HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Signal cord is shorter. 2. Straw is moved. 3. Sheet fold is narrower. 4. Shoulders are lower. 5. Cap is missing. 6. Arm is moved.

WALL POSER! Was Whitehead the painter angry when he saw the handprints and scribbling at right on his freshly painted wall? On the contrary, for he saw the figures as a challenging problem in addition.

How is it possible to cross out six of the digits and leave a sum of 20? Can you answer?

Simple: Cross out all except two adjacent ones and a nine. The other number spelled out is seven.

HIDE 'N' SEEK! Find a number spelled out in the teakettle sings even though it is in hot water up to its neck. Time: 30 seconds.

HIGH HOPES AT STAKE

There stood the bust perched precariously atop a stone column eight feet tall. The archaeologist was ecstatic at his find.

But, he did want to examine the figure at the top more closely, without having it fall. He did not have a ladder. He carried a rope, shovel, saw, a pick, ax and sifting screen.

Alone and unable to summon aid, how did he manage to reach the figure above with just one of the six tools at hand?

He used the shovel to pile dirt on which to stand.

KNIGHT LINE! Two of the helmets shown above are duplicates. Which two? That is for you to decide.

PIPE HIM! Apply crayons or colored pencils neatly to the winter scene above: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Orange. 8—Purple.

Why Are We Giving Away These Famous Nationally Advertised TM SWIFT 660/FTM Telescoping Spin Rods for only $5?

Hard to believe, but true.

As part of its Anniversary Publicity Campaign, a leading New York firm will distribute one million (1,000,000) of its most expensive spin rods—the Famous Nationally AdvertisedTM SWIFT-660/FTM Telescoping WhisperCastTM WhamRodTM—for the astonishing “Anniversary Price” of only $5 each to the first one million persons who write to the company address (below) before midnight, March 25, 1986.

This original Anniversary Ad must accompany your request.

Copies or photostats are not acceptable.

These are the same famous SWIFT-660/F Telescoping WhisperCast WhamRods nationally advertised in leading media. A full standard 66 inches from base to tip, they spring to complete length in an eye-blinking 6/10ths of a second!...then telescope down to a mere 16 inches for easy storage in kit bag, glove compartment or attache case.

Crafted of aluminum, stainless steel and space-age fiberglass for extra strength and flexibility, they provide full response along the entire length of the rod, without “flat spots”. And allow precise placement of small flies with a minimum of surface displacement.

Weighing a featherlight 3.75 ounces, they are the perfect ultralight rods for today’s “compleat angler”. Designed for casting powerfully over long distances, they’re at home on virtually every lake, stream or waterway in America, and ideal for land-casting, general wading, and boat-fishing. Small wonder they are the fastest selling (and most expensive) spin rods ever offered by this giant multi-million-dollar New York firm.

Each rod is covered by the company’s full one-year money-back guarantee. There is a limit of two (2) rods per address at this price. But if your order is mailed early enough (before March 17) you may request up to five. These Famous Nationally Advertised SWIFT-660/F Telescoping WhisperCast WhamRods will not be sold at this price by the company in any store.

To order, mail this original printed ad (no copies or photostats) together with your name and address and $5 for each rod. Add only $2 shipping and handling no matter how many rods you are requesting. (New York residents add sales tax.) Allow up to 6-8 weeks for shipment. Make check payable to: A&C Company. Mail to: A&C FISHING ROD OFFER, Dept. 603-159, Box 1736, Hicksville, N.Y. 11802. (A29380)

EXTRA BONUS

If you respond promptly

If you are able to reply before Mar. 17, we'll give away the famous top-of-the-line SWIFT-660/F Zoom-Cast Reel with every rod you order...for the astonishing price of just $2 a reel. (And we'll even wind 250 feet of our best 6-lb-test monofilament line onto each reel!)

These nationally advertised reels perfectly match your rod in weight and balance, and give you fast “thumbs-off” (one-handed) casting over longer distances than you ever dreamed possible. You can cast even the lightest baits without backlash.

Compatible with virtually every plug or lure, the new high-speed gear ratio gives you fast “pop”-action, yet is powerful enough to reel in fish without “pumping”. The new open-face design (and desirable skirted spool) eliminates friction and prevents tangles. The anti-reverse is “whisper” silent, and the Microdisc Surge-Free Drag System won't let your fish run away.

The most expensive reel sold by this huge firm, it is yours for only $2 if you act before March 17. (A25166)

FAST TALK

THE MEMORY LINGERED ON: Richard Burton never really let go of Elizabeth Taylor. At least that's what Hollis Alpert says in Burton, new this week from G.P. Putnam's Sons. Alpert, who watched Liz and Dick during the torrid Cleopatra days, says Burton on the day he died told actor John Hurt that "she still fascinates me." Also in his last days, Burton told David Lewin of the BBC: "What Elizabeth could not do was save me from the drink." And in pursuit of trivia, Burton's given name: Richard Walter Jenkins Jr.

Robert Vaughn, boss of an auto heist ring in the current film Black Moon Rising, lavishes love on his own pair of limos: a '62 Lincoln and '65 Lincoln Continental. The '62 model (price tag when new: $7,000) drives other motorists crazy. At intersections, Vaughn, 53, explains, they yell "I'll give you anything for that car." No deal.

Will the Trekkies ever get enough? Don't bet on it. Star Trek II, scheduled for a Christmas '86 release, is in the works featuring the folks who boldly go where ordinary people fear to fly. It stars William Shatner, TV's T.J. Hooker, and Leonard Nimoy, who will direct and portray — you guessed it! — Spock.

HEADLINER

ON A ROLL: The Footloose star gets around on a bike in Quicksilver, opening this weekend. In real life, he walks the dog, a mutt named Jane; does his own laundry; and doesn't bring home the bacon — he's a vegetarian.

By Zeva Oelbaum/Visions

Kevin Bacon keeps his feet on the ground

"Whenever I worry about success or failure," says Kevin Bacon, who found fame as a hooper in the 1984 film Footloose. "I try to think, if the bottom fell out, I could start again and just climb back up."

And if success is as mercurial as quicksilver, well, that's just fine with the 27-year-old actor. Quicksilver, which opens this weekend at theaters around the USA, is his first film since Footloose, which grossed more than $100 million at the box office.

In Quicksilver, he trades his dancing shoes for a bicycle, playing a down-on-his-luck Wall Street wizard reduced to making a living as a two-wheeled messenger.

Bacon, now paid $1 million a picture, waited two years to find just the right vehicle to keep his career on track.

"Kevin would turn and run if you ever used any of that movie star stuff on him," says Quicksilver writer/director

Tom Donnelly. "He's the most dedicated young actor I've worked with."

Bacon claims hitting it big hasn't affected him: "Life has changed and my career has changed, but I don't feel like a different person."

Some things certainly haven't changed. Bacon has lived for five years with his girlfriend, actress Tracy Pollan, 25, who plays Michael J. Fox's girlfriend on NBC's Family Ties. They have an Upper West Side apartment in Manhattan and a house in Connecticut.

Any prospect of marriage? "There's no pressure from either of our families. They're very supportive and not outraged by the idea we're living together."

Bacon, a Philadelphia native, went to New York in 1977 and began his film career with a bit part in Animal House. That led to a small part in the original Friday the 13th.

then to Only When I Laugh and the role of Fenwick in Diner. Then came Footloose.

And now? Will there be a Footloose II? "I wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole," he says; he isn't interested in sequels.

Bacon, who has danced and cycled on screen, and rides quarter horses for fun, takes up mountain climbing and white water canoeing in his new picture, Rites of Summer, scheduled for June or July release.

"It's different than anything I've ever done," he says. "I play an independent, loner type who escorts kids into the wilderness and tries to make men out of these boys."

In the meantime, he and Pollan are learning to carry on a long-distance relationship, he in New York, she in California with Family Ties.

"It's tough," he says. "But if you have someone who is a rock for you, the other stuff just comes down to earth." □

We love our burgers

Here's a salute to our favorite food, selected in a USA WEEKEND readers' poll and served with side orders of praise from a beauty queen and other burger boosters.

By Jane Mengenhauser and Jill MacNeice

Cool the hot dogs. Can the chili. Bring on the burgers.

Those are the sentiments of USA WEEKEND readers — nearly 3,500 of you — when asked to choose a national food. So to get in the spirit of this Washington's Birthday weekend, fly the flag and flip a burger.

Our search started in USA WEEKEND's Nov. 8-10 issue, when we reported on the efforts of Reps. Jake Pickle, D-Texas, and Manuel Lujan, R-N.M., to have chili declared the national food. As the second session of the 99th Congress opened, House Joint Resolution 255 languished in a committee.

We put the vote to you. On the ballot: hamburgers, apple pie, barbecue, fried chicken, hot dogs, corn on the cob, pizza, and turkey with dressing — plus any write-in vote you wanted.

Readers weren't shy. We heard from 14 elementary and middle schools, including 20 first-graders from Youens Elementary in Alief, Texas, who decided to poll all Youens' teachers. (Hamburgers got the faculty vote.)

We also received ballots with whole families responding, including the Robinsons of Caracas, Venezuela. (The tally: father Terry, hamburgers; mother Angie, apple pie; daughter Eve Marie, hot dogs; son Bill, grilled cheese.)

Many scribbled notes on ballots. Others included recipes and cooking hints for their candidates. And some sent long letters, more than a few dealing with congressmen wasting taxpayers' money on nonsense like national food legislation. "If they want to vote on beans, let them change the name of Capitol Hill to 'Hill of Beans' — that's all it amounts to anyway," said Linda Aston of Jeannette, Pa.

Sorry, congressmen. Chili never had a chance, despite the efforts of 63 patrons of Chili Great Chili in Pacific Grove, Calif. The restaurant printed postcards pushing chili, but they had to be disqualified because only original ballots listing all choices counted. Typical of the anti-chili sentiment was that of hamburger fan Doris Tice of Bristol, Ind., who said, "Never in 3 million years would I pick chili."

A look, then, at some of the results: The burger bloc: Western burger buffs took the hamburger to the top of our poll. Of 610 burger votes, half came from 18 BILLION EATEN A YEAR: Burgers are easy and inexpensive — about $1.23 per pound in 1985.

In search of the perfect burger

■ Is the meat juicy without being greasy? Even a well-done burger should be moist inside, glistening outside. Use the better cuts — sirloin, round — and treat gently. Do not knead the meat, or you'll end up with a dense, compacted blob.

■ Is the bun fresh and in proportion to the patty? (The patty will shrink by a third during cooking.)

■ Are the extras (lettuce, onions) fresh? Do you have the condiments to create the burger you truly crave?

■ Does the burger remind you of the ones you ate when you were a kid? If so, you've got a winner.

Western states. Among them: Susan Marcott, a 28-year-old model from El Dorado Hills, Calif., who punned, "Burgers are a grill's best friend."

"The national food should be a food we can spell," said Helen Houser of Marlton Lakes, N.J., when she cast her vote for the hamburger instead of chili — or chile, as some people spell it.

■ The patriotic contingent: Mom and the flag still may be tops, but apple pie came in second with 562 votes — 151 of them from Midwesterners whose votes dominated our less-than-scientific-but-quite-revealing poll. They, and a lot of others, had a lot to say about apple pie.

When Chicago residents Evelyn and Donald May returned from their 25th wedding anniversary trip to the Soviet Union, their four daughters hung out the flag and served dessert. "It was good old all-American apple pie," Evelyn reported.

Charlotte Granville of Manchester, Conn., who calls herself the Apple Pie Queen (she won a pie-baking contest last fall), challenged Lujan to a cook-off: his chili vs. her pie. "One taste of my pie topped with nippy cheddar cheese, and I'll wager the dear New Mexico congressman will close his eyes and drift into a Land of Enchantment," she said, referring to New Mexico's nickname.

What we love to eat...

Here's how the national food candidates stacked up:

Hamburger	610
Apple pie	562
Pizza	444
Fried chicken	398
Chili	371
Turkey	362
Hot dogs	129
Corn on the cob	103
Barbecue	78
Other	391

■ The youth vote: "Pizza! We L-O-V-E pizza!" is what school kids across the USA said, and it seems our poll provided some lively classroom discussions. From Rehoboth Beach, Del., and Ballston Spa, N.Y., in the East, to St. Joseph, La., in the South, and the Michigan cities of Dearborn and Comstock in the Midwest, kids voted overwhelmingly for pizza. When all was tallied, the spicy pie had 444 votes, 203 of them from the schools.

■ The chicken crowd: Just 46 votes behind pizza came fried chicken, our fourth-place finisher with 398 votes. It took the majority (8 votes) of an in-house poll of 20 residents at the Gold Crest Retirement Center in Adams, Neb. Chili and barbecue didn't get any votes there because they are "too hot" and "they don't sound American," reported Charlotte Ann Gronewold, the center's activities director who conducts a daily current events discussion with the residents.

■ The "also rans": Chili finished with 371 votes; turkey, 362; hot dogs, 129; corn on the cob, 103; and barbecue, 78.

Write-ins — none with more than 10 votes — include catfish stew, the Norwegian dish lutefisk, the Midwestern stew booya, cherry pie, Tootsie Pops, creamed chipped beef and the Dagwood sandwich.

E.A. Ferns of Tucson, Ariz., advised us to get back to our real roots: "Make it Indian fried bread. After all, Indians are the original and true Americans."

Miss America Susan Akin

'Mom's are best — I was raised on them'

"I like McDonald's and Burger King, but nothing beats my mother's hamburgers," says Miss America. Akin, shown above with mom Dorothy Little, likes her burgers medium-well, on a multigrain bun, with a little pepper, ketchup, mayo, a fat slice of onion and a dash of Tabasco. The 21-year-old from Meridian, Miss., makes one concession to keep her 5-foot-9 frame at a trim 116 pounds: Hold the cheese. But that good deed is usually undone by her favorite side dish: mom's baked beans. Mom's burger secret? Chopped sirloin, seasoning salt and garlic bread crumbs, used for flavor, not filler.

By Rob Nelson

Hamburg mayor Dick Hansen

'We're all Hamburgers, all of us'

The top burgher of Hamburg, N.Y., (pop. 10,500) knows his burgers. He eats them at least four nights a week, whether they are well-done or medium-rare, with cheese or without. "I'll take them any way I can get them," says Hansen, a former schoolteacher and football coach, now mayor of the village of Hamburg, a suburb of Buffalo. "I love hamburgers. They're a staple." A large man of large appetites — the mayor stands 6-foot-2 and tips the scales at 250 pounds — Hansen, 58, says he moved to Hamburg 30 years ago because the town was named after his favorite food. "I ate my way through every hamburger joint in the village." He often can be seen biting into a burger with mustard, ketchup and relish at the Steak House, where an 8-ounce chopped sirloin patty, charcoal-broiled over an open pit, costs $3.95, and the fries and potato chips are freshly made from Idaho potatoes.

By Joe Traver

Boy Scout hero Freddie M. Hill

'I like to add something extra'

When Hill — winner of the 1984 Boy Scouts Heroism Award for saving a drowning Scout — works at Hardee's after school in Albany, Ga., he transforms the fast-food, $1.89 bacon cheeseburger into a superburger for his supper. His recipe: four slices of bacon, swiss cheese (not available to customers), pickles and ketchup on a 4-ounce patty, sprinkled with seasoning salt, served piping hot with lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise. But that's not all. Hill, 17, also has "a cheeseburger on the side." □

Congressman Manuel Lujan

'A chilehead to the end'

"Anybody who thinks the hamburger is No. 1 has never eaten chile," says Lujan, the New Mexico congressman pushing for his favorite dish, spelled his way, to be the national food. But what's the best burger he's ever eaten? "That's a loaded question," he says before answering: "The one that my wife makes." It's topped, of course, with a split green chile pepper.

The tough guy known as TV's Mike Hammer talks about his run-in with drugs and jail, and the strange twist of his new role on stage

By Stephen Schaefer

On the play 'Idiot's Delight,' opening for previews Monday at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.: It doesn't seem like it's 50 years old. There is a line I say to a Frenchman. "Have you ever tried cocaine?"

"No," he says.

"Well, I have."

"For pleasure?"

"No, just one of those things."

And when I say that ... it's just going to stop the show. We discussed whether or not to lose that quote and I said, "Absolutely not!" Robert Sherwood wrote it for this character in 1936 and it's just ironic that I have those lines at this time. That says something wonderful about the theater and serendipity.

On being arrested in 1984 at London's Heathrow Airport for cocaine possession: I believe strongly that it was one of those things that was bound to happen. I've never had any negative feelings about it at all. Painful, yes, extremely painful. You think, "Nobody is ever going to catch me."

More significant than that is the feeling "I don't have a problem with drugs." Major denial. I wasn't that far gone: I was still functional. It wasn't affecting my work but it was affecting my life.

On drug use in the entertainment world: It's easy to point your finger at Hollywood and the music industry because they're so visible. It happens almost unconsciously ... what starts as a recreational, social diversion ends up catching you. A lot of people say to me, "I have no problem with drugs. Once in a while I smoke a joint or take a toot, and it's fine." There's not much you can say to that individual except to wish them well.

On drug laws: Many people in my sphere resent the fact that the laws are so strict and stringent on drugs. Then you look at somebody whose life is totally destroyed because they got in that situation and couldn't help themselves and became total victims to whatever the substance was, whether it's alcohol or heroin. I do think it causes you to think twice. I personally think, yes, an individual who is mature and intelligent can make decisions about what they take into their bodies and should be able to. However, I think they have to be made aware of the dangers they are getting into, that this is potentially lethal. That's important because people are going to do what people are going to do, whether it's against the law or not. Until people are aware of it there are going to be problems.

By Rob Brown

On his 9-month sentence: I never felt I got a raw deal myself, but when I witnessed other people breaking into a chemist's shop to steal heroin and getting a thousand pound fine, I felt that was unjust.

On being in prison in England: In prison, you fill up your time. I was lucky in that I had a good job: I worked in the library and was allowed my mail. I was getting 75 letters a day. It was lonesome, no question about that. But I never had to worry about not having enough to do. I was involved with other prisoners helping with their mail (reading and writing letters). The level of illiteracy in Reading prison is extremely high. That causes one to forget about your own problems. In prison I kept a diary, wrote copious notes, kept letters and things. I'm writing a book, Christmas With Her Majesty, and hope to finish it soon.

On his status as an anti-drug spokesman: My correspondence is overwhelming, but at the same time I'm an actor and I want to live my life. I don't want to turn my back on those who need help, so I do help people one to one. I'm involved with anti-drug programs, particularly with Mrs. Reagan, and did a music video, Stop the Madness, that I hope to see on MTV. I narrated High on the Job, a documentary on drug abuse in the workplace. (But) I don't want to be identified as the self-righteous spokesman who gets up against drugs simply because I got caught. (He laughs.) I think people resent that — and rightfully so.

On the Mike Hammer character: He really is 100 percent intolerant of anyone who is not all-American. His intolerance leads to violence. In the book, he's characterized as someone who hits first and asks questions later. We've toned that down a little bit (on the series) to make him more likable. Hammer still has to deal with females in terms of their interest in him. He's too excessive with the busty ladies. A lot of women feel threatened by that, saying he's chauvinistic. I don't think Hammer is a chauvinist, but the scripts were sometimes. Mike Hammer loves women.

On his most recent divorce — from third wife Jill Donohue Keach: It's always painful when a relationship ends. One hopes one learns, but I can't be very specific. My attitude for relationships in general is it's no fun to end but it's great while it lasted. One hopes they last and if they don't, as they say, life goes on.

On his companionship with Malgosia Tomassi: Love is necessary to live. I've been with Malgosia a couple of years. And it's not difficult going out with her in public. She's not jealous of my celebrity status as a sex symbol. We have no marriage plans at the moment.

On his home life: I live in Malibu with dogs and chickens on a rancho. I love playing polo but haven't had horses of my own in a while.

On staying in shape: The best way to show respect for yourself is to keep in shape. I see a nutritionist and one hour a day work out, not at my home gym but with Dan Isaacson (a celebrity trainer who works with Joanne Whalley-Kilmer and John Travolta) at his gym. I always have to watch my weight. I love food and I don't drink much anymore, just a little wine. I guess everybody becomes diet conscious.

On the new Stacy Keach: I feel fortunate I got the support of CBS and Columbia Pictures Television to do Mike Hammer again — and the public. This has been a midlife crisis. Knock on wood, the future looks good. □

THE KEACH FILE

BORN: June 2, 1940, Savannah, Ga. Family moved to Los Angeles when he was a child; his dad, Stacy Sr., is an actor best known as Clarence Birdseye in a series of TV commercials.

FAMILY: Married and divorced three times. No children. Now with blond Polish-born actress Malgosia Tomassi.

EARLY CAREER: Studied at Yale Drama School, won Fulbright scholarship to study drama in London. Won Obie for off-Broadway smash MacBird! Acclaimed as Hamlet in New York Shakespeare Festival, 1972.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS: Made his film debut in 1968's The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter; in 1980 co-starred in The Long Riders with his brother James. Won fame in 1982's TV miniseries The Blue and the Gray. Portrayed hard-nosed sleuth Mike Hammer in the TV series Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer, 1984-85. This spring, returns as Mike Hammer in TV movie to test the waters for the series' return.

NOTORIETY: On April 4, 1984, Keach and his secretary, Deborah Steele, were arrested at London's Heathrow Airport for possession of 1 1/4 ounces of cocaine. Keach was sentenced to nine months in English prison. He was released three months early, on June 7, 1985, for good behavior.

Selling to USA's 'seasoned' set is big business

By Mary Finch Hoyt

They call it "mature marketing." It means businesses are setting their sights on the whopping $800 billion controlled by the USA's 49-plus set.

What they've found is that older buyers spend plenty, if they're not taken for granted.

"Today's 'mature' consumers are just what the name implies — seasoned and savvy," says Helen Tscheulin Harris of Helen Harris Associates, Westport, Conn., a leader in the field.

"What is absolutely key," says Harris, "is to remember that active, affluent, participating persons, whether 49 or 75, perceive themselves to be five to 15 years younger than they are."

Marketing research shows that 49-plus consumers:

- Like luxury, comfort, quality.
- Like to buy USA products.
- Like to shop, take time to shop, socialize while shopping.
- Are flexible, willing to experiment with new products, though loyal to quality name brands.
- Resent being singled out as different from other consumers.
- Dislike ads that stereotype older persons.

Some of the new marketing approaches to over-49 consumers:

■ Sears Roebuck & Co. has launched Mature Outlook Inc., a new club that offers discounts in automotive and optical centers, and on travel insurance and merchandise.

■ Johnson & Johnson, Kimberly-Clark Inc. and 3M are among industries targeting the mature market with the aid of Patricia Moore of Moore & Associates in New York. Moore has degrees in industrial design, biomechanical engineering and gerontology, and personal insights gained from posing as an 80-year-old woman when she was 26 years old — an experience recounted in her new book, Disguised (Word Books, $10.95).

"The point is that if a product or service works for older people, it works better for everyone," Moore writes in Disguised.

■ The American Association of Retired Persons has just published The Gadget Book: Ingenious Devices for Easier Living, (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $10.95). It is cross-indexed between 32 common daily tasks and manufacturers whose products make them easier. □

Stock car racing: Life in the fast lane pays off for drivers

By Jerry Potter

Richard Petty wears designer jeans and Darrell Waltrip sports lizard skin boots.

Times have changed on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) circuit. Winnings are up and, off the track, successful drivers can afford fancy clothes and almost anything else they please.

"The difference in today and yesterday is now we have wine with dinner instead of for dinner," says Waltrip, who will be competing Sunday when NASCAR gets its 38th season in gear with the Daytona 500 in Daytona Beach, Fla. (airing on CBS at noon EST/9 a.m. PST).

This year, the drivers will compete in 29 Winston Cup races with a total payoff that NASCAR predicts will hit $15.5 million, up 25 percent from 1985. In 1971 the take was only $2 million.

Waltrip, 39, of Franklin, Tenn., won the '85 championship and more than $1.3 million. Bill Elliott, 30, of Dawsonville, Ga., pocketed more than $2.3 million, including a $1 million bonus for winning the Daytona 500, the Winston 500 in Talladega, Ala., and the Southern 500 in Darlington, S.C.

And then there's that golden road — Madison Avenue and its ad money.

When Waltrip entered Winston Cup racing in 1972, he drove a car sponsored by a trucking firm. Three years later, Gatorade sponsored his car.

With Gatorade, Waltrip had the first national sponsor, unrelated to the auto industry, that used a driver in promoting its products.

"All of a sudden," Waltrip says, "you weren't shaking hands with a guy at an auto parts store . . . you were at the supermarket, shaking hands with mom and signing autographs for her children."

Other products followed with advertising support: jeans, beer, tobacco, hamburgers and film.

