"NOBODY WINS? Judge finds Jason Rausch guilty of misdemeanor in death of teen in car crash last May. Verdict disappoints victim's mother, but Rausch still faces up to a year in jail.

By Christopher Goffard HARBOR COURT — In a decision that left Jason Rausch and his supporters visibly relieved but others seething, a judge Thursday found the teen driver innocent of two of three criminal counts he faced in connection with a fatal Irvine Avenue auto crash. Superior Court Judge Everett W. Dickey found Rausch guilty of misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter with ordinary negligence not the gross negligence charge prosecutors advocated — for the death of Rausch's former schoolmate Donny Bridgman. In addition, Dickey found Rausch innocent of two misdemeanor counts of reckless driving in connection with serious injuries suffered by Dan Townsend and Amanda Arthur, two other former students at New port Harbor High School. After the decision, 18-year-

NEWPORT-MESA - Although crime rates in California and Orange County schools have decreased in the past year, on Newport-Mesa campuses, the numbers were steady or on the increase in key areas, according to a study compiled by the state Department of Education.

Released Wednesday, the study compares the crime statistics of the 1995-96 school year to 1996-97. In Newport-Mesa, state records show an increase in the number of drug and alcohol violations, batteries, assaults with deadly weapons, robberies and sex offenses

Areas in which there is a decrease include possession of a weapon and property crimes. Overall, the number of reported crimes decreased from 144 two years ago to 140 last year.

The sharpest increase was in the area of assault with a deadly weapon. There were none reported two years ago, but nine were reported in the 1996-97 school

"You have to look at what the definition of assault with a deadly weapon is," said interim Superintendent Robert Francy. Sometimes a kid could use a pencil like a knife, and that could be considered a deadly weapon."

Of the nine cases reported, Francy said all were committed by high school students. Eight were on campus at a high school, and one was off campus. Five of the incidents were during school, four were after school.

And Francy said one of the incidents - which accounts for three of the assaults with deadly weapons cases - involved three girls who were chasing another

Spyglass Hill hit with two walls of mud, debris

City officials blame landslides on over-watering, not El Niño storms; homes not touched in early morning incidents.

By Husein Mashni, Daily Pilot

SPYGLASS HILL - Suspecting over-irrigation is to blame for two mudslides that occurred near the top of this hilltop community Thursday morning, city officials are calling on residents of Newport Beach to turn off irrigation systems at least until the ground absorbs El Niño's most recent soakings.

"They should turn their irrigation systems off," said David Niederhaus, the city's director of general services. "It'll be a couple of weeks before they need to irri-

A 50-foot area of a Goleta Point Drive hillside slid onto the street below Thursday morning with trees and vegetation intact. Niederhaus said there was another slide of equal size on Montecito Drive, also on Spyglass Hill.

The Goleta Point slide broke surface irrigation, underground drainage pipes and left tree roots exposed.

There was no damage to any of the homes in the area. City officials said the slides were classified as deep surface slips, which are caused when the ground is overly saturated with water. "People should watch out, especially in steep areas, for cracks in the ground," said Rusty Price, the chief building inspector for Newport Beach. "People can cover the ground with tarps to try to keep water from getting to it."

Half of Goleta Point Drive was closed off because of the thick wall of mud that covered about a 50-foot area of the street in the CORONA DEL MAR - When Jerry Hill left for vacation last week, he did not expect his wild adventure in Aruba would include a robber pointing a gun at his head.

The 66-year-old Corona del Mar resident flew to Aruba, an island in the Caribbean Sea, by himself on Feb. 18 to visit a native family he met during his last trip to the tropical par-

The day after his arrival, Hill and two of his friends were sightseeing when he asked the driver to stop the car so he could take a picture of some ruins. His friends, Gerira Arends and Deborah Arenzs, waited in the car while Hill snapped away with his camera. Then three men drove up in a car — one of them hopped out, pointed a gun first at Hill's throat,

Newport Beach Central Library provides more than just books

By Alessandra Djurklou

ewport Beach residents who think their public library is an oppressively silent place full of dust and books haven't been there lately.

Since the new central branch was built a little more than two years ago, it hasn't had time to become either dusty or silent - because it's been jam packed with events like speeches, concerts, art exhibits and seminars.

The current jewel in the library's crown is the first annual Martin W. Witte Distinguished Lecture Series, which kicked off on Feb. 20 with radio commentator Michael Luminaries like Jet Propulsion Laboratory engineer Donna Shirley, CNN political commentator Jeff Greenfield and journalist George Plimpton will round out this season's series throughout the next three months.

"I felt the time was right to move to this," said series chairperson Jim Wood. "Now the doors are wide open for dialogue with a vibrant community." The series is named after the late Martin Witte, a local businessman.

"They're going for nationally recognized speakers," said Lizanne Witte, Martin Witte's daughter-in-law, about the series' organizers.

Lizanne is also in charge of the Manuscripts Lecture Series, in which authors are invited to speak about their latest work.

The manuscript series has been around for two years, and has spawned an offspring the Manuscripts Book Club.

Next month, the series features author M.D. Coverley, who wrote a multi-media interactive novel called "Califia," while the book club reads "The Tortilla Curtain" by novelist and USC professor T. Coraghessan Boyle.

With so many activities. Witte said, the library is quickly becoming the cultural center of town. Local theaters and museums may disagree, but one look at the events calendar seems to back up Witte's assertion.

Apart from the two series and the book club, monthly Sunday Musicales showcase an eclectic assortment of musicians

In February, Alan Terriciano, an assistant professor at UC Irvine, played several piano pieces written by American composers. In March, pianist Shirley Case will play Debussy, accompanied by a slide presentation of paintings by Monet and Renoir. April and May feature arias from a local soprano and Irish/Celtic music from a local band.

Not to be outdone by the Manuscripts

Series, the Reader's Repertory Theater, also at the library, involves local actors doing dramatic readings of plays and "I call it the theater of the mind," said director Edith Schwartz. "It's an intimate sharing of literature with audience and reader." In March, the repertory will honor women's history month by featuring local writer Susan Griffin's play "Voices."

Then there are the continual lectures every Tuesday and Thursday by local speakers on every topic under the sun, like how to keep track of your finances, how to beat stress and even what is planned for the Balboa Peninsula.

"We're probably maxed out right now," said adult program coordinator Sara Barnicle of the library's schedule.

But that doesn't prevent library officials from exploring every aspect of the arts. In the lobby hangs an exhibit from local artist Joyce Tanaka-Shields, who specializes in Chinese brush

Pathfinder engineer learns fame is part of the job

By Alessandra Djurklou

et Propulsion Laboratory's Mars Program Manager Donna Lee Shirley has been in the spotlight ever since the Pathfinder spacecraft successfully landed on the red planet nearly eight months ago. But that doesn't mean she has gotten completely used to her newfound fame.

When asked why she agreed to take part in the Distinguished Lecture Series at the Newport Beach Public Library, for instance, the world-renowned aerospace engineer answered in the form of a question.

"Do you know who I am?" At first glance, the above reply may seem sarcastic, even arrogant, but coming from Shirley, it reflects a certain humorous bewilderment — that achieving her lifetime goal, Mars exploration - came with the side effect of instant celebrity.

"It's a little overwhelming," she said. But Shirley is wise enough to know some of the attention has to do with the fact that she is the first woman ever to oversee a NASA program. "It makes me kind of sad," she said.

"There ought to be more women [in the field], so I wouldn't be such a rarity." But like celebrity, becoming a pioneer in the women's movement is also a sideeffect. Growing up in Oklahoma, the daughter of a general practitioner, Shirley wanted first to design airplanes. Then, at age 12, she read Arthur C. Clarke's "The Sands of Mars," and her love affair with the fourth rock from the sun began.

It's been a long affair, and one that shows no signs of waning. If anything, it's stronger than ever because, although the Pathfinder mission ended last fall, leaving the toy-like Sojourner rover Shirley helped design sitting in the red sand, there's still plenty to talk about.

The Global Surveyor entered Mars' orbit in September, and is currently mapping the planet surface. And several other missions are scheduled until 2001. But the biggest mission of all — sending astronauts to Mars — is one Shirley is looking forward to although she knows by the time it happens it is unlikely she will participate.

"It will be 2018 by the time we're ready to send a man to Mars," she told a group of teenagers in Boise, Idaho, a few weeks before Pathfinder's historic landing. "That's just when many of you will be the right age to join the program."

Shirley will speak at the Newport Beach Public Library on March 20. The event begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $20. For information, call 644-3296.

Beware of the dogs — and rabid councilmen

This week, barking dogs and snapping councilmen. First, Fido and friends. Know what a Bark Park is? A while back, when a few residents asked the city to build one, I didn't.

'What's a Bark Park?," I inquired, innocent as new snow.

People gasped. "You don't know what a Bark Park is!" they stammered, looking at me as if I had at least one head too many. A Bark Park is a section of a Park Park, I was told, which is fenced in so that dog owners can let their quadruped companions run, frolic and do all the things that dogs do, most of which cannot be discussed here.

At the time, the only other Bark Park in the county was in Laguna Beach. Why not, I thought. It's a nice touch, I love dogs, who doesn't, and it might even catch on. Truth be told, it caught on like a propane tank in a campfire. What I thought would be a nice amenity has become a vital necessity. We're now planning the sequel, Son of Bark Park, in Fairview Park.

What interests me is that I get almost as many letters these days about the pups and their park as I do about streets and noisy neighbors. "What about this idea?" "What about that idea?" "His retriever is a troublemaker." "Her Yorkie is harassing my Rottweiler. Can't you do something?"

No, we can't. But tell your Rottweiler to snap out of it and not be such a wimp. It has all served as a reminder that people are passionate about their animals, especially their dogs.

Of course, the rivalry between dog people and cat people has raged for years. I'm a dog person. But I must admit, I have come around quite a bit on the cat thing since we inherited one a few years ago.

