Response due Friday by Landers

By GLENN SCOTT of the Delly Pilot Staff

Ann Landers is writing a special column for publication Friday to respond to recent disclosures that she recycled 15-year-old material in her syndicated advice column, the editor of Irvine-based Field Syndicate

Miss Landers, who works in Chicago, told officials in the syndicate headquartered at 1703 Kaiser Ave. in Irvine that she wanted to spell out her position for her estimated 70 million readers, said syndicate editor

Leighton McLaughlin.
"She said she is writing a col-umn to comment on all this," said McLaughlin. "I haven't seen it yet, but it's planned for publication on Friday.

The Associated Press, in conunction with the Pontiac (Ill.) Daily Leader, revealed Monday that Miss Landers had for the past 18 months included 33 items that, with minor changes, had appeared in her columns in 1966 and 1967.

Since that disclosure, one newspaper, the Idaho Falls (Idaho) Post-Register, has announced it will drop the advice column. McLaughlin, however, said he had not yet received such word from that paper.

Also, four other papers, the Daily News in the San Fernando Valley, the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald, the Louisville Times and the Denver Post, announced they would discontinue the column until editors had assurances that all material was new, the AP reported

Falklands action

By The Associated Press

Britain vowed today to continue military activities to regain the Falkland Islands while accepting U.N. proposals as a framework for future talks. An Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the British position ruled out a diplomatic solution, for the moment.

Prime Minister Margaret hatcher told the House of Commons in London that Britain accepted U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's proposals for settling the conflict as a "framework" for future talks, but said Britain will "continue with our military activities."

Perez de Cuellar refused to make public his peace plan, but informed sources said it included a cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the Falklands area and appointment of a U.N. administrator for the islands while negotiations resume to determine their future. The plan reportedly takes no position on the thorny sovereignty issue

Britain said Wednesday it was working with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on a plan from Perez de Cuellar that included an early cease-fire and withdrawal. But the ideas were never spelled out and the latest statements clearly indicated more fighting was likely over the South Atlantic islands that Argentina seized from Britain on April 2.

"It would be too easy to say no military activities during negotiations," Mrs. Thatcher said. "What would happen? We should be hamstrung. The people would still remain under the heel (See FALKLAND, Page A2)

Mrs. Thatcher said the U.N. proposals came with "no specific details" attached but linked a cease-fire with Argentine withdrawal from the islands, a basic British precondition for a truce.

"That would be a very evident ploy to keep them in possession of their ill-gotten gains. We are right to be very, very wary of it,"

Meanwhile, no new military action was reported in the South Atlantic battle zone Wednesday.

Argentina drew the last blood Tuesday when one of its planes fired a missile that set fire to the British destroyer Sheffield, forcing its crew to abandon ship, and a British Harrier jet fighter was shot down and the pilot killed in an attack on one of the Falkland airstrips.

The British government said at least 30 of the Sheffield's 270 crewmen were killed, and gov-ernment sources said 57 more men were missing or wounded. The shattered hulk of the destroyer was reported still afloat Wednesday.

Two Argentine ships and a Chilean craft continued the search east of the tip of South America for about 350 sailors missing from Argentina's only cruiser, the General Belgrano, which a British submarine torpedoed and sank Sunday. The Argentine government reported the rescue of 680 crewmen.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said two Argentine submarines were reported operating in the 200-mile war zone both nations declared around the Falklands, but it said the rest of the Argentine fleet was sailing back toward the mainland coast.

U.S. POSITION SHAKY

given way to one of almost total alienation

In a protest note delivered to U.S. authorities Sunday, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez predicted that U.S. support for Britain will leave "lasting scars" on relations between the two countries.

But the political cost to the United States would be diminished if the U.N. mediation effort ends the fighting and leads to a negotiated settlement. U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday night both Britain and Argentina indicated interest in his proposals.

One immediate beneficiary of the U.S. estrangement with Argentina is Nicaragua. Before the crisis over the Falkland Islands, the United States looked to Argentina as an ally in bringing pressure against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

According to reports this year, the administration cited Argentina for a possible role in a covert operation aimed at disrupting alleged Nicaraguan arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Sal-

Trial delayed; Bonin back on Death Row

Convicted freeway killer William George Bonin, awaiting trial in Orange County Jail on four murder charges, will be sent back to San Quentin Prison's Death Row because of complaints by a defense attorney that his client's privacy and protection are inadequate here

Orange County Superior Court Judge Kenneth E. Lae also agreed Wednesday to delay the start of Bonin's trial from July 6 to Aug. 9.

Bonin was convicted in Los Angeles last February for the torture-murders of 10 young men whose bodies were dumped near freeways. He was sentenced to die in San Quentin's gas chamber but was later transferred to Orange County Jail in preparation for his trial here.

If convicted of murder and ecial circumstances in Orange County, Bonin could receive another death sentence.

Syndicate executives didn't realize Miss Landers had recycled some past letters and answers, the editor said, and they would have taken steps to end the practice if they had known.

Meanwhile, Miss Landers told The Associated Press that she will discontinue recycling old material even though she noted she had used "very little" from past columns. She also said she has been buoyed by responses from friends and admirers.

People have been calling since last night asking me what the flap is all about, telling me to carry on," she said Tuesday. "Still others have called and said, 'We don't care if the material was written 20 years ago, 30 years ago or yesterday," she said. One of the three largest syn-

In a decision last January, the superior court jury found that Barkan was entitled to damages for suffering kidney and spleen injuries after using an antibiotic medication manufactured by Upjohn. Barkan's kidneys were removed and he must undergo blood cleansing dialysis treatments regularly

The full judgment against Upjohn was increased from $5.97 million to $6.15 million by Petty in March. The judge added the extra $189,000 to cover past medical expenses related to the dialysis treatments.

Upjohn officials have said they will appeal the judgment.

Israeli friction looms

Sinai withdrawal brings doubts, forebodings

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) -Painful as it was, Israel's Sinai withdrawal was only one strand in a tapestry of doubts and forebodings that haunt this nation in its 35th year of statehood.

A mood of grumpy cynicism pervades large segments of the populace. The country is experiencing a widening split down the middle on ideological, religious and social lines.

The turning back of the Sinai to Egypt April 25 was a giant step into the unknown. Few Israelis will say with certainty that they trust Egypt to keep its commitments under its peace treaty with Israel, and they will watch every crate of Cairo-bound apples, every busload of incoming Egyptian tourists, to gauge whether Egypt is making good on its promise of normal rela-

The pullback also entailed the uprooting and destruction of flourishing Jewish settlements in Sinai, reversing Zionism's pivotal article of faith — the peopling of the land with Jews.

With the withdrawal behind it, Israeli attention is shifting to the rest of the Arab land captured in the 1967 war and here the split looks widest.

To Prime Minister Menachem Begin, the overriding priority is to transplant thousands of Jews into the West Bank of the Jordan River and ensure that it never again comes under Arab rule.

To the Labor Party opposition, this policy endangers another basic tenet of Zionism - that Israel must remain a Jewish state, undiluted by a large and inevitably underprivileged Arab

Thus the Labor Party has refused to join Begin in pushing a resolution through the Knesset (parliament) barring the dismantling of Jewish settlements. It reasons that nobody can guarantee such a ban.

The growing militancy of the Jewish settlers, dramatized by their struggle against the army which evacuated them from Sinai, has prompted a warning by the attorney general, Yitzhak Zamir, that unless the ultranationalists are checked, they will jeopardize Israeli democracy.

To most Israelis, the spectacle of bulldozers demolishing the Sinai town of Yamit just before the withdrawal was far more horrifying than the eviction of the squatters. Three newspapers have advanced the suspicion strongly denied by officials that the government encouraged the nationalists to put up a fight in Yamit and manufacture a national trauma that would dispel any notice of dismantling West Bank settlements.

Meanwhile, the West Bank has erupted in Palestinian rioting, and young Israelis know that when they join the army they stand less chance of fighting a war than of having to put down demonstrations with their guns and truncheons.

The friction, claims author S.

Funds released

Izhar, a leading dove, "will turn the West Bank into another Northern Ireland.

Independence Day on April 28, traditionally a season of soul searching, evoked some somber assessments this year. David Hacohen, the Grand Old Man of the Israeli labor movement, said he was haunted by the fear that Israel might one day cease to exist.

Elimelech Rimalt, a founder of what is today Begin's Likud Bloc, said he used to trust "Jewish genius" to make Israel work. Now he sees an Israel whose economy runs on cheap Arab labor from the West Bank.

"Never in my blackest dreams did I foresee this," he said.

The national mood has been further soured by the concessions Begin made to the tiny ultrareligious Agudat Israel Party to lure them into his coalition after last June's election. One concession — a pledge to stop El Al, the national airline, from flying on the Jewish Sabbath - has provoked national uproar.

The ethnic cauldron is also heating up, following the court conviction of Cabinet Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira for stealing from a state-subsidized charity fund.

To the Sephardis, Israel's numerically superior but politically under-represented Oriental Jews, Abu-Hatzeira is not a criminal but a Sephardi who is being victimized for playing a ; system invented by the Ashkenazi (European) establishment.

All these issues - West Bank, religion, ethnic friction — are likely to come to a head late this year if Begin heeds calls to hold an early election and bolster his wafer-thin majority in the

Compare '81 tax tables

DEAR PAT: I heard last summer that my federal income tax would be reduced by 5 percent. After comparing last year's tax ta-bles with this year's, I find that this has not happened. Why?

 S.F., Newport Beach Since the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 was in effect for only the last three months of 1981, one-quarter of the 5 percent reduction was effective for 1981. This reduction of approximately 11/4 percent has been built into the 1981 tax table. Another reason that the tax tables do not appear to reflect the tax reduction is that this year you must subtract the $1,000 for each exemption from your income before you go to the tax table. If you compare this year's and last year's tables after doing this you will see the reduction.

Offer sounds suspicious

DEAR PAT: I wanted to tell E.T., Balboa and your other readers that I am a postal service worker and I see many postal cards with "The (last name) Family Heritage Book" offer coming through the mail. They state that "only one in a quarter million Americans have your name." It's true that I've seen some unusual names on these cards, but now I am seeing ones with very common last names — still stating that "only one in a quarter million Americans...etc." It doesn't sound right to me!

S.M., Huntington Beach

Me neither. This and many "family history" offers appeal to vanity rather than sound economic benefit from hard-earned family money well spent.

Refund forwarded?

DEAR PAT: I've moved since I filed my tax return, but I did put in a change of address with the post office. Will my refund be for-warded to my new address?

K.W., Costa Mesa The Internal Revenue Service has no regulations that prevent the forwarding of re-fund checks, but some post offices do have special requirements. Check with the post office which handles mail for your old address to make sure that the change of address will be sufficient. The IRS also advises that when a taxpayer moves that IRS be advised of the change of address. This can prevent unnecessary delays in the receipt of refund checks or correspondence.

Last of Rangers dies at 97

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - John R. Clarke, said to have been the last of the famed Arizona Rangers of territorial days, will be buried in Whittier.

Clarke died Monday at his home in Rosemead, Calif. He was the "ending of an era."

John D. Gilchriese, an Arizona historian, called Clarke's death

In 1965, Gilchriese documented Clarke's membership in the 26-member Arizona Rangers, based on records in the State Archives. He said there is little doubt Clarke was the last of his breed.

"He was a fine old gentleman," said Gilchriese.

In interviews over the years with the Tucson Citizen, Clarke recounted how he joined the Rangers July 13, 1906. The Territorial Legislature, irate about cattle rustling, formed the rangers in 1901 and gave them broad powers to roam the state looking for desperados.

The Rangers quickly got a reputation for helping clean up much of the territory - often not bothering with jails or trials.

"In those days, all we had was dangerous work," Clarke told the Citizen in 1979.

Clarke left the Rangers for good soon after re-enlisting in July 1907, about the time he heard politics were getting in-

Gun sale raises flap

'60 Minutes' flayed in Florida

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - CBS newsman Mike Wallace has reacted indignantly to local criticism of filming at a Fort Lauderdale gun show for an upcoming "60 Minutes" segment.

Police responding to a disturbance call Saturday at the Wildcat Gun and Knife Show at Fort Lauderdale Armory found a ruckus involving Wal-lace's camera crew, the show organizer and a man who had been secretly filmed selling two handguns to an 18-year-old recruited earlier by "60 Minutes.'

Patrolman Edward K. Lahey said Wallace, who arrived later, was angry that the dealer filmed by "60 Minutes" wasn't arrested.

Wallace on Monday said that the flap, reported in Fort Lauderdale papers, "was much ado about little." He explained that he and "60 Minutes" producer Stephen Glauber hir-ed an 18-year-old man, Charles Allen Mason, to buy handguns from dealers at the show.

It was only after the filming, he said, that they learned that in Florida, 18-year-olds can buy guns and that dealers at the show apparently didn't need licenses.

However, Wallace said the filming demonstrated the point of the "60 Minutes" story — "the easy availability of handguns to almost anyone, at anytime,"

Wallace said the police account of the disturbance was "rife with inaccuracies . . . There was no disturbance. We had a lively conversation on the subject of guns," he said. He said he didn't know whether any of the film would be used.

Polaroid turning to 35mm film

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) - Polaroid Corp. stung by a steep drop in earnings from its instant camera empire, is moving into the 35 millimeter camera market, stockholders were told at their annual meeting at Wellesley College.

The Cambridge-based firm demonstrated several prototype color and black-and-white 35mm "transparency films," commonly referred to as slides, during the meeting.

The "35 Autopress System" film is being designed to be used in any existing 35mm camera or instrument, company officials said.

The product will include "a specially designed lightweight low-cost processor, and a simple, low cost-slide mounter," said William McCune Jr., Polaroid president.

The film and accessories will be ready for marketing by the 1983 stockholders meeting, Mc-Cune said.

The film is not instant developing, but "will not require a dark room, washing or precise temperature control," McCune said.

"The processed film will be dry and can be handled and projected immediately," he said. The mood of the meeting, where the festive unveiling of new products is almost a traditition, was less upbeat this year because of gloomy earnings figures stretching back through 1981.

Polaroid founder Edwin Land, now chairman,

Dispute threatens fine college system

An unhealthy schism between the Coast Community College District administration and its full-time instructors seems to be growing wider each day.

In a campuswide poll, Orange Coast College instructors this week indicated by a large margin that they lack confidence in Chancellor Norman Watson and the district's board of trustees.

The teachers also voiced objections to the manner in which a new Orange Coast College president, Bernard Luskin, was selec-

This vote comes on the heels of another quarrel regarding the district's use of television courses, offered through Coastline College, which Luskin currently heads.

Four Orange Coast College professors questioned the quality of television courses in a letter sent to officials of four-year colleges throughout California.

Officials of the junior college district then demanded that the professors retract their letter and threatened legal action if they didn't

The academic senates of Orange Coast and Golden West College countered by unanimously' approving resolutions echoing the concerns voiced by the authors of the telecourse letter.

Emotions are running high on both sides. In some cases, seemingly to the point of paranoia.

With television instruction, the district believes it can reach terical tones.

more students (and receive more state funds), with reduced classroom and faculty expenses.

The instructors, on the other hand, believe increasing use of television may jeopardize their jobs. They also say they have serious concerns about how well students learn in the telecourses.

Regarding the Luskin appointment, the teachers felt disenfranchised when trustees turned away from the applicants suggested by a screening committee and named Luskin, who had not even applied, to the Orange Coast presidency.

Trustees argued that they are the people elected to make such

Both camps seem to be standing firm. The district claims the unrest is related to current teacher contract bargaining. The instructors say the trustees have ignored them for too long.

The dispute is diverting attention from the more important question of how to maintain educational quality at a time when state aid to community colleges is being reduced.

The present split between professors and administrators must be closed before it tears the basic fabric of what has been one of the nation's finest community college systems.

To begin with, the contending parties should start communicating with each other in less hys-

'IS THERE A DOCTOR OF ECONOMICS IN THE HOUSE?

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million.

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive," his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices, a euphemism for the year around campaign headquarters maintained by each member in his district, cutting the outrageous payroll with its more than 2,200 staff workers whose main function is partisan politics, and discontinuing the furnishing of autos and unlimited supplies of gasoline for each member.

EARL WATERS

It is true that the changes brought about by the court ruling on the oneman, one-vote issue have weakened the check and balance of the two-house system. It is not true that it has been eliminated

On the same day that Keene was expounding to the press on his plan, Assembly Speaker Willie Brown told the press the Assembly would not pass any new tax bills this session because the members didn't believe the Senate would agree, thus demonstrating that the checks and balances of the two house system is alive and working.

Under the current legislative plan each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed.

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year.

Speed might not pay

It certainly was no surprise to hear the president of the Taubman Company assure Irvine City Council members recently that the long-awaited Irvine Center shopping mall probably will be built

All of this has been heard before. In fact, frequent claims in past years that the center is imminent have bred a certain skepticism among folks in Irvine.

Bob Larsen, president of the shopping mall development firm did his best to dispel the skepticism by suggesting that increased urbanization of the Irvine area has made the center even more promising than in the past. Where it was once conceived as a suburban location, now it is an urban center. To retailers, that means a bigger, more affluent market.

Larsen noted once again that the center's location within the still-undeveloped triangle formed by the intersecting San Diego, Santa Ana and Laguna freeways gives it the potential for a magnificent layout. Given decent economic conditions, he said, construction of the first phase (75 percent of the mall) will begin in late 1983 or early 1984.

For now, even the skeptics would be better advised to focus on the key elements of the Irvine Center plan. Will, for example, large-scale development of adjacent office buildings overload road capacities? Can the freeways be saved from congestion?

Those who chide developers for tardiness might be sorry if they allow the proposal to be rushed through approval processes. It is better to be meticulous now, even at the cost of more delays, than to be mired in traffic

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively.

On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions.

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud

To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud, I encountered it last year when I was hos-pitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an issue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A medical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time I went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what

He charged Medicare $695 for a procedure (exactly) that I had done a few months ago for $80 and couldn't understand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration.

I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up. JANE M. KERR

The fact is that the Coastal Commission ruled for another hearing to once again look at the plan. This will be scheduled sometime between June 15-18. In the interim, the commission staff is to review scientific evidence introduced by a team of nationally recognized scientists commissioned by Signal Landmark, private owner of most of the Bolsa Chica property. The scientists show that 453 acres of the 1,600-acre parcel, including the existing 200-acre ecological reserve, is wetlands. This is a contradiction to the Department of Fish and Game report which states that 1,000 acres is wetlands.

In the meantime, the Coastal Commission staff is to be in communication with Orange County planners to discuss differences. A Special Area Management Process (SAMP) — planning involving a mix of federal and state governmental agencies and concerned citizen groups is scheduled to meet at county offices on

Those who have communicated support for the worthwhile well-thought-out county plan should be encouraged to continue their efforts.

Huntington Beach Union High School trustees have announced their intention to upgrade eligibility requirements for students who want to participate in extra-curricular activities.

Trustees say they want to increase standards despite the recommendations of an eligibility committee. That panel found students engaged in extra-curricular activities (band, drill team, drama, debate, etc. as well as athletics) are doing better in school than nonparticipants.

However, the board majority said it believes there is a particular need to upgrade requirements for athletes. (The standard for grade point averages has not been determined.)

Trustees expressed concern about athletes graduating without learning to read and write properly. They emphasized that athletes, as well as others, need to master basic skills before receiving a diploma.

If nothing else, higher requirements would show that in the Huntington Beach Union High School District, students must hit the books before hitting the playing fields.

Advice on the unpleasant task of firing people

With the unemployment rate soaring in the nation, the newspapers are filled with sad stories about men and women who have just lost their jobs. Not sur-prisingly, readers often feel sympathy toward these people who have been fi-

No one seems to feel any sympathy toward the people who are doing the firing, though — the bosses.

AT LEAST, no one you have heard of does. But there is one fellow who specializes in teaching executives how to fire their employees. His name is James E. Challenger, and he is president of Chal-lenger, Gray and Christmas, Inc. The firm deals in something called outplacement, which means it is hired by companies to help find new jobs for people those companies have fired.

Challenger, 56, discovered that executives of those companies were coming to him with a dilemma. They had the unpleasant task of firing their workers, but they weren't sure how to do it. No one teaches courses on how to fire people.

So Challenger started dispensing how-to-fire advice. He says that no one really enjoys firing another human being, but that it's a necessary task. I talked to him about all this, and here are his guidelines for how an executive should fire a subordinate.

1. "Do it quickly. You don't want to sit there and go through how you went about making the decision. There's no use arguing. If you say he's no good, he'll

BOB GREENE

tell you he's good. If you say he's not needed, he'll say he's needed. By the time you've decided to fire a person, the two of you probably have nothing to say to each other anymore anyway. So just

2. "Do it in a place where you're in control. Which means your office. If you go to his office to do it, then he's behind the desk and he's in control. If you do it outside the building at a restaurant, he may break down during the meal. And then there are the questions: Do you do it at the beginning of the meal? Do you finish the meal after you've fired him?

Just do it in your office."

3. "The best time to fire someone is on a Friday. That way you won't start a new week off having him sitting there waiting for it to happen. And you don't have to sit and worry about it all weekend. We had one man who fired an employee on Christmas Eve because the boss didn't want to ruin his own Christmas by worrying about what he was going to have to do."

4. "THE BEST TIME of the day to fire someone is 4 p.m. That way he can leave work with the rest of the people. Plus, he won't have the opportunity to go out to lunch and tell other people at the company what a bad guy you are."