Waltrip now is sponsored by Budweiser, a contract worth about $1.2 million for the year. Elliott is beginning a three-year, $6 million deal with Coors. Last year, he earned television exposure for the beer brewer worth about $5.5 million.

The drivers even have become corporations themselves. Waltrip, for example, founded DarWal Inc., which runs his business interests.

"We're living the best of times," Waltrip says. "But the thing I hate most is that it's hard to be an individual, because the media demands that are put on the drivers require them all to be the same." □

Workout ware: Give it a try before you buy

The question

I am considering three exercise machines for my home gym — one simulates cross country skiing, one rowing and one bicycling. Because of the cost — $500 to $600 — I will only buy one. Which will give me the best workout for the buck?

Jack Hensley Satellite Beach, Fla.

The answer

The kind of workout you're after should determine the machine you buy, says James Skinner, professor of physical education at Arizona State University in Tempe.

The bike will tend to build your lower body, the rower your upper body, while the skiing simulator offers more balanced exercise.

All three will give you an aerobic workout, says Ruth H. Alexander, professor of physical education at the University of Florida, Gainesville. But if it's purely aerobics you're after, the skiing simulator probably is tops: "It would really get the blood going head to toe."

Quality definitely varies by price, Skinner says. It's high above $500 and low below $150. In between, you should shop carefully.

Try the equipment out before you buy. You might even consider renting each piece first.

Two features to look for:

- A biofeedback device, such as a pulse rate monitor.

- Adjustable resistance levels.

Finally, Skinner says, keep an open mind about whether you even need the equipment: You may find all three too boring. For some, running or swimming is the best type of aerobic exercise. □

Putting the squeeze on headaches

By Gloria Welles

The ancient Egyptians believed it was caused by evil spirits. The Greeks thought it was inflicted by the gods. Today, medical experts cite our stressful lifestyle as the most frequent cause of headaches.

Whatever the cause, headache sufferers spend $475 million a year trying to rid themselves of this common malady.

For many people, headaches are an annoying but minor discomfort. For others, headaches can be painfully severe, interfering with the ability to function and enjoy life.

"An estimated 42 million Americans suffer from severe recurring headaches," says Dr. Seymour Diamond, head of the Diamond Headache Clinic in Chicago.

Most specialists divide headaches into three broad categories:

- Muscle contraction (tension headache). About 80 percent to 90 percent of all headaches occur when muscles in the neck, shoulders or head contract or tense, causing a dull ache and feeling of pressure like a tight band around the head. The mental stress of anxiety, depression, frustration or even intense concentration can bring on a tension headache. So can the physical stress of bending over a desk for long hours or an injury.

- Vascular headaches. Afflicting between 10 percent and 20 percent of all headache sufferers, these occur when the blood vessels in the brain dilate and swell, causing a throbbing pain.

The most common vascular headache is the migraine, characterized by pain on one side of the head and often accompanied by nausea and vomiting.

Typically, migraine sufferers get two to four headaches a month, lasting one to two days. Migraines tend to run in families, and women are more likely to be afflicted than men. After menopause, migraines disappear 75 percent of the time. Migraines can be triggered by one or a combination of factors: stress, hormones, diet, sleep patterns and environmental conditions, such as change in altitude or climate.

Less common are cluster headaches.

By Suzy Parker

When the pounding may mean problems

Headaches can indicate a serious medical problem if they:

- Are frequent and severe enough to interfere with normal activities.

- Start in childhood or after 50.

- Hit you without warning.

- Are accompanied by fever and/or a stiff neck.

- Require taking excessive amounts of pain-relieving drugs.

- Don't fit a regular pattern.

Primarily affecting men, these intensely painful headaches occur one or more times daily for several weeks or months and then totally subside for months or even years. To date, researchers have not been able to determine the cause of cluster headaches.

Other vascular headaches can be caused by fever, alcohol consumption (the "hangover headache"), carbon dioxide and caffeine withdrawal.

Headaches with an organic cause. A small number of headaches might indicate an underlying physical problem, such as a disorder of the sinuses, teeth, eyes, neck or brain. Brain tumors, a common fear of headache sufferers, rarely occur, and headaches don't appear until late in the course of the disease, usually following other neurological symptoms.

The occasional tension headache usually can be relieved with non-prescription medicines, such as aspirin, acetaminophen (for example, Tylenol), and ibuprofen (for example, Advil). A hot bath, brisk walk, or massage also are helpful.

But to treat — and prevent — the more chronic migraine and tension headaches, specialists suggest a variety of techniques:

- Stress reduction. "Headaches are a stress reaction," says Dr. Arthur Elkind, director of the Elkind Headache Center in Mount Vernon, N.Y. "Learn to reduce stress by unloading problems, anger and anxiety, modifying work habits and exercising to work off tension."

"Migraine patients, in particular, tend to be meticulous people — the type who get upset when the kids make a mess," notes Dr. John Myers of the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Houston. "They need to take a more tranquil attitude toward life."

- Relaxation techniques. These include yoga, meditation and progressive relaxation exercises in which you alternately contract and relax the head, neck and shoulders.

- Biofeedback. An effective and drug-free method of controlling headache pain, biofeedback is a process of learning through thought and will to control body functions that usually are involuntary. Increasing the blood flow to the hands, for example, diverts blood flow from the head, reducing pressure and warding off migraines. Younger patients are the best candidates; it usually won't help people who are drug-dependent.

"Biofeedback gives people control of their problem," Diamond says. He estimates that as many as 90 percent of headaches could be controlled if patients were open to and motivated to learn biofeedback.

- Drug therapies. Chronic muscle contraction headaches often occur because of underlying depression and anxiety. Anti-depressants and tranquilizers often are effective treatments. □

Where does it hurt? In the East . . .

A national study conducted by Louis Harris and Associates for Nuprin found that in the past year:

- 73 percent of us suffered one or more headaches.

- 85 percent of people 18 to 24 years old had headaches, compared with 50 percent of people 65 and older.

- 78 percent of women had headaches, compared with 68 percent of men.

- 78 percent of Easterners, 74 percent of Midwesterners, 74 percent of Southerners and 69 percent of Westerners suffered headaches.

- 77 percent of college graduates reported headaches, compared with 68 percent of those with some high school education.

- 72 percent of people earning $7,500 or less reported headaches, similar to the 70 percent of those earning $50,001 or more.

When to get professional help with the forms

You're probably wondering whether it would be better to have a professional tax preparer do your taxes. Nearly 45 percent of the USA's 101 million individual taxpayers paid a professional to help them last year, the IRS says.

Answering "yes" to these three questions is a sign you might need a pro:

■ Did you sell any major asset, such as a house or stocks? "Proper tax planning for the sale of your assets can reduce your tax burden at any level," says John Buckley, a partner at Ernst & Whinney, the accounting firm with offices nationwide.

■ Do you have income from several sources, such as investment income or rental income? The more IRS forms you need to do your taxes, the more you need professional help, says the American Association of Certified Public Accountants.

■ Do you spend a great deal of time preparing your taxes? "If you spend a significant amount of time on your tax return, you should ask yourself if it's worth it," says Bruce Gold, a CPA based in Newton, Mass.

If you decide you need help, interview several candidates and ask:

■ What are your qualifications? "Just because someone is a CPA or a lawyer doesn't mean that he can do your taxes," says Joe Palumbo, tax partner at Coopers & Lybrand, a national accounting firm. "Make sure your preparer has had a specific course in tax preparation (preferably an advanced degree) as well as recent experience in the tax department of another firm."

■ What are your references? "Ask for the name of someone in a similar tax situation who has used the preparer's services," Buckley says.

■ Will you actually prepare my taxes? If not, who will? Make sure that the actual tax preparation will be done by a qualified person, and not a greenhorn, the CPA association says.

■ What will it cost? While the fees for tax preparation are tax deductible, you should still ask up front about your preparer's fee structure.

■ Will you accompany me to an audit? If the worst happens, you should be sure that your preparer will stay by your side.

Finally, ask yourself if you can get along with the preparer, who needs "to know the most intimate details of your financial life," Gold warns.

The man who loves taxes

H & R Block's boss, Henry Bloch, is hitting his stride as 10 percent of us prepare to put our taxes in his firm's hands.

By Melba Tolliver

Henry Wollman Bloch slides into a booth, orders breakfast without the aid of a menu and, looking out on Kansas City's Country Club Plaza, gets down to business about his favorite subject — taxes.

Bloch — the 'H' in H & R Block Inc. — is in season, like Santa Claus at Christmas. The 63-year-old descendant of a pioneer Kansas City family — his grandfather was a guide with Kit Carson — can't honor all the interview requests this time of year. And strangers stop him in airports and at cocktail parties seeking his advice.

Every tax season since 1973, Bloch has been chief spokesman in a TV ad campaign giving us "17 Reasons" why his firm should do our taxes. H & R Block — spelled with a "k" to simplify pronunciation — would, we were told, pay for its mistakes and accompany us to audits.

That's still true, Bloch says. But this year the ads' focus is on refunds. A recent H & R Block survey shows that's what taxpayers want most. In some parts of the country, the TV ads promise clients free services if they don't get "the largest refunds they're legally entitled to."

Maybe Bloch hasn't won an award for his matter-of-fact, get-down-to-business TV performances, but he has our attention. In 1985, 1 in 10 taxpayers took returns to H & R Block, the nation's largest tax preparation service. That added up to more than 10 million customers, 75 percent of them repeat clients, and most of them with incomes between $20,000 and $30,000. The average fee was $45.39, and the average refund from the Internal Revenue Service was $906.

So what's life like for Bloch off-camera?

By Daniel M. Wh

HENRY BLOCH: "A lot of people prepare tax returns, but very few are in the business of it."

Meticulously busy.

Most days begin with a quick workout on a treadmill machine in his basement; occasionally he squeezes in a game of tennis. He admits he should exercise more, but laments, "I don't."

Bloch drives himself to the office and parks his navy blue Mercedes sports car in a space marked "#1." No chauffeur for this president and chief executive officer.

"People may do that in other places, but not in Kansas City," he says. "It's not our style."

Usually in the office at 8:30 a.m., Bloch heads home eight hours later with a couple of briefcases — and makes sure he leaves a clean desk behind. Even trips to the doctor or barber are never made empty-handed: Bloch always takes along a briefcase full of work. "I've always got more reading than I can do," he says.

But no matter how busy Bloch gets, he faces the same certainties as the rest of us — and taxes is one of them. He always

10 tips to help you make it through 1040 time

There's no way to make income tax preparation a pleasant chore, but to help the process go smoother, Henry W. Bloch offers these tips:

■ Keep careful records throughout the year.

■ Make certain that you have chosen the most advantageous filing status. For instance, if you pay more than half the cost of household maintenance for your home, which also is the home of your unmarried child, you can qualify as head of the household — regardless of the child's age or income.

■ Make certain you have all the forms you need for filing. The packet you receive from the IRS is based on last year's return and might not reflect your status for the current year.

■ Always keep a copy of your return in the event it is questioned.

■ Make certain you know which type of income is taxable and not taxable. For instance, money received as inheritance or as a gift is not subject to federal income tax. Life insurance proceeds received as a beneficiary also are exempt.

■ Prepare your return early and leave it for a couple of weeks and revise it if necessary.

■ If after mailing your return you find you have made a mistake, you can file an amended return within three years.

■ Read and be sure you understand the instructions for each form.

■ Be honest. Take advantage of all the tax laws, but don't be ultraconservative. For instance, don't eliminate a deduction, say for a charitable contribution, simply because you don't have the receipt in front of you.

■ Mail your return early if you have a refund due.

...es the first draft of his own taxes before handing it over to company accountants.

H & R Block headquarters on Main Street is an unassuming, three-story building in a neighborhood showing signs of redevelopment. The Block building, like the company, started small and grew.

Bloch, in his own way, is as much a pioneer as his grandfather. The business he founded in Kansas City in 1955 with younger brother Richard, now retired, was the first of its kind: a firm dealing exclusively with income tax preparation.

Today, about half of H & R Block's 2,000 offices in the USA and Canada are company owned. The rest are run by franchisees who, instead of buying a franchise, pay H & R Block a royalty on revenues. Fees average about 10 percent, but some of the earliest franchisees pay as little as 2 percent. These days, however, there are no franchises available at any price.

And the parent company's holdings have grown to include CompuServe, a computer information network, and Block Management, which sells administrative services to Hyatt Legal Services' 159 offices. In fiscal 1985, H & R Block reported net earnings of $55.4 million on revenues of $493 million.

Financial success isn't Bloch's only achievement. He already has enough prestigious awards and honors to fill an entire wall of his office. They surround family photos of four children and seven grandchildren, and a large portrait of his red-haired wife, Marion. She is the chief executive of their home in wealthy suburban Mission Hills.

"She likes things just so," he says, explaining that his wife once asked a magazine photographer to take off his dirty shoes as he entered their home to take pictures of the Blochs' French Impressionist art collection.

After company matters, cultural affairs in Kansas City consume most of Bloch's time. He's a member of the boards of the Kansas City Symphony and the Kansas City Art Institute and an associate trustee of the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art.

"We (the museum) have one of the world's finest collections of Chinese art," Bloch says, beaming as he drives past a huge black marble sculpture reclining on the museum's lawn.

In the serenity of his corner office, with its mix of modern and Oriental-inspired furniture and artful displays of Chinese vases, the self-described political conservative praises the USA tax system.

"A really good one," he says, adding that tax simplification and a fair tax are "mutually exclusive." But he adds, "Our job is to fill out returns for middle-income taxpayers under existing laws." □

There's a lot of pressure on your nest egg.

Taxes... inflation... an unpredictable economy. These days, it's hard enough to protect your nest egg, let alone depend on it to provide all the things you want out of life for yourself and your family. And the longer you wait to do something about it, the worse things are going to get. That's why it's important to start planning your financial affairs. Now.

Where You Can Go For Help

You'll find a lot of people who are eager to offer you advice. Many call themselves financial planners. But only the best have earned the right to use the marks Certified Financial Planner™ or CFP® after their names.* The CFP designation is conferred exclusively by the College for Financial Planning, an independent, nonprofit educational institution. Individuals authorized to use the designation have completed a comprehensive, two-year course of study and passed rigorous national examinations administered by the College. They have also met the College's requirements for professional experience and continuing education, and agreed to adhere to a strict Code of Ethics.

What This Means To You

The CFP designation is your assurance of excellence and expertise in financial planning. The person authorized to use it is uniquely qualified to manage your financial affairs. The CFP has the ability to assess your financial situation and make specific recommendations for meeting your short- and long-term financial goals, from buying your first home to funding your retirement.

In developing any plan, the CFP considers many factors, including income, assets and liabilities, investments, taxes, life and health insurance, employee benefits, pensions and estate planning. When necessary, your CFP consults with other specialists, such as accountants and attorneys, to provide you with the best possible advice. The result is a comprehensive, written plan—a realistic plan, based on your needs—that will help you get the things you want from life, now and in the future. Can you think of a better way to protect your nest egg?

Dare to deduct: Don't forget these when you file

By Merrie Spaeth

Tax deductions you forget or simply don't know about can cost you money.

Here are some deductions that many could take advantage of, but fail to, says W. Thomas Porter, executive vice president of Seattle's Rainier National Bank, who has a doctorate in business and is co-author of The Touché: A Guide to Personal Financial Management (Prentice-Hall, $19.95).

■ Sales tax. You can work from your records of purchases and sales tax paid based on your income, deduct the amount allowed on the sales tax tables the IRS provides. Even if you use the tables you should find the exact sales tax for ticket items such as appliances.

■ Investment expenses. You can deduct expenses resulting from producing or collecting income or maintaining income-producing property. Besides fees for investment counselors and subscriptions for books and magazines, you can deduct the cost of a safe deposit box. Don't forget travel costs to and from your broker.

■ IRAs for non-working spouse. If you're a member of the $250 contribution the IRS allows for non-working spouses.

■ Marital deduction. This deduction attempts to soften the "penalty" that tax law imposes on working and married people when their combined incomes push them into a higher tax bracket. You can claim a deduction of 10 percent of the lower of two incomes up to $3,000.

■ Charitable donations. Even if you don't itemize, you can subtract 50 percent of your charitable contributions from your taxable income. Also, don't forget that donations such as food and clothing are worth something. Keep a record and get a receipt from the charity. Also, expenses incurred working for or engaging in charitable activity are deductible.

■ Travel costs for medical care. This can be as simple as driving to and from the doctor (take actual costs or 9 cents a mile, plus parking and tolls), but if you have to go to another city, the deduction also includes up to $50 per person per night for lodging.

■ Home use. If you use part of your house as the location for a part-time business, you can deduct a portion of utilities, mortgage and other household expenses.

■ Professional expenses. Education costs necessary to keep a license current, subscriptions for technical books and magazines and dues to professional organizations are deductible. Also, don't forget the cost of entertaining clients or prospective clients.

■ Credit card interest. Your first statement of 1986 will show you how much you paid in 1985. Deduct it. □

Tax evasion: Millions play hide-and-seek

by Beverly Jensen

...s song, dance and tax acrobatic time
...n, and people in just about every
...k, cranny and income strata are pre-
...ng their routines for Uncle Sam's
...tiny. Conservative IRS estimates
...e it that if income earners had filed
...told all on 1984's tax returns, Uncle
...n's coffers would be about $81 billion
...er.

...o who's holding out?

...t could be a baby sitter, a lady of the
...ning, a gambler, an ice cream truck
...dor, a street hawker or a grandmother-
...ype who lovingly put up fruit preserves
...d made a bundle selling them at county
...s. Cash paid to lawyers, dentists, doc-
...s and other professionals for services

...rendered also might never see the light of
...day as reported income.

According to the Handbook for Internal Revenue, a training manual for IRS agents, some people in the USA routinely attempt to evade taxes through schemes such as:

- Underreported incomes.
- Unreported incomes.
- Concealing bank accounts, or having accounts in other cities.
- Hoarding cash in safe deposit boxes.
- Using fake names to conceal property ownership.
- Keeping a double set of books or failing to keep books.
- Raising or lowering amounts on check stubs.

Taxpayers also have been known to show extraordinary creativity in claiming dependents — household pets are favorites. So are deceased relatives and children who never existed.

Then there are tax shelters, legitimate and abusive, with abusive shelters being promoted by unscrupulous sellers who promise big tax write-offs on small investments. Some shelters have been ruled out as tax-fraud schemes, such as self-ordained ministers setting up bogus churches to hide their incomes.

The self-styled ministers are losing to the IRS. "That one is almost played out," says Larry Battorf, an IRS spokesman. "The IRS has won 187 consecutive cases of this kind before the U.S. Tax Court."

Other abusive shelters are simply poor investments that don't pan out, or investments that are overvalued with exaggerated tax benefits. Uncle Sam is viewing them with pitiless eyes.

Last year the IRS examined 112,000 tax returns centering on abuse of tax shelters and is in the process of collecting $2.5 billion in revenue from fines, negligence penalties, civil fraud penalties, plus taxes owed with interest. Yearly it wins 1,200 to 1,800 criminal convictions, Battorf says. Now, 377,000 returns are under examination for tax shelter abuses.

The IRS has uncovered tax shelter abuses in schemes involving master recordings, gemstones, cattle breeding, stamps, real estate deals, and movies, to name a few of thousands. Ingenious promoters keep coming up with new ploys every day. □

AMTRAK'S NEW FARES WILL HAVE YOU COMING AND GOING.

Amtrak now gives you more reasons to travel to more places.

We've just lowered our All Aboard America Fares. Now you can travel in one region for only $150 roundtrip. Two regions for $225 roundtrip. Or travel coast-to-coast and see the country in between for just $275 roundtrip.

We're also introducing a new fare for shorter distances. For any trip where a one-way ticket is over $50 and you do not change trains, your return trip is just $7.

Amtrak's new fares allow you to travel without a hassle. No advance purchase is required and if your plans should change, you can cancel up to 30 minutes before departure without penalty. What's more you get 2 stop-overs on most roundtrips and children under 12 go for half fare. Just purchase your ticket by May 30, 1986 and complete your travel by June 29, 1986.

And on Amtrak you travel in comfort and see what almost everyone else has forgotten. The country you're traveling across. So make your reservations early because seats are limited.

Some restrictions may apply, so call your travel agent or call Amtrak at 1-800-USA-RAIL.

The boss needs to hear from you
— in the right way

By Diane Cole

If you don't talk to your boss today, you might be looking for a new job tomorrow.

Establishing a dialogue with your employer is a key part of career development, experts say, and one of the surest paths to job security and enjoyment.

"Communication is really a lifeline, and if you sever or constrict it, you kill the relationship," says behavioral scientist Robert Kaplan of the Center for Creative Leadership, The Greensboro, N.C., institute researches management issues.

By talking to the boss you're more likely "to be on the same wavelength, to be better able to deal with problems," Kaplan says.

But many workers ignore this basic strategy, says New York management consultant Andrew Sherwood, citing the case of a client.

"Every morning, the boss walks right past me without saying a word," the dejected executive told Sherwood. "He must not think I'm worth a simple 'Hello.'"

Sherwood suggested his client take the initiative and greet the boss.

The result: "It turned out the boss had thought he was not a 'morning person,' and hadn't wanted to disturb him," Sherwood says. "But this simple exchange broke the ice."

After that, the two talked over a morning cup of coffee and built a relationship that has meant two promotions in two years.

Tips for getting along with the boss:

■ Ask yourself, what are the boss's "hot buttons"? What does the boss really care about? If yours has ears for the bottom line, don't expect him or her to get excited about your pet project — unless you present it in the boss's terms.

■ Learn the boss's daily rhythms, and remember that yours may not coincide with his or hers. Similarly, find out how the boss prefers to be approached — do you set up a formal appointment, write a memo, or casually knock on the door?

■ Beware of addressing the boss as someone she or he is not — a competitive older brother, authoritarian father, or nurturing mother.

■ Before starting an assignment, remember that "the message delivered is not always the message received." Make sure you understand what your boss wants, how he or she wants it, and when.

■ Don't be afraid to speak up. You'll get more credit for proposing a solution than for remaining silent when there's a problem. □

Have You Planned For The Future... When You Are No Longer Here?

When you die you must leave behind everything for which you have worked and saved. The question is, "TO WHOM?" If you have a will, you have already instructed the state, attorneys and judges to act according to YOUR wishes.

But if you don't have a will, the state will simply distribute your estate according to law. Without a will you let the state determine the disposition of your assets, the welfare of your spouse and the guardianship of your children. Probate costs, taxes and fees increase. What's worse, you rob yourself of the privilege of continuing stewardship through designated gifts.

By including The Salvation Army in your will, you can reach out with love and help to victims of drug and alcohol abuse or natural disasters, to children who are hungry, people in prison and senior citizens in search of dignity.

If you want your money to work far into the future... for your loved ones and people who need your help... send for our FREE informative booklet on wills. Write:

CHARLES OSGOOD

Nowadays it's really funny: We never see our money

What? Me, worry?

The Internal Revenue Service is planning an income tax system whereby you won't ever have to file a return — unless you want to, of course.

You will simply have your taxes withheld from your check, and at the end of the year the IRS will send you a notice telling you how much you made and how much they took. That's how simple it will be.

What makes this so appealing to people is that you won't have to fill out any forms or meet any deadlines. It all gets taken care of for you.

Does that thought make you a little nervous?

It ought to.

If this happens, it only will be one more step in a now-familiar direction. Pretty soon you will never see your money at all, either on the way in or on the way out.

More and more people are having their paycheck mailed directly to the bank, instead of getting the check themselves and physically depositing it in the bank. Even Social Security checks are being sent out that way. It means your check can't be stolen from your mailbox, and it means you don't have to remember to do anything. It all simply gets taken care of on your behalf.

A lot of banks now will handle recurring payments, such as rent and automobile payments, on an automatic basis. They will, on your instruction, send a sum of money every month to anybody you ask them to. The amount is deducted from your balance and whisked electronically into the bank accounts of your payees.

You never get a check.

You never send a check.

Is it any wonder that so many people these days feel as if they have nothing whatsoever to do with their money?

A salary is something you get for passing GO! And since you never see it, you don't feel any sense of loss when you spend it.

At least with taxes you could always feel abused and put upon, but now the IRS proposes to put that on automatic, too. All to save you trouble, of course.

*Nowadays it's really funny
We never get to see our money.
We never get to hold or feel it
They say that's so no one can steal it.
The money goes from A to B
Bypassing somehow you and me.
And then it goes to P and Q
Bypassing me, bypassing you.
They say it all gets taken care of
No reason we should be aware of
Or question if it should be so.
Easy come... and easy go. ☐*

WHAT IN THE VORLD

The clothes make the man

A psychological study of how men dress in several USA cities shows:

■ Atlanta men spend more on business clothes than men in any other city studied. That's because they're most likely to see clothes as a reflection of job status.

■ Los Angeles men tend to be very aware of physical appearance and therefore spend less on business clothes and more on sportswear.