My relationship with Henson (the cat) has progressed from

icy silence and mutual distrust to a daily exchange of pleasantries and mutual distrust. Let's face it, as far as a cat is concerned, you are the large device attached to the little aluminum can.

If General Electric invented an opener that could open the can and turn it upside down over a dish, cats wouldn't need us at all.

Dogs? Whole different deal. Those goofy-smiling, sometimes-slobbering knuckleheads couldn't get along without us. When they hear that garage door open, they're hopping up and down like a toy helicopter, dying to say hello. They don't care what's going on or what time it is - they just want to hang out with us. What other animal sneezes like crazy if you blow lightly on its nose, but just loves to stick its head out the car window at 50 miles an hour? Speaking of things that don't make sense, that brings us to snapping councilmen.

I've tried to keep a record of quirks, oddities and general . weirdness at city council meetings, here and everywhere, over the years. I don't think I'll bother anymore. Santa Ana has claimed the gold. They are without equal. In the land of strange tales, they are the ruler of all that they survey. Until last week, the Gran Prix was firmly in the grasp of the Mission Viejo City Council, which won for an episode some years ago in which a council member claimed that someone had tried to poison him by slipping something into his water pitcher during a break. (Not making this up, promise.)

So what exactly was the topic that sparked a near riot at last week's Santa Ana council meeting? It was a motion to terminate the lease for a gift shop in the Santa Ana Transportation Center - an emotional time bomb if I ever heard one.

Somehow, some way, who knows, Councilmen Brett Franklin and Ted Moreno get into a knockdown, drag-out, finger-pointing shouting match over - remember now - a gift shop lease.

At one point, Moreno stands up and paces back and forth, as he and Franklin continue to bash away at each other. Mayor Miguel Pulido is frantically trying to regain control, but Moreno refuses to sit down. It gets so bad that Councilwoman Pat McGuigan — a veteran council member who is always professional and almost always unflappable - leaves the room in tears. Pulido calls a break to let everyone cool down. Believe it or not, everything so far is just prologue. You ain't seen nothin

During the break, Franklin is standing in the kitchen area and claims Moreno "hockey checked" him against the wall as he walked past. At this point, things get lively. Moreno says Franklin is lying and they just "bumped shoulders." Pulido, being an experienced mayor, runs back to the meeting room just long enough to say, "Adjourned." Both councilmen try to outrun each other to file a police report. Franklin says he "will not tolerate violence in Santa Ana or on the city council," and plans to file a battery report.

"I'd be willing to drop the charges," Franklin says, "only under the condition that he agreed to undergo psychiatric testing."

Moreno, who will be a candidate for mayor in November, says, "This smells like a setup to me."

Tara Lipinsky, step aside. Your performance was spectacular, thank you so much, but we in Orange County know who really deserves the gold. And you thought you didn't like politics! I gotta go.

Swap meet expansion meeting opposition

Board takes no action on plan to add street fair, car museum to swap meet; some suggest putting arrangement out to bid.

By Tim Grenda, Daily Pilot

ORANGE COUNTY FAIR-GROUNDS - A handful of the fairgrounds' neighbors and vendors who sell at the Orange County Market Place are urging the fair board to reject the current operator's plans to expand the swap meet and put the event's contract up for bid.

Tel Phil Enterprises, the Newport Beach company that has run the weekend swap meet on the fairgrounds for 29 years, has asked fair officials for permission to expand.

The company wants to add a classic car museum, Thursday evening street fair, a manufacturers area designed to be like a small factory outlet center, a relocated farmers market and an area devoted to selling only specialty car accessories to the swap meet.

The fair board met in closed session Thursday to consider the proposed expansion, but no decision was made.

Board members said they needed more time to review a traffic impact study on the proposed expansion and will consider the Tel Phil proposal at a future meeting, officials said.

But some people who live near the swap meet or sell products there are already concerned about the planned expansion and think it may be time to let another swap meet organizer have a crack at running the show.

'It's time to put this thing out to bid," said resident Chuck Huddleston. "Maybe we could get a company in there who could offer $5 million rather than $4 million [the amount Tel Phil pays each year for the rights to the swap meet]."

But Tel Phil spokesman Bill Furlow said his company already earned the right to operate the swap meet during open bidding just six years ago and there's no reason to change operators now.

"That decision has been made," Furlow said. "Tel Phil won the competition fair and square."

In 1992, at the end of Tel Phil's second 10-year contract with the fairgrounds, fair officials put the swap meet contract up for bid.

Several prospective operators responded and in the end, TelPhil was awarded a new five-year contract with an additional five-year extension the fair board could offer.

Fairgrounds officials approved a five-year extension last year and Tel Phil's current contract runs through 2003.

voiced concerns about how the planned additions to the swap meet would affect their small businesses.

Among the proposed changes is consolidating the swap meet's produce, food-togo and fruit vendors into a single farmers market in the center of the Market Place.

Some vendors are afraid they would lose their loyal customers who know where their booths are located within the swap meet, but Furlow said the new arrangement will help, not harm, the vendors.

"Those [produce vendors] are clearly going to benefit from this," Furlow said. "They're going to be covered [with a permanent shade structure) and centrally located in the swap meet."

Jason Rausch's day in court was a little bit out of the ordinary as both sides agreed to a court trial with no jury, allowing Superior Court Judge Everett Dickey decide the matter.

old Rausch stood up to embrace his lawyer, Jennifer Keller. Then he went to hug his mother, Leslie, who wept silently with relief.

On the other side of the aisle, where the families of Donny Bridgman and Dan Townsend sat along with the Newport Beach traffic investigator who handled the case, the mood was somewhat darker.

Vickie Bridgman, Donny's mother, jabbed her finger in Rausch's direction as she filed passed him out of the courtroom.

"He knows what happened, I know what happened," said Bridgman, who has repeatedly urged Rausch to take responsibility for the crash.

"That judge and I didn't sit through the same hearing," she said later.

Rausch, who attends Orange Coast College, was the sober designated driver of a Chevy Blazer packed with nine other Newport Harbor teens on their way home from a party on May 23, 1997.

Authorities said Rausch was speeding between 60 and 67 mph in a 35-mph zone on Irvine Avenue when the vehicle, which belonged to Donny Bridgman, hit a curb and flipped.

The prosecutor originally filed a felony vehicular manslaughter charge against Rausch, which left him facing the possibility of six years in state prison, but Judge Dickey reduced it to a misdemeanor at a preliminary hearing in December.

On Thursday, having agreed to let the judge decide the case rather than a jury, lawyers on both sides argued before Dickey. The transcript from the preliminary hearing took the place of new testimony.

Deputy Attorney General Jim Dutton, who prosecuted the case, said Rausch ignored multiple "red flags" - including verbal warnings from a passenger and posted speed-limit signs - as he wound around the curves on Irvine Avenue before the crash.

"He's going to see how fast he can go through those babies, and he doesn't care what happens," Dutton said, adding that Rausch drove with a "wanton, devil-maycare attitude.

"He drove like there was no tomorrow," Dutton said. "And there was no tomorrow for Donny Bridgman."

Keller, the defense attorney, said factors other than speed contributed to the crash. The road was dangerously wet from sprinkler runoff, the Blazer was overloaded with rowdy kids, and it was jacked 7 inches higher than its manufacturer intended, she said.

"It seems to be that both legally and morally there are many responsible parties," she said. "He should certainly not be held to be the equivalent of a murder-

As he gave his ruling, Dickey said he believed speed was the primary cause of the crash, but added prosecutors did not prove that Rausch heard "so-called warnings" of a teenage passen-

Dickey also said Rausch probably would not have crashed if he had been driving a car he was more familiar with, such as Rausch's own.

Rausch faces up to a year in jail when the judge sentences him on March 27.

Outside the courtroom, the prosecutor said he was disappointed with Dickey's ruling

"It's his decision," Dutton said. "I don't know if I'm surprised or not." Keller said the case against Rausch never should have involved a felony charge or gross negligence in the first place.

"He doesn't need to be punished," she said. "He's punishing himself."

Rausch's father, Manny Hernandez of Santa Maria, said his son was trying to help when he agreed to be a designated driver.

"You try to be a good guy, a good Samaritan, and they try to crucify you," he said. "It's a tragedy. Nobody wins."

"I was expecting to help my brother because of the rain," Ahmadi said. "There was just too much water."

Spyglass area resident Jim Bell was jogging this morning when he noticed the mud slide. "I've been worried about

In two cases, Francy said, students kicked other students while wearing steel-tip boots. In another case, a student reportedly pointed the sharp end of a compass at another youth. In still another case, a student threatened someone with a baseball bat. There was one case in which a student did brandish a knife.

Drug and alcohol offenses more than doubled from 15 two yéars ago to 33 last year. Francy said the sharp increase could, at least partly, be the result of improved reporting by faculty.

Hill said no shots were ever fired.

After reporting the incident to local authorities, police barricaded the roads and caught two of the three robbers. But before his possessions could be returned to him, Hill had to sign some paperwork - written in Dutch. He said he asked if he could have a copies in English, so he knew what he was signing. The authorities said no.

Although Hill's vacation did not begin as planned, he said he still had fun celebrating with the locals during their annual event, Carnival.

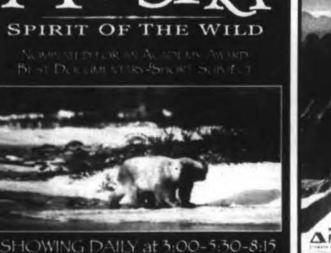

"I had a wonderful time, and being with all those people was a wonderful experience," he said. "I don't know if I will go back to the ruins. I might go back next year for Carnival. It's noisy and fun and colorful."

SCOPING OUT THE WORLD OF SPEED

Not many can argue it's a very, very big ocean.