5. "Find out what he has that belongs to the company. Credit cards, keys, reports — you've got to get all of them back before he leaves. The way to accomplish this is to assign someone to help him pack his stuff. Have the person look for property that belongs to the company.

6. "Don't offer him an office that he can use to look for a new job. Many companies do this, and it's wrong. It doesn't cut the cord. As long as the person is coming into your building every day, he still holds out the hope that you'll admit you made a mistake, and that you'll rehire him. It's best to make the separation complete.

7. "Don't tell his co-workers that he's leaving. They're going to know anyway, but if you tell them directly they'll want an explanation from you, and there's no reason you have to provide an explanation to your other employees. Having to explain why you fired a person can make you look weak.

8. "Do it youself. If you give the job of firing someone to your assistant, somewhere down the line the person you've fired is going to demand to talk to you anyway. So you're going to end up face-to-face with him in the end. Save time and do it yourself in the first place."

10"SIT DOWN. Make the person you're firing sit down. If he's towering over you, then he's psychologically in control. If you're both standing up, it's awkward - plus he may break down emotionally when you fire him, so it's better if he's seated. If he cries, it's easier for him if he's sitting down. We had one case when two people were standing up, and the person who got fired punched his employer. This is not good

11. "Don't bolster your courage with a couple of drinks before you fire someone. The drinks will tend to make you more garrulous, and the firing will take longer. You think it makes you less tense, but it actually lengthens the termination procedure, and that's one thing you don't want."

12. "DON'T TALK to his family. You may be tempted to break the news to the fired man's wife, but that's not your responsibility. It may seem humane to tell the wife to be nice to the man when he comes home that night. But you can't do that. It sounds as if you're apologizing, and what are you gaining? Stay out of

Challenger said that he realizes many people may find it cold-blooded: The idea of a man who actually tries to make it easier for bosses to fire their workers.

"But someone has to give these executives advice," he said. "No one likes to fire anyone; you're playing with someone's whole life. And since a boss doesn't like the idea of firing someone anyway, the least I can do is help cut down the trauma of the situation and make it as easy on everyone concerned as

Liz, Marines, snakes Reporters pick Washington superlatives

WASHINGTON (AP) -Washington's best restaurant is one that serves up rattlesnake and buffalo meat, its finest monument is the little-known Navy-Marine Memorial and its most effective lobbyist works for the National Rifle Association, two journalists say in their book.

And in this political town, when it comes to picking the se-xiest Washingtonians, "plump but still gorgeous" Elizabeth Taylor of suburban Middleburg, Va., has to take a back seat to "handsome, rich and charming" Edward M. Kennedy, "the subject of more sexual gossip and speculation than any regiment of Hollywood leading men.

Of course, Miss Taylor no longer qualifies as a Washingtonian - not since her separation last year from her seventh husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., whose estate in Middleburg she no longer shares.

In their book, "Who Runs Washington," Michael Kilian, Washington columnist for the Chicago Tribune, and Arnold

Sawislak, political reporter for United Press International, set out to provide ephemeral answers to Washington's eternal question: Who's on top?

Not, they think, that Washington is really worth the effort.
The capital's modesty is well justified, they write, noting that it was "built in a pestilential swamp, burned by the British and left for dead, for decades a ramshackle Southern town noted most for its bawdy houses and slave markets, a crude hicksville that, until the Kennedys came along, lacked even one first-class restaurant Now, the authors think,

Washington has more than one first-class restaurant. As first among them, they list Dominique's, where the meals are "very French, yet light and healthful.'

Dominique's fell into the news during the Carter administration when an Interior Department environmentalist dispatched a letter noting that a rattlesnake on the menu belonged to an endangered species and shouldn't

As for monuments, Kilian and Sawislak find most to praise in a 1934 memorial to sailors and Marines lost at sea in World War I. They like the way flying seagulls evoke the spirits of the lost men and the danger of the sea. The beloved Lincoln Memorial comes in second.

Ronald Reagan is listed as the most persuasive man in Washington, but when it comes to fulltime lobbyists the authors pick Harlon B. Carter, the National Rifle Association's top gun. The NRA's strength comes in persuading its 1.8 million members to write Congress whenever it begins to doubt that gun ownership is to be equated with "patriotism, nationalism, masculinity, Christianity and invulnerability," they write.

In-home child care center network proposed

By GLENN SCOTT of the Daily Pilot Staff Concerned about a shortage of child care facilities in Irvine, organizers of a non-profit day care center are proposing a network of centers in private homes.

The new system comes from officials at Child's World Children's Center, sponsored by and located at the University Methodist Church, 18422 Culver Organizers have scheduled a meeting at the center at 7 p.m., Monday for interested parents and potential child care providers to discuss the proposal, which Director Donna Tilley says is the first of its kind in Orange County.

Irvine currently has 71 licensed in-home facilities, but this plan differs because it would involve a local non-profit umbrella group to standardize procedures.

Mrs. Tilley expects it to satisfy the growing demand for space at the center's full-time day care facility, with a capacity of 47, and its part-time pre-school, which handles as many as 315 children

"It's not unusual for me to get as many as eight calls a day from people seeking child care," Mrs. Tilley explained. "It's really a difficult situation in Irvine.

Demographers estimate that 55 percent of the families in Irvine have both parents in the workforce. The city has the highest percentage of working parents in the county

The in-home network would not only add to the supply of facilities, but also give some mothers (or fathers) a chance to earn an income without leaving home, said Mrs. Tilley

Through the center, new day care providers would go through steps to earn licenses from the state Social Services Department. The center would screen facilities, coordinate training and evaluations, handle recordkeeping and standardize tuition costs, she said.

The preliminary goal is to enlist 10 homes into the network to handle from 40 to 60 children. State law allows up to six children in a private home, with no more than three less than 2 years old.

If the system proves popular and efficient, then other homes might be added later.

The center's current $52 per week tuition for full-time students will be the basis for figuring the fees for in-home service. The price — likely to go up in the fall — will be higher for infants but less for after-school care, she

Possible Foothill routes reduced to 21

Two cut close to populated areas in north Irvine and Mission Viejo

By DAVID KUTZMANN

An in-depth study of where to locate a future 10-lane freeway through Orange County's foothills will focus on 21 alternate routes, including two that pass near populated areas in north Irvine and Mission Viejo.

The Board of Supervisors on Wednesday agreed with transportation planners to whittle the number of prospective routes from 41 to 21 for the second phase of a study involving the so-called 26-mile Foothill Transportation Corridor. A single route will be chosen next year.

The future east-west thoroughfare — which would not be built until the 1990s - is projected as an eight- to ten-lane freeway which would relieve overcrowding on the nearby Santa

The foothill freeway would run parallel with Interstate 5.

It would also pass near Irvine's Northwood Village if supervisors decided to route the corridor south of Rattlesnake Reservoir instead of north, through hilly terrain. About 13,000 people live in the north Irvine Village.

Several Northwood residents told supervisors Wednesday they hoped key decisions on route alignments - expected next March - would not be made without full public participation.

Officials said two public hearings already have been held in Mission Viejo and Irvine, where residents last March expressed various concerns about living close to a major transportation corridor. In particular, Mission Viejo residents asked that the future roadway be kept half a mile away from their community and north of Oso Reservoir.

In Irvine, residents at a March 18 hearing worried about noise and air pollution hazards as well as adverse impacts along surface streets as traffic moved to and from the proposed freeway.

County officials say the need for the freeway is two-fold: To relieve current congestion on the Santa Ana Freeway and to support future development expected in the foothill region.

Eventually, it is anticipated the foothill freeway corridor will extend from the San Diego County line to the interchange of the Garden Grove freeway in

In paring the number of study routes from 41 to 21, officials said most "problem alignments" were eliminated, leaving possible routes that are considered the most promising.

Generally, the Foothill Corridor study includes analyses of potential alignments north and south of Loma Ridge in the Irvine Ranch area. According to the report, prepared by Van Dell Associates, the northerly alignments run along Santiago Can-yon Road from Irvine Lake to El Toro Road. The southerly alignments run generally parallel to Irvine Boulevard along the south side of Loma Ridge, immediately north of Northwood and the Marine Corps Air Station at El

Some of the route alternatives would traverse part of the Marine base now used for storing high explosives. Although the Marine Corps has objected to the idea of running a route through the area, transportation planners said "linkage across this property (was) an important part of the overall set of route alternatives. Without it, the southerly routes become more circuitous.

Suspect bound over in newsboy's death

A 35-year-old convicted sex offender has been ordered to stand trial in Orange County Superior Court on death penalty charges that he kidnapped, molested and strangled a 12-year-old Anaheim newspaper

Disneyland stricken from death suit

An Orange County Superior Court judge has stricken a $60 million punitive damage claim against Disneyland from a lawsuit filed by the family of a Riverside man who was fatally stabbed in the amusement park in March 1981.

Judge Thomas F. Crosby Jr. told the attorney representing Mel C. Yorba's family that the facts alleged in the lawsuit were not sufficient to support a punitive damage claim.

His ruling had the effect of removing Disneyland from the legal action, which also names as defendants Palm Harbor Hospital, where Yorba was taken, and James O'Driscoll, the man charged with the slaying. Yorba's death was Disneyland's first homicide. He was stabbed after becoming involved in an argument with a man alle-ged to be Driscoll.

The lawsuit claimed that emergency medical procedures were unsatisfactory at Disney-delivery boy last August. Judge James K. Turner, after hearing evidence during an 11-day, closed-door preliminary hearing, ruled Tuesday that there was sufficient evidence to order defendant Robert Jackson Thompson to face murder charges in Superior Court.

Thompson, arrested two days after young Benjamin Lee Brenneman's disappearance last summer, will be arraigned before Judge Turner May 17.

The bearded defendant previously had been indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury on murder, kidnap, sodomy and ewd conduct charges.

His preliminary hearing, where it is determined if evidence is strong enough to order a trial, was sealed off from public view by Turner when defense attorney Ronald Brower complained that media coverage could prejudice his client's chances for a fair trial.

Previously released Grand Jury transcripts, however, have shown that Thompson admitted to Anaheim police last August that he sexually molested Bren-neman and eventually "hogtied" him before leaving him in a remote area in Los Angeles County.

However, Thompson denied that he killed the youth, whose body was found in the Rancho Palos Verdes area a day after he disappeared from an Anaheim partment complex where Thompson lived. Brenneman was a newspaper delivery boy for the Orange County Register.

Fun Zone's future on the line NB planners to study conversion to office-shop complex

By STEVE MARBLE Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Balboa Fun Zone, a part of Newport Beach history that has survived the years and more than one redevelopment try, soon may become a thing of the past.

BARNSTORMING — Gore

Vidal criticized opponent Gov.

Edmund G. Brown Jr. as he

to Chicago editors' meeting.

The block-long amusement arcade that some contend has become scruffy in its old age will be reviewed by city planning commissioners tonight at 7:30.

Commissioners, in particular, will be looking at a plan to eliminate most of what now is the Fun Zone and replace it with something called the Balboa Marina Project.

If approved, the waterfront lineup of game arcades, hamburer stands and carnival-like rides would be replaced with a three-story Cape Cod-styled structure containing shops, offices and estaurants

The long-spinning ferris wheel and adjacent carousel would be salvaged and returned to the site nce the project was complete.

The $20 million project is being roposed by JBS Development, a Claremont firm that has had the property in escrow for nearly a

The plan is the latest in a series of proposals and promises to upgrade the arcade, unveiled in 1936 by an Englishman named Al

A plan in 1972 to bulldoze the Fun Zone and replace it with a condominium complex was killed by the state Coastal Commission. Later still, a different set of owners vowed to redevelop the site, but no plans were ever filed.

Officials from JBS say if things go their way, the Fun Zone will start falling to the bulldozer by September.

Because of the cramped quar-ters in Balboa and the narrow, often-clogged streets, the firm has suggested valet parking for shoppers and restaurant goers. A two-level underground garage would be carved out for office

Coralle Gapastone, a planning consultant for JBS, says the firm has strived to come up with a plan that would preserve the atmosphere of the Fun Zone while cleaning it up at the same time.

To date, reaction has been mixed. Many Balboans say while they have fond summer memories of the Fun Zone, they agree the place needs a facelift. Members of one group, SPON

(Stop Polluting Our Newport), are critical of the Fun Zone plan. They criticized it in a recent newspaper ad. SPON members, in their ad, said the plan is just the latest example in Newport Beach of commercial plans that will "overwhelm" a residential neighborhood. The ad also complained that the developer will need a height variance. In response, the developer ran a newspaper ad pointing out that the Fun Zone has been zoned commercial, not residential, for almost 50 years. City hall observers predict that the advertising sword-crossing likely is only the start of the controversy surrounding the roject. The planners will meet at city

Animal abuse puts offender down in dumps

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read several letters in your column about people who have abused animals. Those letters made me ... ad I have actually wept. Today I read something that me me stand up and cheer, "God bless that judge!" I'm asking you to print it. It might start a national trend that could result in better treatment for animals everywhere.

A man convicted of abandoning four puppies at the city dump in sub-zero weather was sentenced to the same treatment two nights with the frozen garbage. Judge Wallace Anctil said, "That kind of treatment shouldn't be given to an animal or any human being, but I felt he should get a taste of it. He'll be rather lonely and cold."

This happened in northern New Hampshire, which speaks very well for the kind of justice they hand out there. What do you say, Ann? — APPLAUSE FROM NEW kind of judge. I think in all fairness, however, we should tell the readers that the offender had a choice of paying a fine of $200 or spending two consecutive nights at the city dump - from 5 p.m. to 5 a.m. Also he was to be consulted periodically by a police officer to see if he would prefer to pay the fine. The most recent word was that he chose the garbage dump.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to comment on a trend I believe is a big mistake. I refer to women waiting until they are in their 30s and even 40s to have children.

I was born when my mother was 42, and this is what it is like with us "late dividends" - as we were called. Our fathers rarely live to see us through high school. We never know our grandparents - they are long gone. When we get to a marriageable age, we feel guilty about leaving mama - so we ask mama to come in with us. This can be very hard on a new husband.

Please, Ann, urge women to have their children when they are young. That's what the Lord intended. — OUT OF SYNC IN HAGERSTOWN

DEAR SYNC: Some women who delay motherhood say it is a wonderful idea.

Others are on your side. But just between you and me, wouldn't you rather be born late than never?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an adult who sometimes feels immature and inept because I don't know how to respond when I am put on the spot. For example, when I am asked questions I don't wish to answer, I become red-faced and flustered and usually end up blurting out the answer because I don't know how to get out of it. Afterwards I am mad at myself.

Please tell me how to fend off embarrassing inquiries in a tactful way. — KAI-LUA KONA

DEAR KONA: First, forget about tact. People who ask non-uv-yer-bizznizz questions don't deserve gentle handling. Be

For example, if asked how much money you make, how old you are or how much you weigh, simply look the clod in the eye and say, "Now why in the world would you want to ask a question like that?" While the jerk is struggling to regroup, walk away.

Mom's silence golden

Sunday is the day when children everywhere pay tribute to some virtue possessed by their mothers.

Some applaud her selflessness. Others are grateful for her firm hand. A few remember her sacrifices, her forgiveness, her abounding love.

Some children remember their mother's words of wisdom, times she has saved them from disaster with her advice, moments when one word made the path infinitely

I GUESS IF I HAD to pick the quality in my mother I have come to admire the most, it's the times she did absolutely nothing and said absolutely nothing. Those moments of silence when she allowed me to fall on my face, fail, make bad judgments and take stands I'd have to pay for.

Only the Lord knows the golden opportunities I made available to her to protest, rave, grimace, cringe, critique, and try to turn me around, but she never took the

Obesity, breast cancer tied

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I have two problems. One is in the present. The other is fear of trouble in the future.

My present problem, which I have had since I was 20 (I'm Low 38) is being overweight. I've tried all kinds of diets without success. I've lost a few pounds for a while, but regained even more after going on a diet. I now am at least 30 pounds overweight according to my doctor. But I don't seem to have the will to lose. My second problem is anxiety about breast cancer. My mother had it and so did an aunt. I self-examine my breasts regu-larly and see my doctor for a checkup at least every six months. But I'm still wor-ried. — MRS. M.

Declarer won in dummy and wasted no time in playing ace, king and another club, to set up three long club tricks in his hand. Now, East shifted to a dia Declarer's plight suddenly dawned on him. He could take eight tricks, and the ninth - the high heart was there in dummy for all to see. Unfortunately, there was no way to get to it. Once declarer had run his eight tricks, the defense had two more to take for down one.

If declarer had taken a bit more time, he might have foreseen the problem. He could not afford to cash the second heart when he was in dummy, for that would set up defenders to beat the contract if they gained the lead with a club. What he could have done was to establish the clubs while keeping his communications intact.

After winning the heart shift, declarer should cash just one high club. If the queen drops, declarer can cash the remaining heart honor and then run his win ners for an overtrick. But when the club queen does not appear, declarer should give up on the overtrick and concentrate on making his game. He continues with a low club. East wins, but declarer still has a high club to get to dummy to cash the second heart winner, and two entries to his hand to run clubs.

Smith empire dead

Bankrupt Westgate's assets distributed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A mammoth eight-year legal tangle that began with the collapse of C. Arnholt Smith's financial empire is nearing an end.

With the filing this week of final liquidation papers in a Neyada court, eight years of reorganization under Chapter 10 of federal bankruptcy law reached a conclusion.

Checks were mailed Monday to 6,000 people who held shares in the ill fated Westgate-California Corp., in accordance with a previously announced plan to distribute the company's nearly $62.5 million in assets.

Until its bankruptcy in 1974, Westgate-California was one of the state's largest conglomerates with control over Air California, the San Diego Padres baseball team, a tuna cannery, real estate holdings and numerous Yellow Cab franchises.

Smith, 81, once one of California's most successful money barons and a Republican Party power broker, got his start as a bank teller and went on to found Westgate, which at its height controlled 60 companies and had a net worth of $2 billion.

But it all came crashing down in the early 1970s amid charges of grand theft, fraud and income tax evasion. Smith, who remains free on bail, was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced in 1979 to three years in an honor camp by a judge who called him a "crook" and chastised his "misuse of corporations."

Tuesday's filing represents the last official gasp of the firm, which was incorporated in Nevada but based in San Diego. It is now officially non-existent.

All that remains is the closing of the firm's 12th-floor office in downtown San Diego. The building once housed Smith's U.S. National Bank, which led directly to the bankruptcy of Westgate when it went belly up.

Herbert Kunzel, appointed president of Westgate-California in November 1973, presided over the dismantling of the company. His appointment by a federal judge was the result of a Securities & Exchange Commission action against Westgate.

In certain cases — depending on which class of stock was held — investors may receive more through liquidation than they would have had they been able to hold their original certificates. Kunzel noted, for example, Kunzel noted, for example, that an investor with $612 worth of common stock just before the company went under would receive $875.75 under the liquidation p.an.

Kunzel said the most important step in protecting the interest of the shareholders involved the successful battle against the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which had taken control of U.S. National Bank in 1973.

The FDIC claimed Westgate-California owed $300 million in outstanding loans and other liabilities. But in an agreement reached in 1976, the FDIC settled for $70 million from the compaRUFFELL'S

Whiting figure gets jail

Financier Rogers also fined in bankruptcy fraud case

The former owner of the Whiting Ranch near El Toro has been given a six-month jail sentence and fined $20,000 on charges of bankruptcy fraud and conspiracy.

U.S. District Court Judge William Byrne Jr. also ordered financier Kent Rogers to perform 300 hours of community service as part of being put on probation for five years.

Byrne, during a non-jury trial in January, had found Rogers guilty of six counts of bankruptcy fraud and other charges arising from his alleged attempts to conceal his ownership of the Whiting Ranch property while his Global Western Development Corp. prepared to enter bankruptcy proceedings. The 2,800-acre ranch is located near El Toro.

Rogers was convicted of illegally transferring title of the ranch to another of his firms.

Also sentenced by Judge Byrne Monday in Los Angeles was attorney Jacob Peilte, a business associate. He was convicted on similar charges and sentenced to two months of jail time and fined $5,000. He, too, must put in 300 hours of community service work

WASHINGTON (AP) Anne Gorsuch, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, has her detractors among Capitol Hill Democrats, but has at least one chivalrous admirer.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., confronting Mrs. Gorsuch at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing, could not contain his enthusiasm at his first meeting with the administrator.

To the groans of feminists in the audience, Proxmire told Mrs. Gorsuch that she reminded him of "kind of a young Suzanne Pleshette," and declared: "I'm smitten."

Mrs. Gorsuch thanked him for the compliment and gamely suggested that the hearing stop

TV violence-kid aggression link underscored

WASHINGTON (AP) - There is 'overwhelming" evidence that violence on television leads to aggressive behavior by children and teen-agers, a government study says.

'Both prime time and weekend children's television are dominated by action, power and danger. There is an average of five violent acts per hour on prime time and 18 acts per hour on children's weekend programs," the National Institute of Mental Health report said.

The study, "Television and Behavior: Ten Years of Scientific Progress and Implications for the Eighties," is a follow-up to a widely publicized 1972 Surgeon General's report on televiSean Sheehan, senior vice president for public affairs of the National Association of Broadcasters, said Wednesday, "We think the situation has improved in the past decade, so we're somewhat skeptical about the

He said that the industry has taken steps to screen violence on the cartoons and other children's shows aired Saturday mornings. But he acknow-ledged, "They're still showing older material that's pretty violent, like the old Warner Brothers cartoons. It's a problem.'

The report is based on a review of several hundred research studies.