■ Dallas men choose clothes for individuality.

■ Chicago men spend the least on business clothes. New Yorkers are second to the last.

"The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."
F.D.R.

From the time of George Washington, the inspiring words of our Presidents — which echo across the years — have stirred the hearts and called forth the best of the American spirit.

Thus, it is fitting that The White House Historical Association — dedicated to preserving the history of the Presidency for all Americans — has authorized Fleetwood to issue a landmark First Day Cover collection of the most complete set of U. S. stamps ever to honor the Presidents. Rich in design, comprehensive in scope, the Official collection of The Presidents of the United States will include forty Covers — one for each President and the White House itself.

The collection will feature thirty-six new stamps which the United States will issue on May 22, 1986: thirty-five stamps individually portraying all except the living Presidents, plus a thirty-sixth stamp for the White House. First Day Covers for President Reagan and our living former Presidents will also bear stamps selected from the new series, since no American stamp may by law portray a living person.

in nearly 50 years

Significantly, these are the first United States stamps to honor all our Presidents in nearly fifty years. And, unlike the 1938 series of which hundreds of millions were issued, only 5-million sets of the new stamps will be printed. But, only a fraction will be issued on First Day Covers, their First Editions. Thus, the new Presidents stamps will command unprecedented interest both among collectors and among millions of Americans who deeply admire The Presidents of the United States and the heritage they represent.

First Day Covers of the new stamps will receive the important First Day of Issue postmark — recording the date and place of the stamps' First Day of Issue and certifying the Covers as a limited edition which can never be issued again.

New Presidential portraits

To ensure that the collection will be an artistic tribute worthy of the stamps themselves, renowned portraitist and stamp designer David K. Stone was commissioned for the First Day Covers.

A Deluxe Collector's Album to protect and display the First Day Covers is included at no additional cost.

Covers shown smaller than actual size of 6 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches. (165 mm by 92 mm).

Inspired by the stirring heritage of the Presidency, David Stone has created portraits rich in detail and symbolism. Of special interest, the firm signature of each President will be reproduced on each Cover.

Conveniently available at modest cost

The Presidents of the United States First Day Covers will be issued only once and only as a complete collection. The original issue price is just $2.75 per First Day Cover. A deluxe Collector's Album is included with no additional charge. To reserve your collection, simply enclose a deposit of $18.75 with your application. You will be billed the balance in five equal monthly payments of $18.25 each. Or, if you use your credit card, you may order by Toll Free telephone and need send no money now. The collection will be shipped eight to ten weeks after the First Day of Issue.

Don't miss this opportunity. Please mail or telephone your order by May 22, 1986, to Fleetwood, One Unicover Center, Cheyenne, Wyoming 82008-0001 — which has been authorized to produce the Covers and to process and ship all orders.

Nowadays it's really funny: We never see our money

By Carol Halebian

What? Me, worry?

The Internal Revenue Service is planning an income tax system whereby you won't ever have to file a return — unless you want to, of course.

You will simply have your taxes withheld from your check, and at the end of the year the IRS will send you a notice telling you how much you made and how much they took. That's how simple it will be.

What makes this so appealing to people is that you won't have to fill out any forms or meet any deadlines. It all gets taken care of for you.

Does that thought make you a little nervous?

It ought to.

If this happens, it only will be one more step in a now-familiar direction. Pretty soon you will never see your money at all, either on the way in or on the way out.

More and more people are having their paycheck mailed directly to the bank, instead of getting the check themselves and physically depositing it in the bank. Even Social Security checks are being sent out that way. It means your check can't be stolen from your mailbox, and it means you don't have to remember to do anything. It all simply gets taken care of on your behalf.

A lot of banks now will handle recurring payments, such as rent and automobile payments, on an automatic basis. They will, on your instruction, send a sum of money every month to anybody you ask them to. The amount is deducted from your balance and whisked electronically into the bank accounts of your payees.

You never get a check.

You never send a check.

Is it any wonder that so many people these days feel as if they have nothing whatsoever to do with their money?

A salary is something you get for passing GO! And since you never see it, you don't feel any sense of loss when you spend it.

At least with taxes you could always feel abused and put upon, but now the IRS proposes to put that on automatic, too. All to save you trouble, of course.

*Nowadays it's really funny
We never get to see our money.
We never get to hold or feel it
They say that's so no one can steal it.
The money goes from A to B
Bypassing somehow you and me.
And then it goes to P and Q
Bypassing me, bypassing you.
They say it all gets taken care of
No reason we should be aware of
Or question if it should be so.

WHAT IN THE V'ORLD

The clothes make the man

A psychological study of how men dress in several USA cities shows:

■ Atlanta men spend more on business clothes than men in any other city studied. That's because they're most likely to see clothes as a reflection of job status.

■ Los Angeles men tend to be very aware of physical appearance and therefore spend less on business clothes and more on sportswear.

■ Dallas men choose clothes for individuality.

■ Chicago men spend the least on business clothes. New Yorkers are second to the last.

Why Are We Giving Away Famous Nationally Advertised™ Sato™ Sweetheart Watches™ for as low as $2.00

Hard to believe, but true!

As part of a nationwide advertising publicity campaign, a leading New York Jewelry firm will give away one million (1,000,000) of its most expensive Sato quartz watches—the Famous Nationally Advertised™ Sweetheart watch—for as low as $2.00 each to the first one million persons who write to the company address (below) before Midnight, March 17, 1986.

These are the same famous Sato™ Sweetheart watches nationally advertised by others in leading media for many times the price. They are the best-selling and most expensive quartz watches of their kind ever sold by this multi-million-dollar New York jewelry firm.

Each watch displays the month, day, hour, minute and second and has a precision quartz movement so powerful it never needs winding and is accurate to within seconds per month. Best of all, you can match your watch to your wardrobe by choosing from five exciting fashion colors. You can even wear a different watch every day to add "spice" to your fashion statement.

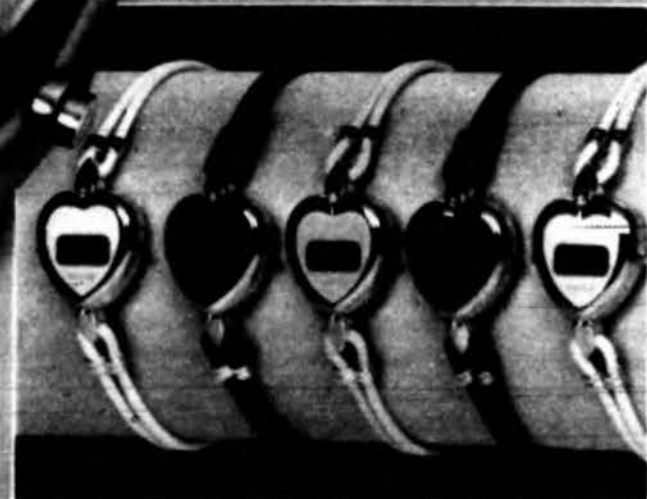

These nationally advertised Sato Sweetheart quartz watches will not be sold at this publicity price by the company in any store. There is a limit of 5 watches per address at this price, but orders mailed early enough (before March 9) may request up to 10. Each watch is covered by a full one-year money-back guarantee.

To order, mail your name and address and your choice of watch color. Take advantage of our low, low price by ordering any five for only $10 —any two for $5—or $2.88 per individual watch. Add $2 shipping and handling no matter how many watches you are requesting. (New York residents add sales tax.) Allow up to 6-8 weeks for shipment. Make

Mitchum, movies, memories

Robert Mitchum

Veteran actor, star of 'Thompson' tonight, reflects on 40 years

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Robert Mitchum, who just completed "Thompson's Last Run" for CBS, likes to reminisce about his 40 years in the movie business.

For example, he recalls the time in 1960 he worked on "The Sundowners" in Australia.

"We started up in the Snowy River Mountains, where they were building a TVA-type project. Then we worked our way down to Whyalla and 60-mile winds off the Victoria Desert raised temperatures to 116 degrees.

"We didn't have any stunt men, so they got some Irish expatriate off the docks and he was beating the tar out of me. Suddenly, the director fainted from the heat. I gave him some smelling salts and he came around. The Irishman went back to pounding me again. The director fainted again and it was a wrap."

He also recalls his first television experience, "The Winds of War," which took 11 months to film and ran for 18 hours on ABC. He says he's never seen it through and doesn't intend to.

(That miniseries was filmed before the television movie "One Shoe Makes It Murder," which also starred Mitchum, but the thriller went on the air first.)

Mitchum allows that he doesn't see much difference between movies and television except for the hours.

"I learned about the hours," says Mitchum, chain-smoking cigarettes. There are pouches under his familiar sleepy eyes and his face is beginning to slip in the direction of his collar.

"When you work on a theatrical movie you work eight hours a day. The last three days we worked on 'Thompson's Last Run' we worked from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 6 the next morning, three days straight."

"Thompson's Last Run," which CBS will telecast tonight, is a story about a convict written by an ex-convict. It tells the story of an aging habitual criminal who escapes while being transferred to a new prison to begin a life sentence.

Wilford Brimley also stars as Mitchum's boyhood chum, who stayed on the right side of the law and is performing his last job as a Dallas County, Texas, deputy sheriff when he loses Mitchum. The county quickly retires the deputy, but Brimley says, "I lost him, I'll bring him back."

Kathleen York plays the convict's niece who helps him escape. She's an ex-hooker looking for a better life for her young son.

"We filmed the prison sequence in McAlester, Okla.," Mitchum says. "We met a kid who paints and plays guitar. A well-spoken fellow. He was the leader of the riots after we left."

"One of the crew lost a good leather jacket in the prison. It was there one minute and gone the next. The guards sent a man to look for it. He was back with the coat in a minute and a half. The man had a long string of murders on his record, both in and out of prison. Talk about E.F. Hutton, when he talks, they listen."

Mitchum says John Thompson, the main character in the TV movie, is a guy who's looking at life in prison.

"A lot of these guys spend so much of their life going in and getting out of prison. So I imagine the psychology is that when they get out they have to hit it big to make up for lost time."

He says that John Carlen, who wrote the screenplay, is a former convict. "He learned to write in the writing seminar at Terminal Island Federal Penitentiary," says Mitchum.

Hooks puts directing on hold for 'Mayor'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Kevin Hooks was reluctant to quit directing to accept the starring role in the new ABC comedy "He's the Mayor."

"I was in the middle of directing every other episode of 'V,'" he recalled. "I said, 'I'm tired. I need to take some time off.' When I was home my agent called me and said he had an offer of a series lead."

"I'd turned down a number of series in recent years. So I went to Universal Studios and read for them. I got a call back but I felt it was pretty stupid of me to leave directing. It's a gamble to do a series."

Hooks, who came to prominence in "The White Shadow," turned it down.

"I was at dinner with a friend when my agent called the restaurant," he said. "It was like a conference call and they twisted my arm."

Hooks then went to his father, actor Robert Hooks, for advice. "Dad told me I had experience as a director. He said this would be good for me. I re-read the script and called Dad and said, 'Dad, I'd be crazy not to do this.'"

He stars in the Friday night ABC comedy as a 25-year-old college graduate who runs for mayor and, to his surprise, is elected. Hooks, as Mayor Carl Burke, gets on-the-job training to cope with the demands of constituents and city workers. Among the city employees is his father, Alvin, played by Al Fann.

Hooks has done 13 episodes of the show, which made its debut in January. It's near the bottom of the weekly Nielsen ratings. Last week, it finished 59th out of 67 shows.

He's cast as mayor of a city in Pennsylvania, but the exact location or name has never been mentioned. "I think it's a good thing that we don't," said Hooks. "As soon as you refer to a certain place you get letters."

Burke, according to Hooks, is extremely sensitive to the issues and to the needs of the people. "He's a very liberal kind of mayor," he said. "He's also very innovative and looks for unique ways to solve issues. They say he's a bumbling kid."

Irna Phillips queen of soaps

Pioneer, creator of six daytime dramas, kept her death secret

By LYNDA HIRSCH

Q: I always hear the name Irna Phillips mentioned when soap actors appear on talk shows. Who was Irna Phillips? — N.W., Buffalo, N.Y.

A: Irna Phillips was simply the woman who created "The Guiding Light," "The Brighter Day," "As the World Turns," "Another World," "Days of Our Lives" and "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing." Phillips was born in Chicago in 1901 and got her big break working for WGN radio in that city. She put together a series entitled "A Thought for the Day" and from that came "Painted Dreams," a 10-minute soap opera. Phillips got an offer to move "Painted Dreams" to NBC but was unable to accept it. So Phillips, no slouch, decided to retitl e it "Today's Children." Not only did she write the show but she got to act on it.

Aside from the aforementioned soap operas, Phillips also was responsible for the first major network TV soap, "These Are My Children." Another Phillips creation was "A World Apart," which had a short run in the early '70s. The most interesting thing about it was that it concerned a single woman, a soap opera writer, with two adopted children. Phillips based this on her own life.

An interesting sidelight: Days before Phillips died in 1973 she told those around her she wanted her death kept a secret. Although she died three days before Christmas, not until a well-wisher called with season's greetings on Christmas Day was it revealed that she had passed away.

Phillips still has a lasting effect on soaps today. Her proteges include Agnes Nixon, who has created soap operas from "Search for Tomorrow" to "All My Children" to "Loving," and Bill Bell, who is responsible for "The Young and the Restless."

Q: Who plays Margo Hughes on "As the World Turns"? Is she pregnant? Is that why she's leaving for two months? — M.I., Houston, Tex.

A: Hilary Bailey Smith is indeed pregnant in real life. In fact, she's been off the show for over a month. She spent a day and a half on the set shooting dozens of scenes that could be interspersed into the show. She'll be back after her maternity leave in a storyline which will involve not only her police work but coming to terms with the "affair" between her husband Tom and Barbara.

Q: I was a big fan of "The Edge of Night." I understand that some episodes are being shown in a variety of cities. I keep looking through my TV Guide but find nothing — which amazes me because my sister who lives in New York says she sees old episodes of the show all the time. What gives? — W.N., Syracuse, N.Y.

A: Your sister obviously belongs to a cable service which subscribes to the USA network. USA is showing episodes from three years ago at midnight Eastern time five days a week. If you have cable in your area but aren't a subscriber, you might check to see if they carry the USA network. Subscribing to cable just might be worth it if you're an "Edge of Night" fan. But check to make sure that USA is offered on the cable in your area. You could be sorely disappointed if it isn't.

Q: The actor who plays Ivan on "One Life to Live" looks familiar. Has he done any other soap operas? — J.T., Baltimore, Md.

A: Yes, indeed. Jack Betts has toiled on several soaps. This is his second run as Ivan Kipling on "One Life." When Robert Millr left the role of Lars Bogart on "All My Children" with little notice, Betts stepped into that role. He has also been seen on "Another World."

If Betts looks overwhelmingly familiar to you, it may have nothing to do with a soap. He was also named the actor who looked most like Clark Gable in a Life magazine article in the mid-'60s.

Q: Saw recent reruns of "Dallas" and was quite intrigued by the Mickey Trotter character. What can you tell me about the actor? — P.D., Santa Ana, Calif.

A: Timothy Patrick Murphy played the role of Mickey Trotter, a ne'er-do-well who turns good only to be paralyzed in a car accident and finally become a euthanasia victim. Daytime audiences saw him on "Search for Tomorrow" in the role of Spencer Langley. Murphy asked out of "Dallas" because he was to play the son of Laurence Olivier in a movie. "Dallas" writers weren't thrilled, but agreed to write out the character. Murphy then found out that the movie role was no longer available. By then the "Dallas" writers had devised the new plot and told Murphy they were sorry. He was recently seen in the theatrical movie "Sam's Song," produced by Michael Landon and said to be an autobiographical look at Landon's early years.

Q: What ever happened to the Chamberlain family of Quint, Nola, Anastasia and Anthony James on "The Guiding Light"? Is Lisa Brown ever to return to the role of Nola? I'm a big fan of hers. — R.A., Valdosta, Ga.

A: While Henry Chamberlain and his daughter Vanessa, who's now married to Billy, remain on the show, the rest of the Chamberlains are gone. In the storyline, Quint and Nola went on an archeological dig. If we had our way, Quint's beloved nanny Rennie would be taking care of the children, Anastasia and Anthony James, but they seem to have dematerialized. As for Lisa Brown, she's firmly ensconced in the role of Iva Snyder on "As the World Turns." Michael Tylo, who played Quint, is doing some theater work and we wouldn't be surprised if he pops up on a soap in the near future.

Q: I was wondering if it's true that ABC in New York is going to be taking "General Hospital" off the air. — A.G., New York, N.Y.

A: Absolutely not! First of all, GH has a strong hold on ABC soap viewers in the New York City area. Besides that, even if ABC in New York were foolish enough to want to get rid of GH, it couldn't. It is one of five TV stations owned and operated by Cap Cities/ABC. That means that whatever the network carries, those five stations must also carry.

I don't think you go to college for four years and act that way. People wouldn't elect him. He's not inept."

Hooks said he does not like the label "black show" for the series.

"I think we tend to insult the audience when we try to put a label on an actor or a director or a writer and say they're black or white or Jewish," he said. "What's important is whether they're good. It doesn't matter what they are. I don't think people base their viewing habits on color or race."

Hooks followed his father into acting. Robert Hooks was a co-founder of the New York Negro Ensemble Co. and founder of the D.C. Black Repertory Co. in Washington, D.C. He starred in the ABC series "NYPD" in the 1960s.

As a child, the younger Hooks appeared in the movie "Sounder." After high school he moved to Los Angeles and got a co-starring role in "The White Shadow." He also appeared in several TV movies, including "Can You Hear the Laughter?" and "Friendly Fire," and was a guest star on various series. He appeared with his father in "Aaron Loves Angela" and "Just an Old Sweet Song."

He was given a directing assignment on "The White Shadow," but the series was canceled. The show's producers, instead, signed him to direct two episodes of their next series, "St. Elsewhere." He followed that with directing assignments for "Hotel," "Fame" and "V." He got to direct his father in an episode of "V."

Hooks is planning to return to New York next week to begin rehearsals on a new play, "Jonah Howard and His Wonder Dog." He plays the son of a man running for the Senate in the production for the Negro Ensemble Co.

Consultation and Screening Exam.

Migraines Have Been Crippling Joe...

...And He Didn't Even Know He Had A Choice

But he did 12 months ago. And he still does today. Because for the vast majority of people like Joe, suffering from headaches, there is a natural alternative.

We're headache pain specialists, and every day we see people like Joe literally "crawl" into our Office and "walk" out standing tall.

It's not magic. Just the amazing results that can occur when we team our proven chiropractic procedures with the latest advances in technology.

Join the thousands of our patients who've made the natural choice. And won! Call today and schedule your no-cost initial consultation and screening exam.

Back Pain Landed Tom
 In The Hospital...

...And He Didn't Even Know He Had A Choice

But he did 12 months ago. And he still does today. Because for the vast majority of people like Tom, suffering from lower back pain, there is a natural alternative.

We're back pain specialists, and every-day we see people like Tom literally "crawl" into our Office and "walk" out standing tall.

It's not magic. Just the amazing results that can occur when we team our proven chiropractic procedures with the latest advances in technology.

Rains subside after two die

OC escapes with minimal damage, but folks advised to keep umbrellas handy

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Weather forecasters promised some relief today from the winter storm that drenched Southern California over the weekend, but they warned residents to keep umbrellas handy through Monday.

Two weekend traffic deaths in Orange County were described as weather-related, but property damage locally was modest compared to other sections of the state. Boating accidents, mudslides and blocked roads were reported elsewhere in California.

The National Weather Service

forecast only light rain and local fog for today and Monday, with afternoon sunshine considered possible. The weather service predicted no more than another inch of rain in the mountains and less than a half-inch elsewhere. A winter storm warning was posted in the Sierra Nevada.

Weather officials said the Pacific storm, which hit the coast on Friday, dumped up to 5/4 inches of rain on Southern California, with some showers falling at the rate of 1 inch per hour. The storm, accompanied by strong gusts, caused isolated wind and mudslide damage and temporarily closed the road to President Reagan's ranch in Santa Barbara County.

In Orange County, the storm left numerous roads blocked by water or debris, played a role in at least two traffic deaths and caused numerous accidents and brief power outages.

A California Highway Patrol spokeswoman said the first accident occurred at 11:35 p.m. Friday on the Garden Grove Freeway east of Main Street. She said freeway lanes were being closed because of flooding when a motorist named Jose David Alvarez, 24, of Santa Ana, was unable to stop in time. His vehicle struck a second car, which burst into flames.

The CHP spokeswoman said a woman driver in the burning car died, but her name was being withheld pending notification of family members. Alvarez was taken to UCI for treatment of moderate injuries, she said.

Launch decision possibly flawed, panel concludes

NASA agrees to pull from probe anyone involved in launch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential commission investigating the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger has determined the decision to launch the spacecraft "may have been flawed," commission Chairman William P. Rogers announced Saturday.

The commission asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration not to permit any of the people involved in the launch decision to participate on NASA's internal investigative teams looking into the Jan. 28 explosion that killed six astronauts and New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, Rogers said.

"In recent days the commission has been investigating all aspects of the decision-making process leading up to the launch of the Challenger and has found that the process may have been flawed," Rogers said in a statement issued by commission spokesman Mark Weinberg.

"Dr. William Graham, acting administrator of NASA, has been asked not to include on the internal investigating teams at NASA persons involved in that process. The commission will, of course, continue its investigation and will make a full report to the president," the statement said.

Rogers said President Reagan was advised of the Saturday decision.

In a statement issued later Saturday at Cape Canaveral, Fla., NASA noted Graham has pledged "complete cooperation with the presidential commission."

"At this point, we are awaiting word from NASA headquarters as to precisely what changes may have to be made" in the NASA's internal investigative body to comply with Rogers' request, the statement added.

Charles Redmond, spokesman at NASA Washington headquarters, said in a telephone interview, "There are an awful lot of people involved in the countdown process who are involved in the investigation into Challenger explosion."

NASA has appointed a task force, headed by Jesse Moore, the space agency's associate administrator for space flight, with several specialized investigative teams reporting to it on each phase of the Challenger mission. Several hundred engineers and technicians are involved. The task force,

Helms flies to OC for Herschensohn

Backs ex-newsmen's campaign for GOP nomination to Senate

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-North Carolina, flew to Orange County Saturday to throw his support behind former television news commentator Bruce Herschensohn in California's crowded GOP primary race for the U.S. Senate.

"I'd walk across the country for Bruce Herschensohn," Helms said at a $250-per-person reception at the Westin South Coast Plaza Hotel in Costa Mesa. "I came across this country to say to you that you can have Bruce Herschensohn in the Senate next year."

About 100 people attended the fund-raiser.

Afterward, Helms told reporters he has known the candidate since 1973, when Herschensohn worked in Washington as an assistant to former President Richard Nixon.

Helms said his friendship with Herschensohn and their similar conservative philosophies led him to endorse him over seven other candidates in the Republican Senate primary.

"I don't know the others and have not one derogatory word to say about any of them," Helms said.

The Republican candidate chosen will challenge Democratic incumbent Sen. Alan Cranston in November. In his speech, Helms criticized Cranston as "an ultra-liberal."

Helms added, "The Senate is a Republican Senate by a narrow margin." (Please see HELMS/A2)

Opera Pacific joins Arts Center season

Signs on for 28 performances in the main theater

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Opera Pacific will present "Porgy and Bess," "West Side Story" and "La Boheme" during the inaugural 1986-87 season of the Orange County Performing Arts Center, opera company and arts center officials announced.

Attempting to establish itself as a world-class impresario, Opera Pacific has signed for 28 performances at the center's main 3,000-seat theater — the most dates scheduled thus far by an organization.

Dr. David DiChiera, general director of Opera Pacific, promised audiences at the Costa Mesa arts complex an "exciting array of opera and musical productions... that will not only enhance this great center, but will launch Opera Pacific as a major cultural resource for Orange County."

The opening curtain will officially rise on the center Sept. 29 with the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Performances by the American Ballet Theatre, the New York City Opera and the Pacific Symphony have also been set for the premiere season at the $70.7 million main theater.

DiChiera, who founded and heads the Michigan Opera, took the helm of the Orange County organization about a year ago in a move to build Opera Pacific's credibility.

He will be working with a $3 million budget, half in projected ticket sales and the other half in donations, during the inaugural season at the arts center.

The first production will run Feb. 11-15 with seven performances of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," to be co-produced with nine other opera companies around the country. It will also be performed in Miami and Cleveland before coming to Costa Mesa.

Modeled after the Houston Grand Opera production that grabbed both Tony and Grammy awards, "Porgy and Bess" will be directed by Jack O'Brien and Prestige 'piques' patrons' pockets

Arts Center officials compete for dollars by rewarding donors

While the grandiose Orange County Performing Arts Center is expected to showcase some pretty big names, the complex will also display a lot of little names — along the hallways, foyers, staircases, terraces, lounges and lobbies.

