Johnson, winner and runner-up, respectively, of the women's division; and winner Bob Dobbs and runner-up Lewis Glaser of the men's.

Silver Sands Racquet Club is a residential community that offers two- and three-bedroom patio homes priced from $122,500.

The homes range up to 1,844 square feet in living area, with window walls of glass that frame desert and mountain panoramas.

Living rooms feature wood-burning fireplaces with gas loglighters.

Formal dining galerias, interior atriums, vaulted ceilings, and bay-windowed nooks are also included.

Kitchens offer ranges with self-cleaning and microwave ovens, dishwashers, refrigerators, disposers and icemaker plumbing hook-ups, while master bedrooms feature retreat areas.

A private racquet club for residents features eight night-lighted sunken tennis courts and two air-conditioned racquetball courts.

The homes are set in individual enclaves, with each enclave featuring its own private recreation area with pool, hot swirl spa and sun deck.

Elegant model homes and the sales office, open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., are located at 74155 Country Club Drive, Palm Desert. To visit the Silver Sands Racquet Club, visitors should take Highway 10 to Bob Hope Drive, then turn left onto Country Club Drive and proceed approximately two miles to the community. Further information may be obtained by phoning (619) 568-9456.

Irvine hosts French visitors

A delegation of French homebuilders visited Irvine Pacific's Woodbridge Laurels townhome project while touring the city of Irvine recently. Irvine Pacific's Gail Zalta (left) explains design elements of the project's site plan to the visitors.

Fresh sea air can do wonders for your tennis game.

At Seabridge Village, you've got four tennis courts to choose from, not to mention the pools and spas and the indoor racquetball court. Of course, just sitting in the sun down by the lake or on your own terrace or balcony is hard to beat too.

With all of this happening on the outside at Seabridge Village, you'd expect the interiors to be special as well. They are. Expect to find lofts, oval tubs, tiled entries, fireplaces, enclosed garages, ceramic tile kitchen counters and a host of other distinguished features and amenities.

You'll find it all behind a 24-hour manned guard house in Huntington Beach's premier location. Seabridge Village. It can do wonders for you in more ways than one.

Prominent DESIGNER

From The Mitchell Rodbell Collection

Prominent Designer Pattern-M296, Sizes 8-20

■Very easy, very slimming, very sexy. M296 is a wrapdress with a paneled front swept across and snapped on one shoulder. Slanted pocket, curved hem are repeated on the under panel. There's a tie when you want to cinch the waist. Note shoulder tabs, easy tucks, deep sleeves. Mitchell Rodbell made his original in a hot pink silk broadcloth. Consider also, cotton or wool jersey, linen, crepe or any lightweight drapeable fabric.

■Printed Pattern M296 is available in Misses Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20. Size 12 (bust 34) requires 4 3/8 yards 45-inch fabric.

■Please send $3.50 for each Pattern to DAILY PILOT Reader Mail, P.O. Box 47, Woodside, New York, 11377 (Add 50 cents for each pattern for postage and handling.) Print plainly YOUR NAME, ADDRESS, ZIP, STYLE NUMBER, SIZE.

Among Saturday's big moments at the Beach Cities Invitational was a meet record 6-7 high jump by Edison's Eric Wheelwright (top left), a winning 21-0 effort in the long jump by Estancia's Eric Dorn (lower left), a 14-0 pole vault by Harbor's Fritz Howser, a win in the 220 by Woodbridge's Rich Brooks and the exploits of Marina's Chip Rish, the Athlete of the Meet, taking off on his record-breaking 48.51 in the 440.

Rish, Wheelwright set meet records

Viking runs 48.5 440, Edison star soars 6-7

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

He has run a 3:54.9 mile after evolving into a world class distance star from high school days when he dominated in the sprints, and that's just one of several sub-four minute miles Brian Theriot has chalked up in the last 12 months.

But a mark he established 10 years ago was in jeopardy Saturday afternoon and Theriot was there, at the 20th Beach Cities Invitational to see if his splendid record of 48.6 in the 440 would stand up to the onslaught of Marina High speedster Chip Rish.

But Rish didn't arrive simply to show up with an invitation, he came to dominate, he came to erase that record. And as recent endeavors have proved out, when Chip Rish sets a goal, chances are he's going to get what he's looking for.

Rish, without competition and despite a softened 40-yard stretch around the final turn, sped to a 48.51 to set a new standard.