Among the research studies cited in the report were two that found preschool children showed "unwarranted aggressive behavior in free play" after heavy television viewing of violent programs

In another study, a sample of teen-age boys in London showed they were more likely to engage in "serious violence" after watching violence on

"Violence on television seems to be cyclical, up a little one year, down a little the next, but the percentage of programs containing violence has re-mained essentially the same over the past decade," it said.

"In general, television, despite the concerns of congressmen and citizens' groups, remains a violent form of entertainment," the report said.

"The evidence accumulated in the 1970s seems overwhelming that televised violence and aggression are positively related in children.

'The consensus among most of the research community is that violence on television does lead to aggressive behavior by children and teen-agers who watch the programs. This conclusion is based on laboratory experiments and on field studies. Not all children become aggressive, of Irvine stays a step behind Corona del Mar in Sea View. C2.

RUNDOWN — Estancia's Jim McCahill finds himself caught between third and home during third inning of Wednesday's Sea View League game. CdM catcher Brent Melbon runs McCahill back toward bag where Sea King third baseman Jim Murphy awaits throw. Already on third is Estancia's Steve Nichols. Sea Kings shaded Fagles, 4-3.

Gray hair has its rewards—ask Trager

By ROGER CARLSON

Winning has its ways of justification for a few strands of gray in your hair — Corona del Mar High baseball coach Tom Trager will back that up.

The Sea Kings' coach, in his 14th year at the helm, watched his team clinch no worse than a tie for the Sea View League championship Wednesday afternoon in typical fashion, rallying for a 4-3 victory with single markers in the fifth and sixth innings.

"Sometimes I wonder why I'm doing this," said a beaming Trager following his team's 11th victory in 13 league starts. "The only time I feel like smiling is right after a win, then you start worrying about the next game." It's the fourth straight league title for the Sea

The defending CIF 2-A champions, ranked No. 1 in the most recent CIF poll, were down by a 3-2 count after Estancia's hard-hitting crew erupted for two runs in the fourth inning, thanks to a two-run single by Mike Campeau.

But Dave Rohde, who has been cuffed around pretty good by the Eagles, held on to record the complete game victory.

on to record the complete game victory. The Eagles, who fell to 7-5-1 in league play, but still assured of a playoff berth following Costa Mesa's loss to El Toro, went to work quickly, with Jeff Gardner (a single to right), Campeau (a double to right) and Steve Nichols (an RBI single off Rohde's glove) providing a run.

But Corona del Mar scored twice on five hits in the bottom of the first inning, keyed by RBI singles from Brent Melbon and Scott Loos.

"He (Rohde) was battling all the way," said Trager, who was thinking seriously of bringing outfielder Chris White into the game as relief as early as the first game.

Base-running mistakes hurt Corona del Mar's cause during the game and Trager harped on that, saying: "We made three mistakes with our base running and we did not get away with any of them. Each time it cost us."

Nevertheless, the Sea Kings obviously didn't pay a supreme price and Trager smiled and said: "This team's got some character, and some luck. And we're pretty good, too."

The Sea Kings got even in the bottom of the fifth inning when Gordon Moss got on via an infield single, stole second and scored on Rohde's single to right.

Davis attacked at trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Al Davis and the Oakland Raiders, a National Football League attorney maintains, are perfectly willing to accept their additional $5 million annually from a new television contract, yet oppose league rules regarding moving. Patrick Lynch told the jury in a U.S. District Court re-trial of antitrust suit brought by the Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum against the league, "You must consider how football differs from other types of businesses. Can the NFL turn over its franchise rights to individuals?"

In final arguments Wednesday, Lynch maintained that rule 4.3 in the NFL constitution, being attacked by the Raiders in their bid to move to Los Angeles, was legal and necessary to integrity and consistency.

He said Commissioner Pete Rozelle has held throughout 20 years in his office that franchises should not be moved unless they show good cause.

"THE RAIDERS have not shown good cause," Lynch told the jury of six women.

The Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum had their final chance to address the jury today, then U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson was to give jurors his final instructions and they were to begin deliberations.

The plaintiffs hold that rule 4.3, requiring that three-fourths of the 28 NFL members approve a team's changing of locations, is illegal.

Davis, the managing general partner of the Raiders, wants to move his club to the Los Angeles Coliseum, which was vacated in 1980 by the Rams when they moved to Anaheim.

This re-trial has taken 19 days plus three for arguments for attorneys after the first trial, which took 55 days, ended with a hung jury.

LYNCH ATTEMPTED to justify the testimony of Rozelle that putting an expansion team into Los Angeles would mean more revenue for the other league members.

"It might serve to the overall benefit of the league," Lynch said. "Davis says you must give me all the benefits of the contract, but you must give me the right to go to Los Angeles."

Lynch said the Raiders would benefit by $5 million a year on the new $2 billion television contract negotiated by Rozelle and "the contract means no party take advantage over another."

Angels happier at home

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Dally Pilot Staff

When we last got a close-up look at the Angels, they had just swept their second homestand, thanks mainly to a fine 1.85 team earned run average and some timely hitting.

So it was with great enthusiasm that Manager Gene Mauch's troops stormed the East Coast with full intentions of continuing the impressive play which vaulted them into the American League West lead.

The Angels are back, ready to open an 11-game homestand tonight against the same three teams they just saw on the road, namely Baltimore, New York and Cleveland.

The Angels completed their first lengthy road trip with a 4-4 record. The hitting wasn't quite as timely as it was at Anaheim, and the team ERA is a slightly inflated 2.56.

But, they're still in first place in the AL West, and they have their ace, Ken Forsch (2-2) on the mound tonight against the Orioles and Jim Palmer (1-1), 7:30.

Palmer's victory came last Friday when he beat the Angels, 9-4 with a complete-game effort. The Angels ended their road trip and opened the month of May on a sour note, falling to Cleveland 6-5 Tuesday night.

Perry: 15th 300-game winner

Half of the others played before the turn of the century

What do Pud Galvin, Kid Nichols, Timothy Keefe, John Clarkson, Michael Welch and Old Hoss Radbourn have in common? Well, for one thing they're all baseball hall of famers. And, they're all pitchers who have won 300 games in the major leagues.

And tonight they could get some company

when Gaylord Perry goes after that elusive victory No. 300.

There are actually 14 300-game winners, led by Cy Young, who won 511 games in 22 seasons.

The others (all quite a bit more famous than Galvin, Nichols, Keefe, Clarkson, Welch and Radbourn) include: Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander, Christy Mathewson, Warren Spahn, Eddie Plank, Lefty Grove and Early Wynn.

I went searching through the record book the other day and came up with the following bit of trivia on the 300-game winners:

 Half of the 14 played before the turn of the century.

— The last 300-game winner was Early Wynn

(1963) and before that, Warren Spahn (1961).

— Wynn won just one game in his final season, and that was victory No. 300. He won that game as a member of the Cleveland Indians, although he and that was victory No. 300. He won that game as a member of the Cleveland Indians, although he had spent the last five seasons with the Chicago White Sox. (Wynn had spent nine seasons previously with Cleveland, winning 20 games four times).

— Of the 14 300-game winners, only Spahn, Plank and Grove were left-handers.

— All 14 are in the Hall of Fame, the latest being Spahn and Welch (1973).

— Radbourn had a record of 60-12 during the 1884 season with the Providence Grays. (The distance from the pitching rubber to home plate was 50 feet in those days and was not changed to the present 60 feet, 6 inches until 1893).

— Galvin, who was nicknamed "The Little Steam Engine" because of his stature (5-8, 190 pounds), had a record of 46-29 in 1883 and 46-22 the following season for the Buffalo Bisons of the National League.

— Keefe finished all 68 games he started during the 1883 season and completed 557 of 594 games in his 14-year career.

— Cy Young and Galvin were 300-game losers. Young lost 313 games and Galvin was defeated 309 times. They rank 1-2 in the record book in that category.

Wynn was the oldest 300-game winner.
 Early (43 years old) was late in his career when he won No. 300. (Perry will be 44 in September).

— Kid Nichols was the youngest, getting his 300th at the age of 30. Nichols, in 15 seasons, was a 30-game winner seven times. He won 29 in another year.

So, with all that in mind, it should be quite a scene in Seattle tonight when Perry faces the Yankees. And just think, the Angels had a chance to get him.

Palmer lashes out at certain golfers

From AP dispatches
WASHINGTON — Arnold Palmer wants some members of the pro golf tour suspended for "discourteous and ungentlemanly behavior and thoughtlessness" that he called despicable.

The Washington Post in its Wednesday editions reported that Palmer, in a March 8 letter to PGA Commissioner Deane R. Beman, said "abusive language and displays of temperament" have met "too often in the past merely wrist-slapping."

Without mentioning any individuals by name, or de-scribing specific incidents, the celebrated golfer said 'suspensions are in order for some of these incidents.

Beman responded by sending copies of the Palmer letter to tour members on April 16 along with a warning of his own, the newspaper said

San Antonio advances to meet Lakers

George Gervin scored 26 points and Mike Mitchell added 24 Wednesday night to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 109-103 victory over Seattle and eliminate the Sonics from the National Basketball Association playoffs. The victory moved San Antonio, the Midwest Division champion, into the Western Conference finals against the Lakers with the series set to begin in Inglewood with game one on Sunday and game two on Tuesday . . . Also advancing was Boston, as Robert Parish poured in a career playoff high of 33 points, including a three-point play in the second overtime, boosting Boston to a 131-126 victory over Washington. The victory gave Boston a 4-1 triumph over the Bullets . . Bob Lanier scored 27 points and Brian Winters 23 as Milwaukee defeated Philadelphia, 110-98 to stay alive in their series.

Perry tries for 300 tonight

SEATTLE — Gaylord Perry ex-changed breezy telephone greetings with President Reagan and told a news conference Wednesday he was more excited than nervous about approaching his 300th major league pitching victory.

Perry, who picked up No. 299 last Friday in New York's Yankee Stadium, is scheduled to get his first crack tonight at becoming the 15th pitcher to reach the 300 mark. The Yankees again will oppose Perry and the Seattle Mariners, this time in the Kingdome.

"I know it's just an ugly rumor that you and! I are the only ones left who saw Abner Doubleday throw out the first ball," Reagan told Perry from the White House.

Reagan, at 71 the oldest man to serve as president, told Perry, 43, the oldest player in the major leagues, "I don't celebrate birthdays any-

Lux, Martin fire no-hitters

It was a day for no-hitters as Lisa Martin of Irvine and Nance Lux of Costa Mesa each posted such a stellar performance Wednesday on the high school women's softball scene.

Martin recorded her fifth no-hit decision of the season in defeating Saddleback, 9-0. She had 17 strikeouts and walked two batters along with one hit batter. She struck out the side in the seventh inning when she also issued one of her two walks.

Lisa and Wendy Martin each had two base hits in five plate appearances for Irvine.

SOFTBALL

of thrill. Her no-hitter was the first of her high school career and came despite issuing eight walks. She had five strikeouts.

Lux is a sophomore left-hander. She also had a base hit and drove in a run for the Mustangs in a 4-0 decision over the Chargers who were tied for the Sea View League lead at the start of the day. Costa Mesa and El Toro are right back at each other today to make up a rainout earlier in the season. Jamie McAleer, Costa Mesa's catcher, was 2-for-3 at the plate including a double Elsewhere on the prep scene, Marcia Fu pitched a six-hitter as University defeated Newport Harbor, 4-1

Karyn Jones was 3-for-4 with two RBI for University.

On the community college scene, Orange Coast closed out the regular season with an eight-inning, 3-2 decision over visiting Cerritos.

UCI falls, 11-5

Cal State Fullerton's Dave Wilder went 4-for-4 Wednesday afternoon and teammate Bob Bright added a pair of triples and three RBI as the Titans whipped host UC Irvine, 11-5 in Southern California Baseball Association action.

Wilder belted his seventh home run of the year in the seventh and added a double in the third inning to account for two RBI, while Mike Ruble was 3-for-5 with two RBI The victory improved the Titans' SCBA record to 17-4, 41-17 overall. Cal State Fullerton jumped on UCI starter

Gary Brahs for six runs in the first four innings, but the Anteaters' Ron Cummings made things interesting with his eighth home run of the year - a three-run shot in the bottom of the fourth inning. The loss dropped UCI to 9-12 in conference play. The lone bright spot for the Anteaters was Mike Rupp who extended his hitting streak to 19 games with a pair of singles. Rupp also collected two RBI on the day, leaving him 11 shy of the UCI record for most RBI in a season.

Irvine keeps pace with CdM

Fountain Valley leaps past Huntington Beach into second

Irvine High remained a game behind Corona del Mar in the Sea View League baseball derby, while Edison put a crimp in Huntington Beach's hopes to finish second in the Sunset, and Fountain Valley moved into the runner-up slot by itself.

Irvine 5, Saddleback 3

It wasn't an earth shattering performance by either side but Irvine's Vaqueros will take the decision over the Roadrunners.

Irvine is a game behind Corona del Mar in the Sea View League standings with one game remaining. The Vaqueros were in front all the way, scoring single runs in the first, third and seventh innings and adding two in the second. Saddleback scored all three runs in the bottom of the fifth. "We didn't play very well today," Irvine Coach Bob Flynn said after the game. Blake Smith was 2-for-4 with an RBI and Jack Medina 2-for-3 for the Roadrunners. No Irvine player had more than one hit as the Vaqs had two unearned runs for the day.

University 3, Newport Harbor 1

Troy Larson had a 3-hitter for the Trojans and after the Tars scored an unearned run in the first, held Newport scoreless for the remainder of the game. He had three strikeouts and one walk.

Jeff Miller was 2-for-4 including a solo home run in the seventh inning for the Trojans.

University scored first in the top of the first on two base hits by Rich Sorenson and Randy Myers, then two errors. In the bottom of the inning, the Tars tied the count on an error, a base hit by Jerry Piaskowski, a sacrifice and an infield out.

The go-ahead run came in the fifth as Jeff Carr opened with a single, went to second on an error, third on a balk and scored on an error.

El Toro 12, Costa Mesa 1

An upstart El Toro squad put together a pair of five-run frames to push the Mustangs out of a playoff spot.

Barry Sneed rapped a double for El Toro, while Costa Mesa's Brian Millett tripled.

Fountain Valley 7, Westminster 1

The Barons recorded their eighth straight victory, while handing Westminster its seventh consecutive setback, as senior first baseman Dean Roberts carried much of the hitting load.

Roberts went 3-for-3 with five RBI, including a three-run homer over the 365 sign in right field in the third inning. It was Roberts' ninth career homer, three as a sophomore, three as a junior and three more during his senior season at Fountain

Davis going to Alaska

ANCHORAGE - Deanna Davis, a starter on the Fountain Valley High women's basketball team this past season, will attend the University of Alaska on a scholarship next season. Davis averaged 14.4 points a game and had 10.2 rebounds She was named to the All-Sunset League team and was the most valuable player on the Fountain Valley squad.

PREP BASEBALL

Edison 8, Huntington Beach 0

The Chargers knocked the Oilers out of a share of second place with a combined shutout performance from junior left-hander Robb Biagi, who was making his first start of the year, and senior right-hander Greg Cloney.

Cloney was credited with the victory, pitching the final four shutout frames, and allowing only three hits and one walk. The victory moved Cloney's mark to 11-2, and established a school record for most wins in a season.

Sophomore Paul Ellison rapped two hits and drove in three to spearhead the Edison attack.

Marina 8, Ocean View 7

tinue to improve.

The Vikings had to rally for a pair of seventh-inning runs to tie, then needed a wild pitch in the 10th inning to subdue Ocean View at Blair

Dave Hargrove led off each time, tripling in the seventh to start the tying rally, then in the 10th coaxed a walk, stole second and eventually came home on the wild pitch.

Kevin Elster had three hits for Marina, while Fred Tuttle went 4-for-5, drove in one run and scored two more to pace the Seahawks.

The team batting average has dipped to .251. Only Rod Carew (.309) is hitting better than .300. Brian Downing had seven home runs when the Angels departed for New York. He returns tonight with the same seven.

For bright spots, there's Reggie Jackson's slow climb out of the .100s and into the .200s (.205). Jackson also cracked his first two home runs of the season on the Tonight's game is the first of four with the Orioles. The Yankees come to town Monday to begin a three-game series, and Cleveland wraps up homestand No. 3 with a four-game set starting next Thursday night.

ANGEL NOTES — Jim Palmer owns 25 lifetime victories against the Angels. The Orioles' starter Friday night, Scott McGreger, has 10 lifetime wins over the Angels. McGregor will be opposed by Angel Moreno. The rest of the matchups for the series with Baltimore finds mike Flanagan pitching Saturday night for the Orioles against an as yet upnight for the Orioles against an, as yet, un-named Angel pitcher, and Dennis Martinez going for Baltimore Sunday against Bruce Kleon, who is still looking for his first decision Nison, who is still looking for his first decision of 1982. One year ago today, Fersch outdueled the Yankees' Tommy John for a 2-1 decision at Anaheim Stadium, but the Angels were lodged in fourth place in the AL West, nine games out of first place. Tonight's game will be televisied on ON. The Angels and Yankees will also be televised live on KTLA, Channel 5, when they open their review Monday right.

Salt water fishing improving

Warmer ocean temperatures equal better catches

With warming ocean temperatures arriving, salt water fishing picked up this past week. Sport boats fishing both the coastal kelp beds and outer islands are returning to the docks with mixed catches of surface feeders for very light loads. Spokeswoman Theresa Glenn at Davey's Locker reports some nice sand bass and calico catches made earlier this week along with lots of mackerel, some good eating sculpin and the first yellowtail of the season coming in from the island. Hopefully, water and bait conditions will con-

A BIT FARTHER south, the Coronados also kicked out a few nice yellows this past week and with water temperature in the 65-degree range it should be only a matter of days before the yellows stage their first biting spree of the late season.

These early yellows were taken on live mackerel as there are very few schools of squid reported at the islands. In addition to the yellows, boats running out of Fisherman's Landing, Point Loma and H&M also are landing some "LOG" size baracuda in the 7- to 10-pound class. It's nice to see these big barries on the way back.

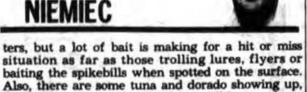

improving as the water clears and improved spotted bay bass and some croaker action is on tap. Some anglers are also fishing live bait and picking up legal-sized halibut, but most flatties are in the throw back class. FISHING AT THE CAPE is fair, but action is picking up around the Buena Vista area. Last week

Bay fishing in Newport is also showing signs of but due to cold water, all fishing will be running a few weeks behind the normal migration and that seems to also be holding for roosterfish.

Turning to the fresh water picture, fishing remains good at all local lakes and High Sierra country waters as well. Most all waters will be heavily stocked prior to Memorial Day weekend, when heavy crowds are expected at all recreational waters in California.

Irvine, Anaheim, and the Santa Ana River lakes will be planted with trophy-size rainbows to reward those anglers who don't want to make long drives and compete with thousands of other anglers for elbow room on the smaller lakes of the high

Many families are taking advantage of house-boats on lakes in California and along the Colorado River, not only to save money on vacations, but more importantly to get to ideal fishing spots and remain on the water until the fish decide to bite. Houseboating in the West is replacing the camper and travel trailer for many outdoor families and their friends and it is sure to continue to be the answer for getting away.

A run around the Bay set

Ten-mile race Saturday

One of the more popular 10-mile runs is slated for this Saturday when the Seventh Annual Around the Bay in May will be presented in Newport Beach.

A large field with quality runners, an unusual distance and a scenic course are just a few of the features of this race.

The run is sponsored by City Sports Magazine and is presented for the benefit of the China Cup travel fund. Last year, almost 3,000 participants turned out for the race's sixth running, which is part of the 11-race China Cup Series. Winners of the series are rewarded with free trips to Taiwan in December, as well as the opportunity to compete in races on the island nation. Race director John Blair says the route around the bay has been a popular one for years, and for good reason.

"I've been involved in track for over 20 years and just about every local distance runner has made the bay run for training," he said. Costa Mesa's Kathleen McCartney, winner of the Ironman Triathlon, will be there to run in the race and present awards, which include running shoes and T-shirts, and to the first-place man and woman, Costa Mesa's Back Bay Rowing and Running Club will present Gravitone backswing de-

The race is due to begin at 8 a.m., with check-in time set between 6 and 7:45. Pre-registration fee, including a year's subscription to City Sports Magazine is $8, with late registration at $9.

ANOTHER POPULAR RUN, known for being well-organized is the Leatherneck Marathon hosted annually by the Marine Corps. The fifth annual race is scheduled for Saturday and more than 1,000 runners are expected to participate in the event put on by the "Grey Ghosts" of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-531.

Among this year's runners will be Gilbert Cortez, last year's first-place finisher, and Dr. Jean Ellis, another well-known marathon competitor.

The course for the marathon is a level, scenic loop approved by The Athletic Congress encompassing El Toro, and the Marine Corps Air Station in Tustin. Refreshment and aid stations will be set up along the route at three-mile intervals.

The Leatherneck Trophy from the Marine Corps Association will be presented to the firstplace finisher, with other awards being given by division. A certificate of completion will be awarded to all finishers.

The marathon will get under way at 7 a.m. with a fun run scheduled for 7:30 for family members and friends who want to run one lap around the Air Station at no cost.

Webb's effort highlights meet

By HOWARD L. HANDY of the Daily Pilot Staff

Tammy Webb of Ocean View High put in a busy day Wednesday during the Sunset League track and field preliminary meet at Edison High, winning both of her heat races in the hurdles, finishing third in a 220 heat race and capturing one of two field event finals, the triple jump.