Much of the $70.7 million main theater will be named after the people who contributed the most to build and endow the complex, while lesser donors will be honored on wall plaques.

Whether your name goes near the grand entrance or along a less prominent hallway depends on the size and date of the donation, says Roberta Minkler, fund-raising director for the center.

Parceling out prestige can be sensitive work and center officials treat the topic with kid gloves.

"People ask, 'Why should I make my gift to your organization? How will I be honored or recognized?'" Minkler says.

"You've got to thank your donors and think of seven other ways to thank them again," she adds. "It takes almost everything you can muster to compete in the fund-raising world, like quick thank-you letters and offering some kind of immortality by putting them on the theater walls."

Everything from the box office to the box seats will be dubbed for the people who've dug the deepest into their personal or corporate pockets for the world-class center under construction in Costa Mesa.

"For example, there will be the 'Mr. and Mrs. Jones' room, hall, or lobby," Minkler says.

Names of lesser donors will be inscribed throughout the 10-story main theater building, tentatively on acrylic pillars and wall plaques with soft lighting.

Plans for the name plaques and other forms of recognition are very preliminary as architects wrestle with the problem of keeping the rosters from looking garish.

The inscriptions are just part of the continuous pay-on-the-back awarded in the campaign that has raised more than $124 million in donations and pledges to construct and endow the first phase of the arts center

A second, 1,000-seat theater, expected to cost some $10 million, will be built after the first one is paid off, officials say.

Lapel pins, gold medallions and invitations to exclusive parties are among the giveaways, considered to be rewards for those who have contributed and incentives for those who have not.

Early in the center fund-raising game, donors were split into such categories as the "Circle of Eminence," the top sphere in a hierarchy that included smaller circles of "Distinction" and "Honor."

Those strata are now being abandoned, Minkler says, for monikers a little more down to earth.

They begin at the $1 million tier with the elite "Major Donor" class.

So far, 14 families or corporations qualify for this cream-of-the-crop status, including the prominent Segerstrom family and the Irvine Co.

What do you give a donor who forks up a million bucks or more? "Everything," says Minkler.

CM bank seizure is third for year

By the Associated Press

Federal regulators have seized Costa Mesa-based American Diversified Savings Bank, the second California savings institution takeover in the past week and the third this year.

In seizing American Diversified at the close of business Friday, the Federal Home Loan Bank said the company had "experienced a significant dissipation of assets and earnings and was found to have violated numerous regulations and supervisory directives."

Although headquartered in Costa Mesa, American Diversified has no lending operations there. Its sole branch is in Lodi, near Sacramento.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. was appointed conservator while Pacific Savings Bank, also of Costa Mesa, will take over management of the association when it reopens Monday. The bank will continue to conduct business as Surgery remains best way to treat cancer, prof claims

By G. JEANETTE AVENT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A research professor from the Boston University School of Medicine told a UC Irvine conference on cancer that although biological research is promising, more money should also be spent to develop existing technologies such as laser surgery.

Dr. Geza J. Jako, President Reagan's appointee to the National Cancer Board, said that despite developments in radiotherapy, chemotherapy and immunotherapy, as of 1986, the major method of treatment is still surgery. "In 1980, two-thirds of cancer cases were cured by surgical treatment alone," he said in a speech last week before doctors, nurses and researchers at UC's First International Cancer Conference.

Jako said he is trying to avoid giving people distant hopes about new technologies that "we've heard a lot about lately," referring to recent breakthroughs in immunological research.

"If you want to be realistic, there will be no magic drug treatment for all cancers in this century," he said. Jako said he bases his conclusion on what he has seen of the more than 3,500 research projects funded by the National Cancer Institute. "I have the opportunity to see all the reviews of cancer research," he noted.

Jako said, however, that the goal of the National Cancer Institute is to decrease the number of cancer deaths by 15 percent by the year 2000. He estimated that 40 percent of this goal can be attained by improvements in cancer prevention such as decreases in smoking and changes in nutritional habits. The remaining 60 percent can be accomplished through improved treatments.

"In 1970, chemotherapy made a great improvement in certain types of cancers. This led to a plateauing of surgeries in the '70s. All the great hopes were to cure with chemotherapy," he said.

"The problem with chemotherapy is it's toxic and carcinogenic. Now chemotherapy has plateaued and biotechnology will contribute in the next 15 to 20 years as chemotherapy has in the last decade.

"High technology is the direction of this country," said Jako. In the late 1950s, researchers developed the concept of fusing microsurgery with traditional surgery. "With magnification, a surgeon can see things better and make a better diagnosis.

"Cancer is a microscopic disease and you use compatible techniques," he said. "If you have a fine watch, you don't use a screw driver to repair it."

Jako, who pioneered laser surgery in 1970, said X-rays were discovered only 91 years ago and laser surgery is still in its infancy.

As an ear, eye and nose specialist, Jako said he used a laser to surgically remove growths from the larynx of an airplane pilot. He said he showed slides of the pilot's larynx to doctors around the world and they all agreed it should be removed. Instead, by using laser surgery, the pilot was in and out of surgery the same day, had little hoarseness and no hole in his throat as would have been the case with conventional surgery.

Jako said, however, that laryngeal surgery patients would have to stop smoking. Some were still smoking two to three packs a day and had recurrences in their cancers.

LAUNCH DECISION POSSIBLY FLAWED...

In turn reports to Reagan's commission.

In naming the 13-member commission on Feb. 3, Reagan asked for a report within 120 days.

Weinberg said Rogers decided in consultation with other panel members to ask that NASA exclude those involved in the launch decision from the task force investigation teams.

Weinberg declined to elaborate further on the statement.

Presumably the directive would apply to officials like Moore, launch operations director Bob Sieck, and Arnold Aldrich, director of the space transportation system at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. All play key roles in launch control center decisions.

A knowledgeable source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that ban would cover various people who were involved in the "checks along the road" that led to the final go-ahead command for the launch from Cape Canaveral.

The commission's announcement came as the NASA task force examined photographs and radio data here to try to learn why Challenger veered violently in the sky during the final 11 seconds before the explosion.

The commission has been focusing on several possible causes of the explosion, including the right solid rocket booster, cold temperatures, and the shuttle's external tank.

Rogers said Friday that everything except the shuttle itself, which has been exonerated, is being looked into.

Investigators have been looking at the possibility that one of the solid-fuel rocket boosters powering the spacecraft from the launch pad developed a leak that caused the fiery explosion 73 seconds after liftoff.

A 1983 NASA document shows the space agency had been concerned about the safety of the synthetic rubber seals that join the external booster segments.

The commission said the seals themselves might not necessarily be at fault, but something else might have caused them to fail.

It was 38 degrees at the time of launch, the coldest temperature for any previous shuttle launch.

15 injured as car rams into store

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A flustered motorist stepped on her gas pedal instead of the brake and crashed into a check-cashing store in the Wilshire district Saturday, injuring 15 people, officials said.

Most of the victims, who all suffered minor injuries, were hit by debris while standing inside the store on Pico Boulevard and La Brea Avenue, said police Officer Bill Justice.

Eleven of the injured were taken to local hospitals, while four others were treated at the scene and released after the 6:34 p.m. accident, said city fire spokesman Greg Acevedo.

Herschensohn himself reviewed his campaign positions, which include calls for a "flat" income tax, U.S. resignation from the United Nations, "swift and effective retaliation for acts of terrorism," and a defense system capable of "superiority over any possible combination of hostile forces that could threaten the U.S. or its allies."

CENTER PARCELS OUT PRESTIGE...

These four rooms are perched on a hill, lobby, restaurant, and performance area. The building's grand star dressing rooms are up for grabs.

Other potential namesakes include the garden entry, the building cornerstones, the 300-seat rehearsal theater, the circular driveway, the 75-foot glass facade behind the Grand Portal archway — or for that matter — even the portal itself.

They also earn the privilege of sipping a brandy or two in the center's VIP Room and become automatic members in the exclusive Gridiron Club, in which donors sign one of three I-shaped beams that will hang some 15 stories above the stage.

It's doubtful that anyone will see the names up there, but the honor still inspires "oohs" and "aahs" whenever someone takes a pen to the steel.

Perhaps the biggest perk of all is that donors, especially the heavyweights, get first crack at buying tickets to all events — in order of the amount and date of their contribution.

The next tier is the "Leadership Donor," those bearing gifts of $100,000 or more. They don't get a namesake, but they do get an inscription.

Most of the contributions in that category range from $100,000 to $300,000, Minkler says. Donors here qualify for the coveted Gridiron Club and the VIP Room.

listed in the main areas and they will be invited to certain "gala" celebrations, Minkler says.

She adds that the appreciation program is under review and subject to change.

The fund-raising campaign for the center covers only the money generated for construction and future operation of the arts complex.

Current administrative expenses and salaries, such as for Center Executive Director Tom Kendrick, are paid for by 46 separate fund-raising guilds throughout the county. More than 4,500 boosters sponsor auctions, fashion shows, casino nights and other events to cover the current day-to-day expenses.

However, those operational gifts do not qualify for the recognition given to construction and endowment donors.

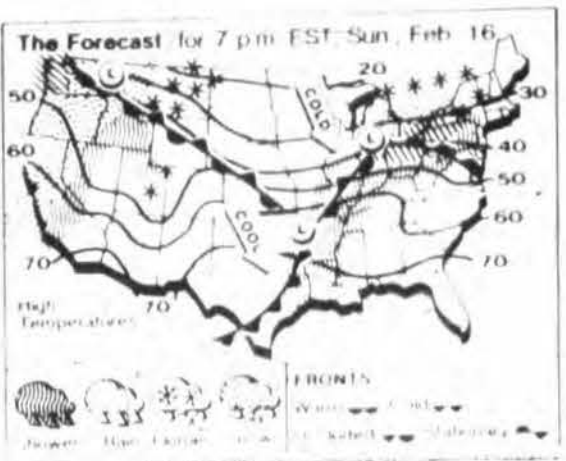

"It's sometimes hard to get it across to the guilds that if the facility is not built, there will be nothing for them to support," Minkler says.

About $12.7 million is needed to pay off construction of the main theater facility before it opens Sept. 29, forcing Minkler and her 100 "Center Campaign" volunteers to shift into high gear.

"Whether it's the first shovel of dirt or the last piece of steel, we look at these events as deadlines to get contributions or gimmicks to get people involved," she says. "We're hammering now on Opening Night, Opening Night, Opening Night."

WEATHER Light rain will persist on Coast

Periods of light rain or drizzle are expected to persist through Monday along the Orange Coast, mainly during night and morning hours, the National Weather Service reports. Skies will be mostly cloudy through Monday, but partly cloudy during the afternoons near the coast. Fog will shroud some areas at times, while local winds will gust to 15 mph. Temperatures will remain rather cool, with highs today and Monday in the low to mid 60s and overnight lows in the 50s. Area mountains will be mostly cloudy with periods of light rain or drizzle through Monday, the weather service predicts. The snow level will be near 7,000 feet and some areas experience dense fog. Local winds will gust up to 35 mph at times. The chance of rain is expected to decrease Monday afternoon. Highs both days will be 42 to 52 and overnight lows 35 to 45.

Warrants out for no-show jurors

Municipal Court Judge Robert Hutson issued arrest warrants Friday for two prospective jurors who failed to show up for jury duty.

The warrants were issued a week after Hutson and another judge ordered 20 absentee jurors into court for a civics lecture and a warning that if they missed jury duty again, they faced up to five days in jail and a $500 fine.

"I'll be having the marshals go out and get them," Hutson said. "I'm no longer trusting them to show up on their own volition to explain why they have been absent. I'll take them into custody and they can explain to me through the bars."

The tough stance on no-show jurors is part of a program designed to solve the problem of the increasing number of people who fail to appear for jury duty.

The judge refused to identify the two jurors who failed to appear for jury duty Feb. 3.

what happened," he said. "They were put in a room where they would be arrested. But neither one of them showed up again. I don't know why. Maybe it was because of illness or they are out of the county."

Last week a juror who arrived late for the judges' lecture was fined $46 by Hutson, who also initiated contempt-of-court proceedings against five others who didn't show up.

Hutson contends that his court will hold hearings weekly until errant jurors get the message that it's their civic duty to answer the call for jury duty.

In the second accident, rain-slick conditions reportedly contributed to a three-vehicle collision at 11 p.m. Friday at Marguerite Parkway and Trabuco Road in Mission Viejo.

Armand Minogue, 19, of El Toro, was injured in the accident and died at Mission Community Hospital a short time later, the CHP said.

Another teen-ager involved in the accident was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving, the CHP said.

In Huntington Beach, Pacific Coast Highway between Warner Avenue and Goldenwest Street was closed Friday night because of flooding caused by the storm, but the highway was reopened Saturday, police said.

The rain was also blamed for a minor mudslide and a fallen tree discovered Saturday along the Orange Coast.

Two Ventura County homes were damaged by mudslides Friday near Ojai in the Matilija Canyon area, where hillsides were denuded by brush fires last year.

In Los Angeles County, rain water collapsed a grocery store roof in Culver City and wind ripped off part of the roof at a residential hotel in Lancaster.

On Saturday, a lifeguard rescue boat fished six unidentified people from the water after 12-foot waves pounded their 30-foot sailboat about a quarter-mile away from Venice Pier at 3 p.m., the Associated Press reported.

Los Angeles County lifeguard Lt. Buzzy James said, "The sailboat popped up but the surf was so consistent that it wouldn't let it pop up," he said. "It washed up on the beach and it was destroyed."

One of the six victims suffered a broken arm and another a broken leg. All suffered hypothermia, subnormal body temperature, from exposure to the 57-degree water, he said. They were treated by paramedics at the Marina del Rey dock, then taken to local hospitals.

Three other people dove into the ocean before their 28-foot cabin cruiser washed onto the beach at Playa del Rey at 5:30 p.m., James said. Lifeguards pulled them from the water in good condition.

Lifeguards were trying to get the cabin cruiser off the beach before it was destroyed by the high waves, he said.

Skies began clearing and the sun came out Saturday over Reagan's ranch high in the Santa Ynez Mountains of Santa Barbara County shortly before the president departed for Washington. Mrs. Reagan was heading to Los Angeles to attend a wedding.

A Navy truck from the Reagan ranch rescued 11 to 12 mountain bikers who were stranded, later by heavy floodwaters on Refugio Road.

Southern California's annualized general unemployment rate for the year tapered off.

"We're definitely on the books on this one," said Lt. Col. William Spokesworth, spokesman for the Guard.

The Valencia area floodwater broke a 99-year-old dam owned for the Los Angeles area center with 250 inches of water, surpassing the 184-inch crest set in 1887, the National Weather Service said.

usual, maintaining its name, normal operating hours and services for Lodi customers.

Despite its limited operations, American Diversified had $977 million in assets, far more than the other two small S&Ls seized this year.

It has only two shareholders — its chairman and chief executive, real estate developer Ranbir Sahni, with 96 percent, and its president, Lester Day, with 4 percent.

Sahni was at the company's headquarters when it was seized but said through a bank board official that he had no comment.

Last September, regulators determined that 55 percent of the American Diversified assets were invested in other companies owned by Sahni, said bank board spokesman Patrick McKelvey.

"There were a lot of questionable activities going on here," McKelvey said.

The association also has failed to file reports with supervisors in a timely manner and has failed to establish loss reserves ordered by supervisory authorities, officials reported.

The company was founded in 1980 in Lodi as Tokay Savings and Loan Association. In mid-1983, when it was still a small operation with $11 million in assets, it was acquired by Sahni and embarked on a period of explosive growth.

By December 1984, the company's assets had grown by more than 7,000 percent to $792 million. It grew another 23 percent by November 1985 to $977 million.

Much of that growth was fueled by attracting brokered deposits and costly jumbo certificates of deposit.

Jumbo CDs are paid high interest rates, meaning the lender must earn more from the money to offset the extra costs.

The company also had no jumbo certificates of deposit on its books for a year and a half of two million worth, or 96 percent of the company's deposits.

The company had funded some real estate loans based on inadequate or inflated appraisals, forcing the company later to write off the loans and take $24 million in losses on them, the bank board said.

Besides the questionable lending practices and bad loans, American Diversified had failed to meet its 5 percent net worth requirement — the difference between assets and liabilities — since mid-1984, McKelvey said.

As of last November, the latest figure available, its net worth was 2.86 percent.

Normally firms are required to have three percent net worth, but because of American Diversified problems, regulators had ordered it to have 5 percent.

Making deals over a doughnut and coffee at Dad's

Balboa doughnut shop a spot for men who enjoy one another's company

They gather at dawn, coming from all over Newport Beach: Lido Isle, Linda Island, Eastbluff and Corona del Mar.

These are men who enjoy the company of men. Weekdays, holidays, rainy days and Sundays they gather without fail or fanfare.

They come to Dad's Donut Shop on Balboa Island to stand on the sidewalk and talk to each other. They've been doing it for years. They've been compared to the moneyed "gnomes" of Zurich. Dozens of them. They talk for hours. Every morning. I bet you're dying to know what they talk about.

There are rumors that, years ago, hundreds of thousands of dollars poured into the leaky coffers of financier J. David from deal talk fueled by coffee at Dad's. There have been stories of million dollar sales made in a minute over a chocolate buttermilk doughnut. But who knows for sure if the escrow ever closed?

What is fact is that many of the Dad's gang are retired, some control millions of dollars and a few are looking for work. They wear gray flannel suits and colorful running suits, but mostly they wear windbreakers. There are bankers, attorneys, carpenters and Realtors, but mostly they are entrepreneurs.

There are megabucks and some with barely a buck, but standing in front of Dad's they all look the same; they enjoy each other and no one wears a label.

But what do these men talk about? "I need a used one-ton van or a truck to haul my strawberries and ollalieberries from the fields in Placencia to the Ritz Carlton."

"What's an ollalieberry?" "It's a cross between a strawberry and a raspberry. Real sweet, they make wine out of 'em, great for dessert on ice cream."

The local berry market was a subject of conversation. Every aspect of it — from time on the vine to sugar content, "pinch faces" and "second berries" — was covered in great detail and dead earnest for about 20 minutes by a group that varied from two to four and back to two men.

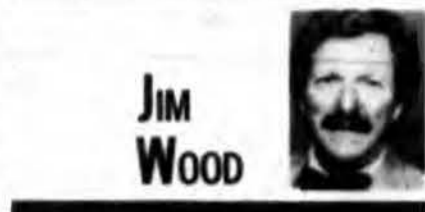

A local entrepreneur appeared and talk shifted to his newest product. "It's beautiful, absolutely beautiful, the stuff works like magic!" He then expounded on the involved process of bringing a new product to market. Rapidly the topic changed to product liability: "Lawsuits are killing the productivity of this country."

Examples were given, each worse than the preceding one and that absorbed 15 minutes of challenging conversation. Then a summation: "You want to know the reason for this whole goddamn mess? In Japan there's one lawyer for every 10,000 people; here we have one attorney for every 400. You figure it out." That killed the conversation.

A retired Superior Court judge stopped for coffee (heavy on the cream) and a bran muffin. Within minutes the issue was multimillion dollar trusts and their coming effect on the economy.

"The Golden Donors" is a fascinating book on the subject. Look what old J. Paul's $2 billion did to fine arts market." What followed was a riveting account of a northern California case where an estate of $10 million in stock suddenly became a nearly half billion dollar bequest that has all possible beneficiaries fighting tooth and nail.

That's a little of what men talk about. It's good stuff; lots of meat. They talk about cars and insurance and real estate and "deals." They talk about their children, their memories, sports and boats and often they talk about their dreams. They poke fun at each other and express concern for anyone sick or down on their luck. They don't gossip, nor talk about their wives, tell dirty jokes or get emotionally into politics or religion. Nothing is deadly serious nor is anything totally frivolous.

So if you've ever asked the question, "what do men talk about?" — now you have a better idea.

The gang in front of Dad's are true gentlemen and yet their talk has grit. It's not entirely true that men don't talk about feelings; these guys do and it's wonderful to experience.

This area could use a few more Dad's Donut shops where men gather with men without pressure or pretense. You see it happening in Europe and in small towns throughout America. It's not a bar or a social club. It's simply a place where men gather because they enjoy one another. And, at Dad's, the chocolate buttermilks are dynamite!

Lax security prompts Convair contracts ban

By the Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The government has banned General Dynamics' Convair Division, which makes the cruise missile, from receiving new contracts involving government secrets, because of repeated security lapses, according to a report published Saturday. Federal officials took the action against the defense contractor's San Diego division after security violations were uncovered by the Pentagon in a January inspection. The San Diego Union reported. Convair general manager John McSweeney said the division had received at least one contract involving classified information in the past week.

Navy fliers rescued after ejection

SAN DIEGO — The pilot and radar operator of a Navy F-14 from the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise were rescued from the Pacific Ocean 20 hours after safely ejecting from their faltering jet, a Navy spokesman said. The pilot, Lt. Russell Sklenka of Norcross, Ga., and the radar intercept officer, Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Lorenzo of Sarasota, Fla., were picked up in an unspecified area of the Western Pacific late Friday, said Lt. John Semcken. They were in good condition and apparently unhurt, Semcken said. The fliers were several hundred miles from the aircraft carrier when their F-14 Tomcat developed problems Thursday night.

Foster parents planning freeze

VISALIA — Foster parents in California plan a moratorium on child placements March 15 unless the state solves their liability insurance problems. Susan Gambini, president of the California Foster Parents Association, estimated half of the state's 14,000 foster homes may participate in the freeze on all non-emergency placements. That would leave counties to find temporary housing in private homes or juvenile halls for other children. Foster parents have been unable to buy liability insurance since the last underwriter stopped selling such policies last summer, Gambini said.

FAA to order check for cracks in 747s

SEATTLE — The Federal Aviation Administration said Saturday it will direct U.S. commercial airlines to inspect their older Boeing 747 jumbo jets for cracks in their frames. The directive, expected to be issued Tuesday, comes after frame cracks were found in the nose areas of four older 747s, which have gone through more than 10,000 takeoffs and landings. The new order expands upon one issued last month which called for checks for frame cracks on a 747 only if it was found to have a crack in its metal skin.

Apache helicopter no longer grounded

ST. LOUIS — The U.S. Army's fleet of McDonnell Douglas AH-64A helicopters resumed normal operations Saturday after being grounded since Jan. 27 because cracks were found in a tab on the trailing edge of the aircraft's rotor blades. "Based on extensive tests, the Army has concluded that the cracks pose no threat to the helicopter's safety of flight," said Howard DeMere, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command.

NASA gets 90,000 letters after explosion

WASHINGTON — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has received about 90,000 letters in response to the Challenger space shuttle tragedy and plans to respond to each of them, agency officials said Friday. "It is an extraordinary and touching outpouring of sympathy and concern and we in NASA cannot say how much we deeply appreciate it," said James M. Funkhouser, the agency's deputy director of public affairs for public services. He said that "based on a sample, 99 percent of the writers are highly supportive of the space shuttle program" despite the Jan. 28 explosion.

Duvalier wants to stay, France says no

PARIS — Former Haitian President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier says he is confident France will grant him permanent asylum, but Premier Laurent Fabius said Saturday Duvalier will go, even if it means expulsion. Fabius said France was continuing its contacts with various countries about taking Duvalier. The French have said Duvalier is only temporarily in France en route to a permanent exile, and they may even send him to the United States if all else fails. "I hope (the contacts) will lead to something very soon," Fabius said. Asked what would happen if no country could be found to take Duvalier, who fled Haiti during violent anti-government demonstrations, Fabius said: "There are judicial means." Asked if that meant expulsion, he said: "For example."

American shot dead in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — An American man who had lived in El Salvador for five years was shot dead Saturday, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said it was not known if the shooting was connected with this country's civil war. U.S. and Salvadoran officials said Peter Stryker Hascall, 35, was shot in the throat with a .45 caliber Magnum at about 3 a.m. They said the unidentified gunmen escaped. "Apparently, he (Hascall) belonged to the merchant marine," said U.S. Embassy spokesman Jim Williams.

Quake shakes Guatemala, Mexico

GUATEMALA CITY — A strong earthquake shook parts of Guatemala and southern Mexico Saturday afternoon, the Seismological Institute said. No injuries or damages were reported. The institute said the epicenter of the quake was in Retalhuec province about 80 miles west of Guatemala City. The report said the quake registered 5.2 on the Richter scale.

Diplomacy with Nicaragua creates furor

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A government decision to normalize diplomatic relations with neighboring Nicaragua created a furor in Costa Rica Saturday, with critics calling it a betrayal of the nation's interests. "They have humiliated the dignity of the republic with this agreement," said Danilo Chaverri, an opposition leader in the National Assembly. "We have received no satisfaction." Chaverri referred to Costa Rica's demand for an explanation and apology from Nicaragua's Sandinista government for the deaths of two civil guardsmen in a mortar attack on the tiny Costa Rican border town of Las Crucitas last May 31.