The Arizona State-bound Rish ran a flawless race, getting the good start, then coming home hard, through the soft turf and pushed only by his own desire.

"I want that record bad," Rish commented after first breezing to a victory in the 100 (9.76) and anchoring the winning 440 relay team.

"It's one of two records I cherish," said Theriot. "I don't want to see it broken. I don't want to lose it."

But Theriot could do nothing but watch as his 1975 standard fell to Rish.

"I could hear my coach, Dave Okura, yelling 'Do it!,' said Rish, "and it sent chills down my back."

"Boy he went out fast," said Theriot. "He really looked smooth that first 200. And it was hard running by himself with nobody in his class."

"I just set my mind to it," said Rish. "Oh well, that's that," mused Theriot as the timers confirmed what Theriot had just seen.

Theriot's other cherished mark is a 47.3 in the 440, a Sunset League record. And Rish says that's another record he's eyeing later this spring.

Marina Coach Dave Okura held his prize senior out of the final event, the mile relay, when it was realized a team championship could not be won, saying "With a guy like that you just want to keep him healthy."

Rish was named the meet's Athlete of the Meet on a day in which Edison High's Eric Wheelwright also erased a meet record with a 6-7 high jump and Mission Viejo, led by its distance strength, knocked Corona del Mar from its two-year reign as the meet champion.

Wheelwright, who was slowed by knee injuries in football and basketball, went 6-7 with daylight to spare, but missed at 6-8¼.

While Rish and Wheelwright were the record-breakers, there were several other items:

●Estancia's Eric Dorn scored in four events — winning the long jump in 21-0,, placing second in the 330 intermediate hurdles (41.8), third in the high hurdles (15.67) and tied for second in the high jump (6-0).

Dorn, a junior, had the fastest qualifying time in the high hurdles with a 15.51, and appeared to be zeroing in on a victory in the finals, but he lost his balance at the next to last hurdle when it appeared the winner, Laguna Hills' Joe Caban, brushed him back.

●Newport Harbor's Fritz Howser rallied to win the pole vault at 14-0, after missing twice at 13-6 despite clearances of nearly 18 inches.

He finally got his timing right, catapulting over the 13-0 mark on his last attempt, then eased over 14-0 on his first attempt at that height with plenty to spare.

●Woodbridge's Rich Brooks, another junior, won the 220 in 23.00 after finishing second to Rish in the 100 at 10.06.

●Estancia finished a surprising third in the team finish, sparked by Dorn and pole vaulters Jeff Jones (13-6) and Doug Miller (13-0). That trio accounted for 42 of Estancia's 53 points.

●Mike Bain was Corona del Mar's only individual winner, taking the discus in 152-3 to set the Sea Kings up for a run at Mission Viejo in the mile relay.

Corona del Mar's hopes were dampened considerably when Pat McGrath, expected to at least give Rish some competition in the 440 and a solid threat for a second-place finish, suffered a strained thigh and did not compete in that event. The Sea Kings lost the meet by nine points and were without McGrath in the mile relay, finishing fourth in 3:38.52.

Corona's runner-up finish was as close as the 880 where the Sea Kings' Darren Wood was nipped at the tape after setting the pace.

Wood had an eight-yard lead through 660 yards, going out in 56.0, but Mission Viejo's John Cronin just caught him at the tape after it appeared Wood stopped short of the finish, perhaps looking at the chalk at his feet, rather than the tape in front of him.

Cronin's time of 1:58.36 bested Wood's 1:58.43 and Andy Coleman of CdM was third in 1:58.92 in the day's best finish.

Marina rallies for win

Martin's slam helps Edison beat Westminster, 10-4

Marina High came from behind to join co-leaders Fountain Valley and Edison (a 10-4 winner over Westminster) to complete the trio of baseball openers in Sunset League competition Saturday.

The details:

Marina 3, Huntington Beach 1: At Huntington Beach, the Vikings rallied with two outs to score three runs in the top of the sixth to offset a solo homer by the Oilers' Cary Pont in the second inning off Marina starter Mark Guedea.

After hard-luck loser Ed Lidyoff had retired the first two Viking hitters in the sixth, Tom McNamara started the uprising with a single and moved to second on David Emmons' walk. Steve Blokdyk tied the game with a double, scoring McNamara and sending Emmons to third.

Then, Greg Knuff reached on an error which allowed the winning runs to cross the plate.