But the host Edison Chargers dominated the action Wednesday like they did during the dual meet season when they went undefeated. The Chargers qualified 19 performers for Friday after-noon's finals on the Edison High track that begin at 1:45 with the varsity 2-mile run.

While Webb was a standout, there were others who performed well including Edison's Tsenre Jackson in the 220 (27.05) and 440 (59.08); Sharon Hatfield of Fountain Valley in the 110 hurdles (14.23) and 330 hurdles (47.15) and many others on the Edison team.

The Chargers took 8-of-15 first places on the running track and had Marybeth Thobe win the discus final with a toss of 120-81/2.

"We've won the league championship and will hopefully qualify a number of the girls for the CIF meet," Edison Coach Rueben Chappins said.
"We should get good performances from Barbara Rainey and Jackson in the sprints; Kim De-

Vetis and Leslie Pratt in the distance races; Thobe in the weight events and Kim Walulik in the high

Hatfield is the class of the Sunset League hurdlers, winning her heat races in easy fashion in 14.23 for the 110-yard event and 47.15 for the 330. The two times were well ahead of Webb, winner of the other heat races. Webb will concentrate on the hurdle races Friday, scratching from the 220 final.

"I enjoy the shorter race more because it is a lot more daring," Hatfield said. "But in the longer distance, you have time to pick up people who might get in front of you."

The hurdling star has never hit a hurdle hard enough to fall during her high school career and is confident as she faces the tougher competition in future CIF meets. She was an all-league volleyball player but prefers track because of the individual accomplishments. She will also compete in the high jump Friday where she has a mark of 5-6.

Other Edison winners of heat races include Lori Shaw in the 100; Jackson and Hainey in the 220; Kathy Biefeld and Jackson in the 440; Leslie Pratt in the 880; DeVitas and Tammy Snyders in the mile run.

VOLLEYBALL

Sunset League Player of the Year Andy Klussmann, the catalyst to the Vikings' success.

Tim Reed, the coach of the year, molded together a team comprised of Klussmann, Mark Cox, Bill Lennertz and Chris Fisher, each a first team selection, along with second team choices Jerry Meunier, a junior, and Steve Miller.

Also showing well and earning CIF berths were La Quinta and Fountain Valley and each school garnered a pair of first team choices and three second team berths as chosen by the league's coaches. Junior Utu, the 6-8 junior, and Rick Weissinger are the first team choices from La Quinta, another Sunset League team which has surprised the ranks of CIF circles with its play Fountain Valley's John Kosty and Ken Harter led Fountain Valley to a third place finish and were accorded similar honors. The other first team player is soaps. Brightening, whitening detergents, long the major sponsors for suffering and sneaking around in the afternoon, have dropped to third among daytime advertisers, reflecting a chage in who watches daytime TV. According to Brand Advertising Reports, day-time's top sponsors in 1976 were, in order: deterents, pet foods, cooking oils, and laundry preparations. These targeted housewives who would get TV tips on cleaning the castle, caring for Rover, preparing dinner and doing the wash.

Today, a n ew breed of commercial products is paying to reach burgeoning audiences of young adults (18-25) and men over 50, along with stilldominant women viewers. In 1981, these were the major sponiors for the networks' daily 20 hours of quiz shows, were women, 16 percent were men and 25 percent were children under 17. In 1982, the women's percentage didn't change, but male viewers in both the 18-19 and over 50 categories increased. Kiddie viewers declined to fewer than 20 percent. "The one demographic that shows a significant shift is men over 50," said Frank Campisi, ABC's manager of audience analysis. This explains why advertising for headache remedies moved from ninth to second in the past five years, and two categories not in the Top 10 in 1976 — coffee and tea and hair products — are spending millions of daytime dollars. Serial writers also have been accommodating the young adults with themes of science fiction and fantasy for several years.

Backlash possible

NEW YORK (AP) — Since CBS' "60 Minutes" became habit viewing, ABC has had difficulty finding popular programming for its first hour Sunday nights. Now ABC is trying to scare America with "Counterattack: Crime in America." "Counterattack," which premiered Sunday on the network considered most violent by the National Coalition on Television Violence, won't change any minds about ABC's propensity for hard knocks. The idea is to encourage viewers to join the battle against crime, but "Counterattack" may only cause Americans to triple-bolt their doors.

FIRST COMPLETED — The six-story Liberty National Bank building was the first to be finished in the $50 million, 14-acre One Pacific Plaza office and commercial center in Huntington Beach. Other buildings planned in the center are a 12-story, another six-story and a two-story office structure.

'Fiddler' appeal universal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Fiddler on the Roof" is a 1960s musical about Jews in turn-of-the-century Russia that, in its 1980s reincarnation, has tremendous appeal to the Japanese.

"I was in Japan and I saw the play in Japanese," said the show's recurrent star, Herschel Bernardi, "The audience started laughing on cue and crying . . . After the show, the Japanese producer said, 'I don't see why the show should be so . After the show, the Japanese propopular in America. It's so Japanese'

The reason, Bernardi said, is "the content of this play is about the breakdown of tradition and the family. He (the Japanese producer) said, 'What's happening in this play is happening today in Japan'."

The show also has attracted new audiences from New York to the Pantages Theater in Los Angeles, where Bernardi bows out June 20 to undergo rest and therapy for a back problem. Afterward, he said, he may develop a one-man show under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution. He said he was persuaded to do the revival because the original director, Jerome Robbins, was going to stage it. Bernardi, who took over the role on Broadway from Zero Mostel, had never worked

"This is not a re-creation, it's a restitution," he said. "We have new insights, we're older."

One significant difference that's developed in the past 15 years is that the show is now advertised on television and radio as well as newspapers.

'We have opened up a new audience to live theater," said Bernardi, wearing a burnoose as he relaxed in the poolhouse of his Hollywood apart-ment building. "You have people that are unsure whether to applaud or not, but they know to

Some rather naive comments have been overheard at intermission, he said, including one man who told his wife, "Honey, they stole the song they played at our wedding."

"It's as if they're entering into a new world and you can feel it in the beginning," he said.

Compound said to be sobering

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A compound that would reduce the effect of alcohol on a person's driving ability may be available to the public in six months, its manufacturer said.

The product, Sober-Aid, was announced by Zoe Products, Inc. It is described as a powder that is mixed with water and taken orally.

Testing of the product was done at Southern California Research Institute, where its asso-ciate director, Marcelline Burns, Ph.D., said intoxicated subjects performed better on eight different tests when given the compound than when given a

"These data demonstrate that at the alcohol and Sober-Aid dose levels studied, the compound can be expected to partially offset alcohol-related deficits in driving skills," she said.

Dr. Ernest P. Noble, chairman of the company's scientific advisory board, said the test data was "the best I have seen." Zoe Products claims the product can reverse adverse affects on driving by about 40 percent.

Noble was director of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism during the Ford and Carter administrations.

The company's president, James P. MacPherson, said the company would "try to keep the cost of Sober-Aid under the price of a drink."

Bolt kills Reagan horse

KANAB, Utah (AP) — Sinbad the Sailor, the horse that Ronald Reagan rode on the television series "Death Valley Days," has been killed by a bolt of lightning.

Anna Johnson said Sinbad was standing in a field under a power line when the animal was struck in the ear by lightning Monday. She said Sinbad was killed instantly

Mrs. Johnson said the horse was owned by her husband, Calvin Johnson, a rancher and member of the Kane County Commission

She said the horse was ridden by Reagan when he performed as host of the "Death Valley Day's" programs, many of which were filmed in the Kanab area.

Mrs. Johnson said she didn't know how long her husband had owned the large white horse, but she said Sinbad was more than 20 years old.

"He was just a good, old riding horse. We could just put the grandkids on him," she said.

Four local coilege sophomores were awarded $500 checks for their performance in Bank of America's community college awards program.

Julia Danziger of Costa Mesa in the business category; Ruel Czach of Huntington Beach in the scienceengineering category and Yvonne Miller of Fountain Valley in the technical-vocational category. All attend Orange Coast College

The fourth winner was Saddleback Community College student Karen Shingleton of Irvine, in the scienceengineering category.

The four won their local semi-final events and advanced to final competition. First-place winners in each category received $2,500 each, and a total of $24,000 was awarded.

The program is designed to recognize and honor community college sophomores whose scholarship, leadership and sense of civic responsibility give them promise of future service to society, bank spoke-smen said.

Benefit auction in Mesa

The Orange Coast College Children's Center will conduct a benefit auction May 14 at the Costa Mesa campus' student center cafeteria.

There will be a viewing hour from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. when the auction will start. Admission is $2 at the door, and refreshments will be served.

The center was started 10 years ago by OCC's Associated Students to provide child care for low-income, goaloriented students, according to officials. It serves about 150 children of OCC students each semester.

Proceeds from the auction will be used to purchase needed equipment for the children and to repair buildings.

Some items that will be up for bid include a weekend at South Coast Plaza Hotel, an original cartoon, a bronze sculpture, two live lobsters, one hour of legal advice, and a half-day of house

Housing council, Valley in fund flap

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Orange County Fair Housing Council may terminate its contract with Fountain Valley because of a dispute over how much money it should receive from the city for its services.

The Fair Housing agency, which fields landlord-tenant inquiries and housing discrimination complaints, requested $10,-000 from Fountain Valley's 1982-83 federal Housing and Community Development Block

THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1982

The City Council has authorized a $2,700 allocation to the group, however, based on a staff report that computed this sum as Fountain Valley's proper share of Fair Housing Council expenses.

But Gene Scorio, executive director of the Fair Housing agen-cy, Tuesday told the City Council this sum is "woefully inadequate.'

He said he will urge his board of directors to refuse the $2,700 and discontinue service to Fountain Valley after the current contract expires June 30.

Fountain Valley will disburse $322,000 in Housing and Community Development funds during 1982-83. The federal grant requires the city to have a program to accept housing inquiries and complaints.

For the past two years, this has been done through the city's contract with the Fair Housing

Scorio said that if Fountain Valley's contract is not renewed, the city will have to set up its own program for handling housing complaints. He claimed this will cost the city much more than the $10,000 requested by his

City officials denied that assertion, saying the Fountain Valley staff operated its own Fair Housing program before contracting with the county organization and could revive that Patricia Flynn, the city's housing and community development coordinator, said 1 percent of the county group's 1981 calls came from Fountain Valley. She said the approved $2,700 alloca-tion exceeds 1 percent of the Fair Housing Council's 1981 budget.

City Manager Howard Ste-phens said the current staff would have to find time to handle the additional Fair Housing work if the contract is not reneNoting that the city is prepa-ring a bare-bones budget for 1982-83, he said, "There's no way we could hire any additional employees to do it.

U.S. losing ground in Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. backing for Britain in the Falklands crisis is producing a backlash in Latin America that could hamper American efforts to resist communist expansionism in Central America.

The hostile hemispheric reaction to the U.S. move Friday has raised doubts about American ability to muster broad-based support for its Central American policies.

And the crisis has left the United States more politically isolated from its Latin neighbors than at any time in recent memory as virtually all governments from the region, spanning the political spectrum, have aligned themselves with the Argentine cause.

Moreover, what appeared to be a new era in U.S-Argentine relations a few weeks ago has given way to one of almost total alienation.

In a protest note delivered to U.S. authorities Sunday, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez predicted that U.S. support for Britain will leave "lasting scars" on relations between the two countries.

But the political cost to the United States would be diminished if the U.N. mediation effort ends the fighting and leads to a negotiated settlement. U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday night both Britain and Argentina indicated interest in his proposals.

One immediate beneficiary of the U.S. estrangement with Argentina is Nicaragua. Before the crisis over the Falkland Islands, the United States looked to Argentina as an ally in bringing pressure against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

According to reports this year, the administration cited Argentina for a possible role in a covert operation aimed at disrupting alleged Nicaraguan arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Sal-

Any such cooperation now would seem highly unlikely, particularly in view of the enthusiastic backing Nicaragua has shown for Argentina since the early days of the crisis.

Reagan endorses budget Accepts Senate GOP version, hopes Democrats agree

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan said today a com-promise budget plan drafted by Senate Republicans and endorsed by the White House "can put our country firmly on the road to evonomic prosperity" if congressional Democrats cooperate.

At a question-and-answer session with reporters in the White House Rose Garden, Reagan said the new budget will "continue to protect" the basic benefits of Social Security recipients. The compromise budget plan was said to include $40 billion in unspecified Social Security cuts and tax

Reagan was questioned on that point, but did not explain how the reductions could be obtained without lowering benefits. He did say that the savings "could come from a restructuring of the program," but didn't explain that

The president said the answer on Social Security would come ultimately from a bipartisan commission studying the system. The commission is expected to report by the end of the year.

The president said the spen-ding plan approved Wednesday by the Senate Budget Committee would "continue to bring down the growth in federal spending . . . . It should reassure financial markets by sharply reducing projected deficits in the years beyond . . . It will preserve our commitment to a stronger defense." He said the tax increases in the budget compromise, totaling $95 billion over three years, would not impinge upon the incentives he expects from the tax-cut program he proposed and Congress enacted last year.

Standing with Reagan as he began the informal session with reporters were congressional GOP leaders.

Reagan said the burden would be on the Democrats to explain how they would refuse to agree to a plan that would reduce budget deficits to $106 billion in fisal 1983, $69 billion in fiscal 1984 and $39 billion the year af-

Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said this morning the Republican spending plan "provides for walloping defense expenditures and fails to correct the inequities and excesses of the Reagan-Kemp-Roth tax bill. At the same time, it proposes deep cuts in Social Security and other vital programs." The plan, he said, "retains some of the major defects of Reaganomics.'

British won't withdraw

By The Associated Press

Britain vowed today to continue military activities to regain the Falkland Islands while accepting U.N. proposals as a framework for future talks. An Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the British position ruled out a diplomatic solution, for the moment.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons in London that Britain accepted U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's proposals for settling the conflict as a "framework" for future talks, but said Britain will "continue with our military activities.'

Perez de Cuellar refused to make public his peace plan, but informed sources said it included a cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the Falklands area and appointment of a U.N. administrator for the islands while negotiations resume to determine their future. The plan reportedly takes no position on the thorny sovereignty issue.

Britain said Wednesday it was working with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on a plan from Perez de Cuellar that included an early cease-fire and withdrawal. But the ideas were never spelled out and the latest statements clearly indicated more fighting was likely over the South Atlantic islands that Argentina seized from Britain on April 2.

"It would be too easy to say no military activities during negotiations," Mrs. Thatcher said. "What would happen? We (See FALKLAND, Page A2)

FV parents seek help in dispute

Some Fountain Valley parents are trying to enlist the city's help in an argument over the Fountain Valley School District's plan to reorganize its grade level system

City Attorney Alan Burns said the city has no legal obligation to enter this dispute, and City Manager Howard Stephens recommended that the city not get involved

But Councilman Fred Voss, a former school district trustee, asked the city staff to prepare a letter endorsing the parents' call for a school district study on the environmental impact of reorganization, which begins in September. This letter must win the approval of the city Council before it is sent.

School district trustees decided in February to add kindergarten through fifth grade schools and middle schools (grades six through eight) to the current kindergarten through eighth grade structure.

Devon Dahl, a spokesman for the parents, said the group is appealing this action under provisions of the California Environmental Quality Act.

The district filed a statement saying its reorganization plan would have negligible impact on the environment.

But Dahl claimed the reorganization would result in additional traffic, air pollution and noise. He said it also would affect the crossing guard program, which is operated by the city.

The parents are scheduled to present their appeal to the school board tonight.

should be hamstrung. The people would still remain under the heel of the invader while the Argentines increased their activities on the mainland, increased their supplies and reserves in order to attack us at their will.

Mrs. Thatcher said the U.N. proposals came with "no specific details" attached but linked a cease-fire with Argentine with-drawal from the islands, a basic British precondition for a truce.

Meanwhile, no new military action was reported in the South Atlantic battle zone Wednesday. Argentina drew the last blood Tuesday when one of its planes fired a missile that set fire to the British destroyer Sheffield, forcing its crew to abandon ship, and a British Harrier jet fighter was shot down and the pilot killed in an attack on one of the Falkland airstrips.

The British government said at least 30 of the Sheffield's 270 crewmen were killed, and government sources said 57 more men were missing or wounded. The shattered hulk of the destroyer was reported still afloat Wednesday.

Two Argentine ships and a Chilean craft continued the search east of the tip of South America for about 350 sailors missing from Argentina's only cruiser, the General Belgrano, which a British submarine torpedoed and sank Sunday. The Argentine government reported the rescue of 680 crewmen.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said two Argentine submarines were reported operating in the 200-mile war zone both nations declared around the Falklands, but it said the rest of the Argentine fleet was sailing back toward the mainland coast.

U.S. POSITION SHAKY . . .

The Falklands debate also may have strained relations between the United States and Venezuela, an American ally in Central America.

At an OAS foreign ministers meeting here last week, Vene-zuela captained a successful effort to delete from a proposed resolution a laudatory reference to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s mediation effort.

More significantly, after Haig announced U.S. backing for Britain, Venezuela called for a "reorientation" of the OAS to ensure Latin American - and not U.S. - interests are protec-

Venezuela and the United States cooperated closely in opposing El Salvador's guerrilla movement and in promoting an evolution toward democratic rule in that country. It now seems li-kely Venezuela will find it more difficult to support U.S. policies in El Salvador.

Mexico, Ecuador and other countries also have publicly criticized the U.S. position on the Falklands

Even before the United States staked out the pro-British stand Friday, Haig angered the Latin Americans in his speech to the OAS foreign ministers meeting 10 days ago.

Argentina requested the meeting under terms of a Western Hemisphere self-defense treaty but Haig, in effect, told the delegates that hemispheric backing for Argentina's strategy could actually prolong the conflict.

A monumental achievement By STEVE MITCHELL

Former Orange County supervisor Alton Allen thought his good friend Eugen Maier-Krieg deserved something special for the 15-foot monument he created for the city of Anaheim.

After all, Allen reasoned, visitors to Pearson Park in Anaheim's downtown have enjoyed the stone statue of Madame Helena Modjeska for nearly 47 years.

Maier-Krieg of Laguna Beach created the statue of the great Polish-born tragedienne in 1935 with funds provided by the federal Works Progress Administration.

The monument was dedicated that September with the usual hoopla — an eight-piece concert orchestra and a lot of important dignitaries saying nice things about the statue and, of course, the unveiling.

Alton Allen attended that ceremony nearly a half century ago with his artist friend.

"They didn't give him any kind of a citation at the time," Allen recalls. "Furthermore, his name has never appeared on the monument."

Allen thought the oversight should be corrected. He called Anaheim officials and offered to pay for a plaque to adorn the statue if the city would sponsor another ceremony.

Earlier this week, Anaheim officials met in the treelined park to honor the aging artist.

Allen, who was a county supervisor from 1963 until 1971, said he and his long-time friend had a good chat following the brief ceremonies.

"I wanted the ceremony to coincide with his 85th birthday in January, but the plaque didn't arrive in time," Allen said.

"He's been my friend for more than 50 years, and I just thought he deserved some recognition."

Dispute threatens fine college system

An unhealthy schism between the Coast Community College District administration and its full-time instructors seems to be growing wider each day.

In a campuswide poll, Orange Coast College instructors this week indicated by a large margin that they lack confidence in Chancellor Norman Watson and the district's board of trustees.

The teachers also voiced objections to the manner in which a new Orange Coast College president, Bernard Luskin, was selected.

This vote comes on the heels of another quarrel regarding the district's use of television courses, offered through Coastline College, which Luskin currently heads.

Four Orange Coast College professors questioned the quality of television courses in a letter sent to officials of four-year colleges throughout California.

Officials of the junior college district then demanded that the professors retract their letter and threatened legal action if they didn't.

The academic senates of Orange Coast and Golden West College countered by unanimously approving resolutions echoing the concerns voiced by the authors of the telecourse letter.

Emotions are running high on both sides. In some cases, seemingly to the point of paranoia.

With television instruction, the district believes it can reach more students (and receive more state funds), with reduced classroom and faculty expenses.

The instructors, on the other hand, believe increasing use of television may jeopardize their jobs. They also say they have serious concerns about how well students learn in the telecourses.

Regarding the Luskin appointment, the teachers felt disenfranchised when trustees turned away from the applicants suggested by a screening committee and named Luskin, who had not even applied, to the Orange Coast presidency.

Trustees argued that they are the people elected to make such

Both camps seem to be standing firm. The district claims the unrest is related to current teacher contract bargaining. The instructors say the trustees have ignored them for too long.

The dispute is diverting attention from the more important question of how to maintain educational quality at a time when state aid to community colleges is being reduced.

The present split between professors and administrators must be closed before it tears the basic fabric of what has been one of the nation's finest community college systems.

To begin with, the contending parties should start communicating with each other in less hysterical tones

Back to baseball

Does anyone remember when Little League baseball was just a game, just a wholesome way for youngsters to have some fun and get some exercise while learning about team play and sportsmanship?

Apparently, a few people in the Fountain Valley North league forgot about these things in a recent dispute focusing on 12-year-old Arri Buford.

When Arri began to display outstanding athletic skills, some rival coaches began questioning his eligibility and branded him a "ringer."

Ultimately, district, regional and national Little League officials were drawn into the dispute.

It seems that Arri's father was temporarily transferred to Detroit for medical treatment last year. But Arri himself was living in Fountain Valley with a family friend when local Little League registration took place. He now lives with his family in Garden Grove.

That home was the scene of a recent firebombing incident. Authorities say they don't know if the incident was linked to the baseball dispute.

The eligibility question was settled late last week when national Little League officials ruled Arri can continue to play for the Fountain Valley North Astros.