It's official: Marcos victorious

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The National Assembly proclaimed Ferdinand E. Marcos president of the Philippines for another six years Saturday in a wild climax to an election that the nation's Roman Catholic bishops, the opposition and U.S. observers said "was tainted by fraud."

The proclamation came shortly before Saturday midnight, after opposition assemblymen walked out of the session hall amid booing and chants of "Marcos, Marcos!" from hundreds of supporters of the 68-year-old president.

Scores of followers of challenger Corazon Aquino chanted her name as they, too, left the gallery, but their shouts were drowned out by the louder and more numerous Marcos partisans.

"There will be many legends about this campaign," Marcos said in a live television broadcast from his palace early Sunday morning. He said his victory would "protect and save the democracy of our republic."

Marcos, who has ruled the 7,100-island nation for 20 years, called the special election following increasing demands from the United States to make reforms. He said the vote would prove to his critics in the United States and at home that he still had the support of most Filipinos.

Some legislators of the governing New Society Movement party, which controls the assembly, joined the gallery in heckling their departing rivals, and assembly Secretary-General Antonio de Guzman hurriedly read the proclamation resolution as the opposition filed out.

The resolution was certified later by a roll-call vote among assemblymen left in the hall.

Assembly Speaker Nicanor Ynguez immediately announced over the public address system that "His Excellency, the president and the first lady ... are inviting all of you to Malacanang Palace." Then Marcos' assemblywoman-daughter, Imee, raised a victory sign with her fingers to the gallery and shouted "Marcos, Marcos!" The gallery broke into chants of "Marcos again, Marcos again!" the president's campaign slogan.

The proclamation came two hours after Philip Habib, President Reagan's special envoy, arrived in Manila on a fact-finding mission on the election and its aftermath.

Even as the assembly was preparing to make the proclamation, Mrs. Aquino, 53, charged "The one vote he (Marcos) does not have is the vote of the people."

The final tabulation by the assembly gave Marcos 10,807,197 votes to 9,291,716 for Mrs. Aquino, a margin of 1,515,481 and a winning percentage of 53.8.

In separately counted votes, Marcos vice presidential candidate Arturo Tolentino defeated former Sen. Salvador Laurel, 10,134,130 to 9,173,105, a 52.5 percent margin.

It marked the first time in 13 years that a successor had been provided for Marcos.

Reagan doubts election outcome

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — President Reagan on Saturday questioned the credibility of the election victory claimed by Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and blamed his forces for the violence and fraud that marred the voting.

It was a major blow to Marcos, who only hours before Reagan's statement was proclaimed the official winner over Corazon Aquino by the National Assembly, which is controlled by Marcos and conducts the only official vote count.

In a statement issued as he prepared to return to Washington, Reagan called on Filipinos to avoid violence and seek peaceful ways to bring stability to their troubled country.

"Both sides must work together to make those reforms that are needed to ensure a stable democracy, a truly professional military and a healthy economy," he said.

Mrs. Aquino also has claimed victory in the election. Her aides said she would call for a nationwide campaign of civil disobedience at a rally in Manila today.

Reagan said the U.S. delegation that observed the election has not completed its work, but "it has already become evident, sadly, that the elections were marred by widespread fraud and violence perpetrated largely by the ruling party. It was so extreme that the election's credibility has been called into question."

Poison might have lasted for months

Reports that cyanide would have dissolved Tylenol capsules' casing in error, says FDA

NEW YORK (AP) — The cyanide found in a Tylenol capsule that killed a woman could have been put there three months ago, federal authorities said Saturday, as the painkiller's maker began a review of production, distribution and employee files.

"The work we did showed no time restrictions such as were previously reported," said Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Dr.

Frank Young, referring to statements by Westchester County authorities that the poison would dissolve the capsule's gelatin casing in eight to 10 days.

Westchester District Attorney Carl A. Vergani said he was concerned such statements had created "the false and dangerous impression that people shouldn't worry about the bottles they bought before that time."

Vergani said FBI reports made to him indicated that tampering of two bottles found to contain cyanide-tainted capsules appeared to have been done during manufacture, but FBI spokesman Bill Baker would not comment on Vergani's statement.

The cyanide in the second bottle was discovered Thursday, and had come from a store just two blocks from where the first was purchased, in Bronxville, a suburb north of New York City.

Robert Kniffen, a spokesman for Johnson & Johnson, which makes the drug, said Saturday that the company was going over the production, storage and distribution process, but would not elaborate.

Johnson & Johnson also has begun reviewing personnel files of workers employed at the company's three production facilities in Round Rock, Texas, Fort Washington, Pa. and Las Piedras, Puerto Rico. He said a total of about 1,400 people were employed at the three plants.

Johnson & Johnson also has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to an arrest in the case.

Vietnam looking into reports of live MIAs

Congressmen report on discussions with Vietnamese officials

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. congressmen just back from Hanoi said Saturday that Vietnamese officials had acknowledged for the first time that missing Americans might still be living inside Vietnam, in remote areas not under full government control.

They said Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son told them three Vietnamese teams were investigating reported sightings of Americans and invited the United States to take part.

The lawmakers, who included Orange County's Rep. Robert Dornan, said Vietnamese officials also promised to return the remains of 14 more Americans missing in action from the Vietnam War, and increased to 70 the number of MIA cases on which they promised reports.

"For the first time, the Vietnamese government is investigating a large number of live sightings," said Rep.

Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., who led the nine-member House of Representatives task force on missing Americans and prisoners of war in Southeast Asia.

"For years, Vietnam maintained that no live Americans were in Vietnam," he told a news conference. "They later changed that to say there were no live Americans under their control. But now they have moved to the position where they say that there could be live Americans that they are unaware of."

Solomon, who met for three hours with Hoang, said he stressed Vietnam is not holding any Americans against their will.

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said the Vietnamese indicated there could be Americans living in the mountains or other remote areas not under full government control.

"They mentioned that there is a possibility there may be some of our Americans there on their own will and they have taken the position that if the Americans wanted to stay, they would let them stay, if they wanted to go, they would let them go."

WEDDINGS

Robin Lanting

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Shore

LANTING-LIPSET

Robin H. Lipset, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Lipset of Huntington Beach, exchanged wedding vows with William H. Lanting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry J. Lanting of Laguna Niguel, in a Feb. 14 ceremony at the Balboa Bay Club in Newport Beach.

The Rev. Tim Timmons officiated at the ceremony and soloists were Cori Lanting, sister of the bridegroom, and Janet Terrell, accompanied by pianist David Rallich. The couple greeted their guests at a reception at the Linda Isle Club House.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk and imported beaded lace with a short sleeved bodice and a low cut back. Her veil was beaded and caught up by a pearl floral headpiece. She carried a bouquet of crimson roses.

Laurie Orr was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Keli Sindelar, Kimberly Hill, Elizabeth Lanting, Carol Miller and Cynthia Crossland.

Attending the bridegroom were Alan Gelson as best man, and ushers Ted Briggs, Greg Olafson, Dan Baker and Tim McNeal.

After a wedding trip to Cancun and Barbados, the couple will make their home in Irvine. She is a graduate of Newport Christian High School and is active in political and non-profit fund-raising. Her husband is a graduate of Valley Christian High School and the University of Southern California with a degree in business and finance. He is a vice president of Lanting Realty in Mission Viejo.

SHORE-PARKER

Diana Lynn Parker became the bride of Jay Donald Shore, son of Dorothy Shore and George A. Shore of Newport Beach. The couple, residents of Rancho Palos Verdes, exchanged their wedding vows at sea aboard the luxury motor yacht Colombiana on Dec. 28. Forty guests were present at the ceremony and a shipboard reception.

The bride is the daughter of Les Malone of Redondo Beach. She wore a mushroom pleated gown of beige and peach tones.

Vicki McIntire was matron of honor and Andy Youngquist was best man.

The couple have relocated to Irvine where they are both employed in their own business, Shore Fire Protection.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrington

HARRINGTON-HARNETIAUX

Christ Church by the Sea, Newport Beach, was the setting for the Jan. 11 marriage of Tracy Lee Harnetiaux and Jeff S. Harrington of Costa Mesa. Two hundred and seventy guests attended their reception at the Costa Mesa Country Club.

Dale and Jody Harnetiaux are parents of the bride. She wore a gown of white tulle with a double ruffled chapel length train. The bodice and peplum were hand embroidered with seed pearls in a rose design. She wore a slipper satin derby style hat with an attached veil.

Sheri Wright, Rose Aquilar, Lisa

Mendes, Susan Metcalf, Karen Coyne and Kelly Hippler were her bridal attendants.

The bridegroom is the son of Costa Mesans Neil and Harnet Harrington. He was attended by Jeff Reck, Kevin Harnetiaux, Cary Mendes, Randy Harrington, Mark Calkins and Dean Book.

After a wedding trip to Vancouver and Victoria, Canada, the couple are residents of Costa Mesa. She is a student at Cal State Fullerton and is employed part time at Hoag Hospital, and he is with Rockwell International.

BRIDGE

Q.—These days, everybody seems to play all jumps as being preemptive. We would appreciate some assistance from you in clearing up this maze.—P.N., Richmond, Va.

A.—All these preemptive actions spring from a group of duplicate players who believe it is more important to disrupt the enemy auction than it is to bid their own cards constructively. That might be all right in tournament bridge circles (although even there you will get a considerable difference of opinion), but if you try it at rubber bridge you had better have a solid standing in the community.

Our basic philosophy is the same at both rubber bridge and duplicate. As far as the opening bidder is concerned, only a jump shift is forcing; jump rebids in his own suit and jump raises of responder's suit are invitational. Responder is free to pass if he has a minimum response, but he should go on to game with the slightest excuse, especially if vulnerable.

When it comes to responder's jumps, the modern tendency is to differentiate between jump raises of opener's first-bid suit, jump raises of his second suit and jump shifts. As in opener's case, a jump shift is unconditionally forcing to game. An immediate jump raise of opener's suit is a limit bid, and opener can pass if his opening bid was minimum.

Second-round jumps vary depending on whether it is a jump in opener's first or second suit. Consider these auctions:

- 1) North 1♣ South 1♠
- 2) North 1♣ South 1♠

In the first example, since the jump is in opener's second suit, it is invitational. In sequence 2, however, where the jump is made in opener's first-bid suit, it is forcing.

However, we have no objection if you prefer the old-fashioned method where all jump bids by responder were forcing. It certainly imposes less of a strain on the memory, and we are reaching the stage where anything that makes life simpler has much to recommend it.

Q.—How can I find a good bridge teacher in my area?—G.W., Cambridge, Mass.

A.—If you know a bridge club in your area, call it for a recommendation. If you don't know of one or can't find one in your Yellow Pages, most adult education centers in your area should have a bridge course. If you still can't find one, write to:

Putting the lid on toilet seat issue

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know it's awfully late to be getting in on the toilet lid squabble but please find room for one more letter. There is an important lesson to be learned.

Our parrot, Clark, shinned up the rear of our toilet tank onto our bathroom counter — his favorite roosting spot when we are in or near the bedroom. While putting the groceries away I was distracted. When I returned to collect Clark I discovered him — stiff, wet and shivering — floating on his side in the toilet bowl. He was glassy-eyed and appeared to be suffering from severe exhaustion. Clark has one clipped wing and only one foot with a full quotient of toes, so he doesn't balance very well under the best of conditions.

My husband and I rushed Clark to the animal clinic for emergency anti-stress drugs and oxygen. He stayed overnight in the incubator and recovered sufficiently so that we were permitted to take him home the following afternoon.

From now on you can be sure the toilet seat lid will remain closed in our house. — LEARNED THE HARD WAY IN MIAMI

DEAR MIAMI: Several readers wrote to tell me they were stunned to discover rare creatures in their toilet bowls. I mean beavers, rats, skunks, a raccoon and even a snake. Others reported that their cats and dogs nearly drowned in their toilets. A pediatrician wrote to say children have been known to drown in the darned things. So, folks, the verdict is clear — the toilet seat and lid should be down at all times when the toilet is not in use. Case closed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll bet you were deluged with letters from women who recounted their affairs with married men — some who were angry because they felt used, some who were bitter because they had wasted so many years and still others who cherished the beautiful memories and had no regrets. This letter will be different. It's from a married man. Your readers should know it is not only the woman who suffers. What follows is to my darling. I hope you will print it.

You didn't set out to have an affair with me. It was I who picked YOU. My marriage had turned sour. Your gentle manner, your grace and charm caught my eye. I admired your kindness to others, your ready laughter, your total unselfishness and your priceless sense of humor. As we became better acquainted you showed an enormous amount of character and intelligence. Your judgment was sound, you broadened my horizons, stretched my thinking, made me wiser, more patient and less judgmental.

We fell in love but I was not being fair to you and I knew it. I could never be divorced and we both knew that, too. When you decided we must part it nearly killed me. Again you were the strong one.

I still get misty-eyed when I hear our favorite songs. When I catch the scent of your favorite perfume I melt. I miss you desperately and always shall. How foolish to believe that it is only the woman who suffers. This married man will never get over the great love of his life that came along too late. I am sure there are others like me. — WEST COAST MEMORIES

DEAR W.C.M.: Your letter could have been written by men on both coasts and dozens of cities in between. Thanks for sharing.

ANN LANDERS

HOROSCOPE

Monday, February 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What you have been waiting for finally "arrives"! Focus on surprises, trips, visits, independent new starts in new directions. What was lying moribund will now be alive and kicking. Love replaces ennui.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You find "different" ways of earning money. Sales ability is heightened, powers of persuasion work to your advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Aries message for valuable hint. Emphasize independence, courage of convictions, willingness to get to heart of matters. Personal magnetism rating soars. Vigor returns, you'll be vital, alert, dynamic.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Consultation with family member results in unusual revelation. Secrets involving money come to forefront. Air is cleared, you'll be stronger as result. Intuition serves as reliable guide. Aquarian plays role.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your "performance" is outstanding -you are on winning track and could hit financial jackpot. Focus on desire, sensuality, speculation, popularity, invitation to prestigious affair. Sagittarian plays role.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus on business, career, details, clear instructions relating to rebuilding program. Surprise visit could include relative long absent. Dig deep for information, give full rein to intellectual curiosity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Philosophical concepts command attention. Gain indicated through reading, writing, attending lectures. Learning process is stimulated. Member of opposite sex is attracted and will make no secret of it.

Cambodian whose life led to 'Killing Fields' now U.S. citizen

By KIM MILLS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Dith Pran, whose ordeal in the Khmer Rouge work camps of Cambodia inspired the film "The Killing Fields," was sworn in Thursday as a U.S. citizen, a move he says will help his mission of bringing peace to his native land.

"I'm glad I made it. My dream came true," he said to the judges, immigration officials, news media and 336 other new citizens gathered in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn. "Everybody likes to find freedom. I have found it. I'm very grateful to the people of United States of America." Dith then said a phrase in his native Khmer, which he translated as "Long live freedom." The courtroom resounded with applause. After Cambodia fell to the communist Khmer Rouge in 1975, Dith spent years in labor camps, slaving 14 hours a day for a spoonful of rice. Any knowledge of politics would have guaranteed death, so Dith pretended he had been a taxi driver before the war, instead of translator and factotum for then-New York Times correspondent Sydney Schanberg.

"I make myself a quiet man, like a Buddhist monk," he said later. Dith's life was the basis of Schanberg's article "The Death and Life of Dith Pran," which was adapted into the Academy Award-winning movie "The Killing Fields." The film ends with Dith's escape to Thailand in 1979 and reunion with Schanberg, who had spent years searching after Dith was turned out of the French Embassy in Phnom Penh because he did not have a Western passport.

Schanberg was not present for Thursday's ceremonies because he was out of town, Dith said.

Their relationship, he said, is "much closer than before. First he was boss, then we became friends, now we are like the same blood."

Today, Dith, 42, lives a quiet, American-style life in a rambling Victorian house in Brooklyn. Two of his four children are in college, his wife works at a bank.

Dith works at the Times as a photographer, but that is only his job. More important, he has a mission.

In his living room on a recent evening, eating Cambodian spring rolls and American potato chips, Dith described his travels, trying to raise money for the Cambodians who are still starving and pleading for the Vietnamese to relinquish control of the Indochinese nation.

While the Khmer Rouge no longer control the country, they and other anti-Vietnamese military groups carry out insurgent attacks from remote bases. Civilians are often forced to flee, and the result is that 250,000 Cambodians live in squalor along the Thai-Cambodian border.

Since the film's release, Dith has hardly had a day off. His "weekends" generally fall in the middle of the week, and he almost always spends them giving lectures to college students around the country.

Even after years of American food and medical care, Dith continues to suffer: He has problems with his feet and with the teeth he didn't lose to malnutrition. He still has nightmares, sometimes flailing his arms and striking his wife, Ser Moenun.

Dith put off U.S. citizenship for five years because, he said, he didn't have enough time to stand in lines. Thanks to a little help from friends in the State Department and Sen. John Glenn, Dith's papers were pushed through more quickly than usual.

At a news conference after his swearing-in Thursday, Dith read a handwritten letter from Glenn, D-Ohio, which said: "Congratulations. A great day for you and our country."

Dith said he can now get a U.S. passport. As a United Nations goodwill ambassador, he will go to Europe this summer to raise money for refugees and make a documentary film.

And Dith said he would go back to help his people and to see his sister and 68-year-old mother, Meak Ep. The rest of his family was killed in the war or died of starvation.

"I'm a special messenger and carry the word," he said. "I want peace in Cambodia, and I want to go back."

NEWS NOTES

Big Brothers/Sisters to honor volunteers

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Orange County will honor its volunteers and sponsors during the national Big Brothers/Big Sisters appreciation week this week.

During the week, activities will be directed toward recruiting new volunteers to provide Big Brothers for the 124 boys now on the agency's waiting list.

The growing number of single-parent families nationally — 25.7 percent of all families in 1984 — can be expected to create a demand for Big Brothers and Big Sisters that compounds an already critical need.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Orange County fills this need by matching men and women volunteers with young boys and girls who live in single-parent or group homes.

Volunteers are asked to spend from four to six hours a week with their match for at least one year.

For more information, call

Arts festival entries

Jurying for the 1986 Festival of Arts is scheduled for Saturday, March 29, in Irvine Bowl park, 650 Laguna Canyon Road, Laguna Beach.

Those wishing to exhibit this summer should take three pieces of their current work, created within two years prior to jurying date, to Irvine Bowl between 7 and 10 a.m.

Only artists who have lived at least one year in the following zip code areas are eligible to apply: 92624, 92625, 92629, 92651, 92656, 92660, 92661, 92662, 92663, 92672 and 92677 (the coastal strip from Newport Beach to San Clemente.)

To prove eligibility, a candidate must produce, upon request, such items as a driver's license, rent receipts, property tax receipts or a voter registration slip.

Jurying will take place between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., after which artists should pick up their work. Deadline for pickup is 5 p.m.

A fee of $5 per medium submitted will be charged. There is no limit to the number of media that can be entered, but three works in each medium must be submitted.

The judging procedure involves scoring each candidate's work on a scale of one to 10. The highest possible score is 70.

Scores will be tabulated and results posted as soon as possible. Successful candidates should be prepared to display a comprehensive selection of current work on the Festival grounds during the run of the event.

Further information is available by calling the Festival of Arts office at 494-1145.

OBITUARIES

'Dune' author Frank Herbert

MADISON, Wis. — Science-fiction writer Frank Herbert, whose best-selling "Dune" told of a harsh desert planet and its people, the intrigues of an interplanetary empire, and a mysterious spice that made a young duke able to see the future, has died at the age of 65.

Herbert, of Mercer Island, Wash., died Tuesday at University of Wisconsin Hospital of a blood clot near his lungs while recuperating from cancer surgery, said hospital spokeswoman Christine Chantry.

He had been working with his son, Brian, on the seventh novel in his "Dune" series and several other projects at the time of his death.

"Dune," Herbert's best-known novel, has been translated into 14 languages and has sold more than 12 million copies since it was published in 1965. It was the first book in what began as a trilogy and grew to six novels, and became a cult favorite.

His first novel, "Dragon in the Sea," was published in 1955. "Dune" was rejected by 20 publishers before one accepted it. In all, he wrote more than two dozen books.

Herbert's latest "Dune" novel, "Chapterhouse: Dune," hit the bestseller list as soon as it was published last year.

He was the Seattle Post-Intelligencer's education writer from 1969 to 1972, when he quit to write novels full time.

Makeup artist Ben Nye
SANTA MONICA — Ben Nye Sr., the makeup artist who enhanced Elizabeth Taylor's beauty and created movie monsters for "The Fly" and "Planet of the Apes," has died.

He was 79.

C. Jane Keene of Newport Beach

Private services have been scheduled for C. Jane Keene of Newport Beach, who died Monday at Hoag Memorial Hospital. She was 65.

Mrs. Keene, who was born in Saginaw, Mich., had lived in Newport since 1950. She was the wife of attorney Galvin R. Keene, who survives.

Also surviving are two sons, Thomas and Timothy; her mother, movies, including "South Pacific," "Cleopatra," and "The Sound of Music" in a career that spanned 23 years at the old Fox studios and 20th Century Fox.

May O'Brien Graham of Saginaw; a brother, Kenneth O'Brien of Florida, and four sisters — Donna Carnie of Costa Mesa, Helen Mannion of Saginaw, Alice Williams of Detroit and Rooth Moored of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Arrangements are being handled by Pierce Brothers Bell Broadway Mortuary of Costa Mesa.

He joined the studio in 1944, after first working with David O. Selznick on such films as "Rebecca" and "Gone With the Wind."

Nye's son, Dana, said he believes his father may be best remembered for the latex mask he made for actor Al Hedison in the 1958 horror movie, "The Fly."

He created "Mellow Yellow," a makeup widely used in the industry to mask pimples and bruises, and pioneered makeup especially for black actors in the early 1960s.

After retiring from 20th Century Fox in 1967, Nye started his own line of theatrical cosmetics.

Actor Aherne

VENICE, Fla. — Actor Brian De Lacy Aherne, who portrayed a classy British gentleman opposite leading ladies such as Marlene Dietrich, Katharine Hepburn and Bette Davis, died Monday. He was 83.

He came to Broadway from Great Britain in 1931 to portray Robert Browning opposite Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

On the screen, he appeared with Miss Dietrich in "Song of Songs" in 1933. He ended his film career in 1967 with "Rosie," which co-starred Rosalind Russell.

His 1939 marriage to actress Joan Fontaine ended in divorce in 1944. He wed Eleanor Labrout two years later.

Aherne published his autobiography, "A Proper Job," in 1969.

Researcher Menard

LA JOLLA — Dr. H. William Menard, former director of the U.S. Geological Survey and a pioneer in ocean research, died of cancer Feb. 5. He was 65.

Menard, a professor of geology at Scripps Institution of Oceanography, led or took part in 25 deep-sea expeditions since 1950, mainly in the Pacific Ocean. He and his colleagues discovered the Mid-Pacific Mountains, a 12,000-foot-high, 2,000-mile-long undersea mountain range.

President Carter appointed him director of the U.S. Geological Survey in 1978. Menard published more than 100 scientific papers, wrote six books and edited two.

Irish campaigner

DUBLIN, Ireland — James Dillon, a former Cabinet minister, died Monday. He was 83.

Dillon was the son of John Dillon, a prominent campaigner for Irish independence. He entered politics in 1932 as an independent, but a year later merged his National Center Party with another group to form Fine Gael.

Dillon quit the party in 1942, and was elected to the Dail, Ireland's parliament. He became agriculture minister in 1948, and rejoined the Fine Gael in 1951. He served as party leader from 1959 to 1965, and retired in 1968.

Set designer Moyer

LOS ANGELES — Ray Moyer, who began his film career in 1919 as a prop man and won three Academy Awards for designing the sets of "Sunset Boulevard," "Samson and Delilah" and "Cleopatra," He was 87.

Saved Jews in WWII

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Paul S. Boritt, a Hungarian who helped save hundreds of Jews from Nazi concentration camps during World War II, died Feb. 3 after suffering a heart attack. He was 82.

Salvation Army chief

LONDON — Frederick Couitts, world leader of the Salvation Army as its eighth general from 1963 to his retirement in 1969, died Feb. 2. He was 86.

Couitts was commissioned as a Salvation Army officer in 1920. He died in a London hospital after a brief illness.

Latvia leader

MOSCOW — Jan Kaliberzin, Communist leader of Latvia for 19 years after the Baltic republic was absorbed into the Soviet Union in 1940, has died after a long illness. He was 92.

Kaliberzin became head of the Latvian Communist Party in 1940 and served as its first secretary until 1959. He then became president of the republic until his retirement in 1970.