Edison 10, Westminster 4: Greg Martin hit a grand slam in the sixth inning and Pat Walker's two-out bases-loaded double in the fifth proved the key items for the Chargers.

Westminster had rallied to take a 4-2 lead in the top of the fifth off a trio of Edison pitchers before Walker's bases-clearing blow.

Lance Emma picked up the win in relief.

Fountain Valley 4-7, Capistrano Valley 3-0: The Barons took a break away from the Sunset League wars and collected a pair of victories at Capo Valley.

In the opener, Jim Wayne cracked his second of two solo homers to break a 3-3 tie and give the Barons the victory.

Don Snowden's solo homer in the second inning, his fourth of the season, sparked Fountain Valley (10-2) to the shutout win in the nightcap.

Steve Kaloper went the distance for Fountain Valley in the second game, striking out seven and walking two while yielding only four hits. He's now 2-0.

Irvine 5-17, Costa Mesa 4-0: Mike Henigan went 7 for 10 in the doubleheader, driving in four runs as the Vaqueros swept.

In the opener, Irvine trailed 4-2 in the bottom of the fifth when Brian Brocuff ignited the rally with a double and Henigan followed with a double to score Brocuff. After a walk to Bobby Hamelin, Steve Lipton's single filled the bases.

Rick Smetenka lifted a sacrifice fly to tie the game and Steve Habermehl drove in the winning run with a base hit.

In the nightcap, Irvine (6-3 overall) took charge with a 10-run first inning, sending 15 batters to the plate.

(Please see PREPS/D2)

UC Irvine divides twin bill

UC Irvine pushed over two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning Saturday to salvage a doubleheader split with Long Beach State in PCAA baseball action at Anteater Stadium.

UCI won the nightcap, 5-4, after dropping the opener, 9-6.

The Anteaters, who carried a 3-2 lead into the seventh inning of the second game, fell behind when the 49ers rallied for a pair of runs in the top of the inning.

However, pinch-hitter Bob Perry fueled a comeback with a one-out double down the right-field line and Doug Irvine drove a single between shortstop and third to tie the game.

Them, with two outs, Paul Hammond singled Irvine to second and Tommy Baine hit a shot which caromed off the third-baseman's glove into shallow left and Irvine was able to race home with the winning run.

Long Beach State had grabbed the lead in the top of the inning when Sid Herrerra walked and Don Blankenship singled him to third. A fielder's choice allowed the tying run to score and Paul Thiebert knocked in the go-ahead run.

Lanny DeRose (2-1) picked up the win in relief for the Anteaters, who improved to 3-2 in the PCAA and 13-10-1 overall. Long Beach State moved to 4-4 and 12-17.

In the first game, Brady Anderson hit a solo homer in the first inning, his sixth of the season and Perry tripled in another run in the seventh, but UCI fell short.

Tim McNaughton hit a two-run homer in the seventh for the 49ers.

UCI will be off for finals week until Saturday when the Anteaters entertain Oral Roberts in a doubleheader.

A sporting tradition comes to an end

Baseball and football fans may now have to forego 'the one for the road'

BUD TUCKER
SPORTS COLUMNIST

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Nobody came in on the noon balloon from Saskatoon and asked me, but . . .

●Several football teams are shutting off beer sales after the third period and some baseball clubs are closing down the sales of brew after the seventh or eighth inning . . . this means the end of the tradition of sports fans having one for the road.

●After Angels first baseman Daryl Sconiers had been AWOL for nearly two weeks, somebody asked General Manager Mike Port if he thought it would do any good to raise Sconiers' daily fine from $250 to $1,000 a day . . . Port replied, "It probably would except we have no idea where to find Sconiers to tell him the fine has been raised."

●The new radio helmets for NFL players would be OK until the guys started tuning in rock and roll stations.

●The Sporting News picks the Detroit Tigers and San Diego Padres to repeat in the World Series . . . I like the Tigers and Cubs . . . Longshots: Toronto and the Mets.

●Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White says he would like to be traded to the Rams . . . This would be good for the Rams if the price was right and great for those who enjoy quarterback controversies.

●Tom Benson, new owner of the New Orleans Saints, said, "I will try not to make mistakes," and then he said, "Bum Phillips will remain as coach" . . . that was his first mistake.

●Baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth says major league players will appear in TV commercials telling kid to "get off drugs" . . . Fine, but the kids should also be told not to get on drugs in the first place.