"Boat" is a device constructed to provide buoyancy by excluding water, shaped to give stability and permit propulsion.

Now, if we take a more ethereal look at the word propulsion, we find "Propulsion, n, the act of propelling or driving

This in itself shouldn't create fear in the hearts of all you wind walkers" out there, however, the truth be known, the meaning does state "driving forward," making no reference to zig-zagging back and forth while heeling over a 45-degree

Estancia tackles Bishop Montgomery

CIF Division III-A semifinal is tonight, at Redondo High, where Eagles are one win from the Pond.

By Barry Faulkner, Daily Pilot

REDONDO BEACH - Estancia High's path to the CIF Southern Section Division III-A boys basketball championship game could lead through a window tonight at 7:30 against semifinal host Bishop Mont-

That aforementioned glass rectangle would be both backboards at Redondo Union High, which the second-seeded Knights (20-6) figure to attack with height and athleticism.

"One key will be whether or not we can rebound with them," said Estancia High Coach Rich Boyce, whose Eagles (19-9) have outrebounded their first two playoff victims by a combined 63-52 margin. "We have to go to the glass."

Boyce said attacking the window is something the Del Rey League runners-up do with fervor.

Sports

We may be better shooters, but they really go to the glass,' Boyce said of Coach Doug Mitchell's Knights, for whom 6foot-5 sophomore Brian Pruitl averages 17.2 rebounds per

The hosts also start 6-5 junior Tony Booker (nearly seven boards per contest) and 6-4 sharpshooter Marvin Perez Sam Nelson (4.5 rebounds per game), while 6-5, 220-pound senior Lamar Lawrence average nearly 12 rebounds per outing off the bench. Perez is the leading scorer at 14 points per game, followed by Pruitl (13.5 ppg),

Booker (13.2), Lee (9.5) and Lawrence (7.5). Errick Craven (6.0 ppg) and DeVaughn Peace, both 6-0 freshmen, start in the backcourt for the Knights, who have advanced by knocking off St. Francis, 80-57, and familiar Estancia nemesis Morningside, 68-63.

Estancia has reached the semis by topping Bassett, 74-60, and No. 3 seed San Dimas, 47-46, despite two subpar scoring efforts from 6-5 Air Force Academy-bound senior Sam Nelson, Nelson, the Pacific Coast League MVP and a second-team All-CIF Division III selection as a junior, entered the postseason averaging 23.7 ppg. He has, however, posted just 14 points in the playoffs, all against San Dimas.

Still, Boyce remains confident his senior star will come up big before he's through.

"He'll hit his stride," Boyce said. "He's a big-game player, as evidenced by his scoring 12 of our last 14 points against San Dimas. When the pressure's on, I don't worry about Sam. Boyce said his team, including starters James Dawkins (12.9 ppg), Brett Valbuena (8.7), Ryan Simpson (7.2) and Peter Andersen (4.0), is similarly due to put it all together.

"I hope our best basketball comes (tonight)," Boyce said. "We haven't played well in the playoffs, but we've won, which could be a good omen. The only people who thought we'd get this far are our players and coaches. If we can execute our offense, we'll be fine."

Tonight's winner will advance to the March 7 title game at the Arrowhead Pond against either top-seeded Chaminade (25-1) or unseeded Cabrillo (14-11).

CIF DIVISION IV BOYS SOCCER QUARTERFINAL

SAME OLD STORY

No rosy picture for the Eagles against Artists as Laguna Beach posts 1-0 victory in CIF Division IV quarterfinals Thursday.

By Richard Dunn, Daily Pilot

COSTA MESA - There were jarring collisions and a couple of mini brawls, but physical play isn't what put Laguna Beach High over the top Thursday in its victory over host Estancia, 1-0, in the quarterfinals of the CIF Southern Section Division IV boys soccer playoffs at Harper

And while the Artists continued to enjoy a distinct height advantage, allowing them to win virtually every aerial, that alone wasn't the reason why Estancia was unable to defeat them for the sixth consecutive meeting.

And, no, it wasn't the fact Estancia (14-7-2) was playing a man down in the second half (thanks to a red card), because the Eagles "dominated the second half," according to Laguna Beach Coach Andy Thomas.

So what was it? How on earth could Estancia control the game, yet come up short again?

Perhaps it was simply Spencer Herbert, Laguna Beach's senior forward, being in the right place at the right time.

Herbert's rebound goal in the 34th minute provided the only score as the second-seeded Artists (18-4-2) punched the Eagles' lights out on the 1997-98

"We kept our discipline and we kept our concentration, and that's what beat (the Eagles)," Thomas said. "They usually get red cards against us."

Estancia, only 1-7-2 against the Artists since 1995, played in the second half without junior defender Luis Avalos, who was given a red card in the 39th minute for a retaliatory punch on Laguna Beach senior midfielder Matt Reedy, who appeared to strike Avalos first.

"It was ridiculous the way the referee handled it," Estancia Coach Steve Crenshaw said. "If you retaliate, yeah, you're supposed to get carded, but the other guy threw the first punch. That hurt us being a man down the rest of the way. I think we got a little flustered by the cards. There were some biased calls, and the referee almost lost control of the game.'

Estancia, advancing to the quarterfinals for the first time since the school won a CIF 2-A championship in 1985, lost to Pacific Coast League nemesis Laguna Beach for the third time this season. The Eagles last defeated the Artists on Feb. 9,

The Artists, given four yellow cards in the contest (Estancia had one red, one yellow), knocked away several Estancia scoring opportunities in the second half.

Estancia's two best chances of scoring in the second half came on shots by Irving Islas and Armando Ortiz. Islas received a long cross pass from senior Ramon Garcia in the 76th minute, but Laguna Beach goalkeeper Mike Labeda stopped Islas' attempt.

Ortiz got behind the Artist defense in the 62nd minute, also on a pass from Garcia, but his attempt went wide left.

Estancia outshot Laguna Beach in the second 40 minutes, 9-7. Eagle keeper Brad Wayman finished with five saves, his best coming in the 53rd minute when he caught Herbert's rocket.

In the first half, Garcia was involved in numerous defensive stops and came within inches of scoring in the 30th minute after dribbling up the middle and firing from about 15 yards out.

Cesar Terrones attempted three of Estancia's nine first-half shots (the Artists had 14 in the half), his closest-to-scoring shot coming in the fourth minute on a direct kick which kissed the crossbar and bounced away. The Eagles had three direct kicks in the first 10 minutes, but couldn't convert against Laguna Newport Harbor High missed the girls basketball playoffs for the first time in eight seasons, but three returners will bring Daily Pilot All-Sea View League credentials into next season's run for a postseason berth.

League last season, before transferring to Newport from Costa Mesa High. She averaged 11.1 points in nine league games, missing due to illness. She was in double figures times against league competition, including a 16-point effort in a 35-32 upset victory over Woodbridge Feb. 10.

Ross, a 6-1 center, averaged 8.9 ppg for the Tars, while still picking up the basics of the game. Already known for her standout work in volleyball and track and field, her continued development on the hardwood bodes well for the program's return to prominence under Coach Ryan Bettencourt.

Urban, a 5-9 junior forward, averaged 9.7 ppg for first-year Coach Elbert Davis. She had five double-figure efforts including a high game of 17 against Irvine Jan. 22.

Dunlap, the Sea Kings' consistent leader as a 5-7 guard, scored an even 100 points in 10 league contests, including a 20-point performance in the season finale against El Toro. Sophomore Giuliana Mendio-la, who paced El Toro to an unbeaten league championship season by averaging 20.6 points against Sea View foes, is the Most Valuable Player.

Joni Colburn, who led Irvine to a surprise second-place finish in her first season on the Vaqueros' bench, is Coach of the Year.

Slow, chilly and with a touch of beauty right here at the very end.

Long Beach Wilson, undefeated and the top eed in CIF Southern Section Division I, handed ne Sailors an 8-4 blow to wrap up the Tars' Sea lew League-winning year. Despite the chill of the loss, the affair wasn't bad nd Newport's valiant stand was a sweet cap to a eautiful season. "This group of girls was an amazing, amazing roup," Co-Coach Brian Kreutzkamp said. "To e in the final four in Division I, well, that's nothg to be ashamed of. We can hold our heads gh." Harbor finishes 20-8. Coach Ricardo Azevedo and his Bruins displayed their confidence a day before the game by selecting the facility at CdM after their first choice of sites at Long Beach State was not available for the semifinal bout.

The Bergeson Center could be considered Newport's home away from home as the Sailors are quite familiar with the confines at their Back Bay rival's school. The showing of certainty went from the pregame decision right into the pool as the Bruins quickly established their authority. Just 1:09 into the contest, Wilson's Cat Bell converted an open shot from the hole into a score. Bell would strike again in the first period, as would Jenni Stuart and Kate Campbell as the Bruins mounted a 4-1 lead at the end of one. "We didn't play too good of two-meter defense and that hurt," Coach Bill Barnett said.

Barnett, a 10-time CIF champion coach with Harbor boys teams, added, "We just didn't move Wilson's plaguing defense continued to choke the Sailors in the second quarter. They would leave the first half with a commanding 6-1 lead. "There's a reason they are 27-0," Kreutzkamp

Estancia baseball penalized

COSTA MESA - The Estancia High baseball team will be forced to remove one game from its schedule as a penalty for holding its alumni game Saturday, before the CIF Southern Section's prescribed date for opening contests, first-year Eagles Coach Joe McKettrick said Thursday.

McKettrick said he has not yet determined which game he would scratch, but indicated a March 17 home contest against Santa Ana is the only nonleague game on the Eagles' schedule which isn't a part of a tournament.

McKettrick said he received approval from the Estancia administration to schedule the alumni game Saturday. He said he was unaware the CIF Southern Section calendar lists Feb. 28 as the first day for contests, including scrimmages. Estancia is scheduled to scrimmage Los Amigos Saturday.