 MODEL: Donna Wolf
 MAKEUP: Joleen Moodie
 HAIR: Ramon Sassini of Roga's

Donna Wolf and her husband Charles, a teacher at Estancia High School, are expecting their first child April 4. The "cover girl," who is an account executive at the Daily Pilot, plans to work until March 31.

Donna models three ensembles from Angels and Cherubim that permit moms-to-be to continue their careers and stay in step with fashion.

"Designer's Choice" is an all-wool deep bluejumper worn with matching jacket and a white acetate blouse made with a detachable tie.

Spring smart is the Oliver, Pease white linen/cotton blend jacket and short sleeved brightly colored top worn over a Ma Mere pleated skirt.

The pleated skirt looks equally great with a white on white blouse topped off by a navy brass-buttoned Ma Mere jacket.

MAKEUP: Joleen Moodie.
 HAIR: Ramon Sassini of Roga's.

Maternity wear has become fashion for many working women, and responding to the needs of a large work force of women are the designers and manufacturers.

Suitable selections are available for professional women on the way up as their waistlines go out. The mother-to-be no longer needs to sacrifice style in her temporary wardrobe. Fabric, line and color deliver goodlooking ensembles for pregnant women on the job.

"A lot of people come in and don't realize they are looking at maternity clothes," said Charlene Kaufman of Angels and Cherubim in Fashion Island's Atrium Court. Charlene has experienced maternity wear from both sides of the rack. She and her husband Michael, co-owners, are the parents of six children.

"Maternity clothes are now terrific... more stylish and very functional... eight or nine years ago it wasn't like that. People designing now are women who have had babies," said Charlene.

Mix and match coordinates, important to any woman building a career wardrobe and making fewer purchases create more outfits, are available for the pregnant woman and are stylish enough to be worn after pregnancy.

The big shirts and long sweaters in a woman's existing wardrobe can often be teamed with elasticized pants and skirts that will be necessary by the third or fourth month.

Shoulder pads in the big shirts or jackets will give the appearance of a smaller waist.

Select office wear that is made from good fabric. The attire can be made dressy and bring the attention to the face with a scarf, pearls or large dramatic jewelry for evening wear. The simple styles will be better and more sophisticated.

Another must for maternity career dressing is the jumper. Flattering to the full-bottom figure is the empire style while the dropped waist style will enhance a fuller-busted figure. Add a pretty soft fabric blouse with a tie or high neck and jacket for work for a smart work look or wear blouseless in the evening with a glitzy pin.

With the variety of colors available in maternity wear, there is no reason to start a new color scheme. The pregnant woman can maintain her hard-earned personal fashion identity and not feel self-conscious about her changing body shape while in the work place.

Clues lead fund-raisers to gala party

Give members of Stage Door Chapter a clue that a fund-raiser for the OC Performing Arts Center is being held and they go for it.

Last Sunday in Irvine some 100 persons loaded into 25 cars and were hot on the trail for the secret destination of a cocktail party where prizes would be given for the first ones in.

The group gathered at Turtle Rock Community Park where passengers in each car were given a written clue that would lead them to the next clue. After seven stops around town, the final clue directed to the party site — the Senior Citizens Center on Sandberg Way.

The first car to make it in after almost two hours was occupied by Dick and Noreen Peschke, Roger (driver) and Phyllis Shafer and Joy Owens. Their prize was a bottle of champagne for each.

"It really was a lot of fun," said Bob Cristiano. "A lot of the chapters are having mini-fund-raiser to make money for the Center. It was a pleasant way to spend a Sunday afternoon," said wife Judy Cristiano.

After much chasing about and unscrambling the clues the group of about 120 was ready for drinks and appetizers prepared by members. To make it more fun members had acquired door prizes that were awarded to lucky ones.

Twin sisters, Doris Pascale and Daphne Walker entertained with piano, songs and a little soft shoe.

"Everybody had a ball. It was different and the group said they wanted to do it again next year," said Evelyn Willis, ways and means chairman for the treasure hunt.

Among those "Sherlock Holmeses" solving the mystery were Guild chairman Joan and Ken Stover, Evelyn's husband John Willis, Carol and Kent Wilken, Pat and Julian Pinz, Elaine and Jack Delman, Thelma and Ridge Friedel, Jean and George Cook, Janet and Brian Dawson, Dorothy and Jack Curtis, Marie and Jean Suits, Lorraine Allison and Bill Engel, Corinne and Norman Rostoker and Pat Rowley, chairman of the guilds board, and husband Bill.

center's exec director. Tickets to the presentation at Baxter's Street in Newport Beach available by calling 673-9435.

Dr. George Peter and Arlene Cheng have been installed as presidents of the Orange County Chinese Club. Dr. Cheng has retired from his ophthalmology practice in Los Angeles and they are both involved in OC charities. They are founders and endowment members of the OC Performing Arts Center and founders of Opera Pacific, where he is a board member.

Dr. Lock Gee Ding of Newport

Beach has been appointed chairman of the club's housing project and within the next three years, a house will be purchased or built to house OC Chinese senior citizens who are in need.

MEETINGS: Barbara McCarter will entertain for Spylglass Hill Garden Clubs Wednesday coffee. Elaine Lynam of Fleur de Lane in Costa Mesa will discuss and demonstrate fresh flower arranging.

Laura Heiman, a mezzo-soprano, will headline Harbor View Hills Philharmonic Committee's Tuesday morning meeting being held in the Corona del Mar home of Mrs. Robert Jenkins. Mrs. Patrick Nolan, 640-4027, has information about membership in this group.

OWLS will meet 11:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Officers' Club, El Toro, for the annual fund-raising silent auction. Members also plan a March 12 winery tour to Temecula with time set aside for antiquing and shopping. Jackie Cook, 838-0063, has details.

Huntington Beach Christian Women's Club meets Feb. 26 at Francois', 18151 Beach Blvd. Reservations (due by Thursday), child care information and details on the 11:45 program available by calling 846-8160 or 898-6811.

CALENDAR

A FIRST: Two-day fashion benefit. SCR play tabbed by LA critics

From staff and wire reports
LOS ANGELES — South Coast Repertory's production of "Blue Window" received five nominations by Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle for the group's 17th annual awards honoring achievement in theater.

"My One and Only," an incarnation of the 1927 George Gershwin musical "Funny Face" at the Ahmanson Theater, topped all stage productions with seven nominations. They included mentions for distinguished production, direction (Tommy Tune and Thommie Walsh), performance in a leading role (Tune), scenic design (Adrienne Lobel and Tony Walton), costume design (Rita Ryack), musical direction (Jack Lee), and choreography (Tune and Walsh).

Tied with "Blue Window" at five nominations apiece are Macheth Productions' "Berlin to Broadway with Kurt Weill"; "Foxfire" with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy at the Ahmanson; Camelot Artists' "Romeo and Juliet"; and "To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday, seen at the Pan Andreas.

In all, 81 nominations were announced for 1985 productions. Seventeen productions in large theaters received 46 nominations. Twelve Equity Waiver shows got 35.

Awards will be announced and presented April 7 at a dinner at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel.

'Kean' premieres in Laguna; kids play at SCR

An epic comic biography of a stage legend at the Laguna Moulton Play house takes the spotlight this week while South Coast Repertory turns its Second Stage over to its youngest actors for a weekend.

The West Coast premiere of "Kean," starring the Moulton's managing director Douglas Rowe, opens Thursday in Laguna. Meanwhile SCR's Young Conservatory Players will offer the improvisational entertainment "Who? What? Where? When? Why?" for four performances Saturday and Sunday.

Rowe, whose acting talents were last displayed in the new play "Thornhill," will enact Edmund Kean, a highly successful, womanizing actor who finds himself nearly going mad because he is unhappy with his station in life and the fact that he can't seem to separate himself from his stage roles. Kean's producer-director Arthur Lewis is staging the production, which also features Cynthia Walker, Adam Williams, Ralph Richmond, Jennifer Pajor, Dennis O'Donnell and Fred Ballotta.

TOM TITUS

"Kean" will be presented Tuesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 and March 16 at the Moulton, 606 Laguna Canyon Road, Laguna Beach. Call 494-0743 for ticket information.

Audience participation is a major feature of "Who? What? Where? When? Why?" which involves 19 young actors from 13 to 17 years old performing skills on the basis of suggestions from the audience. YCP director Diane Doyle and co-directors Robert and Craig Atkins are among the improvisational show.

Performances will be given Saturdays and Sundays at 10 a.m. at the SCR Theater, 655 Brea Center Drive, Costa Mesa.

Reservations are taken at 957-4033. Elsewhere around the county, stage productions range from "Hamlet" to "The Odd Couple," both of which are wrapping up abbreviated two-week end runs.

UC Irvine's production of "Hamlet," set in 1910 with a teenage hero, gives its final performance Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Village Theater on the UC campus. Reservations are taken at 856-6617.

Neil Simon's "Odd Couple" closes out for the Brea Theater League with stagings Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Curtis Theater in the Brea Mall on Imperial Highway. Call 996-6283 for ticket information.

The balance of the theatrical lineup in Orange County sees these productions continuing their respective engagements.

"The Gingerbread Lady" at the Irvine Community Theater, Turtle Rock Community Park on Stony Hill Road off Turtle Rock Drive, Irvine (857-5496), Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through March 8, with a matinee next Sunday at 2 p.m.

"El Grande de Coca Cola" at the Newport Theater Arts Center, 2501 Hill Drive, Newport Beach (949-7881) Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through March 11.

"A One Together" at the Harbor Dinner Playhouse, 3503 S. Harbor Blvd., Santa Ana (949-5511), nights except Mondays at varying curtain times through March 30.

"The King and I" at the Lillian Hellman Theater, 690 E. Camino Real, Laguna Hills (949-461-1111) except Mondays at 8 p.m. curtain times through May 25.

"I Do, I Do" at the Grand Terrace Theater, 11111 W. 11th Way, Anaheim (714) 948-1111 except Mondays at 8 p.m. curtain times through March 23.

"Hello, Dolly!" at the San Juan de los Rios Dinner Playhouse, 100 Ave. Pico, San Clemente (949-9550), Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. Sundays at 2:30 p.m. until April 1.

"Robin Hood: The Musical" by the Lullwater Civic Light Opera at Pioneer Amphitheater, 11000 N. Orange in Temecula, (951) 671-1111.

(879-1732) Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. Sundays at 2:30 until March 2.

"Guys and Dolls" by the Buena Park Civic Theater at Buena Park High School's auditorium, Magnolia Avenue at Academy Way in Buena Park (821-1010) Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through March 15.

"The Mousetrap" at the Garden Grove Community Theater, Chapman Avenue at St. Mark's Circle, Garden Grove (897-5122), Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. Sundays at 2:30 through March 1.

"Babes" at the La Habra Children's Theater, 311 S. Euclid Ave., La Habra (213-694-1011), Fridays and

Fans' nominees for top stars, shows revealed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Nominees for the People's Choice Awards, a popularity contest in 19 categories, were announced Thursday with Clint Eastwood, Michael J. Fox and Sylvester Stallone the candidates for favorite film actor.

The awards are the result of a Gallup Organization poll sampling which the officials say is representative of more than 194 million people 12 years of age and over. Officials did not say how many people actually were polled.

The People's Choice Awards, in their 12th year, often reflect different choices from critics and professional peer groups. None of those nominated for favorite movie actor in cluded Academy Award nominations, for example.

Another Gallup poll will determine the winners, to be announced at ceremonies in the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium March 11. The show will be broadcast on CBS-TV on 9-11 p.m.

Three nominees were announced in each category.

Favorite Female Television Performer: Jane Fonda, Linda Evans, Barbara Bush.

Favorite Male Television Performer: Bill Cosby, Don Johnson, Sam Sells.

Favorite Young Television Performer: Gary Coleman, Emmanuel Lewis, Ricky Schroder.

Favorite Television Comedy Program: "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "Family Ties."

Shuttle blast galvanizes student to break silence

To the Editor:
I am a subscriber to the Daily Pilot and have enjoyed your paper for many years. Jan. 28 the nation suffered a terrible tragedy and we all grieve, but perhaps the most striking is the grief felt by our nation's school children.

As a teacher, I did what thousands of my colleagues did: prepared my students for this, the most personally compelling voyage, made so because of the inclusion of a real teacher, someone who schoolchildren and adults alike could identify with.

Anticipation was high the students prepared, and then... devastation so sudden and complete that we were shaken to the core. The students, even now, are confused and distressed, trying desperately to understand and come to grips with a tragedy that even adults cannot understand.

The attached essay was written by one of my students in the Communicatively Handicapped Program, a boy who has never been able to compose even the briefest of written paragraphs. Until now.

Roy composed and wrote this himself at home; it was not part of an assignment but something he felt he must do to help himself cope with a tragedy he cannot understand. It has been typed exactly as it was written, with spelling, syntactic and slight factual errors. But it is Roy's, and it is from the heart.

I promised Roy I would send it to you

On January 28, 1986 the space shuttle blew up in the ocean at 8:38. I was in my history class. The teachers and the students at Yorba Junior High School were shocked! The hole world knew the space shuttle blew up to pieces in the ocean. The teacher and the space people and seven another people blew up in the space shuttle too. The people in the grandstand were happy to see the space shuttle go off. The people were very sad to see the space shuttle blow up. And the people were crying to see the space shuttle blow up to pieces in the ocean. The space shuttle people give the teacher an apple to go to space. In the "Extra" magazine the space shuttle take off in the space issue. The teacher was going to take lesson to go to space. In Florida the weather was year bad to lift the space shuttle off the ground. The another teacher didn't want to go to space forever. The teacher is from New Hampshire. The another teacher is from Ohio. The end. Very sad story.

Seven 'dared magnificently'

To the Editor:
As a proud American and the son of immigrants to this great land of liberty, I am deeply saddened over the tragedy which befell the space shuttle Challenger on its launch from the Kennedy Space Center shortly after 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28.

The thrill of Mission Control saying "Challenger — go with throttle" was shattered, ironically, when I heard them say — "no down link" obviously a major malfunction. What has happened and why? It is undoubtedly not known for some time. A fiery ball of flame spiraling in mid-air. A shower of sparks falling for the next hour, mounting the $1.2 billion space rock.

I wanted it happen and didn't believe it. I only wish it could have been a bad dream. Our collective hearts are in shock over the loss of those brave seven who dared and gave their lives for this great land.

America and the world grieve when heroes who perished — Charles Francis Smith, Christa McAuliffe, Ronald McNair, Ellison S. Onizuka, Judith A. Resnik, Dick Scobee, and Challenger pilot Michael Smith.

While heading for the ultimate adventure, these seven recognized the danger of the mission they chose. They were adventurers, riding a pillar of flame, daring and brave. They were venturing out into space — to discover things old. They were pioneers who were first dreams performing great deeds.

A tribute to America's finest — the seven who, with black Japanese astronaut Christian, few — they laid magnificently. By assuming the risk they have contributed immeasurably to the good of all mankind. Although moments of sadness happen all too often, we must take risks so all in our society can benefit. Pessimists say — this catastrophe will have an adverse effect on the space program. I don't believe it, for we must continue our quest in space as an obligatory tribute to the magnificent seven.

We must also admonish the youth of our nation — not to despair — not to fear — not to turn away from the frontiers of space, for our hopes and journeys must continue. As I mourn today, I recall the personal credo of Albert Einstein, whose complex, yet simple theory of relativity (EMC²) gave birth to the space age.

"Strange is our situation here upon earth. Each of us comes for a short visit, not knowing why, yet sometimes seeming to divine a purpose. From the standpoint of daily life, however, there is one thing we know: 'That Man is here for the sake of other Men.' Above all, for those upon whose smile and well-being our own happiness depends, and also for the countless unknown souls with whose fate we are connected by a bond of sympathy."

"Many times a day I realize how much my own outer and inner life is built upon the labors of my fellow men, both living and dead, and how earnestly I must exert myself in order to give in return as much as I have received."

If we assume that it's every man for himself, then that is what it's going to be. I personally believe that we are all in the same boat and on the same spaceship that we are all equal, that thinking of and helping others is just as important as thinking of and helping ourselves, and that when we hurt others, we hurt ourselves.

James Thurber said it best: "All men should strive to learn before they die what they are running from, and to, and why."

Obliging Soviets free man who didn't do any wrong

If one can take leave of Manila and Johannesburg for just a moment, in search of a trivial pursuit or two, I like the one about the concert at Spaso House, which is the residence of the American ambassador to the Soviet Union, Arthur Hartman being the incumbent.

In 1979, Vladimir Feltsman was 27 years old and was taking the music-loving world by storm as a pianist. But in addition to being an artist, he was also a Jewish dissident who asked permission for himself and his wife to leave the Soviet Union and go to Israel. The Soviet government answered this request by, in effect, closing the lid over his piano. Suddenly there were no invitations to play.

Ambassador Hartman recently organized a concert at Spaso House to which he invited a couple of hundred people. And what do you know, some "vandals" broke into Spaso House and tore a bunch of strings out of the piano. Now, if you know Spaso House as I happen to know Spaso House, you will know that Spaso House plus Soviet security makes the possibility of a vandal roaming into its living room to wreck the piano about as likely as a vandal roaming into Fort Knox and leaving a few graffiti on our little stock of gold bricks.

Nevertheless, the concert went on — a technician did emergency work on the piano — and the starving artist had a night of the soul, displaying his covert art. There were refreshments afterward, and the Feltsmans departed Spaso House to drive home, but they couldn't, dammit. Some vandals had slashed the tires of their automobile.

Two days later, we had one of those dramatic exchanges across the Glienicke Bridge that links Potsdam and West Berlin. Anatoly Shcharansky got his freedom, after eight years in Gulag. His crime was that he had publicly urged compliance by the Soviet Union with the Helsinki pact, that hopeless instrument we all signed in 1975, the terms of which vested legitimacy in Soviet territorial acquisitions after the world war in return for the promise of a basket of freedoms for Soviet citizens.

The agreement was hopeless in that it was instantly clear that the Soviet Union had no intention of living up to its commitments, not so silly in that we have international standing to protest internal Soviet violations of human rights.

But it was the staging of the exchange on Glienicke Bridge that caught the eye. We gave up five legally convicted spies for the Soviets. They gave us Shcharansky (oh yes, the prosecution had claimed that he was a CIA agent) and three East Europeans "convicted" of various offenses in the Eastern bloc, about whom one knows nothing from the press, and therefore safely concludes that like Shcharansky, they were innocent.

When a few weeks ago South African President P.W. Botha flamboyantly offered to free Nelson Mandela in return for the Soviet Union's freeing Andrei Sakharov. Botha was widely, and properly, derided — on the grounds that by equating the two, he was in effect conceding that Mandela was a political prisoner, rather than a terrorist paying out a life sentence. The net effect of the picture was as expected. The Soviet Union is being ever so obliging by giving us the freedom of a man who should never have lost his freedom in the first place.

What do we do when we really get mad? My absolute, all-time favorite is the massive action we took against Baby Doe when we agreed to lift that little sadist out of his tortured country.

I'd like to have been on the scene when the American representative told the Palace that Baby and Mrs. Baby would be limited to two bags each!

It is reported that when Baby heard this, he had a real tantrum and said in that case his abdication was all off. I mean, history has not hung on such a matter of protocol since the 1870s, when the Count of Chambord declined the throne of France because he could not get agreement to restore the all-white flag in place of the Revolution's tricolor.

Did you notice how, finally, we handled that major problem? Baby was told, by one of those problem-smashers, Look, bring as much baggage as you want, and in the confusion nobody will notice.

I note that the students of Stanford University have invited Mikhail Gorbachev as a commencement speaker. One day Gorbachev pulls the strings from the piano of a Jewish dissident, next day commencement speaker at Stanford.

Uranus flyby illustrates best of man's endeavors

Uranus has been described as "space grotesque, with questionable credentials, and rightly so. But as recent guests of Mr. Robert Parks, deputy director of the Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena, my wife and I came away from the Uranus encounter of Voyager 2 with a renewed appreciation of man's noblest role in human evolution.

It seemed to us that the work being done by JPL and NASA represents the "very best" end of the spectrum of human endeavors. We know the "very worst" end, and it's ever present on TV or in the daily papers. Somewhere in the middle of this spectrum lies the part of human behavior that simply exists day to day, those of us who never wonder, never look up at the sky and ask why, never marvel at a sunset, listen to a rainstorm, or smile at the smell of a flower.

But our evolving species has produced those who raise us all to a higher level. When we do things like go to the moon and fly by the planets, and when we can see ourselves from without, we rightly remind ourselves of how frail our little blue Earth is and how much of our living is spent in the "worst end" of the human behavior spectrum. We're reminded that our continuing evolution will lead us to live in space, probably in colonies, using the raw materials from the moon and asteroids to build our environments.

So when JPL looks up, it is directing our attention to that evolutionary force produced by our very best minds here on Earth. That "best end" of the human behavior spectrum will always pull us upward and move us further toward understanding who we are.

Thank God the media cover these flybys at JPL. Even though it's only news for a week or so, with each new encounter a few more of us will stop and look up and wonder, a moment's hesitation from the mundane, but a moment is all it takes for us to either decide to live together or destroy ourselves and this jewel we live on.

Thank you JPL and NASA. You do our species more good than you may ever know. The flyby of Uranus, at least to me, was more than just a planetary encounter.

Reports persist linking Ky to Vietnamese gang activity

Lack of solid evidence after '79 report, but Justice recently repeated charges

WASHINGTON — A continuing controversy surrounds the reports that former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been involved with Vietnamese criminal gangs operating in this country.

We reported in the past that law enforcement officials had fingered Ky, who now lives in Huntington Beach, in a 1979 report as a leader of underworld activity in the Vietnamese community. The report was based on "raw" intelligence, but police sources said the information came from sources they trusted.

Ky has vehemently denied the charges, and solid information linking him to specific criminal violations has yet to surface. In fact, one former U.S. intelligence expert blamed the allegations about Ky on a deliberate disinformation campaign by communist infiltrators trying to discredit Ky's opposition to the Hanoi regime.

Nevertheless, accusations about Ky persist in government circles. A recent internal Justice Department strategic assessment, obtained by our associates Corky Johnson and Donald Goldberg, identifies Ky as a possible crime leader.

Dated last March 1, the report states: "One individual who has been identified as a major figure with Vietnamese organized crime (although he denies it) is Nguyen Cao Ky. Ky lives in Huntington Beach, Calif., and operates a liquor store. The Vietnamese gangs are also allegedly headed by former South Vietnam Army generals and officers."

It is not clear whether the Justice Department conducted its own investigation of Ky or simply relied on other sources. One source might have been an unidentified witness who testified before the President's Commission on Organized Crime. The witness, who said he had been a gang member, named Ky as a leader of the Vietnamese underworld.

The witness' charges were not corroborated. The recent Justice Department report charges that Vietnamese gangs "are responsible for murders, robberies and extortions, as well as trafficking in marijuana among Asian communities."

The report said such criminal activity by Vietnamese gangs has been detected in 13 states, with most activity reported in areas with the largest concentrations of Vietnamese refugees: Southern California, Houston, New Orleans and Arlington, Va., a suburb of Washington, D.C. Other areas identified were Pennsylvania and Illinois.

The Vietnamese gangs' membership is tiny compared to other underworld organizations. "It is estiimated there are about 1,000 members nationwide and that each gang in each city functions under a statewide boss," the report notes.

But they evidently try harder. At secret training camps, gang members learn how to use weapons, how to rob rival Chinese gangs' gambling operations, how to extort money from local merchants "and other crimes," according to the Justice Department alert.

Since we first reported two years ago on the Vietnamese gang threat, police have made no arrests that linked Ky directly to the criminal activity. And one former government intelligence expert sees Hanoi's hand in the charges against Ky.

The expert reported to a closed conference of lawmen in Houston: "Everyone has seen the 1979 report linking Nguyen Cao Ky to organized crime, and most of you know this was based on information received from an informant contaminated through his link to the de facto head of the Vietnamese Communist Party in the United States."

Leftists apply a double standard

WASHINGTON — Dartmouth College is getting tough with campus protest. Up to a point, that is. On the principle that half a loaf is better than none, you could make a sort of case for Dartmouth's policy of throwing the book at conservative protesters while letting student leftists get away with breaking the law.

To bring you up to date: Last November, the leftists put up a pair of little shanties on the Dartmouth Green. The purpose was to show how blacks in South Africa suffer under apartheid.

As it happened, the shanties violated both local zoning laws and campus regulations. Townspeople grumbled; other students objected; the Dartmouth administration ordered the shanties removed. But the shanties stayed, defiantly, and the administration did nothing about it. A third shanty was built.

In January, a second group of students came in the middle of the night with sledgehammers and destroyed two of the shanties. Whereupon the leftists occupied the administration building for 30 hours to demand, if you can believe it, that the college punish the conservatives.

The college has obliged. The 12 students arrested for knocking the shanties down have all been suspended, four of them indefinitely. None of the students who built the shanties or occupied the building has been penalized in any way.