The young athletes and their parents should put this squabble behind them and get back to the main business of Little League — playing baseball.

Schoolbooks get priority

Huntington Beach Union High School trustees have announced their intention to upgrade eligibility requirements for students who want to participate in extra-curricular activities.

The district currently abides by the CIF eligibility requirement that allows students to participate in sports as long as they are passing in four or more subjects.

Huntington Beach Superintendent Frank "Jake" Abbott is recommending that the new requirements apply to all extracurricular activities, not just

Trustees say they want to increase standards despite the recommendations of an eligibility committee. That panel found students engaged in extra-curricular activities (band, drill team, drama, debate, etc. as well as athletics) are doing better in school than nonparticipants.

However, the board majority said it believes there is a particular need to upgrade requirements for athletes. (The standard for grade point averages has not been determined.)

Trustees expressed concern about athletes graduating without learning to read and write properly. They emphasized that athletes, as well as others, need to master basic skills before receiving a diploma.

If nothing else, higher requirements would show that in the Huntington Beach Union High School District, students must hit the books before hitting the playing fields.

'IS THERE A DOCTOR OF ECONOMICS IN THE HOUSE?

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67 members.

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million yearly.

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive," his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices,

a euphemism for the year around campaign headquarters maintained by each member in his district, cutting the outrageous payroll with its more than 2,200 staff workers whose main function is

partisan politics, and discontinuing the furnishing of autos and unlimited supplies of gasoline for each member.

It is true that the changes brought about by the court ruling on the one-man, one-vote issue have weakened the check and balance of the two-house system. It is not true that it has been eliminated.

On the same day that Keene was expounding to the press on his plan, Assembly Speaker Willie Brown told the press the Assembly would not pass any new tax bills this session because the members didn't believe the Senate would agree, thus demonstrating that the checks and balances of the two house system is alive and working.

Under the current legislative plan each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed.

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the senate.

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year.

Foundations can help rescue schools

To the Editor

In a recent article, a UC law professor, John Coons, and our state Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. Wilson Riles bemoan the sprouting phenomenon of educational foundations. They discredit the formation of these foundations as perpetrators of inequality in the funding of the public educational system.

It is my opinion that foundations are not a threat in any way to public education as Mr. Riles suggests, but rather

symptomatic of a society that is fed up with being told that they can't provide their children with whatever level of public education they deem adequate in their own community after they have paid the bills to educate everybody else's child in the public school system. Many of the same voices that wring their hands and cry for "equal" funding of the public educational system are the same people who pay little, if any, of the taxes that provide for that funding.

It seems to me that Coons and Riles are much more interested in pulling down the educational level of the so-called affluent segments of our society, rather than bringing the less affluent segments up to a predetermined level of educational competency. What they propose is nothing less than a headlong rush to educational mediocrity. And this doesn't appear to bother them in the slightest as long as everyone is "equal" at the lowest possible common denominator of educational competence.

FORTUNATELY, an ever-increasing majority of people in this state refuse to succumb to this call for public educational mediocrity. And thus we are witnessing an explosion in the formation of the public school foundations. What the foundations can contribute isn't a drop in the bucket in comparison to the total budget. At $500,000 it represents about 1 percent of our local Newport-Mesa District's budget. But on the other hand, this sum equates to about 20 teachers' salaries. And 20 teachers can go a long way to teaching remedial reading, etc., or whatever a particular district thinks it is being deprived of by the state's unfair "equalizing" funding formulas dictated by the court's Serrano-Priest decision.

One very important function that these foundations are performing is to sound the clarion to our citizens that our public educational system is in danger of succumbing to the social engineering excesses of our liberal state judicial system; and unless the people stand up and demand of their legislators that something be done about it, we will witness the complete emasculation of our public educational system as we know it well before the end of this decade.

Foundations are in no way the ultimate answer to the plight of our public school system. They do, however, serve as a temporary life-saving tourniquet that is being urgently applied to our hemorrhaging public school system whose financial life-blood is being bled white by the court-imposed sanctions of the Serrano-Priest decision.

The ultimate cure for the peril that we now find our public education system in is through public supported legislation that will set a predetermined level of excellence in public education for all of our public schools. At the same time, this legislation should encourage communities to exceed this predetermined level of educational excellence through their own additional financial sacrifices if they are willing and able to do so.

To the Editor:

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively.

On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions.

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud. I encountered it last year when I was hospitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an issue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A medical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time I went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what Medicare pays.

CellUTS from readers are westable. The Fight to condense tell ters to fit space or eliminate liber is reserved: Letters of 30 words or less will be given preference. All letters must in clude signature and mailing endrest but names must be withness on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Peet will not be published. Letters may be telephoned to 442-468 Name and phone number of the contributor must be given to verification purposes.

He charged Medicare $695 for a procedure (exactly) that I had done a few months ago for $80 and couldn't understand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration.

I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up.

To the Editor:

While the text of your April 23 article, "Coast Unit Rejects Bolsa Chica Plan," was generally accurate, the headline, which suggests that the Coastal Commission denied approval of the Orange County Bolsa Chica land use plan, was in

Bolsa Chica plan

The fact is that the Coastal Commission ruled for another hearing to once again look at the plan. This will be scheduled sometime between June 15-18. In the interim, the commission staff is to review scientific evidence introduced by a team of nationally recognized scientists commissioned by Signal Landmark, private owner of most of the Bolsa Chica property. The scientists show that 453 acres of the 1,600-acre parcel, including the existing 200-acre ecological reserve, is wetlands. This is a contradiction to the Department of Fish and Game report which states that 1,000 acres is wetlands.

In the meantime, the Coastal Commission staff is to be in communication with Orange County planners to discuss differences. A Special Area Management Process (SAMP) — planning involving a mix of federal and state governmental agencies and concerned citizen groups — is scheduled to meet at county offices on May 10.

May 10.

Those who have communicated support for the worthwhile well-thought-out county plan should be encouraged to continue their efforts.

Liz, Marines, snakes Reporters pick Washington superlatives

WASHINGTON (AP) -Washington's best restaurant is one that serves up rattlesnake and buffalo meat, its finest mon-ument is the little-known Navy-Marine Memorial and its most effective lobbyist works for the National Rifle Association, two journalists say in their book.

And in this political town, when it comes to picking the sexiest Washingtonians, "plump but still gorgeous" Elizabeth Taylor of suburban Middleburg, Va., has to take a back seat to "handsome, rich and charming" Edward M. Kennedy, "the subject of more sexual gossip and speculation than any regiment of Hollywood leading men." Of course, Miss Taylor no longer qualifies as a Washingto- not since her separation last year from her seventh husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., whose estate in Middleburg she question: Who's on top? Not, they think, that Washington is really worth the effort. The capital's modesty is well justified, they write, noting that it was "built in a pestilential swamp, burned by the British and left for dead, for decades a ramshackle Southern town noted most for its bawdy houses KENNED

and slave markets, a crude hicksville that, until the Kennedys came along, lacked even one first-class restaurant

Now, the authors think, Washington has more than one first-class restaurant. As first among them, they list Dominique's, where the meals are "very French, yet light and healthful."

Dominique's fell into the news during the Carter administration when an Interior Department environmentalist dispatched a letter noting that a rattlesnake on the menu belonged to an endangered species and shouldn't

As for monuments, Kilian and Sawislak find most to praise in a 1934 memorial to sailors and Marines lost at sea in World War I. They like the way flying seagulls evoke the spirits of the lost men and the danger of the sea. The beloved Lincoln Memorial comes in second.

Ronald Reagan is listed as the most persuasive man in Washington, but when it comes to fulltime lobbyists the authors pick Harlon B. Carter, the National Rifle Association's top gun. The NRA's strength comes in persuading its 1.8 million members to write Congress whenever it begins to doubt that gun ownership is to be equated with "patriotism, nationalism, masculinity, Christianity and invulnerability," they write.

Mother's Day is supposed to be a remembrance of your mother. Big Deal. Right! It is reported in the newspapers, mentioned on T.V. BUT THINK ABOUT IT! What is Mother's Day? And why should you care? You are busy with your own lives have to work — more important things to do.

Mother's Day is the most PERSONAL and important day in your lives. We celebrate Christmas, Christ's birthday — that's important,
Do you really know what Mother's Day is all about? It celebrates every birth of yourselves!

It's the remembrance of carrying YOU through 9 months in her body and the pain of delivery. But that's just the beginning. Mother's Day is a remembrance of all the problems, joys, help, and what she went through and in fact what she is still going through with you.

Your mother is strength, understanding, banker, band-aider. In other words - the most important of all.

Advice on the unpleasant task of firing people

With the unemployment rate soaring in the nation, the newspapers are filled with sad stories about men and women who have just lost their jobs. Not sur-prisingly, readers often feel sympathy toward these people who have been fi-

No one seems to feel any sympathy toward the people who are doing the firing, though - the bosses.

AT LEAST, no one you have heard of does. But there is one fellow who specializes in teaching executives how to fire their employees. His name is James E. Challenger, and he is president of Challenger, Gray and Christmas, Inc. The firm deals in something called outplace-ment, which means it is hired by companies to help find new jobs for people those companies have fired.

Challenger, 56, discovered that executives of those companies were coming to him with a dilemma. They had the unpleasant task of firing their workers, but they weren't sure how to do it. No one teaches courses on how to fire people.

So Challenger started dispensing how-to-fire advice. He says that no one really enjoys firing another human being, but that it's a necessary task. I talked to him about all this, and here are his guidelines for how an executive should fire a subordinate.

"Do it quickly. You don't want to sit there and go through how you went about making the decision. There's no use arguing. If you say he's no good, he'll tell you he's good. If you say he's not needed, he'll say he's needed. By the time you've decided to fire a person, the two of you probably have nothing to say to each other anymore anyway. So just get it done."

2. "Do it in a place where you're in control. Which means your office. If you go to his office to do it, then he's behind the desk and he's in control. If you do it outside the building at a restaurant, he may break down during the meal. And then there are the questions: Do you do it at the beginning of the meal? Do you finish the meal after you've fired him?

Just do it in your office."

3. "The best time to fire someone is on a Friday. That way you won't start a new week off having him sitting there waiting for it to happen. And you don't have to sit and worry about it all weekend. We had one man who fired an employee on Christmas Eve because the boss didn't want to ruin his own Christmas by worrying about what he was going to have to do."

4. "THE BEST TIME of the day to fire someone is 4 p.m. That way he can leave work with the rest of the people. Plus, he won't have the opportunity to go out to lunch and tell other people at the company what a bad guy you are."

5. "Find out what he has that belongs to the company. Credit cards, keys, reports — you've got to get all of them back before he leaves. The way to accomplish this is to assign someone to help him pack his stuff. Have the person look for property that belongs to the company.

6. "Don't offer him an office that he can use to look for a new job. Many companies do this, and it's wrong. It doesn't cut the cord. As long as the person is coming into your building every day, he still holds out the hope that you'll admit you made a mistake, and that you'll rehire him. It's best to make the separation complete." 7. "Don't tell his co-workers that he's leaving. They're going to know anyway, but if you tell them directly they'll want an explanation from you, and there's no reason you have to provide an explanation to your other employees. Having to explain why you fired a person can make you look weak."

8. "Do it youself. If you give the job of firing someone to your assistant, somewhere down the line the person you've fired is going to demand to talk to you anyway. So you're going to end up face-to-face with him in the end. Save time and do it yourself in the first place.'

10"SIT DOWN. Make the person you're firing sit down. If he's towering over you, then he's psychologically in control. If you're both standing up, it's awkward — plus he may break down emotionally when you fire him, so it's better if he's seated. If he cries, it's easier for him if he's sitting down. We had one case when two people were standing up, and the person who got fired punched his employer. This is not good.

11. "Don't bolster your courage with a couple of drinks before you fire someone. The drinks will tend to make you more garrulous, and the firing will take longer. You think it makes you less tense, but it actually lengthens the ter-mination procedure, and that's one thing you don't want."

12. "DON'T TALK to his family. You may be tempted to break the news to the fired man's wife, but that's not your responsibility. It may seem humane to tell the wife to be nice to the man when he comes home that night. But you can't do that. It sounds as if you're apologizing, and what are you gaining? Stay out of

Challenger said that he realizes many people may find it cold-blooded: The idea of a man who actually tries to make it easier for bosses to fire their workers.

"But someone has to give these executives advice," he said. "No one likes to fire anyone; you're playing with someone's whole life. And since a boss doesn't like the idea of firing someone anyway, the least I can do is help cut down the trauma of the situation and make it as easy on everyone concerned as

'Fiddler' appeal universal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Fiddler on the Roof" is a 1960s musical about Jews in turn-of-thecentury Russia that, in its 1980s reincarnation, has

tremendous appeal to the Japanese.

"I was in Japan and I saw the play in Japanese," said the show's recurrent star, Herschel Bernardi. "The audience started laughing on cue and crying . . . After the show, the Japanese producer said, 'I don't see why the show should be so popular in America. It's so Japanese'."

The reason, Bernardi said, is "the content of this play is about the breakdown of tradition and the family. He (the Japanese producer) said, What's happening in this play is happening today in Japan'

The show also has attracted new audiences from New York to the Pantages Theater in Los Angeles, where Bernardi bows out June 20 to undergo rest and therapy for a back problem. Afterward, he said, he may develop a one-man show under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution.

He said he was persuaded to do the revival because the original director, Jerome Robbins, was going to stage it. Bernardi, who took over the role on Broadway from Zero Mostel, had never worked

"This is not a re-creation, it's a restitution," he said. "We have new insights, we're older."

One significant difference that's developed in the past 15 years is that the show is now advertised on television and radio as well as newspapers.

"We have opened up a new audience to live theater," said Bernardi, wearing a burnoose as he

Fireworks funding sought in Laguna

Most everyone agreed there should be an organized fireworks display in Laguna Beach this Fourth of July

Some argued it would be a deterrent to crime and reduce injuries related to discharge of illegal fireworks. Others said it was a fair exchange for the city's recently enacted ban on discharge of pyrotechnics on the city's beaches.

One citizen even argued that it's Laguna's "patriotic responsibility" to set off fireworks.

But the bottom line, after more than a half hour of discussion before the City Council, was who is going to pick up the tab for a pyrotechnic display.

Last year the City Council enacted an ordinance that makes the discharging of fireworks even the so-called "safe and sane" brands — illegal.

A constructive alternative, the council said at that time, would be a professionally operated pyrotechnics display, probably at Main Beach Park.

But a study conducted by Fire Chief Ron Adams showed that even a modest show would cost between $3,500 and $5,000.

And a wham-bam half-hour show loaded with rockets red glare would cost $12,000 to $18,-000.

Community association leaders said Tuesday they don't have the resources to fund a display, despite arguments that the organized show would be a deterrent to crime, and probably save a few eyes and limbs.

Not to mention the annual overtime expense for police and fire crews, who last year alone, extinguished three structure fires, a grass fire and responded to 32 emergencies during the Councilman Bob Gentry suggested the city might provide some funds - perhaps $2,500 toward a show this year, and hope civic groups would pick up the rest of the tab.

He said the show would be a

"If it saves an eye, or a young child's hand, it's worth it," Gentry said.

But Lagunan Dallas Anderson argued the money could be put to better use, adding the city's emphasis should be on enforcing its new law and preventing the dangerous discharge of fireworks on city streets.

In the end, the council directed City Manager Ken Frank to check with community groups to see if there is support for funding an annual show

And they asked the fire chief to make tentative plans to hire pyrotechnic experts for the. Fourth.

Just in case money for the display is forthcoming.

By STEVE MITCHELL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Former Orange County supervisor Alton Allen thought his good friend Eugen Maier-Krieg deserved something special for the 15-foot monument he created for the city of Anaheim.

After all, Allen reasoned, visitors to Pearson Park in Anaheim's downtown have enjoyed the stone statue of Madame Helena Modjeska for nearly 47 years.

Maier-Krieg of Laguna Beach created the statue of the great Polish-born tragedienne in 1935 with funds provided by the federal Works Progress Administration.

The monument was dedicated that September with the usual hoopla — an eight-piece concert orchestra and a lot of important dignitaries saying nice things about the statue and, of course, the unveiling.

Alton Allen attended that ceremony nearly a half century ago with his artist friend.

"They didn't give him any kind of a citation at the time," Allen recalls. "Furthermore, his name has never appeared on the monument." Allen thought the oversight should be corrected. He called Anaheim officials and offered to pay for a plaque to adorn the statue if the city would sponsor another

Jury backs Sycamore Hills defendants in harassment case

By DAVID KUTZMANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury has ruled that six leading Laguna Beach citizens are not entitled to $175,000 from the former owners of Sycamore Hills, who were accused of malicious prosecution for filing a $28 million lawsuit eight years ago against 43 residents

Claremont attorney John Mc-Carthy, who represented the six Laguna residents, said his clients are considering an appeal.

The six-man, six-woman jury returned with its verdict in the case earlier this week after Mc-Carthy had asked the panel for $175,000 in general damages and unspecified punitive damages.

The jury, however, voted 9-3 in favor of defendants Rancho Palos Verdes Corp. and its parent companies, Great Lakes Properties Inc. and Great Lakes Carbon Corp. of New York

The companies had filed the $28 million lawsuit in 1974 alleging that the 43 Laguna citizens had participated in an alleged conspiracy through political ac-tion to deny the firms' rights to develop Sycamore Hills.

Six of those residents then sued the property owners, accusing them of unlawful haras-

The six who sued are Arnold Hano, writer and former chairman of Village Laguna; Bea Whittlesey, a longtime environmentalist; attorney Ralph Benson, now a resident of San Francisco; Michael Schley, former city board of adjustment member: Victor Bellerue, husband of Laguna Mayor Sally Bellerue, and Paul Egly, a retired Los Angeles County Superior Court judge and Greenbelt member.

McCarthy had argued that the only purpose of the 1974 lawsuit was to silence and intimidate critics of the company's development plans.

Attorneys for Rancho Palos Verdes, however, said that lawyers for the companies honestly believed they had a good case in 1974, when the legal action was filed. It was later dismissed.

School budget OK due?

Laguna Beach Unified School District trustees will be asked to approve a preliminary $6.9 million spending package when they meet tonight

The inch-thick budget for 1982-83 shows employee salaries taking up the bulk of expenses in the four-school district

Teacher salaries of $2.9 million are included in the preliminary document, with classified employees taking another $1.09 million. Employee benefits total

The district anticipates receiving about $3.15 million in state funds next year, based on an es-timated student enrollment of 2,-

And while the district is currently overstaffed, a district spokesman says no layoffs are anticipated.

Clyde Lovelady, the district's business manager, said teachers who retire, resign or seek a leave of absence won't be replaced.

The preliminary budget includes no major capital improvement items for next year.

And it doesn't take into account salary increases for teachers, counselors and classified employees.

Lovelady said he anticipates the district will take in $71,153 more than it spends, plus a 3 percent reserve account.

He said that $71,153 could go toward salary increases, which would amount to less than a 2 percent hike for all employees.

In addition, the district has received $100,000 from the Laguna Beach Education Foundation, which could add another 2 percent to employee salaries.

Teachers are negotiating for a salary increase that would be the average of salaries paid teachers in all 12 unified school districts in Orange County (See SCHOOL, Page A2)

Pot grandma out on bail

HOUSTON (AP) - An 82-year-old grandmother charged with marijuana possession says an arresting officer has promised to give her "something even better" to ease the pain in her stiff joints.

Laura Ethel Clark, grandmo-ther of five, was freed on a $1,-000 bond Wednesday after narcotics officers found plants bearing nine pounds of the illegal weed in her backyard.

Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the British position ruled out a diplomatic solution, for the moment. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons in London that Britain accepted U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's proposals for settling the conflict as a "framework" for future talks, but said Britain will "continue with our military activities.'

Perez de Cuellar refused to make public his peace plan, but informed sources said it included a cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the Falklands area and appointment of a U.N. administrator for the islands while negotiations resume to determine their future. The plan reportedly takes no position on the thorny sovereignty issue.

S. Laguna project cut urged

By JERRY HERTENSTEIN Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A recommendation to cut in half the density of a housing development in South Laguna Hobo Canyon - has won praise from residents of the coastal community

But at least one South Laguna civic leader sees the latest pro-posal as a possible political move and the developer of the project is hopeful a compromise can be

Fifth District Supervisor Tom Riley had a letter read at Wednesday night's meeting with the South Laguna Specific plan committee meeting recommending the 350-acre project be trimmed from 500 to 250 housing units. Peter Herman, aide to Riley, read the letter

Riley cited "sensitivity to the environment" and concerns with traffic on Pacific Coast Highway as reasons for his proposal.

The Hobo Canyon property, for which a general plan amendment was approved in 1979, is located on the northeast side of Pacific Coast Highway across from Blue Lagoon

Riley said proposed development of the canyon area, which would mean landfills as much as 50 feet deep in some spots, was one of his major concerns for proposing the cutback. He urges that only the mouth of the canyon and ridge above Aliso Creek be developed.

"There was considerable discontent in the community and concern over traffic" which also persuaded Riley to change his view on the project, according to Herman.

Hugh Wilkins, president of the South Laguna Civic Association, greeted the announcement with enthusiasm but said "we would like to see it eliminated all toge-(See HOBO, Page A2)

FALKLAND ISLANDS

Britain said Wednesday it was working with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on a plan from Perez de Cuellar that included an early cease-fire and withdrawal. But the ideas were never spelled out and the latest statements clearly indicated more fighting was likely over the South Atlantic islands that Argentina seized from Britain on

"It would be too easy to say no military activities during negotiations," Mrs. Thatcher said. "What would happen? We should be hamstrung. "That would be a very evident ploy to keep them in possession of their ill-gotten gains. We are right to be very, very wary of it," she said.