●Note to the Los Angeles Clippers . . . Former USC Coach Bob Boyd, who has a great following here with the press and public, could be lured away from Mississippi State to help your dismal situation at the Sports Arena.

●A strong candidate to make the Angels is infielder Craig Gerber — as in baby food — of course. Gerber is still an infant and will some spoon feeding but if he makes it, he will be wearing diaper number 2.

●Dept. of rules of stupidity . . . Changing the time clock rule in college for post-season NCAA championship play.

●Peter Ueberroth says the financial structure of baseball is "in disrepair" . . . When Ueberroth turned the 1984 Olympic Games a $250 million profit, it was called a miracle . . . baseball will settle for that.

●Angels Manager Gene Mauch says his main hope is to find a left-hander for the bullpen but admits trading for one is very unlikely . . . Mauch has two baby southpaws in camp, Bob Kipper and Pat Clements . . . Well, hope springs in the spring.

●The latest female reporter in the locker room hassle in the USFL again brings up the point of why male reporters never make a federal case about going into women's locker rooms . . . Probably it is because they hate to see muscles where curves should be.

●Nearly 40 major leaguers making $1 million or more a year? . . . That is obscene.

Padres top Angels, 7-1

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Garry Templeton's two-run triple keyed a four-run eighth inning as the San Diego Padres won their first exhibition game Saturday with a 7-1 Cactus League victory over the Angels.

Templeton's drive to center off submarine-style right-hander Julian Gonzalez was followed by another triple by Bruce Bochy. Jerry Davis' RBI single off left-hander Pat Clements capped the rally.

LaMarr Hoyt went the first four innings to pick up the win, limiting the Angels to a third-inning run scored on his own balk. Hoyt, a former American Leaguer, was called for two balks by National League umpire Doug Harvey.

Sailoff set in Congressional Cup

Newport's Davis to break tie today with Perry, Kolius

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Writer

LONG BEACH — The 21st Congressional Cup match racing series wound up in a three-way unbreakable tie after nine races Saturday, forcing a sudden death sailoff today.

The trio tied first on Friday all won their respective matches on Saturday.

John Kolius of New York City beat Harold Cudmore of Ireland by 31 seconds and John Shadden of Long Beach by 1:09. Dave Perry of Greenfield, Conn., beat Mauro Pellaschier of Italy by 17 seconds and Ted Turner of Atlanta by 1:48. Rob Davis of Newport Beach beat Turner by 39 seconds and Pellaschier by one minute.

Davis had to come from behind in both his races.

The sailoff today will be among the three leaders only — Davis, Perry and Kolius. One pair will sail while the other draws a bye. The winner of match will race against the bye skipper for the championship.

This is the second time in the history of the Congressional Cup that a sailoff has been necessary. The other was in 1973, when Dennis Conner of San Diego won the championship in a four-way sailoff.

In Congressional Cup sailing, the winner is the skipper with the best won-loss record in a 45-match series in which each skipper meets the other once.

The format calls for 10 of the world's top match racing skippers and crews. It is considered the second most important two-boat match racing series, second only to the America's Cup.

Five skippers in this year's Congressional Cup series are contenders to challenge for the America's Cup in 1987. They are Kolius, Davis and Conner from the United States; Pellaschier from Italy and Chris Dickson of New Zealand.

Saturday's races were delayed nearly three hours for lack of wind. When the wind did come up, it ranged from 6 to 8 knots in the first race and 10-12 in the second race.

Pirates, Rustlers tumble

It was a day to forget for Orange Coast and Golden West in community college baseball Saturday as each team was dealt South Coast Conference setbacks.

Here's how it happened:

Saddleback 8, Orange Coast 3: The Gauchos rebounded from Thursday's 18-1 embarrassment against Cerritos to move to 2-1 after the first week of conference play while dropping the Pirates to 1-2.

Saddleback built a 4-0 advantage in the fifth inning, then held off an OCC comeback which featured a solo home run by Fred Tuttle in the top of the sixth.

After Steve Nichols homered in the seventh to make it 5-1 Saddleback, the Pirates shaved the lead in half with two runs in the top of the eighth.

But the Gauchos put the game away in the home half of the inning with three runs. Greg DeVolk squeezed in the first run, and Dante Scott's sharp single to left brought in the final two to account for the final margin.