Did ideology have anything to do with this disparity of severity? You bet. Dartmouth's president, David McLaughlin, has been absolutely fawning in his treatment of the leftist students and faculty. While he said he would "prefer" that the shanties be removed, he added, "that does not infer a lack of sympathy with their views." (He meant "imply," not "infer." You might expect a college president to know the difference.)

Later, in the midst of the controversy, Mr. McLaughlin and the college dean, Edward Shanahan, joined the leftists in a public chorus of "We Shall Overcome," thereby establishing themselves as members in good standing of the Progressive Communion.

As for the conservative students, four of them were editors of the Dartmouth Review, the off-campus weekly that has been a thorn in the side of the campus leftists and the administration. As it happens, these were the four who got the heaviest penalties.

Yet, Mr. McLaughlin is not particularly a committed leftist. In fact, the Dartmouth conservative community had high hopes when he succeeded John Kemeny as the college's president. It appeared that the era of leftist hegemony at Dartmouth might be coming to an end.

But Mr. McLaughlin is turning out to be Dartmouth's Jimmy Carter. He simply can't control the excesses of leftism. He doesn't dare to. He feels compelled to pay deference to the leftists — hinting at his "sympathy" for them — when it is by definition the job of an administrator to administer rules impartially.

By winking at the leftists in the heat of the dispute, he was giving them a reassuring signal that he wouldn't be any harder on them than he had to be. But now he has gone further. He has shown that he will not only decline to enforce the rules against the leftist rule-breakers, he will enforce those same rules against conservatives — at the behest of the leftists!

Even in the '60s, we seldom saw anything quite this craven. Group A violates the law. Group B takes the law into its own hands. Group A breaks the law again to demand that Group B be punished. Result: Group B is punished.

This is law and order. McLaughlin-style. It isn't law and order at all, of course. It is simple appeasement of the left.

The whole Dartmouth episode can be seen in a deeper focus. Liberalism is nominally committed to certain procedural freedoms, while professing neutrality as to the outcome of their exercise. But in reality liberalism has become committed to the substance of leftism, and it bends its procedures to favor the left. Usually this is done with more or less discretion.

But Mr. McLaughlin fairly blurted out his intention of favoring the left, and he has kept his promise. The "rules" of Dartmouth now serve as the instruments of the leftists and their interests. The umpire will apply the rules to make sure one side wins.

Harbor Heights opens new phase

A new phase of 30 luxurious one- and two-story homes are opening this weekend at DanaWoods' Harbor Heights in Dana Point, built by the William Lyon Co.

"We will be offering all six floor plans in the new phase," said Lonnie Casey, sales manager. "Many of these homes feature dramatic views of the hills and valleys overlooking Dana Point harbor."

Included at Harbor Heights are three-, four- and five-bedroom homes, ranging from 1,516 to 1,519 square feet. Prices for the new phase begin from under $160,000.

When completed, Harbor Heights will feature 180 single-family detached homes. The designs are by architects Hales-Langston.

"We've been sold out of our popular Plan 1 (the Fairhaven) for some time," said Casey, "so the new phase will especially appeal to those buyers looking for the convenience of a single-level home."

Plan 1, with three bedrooms and two baths, is the only one-story home at Harbor Heights. Highlights include vaulted ceilings in the living room and dining area, bay window in the living room, a family room, a breakfast bar and an optional master retreat.

For those who prefer a two-story home, Harbor Heights offers a choice of five floor plans.

A curving staircase in Plans 3, 5 and 50 reveals a panoramic view of the living room below.

Plan 3 (The Providence) includes four bedrooms, 2½ baths and an optional master retreat.

Featured in Plan 4 (The Nantucket) are four bedrooms and three baths with an optional downstairs den. Plan 5 (the Chelsea) also includes four bedrooms and three baths. This home is further highlighted by a bay window in the kitchen and skylights above the curving staircase and master bath.

A slight variation of Plan 5 is available in Plan 50 (The Bridgeport). This home's standard design features a bonus room along with two upstairs bedrooms, including the master bedroom suite. On the lower level are a guest bedroom and adjoining bath.

Various Plan 50 options include two additional bedrooms instead of the bonus room or a downstairs den rather than a guest bedroom.

Homeowners at Harbor Heights will become members of the DanaWoods Community Association, providing them full use of the existing community park, with its clock tower, swimming pool, and cabana. Current monthly association dues are $66.

For more information, call 493-0989.

Weekend opening begun at Rimrock

Latest San Clemente phase offers three single-family plans

The Rimrock community in the hills of San Clemente this weekend opens Phase 5 of its single-family, detached home community.

"A combination of factors, including a well-built product, large lot sizes, attractive beach area location, being a part of the Forster Ranch Master Plan and popular standard features, has contributed to our tremendous sales success," said Dr. Tom Fukushima, president of 888 Development.

Phase 5 will offer a selection of all three floor plans. One- and two-story designs are featured, with three and four bedrooms and up to three baths. Prices begin from $124,950.

ing for optional air conditioning. Kitchens feature ceramic tile countertops, hardwood finished cabinets, view windows overlooking the backyards, pantries, luminous ceilings and water lines for ice makers.

Appliances include automatic dishwashers, pilotless gas ranges and ovens. Country kitchens and breakfast bars are available in some plans.

Among exterior highlights are covered entry porches, concrete tile roofing, concrete walks and driveways, and oversized two-car garages with direct home access.

Three decorated models and a sales office are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 2933 Hierro.

Visitors may exit the Santa Ana freeway at Camino de Estrella (which becomes Camino de los Mares) and proceed east to the Forster Ranch community. Once past the intersection of Camino Vera Cruz, make the next left, which is Estancia, continue up the hill to Hierro and turn right to the new models.

For more information, call 492-6150.

SNEAK PREVIEW

The curtain will soon go up on the new and exciting Laguna Meadows. We're not quite ready for a big Grand Opening, but we're holding a sneak preview this weekend. It's a great time to pick your favorite plan and location—before the crowds come!

If the two of you have been thinking about a carefree condominium in a close-in location, now is the time to make your move!

Laguna Meadows' five different couple-oriented plans live like single-family homes: convenient parking, attached garage, sheltered entry, spacious floor plan, dining area, breakfast nook, luxurious master suite, patio, and view deck. You'll find lots of exciting features like air conditioning and skylights.

Landscaping can be complicated process

By RANDALL WILLIAMS

According to the dictionary, the verb "landscaping" means to adorn or improve (a section of ground) by contouring the land and planting flowers, shrubs or trees. The noun form of "landscaping" means a view or vista of scenery on land.

"Garden," the noun, means a plot of land used for cultivation of flowers, vegetables or fruit or a yard adorned with flowers, shrubs and trees.

None of these definitions adequately describes the type of exterior development that goes along with the purchase of a home in Southern California. The "contouring of the land and planting of flowers, shrubs or trees" typically represents 20 percent or less of a complete exterior project.

In response to our temperate climate, we Southern Californians have come to perceive the property outside our home as an extended room, an area not just to be viewed or strolled through, but an area to be lived in.

Landscaping will become quite complicated in comparison with our vision of a simple yard when the elements of a well-executed project are considered: patios, walls, steps, walks, fences, gates, benches, pools, spas, fountains, drainage, irrigation and lighting systems.

You will be spending a great deal of time in your yard. Whether you are comfortable in it and enjoy the environment you have created will depend greatly upon the time and effort you put into the planning of its development.

Randall Williams is president of Earth Concepts, a landscape design company. He is a licensed landscape contractor, licensed pest control adviser and California-certified nurseryman. Send your questions and comments to Earth Concepts, 2704 S. Grand, Santa Ana 92705.

Versatile machine can accomplish wide variety of cutting jobs

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press

If your home workshop is the place where you perform many different kinds of tasks, a bandsaw is an ideal tool. It is probably the most versatile of all the stationary power machines.

Once used principally for cutting wood into curved shapes required for such things as furniture, toys and ornamental pieces, it now gets plenty of action in the forming of plastics, and many intricate operations.

A bandsaw is different from other stationary power tools because it has a continuous band of steel looped around two wheels.

The stated size of a bandsaw is determined by the distance between the blade and the frame or throat. If that distance is 16 inches, for instance, it is called a 16-inch machine, a size which will cut through the center of a 32-inch piece of wood or other stock. Popular home workshop sizes are 10 and 12 inches.

A bandsaw is at its best when it is cutting across the grain of wood. The blade moves more slowly when cutting with the grain. Professionals often avoid trouble by starting a circle or arc across the grain, going with the grain and then finishing against the grain. When a pattern extends to the edge of the work and you must run the blade out, the runout then can be made against the grain rather than with it. A more accurate pickup of the cut can be made by resuming the cut across the grain.

When you are a beginner using a bandsaw, you will sometimes find yourself cutting away and find that the bandsaw post is in the way. When this occurs, keep your cool and merely back saw your way out and begin over.

When purchasing a bandsaw or any other stationary power tool, be sure first that you will be able to operate it in the available space. Novices sometimes know where the machine will be situated, but forget there must also be space for the manipulation of the stock being used.

That's why, whenever possible, a tool like a bandsaw should have a central location in the workshop. While that is not always possible, be certain the machine and its base can be moved easily whenever necessary. Many times, a location near a wall will be perfectly satisfactory, but occasionally it won't.

If you handle a multiplicity of cutting tasks on different materials, it is important the correct blades be used. The instruction pamphlet that comes with your bandsaw will tell you about the many blades or bands. As you get the hang of the machine and move to new materials, make your band selections not only on what the instruction pamphlet says, but on the advice you get from your dealer. A knowledgeable salesman can be a big help. Your neighborhood hardware store or lumber yard sometimes is better in this respect than some large stores where the do-it-yourself department is only a part of the establishment.

Seattle mayor wants ban on radioactive shipments

SEATTLE (AP) — Mayor Charles Royer is demanding a moratorium on shipments of nuclear waste through Puget Sound, and local port officials also say the Energy Department is being too secretive about the shipments.

Royer said Friday he had written to Energy Secretary John Herrington to express support for the position expressed earlier by Gov. Booth Gardner on plans for shipping 18 loads of spent reactor fuel rods from Taiwan to the Savannah River reprocessing plant in South Carolina.

"I don't think those shipments ought to move until our concerns are answered," the mayor said.

Initially, federal plans called for unloading the highly radioactive material in Seattle or Tacoma for overland shipment to Savannah River. Following widespread opposition, a plan was developed for unloading the fuel rods in Long Beach, but ships carrying them would still make their regular calls in Puget Sound first.

California Gov. George Deukmejian and Long Beach port officials say they will refuse to accept the shipments.

In Seattle, Port Executive Director James D. Dwyer issued a statement complaining that the federal agency had not contacted port officials about the shipments.

Dwyer's statement also said port officials shared the concerns of members of Local 19, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, who voted Jan. 9 to refuse to handle stainless steel casks containing the fuel rods.

Moreover, "the lack of information forces the port's shipping customers to operate amid many uncertainties regarding container cargo moving on ships with nuclear waste shipments," Dwyer said.

Energy Department officials were unavailable for comment Friday but said a response to Gardner's Feb. 7 was being drafted.

Gardner said that if the radioactive shipments are to be unloaded at a Puget Sound port, the Energy Department would have to obtain state licenses and do an environmental assessment.

Seconding that view, Royer wrote Herrington. "It is imperative that the federal government adhere to the strictest interpretations of its own laws concerning the protection of human health and the environment."

Even canines have to obey search, seizure laws

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — Police dogs, like their human counterparts, need probable cause before making drug searches on campus, county attorneys have cautioned school officials.

When Vandenberg Middle School officials found a cache of marijuana last fall, Principal Tom Love borrowed Air Force drug-detecting dogs and handlers from the base, where the school is located, as well as base security police to search for any other pot on campus.

They didn't find any, Love said Friday, but they did take time out to give pupils a noon-hour demonstration Halloween morning.

At the time, Love said, the school was awaiting an opinion from the Santa Barbara County Counsel's Office on whether such searches were allowable. The opinion came back afterward that such searches could be conducted only with probable cause, Love said.

"We do not have any plans to use dogs on the school grounds for just general searches," he said.

The dog suggestion came from the school's drug team, made up of parents and staff members who were trained in a substance-abuse awareness program, Love said.

"A lot of military parents were anxious to see dogs used to see if their kids were using marijuana," Love said.

No suspects were ever identified in that case, although one youth was expelled last semester for drug possession in an unrelated case, he said.

Crew of ill-fated charter underestimated its weight

U.S. agencies told formulas have to be accurately calculated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crew of the Arrow Air DC-8 that crashed in Canada last December, killing 248 U.S. soldiers, underestimated the weight of the plane's cargo and passengers by at least 12,000 pounds, federal officials say.

The National Transportation Safety Board revealed the miscalculation Friday when it advised government agencies to make sure formulas used by airlines accurately reflect actual passenger and baggage weights.

The NTSB, working with the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, has not yet determined if excess weight contributed to the Dec. 12 crash at Gander, Newfoundland, board spokesman Ira Furman said.

But he said excess weight "is nevertheless relevant in the context of aviation safety."

The NTSB told the Department of Defense and the Federal Aviation Administration to ensure that airplane loads are calculated more specifically.

The DC-8, chartered by the Pentagon with a civilian crew of eight, was ferrying members of the 101st Airborne Division to Fort Campbell, Ky., from peacekeeping duty in the Middle East. After refueling at Gander, it crashed on takeoff, killing all 256 aboard.

Furman said Arrow Air procedures used a standard average weight per passenger of 170 pounds, including carry-on baggage.

But the Army estimated the weight of each passenger departing Cairo as 210 pounds, including carry-on baggage, and Canadian investigators estimate the actual weight was at least 220 pounds each, Furman said.

"The result would be about 12,000 pounds in excess of the takeoff weight" estimated by the crew, Furman said. He said the figure did not include possible errors in calculating the weight of baggage in the cargo hold.

The safety board asked the Pentagon to "develop a standard procedure" for determining the actual weights of passengers and baggage and relaying the information to crews of commercial charter flights.

It asked the FAA, which has the power to enforce safety regulations, to "re-emphasize to each air carrier the need to use actual weights for passengers" in situations where the usual standard average weight would not apply.

Military personnel, for example, "would carry more gear than would normally be anticipated in these normal carry-on figures," Furman said.

He said the Army required the soldiers on the flight from Cairo to wear civilian clothes. Gear carried aboard by each soldier included fatigues, helmet, boots and weapon.

Bob Buckhorn, spokesman for the FAA, said the agency would "promptly implement safety practices recommended by the board" and review weight estimation procedures followed by airlines.

Lt. Col. Peter Wyro, a Pentagon spokesman, said the Department of Defense had just received the report and would have no immediate comment.

Judge relinquishes case after admitting protest involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The judge in the trial of eight anti-abortion demonstrators arrested at a protest outside the Supreme Court has withdrawn from the case because he participated briefly in the same march.

Prosecutors said Saturday that a new trial date has been set now that Superior Court Judge Joseph Michael Hannon has stepped down.

Hannon, who had been presiding at the non-jury trial, removed himself from the case on Friday, saying he believed his presence raised questions about the "appearance of justice."

On Thursday, the judge rejected a prosecution request that he remove himself from the case. The request, which was later withdrawn, was made after Hannon told a startled courtroom audience that he had also participated in the annual March for Life on Jan. 22 to protest the Supreme Court's 1972 decision upholding a woman's right to an abortion. Hannon's announcement came after the first witness had begun testifying in the trial.

The defendants were arrested on misdemeanor charges when they demonstrated on the steps of the Supreme Court.

"In my heart of hearts as a judge of the Superior Court, I know I could be fair and impartial in this case," Hannon said Friday in an emotional speech in the courtroom before he stepped down.

But "so long as I sit, there are those who are going to say I favor the defendants," he said.

The case was reassigned to another judge and a new trial was set for April 24, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Elizabeth McKibben.

J. Andrew Chopivsky, an attorney for several of the defendants, indicated Friday he intended to object to a new trial on the basis that the first trial had already begun and a second trial would violate the defendants' constitutional protection against double jeopardy.

But McKibben said the prosecution expected defense motions on the subject to be dismissed, adding, "If there's manifest necessity for a mistrial to be declared and the case to terminate, then double jeopardy is not an issue anymore."

A ninth defendant, Charles Page, pleaded guilty Friday and the court clerk set a March 20 sentencing date, Ms. McKibben said.

Before Hannon's withdrawal, the National Abortion Rights Action League filed a complaint with the D.C. Judicial Disabilities and Tenure Commission, which has the power to remove judges and issue censures and reprimands.

Seamless boosters not picked by NASA because of their cost

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A seamless booster rocket without joints or seals was rejected for use with the space shuttle by NASA because the multi-segmented design offered by a Utah firm was cheaper, the Los Angeles Times says today.

Possible failure of a joint on the right booster rocket of space shuttle Challenger is suspected as a cause of the explosion that destroyed the orbiter and its crew of seven shortly after liftoff Jan. 28.

The seamless booster design was proposed by Aerojet General, a California firm that built Titan and Polaris missiles.

Aerojet's design and rocket systems proposed by two other firms were rejected because Morton Thiokol, the Utah firm that built the multi-part solid fuel rocket, "would give the agency the lowest funding requirements," a 1973 National Aeronautics and Space Administration document says.

Morton Thiokol's boosters are reusable steel rocket casings made up of four segments bolted together at Kennedy Space Center.

The decision to build the boosters in segments was a serious error, said Werner Kirehner, a former vice president of Aerojet General who headed its solid rocket program.

"I wouldn't build a rocket the way that one was built," he was quoted as saying in the Times. "If you put a number of joints in the rocket, every joint is a potential area of concern. You won't find any Defense Department rockets built like that."

Current Aerojet General officials at the firm's La Jolla headquarters declined to comment on the NASA report and their seamless rocket proposal.

A Morton Thiokol spokesman could not be reached for comment in a call made after business hours to the company's plant in Brigham City, Utah.

In its 1973 statement about the decision to choose Morton Thiokol, NASA found that the other three bidders would have cost more, but it praised Aerojet's design, saying it "precluded potential failure modes associated with joints and seals."

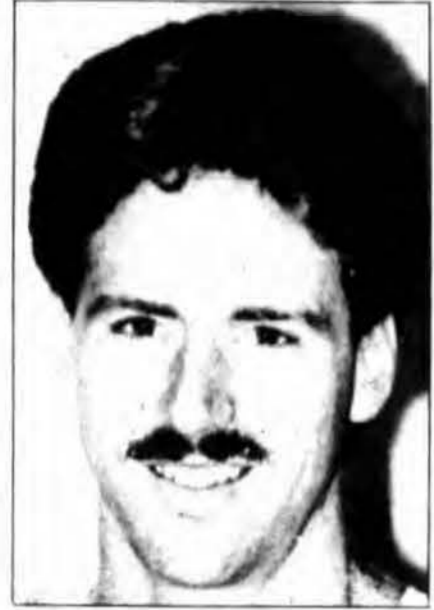

Aerojet General was eliminated early in the competition because it planned to begin building the rockets in California then switch to a Florida plant it had acquired.

NASA concluded that "any selection other than Thiokol would give rise to an additional cost of appreciable size."

The report said Morton Thiokol would benefit from low labor costs at its Utah plant, even though there was "some early risk because of a lack of experience (in building nozzles)."

Anteaters shock UNLV, 99-92

Johnny Rogers

Rebels' national ranking takes a beating from UCI

Special to the Daily Pilot
LAS VEGAS — Johnny Rogers' 41 points and double-figure scoring from four other UC Irvine starters ignited one of the biggest upsets of the college basketball season Saturday night as the Anteaters staggered Nevada-Las Vegas, 99-92, before 15,616, here at the Thomas and Mack Sports Pavilion.
It was only the second time the Runnin' Rebels have ever lost in the spacious arena as the Anteaters of Bill Mulligan joined Georgetown as the only quintet able to pull off the feat. Georgetown did it with a 69-67 win in 1983.
The Anteaters' victory snapped a 36-game winning streak at home for the hosts, who entered as the nation's No. 4 ranked team in UPI ratings, No. 6 in AP rankings with a record of 12-0, 24-2.
It was nearly a wire-to-wire victory for the Anteaters (9-5, 13-10), who moved into a tie with New Mexico State for second place in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in the process of snapping UNLV's 31-game unbeaten streak in the PCAA.

"I have to give Irvine all the credit," said UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian. "We couldn't defend them and they hit the clutch baskets. We were able to make a run at them, and caught them, but then we let them get back ahead."
"Irvine just played a great ball game. We got beat continuously inside and outside. We couldn't stop Rogers or (Tod) Murphy. They came to our place and played a great game."
Rogers, a 6-10 senior, hit 11 of 21 from the field and 19 of 20 from the line for his 41 points, second only to Kevin Magee's 46 points against Loyola in 1981 in UCI single-game scoring.
Murphy added 15 points, Troy Carmon had 14, Scott Brooks 13 and Joe Buchanan 12 as the Anteaters clicked on virtually every cylinder. As a team the Anteaters dropped in 31 of 57 from the field (54.3 percent) and 35 of 43 at the line (81.3 percent).
UCI held a 53-47 halftime lead, but it's not uncommon for UNLV to wait until the second half before unloading.

"A lot of teams play at Vegas and lead at halftime," said Mulligan, "and then end up losing in the end. Vegas really comes at you in the second half."
"But our guys were really loose. This is a great atmosphere to play in. I don't mean that as a putdown, but their crowd is not as hostile as some other places in the league."
"Rogers had a shot for the flu yesterday... so he probably wouldn't have done as well if he had been healthy," continued Mulligan in his tongue-in-cheek style.
"We still have to play them at our place (Feb. 27). That ought to be a lot of fun," added Mulligan. The last time the Anteaters trailed was 11-9 and it was Murphy's bucket which put them into a 13-11 lead.
Nevada-Las Vegas pared the deficit to 67-65 on an Anthony Jones slam dunk, but then Brooks retaliated with a three-point bucket 40 seconds later, then Brooks broke loose for a lay-up and UCI was back in front by a 72-65 margin.
UNLV pared it to 91-87 with 1:07 left, but two free throws by Rogers 10 seconds later put the game on ice.

Irvine rallies in 63-61 victory

By BARRY FAULKNER
Daily Pilot Correspondent
The Irvine High basketball team was victimized by a case of 24-hour deja vu Saturday night in its third-place playoff game with El Toro for the South Coast League's final CIF 4-A berth, at University High.
For the second time in two nights, the Vaqueros blew a fourth-quarter lead, and ultimately their best chance at a playoff spot in the school's nine seasons, falling to the Chargers, 63-61.
"The last 1:50 we just couldn't get anything that looked anything like a break," said Irvine Coach Al Herring. "That's two in a row (tough losses). It was just like that last night."
Friday night it was a five-point lead over Mission Viejo that got away in the final eight minutes in a 54-51 loss. Against El Toro, the second of the recurring nightmares on the same court, which may haunt the Vaqueros the entire off-season, involved the disappearance of an 11-point (59-48) cushion with 3:49 remaining.
Credit the Chargers' full-court pressure for the turnaround, as four Vaqueros' turnovers and their own inability to handle the back-court pressure sealed their fate.
"We went to the press in the fourth quarter," said Charger Coach Tim Travers. "When we played them earlier (this was the fourth meeting of the two teams, with each winning two), the 1-2-1-1 press bothered them and it worked for us tonight. It ruffled their feathers a little bit," added Travers.
"That was really strange," said Herring of his team's futility against the Charger press. "We got the ball in, but we just couldn't get people open upcourt... we just didn't execute it well."
Irvine, which finishes 7-6 in South Coast League play and 15-13 overall (the 15 wins set a school record), was indeed executing in a four-and-a-half-minute spurt spanning the third and fourth periods.
Behind the dominant inside play of 6-5 forward Shawn Patchell, who tallied 10 of his team-high 19 points during the run, the Vaqs turned a 35-35 stalemate into a commanding 51-38 lead, less than two minutes into the final quarter.

University High's Brett Winslow (52), Lasse Glassen (right) fight for a rebound against Saddleback's Gylan Dottin (22) and Erik Hansen (32) in decider for CIF berth.

Roadrunners gain playoffs

Walton's 23 paves way for 52-45 win over Uni's Trojans

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff
Saddleback High's Roadrunners won the game of hair-splitting Saturday and by virtue of playoff victories over Laguna Beach in the morning and University in the evening, they've qualified for the CIF 4-A basketball playoffs, which begin Friday.
Thus Bryant Walton, a 6-4 senior talent for Saddleback, takes a bow in the eliminations to culminate a standout four-year career with the Roadrunners after his contributions in both games proved the decisive edge in what was otherwise a matter of figuring out whether 10 cents was more than two nickels.
The Roadrunners snapped a tie at 37 entering the final quarter to pull out a 52-45 conquest of University at Estancia High in the finals.
"Obviously we were tired and it showed," said a worn-out Steve Scoggin, the University coach. "It was a matter of which team was more fatigued and I have to say what really did us in was going two overtimes earlier today to beat Newport Harbor. But Bryant Walton was just fabulous. I don't know how to stop him unless you use a sledge hammer and half court."