Had it been a one-half game - the final two quarters, in this case -- Newport would be playing for the CIF title as the Tars outscored Wilson, 3-2.

> Opening lead: King of * Besides being acknowledged as > the world's leading bridge authority, the late Charles Goren was a sports fan. It was he who borrowed from one of his favorite sports, boxing, to coin the term for a trump promotion play. It is still known as an 'upper-

The auction is unremarkable. North's second-round pass after the overcall showed a minimum opening bid and South took a reasonable shot at a spade game. Although it appears the contract is impregnable, the defense can prevail. Which card is pivotal to the final result? Move to the top of the class if you selected the six of spades as the fourth trick for the defenders! Good defense needs cooperation between the partners, and East and West combined perfectly to promote West's lowly six-spot to the setting trick.

West led the king and ace of clubs, then followed with the five. East took care to ruff with the seven, Declarer overruffed with the ten, then led the jack of spades from hand. West rose with the ace and continued with the jack of clubs, and East seized the opportunity to ruff partner's trick with the nine, forcing declarer to overruff with the queen That left West with the guarded six of trumps behind declarer's K 5 3 and the contract had to fail by a trick.

A letter from the publisher

Welcome to the 1998 Daily Pilot Almanac ... our third annual. Each year as we roll through January and February, our promotions department embarks on what seems like an endless task – compiling the Almanac. This three-person staff (Lana H. Johnson, Jill Emmett and Julie Viker) spend countless hours gathering data, writing stories and, at times, even taking some of the photos ... this, in addition to completing their normal jobs that occupy them throughout the rest of the year. And our recognition wouldn't be complete without thanking Nadine Alvillar for the overall design of the section and cover.

The purpose of the Almanac is to give you our readers a Who's Who ... What's What ... and a Where's Where of Newport Beach and Costa Mesa. Inside this edition you'll meet some of the people who make this community great – from the inventor of a water rake to clean our bay to a young pastor who has opened up shop in a big way in Costa Mesa. You'll find out about events in the community – from the Corona del Mar 5K Run to the year-long 50th anniversary celebration going on at the Balboa Bay Club. If you want to rent an electric boat or tour our Back Bay, we'll tell you where and how. And if you need a telephone number or the address of a city official or office, chances are it's in here.

My hope is that you enjoy and use this section. Any comments, suggestions or new ideas are always welcomed.

Happy reading, Thomas H. Johnson

Preserving the Beauty of Upper Newport Bay

roviding six diverse habitats for more than 200 bird species that live here or visit during their Pacific Flyway migration, Upper Newport Bay (U.N.B.) offers something for everyone. Whether you choose to bird watch (viewing is most abundant from August through April), plan your own self-guided tour along the foot, bike and horse trails, enjoy a canoe or kayak tour, or embark on a family campfire evening, you will discover the beauty of our coastal wetlands and learn about the delicate balance that exists in U.N.B.

How you can help

The following Bay "adoptions" are available to groups. Contact a naturalist for more information.

· Cattail Clean-Up - Join U.N.B. naturalist Amy Litton in Big Canyon to clear small sections of cattails from around Big Canyon pond. This helps school children to see and learn from the wildlife in and on the pond. Call (714) 631-2532.

· Scum Scooping Canoe Tours - Join U.N.B. naturalist Sylvia Marson on the Bay to canoe and pick up trash sent down the watershed from misguided litter bugs. Suitable for high school age and older. Call · Water Quality Monitoring - U.N.B. naturalist Lynnell Machernis will introduce basic water quality testing to interested groups that would like to monitor the health of the Bay and surrounding watershed. Groups interested in sampling fish and shark populations can set up a date to do a beach net survey at · Litter Getter Hiking Trails - These treks, suitable for all ages, tour the Bay with binoculars in one hand and a trash bag in the other. Call U.N.B. naturalist Sylvia Marson at (714) 645-9348.

· U.N.B. naturalist Melanie Oxley will introduce your group to planting, raising and distributing native plants that Monarch butterflies depend upon. Call (714) 649-2526.

· Spring Cleaning - Can you help the naturalists with two hours of volunteer work on the fourth Saturday morning of any month this year by emptying trash cans, sweeping floors and tidying up at Shellmaker Island? Call (714) 640-6746.

lean Harbor Day

his year, Clean Harbor Day is scheduled for Saturday, June 6 at The Cannery Restaurant. Sponsored by the Marine Committee of the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce, volunteers are needed to help clean the Harbor of debris. In addition to debris being left behind after all the El Niño rainstorms, waste washed down from other cities travels through the storm drains and ends up in our Harbor.

If you would like to participate, call Karin Graves at the Newport Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce, (714) 729-4414.

Adopt-A-Beach program Adopt-A-Beach is a year-round program of beach and waterway cleanups for groups and schools. It is a joint effort between the California Coastal Commission, Center for Marine Conservation, and the Orange County Harbors, Beaches and Parks.

Funding is also provided by statewide corporations, businesses and other professional organizations.

How do you Adopt-A-Beach?

The Orange County Harbors, Beaches & Parks. who coordinates the annual California Coastal Cleanup Day, designates sites for adopting a beach. When a group "adopts" a beach, they commit to cleaning it at least three times. In addition to collecting trash and debris, journaling what was picked up and recycling are part of the program. A certificate of completion is issued. The adoption period is one year and groups are encouraged to re-adopt at the end of the year. To date, more than 500 groups with a total of more than 10,000 volunteers have participated in the yearround Adopt-A-Beach program.

For more information on Adopt-A-Beach programs, call Orange County Harbors. Beaches & Parks at (714) 723-4511.

The Hamilton Water Rake

You may think Newport Harbor looks pristine. until you take a closer look. Bottles, cans and styrofoam cups ... oil from boats ... debris ranging from oranges to plastic bags washed down through the storm drains ... these are among the pollutants that end up in our harbor

According to Bill Hamilton, owner of the Cannery and Riverboat restaurants and organizer of Clean Harbor Day every June, waterways seldom clean themselves.

"From a distance it (harbor) looks clean. For the boater and the swimmer, particularly, you get out there among the cigarette butts, twigs, paper cups and plastic, it's disgusting it's not clean at all,"

Hamilton said. In an effort to combat increasing quantities of polluting debris, Hamilton, with a background in mechanical engineering, invented the Hamilton Water

Based on a catamaran-type hull, the Water Rake measures 22 feet long, 10 feet wide and weighs approximately 3,500 pounds. A single operator can efficiently sweep a sevenfoot path, picking up solid objects ranging from cigarette butts to twofoot wide shipping crates. As the Water Rake approaches debris the bow creates a natural vortex which draws objects toward and up a conveyor belt. Pollutants are transported up the belt's knotched surface and deposited in a removable trash receptacle, which holds up to 125 cubic feet of debris. The Water Rake is also equipped with an oil recovery unit attachment, effectively handling spills up to 10,000 gallons in protected harbor waters. When the conveyor belt is in its level position the vehicle can travel at 30 mph. It also has the capability to move forward. backward and turn in tight situations.

"Not very many communities have harbors like we have in Southern California. It makes us different from other places. We should treasure that resource and take good care of it." Hamilton said.

How you can help protect our oceans hether you live in a coastal city or hundreds of miles, from the ocean, you can still affect its health every day. Street run-off makes its way to local streams, streams run into rivers and rivers empty into the sea. How you use or abuse water has far-reaching affects. Here are some tips for helping preserve the ocean we all enjoy that you can practice in your own home today.

By turning just a few of these reminders into habits, you can make a difference!

· Use baking soda, vinegar, and borax for cleaning jobs that used to require bleach, detergents and ammonia.

 If you must use harsh chemicals, don't pour them down the drain or into storm sewers. Keep them in their original containers, tightly sealed and wrapped and call your city or county disposal center to find out about special collection facilities for such materials.

 Conserve water as much as possible to avoid overloading your local sewage system. (Overloading can cause overflows of raw sewage and debris into local waterways, especially

 Leave the car at home as often as possible. Walk, bicycle or use public transportation. Every car trip you don't make reduces the threat of oil contaminating the ocean.

 Reduce your reliance on garbage disposals. They contribute unnecessary waste matter to the waste water system. If possible, set up a garden compost pile instead.

· Don't waste water by letting the faucet run when shaving, brushing your teeth or doing the dishes by hand.

 Save energy by using ceiling fans and open windows to air condition your home.

· If you fish, fish responsibly. Don't throw trash overboard, and remember that many fish species are suffering from overfishing.

 Repair leaky faucets right away. A dripping faucet can waste 20 gallons of water every day!

· Fill a gallon plastic bottle with water and place it in your toilet tank. You can save up to 5,000 gallons of water per year.

 Avoid buying marine wildlife products like coral or shark teeth, especially in other countries.

 Conserve water by taking short showers instead of baths. Install a water-saving shower head.

 Buy organic, locally grown produce when you can. Agricultural runoff introduces thousands of pounds of fertilizers and pesticides into the ocean every year. Encourage farmers to reduce their use of hazardous chemicals

 Reduce the amount of trash you create. Each wrapper, bottle, or box you don't throw away eliminates the possibility that someone will find it during a beach cleanup.

 Encourage recycling in your community. Many grocery chains and retail stores are even encouraging customers to re-use or return plastic shopping bags.

Support the Center for Marine Conservation.

Here is your $135 gift of a lifetime.

Hard Rock Cafe

n November of 1992, 25,000 Newport Beach residents were treated to a free concert by the Neville Brothers to help celebrate Hard Rock Cafe's Newport Beach grand opening. Proceeds from the food and beverage sales generated by the event were donated to the Assistance League of Newport-Mesa and to the Hard Rock Cafe Mobile Medical Van. They are committed to being an important member of the community and have continued to support many events benefiting Orange County while providing an exceptional dining and entertainment experience.