Orange Coast Coach Mike Mayne was ejected from the game in the third inning for arguing a strike call.

Cerritos 5, Golden West 0: The Falcons are establishing themselves as the team to beat in the conference following their third straight easy win this week.

Sophomore left-hander Al Osuna limited the Rustlers to six hits, while striking out seven and stranding 11 base-runners. Golden West's best chance came in the second inning when the Rustlers filled the bases with two outs, but Osuna struck out the next hitter to end the threat.

Golden West plays at rival Orange Coast Tuesday.

McLain convicted of racketeering, cocaine possession

From AP dispatches

TAMPA, Fla. — A jury Saturday convicted former baseball pitcher Denny McLain of racketeering, extortion and cocaine possession charges after deliberating over three days.

The nine-woman, three-man panel, who listened to 350 hours of testimony, found baseball's last 30-game winner innocent on one count of conspiracy to smuggle cocaine.

McLain

Codefendants Seymour Sher and Frank Cocchiaro were convicted of racketeering, conspiracy and extortion, while a third codefendant, Joe Rodriguez, was found innocent on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle cocaine.

McLain faces a maximum penalty of 75 years in prison and fines totaling $75,000. Sher and Cocchiaro each face a maximum, 60 years in prison and fines of $60,000, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Ernst Mueller, the prosecutor in the case.

McLain, who maintained his innocence through the four-month trial, was "devastated" at the verdict, said his attorney, Arnold Levine.

"He's just shocked. He's concerned about his children and his wife," said Levine.

McLain, 41, and Sher were taken into custody pending a hearing today before presiding U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich to determine whether they can remain free on bond until sentencing April 19, said Mueller.

Quote of the day

Mickey Rivers, assessing Cliff Johnson, acquired as a free agent to be the Texas Rangers' designated hitter: "Ain't nothing about Heathcliff. Get Heathcliff a couple of at-bats a game, he'll do a good job. But hide his glove and his face, too. He's so-o-o-o ugly! Put an oxygen mask on him!"

Ex-Sailor swims to record

Jon Ballack, a former aquatics standout at Newport Harbor High, sped to a 1:48.8 in the 200-yard backstroke Saturday to set a meet and school record for the University of Hawaii at the Western Athletic Conference swim championships.

The former Sailor's effort qualified him as one of six Hawaii stars to qualify for the NCAA finals in Austin, Texas, later this month.

Bruins' foe not complaining

"We'll go wherever they tell us to go," Iba said. "The NIT has been good to us, they really have, and we're not in a position to complain, anyway. This is an opportunity to play a name school."

Tuesday's matchup, which begins at 7:30, was announced late Friday.

Temple is no challenge for Hoyas

Loyola of Chicago next hurdle for top-ranked Georgetown

From AP dispatches

HARTFORD, Conn. — Top-ranked Georgetown, the defending national collegiate basketball champion, continued its quest for a second straight NCAA title, beating Temple, 63-46, Saturday in an East Regional second-round game.

Michael Jackson's 14 points led a balanced offense for the Hoyas, who won their 14th consecutive game in improving their season's record to 32-2.

EAST REGIONAL

Defensively, the Hoyas put the wraps on Temple forwards Granger Hall and Charles Rayne. The two, who had combined for an average of 31.2 points per game during the regular season, collected only a total of 13 against the big, muscular Hoyas.

Georgetown's smothering defense forced Temple to shoot mostly from outside.

"We weren't so much concerned about the inside," said Temple Coach John Chaney. "If a team is going to double down on you, you have to take shots from the outside. We figured every time we'd get it to Granger, they'd double down on him."

Reggie Williams scored 13 points for Georgetown and Patrick Ewing and David Wingate had 12 each. Nate Blackwell led Temple, 25-6, with 15 points.

"It's our time of year," said the Hoyas' Ralph Dalton. "We've worked hard to accomplish what we started.

"This game was another on the way to where we're going."

The victory moved Georgetown into next Thursday's round of 16 in the NCAA tournament. The Hoyas will next face No. 14 Loyola of Chicago.

Loyola, Ill. 70, SMU 57: Carl Golston scored 20 points and 14th-ranked Loyola broke the game open with a seven-point run late in the second half as the Ramblers stretched the nation's longest winning streak to 19 games.

The victory in the East regional moved the Ramblers, the 1963 NCAA champions, into the third round against top-ranked Georgetown.