Meanwhile, no new military action was reported in the South Atlantic battle zone Wednesday.

Argentina drew the last blood Tuesday when one of its planes fired a missile that set fire to the British destroyer Sheffield, forcing its crew to abandon ship, and a British Harrier jet fighter was shot down and the pilot killed in an attack on one of the Falkland airstrips.

The hostile hemispheric reaction to the U.S. move Friday has raised doubts about American ability to muster broad-based support for its Central American policies

And the crisis has left the United States more politically isolated from its Latin neighbors than at any time in recent memory as virtually all governments from the region, spanning the political spectrum, have aligned themselves with the Argentine cause.

Moreover, what appeared to be a new era in U.S-Argentine relations a few weeks ago has given way to one of almost total alienation.

In a protest note delivered to U.S. authorities Sunday, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez predicted that U.S. support for Britain will leave 'lasting scars" on relations between the two countries.

United States would be diminished if the U.N. mediation effort ends the fighting and leads to a negotiated settlement. U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday night both Britain and Argentina indicated interest in his proposals.

One immediate beneficiary of the U.S. estrangement with Argentina is Nicaragua. Before the crisis over the Falkland Islands, the United States looked to Argentina as an ally in bringing pressure against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

According to reports this year, the administration cited Argentina for a possible role in a covert operation aimed at disrupting alleged Nicaraguan arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Sal-

Any such cooperation now would seem highly unlikely, particularly in view of the enthusiastic backing Nicaragua has shown for Argentina since the early days of the crisis.

The Falklands debate also may have strained relations between the United States and Venezuela, an American ally in Central America

At an OAS foreign ministers meeting here last week, Venezuela captained a successful effort to delete from a proposed resolution a laudatory reference to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s mediation effort.

Pet lovers should rally to aid shelter

It took a little budget shuf-fling, but the Laguna Beach City Council Tuesday found a way to keep the city's animal shelter open to the public seven days a week.

Last month, the city closed the shelter to the public on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, citing budget constraints and strict regulations on cleanliness imposed recently by the county.

But animal lovers argued the city cannot adequately serve animal owners by closing shelter doors on those two days.

Based on the concerns expressed by a group calling itself the Laguna Beach Dog Owners Guild (DOG), city officials took another look at the budget.

What they found was about $1,000 in the police overtime account that was unspent - just enough to cover salaries at the shelter and enable the facility to remain open on those two days.

The $1,026 from the police account will keep the doors open daily through the end of June, when the council will consider next year's budget.

That budget proposal includes funding for full-time shelter hours through October, when the facility could go back to a five-day-aweek operation for the public.

Before that time, the City Council will have to decide whether to spend another $3,000 to $4,000 to keep the facility open daily through next year.

The animal shelter, with the help of volunteers, is a successful and humane operation in Laguna Funds should be found to keep it a success, available to the public seven days a week.

Maybe the animal lovers could meet the council half way by marshaling more volunteer

Budget future hazy

On paper, Laguna Beach's budget for next year shows more money coming in than going out.

In reality, there are uncertainties that could change the picture, according to city officials.

Income to the city for fiscal 1982-83 is shown as about $7.9 million, and City Manager Ken Frank's spending package calls for the expenditure of $7.79 million.

With a cost-of-living increase for employees of 9 percent, the city would have an ending balance of more than $800,000.

But the city's financial picture is difficult to assess, with several factors tending to make things a bit fuzzy

The city could lose as much as $254,000 in state allocations to cities under Gov. Brown's proposed budget. Added to that uncertainty is the outcome of two initiatives on the June ballot that would also adversely affect income

 Federal revenue sharing might not be continued, meaning the city would lose an estimated $144,000 in revenues.

Capital improvements long neglected in town should be undertaken, Frank says.

In addition, the slump in housing sales affects property tax income to the city, and investment earnings will decline if the interest rate drops as expected.

But the city's proposed budget shows no layoffs of employees, with the exception of a police officer position that will be eliminated as a federal safety grant runs out.

The City Council will be reviewing the proposed budget later this month, and it could be adopted by mid-June.

Frank warns that it could be the end of summer before the city has a firm idea about what money will be available. In short, everyone should be ready to make ad-

Fireworks priority low

The Laguna Beach City Council last year enacted an ordinance prohibiting the use of fireworks by private citizens on the Fourth of July.

The new law took effect after a rash of fireworks-related incidents in the Art Colony last year.

But in approving the fire-works ban, the City Council ordered city officials to study whether the city should sponsor and

What it all comes down to is pay for a pyrotechnics display on

The results of that research show an organized fireworks show, put on by professionals, would cost between $8,000 and

With the city facing financial uncertainties in the next year, the City Council has suggested that community organizations and civic groups step into the breach if there is to to be a fireworks display this summer in Laguna.

That idea makes a lot of

'IS THERE A DOCTOR OF ECONOMICS IN THE HOUSE?

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive, his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices, a euphemism for the year around campaign headquarters maintained by each member in his district, cutting the outrageous payroll with its more than 2,200 staff workers whose main function is furnishing of autos and unlimited supplies of gasoline for each member.

It is true that the changes brought about by the court ruling on the oneman, one-vote issue have weakened the check and balance of the two-house system. It is not true that it has been eliminated.

On the same day that Keene was expounding to the press on his plan. As-sembly Speaker Willie Brown told the press the Assembly would not pass any new tax bills this session because the members didn't believe the Senate would agree, thus demonstrating that the checks and balances of the two house system is alive and working.

each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed.

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year.

Foundations can help rescue schools

In a recent article, a UC law professor, John Coons, and our state Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. Wilson Riles bemoan the sprouting phenomenon of educational foundations. They discredit the formation of these foundations as perpetrators of inequality in the funding of the public educational

It is my opinion that foundations are not a threat in any way to public education as Mr. Riles suggests, but rather

symptomatic of a society that is fed up with being told that they can't provide their children with whatever level of public education they deem adequate in their own community after they have paid the bills to educate everybody else's child in the public school system. Many of the same voices that wring their hands and cry for "equal" funding of the public educational system are the same people who pay little, if any, of the taxes

that provide for that funding. It seems to me that Coons and Riles are much more interested in pulling down the educational level of the socalled affluent segments of our society, rather than bringing the less affluent segments up to a predetermined level of educational competency. What they propose is nothing less than a headlong rush to educational mediocrity. And this doesn't appear to bother them in the slightest as long as everyone is "equal" at the lowest possible common denominator of educational competence.

FORTUNATELY, an ever-increasing majority of people in this state refuse to succumb to this call for public educational mediocrity. And thus we are witnessing an explosion in the formation of the public school foundations. What the foundations can contribute isn't a drop in the bucket in comparison to the total budget. At $500,000 it represents about 1 percent of our local Newport-Mesa District's budget. But on the other hand, this sum equates to about 20 teachers salaries. And 20 teachers can go a long way to teaching remedial reading, etc., or whatever a particular district thinks it is being deprived of by the state's unfair "equalizing" funding formulas dictated by the court's Serrano-Priest decision.

One very important function that these foundations are performing is to sound the clarion to our citizens that our public educational system is in danger of succumbing to the social engineering excesses of our liberal state judicial system; and unless the people stand up and demand of their legislators that something be done about it, we will witness the complete emasculation of our public educational system as we know it well before the end of this decade.

Foundations are in no way the ultimate answer to the plight of our public school system. They do, however, serve as a temporary life-saving tourniquet that is being urgently applied to our hemorrhaging public school system whose financial life-blood is being bled white by the court-imposed sanctions of the Serrano-Priest decision.

The ultimate cure for the peril that we now find our public education system in is through public supported legislation that will set a predetermined level of excellence in public education for all of our public schools. At the same time, this legislation should encourage communities to exceed this predetermined level of educational excellence through their own additional financial sacrifices if they are willing and able to do so

Backing baffles

To the Editor:

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively.

On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions.

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud

To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud. I encountered it last year when I was hospitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an ssue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A medical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what

He charged Medicare $695 for a procedure (exactly) that I had done a few months ago for $80 and couldn't understand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration

I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up.

Bolsa Chica plan

To the Editor:

While the text of your April 23 article, "Coast Unit Rejects Bolsa Chica Plan, was generally accurate, the headline, which suggests that the Coastal Commission denied approval of the Orange County Bolsa Chica land use plan, was in

The fact is that the Coastal Commission ruled for another hearing to once again look at the plan. This will be scheduled sometime between June 15-18. In the interim, the commission staff is to review scientific evidence introduced by a team of nationally recognized scientists commissioned by Signal Landmark, private owner of most of the Bolsa Chica property. The scientists show that 453 acres of the 1,600-acre parcel, including the existing 200-acre ecological reserve, is wetlands. This is a contradiction to the Department of Fish and Game report which states that 1,000 acres is wetlands

In the meantime, the Coastal Commission staff is to be in communication with Orange County planners to discuss differences. A Special Area Management Process (SAMP) — planning involving a mix of federal and state governmental agencies and concerned citizen groups is scheduled to meet at county offices on

Those who have communicated support for the worthwhile well-thoughtout county plan should be encouraged to continue their efforts.

Irvine Quorum taps Nakaoka, Wiener

By GLENN SCOTT Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Irvine Quorum, a small but hardy policical group, has endorsed John Nakaoka and Barbara Wiener in the June 8 city council election.

The group, which claims to stand for less government and less "social experimentation," didn't endorse the only incumbent in the six-person race, Larry Agran.

Alan Snodgrass, president of the group, said members view Agran as an elected official who tends to rely on government programs to solve local problems rather than turning to private enterprise or volunteers.

That position is not popular with Irvine Quorum, which had about 20 of its estimated 60 members at Tuesday's endorsement session.

Agran disagrees. He said his record shows prudence in spending and taxing while he was the official who went to bat for small businesses when Irvine Company officials began reviewing leasing policies in their shopping centers.

The Irvine Quorum endorsements differ from recent recommendations from another local political group, Irvine Tomorrow, which endorsed Agran and candidate Edward Dornan.

Irvine Tomorrow generally backs measures to protect the city's environment.

The other candidates in the council race are William Pozzi and Marjorie Keiser, Pozzi, a Libertarian, received some consideration from Irvine Quorum members, Snodgrass said, but hasn't contributed as much service to the community as Mrs. Wiener or Nakaoka, who is a trustee of the Irvine Unified School District.

Among the five candidates for the Irvine Ranch Water District, quorum members endorsed appointed incumbent Betty Olson and challengers Frank Hurd and Orville Reinhardt.

Two incumbents, Peer Swan and Ray Auerbach, weren't endorsed. In their case, Snodgrass said it was less a case of philosophy as much as a case of politicking.

Supporters in the membership who helped Swan win an endorsement four years ago didn't show up at Tuesday's meeting while backers of Hurd and Reinhardt "were there in force," said Snodgrass.

Hurd is a former city planning commissioner and school district trustee. Reinhardt, who was unseated two years ago, is a former chairman of the water district

Dr. Olson, a UCI professor who specializes in water resources, won her support by staging a recent coffee for Irvine Quorum members. Snodgrass said members were impressed by her knowledge and views.

Irvine Quorum traditionally schedules programs on local cable television channel 3 in which endorsed candidates are interviewed and answer telephone calls from viewers. This year, the programs will be on Friday, June 4 and Monday, June 7 — the eve of the election.

Former Orange County supervisor Alton Allen thought his good friend Eugen Maier-Krieg deserved something special for the 15-foot monument he created for

After all, Allen reasoned, visitors to Pearson Park in Anaheim's downtown have enjoyed the stone statue of Madame Helena Modjeska for nearly 47 years.

Maier-Krieg of Laguna Beach created the statue of the great Polish-born tragedienne in 1935 with funds provided by the federal Works Progress Administration.

The monument was dedicated that September with the usual hoopla — an eight-piece concert orchestra and a lot of important dignitaries saying nice things about the statue and, of course, the unveiling.

Alton Allen attended that ceremony nearly a half century ago with his artist friend.

"They didn't give him any kind of a citation at the time," Allen recalls. "Furthermore, his name has never appeared on the monument."

Allen thought the oversight should be corrected. He called Anaheim officials and offered to pay for a (See MONUMENT, Page A2)

Second hotel design eyed

Irvine Co. submits preliminary plans for new Hilton

Construction has started on one major new hotel in Irvine and city planners are studying designs recently submitted for a second.

The Irvine Company has turned in its preliminary designs for a new Hilton Hotel planned for 15 acres at the southeast corner of Main Street and Jamboree Road.

The $65 million hotel is to have 550 rooms and will be part of a larger, 48-acre site also including some retail shops, research and development firms and professional offices.

The hotel will rise just across the San Diego Freeway from the new Marriott Hotel under construction on the west side of the thoroughfare at Von Karman Avenue

Marriott officials last month applied for the final $18.8 million phase of their city building permit for a 17-story, 504-room high-rise hotel already under construction. It is expected to be completed in September 1983.

The two new hotels will join a list of prestigious hotels already existing in the region, which includes the South Coast Plaza, Registry, Aiporter Inn, Sheraton-Newport, the Newporter and the Marriott at Newport Center.

Irvine Company spokesman Dan Carlsson said the number of major hotels hasn't changed the demand that still continues for more high-quality hotels.

"We have done studies on the projected demand for hotels, especially for the Main and Jamboree site," said Carlsson, "and those studies show without question that the demand is already there."

Those remarks are music to the ears of Irvine city officials, who envision new bed tax revenue from the big hotels. Assistant City Manager Paul Brady Jr. said analysts project that the new Marriott and Hilton will produce about $400,000 a year in new bed tax, or transient occupancy taxes.

Those funds initially were counted on to finance a construction loan for a new animal shelter and corporation yard on Sand Canyon Road. Because the (See HOTEL, Page A2)

Reagan OKs budget compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today a compromise budget plan drafted by Senate Republicans and endorsed by the White House "can put our country firmly on the road to economic prosperity" if congressional Democrats cooperate.

At a question-and-answer session with reporters in the White House Rose Garden, Reagan said the new budget will "continue to protect" the basic benefits of Social Security recipients. The compromise budget plan was said to include $40 billion in unspecified Social Security cuts and tax increases.

Reagan was questioned on that point, but did not explain how the reductions could be obtained without lowering benefits. He did say that the savings "could come from a restructuring of the program," but didn't explain that in detail.

The president said the answer on Social Security would come ultimately from a bipartisan commission studying the system. The commission is expected to report by the end of the year.

The president said the spending plan approved Wednesday by the Senate Budget Committee would "continue to bring down the growth in federal spending markets by sharply reducing projected deficits in the years beyond . . . . It will preserve our commitment to a stronger defense."

The vote was 11-9 with all the "yes" votes coming from Republicans — including conservatives who cited assurances that there would be no change in the 10 percent personal income tax cut scheduled for July 1983

Frizzelle's campaign investigated

Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle, R-Costa Mesa, said today he has been asked by the state Fair Political Practices Commission to provide additional information on campaign expenses called into question by a political opponent.

"On a couple of things, they called for points of clarification," said Frizzelle, who is being challenged by Irvine Mayor David Sills for the Republican nomination in the reapportioned 69th Assembly district.

Frizzelle said his campaign treasurer, Ginny Gyorkos, of Huntington Beach, will be providing the additional information sought by the FPPC.

Sills recently accused Frizzelle of Violating state campaign reporting laws by not itemizing certain campaign committee expenses, including payments on a bank credit card and reimbursements to Frizzelle from the committee.

State law requires that any amount greater than $100 be itemized. Several entries on campaign expense forms submitted on Frizzelle's behalf contained unitemized amounts ranging from a few hundred to several thousands of dollars.

Sills called for an investigation into the matter by the FPPC, a state watchdog agency.

John Meade, a special assistant to the commission, declined to confirm or deny today that further information had been asked of Frizzelle.

Meade, however, said it was rather routine for further information to be sought so that a determination can be made on whether to conduct a full-scale investigation into any claims of misreporting.

U.S. losing in Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. backing for Britain in the Falklands crisis is producing a backlash in Latin America that could hamper American efforts to resist communist expansionism in Central America.

The hostile hemispheric reaction to the U.S. move Friday has raised doubts about American ability to muster broad-based support for its Central American

And the crisis has left the United States more politically isolated from its Latin neighbors than at any time in recent memory as virtually all governments from the region, spanning the political spectrum, have aligned themselves with the Argentine cause.

Moreover, what appeared to be a new era in U.S-Argentine relations a few weeks ago has given way to one of almost total alienation.

In a protest note delivered to U.S. authorities Sunday, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez predicted that U.S.

support for Britain will leave 'lasting scars" on relations between the two countries.

But the political cost to the United States would be diminished if the U.N. mediation effort ends the fighting and leads to a negotiated settlement. U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday night both Britain and Argentina indi-

One immediate beneficiary of the U.S. estrangement with Argentina is Nicaragua. Before the crisis over the Falkland Islands, the United States looked to Argentina as an ally in bringing pressure against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

According to reports this year, the administration cited Argentina for a possible role in a covert operation aimed at disrupting alleged Nicaraguan arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

Any such cooperation now would seem highly unlikely, par-ticularly in view of the enthusiastic backing Nicaragua has shown for Argentina since the early days of the crisis.

The Falklands debate also may have strained relations between the United States and Venezuela, an American ally in Central

At an OAS foreign ministers meeting here last week, Venezuela captained a successful effort to delete from a proposed resolution a laudatory reference to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s mediation effort.

His speech was greeted with stony silence by the delegates, who felt it demonstrated U.S. insensitivity to Latin concerns. Some analysts predict a cool Latin response the next time the United States seeks hemispheric support on an issue where Washington feels its security interests are at stake.

Lagunans lose Sycamore suit Hano, writer and tormer chair-

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An Orange County Superior Court jury has ruled that six leading Laguna Beach citizens are not entitled to $175,000 from the former owners of Sycamore Hills, who were accused of malicious prosecution for filing a $28 million lawsuit eight years ago against 43 residents.

Claremont attorney John Mc-Carthy, who represented the six Laguna residents, said his clients are considering an appeal

The six-man, six-woman jury returned with its verdict in the case earlier this week after Mc-Carthy had asked the panel for $175,000 in general damages and unspecified punitive damages.

The jury, however, voted 9-3 in favor of defendants Rancho Palos Verdes Corp. and its parent companies, Great Lakes Properties Inc. and Great Lakes Carbon Corp. of New York. The companies had filed the $28 million lawsuit in 1974 alleng that the 43 Laguna citizens had participated in an alleged conspiracy through political action to deny the firms' rights to develop Sycamore Hills.

No valid cause for closed salary meet

A recent decision to implement a new salary system for administrators in the Irvine Unified School District isn't as significant as the way the school board chose

Board members last week adjourned to a closed executive session to discuss the implications of abandoning a merit pool system for a more conventional salary schedule. Trustees voted 3-2 to make the change.

One of the dissenters, Gordon Getchel, said after the session that he objected to the closed hearing. He claimed that retreating to the private discussion was not proper under the state's Ralph Brown Act, which forbids closed meetings except in a few exceptions, including sensitive personnel issues. Getchel said the law didn't apply in this case because "no discussion about any one individual was held at all.'

Getchel appears to be correct. The intent of the Brown Act is to require elected officials to discuss and arrive at policy decisions in public, where their actions can be

The school board fell victim to the curious pressures that afflict so many elected bodies when it comes time to talk salaries. It is a touchy issue and they withdraw. The Brown Act generally allows private discussions about hiring and firing and has been cited when boards privately plot strategies for negotiating new labor contracts with employee groups.

Neither case existed here. This was an issue in which the board was faced with changing a policy on how to grant salary increases. The discussion and vote should have been conducted in public, even if it meant that trustees would take some heat from unhappy taxpayer groups or, more likely, administrators.

The new policy means principals, assistant principals, psychologists, program coordinators and directors will receive 1 percent raises on the average.

It is entirely likely that the raises are in order. Thus, the secrecy seems even more unneces-

hear the president of the Taubman Company assure Irvine City Council members recently that the long-awaited Irvine Center shopping mall probably will be built

All of this has been heard before. In fact, frequent claims in past years that the center is imminent have bred a certain skepticism among folks in Irvine.

Bob Larsen, president of the shopping mall development firm did his best to dispel the skepticism by suggesting that increased urbanization of the Irvine area has made the center even more promising than in the past. Where it was once conceived as a suburban location, now it is an urban center. To retailers, that means a bigger, more affluent market.

It certainly was no surprise to the still-undeveloped triangle formed by the intersecting San Diego, Santa Ana and Laguna freeways gives it the potential for a magnificent layout. Given decent economic conditions, he said, construction of the first phase (75 percent of the mall) will begin in late 1983 or early 1984.

For now, even the skeptics would be better advised to focus on the key elements of the Irvine Center plan. Will, for example, large-scale development of adjacent office buildings overload road capacities? Can the freeways be saved from congestion?

Those who chide developers for tardiness might be sorry if they allow the proposal to be rushed through approval processes. It is better to be meticulous now, even at the cost of more de-Larsen noted once again lays, than to be mired in traffic

Children's home dilemma

A non-profit group in Orange County wants to offer a homelife to mentally retarded children in

It even has the money to see its dreams through. The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has promised up to $750,000 in loans to build three specially designed homes.

But after searching for sites for nearly two years, the Sutton Foundation can't find a builder who will construct the special houses that are required.