Starting in March, Hard Rock Cafe Newport Beach will introduce a live music series on Friday nights. The kick off event will be held on Saturday, March 14, 1998. The evening will benefit the Surfrider Foundation and will include the addition of a Hollywood star dedicated to the late Brad Nowell, lead singer of the band "Sublime." Nowell's favorite Hawaiian shirt, his handwritten lyrics to "Caress Me Down" and his beach cruiser will be donated to the Hard Rock Cafe by his father and his widow. The live concert will be performed by "The Long Beach Dub All Stars," which includes two previous band members of "Sublime."

And, on any day of the week in a fun, relaxing atmosphere people can revel in the history of rock 'n roll. Your experience begins with a forty-foot Blue Electric Fender Stratocaster neon guitar that stands in front of the restaurant. Inside, the collection of rock 'n roll memorabilia fills the walls. And, in the center of the restaurant, suspended over the bar is a 1959 Cadillac. Also displayed is an electronic tote board which ticks away by the seconds the remaining acres of the planet's rainforests while displaying the world's population as it grows exponentially.

The menu offers a variety of American-style food, seasoned with a healthy dose of rock 'n roll history and includes burgers, fries, salads, milk shakes, steaks, fresh fish, watermelon ribs. Finish your meal with a homemade fudge brownie and hot fudge. Prices range from $5.95 to $15.95. A lil' rockers menu is available for children under 12.

A Nautical Classroom

A lready 1,600 school children have benefited from the Newport Harbor Nautical Museum's Young Mariners Program, since its inception in July 1997. During a two-hour museum visit, youngsters from preschool to grade six are taught about Newport area history, tour the museum's galleries, learn water safety and complete an art project, based on a pautical theme.

School groups are divided into four groups of 15 students; each of whom visits three or four different stations during a two-hour period.

"I discuss the framework of the program with the teacher, prior to their visit. This way I can tailor the activities to the specific grade level and subject matter they are studying," said Suzanne Lockhart, education coordinator for the museum.

The four hands-on stations include: a classroom nautical art project to take home; a docent-led tour of the ship model gallery; visiting the downstairs permanent gallery centered around the history of Newport Bay with memorabilia, photographs and a presentation by a lifeguard; and the upstairs Grand Salon Gallery

One of the youngsters' favorite exhibits is Blackie, the 400-pound black sea bass, who is the oldest one ever caught! (see inset of student's art project)

Each student is given a 25-page booklet from the California Department of Waterways with a variety of activities to complete.

Young Mariners Program is offered Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon. The cost is $3 per student. After-school scout programs can be arranged. For more information and to make reservations, contact Suzanne Lockhart at (714) 673-7863, ext. 107.

Swimming pool tips

rowning in swimming pools is the largest cause of death to small children in Orange County.

According to the Costa Mesa Fire Department, here's a pool side security checklist that adults can use when small children come in contact with backyard swimming pools:

 Are children supervised at all times while in and around the pool, spa, bathtub, toilet or buckets of liquid?

 Is there a fence that separates the pool from the house?

· Is the gate to the pool area closed and latched?

· Is the gate locked when the pool is not in use?

 Are the children never left alone by a pool, even for a few seconds?

· Is there a telephone with a 911 sticker by the pool?

· Have all items that can be used for climbing (tables, ladders, chairs) been removed from near the pool fence?

· Have all the toys been removed from the pool area?

· Are all doors and windows leading to the pool area secured?

· Are pool chemicals locked

• Is the pool's water kept within three to four inches from the top of the pool to make climbing out easier?

 Are lifesaving flotation devices mounted in plain view and are they in good condition?

 Is the supervising adult certified to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR)?

· Are pool gates locked for the winter?

Other pool safety items:

 Use several protective barriers in tandem to make your pool or spa area safer:

 Perimeter fences enclose entire yard.

 Pool and spa covers should be automatic and able to support weight of a child. Covers must not leave room for children to crawl under and into pool.

· Infrared sensors detect human presence near pool area and sound alarm · Pool gates, 54 inches high, with self-closing hinges and selflocking latches that open away from the pool area.

 Provide an alarm on sliding glass doors from the home which access pool and spa areas.

 Remove furniture away from fences to discourage climbing.

Selecting life jackets for children personal flotation device (PFD) or life jacket can keep a child afloat and warm in cold water.

Here are some guidelines on choosing a life jacket for youngsters.

 Look for the U.S. Coast Guard approval number on the life jacket, signifying performance and design criteria have been met.

· Check the size and weight label. Have your child try on the jacket for proper fit. If there is more than three inches between the youngster's shoulders and life jacket, it is too big.

· A head support collar is important. Along with head support, a loop on the collar allows for grabbing and lifting a child from the water.

 A crotch strap for small children should fit snug and be used at all times.

· Let older children participate in the selection of their life jacket. Their name should be affixed.

 After you select a life jacket, have the child try it out in a swimming pool to feel comfortable wearing it. Teach your child how to swim on their back while wearing the life jacket.

Bonita Canyon

ewport Beach will open the door to its newest neighbors in Bonita Caryon* this spring, as models for Madison Lane, the first new home development, opened on Feb. 21 along with sales information trailers for Wyndover Bay Homes by Taylor Woodrow. Additionally, information trailers for Lucera by Standard Pacific will be set up by the beginning of March. Models for Lucera and Wyndover Bay are expected to open in April and May.

Upon completion, the community will offer a private, gated guard area with a recreation area that includes a junior Olympic-sized pool, tennis court and a children's play area. There will be 287 residential lots, with homes offering an average of 3,400 to more than 4,000 square feet of space and prices starting from the mid-$500,000s and going up to the $700,000s. There will also be an apartment project offering 1,052 units, which is anticipated to be underway by Spring 1999. The development is expected to house an anticipated 2,500 residents.

"This is a great family community with parks and flat topography, which allows kids to ride their bikes and go from neighborhood to neighborhood in a central location," said Rudy Svrcek, senior vice president for Irvine Community Development Company, a subsidiary of The Irvine Company.

Encompassing about 343 acres, the area is bordered by Bison Ave., MacArthur Blvd., Ford Road and the San Joaquin Hills Toll Road (73). After some scuffling between the bordering cities of Newport Beach and Irvine, plans are now underway for the city of Newport Beach to annex the development.

"It was originally planned to be in Irvine, but the question was whether or not it legally belonged in Newport Beach, with the transportation corridor serving as the boundary between the two cities," said Ken Coulter, senior vice president land development. "Both the City of Newport Beach and the Newport-Mesa Unified School District felt that they could more effectively serve the area."

The school district appears to be the winner in the decision, as the school will receive about $7 million in revenue from Mello-Roos fees in order to accommodate the expected 600 to 700 new students from Bonita Canyon. The decision appears to be a plus for marketing efforts as well.

"It is more attractive to people already living in Newport Beach," Svrcek said. "There's a high level of interest coming from Newport Beach home shoppers. It's a well established name and it bodes well for the community."

For more information on Bonita Canyon, contact The Homefinding Center at (714) 505-1919.

*Annexation into the City of Newport Beach has been approved by both the City of Newport Beach and the City of Irvine and is pending final approval by LAFCO.

BONITA CANYON'S NEW NEIGHBORHOODS

MADISON LANE

BY CALIFORNIA PACIFIC HOMES

The first new home community to open within Bonita Canyon, Madison Lane is designed for growing families and professional couples. The collection of 116 homes opened on Feb. 21 and offers five floorplans ranging from 2,301 square feet to 3,423 square feet, with up to six bedrooms and up to five bathrooms. One of the plans has a detached garage and optional upstairs studio. Design highlights include family rooms, breakfast nooks and two to three car garages. Prices will be from the high $400,000s.

LUCERA

BY STANDARD PACIFIC HOMES

Averaging 3,400 square feet of living space, the Lucera's 68 homes are expected to be priced in the mid-$600,000s. Floorplans offer six bedrooms on two levels, with one design offening a master suite on the first level. A variety of customizing options and an abundance of built-in extras will be available to those who choose to live in Lucera. For more information, call (714) 668-4349.

WYNDOVER BAY

BY TAYLOR WOODROW HOMES

The largest of the new home developments with an average of more than 4,000 square feet, prices for Wyndover Bay's 64 homes are anticipated to be in the $700,000s. Views of the home from the street and the front yard will be accented by a design that places the four car garages to the rear of the residence. Up to eight bedrooms are included in the floorplan options. For more information, call (800) 474-3222.

ST. MATTHEW'S TRADITIONAL EPISCOPAL CHURCH

PARISH PURCHASES PARCEL FOR PRESCHOOL AND CHURCH

Construction may not begin for awhile, but the excitement is already high for the 200 members of St. Matthews Traditional Church who purchased a chunk of Bonita Canyon for a church and a preschool. The flock has been gathering for nearly 15 years at various locations, most recently at a shopping center on Westciff Drive but will soon have two acres on which to build their dream. A building committee has been formed, but since most of the money was pledged, it may be several years before construction is underway. The parishioners plan to complete the project within the next five years.*

In 1998, resolve to recycle new national annual event – Americans Recycles Day, held November 15 – has begun to focus Americans on the importance of not just recycling, but also purchasing products made of recycled materials.

According to the Institute of Scrap Recycling Industries, items tossed into the recycling bin are not really recycled until they are remade into new products we actually buy.

Here's some recycling resolutions to get you started:

· Shop at stores that carry recycled-content products.

Look for product labels that assure you of recycled content.

 Find paper towels, lunch bags, facial tissue and similar items made from recycled content. Buy door mats, carpet padding, new carpeting, insulated jackets and sleeping bags made from recycled plastic beverage bottles.

 Purchase items with very little packaging materials – buy in bulk, use refillable containers and when choosing cleaning products, look for concentrated forms. Source reduction conserves raw materials and energy resources.