Trailing 56-50 with 7:28 left in the game, Southern Methodist suffered a 5:03 scoring drought while Loyola was building a 63-50 advantage with 2:40 to play.

The Ramblers, 27-5, got 14 points from Alfredrick Hughes, who started the game with a 27.3-point average, 12 from Andre Battle and 10 from Greg Williams.

Southern Methodist, 23-10 after suffering its fifth loss in nine games, was led by center Jon Koncak with 19 points, Larry Davis with 14 and Carl Wright with 13.

Golston said he was looking forward to the matchup against the mighty Hoyas.

"It will be power and speed vs. our speed," he said. "Georgetown has all the advantages, but this year it will be our turn to be giant-killers."

Rebels surprised by Kentucky, 64-61

St. John's holds off rally by Arkansas for 68-65 victory

WEST REGIONAL

From AP dispatches

SALT LAKE CITY — Kenny Walker scored 23 points, including the game-winner with 21 seconds left, to give Kentucky a 64-61 upset victory over ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas in a NCAA West Regional basketball game Saturday afternoon.

The victory — Kentucky's 50th in NCAA play — sent the Wildcats into the NCAA West Regional play Friday in Denver against No. 3 St. John's.

Kentucky, 18-12 and tied for third in the Southeastern Conference, owned the poorest record of any NCAA tournament at-large team.

But the Wildcats, whose 30 NCAA appearances are the most in the college game, appeared determined to try to make it to the Final Four, which will be held on the Wildcats' home floor in Lexington, Ky.

Kentucky guard Ed Davender ignited the Wildcats in the second half, scoring 11 of his 13 points in the period and boosting Kentucky to a 53-48 lead with 8:17 left.

For UNLV, Richie Adams scored 14 points, Anthony Jones added 13 and Frank "Spoon" James had 10.

Leading 60-52 with 4:49 remaining, Kentucky nearly gave the game away by turning the ball over three times while attempting to run time off the clock. But Walker blocked a shot by UNLV's Richie Adams, then scampered down the floor for a lay-up that made it 62-59.

"We never doubted for a minute we belonged in this tournament, and the critics who said we shouldn't be gave us some added incentive," said Coach Joe B. Hall.

In the other West Regional game:

St. John's 68, Arkansas 65: Chris Mullin scored 26 points and St. John's held off an Arkansas comeback to defeat the Razorbacks.

The Redmen led 60-52 with 4:23 left, but Joe Kleine scored six of his 23 points during a two-minute stretch as Arkansas drew within 62-61. However, six St. John's free throws — four by Mike Moses — and three fine defensive plays — including a block and a steal by Bill Wennington — helped protect the lead.

North Carolina earns right to play surprising Auburn

SOUTHEAST REGIONAL

From AP dispatches

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Kenny Smith's driving slam-dunk lay-up with three seconds remaining gave North Carolina a 60-58 victory over Notre Dame in the second round of the NCAA Southeast Regional Saturday.

Smith's winning basket for North Carolina, 26-8, came on a lead pass from Curtis Hunter.

Hunter had grabbed a loose ball that kicked off the left knee of Notre Dame freshman David Rivers after the Irish had run down the clock for more than a minute in hopes of getting the final shot with the score 58-58.

Rivers said the ball was slapped away. Smith saw it differently.

"I saw the ball go off his leg and I broke down the court," he said. "Hunter picked it up and threw it to me."

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps defended his strategy of having the young Rivers take the final shot.

"We've been living with David all year, and we'd been living with him today," said Phelps. "David had the gree light to go. Once it got down to 20 (seconds), David was going.

"If I had the same opportunity again, Rivers would still have the ball and we'd make the same move," said Phelps.

Smith finished with 12 points, while teammate Brad Daugherty led all scorers with 18. Rivers topped Notre Dame, 21-9, with 15 points.

In the other Southeast Regional game:

Auburn 66, Kansas 64: If there is a true Cinderella team, it might be Auburn, which tied for seventh place in the Southeastern Conference and only made the NCAA field by winning the SEC's post-season tournament.

The Tigers edged No. 13 Kansas and will be in Birmingham on Friday night to face North Carolina.

Frank Ford scored 23 points and Chuck Person added 21 as the two Auburn players took control late in the second half against Kansas. Ford's basket with just under three minutes remaining gave Auburn the lead for good 54-52 and the Tigers opened a 61-54 advantage on two baskets by Person.