Walton scored 23 points to pace the Roadrunners in the decider, but his coach, Pat Quinn, felt it was his contributions in other departments, rebounding, screening, assists and defense, which paved the way in the final quarter.
"He's so visible with his scoring," said Quinn, "but it was the invisible things he was doing in the last quarter that made the difference."
University trailed for the most part, but pulled to a 37-35 lead late in the third period. But then Walton took over, first trying it with a 20-footer, then later connecting on a 20-foot three-point play to shove Saddleback into a 44-39 lead with 4:18 left.
The Roadrunners aired it out a bit, Scoggin told his team who to foul, and whom not to foul (Walton) and Saddleback proceeded to go to the line the rest of the way, with Walton's three free throws with 38 and 28 seconds left sealing it.
"We've had so many like this," he said. "After losing those two-point games (Corona del Mar, 45-43, and Woodbridge, 52-55 in overtime) I didn't think we'd win. And because of that it was hard to really get up for this game."
"This (gaining a CIF berth) is really a culmination for him (Walton)," said Quinn. "He's pretty much why we're here."
Joe Deal added 10 points to the Saddleback ledger, while University had three players in double figures — (Please see WALTON/D2)

Estancia wrestles to title

Eagles outfinish University to win Sea View crown

By STAN GRANCH
Daily Pilot Correspondent
Estancia High was host to the Sea View League wrestling finals' Saturday, and the Eagles pleased a partisan crowd by winning the team title.
Estancia earned 171 points to second-place University's 159, while Woodbridge finished a disappointing fourth in the tournament.
The Warriors were the Sea View League dual meet champions this year, going undefeated. The poor showing by Woodbridge was easily explained, as the Warriors entered the finals short-handed.
Two of Woodbridge's best wrestlers — Rick Rogers (122 pounds) and Jeff Bacon (178) — were unable to participate. Rogers was in a car accident Friday night, suffering a strained neck and back.
Bacon was disqualified for using illegal sweats in an effort to make the weight.
An obviously disappointed Woodbridge Coach Cliff Nelson said, "I feel sorry for the team. If we had Rogers and Bacon you could add 40 points to our score."
Estancia and University took advantage where Woodbridge faltered. The Eagles had the most wrestlers in the finals and made the most of it. Estancia Coach Dave Alexander said he was not surprised by his team's performance, saying, "I thought it would be close, but we would pull it out."
Alexander looking optimistically to the future, added, "We only have two seniors on this squad and we have seven sophomores so we will be back. University could be labeled the 'comeback squad' of the year. Last year the Trojans were not a factor, but this season they were 12 points away from a Sea View League title."
The CIF 3-A wrestling finals will be held at Redondo Beach High, Friday, Feb. 28, at 3 o'clock.

Crosby Southern deemed wash-out

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Daily Pilot Correspondent
Golfers are a hardy lot.
But there had to be some serious soul-searching Saturday at Newport Beach Country Club (formerly Irvine Coast CC) among the 148 professional and amateur players participating in the Crosby Southern Clambake.
After a long night of heavy rain Friday, play in the Crosby was suspended before the first official tee-off time at 7:30 a.m. Under rules of the tournament, if play did not commence by one hour after the first time (8:30), the format would revert to a shotgun start.
Play got under way at 11:30 after greens were swept and the course was declared playable by Southern California PGA officials. Players were allowed to wipe their golf balls after each shot and place them on the fairways.
Although weather conditions remained threatening, the 72 pros and their 72 amateur partners completed six or seven holes before a deluge hit the course, sending players, marshals, scorers, officials and fans for cover. The time was 2 p.m. and at the early rate of play, it is doubtful if any of the twosomes could have finished 18 holes before dark.
"Today's round has been washed out," a disappointed general chairman Jake Rohrer said when play was suspended. "We will try to get it in the books tomorrow (today). If we can complete 18 holes, it will be an official tournament (18 holes only) with the full pro purse being paid with exception of second day low scores."

Rod Nuckolls of Wichita was 3-under-par after seven holes with Dennis Truxler of San Mateo, Barry Conser of Tempe, and David Lundstrom of Sugarland, Texas tied at 2-under-par after six or seven holes.
The leading team was Truxler and amateur David Grant of Santa Ana who were 4-under-par when the rains hit.
Today's round will use the same starting times as assigned for Saturday unless a shotgun start is dictated again.
Should the event be rained out again today, tournament officials stated they would try to get one round in on Monday to complete the 1986 competition. After that, the event would be declared washed out and all pros would get the $200 guarantee.
If today's round is completed, the tournament would end as an 18-hole event, the first time in 12 years.
The only player who failed to make the field was defending champion John McComish of Santa Maria.
"He tried to make it but couldn't get here in time and had to call and cancel out," said pro procurement chairman Gene Baum.

Clippers earn 108-101 win over Rockets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marques Johnson scored 25 points and Junior Bridgeman added 11 of his 14 in the fourth quarter Saturday night to lead the Los Angeles Clippers to a 108-101 NBA victory over the Houston Rockets.
The Rockets also lost center Akeem Olajuwon to a knee injury in the second quarter after he fell over teammate Robert Reid. Clippers physician Eugene Osher, who examined Olajuwon at halftime, said he suspected the 7-foot center had suffered ligament damage.
Leading 84-83, Los Angeles ran off a 12-3 spurt in a 2:29 span that gave the Clippers its biggest lead, 96-86, with 6:15 left in the game. Houston could get no closer than five points the rest of the way as Bridgeman scored seven points from there to keep the Clippers in front.
The Clippers, who trailed 50-47 at halftime, took the lead for good at 77-76 on a 14-foot jumper by Darnell Valentine with 25 seconds left in the third quarter.
Rookie Benoit Benjamin equaled his season-high with 20 points and Cedric Maxwell added 17 for the Clippers, who have won three games in a row and eight of their last 12.
Ralph Sampson scored 28 points to lead the Rockets, while Olajuwon, playing little more than one quarter, added 12 points.

Big Three automakers report second-best year

And lower overall energy prices push January wholesale prices down 0.7%

By the Associated Press

Pushed down by a huge drop in gasoline prices, wholesale prices fell 0.7 percent in January, their steepest drop in three years, the Labor Department reports.

The Big Three U.S. automakers say 1985 was their second-best year on record, with net profits of $8.1 billion. That was 17 percent below the industry's record of $9.8 billion in earnings in 1984.

The Labor Department's report Friday said the 5.7 percent fall in gasoline prices, coupled with a 1.8 percent decline in heating oil costs, helped pull energy prices overall down 4.2 percent last month.

The decline in the overall index was the first decline since September and followed a 0.4 percent rise in December. Not since January, 1983 have prices fallen at such a rate.

Separately, the Federal Reserve Board reported today that U.S. industrial production rose 0.3 percent in January, half the gain posted in December, but the third consecutive month the index has improved.

The January increase followed even bigger gains of 0.7 percent in December and 0.8 percent in November. The index had fallen 0.6 percent in October.

Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

released their earnings Thursday — $1.6 billion and $2.5 billion respectively — adding to the $4 billion net profit posted last week by industry leader General Motors Corp.

"Basically, Detroit sold a lot of cars at good prices. That was because of the strong economy, most importantly, and also restraints on imports and declining worry about gasoline prices," said David Healy, automotive industry analyst at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York.

In other economic news, —The Commerce Department reported that retail sales rose a weak 0.1 percent in January from the month previous, as big setbacks at department stores and clothing stores offset strong consumer demand for new autos.

—An investment industry association said assets of the nation's 362 money-market mutual funds fell $1.18 billion in the latest week, as a stock market rally may have convinced some investors to shift their portfolios.

—The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 15.14 to 1,645.07, breaking the record close of 1,629.93 set in the previous session. Gainers outpaced losers by about 3-2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

—The U.S. dollar declined against major currencies, tumbling toward 180 yen for the first time since 1978, because of a selling wave by Japanese dealers and fresh expectations that U.S. interest rates will drop. Republic National Bank of New York said gold was bid at $332.50 a troy ounce as of 1 p.m. PST Thursday, down $5 from late Wednesday.

—Yields on 52-week Treasury bills fell to 7.19 percent in Thursday's auction, the lowest level since December. The Treasury Department sold $9 billion in bills with the average discount rate down from 7.31 percent at the last auction on Jan. 16.

—The Federal Reserve Board reported that the nation's basic money supply fell $2.7 billion in the week ended Feb. 3 to a seasonally adjusted $624.6 billion. For the latest 13 weeks, the money supply averaged $624.7 billion, a 9.1 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain from the previous 13 weeks.

The Washington-based Investment Company Institute said the decline in the money-market mutual funds' assets to $209.95 billion in the seven-day period ended Wednesday followed a revised $1.06 billion drop in the funds' assets the previous week.

Over the past three weeks, the funds assets have dropped nearly $3 billion.

In the past week, yields were falling on money-market funds, but prices of stocks were rising to record levels.

Irvine resident Barbara Nichols Terhall has been appointed assistant vice president and corporate calling officer at Golden State Sanwa Bank's commercial banking department in Newport Beach.

Union says Zody's to close

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The firm that owns Zody's discount department stores has told the chain's union representatives that it will close its 32 stores in California and Nevada, affecting the jobs of 2,400 people, union officials said.

Officials for the parent firm, HRT Industries, declined to comment Thursday on the plan. HRT Chief Executive Steven J. Green's secretary said the company intends to issue a news release at the end of the month.

Cornelius Wall, regional director for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, which represents 400 employees, said his group was told HRT would begin severance payments to some workers as early as next week.

Richard Rothstein, an official with the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers, which represents 2,000 Zody's workers, said HRT did not specify a date for the closings.

"We've notified all our stewards and I'm sure they're telling (the employees) by word of mouth," Rothstein said. "We have a lot of very unhappy people, no question about it."

Under their contracts, workers can receive one week's severance pay for every two years of employment, with a maximum of seven weeks' pay

Authorities cracking down on banks laundering bucks

Banks being taken to court over violations, amid cries for law to make laundering illegal

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Out West, there's a saying that nothing gets a cattle rustler's attention faster than a good old-fashioned hanging.

In Washington, that's the hang-around message authorities would like to get across to bankers who launder ill-gained money for drug smugglers, racketeers, bookies, and other criminals.

To fortify that brand of justice, federal agencies regulating the nation's financial institutions have publicly put on the rack some very prestigious banks for neglecting — either intentionally or inadvertently — a 15-year-old law requiring that banks inform the government in writing whenever they handle a cash transaction of $10,000 or more.

Some members of Congress want to go beyond merely requiring reporting of such transactions. They want to make laundering of money illegal. Legislation is expected to be considered by congressional committees next month.

The Bank of New England is the latest in a series of financial institutions to be charged with violations. The bank was acquitted Friday by a federal judge in Boston of charges of conspiracy to conceal large cash transactions from the government. But a jury still must consider 31 felony charges against the bank and one of its customers, while former head tellers face three misdemeanor charges. Closing arguments are scheduled for next week.

The existing law, the Bank Secrecy Act, requires banks to tell the Internal Revenue Service about withdrawals, deposits, or wire transfers of $10,000 or more. Some customers can be exempted. Movie theaters, supermarkets and race tracks, for example, legitimately deal in large amounts of cash and are generally exempted from reporting.

"Mario," a professional money launderer, told Congress last year that it was profitable and easy to get around the Bank Secrecy Act.

"Many occasions, I rented a van. With over $3 million, we traveled across three states with the mattresses and the pillows stuffed with hundred dollar bills and fifty dollar bills," Mario said as he described how he went from bank to bank buying cashiers' checks with ill-gained cash. The cashiers' checks were later deposited in foreign banks.

Drug dealers have a problem when they accumulate millions of dollars in small bills. Just to transport it, they have to convert the cash into larger bills or cashiers' checks. Congress passed the Bank Secrecy Act to make it difficult for criminals to make those transactions.

Mario, who appeared before the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime but used the pseudonym and concealed his true identity under a black hood, was asked what could be done by the banks to comply better with the law. "I believe it is a lack of training on the part of the banks for tellers... If banks would require at least two ID's, that would hinder the money-laundering operation with 'smurfing' completely."

Smurfing is the process of using numbers of people to go from bank to bank with hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash to buy cashiers' checks and money orders. These purchases are in denominations of several thousand dollars each, well below the $10,000 threshold required for reporting cash transactions.

There is no federal law against money laundering now. Mario was convicted on other charges.

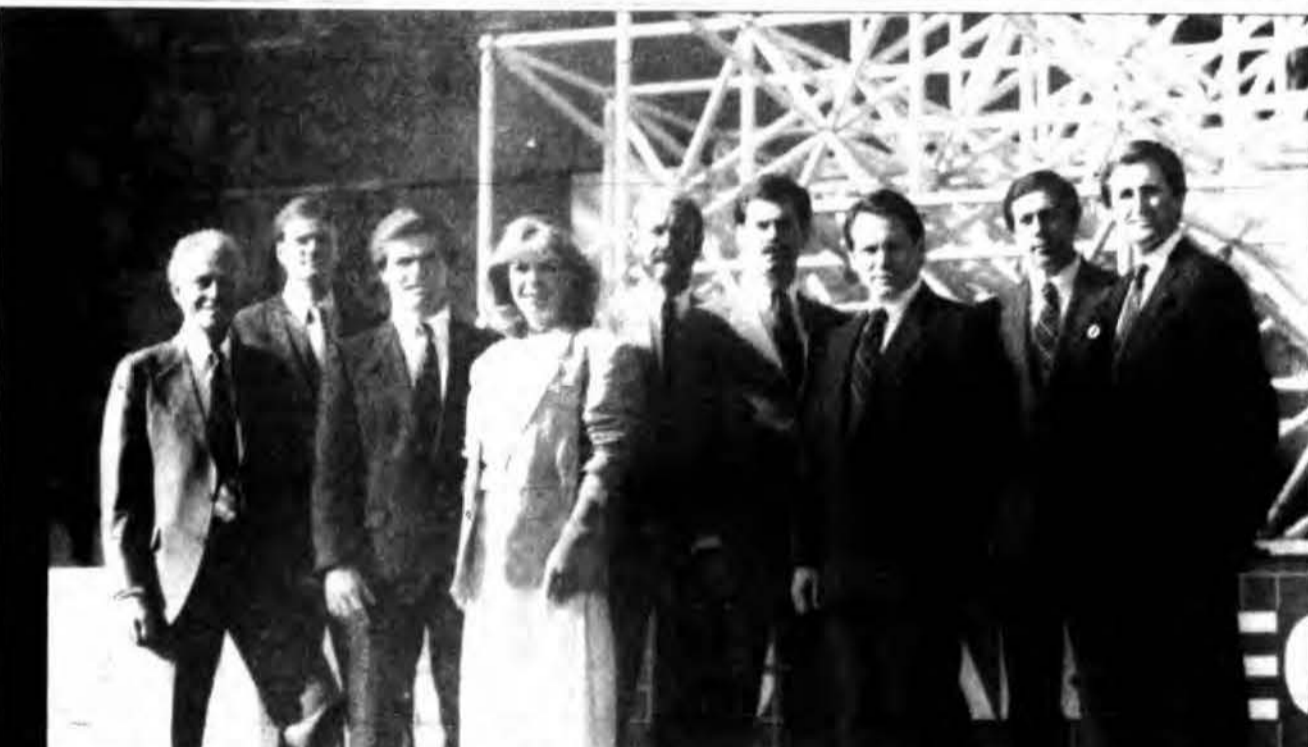

The IRS and the Departments of Justice and Treasury are involved in a nationwide crackdown of banks that violate the law.

The largest yet fine was levied on the Bank of America, the country's biggest bank based in San Francisco. Bank of America agreed to pay $4.75 million last month after the Treasury Department nailed it for committing over 17,000 violations of the law.

Last February, the Bank of Boston pleaded guilty to a felony charge of failing to report $1.22 billion in cash transactions with nine foreign banks and agreed to pay a $500,000 fine.

Since February of 1985, 12 banks have been fined a total of $7,867,000. There have been about 40 criminal convictions.

Treasury spokesman Charley Powers said that since publicity following the Bank of Boston case more than 60 banks have come forward to discuss non-compliance

Smith must pay $227 million in patent case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Smith International, an oil-field services concern, was ordered to pay $227 million to Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, Texas, in a 14-year legal battle over infringement on a drill-bit patent.

The settlement by U.S. District Judge Harry Hupp called for $134 million in damages and $93 million in interest.

Smith was considered likely to appeal, but company officials weren't immediately available for comment. A message was left for a response.

Hughes Tool had been seeking about $1 billion in damages and interest.

But Hupp's award was far larger than had been anticipated by Newport Beach-based Smith.

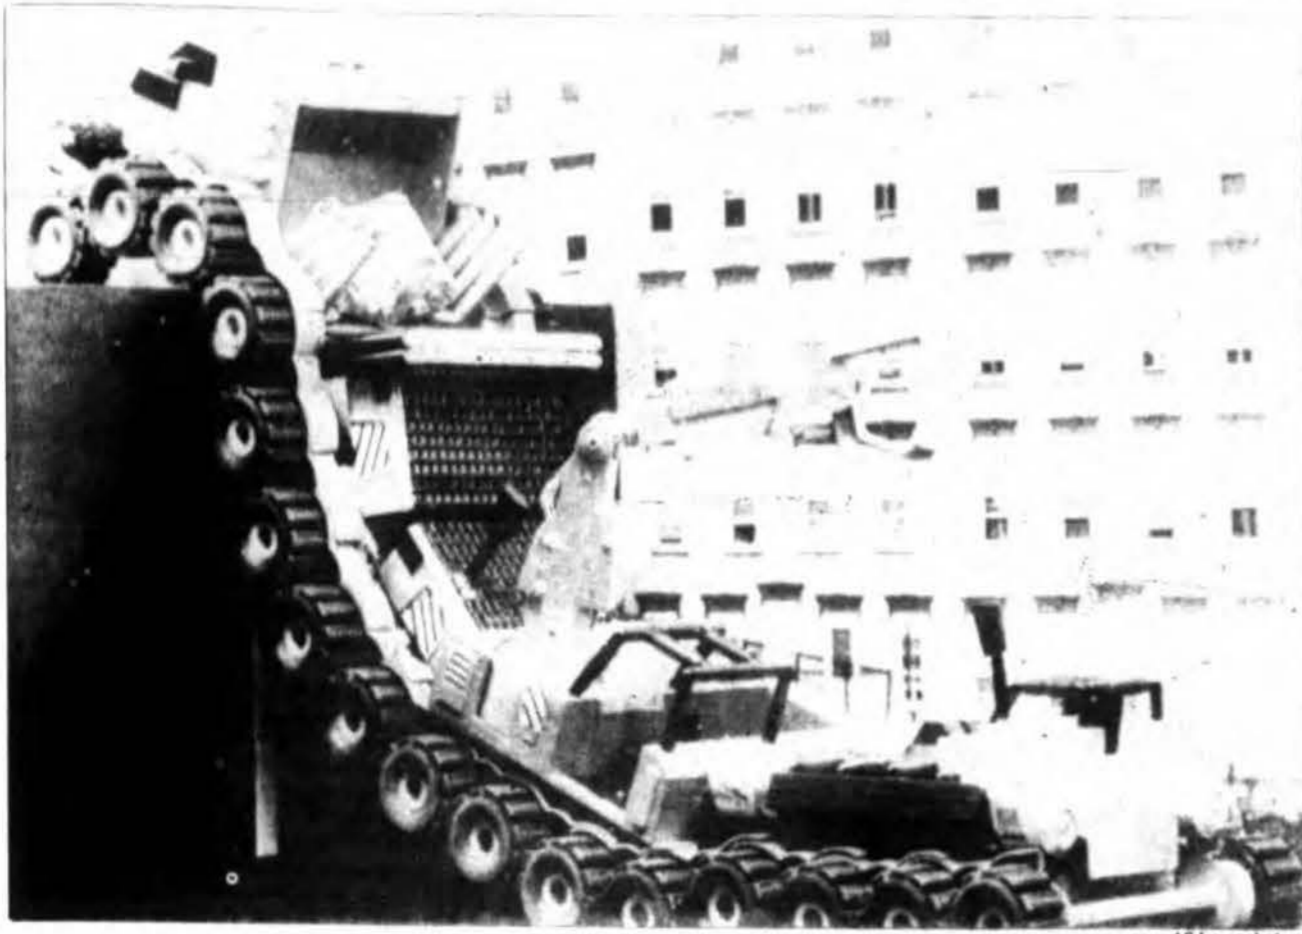

Last year, Hupp ruled at the end of the long legal battle that Smith had infringed on Hughes Tool's patent. Friday's judgment was in the penalty phase of the trial.

As a result, Smith set aside $22.8 million in a special fund to pay damages in the case, but even then it said in public documents it believed the damages could range as high as $62 million.

Smith also said a substantially larger settlement "could be material to the company's financial position."

Business revolution proposed

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The United States must revolutionize the way it does business or fall further behind in a competitive world, the author of a book about the best-managed American companies said.

"The United States is coming off 150 years making big things that don't work very well" in a protected business environment, said Thomas J. Peters, author of the 1982 best seller "In Search of Excellence."

"Suddenly we're forced to live in the world, and we ain't ready," he said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Peters, 43, said the United States could turn into a nation of "sleepkeepers and assemblers" if American business doesn't change.

"Wherever you look there's just this incredible opportunity for individual businesses to improve their performance, but they have to do it on about face of approximately 180 degrees to do so," he said.

Peters said U.S. companies must adjust to unprecedented competition from foreign businesses, technological change and the continuing shift from a manufacturing to service economy.

"All three of those are causing the most fundamental shift in the way people work and where they work and what they do for a living in the last 200 years," he said.

To keep up with the changes, U.S. companies must emphasize people-oriented management, customer service and innovation, he said.

Peters, whose follow-up book, "Passion For Excellence," was published last year, said U.S. dominance of world markets after World War II is to blame for some of the problems faced by U.S. business today.

"There were 20 million Russians dead, Europe was flattened, Asia was flattened," he said. "The reason we were so fantastic as exporters for 30 years was because there wasn't anybody else."

"It's like having the Chicago Bears play against a Brownie troop and then being proud of the score we've run up."

Networking goes formal to boost small businesses

Members may share markets but don't vie with each other

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — To sales people on the make, working the network means keeping in touch with individuals or groups of people who can provide recommendations and leads that might lead to sales.

As practiced by millions of business people, it is an unstructured and even casual pursuit. Some good sales people, in fact, never consider that what they do is networking. To them it is simply common sense.

It made so much sense to John Weikert, entrepreneur and onetime Xerox Corp. marketing vice president, that he founded American Business Associates to put networking on a formal, professional and even more goal-directed basis.

In groups of 30, representatives of small and medium-size businesses meet at breakfast twice a month to exchange leads and general marketing information, such as the names of new purchasing agents and their particular needs.

While they share the same markets, the members, selected by Weikert and his staff, aren't competitive with each other. Each is expected to contribute, which means, says Weikert, that each has 29 other sales people helping.

"We want the shakers and movers in their disciplines and in the community," says Weikert, who founded, developed and then sold a successful photofinishing business after leaving Xerox.

Information interchange is the key, and if members find a lead, they are expected to follow it up. The network is an dangered. With it, each member multiplies his effort.

As he sees it, the associations fill a vast void for smaller businesses. Xerox is large enough to have a variety of contacts, enough people to interchange ideas, and the money to support sales calls.

"Small business doesn't have that luxury," says Weikert. Citing McGraw-Hill figures, he reasons that if a sales call costs $205, and it takes five calls to make a sale, his members cover their $895 annual membership cost with one sale.

Some members say they do better. Michael Finaldi, president of Tele-Solutions, a New Jersey telephone connector company, attributes about $200,000 of new business to "fellow members or leads provided by members."

Members sometimes sell to each other, but more often they discover that a company they call on needs the services of a fellow member. By recommending that member they sometimes solidify their own relationship with the client.

Telephone interconnectors, such as Finaldi, are especially welcome as members, since they have an opening to new businesses in town. Real estate people and lawyers often make good members. And purchasing personnel too.

Each council — there are now nine — meets between 8:30 and 10 a.m. every other week, led by an American Business Associates staffer, the better to keep the agenda moving. Discipline and formal structure are needed, says Weikert.

While Weikert calls his councils unique, networking groups exist in other parts of the country. Almost all, however, are less structured and disciplined than ABA, which has headquarters in Manhattan.

The nine councils now operate in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, but Weikert says he has approval of the Federal Trade Commission to franchise the councils throughout the country.