 Use durable plates, cups and sponges in place of disposable plates, cups and towels

· Scrub your pots and pans with scouring pads made from recycled

· Give handymen gifts of tools made from recycled metals. Thirty-four percent of solid waste disposed of by Orange County backyard compost, which adds many years of disposal capacity to landfills.

Did you know?

In 1997, 50,000 Californians picked up a half million pounds of garbage and 48,000 pounds of recyclables. Mounds of plastic were pulled from shores along with hundreds of tires and a parking lot worth of cars. A cement truck was even retrieved!

How Costa Mesa recycles

t Costa Mesa's materials recovery facility, 35% of trash is recycled. Because the large recycling plant uses mechanical and hand sorting, it can remove recyclable materials that aren't allowed in a three container bin system.

Items currently being recycled from your trash include: aluminum, cardboard, cartons, computer and ledger paper, plastics, glass, direct mail, magazines, metals, newspaper, phone books, styrofoam, tin cans, waxed milk cartons, wood and yard waste.

You can help by bagging food waste separately. The goal is to limit contamination of the other recyclables.

You can also take your recyclables to a center for reimbursement.

The city of Costa Mesa conducts its summer Large Item Collection Program to help residents dispose of unwanted appliances and furniture. In addition, you can arrange for a special large pickup one time during the calendar year. Call (714) 646-4617.

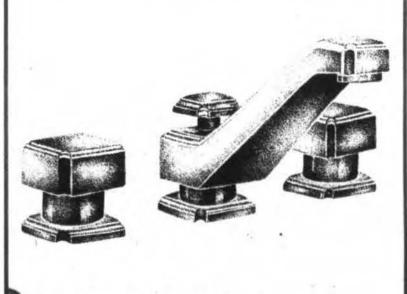

Bring old tires to collection events or businesses that sell tires to ensure they are recycled or properly disposed. In Costa Mesa: Just Tires at 3005 Harbor Blvd. and Big O Tires at 322 E. 17th St. are collection sites.

To recycle motor oil, call the Costa Mesa Sanitation District at (714) 754-5087 for a list of collection centers and hours.

How Newport Beach recycles

Pearly 110,000 tons of trash leave the city of Newport Beach each year – 42% of which is recycled. It costs residents just $1.28 a month to recycle.

When your trash is picked up, it is hauled to a $10 million residential materials recovery facility to process the waste stream, separating it into 37 different categories. For commercial and industrial waste, there are approximately 15 companies authorized to recycle waste. These companies must adhere to strict guidelines and report quarterly; 25% of everything they pick up must be recycled.

Do you know why source reduction is important?

Source reduction decreases the amount of materials or energy used during the production or distribution of products and packages. Because it stops waste before it starts, source reduction is the top solid waste management priority of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Remember: buy in bulk, use concentrates, buy refillable systems and purchase packages made with recycled materials.

THE ISLANDS OF NEWPORT BEACH

Created from dredging the muck at the bottom of the bay, the islands of Newport Beach now command some of the area's highest prices in real estate. Home to many of the area's rich and famous, the islands are also havens for those who are friendly, down to earth and love the waterfront lifestyle. Here is a synopsis of the islands that comprise Newport Beach.

BALBOA ISLAND

Balboa Island is one of the oldest communities in Newport Beach. The area referred to as the island is actually three islands - the main island is called Big Island and is connected to Little Island and Collins Island by bridges Situated on 126 acres in Newport Bay, it is charming, eclectic and a place where friendliness is a policy, since the cottages are so close together. The 2,200 residences are a wonderful combination. of old beach cottages and newer homes, with 55 percent of the properties dual residences. There are 1,418 lots, with an average size of 30 x 85 feet. There are also five public piers on the island. Filled with traditions, the island is unique in its residents' enthusiasm for decorating during holidays. Outdoor movies are shown in the summer and are fun for the whole family. The ferry runs from Balboa Island to Balboa Peninsula and has been taking passengers to and from the Island since 1919.

BAY ISLAND

Setting the precedent for the island craze, Bay Island was the first in Balboa Bay until developers dredged to create Newport's additional islands.

It was known briefly by locals as Modjeska Island for famed Polish actress Helen Modjeska, who lived out her last years there.

Peace and privacy are of utmost importance to Bay Island residents, where autos are banned and an approval from a board of directors is required before you're allowed to move in. To travel to the 28 bayside homes on Bay Island, residents either walk or ride in golf carts across a 28-foot concrete bridge. Residents are also required to purchase shares of the Bay Island Club, the company that manages the island. Even though they own stock in the company, residents don't own the land beneath their homes. This means the price of privacy, at least by Newport standards, is not as high as some of the other islands, with prices around $1.5 million

HARBOR ISLAND

Setting records for the highest home prices in Orange County, Harbor Island lots once sold for less than $1,000 in the '20s and have recently sold for as much as $11 million. Originally classified as swamp in the 1850s, entrepreneur Joseph Beek changed the surface in 1926, when he dredged and filled the island to form its current 9 acre parcel. A one lane bridge offers entry to the island, where developer George Argyros resides and Donald Bren has a lot for sale. Sprawling estates are located on large lots, although there isn't much space for parking.

LIDO ISLE

Patterned after Italy's famed Venice, Lido Isle homes front floral lined, grassy walkways termed stradas. Home to Joey Bishop and Bob and Beverly Lewis, horse racing's nicest couple and owners of Silver Charm, the isle has also housed Joan Crawford, Candice Bergen and Rock Hudson. Home prices range from $500,000 to $7.9 million.

LINDA ISLE

Formed in 1935 from silt at the bottom of the bay, the place once known as Shark Island now offers 107 homes on a horseshoe of 6,300 acres. Famed for filming "The Sands of Iwo Jima," starring John Wayne and also a popular place for picnics, the sandy shores were transformed by developers from the Irvine Co. in the early '60s. They created its present shape and began an aggressive five year lot selling campaign. They also changed the island's name to Linda, for Myford Irvine's daughter. Now home to Donald Bren, owner of the Irvine Co., residents also include former '49er Paul Salata, who also founded Irrelevant Week and Fletcher Jones Jr. Prices now command $1.2 to $3 million

NEWPORT ISLAND

A quiet oasis adjacent to West Newport, residents of Newport Island share a strong sense of community spirit. They've formed their own yacht club, with a clubhouse that's actually a storage shed in the park. Since boats must fit under the Newport Boulevard bridge, residents are relegated to small sailboats and electric boats, but it doesn't seem to matter to those who inhabit the more than 100 homes on a triangular piece of land that was once part of the Santa Ana riverbank. Created during dredging in the mid-1920s, properties sold for $2,500 for a lot in the '40s and now are priced from $700,000 to just under $1 here can you go whale watching, enjoy shark camp, come face to face with dolphins, kayak, sail and learn about the weather? 1931 W. Pacific Coast Highway ... also known as the Sea Scout Base in Newport Beach.

Scouting the Sea

Exclusively a sea scout facility up to the 1980s, the Sea Base has expanded its activity roster to include both scouts and the community at large. Qualified as a regional boating safety center, the Sea Base offers a variety of year-round educational aquatic and non-aquatic classes. In 1997 alone, nearly 27,000 youngsters participated in the diverse programs offered.

According to Director Bill Mountford, whose been with the Boy Scouts for 10 years and the Sea Base for three, the Sea Base started in 1932 and was officially donated by the city to the Scouts in 1937. The land is leased from the county and the facility is run by the Orange County Council Boy Scouts of America. Much of the curriculum is put together with the help of Orange Coast College marine student Scouts can earn merit badges in everything from architecture, citizenship and emergency preparedness to public speaking, space exploration and canoeing.

From February through December, Cubs (ages 7 and 8) and Webelos (ages 9 and 10) can embark on a nautical one and one-half hour adventure in the Sea Base Sailor program. Qualified instructors teach aquatic safety and beginning rowing. Coming soon will be a touch tank program to learn about marine mammals and their habitat.

For 14- to 21-year olds, the Sea Exploring program is divided into groups called "ships," each comprised of five to 50 youths who are responsible for maintaining a boat 35 to 45 feet in length throughout the year. All boats are owned by the Orange County Council of

On March 14 and 15 the tallship Argus will set sail from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. for a whale watching excursion that's a great family activity. The Argus is also available to Scouts for one, two and five-day trips.

"Between March and November, we have 50 trips scheduled this year aboard the Argus," Mountford said. "With the help of a $300,000 endowment from Rockwell International for a three-year period we will be able to maintain the Argus here in Newport Beach.'

During spring break, (April 13-17) boating and fishing classes will be held

The Sea Base and the Upper Newport Bay Ecological Reserve will be holding Shark Camp on four different days between April and October, when Cubs, Webelos and Scouts can learn about the natural history of sharks and rays. Cost of the camp, including dinner, is $10.

The Sea Base is in the process of developing a weekday marine program with Orange County schools for students in grades three through 12.

And for the summer, special programs will be held June 29 through August 21, featuring fun-filled weekday activities for boys and girls, and a five-day Webelos Aquatic Camp. Sign ups are now being taken.

On June 13, you're invited to visit the Sea Base during its Open House to find out more about the

Theatre District Takes Center Stage

The new Orange County Theatre District is poised to join the ranks of the best-known theater districts in the world. Becoming one of the most vitally dynamic arts establishments in the country, it is anchored by the Orange County Performing Arts (OCPA) Center, South Coast Repertory (SCR) and three Edwards Cinemas. With South Coast Plaza across the street and 80 dining venues within walking distance, the district will be a destination for both theater-goers and tourists.

A coalition of leaders from the local theater arts community spearheading the project include Jerry Mandel, president, OCPA; David Emmes, producing artistic director, SCR; W. James Edwards III, president, Edwards Cinemas Circuit, Inc.; and Henry Segerstrom, managing partner, C.J. Segerstrom & Sons.