Express collects first win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Steve Young ran for one touchdown and threw for another Saturday as the Los Angeles Express scored a team record 38 points for its first United States Football League victory, a 38-7 breeze over the San Antonio Gunslingers.

The Gunslingers avoided a shutout by scoring with 3:07 to play on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Fred Mortensen to Danny Buggs. Otherwise, the game belonged to Los Angeles, with Young completing 10 of 18 passes for 128 yards in just over three quarters of work.

The victory before 11,757 at the Coliseum was the first for the Express in four games, while San Antonio fell to 1-3.

The Express rolled to a 17-0 lead in the first half, the defense twice intercepting San Antonio quarterbacks to set up a touchdown and a field goal.

Young gave his team a 7-0 lead early in the second quarter on a 2-yard bootleg. Andy Melontree set up the drive with an interception and a return to the San Antonio 11-yard line. Three plays later Young rolled untouched around left end for the score.

Two series later, Mel Gray got a key block from Toddie Bodie and ran 25 yards up the right side to pad the lead to 14-0 with 1:53 left in the half.

The Express got the ball back on San Antonio's 30-yard line four plays later when Darrell Patillo grabbed his first of two interceptions. Seven plays later, Tony Zendejas kicked a 40-yard field and the score was 17-0 with just 10 seconds left.

Founder of Investor's Daily offers tested market advice

Newport audience told to look for steady growth

By JOY DEE ANTHONY
Daily Pilot Correspondent

The first secret to success in the stock market, says William J. O'Neil, founder of "Investor's Daily," is to choose only those companies "with a proven superior earnings record."

Speaking to a crowd of around 200 business men and women at The Newporter Hotel recently, O'Neil said he looks for an earnings per share record that shows an increase in each of the last five years or at least a steady increase for a substantial number of quarters "so that the trend of growth and profitability is definitely there."

He also insists that a company show a significant earnings increase "right now in the most recent two quarters. Why should anyone buy a stock whose earnings are down, or up only a mediocre six or eight percent currently?" he said. "The median increase in the last quarterly earnings report of all of the successful performing stocks in the last 15 years, at the beginning point, before these stocks doubled or tripled, was a plus 34 percent." The average increase in earnings shown by these companies before their stocks began to rise was 70 percent, he added.

Though many people say earnings aren't all that important an indicator, O'Neil says his research "has shown just the opposite."

Once you're certain of the earnings record, he said, read up on the business. Look for new products that are selling especially well.

The rest of your effort should be concentrated on timing, O'Neil advises. The object is not to buy a stock at the cheapest price, he said, "but to buy a stock at precisely the right time." The right time is after a stock has undergone a correction in price, has built a new price base or consolidation period, and has slowly begun to emerge from its basing area and resume an uptrend in price, he said.

Because no one is smart enough to remember the price and volume history of several thousand stocks, charts are crucial, he remarked. "The best time to buy a security is when it begins to pass important earlier price peaks just before it is about to make a new high in price." This is tough for most people to do, he added, because of a deeply-ingrained habit of bargain hunting. Most stocks are mediocre. The ones that aren't rarely sell for a cheaper price, he points out.

"We did a study a few years ago of the new-high and the new-low list. We found that the new-high list tended to go higher and the new-low list tended to go lower."

You should also check the number of shares outstanding, he said. "Generally, a smaller number of shares allows a stock a chance to perform more rapidly than those with a large capitalization of 50 or 100 million shares or more."

O'Neil also looks for industry leaders. "Sometimes a simple rule like avoiding all stocks with a relative strength below 70 or 75 can instantly eliminate most of the laggard performers," he said.

Sponsorship by at least a few of the better performing mutual funds or other institutional investors who manage pension funds is another O'Neil principle.

Finally, he looks at the main trend of the general market, as can be seen by the Standard & Poor's 500 Index, the Dow Jones Industrials, and the Daily NYSE volume.

Only a system involving set guidelines can help one avoid the emotionalism of the market, he says. For instance, he never buys on tips, stories, rumors or Wall Street research reports. Nor does he go for buy-out deals, commodities, municipal bonds, tax shelters, or stocks selling below $10.

"You'll get a lot further if you spend a lot less time with P/E (price/earning) ratios and dividends. They really don't mean as much as you think," O'Neil said. "Earnings per share growth is the key ingredient."