The loan agreement specifies new construction and the Sutton Foundation has until May 10 to identify three sites for development. After that date, Sutton officials can try for a time extension or request that their loan agreement allow for the modification of existing homes to house two trained workers and six unrelated children.

The Irvine Company, the principal property owner, says builders are unwilling to take on the "burden" of constructing special units in their developments.

Land that could qualify already had been committed to builders before Sutton's request. And the company says it has no new vacant land ready for home

The Irvine Company is negotiating with one developer interested in the project, but time is growing short. Another time extension would be the third for the Sutton Foundation.

The community as well as the builders should embrace the concept of raising developmentally disabled people outside of institutions. Other communities have embarked on similar programs.

Irvine prides itself as being a planned community. If the Sutton Foundation loses its HUD loan or goes elsewhere in search of housing, the city will remain well planned, but hardly a model com-

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive," his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices,

Under the current legislative plan each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year.

symptomatic of a society that is fed up with being told that they can't provide their children with whatever level of public education they deem adequate in their own community after they have paid the bills to educate everybody else's child in the public school system. Many of the same voices that wring their hands and cry for "equal" funding of the public educational system are the same people who pay little, if any, of the taxes

that provide for that funding. It seems to me that Coons and Riles are much more interested in pulling down the educational level of the socalled affluent segments of our society, rather than bringing the less affluent segments up to a predetermined level of educational competency. What they propose is nothing less than a headlong rush to educational mediocrity. And this doesn't appear to bother them in the slightest as long as everyone is "equal" at the lowest possible common denominator of educational competence

FORTUNATELY, an ever-increasing majority of people in this state refuse to succumb to this call for public educational mediocrity. And thus we are witnessing an explosion in the formation of the public school foundations. What the foundations can contribute isn't a drop in the bucket in comparison to the total budget. At $500,000 it represents about 1 percent of our local Newport-Mesa District's budget. But on the other hand, this sum equates to about 20 teachers' salaries. And 20 teachers can go a long way to teaching remedial reading, etc., or whatever a particular district thinks it is being deprived of by the state's unfair "equalizing" funding formulas dictated by the court's Serrano-Priest decision.

One very important function that these foundations are performing is to sound the clarion to our citizens that our public educational system is in danger of succumbing to the social engineering excesses of our liberal state judicial system; and unless the people stand up and demand of their legislators that something be done about it, we will witness the complete emasculation of our public educational system as we know it well before the end of this decade.

Foundations are in no way the ulti-mate answer to the plight of our public school system. They do, however, serve as a temporary life-saving tourniquet that is being urgently applied to our hemorrhaging public school system whose financial life-blood is being bled the court-imposed sanctions of white b the Serrano-Priest decision.

The ultimate cure for the peril that we now find our public education system in is through public supported legislation that will set a predetermined level of excellence in public education for all of our public schools. At the same time, this legislation should encourage communities to exceed this predetermined level of educational excellence through their own additional financial sacrifices if they are willing and able to do so

Backing baffles

To the Editor:

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively. On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud

To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud. I encountered it last year when I was hos-pitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an issue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A medical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time I went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what Medicare pays.

Leftith from readers are welcome. The right to condense latters to its space or eliminate libet is reserved. Letters of 300 words or less will be given preference. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be mithheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published. Letters may be telephoned to $42-608. Name and phone number of the contributor must be given for verification purposes.

He charged Medicare $695 for a procedure (exactly) that I had done a few months ago for $80 and couldn't understand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration.

I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up. JANE M. KERR

Bolsa Chica plan

To the Editor:

While the text of your April 23 article, "Coast Unit Rejects Bolsa Chica Plan," was generally accurate, the headline, which suggests that the Coastal Commission denied approval of the Orange County Bolsa Chica land use plan, was in

The fact is that the Coastal Commission ruled for another hearing to once again look at the plan. This will be scheduled sometime between June 15-18. In the interim, the commission staff is to review scientific evidence introduced by a team of nationally recognized scientists commissioned by Signal Landmark, private owner of most of the Bolsa Chica property. The scientists show that 453 acres of the 1,600-acre parcel, including the existing 200-acre ecological reserve, is wetlands. This is a contradiction to the Department of Fish and Game report which states that 1,000 acres is wetlands.

In the meantime, the Coastal Commission staff is to be in communication with Orange County planners to discuss differences. A Special Area Management Process (SAMP) — planning involving a mix of federal and state governmental agencies and concerned citizen groups is scheduled to meet at county offices on May 10.

Those who have communicated support for the worthwhile well-thoughtout county plan should be encouraged to continue their efforts.

Advice on the unpleasant task of firing people

With the unemployment rate soaring-in the nation, the newspapers are filled with sad stories about men and women who have just lost their jobs. Not surprisingly, readers often feel sympathy toward these people who have been fi-

No one seems to feel any sympathy toward the people who are doing the firing, though — the bosses.

AT LEAST, no one you have heard of does. But there is one fellow who specializes in teaching executives how to fire their employees. His name is James E. Challenger, and he is president of Challenger, Gray and Christmas, Inc. The firm deals in something called outplace-ment, which means it is hired by companies to help find new jobs for people those companies have fired.

Challenger, 56, discovered that executives of those companies were coming to him with a dilemma. They had the unpleasant task of firing their workers, but they weren't sure how to do it. No one teaches courses on how to fire people.

So Challenger started dispensing how-to-fire advice. He says that no one really enjoys firing another human being, but that it's a necessary task. I talked to him about all this, and here are his guidelines for how an executive

Just do it in your office."

3. "The best time to fire someone is on should fire a subordinate.

1. "Do it quickly. You don't want to sit there and go through how you went about making the decision. There's no use arguing. If you say he's no good, he'll tell you he's good. If you say he's not needed, he'll say he's needed. By the time you've decided to fire a person, the two of you probably have nothing to say to each other anymore anyway. So just get it done."

2. "Do it in a place where you're in control. Which means your office. If you go to his office to do it, then he's behind the desk and he's in control. If you do it outside the building at a restaurant, he may break down during the meal. And then there are the questions: Do you do it at the beginning of the meal? Do you finish the meal after you've fired him?

a Friday. That way you won't start a new week off having him sitting there waiting for it to happen. And you don't have to sit and worry about it all weekend. We had one man who fired an employee on Christmas Eve because the boss didn't want to ruin his own Christmas by worrying about what he was going to have to do."

4. "THE BEST TIME of the day to fire someone is 4 p.m. That way he can leave work with the rest of the people. Plus, he won't have the opportunity to go out to lunch and tell other people at the company what a bad guy you are."

5. "Find out what he has that belongs to the company. Credit cards, keys, reports — you've got to get all of them back before he leaves. The way to accomplish this is to assign someone to help him pack his stuff. Have the person look for property that belongs to the company.'

6. "Don't offer him an office that he can use to look for a new job. Many companies do this, and it's wrong. It doesn't cut the cord. As long as the person is coming into your building every day, he still holds out the hope that you'll admit you made a mistake, and that you'll rehire him. It's best to make the separation complete.'

7. "Don't tell his co-workers that he's leaving. They're going to know anyway, but if you tell them directly they'll want an explanation from you, and there's no reason you have to provide an explanation to your other employees. Having to explain why you fired a person can make you look weak.

8. "Do it youself. If you give the job of firing someone to your assistant, somewhere down the line the person you've fired is going to demand to talk to you anyway. So you're going to end up face-to-face with him in the end. Save time and do it yourself in the first place."

9. "SIT DOWN. Make the person you're firing sit down. If he's towering over you, then he's psychologically in control. If you're both standing up, it's awkward - plus he may break down emotionally when you fire him, so it's better if he's seated. If he cries, it's easier for him if he's sitting down. We had one case when two people were standing up, and the person who got fired punched his employer. This is not good.

"Don't bolster your courage with a couple of drinks before you fire someo-ne. The drinks will tend to make you more garrulous, and the firing will take longer. You think it makes you less tense, but it actually lengthens the termination procedure, and that's one thing you don't want.'

11. "DON'T TALK to his family. You may be tempted to break the news to the fired man's wife, but that's not your responsibility. It may seem humane to tell the wife to be nice to the man when he comes home that night. But you can't do that. It sounds as if you're apologizing, and what are you gaining? Stay out of

Challenger said that he realizes many people may find it cold-blooded: The idea of a man who actually tries to make it easier for bosses to fire their workers.

"But someone has to give these executives advice," he said. "No one likes to fire anyone; you're playing with someone's whole life. And since a boss doesn't like the idea of firing someone anyway, the least I can do is help cut down the trauma of the situation and make it as easy on everyone concerned as possible.

Liz, Marines, snakes Reporters pick Washington superlatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington's best restaurant is one that serves up rattlesnake and buffalo meat, its finest monument is the little-known Navy-Marine Memorial and its most effective lobbyist works for the National Rifle Association, two journalists say in their book.

And in this political town, when it comes to picking the sexiest Washingtonians, "plump but still gorgeous" Elizabeth Taylor of suburban Middleburg, Va., has to take a back seat to "handsome, rich and charming" Edward M. Kennedy, "the subject of more sexual gossip and speculation than any regiment of Hollywood leading men."

Of course, Miss Taylor no longer qualifies as a Washingtonian — not since her separation last year from her seventh husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., whose estate in Middleburg she no longer shares.

In their book, "Who Runs Washington," Michael Kilian, Washington columnist for the Chicago Tribune, and Arnold

question: Who's on top?

Not, they think, that Washington is really worth the effort.

The capital's modesty is well justified, they write, noting that

in a pestilential swamp, burned by the British and
for decades a ramshackle Southern town noted most for its bawdy houses

bawdy houses KENNEDY and slave markets, a crude hicksville that, until the Ken-nedys came along, lacked even one first-class restaurant . . ." Now, the authors think, Washington has more than one first-class restaurant. As first among them, they list Dominique's, where the meals are "very French, yet light and healthful." Dominique's fell into the news during the Carter administration when an Interior Department environmentalist dispatched a letter noting that a rattlesnake on the menu belonged to an endangered species and shouldn't be there.

As for monuments, Kilian and Sawislak find most to praise in a 1934 memorial to sailors and Marines lost at sea in World War I. They like the way flying seagulls evoke the spirits of the lost men and the danger of the sea. The beloved Lincoln Memorial comes in second.

Ronald Reagan is listed as the most persuasive man in Washington, but when it comes to fulltime lobbyists the authors pick Harlon B. Carter, the National Rifle Association's top gun. The NRA's strength comes in persuading its 1.8 million members to write Congress whenever it begins to doubt that gun ownership is to be equated with "patriotism, nationalism, masculinity, Christianity and invulnerability," they write.

Mother's Day is supposed to be a remembrance of your mother. Big Deal. Right! It is reported in the newspapers, mentioned on T.V. BUT THINK ABOUT IT! What is Mother's Day? And why should you care? You are busy with your own lives — have to work — more important things to do.

Mother's Day is the most PERSONAL and important day in your lives. We celebrate Christmas, Christ's birthday — that's important.

Do you really know what Mother's Day is all about? It celebrates every birth of yourselves!

It's the remembrance of carrying YOU through 9 months in her body and the pain of delivery. But that's just the beginning. Mother's Day is a remembrance of all the problems, joys, help, and what she went through and in fact what she is still going through with you.

Your mother is strength, understanding, banker, band-aider. In other words — the most important of all.

Out of 365 days Mother's Day is the most important day of YOUR LIFE!

DELAYED CEREMONIES — Long-time friends Eugen Maier-Krieg and former Orange County Supervisor Alton Allen stand in front of statue of Madame Helena Modjeska in Anaheim park. Maier-Krieg created the stone statue 47

Artist honored Cited after 47-year delay

By STEVE MITCHELL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Former Orange County supervisor Alton Allen thought his good friend Eugen Maier-Krieg deserved something special for the 15-foot monument he created for

After all, Allen reasoned, visitors to Pearson Park in Anaheim's downtown have enjoyed the stone statue of Madame Helena Modjeska for nearly 47 years

Maier-Krieg of Laguna Beach created the statue of the great Polish-born tragedienne in 1935 with funds provided by the federal Works Progress Administration.

The monument was dedicated that September with the usual hoopla - an eight-piece concert orchestra and a lot of important dignitaries saying nice things about the statue and, of course, the unveiling.

Alton Allen attended that ceremony nearly a half century ago with his artist friend.

They didn't give him any kind of a citation at the time." Allen recalls. "Furthermore, his name has never appeared on the monument."

Allen thought the oversight should be corrected.

He called Anaheim officials and offered to pay for a plaque to adorn the statue if the city would sponsor another

They agreed.

Earlier this week, Anaheim officials met in the treelined park to honor the aging artist.

Allen, who was a county supervisor from 1963 until 1971, said he and his long-time friend had a good chat following the brief ceremonies.

'I wanted the ceremony to coincide with his 85th birthday in January, but the plaque didn't arrive in time,' Allen said.

'He's been my friend for more than 50 years, and I just thought he deserved some recognition."

Diedrich guilt upheld

State Supreme Court upsets appellate acquittal ruling

By DAVID KUTZMANN
of the Dally Pilot Staff
The California Supreme Court upheld the 1979 bribery and conspiracy conviction of former Orange County supervisor Ralph Diedrich today.

The state high court also upheld the conspiracy conviction of Diedrich's one time campaign treasurer, LeRoy Rose.

The supreme court's decision, in effect, overturns the ruling of the state Fourth District Court of Appeal, which in February, 1981, ordered directed verdicts of acquittal for Diedrich and Rose.

Both men had been convicted in San Diego County Superior Court on the bribery and conspiracy counts and were sentenced to one to 14 year state prison

The charges stemmed from allegations that Diedrich and Rose conspired to gain financial consideration from owners of 2,200 acres in Anaheim Hills in return for a favorable supervisorial decision that would permit residential development of the

Assistant District Attorney Michael Capizzi, whose office petitioned the Supreme Court after the lower court reversed the convictions, said this morning that there is a "very real likelihood" that Diedrich and Rose will go to jail.

Santa Ana attorney Keith C Monroe, who represents Die-drich, said he was "shocked" by news of the Supreme Court ruling this morning. Monroe indicated that he would petition the state high court for a rehearing and, if that should fail, perhaps take his case to the U.S. Supreme

Both Monroe and Capizzi said it was their understanding that the state Supreme Court upheld a single bribery count against Diedrich and a conspiracy count against Diedrich and Rose while agreeing with the appeals court to throw out one bribery count against Diedrich alone

Jim Gianulias of Newport Beach, a partner in what has been called the Bristol Plaza, said the City Council's decision Monday to increase allowable heights along the east side of Bristol Street between the San Diego Freeway and Paularino Avenue to 85 feet will allow him to develop a high-rise complex.

For two years the City Council turned down his request to construct high-rise office buildings on a 4-acre site located between the freeway and the closed Montgomery Ward and Co. store. "We've got to go back to the architects," said Gianulias. "We're really starting all over

Following the City Council's denial last December, Gianulias said he was prepared to go ahead and design an office complex within the city's two-story limit.

He said he plans to submit new plans for either two hotel or office buildings within the next 90

In addition to the 85-foot limit, the council also set a 50-foot limit on construction along the west side of Bristol Street between the freeway and Paularino Avenue and voted to maintain a 30-foot limit south of Paularino.

It remains unclear what effect the 85-foot limit will have on California Pacific Properties' plans for an eight-story hotel and four high-rise offices, the highest being 125 feet.

The hostile hemispheric reaction to the U.S. move Friday has raised doubts about American ability to muster broad-based support for its Central American policies.

And the crisis has left the United States more politically isolated from its Latin neighbors than at any time in recent memory as virtually all governments from the region, spanning the political spectrum, have aligned themselves with the Argentine cause.

Britain refuses pullout

By The Associated Press

Britain vowed today to continue military activities to regain the Falkland Islands while accepting U.N. proposals as a framework for future talks. An Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the British position ruled out a diplomatic solution, for the moment.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons in London that Britain accepted U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's proposals for settling the conflict as a "framework" for future talks, but said Britain will "continue with our military activities."

Perez de Cuellar refused to make public his peace plan, but informed sources said it included a cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the Falklands area and appointment of a U.N. administrator for the islands while negotiations resume to determine their future. The plan reportedly takes no position on the thorny sovereignty issue.

Britain said Wednesday it was working with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on a plan from Perez de Cuellar that included an early cease-fire and withdrawal. But the ideas were never spelled out and the latest statements clearly indicated more fighting was likely over the South Atlantic islands that Argentina seized from Britain on April 2.

"It would be too easy to say no military activities during negotiations," Mrs. Thatcher said. "What would happen? We should be hamstrung. The people would still remain under the heel of the invader while the Argentines increased their activities on the mainland, increased their supplies and reserves in order to attack us at their will."

But Mrs. Thatcher said it was "likely" that Argentina was seeking a cease-fire without withdrawal of its troops from the is-

Meanwhile, no new military action was reported in the South Atlantic battle zone Wednesday.

Argentina drew the last blood Tuesday when one of its planes fired a missile that set fire to the British destroyer Sheffield forcing its crew to abandon ship, and a British Harrier jet fighter cease-fire with Argentine withdrawal from the islands, a basic

Mesa honors man, woman of the year

Volunteerism was the theme Wednesday afternoon as the Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce honored Norma Hertzog and Harold "Bud" Hohl as Man and Woman of the Year at the Costa Mesa Country Club.

Ms. Hertzog, a councilwoman since 1974 and the city's first woman mayor, was honored for her numerous civic and community activities that included the Orange County League of Cities, United Way, the YMCA and the Family Service Association of Orange County.

Hohl, a former Marine and leader of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was lauded for his work with the Boy Scouts and the Navajo and Hopi Indians.

Speaking about Mrs. Hertzog, John Schade, executive assistant to county Supervisor Thomas Riley, said, "We have found her to be a conscientious, hardworking, dedicated public servant. When she tells you something she tells you something directly. She never lies."

Hank Panian, pres Mesa Consolidated Water District, praised Hohl as "generous and effective." The two award winners also were praised by representatives of the City of Costa Mesa, Sen. John Schmitz, Assemblywoman Marion Bergeson, Congressman Robert Badham and Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle.

Dispute threatens fine college system

tween the Coast Community College District administration and its full-time instructors seems to be growing wider each day

In a campuswide poll, Orange Coast College instructors this week indicated by a large margin that they lack confidence in Chancellor Norman Watson and the district's board of trustees.

The teachers also voiced objections to the manner in which a new Orange Coast College president, Bernard Luskin, was selec-

This vote comes on the heels of another quarrel regarding the district's use of television courses, offered through Coastline College, which Luskin currently heads.

Four Orange Coast College professors questioned the quality of television courses in a letter sent to officials of four-year colleges throughout California.

Officials of the junior college district then demanded that the professors retract their letter and threatened legal action if they

The academic senates of Orange Coast and Golden West College countered by unanimously approving resolutions echoing the concerns voiced by the authors of the telecourse letter.

Emotions are running high on both sides. In some cases, seemingly to the point of paranoia.

With television instruction, the district believes it can reach

An unhealthy schism be- more students (and receive more state funds), with reduced classroom and faculty expenses

The instructors, on the other hand, believe increasing use of television may jeopardize their jobs. They also say they have serious concerns about how well students learn in the telecourses.

Regarding the Luskin appointment, the teachers felt disenfranchised when trustees turned away from the applicants suggested by a screening committee and named Luskin, who had not even applied, to the Orange Coast presidency.

Trustees argued that they are the people elected to make such decisions.

Both camps seem to be standing firm. The district claims the unrest is related to current teacher contract bargaining. The instructors say the trustees have ignored them for too long.

The dispute is diverting attention from the more important question of how to maintain educational quality at a time when state aid to community colleges is being reduced.

The present split between professors and administrators must be closed before it tears the basic fabric of what has been one of the nation's finest community college systems.

To begin with, the contending parties should start communicating with each other in less hys-

Diplomas upgraded

Getting a high school diploma in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District just got tougher.

The school board has decided to increase graduation requirements from 200 to 220 units, effective with September's entering

The new requirements will apply mostly to math and English, two subjects parents and teachers have long complained need more emphasis.

In fact, a group of parents and teachers who served on the school district's Educational Resources Advisory Committee, told trustees that they'd like to see the requirements increased to 230 units.

District officials said it would cost too much to do that right now. They figure the additional 20 units won't cost that much.

But, district officials explained, the dollars would add up fast if the district went along with the committee's recommendation to add 10 units of foreign lan-

Actually, 42 percent of the district's graduating seniors com-pleted 220 or more units last year. The average number of units completed was 219.

There probably will be a few moans and groans from freshmen who were not counting on 220 units, but the increase in requirements is a good idea. And the goal of 230 units shouldn't be abandoned. Stiffer high school requirements will pay off in the long

Council splits difference

It rarely happens that a compromise pleases everyone - more likely no one will be quite happy.

That was the case this week when the Costa Mesa City Council finally acted to break the arbitrary barrier that has kept all high-rise buildings on Bristol Street north of the San Diego Freeway.

North of the freeway, buildings already rise as high as 17 stories. To the south, only the five-story Holiday Inn and one three-story building have been allowed to exceed a 30-foot height limit, principally because of objections to high-rise from residential neighborhoods in the area.

This week, pressed by developers and recognizing the increasing value of land south of the freeway, the council broke the barrier — to a degree.

The height limit along the east side of Bristol Street between the San Diego Freeway and Paularino Avenue will be raised from 30 to 85 feet.

On the west side of Bristol. buildings up to a height of 50 feet will be permitted. But south of Paularino, the existing 30-foot limit will reman.