The focal point of activity will be the remodel of Edwards Theatres Circuit Inc.'s 30-year-old twin movie theater located on Town Center Drive in Costa Mesa into "The Palace at South Coast Plaza." Offering the largest stadium seating in the country, The Palace will be designed in a sophisticated style reminiscent of majestic movie houses of the 1920s and 1930s. State-of-the-art amenities will include a giant screen surrounded by a proscenium-styled, old-fashioned frame, and plush stadium-tiered seats numbering 1,000, featuring 48 inches of generous legroom and retractable armrests.

Treated as a huge show window, the exterior will feature a new tower. contemporary in style.

The grand lobby will display a 30-foot high by 25-foot wide mural, framed by granite pillars. A stainless steel marquee canopy and incandescent bulbs will transform the box office to the cinemas of the golden days. Gourmet concessions plus a cappuccino/espresso bar will grace the lobby, with a sit-down lounge area.

A grand opening for The Palace at South Coast Plaza is scheduled for November.

According to James Edwards III, "The new theater will be a landmark project and a catalyst to spark the Orange County Theatre District."

Details on the Orange County Theatre District can be accessed via the website, www.octheatredistrict.com.

Film Fest to bring more films, bigger stars

The Third Annual Newport Beach International Film Festival (NBIFF) will return to Newport Beach from March 26 -April 5.

Featuring more than 100 films from 30-plus countries, the festival is expecting 24,000 attendees. This year's line-up will include 75 feature films and 25 short works shown throughout the Newport Beach area, competing for 10 awards.

According to Todd Quartararo, the festival's marketing and public relations manager, this year's goal is to promote the art of filmmaking, while bringing diverse programming to the community.

The opening night gala will showcase Festival del Cine. NBIFF's first-ever Spanish Latin film program. A special screening and world premiere will showcase the evening, which is expected to be a wellattended celebrity event. Other highlights of the film fest will include: an Asian Cinema Kaleidoscope gala, a Japanese film premiere benefiting the Japan America Society, a 20th anniversary screening of the classic surf film. "Big Wednesday," benefiting the Surfrider Foundation and a culminating awards ceremony. Advance tickets to films and selected celebrity events are available by calling (888) ETM-TIXS.

Selling the Scene

The predominant hue for the Colorful Coast has become green since Rosalind Williams became president and chief executive officer of the Newport Beach Conference & Visitors Bureau four years ago. During her tenure, she and her staff have made a diligent effort to make Newport Beach the destination of choice for conference planners and coaches alike.

Most recently, Williams and her staff transformed the area to a bright shade of blue after persuading hundreds of alumni from the University of Michigan to stay here before their trek to the Rose Bowl to cheer the Wolverines on to victory in Pasadena.

Long before New Year's rolled around, Williams and her staff formulated their own game plan to keep Newport Beach as a destination in the minds of Big 10 alumni directors. They invited them to the coast for site inspections, then followed up with an all out blitz of gifts, beginning with a dozen long-stemmed roses. Additional items followed, including mocked up newspaper headlines with each team as the winner. The Conference and Visitors Bureau and the City of Newport Beach scored a touchdown when the alumni arrived and celebrated by spending their dollars here.

"It was big money at a time when we would normally be dry for business," Williams said. "And it was fun. The people were so friendly.'

For visitors or those who are newly arrived in Newport, the Conference and Visitors Bureau should be their first stop. Located on Pacific Coast Highway, the office offers a plethora of publications on everything from yacht charters to fine dining and shopping, as well as an information kiosk out front. Behind the scenes, there are 10 people that focus on marketing the area and its amenities to meeting planners, conference coordinators and tour group operators. The crew has worked to bring such nationally televised events such as the Toshiba Senior Classic golf tournament and Davis Cup tennis to the area.

"Group business is important because it keeps our hotels busy and if guests stay overnight there is more of a likelihood that they'll spend money at other local businesses," Williams explained. "The monetary effect is far reaching and rippling throughout the community.

Indeed, the city's bottom line is well served by tourism, since according to Williams, a 10 percent transient occupancy tax enacted on hotels is the third largest contributor to the city's general fund, behind property tax and sales tax, respectively.

Additionally, the group's goal is to heighten the awareness of Newport Beach as a leisure destination, which is achieved by a public relations effort and an advertising campaign, utilizing consumer and trade publications.

There's a lot of competition out there, with Santa Barbara, Santa Monica and even bigger cities such as San Diego and Palm Springs. What sets us apart is the harbor, since people can jump on a harbor cruise as a group or as an individual," Williams said. "Golf is also a big deal and ecotourism is becoming more important. We have groups of people visiting who will go to the Back Bay and will want to learn more about the dredging efforts and the preservation of the area."

So what does Williams, a Newport Beach resident, do when she has free time? "Actually, it's a testament to Newport Beach because I like to stay home and do things, such as go for a walk on Balboa Island and have breakfast afterward, or go shopping at Fashion Island. I truly enjoy it there - it's just phenomenal the way they've made it visitor and public friendly," she said with a smile. "I feel very fortunate to live here and very fortunate to sell it as a destination.'

The Newport Beach Conference & Visitors Bureau is located at 3300 W. Coast Hwy., Newport Beach (714) 722-1611 or (800) 94-COAST.

She speaks for the babies

ebbe Magnusen of Costa Mesa is making a difference. She established Project Cuddle in 1990 to provide soft toys to police agencies involved with crisis calls dealing with children, in hopes of reducing the emotional

The project expanded in July 1996 to include a Crisis Hot Line after Magnusen learned of five babies that had been abandoned in Orange County in just one month.

Project Cuddle has rescued 49 babies and is working on 200 cases with mothers who are either unable or unwilling to keep their infants, guiding them through the adoption process

Substance abuse, fear of custodial battles, humiliation and financial restrictions are among the variety of reasons why mothers deliberate abandoning their infants.

Along with establishing a confidential, 24-hour a day life-saving crisis hotline, Project Cuddle immediately responds when a call of an abandoned baby comes in. Follow up contact is made whenever a woman decides to give up her baby.

'After a baby is delivered, I put together a gift box with a crocheted blanket, jewelry, coffee and a baby book. It makes the birth mother feel special," Magnusen said. "All I ask is that she gives me a photograph of the baby to add to my scrapbook.

In addition to providing an alternative to baby abandonment, Project Cuddle visits high schools to educate teenagers on how drugs and alcohol affect both the mother and the developing fetus.

Staffed by 40 phone operators, 400 volunteers in California and 1,500 more nationwide, Project Cuddle helps match the birth mother with adoptive (rescue) families.

In December, an annual holiday party was held for 501 abused or abandoned children from Orange and Los Angeles counties who are now in protective custody. More than 100 volunteers organized the event, including the Newport Sunshine Rotary who helped with leather crafts and students from Harbor Day School brought goodies. Corporate and individual supporters provided gifts.

'We are so grateful that Project

Cuddle has received such great local support from the community," Magnusen said. "We are always in need of corporate sponsorships and donations to keep the program running."

Debbe and her husband David have been foster parents for drug-exposed children for 13 years. They have seven children, five of whom are adopted.

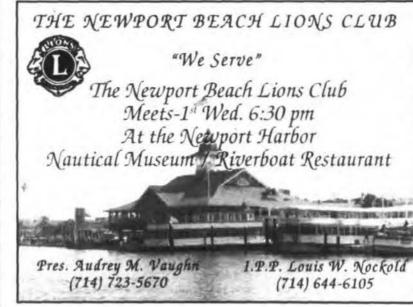

Magnusen is currently updating her book, "It's Never Dull," which shares real-life accounts of Project Cuddle. Both the original edition (which appeared in 1991) and the reprinted version, due out in April, include a foreword by celebrity Ted McGinley, who attended Harbor High with Magnusen.

"I've added two new chapters, entitled, 'Winnie the Pooh' and 'Tigger Too'," Magnusen said.

A GUIDE TO THE BEST AUTOMOTIVE CARE

Some Helpful Hints About Car Leasing

You've found the car of your dreams and decided that leasing is the best option for you. But before you sign on the dotted line, make sure you fully understand all the terms and conditions of your lease agreement. Knowing what to ask can make all the difference. Here are some helpful tips:
Mileage Options – Lessors
typically offer allowances that range from 10,000 to 15,000 miles a year.

Tips:

• Before deciding on a specific lease, calculate how many miles you drive each year and request that your lease be written for that number of miles.

* It's generally less expensive to "buy" additional miles up front, than pay for them at the end of the lease.

Early Termination – There are typically significant costs associated with ending a lease before its scheduled maturity date. In general, you are liable for the remaining payments plus residual value, less the current value of the which value of the vehicle. Capitalized Cost - Prior to entering a lease contract you'll want to negotiate the "cap cost" which is the automobile's selling price plus any fees and taxes minus any down payment or trade-in allowance.

Tip: You can work with the retailer to negotiate the cap cost for a lease just as you can with a purchase price. Remember, as the cap cost is reduced, your monthly payment will decrease. Options At Lease End -Confirm that you are getting into a closed-end lease which means you will not be at risk if the residual value of the car is lower than originally estimated. TIP: Avoid surprises by looking for a well-written lease with all end-of-term costs listed and described. Residual Value - Look for cars with a high residual value. A higher residual value (or resale value), will produce lower monthly lease payments. Shopping For A Leasing Company - There are two options to consider: captive or independent financing. TIP: A captive company (the automobile's manufacturer) knows its customers and products better than a third-party financial source (a bank). It may offer better services and financial products tailored to specific customer needs.

Rocking the Harbor

The face of Costa Mesa is reflected each Sunday morning at Rock Harbor, a sanctuary carved from a senior citizen's cafeteria. There's Gladys, who's 84; Bill who's 80 and Hazel is in her 70's, but they're not holdovers from a Saturday night bingo game. They're just part of a congregation that also includes the denim and Dockers crowd in a sea of faces spanning all ages, all looking to Christ as their beacon. Lighting the way is Keith Page, a 33-year-old guy with silver hoops in his ears, sleek sideburns and a nose that looks like it was smashed by an elbow or two in a game of b-ball.

Nearly 370 people from all walks of life have joined the fledgling congregation that opened it's doors on Oct. 5, 1997. Each Sunday morning at 9:30, it's standing room only at Rock Harbor, whose services are held at the Costa Mesa Senior Center. Jubilation is in the air, as Todd Proctor and his worship team, playing bongos, guitars and keyboards lead children and adults alike in contemporary, soft rock style songs of praise. Nearly 20 or 30 minutes later, the song verses disappear from the large overhead screens and are replaced by a graphite sketch of a cross. Page steps up to the microphone and shares his thoughts on worship modeled on the day's sermon. As the congregation follows along on their outlines, he expands on the message by providing examples of rock stars that people have worshiped – the Beatles, Michael Jackson, Marilyn Manson – and then into items of material worship, such as work, a career, money and cars. Later in the message, he offers a glimpse of his own life, when he speaks of dedicating a whole life to God instead of compartmentalizing ourselves.

Early in the week, Page and his staff meet along with volunteers to discuss the message, plan the service and determine what they wish to convey through drama, video and music.

"Each week it's something new. We try to provide eternal value, a word of hope or encouragement. We hope that the whole hour has pieces that relate to each other."

Page's messages follow a three step process. First, he takes God's word and interprets the original intent (when the Bible was written). Second, he runs that through his life and then he speaks it to the needs of people now.

"I may do a four to six week series, maybe on worship, or the Old Testament, a book study, or a relevant topic," he said.

The inspiration for Rock Harbor came about several years ago, when Page was serving as youth minister for Mariners South Coast Church.

"I felt a stirring in my heart. I had been a youth pastor but my heart began to long for people long term. I wanted to be with people at various life stages and walk with them," he said.

Costa Mesa seemed the logical choice for Page, since he and his wife, Gina reside in the city.

"I was a willing foolish vessel with a heart for the city," he said. "Costa Mesa has a great edge and I've got a unique style and flavor."

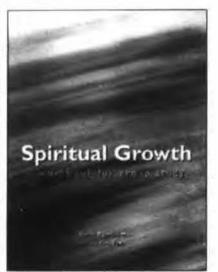

In a time when many churches fight to retain their congregations, Rock Harbor is a phenomenon. More than 500 attended the first service, and plans are presently underway to add an additional service to accommodate the growing congregation.

"It has a lot to do with a healthy mother, giving birth to a healthy child," Page said of Mariners South Coast church. "A lot of time was spent in planning and they launched us."

According to Page, the whole process has happened so quickly that it's difficult to imagine what will happen next for the church, but he intends to stay at the senior center as long as possible and focus on getting people involved in their next step within the church.

"We're just having the time of our lives," Page said. "One of our great desires is that we want to partner with the city, to determine how we can really serve our city and be involved."

Rock Harbor meets every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at the Costa Mesa Senior Center, 695 W. 19th St. in Costa Mesa.

"Spiritual Growth" is a handbook written by Gina Page and her father, Ronald P. Jensen, M.D., that is used by men's, women's and couple's study groups. For more information on utilizing the book or setting up a group, contact Rock Harbor at (714) 546-1919.

Year-round Fun at the Fair

Each year in July, thousands of Orange County and surrounding area residents visit the Orange County Fair to delight in the rides and games, the farm animals, exhibits, shows, competitions and activities. There are also a multitude of activities and events that take place throughout the year.

Since 1969, the weekly speedway races at the fairgrounds have filled the air with the smell of castor oil as the top speedway racers in the United States compete handle bar to handle bar on their methanol burning, brakeless motorcycles. The overwhelming interest and growing number of fans attracted to speedway is due in part to the fierce competitiveness and excitement. On handbuilt motorcycles, the racers throw their potent machines in full throttle while bumping for position. These machines are capable of accelerating to 60 miles per hour in less than 2.5 seconds.

The speedway arena puts spectators on top of the action and hardcore fans are encouraged to visit the pits after the races to meet their favorite riders and examine the machines.

For more information, call International Speedway at (714) 492-9933.

For the horse enthusiast, the Equestrian Center is a popular site for events and shows. Shows include Western, Tennessee Walkers and Hunter Jumpers. There is no charge to attend.

Currently, there are eight trainers that offer riding lessons for beginners and advanced riders. The types of lessons are Western, English, jumping, dressage and reining. Most trainers have their own schooling horses. Costs range from $30 to $45 for a private 45-minute lesson. The Center also provides boarding for horse owners.

Centennial Farms at the Orange Fairgrounds is about three acres of land and is an actual working farm. It is the home to many barnyard animals including pigs, horses, oxen, buffalo, geese and rabbits. Baby animals are born throughout the year.

The farm is open to the public for self guided tours Monday through Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mornings during the week are reserved for guided school tours for children kindergarten and up. For reservations or more information, call (714) 708-1678.

Other fair events include:

1998 Youth Expo, April 17-19. The focus is on the positive accomplishments of Orange County students through competitions such as class projects, 4-H, Girls Scouts activities and special contests.

Expo hours are Friday, April 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Saturday, April 18 and Sunday, April 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information or competition handbooks, call (714) 708-1553.

The Orange County Marketplace runs every Saturday and Sunday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the Orange County Farm Bureau Farmers Market takes place 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Thursday.

Collectors and hobbyists can pursue their pasttime through events that take place at the fairgrounds. There is something for everyone: cat shows, sports collectors, train shows and computer shows. Call (714) 708-3247 for a complete schedule.

Healing Herbs

Herbs, when applied as essential oils to the skin, can be diluted two or three drops with a tablespoon of almond oil to prevent irritation. Some fresh herbs can be combined with hot boiling water to make an infusion.

Working out with a personal trainer any people start the New Year with a resolution centered around weight management but have lost their enthusiasm by March. Goals may differ, such as focusing on fitness or just fighting flab, but no matter what your fitness goals, they need to be realistic. The strategy you choose to meet those goals has to be one you're committed to.

According to Brian Napierala, a personal trainer in Newport Beach, "Getting in shape and losing those extra pounds needs to become a part of your schedule."

If you've been unable to accomplish this on your own, have you considered a personal

"Personal trainers are like anything else. There are a number of types with as many different styles of training, depending on the individual's goals," Napierala said. "Find a trainer that you like and get along with.

To get the most out of your workout, Napierala suggests the following:

· Make a plan - A physical may be in order if you have never worked out or it's been a few years since your last visit. Set a time to go to the gym and stick with it.

 Start easy - Don't go into the gym the first day and reach for the heaviest weight you can find. Remember that you're trying to develop a habit. Moderation is the key.

· Warm up - Be sure to get your blood moving before you start any lifting. Spend five to 10 minutes on a bike or treadmill going at an easy pace to prepare your body to workout.

· Variety - Don't limit yourself to only weights or only cardiovascular exercises. Use a combination of both. It will add excitement to your workout.

· Eat - proper and adequate nutrition is essential to positive and permanent weight loss. Working out requires fuel for the body. Eat balanced, nutritious meals and snacks.

A Village's Plaza

Residents are anxiously awaiting the grand opening this summer of Corona del Mar Plaza, a 28,000-square-foot retail center which sits on a 105,000-acre site along Pacific Coast Highway between Avocado and MacArthur Boulevard.

The Irvine Company is developing the project, which is already 70% leased. The design will feature Mediterranean-style architecture with heavy landscaping, stucco and large windows.

The plaza will be anchored by Bristol Farms, a national chain of high-end specialty grocery stores. The center's location will allow it to serve as a link between Fashion Island and Corona del Mar.

"We're very pleased with the quality of stores leasing in Corona del Mar Plaza," said Jeff Dodd, vice president leasing, retail division for The Irvine Co. "We're shooting for a lifestyle center with quality shopping, which will suit the lifestyle of the Newport Beach resident."

Other new tenants already signed to move into the retail center include Sur La Table, a 6,000-square-foot gourmet culinary store with other retail locations in Seattle, San Francisco, Berkeley and Pasadena; a new Houston's restaurant, Cowboy Seafood, owned by the same company as Bandera (on Pacific Coast Highway at Marguerite) featuring seafood, fish and an oyster bar; Romano's clothier for men; Anna Bella of Corona del Mar, a women's ready-to-wear clothing store; Mottini Leather Design, specializing in custom belts, handbags and footwear; and Miss Grace Lemon Cake.

The Corona del Mar Chamber of Commerce has supported the Plaza project.

"I look at Corona del Mar Plaza as the gateway to our business district. All of those merchants will be in Corona del Mar and will be part of our Business Improvement District," said Royal Radtke, Corona del Mar Chamber of Commerce executive director.

What is the Business Improvement District?

he Corona del Mar Business Improvement District (B.I.D.) was formed on Sept. 1, 1997, after City Council approval. A seven-member advisory board, comprised of Corona del Mar businesspeople was elected by all voting businesses. The B.I.D. includes 372 businesses located in the village of Corona del Mar.

The goal of the B.I.D. is to make Corona del Mar a better place in which to do business. Projects include: new trash receptables, replacement of ficus trees along Pacific Coast Highway, sponsorship of two children's Fun Zones during last year's annual Christmas Walk, and working with the Newport Beach Conference and Visitors Bureau to promote Corona del Mar as a resort and shopping destination.

Meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at 7:30 a.m. at the Oasis Senior Center, iocated at 800 Marguerite Ave.

For more information, contact Don Glasgow at Minuteman Press, (714) 640-6525 or John Blom at John Blom Custom Photography, (714) 675-3130.

See the spectacular boat parade from a chartered boat, from the cliffs of Corona del Mar or by walking around Balboa Island. This year's event is scheduled from Dec. 16-22.