Developers for California Pacific Properties had sought a 130-foot limit in accordance with their plans for an eight-story hotel and four high-rise office buildings. Now they will have to shave 40 feet off a planned 125-foot buil-

And some residents will have to live with high-rise development

Thus, no one is totally satisfied. That's the way it usually goes with a compromise.

But it should be remembered that, even with the new height limits, most projects still will have to come before the city planners for specific approval.

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive," his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices,

a euphemism for the year around campaign headquarters maintained by each member in his district, cutting the outrageous payroll with its more than 2,200 staff workers whose main function is

partisan politics, and discontinuing the furnishing of autos and unlimited supplies of gasoline for each member.

It is true that the changes brought about by the court ruling on the oneman, one-vote issue have weakened the check and balance of the two-house system. It is not true that it has been eliminated

On the same day that Keene was expounding to the press on his plan. As-sembly Speaker Willie Brown told the press the Assembly would not pass any new tax bills this session because the members didn't believe the Senate would agree, thus demonstrating that the checks and balances of the two house system is alive and working

Under the current legislative plan each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed.

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year.

Foundations can help rescue schools

dent of Public Instruction, Mr. Wilson Riles bemoan the sprouting phenomenon of educational foundations. They discredit the formation of these foundations as perpetrators of inequality in the funding of the public educational symptomatic of a society that is fed up with being told that they can't provide their children with whatever level of public education they deem adequate in their own community after they have paid the bills to educate everybody else's child in the public school system. Many of the same voices that wring their hands and cry for "equal" funding of the public educational system are the same people who pay little, if any, of the taxes that provide for that funding.

It is my opinion that foundations are not a threat in any way to public education as Mr. Riles suggests, but rather

It seems to me that Coons and Riles are much more interested in pulling down the educational level of the socalled affluent segments of our society. rather than bringing the less affluent segments up to a predetermined level of educational competency. What they propose is nothing less than a headlong rush to educational mediocrity. And this doesn't appear to bother them in the slightest as long as everyone is "equal" at the lowest possible common denominator of educational competence.

FORTUNATELY, an ever-increasing majority of people in this state refuse to succumb to this call for public educational mediocrity. And thus we are witnessing an explosion in the formation of the public school foundations. What the foundations can contribute isn't a drop in the bucket in comparison to the total budget. At $500,000 it represents about 1 percent of our local Newport-Mesa District's budget. But on the other hand, this sum equates to about 20 teachers' salaries. And 20 teachers can go a long way to teaching remedial reading, etc., or whatever a particular district thinks it is being deprived of by the state's unfair "equalizing" funding formulas dictated by the court's Serrano-Priest decision.

One very important function that these foundations are performing is to sound the clarion to our citizens that our public educational system is in danger of succumbing to the social engineering excesses of our liberal state judicial system; and unless the people stand up and demand of their legislators that something be done about it, we will witness the complete emasculation of our public educational system as we know it well before the end of this decade.

Foundations are in no way the ulti-mate answer to the plight of our public school system. They do, however, serve as a temporary life-saving tourniquet that is being urgently applied to our In a recent article, a UC law professor, hemorrhaging public school system cedure (exactly) that I had done a few whose financial life-blood is being bled white by the court-imposed sanctions of the Serrano-Priest decision.

The ultimate cure for the peril that we now find our public education system in is through public supported legislation that will set a predetermined level of excellence in public education for all of our public schools. At the same time, this legislation should encourage communities to exceed this predetermined level of educational excellence through their own additional financial sacrifices if they are willing and able to do so.

Backing baffles

To the Editor:

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively.

On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud

To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud. I encountered it last year when I was hospitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an issue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A medical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time I went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what Medicare pays.

He charged Medicare $695 for a promonths ago for $80 and couldn't un derstand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration.

I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up.

Prom souvenir To the Editor:

We believe a response is in order to your headline story of April 23 The souvenir glasses described in your news story were purchased from a supplier who had advertised them as parfait glasses. The intent of the students was to purchase a souvenir glass that could be given to those attending the 1982 prom.

We understand some persons were offended because they perceived the glass and the song title printed on it as a kind of encouragement to drink alcoholic beverages. For that we are sorry. That certainly was not the intent of the Associated Student Body or the school. To the contrary, over the past several years, the school has worked very hard to discourage and prevent the use of alcohol at school activities.

WE SERIOUSLY question the manner in which the Daily Pilot pursued this story as well as their purpose in soliciting and publishing remarks by Mr. Gerondale. The Gerondale family has always had our deepest sympathy in regard to the tragic loss of their daughter, Jill. It is our opinion the Daily Pilot engaged in very irresponsible and insensitive jour-nalism in dealing with this issue. Further, we were amazed this story was selected by the Daily Pilot editors as "front page material.

State Supreme Court upsets appellate acquittal ruling

of the Delty Pilot Staff
The California Supreme Court upheld the 1979 bribery and conspiracy conviction of former Orange County supervisor Ralph Diedrich today.

The state high court also upheld the conspiracy conviction of Diedrich's one time campaign treasurer, LeRoy Rose.

The supreme court's decision, in effect, overturns the ruling of the state Fourth District Court of Appeal, which in February, 1981, ordered directed verdicts of acquittal for Diedrich and Rose.

Both men had been convicted in San Diego County Superior Court on the bribery and conspiracy counts and were sentenced to one to 14 year state prison

The charges stemmed from allegations that Diedrich and Rose conspired to gain financial consideration from owners of 2,200 acres in Anaheim Hills in return for a favorable supervisorial decision that would permit residential development of the

Assistant District Attorney Michael Capizzi, whose office petitioned the Supreme Court after the lower court reversed the convictions, said this morning that there is a "very real likeli-hood" that Diedrich and Rose will go to jail. Santa Ana attorney Keith C. Monroe, who represents Diedrich, said he was "shocked" by news of the Supreme Court ruling this morning. Monroe indicated that he would petition the state high court for a rehearing and, if that should fail, perhaps take his case to the U.S. Supreme

Both Monroe and Capizzi said it was their understanding that the state Supreme Court upheld a single bribery count against Diedrich and a conspiracy count against Diedrich and Rose while agreeing with the appeals court to throw out one bribery count against Diedrich alone.

Jim Gianulias of Newport Beach, a partner in what has been called the Bristol Plaza, said the City Council's decision Monday to increase allowable heights along the east side of Bristol Street between the San Diego Freeway and Paularino Avenue to 85 feet will allow him to develop a high-rise complex. For two years the City Council turned down his request to construct high-rise office buildings on a 4-acre site located between the freeway and the closed Montgomery Ward and Co. store.

"We've got to go back to the architects," said Gianulias. "We're really starting all over again.

Following the City Council's denial last December, Gianulias said he was prepared to go ahead and design an office complex within the city's two-story limit.

He said he plans to submit new plans for either two hotel or ofice buildings within the next 90 days.

In addition to the 85-foot limit, the council also set a 50-foot limit on construction along the west side of Bristol Street between the freeway and Paularino Avenue and voted to maintain a 30-foot limit south of Paularino.

It remains unclear what effect the 85-foot limit will have on California Pacific Properties' plans for an eight-story hotel and four high-rise offices, the highest being 125 feet.

Last month the development company in partnership with C.J. Segerstrom and Sons revealed plans for the hotel and office complex to be built on the 13.6 acre site formerly occupied by Ward.

Company representatives have been unavailable for comment regarding their plans.

California Properties had sought a 130-foot limit, while residents speaking at the meeting Monday said they would favor a 55-foot limit.

Support for California Properties' 130-foot limit came from Brookview Homeowners Association President Lester Thompson. However, several other Brookview residents opposed the

President approves compromise budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan said today a compromise budget plan drafted by Senate Republicans and endorsed by the White House "can put our country firmly on the road to economic prosperity" if congressional Democrats cooperate.

At a question-and-answer session with reporters in the White House Rose Garden, Reagan'said the new budget will "continue to protect" the basic benefits of Social Security recipients. The compromise budget plan was said to include $40 billion in unspecified Social Security cuts and tax

Reagan was questioned on that point, but did not explain how the reductions could be obtained without lowering benefits. He did say that the savings "could come from a restructuring of the program," but didn't explain that in detail.

The president said the answer on Social Security would come ultimately from a bipartisan commission studying the system. The commission is expected to report by the end of the year. (See BUDGET, Page A2)

Meade, however, said it was rather routine for further information to be sought so that a determination can be made on whether to conduct a full-scale investigation into any claims of misreporting.

Based on what any further information would show, Meade said the FPPC would then decide whether to pursue the matter. The agency has a wide range of options, ranging from taking no further action to bringing either civil or criminal legal action. Frizzelle once again claimed Sills was attempting to create an issue where none really exists. And the assemblyman, elected four years ago, faulted Sills for trying the case "in the

U.S. losing ground in Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. backing for Britain in the Falklands crisis is producing a backlash in Latin America that could hamper American efforts to resist communist expansionism in Central America

The hostile hemispheric reaction to the U.S. move Friday has raised doubts about American ability to muster broad-based support for its Central American policies.

And the crisis has left the United States more politically isolated from its Latin neighbors than at any time in recent memory as virtually all governments from the region, spanning the political spectrum, have aligned themselves with the Argentine cause.

Britain vowed today to continue military activities to regain the Falkland Islands while accepting U.N. proposals as a framework for future talks. An Argentine Foreign Ministry source said the British position ruled out a diplomatic solution, for the moment.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons in London that Britain accepted U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's proposals for settling the conflict as a "framework" for future talks, but said Britain will "continue with our military activities."

Perez de Cuellar refused to make public his peace plan, but informed sources said it included a cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the Falklands area and appointment of a U.N. administrator for the islands while negotiations resume to determine their future. The plan reportedly takes no position on the thorny sovereignty issue.

Britain said Wednesday it was working with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on a plan from Perez de Cuellar that included an early cease-fire and withdrawal. But the ideas were never spelled out and the latest statements clearly indicated more fighting was likely over the South Atlantic islands that Argentina seized from Britain on

"It would be too easy to say no military activities during negotiations," Mrs. Thatcher said. "What would happen? We should be hamstrung. The people would still remain under the heel of the invader while the Argentines increased their activities on the mainland, increased their supplies and reserves in order to attack us at their will."

But Mrs. Thatcher said it was 'likely" that Argentina was seeking a cease-fire without withdrawal of its troops from the islands

"That would be a very evident ploy to keep them in possession of their ill-gotten gains. We are right to be very, very wary of it,"

Meanwhile, no new military action was reported in the South Atlantic battle zone Wednesday

Volunteerism was the theme Wednesday afternoon as the Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce honored Norma Hertzog and Harold "Bud" Hohl as Man and Woman of the Year at the Costa Mesa Country Club.

Ms. Hertzog, a councilwoman since 1974 and the city's first woman mayor, was honored for her numerous civic and community activities that included the Orange County League of Cities, United Way, the YMCA and the Family Service Association of Orange County.

Hohl, a former Marine and leader of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was lauded for his work with the Boy Scouts and the Navajo and Hopi Indians.

Speaking about Mrs. Hertzog, John Schade, executive assistant to county Supervisor Thomas Riley, said, "We have found her to be a conscientious, hardworking, dedicated public servant. When she tells you something she tells you something directly. She never lies."

Hank Panian, president of the Mesa Consolidated Water District, praised Hohl as "generous and effective."

The two award winners also were praised by representatives of the City of Costa Mesa, Sen. John Schmitz, Assemblywoman Marion Bergeson, Congressman Robert Badham and Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle.

Dispute threatens fine college system

An unhealthy schism between the Coast Community College District administration and its full-time instructors seems to be growing wider each day.

In a campuswide poll, Orange Coast College instructors this week indicated by a large margin that they lack confidence in Chancellor Norman Watson and the district's board of trustees.

The teachers also voiced objections to the manner in which a new Orange Coast College president, Bernard Luskin, was selec-

This vote comes on the heels of another quarrel regarding the district's use of television courses, offered through Coastline College, which Luskin currently heads.

Four Orange Coast College professors questioned the quality of television courses in a letter sent to officials of four-year colleges throughout California.

Officials of the junior college district then demanded that the professors retract their letter and threatened legal action if they

The academic senates of Orange Coast and Golden West College countered by unanimously approving resolutions echoing the concerns voiced by the authors of the telecourse letter.

Emotions are running high on both sides. In some cases, seemingly to the point of paranoia.

With television instruction, the district believes it can reach more students (and receive more state funds), with reduced class-room and faculty expenses.

The instructors, on the other hand, believe increasing use of television may jeopardize their jobs. They also say they have se-rious concerns about how well students learn in the telecourses.

Regarding the Luskin appointment, the teachers felt disenfranchised when trustees turned away from the applicants suggested by a screening committee and named Luskin, who had not even applied, to the Orange Coast presidency.

Trustees argued that they are the people elected to make such

Both camps seem to be standing firm. The district claims the unrest is related to current teacher contract bargaining. The instructors say the trustees have ignored them for too long.

The dispute is diverting attention from the more important question of how to maintain educational quality at a time when state aid to community colleges is being reduced.

The present split between professors and administrators must be closed before it tears the basic fabric of what has been one of the nation's finest community college systems.

To begin with, the contending parties should start communicating with each other in less hys-

'IS THERE A DOCTOR OF ECONOMICS IN THE HOUSE?

Two-house legislature best

The litany for a unicameral legislature started by former Speaker Jesse Unruh and continued by Common Cause has now been taken up by Sen. Barry Keene. He has proposed a constitutional amendment which would replace the present Legislature with a senate of 67 members.

Arguing the present system which is costing over $100 million annually is "too duplicative and far too expensive," he contends the "checks and balances" contemplated with a two-house Legislature have been eliminated by the "one-man, one-vote" court decisions. He says his plan would save $23 million

WHILE HS IS correct in the view that the Legislature is "far too expensive," his remedy is akin to throwing the baby out with the bathwater. For it is essential that the Legislature remain a strong branch of the government and its necessary costs should not be an argument for weakening its powers.

The reason the Legislature is now too costly is due to the self-indulgence of the members. Far more than $23 million can be saved in current legislative operations by eliminating the so-called field offices,

a euphemism for the year around campaign headquarters maintained by each member in his district, cutting the outrageous payroll with its more than 2,200 staff workers whose main function is

partisan politics, and discontinuing the furnishing of autos and unlimited supplies of gasoline for each member.

It is true that the changes brought about by the court ruling on the oneman, one-vote issue have weakened the check and balance of the two-house. system. It is not true that it has been eliminated.

On the same day that Keene was expounding to the press on his plan, As-sembly Speaker Willie Brown told the press the Assembly would not pass any new tax bills this session because the members didn't believe the Senate would agree, thus demonstrating that the checks and balances of the two house system is alive and working.

Under the current legislative plan each bill introduced must clear one or more committees in each house. This provides the public with more than one chance at testifying for or against proposals. Under a one-house system the bills would only be subject to one public hearing before passage, thus reducing the time the public would have to learn of the proposals and present its views.

Proponents contend that this would make the Legislature more efficient. But if efficiency means the quick passage of new laws it will not benefit the public. The Legislature is supposed to be a deliberative body in which all proposals are carefully weighed.

THE WORST feature of the Keene one-house proposal is that it would inevitably place far too much power in the hands of one man, the speaker or, under Keene's proposal, the president of the

A much better plan for reducing legislative costs and making the legislature more efficient is that of Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson who would return the Legislature to the people by limiting the length of sessions and providing for its meeting only every other year

Foundations can help rescue schools

To the Editor:

In a recent article, a UC law professor, John Coons, and our state Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. Wilson Riles bemoan the sprouting phenomenon of educational foundations. They discredit the formation of these foundations as perpetrators of inequality in the funding of the public educational symptomatic of a society that is fed up with being told that they can't provide their children with whatever level of public education they deem adequate in their own community after they have paid the bills to educate everybody else's child in the public school system. Many of the same voices that wring their hands and cry for "equal" funding of the public educational system are the same people who pay little, if any, of the taxes that provide for that funding.

It is my opinion that foundations are not a threat in any way to public edu-cation as Mr. Riles suggests, but rather

It seems to me that Coons and Riles are much more interested in pulling down the educational level of the socalled affluent segments of our society, rather than bringing the less affluent segments up to a predetermined level of educational competency. What they propose is nothing less than a headlong rush to educational mediocrity. And this doesn't appear to bother them in the slightest as long as everyone is "equal" at the lowest possible common denominator of educational competence

FORTUNATELY, an ever-increasing majority of people in this state refuse to succumb to this call for public educational mediocrity. And thus we are witnessing an explosion in the formation of the public school foundations. What the foundations can contribute isn't a drop in the bucket in comparison to the total budget. At $500,000 it represents about 1 percent of our local Newport-Mesa District's budget. But on the other hand, this sum equates to about 20 teachers salaries. And 20 teachers can go a long way to teaching remedial reading, etc., or whatever a particular district thinks it is being deprived of by the state's unfair 'equalizing" funding formulas dictated by the court's Serrano-Priest decision.

One very important function that these foundations are performing is to sound the clarion to our citizens that our public educational system is in danger of succumbing to the social engineering excesses of our liberal state judicial system; and unless the people stand up and demand of their legislators that something be done about it, we will witness the complete emasculation of our public educational system as we know it well before the end of this decade.

Foundations are in no way the ulti-mate answer to the plight of our public school system. They do, however, serve as a temporary life-saving tourniquet that is being urgently applied to our hemorrhaging public school system whose financial life-blood is being bled white by the court-imposed sanctions of the Serrano-Priest decision.

The ultimate cure for the peril that we now find our public education system in is through public supported legislation that will set a predetermined level of excellence in public education for all of our public schools. At the same time, this legislation should encourage communities to exceed this predetermined level of educational excellence through their own additional financial sacrifices if they are willing and able to do so

Backing baffles

To the Editor:

In the April 26 Pilot I noted a news story datelined Burlingame, stating the CTA (California Teachers Assn.) representing 197,000 members, endorsement of Tom Bradley and Jerry Brown for governor and U.S. Senator respectively.

On the editorial page, Earl Waters' column graphically describes Gov. Brown's underhanded raid on the Public Employees Retirement System Pension Fund in the amount of $180 million to help balance his budget.

This is the employees' own money, held in trust for their pensions.

If the CTA endorses a candidate of that ilk, and their endorsement reflects their idea of intelligent thinking I can now more easily understand one of the reasons why students are reportedly not learning more in school.

Medicare fraud

To the Editor:

My subject is Medicare fraud. I encountered it last year when I was hos-pitalized for a broken hip. I was charged for things I never received, like $2.50 for a sample of toothpaste. I wrote to both my senators; from them I received a reply that showed they missed the point. I was not complaining about what I had to pay. My complaint was what they are doing to Medicare. I wrote to the president and received no reply. Is this an issue that is too hot to handle? Do you believe this may account for the near demise of Social Security?

NOW THERE IS something new. A nedical center has been set up for Medicare patients where the doctors accept what Medicare pays. The first time I went I never saw the bill, still don't know what it was. Then I was sent to a dermatologist who also accepts what

He charged Medicare $695 for a procedure (exactly) that I had done a few months ago for $80 and couldn't understand why I was shocked, when I didn't have to pay for it. Some people may not care but I do. I refused to sign the bill and have reported it to Health Care Administration. I have written to both my senators and told them of thousands of dollars the hospitals are cheating; they also missed the point, or is it a no-no subject? It is bigger than the defense budget and it's killing Social Security. I feel I must give it one more try to wake somebody up.

Prom souvenir

To the Editor:

We believe a response is in order toyour headline story of April 23.

The souvenir glasses described in your news story were purchased from a supplier who had advertised them as parfait glasses. The intent of the students was to purchase a souvenir glass that could be given to those attending the 1982 prom.

We understand some persons were offended because they perceived the glass and the song title printed on it as a kind of encouragement to drink alcoholic beverages. For that we are sorry. That certainly was not the intent of the Associated Student Body or the school. To the contrary, over the past several years, the school has worked very hard to discourage and prevent the use of alcohol at school activities.

WE SERIOUSLY question the manner in which the Daily Pilot pursued this story as well as their purpose in soliciting and publishing remarks by Mr. Gerondale. The Gerondale family has always had our deepest sympathy in regard to the tragic loss of their daughter, Jill. It is our opinion the Daily Pilot engaged in very irresponsible and insensitive journalism in dealing with this issue. Further, we were amazed this story was selected by the Daily Pilot editors as "front page material.

'Fiddler' appeal universal

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Fiddler on the Roof" is a 1960s musical about Jews in turn-of-thecentury Russia that, in its 1980s reincarnation, has tremendous appeal to the Japanese

"I was in Japan and I saw the play in Japanese," said the show's recurrent star, Herschel Bernardi. "The audience started laughing on cue and crying . . . After the show, the Japanese producer said, 'I don't see why the show should be so popular in America. It's so Japanese'."

The reason, Bernardi said, is "the content of this play is about the breakdown of tradition and the family. He (the Japanese producer) said, 'What's happening in this play is happening today in Japan'." The show also has attracted new audiences from New York to the Pantages Theater in Los Angeles, where Bernardi bows out June 20 to undergo rest and therapy for a back problem. Afterward, he said, he may develop a one-man show under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution.

He said he was persuaded to do the revival because the original director, Jerome Robbins, was going to stage it. Bernardi, who took over the role on Broadway from Zero Mostel, had never worked with Robbins.

"This is not a re-creation, it's a restitution," he said. "We have new insights, we're older."

One significant difference that's developed in the past 15 years is that the show is now advertised on television and radio as well as newspapers.

"We have opened up a new audience to live theater," said Bernardi, wearing a burnoose as he
